

Deadline near for man getting 'wet' signatures

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Monday is the deadline for Art Reinauer, aspiring winemaker, to gather enough signatures to force a wet-dry election this spring in Precinct 1.

It is also the last day opposition forces may submit affidavits requesting ineligible names be taken off petitions, explained Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland. Though the original deadline was set as Sunday, the secretary of state's office has ruled it must be the following business day, Ruland learned this morning during a telephone conversation with the state office.

Though Reinauer could not be reached for comment, Ruland reported it was apparently the farmer's intention to complete his signatures by Friday night so that they could be approved and presented to Deaf Smith County Commissioners by their Monday morning meeting. The county court would then be able to call for a special wet-dry election within a period 20 to 30 days in the immediate future, or roughly between March 18 and 28.

Ruland said there might be problems, however, with the commissioners acting so quickly. The county clerk's staff may not have enough time to verify the 700 or so remaining signatures Reinauer needs, he maintained. Also, should opposition groups stick with the secretary of state's deadline announcement, they would still have until 9 p.m. that day to turn in their affidavits to remove some of the signed names.

Reinauer announced his intention to make part of Deaf Smith County - Precinct 1 encompasses all of Hereford and most of the county - wet at a Jan. 23 commission meeting. Having planted a vineyard two years ago, the 30-year-old felt the time had arrived to pursue the controversial issue. In order to operate a winery in Hereford, state law requires the precinct or county in which it rests be made wet.

He told commissioners he understood there are three categories under which an area could be wet. Either bars, liquor stores or both are allowed. "I would bring forth the petition for packaged stores only," he said.

Thirty-five percent of Precinct 1's registered voters during the last gubernatorial election - which amounts to more than 1,500 people - must sign Reinauer's petitions before the matter may be brought to a public vote. According to Ruland, 811 signatures have so far been approved by his office staffers. Reinauer has told Ruland approximately 100 petitions were still circulating, however, and several others and been turned in but not verified as of this morning.

Of the petitions so far inspected, Ruland said, around 75 to 90 percent of the names have been checked out. Authenticity has recently improved, he claimed, as Reinauer has made it more clear who is eligible to sign.

"He seems to think he's going to do it," Ruland said.

Hereford has been dry since three years after its 1898 founding, the issue to go wet was last brought up in 1956, when more citizens reportedly signed the petition than voted for the change.

Though planted in 1981, Reinauer's vines should not begin to produce grapes of acceptable wine quality for another two years, he told commissioners last month. He intends, therefore, to initially use wine produced in California to be bottled under his "La Escarabada XIT Vineyard" label. As his vines mature, he would like to gradually become less dependent on the out-of-state products.

According to the farmer, his vines should become profitable after eight years, eventually netting him around $1,500 per acre. The average lifetime of a vine, he explained, is between 50 and 75 years.

Wine production is a quickly-growing industry, Reinauer claimed. Consumption of alcoholic beverages is expected to increase substantially during this decade, he said, due partly to worsening water qualities in larger cities. He pointed out Europeans drink much wine and beer largely because of poor water.

Though Reinauer said he would prefer basing his winery in Hereford, he could instead place it in any one of several neighboring counties. "I do intend to do it," he told commissioners, "one way or the other."

Walch stresses bill's importance

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

"This is the most significant happening in the history of Texas education," John Walch said this week about proposed House Bill Number 246. "It will create more change than anything ever has."

Walch, assistant superintendent of curriculum for the Hereford Independent School District, said changes at the junior and senior high school levels will receive the most attention. The State Board of Education will consider the proposal on March 10 at a third and final reading. Walch said he expects 90 percent or more of the bill to be approved as it now reads.

On Friday, Deputy Commissioner of Education Dr. Tom Anderson is to present the bill to HISD personnel, who are scheduled for an in-service session that day. Anderson, the officer in charge of planning, research and curriculum, is set to meet with teachers and administrators from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and again from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Stanton Junior High auditorium.

At the junior high level, defined as seventh and eighth grades by the state, the proposal suggests adding another year of science and one-half year of computer literacy.

Also new is a reading improvement guideline that would require all students, who test at one or more years below grade level on the Standardized Achievement Test, to enroll in a special reading class.

Affecting junior, senior highs

Walch said the Hereford junior and senior high campuses both use the six-period day, but the state is encouraging all districts to switch to a seven-period day and decrease class time to 45 minutes. That would allow local students to take 3 and a half units of electives as compared to the current 2 and a half allowed for 7th and 8th grades.

The biggest suggested change for high school students, Walch felt, is that graduation requirements be increased to 21 units. Presently only 18 credits are needed, although Hereford is one of many local school districts that requires more than the state minimum figure. Presently HHS graduates need 20 credits.

Walch said that new ruling might be another reason for switching to a seven-period day, so that students could take more elective courses.

Curriculum changes would include another year of English, another year of math and possibly another year of science, depending on the student's junior high science credits.

The proposed bill also addresses a current policy of allowing such activities as drill team, cheerleading and dance to be substituted for regular physical education classes.

Walch said the new rules would require students who

Strain trial set May 14

The theft trial of Hereford farmer Robert Strain, continued last week following media coverage that the defense said may have prejudiced potential jurors, has been set for May 14 by 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley.

Gulley also ordered the case be tried in a special setting, which means it would be the only trial to come before the jury members impaneled that month. Last week, two other jury trials appeared on the docket along with the Strain case, something Gulley considered in his decision to grant the motion for continuance.

District Attorney Ronald Saul said it was his understanding that May 14 was the soonest possible date that both Gulley and the defense attorney could reserve a two-week period to devote to the trial. Both Saul and Travis Shelton, Strain's lawyer, expect the case to take that long to be tried.

Strain was arrested last August and indicted in September on 17 counts of theft in following a raid on his barn northeast of Hereford that allegedly exposed a multi-county fencing operation.

Lions snag about $2,230

Hereford Lions Club netted about $2,190 from the annual Pancake Supper and approximately $2,040 from the auction held Friday night in Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

The club plans to use the proceeds for several worthwhile projects in the community, according to Ed Line, president.

Hereford businesses donated items for the auction. Ted Walling, who donates time each year as auctioneer, has been presented a life membership in Girlstown. The club contributed $100 in his name.

Friday last pecan day

Friday is the last day to order pecan trees through the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District. Jaime Nepper of Soil Conservation Service said the trees will be delivered in Hereford during the first week in March.

The Wichita and Western Schley varieties are available; both are paper-shelled pecans and their trees grow well in this area. The three-quarter-inch trees are three years old and cost $9 apiece.

Orders should be placed at the SCS office, 315 W. Third, between 7 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Police arrest two people

Hereford Police arrested two citizens Wednesday, one for public intoxication and the other for driving while intoxicated, the department reported this morning.

Meanwhile, there was one incident piece of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, burglary, disorderly conduct, theft of a bicycle and theft of a go-cart.

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department reported no significant activities have apparently occurred within their jurisdiction since Tuesday.

Dismissals caused by Strain case

Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul last week dismissed charges against two men indicted in January

District attorney explains on theft charges. Joe Angel Martinez of Lubbock had been accused of theft in connection with a Dec. 17, 1981, burglary of the Ford Elevator. All but one of those items were recovered during an Aug. 15 raid on a barn belonging to Robert Strain, now facing a theft trial in 222nd District Court.

Raymond Rodriguez of Lubbock was indicted by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury on charges he unlawfully acquired items that he knew had been stolen from William Hatchett, K.R. Lindsey and Freddie Shaw, all of Lubbock County.

The motion to dismiss against Martinez said "the case cannot be prosecuted at the present time because the person to whom defendant sold the property is a necessary witness and is presently under indictment and cannot be compelled to testify."

Addressing the Rodriguez case, Saul said "the evidence at the present time is not sufficient to connect the defendant to the crime in order to corroborate an accomplice witness testimony."

Asked to comment this morning, Saul said "unfortunately, these cases had to be dismissed as a direct result of the Strain case being continued because of the intentional interference of outsiders."

"The cases have been dismissed but not forgotten, and it is possible they can be re-filed later, after we have had the opportunity to develop additional evidence. I can't say anything more at the present time because I don't want to jeopardize the cases."

Two little girls were discussing the Sunday School lesson. "Do you believe there is a devil?" asked one. "No," replied the other promptly, "Of course not. It's just like Santa Claus—he's your father."

Citizens of the area will have an opportunity to show their support for Kent Hance at the rally here Saturday night in the Bull Barn. Tickets are only $5 for the Chili Supper Rally.

Hance, who has served well as our congressman from the 19th Congressional District, could be called a "favorite son" candidate, since he hails from Dimmitt and has close ties in Hereford. He may be our only hope in many years to have a U.S. Senator from this area, and that's why the rally is being held here by Parmer-Deaf Smith County supporters.

There's no much doubt that Hance will carry this area by a large margin, but he needs financial support to get his name across downstate. We believe he'll out work other candidates in the primary and win the Democratic nomination.

In Fort Bend County, located near Houston, convicted drunken drivers are being branded just like Texas steers. The brand is a red, white and blue bumper sticker proclaiming to other motorists that the driver has been convicted of drunken driving.

"The owner of this vehicle is on probation in Fort Bend County for driving while intoxicated," it reads. The 60-cent sticker also asks motorists to report the driver of the branded car to a county probation officer if they see "unsafe driving."

Thomas Culver, Fort Bend County Judge, came up with the idea to call attention to DWI offenders who aren't sent to jail. If the driver removes the sticker, probation may be revoked.

It could sure be a deterrent. The only drawback we see is that such a sticker would be embarrassing for other family members who had to drive the vehicle.

Bubble boy dies in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — David, the "boy in the bubble," never fulfilled what a doctor said was an often-expressed wish — to walk barefoot in the grass of the outside world.

The youngster — who lived longer than anyone before with an inherited condition called severe combined immune deficiency — died Wednesday night, just a few months after after doctors attempted to give him immunity with an experimental bone marrow transplant. He was 12.

The boy, whose last name was kept secret at the request of his family, suffered from a lack of protection from disease. He had spent more time than anyone else ever in a sterile environment.

His illness began when doctors tried to free him from that sterile isolation through the use of an experimental bone marrow transplant. Doctors gave him the transplant last Oct. 20 in hopes that would cause him to develop an immune system.

Instead, David in January experienced fever and diarrhea. These episodes, along with vomiting, grew worse and the boy was removed from his bubble on Feb. 7 so he could receive more intensive care from doctors and nurses.

Execution date to be set soon

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan, convicted of killing his son with poisoned Halloween candy, will be issued a date for execution on March 31, State District Judge Michael T. McSpadden says.

O'Bryan, 38, was convicted eight years ago and Judge McSpadden said Wednesday that was time enough for anyone and "in this case, it has been an abuse."

"O'Bryan has exhausted all appeals now, and I don't imagine any court will consent to another review," McSpadden said.

It will be the fourth execution date McSpadden has set for O'Bryan, who has received a stay each time. The U.S. Supreme Court recently refused to again review his case.

The Houston judge said he has issued a bench warrant ordering O'Bryan to be brought from Death Row at the Ellis prison unit near Huntsville for a hearing here next Wednesday. The execution date will be set at that time, McSpadden said.

Critics want education funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright says the Reagan administration is violating the law by refusing to spend $30 million earmarked by Congress to help educate immigrant children.

An aide said Wright had sent a letter to the comptroller general asking him to begin the complex legal process under which Congress could try to force the administration to spend the money.

"Straining at a gnat while swallowing camels, the administration impounds funds needed for educating children and blithely ignores millions of dollars in waste on military windfalls and cost overruns," Wright, D-Texas, said in a speech Wednesday on the House floor.

Wright called the refusal to spend the money "a flagrant violation" of the Budget and Impoundment Control Act, which limits the circumstances under which the president can refuse to spend money provided by Congress.

Credit card law may change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the House and Senate settle a dispute, America's love affair with the credit card could begin cooling off at midnight Monday.

That's the scheduled expiration time for a controversial 10-year-old law that prohibits merchants from charging higher prices to customers who pay with plastic.

Bills are alive on Capitol Hill to extend the credit card surcharge ban, but the House and Senate are heading in different directions as the clock winds down.

The House last November passed legislation to set a new expiration date of July 31. The measure is a time-buying compromise between representatives wanting to make the ban permanent and others wanting it repealed.

On Wednesday, the Senate Banking Committee took another route, approving two bills, one to extend the ban through May 15, the other to scrap the prohibition and allow surcharges of up to 5 percent on credit card purchases.

Labor leaders blast ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry leaders of organized labor and an influential congressman are vowing increased efforts to convince Congress to override a new Supreme Court ruling that allows failing businesses to avoid union contract obligations by filing for bankruptcy.

The court ruled, 9-0, Wednesday that a company need not prove to a bankruptcy judge that honoring the contract will force it to go out of business. It is enough to show that the contract would be a burden and the best interests of the business, its creditors and employees favor canceling the contract, the court said.

"We're disappointed in the decision and we will pursue a legislative remedy," said AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland in Bal Harbour, Fla., at a meeting of organized labor.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, announced he will sponsor legislation to reverse the court decision which he called "a puzzling misreading of congressional intent."

Mexico finds capsule

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Mexican officials have removed from a junkyard in this border city a cobalt 60 capsule responsible for contaminating scrap metal that was used to make steel sold in the United States.

The small capsule was placed back in its original container Tuesday and buried south of Juarez Wednesday, said Gustavo Molina, a member of the Mexican Nuclear Safety Commission.

He said the commission was continuing to clean up the radioactive junkyard.

"Although the radiation source is gone, radiation is still at the junkyard," Molina said. "We're trying to clean the area. It's been a long process."

Mexican officials discovered in January that scrap metal at the Yonke El Fenix junkyard was contaminated. Some of the tainted metal was used to make steel reinforcing rods and table pedestals sold in the United States.

Iran claims further invasion of villages

By ALEX EFTY Associated Press Writer

Iran claimed today its troops had pushed "deep inside Iraq," capturing 15 villages and part of the strategic main highway linking Iraq's two largest cities.

Iraq said it had smashed two Iranian offensives, but it had no immediate comment on the latest Iranian claim.

"The very strategic Baghdad-Amarah highway is seized in several points by the combatants of the Islamic Republic of Iran," said the official Iranian news agency IRNA, monitored in Cyprus.

"With this Iranian victory, the enemy has lost one of its most important logistical routes," IRNA said. It claimed the thrust "deep inside Iraq" had reached the Tigris and Euphrates rivers and divided the Iraqi army.

Al-Amarah is some 150 miles south of the capital, Baghdad, and 100 miles north of Basra, Iraq's second-largest city.

The agency did not specify the highway locations captured and it was not immediately clear if the attack was part of an assault launched Tuesday night in the central sector of the 733-mile-long border or one begun Wednesday night on Basra.

Neither side reported casualty estimates.

At about 10 a.m., Iraq issued a communique saying a new attack on Basra had left "the bodies of thousands of Iranians scattered on the battlefield becoming the food of vultures and wild animals."

Baghdad state radio and television stations broke into their regular programs to broadcast a terse announcement from the armed forces command: "Iraq won and its enemies lost." Iraq claimed the Basra attack started at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Few foreign correspondents have been allowed by either side to visit the battlefield and verification of the rival claims is impossible.

Basra, a city of some 350,000 people, is close to the Shatt-al-Arab, the waterway connecting Iraq to the Persian Gulf. The gulf is used by tankers carrying about 40 percent of the non-communist world's oil.

In Washington, President Reagan warned at a news conference Wednesday night that "there's no way" the United States would allow the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow channel at the southern end of the Persian Gulf, to be closed.

Iraq has threatened to block the gulf if foreign powers join Iraq's side in the 3½-year-old war or if Iraq destroys Iran's ability to export its own oil.

Reagan noted the United States has a naval force deployed in the Arabian Sea, which adjoins the gulf. The British foreign secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, also confirmed Wednesday that two British warships were "on patrol" in the Indian Ocean, but said they were not on their way to the Persian Gulf.

In Bahrain, the Manama-based English-language weekly Gulf Mirror reported today that Bahrain's foreign minister, Sheik Mohamed bin Mubarak, said his country was stockpiling food as a precaution against a closure of the strait.

Reagan defends self at conference

By MICHAEL PUTZEL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says critics who suggest he isn't running the country — and Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale in particular — "don't know what they're talking about."

At his 22nd presidential news conference Wednesday night, Reagan acknowledged that "things don't look bright" in Lebanon but said his decision to pull the Marines out of Beirut did not constitute a failure of leadership.

Rather, he said, it was an attempt "to make the right decision."

Reagan ranted when a reporter told him critics are saying his apparent indecision about redeployment of the Marines and his desire for consensus among his advisers raise questions about whether he is "really running things (as) a full-time president."

"My answer to them is they don't know what they're talking about," Reagan said. "I have never gone upstairs from that office once that I have not carried an entire evening full of homework with me."

The half-hour question-and-answer session was dominated by Lebanon and Reagan's style of leadership. The president defended his decision to withdraw the Marines months after the devastating bombing of their Beirut airport headquarters, saying: "I don't think you can say we have lost as yet ... We are just going into a little more defensible position."

Reagan also defended his style of leadership. Rather than insist on a consensus, he said, "I want people around me who are independent minded. I want to hear all sides of everything."

would require the student to obtain 22 credits. Walch said the house bill suggests adding another unit of science, two foreign language classes, a year of computer science and two semesters of fine arts courses.

To graduate with honors, a student would need to complete five honors courses made available by the high school. Walch said HHS currently offers advanced classes in math, English, social studies and science.

Something akin to a college course description is another change suggested in the bill: set of curriculum guidelines that would require all Texas schools to teach the same essential elements in required courses.

Walch said that program would require at least some modification in every

As he has often said in the past, Reagan likes to run his government "like a board of directors." But he explained Wednesday night, "The only difference between a board of directors, then, and our Cabinet meetings is when it comes time for decision, we don't take a vote."

"The decision is mine, and I make it on the basis of the information that I have heard," Reagan said.

As a result of such discussions, he suggested, "I probably have a better store of information on the issues confronting us than a president normally has."

Following up the same line of questioning, ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson told Reagan that Mondale, the Democratic front-runner for the nomination to challenge Reagan, "says you're intellectually lazy and you're forgetful — so forgetful that he says you're providing leadership by amnesia."

Mondale, in his campaigning in New Hampshire, has said voters "won't stand for government by staff, policy by default, management by alibi and leadership by amnesia."

Reagan first sought to brush off the criticism from his opponent, saying, "I'm surprised he knew what the word meant. I haven't any comment to make at that."

But pressed further about whether such personal attacks are fair comment, Reagan said Mondale "doesn't know what he's talking about."

Reagan also returned fire at what he called "the sniping that takes place at so-called vacations."

"I have to tell you, presidents, I've learned, don't take vacations," he said. "They just get a change of scenery."

Since taking office three years ago, Reagan has spent 175 days in California, including 132 at his mountain-top ranch.

On other issues, Reagan dismissed as "disgraceful" speculation that he might welcome the resignation of Secretary of State George P. Shultz because of the failure of U.S. attempts to settle the Lebanese crisis.

Shultz, he said, "has not failed. I hope he doesn't have any thoughts about leaving us at this point."

Asked about the prospects for improved relations with the Soviet Union under the new leadership of Konstantin U. Chernenko, Reagan said, "We're very hopeful." He welcomed as "a good sign" the Soviets' acceptance in principle of outside inspection of chemical installations if a ban on such weapons is worked out.

With renewed fighting in the Iran-Iraq war raising concerns that Iran might close the Strait of Hormuz, Reagan reiterated his insistence that the United States would not permit closing of that vital waterway used by tankers carrying much of the Arab oil supplies to Europe, Japan and the United States.

"There's no way that we could allow that channel to be closed," he said, noting that the United States maintains a permanent naval force in the Persian Gulf.

In an unusually partisan opening statement, Reagan urged Congress to act quickly to pass legislation reducing federal budget deficits, allowing prayer in public schools and strengthening criminal laws.

The Democrats, he said, have "begged away from all but one meeting" in a month on his proposal for bipartisan negotiations to reduce the record deficits he has proposed in his fiscal 1985 budget. And he accused the Democrat-dominated House of "dragging its feet" on anti-crime legislation.

academic area for the local schools. He added school administrators have already taken the first steps toward meeting those requirements, by better familiarizing themselves with what is now being taught.

Another area, one that Walch admitted to "getting on a soap box" about, is mastery learning. The bill, as it now reads, says, "The public school curriculum shall be designed to promote and provide for the issuance of credit...based on student achievement levels rather than time on task."

In other words, Walch said, the student should be promoted each year and finally graduated based on his individual achievement, not just because he was in school every day.

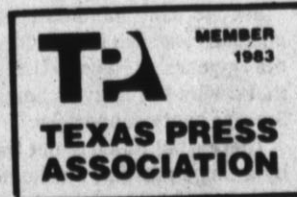

Walch claimed the ones who make the high scores are simply the fast learners, and that other students could do just as well if they were given a little extra time to learn. Referring to basic skills courses, Walch said, "Let's adopt a policy of not being satisfied until every student can do it on a high level."

The mastery learning technique was implemented this year in the elementary grades, and Walch said he hopes to see the practice expand into other basic skill areas. "With this program," he explained, "the teacher can look at the test results and know what areas to concentrate on."

Looking at proposed changes at the elementary level, Walch explained time requirements are the only significant modifications. "We would be required to spend a certain number of minutes per day, or hours per week, on each basic subject," he said. "Currently, there are no such specifications."

One other important suggestion made by H.B. 246 is an evaluation procedure. That would be a school board policy allowing board members to review data indicating student progress, identify areas where improvement is needed and make necessary adjustments in the instructional program. Walch gave full approval to that plan as well, seeing it as one more way to help the student learn all he can during the time he spends sitting in the classroom.

Talking About Careers

Dr. Phillip Gensler, a professor at West Texas State University, was one of several people who made presentations Wednesday morning at Hereford High School's Career Day. The emphasis of his talk was computer programming.

CowBelle of the Year recognized on Tuesday

Mildred Garrison, 1983 Hereford CowBelle of the Year, was introduced and presented with an engraved CowBelle charm when the Hereford CowBelles met for lunch at the Hereford Country Club on Tuesday.

Mrs. Garrison, who has lived in Hereford for 24 years, is a charter member of the Hereford CowBelles. She has served on various committees, including Ag Day and program planning. For the past three years she has been historian, assembling the club's scrapbooks.

The meeting was called to order by President Char-mayne Klett and Kay Hall gave the invocation. The treasurer's report was submitted by Frances Berry.

Sue Sims, beef promotion chairman, introduced Jeff Hicks, winner of the CowBelle first year steer showmanship award from the Hereford Livestock Show. The trophy is presented by the Hereford CowBelles annually.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hicks, Jeff is a member of 4-H and is an eighth grader at La Plata Junior High School.

Plans were discussed for the 1984 Texas Beef Cook-off, to be held April 27-28 at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Entry blanks may be obtained from the county extension office.

Events to be held in conjunction with Ag May on March 17 were announced. Hereford CowBelles will hold a beef casserole sale in Sugarland Mall and will give a beef gift certificate to the first baby born in Hereford on Ag Day. Mrs. Glenda Hansen will chair this event.

Sandra Lane, Texas CowBelle membership chairman, spoke about membership in the CowBelle organization. Currently, there are 514 CowBelles in Texas. The state of Texas met its national membership quota in 1983, she said.

The next meeting of Hereford CowBelles is set for Tuesday, March 20.

ABC Network battles USFL's commissioner over telecasts

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

There's an interesting little battle taking place between Jim Spence, executive vice-president of ABC Sports and Chet Simmons, Spence's one-time ABC colleague who is now commissioner of the United States Football League.

First blood goes to Spence — ABC will not, as the league wanted, set up regional networks to beam telecasts of visiting teams back to the home fans; it will not black out home markets.

As the USFL begins its second season, ABC is its lifeline, the television outlet the league needs to remain in business. It's not just the money — ABC is kicking in an estimated $22 million for the league's first two years — it's also the exposure.

It is exposure that's the current arguing point for a league whose teams still lack identity. The USFL's idea is simple — put a team's away games on television, whetting the interest back home; black out home games sending the fans whose interest was whetted to the ticket booths. That avoids situations as in Philadelphia last year, where the Stars had high television ratings but low attendance.

"Imagine if we could televise all of Doug Williams' road games back into Oklahoma," says Simmons. "Imagine the audience for that."

But check the listings for the first week — everybody gets one of two games, home markets included.

ABC will bring you the New Jersey Generals at the Birmingham Stallions or the Arizona Wranglers (nee Chicago Blitz) at the Oakland Invaders with highlights of the Pittsburgh Maulers (Mike Rozier) and the Oklahoma Outlaws (the aforementioned Doug Williams.)

Hardly a great victory for the USFL although Simmons sees one bright spot — the 2:30 p.m. EST starting time.

"At least we're starting an hour later this season," he says. "I think that's a lot better. The later we start, the better the ratings — or so we're told."

Want a preview of the summer Olympics, when ABC will have 188 hours live from Los Angeles? The Public Broadcasting Service is televising live Friday night two hours of the USA Track and Field championships at Madison Square Garden.

Track has always been easier to do on tape, particularly indoor meets, with their circus-like atmosphere. Just as they're entering the second lap of the mile, here's Sergey Bubka heading down the runway towards a world record in the pole vault.

But PBS has done it twice before with no adverse affects.

It's going first class this time with Charlie Jones in the booth and Dick Schaap on the interviews. They'll be helped by Larry Rawson, ESPN's resident track expert, world indoor mile record holder Eamonn Coghlan and Leroy Walker, U.S. men's track and field coach in the 1976 Olympics.

Two Democratic candidates claiming second

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Democratic presidential rivals John Glenn and Gary Hart are both claiming to be second man in a two-man race with front-runner Walter F. Mondale, while some of the darker horses concede that the first primary election next week in New Hampshire may also be their last.

"There are still only two candidates in this race — Fritz Mondale and myself — with the broad national support, resources and ballot access to be nominated," Glenn declared Wednesday in a paid television commercial designed to help his campaign recover from a fifth-place finish in Iowa's lead-off caucuses.

Glenn's claim seemed to be aimed at Hart, who said after finishing second in Iowa that the choice for voters will soon be "between Vice President Mondale and myself."

Hart was in Washington on Wednesday, working to translate his unexpected showing in Iowa into stronger campaign organizations elsewhere. Mondale stayed home, as well.

But he and Hart arranged to return to New Hampshire during the day for an evening debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

If Hart was optimistic about his chances, Sen.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, but not necessarily of the absent one.

Ernest Hollings and former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew were less so.

Hollings suggested that if New Hampshire follows Iowa's lead, "the rest of us are gone" as contenders after next Tuesday. Even so, the South Carolina senator said he believes Mondale would lose to President Reagan next fall.

Askew said the field of contenders would be cut in half after the votes are counted next Tuesday, and suggested he could be one of the casualties if he doesn't run a strong race.

"There's no question if I don't do as well as I think I should do in New Hampshire, it becomes another period of assessment," he said.

Askew said Glenn's political fate may influence his own, since they both are competing for moderate to conservative Democratic votes.

Glenn's paid television appeal coincided with a disclosure that he was effectively ending his campaign in Maine, conceding the state's March 4 caucuses to his rivals.

"The real battle, in the eyes of the national observers, is in New Hampshire," Maine coordinator John Diamond wrote in a letter to 1,000 Glenn supporters. "And in order for the campaign to maintain its viability, we must do well in that state."

Glenn directed his commercial to "mainstream Democrats and independents," and said he hoped the state's voters would exercise the "Yankee independence and judgment for which you've become famous."

"...Now we hear that 'as Iowa goes, so goes New Hampshire,'" he said. "Well, I don't believe that."

Mondale said after his victory on Monday that it was "slightly early" for him to suggest that his rivals withdraw from the race. But there were other Democrats who said the former vice president is within one strong victory in New Hampshire of locking up the nomination.

"You have to look at New Hampshire before you can say it's over," said Bert Lance, Georgia Democratic Party chairman. "The polls show Mondale comfortably ahead in the South and I think they're accurate."

Despite the strength of Mondale's position, former Sen. George McGovern spent the day in a round of newspaper and broadcast interviews, repeating a theme that appeared to work well in Iowa.

"Don't throw your vote away on somebody you don't believe in just because the public opinion polls show he's ahead," he said.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, also campaigning in the state, called himself the "conscience of the Democratic party" and said American companies should cut off any business ties with the government of South Africa within three years.

"We should not license another American corporation to go to South Africa," he said. "Those who are here need to have three years to come out unless the system changes."

Convicted woman gets 10 years probation

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of a wrecker driver has received a 10-year probated sentence with the stipulation that she be home by 10:30 each night.

Debra Ann Moore, 31, was convicted by a state district court jury which also set the 10-year sentence. She was charged with responsibility for an auto accident last November that killed wrecker driver L. C. Stephens.

State District Judge Judge Ted Poe granted probation, but he added extra features to the sentence.

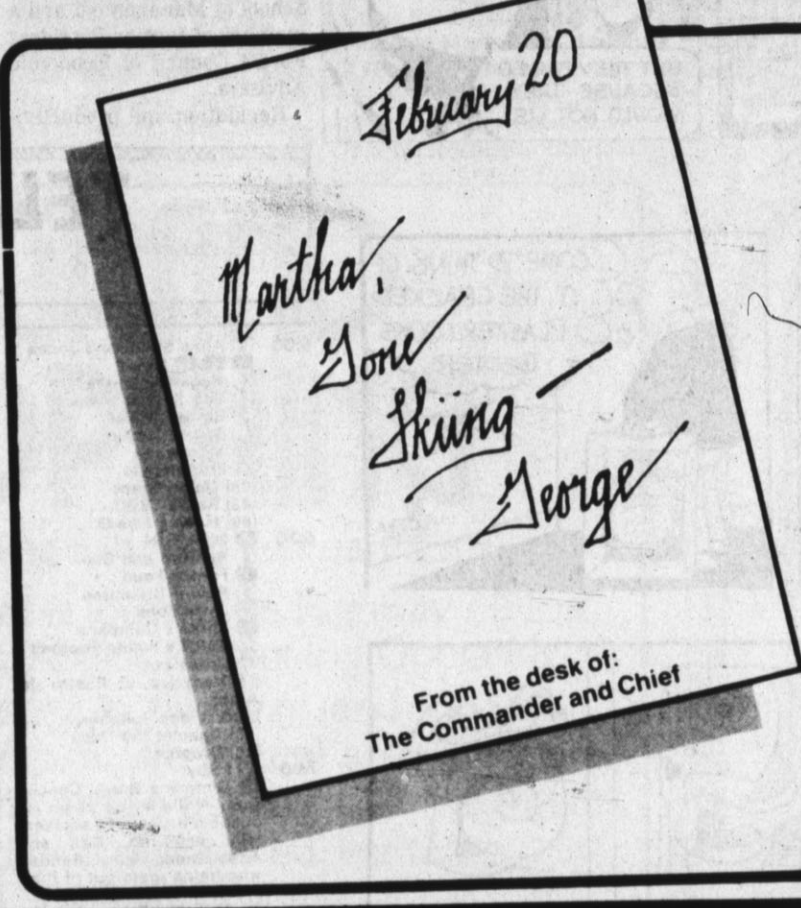

He ordered the woman not to drive during probation and then added the 10:30 p.m. curfew, ordered her to pay a $5,000 fine, seek counseling for alcoholism, pay for Stephens' funeral expenses and to make restitution to another man who was injured in the accident.

A car driven on a Houston freeway by Ms. Moore hit another car which then hit Stephens, authorities said.

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Is it really possible, even for Sam, that spendthrift uncle of ours, to misplace $1 trillion? Your layman's instincts tell you no, but some investigative economists claim you are wrong. They say the United States is really a trillion dollars richer than it realizes.

They maintain that such an amount — one followed by 12 zeroes — may be missing from our calculations of gross national product, or the total output of the economy.

"That's a rough but conservative estimate," says Paul MacAvoy, dean of the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management and a member of former President Ford's Council of Economic Advisers.

Regulation and productivty are of much interest to MacAvoy, who President Reagan named to the National Productivity Advisory Committee, where he chairs the subcommittee for government regulation and productivity.

Much of the detective work on the missing trillion was done at the Brookings Institution during the late 1970s, and several economists have added documentation since then. What happened to the dollars is known, says MacAvoy.

Nevertheless, the lost trillion has as yet not been restored to its proper place in the gross national product, which probably is the most popularly understood measure of economic size.

The confusion began during the 1970s, when government regulations in regard to plant safety, environmental emissions, product quality and automobile safety were imposed on industry.

Consequently, industry was compelled to spend great amounts of money on equipment and procedures, much of which did little to enhance the amount of product rolling out of its mills and factories.

But some of this regulatory effort did indeed result in gains for society, gains that never were counted.

Since there were fewer plant accidents, for example, there was less downtime. Streams were cleaned and air was made more breathable. Even cleaning bills were lowered. The quality of life improved. Health improved.

"But how do you measure the value of clean air?" asks MacAvoy.

Nevertheless, based on the work of himself and others, he figures that some of the big productivity decline measured in the 1970s was not a decline at all.

Roughly speaking, productivity gains in the 1960s ran about 3.5 percent to 4 percent a year. Using the same criteria, gains in the 1970s fell to just 1.5 percent to 2 percent, causing great consternation everywhere.

MacAvoy believes that one-half a percentage point of that decline wasn't real — that society benefited by that amount, even if the benefits weren't counted in gross national product.

Assuming that the gross national product on average was about $2 trillion a year over the period 1970-1982, that one-half percentage point a year adds up to a 12-year total of 6 percentage points, or far more than $1 trillion.

Third annual Career Day at HHS successful

Wednesday morning's Career Day at Hereford High School was termed a success by HHS counselor Willie Braddy, who scheduled and helped coordinate the event. "I think that just went really well," she remarked Wednesday afternoon. The third annual Career Day, she claimed, had many teachers saying students enjoyed the numerous presentations.

Forty-four categories were described by various members of the nearby working world. Each high school student heard four presentations, which were conducted between 8:45 and 11:40 a.m. during special 40-minute periods. Guest lecturers addressed from two to four groups, Braddy explained.

The counselor wished to thank several for helping carry off Career Day. Among them were the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, which helped conduct a special luncheon. Assisting with that and coordinating other activities was the Deaf Smith County 4-H Council.

"We appreciated the help we got," Braddy said. "The faculty all worked very hard, and I appreciated that." She singled out Bill McCarley, HHS principal, for his contributions.

Among the guest lecturers were Charlie Brown, a Hereford resident who described welding and metal work; Joe Black, Hereford, automotive; Bill Phipps, Hereford, electrician electronics; J.C. Prince, Amarillo College of Hair-dressing, hair styling; Dick Saddle, Apian Corporation of Hereford, heavy equipment; Jim Reed, Whitney Russell Printers of Amarillo, printing; and Dr. Kenneth Van Doren, graduate dean at West Texas State University, mathematics application.

Following is a list of other guest lecturers.

Dr. Leon Trekel, WTSU, accounting; Dr. Phillip Gensler, WTSU, computer programming; Jertry Walsh, Frito Lay, Inc. of Hereford, business management; Lyn-ton Allred, Allred Oil Company Inc. of Hereford, business management; Boyd Foster, Arrowhead Mills Inc. of Hereford, sales and merchandising; Janice Kelley, Kelley's Employment Service of Hereford, secretarial; and Steve Gilbert, Hereford State Bank, finance.

Jeff Isaacs, Amarillo, acting; Nancy Crowley, Amarillo College, news and journalism; Jim Pond, Life Development Center of Amarillo, choose a career; John Smith, Hereford Aviation, aviation; Neal Hess, WTSU, dance; Chip Formby and Jeff Hill, KPAN, radio-

TV; and Darrell Rains, South Plains College, architecture and drafting, Levelland.

Sgt. Tom Daniels, Canyon, and Jose Larios, Amarillo, military; Dr. Zuma Austin, Amarillo, food and family; Richard Robinson, Tide Chemical of Hereford, agriculture business; John Fuston, Soil Conservation Service of Hereford, professions in agriculture; and Dr. Steve Lewis, Hereford Veterinary Clinic, veterinary medicine.

Jim Bullard, Deaf Smith General Hospital of Hereford, medicine; Debbie Walker, DSGH, medical technology; Clara Oldham, Amarillo College, dental assistant; Dr. Ted Freidell, WTSU, science; Naomi Black, Amarillo College, nursing; and Marcie Gage, WTSU, nursing.

Gerald Morgan and Schlan Atkinson, Hereford, attorney; Lt. Vernon Hope, Hereford Police Department, law enforcement; Charlotte

Amato, Hereford, social work; Gary McMillan, Blunk Studios of Clinton, Okla., photography; and Darrell Smith, WTSU, art.

Dr. Fred Wagner, Texas Tech University, engineering; Melissa Herber, Dumas, elementary and special education; John Schreiber, West Texas Station, secondary and post education; Ray Pesina, Hereford, carpentry; Dr. Harry Haines, WTSU, music; Meloney Curtis, Amarillo College, parenting and child care; Dr. Zuma

Austin, Amarillo College, clothing and textiles; and Bill Banks, Amarillo Air Terminal Complex, interior design.

Those HHS staffers who helped with Career Day were Monty Adams, John Claypool, Adelle Clements, Carolyn Cook, Kris Dollar,

PUC schedules special hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission apparently had second thoughts about Texans paying higher telephone rates beginning today and backed off an earlier decision authorizing the higher rates.

The panel slated a review for today of what Southwestern Bell claims is an urgent need for more money.

Even if the PUC should authorize the telephone company to put $279.7 million in higher rates into effect at once, the company would still face at least one lawsuit that could block the increase.

Bell's proposals include a $2.75 monthly increase in residential phone rates and a $3.85 increase in one-party business phones.

On Wednesday, the three-member PUC, in effect, authorized Bell to put the increases into effect today, then backed off and scheduled the hearing.

Bell wants to charge higher rates while its $1.3 billion rate hike package is under consideration by the PUC.

Jim Boyle of the Office of Public Utility Counsel filed suit against Bell's proposed rates on Wednesday but did not seek an immediate court hearing.

Boyle and Attorney General Jim Mattox contend that Bell has no legal right to file "bonded rates" before April 22.

Before You Sign The Liquor Petition Look At These Answers and Facts

Question:

Isn't the liquor petition simply an unbiased call for public referendum on liquor stores.

Answer: No

Fact:

This is a WET petition. It reads: "It is the hope, purpose and intent of those who sign this petition to legalize the sale of alcoholic beverages..."

Question:

Aren't we missing out on a lot of tax dollars?

Answer: No

Facts:

The city of Hereford will get only the 1 percent sales tax, and the county will get nothing from stores outside the city limits. Texas state law reads that there shall be no subsequent taxes levied against the sale of alcoholic beverages.

For $10,000 in sales, we get $100. For $100,000 in sales, we get $1000. $3 million in sales nets only $30,000, (only if all the stores are in the city limits.)

Question:

Don't we really need the agricultural related industry that this would allow?

Answer: We do need more industry.

Fact:

The fact is no other business is trying to put liquor stores on our streets.

Question:

Since our teenagers can already get alcohol any time they want it, will this really effect them?

Answer: Yes

Fact:

Juvenile arrests for alcohol possession was up to 165 percent in Lubbock when one small precinct went wet. (Research from Texas Alcohol Narcotics Education-T.A.N.E.)

Question:

Honestly, will this really change Hereford and Deaf Smith County?

Answer: Yes

Facts:

DWI's jumped 66 percent when Denison went wet. DWI's jumped 34 percent when Denton went wet. (Research by T.A.N.E.)

In 1982, Castro County (rural highways) exceeded Deaf Smith (rural highways) by 665 percent per capita in DWI arrests. (Statistic from the Highway Patrol)

Rose reviews early years in Hereford

Helen Rose, a civic worker interested in history and a former Citizen of the Year in Deaf Smith County, presented a program entitled "Hereford 1910" to members of La Plata Study Club Tuesday evening.

The meeting was held in the home of Sunny Brush, with Betty Taylor as co-hostess. Mrs. Rose said that the Deaf Smith County Historical Society asked her to do the research on the historical Black House and in doing so she read all the Hereford Brand newspapers in 1909, 1910 and 1911.

She reported that Hereford was a very social town, even back in the early 1900s. Each party was reported at length in The Brand. She chose 1910 as a fun, eventful year.

She described how La Plata was later moved 26 miles to Hereford. Every building at La Plata was literally moved, rolling the courthouse and other buildings on logs.

Sarah Hazelrigg, president, conducted the business meeting. Roll call was answered by members telling when they came to Hereford. Two of those present, Dorothy Mercer and Margaret Schroeter, said they were natives of Hereford.

Others present were Mozelle Neill, Dorotha Prowell, Virginia Woodford, Donna VanderZee, Avis White, Clara Brown and Lavon Nieman.

Individual cherry pies, tea, coffee and nuts were served by the hostess and co-hostess.

The club's next meeting will be March 20 in the home of Ms. VanderZee, with Chris Shadie presenting a program on gourmet cooking.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"ASK FOR THE BEST"

I suppose that there are hundreds of different languages in the world, and all are excellent for those who understand them.

But to me they mean nothing. A person talking to me in one of these languages will be a stranger to me and I will be a stranger to him.

Since you are so anxious to have special gifts from the Holy Spirit, ask Him for the very best, for those that will be of real help to the whole church.

If someone is given the gift of speaking in unknown tongues, he should pray also for the gift of knowing what he has said, so that he can tell people afterwards, plainly.

For if I pray in a language I don't understand, my spirit is praying but I don't know what I am saying. Well, then, what shall I do? I will do both. I will pray in unknown tongues and also in ordinary language that everyone understands. I will sing in unknown tongues and also in ordinary language, so that I can understand the praise I am giving.

For if you praise and thank God with the spirit alone, speaking in another language, how can those who don't understand you be praising God along with you? How can they join you in giving thanks when they don't know what you are saying?

You will be giving thanks very nicely, no doubt, but the other people present won't be helped.

I think God that I "speak in tongues" privately more than any of the rest of you.

But in public worship I would much rather speak five words that people can understand and be helped by, than ten thousand words while "speaking in tongues" in an unknown language.

Dear brothers, don't be childish in your understanding of these things. Be innocent babies when it comes to planning evil, but be men of intelligence in understanding matters of this kind.

We are told in the ancient Scriptures that God would send men from other lands to speak in foreign languages to His people, but even they would not listen.

I Corinthians 14:10-21

Lucas linked to slayings

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas picked the picture of a murder victim from a photo lineup that included seven other young women, then led authorities to almost the exact spot where her body was discovered more than six years ago, Polk County Sheriff Ted Everitt said.

"It was close enough that we're sure what he was telling us was the truth," Everitt said Wednesday in an interview with Livingston radio station KETX. "There's no doubt in our mind that the case is cleared and that the grand jury will hand down an indictment."

Lucas, a 47-year-old handyman who claims to have killed more than 150 people, also led authorities to the precise spot that officers found a boy's head in a plastic bag in 1980, Everitt said.

Lucas, who has been convicted in two Texas murders, told investigators that he and a traveling companion, Otis Elwood Toole, killed the girl, Everitt said.

Toole, who traveled about the country with Lucas, is jailed in Florida on an arson charge.

After picking Ms. Smith from a photo lineup, Lucas directed the officers to a site off a dirt road near Corrigan, 16 miles north of Livingston, where her body was found in 1977, Everitt said.

Everitt said that when Lucas was asked if he knew anything about a boy's head that had been found in the county in 1980, "he said he and Toole abducted a boy and girl near Houston, and that Toole cut the boy's head off and threw it out."

Lucas took investigators to the same road the head was found on — old U.S. 190 near Blanchard, 12 miles west of Livingston, the sheriff said.

Everitt said Lucas told officers that he grabbed the girl and Toole grabbed the boy outside a convenience store in east Houston.

"At one point, the girl got away and he (Lucas) shot her, he said. He found her hiding under a park bench and shot her. He did not know about the boy. Toole got him, and Toole was the one that cut the boy's head off," Everitt said.

Lucas was brought to Polk County Wednesday by Texas Rangers from Georgetown, where he has been in jail awaiting trial on a murder charges stemming from the death of an unidentified female hitchhiker in 1979.

He has been sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his common-law wife, Becky Powell, 15, and has been assessed a 75-year sentence in the death of Kate Rich, 80, of Ringgold.

A murder indictment that accused Lucas of killing an unidentified woman whose headless body was found near Plainview in 1982 was dismissed earlier in the week by a state district judge on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Lucas was indicted in the case last year after telling officers he picked up the woman on Interstate 20, between Abilene and Colorado City in Dec. 1981.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Blood pressure pills

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm taking blood pressure pills, including Inderal and Dyazide. I'm also about 100 pounds overweight. I'm trying to lose weight, but I'm having a hard time. Once you get on high blood pressure pills, do you ever get off?

DEAR READER — Yes, many people on blood pressure medicine eventually get off. A report from last year's scientific sessions of the American Heart Association made this point. As many as half the people who were taking high blood pressure pills did not need to continue after a period of time.

There are many reasons for this. One, of course, is that people change their lifestyle and lose weight. I'm glad to hear you're making an effort to eliminate that excess body fat, because that just may be the ticket to improving your overall health. It may lower your blood pressure enough that you might be able to discontinue the medicine.

I think the most important thing people can do for high blood pressure is to get rid of excess body fat. In my opinion, that's more important than controlling salt intake. A sensible exercise program that includes walking may help you lose weight.

However, I wouldn't want anyone to stop taking medicine without his doctor's permission. Let your doctor decide if you should continue your blood pressure medicine or not.

I'm sending you the Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, which will explain to you what is important and what is safe for you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read all the fine print on prepared foods because monosodium glutamate affects me. I feel as though I have tight armor around my body. The tenseness may last all day, then suddenly I'm "free" again. I'm sure other people are affected this way and don't realize what's causing their discomfort. Why do they put MSG in so many foods?

DEAR READER — If MSG affects you, it's wise to avoid it. But I must tell you it's simply a sodium (the same sodium in table salt) and glutamic acid, an amino

Final decision due for farmworkers

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge said he would issue a final ruling today on an appeal by Texas farm and ranch workers for on-the-job injury pay guaranteed most other employees in the state.

"We'll have some brief arguments and then I'll announce my decision," said State District Judge Harley Clark after listening to two days of testimony supporting the farm workers' plea for a permanent injunction.

The state offered no witnesses but offered written arguments that the issue be left to the Legislature. The brief said many federal and state laws treat agricultural employment separate from other types of work.

Clark granted the farm workers, backed by the United Farm Workers of the AFL-CIO, a temporary restraining order Jan. 9 that kept the Industrial Accident Board, which administers the state workers compensation law, from throwing out injury claims from ranch and farm workers.

The order was extended through a temporary injunction on Jan. 17.

A University of Texas economist testified Wednesday that on-the-job insurance improves safety records because it makes injuries a part of the cost of doing business.

Sheriff sentenced to a year

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge rejected pleas for leniency and sentenced former Rockwall County Sheriff John M. Vance to a year in prison for hitting a 15-year-old boy with a whip last year.

"I believe that if this offense is not dealt with in a serious manner, then a danger could grow unchecked within our law enforcement community," U.S. District Judge Joe Fish said Wednesday in announcing the sentence.

Fish also ordered Vance to pay a $1,000 fine.

Deputy Roy B. Wooldridge, who continues to serve, was ordered to pay a $500 fine for kicking the boy.

Vance resigned his position in January after pleading guilty to violating the civil rights of 15-year-old Richard V. Williams. Wooldridge also had pleaded guilty to the charges.

Vance also announced when he pleaded guilty that he would not run for reelection.

"Safety tends to improve when you have workers compensation," said Bob Glover, head of the UT Center for Human Resources. "Employers can influence safety on the job and workers compensation motivates them to do so."

In return, Glover said, the employers pay lower rates for workers insurance because there are fewer injuries.

Without on-the-job insurance, Glover said, employers have no idea of their safety record until they are hit with a lawsuit from a disgruntled employee.

Rodolfo de la Garza, UT associate professor of government, testified that Mexican-Americans are underrepresented in the Texas Legislature with four state senators and 18 House members.

"There seems to be a collective sense of impotence among Mexican-American legislators," de la Garza said. "If they want to pass something in the Legislature they usually take it to an Anglo legislator and let him handle it."

Efforts to include farm and ranch workers in the state workers compensation law failed in the Legislature in 1981 and 1983.

A Joint Committee on Farmworkers Insurance appeared near a compromise to be offered the 1985 Legislature but the agreement fell through when the Texas Farm Bureau withdrew its support.

Q. I changed my own points and plugs for the first time several weeks ago and since then I've been having the devil's own time keeping the point gap correct. It runs fine for a while, then the setting changes. What have I done incorrectly?
A. It may well be what you haven't done. Each time you tune your engine and install new points, be sure to remember to lubricate the distributor cam. Failure to do this will, in time, cause the point set's rubbing block to wear abnormally, thus changing the setting. A light coating of high temperature grease will do the trick. Many new point sets are packed with a small container of cam lubricant, and it is also commercially available. One other thing: ALWAYS make sure you have the right set of points for your car.
