Whitefaces Can Clinch Loop Against Ponies

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
LUBBOCK — It may not be the Super Bowl, but Friday night's Hereford-Coronado battle is, at this time, the most important 48 minutes ever for the Whitefaces, who must stop the Mustangs if they want to claim the District 4-5A grid title outright.

"There's no doubt that this is the most important game we've had all year," HHS Coach Don Cumpston said. "If we beat Coronado we've got the district title cinched."

Coronado, meanwhile, is fresh off a 35-0 pasting of the Lubbock High Westerners last week, and stands at 1-0 in the loop, a game behind the Herd's league-leading 2-0 standard.

The Mustangs may have revenge in their eyes when the two squads square off at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow here at Lowery Field. The Herd burst the Coronado bubble last season, claiming 24-11 district win after the ponies had registered a 7-0 record.

"I'm sure they'll be up for us," Cumpston said. "This one is for all the marbles."

The Whitefaces, who have been tested only once this year in the 9-6 win over Plainview, will face what Cumpston calls as an excellent defensive team in Coronado.

"They are very good on defense," the mentor commented, "Probably the best team we've seen defensively, especially in the line."

The pony line corps is headed up by all-district returnee

Bodie Lemons (6-2, 245) and Danny Elizondo (5-11, 230). A comet in the backfield in the person of Percy Hines (6-0, 170), who earned a trip to the state track meet in the 100 meter dash last spring, provides Coronado with sudden-scoring capability. Quarterback Mike Meeks

(6-0, 160) directs the Mustangs' Wishbone and I formation offense, and fullback Jason Owen (5-10, 175) combines with Hines and Meeks to form a solid backfield combo.

After Hereford put the breaks to the Coronado streak last year the Ponies went on to lose their last two games and finish 7-3.

"I'm sure they'd love to stop our streak, too," Cumpston said. "That's why this is such a big game."

The Mustangs, 3-3-1 on the year, rank fourth in the loop offensively, averaging 194.4 yards per game, with 992 rushing yards and 369 through the air. They rank third defensively, allowing 213.0 markers per contest.

In contrast, Hereford's Wayne High has nearly as many yards rushing by himself this year, with 862 yards on 160 totes. The Whitefaces as a team have 1,811 rushing yards, and a total of 2,675 on the year with 864 passing yards thrown in.

Defensively, the Herd also ranks first in the loop, giving up only 135.5 markers per outing. The HHS pass defense is far and above the best in the loop with just 255 yards allowed, while Plainview's 411 is a distant second, ahead of Coronado's 789.

Cumpston reports that the Whitefaces are ready and primed for the battle tomorrow night, with the entire squad in shape to hit the field. Tackle Barry Josseland, bothered by a shoulder injury over the season, is also fit for action the coach said.

Hot Time Tonight

Lumber scraps are piled over head high for the Herd bonfire and pep rally tonight. The blazes will explode at 9 p.m. on the new Church of the Nazarene lot at Fifteenth and Ironwood. The rally will hopefully boost the team to a victory at Coronado Friday night. The undefeated Herd can clinch the district championship by beating the Mustangs.

Economic Indicators Take Steep Plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A broad gauge of future U.S. economic strength fell by the biggest amount in 17 months in September, all but ending any hopes the national economy might rebound before next year, Commerce Department officials said today.

The department's Index of Leading Indicators dropped

2.7 percent during the month, a fall characterized as "an especially steep plunge" by Robert Dederick, an assistant Commerce secretary.

"The report strongly suggests that industrial production will be sliding into the autumn and that real gross national product will be down for the third successive quarter," Dederick said in a prepared statement released by the department.

"Any upturn is unlikely before early 1982," he said.

President Reagan and numerous private analysts have already labeled the economy's current state a slight recession. And worse (See PLUNGE, Page 2)

Spirit Bonfire 9 p.m. Tonight

With thoughts of helping boost the Hereford Whitefaces to the District 4-5A football throne room, the HHS student body will congregate tonight according to activities director Robert Priest.

The bonfire, originally set for just prior to the Plainview game, had been postponed. Priest said that the HHS band and cheerleaders would be at the bonfire to back the Whitefaces.

The public is invited to attend the bonfire, which will be held just north of the Nazarene Church building now under construction.

AWACS Rated Best Detectors Anywhere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AWACS radar planes, center of the Reagan administration's toughest foreign policy battle so far, are rated the world's most sophisticated machines of their kind.

But the five AWACS models the Reagan administration has promised to sell Saudi Arabia would be delivered without several key electronic systems the U.S. military has classified as too sensitive to be allowed out of American hands.

These systems are mainly advanced jam-resistant communications devices used to send commands to jet fighters defending hostile airspace against hostile bombers and other enemy warplanes.

The Saudi Airborne Warning and Control Systems jets, not scheduled for delivery until 1985, would be furnished with less effective communications gear, officials have indicated.

Administration officials have assured senators that the Saudi AWACS would be "sanitized." But one Air Force general told reporters last April that "we would be very upset if, say, the Soviets suddenly got their hands on AWACS." The general declined to be identified.

Air Force officials say the Soviets now have a type of AWACS which is less capable than the U.S. version. The Soviets are said to be working on a second generation AWACS that is expected to be in operation in about two years. "We believe it will have comparable technology with ours," said a general, who spoke anonymously.

The most important feature of the $127 million U.S.

AWACS is radar which can look down and separate the images of aircraft from ground "clutter" reflected from the earth's surface.

This means that even very low flying bombers or other attacking aircraft could not elude detection, as they can now do by flying below the search beams generated by radar stations on the ground.

Another major feature of the AWACS is that, while identifying and tracking enemy jets, it can send these data to fighter-interceptors and direct those defending (See RATED, Page 2)

'Cause Of Peace On March Again'

Reagan Celebrates Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, exulting in a victory that even his opponents called awesome, says the "cause of peace is on the march again in the Middle East" with Senate approval of his AWACS arms sale to Saudi Arabia.

With his first major foreign policy test behind him, Reagan said only a radical takeover in the Mideast now could thwart delivery of the Airborne Warning and Control System planes, the world's most advanced, in 1985. The $8.5 billion sale is the largest arms deal to a foreign nation in U.S. history.

In the meantime, Reagan reaffirmed the United States' "unshakable commitment" to Israel, which had argued that the sale would threaten its security, as his administration worked on compensating arms aid to the Jewish state.

The Senate approved the sale 52-48 Wednesday after Reagan converted seven opponents and won over all seven undecided senators in the final two days of an extraordinary lobbying blitz. It was a performance that moved House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. to say, "He is showing awesome power."

The Israeli Cabinet said today that the approval of the sale of AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia posed "a new, serious danger" that Israel would do everything necessary to overcome.

Saudi Arabia's government-controlled newspapers hailed Reagan as one of the greatest American leaders in history.

Egypt's Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly lauded the vote, calling it a "positive turning point in relations between the United States and the Arab nations" that will enable "Arab countries to defend themselves against any foreign intervention."

"Thank God!" Reagan exclaimed when told of the victory by aides who had been monitoring the roll call, via a phone line, in the office of chief of staff James A. Baker III. Keeping tally were Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., national security adviser Richard Allen and deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver.

The president said the sale will "protect our economic lifeline to the Middle East, win favor among moderate Arab nations" and reassure the world that America "is indeed a reliable security partner."

"Because of actions like today's by the Senate, the cause of peace is on the march again in the Middle East," Reagan said. In a letter delivered to the Senate earlier in the day, he pledged that a condition of the sale will be "substantial assistance of Saudi Arabia" in Mideast peace efforts.

"Our friends should realize that steadfastness to purpose is a hallmark of American foreign policy while those who (See AWACS, Page 2)

Guard Says UFOs Caused by Glow

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard says the white "eerie glow" spotted two nights over Galveston Island probably was a reflection of an offshore oil rig fire.

Police and the Coast Guard were besieged Monday and Tuesday nights by phone calls from residents who spotted the flickering lights.

"I've heard everything from spacecraft landing in the bay to something just circling the island," said Coast Guard Quartermaster Jeff Huse.

Suzanne Northcutt, a Galveston police dispatcher, said residents flooded the switchboard, reporting an unidentified flying object with red and green flickering lights.

Ms. Northcutt said she went outside to investigate, but "when I was it, it was white glowing like. It could have been the evening star."

A Coast Guard helicopter was sent to investigate, but officers only saw an offshore oil rig spouting a huge flame as it vented gas, Huse said Wednesday.

"You couldn't see the flame from shore, but it's possible that you could have seen the reflection off the clouds," Huse said. "We've gotten reports before about explosions and it turned out it was just a reflection."

DPS Chief Urges Halloween Caution

On Saturday, miniature monsters will invade the neighborhoods and the cry, "trick or treat," can be heard throughout the land.

Major C.W. Bell, Region 5 Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today, "Motorists and parents need to take precautions to protect children and prevent disasters this Halloween."

He suggests that small children be accompanied by older children or adults and trick or treating be confined to their own neighborhoods.

Major Bell also stated, "Costumes should be light in color, short enough to prevent tripping and non-inflammable. Facial makeup should be used instead of masks or hoods that restrict vision."

Children should be told to look in all directions before crossing streets and to walk, never run. A flashlight carried by the child can serve as a warning to motorists, and children should be instructed to use sidewalks when possible.

Motorists should use extra caution in residential areas and look for children crossing streets in a haphazard manner.

Major Bell stated, "If parents and motorists join together and think of children's safety, Halloween can be a safe and enjoyable evening for everyone."

We haven't talked to anyone who likes the idea of the postage-rate increases to take effect Nov. 1, but the U.S. Postal Service provides us with the bright side to the picture.

Even with the new rate increases, the U.S. will have the lowest mailing rate of all major industrialized countries. Canada, which has traditionally held its rates just below those of the U.S., plans to raise its first-class rate to 30 cents (Canadian) Jan. 1. That's equivalent to 25 cents in the U.S.

In a comparison of 14 nations, the first unit of domestic letter postage ranges from 20 cents to 29.5 cents. Sweden tops the list at 1.65 Krona, or 29.5 cents.

The printing plant has already moved into its portion of the building and The Brand, as well as a number of area newspapers and publications, are now being printed on the new Harris V-15 press.

An open house will be held after the newspaper occupies the building and completes interior work and furnishings.

Protect Your Home During Coming Holidays

The following article is a public service by the HEREFORD BRAND through the cooperation of Roland Saul, Criminal District Attorney, Deaf Smith County, Texas and the Prosecutor Council. Its purpose is to make you aware of a prosecutor's role, of your responsibility as a resident of this county and how we can work together to alleviate some of society's problems.

Three things happen as the holiday season begins: (1) homes and apartments fill with gifts; (2) families take extended trips to visit relatives and good friends; (3) the burglary rate skyrockets.

Good locks and alarms by no means represent total security in the home, but it's a good start. The great majority of burglars are under 25 years old, with many under 18, and Deaf Smith County is no exception to this rule. They have little expertise in their "field." They look for risk-free opportunities and usually find them.

According to a recent study, in well over half of the nation's burglary cases, the intruder entered through an open door or window, or forced an inferior lock. Statistics also show that if you can delay a burglar from breaking into your home for just four minutes, most burglars feel they will be detected by inquisitive neighbors. Any lock can eventually be defeated. Crime prevention experts recommend dead-bolt locks to provide the security needed for exterior doors. The bolt should extend at least one inch into the door frame to provide adequate security. Many homes are equipped with spring-latch locks. Most spring-latch locks can be easily jimmied by even the most inexperienced burglar. Replace or supplement any spring-latch locks with a good dead-bolt lock.

Family Sues Hyatt Over Elevator Incident

DALLAS (AP) — The family of a 9-year-old Argyle girl has sued over an incident in which she slid several stories down a cable in the Reunion Tower elevator.

Michelle Jean Clontz was among a small group of children from her hometown who came to Dallas July 5, 1980 to ride the elevator, next to the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Named in the suit, which seeks $1.7 million in damages, are the Hyatt Corp., Woodbine Development Corp. and Otis Elevator Corp. Nancy Winkle, who supervised the children's group, is suing for an additional $25,000 because of the trauma she says she suffered.

After paying admission fees, the children were headed for the 500-foot-high observation deck, the lawsuit says. But the elevator rose to the seventh- or eight-floor level and stopped at a point where there was no exit, it says.

NRC Fines Houston Firm For Cylinder Loss

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Citing "mitigating circumstances," the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has handed a Houston firm a reduced fine of $4,000 for the loss of a radioactive cylinder moved from Oklahoma to Texas last summer, officials say. A spokesman for Mustang Fuel Corp. of Oklahoma said Wednesday that the fine will be paid by Mustang Services Co., a subsidiary of the Oklahoma firm.

The NRC announced Monday it had reduced the proposed fine from $6,000 to $4,000 after the firm introduced what it considered mitigating circumstances surrounding the June 18 incident.

A spokesman for Mustang Fuel said those factors included immediately notifying the NRC that 1.5 curie of Cesium-137 was missing, and the fact that Mustang Services has stopped dealing in radioactive material.

The NRC Region IV deputy director, John Collins, said no one was exposed to dangerous levels of radioactivity, including the driver of a Mustang tractor-trailer truck from which the material fell onto a bridge near Lewisville, Texas.

Space Shuttle Pilot's Son Confident Of Dad

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The college son of the pilot of the space shuttle Columbia says his father probably has "reservations, but he knows the shuttle so well it will be like riding a bike to him."

University of Texas freshman Dan Truly said of his father, Navy Capt. Richard Truly, 43, "What he loves to do more than anything else is fly and he knows how to fly that shuttle as well as anyone knows how to drive a car."

Dan Truly was interviewed by The Daily Texan, UT student newspaper, about the launch of the Columbia from Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., next Wednesday.

Oil Company Admits False Report Submitted

HOUSTON (AP) — An oil company president has admitted his company submitted a false report to the federal government about the price of 5,200 barrels of crude oil sold in 1976.

Robert Sinclair, president of Texas Independent Oil Corp., pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges originally filed against Uni Oil, which was purchased earlier this year by a group of investors from Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

Charges of racketeering, mail fraud and making false statements to the government still are pending against three former Uni officers and two other oilmen. The charges stemmed from federal efforts to enforce crude oil pricing regulations imposed after the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

In a plea bargain outlined at a hearing before U.S. District Judge Ross N. Sterling, prosecutors said they would drop all other charges against Texas Independent in exchange for a guilty plea and an agreement to pay the maximum $10,000 fine.

would create instability in this region should note that the forces of moderation have our unequivocal support in deterring aggression," he said.

The Senate vote, two weeks after the House rejected the sale by almost a 3-1 margin, crowned an uphill fight less than 24 hours earlier had seemed likely to end up in a 50-50 tie. That, too, would have been enough for Reagan, since opponents needed a majority for the first-ever congressional veto of a U.S. arms sale.

Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. telephoned the president to report the victory, saying, "There are more brave souls in the Senate today than I ever knew existed."

Reagan shared the credit in the White House mess with the interagency group that spearheaded the administration's campaign.

"It was in the fourth quarter with goal to go," he said. "You pushed it over."

The Saudis will pay $8.5 billion for the biggest single U.S. arms sale in history. The package includes five AWACS aircraft, the world's most advanced radar planes, plus 1,177 Sidewinder missiles, fuel pods and flying tankers for 62 F-15 jets already on order.

The equipment is intended to guard against attacks on Saudi oil fields.

In his letter to the Senate, Reagan pledged that U.S. personnel will have the right to periodically inspect security arrangements for the sophisticated weapons and that Americans will be involved in Saudi operation of the planes "well into the 1990s."

Four of the 24 AWACS planes within the U.S. inventory already are operating with American crews in Saudi Arabia to guard against possible air attack by Iran or other hostile powers. The ones the Saudis will buy will lack advanced features such as jam-resistant communications devices.

Administration officials assured Congress last spring that Israel's qualitative edge over its potential Arab foes would be maintained.

And even while Congress is considering $2.2 billion in economic and military aid for Israel in the current fiscal year, talks are under way on the 1983 package and now will take the Saudi arms into consideration.

Opponents said the Saudi sale will increase the Arab threat to Israel, escalate the Mideast arms race and risk compromising the secret AWACS and Sidewinder technology if the Saudi monarch is overthrown.

"We are putting all our aid in one basket - the Saudi basket - and it's the wrong one," said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., a leading opponent.

"We are building a powder keg in this region with the same recklessness that plunged us deeper and deeper into the Vietnam War," said Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich.

But Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said "I am absolutely convinced the turning down of this sale could lead to war in the Middle East."

In the end a majority of senators - the 48 opponents plus the seven who switched - said they still did not like the deal.

Plunge

times apparently lie ahead, according to the leading indicators index, which fell in September for the fourth time in five months.

The September decline was the biggest since a 4 percent fall in April 1980 at the heart of last year's recession.

Of 10 economic indicators designed to forecast future trends, only one improved in September, the report said.

Figures worsened from August to September for Americans' average workweek, the labor payroll rate, stock prices, the money supply, factory orders for manufactured goods, delivery performance, contracts and orders for new plants and equipment and building permits for future construction.

The decline in the average workweek and the increase in the payroll rate were major contributors.

Prices for certain raw materials, considered a positive indicator of future demand, increased slightly. And no change was reported for total liquid assets of U.S. companies.

The index had fallen in May and June before rising slightly in July and then declining again in August.

The national economy has shown little overall strength since February. And the government's broadest measure of economic activity — inflation-adjusted gross national product — declined in the second and third quarters.

Those declines led Reagan and numerous private analysts to declare that the nation was in its second recession in two years.

Meanwhile, concern that interest rates will remain high grew as the Treasury unveiled plans for continued heavy borrowing to finance government deficits.

Protect

if you plan to be away for only minutes.

Before you leave on an extended trip, cancel your milk and newspaper deliveries or arrange with a trusted neighbor to pick them up. The same friend can tend your lawn or shovel snow and change the level of your drapes from time to time.

Control front and back porch lights with an automatic timer which can vary the on and off pattern. Connect a second floor bedroom light and a first floor radio to timer switches for day and night protection. Keep a small light burning in the bathroom.

If you want to hide a key on the grounds of your house, do it anywhere but those obvious nooks every burglar checks as a matter of course—under the door mat, in the mail box, the flower box, over the door. It is wiser not to leave a "hidden" key at all.

Don't notify the burglar of your absence by publishing your plans in the social pages. Let the world know after your return.

Notify the police of your plans before you embark and leave a number where you can be reached in an emergency. If you return and there is evidence of intrusion, do not enter. Go to a neighbor's house and call the police immediately.

amendments. If you've noticed statewide news reports, citizens in Houston may well decide the fate of the amendments. A hot mayoral race is taking place in Houston and, unless voters around the state flock to the polls, that city could well provide the deciding ballots.

All of the proposed amendments are important, but two of them have special significance to this area. The water amendment (No. 4) could provide means for water importation sometime in the future. Amendment No. 5 has a tax effect that would be felt more in this area than anywhere in the state.

Proposition 5 would exempt livestock from ad valorem taxes. Local citizens in favor of this proposition argue that the tax penalizes one of our largest industries — the cattle-feeding business — and is an unfair tax to ranchers. Opponents say the exemption would hurt the local tax base and perhaps result in an increase.

We urge voters to study the propositions and cast an informed vote next Tuesday!

planes against the enemy targets. In addition to air defense, the AWACS system can control friendly forces in fighting for air superiority over a battle area and in directing close fighter bomber support of friendly ground forces.

The AWACS is equipped to "see" targets as far as 200 miles when operating at its normal 29,000-foot altitude. From high altitude, experts say, it can detect big planes as far as 360 miles.

The AWACS is built into a Boeing 707 airframe and is topped by a 30-foot radome which looks like a huge mushroom.

Carrying a crew of 17, including specialists in communications and data processing, the plane travels at a speed of about 530 miles an hour. It is powered by four turbofan engines.

The United States already has 24 AWACS aircraft. Four of them have been operating with U.S. crews in Saudi Arabia for some time to guard against possible air attack by Iran or any other hostile power across the Persian Gulf at Saudi Arabia's oilfields.

Drastic Proposals Show Public's Ire

Until recently, the most harsh penalty I'd heard recommended for criminal misbehavior was the castration of rapists.

While the pros and cons of that suggestion are getting threadbare, along comes a proposal by an angry citizen in Seattle. Paul Hicks says, "disarm rapists."

He means that second offender rapists should suffer amputation of the offending organ.

And he got a meeting of local citizens there to second his notion.

I don't think most Americans are ready to accept such a drastic remedy, but the proposal is indicative of a new public revulsion—an increasing crescendo of resentment against legal leniency.

In Laramie, Wyoming, a man was charged with first-degree sexual assault at knife-point, three counts.

The police did their job entirely correctly; good research, good evidence, willing witnesses.

But the county attorney dropped the rape charges, allowed him instead to plead guilty to one count of burglary.

The county attorney said he allowed such plea-bargaining to cut down the number of expensive trials.

But a hundred Laramie citizens convened the Laramie Sexual Assault and Family Violence Educational Project to challenge the county official.

While sociologists argue that punishment does not deter crime, victims and their families are insisting it beats nothing, and we've tried nothing.

In an East Harlem convent a nun was assaulted—27 crosses were scratched on her naked body after she was raped.

Local citizens initiated their own search. One says, "If we catch 'em, we'll kill 'em."

Even members of organized crime have offered a $25,000 contract on this rapist.

Gun laws are not enough. In Nashville the intruder used a baseball bat on an elderly mother, breaking both her arms when she tried to prevent rape.

And time and again it is a "known sex offender" or it is "a paroled rapist" or it is somebody who has escaped punishment despite a long history of such crime.

That's why the public ire is boiling over. Anyone knows that vigilante justice frequently results in injustice—but Americans, frightened and desperate, have exhausted their options.

And this may be significant. As of the first of this year police in Terre Haute, Indiana, were authorized to "shoot to kill." Chief Loudermilk instructed his policemen, whenever threatened by a gunman, don't shoot him in the leg — "shoot to kill!"

So far none has had to. Yet in Terre Haute, most all categories of crime this year are way down from last year.

Police Have Theft Suspect

Hereford police have a suspect in the Wednesday afternoon theft of a poodle from the Jeff Thomas residence at 219 Greenwood, and charges are expected to be filed in the case.

According to HPD sergeant Vernon Hope, the animal was taken from Thomas' back yard sometime yesterday afternoon. Sgt. Hope said that the animal would probably be re-claimed sometime today.

In another theft incident, Rosa Terevizio, 907 S. Schley, told police that someone had stolen her clarinet sometime Tuesday at the high school. Value of the instrument was set at $200.

Police issued one traffic citation Wednesday.

Local Residents Take Tour Of Ozarks

Several Hereford residents were members of a Trailways Tour which has returned from six days in the Ozarks.

On one of the two Silver Eagle Trailways buses were Inez and J.W. Witherspoon, and Elizabeth Willis. On another bus were Norma Tomberlin, Arlene McNeil, and Alice and Robert Thompson.

Highlights of the tour were the beautiful fall foliage, the

Will Rogers Shrine at Claremore, Okla., the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City, the lovely lake country of Eastern Oklahoma, and the Kiamicki Mountains.

Also enjoyed on the tour was the Talimena Scenic Drive along the Winding Stair Mountains from Talihina, Okla. to Mena, Ark., as well as Silver Dollar City in Missouri.

They also visited the Shepherd of the Hills Farm, and attended the Shepherd of the Hills play at Branson, Mo., as well as some hillbilly mountain music shows.

At Eureka Springs, Ark., they visited the interesting old city, and viewed the Christ of the Ozarks statue.

Farewell banquets were held at Western Hills Lodge on the shores of Lake Gibson the last night out. From all reports, it was an exciting six days.

Breadmaking In A Bag

Interested in learning something new? Come to a bread fair on Wednesday, Nov. 4 at 1:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the Community Center. You say, what is a bread fair? You, the participant, actually make a loaf of Honey Whole Wheat Bread in a two gallon plastic bag.

Then you take the loaf of bread home and let your house have the aroma of fresh baked bread.

Louise Walker, County Extension Agent will direct the bread making. The fair is sponsored by the Family Living Committee of Deaf Smith County Agricultural Extension Service.

Information also will be available about flours, the nutritional value of bread and the role of bread in weight control.

All of the ingredients for breadmaking will be providing for a fee of $1.25. If you'd like to learn to make bread in a bag, reserve your spot by calling Louise Walker at the County Extension Office, 364-9573 by Monday.

Participants should bring an apron and rubber spatula, and be prepared to have a good time while they learn the age old art of breadmaking.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

'In Remembrance' To Show Sunday

Long ago, in a small dusty upstairs room, a group of friends met to share a last meal together. Most of them thought it was the end—One of them knew it was the beginning.

Today, almost two thousand years later, that simple and distant event is celebrated by people around the world.

E.C.R.F.'s newest film, "In Remembrance," capture an unforgettable story of the men who chose to follow a young teacher from Nazareth and of the night that would change their world-forever!

This is a film about real people, fiercely Jewish, who felt as we feel-the doubts, loves, fears, and loneliness that are the common bonds of all humanity.

"In Remembrance" is a stunning recreation of the men and events which surrounded the Last Supper-a film for all time and all people. "This is a motion picture experience you will never forget!" according to Rev. Steven D. Bookout, pastor of First Assembly of God Church.

The public is invited to view the film Sunday at 6 p.m. at the First Assembly of God Church located at 606 East 15th.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I suppose there are some naive readers who still believe that Halloween is a prelude to a religious celebration of All Saints Day.

Those of us with children know that Halloween was started by a group of mothers who are art majors who seized the opportunity to publicly humiliate the rest of us.

All my life I have lived next door to a woman who started sewing sequins on her daughter's fairy godmother dress in July. You all know her. She's the one who drags along after her children on trick-or-treat to make sure her son, who is dressed as a dragon, pulls the smoke vent on his nostrils at every house. She's the one with the kids who always step inside so you can guess who they are. With mine, they always stood them under the porch light and asked, "What is it?"

As a woman who cuts eyes out with scissors while the grocery bag is ON the kid's head, it's enough to make you sick.

I always tried to blank the day out of my mind until we heard a knock at the door at dinner. Then the kids would say, "We've got to get into our costumes. Where are they?"

"Why don't you go in what you're wearing from school?" I'd say.

"What am I supposed to be?" they'd ask.

"A wino."

The woman I lived next door to would never put her cat on the kid's head and tell him to go as Davy Crockett. She would never stick a couple of magazines under his arm and tell him to go as a magazine salesman.

She would never dot his face with lipstick and send him out as a contagious child. (The worst idea I ever had!) She would never spray-paint him green and let him be a leftover.

I stopped going to adult masquerade parties years ago when my friends got clever. (One couple dressed as dice came in separate cars and called themselves, "Pair of dice...Lost." Will you give me a break!)

The women next door had a party last year and I broke my own rule. The theme was that each person was to dress up like a movie star. At the door, I was greeted by Dolly Parton. Bo Derek waved hello. Groucho Marx was dancing with Cher and Ronald Reagan was playing the piano.

My hostess looked at me and said, "I'm sorry. Who are you supposed to be?"

How soon they forget Martha Hyer.

Frio Club Hears Crafts Program

Sandra Blankenship of Sandra's Craft Corral presented the program for Frio Homemakers Club when it met Tuesday afternoon at Sandra's for its semi-monthly meeting.

The program was on making crafts for the holiday season.

Opal Andrews and Peggy Vinson of Milwaukee, Wis. were guests. Members attending were Ella Caudle, Ruth Robbins, Virginia Yandell, Helen Barber and Anna Vogler.

Others were Loleta Vinson, Ruby Sparkman, Georgia Andrews, Darlene Richardson, Bonnie Baldwin and Barbara McMillon.

Rettman Welcomed Into Rebekah Lodge

The Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 226 met in regular session Tuesday evening at the IOOF Temple. David Rettman was welcomed into the lodge with an impressive "Rebekah Degree" ceremony, directed by Team Captain Anna Conklin.

Several sick members were noted, and cheer cards were signed by members.

Noble Anna Conklin presided as election of Lodge Deputy was held. Sadie Shaw was elected to that office for the coming year. All other officers will be elected in December.

Irene Merritt was installed as Conductor to fill the unexpired term of Lavita Fitzgerald. District Deputy President Susie Curtsinger gave a school of instruction on the procedure of electing officers in the Rebekah Lodge.

Helen Sowell, Verna Sowell, and Susie Curtsinger, served as co-hostesses in a fellowship observing Halloween. A Halloween ghost story was read, with members participating by furnishing the sound effects.

Others attending were Ben Conklin, Mary Belle Manning, Faye Brownlow, Glessie Shelton, Leona Sowell, Lydia Hopson, Peggy Lemons, Karrol Rettman, Ada Hollabaugh, Ruth Rogers, Beth Hall, Roberta Combs, Elmer Combs, Nellie Beauford, Stella Hershey, Ursalee Jacobsen and Edna Mathes.

When Will The Arms Race End?

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American space reconnaissance photos are already so good that they can tell whether a soldier has shaved — from more than 100 miles up.

That's today. What about the future? Laser battle stations armed with "death rays" and protected by dart-like spaceships. Orbiting command posts directing ground, sea and air forces.

Killer satellites stalking the skies. The United States and the Soviet Union have these capabilities under way or on the drawing boards. Should an all-out arms race occur in this decade, these space-age military concepts could transform global military strategies.

The space shuttle gives the United States an edge — for now. The Soviets — with nothing similar — have denounced the shuttle as a weapon system in disguise, claiming its sole purpose is to help America dominate the Earth.

They don't mention that the Soviet Union itself possesses the only operational space weapon system — a satellite killer capable of blowing U.S. payloads out of the sky. Pentagon officials say that in the last decade the Soviets have invested about twice as much money as the United States in military research and development, creating a growing risk of technological surprise.

American observers say that that 75 percent of the more than 100 satellites the Soviets launch each year have military assignments and that their active Salyut space station project is aimed primarily at perfecting a managed military capability in orbit. The military will fly nearly 100 shuttle missions in the next decade. But the Pentagon says these so-called "blue shuttle" missions are defensive in nature, using man to more efficiently and cheaply do the jobs now being done by expendable rockets — principally placing military payloads in orbit, with the added dimension of being able to service them periodically.

On the more exotic and ominous side, the shuttle within a few years will be a testbed for laser beam weapons that could, if perfected, attack hostile satellites and destroy enemy missiles as they rise above the atmosphere. And shuttles could ferry up men and equipment for the construction of those battle stations if they become necessary.

From the very beginning of the space age, the military leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union saw the benefits of using this new "high ground." The first military satellite was America's Discoverer 1, launched in 1969, to take photographs and return the film to Earth in a capsule that was snared over the Pacific by an Air Force plane.

Technology has taken great strides since then, and now the security of both nations is increasingly dependent upon orbiting satellites. U.S. and Soviet payloads dispatch military messages around the world; send navigation signals to ships, planes, submarines and troops in the field; are alert to warn instantly of a missile attack, and spy on each other and other nations with high-resolution cameras.

U.S. space cameras for months have taken special notice of Soviet troop movements in and around Afghanistan and Poland. President Johnson once said that the reconnaissance photos were worth many times the entire U.S. investment in all space technology.

And last year, President Carter said: "Photo reconnaissance satellites have become an important stabilizing factor in world affairs in the monitoring of arms agreements."

There is growing concern at the Pentagon because the Soviets have introduced a new destabilizing element with their development of a killer satellite: a satellite that can track down its orbiting target, maneuver near it, and explode, destroying both.

Pentagon observers say the hunter satellite can strike targets out to 600 miles, which makes America's navigation and reconnaissance satellites vulnerable. Communications and missile-warning satellites are stationed 22,300 miles up, but within a few years they too may come within range of advanced killers or laser beams.

The United States has sought for more than two years to negotiate a ban on killer satellites, but talks with the Soviets have been unsuccessful. So, the Defense Department is developing its own satellite destroyer, to be operational in about two years.

Defense planners also are considering several methods for protecting military payloads from ambush. Included are satellites hardened against radiation damage, and others that could evade an attacker, eject decoys to confuse it, or fire a laser blast at it.

They believe the Soviets have an edge in laser weaponry, and some experts estimate that the Soviet Union could orbit a system of small laser battle stations by 1986 — three to four years before the United States would have that capability.

A laser beam weapon would generate a ray that travels in a straight, intense, single wave path. It could, at high power, cut through thick steel. Several shuttle flights will test laser weapon technology.

Another, more potent, space weapon being researched by both nations is the charged-particle beam, believed to be several years away. In such a beam, streams of highly-subatomic particles would strike with such enormous energy that they would burn or melt their targets.

The shuttle will carry its first military payloads next year, and by 1985 the Air Force plans to make heavy use of at least two of the five shuttles.

The military is building its own shuttle launch base at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., and a secure control center at Peterson Air Force Base, Colo. Until these are ready, the "blue shuttles" will take off from the space agency's facility at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

OEA Leaders

The Office Education Association of Hereford High installed officers Monday night. Those serving this year are, seated from left, Suzanne Kahlich, secretary, Robin Baldwin, historian; Suzanne Hulsey, parliamentarian; standing, Karen Milton, vice president; and Glenna West, president. The OEA is the Youth Leadership Organization of Vocational Office Education program which trains students for entry level clerical employment. The VOE co-ordinator is Mrs. Joyce Wartes.

Now You're Cookin'

"I started cooking at home, watching my mother, about 14 years ago," remembers Kent Herring, who has recently moved to Denver with his wife, Chris, and their young daughter, Christin. He is the Chef de Partie Garde Manger, which means Chef in charge of cold foods, at the Chateau Pyrenees, an exclusive French restaurant there.

Kent is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Herring, and graduated from Hereford High School in 1977. His first job was at K-Bob's Restaurant here in Hereford, when his older brother, Greg, was the manager there.

"Greg was really the one who got me interested in cooking and the restaurant business," said Kent.

Although Kent's parents have never been involved in this business, several of their six children are working in restaurants now. Another of Kent's brothers, Cliff, manages the Railroad Crossing in Canyon and Rhett's in Amarillo. Reid, Kent's younger brother, just took a job with a restaurant in Midland.

After working at K-Bob's, Kent worked at the Railroad Crossing in Canyon and the Beef Board Exchange in Amarillo. "These restaurants are average steak houses," explained Kent, "and nothing like where I work now."

While working in Amarillo, Kent learned about the Culinary Institute of America through Life magazine. Although there is usually a one-year waiting list to get into the school, Kent was accepted within a month. Acceptance is based mainly on experience, explained Kent.

Kent started attending the school in Hyde Park, New York in 1979, and has just graduated this July, after two years of study. He graduated seventh in his class of 60 students, and was named outstanding student in wines and spirits. He received special training in ice carvings.

The Chateau Pyrenees, where Kent is now working, is a classical French restaurant, according to Kent. "French restaurants are the most prestigious type of restaurants," he added, "and the main emphasis at school was on French cuisine." We also studied bookkeeping, accounting, purchasing, receiving, sanitation, food chemistry, and many other areas.

Everything is "a la carte" at the Chateau Pyrenees, and there are over 100 items on the menu. The average check per person is about $50. The meal usually takes approximately three hours to eat, as there are several courses.

An average menu would run like this, said Kent, "Hot Appetizer, Cold Appetizer, Soup, Salad, Sorbet (similar to sherbet), Hot Entree, Cold Entree, Dessert, Cordials (expensive drinks), and Savories (spicy sweets)."

Kent, as Chef de Partie Garde Manger, is in charge of all appetizers, cold soups, salads, dressings, and desserts. He and one other chef share this responsibility, and two other chefs prepare all the entrees.

Kent explained that "there are three waiters per table, all of whom wear tuxedos. The captain is in charge of all the flaming. He cooks tableside. The front waiter sets the table and fills water glasses, and the back waiter brings the food to the table." French restaurants are not very common in this part of the country, Kent commented. "There are now a couple in Dallas and two or three in Denver, but not many in the Southwest."

Two dessert items which Kent makes every day are Chocolate Souffle and Cheesecake. The recipes which follow have been reduced several times, as Kent normally makes very large amounts for the restaurant.

The Chocolate Souffle recipe will make approximately 12 individual souffles, and the Cheesecake recipe should make one 10-inch cake.

The dressings are some of the ones that Kent serves on his salads. "The base used in the Strawberry Mint and Cucumber Dill recipes can be used as a base for any number of salad dressings," said Kent.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE
1 whole egg
1 egg yolk
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 c. flour
1/4 c. cocoa
Mix above ingredients in large bowl. Make into a paste.

In saucetop, combine 1 pt. milk, pinch salt, and one vanilla bean (or 1 T. vanilla extract). Bring to a boil, then remove from heat.

Add two-thirds of the milk mixture to the egg-paste mixture. Mix well. Then add paste mixture back into the last third of the milk mixture. Put saucetop back on the fire and stir vigorously until it reaches a boil. Turn burner down. Mixture will become very, very thick. Continue to cook, stirring often, for 8-10 minutes. DO NOT SCORCH!

Remove from heat and put back into big bowl. Cool slightly. Stir in 4 egg yolks. At service time, beat 12 egg whites until slightly stiff. Fold egg whites carefully, but quickly into base.

Coat souffle dishes or small straight-sided (important) dishes with softened butter and dust with granulated sugar.

Fill dishes to the top, making sure that nothing is spilled on the rim of the dishes.

Bake in 400 degrees oven for 18 minutes. Make sure there are no drafts in the kitchen, as the souffle will fall.

Dust the top with confectioners sugar or vanilla sauce (below) and serve immediately, as they will fall if left sitting too long.

VANILLA SAUCE
4 egg yolks
1/2 c. sugar
Mix egg yolks and sugar in bowl.

In saucetop, combine 1 pt. milk and 1 T. vanilla and bring to a boil.

Pour two-thirds of this mixture into the egg mixture, dissolving sugar. Then pour this back into the remaining third.

Put saucetop back on burner, stirring constantly. Remove from heat just before the mixture boils-DO NOT BOIL! Cool quickly by placing bottom of saucetop in cool water.

Serve over souffle. May poke hole in top of souffle and pour sauce into it.

CHEESECAKE
3 lbs. cream cheese
1 1/2 c. sugar
Pinch salt
Cream together using mixer. Add 6 eggs and 1/4 c. vanilla. Mix well.

Line bottom of greased pan with cake crumbs.

Pour cream mixture in almost to top of pan. Bake in

KENT HERRING

350 degree oven for about 45 minutes or until firm.

Can be tested with a toothpick like cake. When done, cheesecake should be light brown on top. My want to put pan underneath to keep the bottom from getting too done.

Serve cold.
Salad dressings:
DIJON VINAGRETTE
1 oz. Dijon mustard
1 1/2 oz. wine vinegar
1 T. Worcestershire sauce
2 t. sugar
4 t. ice cold water
pinch salt
pinch pepper
Combine above ingredients and make into a paste. Slowly add 1 cup oil, blending in with mixer.

Makes about 8 ounces of dressing.
STRAWBERRY MINT
Make a base of: 1/2 c. mayonnaise, 1/2 c. sour cream, 1/2 c. heavy cream. Cream together until smooth.

Wash and puree 1/2 pt. of strawberries, and add to base.
Add 1 oz. chopped mint, 1 t. honey, and 1/4 t. lemon juice to base and stir until well blended.
Makes about 12 ounces.

CUCUMBER DILL
Make some base as for above Strawberry Mint dressing.
Peel, seed, and puree to medium cucumbers. Add to base, and add 1 t. fresh dill or 4 t. dill seed, 1/4 t. Worcestershire sauce, 2 or 3 drops Tabasco sauce, and 1/4 t. mustard. Stir until well blended.
Makes about 12 ounces.

Around Town

Melvin and Beverly Jayroe of Top Properties Inc. attended the Texas Association executive meeting of TAR last weekend in Dallas. On Sunday the Jayroes went to the Cowboy football game and thoroughly enjoyed it. They said when Dallas was behind some of the fans started leaving, but as they heard that Dallas scored again, they started coming back into the stadium.

Dean and Mary Herring had a house full of company over the weekend — in fact, they had an even dozen. Here from Denver, Colo. was their son and his family, Kent, Chris and Christin.

Joining them on Sunday for dinner were other children Cliff, Amy and Brian Herring of Canyon; Greg, Vickie, Tamara and Courtney Herring of Amarillo; and Marc and Eileen Herring of Hereford.

The dinner was prepared by Kent, the chef de partie of the Chateau Pyrenees in Denver. So this had to be quite a treat to the entire family.

Visiting in the home of Ruth and Herschel Black this week is her mother, Ethyl Blackwell of Groom.

Mike Carr's mother, Mrs. Reed Echols of Pampa, was recipient of the Citizen of the Year award last week at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

Mike, Janice and Andrew Carr were at the banquet along with the rest of Mike's family. They surprised his mother the most by having her daughter, Susan Stiggins and son, Jeff, come from London, England for the event. Mrs. Echols' other children attending were John Carr of Canyon, Robert Echols from Stephenville and Steve of the home.

Tom Burdett and Bill Johnson of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce also attended the banquet.

The capacity crowd of more than 500 persons were told that Mrs. Echols was chosen for the quantity and quality of her civic contributions, which include volunteer work with Meals on Wheels, Genesis House, the Salvation Army, the United Way, the Community Day Care Center, Pampa nursing homes and First United Methodist Church.

this week's final vote.

The five-member Redistricting Board must complete work on new Texas House and Senate districts by midnight Wednesday, Oct. 28, or the task automatically goes to the courts.

One plan for the Senate has already been presented by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. Speaker Bill Clayton and Comptroller Bob Bullock were expected to present their maps earlier this week.

The Hobby plan does not pair any incumbent senators, since four senators have decided not to seek re-election.

Ann Landers Doctor's Silence Frightening

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday I had a complete physical that was required by a firm I started with recently. I am a healthy young woman (23) and this was my first thorough internal examination by a physician.

The doctor peered into every crevice with lights and poked with instruments. The exam lasted at least 20 minutes. He didn't say ONE word the whole time. After I put my clothes on he said I was very healthy and the results of the blood test and urinalysis would arrive in the mail.

This doctor is extremely competent and highly respected, but on a scale of 1 to 10, I would give him a 6. Why? Because he didn't utter one word throughout the entire examination. If he had said just a few phrases... "Everything is fine here" or, "No problem... looks excellent," he would have made me feel so much better. Silence during a physical examination can be terribly frightening to a patient.

Please print my letter, Ann. So many doctors need to know this, and it's something they don't teach in medical school.—I Live In Chicago about this but he keeps doing it anyway. Any suggestions on how to get him to stop?—Vermont Reader

DEAR VERMONT: That irksome speech habit became popular a few years ago. I agree, it can be annoying—like any word or phrase repeated over and over. (Another clinker is "You Know?")

He won't stop, so your best bet is to construct a psychological defense mechanism. Whenever your husband says, "Right?" say to yourself, "Wrong." It will keep your blood pressure down.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was taken aback by the letter from "Please to Meet You" and amazed at your answer.

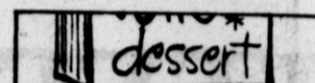

In my part of the country a lady does NOT shake hands, nor does she stand when a gentleman enters the room.

There is one exception to the hand-shaking rule. When someone offers his or her hand, it must be assumed the person doesn't know better. Such ignoramuses belong in the same category with lip-smackers and coffee-blowers. The lady should respond with a light clasp. (You called it a "dead fish.")

I am 42, so don't label me an out-of-date clod. Remember, we may be thinking the same about you when you hold out your hand to us.—A True Southern Lady

DEAR LADY: I always stand when a gentleman of distinction or advanced age enters a room, and I shake hands with both men and women — no dead fishes either. If that makes me a clod in your eyes, it wouldn't exactly ruin my day.

Actors Teach Docs Manners

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Fred Cabral has been a teacher who doesn't know how to tell his wife he has gonorrhea and a construction worker with high blood pressure who doesn't want to give up pizza and beer.

Cabral is a patient for hire. A student actor with the Trinity Repertory Company in Providence, he gets $25 for half a day's work and a chance to practice his craft. Medical students at Brown University get a chance to practice their bedside manners.

"Having the patient give the feedback is much more powerful than when it is coming from me, the professor," said Dr. Stephen R. Smith, who developed the program to teach future doctors how to communicate with their patients.

"A lot of doctors have a tape recorder in their head saying, 'You've got to tell this person what the illness is and what to do for it.' The patient hears he has gonorrhea, but he is thinking, how will he tell his wife? how will he sneak the antibiotics into her mashed potatoes? He is not hearing any of what the doctor is saying."

For the past 2½ years at Brown, Smith and his staff have been using actors to play patients in a variety of case histories.

"The idea is not to get a diagnosis," Smith said. "The student already has that. The idea is to communicate with the patient."

"Despite the fact it will have more to do with the eventual health of a patient than anything else, there is virtually nothing being done in medical schools with patient education," he added. "The patient gripes about it more than anything else."

"Most patients are their own decision makers. If they are in the hospital, you can strictly control what their treatment is. But not when they are on their own."

Smith and the staff have developed seven case histories, including that of a young mother whose child suffers from seizures brought on by high fever.

"In this case there is a grandmother who calls the shots on raising the child," said Toby Simon, a health education specialist. "The doctor has to find out about the grandmother in order to know what treatment will be followed, because if she doesn't like it, the child won't get it."

Others include a 17-year-old girl, mother of an 18-month-old child, who decides to get an abortion; an elderly woman with an ulcerated leg; a 50-year-old woman with angina, and a 35-year-old housewife with lower back pain.

"As far as we know, we and the University of Connecticut are the only medical schools doing this with professional actors and video tape," Smith said. "A lot of people are interested in it. We have applied to the National Fund for Medical Education to market these case histories."

Two weeks before the session, the actor is given a pamphlet explaining who he is, what his background is and what he knows about his disease. The student playing the doctor is given only clinical information.

"We tell the student to focus on three areas," Smith said. "What does the patient know about the problem, how does he feel about the problem and what are his social support systems — what will allow him to follow the treatment program or inhibit it."

"Communicating is a skill like anything else," said medical student Larry Budner. "You can learn it, practice it and improve it. If you are not communicating with the patient, then you are really not doing anything."

The patient visit is recorded on video tape, then played back while the actor, the student, a doctor, a psychologist, a teacher and another student discuss it.

"We encourage them to stop it often and talk about what is on their minds at specific moments," Smith said.

Afterwards, the actor takes a quiz to show how much of what the doctor told him sank in. Staff members also evaluate the student's performance.

In the basement of Memorial Hospital in Pawtucket, Cabral and medical student Lloyd Minor watched themselves on a television monitor.

Minor was explaining to "Louis Scalzone," a 36-year-old construction worker, that he has high blood pressure and must change his diet or face serious disease later in life.

The patient rolled his eyes and folded his arms. "Well, I'm not going to totally give up beer," he said.

They stopped the tape and Dr. Ann DeLancey, a psychologist, asked Cabral what he was feeling.

"Well, as Louis Scalzone, I get very upset when people tell me what to do," Cabral said. "He just told me my lifestyle stinks and on top of that he says I'm fat. Usually, I'm not that way at all. I guess I was really into it."

Taking Atomic Test

Keith Smith, Boy Scout Troop 50, Hereford, completes his spot quiz on atomic terms. Keith is one of 220 other Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts taking the Atomic Energy Merit Badge Seminar provided by the Llano Estacado Boy Scout Council and Mason and Hanger, Silas Mason Co., Inc., and Pantex. The seminar consists of four consecutive Saturdays concluding with a trip to Sandia Laboratory in Albuquerque, N.M. and seminar includes the history of nuclear energy, radiation detection and protection, nuclear reactor principles and radioactive isotope production and use. Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Smith of Dawn.

Dope Dealer Will Appeal

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The attorney for a 41-year-old heroin dealer who received a 99-year-prison term Wednesday said he will appeal, as prosecutors called his conviction the first real test of a new Texas law.

Arie Kennard Jr. was convicted Tuesday by a district court jury of engaging in organized crime, despite his argument that he was immune from prosecution because he was acting as a police informant.

Jurors, however, said that they came perilously close to deciding that Kennard had been entrapped.

Kennard was charged with overseeing a southside drug operation that netted as much as $20,000 a day from heroin and cocaine sales.

Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney Larry Moore has described Kennard as "one of the biggest, if not the biggest, dope dealers that we've ever been able to convict in this county."

Defense attorney Don Carter said he will appeal on the basis of at least six legal errors made in the trial.

District Judge Randell Riley said he has not decided if he will find Kennard guilty of contempt for outbursts during the eight-day trial. Kennard blurted out that he had passed two polygraph tests, although Riley had said lie detector results could not be used as evidence.

Reagans Hospitalized For Formal Physicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, suffering from a cold in recent days, and his wife, Nancy, are entering Bethesda Naval Hospital today for their first formal physical examinations since moving into the White House last January.

The Reagans were scheduled to spend about 24 hours in the military center's presidential suite, but the White House has released no details regarding the tests they will undergo.

Dr. Daniel Ruge, Reagan's physician, said the president has been miserable with a cold the last few days. Reagan's voice has been hoarse in public appearances and he has told visitors about a sinus condition.

Ruge said Reagan has fully recovered from the gunshot wound to the chest he suffered in an assassination attempt last March 30.

Dodgers Wins Series With 6th Game Thrashing

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — So much for waiting until next year.

Once, when they lived in Brooklyn, that was a way of life for a team called the Dodgers. Wait till next year. Things will be better then.

It took them seven visits to the World Series before they won one. And they had lost their last three bids for baseball's world championship. Frustration was being a Dodger fan and always waiting for next year.

Well, now 25 other major league clubs will do the waiting. Things have gotten better in a hurry for these Dodgers from Los Angeles who found happiness in a house of horrors called Yankee Stadium on a chilly evening in October.

They are the final survivors of baseball's longest, most frustrating season, a year fragmented by a bitter seven-week player strike that created a new tier of playoffs and kept the games going almost until Halloween.

They are world champions, and next year is here at last.

"This is heaven," said Pedro Guerrero, one of three Dodger heroes who shared the most valuable player honors in the 1981 World Series.

It's a cinch he's the first guy to say that about the South Bronx. But Yankee Stadium looked like Cloud Nine to all the Dodgers

Wednesday night as they mugged the Yankees 9-2. The game wasn't as close as the final score indicated.

Guerrero drove in five runs with a single, triple and home run. He shared the MVP award with courageous Ron Cey, who drilled two hits, one of them driving in the go-ahead run, and Steve Yeager, who had another vital RBI-single.

finished the Series with 10 hits, decided something special was going on.

"The home runs on Sunday started to tell us that this was our year," he said.

But the Yankees were still smug about the situation. They had lost three games in California, each of them by a single run and each of which they could very easily have won. Now the Series was switching to New York, where the Dodgers seemed to be suffering from a terminal Yankee Stadium syndrome. Pinstripe panic had beaten Los Angeles six straight times in the Stadium.

figure it was a gamble. He's my best pinch hitter. I wanted a base hit and I didn't get it so I wasn't very smart."

George Frazier relieved and the Dodgers jumped on him in a hurry. Davey Lopes singled and moved up on a sacrifice. With two out, Cey hit a seering-eye single up the middle, scoring Lopes with the go-ahead run. After Dusty Baker also singled, Guerrero tripled to make it 4-1 and eventually make Frazier the only three-time loser ever in a six-game series.

about beating New York.

"I never said this before," the Dodger manager said, "but I've always wished that if the good Lord let us ever win the World Series, I hoped it would be against the club that beat us twice. This is the greatest thing that ever happened in my life in baseball."

Moments after the final out, Steinbrenner issued a press release apologizing to the people of New York for the play of the Yankees in the Series and congratulating the Dodgers on their victory. The controversial Yankee owner promised, "We will be at work immediately to prepare for 1982."

LA Infield Breaking Up?

By JOHN NADEL AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There's been a lot of talk about breaking up that veteran Dodger infield, so the 1981 World Series might have been its last chance. And Davey Lopes knew it.

"They can break us up, they can tear us apart, but they can never take away that ring," said Lopes in the hysterical Los Angeles clubhouse Wednesday night.

"All those errors don't mean a thing now, do they?"

Lopes, 35, set a Series record for a second baseman by committing six errors, including one in the sixth and final game, but it didn't prevent the New York Yankees, 2-2, to climax another one of their patented comebacks.

The Dodgers had to come from a 2-0 deficit to win the National League West playoffs over Houston, a 2-1 deficit to capture the N.L. Championship over Montreal, and another 2-0 deficit to overcome the Yankees. They did all three.

"I think that was one of the motivating forces," said Lopes, referring to the possibility of change in an infield that's been together a big-league-record nine seasons. "I really don't know (if he'll be around next year). I'll talk about that with Al Campanis (the Dodgers' General Manager) in a month or so."

One member of the veteran Los Angeles infield who has been more concerned with his life than playing baseball recently was less vocal than most of his teammates. But he seemed just as happy.

"Words can't express my feelings," said third baseman Ron Cey, who shared the Series' Most Valuable Player Award with teammates Steve Yeager and Pedro Guerrero.

"It's a great honor for us, something we've had in the back of our minds for a lot of years from the beginning of spring training. Our goals have never been lower than that."

Cey was beamed by hard-throwing Yankee reliever Rich Gossage in Game 5 last Sunday and suffered a concussion. But he played five innings Wednesday night before asking to come out.

Yeager was an unlikely hero. The veteran catcher had only 86 at-bats during the regular season and played as much as he did in the Series only because the Yankees started so many left-handed pitchers.

Guerrero was hitless in his first eight Series at-bats, but he closed with a rush. The second-year major leaguer had three hits and drove in five runs Wednesday night.

Celtics See Good Chance Of Repeating As NBA Champs

Boston Celtics Coach Bill Fitch already has the National Basketball Association season figured out before it starts.

"We've got a much better chance to defend our title," Fitch said, "because we've got the law of averages on our side."

Not since the 1968-69 Celtics were winning their 11th championship in 13 years has an NBA team repeated as league champion. That's not to say there haven't been some good teams since then: The New York Knicks, with Willis Reed, Dave DeBusschere, Walt Frazier and Bill Bradley; the Milwaukee Bucks, with Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Oscar Robertson; the Los Angeles Lakers, with Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West, and later with Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson; the Celtics with Dave Cowens, John Havlicek and Jo Jo White, and the Portland Trail Blazers, with Bill Walton and Maurice Lucas.

"There are probably six or seven teams as good as us this year," Fitch said, "but sometimes it just comes down to how the ball bounces. But I'll say this: we have no unhappy or complacent people on this team. If we get beat, it won't be because we're fat-headed or can't pay the price. No two seasons are alike and there are a lot of good basketball teams.

"We won the championship last season and I'm very thankful. We're going to do our best to defend it and do it with style, win, lose or draw."

Undaunted by history, the Celtics start defense of their title Friday night at Boston against the Washington Bullets. If form holds, the Celtics will not be the 1981-82 champions. Maybe it will finally be the Philadelphia 76ers or maybe the Lakers will come back after a year of dissension, or maybe it will be the Seattle SuperSonics, Bucks, or Phoenix Suns.

First, however, they will have to get by the Celtics, who have, as Fitch said, the odds on their side not to mention a terrific frontline.

It's really a mystery why an NBA team has been unable to repeat as champion in the past 13 years. During that time, the Oakland A's won baseball's World Series three straight years and the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds each won twice in a row; the Montreal Canadiens won hockey's Stanley Cup four straight times, the Philadelphia Flyers and New York Islanders each won two in a row. In football, the Miami Dolphins and Pittsburgh Steelers each won two straight Super Bowl championships.

"Injuries, contracts, players getting old, complacency, some teams getting better — there are a lot of reasons," Fitch said.

All reasons that would affect other sports, too, but it seems unusual that no NBA team has been able to

Oiler Head Coach Sees Changes Needed

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Ed Biles peered over his rose-colored glasses long enough to admit his defense has some problems.

"I am concerned about the big plays that the defense is giving up," Biles said. "I'm not happy with the pass rush that we've been getting either but it's something that we're going to get worked out."

But then, Biles returned to the posture he has taken throughout a frustration, error-filled eight games that has netted the Oilers a 4-4 record.

"In the big poker game that we are playing right now, the chips are still on the table," Biles said, painting the brightest picture possible following Monday's 26-13 loss to the Steelers. "The big loss doesn't come until you are eliminated from the division race."

Biles also gave some of the blame for Houston's uncharacteristic defensive lapse to rules changes.

"I think you're going to see some changes in the defensive stats all around the league this year," Biles said. "All the rules are favoring the offense and scoring points."

While acknowledging the problems, Biles said he wasn't ready to throw in the towel. "If we continue to give the effort we've been getting, we'll have a chance," he said. "You win championships in November and December."

Pittsburgh, which moved into a tie for the division lead with the Cincinnati Bengals, held Earl Campbell to 56 rushing yards while the offense picked the Oilers clean in key situations.

"The difference was we couldn't stop them when it counted," Biles said.

The Oilers continued to try to find a happy blend of Ken Stabler passing and Campbell running, but Monday's effort was not the answer.

"We went into the game with the idea of putting the ball in the air more," Biles said. "I'm not going to second guess our passing as much as we did but you have to have a balance."

"We have to give the ball to Earl. He is the guts of our offense. He's the strength of this football team and you have to play some to your strength."

Quarterback Gifford Nielsen, who was the starting quarterback until Stabler ended a brief preseason retirement, will start throwing hard this week but likely would not be activated prior to Sunday's game at Cincinnati.

Cougar Kicker Finally Getting Deserved Recognition

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Things are finally starting to break right for University of Houston freshman walk-on kicker Mike Clendenen. They're even spelling his name right on the program these days.

That's C-l-e-n-e-n-e-n. Got it?

Prior to last Saturday, when his 17-yard field goal with 5:16 to play gave UH a 20-17 victory over Arkansas, Clendenen was just another wide-eyed first-year student on his way to philosophy 101.

But with one quick swing of his leg, Clendenen silenced 54,618 Arkansas Razorback fans to become an instant hero and revive Cougar hopes in a wild Southwest Conference title race.

Now, Coach Bill Yeoman hopes Clendenen is the answer to the Cougars' season-long kicking problem. Going into Saturday's game, three UH kickers had hit only one of eight field goal tries, figuring directly in two UH losses.

Clendenen booted a 30-yarder earlier in the game for his first collegiate three-pointer. "All I needed was to get that first one," Clendenen said. "After that one went through, I was okay."

Although Clendenen's field goal was from chip shot range, it was a tribute to the his perseverance that he was available to make the kick. Until Saturday, Clendenen's only luck was bad.

During a tragic senior year of high school, Clendenen lost his mother and his stepmother suffered a stroke. When he got around to kicking, he pulled a muscle that impeded his progress further. Clendenen decided to walk on at UH but three other UH kickers got a shot at the kicking chores ahead of him. Clendenen missed his first collegiate attempt against Southern Methodist two weeks ago but he was ready for the Razorbacks.

"Last year, I had so much on my mind that it kind of hurt my kicking," Clendenen said. "But everything seems to be falling in place now and my mind is clear. I'm kicking of only one thing—kicking a football."

Clendenen's confidence got a major boost when Yeoman signaled him into the game to kick the winning points. The Cougars faced fourth down and two feet for a touchdown when Clendenen got the call.

"It really helped my confidence that Coach Yeoman would have that much confidence in me," Clendenen said. "I think I can do a good job from now on. I felt much more confident kicking the second one than I did on the first one."

LaPorte Coach Carroll

Lundin, who tutored former Austin Reagan and University of Texas kicker Billy Schott, said Clendenen had the ability to get his kicks off quickly to avoid blocks.

"Billy was super quick at getting his kicks off," Lundin said. "We used to line him up without any offensive line and see if the defense could block his kicks. Mike has the same type of quickness."

And Yeoman just as quickly put Clendenen on scholarship and ordered him a new jersey with his name spelled correctly on the back.

Yankee Pride Suffering After Poor Showing In Last Games Of Series

An AP Sports Analysis By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — The green grass of Yankee Stadium took on a bluish hue today — Dodger blue — and Yankee pride turned crimson.

It was a blush of embarrassment for baseball's most successful team, winner of 33 American League championships striving for a 23rd World Series victory.

The Yankees were crushed 9-2 in the sixth and final game Wednesday night by a plucky, never-say-die Los Angeles team that rallied from 0-2 to win four games in a row.

It will go into the record books as one of the sport's most thudding collapses.

What happened?

Were they over-confident? Or were they too tight because of the heavy hand of owner George Steinbrenner hanging over their heads?

Steinbrenner, by his own admission a demanding boss, had continually dropped warnings of a possible house-cleaning if the Yankees faltered in pursuit of another championship.

Rumors were planted — if not by Steinbrenner, then someone in the upper echelon — that some of the older players might be headed for free agency or the trading block.

Some of the club's older yet more illustrious players were given warnings not to sign any long-term house leases. Some were made to feel it wouldn't be wise to send out their laundry.

The names bandied about — never officially confirmed — as on thin ice included outfielder Lou Piniella, 38; first baseman Bob Watson, 35; Mr. October, Reggie Jackson, 35; third baseman Graig Nettles, 37, and even such younger players as catcher Rick Cerone and second baseman Willie Randolph.

Did the axe which the boss held over their heads backfire in the World Series?

Did the strategy explode in the boss' face?

This wasn't the Yankee team that won four league championships, a division title and two world championships in six years, although the personnel was largely the same, plus the infusion of such expensive talent as the $24 Million Man, David Winfield.

In the three games at Los Angeles and the single clinching game at the Stadium here, they were so tight psychologically that it seemed only the slightest touch would break the taut string that would send them into smithereens.

Only the veteran Tommy John, a former Dodger, the classy Ron Guidry and fireballing reliever Rich (Goose) Gossage measured up to their Yankee reputations.

Ron Davis, an excellent middle reliever, was roundly shelled and only a ghost of the speedballer who was so effective during the campaign.

George Frazier wound up with the dubious distinction of being the first pitcher to lose three games in a World Series since 1919, when the best-of-seven format was adopted.

Winfield, a superb athlete, suffered a horrendous slump, getting only one hit in 22 at-bats. The long-legged, high-leaping star who soared over fences to make spectacular catches during the last weeks of the season, took an ugly spill and barely released a throw on a Bill Russell hit to left field in the sixth inning.

Reggie Jackson, accustomed to performing home run miracles in October, went 0 for 5 in the big-pressure finale.

One could look at him and see intensity burning inside that muscled frame. He twitched his head. He shook his shoulders. He had the look of eagles in his eyes. But he drew only blanks.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - When I broke my arm recently, I had to find a way to cut my meat at the dinner table, since I couldn't wield a knife and fork. I discovered that my kitchen scissors did a fine job - not only on my pork chops, but also on steak and pizza. This might also help out families with children who have difficulty managing with a knife and fork.

- CLARA
DEAR POLLY - To save energy and keep your kitchen cooler, you can use a double boiler as a substitute oven for warming leftovers, breads, taco shells and other foods that just need to be warmed up. Fill the bottom pot with water and let it simmer. Place the food to be warmed in the top pot tightly covered. It will warm quickly and easily. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I've used the following method for cleaning my husband's shirt collars for many years. It always works. Rub the soiled area of the inside of the collar with chalk. Then toss in the wash as usual. The chalk absorbs the oil in the dirty stain and both chalk and soil are easily washed away. No extra scrubbing required. - DORIS

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Treating skin problem

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 25 years old and have never had a really serious problem with acne. But now all of a sudden I have a really bad problem with blackheads on my face and chin. I wash my face twice a day and have tried different kinds of acne creams, but nothing seems to help. They really are ruining my complexion. What could I be doing wrong and what can I do to get rid of them?

DEAR READER - Gentle washing with rather warm water two or three times a day is useful. You might want to soak the areas by leaving a hot wet washcloth over the skin until it cools.

Washing will loosen the blackheads and help them come to the surface. Unfortunately the blackheads are really below the surface of the skin and they are not dirt as some people think. They are oily-greasy plugs of sebum produced by your own skin glands. If you had some forms of bacteria inside the pore of your skin they break down the fatty material into irritating chemicals that cause the red blotches that are so distressing to most people.

You can prevent the red swollen spots by taking tetracyclines. In your case the most important things to do include soaking, as I mentioned, and perhaps using a "skin peeling" agent. Vitamin A acid is a good one. It promotes the rapid loss of skin surface cells allowing the pores to drain more easily. Retin-A gel is a good preparation for this purpose. You will need a prescription from your doctor for it.

The action of peeling agents is discussed in The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I prefer the gel to the cream preparations because you should not add anything greasy to your face. That makes matters worse.

You should also know that peeling agents increase your sensitivity to sunlight so be careful about sun exposure. You could get sunburned more readily than usual. That is also true of taking tetracyclines, in case your doctor decides you need some.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 14-year-old boy. I'm 5-foot-9 and weigh 125 pounds. When I went for a physical the doctor told me I am about 25 pounds underweight. Can this be true? If so I would like you to give me a diet to gain weight. I eat more than anybody in my family. I am also on a soccer team and quite active.

DEAR READER - You

may live to an older age than the doctor who examined you. We know that people who develop slower and weigh less in early life tend to have a longer life span. You are just at the edge of the age when you may gain a lot of weight. You weigh about what we expect an 11 to 14-year-old boy to weigh, you are just taller. At 15 we might say you are the right height but a little light.

You should expect to start becoming more muscular in the next few years. Until then I would not recommend trying to add a lot of fat to your body. Let your normal maturation process let you develop muscles normally in time. Just stay active and eat a well-balanced diet with adequate calories and protein.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am writing you regarding my unbalanced condition. I am lightheaded. This condition has been gradually getting worse the past few months. I have been under a doctor's care for several years because of weakness in my legs. He says poor circulation to my brain is the problem. I have had a brain scan. When I step out in an open space, such as crossing the street, I am sure I am going to fall. Any suggestions would be most appreciated as my doctor seems to think there is nothing more he can do.

The medicines I am taking are Hydergine, Aldomet, Antivert and Hydrodiuril. I am active, still drive and seem very alert. My blood pressure and cholesterol are good.

DEAR READER - You fall into the category of what is called the "dizzy patient." There are increasing numbers of people who have faintness, dizziness and related problems.

Some episodes are caused by ear problems - that is particularly likely in patients below age 50. Many of these patients have true vertigo, meaning a sensation of the body moving when it is not, or the surrounding objects moving when they are not. Other patients have the form of dizziness that people experience when they start to faint.

It is a difficult problem to diagnose and often even more difficult to treat. Some are caused by poor circulation to centers in the brain that are related to position sense and maintaining your blood pressure when you are standing.

The sensations from your eyes, ears and position sense from nerves all over the body, are integrated in the brain to give you proper balance. This is discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio

City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Some of these problems are made worse by medicines commonly used today. Your doctor may have done too good a job in controlling your blood pressure or lowered your salt too much. That happens particularly in older patients. Ask him if he can refer you to a neurologist to check on the brain function for you, if he has not already done so.

Meanwhile, wear some support hose or pressure bandages around your lower legs and see if you get any help from preventing pooling of blood in your legs. That sometimes improves circulation to the brain when you are standing.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Please help me with my fingernail problem. They are thin and brittle. Everytime I bump them they crack. When I was younger I could wear them as long as I wanted to without breaking them. I take gelatin capsules and a drink that contains gelatin, but it hasn't helped. I take calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D capsules. Still no improvement. Is there anything I can take that will give me stronger fingernails?

DEAR READER - They may not be stronger but you can help stop breakage. Gelatin will not help. It is a poor protein, in the sense that it is an incomplete protein and does not contain all the essential amino acids of a complete protein. You are better off with good food sources such as the meat and dairy groups.

You probably have some drying and thinning as is common as you get older.

Dwindling Water Makes Proposition 4 Needed

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwindling federal funds for Texas' water needs make it crucial that voters approve Amendment 4 next week, says Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, of Humble.

"Federal funds for virtually every type of water project will be in extremely short supply due to federal spending reductions the American people said they wanted," Fields said Tuesday.

"Those cuts make Amendment 4 all the more essential to a prosperous and growing Texas."

The statewide vote on the proposal is scheduled for next Tuesday. Fields said he will vote for it.

Fields is the only Texan on the House Water Resources Subcommittee, which oversees all federal water-related projects.

Subcommittee hearings have shown that little money is going to be available for water projects in towns and communities in Texas in coming years, Fields said.

"I try not to get involved in state issues, but this is the No. 1 problem facing Texas, and on this particular matter I'm in a position to say that very little federal money is going to be available to Texas," he added.

"It's a scary thing. I'm scared for the future of Texas if we do not do something to solve our water problems. People say it's strictly a West Texas problem, but I'm looking at it through urban glasses."

He added, "I don't see how we're going to solve the water problems facing a growing urban area like Houston unless we do something such as this."

The proposed constitutional amendment to create a water trust fund in Texas "is the best guarantee that 20 years from now, when you turn on your faucet, you'll get water," Fields said.

If approved by voters, the amendment would — allow the credit of the state of Texas to back up locally issued bonds and, thus, allow local communities to pay lower interest rates on their bond issues;

— designate one-half of future state revenue surpluses to a water trust fund to be used to plan and finance vital water related projects in cities and towns throughout the state; and — raise to 12 percent, from the current 6 percent ceiling, the interest limit on $216 million in authorized and badly needed bonds that will finance urgently needed water projects throughout the state.

Texas is in the same position with water today that it was with energy 10 years ago, Fields said.

"Unless we do something, the crisis will stymie growth and create severe economic and personal hardships for all Texans," he said.

Texas' water needs for the next 25 years have been projected at $52 billion, but the state has received only a total of $100 million a year in water funds for the past seven years, an average that would produce only $2 billion of that total, Fields said.

Sewage treatment plant construction will require $11.5 billion, water well drilling $4.2 billion, water pipeline construction $7.2 billion, water treatment plant construction $1.2 billion, and flood control projects $7.6 billion, Fields said.

There are more than 40 major flood protection and drainage projects in urban areas of Texas now being planned over the next 40 years at an estimated cost of $7.5 billion, he pointed out.

But Congress has not authorized a single flood control, navigation or reservoir project since 1976, and indications are there will be none in the coming year, Fields said.

"This means all or most of this money must come from Texas, and without this amendment I don't know where the water is going to come from or how we're going to pay for it in the next 20 years," Fields said.

Passage of the amendment would help gear cities on the Gulf Coast to better face another major hurricane, he said.

"This is purely speculation, but if we do not do some of the flood control damage work that needs to be done, if we get hit by another hurricane like Carla, with all the new development we've got, I shudder to think of all the loss of life, at all the economic loss we would suffer."

Sweden To Try And Free Soviet Submarine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden says it may try today to free an aging Soviet submarine snared inside restricted Swedish waters when it ran aground.

The government, angry over the intrusion, barred Soviet salvage ships from trying to rescue the sub, hung up in 40 feet of water four miles off the Swedish coast in the Karlskrona archipelago.

The diesel-powered Whiskey-class submarine, carrying a crew of 54, ran aground Tuesday night about 12 miles south of the major Swedish naval base at Karlskrona, on the Baltic Sea 300 miles south of Stockholm.

Swedish navy spokesman Bertil Lagerwall said 10 Warsaw Pact vessels, including salvage craft and two warships, massed just outside Sweden's 12-mile territorial limit as the Kremlin tried to get permission to rescue the sub.

He said Swedish helicopters, torpedo boats and coast guard craft were watching the sub and the Soviet-led flotilla. More Swedish vessels were en route to the area from Stockholm, Lagerwall said.

"Our most important task now is to keep watch on the sub to make sure that no other Soviet vessels try to get through to the grounded sub," Cmdr. Lennart Forsman said.

Capt. Karl Gunnar Andersson of the Karlskrona naval base went aboard the Soviet craft late Wednesday.

The Russian captain "had been aware of the fact that he had entered Swedish territorial waters but could not explain how his vessel had come so far inside the archipelago," Andersson was quoted as telling the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet.

"The captain, who was absolutely shattered by the incident, would only say he was on 'a mission' and that his home base was Kaliningrad," in the southern Baltic, Andersson was quoted as saying.

The commander of the Soviet sub, identified as Capt. Gushin, claimed the vessel ran aground because of a "navigational error due to a faulty gyro compass and bad weather."

"You have only to look at the nautical charts to realize that this is virtually impossible," said a spokesman for the Swedish naval staff, Jan-Ake Berg. "To get that far inside the archipelago requires very careful navigation."

Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten also termed the Soviet captain's story "unacceptable" and demanded an explanation from the Soviet government in a sharply worded protest note. He said Sweden "looks very seriously" on the intrusion.

Gushin asked for Soviet tugs to tow his vessel free. The Foreign Ministry refused and said Swedish salvage ships were ordered to the area.

Hill Street Blues Returns

NEW YORK (AP) — For all the viewers it got last season, "Hill Street Blues" was probably mistaken for a ragtime tune from New Orleans. Six Emmy awards and a major promotional campaign later, "Hill Street" returns, and NBC hopes audiences know it's a television show — a fine one at that.

Aware that "Hill Street" might attract a large curiosity audience tonight, the producers structured a dynamic opening before the title and credits even roll. It dares you to turn the dial.

It's typical of "Hill Street's" authentic glimpses of police life — raw, funny and human — instead of fitting glossy fantasy into a conventional TV format.

Grant Tinker, whose former production company created "Hill Street Blues," is chairman of NBC. He promises fewer story lines, the completion of at least one of them and an anchored time slot.

Still, "Hill Street" is not easy to watch because it's so provocative. Everything doesn't unfold in neat 15-minute segments. There are shifting sub-plots — some based on the action but more rooted to the characters' undulating emotions and feelings.
