By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A five-year "priorities plan" was adopted during a special meeting of the Hereford Independent School District Board of Directors Thursday at noon.

Assistant Superintendent John Walch handed out copies of the multi-page document and briefly explained the five goals set by a committee of school administrators and instructors.

Topping the list is a reading proficiency goal. Walch said the school district would like to see 75 percent of all students reading at or above their grade levels as measured by the California Achievement Test. Currently that figure is 57 percent for third graders and 50 percent among fifth and ninth graders tested.

The second goal is a similar one in mathematics. "By spring, 1989," states the report, "75 percent of the students in third, fifth and ninth grades will be achieving in mathematics at or above the 50th percentile as measured by the total mathematics score on the California Achievement Test administered in the spring."

The plan says if that objective is reached, the student will be "able to comprehend mathematical concepts...to perform basic mathematical operations...and solve common practical problems using mathematical skills and knowledge."

Last year, 47 percent of local third graders scored at or above the 50th percentile in mathematics. For fifth graders, the number was 53 percent, while 59 percent of ninth graders made the desired score.

The remaining three goals, Walch said, deal with maintenance of the NCE (National Curve Equivalent) ranking among students in three designated achievement groups.

The goal is the same for both reading and mathematics, according to the report. Among the top students (those who scored at or above the 80th percentile as measured last spring by the CAT), the district hopes 60 percent will maintain or increase that ranking.

Based on scores of a reading pre-test given in the fall of 1982 and a post-test administered the next spring, only 30 percent of third graders in the top group maintained or gained in the NCE rankings. That figure rose to 43 percent for fifth graders and 48 percent among ninth graders.

In the mathematics area, 20 percent of third graders in the top group maintained or gained during the school year, as compared with 43 percent of fifth graders and 24 percent of the ninth grade students tested.

The middle group as designated by the school district is composed of students who scored between the 30th and 79th percentile on the CAT. Walch said the school would like to see 65 percent of those students maintain or increase their NCE ranking.

In reading, 56 percent of third graders in the middle group did so last year, while 54 percent of fifth graders and 45 percent of ninth graders held their own.

Math testing revealed that 34 percent of third graders stayed the same or made higher CAT scores, while the figure rose to 50 percent among fifth graders and 55 percent at the ninth grade level.

The goal for students in the bottom group, those scoring below the 29th percentile, is 90 percent will do as well or better within the next five years.

Reading scores from a year ago show that 72 percent of third and ninth graders managed to reach that goal. The figure was 52 percent for fifth grade students.

Looking at math scores, records show that 78 percent

O'Bryan execution nears

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan, known as "the man who ruined Halloween" after poisoning his young son by cyanide-laced trick-or-treat candy, inched closer to execution as his attorneys raced to win a reprieve that would spare the condemned man's life a fourth time.

Attorney Stefan Presser of the American Civil Liberties Union said appeals would be filed with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White today. The attorney is arguing that death by injection is cruel and unusual punishment and seeking a stay of Saturday's scheduled execution.

Similar requests were rejected Thursday by a federal judge in Houston and by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The high court earlier this week turned down a request for a new trial by O'Bryan, who won three previous stays of execution.

Attorneys seek reprieve

"I would think if we don't have a stay in hand" from White that attorneys will be unable to halt the execution, Presser said.

O'Bryan, dubbed the "Candy Man" by fellow Death Row inmates, was sentenced to death by injection for the Oct. 31, 1974, murder of his 8-year-old son, Timothy.

O'Bryan, a 39-year-old former optician from the Houston suburb of Deer Park, has vigorously professed his innocence, saying he was used as a scapegoat by authorities under pressure to solve the highly-publicized murder.

"I've been blamed for everything bad that's happened on Halloween since day one," O'Bryan said in a recent Death Row interview.

While his attorneys pressed the courts to grant a stay, an Austin accountant who worked in a church ministry with O'Bryan a decade ago and an 18-year-old college student who will witness the execution delivered a hand-written plea for mercy from O'Bryan to the governor's office.

"I do not want to die! I am prepared as a Christian for my death under any circumstances. However, I have no death wish — nil," the note said.

See related stories, page 8

O'Bryan's note asked White, who has the power to grant a 30-day delay, to allow more time for legal maneuvers in the case. The governor said he would review O'Bryan's file to assure himself that no procedural errors were made during the 1975 trial.

But White said the public could have little confidence in a system that allowed almost nine years to elapse before a sentence was carried out.

"I'm not inclined to to grant the extension unless there's a reason. The governor's role is one of last resort," he said.

David Sefton, who worked with O'Bryan in a Pasadena Baptist church's bus ministry, and Kim Manganaro, a Texas A&M University journalism student who has been corresponding with the convicted killer for six months, hoped to deliver O'Bryan's note to White. They gave up after waiting more than two hours for the governor.

The pair vowed to take O'Bryan's plea for life to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles. The panel earlier this week voted against recommending that White delay the execution for 90 days.

Five organizations also wrote White on Thursday, asking for a 30-day stay

Storm prompts thousands to flee

By DANA FIELDS
Associated Press Writer

A freak storm that claimed 71 lives from Alabama to Massachusetts clawed the East Coast for a third day today after plunging nearly half a million people into darkness, forcing thousands to flee coastal flooding and clogging highways with up to 2 feet of snow.

Born early this week as a West Texas sandstorm, the wintry weather system carried a deadly arsenal that included tornadoes in the Carolinas, where 60 people were known dead, and winds that gusted to 80 mph in New England and southern New York.

Power lines snapped under ice or were felled by trees nearly as fast as crews could

Snow clogging up highways

replace them Thursday, and utility companies from Delaware to Massachusetts — where 150,000 homes were without power late Thursday — said it could be two to three days before all electricity was restored.

"This is our worst storm in 15 years in terms of rate of damage," said Walter Salvi of Boston Edison Co., which reported 100,000 customers without power late Thursday. Utility crews from New York and Vermont were imported to assist in Massachusetts.

The worst damage was along the 260-mile arc of tornado destruction in the Carolinas, where the cleanup continued today as National Guard troops stood guard against looters and survivors traded tales of miracle escapes.

The storm was located today off Massachusetts' Cape Cod, which was briefly cut off Thursday when two soaring bridges connected to the mainland were closed. A Coast Guard helicopter rescued 23 crewmen from a Maltese freighter that ran aground on the cape late Thursday.

Among the heaviest snowfalls were 16 inches in Worcester, Mass., 13 inches in Litchfield, Conn., 15 inches in three central New York counties and 26 inches at Greentown, Pa.

In Pennsylvania, where two people died in weather related accidents and one suffered a fatal heart attack trudging through snow, a Mertzown couple managed to scramble from their car stalled on railroad tracks just in time to see it demolished by a Conrail freight train.

High tides 6 to 10 feet above normal pounded shorelines from Virginia to New England and, coupled with high winds, ate away at dunes and beaches.

"The dunes have been breached. They just don't exist any more," said John Friedrich of the Cape May County Emergency Management office in southern New Jersey. Thousands of tourists

Friday's Local Roundup

Five vehicles damaged

Five motor vehicles were involved in a non-injury accident at approximately 7:35 p.m. Thursday, Hereford police reported this morning.

Leo Vernon Artho, 57 of Dalhart, was subsequently arrested at Big Daddy's Restaurant on E. Highway 60 for driving while intoxicated and disorderly conduct. The accident occurred when, driving east on Fifteenth Street, Artho plowed his 1980 Chevrolet pickup into a parked car, which began a domino effect resulting in three other vehicles being damaged.

Meanwhile, local resident Victor Carbajal was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital for treatment of various head and body injuries. Police have one suspect for the aggravated assault, which reportedly took place at the Quality Motel, E. Highway 60.

An estimated $300 of windows were shot by BB pellets sometime after 6 p.m. Wednesday, police reported. Victim of the crime is Jerry Hix, 239 Ave. D, who owned the involved 1967 Ford van.

According to Lt. Vernon Hope, that and seven or eight other window-breaking incidents this week have apparently been solved by the arrest of three male juveniles.

AT&T outlet shuts down

The American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) outlet at the Unique Shop, 149 N. 25 Mile Ave., was closed Thursday.

AT&T customers may call the toll-free number, 1-800-555-8111, if they have any questions. Information about leasing, buying, billing and repair of AT&T phones and accessory equipment will reportedly be given through that number 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Hereford residents are offered via direct shipment AT&T telephone equipment for lease, purchase or repair.

Jim Steiert, publicity chairman for HYF, said candidates for the agriculture scholarship will also be considered. The scholarship is presented each spring to an HHS senior who plans to study agriculture at the undergraduate level.

Union accuses Trailways

DALLAS (AP) — A union spokesman for Trailways Inc. workers has accused the bus company of using "intimidation and dirty tricks" to win concessions it was unable to get last year at the bargaining table.

Trailways has asked union members to give up a 4.5 percent pay raise and accept a freeze on a cost-of-living adjustment set to go into effect Saturday. Both provisions are contained in a union contract that does not expire until 1985.

If the union refuses, the company has threatened to lay off 400 to 500 drivers and 300 to 400 terminal workers in its El Paso region, which extends from Washington state to western Texas. Amalgamated Transit Union representative Antonio Rosales said Thursday.

Plea never reaches governor

AUSTIN (AP) — A hand-written letter by condemned killer Ronald Clark O'Bryan that pleaded "I do not want to die!" never reached Gov. Mark White, and officials are at a loss about what to do with the letter.

O'Bryan's plea for life was delivered to the Capitol on Thursday, but the two people who wanted to hand it to White gave up after waiting for him for more than two hours.

Austin accountant David Sefton, who worked in a church ministry with O'Bryan a decade ago, and Kim Manganaro, a college student who will witness the Saturday execution, said they'd take O'Bryan's plea to the Board of Pardons and Poles today.

Firefighters stand watch

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Firefighters were expected to stand watch throughout today to make sure brush fires that consumed six houses, a wildlife management center and 3,500 acres of Hill Country land don't ignite again.

"There are still hot spots. You get a wind come up, all it takes is for it to blow an ember from it into the grass, and you've got trouble again," Kerrville Fire Capt. Steve Langlinis said Thursday night.

"They'll watch all four fires throughout Friday, I'd say, ... to make sure it doesn't break out again," Langlinis said of the fires, which were pronounced under control at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Winds gusting up to 60 mph helped the fires to spread on Tuesday and Wednesday. But winds were calm on Thursday, and that eased the attempt to get the blazes under control.

Residents ponder eruption

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — With a wall of lava creeping forward just five miles from Hawaii's second largest city, officials pondered ways to divert Mauna Loa's fiery flow as some residents voluntarily left their homes and others held "house warming" parties.

No dwellings were immediately threatened Thursday by the volcano's inexorable outpouring of 2,000-degree molten rock, and no evacuations had been ordered, county civil defense officials said. But scientists said the speed and direction of the flow could change at any moment. The largest lava flow from the volcano had advanced to within about five miles of Kaunana.

Shattered towns patrolled

MT. OLIVE, N.C. (AP) — National Guardsmen patrolled tornado-smashed towns in the Carolinas today in search of looters, while officials assessed damage from twisters that created what looked like a "war zone," killing at least 60 people and leaving 3,000 homeless.

Pigs, turkeys and other livestock that survived the destruction in a 3-mile-wide, mostly rural swath of North Carolina roamed freely through fields Thursday, while farmers beheld flattened crops and shattered barns and silos.

Forty-four people were known dead in North Carolina and the death toll stood at 16 in South Carolina, where the funnel clouds began their 260-mile journey across the two states on Wednesday afternoon.

In North Carolina, at least 801 people were injured, many critically, and 2,279 were homeless.

In South Carolina, where at least 250 people were hurt and 800 left homeless, local and state tax assessors were to meet this morning to evaluate the damage.

Williams claims presidency

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lynn Williams claimed victory today as the first Canadian president of the million-member United Steelworkers of America, but union treasurer Frank McKee refused to concede defeat and an aide said he likely will challenge the vote in court.

An Associated Press survey of unofficial returns early today from the union's 23 districts in the United States and Canada showed Williams with 137,619 votes to 79,111 for McKee.

If the official tally upholds his win, Williams will serve the remaining two years in the term of Lloyd McBride, who died Nov. 6.

Williams, 59, who was union secretary, and McKee, 63, have been at odds since Williams was elected temporary president of the nation's sixth largest union upon McBride's death.

The two had run on the same slate with McBride in the union's 1977 elections, serving together in an administration that last year agreed to nearly $3 billion in wage and benefit concessions for a membership diminished by layoffs and plant closings.

Envoy begins tour

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — President Reagan's new envoy for Central America visited Honduras just ahead of new joint U.S.-Honduran military maneuvers and praised a four-nation effort to curb armed conflict in the region.

In neighboring Nicaragua, two cargo boats struck mines near a port Thursday, and the defense minister blamed "North American commandos." The minister, Humberto Ortega, left for the Soviet Union and North Korea in search of military aid.

U.S. Ambassador Harry Shlaudeman arrived Thursday in Honduras and met with President Robert Suazo Cordova and other government officials. The content of the discussions was not revealed.

In a statement to reporters, Shlaudeman praised the efforts of the Contadora group to negotiate peaceful solutions to conflicts in Central America. The group consists of Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.

tion at a 237 Ave. F blaze which was called in at 3:53 p.m. Thursday. He and the other firemen returned to the station by 6:15 p.m.

Lewis Grizzard

Sports cars not all they're believed to be

Editor's Note: The Brand plans to run, as an experiment, several Lewis Grizzard columns during the next couple of months. If you have any comments regarding them or how you feel they compare with Paul Harvey columns, please write to our managing editor, Box 673, Hereford, Tx. 79045.

Sooner or later, everybody goes through the stage of wanting to own a sports car. I think it has something to do with being deprived as a child.

I had plenty to eat as a child, and I was warm at night. But I never had the real necessities, like a trip to Europe after high school graduation or a sports car.

I have owned all sorts of cars. My first car was a red-and-white 1956 Chevrolet. Tennis rackets cost more today than I paid for my first car.

I have also owned a Volkswagen, several Pontiacs and a Vega. Of all the cars I have owned, the Vega is the one I have never forgiven.

It was brown and hard to crank. I used to park it in bad neighborhoods and leave the keys on the hood, hoping somebody would steal it.

Somebody tried once. I was hiding in a nearby alley watching with a pair of jumper cables just in case. When the Vega wouldn't crank, I appeared with the jumper cables and offered my services to the thief.

"Forget it," he said. I gave him taxi fare home for his efforts and called a tow truck. I finally got rid of my Vega by giving it to my ex-wife. I am a bad person.

A year and a half ago, I decided it was time I had my first sports car. The eagle inside me cried for the opportunity to soar.

The open road lies ahead, begging to be conquered. I wind my way along it, two steady, gloved hands sure upon the wheel of my classic new sports car. The sleek lines are unmistakable. The perfectly balanced hum of the engine is a purr.

I pass through Barletta as a streaking blur. And on through Trani, Bisceglie, Molfetta, toward Monopoli, along the Italian shore, the blue waters of the Adriatic shimmering in the sun.

My road hat sits deftly upon my head, tilted at precisely the correct, cocksure angle. My scarf treads the breeze behind me. As the road straightens, I press the toe of my right Gucci against the accelerator, and the naked eye cannot still the motion I command.

The woman beside me? A long and most unbelievable story, my friend. It began only a fortnight ago as I stood on the balcony of my hotel room in Roma....

Picture that in a brown Vega that won't crank and has a lot of empty beer cans in the hatchback.

The sports car I finally bought is a British import, one of those sexy little numbers with the racing stripes and plaid seat covers. The man who sold it to me is from Tupelo, Miss., and chews gum. His leisure suit matched the seat covers of the car.

"Sassy chassis, ain't it?" he remarked as we looked at the car. Somehow, I thought buying a sports car would be like shopping for rare art treasures. It ain't.

I am now an expert on sports cars because I have owned one for a year and a half.

Here are the advantages of owning sports cars:

1. They're cute.

Here are the disadvantages of owning sports cars:

1. Sitting in a shoebox is more comfortable.

were stranded in Atlantic City as the sea washed over causeways connecting the resort to the mainland, ripping out a 100-foot section of the famed Boardwalk.

The heaviest evacuations were in Connecticut, where more than 600 people were helped from their homes in Milford, Fairfield and Westbrook, and in New Jersey, where Gov. Thomas Kean declared a limited emergency in eight counties.

Among the estimated 1,800 people who fled their homes in New Jersey was Joseph Furlong of Highlands, who said he knew it was time to leave when he awoke Thursday morning to see one of his children's beds afloat.

At its height in the Northeast on Thursday, the storm caused power outages that affected 100,000 people in eastern Pennsylvania, 50,000 in Connecticut, 150,000 in Massachusetts, about 5,000 in Delaware, 57,000 in New York, 130,000 in New Jersey, 16,500 in Rhode Island, 11,000 in Washington, D.C., and 4,500 in West Virginia.

"It seems as soon as we get one house hooked back up, a tree falls over down the street, ripping out the line," said Wally Judd, a spokesman for Delmarva Power and Light Co. in Delaware. He estimated it would be 48 hours before power was restored to all customers.

The storm had begun Monday in Texas, where it brought snow to the Panhandle, record heat to the Gulf Coast, sandstorms in the western part of the state and drenching thunderstorms that moved over across the Gulf Coast states. Rivers in southern Georgia and northern Florida were pushed over their banks by up to 7 inches of rain, and swollen waterways were not expected to crest until next week.

On Wednesday, as the storm's northern reaches hit New York with heavy rain, a cell bearing thunderstorms and dozens of tornadoes raced across South and North Carolina.

Rescuers abandoned a search off Cape Cod on Thursday for a New Bedford fisherman whose boat was found with the engine running.

of third graders in the bottom group did as well or better by the end of the year. Among fifth grade students it was 65 percent and 82 percent of ninth graders held their own.

"I believe these goals can be achieved and I think they (the members of the committee) believe it," Walch told the board.

"They are high, but I think we can achieve the goals," added Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder. He said that he is trying to be realistic and knows that probably not every goal will be fully reached, but stressed it is possible and worth working for.

"The important thing," Walch commented, "is that we want every student to grow every year."

Board members voted 5 to 0 to accept the plan as written.

Brown addresses group on Tuesday

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown spoke Tuesday evening about his bid for election April 7, according to a report by Brown's campaign organizers.

The question-and-answer session was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reinauer.

Brown, the report claimed, said he lives within Hereford city limits and would be immediately available for emergencies. "I know what's happening and when I'm needed."

When asked about teenage drug and alcohol problems, Brown replied several drug busts and arrests have recently been made. He reportedly stressed how schools and streets need to be clean of this problem and good relations need to be established with teenagers and children.

Some of Brown's staff said the sheriff supports them and morale is very high, according to the report. They also stated Brown has required twice-a-year weapons proficiency testing, required annually by state law but not held locally "in approximately five years."

Brown also reportedly said his current duties prevent him from campaigning during working hours. He said he would be available, however, after hours or during weekends for any consultation.

Brown "stated that he would like to be able to meet all the citizens of Deaf Smith County personally," the report said, "but, due to the demands of his job, he would be limited in his campaign time. (Brown) ended with encouragement everyone to come by the department to visit or just observe. Everyone is welcome."

His pollster, Dottie Lynch, said many New Yorkers have indicated they are sympathetic to Hart but skeptical about his views. That was one reason Hart aired the 20-minute commercial.

Campaigning in New York, Mondale responded to criticism about the use of political action committees' money by independent groups set up to support Mondale's candidacy.

Mondale has refused to accept money from political action committees, as has Hart, and Mondale said he would "prefer" that independent committees supporting him not accept the money either.

"I want it done the way I suggest," Mondale said.

But federal records show many of the so-called "delegate committees," legally independent but working in support of Mondale, have taken thousands of dollars from PACs backed by organized labor and other groups.

Hart, sticking to New York City again today, told the same forum Thursday that despite their sometimes bitter debate, he and Mondale have no serious differences on civil rights, education, support of Israel or the environment.

New spouse troubles

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our parents were divorced in 1980. They have both remarried. Eight months ago my sister decided on a church wedding. She invited both our parents and their spouses. It was a disaster.

To make matters worse, they bought identical gifts. I tried to make a joke of it by saying it was natural for them to think the same after having lived together for 25 years. Nobody laughed.

My other sister is planning to be married in June. She wants a church wedding but wishes to avoid a free-for-all. Both Mom and Dad have been told they are welcome, but their spouses are not.

Dad says he will come without his wife but Mom refuses to show up unless her husband is welcome. He said he would gladly stay away to keep the peace, but she says "No way." What should he do?—Trouble In The Family

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recall that 15,000 people wrote to you about the "right way" to hang toilet paper. I have a similar problem. Can you help?

What is the proper way to put sheets on a bed? Is it fancy side facing fancy side—or bottom sheet and top sheet both facing the blanket?

I do it sandwich style, so when I open the covers I am looking at two fancy sides. My sister-in-law says I am doing it wrong. She learned from her mother who, in her day, had nothing but white sheets. What do you say?—J.J. In Winnipeg

DEAR J.J.: Your method makes sense. That's the way we do it in my house.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 17 years old and want more than anything in the world to be an artist. The few people who have been shown my work discouraged me by saying I'm not "with it." Any advice?—Downbeat In Torrance

Chapter Officers

treasurer; Mamie Kendall, weight recorder; and (in front) Shirley Carr, assistant weight recorder. Not pictured is Frances Tamez, reporter.

DEAR TROUBLE: Your sister has the right to invite whoever she pleases. She should tell her mother, "Sorry, we will miss you..." (Under the circumstances, if your sister wishes to include her father's second wife, she should feel free to do so).

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a friend, 13, who thinks she should be paid by her mother for doing housework. I don't agree.

I think if a person lives in a house it is his or her responsibility to keep the place neat and clean. Nobody pays my mother for doing the laundry and mopping the floors.

How do you feel about it?—Edmonton Teen

DEAR ED: I agree with you, but some parents have another approach that also makes sense. Instead of just handing over an allowance, they insist that their children perform chores as "payment." If they don't do the chores, they don't get the allowance. I like the idea of earning.

Installation held Tuesday

Janell Davison installed new officers of TOPS Chapter 576 Tuesday morning at the Hereford Community Center. Mamie Kendall was named Miss Inspiration and was also best loser for the month of March, with a loss of 5 1/2 pounds. Mary Lou Spinhirne was runner-up, with a 2 1/2 pound loss.

The chapter attained a "no gain" weigh-in, with a 14 1/2 pound total loss. Anyone interested in joining TOPS may contact Ms. Rogers at 364-8291.

Herd wins third straight, 14-6, over THS

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

Varsity baseball coach Don Long's investment of 10 basehits paid dividends amounting to 14 runs Tuesday as the Herd conquered its third straight district 3-5A victory here, 14-6.

The Whitefaces' opponent, Tascosa High, had a miserable afternoon trying to keep up with Hereford's aggressive baserunning.

The game was a makeup for Tuesday's contest which was snowed out.

Rebel pitchers committed a number of wild pitches and bases on balls which the Herd capitalized on.

"It was a typical Tascosa team, they hit the ball well but their pitching was suspect," coach Long said after the contest.

Whiteface pitching, on the other hand, came through when it had to.

Robert Martinez started on the mound for HHS but could not contain the barrage of hits off Rebel bats.

Long made a pitching change in the third inning and brought in hard-throwing righthander Ronnie Collier.

"Ronnie came in and did a fine job. He threw the ball hard and used his little curve to keep the batters off-balanced," Long said as Collier pitched 4 2-3 innings of shutout ball.

Tascosa jumped out to a 6-3 lead but the Herd tied the game at 6-6 in the bottom of the third. A solo homerun over the right-centerfield fence by Mickey Stengel was the big hit of the inning.

The Whitefaces went on to stay in the bottom of the fourth. Aided by four Rebel walks and an error, the Herd scored three runs.

The big inning of the day, though, was the bottom of the fifth when HHS scored five runs.

Gary Ruckman singled and stole second with one out in the fifth and scored when J.D. High ripped a single to left.

High crossed the plate on a triple off the bat of Mike Scott. Chet Bunch then rapped a single up the middle to score Scott. Bunch stole second but was thrown out when he attempted to swipe

The next two batters, Stengel and Collier, each drew a base on balls before Jeff Streun smacked a two-run double.

Collier finished the game strong as he struck out the side in the top of the seventh to gain the victory.

Although the season is presently 20 percent completed if the Herd can keep up its momentum Long said the district race could get interesting.

Much of Hereford's hopes depends on this weekend. The Herd plays Coronado High in Lubbock at 4 p.m. today and will host Caprock High Saturday at 1 p.m.

Thursday's win put HHS's district record at 3-1.

"I'm looking for the good teams to start emerging at this point in the season," Long said, adding it is still too early to make predictions as to where certain teams will finish.

To Indianapolis

Baltimore moves team

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In Baltimore, there was pain and anger. In Indianapolis, there was happiness mixed with understanding.

The long-rumored, on-again-off-again move of the National Football League Baltimore Colts was confirmed by the team's coach and general counsel Thursday and Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut III reacted with relief-tinged joy.

"I am of course sorry for my friends in Baltimore," Hudnut said at a news conference where he confirmed that a preliminary agreement had been reached. "While I'm sorry that Baltimore is broken-hearted this afternoon, I'm grateful that Indianapolis can rejoice."

The mayor refused to discuss details of the agreement reached between representatives of Colts' owner Robert Irsay and former Indianapolis Deputy Mayor David Frick, who represented the city.

He said details would be disclosed at Saturday's meeting of the Capital Improvement Board, which has the final say on use of the new 61,300-seat Hoosier Dome, where the team will play.

The mayor was careful to point out that the deal was not complete until all parties have signed the necessary agreements.

"We do not have, technically speaking, a deal yet," Hudnut said.

Hudnut said he hoped to have all agreements signed by Monday.

Indianapolis fans were in no mood to wait. "Everybody was screaming and yelling . . ." when word came of the Colts' move, said Beth Barnes, assistant manager of Churchill's, a bar located downtown not far from the Hoosier Dome.

Similar sentiments were expressed throughout the city.

The first indication that the move was imminent came Wednesday night when moving vans arrived at the Colts' suburban Baltimore training facility and office and began to load equipment. They were on their way Thursday.

The method of the move particularly upset Baltimore Mayor William D. Schaefer. He said he was sad "that this team so rich in tradition had to sneak out in the middle of the night."

A Baltimore bank Thursday night filed an attachment against the Colts assets toward the more-than $2.3 million it said the team owes Baltimore County. Attorney Michael Colglazier, representing the Equitable Bank, said the purpose of the attachment, "is to make sure the indebtedness will be paid."

If the debts, which Irsay owes for back rent and concessions at Memorial Stadium, are not paid, the assets will be seized, Colglazier said.

The bank is representing the creditors, whom Colglazier would not name.

Baltimore officials, editors and fans were furious with Irsay, who they said had betrayed them by not notifying him of his final decision.

NCAA Tournament

Powerhouses are ready

SEATTLE (AP) — The powerhouses are poised.

Over here we have No. 2 Georgetown, 32-3 during the regular season, champions of the Big East, led by imposing 7-foot Patrick Ewing. Hoardes of Hoyas swarm over the court on defense, making life exceedingly difficult for opponents.

Over there is No. 3 Kentucky, with the twin towers of 7-1 Sam Bowie and 6-11 Mel Turpin stationed menacingly under the basket. The Wildcats have a little tradition going for them — merely the winningest record in the history of college basketball. That impressive legacy was carried on through a 29-4 season.

And here comes No. 5 Houston, the Phi Slama Jama fraternity, presided over by 7-foot Akeem Olajuwon, who led the nation in blocked shots and rebounds. The men of Phi Slam are 31-4 and in the Final Four for the third straight year.

And then there's Virginia. The credentials of the powerhouses are awesome. Their combined record is 92-11 — not too shabby. They simply ooze talent, at both ends of the court. Two of them, Georgetown and Kentucky, were top-seeded in their regions for the tournament and the third, Houston, easily could have been.

And then there's Virginia. The Cavaliers are the ugly ducklings of this hoop hoedown, invited almost as an afterthought despite a fifth-place finish in the Atlantic Coast Conference and a 17-11 record that hardly belonged in neon lights.

The rest of the Eastern region bigshots, like top-seeded North Carolina, No. 2

Arkansas, No. 3 Syracuse and No. 4 Indiana are long gone, the last three personally eliminated by Virginia. Each time, Coach Terry Holland's team was a decided underdog. Each time, however, it found a way to win.

And just like that, here are the Cavaliers, still alive, still playing with the big boys.

Holland, Virginia's boyish-looking boss, simply loves it. His only regret, it seems, is that 7-4 Ralph Sampson, the symbol of Cavalier basketball for four brilliant seasons, couldn't be here to enjoy it, too.

"We always reflect on the fact that he did teach us how to win and to reach for this level," Holland said. "He is part of this in every way, in terms of the legacy he left us, in terms of being such an unselfish team player."

Hagler to defend title tonight in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler defends his undisputed middleweight title for the ninth time tonight in a bout against Argentina's Juan Domingo Roldan.

Hagler, who hasn't lost in 33 fights stretching back eight years, is a prohibitive favorite against the challenger, who is top-ranked by the World Boxing Association and No. 2 in the World Boxing Council ratings.

The 29-year-old champion went 15 rounds for the first time since winning the title his last time out against Roberto Duran and predicts this fight won't last nearly as long.

"I want to show the monster is back," Hagler said. "I'm looking for vindication after the Duran fight."

Hagler appeared somewhat cautious and tentative against Duran and had to rally in the late rounds to pull out a decision. He vows he won't leave the outcome to the judges this time.

"I'd like to knock his block off, if you really want to know the truth," he said. "I'm coming in with a different attitude this time. I realize I can't leave it in the judge's hands."

Hagler last lost on March 9, 1976, when he dropped a 10-round decision to Willie Monroe in Philadelphia. He later avenged that verdict with a second-round knockout of Monroe, and since then only a draw in his first title fight against Vito Antufermo mars his record.

Hagler will be facing a hard puncher in Roldan, who has 34 knockouts in running up a 50-2-2 record.

Roldan vaulted into contention for a title shot with a sixth-round knockout over then top-ranked Frank "The Animal" Fletcher on the Hagler-Duran undercard.

The Argentine has little international experience and will be fighting for only the third time in the United States. Not known for his boxing skills, Roldan is a straight-ahead fighter who says he will be on the attack against Hagler.

You're Caught

Mike Scott found himself in a pickle when he ventured too far off third base on an infield grounder in the fourth inning of Thursday's varsity baseball contest. Scott was thrown out but the Herd went on to capture its third consecutive District 3-5A victory, 14-6 over Tascosa.

In Whiteface Stadium

Track meet set Saturday

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

Whiteface Stadium will be the site where seven boys varsity track squads will participate in the Hereford Track Invitational Saturday.

Palo Duro High is the favorite to win the meet. "Palo Duro has good overall depth and speed. They could dominate the sprints and mile relay," Hereford boys varsity track coach Eddie Richardson said earlier in the week.

Richardson said Hereford should be strongest in the pole vault and the 400-meter run.

HHS senior Craig Jones is one of the Panhandle's best pole vaulters. Jones cleared 13 feet in the Borger track meet last week to gain a share of first place in that event.

Francisco Saucedo also has placed in the top three in the 400-meters in recent meets for the Herd.

"We're steadily progressing," is the way Richardson summed up this year's HHS track team.

The coach said he wants to improve times in a number of events but particularly the 1,600-meter run and 1,600-meter relay.

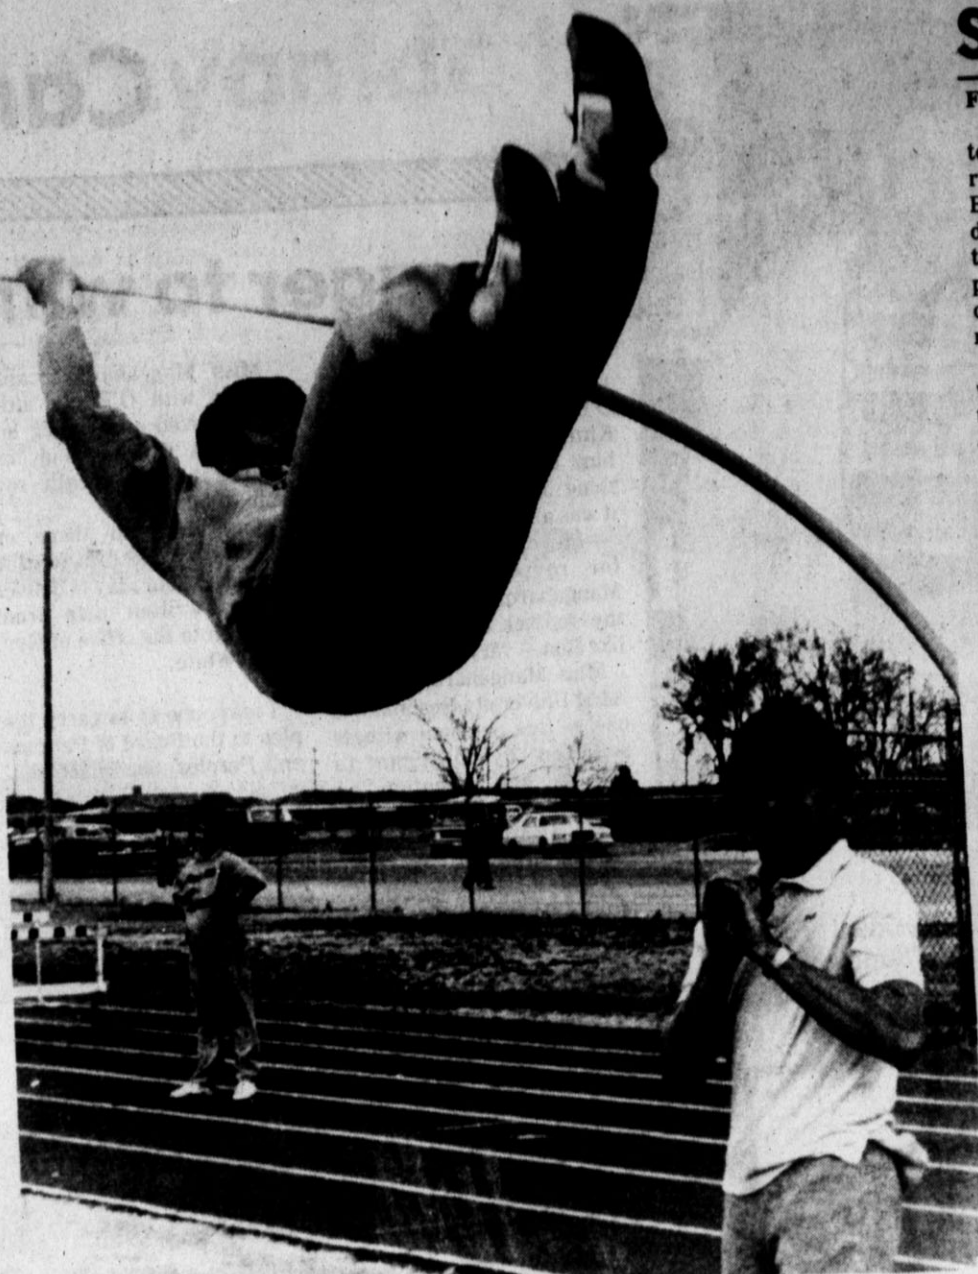

Amarillo High and Tascosa are expected to give the biggest challenge to Palo Duro. "Tascosa is tough in the (1,600-meter) relay and strong in the pole vault and distance running," Richardson said.

Teams from Plainview, Borger and Littlefield also will be competing. All schools will have junior varsity units except Littlefield.

Medals will be given by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the meet.

Preliminaries for the running and field events get underway at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The finals of the running events are scheduled to commence at 2 p.m. The finals in the field events will take place sometime sooner.

$40 million man

Young starting on Sunday

By The Associated Press

Steve Young, the $40 million man, finally gets his chance this weekend to prove his worth to a Los Angeles Express team that needs all the help it can get, both on the field and at the box office.

Young, who signed his $40 million, 43-year contract a month ago, finally gets to put on an Express uniform Sunday against the New Jersey Generals and has been designated the starting quarterback.

His assignment is twofold. One is to provide some offense for a 2-3 team averaging just 10 points a game, the second is to draw some fans to the 90,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum, where the Express have averaged only 21,000 in its first three home games, only 14,000 and 16,000 in the last two.

"What the heck, let's go," the all-American from Brigham Young says of his United States Football League debut. "I'm nervous, but I don't think I'd be an athlete if I weren't. I've got the basics down, the running and passing."

Adds Express Coach John Hadl:

"He doesn't have a white horse, but he could have one if he wanted to. We'll have some fun. We know there's going to be a lot of hype. That's part of the deal."

The USFL's weekend begins with three games Saturday. Houston is at Oklahoma and Chicago play at Washington in afternoon contests and Jacksonville visits Memphis at night.

In addition to the Generals-Express game Sunday, Arizona is at Denver, Tampa Bay at Philadelphia, Oakland at Pittsburgh, and San Antonio at Michigan.

New Orleans visits Birmingham Monday night.

Young's transition period was made smoother Thursday when Los Angeles traded his predecessor, Tom Ramsey, to the Oakland Invaders for a future draft choice.

But things may not be as smooth against the veteran Generals' defense, the main reason for New Jersey's 4-1 record this season after a 6-12 mark in the USFL's inaugural year.

"I'm sure they're sort of laughing to themselves about this rookie coming in, his first game," Young says.

But 12-year-veteran Jim LeClair, one of the mainstays of the New Jersey defense, says he has a lot of respect for the rookie's ability after watching him play in the Holiday Bowl last December. He put it this way: "This is one veteran player who won't be laughing."

Lakers spoil Hayes' bash

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — They threw a farewell party for Elvin Hayes, but the Los Angeles Lakers spoiled the fun.

Hayes, retiring at the end of the season, played his final National Basketball Association game in the Los Angeles area Thursday night, but left town a loser as the Lakers rallied for a 115-109 victory at the Forum.

"He's had a helluva career," said Houston Coach Bill Fitch. "History will bear that out."

"He set a great example in camp this year by making the team and working hard. I'm glad he went out in style in Los Angeles and that the people gave him a standing ovation at the end."

Hayes, 38, is completing his 16th NBA season. He scored six points in Thursday night's game.

Hayes, the No. 3 all-time NBA scorer, was overshadowed in the contest by the Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the second all-time scorer who could pass Wilt Chamberlain within the week and become the league's most prolific scorer ever.

Abdul-Jabbar, in his 15th season, scored 21 points Thursday night to give him 31,322 points, just 97 behind Chamberlain.

Teenager to witness O'Bryan's execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Before Ronald Clark O'Bryan invited 18-year-old Kim Manganaro to watch him die, he did the polite thing: He asked her mother if it was all right.

"I'm old enough to decide for myself," said Miss Manganaro, "but he asked my mother anyway. That's like Ron — very polite."

Miss Manganaro, a Texas A&M University freshman, is one of five personal witnesses selected by O'Bryan to witness his execution by poisonous injection in the Texas death house before dawn Saturday.

O'Bryan, 39, was convicted of the 1974 Halloween poisoning murder of his son, Timothy. The boy was 8 years old when he died and would be about the same age as Miss Manganaro if he had lived.

Miss Manganaro became friends with O'Bryan after they started exchanging letters last October and has visited him on death row since then.

She saw him there on Wednesday and then went to Austin on Thursday to deliver a hand-written plea from O'Bryan to the office of Gov. Mark White.

Today, she is to carry the plea to the Board of Pardons and Paroles. She is scheduled, also, to visit O'Bryan at a holding cell a few paces from the death chamber.

Miss Manganaro said in an interview that her interest in O'Bryan is not romantic, but friendship.

"It's concern for another human being. No romance," she said. "You can love a person a lot of different ways.

The love between us is as a friend."

Miss Manganaro is a journalism student at Texas A&M. Last October, after another Texas inmate was executed, she wrote a letter to a Houston newspaper in which she expressed opposition to the death penalty.

O'Bryan sent her a letter and a correspondence began. She found the condemned man to be sensitive, caring and "the type of friend everybody would like to have."

She wants to visit him on what may be his last day because, she said, "I wanted to be with him and make sure he's okay."

Miss Manganaro admitted, though, she is nervous about the execution.

"I don't know what to expect," she said. "I've never seen anyone die before."

A Catholic priest, the Rev. Ron Clouthier, also was asked by O'Bryan to attend the execution.

Clouthier said he met O'Bryan in 1979 when the convicted man was in the Harris County jail while awaiting a hearing. They have corresponded since.

"He has taken instructions in the Catholic faith, but I don't think he's interested in reason."

converting," said Clouthier. O'Bryan was active in the Baptist Church.

The priest described O'Bryan as a man who "is at peace with himself."

"I have never picked up any bitterness in Ron," said Clouthier. "If they put him to death, he'll accept it."

The priest declined to say if O'Bryan has asked for forgiveness for any act, but he noted, "Ron's very aware of what's required for forgiveness (from God)."

The other three personal witnesses are news reporters whom O'Bryan has described as "friends."

Granting execution stay would be difficult

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he would find it difficult to grant a stay of execution for Ronald Clark O'Bryan, the condemned child killer known as the "Candy Man."

White, who was in Houston to attend a conference on education, said the public would lose confidence in a system that allowed 10 years to elapse before a court's sentence resulted in punishment. The governor is empowered to grant a 30-day stay of execution.

"People are entitled to see the judgment of the courts carried out," White said Thursday.

O'Bryan is scheduled to die before dawn Saturday for the 1974 killing of his 8-year-old son, Timothy. The boy was poisoned with Halloween candy. O'Bryan was convicted in 1975 and sentenced to die.

"It used to be a crime could be committed in January, a trial would be held in the middle of the year and the sentence was carried out, sometimes, by the end of the year," White said.

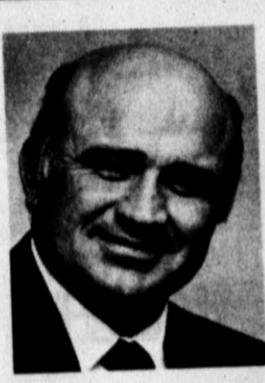

He said the appeals system which has evolved is so complete that it reduces the governor's chance of finding any procedural error. But he said he would review O'Bryan's file to assure himself no procedural errors were made in the trial.

"My inclination is that because of those changed circumstances, it's going to be more difficult for me to reach a decision to grant a stay," White said.

White refused to grant a last-day stay for James David Autry, who was executed March 14 for the slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

He said he knew of no reason so far to order a postponement for O'Bryan. "I'm not inclined to grant the extension unless there is some reason," White said. "I'm going to research the file and see if there is some reason."

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations

This month I'd like to break from our usual format to introduce the new president of the company's Texas Division, James R. Adams (pictured below).

Mr. Adams (he prefers to be called Jim) was born and raised in San Antonio. He started with Southwestern Bell in San Antonio in 1965. Jim was named to the top post in Texas in January. This was at the same time Southwestern Bell became an independent company following the divestiture of the Bell System.

Jim will be travelling throughout the state and meeting as many of you as possible this year. Since he can't possibly visit with everyone, I'd like to turn over the rest of this column to Jim to share some of his thoughts with you.

A new company strategy

As a native Texan recently returned to this state from New Jersey, I'm excited to be back among the vigor and vitality of the Lone Star State.

You know, a lot of people have been asking me: "What is this new, independent Southwestern Bell Telephone?" Well, to begin with, it's still a company that's very much committed to quality service. But it's also a company with employees who have the courage and conviction to make Southwestern Bell Telephone succeed. And it's more, too.

Since I arrived in Texas, I've set a new direction for Southwestern Bell Telephone. My plan identifies a four-point approach to priorities that will help us serve you better.

You come first

First, as a company, we're going to remember that our reason for existence is satisfying you — our customers. That means giving you what you want, not what we assume you need.

Our internal measurements of service indicate we're providing good service. But our surveys with customers indicate that, in many cases, you don't always agree that your needs are being met. We must overcome this gap.

In short, only if you are satisfied will we be satisfied.

Our financial health

My second objective for Southwestern Bell Telephone is financial health — and that's more than financial viability. A tremendous tie exists between companies that are financially healthy and those that satisfy their customers.

In our business, financial health has two very important parts. The first is adequate revenues. Southwestern Bell Telephone generates additional revenues by selling new services. When we get additional revenues by raising telephone rates, it is because that is our last resort, if we are to provide first-class service to you.

The second part of our financial health situation is efficient management. We have a reputation for being a very efficiently managed corporation. The only way for us to continue to assure financial health is to look even more aggressively at expenses, and control those expenses.

Another priority is for all our company to continue to work as a team. All our employees in Texas are members of the same team. We all have the common objective of providing customer satisfaction. We have so many competitors outside our business, it's imperative that within our business, we all work together. And we will.

You are our stakeholders

Still another priority is understanding our various "stakeholders." Our customer body, which includes all of you, is made up of numerous publics — residence customers, small businesses, large businesses, consumer groups, senior citizen organizations, legislative advocacy groups, and so forth.

We can't expect to achieve our goals unless we fully recognize the stakeholders with whom we deal. While all are our customers, each one has particular needs, each his or her own special interests.

Without question, I believe Southwestern Bell Telephone and its employees have the spirit and commitment to be successful. We will if we fulfill our four priorities — satisfying customers, remaining financially healthy, working as a team and really understanding you, our stakeholders.

You know, when I look back on Southwestern Bell's proud history of service in Texas, I'm amazed at how far we've come. But with our new spirit, I'm even more excited about how far we still can go.

If any of you have questions or comments for Mr. Adams or for me, just let me know.

Prosecutors never put cyanide in hand of murderer

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan's execution may leave unanswered the most enduring mystery of the whole "Candy Man" tragedy: What was the source of the cyanide used to kill his 8-year-old son?

Despite an exhaustive investigation, police were never able to find where the cyanide came from or when and how it was placed in the five tubes of Halloween trick-or-treat candy. What investigators do know is that the candy was distributed to five children, including O'Bryan's son, Timothy Marc, and daughter, Elizabeth Lane, 5.

Only Timothy sampled the poisoned candy. He died in agony within hours. Prosecutors claim O'Bryan killed his son and intended to kill his daughter to collect on a total of $62,000 in insurance. Three other children were given the candy as a cover-up, they say.

O'Bryan denied that he had anything to do with killing his son and, in final news interviews on death row, he challenged authorities to prove that he bought the cyanide.

"The only reason the conviction was gotten," says O'Bryan, "is that they played on the emotion of Halloween and the death of a child."

It was raining on the Halloween night in 1974 when O'Bryan took his two children on their last outing together.

He and his wife, Daynene, and their children went to the Pasadena, Texas home of their close friends, the Jimmy Bates family. They ate dinner and then Bates, his son, Mark, 8, O'Bryan and his two children started trick-or-treating.

They went to a number of houses on the horseshoe-shaped street where the Bates lived. They came to a dark house and the three children ran to the door, followed by O'Bryan. When the door wasn't answered, the children ran on, but O'Bryan lingered.

Bates went with the children to another house, and then to another. Then he saw O'Bryan approaching. In his hands were five Giant Pixy Stix, a powdered confection packaged in a plastic tube.

O'Bryan, Bates later testified, waved the 22-inch tubes as if they were riding crops, and said, "You've got some rich neighbors. Look what I got."

Later, back at the Bates house, he gave one tube each to his two children, and one each to the Bates children, Mark, and Kim, 11. That left one tube.

"I'll keep this one and eat it myself," O'Bryan joked. Moments later, a group of youngsters came to the door. O'Bryan offered the candy and one youngster, Whitney Parker, 11, got it.

The O'Bryans went home. Daynene left to visit a friend and O'Bryan said he then prepared Timothy and Elizabeth for bed. Later, O'Bryan would tell police that he offered the children one piece of candy and each chose the Pixy Stix.

He opened a tube and gave it to Timothy. The boy complained that it tasted bitter. O'Bryan gave him Kool-Aide to wash it down.

Timothy started toward bed, but then staggered to the bathroom and vomited. O'Bryan said he went in and grasped his son about the waist. The boy collapsed in his arms. O'Bryan called an ambulance and rode with Timothy to the hospital. The boy was dead within minutes.

O'Bryan claimed also to feel ill and mentioned a pork roast served at the Bates' house. But he declined when a doctor suggested his stomach be pumped. Later, O'Bryan said he felt better.

Police questioned the grieving parents briefly and then left them for the night.

Prosecutors said the next day, a few minutes after 9 a.m., O'Bryan called a bank to ask about collecting on an $10,000 insurance policy he had taken out on Timothy. Witnesses remembered the call because the boy had only been dead a few hours.

O'Bryan and Daynene later went to a funeral home to make arrangements. Asked how many death certificates he would need, O'Bryan requested six. They are needed for insurance.

There was more questioning from the police. O'Bryan said he couldn't remember the house where he got the candy. Detectives took Bates around the neighborhood and he, too, had trouble remembering. Later, O'Bryan was driven around the neighborhood. He finally pointed out a house and then indicated a man who he said resembles the one who handed him the candy.

Suspicion, anger and fear raged in the community.

Relatives of the O'Bryans came to their home prior to the Saturday funeral. O'Bryan asked a brother-in-law what he should do with the money he expected to get — pay bills or buy a house. The brother-in-law changed the subject. O'Bryan talked with Daynene about taking a cruise. She ignored him.

Timothy was buried. It was a media event with television cameramen battling to get pictures of the grieving parents.

On Sunday, O'Bryan, a member of the choir at the family church, sang a solo that had the words "this is my story, this is my song." He changed the words to "this is Tim's story, this is Tim's song."

"There wasn't a dry eye in the church," recalls a woman who was there.

Police checked out the man indicated by O'Bryan. He was working as an airline dispatcher at the time of the trick-or-treat outing. The house O'Bryan indicated was empty.

On Monday, police discovered that O'Bryan had taken out insurance policies on his children on Oct. 3. He had also paid just enough into a bank account to keep a bank club death policy in effect on his children. There were also other policies. They all totaled $31,000 on each child.

Investigators also found that O'Bryan was deeply in debt.

That Monday night, O'Bryan and Daynene were called to the police station. She was questioned alone and told by police about the insurance. She hadn't known. She wept. Then Daynene told officers that O'Bryan was "troubled", a spendthrift and a liar. She said he was constantly in financial trouble, had changed jobs 21 times in five years and twice had collected insurance money on suspicious fires.

O'Bryan was charged with murder.

More witnesses began coming forward. A chemist who knew O'Bryan said he called one night in October to ask about cyanide. The man said O'Bryan asked at one point: "How much cyanide would it take to kill someone?" The chemist replied, "Why do you ask that?" and O'Bryan changed the subject.

A customer and a fellow employee at the optical shop where O'Bryan worked told police that he had discussed cyanide with them. Police began an exhaustive survey of all of the supply houses in the area where cyanide was sold. None could confirm that O'Bryan had purchased the poison.

At one chemical supply house, an employee identified O'Bryan as a man who had asked about buying cyanide. O'Bryan left, said the witness, when he was told the chemical was available only in 50-pound boxes, costing about $50. Officers carefully vacuumed O'Bryan's house, car and clothing. The sweepings were studied. No trace of cyanide was found.

At his trial, the jury apparently was not bothered by the fact that prosecutors never proved he had obtained cyanide. The jury found O'Bryan guilty after only 45 minutes of deliberations. Nobody, in the 9½ years since, has come forward with evidence of the poison.

And in his final news conference, O'Bryan again challenged police and prosecutors to show how and where he got the poison that killed his son.

"I have asked them to do one thing," said O'Bryan, "and that is to prove what they say."

Health
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Severe depression

DEAR DR. LAMB - My doctors say I'm going through depression and stress. But this past year I've been really sick. I've stayed in bed for weeks, but I can't sleep. I don't have the desire to eat and I've started losing weight. I often have awful fears about death and dying.
I've had bad headaches every day and wonder if I have a tumor. I also cry all the time. I've had these feelings when I feel I don't have enough circulation and it feels like my head is empty.
I'm only 31, married, and have five children.
DEAR READER - You are describing some typical features of depression. Many people lose their appetites and lose weight. Others eat and gain weight. Sleeping problems and anxiety can occur. The episodes of crying are typical.
However, many depressed people don't have crying spells and their depression is far less obvious than yours.
Evidently you've been diagnosed as having depression, therefore you should be under professional supervision. Most depressions that you describe are severe enough that the person really can't cope with it on his own. Good friends are helpful, but they can't solve the basic problems involved in such depressions.
Such depressions can be related to chemical imbalances. There are a number of useful medicines that can help control depression.
I'd like you to understand depression, so I'm sending you the Health Letter 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
Everyone has mood swings. Sometimes being mildly depressed or a little down is good because it alerts people of the need to make certain changes in their lives. There is much you can do with your lifestyle to prevent the downer of your mood swings.
DEAR DR. LAMB - I use rubbing alcohol on a cotton ball to clean my face twice a day. I've heard this can be harmful to the skin and causes your pores to enlarge with age. Is this so?

I've been using alcohol sponges for the past seven years because of its convenience. It seems to dry up the oil in my skin and helps to control acne. The alcohol is also very inexpensive and I can't afford expensive facial cleansers and treatments.
DEAR READER - For oily skin, sponging the face with alcohol is a good measure. Alcohol dissolves oils and grease and helps to clean the skin surface. Alcohol also penetrates the cells and helps to dry up oily skin.
I don't believe it will increase the size of your pores. The major concern is whether it could produce excessively dry skin. But if you have an oily problem rather than dry, this shouldn't be a problem.
I also think alcohol helps to eliminate some of the surface bacteria or bacteria living in the pores that contribute to acne.

United Nations experts predict that the world population will stabilize at 1.5 billion in the year 2110.

STILL HAS JUMPER
NEW YORK (AP) - Walt Frazier, a star on two NBA championship New York Knick teams, lives in New York and is a sports agent.
"When I get the urge to shoot a few baskets," he said, "I go to a YMCA and while I'm shooting think back to my playing days. I've still got a good jump and a few moves. It's like riding a bicycle, you never really lose your skill."

More medals being awarded

WASHINGTON (AP) - It took nine days and 7,000 troops, but the Army is giving 8,612 medals to reward individual performance in last year's Grenada campaign, including a batch to chair-bound personnel who got no closer to the fighting than the Pentagon.
The Army, calling its awards system a "valuable and effective leadership tool to build unit morale and esprit," said on Thursday that 275 of the decorations were for valor, for wounds or for combat deaths.
The rest, for individual performance, included 4,581 commendation medals, 2,495 achievement medals, 681 Bronze Stars and a variety of other decorations for meritorious service.
The fighting began Oct. 25 following a bloody coup by a Marxist faction and ended Nov. 2. Since then, the U.S. military force on the island has been cut to 225 people performing civic action and similar chores.
"Many support and staff personnel received these awards for their support of the Grenada operation outside of the actual combat zone or for service in Grenada after hostilities had ceased," the Army said.
Pentagon personnel got 50 of the achievement medals.
Other awards were given to staff and rear-area support troops at Fort Bragg, N.C., home of the 82nd Airborne Division; Fort Stewart, Ga.; and Fort Lewis, Wash., bases for Army Rangers; and the headquarters of the Army's Forces Command in Atlanta.
The other services, which had many fewer men on or over the Caribbean island last fall, have granted only a handful of individual medals.
Some additional awards may be granted but nowhere as lavishly as the Army, according to indications from the Marines, Navy and Air Force.

individual award recommendations had been received at the Navy Department level." About 50 Navy men either went ashore on Grenada or flew aboard aircraft in what the Navy called a "possible combat situation." In addition, the Navy estimated 10,000 officers and sailors were aboard the carrier Independence and other ships that stood near the island during the battle.
Navy sources said Adm. Wesley McDonald, commander-in-chief of forces in the Atlantic, has made it clear there will be no individual medals for staff officers.
The Air Force, which had 800 ground personnel and aircrews on Grenada or flying to and from the island, has not yet approved any individual awards. But it has laid down rules for eligibility that could bring medals to some officers and enlisted airmen who were stationed at the airport in Barbados, as well as airmen who played a direct role in the campaign.

All the services are expected to distribute Armed Forces Expeditionary Medals to the men and a few women who were on or near the island during the campaign. This could total some 19,600.
Pentagon officials said no comparative statistics on medal awards in other wars and conflicts were readily available.

It indicated that the decisions on awards were made by unit commanders. The 82nd Airborne Division led with 6,708 individual awards.
The Marine Corps reported granting 10 Purple Heart medals for combat deaths and wounds, with an additional 100 recommendations for bravery being studied. The Marines had about 1,000 men ashore in Grenada during the battle. However, the corps has approved a unit commendation for the full 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit, including about 1,800 men who apparently remained on ships offshore.
The Navy said it has awarded seven Purple Hearts for combat deaths or wounds and added that "to date, no

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."
— Matthew 17:20

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.
— Sir James Matthew Barrie
