Two local residents reportedly end lives

By REED PARSELL

Two local residents have apparently committed suicide within the last two days, according to reports from Hereford police and the Randall County Sheriff's department.

Harmon "West" Weston, 402 W. Park Ave., died Wednesday night of a gun wound which was suspected to have been self-inflicted. At approximately noon Tuesday, the body of Mike Sooter, 34 of Route 1, was found in Umbarger. His shotgun wound also believed to be self-inflicted.

According to Hereford police reports, Weston was killed in his Park Avenue residence around 9:15 p.m. A .38-caliber pistol was found there by police officers. An autopsy was to have been performed this morning by Dr. Ralph Erdmann, district pathologist from Amarillo. The incident was reported to police by James Bowles, 610 Ave. I. He said he and Weston's wife, Tammy Weston, were in the house when Weston shot himself. All three had earlier been at the VFW Hall, Bowles said, from which Weston had been asked to leave due to disorderly conduct.

Police reports indicate an argument between the Weston couple preceded the apparent suicide. Weston then went to a bedroom, from which Bowles and Mrs. Weston heard a gunshot. They were in the living room area.

Lt. Vernon Hope, in a supplementary report, said 13 bullet holes were found on the east living room wall. The shots may have been fired by Weston when he was alone in the home after returning from the VFW.

Taken to the emergency room at Deaf Smith General Hospital, Weston was declared dead on arrival. His date of birth was not listed on any of the police reports, though DSGH Administrator Jim Bullard said Weston was 28.

Sooter's body was found in a GMC pickup near a barn in Umbarger, according to Joel Richardson, criminal investigator for Randall County. E. Jay Hail, justice of the peace in Canyon and a county coroner, pronounced Sooter dead.

Another area resident, meanwhile, was unsuccessful in two recent suicide attempts, according to the Deaf Smith Sheriff's department. Kenneth Artho, 42 of Route 5, apparently first tried to kill himself with an overdose of pills on Feb. 6. More than a month later, on March 11, a rifle placed under his chin also failed cause his death.

Artho is still in an Amarillo hospital being treated for the gunshot wound, according to a sheriff's department spokesman.

In other police matters handled Wednesday, one person was arrested for DWI. Investigated were three incidents of minor theft, two of vandalism and one apiece of auto burglary, disorderly conduct and harassment.

President wanting worldwide ban

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, accused by the Kremlin of stalling on negotiations to curb chemical weapons, is ready to propose a total global ban on development, production and stockpiling of the devices and tough steps to protect against any cheating.

In the meantime, however, the administration will continue to push for resuming U.S. production of chemical weapons, President Reagan said Wednesday.

"If we're going to have a chemical warfare ban or a treaty banning them, you've got to have something to bargain with," Reagan said.

Noting that the United States has not produced any chemical weapons since 1969, Reagan said the Soviet Union "has a massive arsenal and is ahead of us in many areas having to do with chemical warfare."

From the start of the Reagan administration, Congress has rejected the president's plea for resumption of nerve gas production.

At his nationally broadcast news conference, Reagan announced that Vice President George Bush will carry the American treaty proposal to Geneva in two weeks where the 40-nation United Nations Committee on Disarmament is meeting.

Reagan called it "a bold American initiative" and said Bush's mission "is a vital one."

On two occasions, Bush cast the deciding vote in the Senate for producing the weapons, but the issue died in the House.

While the United States is proposing a worldwide ban on the weapons, the Soviet Union is pressing for a prohibition applying only in Europe.

The new U.S. proposal follows on the heels of a Soviet statement last February that it was ready "in principle" to let international teams inspect its facilities for destroying chemical weapons.

Congress' Lebanon talk criticized

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is taking on Congress by sharply criticizing its debate over the use of U.S. troops in Lebanon.

In a prime-time nationally televised news conference Wednesday, Reagan also announced that he will propose a total global ban on development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons, but, until that is achieved, will push for their resumed U.S. production.

By Reagan at conference

Reagan said the United States has lost some credibility, as a result of the debate over the handling of the U.S. troops in Lebanon.

He said that Congress "must take a responsibility," and that all that the "raging" debate can do "is stimulate the terrorists and urge them on to further attacks because they see a possibility of success in getting the force out which is keeping them from having their way."

Referring to congressional criticism of his decision to put troops at the Beirut International Airport and keep them there after 241 were killed in a bomb attack, Reagan said: "I just don't think that a committee of 535 individuals, no matter how well intentioned, can offer what is needed in actions of this kind or where there is a necessity." Last month, the Marines were withdrawn from the airport to ships offshore, and on Friday Reagan quietly announced the redeployment of the fleet away from the Lebanese coast.

During the news conference, Reagan took issue with a Congressional Budget Office criticism that his budget and tax cuts have hurt poorest families the most and helped the richest, saying that such criticism "not only wouldn't be fair, but I don't think it's true."

On the subject of ethics in the administration, the president said "I reject the use of the word 'sleaze,' and I don't think it fits any situation that we have here." Democrats have used the term "the sleaze factor" to describe questions of integrity they have raised.

Inoperable cars nuisance

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Abandoned cars and those inoperable ones left for a long time within public view are nuisances to many towns in this motorized country, including Hereford.

Owners of "junk" cars - those without wheels or other parts as shown in the accompanying photograph - may be given $200 fines and lose their property should their vehicles not be removed. Local police may arrest such owners on a Class C misdemeanor, explained Ronnie Henderson, patrol sergeant supervisor for the local department.

Before any arrest, fine or confiscation is made, however, a warning process must be executed. Police are supposed to issue a written warning to the owner of the vehicle. A letter is then sent to the state capital, Austin, which says the owners have been notified.

Should 10 days pass without the vehicle having been taken care of, police then are to send state officials another letter requesting the car's title be canceled. Hereford Wrecking will then remove the junk vehicle, which in turn will most likely be crushed, according to Henderson.

For local police department

Many people plan, or contend they are planning, to fix inoperable cars when vehicles are placed on driveways or lawns, Henderson said. However, many such cars are left untouched for months, causing complaints from neighbors or police investigations.

Anyone may repair his vehicle, Henderson said, if he "doesn't linger on it." Placing the car within a fenced area or keeping it covered with tarp are examples of how it might be kept from being unsightly.

Abandoned cars, meanwhile, cannot be classified as misdemeanor offenses. If the owners are known, police warn them to take care of the problem within three days. Henderson explained should nothing be done, the vehicles are confiscated by police and kept for 45 days.

Cars not claimed after that period are likely to be auctioned off, the patrol officer said. Most abandoned cars, he pointed out, are in "pretty good shape."

"If we cannot find a lien holder," Henderson said, "we'll run an ad in the paper for one day" which describes the vehicle. State law requires at least advertisement be placed.

Tip-offs for spotting an abandoned car include flat tires, expired stickers and excessive dirtiness, Henderson explained. "A lot of people will report it's been there for awhile," he said. "We keep an eye out for something that's out of place."

County seeking settlement

An out-of-court settlement for the Cervantez vs. Deaf Smith County suit is being sought, county commissioners announced Wednesday afternoon following a closed session.

Charles G. White, an attorney from Plainview representing Deaf Smith in the case, was instructed by commissioners to seek a settlement which costs the county no more than $24,525. White would not say Wednesday why that amount was specified, but claimed reasons would be given should the suit be settled.

The case was filed against the Deaf Smith County Sheriff and the county in January of 1980 by Pedro Cervantez and Jaun Lorenzo. They are being represented by the local Texas Rural Legal Aid office and other legal agencies. The action stems from an Aug. 12, 1979 incident when Cervantez was jailed as a suspected illegal alien.

White said he planned to talk with TRLA representatives today, but he would not guess when the matter might be resolved.

Hill explains her candidacy

Nancy Hill said she is running for Deaf Smith County Commissioner of Precinct 1 because, "I want to see some changes."

The 48-year-old Hereford woman is self-employed as a cattle feeder and has lived in the area the past four years. "Since I'm new to the area, I've done a lot of campaigning," she said. "I've really enjoyed meeting people."

Hill has helped with several political campaigns in the past, including the Dolph Brisco campaign.

A native of Kansas, Hill lived in Amarillo for 20 years before moving to Hereford.

She is a licensed vocational nurse with a degree from 12 years as a surgical nurse. Amarillo College and worked Hill was also employed in the trucking business for 12 years. She is running on the Democratic ticket.

Mother says she fears killer

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — The mother of two students slain by a man who asked them to help fix his car has gathered signatures of 2,266 people urging parole officers not to free the killer.

Bonnie Nichols said she fears retaliation from James Betts if he is released from prison.

Betts, a Conroe fiberglass worker, was sentenced to life in prison for killing Grady and David Barnhill in 1976.

"One of the boys' old girlfriends started having nightmares that he'd get out and come after us," Mrs. Nichols said Tuesday. "There must be something wrong with our system of justice if a man like this can get out of prison."

Mrs. Nichols has delivered the signatures and 131 letters protesting Betts' eligibility for parole to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Houston restaurant too expensive

HOUSTON (AP) — Nick's Fishmarket, a restaurant so expensive some Houston firms forbade employees to eat there on expense accounts, has closed its doors, and its owner blames hard times in an oil-dependent town.

"I'm going home to Chicago," Nicholas S. Nickolas said. "It's just that we were in the right place at the wrong time."

Another Nick's Fishmarket operates in Chicago. "Chicago just offers a better business climate than Houston right now," he said.

Nickolas is blaming the economic downturn in Houston for the demise of the $1.6 million restaurant in the basement of the First City Tower.

The Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday that many Houston businesses felt the restaurant was too expensive and avoided it and some firms even barred employees from putting Fishmarket meals on expense accounts.

Spy case raises fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials are concerned for the safety of a number of U.S. spies now that a former Army counter-intelligence officer has been charged with selling the identity of a U.S. double agent to a spy for the Soviet KGB.

The FBI arrested Richard Craig Smith, 40, of Bellevue, Wash., Wednesday as he arrived at Dulles International Airport from Seattle to surrender.

The financially strapped, self-employed real estate investor was charged with transmitting national defense information to a Soviet intelligence officer, which carries a top penalty of life in prison.

In a court affidavit, FBI agent Michael Waguespack said Smith acknowledged in interviews with the bureau during February that he was paid $11,000 in cash for information about a U.S. double agent operation aimed at learning the identity of KGB spies engaged in espionage against the United States.

Expedition finds human jaw

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Researchers today announced the discovery of a scrap of jawbone they believe to be the oldest fossil of a direct human ancestor ever found, a 5 million-year-old clue that would extend man's family tree back by 1 million years.

The 2-inch fragment, which contains two molar teeth, was found in Kenya in February on an expedition sponsored by Harvard University and the National Museums of Kenya.

The researchers were uncertain whether the jawbone was from a newly discovered species, or an older sample of the oldest known species from which humans are directly descended.

But they believed the fossil would help fill in the misty period more than 3.5 million years ago when mankind's ancestors — known as hominids — are thought to have split off from the forebears of modern apes.

Mass grave found

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A mass grave filled with murdered peasants was discovered in western El Salvador, and officials said the country's presidential election is triggering an increase in political violence.

In Honduras, the Congress on Wednesday elected Brig. Gen. Walter Lopez Reyes, the head of the air force, to replace the ousted commander of the country's armed forces. Lopez Reyes, 43, the nephew of a former military dictator, is said to favor close ties with the United States.

A member of El Salvador's human rights commission said that remains of murder victims are being found almost daily in areas north of the San Salvador.

The human rights observer, requesting anonymity for fear of reprisals, said Wednesday that some 20 bodies were discovered last week in a mass grave near the town of Armenia, 24 miles west of the capital.

Battles over bird fought

AGANA, Guam (AP) — The last nesting place for a species of nearly extinct, flightless bird is to fall prey to machetes and chainsaws on Monday because the U.S. Air Force fears the tall, bushy weeds could be a hiding place for terrorists.

Just a few dozen wild Guam rails are left, the rest having fallen victim to disease, house pets and a predatory snake recently introduced on this central Pacific island.

But the newest threat to the quail-sized birds known locally as "kokos" are the huge B-52 bombers at nearby Andersen Air Force Base which the military considers the "priority resource" in need of protection.

Virgin Atlantic wins approval

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Virgin Atlantic airline won approval today for a $120 one-way fare between London and Newark, N.J., and a spokesman said it hoped to start daily service in June.

The flights would put Virgin Atlantic in direct competition with American-owned People Express airline, which now offers one-way flights between Gatwick Airport and Newark Airport, near New York City, for $149 coach and $439 first class.

The British airline, owned by a 33-year-old millionaire, still must get Civil Aviation Authority approval of its technical and management structure and U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

But the license for the cut-rate fares, granted by the Civil Aviation Authority, was considered a major stumbling block for Virgin, which has yet to begin any flight operations.

All right, farmers — what do you want your president to do?

You'll never have a better chance to make yourselves heard than right now.

The few of you don't have the numbers to have much clout in Washington between elections, but you have it now.

You are uncomfortable as hell in the cost-price vice—you are hollerin' mad at the way things are—but don't let all the steam blow off in the whistle.

Tell this president and-or the guys who want to be president something specific they can and must do to help you.

While you're thinking about it, let me dare to remind you that some of the trouble you're in no president can help.

Northern Minnesota has had seven years of drought; no president can make it rain.

And even if he could, he'd never get the rice farmers of Arkansas and the catfish farmers of Alabama and the citrus growers of the Rio Grande Valley to agree on how much is too much.

Agriculture is a many splendored thing—but its very diversity sets senators from cotton states against wheat programs and vice versa.

And you tried a peanut farmer in the White House and ended up with an embargo!

Farmers, I don't know how to make a sharp point painless; some farmers shouldn't.

I know that in Iowa 10 percent of farmers are bankrupt or almost. Lots of bottomland farmers have suffered natural disasters.

And I see the tight-jawed men and weeping farm wives on prime-time TV telling how rough it is to be over-the-hill and starting over.

But some farmers shouldn't.

Some farmers are bad farmers; spend more time at the tavern than on the tractor.

Some farmers are good farmers and bad managers, take on too much land, too much debt; have no cushion for a succession of bad years.

Some young farmers for no better reason than trying to keep up with the Joneses will buy bigger tractors than they need — or can pay for.

I know for a fact of a Binkford, N.D., dairy farmer whose vanity led him to invest in a new milking machine—though to pay for it he had to sell his only milk cow!

That sounds like a joke. It's no joke.

Too many of us have put too many eggs in one basket. Without diversification we're vulnerable. Too many sunflowers and the midge comes along and here comes the sheriff.

Some farmers shouldn't. It's too easy always to blame the government.

But while politicians left and right are courting you, if you have a constructive recommendation to offer, now is the time.

After tumultuous debate

Senate nears approval

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Senate is about ready to approve $61.7 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador after a tumultuous debate in which Democrats accused President Reagan of spoiling for a fight in his zeal to stem communism in Central America.

"I believe that the day after he is re-elected, if he is re-elected, we will see American troops fighting in Latin America," Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Wednesday in arguing for an amendment to bar sending troops to El Salvador for combat without congressional approval.

The amendment lost 59-36, with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., calling Central America "the last place in the world we have a chance to prove we are anything, but a paper tiger."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposing to trim the bill of $21 million for the support of anti-leftist rebels in Nicaragua, said Reagan "is spoiling for a fight against Nicaragua, and Congress should have the courage to stop him now."

Kennedy's amendment failed 61-30 after Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., read a letter from Reagan pledging that the United States does not "seek to destabilize or overthrow the government of Nicaragua."

In the closest roll call vote yet in the Senate's week-long debate on Central American policy, the lawmakers turned down 47-43 a move by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., to prevent use of any of the $21 million for "sabotage or terrorism."

Ten Democrats sided with most of the Senate's Republican majority in voting to kill the amendment that would have barred the president from sending U.S. armed forces into El Salvador or Salvadoran air space for combat unless Congress had declared war or enacted a specific authorization. Five Republicans joined 31 Democrats in supporting it.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said he offered the proposal because of his "clear conviction that we are going to reach the point of having American combat forces in El Salvador within a year."

Biden offered to "bet a month's salary" that U.S. troops would be in combat in El Salvador within a year.

The Reagan administration has said it has no plans to send fighting troops to Central America, but has resisted restrictions by Congress on the president's power as commander-in-chief to order troops into action.

After husband's death

Wife dies of cancer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Kathryn Wood has died of cancer almost five years after her husband, U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., was assassinated with a single bullet in the back.

Mrs. Wood died in her townhome about 12:20 a.m. Wednesday with a private nurse by her side, said her daughter, Kathryn Johnston. She was 66.

Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the tough sentences he dealt drug traffickers, was fatally shot by a sniper on May 29, 1979 in the parking lot of the townhome complex.

"She was a very courageous woman," Mrs. Johnston said. "We were a close, small family and a tragedy like that really pulled us together. I'm awfully proud to be her child."

Mrs. Wood discovered she had cancer in January, when she entered a hospital for gall bladder surgery, the daughter said.

She would have been 67 years old next Monday.

Mrs. Wood took the stand during two separate trials of four people charged in the judge's murder and, each time, sobbed as she recalled cradling her dying husband in her arms.

"I said, 'John H., who shot you?'" she testified. "He didn't say anything."

Mrs. Johnston said her mother's testimony marked the only occasion she discussed the murder outside the company of friends and family.

"It was extremely difficult for my mother to carry on after my father was killed, but she was just that kind of woman," Mrs. Johnston said. "She never commented on it publicly, but it was extremely difficult for her."

Jurors convicted Charles V. Harrelson in December 1982 of firing the bullet from the hunting rifle that killed the judge.

Convicted drug trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra had been charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to murder the judge, but was acquitted of murder and murder conspiracy charges.

Chagra was convicted, however, of obstructing justice in the investigation into Wood's death.

Chagra's wife, Elizabeth Chagra, was convicted of conspiracy to murder and to obstruct justice, and his brother, Joseph, pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy in a bargain with government prosecutors.

Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann, was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice and of using a false name to buy the rifle that federal prosecutors believed to be the murder weapon.

Mrs. Wood, known as "Katie," will be buried alongside the slain judge at the city cemetery in Rockport, Texas.

A mass was planned this morning at Our Lady of Grace Church, but the funeral will be private. Mrs. Wood is survived by another daughter, Nancy Moorman; a brother, William A. Holmes of Nixon, Texas; and four grandchildren.

The family requested that all contributions be sent to the John H. Wood Fellowship Fund at Republic Bank of San Antonio.

rearmament."

Announcing the new U.S. proposal, Reagan said it would be difficult to verify Soviet compliance with a chemical weapons ban.

"Only an effective monitoring and enforcement package can insure international confidence in such an agreement," he said, adding that the United States is developing "bold and sound verification procedures."

While Reagan did not spell out the procedures, one administration official, speaking privately, said it would give the two superpowers "access on demand" to each other's chemical weapons stockpiles and production facilities.

Miscarriage of justice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A letter that appeared in your column last July from a mother who said she stood by and did nothing to stop her husband from beating her little boy made me so sick I vomited.

I am enclosing a clipping (dateline, Morgantown, W.Va.) that made me even sicker. What better proof that the judicial system in this country stinks?

A 25-year-old woman and her 28-year-old husband pleaded guilty to taking turns beating their two-year-old son with a foot-long wooden paddle for over two hours. The boy died. The parents beat this child to death because he refused to apologize for striking a playmate. This happened in a "Christian" commune where lengthy spankings were a common form of punishment.

A 10-man, two-woman circuit court jury deliberated for more than nine hours and found the mother guilty of involuntary manslaughter. She was released on $5,000 bond and scheduled for sentencing at a later date. Her husband was tried earlier and found guilty.

The couple face maximum sentences of a year in jail and $1,000 fines. (In some states armed robbers get 20-year sentences even if they don't hurt anybody.) And we call America "land of the free and the home of the brave."

Am I crazy, or is this a hideous miscarriage of justice? I am so enraged I can't see straight.—A Mother In Ponca City, Okla.

DEAR MOTHER: That decision was unreal. Outrageous. A real shocker. Perhaps the fact that the punishment was part of a so-called religious ritual had something to do with the verdict. Regardless, I agree. It stinks.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to you for the first time because I am so frustrated I don't know where else to turn. I refer to people who make appointments, fail to show up and make no effort to postpone, cancel or apologize.

In the past week this has happened to me four times. Since I don't keep regular office hours it means a trip downtown to wait in vain for individuals who don't show up.

What is the matter with these people? Is there a solution to the problem?—Tick-Tock In Oklahoma

DEAR TOCK: There are a variety of possibilities. No-shows often are disorganized, overscheduled, drunk when they made the appointment or confused regarding the time or place.

The fact that you have been victimized so often (four times in one week) suggests that you may be setting yourself up for "disappointment" without knowing it.

The best protection against any of the above possibilities is to phone the day before (or the morning of) the appointment and reconfirm time and place.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A group of us were discussing the merits and drawbacks of alcoholic beverages. One rather knowledgeable fellow claimed that Scotch and bourbon are hard on the liver while vodka and gin are hard on the mind.

True or false?—Choosy In Chippewa Falls

DEAR CHIP: Scotch, bourbon, vodka and gin are equally hard on the liver and mind

if taken in excess. One is no better or worse than the other.

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — The mother of two students slain by a man who asked them to help fix his car has gathered signatures of 2,266 people urging parole officers not to free the killer.

Bonnie Nichols said she fears retaliation from James Betts if he is released from prison.

Betts, a Conroe fiberglass worker, was sentenced to life in prison for killing Grady and David Barnhill in 1976.

"One of the boys' old girlfriends started having nightmares that he'd get out and come after us," Mrs. Nichols said Tuesday. "There must be something wrong with our system of justice if a man like this can get out of prison."

Mrs. Nichols has delivered the signatures and 131 letters protesting Betts' eligibility for parole to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Houston restaurant too expensive

HOUSTON (AP) — Nick's Fishmarket, a restaurant so expensive some Houston firms forbade employees to eat there on expense accounts, has closed its doors, and its owner blames hard times in an oil-dependent town.

"I'm going home to Chicago," Nicholas S. Nickolas said. "It's just that we were in the right place at the wrong time."

Another Nick's Fishmarket operates in Chicago. "Chicago just offers a better business climate than Houston right now," he said.

Nickolas is blaming the economic downturn in Houston for the demise of the $1.6 million restaurant in the basement of the First City Tower.

The Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday that many Houston businesses felt the restaurant was too expensive and avoided it and some firms even barred employees from putting Fishmarket meals on expense accounts.

Spy case raises fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials are concerned for the safety of a number of U.S. spies now that a former Army counter-intelligence officer has been charged with selling the identity of a U.S. double agent to a spy for the Soviet KGB.

The FBI arrested Richard Craig Smith, 40, of Bellevue, Wash., Wednesday as he arrived at Dulles International Airport from Seattle to surrender.

The financially strapped, self-employed real estate investor was charged with transmitting national defense information to a Soviet intelligence officer, which carries a top penalty of life in prison.

In a court affidavit, FBI agent Michael Waguespack said Smith acknowledged in interviews with the bureau during February that he was paid $11,000 in cash for information about a U.S. double agent operation aimed at learning the identity of KGB spies engaged in espionage against the United States.

Expedition finds human jaw

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Researchers today announced the discovery of a scrap of jawbone they believe to be the oldest fossil of a direct human ancestor ever found, a 5 million-year-old clue that would extend man's family tree back by 1 million years.

The 2-inch fragment, which contains two molar teeth, was found in Kenya in February on an expedition sponsored by Harvard University and the National Museums of Kenya.

The researchers were uncertain whether the jawbone was from a newly discovered species, or an older sample of the oldest known species from which humans are directly descended.

But they believed the fossil would help fill in the misty period more than 3.5 million years ago when mankind's ancestors — known as hominids — are thought to have split off from the forebears of modern apes.

Mass grave found

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A mass grave filled with murdered peasants was discovered in western El Salvador, and officials said the country's presidential election is triggering an increase in political violence.

In Honduras, the Congress on Wednesday elected Brig. Gen. Walter Lopez Reyes, the head of the air force, to replace the ousted commander of the country's armed forces. Lopez Reyes, 43, the nephew of a former military dictator, is said to favor close ties with the United States.

A member of El Salvador's human rights commission said that remains of murder victims are being found almost daily in areas north of the San Salvador.

The human rights observer, requesting anonymity for fear of reprisals, said Wednesday that some 20 bodies were discovered last week in a mass grave near the town of Armenia, 24 miles west of the capital.

Battles over bird fought

AGANA, Guam (AP) — The last nesting place for a species of nearly extinct, flightless bird is to fall prey to machetes and chainsaws on Monday because the U.S. Air Force fears the tall, bushy weeds could be a hiding place for terrorists.

Just a few dozen wild Guam rails are left, the rest having fallen victim to disease, house pets and a predatory snake recently introduced on this central Pacific island.

But the newest threat to the quail-sized birds known locally as "kokos" are the huge B-52 bombers at nearby Andersen Air Force Base which the military considers the "priority resource" in need of protection.

Virgin Atlantic wins approval

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Virgin Atlantic airline won approval today for a $120 one-way fare between London and Newark, N.J., and a spokesman said it hoped to start daily service in June.

The flights would put Virgin Atlantic in direct competition with American-owned People Express airline, which now offers one-way flights between Gatwick Airport and Newark Airport, near New York City, for $149 coach and $439 first class.

The British airline, owned by a 33-year-old millionaire, still must get Civil Aviation Authority approval of its technical and management structure and U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

But the license for the cut-rate fares, granted by the Civil Aviation Authority, was considered a major stumbling block for Virgin, which has yet to begin any flight operations.

Paul Harvey

All right, farmers — what do you want your president to do?

You'll never have a better chance to make yourselves heard than right now.

The few of you don't have the numbers to have much clout in Washington between elections, but you have it now.

You are uncomfortable as hell in the cost-price vice—you are hollerin' mad at the way things are—but don't let all the steam blow off in the whistle.

Tell this president and-or the guys who want to be president something specific they can and must do to help you.

While you're thinking about it, let me dare to remind you that some of the trouble you're in no president can help.

Northern Minnesota has had seven years of drought; no president can make it rain.

And even if he could, he'd never get the rice farmers of Arkansas and the catfish farmers of Alabama and the citrus growers of the Rio Grande Valley to agree on how much is too much.

Agriculture is a many splendored thing—but its very diversity sets senators from cotton states against wheat programs and vice versa.

And you tried a peanut farmer in the White House and ended up with an embargo!

Farmers, I don't know how to make a sharp point painless; some farmers shouldn't.

I know that in Iowa 10 percent of farmers are bankrupt or almost. Lots of bottomland farmers have suffered natural disasters.

And I see the tight-jawed men and weeping farm wives on prime-time TV telling how rough it is to be over-the-hill and starting over.

But some farmers shouldn't.

Some farmers are bad farmers; spend more time at the tavern than on the tractor.

Some farmers are good farmers and bad managers, take on too much land, too much debt; have no cushion for a succession of bad years.

Some young farmers for no better reason than trying to keep up with the Joneses will buy bigger tractors than they need — or can pay for.

I know for a fact of a Binkford, N.D., dairy farmer whose vanity led him to invest in a new milking machine—though to pay for it he had to sell his only milk cow!

That sounds like a joke. It's no joke.

Too many of us have put too many eggs in one basket. Without diversification we're vulnerable. Too many sunflowers and the midge comes along and here comes the sheriff.

Some farmers shouldn't. It's too easy always to blame the government.

But while politicians left and right are courting you, if you have a constructive recommendation to offer, now is the time.

After tumultuous debate

Senate nears approval

By W. DALE NELSON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is about ready to approve $61.7 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador after a tumultuous debate in which Democrats accused President Reagan of spoiling for a fight in his zeal to stem communism in Central America.

"I believe that the day after he is re-elected, if he is re-elected, we will see American troops fighting in Latin America," Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Wednesday in arguing for an amendment to bar sending troops to El Salvador for combat without congressional approval.

The amendment lost 59-36, with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., calling Central America "the last place in the world we have a chance to prove we are anything but a paper tiger."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposing to trim the bill of $21 million for the support of anti-leftist rebels in Nicaragua, said Reagan "is spoiling for a fight against Nicaragua, and Congress should have the courage to stop him now."

Kennedy's amendment failed 61-30 after Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., read a letter from Reagan pledging that the United States does not "seek to destabilize or overthrow the government of Nicaragua."

In the closest roll call vote yet in the Senate's week-long debate on Central American policy, the lawmakers turned down 47-43 a move by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., to prevent use of any of the $21 million for "sabotage or terrorism."

Ten Democrats sided with most of the Senate's Republican majority in voting to kill the amendment that would have barred the president from sending U.S. armed forces into El Salvador or Salvadoran air space for combat unless Congress had declared war or enacted a specific authorization. Five Republicans joined 31 Democrats in supporting it.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said he offered the proposal because of his "clear conviction that we are going to reach the point of having American combat forces in El Salvador within a year."

Biden offered to "bet a month's salary" that U.S. troops would be in combat in El Salvador within a year.

The Reagan administration has said it has no plans to send fighting troops to Central America, but has resisted restrictions by Congress on the president's power as commander-in-chief to order troops into action.

After husband's death

Wife dies of cancer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Kathryn Wood has died of cancer almost five years after her husband, U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., was assassinated with a single bullet in the back.

Mrs. Wood died in her townhome about 12:20 a.m. Wednesday with a private nurse by her side, said her daughter, Kathryn Johnston. She was 66.

Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the tough sentences he dealt drug traffickers, was fatally shot by a sniper on May 29, 1979 in the parking lot of the townhome complex.

"She was a very courageous woman," Mrs. Johnston said. "We were a close, small family and a tragedy like that really pulled us together. I'm awfully proud to be her child."

Mrs. Wood discovered she had cancer in January, when she entered a hospital for gall bladder surgery, the daughter said.

She would have been 67 years old next Monday.

Mrs. Wood took the stand during two separate trials of four people charged in the judge's murder and, each time, sobbed as she recalled cradling her dying husband in her arms.

"I said, 'John H., who shot you?'" she testified. "He didn't say anything."

Mrs. Johnston said her mother's testimony marked the only occasion she discussed the murder outside the company of friends and family.

"It was extremely difficult for my mother to carry on after my father was killed, but she was just that kind of woman," Mrs. Johnston said. "She never commented on it publicly, but it was extremely difficult for her."

Jurors convicted Charles V. Harrelson in December 1982 of firing the bullet from the hunting rifle that killed the judge.

Convicted drug trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra had been charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to murder the judge, but was acquitted of murder and murder conspiracy charges.

Chagra was convicted, however, of obstructing justice in the investigation into Wood's death.

Chagra's wife, Elizabeth Chagra, was convicted of conspiracy to murder and to obstruct justice, and his brother, Joseph, pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy in a bargain with government prosecutors.

Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann, was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice and of using a false name to buy the rifle that federal prosecutors believed to be the murder weapon.

Mrs. Wood, known as "Katie," will be buried alongside the slain judge at the city cemetery in Rockport, Texas.

A mass was planned this morning at Our Lady of Grace Church, but the funeral will be private. Mrs. Wood is survived by another daughter, Nancy Moorman; a brother, William A. Holmes of Nixon, Texas; and four grandchildren.

The family requested that all contributions be sent to the John H. Wood Fellowship Fund at Republic Bank of San Antonio.

Miscarriage of justice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A letter that appeared in your column last July from a mother who said she stood by and did nothing to stop her husband from beating her little boy made me so sick I vomited.

I am enclosing a clipping (dateline, Morgantown, W.Va.) that made me even sicker. What better proof that the judicial system in this country stinks?

A 25-year-old woman and her 28-year-old husband pleaded guilty to taking turns beating their two-year-old son with a foot-long wooden paddle for over two hours. The boy died. The parents beat this child to death because he refused to apologize for striking a playmate. This happened in a "Christian" commune where lengthy spankings were a common form of punishment.

A 10-man, two-woman circuit court jury deliberated for more than nine hours and found the mother guilty of involuntary manslaughter. She was released on $5,000 bond and scheduled for sentencing at a later date. Her husband was tried earlier and found guilty.

The couple face maximum sentences of a year in jail and $1,000 fines. (In some states armed robbers get 20-year sentences even if they don't hurt anybody.) And we call America "land of the free and the home of the brave."

Am I crazy, or is this a hideous miscarriage of justice? I am so enraged I can't see straight.—A Mother In Ponca City, Okla.

DEAR MOTHER: That decision was unreal. Outrageous. A real shocker. Perhaps the fact that the punishment was part of a so-called religious ritual had something to do with the verdict. Regardless, I agree. It stinks.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to you for the first time because I am so frustrated I don't know where else to turn. I refer to people who make appointments, fail to show up and make no effort to postpone, cancel or apologize.

In the past week this has happened to me four times. Since I don't keep regular office hours it means a trip downtown to wait in vain for individuals who don't show up.

What is the matter with these people? Is there a solution to the problem?—TICK-TOCK In Oklahoma

DEAR TOCK: There are a variety of possibilities. No-shows often are disorganized, overscheduled, drunk when they made the appointment or confused regarding the time or place.

The fact that you have been victimized so often (four times in one week) suggests that you may be setting yourself up for "disappointment" without knowing it. The best protection against any of the above possibilities is to phone the day before (or the morning of) the appointment and reconfirm time and place.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A group of us were discussing the merits and drawbacks of alcoholic beverages. One rather knowledgeable fellow claimed that Scotch and bourbon are hard on the liver while vodka and gin are hard on the mind.

True or false?—Choosy In Chippewa Falls

DEAR CHIP: Scotch, bourbon, vodka and gin are equally hard on the liver and mind

if taken in excess. One is no better or worse than the other.

Girls Tennis Singles

HHS's varsity tennis girls singles player Vanessa Sims gets in some practice for this weekend's District 3-5A meet in Amarillo. The top two finishers at the district meet qualify for the state regionals.

Saturday in Whiteface Stadium

Girls District 3-5A meet here

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

All the marbles will be on the line for nine District 3-5A girls varsity track teams Saturday as their district meet is slated to begin at 9:30 a.m. in Whiteface Stadium.

By the end of the day it will be known which 3-5A high school has the best girls track squad and which individuals will qualify for the state regional meet in Lubbock April 18 and 19.

"I hope we'll have some people qualify for the regional meet," girls varsity track coach Martha Emerson said during Wednesday's practice.

The first two finishers in each event will qualify for the regionals. Hereford's Lisa Redmon is one of a number of Whitefaces who Emerson said have good chances of placing high in Saturday's meet.

"Lisa should be the solid favorite in the 200 (meter dash) and I think she can win the 100 (meter dash) if she can run her race."

The coach said other HHS girls such as sophomore distance runner Selma Moreno, discus thrower Bernice Thomas and Diana Devers in the shot put, among others, could fare well.

The Hereford girls have placed third in its previous four meets. But coach Emerson said winning the meet is not out of the question.

"Tascosa, Hereford and Palo Duro are pretty well matched ... the Lubbock schools also have some good people so they could score some points."

Emerson said the difference could lie with who dominates the 400, 800 and 1,600-meter relays.

Tascosa has had times better than HHS's in all three relays while Palo Duro is the favorite in the 400-meter relay.

"The relay competition is pretty stiff but I think we can be there. We can beat Palo Duro and Tascosa in the (long distance running) but they can beat us in the relays - not by very much," she said.

The girls have been training hard but Emerson said practice will lighten up a bit today and Friday in anticipation for Saturday.

Preliminaries will begin at 9:30 a.m. with the finals to commence at 2 p.m.

Stanton and La Plata junior highs, though not their district, also have meets here this week.

The girls compete today beginning at 2:30 while the junior high boys are scheduled to begin competition at 2:30 Friday.

Stadler expects to finish well in Greensboro Open tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Craig Stadler has two big factors going for him this week in the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"I'm playing well, better than I have in a while, and I'm playing a golf course where I've had success before," Stadler said before teeing off today in the first round of a chase for a $72,000 first prize.

The course in question is the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks layout. He won there in 1980 and was a runnerup last season.

"You always feel good about going back to a course where you've won before," he said. "You remember some of your good shots, and you just have positive feelings about it."

Stadler, the 1981 Masters champ, won four tournaments and took leading money-winning honors in 1982. From that high point, however, he failed to take a title last year.

That non-winning string, however, could be nearing an end.

"You can never say you're going to go out and win a particular tournament. There are too many things involved. "But I have a good feeling about things now," said Stadler, a strong, third-place finisher last Sunday.

"I'm hitting more good shots. I'm starting to play pretty well. I'm getting a little more confidence.

"I expect to play well. And when you expect to play well, you often do."

Although a number of leading players are, as usual, skipping Greensboro to concentrate on practice for next week's Masters, the 144-man field contains such top performers as Ray Floyd, defending titleholder Lanny Wadkins, and Fred Couples, who took the money-winning lead last Sunday with his victory in the important Tournament Players Championship.

Other leading players include Ben Crenshaw, Fuzzy Zoeller, Cal Peete, Andy Bean, two-time Greensboro winner Danny Edwards and 1984 tournament winners Tom Purtzer, Jack Renner and David Edwards.

Braves shutout Phils, 4-0

By HERSHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

It was the classic confrontation, power against power. And this time, power pitching stopped power hitting.

The Philadelphia Phillies trailed Atlanta by four runs when they loaded the bases with two out in the eighth inning against tiring starter Craig McMurtry. With slugging Mike Schmidt stepping to the plate, the signal went to the bullpen and out came hard-throwing Steve Bedrosian.

"That's it, the premier situation," Bedrosian said after fanning Schmidt and preserving the Braves' 4-0 six-hit victory Wednesday night. "I had to prove to myself I could do the job. It's a confidence builder facing a power hitter like that and getting him on sliders. It doesn't matter who the batter is in that situation, I just go at 'em and throw hard. He's a good hitter. If he gets hold of it, it's going to go."

In the only other National league games, the Houston Astros trimmed the Montreal Expos 8-2 and the New York Mets shaded the Cincinnati Reds 2-0.

Claudell Washington and Chris Chambliss belted leadoff home runs in the first and second innings as the Braves beat John Denny, the NL's 1983 Cy Young Award winner, for the first time.

Denny, who had won seven previous decisions against Atlanta, went seven innings, allowing all five Atlanta hits while striking out seven. He yielded two more runs in the sixth.

Astros 8, Expos 2
Consecutive triples by Terry Puhl and Dickie Thon produced three runs in the sixth inning as Houston erased a 2-1 deficit. Alan Ashby singled for the fourth hit off Bill Gullickson and Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan reached base on the Montreal pitcher's fielding error to start the Astros' four-run rally in the sixth.

Puhl tripled for two runs and Thon followed with an RBI triple and then scored the fourth run of the inning on Jose Cruz's sacrifice fly. The Astros wrapped it up with three runs in the eighth on Jerry Mumphrey's two-run double and an RBI single by Ray Knight.

Ryan allowed five hits in seven innings while striking out six. Vern Ruhle blanked the Expos on two hits over the final two innings as the Astros, 1-1, made certain that there would be no repeat of last year's disastrous 0-9 start.

"I'm just glad to get the first victory," said Manager Bob Lillis. "When we went ahead, I felt good about it."

Mets 2, Reds 0
Rookie Ron Darling held Cincinnati to a pair of hits in six innings and Junior Ortiz and Keith Hernandez drove in runs. Darling, 1-3 in five major-league starts at the end of last season.

Over Kansas City, 4-3

Niekro, 45, wins AL pitching debut

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

You've got to hand it to Dave Righetti. The New York Yankees did — and the result was a neat relief performance by the one-time starter.

"Righetti did a heck of a job, especially for the first time," said Yankee right-hander Phil Niekro after Righetti saved a 4-3 victory for him over the Kansas City Royals on Wednesday night. "He got me out of a jam, and that's how you win ballgames."

Righetti, a hard-throwing left-hander whose move to the bullpen this year is one of the most watched experiments in the American League, pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning and retired the last seven batters to preserve the Yankee victory. "He looks quicker when he follows that slow stuff that Niekro throws," said Kansas City's Hal McRae. "But he's going to be effective no matter who comes before him if he keeps pitching like he did tonight. He had awfully good stuff."

In other AL action, the Boston Red Sox edged the California Angels 2-1; the Oakland A's defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and the Seattle Mariners tripped the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 in 10 innings. The Chicago-Baltimore contest was rained out.

Niekro, a 45-year-old knuckleballer, scattered nine hits in his AL debut. Niekro, who came to the Yankees from Atlanta as a free agent, took a 4-2 lead into the seventh but got in trouble when Pat Sheridan and McRae hit one-out singles. Righetti struck out Steve Balboni but gave up an RBI single to Frank White before ending the inning on a groundout by Butch Davis.

Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff gave up two runs in the second on a triple by Toby Harrah, a double by Butch Wynegar and Tim Foli's RBI single. Onix Concepcion's RBI double and a run-scoring single by McRae tied it for the Royals in the third. Then the Yankees chased Splittorff in the fourth with doubles by Dave Winfield and Harrah and Wynegar's RBI single.

"I felt good," said Niekro, who won 268 games in the National League. "The first one is over," he said of his American League debut. "Now I can get that off my mind."

Red Sox 2, Angels 1
Mike Easler's two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning carried Boston over California.

With California up 1-0 on

Fred Lynn's fifth-inning homer, Wade Boggs led off the ninth with a single off reliever Luis Sanchez. After Jim Rice lined out to right field, Easler walloped his first homer of the season, over the center field fence.

Mark Clear, who relieved Bob Ojeda after the southpaw had held the Angels to six hits in seven innings, picked up the win. Sanchez, 0-1, came on with one out in the eighth after California starter Mike Witt had blanked Boston on four hits.

A's 4, Brewers 3
Dave Lopes doubled home a run in the sixth inning and Carney Lansford followed with an RBI single for Oakland, who came from behind a second straight game and beat Milwaukee. Lansford had three hits, including the game-winner, and Ray Burris pitched six innings of strong relief before giving way to Bill Caudill in the eighth. The loser was Mike Caldwell, the Brewers' left-hander who was staked to an early 3-0 lead.

"I'm waiting in the wings," said Lopes, who is scheduled to play a reserve role this season. "My job is to keep pressure on my teammates, let them know that if they're not hitting, someone is there ready to take over for them."

Mariners 3, Blue Jays 2
Phil Bradley singled home Spike Owen from second base in the 10th inning to lift Seattle over Toronto.

Owen opened the 10th with a walk off reliever Dennis Lamp and was sacrificed to second by Jack Perconte. Lamp then intentionally walked Barry Bonnell and Bradley, who scored the game-tying run as a pinch runner for Gorman Thomas in the bottom of the ninth, lined a single to right.

The victory went to Mike Stanton, who replaced Seattle starter Mike Moore with one out in the ninth. Stanton struck out Lance Mulliniks with runners at second and third.

SUICIDE AND AGE

Youth rate soars — but there are more elderly victims

(Source: National Center for Health Statistics)

NEA GRAPHIC/Marilyn Post

Despite the dramatic increase in suicide among the young, the elderly have the highest suicide rate of any age group.

A century later

Mission still helping homeless men

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The residents of the Open Hearth Mission may be down on their luck, but they don't live that way.

Founded a century ago in a rough waterfront district that now is the site of an interstate highway, the Open Hearth is still in business, providing a home-style environment for about 75 men.

"I try to have a family concept here, and everyone has responsibility to the group," said Don Goulette, a former school teacher and administrator who has been executive director of the shelter since 1977.

All able-bodied residents at the privately run Open Hearth work, mainly at the shelter's firewood business which dates back to the turn of the century and provides more than half of the $384,000 yearly operating budget. The rest comes from welfare payments, endowment income and contributions.

The men who don't split and deliver wood — the Open Hearth sold 2,000 cords last year — clean and maintain the building and staff the shelter's kitchen. Residents operate their own meal service.

Danny Capa, 47, an experienced cook, is the current kitchen supervisor. He said he came to the shelter four months ago after hitting hard times in Boston.

"I figure I'm looking at another six months, then I'll find some goal," he said. "This is not a flophouse. This is a home, and that's a lot of difference."

The shelter, in a four-floor brick building converted in 1927 from a rooming house, includes a brightly decorated chapel to the left of the main entrance. The chapel is in a room that was a honky-tonk barroom in the rooming-house days.

The recreation room, where residents gather to watch television, is stark, with benches along the wall and a worn-out linoleum floor. But the dormitory section is kept painted and neat.

"The place was cold" when he took over, Goulette said. "It seemed to say, 'You must be bad or you wouldn't be here,'" he said. "The first thing I did was get the place painted and hang some draperies."

The average stay at the shelter is three to four months, and the ages of the residents range from 17 to 84, Goulette said.

The demand for emergency shelters has increased markedly in Connecticut over the past four years, and especially since 1982, according to James G. Harris Jr., the state human resources commissioner. Harris estimated the number of homeless people in Connecticut at between 6,000 and 10,000 and rising.

The state is spending $1.2 million this year on aid to shelters and soup kitchens, $950,000 of it from federal social-service block grants.

In Washington, the Federal Emergency Management Agency allocated $40 million for 1984 to help private agencies house the homeless nationwide. New Orleans Mayor Ernest N. Morial, chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors' task force on joblessness and hunger, estimated last January that there are 500,000 to 2 million homeless people nationwide.

Goulette is critical of many shelters' lack of support and rehabilitation facilities. "You can give a guy fish and feed him for a day, but you really should teach him to fish for himself," Goulette said. "These other kinds of shelters that are opening more and more now are just Band-Aids."

The Open Hearth helps it "guests" to find job training programs, cash in on available welfare and other benefits and get treatment for alcoholism, drug addiction, psychiatric disturbances and other problems, he said.

The Open Hearth was founded by Episcopal seminarians as a religious reading room in the city's now-demolished East Side waterfront district near the Connecticut River. In 1888, the mission added its first overnight shelter, making it one of the nation's oldest continuously operated shelters in the United States, Goulette said.

After recent drug raid

Twins ordered to prison in burglaries

GRANBURY, Texas (AP) — Twin brothers arrested after a drug raid on a house where authorities discovered the body of a dismembered infant have been handed prison terms on unrelated burglary convictions.

Timothy Newsome, 19, pleaded guilty to three burglary charges and sentenced to 25 years in prison, officials said Wednesday. His twin brother, James, pleaded guilty to one burglary charge and was sentenced to five years in prison.

The charges stemmed from burglaries in the Granbury area, authorities said.

During a Jan. 12 drug raid on a house outside of Granbury, Hood County sheriff's officials discovered a black box containing the remains of an infant. The remains consisted of a portion of a skull, one hand, a foot and other bones, investigators said.

Hood County District Attorney Dan Grissom said pathologists were able to provide few details about the bones.

"Pathologists never were able to go anywhere with it," Grissom said. "They were the bones of a young child... they were never able to tell how long it had been dead," Grissom said.

Grissom said he does not foresee any further investigation concerning the bones.

When the bones were discovered, Timothy Newsome told authorities the box had been given to him while he was attending a devil worshipers' party in Indiana.

"We believe he was telling the truth on how he got them," Grissom said.

An English Lake, Ind., man told officials that he had showed a box of bones to Newsome at a party and that Newsome had come back later and taken the bones, authorities said.

The party was not a devil worshipers' party, said Stark County, Ind., Sheriff Dave Walter.

The Indiana man said he had found the bones, which he thought were those of an animal, inside a house that he had bought from a taxidermist, officials said.

The previous owner of the house had died, authorities said.

"Indiana officials never found out anything else about them," Grissom said.

Special investigators assigned

The Texas Employment Commission is assigning special investigators in the major metropolitan areas of the state to catch people who are illegally receiving unemployment insurance.

Overpayment and Fraud Control, one section of TEC's Unemployment Insurance Department, is responsible for detection and investigation of individuals who may defraud the state or federal government when receiving benefits during periods of joblessness.

The special investigators, assigned to Houston, San Antonio, Austin and the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan areas, will initiate complaints with local prosecutors. Criminal charges are filed against those persons found to be receiving benefits under fraudulent pretenses. Each case will be monitored to ensure the arrest and conviction of defendants.

Every local TEC office involved in the processing of unemployment insurance claims will continue to operate Benefit Payment Control Activity, with the new investigators acting as coordinators and resource persons in their assigned areas. Cooperative efforts will also be coordinated with other local, state and federal agencies to thoroughly investigate possible offenses to the Unemployment Insurance system.

Nixon went on lawyers' advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon says "bad advice from well-intentioned lawyers" kept him from destroying the White House tapes that led to his resignation in 1975.

Nixon, in an interview to be televised Sunday night on CBS' "60 Minutes," said the lawyers "had sort of the cockeyed notion that I would be destroying evidence."

In a second segment of the interview, to be broadcast Tuesday night on CBS' "The American Parade," the former chief executive said he knew in July 1974 that his presidency was doomed when Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama refused to intercede and try to influence a conservative and powerful southern Democrat, Rep. Walter Flowers, to rally other conservatives on the House Judiciary Committee.

"The call had taken only 6½ minutes," Nixon said. "But as I hung up the phone, I knew it was all over. I turned to Al Haig. I said, 'Well — there goes the presidency.'"

Wallace said he did not feel he could talk to Flowers "because he might resent my doing so," Nixon said.

Local Deanery president conducts meeting

Chela Perez, president of the Hereford Deanery of the Amarillo Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, conducted the spring meeting at the Holy Name Catholic Church in Happy on Monday. Theme of the meeting was "A Vision of Hope."

Bible enthronement was carried out by Ms. Perez, Linda Jo Ramaekers of Dimmitt, and Mary Lou Spinhirne of Hereford.

Vice-president and program chairman, Lorene Frausto of Tulia, introduced the keynote speaker, Sister Olivia of St. Anthony's Hospital of Amarillo, who spoke about and conducted a workshop on the "Hospice" program.

Sister Olivia was assisted by the Rev. Herbert Lynskey, pastor of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Amarillo and Gennel Ray, counselor, also of Amarillo.

The trio explained the many types of services provided by Hospice for the terminally ill, usually cancer patients and their families. The key words of the project are love and service.

Although volunteers are needed to participate in this endeavor, financial assistance is also encouraged. The offertory collection of $286.95 was presented to Sister Olivia.

Mass was offered by Bishop L.T. Matthiesen and celebrated by Msgr. Francis Smyer of Amarillo; Reverends B.A. Erpen of Happy, Rex Nichols of Tulia, Frank Eldridge of Hereford, Shanon Sherry of Bovina-Friona, James Sanderman of Umbarger, and Harold Waldow of Nazareth, moderator of the Hereford Deanery.

Bishop Matthiesen, in his remarks to the ladies, said he knew how the patients at a Hospice House felt—utterly helpless! Also, he appreciated all the care and prayers that were offered for his recovery.

Ms. Perez presided at the business session. Eighty-four persons attended the one-day meeting. Winning a blender were Manuel and Casimira Luera of Tulia.

In his closing remarks, Msgr. Francis Smyer, DCCW moderator, told the women "A Vision of Hope! We are in the middle of our Lenten journey and are looking forward to 'A Vision of Hope' on Easter Sunday. We are the heart of the church and will fulfill our responsibilities and take our rightful place in it. As priests, the clergy gain much from the women's presence. The women of the church are "A Vision of Hope!"

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served after the meeting. The noon luncheon was prepared and served by the women of the Holy Name Parish.

What's on the TV this evening is whatever snacks haven't been cleared up since yesterday.

Hospital volunteers contribute 350 hours

President Theda Seiver announced that the Deaf Smith General Hospital Auxiliary contributed 350 hours of volunteer work during the month of March when the organization met for its monthly luncheon in the hospital conference room on Monday.

Ms. Seiver presided at the business session, during which minutes were read and the treasurer's report was given.

Jane White and Bertha Dettmann volunteered to help with the Better Breathing meeting to be held at the Community Center on April 26.

Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, spoke to the group about improvements that are being sought for the hospital and also gave a brief resume of the candidates running for hospital board, encouraging the members to "go out and vote."

Following the meeting, Bea Hutson, Helen Brown, Ms. Seiver, Bonnie Sublett, Olga Harris and Grace Covington stayed to stuff envelopes for the house-to-house Cancer Society drive slated Sunday.

Welcomed as a guest was Isabell Kinning of Albuquerque, N.M., Ms. Dettmann's aunt. Other members in attendance were Lupe Cerda, Nell Culpepper, Juanita Bennett, Irene Reinart, Gwen London, Baxter London, Ann Stindt and Karen Barela.

Reviewed as slow

Two-hour movie not satisfying

By TOM JORY Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It seems like "The Red-Light Sting," with a cast that includes Beau Bridges, Farrah Fawcett and Harold Gould, ought to be better than it is. Government agents buy a brothel in San Francisco in a last-ditch effort to snare a brutal extortionist, and that sounds like fun.

But the two-hour, made-for-TV movie tonight on CBS is slow-moving and wordy, and the denouement is less than satisfying.

Here's what happens: Frank Powell (Bridges), new in town, is assigned by his boss, Ruger, (Philip Charles MacKenzie) to run the place.

"Ever do anything with hookers?" Ruger asks Frank in what, regrettably, must pass for clever dialogue. "I mean, do you know anything about prostitutes?"

"Not much," Frank replies. "I can recognize them on street corners."

He takes over the high-class joint ("Well," he says, "I guess everybody loves everybody around here") and persuades the former owner's "hostess," Kathy Dunne (Miss Fawcett), to help catch Sully (Gould) and his degenerate henchman, Lucas (James Luisi).

There ought to be something deft and slightly ingenious about the scheme; instead, this plan is about as subtle as a sledgehammer. The feds want to videotape Sully as he demands "protection" money from Frank.

So when Sully, a shrewd man, won't go along, it almost ruins the film. Aside from a silly subplot (an accountant in Washington stumbles over the expensive operation and runs to an opportunistic congressman), nothing aside from the predictable really happens.

In the "predictable" category is the romantic interlude, in which Frank and Kathy fall in love. It won't be easy: Frank already has a girlfriend, who seems to call at the most inopportune times, and Kathy has some old and bad "habits" that might be tough to change.

No wonder Frank is confused.

Finally, they make love, presumably on a hillside overlooking San Francisco Bay. Afterward, Kathy's behavior is sullen, and Frank is even more confused.

"Spare me the analysis," she says when he wonders what's wrong. "Just bring me the cash next time."

"Kathy," he pleads, "don't make it sound so cheap."

Sully and Lucas, however, appear to be made for one another.

Sully (after Lucas has "disposed" of a witness) — "I guess when you come right down to it, I'm kind of squeamish."

Lucas — "Well, different people ..."

And later: Sully (to Lucas, who can't understand Sully's cat-and-mouse game with Frank) — "You don't see that ... the contest, the struggle. Well, it's a shame. We all have our function."

It's called a "sting," so you know going in that Sully can't escape. There's a twist at the end, scripted, no doubt, to avoid an otherwise routine ending. It's no more clever than the original plan.

Serving on the seminar committee at her church has proven quite interesting for Kathy Paetzold.

For the past three years the Rev. Peter Marshall Jr. has led weekend seminars at the First Presbyterian Church, and the committee is now discussing tentative plans to host author Keith Miller in the fall.

"I have really enjoyed being involved in this way, and am looking forward to the next seminar," stated Kathy.

The young homemaker also teaches a first and second grade Sunday school class and is a member of the women's association at the church. She attends two Bible studies, one at the church, and is a member of Church Women United.

Kathy has been active in various clubs in the past, but now keeps busy with family and church activities.

She and her husband, Joe, are the parents of two children, Jason, age 8, and Jill, who is 3 years old. The family moved into town four years ago. They had previously lived on the farm, 13 miles from Hereford.

"I'm enjoying living in town," said Kathy. "It's so convenient, especially since Jason is getting involved in more and more activities."

A third grader at St. Anthony's School, Jason plays YMCA basketball, is in Cub Scouts, and takes piano lessons and an "I Can" course. Kathy takes Jill to Kid's Day Out once a week.

The Paetzolds do custom hay baling, and sometimes take their children with them in the summer. Joe is a pilot and loves to fly, according to Kathy. He has done some aerial application, and the family often takes the plane on trips and to visit relatives.

They like to go camping in New Mexico and, closer to home, at Palo Duro Canyon. "Jason is getting real interested in camping, being in Cub Scouts," noted Kathy. Both Joe and Kathy were raised south of Hereford near the Easter community. Joe graduated from Hereford High School and Kathy, from Dimmitt High School.

Before their marriage, Kathy moved to Canyon and attended West Texas State University. She continued her study, commuting to canyon, after the couple married, and received her degree in education with an endorsement in special education.

She taught at Northwest School for two years, and later helped with a playschool at the Presbyterian Church for 2 to 4-year-olds. She now enjoys staying home with her children.

She and her husband are currently taking a successful living course from Virgil Slentz, which they both enjoy. Joe has a collection of ducks, and Kathy likes to sew, work in the yard, and cook.

She shares two old-fashioned recipes from her grandmother, lazy daisy cake and molasses cookies. "The molasses cookies will stay soft if kept in an airtight container, or they will be hard like gingersnaps if the lid fits loose, so you can make them the way you prefer," she said.

The third recipe, peanut butter ice cream, began as an experiment. "We make a lot of ice cream in the summer, and we like peanut butter, so I tried putting them together," explained Kathy.

LAZY DAISY CAKE

2 eggs
1 c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 c. milk (scalded)
1 Tbsp. butter
1 c. flour
1/4 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt

Beat the eggs; add sugar gradually. Stir in vanilla. Scald the milk. Add butter to hot milk and let cool.

Sift flour, measure; sift together with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to the egg mixture and beat. Add milk last and mix thoroughly.

Grease pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until light brown. Pour icing over hot cake.

LAZY DAISY ICING

5 Tbsp. butter
9 Tbsp. sugar
4 Tbsp. cream
1/2 to 1/4 c. coconut

Mix melted butter, sugar, cream and coconut together and bring to a boil. Boil until icing bubbles and turns golden brown. Pour over hot cake.

Cake and icing recipes can be doubled for a larger cake, or double the icing for a richer cake.

MOLASSES COOKIES

3/4 c. shortening
1 c. brown sugar
1 egg
4 Tbsp. molasses
2 tsp. soda
1/4 tsp. salt
2 c. flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ginger

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and molasses. Add dry ingredients. Form into balls and roll in granulated sugar. Place 3 inches apart on cookie sheet and bake 10 to 12 minutes at 350 degrees.

PEANUT BUTTER ICE CREAM

1 can Eagle Brand Milk
1 can evaporated milk
2 c. sugar
2 eggs
1 (14 oz) jar crunchy peanut butter
2 Tbsp. vanilla

Combine ingredients and add enough milk to freezer to fill can two-thirds full. Freeze as usual.

Oil-vinegar cleans

Some daydream at work, but golfers usually putter the time away till they can get out to the course.

A bargain is something advertised at a great saving that you purchased at full price the day before.

DEAR POLLY — Can you tell me of anything that will clean Masonite wall paneling, but will not streak or smear? I have tried most of the paneling cleaners on the market. — DOT

DEAR DOT — A mild detergent and water solution (try dishwashing liquid) should do the job. If streaking seems to be a problem, rinse with clear water and polish dry with a soft cloth.

For a little more cleaning power, try this paneling cleaner. Mix one tablespoon white vinegar and one tablespoon olive oil in a quart of warm water. Dip a cloth in the warm solution, wring it out well, then use it to rub down paneling. Dry by wiping down with a soft, clean cloth. This removes dirt without harming the finish of most types of paneling including fine wood.

This formula and other home cleaning solutions (a heavy-duty wood wash, laundry presoak, furniture polish, laundry soap and others) can be found in my newsletter, "Polly's Homemade Soaps and Cleaners." Readers who would like a copy should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — As I got older, I was embarrassed that I often forgot to turn off the burners on my stove. Then I read this bit of wisdom that broke me of this dangerous habit: "Don't remove food from the stove until after you've turned off the burner it was on!" — GRACE

DEAR GRACE — This is an excellent safety Pointer and one that I'm always going to follow myself. Thank you for a worthy Pointer of the Week. Hope you enjoy your autographed copy of "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." — POLLY

Abnormal gas

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is that whenever I eat a lot my stomach swells up and I get terrible gas. My stomach hurts and feels as though it's ready to pop. I went to the hospital for X-rays, but the doctor said nothing was wrong.

I try to diet, but get nervous and have hot flashes. My bowels are not regular and I usually have to take a laxative. I have to strain and have pain in my right side.

DEAR READER — If you are having discomfort and distention, there certainly is something wrong. You must find out what's causing the discomfort and do something about it.

The two main sources of gas distention are swallowing air and the fermentation of foods you've eaten. Carbon dioxide released from carbonated drinks is absorbed into the blood and eliminated through the lungs and isn't that much of a problem. Everyone swallows air. We can't eat or drink without doing so. You can minimize air swallowing by drinking through a straw.

Many people take antacids, which don't always help. You have another problem that's making your gas much worse: Your bowel complaints lead me to believe that you have a spastic colon. The reason many people don't have gas symptoms is because the gas, swallowed or from fermentation, passes unnoticed. But if you have a spastic colon, the gas can't escape and it builds up in the colon. It's like blowing up a balloon. If such a person can relieve the spasm, the gas passes and the pain is relieved.

Q. I drive a two year old Mustang with a four-speed manual transmission. During the past three weeks the gears have become progressively more difficult to shift. Will I have to replace the whole transmission to solve the problem?

A. Maybe not. Hopefully, the gears are not already heavily worn. The gears are sticking and it is probably due to low lubricant level in the transmission case. Remove the filler plug on the transmission case and check the lubricant level. It should be to the bottom of the filler hole. If the lube level drops from one check to the next, you have a minor problem which if not corrected will cause major problems. If the transmission case cover is tight and you do not have a loose countershaft, you will need to replace a damaged gasket, damaged seal or retainer to stop lubricant loss.

Question: How much is last year's record of a mutual fund worth to you when deciding where to put your IRA?

Question: How much risk does a mutual fund take to achieve a 40% return?

Answer: You never know until it's too late.

I offer all types of IRA investments!

CANCER ANSWER LINE

American Cancer Society
M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute

QUESTION: What in cigarettes causes lung cancer?

ANSWERline: We do not know exactly, but a number of substances in smoke condensate are carcinogenic in animals. A number of others are co-carcinogenic — that is they can produce cancer when combined with other chemicals present in the smoke. Others are tumor promoters. Once a cancer starts they can cause it to grow faster.

Police seek slain woman's car

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Beaumont police are searching for the car of a slain nursing student, hoping it gives them clues in a case in which they say the "prime fugitive" is an Australian-born race car driver suspected in six other abductions.

A woman positively identified Christopher Bernard Wilder, 39, as the man posing as a photographer and soliciting models at a Beaumont shopping mall last week, police said at a news conference Wednesday.

Wilder is charged in a federal kidnapping warrant issued in the March 20 abduction of a 19-year-old Florida State University student. The woman escaped and told police she was tortured and raped.

Police in Beaumont hope to find the orange Mercury Cougar XR7 which belonged to Lamar University nursing student Terry Diane Walden.

Mrs. Walden's body was found March 26 in a canal west of Beaumont. She had been stabbed to death, bound hand and foot and thrown in the water, officials said.

"We consider the recovery of the car to be of prime importance," Beaumont police detective Don Geen said.

Police Officer Jim Carpenter said so many women have asked for guidance in how to ward off an attacker that the police department is holding self-protection seminars. Officials said about 1,400 women attended a self-defense seminar Tuesday. Wilder is believed driving a 1973 Chrysler New Yorker, bearing Florida license plates, with a dark blue vinyl top and a white bottom, officials said.

Electrocution set

Louisiana executes double murderer

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — Convicted murderer Elmo Patrick Sonnier won forgiveness from the father of one of his two teen-age victims today, then died in Louisiana's electric chair as both fathers watched with folded arms.

Meanwhile, in Florida, 30-year-old Arthur F. Goode III awaited electrocution today at Florida State Prison near Starke. Goode, who was condemned for the 1976 slaying of 9-year-old Florida boy, said Wednesday that he was still eager to molest little boys.

It was to be the first time since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976 that two executions were carried out on the same day.

At the Louisiana State Prison at Angola, Sonnier, 35, insisted to the end that his younger brother had committed the Nov. 5, 1977, murders of the sweethearts abducted from a lonely lover's lane. But Gov. Edwin Edwards and five courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court, all rejected last-minute clemency bids.

The execution was Louisiana's third since December and the nation's 17th since 1976.

Sonnier was convicted of pumping three bullets each into Loretta LeBlanc, 18, and her fiance, David Bourque, 16.

This morning, moments before a black hood was slipped over his head, Sonnier looked toward the witness room and directly into the eyes of Lloyd LeBlanc.

"Mr. LeBlanc, I have no hatred in my heart.... I have to ask your forgiveness," he said.

LeBlanc nodded once and said, "Yes." Beside him, the other father, Godfrey Bourque, said softly, "He didn't ask me."

Sonnier had been led to the execution chamber at Angola State Prison by Sister Helen Prejean, a Roman Catholic nun.

Four alternating jolts of 2,000 volts and 500 volts of electricity passed through his body and he was pronounced dead at 12:15 a.m. CST.

"He was ready (to die)," Sister Helen said as witnesses signed the legal papers. "He told me today how it all happened. He had inadequate counsel. Eddie did it."

Sonnier's brother, Eddie, 27, was convicted of murder and sentenced to death in the slayings, but the sentence was reduced to life in prison when the courts ruled he had only held a flashlight for Elmo. Eddie later testified at his brother's trial that he had pulled the trigger, but the jury did not believe him.
