

Anwar Sadat Dies After Attack

Soldiers Assassinate Egyptian Leader

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat was shot today by men in Egyptian army uniforms who opened fire from a jeep during a military parade, then jumped out and charged the reviewing stand still firing automatic rifles. Majority Leader Howard Baker told the U.S. Senate in Washington that Sadat died of his wounds. At least two other people were killed and many others injured in the attack, Egyptian officials said, but they did not immediately confirm the death of the 62-year-old president, who infuriated Arabs at home and abroad because of his peace treaty with Israel and his recent crackdown on domestic opposition. Anti-riot police were deployed in Cairo, which was normal for an attack on a president, but there were no troop movements, the state radio played light music and Egypt's ambassador in the United States said the gunfire was not part of a coup attempt. A Foreign Ministry official, who declined to be named, said Sadat was hit in the arm in the attack, which occurred during a jetfighter flyby and sent thousands of spectators fleeing in panic. But David Gergen, a White House spokesman in Washington, said Sadat was hit twice in the side. The Egyptian government said Sadat underwent surgery but did not immediately issue a report on the outcome. Egypt's ambassador to Washington, Ashraf Ghorbal, said he was told by his government three of the attackers were killed and three were captured alive, but that it was not an attempted coup. He said the vice president and defense minister were very slightly wounded, and that the vice president was heading a cabinet session to deal with the attack. The State Department said a U.S. Marine major, an Army lieutenant colonel and an Air Force captain also were hit but only slightly wounded. The Egyptian official, who requested anonymity, said (See SADAT, Page 2)

Assault The Third On A World Leader This Year

By The Associated Press
The assault on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today was the third attack on a major world leader in just over six months. President Reagan and Pope John Paul II survived assassination attempts earlier in the year, both apparently the work of lone gunmen who were quickly captured. Sadat was shot by Egyptian soldiers while he was reviewing a parade in the suburbs of Cairo, according to William Foley, the AP reporter at the scene. Foley said soldiers riding in a truck towing artillery opened fire at Sadat with automatic rifles as they passed the reviewing stand. Sadat, 62, was taken away by helicopter. Sadat's personal secretary, Fawzi Abdel-Hafez, was killed, Egyptian officials said, and several others were hit by the gunfire.

Key GOP Senators Want To See MX Missile Report

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Republican senators, questioning the administration's strategic weapons program, are demanding a report prepared specifically for President Reagan and used in his decision to put MX missiles in existing silos and resurrect the B-1 bomber. But Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger says because his report was directed to Reagan, "I don't think I have the authority just to release it." The exchange came at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing Monday on Reagan's six-year, $180.3 billion strategic weapons program, which Weinberger said would "create a deterrent that is far more stable and secure than exists today." Weinberger was to continue his Capitol Hill lobbying for the plan with an appearance today before the House Armed Services Committee.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Senate panel, and Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, demanded to see the report, which recommended the main outlines of the plan the administration adopted. The report was prepared by a commission headed by Charles H. Townes, a Nobel Prize winner for physics. The administration wants to build 100 MX missiles and put at least the first 36 of them in Titan silos, abandoning an Air Force plan to scoot them around among a network of shelters to keep the Soviet Union guessing about their location. The plan also calls for building 100 B-1 bombers to take over from aging B-52s while research goes ahead on a new "Stealth" plane that can frustrate Soviet radar. This would reverse former President Carter's decision to abandon the B-1.

Local Boy Okay After Accident

An elementary schoolboy is out of intensive care and listed in satisfactory condition after accidentally hanging himself with a duffel bag strap Monday. Jared Victor, 718 Thunderbird, was apparently showing some other children some tricks with the bag when the accident occurred. Police report that the boy was standing on a stool with the bag around his neck, then kicked the stool or it fell. The bag was caught and the boy hung for several seconds.

CIA Restrictions May Be Replaced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A draft presidential order would give the CIA its first authority to infiltrate and influence U.S. organizations and conduct covert operations in this country designed to affect foreign events, government sources say. The draft order, which President Reagan can issue without congressional approval, was prepared to replace restrictions imposed on U.S. intelligence agencies by President Carter in 1978. But the administration has sent the order to the House and Senate intelligence committees for comment.

On Monday, a dispute threatened to break out between the Senate panel and the administration over the Justice Department's refusal to give on-the-record explanations of legal questions raised by the draft. Several congressional sources said the impact of the order would hinge on the interpretation placed on some passages. Sources inside and outside the government said the order also would:

—Remove prohibitions against the CIA's conducting "special activities," or covert actions, inside the United States if they are not intended to influence U.S. policies or politics. —Allow U.S. intelligence agents to follow and photograph Americans and U.S. corporations abroad even if they are not believed (See CIA, Page 2)

Strake to Challenge Hobby

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican George Strake of Houston, who resigned yesterday as secretary of state, today formally announced he will challenge incumbent Democrat Bill Hobby for the lieutenant governor's seat.

"The incumbent lieutenant governor has been in office 10 years, and I believe that is long enough for anyone to stay in the second most important political office in this government," Strake said at a Capitol news conference. Strake said he expected to spend $3 million on the campaign against Hobby. Both are Houston millionaires. Strake has made his money in the oil business. Hobby is president of the Houston Post.

"Is the Houston Post here. I don't see them," Strake joked as the news conference began. He said he quit the secretary of state post, to which he was appointed by Gov. Bill Clements, because he didn't think he could run the campaign and the office at the same time.

Strake, a 46-year-old independent oil operator, has never held elected office. Clements appointed him to the secretary of state's post on Jan. 22, 1979. He was Clements' state campaign chairman. The Notre Dame graduate said he would focus his campaign on the differences between him and Hobby. Strake criticized Hobby for lack of leadership.

Golf Course Fees Increased by City

Green fees for golfers on the municipal course will be going up Nov. 1, city commissioners decided Monday night. All fees will be for 18-hole play, but a latecomer reduction will be available for play after 6 p.m.

be taking up as much room as anybody else. He said about 10 percent of the people who pay for nine holes will play more once they are on the course. In other business the commissioners granted at C-Multi-Family zoning to property between 15th and LaPlata and Juniper and Kingwood. Lee Umstead requested the change from single family zoning in order to build a senior citizens apartment complex.

Several congressional sources said the impact of the order would hinge on the interpretation placed on some passages. Sources inside and outside the government said the order also would:

—Permit CIA covert agents to infiltrate any domestic group for a lawful purpose as defined by the agency's chief. With additional approval from the attorney general, the CIA agents could secretly try to influence the activities

PUC Will Take Month On Bell Hike Request

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two Public Utility Commission examiners, armed with data collected during a six-week hearing, will take a month to prepare their recommendations on Southwestern Bell's $469.8 million rate hike request. The marathon hearing ended Monday, shortly after a final skirmish which the phone company lost. Texans probably won't know until December if their phone bills will go up. Examiner Bob Gillespie said his report should be ready in early November. He said Examiner Carolyn Shellman would issue her report at the same time. Ms. Shellman will determine how much money Bell should get. Gillespie must figure out which customers should pay for the increase, if there is one. The three-member PUC probably will set the rates at a December hearing. Gillespie predicted. The company wants to raise monthly residential bills by $5.45, with no increase in intrastate long distance charges. 20-Cent 'C' Stamp Goes On Sale Oct. 13

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service said Tuesday it will put a 20-cent "C" stamp on sale Oct. 13 to meet the demand created by the increase in first-class postage that will take effect Nov. 1.

Like the "A" and the "B" stamps that preceded it, the "C" stamp was printed to meet the contingency of a postal rate rise. It will be phased out when large quantities of regular 20-cent stamp issues are available.

A "C" embossed stamped envelope costing 24 cents and a "nondenominated" postal card costing 13 cents also will be issued. The "C" stamp has a brown background.

1,000 Evacuated After Train Derails

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — More than 1,000 people were evacuated from their homes early today after a freight train derailed, overturning five tanks of liquid chlorine and two of butane gas, officials said.

No injuries were reported, and none of the cars leaked, according to the Snohomish County Sheriff's Department.

The Burlington Northern train derailed two miles north of Marysville shortly before midnight PDT Monday, sending 26 cars off the tracks, the sheriff's department reported.

Fire officials ordered a nine-square-mile area cleared, and the evacuees were taken to the Marysville Junior High School.

The area had to be cleared before the wreckage could be removed and the overturned tankers righted, said Snohomish County Sheriff's Sgt. Tom Zinzer, adding that the greatest danger in a derailment of this type is handling the damaged cars.

Firefighters and a special crew from the railroad were dispatched to the scene to prepare to lift the tankers back onto the tracks, he said.

Trial of Officers To Be in San Marcos

MARLIN, Texas — An attorney for one of three lawmen charged with negligent homicide in the drownings of three black youths says the officers' trial has been moved twice because officials think the case is a "hot potato" that could stir up racial unrest.

The trial was moved Monday from a state district court here to a county court at law in San Marcos. The proceedings earlier were moved from Mexia, where the three youths drowned, to nearby Marlin.

"There is no doubt the publicity here has made it almost impossible for my client to get a fair trial," said Joe Cannon, attorney for Limestone County probation officer David Drummond. "It's been difficult to get a judge. No one wants this. It's a hot potato. I don't blame them."

District Judge Thomas Bartlett said the trial was moved out of his court to the Hayes County Court at Law in San Marcos after "statements in the news media by certain persons created an atmosphere in this county that is charged with racial tension to the point that violence is almost invited."

Man Held Without Bond in Slaying

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A construction worker is being held without bond on an attempted capital murder charge in connection with the wounding of a Los Fresnos police officer after he was arrested for the shooting death of a highway patrolman, authorities said.

Leonel Torres Herrera, 34, was arraigned before Cameron County Peace Justice Luis Romero, who denied bond and ordered Herrera held in the Cameron County Jail.

The charge filed Monday against Herrera was in connection with the wounding of police officer Enrique Carrisalez, who was shot minutes after a Department of Public Safety trooper was killed.

Carrisalez remained hospitalized Monday in critical condition, said a spokesman at Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen.

Herrera was arrested late Sunday on a murder warrant naming him in last week's slaying of Trooper David Irvine Rucker, 37, who was found dead alongside Texas Highway 100 near Los Fresnos. Rucker was shot once in the head.

Money Corrupts Saudi Values

It's hard to take it easy.

The children of Israel were able to survive 40 years of deprivation and hunger and wilderness hardship — but they couldn't take it easy.

They got to the land of milk and honey — and were consumed by their own excesses. It was ever thus.

Arabs, drunk on oil, are getting ulcers from it; literally.

Saudi Arabia's ancient Muslim traditions remain intact: Sexes remain segregated, women must be veiled, are forbidden to drive cars.

Alcohol and pornography are banned. There are no theaters.

But...

If that remains the traditional and accepted code of public conduct, almost nobody is paying any attention to it any more.

They've gone from poor to rich in 20 years.

And if they still go through the motions of respecting religion-imposed restraint, wearing their shrouded hair and black robes at their all-girls' Muslim schools—

The same girls are wearing bikinis on the beaches.

Their parents are drinking $200 a quart scotch.

Saudis, especially those under 30, are driving American cars; sexes are mixing at parties and surreptitiously watching video cassetts of X-rated American movies.

The Wall Street Journal

followed those billions of American dollars to the Middle East to discover that prosperity may be costing these new-rich more than it's worth.

Traditional hospitality has given away to fear and greed.

Crime and corruption are increasing, especially in the cities.

And ulcers—unheard of in Saudi Arabia a dozen years ago—are second only to car accidents as that nation's major health problem.

Money has confused values, produced anxiety. Psychiatrists report a brisk side-door business.

There are only 4.5 million Saudis to share that enormous bonanza of oil money. They can afford to hire help for the hard work — Pakistanis, Filipinos, Koreans.

The government is generous with money for land, for homes, for medical care, for education, for food, for starting businesses.

Yet — and it is ironic, if not surprising to historians, that economic prosperity has spawned social instability.

The country built for its people some of the most elegant high-rise apartment towers in the world — yet many stand empty because many prefer Bedouin tents or lavish mansions.

Some Saudis, heretofore happy with the prospect of heaven, are now anxiously laying up treasures instead in Switzerland and London and Houston.

Legislator Says Landowners Are Arming to Prevent Petrol Piracy

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A legislator says oil pirates are operating with impunity in the Texas oil patch and he fears possible violence if state officials do not act to solve the problem.

Reacting to a Sunday Associated Press story about oil rustlers, Rep. Tommy Adkisson, D-San Antonio, issued a statement calling for an investigation of oil thievery to determine what legislative measures could be taken to halt it.

"My information is that sheriffs, district attorneys and the Texas Rangers and the Texas Railroad Commission field personnel just don't have the manpower and adequate legislation to cope," Adkisson said.

"They're out there chasing bull elephants with flyswatters. The petro pirates are running over them with impunity."

"Sunday's Associated Press story shows this is a statewide problem, with potential thefts in the hundreds of millions of dollars. In district 56D alone I know there are at least 1,000 landowners affected by oil activity in the Austin Chalk and Buda Clay that has been generated during the last few years," Adkisson said.

"I know that many landowners are seething with rage and a feeling of helplessness, and if state officials don't act, then the shotguns and rifles will be coming out. It is obvious that the Texas Railroad Commission does not have the manpower nor the enforcement legislation necessary to stop these petro pirates."

The AP story quoted Floresville rancher Jimmy Van Winkle, who carries an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle to protect oil from four wells on his Wilson County ranch. Van Winkle also hired Pinkerton detectives and alleged that half of his wells' production, valued at $360,000, was stolen over a three-year period.

The district Railroad Commission office here has only six field investigators for 43 counties active with new drilling, and statewide the regulatory agency has about one investigator for every two counties, officials said.

"When you consider that a load of crude is worth from $3,000 to $4,000 each, compared to $300 to $400 each only eight years ago, you can see that this is a relatively new and growing menace," Adkisson said. "Not only are the landowners and oil royalty owners being ripped off by these petro pirates, but also the honest truckers, the honest refiners, the stockholders of reputable oil companies and the taxes of the federal, state, county and school entities."

Adkisson said Texas legislators had been caught off guard by the rapidly changing situation in the state's oil industry because until recently most crude oil moved by pipeline. He said now it pays to drill wells that produce less and are not productive enough to hook up pipeline gathering systems.

Sadat

many Foreign Ministry officials and others were wounded, including the Belgian ambassador and first secretary of the Australian Embassy.

Cairo Radio gave this account of the attack initially: "At 1240 this afternoon — 6:40 a.m. EDT — during the military parade, a group of people fired at the main grandstand which resulted in the injury of the president of the republic, and some of those accompanying him. His excellency has been moved to where he is being treated by specialists. The vice president of the republic is personally following up on what procedures the doctors are taking."

Defense Minister Abdel Halim Abu Ghazalla and Vice

President Hosni Mubarak, who was on the other side of Sadat in the reviewing stand, were unharmed, Egyptian officials said. First reports said the defense minister was wounded during the shooting.

AP reporter Lisette Balouny saw an armored personnel carrier pull up in front of Sadat's home in Giza, a suburb about four miles from the center of Cairo, after the attack. She said the walled residence was ringed with special presidential guards, all armed with automatic weapons.

Security guards at the gate said Sadat's wife, Jihan, had returned to the residence from the parade in a helicopter, picked up other family members and left again in the helicopter.

Foley said a group of men began firing at Sadat from a truck towing artillery as it passed the grandstand. Two of the men jumped off the back of truck and charged the reviewing stand, firing from the shoulder.

"No one was sure it was real for a few seconds, then all hell broke loose," Foley said.

Several thousand spectators in the reviewing stand fled in panic as the young soldiers, in olive drab fatigues, opened fire. AP reporter Steve Hindy saw many people lying bleeding on the stand.

Ambulances and security vehicles rushed to the stand and carried away the injured, who included military men and Moslem and Christian religious leaders, Hindy said. The soldiers charged at the same instant that six low-flying jetfighters flew over the reviewing stand, spewing colored smoke in an aerobic exhibition. They continued performing after the attack, their pilots apparently unaware of the confusion below.

The attack occurred at 1:05 p.m. — 7:05 a.m. EDT — about 90 minutes after the beginning of the parade commemorating the 1973 Arab-Israeli War, which Egypt initiated and claims as a victory.

Hardline Arab states have condemned Sadat for the peace treaty with Israel, and last month the Egyptian president had over 1,500 Egyptians arrested on charges of fomenting religious strife. However, many of those rounded up were Sadat's political foes.

Sadat took over after the death of Gamel Abdel Nasser in 1970. Within three years he crushed an internal revolt against him, expelled 15,000 Soviet advisers and started turning Egypt's orientation from the Soviet Union to the United States.

He electrified the world in November 1977 when he declared he would go to the ends of the earth, "even to the Israeli Knesset (parliament) to discuss peace if it would save even one Egyptian soldier."

Less than two weeks later, Sadat was in Israel, stunning his own nation and horrifying most other Arab leaders.

He also waged an off-again, on-again relationship with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, Egypt's western neighbor who was one of Egypt's harshest critics as Egypt moved steadily toward peace with Israel.

In July 1977, Egypt and Libya clashed in a five-day firefight along the border from the Mediterranean south into the desert. The skirmishes quickly subsided, but the rhetoric heated up time and time again.

Egypt's vice president said Monday on returning from Washington that the United States promised to do all it could to help counter Soviet-inspired designs in the Middle East and Africa.

He said his talks in Washington centered in part on Sudan's need for military aid because of threats from Libya. Egypt has joined a defense pact with Sudan, and the United States reportedly was pressed for speedy delivery of anti-aircraft missiles to Sudan.

Libya's Soviet-equipped army has intervened in Chad's civil war and Sudan has accused the Libyans of bombing Sudanese villages along the border with Chad.

to be agents of a foreign power or involved in terrorism or drug traffic. The Carter order requires such a suspicion.

—Retain bans on assassinations anywhere and on CIA electronic surveillance in the United States and on CIA break-ins in this country.

—Assert that restrictions on FBI electronic surveillance or warrantless break-ins against U.S. citizens and corporations are not meant to limit the constitutional powers of the president.

The CIA refused comment on the proposed order.

The sources said the draft specifically states the order does not authorize any violations of existing laws, but some sources said that in certain areas, particularly involving Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches, there is little or no existing law other than the Carter executive order.

Some sources raised the question of whether the new

CIA domestic authority would violate the National Security Act of 1947, which set up the agency and barred it from operating domestically. But one Republican source said "there is no burning desire to get the CIA involved in domestic activity."

Another source added that some sections of the order may have been mistakenly drafted more broadly than the administration actually intended.

Carter required that the attorney general determine that there was "probable cause" to believe an American was an agent of a foreign power before such intrusive tactics could be used. The Reagan plan would keep that standard but add that the restriction would not limit the president's constitutional powers, sources said.

Although the sources said the constitutional powers were not defined in the draft, several presidents, including Reagan, have asserted their inherent constitutional authority to use some of these tactics without court warrants in foreign intelligence cases.

Two earlier drafts of the Reagan order ran into strong opposition from civil libertarians and some members of Congress as going too far toward unleashing the CIA and permitting it to become involved in domestic activities, a domain traditionally reserved for the FBI.

In some areas, the third draft contains restrictions on the CIA not in the first and second drafts, but in other areas it has fewer restrictions. Sources disagreed over whether the final draft would tighten or loosen controls compared with the previous drafts.

Bell

tual cost of the service.

The PUC staff, recommending about $247 million in increases, says $42 million of the increase should come from a 5 percent rise in intrastate long distance fees. The increased revenue from long distance would mean the company would need only a $2.40 monthly increase on residential bills.

Although Southwestern Bell opposes a long distance toll increase, company lawyers on Monday tried to introduce testimony that the $42 million would not be enough.

Company economic analyst Bruce Egan's prepared testimony complained that the $42 million in long distance hikes does not take into account the fact that fewer calls would be made if the price jumps.

In order to bring in $42 million in revenues, Egan's testimony said, long distance hikes of $78.5 million would be needed.

"The $42 million recommended by (the staff) is not worth $42 million to the company," said Bell lawyer Jim Wurtz.

Company spokesman Dale Johnson said Bell still wants no long distance increase, but wants to make sure that if one is approved it would be fair to the company.

Egan's calculations increasing long distance tolls would mean 28,915 fewer long distance calls a year.

Two women were wounded in the attack on the pope. Both survived.

Two of the three other men wounded by Reagan's bullet were assassinated. Press returned to work. Press secretary James S. Brady, the most gravely wounded, remains hospitalized and is recovering slowly.

Thomas Delahanty, 45, a Washington police officer, continues to suffer from pain and numbness in his upper left arm from a bullet that struck his neck and lodged in his spine.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

This is a tribute to some very special people who served "Meals-on-Wheels" faithfully in a service of love.

To every member of the Board of Directors past and present - thank you all for your dedication to God and His service to man.

To Kathy Sealy, Doris Huckert, and Gary Ferguson who coordinated the whole program when I could no longer carry the load, God bless you, I thank you more than you know for all you gave to this ministry.

To Johnnie Davis who volunteered to coordinate the Meals when Gary Ferguson resigned.

Johnnie was never "just the cook" even before she took over as coordinator. She was the only person who had ever felt my burden for the people. Not just to feed their bodies - but to meet their needs spiritual, mental and physical. To minister in a Spirit of Love - not just service Johnnie visited the people - and talked with them on the phone. She was a friend to them - and to me.

She often delivered the meals - along with Rita - when a driver failed to show.

She spent endless hours preparing special foods for the diabetics - cakes, etc., and putting up fresh fruits and vegetables that were given her so that she could have salt free and sugar free diets.

Johnnie is Special - both to me and to all who know and love her.

Green Thumb paid her, I believe it was $2.90 an hour up to 24 hours a week. She worked many more hours than that.

Meals-on-Wheels paid Mrs. Davis $1.75 per meal, since January 1981 - and she lost money on every plate she put out.

She even bought the delivery bags herself and often gave her own money to this ministry. I'm sure she often felt used and abused, as she gave herself far beyond the call of duty, even when her health was failing, against my objections to slow down or even to give it up and not to jeopardize her health, but she always said, "No Mrs. Curtisinger I want to go as long as I can," and she did, much to my sorrow.

I ask Christians to pray for her health and strength to be restored.

I am eternally grateful to Johnnie and even though it sounds so shallow-with all my heart, I say, "Thank you" Johnnie for a job "Well done" I love you!

Rita Cole (Mrs. Danny) is the Mother of two small boys' one an infant. (She is granddaughter of Mrs. Davis.) Rita gave her time to Meals-on-Wheel's much more than she was ever paid for which was $5.00 a day for cleaning up the kitchen - approximately two hours a day, but she also delivered the Meals when drivers didn't show. Helped to fix the Route Cards and pay envelopes, even cooked the meals many times when Mrs. Davis could not do it. She made many sacrifices beyond her responsibilities and I am grateful for her faithfulness both to Meals-on-Wheels and her service of love to our Lord, rarely seen in one so young. I want to thank Danny also for allowing Rita to serve in this ministry of love. God bless you all is my prayer. May He meet your ever need always.

Sincerely,
Lola Curtisinger

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

There's a movement underfoot to make college students literate.

What will they think of next. The general consensus is that advanced education has swung too far toward specialized studies and needs to get back to courses that prepare students for life.

I couldn't agree more. That's why I was delighted to see the following courses on my son's senior schedule.

Remedial Bicycle Watching: (3 hours) Designed for the novice who has had three bicycles ripped off in five years. Bringing chains, locks, small explosives and detonator. Bicycles will be furnished.

Is There Life After Lunch?: (3 hours) A seminar with guest lecturers who outline advantages of staying awake to participate in cleaning room, soaking laundry, doing required reading, and in the final quarter adding a class or two.

Letter Writing Block and How To Solve It: (1 hour) A creative approach to writing letters home that do not start with cliches like "Thank your lucky stars when your son says he is busted and only means he is out of money." Workbooks and tapes extra.

Your Car And Faith Healers: (2 hours) A frank look at automobile mechanics who promise to fix your transmission by adding water. As a bonus, Dr. Weingard Schuyler, Heart Institute, will once again conduct a class on how to survive an insurance premium notice where a claim has just been filed.

Parent Weekend: Religious Experience Or End Of The World As You Know It: (CRASH COURSE) How to make a roommate of the opposite sex disappear. How to decorate with books and pencils. How to arrange for instant enrollment. Applicants will be screened according to level of need. Guaranteed to give new meaning to "Have a good day."

Jogging for Bodies (5 hours) A fun approach to physical fitness in which warm-ups are eliminated and the emphasis is on meeting girls-boys. Applicants should be able to talk and jog at the same time.

Someone the other day said they feared that general education would promote intellectual conformity and a sterile acquiescence for the sake of social cohesion.

I asked my son about that.

He said he is taking Social Cohesion and the History of Perrier next semester.

Garden Club Flower Show Scheduled

The Bud to Blossom Garden Club will have a fall flower show Saturday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room.

The show, "Golden spread Tributes," is open to the public. Club members making displays will be present during the show to answer questions and talk to persons interested in joining Bud to Blossom.

The show will have two divisions, horticulture and artistic, which will have five classes under each. Horticulture division will have classes for annuals, perennials, roses, house plants and bulbs, corns, rhizomes and tubers. Artistic displays will be classed for arrangement themes of Stormy Weather, Harvest Time, Frost in the Air, Windswept, and Sunset.

With those two divisions will be an educational exhibit entitled "Goldenspread Gems," which will show methods of plant preservation.

Awards of Merit will go to the best exhibit in the horticulture and artistic divisions. Both divisions will be eligible for the Sweepstakes Award along with the standard blue, red and yellow place ribbons.

Extension Club Names Nominating Committee

In a recent meeting in the home of Peg Hoff members of the North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club named Edith Higgins, Brenda Campbell and Roberta Campbell to serve as their nominating committee.

Naomi Brisendine presented the opening exercise by reading an article from the Brownfield newspaper. The article was a column by Lynn Brisendine in which she expressed her humorous reaction to a recent article "Putting the bite on the Bug" which compared the protein content of water-bugs and spiders, used in some cultures as a food substance.

Peg Hoff, president, served as hostess for the meeting and presided over the business meeting. A report was given on the Tasting Bee and Naomi Brisendine gave the council report. Roll Call was answered with "The nicest handmade gift I have received." Those present were Naomi Brisendine, Peg Hoff, Edith Higgins, Ella Howell, Brenda Campbell, Caudice Campbell and Roberta Campbell.

4-H Firsthand

Eating Right

By PENNY REINART
County Extension Agent
Variety is the spice of life, especially when it comes to good nutrition. Eating a variety of foods is one of the seven dietary guidelines 4-H'ers are studying in their 4-H food-nutrition program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by General Foods Corporation.

An adequate diet should contain a variety of foods daily, including selections of fruits and vegetables; whole grain, enriched breads and cereals; mild, cheese and yogurt; meats, poultry, fish, eggs and legumes (dry peas and beans).

The greater the variety of foods, the less likely a person may develop a single nutrient deficiency. While food alone does not assure a healthy body, good eating habits based on moderation and food variety contribute to improving nutrition and health.

The 4-H food-nutrition program helps young people develop skills in planning, purchasing, preparing and serving tasty, attractive and nutritious meals and snacks. The program urges boys and girls, nine to 19 to learn by doing, and become familiar with the principles of nutrition as they relate to good health, physical fitness and an attractive appearance.

The Deaf Smith County 4-H food project group meetings are held each Wednesday from 4-5 at the Community Center. Dixie West, Anna Messer, Carmen Rickman, Sherry Blackwell and other homemakers have volunteered to lead these groups.

All boys and girls of all ages are invited to attend on Wednesdays.

As an added incentive, 4-H'ers who excel in their 4-H food-nutrition projects are eligible for awards donated by General Foods and arranged by National 4-H Council.

Four members from each county receive medals of honor, and one 4-H'er from each state earns an expense-paid trip to the 59th National 4-H congress, Nov. 30-Dec. 4, in Chicago, Ill. In addition, six national winners receive $1,000 scholarships.

More information is available from Penny Reinart, CEA at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service service people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Family News

Tonight on Television

Return of Beverly Hillbillies on CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — If anybody cares what happened to the Clampett clan from that populist television gusher of the 1960s, CBS checks in on Jed, Jethro and Elly May 10 years after cancellation in tonight's made-for-TV movie: "The Return of the Beverly Hillbillies."

The original "Beverly Hillbillies" was the best known of the corn-and-cowboy comedies that made CBS No. 1 in the mid-1960s. Introduced in 1962, it was the top-rated show for two seasons, ushering in companion programs: "Petticoat Junction," "Green Acres" and "Hee Haw."

This pitch to the South and the silos of America was finally scrapped because the high ratings didn't compensate for the disinterest in the big cities, emerging younger audiences and, ultimately, advertisers.

It is a silly, pointless two hours. If the old show — about a backwoods family striking oil and moving to Beverly Hills — had any redeeming value, it was for a slapstick humor that occasionally was funny and often served to ridicule stuffy conventions of the rich. It also pointed out how money can buy into high society but can't achieve real acceptance.

These elements are nowhere to be found in tonight's recycling project.

The plot is simple. It's 1961, and the Reagan administration is looking for Granny's moonshine as an answer to the energy crisis. Jane Hathaway (Nancy Kulp), now working for the National Energy Commission, travels to Beverly Hills to find a batch. She finds the young members of the clan are in California, but Jed went back home and Granny "went to her reward." (Irene Ryan, who played Granny with a feisty charm, died.)

Jethro, now a movie mogul, is still stupid. Elly May, owner of a zoo, is still sweet. Once again, TV doesn't have the subtlety needed for good satire. Played so broadly, it becomes sheer silliness. This is especially true with Werner Klemperer (Col. Klink on "Hogan's Heroes"), who plays a stuffy bureaucrat.

Donna Douglas returns as the animal-loving daughter, but Max Baer, who played Jed's dim-witted nephew, does not. He always had a weight problem and was said to be too busy. Baer's been replaced by Ray Young, a 6-foot-7, 230-pounder who previously played a giant in the children's series, "Bigfoot and Wildboy."

Jed is again played by Buddy Ebsen. Seen recently as detective "Barnaby Jones," Ebsen is the only member of the cast to capitalize on "Hillbillies."

Snorers and Snorees

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for all the people who write to complain about snorers, teeth-grinders and night-sniffers and snorters.

I used to have that problem with my husband, until last summer when it got so bad I brought a fan into our bedroom. From the first night on I slept better than I had in years. In the winter when it became too cold for a fan I got something I spotted in a Sears catalog. It is called Sleep-Mate. I ordered it and it solved the problem at once.

Whenever my husband starts to snore, I just push a button and this little plastic box creates a sound like rushing wind—very soothing. It blocks out the racket and allows me to get a good night's sleep.

My son made fun of it when he first saw the box but one Sunday afternoon he took it to his bedroom when he wanted to nap. (His dog snores something awful.)

I know you don't advertise products in your column, but his is like that terrific General Motors ad you printed a while back—a public service.—No Name Please, Just Well Rested In Chicago year ago—said it gives people a good laugh. I see nothing wrong with it. As far as I'm concerned, it's an in-house, family joke. This woman was shocked and said I should have my head examined.

Am I crazy to let my husband do this? You decide, Ann.—Relaxed In San Jose

DEAR S.J.: If it's just a head shot of Dolly, the wig is a dead giveaway. If it shows a little more, you can be sure nobody on the North American continent could possibly fail to recognize the construction site. Your friend sounds like a troublemaker. Ignore her comments and laugh it off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were married for 30 years. We were divorced eight months and then remarried.

We are wondering if it would be proper to continue celebrating our anniversaries, ignoring the eight months that we were divorced. This would enable us to celebrate our 50th anniversary someday. —Curious In Modesto

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Certainly! That eight months should be blanked out and never mentioned again.

CONFIDENTIAL TO A Counselor Who Needs Counseling: It does not necessarily follow that a person who has knowledge is able to apply it to his own life. Look at the overweight doctors—who smoke. Discuss your feelings with someone whose judgment you respect. You were a human being before you were a counselor.

Summerfield Study Club Discusses O'Connor

The Summerfield study club met in the home of Mrs. L.B. Lookingbill recently to view a program presented by Mrs. Mack Noland.

The program entitled "A Woman for the Supreme Court" concerned Sandra D. O'Connor and included an overall view of her qualifications and middle-of-the-road stand on issues.

Mrs. J.R. Euler gave excerpts from the book "Nancy" by Nancy Reagan with Bill Libby. The book concerns the life of Mrs. Reagan and how she perceives her role as first Lady.

Border Governors To Meet In Closed Door Session Today

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Governors from three states along the Mexican border — with diverging views on President Reagan's proposed immigration plan — scheduled a private meeting today with six border-state governors from Mexico today, and nobody expected a placid session.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements said he hopes this final day of the Border Governors Conference will see the U.S. governors reaching a unified position on the immigration package, which includes a controversial plan to let Mexican nationals work legally in the United States.

"I would hope that the governors, in their meeting here this time, can come to a general agreement, at least in concept, on the problem of undocumented workers," Clements told reporters as he arrived here. "It may not be as definitive as I would like, but I think we can have one."

Clements said he was not totally satisfied with the Reagan plan, but said he thought it deserved study.

"I think the framework is there for working toward a good approach to this problem," he said. "Any strong reservations at this point are probably premature."

Other U.S. governors, particularly Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, vehemently oppose Reagan's plan.

Some gubernatorial aides predicted a fight when the governors discuss the issue.

Also on today's closed-door agenda are such touchy items as drug trafficking, water conservation and pollution and automobile thefts along the border.

On Monday, the governors listened to reports presented by representatives of committees appointed by the governors at their first meeting last year.

The committees studied six areas of border problems, including energy and commerce, agriculture, ecology and pollution, cultural exchange, tourism and twin plants and industrial development.

Representatives from all of the states coordinated their efforts so that all of the governors had a chance to object to any portion of the reports before the conference began.

The reports recommended permanent committees to monitor border problems, tighter monitoring of pollution along the border and further exchanges of information between the two countries in several areas.

Most of the governors let committee chairmen do the speaking, but California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. made an impassioned plea for environmental awareness, warning of increased pollution likely to accompany steady population growth in the border area.

"If we abuse this balance of nature, we will be abusing ourselves," Brown said. "The full impact of this will be felt not just today or tomorrow, but for generations to come."

Clements and Brown were joined on the dais by Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico. Babbitt was represented by executive assistant Ronnie Lopez. Brown left after Monday's opening session and was represented by aides today.

The governors of the six Mexican border states are Oscar Ornelas of Chihuahua, Samuel Ocana Garcia of Sonora, Emilio Martinez Manautou of Tamaulipas, Alfonso Martinez Dominguez of Nuevo Leon, Roberto de la Madrid of Baja California and interim Gov. Francisco Madero of Coahuila.

Management Key to Housing Ills

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Better management may be necessary if world housing conditions are to be improved.

Such a statement is easy enough to ignore, sounding as it does like a dreary plug for a consulting firm, or a platitudinous comment on the jacket of a book written by an obscure business school professor.

It shouldn't be ignored. Not when the cost of the chief components of new houses — land, materials, labor and financing — are rising or diminishing in availability.

Not when energy-poor nations indirectly consume more energy in making or importing "energy-efficient" building materials than the materials can possibly save in many years.

Not when buyers and builders insist on wood for construction (albeit in lesser amounts per finished house in the United States) while sawing the woods for subdivisions and putting wood stoves in their houses.

Not when land costs in the desirable building areas around towns and cities continue to rise as a proportion of total building costs, and new financing techniques have yet to be proven effective.

Not when, in some countries, consumers pay for residential land today with higher food prices tomorrow, a consequence of the land being taken out of agriculture.

Bruce Stokes, a senior researcher with Worldwatch Institute, which the United Nations founded to study emerging economic problems, finds a pattern of housing problems throughout the world, to wit:

"The rising prices of materials, energy and land ensure that building and maintaining even the most elementary shelter today costs several times what it did a decade ago.

"This escalation in housing costs has begun to take its toll. People in industrial countries must spend an ever larger share of their incomes if they want to own a home.

In the United States, according to National Association of Home Builders statistics cited by Stokes, land accounted in 1980 for 23 percent of the cost of new single-family houses, up from 11 percent in 1949. Financing rose to 12 percent from 5. Profit and overhead crept up to 18 percent from 15. As a percentage, labor and materials fell.

The answers, he suggests, include more units on less land, a trend already forced on much of society; alternative building materials, such as plastics in developed nations and earth mixed with cement in underdeveloped countries; better insulation and the use of more solar heating (there are only 20,000 passive solar homes in the United States, and only a quarter of the nation's housing stock has been refitted with attic insulation, he reports).

Voting Rights Extension Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is endorsing an indefinite extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, without weakening it, and supporters hope the lopsided size of their victory will overcome expected resistance in the Senate.

For nine hours Monday, conservative Republicans sought to loosen the federal government's hold on enforcing voting rights, but every amendment they proposed was defeated.

In the end, with the support of civil rights leaders, the American Bar Association and the League of Women Voters, House Democrats succeeded in pushing through a tough extension of the civil rights law.

The final vote was 389-24. Only six Democrats voted no, and most of the Republicans who supported efforts to weaken the extension voted for final passage of the legislation.

"I believe that this strong bipartisan vote will be a clear sign to the Senate that the country is strongly in favor of this extension to protect our most cherished right," said Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

"This is the people speaking," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., the principal author of extending the legislation, generally credited as the most successful civil rights measure approved during the 1960s.

But the House measure, opposed by Senate Judiciary Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., might not come up in the Senate until early next year.

As sent to the Senate, the extension includes continuation of the critical preclearance procedure under which all of nine states and parts of 13 others must seek Justice Department permission before making changes in voting laws or regulations. Many of those states are in the South.

The law was designed to make sure that the voting power of blacks, Hispanics or other minorities is not diluted by local officials or state legislators.

Testimony before a House Judiciary subcommittee showed that in many jurisdictions redistricting plans and practices to discourage minority voting are commonplace, especially in states like Mississippi, Virginia, Georgia and Alabama.

Give and take

The average U.S. family, which made $18,800 a year, paid $1,935 in federal income taxes in 1979, down from $2,455 tax on the same income in 1970. But the Social Security tax on these earnings, shot up from $375 in 1970 to $1,150, the Conference Board finds.

In Population Race

Houston Edges Philadelphia

HOUSTON (AP) — The score is Houston 1,648,661, Philadelphia 1,648,582 — but who's counting?

The City of Brotherly Love has unofficially surrendered its No. 4 ranking in the national population derby, thanks to some arithmetic by the Philadelphia Inquirer which says Houston now has surpassed Philly as the fourth-largest city in the United States.

There wasn't much excitement here over the announcement. Some people in Houston's planning department threw a party in 1979 to celebrate overtaking Philadelphia based on their statistics. But the official figures that came out the next year said the Bayou City was still fifth, with 1,594,086 people compared to Philadelphia's 1,688,210.

On Monday, however, the Inquirer published an article under the headline "Hello No. 5," saying Philadelphia had dropped to its lowest population ranking since before the founding of the Republic.

The 1980 census showed Houston gaining an average of 98 new residents a day between 1970 and 1980, while Philadelphia lost more than 71 daily. Projecting those statistics, the Inquirer said, Oct. 5 is the day Houston, which ranked No. 45 in 1920, rose one notch.

Houston's growth has been spurred in part by a state law allowing cities to annex surrounding land. But research director Howard Martin of the Chamber of Commerce said even without considering the effect of annexations, Houston would have surpassed Philadelphia by about February of 1983.

But the Census Bureau is sticking to its old count, and the Inquirer agreed its findings were not official.

"That cannot change on the books until the next census is taken April 1, 1990. Until then the 1980 census figures remain official, if not up to date."

Both Houston and Philadelphia still rank far behind the official Big Three — New York with 7,035,348, Chicago with 3,005,072, and Los Angeles with 2,966,763.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Two Universal Studio trucks pulled up behind the State Capitol last week, causing quite a stir among office staff experiencing a lull in political gales.

The trucks carried equipment for shooting a sequence of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," a play about former Gov. Dolph Briscoe's closing of the famed La Grange institution.

Scheduled for filming this week is the scene where the villain pounds on the Governor's office door, demanding to know why the brothel remains open for business.

The filming comes at an appropriate time when most legislators are back home making a living and many state officials are out pounding the bushes for future political races.

Except for the motion picture commotion, Capitol halls are strangely quiet as officials seek to renew their ties with "the people."

Political Races

For elected officials, these autumn months are crucial because the political soundings and readings provide a basic shape of next year's general election and primary ballots.

In the governor's race, incumbent Republican Bill Clements has indicated he will seek re-election and will formally announce in the near future.

Jockeying to win the Democratic primary are Briscoe, Tyler State Sen. Peyton McKnight, and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong. Briscoe is said to be still making up his mind, while McKnight is out beating the bushes across the state for support.

Armstrong said last week he fully expects to get in the race and may make his announcement this month. After asking around and finding no "negative" feedback, he can raise money.

His moderate candidacy may well force either Briscoe or McKnight out of the race to avoid splitting the conservative vote.

L. Governor

Texas Secretary of State George Strake was expected to announce sometime this week he would seek the post of lieutenant governor, now held by Bill Hobby.

Hobby sat quiet about his intentions during the regular and special sessions, but now he is out mustering support among Democrats. No primary opponent is forecast now.

As a state official, Hobby is said to be hardworking, but dull. A recent hunting story now going around, and which Hobby sometimes tells on himself, certainly changes that image somewhat.

Hobby reportedly was down in Mexico recently on a dove hunting trip provided by the Texas Chemical Council for 30 legislators.

He was standing in a field when he felt a stinging sensation in his legs and looked down to find a huge bed of red ants.

"There was nothing to do but drop my pants and run," he said, a sight which cracked up his colleagues for days.

Another anecdote told about that junket is on State Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center. Haley was lifting his 12-gauge to shoot and prematurely pulled the trigger, blasting away the toe of his boot. Thinking he had just shot off his toes, Haley said he could only stare for minutes at the ripped leather, finally realizing he had luckily missed his foot.

Other legislators on the trip awarded him the "Mike Martin Marksmanship Award" after the incident. Haley shoots much better on the floor of the House, where he is a staunch defender of public education.

Perot Medicaid

Dallas multi-millionaire H. Ross Perot is thought to be retaining the state's lucrative Medicaid contract after the Board of Human Resources last week approved new guidelines.

No bids will be taken until February, but potential competitor companies say it is now almost impossible to take the contract away from Perot-owned National Heritage Insurance Company.

Singing Treasurer

State Treasurer Warren G. Harding, until now only a shower singer, has cut a country and western single featuring Texas patriotic songs.

Harding denies he is going to run for governor a la "Pappy" O'Daniel, who composed "Beautiful Texas" to launch his 1940 campaign.

He cut the disc for sale as a favor to his friends in a Dallas Lions Club, trying to raise money for charity.

Town's Feelings Mixed On Hollywood Joking

LAGRANGE, Texas (AP)

"The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" is pulling up stakes and residents here have mixed feelings about being jilted by the film crew retelling the story of the bordello that made the town famous.

Producers of the movie based on Larry L. King's hit Broadway play decided LaGrange is "drab" and have picked a white Victorian farmhouse in Pflugerville, about 100 miles northwest of here, to portray the Chicken Ranch — the disorderly house that introduced LaGrange to America.

LaGrange Mayor Charles Jungmichael says it's fine with him if Hollywood wants to put the house in Pflugerville.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he said. "I don't see how that kind of publicity would help our city any. We've got enough problems down here without that thing."

But Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman Marian Butts says LaGrange is where the story of the Chicken Ranch should be told.

The bordello, whose madam was known as "Miss Edna," operated from depression times with the private acquiescence of public officials. In the early days, Miss Edna would accept produce — such as chickens — from her farm customers, giving the place its name.

It became the best-known such house in the state but was closed by state officials after a Houston television reporter, Marvin Zindler, did an "expose" on the operation in 1975. King's musical, and the movie, are about the confrontation between fictional versions of Zindler, Miss Edna and then-Sheriff "Big Jim" Flournoy.

"There is only one LaGrange," said Miss Butts. "I really think they will be missing something. I'm from LaGrange, and I don't think they could find a better place than LaGrange."

Universal Studios disagrees. "This is a movie, not a historical documentary," said Stan Brosette, publicist for the Universal Studios production. "We could go to Czechoslovakia if it looked right. We are not trying to copy every detail."

Indeed, the scenic farmhouse picked to portray the bordello is a far cry from the rundown, one-story building that housed the real, now-defunct Chicken Ranch.

"They were just looking for the perfect-looking house," said Pat Wolf, of the Texas Film Commission. "It doesn't look anything like the Chicken Ranch. This is what they thought the public envisioned the Chicken Ranch to look like."

Ms. Wolf said several new office buildings in LaGrange, population 3,500, ruined the country setting that movie officials were seeking.

"LaGrange has changed so much and has modernized so much that it made it impossible. LaGrange doesn't look like LaGrange any more," she said.

Brosette said he found LaGrange "kind of drab" and said Pflugerville "is pretty and old and pleasing to the eye."

Besides, he said, LaGrange lacked the facilities required by the crew of a $30 million motion picture.

"I don't think they have a Hilton in LaGrange," Brosette said.

But the author of the play says Flournoy, Waller County sheriff during the heyday of the Chicken Ranch, might have had something to do with Hollywood's decision.

"He thought there had been enough publicity about LaGrange and he didn't want any film company in there," King said. "And some of the townfolks didn't want it. They (producers) didn't want to come in where there would be a hostile attitude."

In addition to moving the Chicken Ranch to Pflugerville, courthouse records will be filmed in Hallettsville, 26 miles south of LaGrange, Ms. Wolf said.

The film also has caused a controversy in Pflugerville, a sleepy town north of Austin which has fewer than 500 people, one major intersection and no central business district.

"Some people are pretty upset," said resident Robert Fox. "But I'm waiting to see the pretty girls. I haven't seen one yet."

Pflugerville Mayor Clarence Bohls said the film has provided a windfall for many of the town's residents who have been recruited to put up fences, mow pastures, garden and act as extras.

But Bohls worries about the traffic jams when Burt Reynolds, Dolly Parton and Dom DeLuise show up this week for filming.

Hightower Seeks Ag Post

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Hightower, who lost a race for the Texas Railroad Commission last year, has announced as a candidate for agriculture commissioner in the 1982 Democratic primary and says this time he means to win.

Hightower, sweating in a black three-piece suit in 90-degree weather, made his announcement Monday from the back of a pick-up truck with bales of hay as his rostrum.

"I am running as an old-time, unreconstructed, unapologetic, working-people's Democrat. I'm the candidate of the consumers who feel gouged when they go into that supermarket with a $20 bill and come out with a little sack and no change. I'm the candidate of the family farmers and ranchers who are tired of being efficient, productive, competitive and broke," he said.

Country singer Steve Fromholz warmed up the crowd on the Capitol lawn, and Hightower provided sandwiches and soft drinks.

Hightower said a coalition of consumers and farmers would help him beat Reagan Brown, who has been commissioner the past four years.

He said both farmers and consumers had been hurt financially by "giant midwestern corporations" while Brown sat idly by.

"That's my main complaint — there has been no fight," Hightower said, calling Brown a "do-nothing" who had been "AWOL on the big issues every time it counted."

Hightower, 38, has been president of the Texas Consumer Association for a year and will give up the office this weekend.

He failed in the 1980 Democratic Primary to unseat Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, 633,423 to 588,475. But he said the race gave him name recognition that equals or betters Brown's. Hightower said he believed he could defeat Brown in a campaign treasury of $300,000 and already has raised $50,000.

During Brown's four years in office, Hightower said, food prices have risen 50 percent while prices paid to farmers have plummeted and caused "more than 8,000 good Texas farmers to go under."

Before entering politics, Hightower was editor of the Texas Observer. He was director of the Agribusiness Accountability Project in Washington, D.C., for five years and wrote two books on food policy. Hightower also was national coordinator of former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris' unsuccessful presidential effort in 1976 and was legislative assistant of former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, in 1967-69.

Camera Case Begins

BOSTON (AP) — Polaroid founder Edwin H. Land opened his company's patent infringement case against Eastman Kodak by trying to give the judge an instant picture of how Kodak copied his creations.

Camera in hand, the 71-year-old Land snapped photos of a lawyer and court stenographer and described in detail the workings of his first black-and-white camera, introduced in 1948.

At issue is Polaroid's contention that Kodak copied 10 patents when it introduced a camera in 1976 to compete with Polaroid's SX-70 camera. The non-jury trial of the suit began Monday before Judge Rya Zobel in U.S. District Court.

Until 1976, Polaroid had been the sole manufacturer of instant cameras for nearly three decades.

Polaroid lawyer William K. Kerr said Kodak was worried that the SX-70 — which produces fast, dry instant color prints — would cut into the company's conventional film business.

Rosenthal also said he expected an investigation by the Interagency Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, headed by the Treasury department.

Under the agreement, announced Monday, the 48.5 million outstanding shares of common stock of Santa Fe International Corp., based in the Southern California town of Alhambra, would be purchased at $51 a share by Kuwait Petroleum Corp., which is owned by that country's government.

Santa Fe's directors, who include former President Gerald Ford, voted unanimously in favor of the deal. The transaction has been approved by the required authorities in Kuwait.

The stock closed at $22 a share Monday on the New York Stock Exchange, up 25 cents.

Santa Fe is an international contractor that explores for gas and oil and has worked in Kuwait. It is not related to the Santa Fe Railroad or its parent, Santa Fe Industries Inc.

It was founded in 1946 by 62 former employees of the drilling subsidiary of Union Oil Co. of California, who paid $750,000 for the subsidiary. It now has 15,000 employees worldwide.

Under the plan, Santa Fe would become a subsidiary of Kuwait Petroleum and would continue to be based in Alhambra and operate under U.S. law.

E.L. Shannon Jr., Santa Fe chairman, said all its directors agreed to remain on the board and Kuwait Petroleum will name additional directors.

In 1980, Santa Fe had revenue of approximately $1.2 billion, half of which was derived from foreign operations. Net income was $80.9 million.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

PROPERTY TAX AMENDMENT

AUSTIN — Another important amendment on the November ballot for you, the voters, to decide, is one that will allow local taxing entities to grant tax exemptions for homeowners.

HJR 81 would permit school districts, counties, and similar bodies to cut taxes for homeowners by as much as 40 percent until 1984. Then the exemption tapers down to 30 percent from 1985 until 1987, and 20 percent thereafter. Each home would receive an exemption of at least $5,000, whatever its value.

Support for this amendment came because of the effects of the Peveto (tax reform) bill.

The Peveto bill requires that each county create a tax appraisal district which will appraise all the property in a county. This system will replace the old method under which each county, city, school district, etc., had its own appraisers. The duplication of effort in the old system meant that many pieces of property have not been appraised in many years. This, of course, will change when the new boards take over. What all this will mean is that property will be reappraised soon, and will be appraised at present values, which are high.

Supporters of the amendment say the high tax rates for homesteads caused by the reappraisals are unfair because inflation has pushed up the values of homes faster than the values of other property. The new reappraisals will cause taxes to rise dramatically, forcing some people to sell their homes. The amendment merely cushions the blow of the new rates and allows homeowners to budget for the higher rates that return shortly.

Opponents say the amendment provides no relief for renters, who pay property taxes in the form of rents. Also, the amendment provides the most relief for the most expensive homes.

Once again, it is up to you, the voters, to decide whether you think homeowners need tax relief. As always, we are interested in hearing from you about what you think the Legislature should do about property taxes. Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Baseball Playoffs Begin Tonight

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Cincinnati Reds Manager John McNamara called it "the season that wasn't," but for eight teams that mastered baseball's patchwork playoff scheme, it not only was, it still is.

Baseball's intradivision playoffs — a postseason mutant spawned by the 2-month-long midseason players' strike — were set to begin today, marking the start of the longest postseason in baseball history.

Under baseball's plan, this so-called miniseries will be a best-of-five games between the first- and second-half winners of the two divisions in each league.

The Los Angeles Dodgers and Houston Astros in the National League West and the Oakland A's and Kansas City Royals in the American League West got it rolling today.

The four East Division teams in the two leagues begin play on Wednesday — Philadelphia at Montreal in the NL and New York at Milwaukee in the AL.

Only after the division winners are decided through this process will the league championship series begin, scheduled for Oct. 13-18. The World Series is scheduled for Oct. 20-28, assuming the weather is cooperative. And that's a rather large assumption in some of the more northern cities at that time of year.

By way of comparison, the 1949 World Series ended in victory after five games for the New York Yankees over Brooklyn on Oct. 9. In 1969, the first year of the league championship playoffs, the World Series ended Oct. 19 with the New York Mets beating Baltimore in five games.

The real dichotomy of this season, however, is not how long the teams will play, but which will play. For instance, none of the four teams involved in the National League playoffs would have made it past Sunday if won-lost records were not split.

Neither Houston nor Los Angeles had the best overall record in the NL West. That distinction belonged to Cincinnati, which had the best record in baseball this year, 66-42. Since the Reds finished second in both halves, however, they missed the playoffs, which prompted McNamara's remark.

The St. Louis Cardinals found themselves in similar circumstances, finishing with the best overall record in the NL East, 59-43, but, again, a second-place finisher in both halves.

"I don't feel any compassion for the Reds," Houston third baseman Art Howe said, "and anybody who says we backed into the playoffs is crazy. We outplayed them (the Reds) in the second half of the season. Sure, they had a good streak, but we must have done something right because they couldn't catch us." What Howe, and others who reached the round of eight, have said in essence is that the ground rules were set and accepted by the players before play was resumed on Aug. 10. The split season was part of the labor agreement the players negotiated with management over the issue of free agency.

Still, it's baseball. With bats and balls. With gloves and white chalk-marked diamonds. And the teams that made it have shown no less enthusiasm for getting on with the playoffs.

"Right now, I don't feel anything," the Phillies' Lonnie Smith said earlier in the week, "but when the day comes, I'll be excited." The A's and Royals were given the honor of starting baseball's historic miniseries with a scheduled 3:10 p.m., EDT, start in Kansas City. Royals right-hander Jeff Leonard, 13-11, was picked to oppose Oakland right-hander Mike Norris, 12-9.

At night in Houston, one of this season's best possible pitching matchups is scheduled to take place. Houston's Nolan Ryan, 11-5, who pitched his fifth no-hitter this season, will pitch against rookie Dodgers left-hander Fernando Valenzuela, 13-7.

On Wednesday, Steve Carlton, 13-4, is set to go for Philadelphia against the Expos' Steve Rogers, 12-8, and the Yankees will send Ron Guidry, 11-5, against Brewers right-hander Moose Haas, 11-7. The Phils-Expos and A's-Royals series also continue Wednesday.

Youthful labor

Workers over age 45 account for less than one-third of the civilian labor force, down from 38 percent in 1970 and 40 percent in 1960. By 1985, it is estimated these workers will account for only 20 percent of the labor force.

Team consistency continued to improve Saturday for the Hereford girls' cross country team as they finished second in the Brownfield Invitational Meet with a total score of 47. Beating the girls was perennial district strength Coronado with a total of 39.

Coach Martha Emerson stated that the key to winning a meet is to get all of the team's runners to finish close together and the ferns did quite well with that kind of thinking, as the top four runners all finished within 22 seconds of each other.

Dana Cabiness again led the Whitefaces as she crossed the finish line in fourth with a time of 13:05, a 38 second improvement over last week's time.

Debra Rogers, the only girl on the team that is participating in two sports at one time, continued to improve as she finished with a time of 13:23, good enough for eighth place. Senior Kellie Howell, who is still recovering from missing a week of workouts due to sickness, finished 11th with a time of 13:25.

Fourth place for the girls was Olga Alaniz, who turned in a time of 13:27. This was a full minute better than she had the week before.

Fifth and sixth place had Yolanda Alaniz with Linda Sermino finishing with times of 13:55 and 14:07 respectively. Both of these girls also improved their times significantly.

"Although it's hard to compare from week to week how we are improving time-wise, since each course is different, I feel that the girls are really coming along," Coach Emerson said. "But we still need to get all of our runners closer together, if we want to contend for the district team title."

In district, the top two teams and the top five individuals go to the regional meet.

The boys snapped their string of meet victories as they finished seventh in a tough field. Fernando Carrasco led the boy harriers as he crossed the tape at 16:25 for the three mile course, which was good enough for sixth place.

George Arroyos was the second Whiteface to finish as he completed the course in 16:37, good enough for 12th. Edward Flores was 30th overall as he finished in 17:19 and Chris Kahlich was timed in 17:33 for 39th place.

Cesar Ramirez, who ran his first meet of the year after suffering from shin splints was the fifth Hereford to finish, with a time of 19:33. Gary Blevins, who usually runs in the fourth position, did not participate in Saturday's meet as he is still recovering from an injury sustained in the meet the week before.

Other participants for Hereford had the La Plata runners, Molly Keating and Cindy Morgan, turn in strong times, 14:07 and 14:10. This gave them fourth and fifth in the junior varsity division, but because they are not enrolled in the high school, their times could not be counted with the official JV score.

Allison Thomas was the top junior varsity runner with a time of 14:32, good enough for 12th place.

Next week the team will participate in the Amarillo Invitational out at Thompson Park.

"This race and the one the following week at Lubbock will probably be our toughest meets before district because of the number of entrants," Emerson said. "The one good thing about running at Lubbock though is that it will be over the same course that the district meet will be on."

USC No.1 For 3rd Week

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Southern California, Penn State, Texas and Pittsburgh held onto the top four positions in The Associated Press college football poll while Missouri made the ratings for the first time this season, vaulting to 13th place.

North Carolina moved up from sixth to fifth today, replacing Oklahoma, which slipped to 10th. And Alabama climbed back into the Top Ten, rising from 11th to seventh.

The Trojans of Southern Cal, 56-22 winners over Oregon State, received 58 of 65 first-place votes and 1,293 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The seven board members who did not vote the Trojans No. 1 listed them second.

Penn State, which blanked Temple 30-0, received six first-place votes and 1,205 points. The other first-place ballot went to Texas. The Longhorns, idle last weekend, totaled 1,205 points to 1,134 for Pitt, which trimmed South Carolina 42-28.

Last week, with 66 voters participating, the point totals were 1,311 for Southern-Cal, 1,208 for Penn State, 1,104 for Texas and 1,027 for Pitt. USC led Penn State 57½-5½ in first-place votes.

Oklahoma dropped from the fifth spot when the Sooners were held to a 7-7 tie by Iowa State. Ironically, the deadlock served to moved the Cyclones from 20th to 12th.

North Carolina took over fifth place with 1,047 points after downing Georgia Tech 28-7. Michigan, a 38-17 winner over Indiana, jumped from eighth to sixth with 904 points.

Alabama rose to seventh with 763 points following a 38-7 rout of Mississippi while Brigham Young, which defeated Utah State 32-26, climbed from 10th to eighth with 735 points. Clemson cracked the Top Ten, moving from 14th to ninth with 651 points after defeating Kentucky 21-3. The Tigers are followed by Oklahoma with 607½ points.

Ohio State fell from seventh to 18th by losing to Florida State 36-27 and Mississippi State skidded from ninth to 19th in the wake of a 14-3 loss to Missouri.

The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Iowa State, Missouri, Southern Methodist, Iowa, Miami (Fla.), UCLA, Ohio State, Mississippi State and Florida

State.

Last week, it was Alabama, Washington, Georgia, Clemson, SMU, UCLA, Miami, Iowa, Arkansas and Iowa State. However, Washington lost to Arizona State 26-7 while Arkansas was beaten by Texas Christian 28-24.

Florida State returned to the Top Twenty after a two-week absence.

Ranked Teams Stay Unbeaten

By The Associate Press

The powerful among the Texas schoolboy football ranks sailed through the calmest week of upsets this season in The Associated Press Schoolboy football poll with only two ranked teams suffering defeats and a third settling for a tie.

All of the top ranked teams, Port Arthur Jefferson in 5A, Huntsville in 4A, Refugio in 3A, Forney in 2A and Motley County in A, maintained their No. 1 rankings at the season's mid-point.

The only blemish among the 3A teams was Dallas South Oak Cliff's scoreless tie with Dallas Bryan Adams. The leadlock dropped SOC from seventh to 10th in the latest balloting by Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Port Arthur Jefferson remained the strong favorite in 5A after a 31-20 victory over West Orange Stark, a former top 10 team. Thomas Jefferson got 16 first place votes to one for runnerup San Antonio Holmes.

Lubbock Estacado was the lone loser in the 4A ranks and dropped out of the top 10 after its second loss of the season. Belton replaced Estacado as the No. 10 team.

Classes 3A and 2A went through weekend games unscathed and as a result there were only minor changes in the ratings. Meridian was the only A loser, dropping a 29-13 decision to Axtel but clung to the No. 8 position this week, dropped from the No. 4 ranking.

Other teams receiving votes included: 5A, Louisville 19, Sherman and Plano 14 each, Dickinson 13 and Lovelock 8; 4A, DeSoto 8; 3A, Wylie 22, Winnsboro 13, Bowers Hill 10; 2A, Winona 11; A, Union Hill 17, Dawson 16.

Tigers Release Mark Fidrych

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

Detroit (AP) — Mark Fidrych is just an ordinary citizen today, but he'll always be unique to the millions of baseball fans who followed his meteoric rise and fall with the Detroit Tigers.

Fidrych, whose storybook pitching career was devastated by injuries, was placed on waivers Monday by the Tigers for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

That means any major league team that wants him can have Fidrych for the bargain price of $1.

It means the end, which both the Tigers and Fidrych put off as long as possible, finally has come for one of the baseball's brightest beginnings.

It is sad to think that we may never see his likes again.

"Mark is special," Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell noted. "He was more than just a great young pitcher. He brought a breath of fresh air to the entire game of baseball when it was sorely needed."

Nicknamed "The Bird" by a minor league coach who saw a resemblance to the Sesame Street character, Fidrych was perhaps the first baseball player truly born for television.

The date was June 28, 1976. The Tigers hosted the New York Yankees in a nationally televised game. Fidrych, a rookie right-hander, pitched a seven-hitter as the Tigers won 5-1 and a baseball phenomenon was born.

His enthusiastic performance created a "Birdmania" in Detroit as the 1976 season progressed.

The gangly 6-foot-3, curly-haired Fidrych was a delight to watch on the mound, where he talked to the baseball, patted the dirt to his own liking and cheered the play of his teammates.

Fidrych started the All-Star game that summer, only the second rookie to earn that honor, and went on to a 19-9 season and rookie-of-the-year honors in the American League. His earned run average of 2.34 was the lowest in both major leagues for starting pitchers that year, while his 24 complete games and 1,000 fielding average both were tops in the AL for pitchers.

His popularity was reflected in Tiger Stadium attendance figures which showed that for the 18 games he started at home in 1976, an average of 33,649 seats were filled. With his 11 starts on the road — including a game in Yankee Stadium which drew 52,707 fans — Fidrych pitched before 901,239 in his rookie season.

The Tigers paid him only $19,000 that year, the major league minimum, but Fidrych said that was plenty of money. He had one of the best arms in baseball and his future looked unlimited.

However, his world came crashing down the following spring when Fidrych, playfully shagging fly balls in the outfield at the Tigers' training camp at Lakeland, Fla., injured his left knee and underwent surgery for repair of a torn cartilage.

His recovery appeared normal and on May 27 Fidrych made his first start of 1977, then compiled a 6-4 record with a 2.89 ERA.

But in his 11th start, against the Toronto Blue Jays at Detroit on July 12, Fidrych faced only four batters and threw only 15 pitches before leaving the game because of pain in his shoulder.

The rest of his career was marred by various ailments that included the shoulder and his back. Doctors found tendinitis in his arm and he never again was effective. For the most part, he was relegated to the Tigers farm system.

Monday the club pulled the plug.

"It was one of the most difficult decisions I've ever had to make," Campbell said. "But, we reached that decision after reviewing the promising young players we have to protect our 40-man roster this winter."

"Mark has seen every specialist there is. His arm is completely alive and healthy now. However, he doesn't have the velocity he once had and he just doesn't make the big pitches to get people out. It's hard to say, but it's as simple as that."

Fidrych told Tigers public relations director Dan Ewald he was taking a vacation after talking with Campbell by telephone Monday from his family's home in Northboro, Mass. where his father, Paul, is an assistant elementary school principal.

He could not be reached by telephone and there was nobody home when a reporter from nearby Marlboro drove up to the house.

"The Tigers have done everything they possibly could do," Fidrych said in a prepared statement distributed by the club. "That's the one neat thing about it. I had a chance to do something very few people do and a lot of people stuck with me."

Fidrych finished his Tiger career with a record of 29-19 and 3.10 ERA.

Near the end of his fabulous rookie season, Fidrych wistfully told a writer for Sport Magazine: "Sometimes I wish this had never happened. Sometimes I wish I was back at Pierce's pumping gas for a living and fixing old cars."

Well, he has that wish. He can lead the life of an ordinary citizen now, but it's hard to believe baseball's most lovable flake really wants it.

back. Wills is demanding too much money. Grubb's bat turned to sawdust in July and Zimmer has lost confidence in the pitchers.

First baseman Pat Putnam, shortstops Mario Mendoza, Mark Wagner, outfielders Tom Poquette, Leon Roberts, Mickey Rivers and designated hitter Al Oliver should be back, but there are no guarantees.

Putnam was a disappointment but some front office types have faith in his potential; Mendoza is a slick fielder but cannot hit; Wagner can field and hit but Zimmer does not seem to like him; Poquette and Roberts are journeymen; Rivers may be developing an "attitude problem" and Oliver, a superb hitter, would only be traded if the Rangers got a spectacular return.

Outfielder Billy Sample and pitchers Jon Matlack and Jim Kern probably will be dealt. Zimmer's confidence in them appeared to dwindle steadily all year.

"My objective is to produce a winning team," said Chiles. "To produce that will necessitate a considerable improvement over the team we've seen in the second half."

Ranger Office Ready For Change

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — There probably will be some new faces in Texas Rangers uniforms when the 1982 baseball season begins.

The Ranger brain trust already is plotting strategy for next year, hoping to prevent another collapse that dragged the team slowly but surely out of playoff contention before September ended.

For the past seven seasons the Rangers have strutted out of spring training promising to challenge for a division title, and for seven years the Rangers have died in September.

"Disappointed? That's an understatement," said Ranger board chairman Eddie Chiles after watching his team nosedive to third place in the second half of baseball's split season. "After we came back, when the strike was settled, I began to be disappointed, and nothing ever happened to change that feeling."

Texas finished third in the second-half standings, four games below .500.

Chiles, vice president Eddie Robinson, manager Don Zimmer, scouts and minor-league executives met Monday to discuss the team's folding act, and what to do about it.

"The play was altogether different in the second half," Chiles said before the meeting. "I don't know if they were playing over their heads in the first half or if, maybe, the second half was more indicative of the character and quality of the team."

There is no official word yet, but here is what seems likely:

Third baseman Buddy Bell, catcher Jim Sundberg, pitchers Rick Honeycutt, Danny Darwin, Doc Medich, Charlie Hough, and John Butcher seem the only sure bets to return. They were the only consistent bright spots throughout the year.

Second baseman Bump Wills, outfielder John Grubb and pitchers John Henry Johnson, Bob Babcock, and Ferguson Jenkins (already released) surely will not be

YMCA Starts Volleyball; Football And Soccer Programs Continue

Action at the United Way supported YMCA moved into full throttle this week as church co-ed volleyball started, along with the continuing play of flag football for the boys in grades 1-6 and soccer for the girls of grades 1-6.

In the volleyball action, St. Anthony's II won two straight over First Presbyterian I, 15-2, 15-6. St. Anthony's III also won in a match with First Nazarene, 15-11, 15-6.

The third game of the evening had the Avenue Baptist team stop Central Church of Christ I, 15-11, 15-13. All of the games are played at the gym of Shirley School.

Girl's soccer had the Orange Crush continue their winning ways with a 5-4 beating of the Hurricanes.

Today the Cosmos will play the Red Riders in a 5:30 match-up.

Also today the 1-2 grade boys will be playing flag football at the La Plata field.

In the football action over the weekend, the NFL teams are led by the Cardinals with a perfect 3-0 record. The Cards continued strong defensive play with another 2-0 win, this time over the Cowboys, whose record fell to 1-2.

Other NFL scores had Bears shut out the Packers, 25-0, and the Lions and Rams fought to a 6-6 tie.

The AFL division has three undefeated teams, the Chargers, 30-0 winners over the Steelers, who dropped from the unbeaten ranks, and the Oilers also have a 3-0 record as they edged the Colts 12-0.

The other unbeaten team in the AFL division is the Browns, who are 2-0-1, as they beat the Dolphins 6-0. The other game Saturday had the Jets beat the winless Raiders, 8-0.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Aid against recurrence?

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am confused about using aspirin to prevent heart attacks and strokes. I have been taking aspirin because heart attacks seem to run in my family. Now I have read that aspirin doesn't help women but only helps men. That seems odd. Is that true? Why would aspirin work anyway? Does it thin the blood? If so, will it cause a person to bleed or hemorrhage? Should you take aspirin for high blood pressure?

DEAR READER - There are lots of unanswered questions about the use of aspirin in preventing both heart attacks and strokes. So far it has been proved to provide some help in preventing men from having recurrences. It has not been proved to prevent attacks in people who have never had a stroke or a heart attack and it has not been shown to improve the outlook in women.

Why? No one knows for sure. Aspirin in the correct dose - and authorities are still trying to find out what is the best amount, which may be smaller than commonly used - will help prevent the clumping of small cells in your blood called platelets. Platelet clumping is the first step in the formation of a blood clot. Cigarette smoking causes clumping. I don't think anyone should start taking even small doses of aspirin on his own to prevent heart attacks or strokes.

Aspirin in the plain form or in combination with antiacids or other preparations certainly can induce bleeding. Chronic use of aspirin often causes irritation of the lining of the stomach. The combination of aspirin and alcohol, often used by people to treat a cold, is especially hard on the stomach and should be avoided by all.

Despite its drawbacks, aspirin remains a rather safe medicine if a person knows its limitations and does not abuse its use. Its effectiveness may be limited some by taking it with meals but the food helps to protect the stomach from irritation.

Aid against recurrence?

DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you write something about a brain wave test? I've been told they find out about your past with these tests. I have a friend who is going to have this. They say it doesn't hurt you but they hook you up to a machine with lots of wires to your brain. If it is real bad I won't tell her.

DEAR READER - There is nothing to it. Your brain constantly creates electrical impulses. If it didn't you would be dead. Those electrical impulses are transmitted throughout your body but, of course, are strongest over the brain itself.

How to dye hose

DEAR POLLY - I have several pairs of white surgical support hose I would like to dye. Could you tell me the best and safest way to dye them beige? - HELEN

DEAR HELEN - Regular home dyes available in your supermarket or variety store should do the job without any problems. These are easy to use and the package carries complete directions on how to use the product. Be sure to follow the directions exactly. By using the commercially manufactured dye, you'll be sure to get exactly the shade of beige you want.

If you're in the mood for a little experimenting and you're not too particular about the results, you might want to try mixing a home dye. Strong, hot tea will dye white fabrics a delicate ecru color. Just let the items soak in the tea solution until the desired color is obtained. You can also boil fabric with dry onion skins to obtain a yellowish beige or tan color. You need a good quantity of onion skins - a cup or two in a pot of water - but again, you just boil the fabric with the onion skins until the desired shade is reached. These methods are fun to play around with and some surprisingly pleasing results can be obtained. However, if you're particular about how the finished article comes out, it's far safer to stick with the commercial dyes. Have fun! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I keep my refrigerator's freezer compartment frost-free with a little preventive maintenance instead of doing a big defrosting job every now and then. Every week or so, I pass a stream of air from my hair dryer around the walls of the freezer, then dry the inside lightly with a towel. Of course, I am careful not to get the dryer or the electric cord damp, and I watch what I'm doing carefully. - LINDA

DEAR LINDA AND READERS - Again, do remember to be extremely careful with this method. - POLLY
