Powers show interest in arms talks

By BARRY SCHWEID AP
Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are registering renewed interest in arms control talks, but a senior Soviet official here says the Kremlin needs more details of President Reagan's proposal before going ahead.

As the two sides jockeyed for position Wednesday, there were these developments:

—The White House said it won't agree to a Soviet demand for a halt to U.S. testing of an anti-satellite system as a condition for joint talks on limiting space weapons. Spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration would discuss a moratorium — "but we would have to go to the conference table to discuss it."

—President Reagan responded to Soviet congratulations for his reelection with an appeal to the Soviets to "join us in the critical work needed to reduce international tensions and to create a safer world."

—Almost simultaneously, the Soviet Embassy here released a statement by President Konstantin U. Chernenko declaring "we have no alternative but to live together," but also warning that a spiraling arms race, extending into space, was a threat to security.

Soviets want more details

—Reagan summoned Secretary of State George P. Shultz and National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane to the White House amid reports Shultz would be put in overall charge of talks with the Soviets, once they begin.

But a senior Soviet official here said that before his government decides on a meeting, it needs to determine the kinds of weapons that would be on the bargaining table and the level of negotiations Reagan had in mind.

Emphasizing a need for "more conversation" before the Kremlin makes a decision, the official stressed the Soviets had not lost interest in Reagan's call for a new dialogue. "The process is not finished," he said.

Reagan offered no details when he asked the Soviet Union in a Sept. 24 speech to the U.N. General Assembly for "a better working relationship" that would include a new U.S.-Soviet negotiating "framework" to chart the process of arms control talks for the next 20 years.

Since then, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, quizzed Shultz about the proposal at a meeting Oct. 26, and then Gromyko returned to the subject at a meeting in Moscow Oct. 31 with U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman.

The Soviet official, who insisted on anonymity, said there have been no additional discussions at that level. He also dismissed reports that Gromyko and Shultz will meet in Moscow in January.

At the same time, though, he registered Soviet interest in Reagan's idea, while emphasizing it ought to be spelled out.

"Our job is to be optimistic," he said. "I hope something happens. We both want to have relations."

Space station thought possible

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts said today their retrieval of two stranded satellites demonstrates the versatility of the shuttle and is a key step toward the day when construction workers will assemble a permanent station in space.

"We demonstrated man can easily move large structures around in weightlessness," said spacewalker Joe Allen, one of the satellite snappers. "Workers in space will have to move large structures. We see no difference."

The crew of four men and one woman told of its experiences during a 224-mile-high news conference on its final full day in space. The shuttle will return to Earth on Friday, with landing scheduled for 6:59 a.m. EST at this spaceport.

Shuttle crew comments this morning

The crew also received a telephone call of congratulations from President Reagan. Speaking from the White House, the president said the nation "is proud of what you have done. You demonstrated that by putting man in space on board America's space shuttle, we can work in space in ways that we never imagined were possible."

Allen noted Reagan is a strong supporter of the space station, which NASA plans to have in orbit in the early 1990s, and commander Rick Hauck commented:

"The shuttle is a major part of the space station system, and by its own name it implies that we're going to be shuttling things to and back from a space station. We're in a building block sense doing what NASA wanted to do all along with this versatile machine."

Astronaut Dale Gardner said the key to moving the two recovered satellites around was "to have your feet locked into foot restraints" to keep from floating away.

The news conference was filled with technical glitches as NASA tried to have anchors at each of the network morning news shows ask questions from their studios.

When moderator John McLeaish shifted the circuit to Cable News Network, a business report was in progress. At CBS there was a commercial. So an embarrassed McLeaish shifted back to reporters at Mission Control in Houston.

Astronauts Hauck, Gardner, Allen, David Walker and Anna Fisher looked puzzled at first, then all laughed when they realized what was happening.

Later, McLeaish again got commercials when he shifted to CBS and NBC.

Farmers to address gas regulation on Saturday

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN

A meeting in Dimmitt Saturday night will give farmers who plan to fight for lower energy costs a chance to organize and meet with their lobbyist.

Panhandle and High Plains farmers, along with agribusinessmen, have formed the Texas Agricultural Energy Users Association, which will seek regulation of energy prices when the state legislature convenes next year. The group plans to meet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Exposition Building at Dimmitt.

Former Speaker of the House Bill Clayton of Springlake has been secured as lobbyist for the organization, which has come about largely through the efforts of Texas Corn Growers Association President Carl King of Dimmitt.

According to King, rural energy consumption is not regulated, which means prices are raised whenever the company decides to do so. He claims efforts to get legislative help have been going on for 20 years.

"The new name ropes in a larger spectrum," King explained. "We've had a gas users group, but this one includes electricity users as well."

Arena has movable equipment

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN

Making time between jobs at Casper, Wyo., and Oklahoma City, Okla., Lanford Lawrence spent the early part of this week setting up a portable rodeo system at the Cowboy Country Club.

Lawrence manages the rodeo division of W.W. Manufacturing, the Dodge City, Kan., firm that provides rodeo pens and chutes for the National Rodeo Finals held each year in Oklahoma City. "We're the only company I know of that sets up portable systems," he said Monday during a break from bolting the tubular steel equipment into place.

The arena at the new rodeo and dance hall west of Hereford will measure 295 feet long by 116 feet wide, which Lawrence explained is a little larger than the arena used at the finals.

Last Friday, two semi tractor trailers rolled in an unloaded enough steel to put together all the pens, fences, bucking chutes, roping chutes and holding pens needed to stage the first rodeo event Saturday at noon.

New Cowboy Country Club

When the system needs to come down, Lawrence said, it can be stored in or outside the huge building. When the Cowboy Country Club needs to erect the arena again, workers will follow a blueprint provided by the company.

The new club is rather unique, Lawrence explained, in that it is purchasing a rodeo arena system that happens to be portable. He said most big rodeos, like the National Finals, simply rent the equipment each time they stage a competition.

Having seen rodeo facilities all over the United States, Lawrence seems qualified to comment on what will be the only permanent indoor rodeo arena for hundreds of miles in every direction.

"I think it's a wonderful facility," he commented. "It's a better facility than many large cities have."

Lawrence said he feels the community is ahead of its time to have such a building. "They may not fill it up with people every time, none of the arenas do. But they'll get the crowds here."

The doors open to the public Friday at 7:30 p.m., with the dance by Pake McEntire to last from 9 p.m. until midnight.

Saturday, a $20,000 purse will attract the nation's top calf ropers to the noon event, which is to be followed by a match roping between two world champions.

Saturday night's dance from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. is by McEntire and recording artist George Strait.

Sunday's events include barrel racing and 10:30 a.m. and steer roping at 1:30 p.m.

For more information call the Cowboy Country Club at 289-5286. The facility is six miles west of Hereford on Farm to Market Road 1058, then three miles north on FM 1057.

Association accepting entries

The Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Heart Association is still accepting entries in its first annual "Turkey Walk" scheduled for Saturday.

The event, held to promote cardiovascular fitness and raise money for the association's educational efforts, is set for 9 a.m. until noon at Whiteface Stadium.

Entry forms are available at Southwestern Public Service Company, Hereford State Bank and all businesses located on the west side of Main Street.

Anyone who raises at least $50 in pledge money gets a free T-shirt and Thanksgiving turkey. The statewide winner is to receive a trip to a Mexican resort.

Police report theft of stereo

A stereo and two speakers, worth a combined $400, were taken sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday from a local car lot, Hereford police reported this morning.

Victim of the crime is Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac of 144 W. First Ave.

During the same night, seven letters worth $40 apiece were taken from a sign outside H.A. Caviness Dental Office, 129 W. Fifth St. Police said the theft occurred between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Meanwhile, police investigated four incidents of minor burglary and one family disturbance. A prowler was spotted shortly after 10 p.m. Wednesday in the 500 block of Blevins Street.

Power missing for 23 minutes

For 23 minutes Wednesday evening, approximately 3,500 Hereford customers of Southwestern Public Service Company were without electricity.

According to Bill Bankston, local general forman, the blackout was caused by a generator failure at Amarillo's Harrington Station. In addition to the Hereford residences, also going without power for a while Wednesday were those dependent on four Deaf Smith County Rural Electric Company sub-stations.

"This happens," Bankston said over the telephone this morning.

A little old lady from the hills was checking into a swanky, big-city hotel. She said to the bellboy, "I ain't gonna take no tiny little room with no windows and no bed. You can't treat me like a fool just cause I don't travel much!"

Republican Larry Combest, our new congressman for the 19th District, will stop in Hereford Friday to visit with his constituents and express appreciation for being elected to the post being vacated by Kent Hance.

Many citizens cannot make the 1:40 p.m. meeting at the Community Center, but we urge all those who can to make an effort to be at the meeting and urge Combest to express the will of the people "back home" when he goes to Washington.

Elected officials are our representatives and we want them to do a good job speaking for us in Austin and Washington, D.C. The voters have decided that the big four in representing us will be Phil Gramm and Combest in Washington and Bill Sarpalius and John Smithee in Austin.

Those four need our support and we intend to work closely with them, keep the lines of communication open, and keep them informed of our needs in Deaf Smith County. These four have the intelligence, the ambitions necessary to serve, the mandate from their constituents, and there is no reason they can't give people of this area effective representation.

Mysterious crack sank vessel

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal investigators say five oil drilling vessels around the world should be examined because a mysterious crack that allowed two storage tanks to flood caused the Glomar Java Sea to capsize in October 1983.

The National Transportation Safety Board's ruling Wednesday came on the eve of a hearing at which the vessel's owner would ask a federal district judge in Houston to limit liability to the worth of the vessel.

Relatives of some of the 81 crewmembers killed in the wreck of the Glomar Java Sea are asking a Texas court to award them $120 million in damages, contending Global Marine Inc. of Houston was negligent.

Officials of the ship's owner have refused to talk to reporters for several months, citing pending legal action.

The NTSB expressed concern about the structural failures that led to the tank flooding and suggested "a need to review the structural design of similar drillships." NTSB officials said there are five other such vessels operating around the world.

Mattox confident of acquittal

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox, saying he's anxious to get on with his commercial bribery trial, claims prosecutors can't prove he committed any crime.

"They know they can't prove the indictment," Mattox said Wednesday.

That was just before his lawyer urged a state appeals court to dismiss the indictment after numerous delays that postponed the trial from September to February.

"I would have tried the thing a year ago if I had the opportunity but I didn't have the opportunity," Mattox told reporters.

He described the past several months as an "unfortunate and painful experience," and said, "I'd like a ruling that it (the indictment) is so flawed they cannot go to trial on the thing."

Mattox's lawyer, Roy Minton, asked the 3rd Court of Appeals to dismiss the indictment. The court took the appeal under advisement.

Minton's written brief challenged the Travis County grand jury indictment on four grounds, but Minton restricted his comments to the argument that the indictment does not allege an offense.

District might prosecute parents

HOUSTON (AP) — School district officials are threatening to seek misdemeanor criminal charges against four suburban couples who have taken their children out of public schools for religious reasons.

The families contend that only by educating their children at home can they teach them that "God has always been involved in the events of this world," attorney Mike Edwards said Wednesday.

Earl Walden, assistant superintendent for business services in the Katy Independent School District, says the parents could be fined as much as $100 a day and might be jailed.

Edwards said that Texas law does not specifically describe what is a school.

"The school district has its definition of what a school is. Individual parents have their ideas of what a school is," Edwards said. "State law does not require that teachers be certified or that schools cannot be held in the home. These four families believe they meet all the requirements."

Hopes of balanced budget fading

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials preparing the spending plan President Reagan will send Congress early next year are all but conceding they will have no more success balancing the budget in Reagan's second term than they had in his first.

A dozen senior officials drafting a budget outline for presentation to the president at the end of the week are grappling with forecasts of deficits soaring above $200 billion, requests from Cabinet departments for more money and Reagan's insistence that he will not allow tax increases.

While there are ways to achieve a balanced budget on paper, administration officials and private economists agree that political and special-interest pressures make the goal virtually impossible to reach even by the end of the decade.

According to administration officials who spoke on condition they not be quoted by name, White House budget director David A. Stockman told the president and his Cabinet earlier this week that rising government farm payments and unanticipated government securities costs are pushing the deficit for this fiscal year into the record range of $205 billion to $210 billion.

Lack of aid to poor criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's Roman Catholic bishops are telling colleagues drafting a sweeping economic policy statement to go full speed ahead with language faulting government and citizens for giving inadequate help to the poor.

The first draft of the document, labeled controversial before its release, strongly endorses job programs, welfare increases and other government and private ways of narrowing a "morally unacceptable" gap between rich and poor.

But most criticism has been muted, even from the Reagan administration, which would seem to be a target of some of the complaints and recommendations in the proposed "Pastoral Letter on Catholic Social Teaching and the U.S. Economy."

Bishops who might be opposed to parts of the 112-page document had their first chance for expressing public criticism or doubt on Wednesday.

Nicaragua denies invasion plans

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto says a Reagan administration claim that his country threatens its U.S.-backed neighbors is "stupid" because any attack on them could trigger a U.S. invasion of Nicaragua.

D'Escoto, who accused U.S. officials of "irresponsible accusations," commented at a news conference in Managua, where the leftist government continued a military alert to defend against a predicted U.S. invasion. As d'Escoto spoke Wednesday, thousands of school children in blue and white uniforms marched to the U.S. Embassy shouting, "We want peace!"

In El Salvador — one of the countries which the Reagan administration says is threatened by Nicaragua's arms buildup — army troops battled leftist rebels in the northern province of Morazan and patrolled main highways in eastern provinces in response to guerrilla threats to attack all traffic.

At a meeting of the Organization of American States in Brazil, the four-nation Contadora group, which is working on a peace plan for Central America, issued a statement Wednesday suggesting there had been progress in reconciling conflicting views of the five countries affected by the plan.

Jury deliberating mass killing trial

By JULIA MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — After five hours of deliberations, jurors in the worst mass murder case in Dallas history had no verdict on whether defendant Abdelkrim Belachheb was insane at the time six people were gunned down at a nightclub.

The jury of eight women and four men began deliberating Belachheb's fate at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday after three hours of closing arguments. They took a dinner break at 6 p.m. and returned 2½ hours later. But by 10 p.m., the jurors had not reached a decision and were sequestered for the night. They were to resume deliberations today.

Belachheb, a 39-year-old Moroccan native, was charged with six counts of murder and one of attempted murder in the June 29 shootings at Ianni's Restaurant and Club in north Dallas. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

If convicted, he faced life in prison. If found insane, he could be sent to a mental institution.

During closing arguments, District Attorney Norman Kinne held up photos of the victims and pointed the 9mm pistol Belachheb allegedly used in the killings at four female jurors.

"I'm just the agent for the photographer," Kinne said.

And then, pointing at Belachheb, Kinne said, "Here's the producer, the director of these scenes ... He can be friendly. He can be nice and he can take your life."

Defense attorney Frank Jackson had portrayed Belachheb as a brain-damaged paranoid who didn't know the difference between right and wrong.

"The evidence clearly shows that Mr. Belachheb is the one who went to Ianni's that night and shot seven people," Jackson said. "... But those are the acts of a maniacal crazy person ... with deep-seated psychological problems."

"He's crazy. He's crazy right now," Jackson said.

Under Texas law, the defense had to show that Belachheb had a severe mental disease or defect that prevented him from knowing right from wrong at the time of the shootings.

Kinne argued that if Belachheb had not known the difference between right and wrong, he would not have fled the scene of the crime.

"Why did he kill those people?" Kinne said. "Why does a rattlesnake strike? They're mean, that's why. I submit to you, he would have killed every single person in that bar but everyone was on the floor and there was no one standing up to shoot. How mean can a man get?"

Belachheb's wife, Joanne O'Bryan Belachheb, who testified for the defense that her husband was crazy, said Wednesday Belachheb would "provoke someone to do something" if he was sent to prison.

"I think he'll be killed in a fairly short time ... because he's sick," said Mrs. Belachheb, who married the defendant in May 1983.

"I feel a sense of responsibility because I wasn't able to help him. I knew this would happen," she said, adding that she still loved her husband and wanted him to get help.

Lebanon demands war reparations from Israel

By NICOLAS B. TATRO Associated Press Writer

NAQOURA, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon presented a tough list of demands today in its second round of troop withdrawal talks with Israel, including a request for $8 billion to $10 billion in war reparations.

The Lebanese delegation called for a fast and total Israeli withdrawal to free the people of south Lebanon "from the big prison in which the Israeli occupation has been strangling them."

The lengthy list of Lebanese demands was seen as an opening bargaining position sure to be rejected by the Israelis. Almost every point concerning the future of south Lebanon was in conflict with Israel's previously stated positions.

The Israeli and Lebanese military delegations returned to the negotiating table under heavy security today after a week of wrangling over Israel's arrest of four senior Shiite Moslem militiamen. In what was viewed as a major concession, Israel released three of the men Wednesday and promised to free the fourth, militia commander Mahmoud Fakih, in order to woo the Lebanese back to the negotiating table.

As the delegates gathered in this border town at the headquarters of the U.N. peacekeeping force, U.N. officers said anti-Israeli guerrillas had threatened to use rockets or a car-bomb to disrupt the talks.

Today's six-page opening statement by the chief Lebanese delegate, Brig. Gen. Mohammed Hajj, demanded that all security measures in areas evacuated by Israel be given to "the legal Lebanese authorities — the army, the police and the general security forces."

Hajj's statement rejected the continued existence of "any illegal armed Lebanese organization," such as the Israeli-backed militia known as the South Lebanon Army.

The militia is a cornerstone of Israel's plans for pulling out of the country it invaded nearly 2½ years ago. Israel is reluctant to entrust the security of its northern border to the Lebanese army, which has a history of breaking up into feuding sectarian factions in times of crisis.

Brig. Gen. Amos Gilboa, Israel's chief delegate, stressed Israel's intentions of pulling out of Lebanon but said a withdrawal depended on "practical security arrangements" to protect the people of northern Israel from renewed guerrilla attacks, according to an Israeli spokesman.

Hajj's statement demanded that Lebanese sovereignty be restored to the nation's land, territorial waters and air space.

Israel's position called for Israeli planes and patrol boats to continue reconnaissance missions after the withdrawal of land forces. It also called for "freedom of movement" on the ground, which would allow Israeli troops to re-enter Lebanon to prevent attacks on Israel.

"This is one of the problems with having a large generating system." The bigger size is necessitated, he explained, by using coal as a source of generation.

What the generator breakdown did, Bankston said, was cause an overloading of the local system. Rather than risk further damage, the affected area was "shedded down" since it could go without power for the duration of the generator repair.

Two ambulances were called into action Wednesday night as a result of the electricity outage, according to Jim Bullard, administrator of Deaf Smith General Hospital. One was for a baby on a respirator. When ambulance crewmen arrived, they switched the machine to "auxiliary" power and everything was fine.

The other ambulance was for an elderly lady who had pushed her "Lifeline" button. Such contraptions are for those who may require emergency medical assistance as a result of a health condition. The lady Wednesday night, Bullard claimed, was simply concerned since she was in the dark.

Businessmen speaking tonight

W.P. "Bill" Wright Jr., highly successful Abilene business executive, civic worker and photographer, will be the guest speaker when the King's Manor Founders Association holds its annual Founders Day dinner tonight.

The dinner will be held in the Lamar Garden Room with all association members invited to attend. Membership is $25 a year for interested persons. The dinner begins at 7 p.m.

Wright will present a computerized slide program on China. His photographs have appeared in various publications. Wright's photo hobby has also won him acclaim in numerous photography shows.

Wright is owner and board chairman of Western Marketing, Inc., board chairman of Westico Engergo Co., and president of Encorp Production. He also serves on the board of Chaparral Airlines, Inter-First Bank of Abilene, KTAB Television, Fort Worth Productions, Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, and Safari Resources. He is a past president of the Texas Oil Marketers Association and a regional vice president of Petroleum Marketers Association of America.

Judge says

Jury possibly biased

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A state district judge says he threw out four felony charges against a state senator because evidence presented at a hearing indicates some grand jurors might have been biased against the defendant.

Sen. Carl Parker, a Port Arthur Democrat, wiped his brow and smiled Wednesday after visiting State District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland announced his decision.

"Thank God. Thank my wife, thank all my friends who prayed and pulled for me," he said.

Parker was indicted Sept. 11 on charges concerning a house in which he once had a part interest. He was accused of aggravated promotion of prostitution, two counts of wholesale promotion of obscene material and aggravated perjury.

But his attorneys argued that six grand jurors on the panel which indicted him had an interest in the Port Arthur Independent School District, which paid a $700,000 settlement to one of Parker's clients earlier this year.

Bernard Fleener, fired by the district from his job as a deputy administrator, won a federal suit contending he was a victim of a conspiracy.

Pickett held that some grand jurors "possibly could not be as objective as the law allows."

District Attorney James McGrath said he was "quite surprised" by the decision and said he will decide next week whether to seek new indictments.

"We respectfully disagree with Judge Pickett's ruling to grant the motion to set aside the indictments against Carl Parker," McGrath said in a statement. "We believe that the actions of the April term 1984 grand jury were proper in every way. We will be evaluating the various options available to us before formulating a firm decision regarding our future course of action."

Prosecutors subpoenaed 10 members of the grand jury, all of whom testified they were not biased against Parker. McGrath said the two remaining jurors did not testify because they were out of town.

The attorney for Parker's codefendant, Daniel Jacob Lee, said he is thinking of seeking dismissal of eight counts against his client based on Pickett's decision.

Richard Hughes said the panel might have used Lee, arrested April 19 in a raid at the Happy Times Video Co. in Port Arthur, to get at Parker.

Enough Politics

We've all had enough of politics and politicking for a while.

What an ordeal for the candidates! For the incumbent to spend that much time away from his desk might be hazardous to our nation's health.

And the challengers, seeking nits to pick, necessarily unsettle us all. Then there are the debates.

President Reagan was absolutely, unequivocally right about one thing: six debates would have been horrendously boring!

Historically, with few exceptions, governors make better presidents than do legislators.

Governors are administrators. Administration — delegation — is a singular skill.

Members of Congress, on the other hand, become experienced debaters. Debate is a unique oratorical technique.

I think Mondale — from the point of view of debate mechanics — won both debates.

Probably the best of contemporary debaters is Bill Buckley, but Bill will tell you that frequently he wins a debate — yet loses his audience.

Is this what happened to Fritz Mondale?

Professional debate coaches named him winner of the first debate, split their vote after the second debate — yet, following the second debate every public opinion poll showed that the listeners were convinced Reagan won.

Gallup, ABC and Newsweek conducted surveys which gave it to Reagan by three or four points.

A morning-after survey by USA Today gave Reagan a 17-point lead.

Mondale was at his well-prepared best during his closing four minutes during which he urged respect for human rights for everyone all over the world.

Reagan's strongest point was his recitation of the Senate voting record of Mondale; a record which he said "weakened our nation."

Jude Dougherty of Catholic University in Washington D.C., said Mondale came across mainly as criticizing and attacking while offering no answers.

"Attack," under the circumstances, is not all bad.

While these debates drew no blood, they did bring into sharp focus some points of difference of which an incumbent should be aware.

You can bet that if debate were allowed in the USSR, that country would have no troops in Afghanistan.

Bronze medal winner in L.A.

Holyfield tries to whip decision

NEW YORK (AP) — Evander Holyfield begins his comeback tonight.

The 22-year-old light-heavyweight from Atlanta doesn't have the same credentials as heavyweight Tyrell Biggs, welterweight Mark Breland, junior lightweight Meldrick Taylor and lightweight Pernell Whitaker, the four other main-event boxers climbing into the Madison Square Garden ring.

He doesn't have an Olympic gold medal.

But, in receiving the bronze medal at the Summer Games in Los Angeles last August, Holyfield became perhaps an even more heroic figure than any of his teammates who ascended the victory platform because he was barred from it.

Holyfield was steadily pounding New Zealand's Kevin Barry in their semifinal bout and appeared en route to a gold-medal showdown with Anton Jospovic of Yugoslavia. But, as he was throwing a vicious left hook that would flatten Barry, the referee gave a verbal order to stop.

After a brief debate, Holyfield was disqualified. Jospovic got the gold by default, Barry received the silver and Holyfield and Mustapha Moussa of Algeria the bronze.

"That day, I was mad, but I wasn't really hot," Holyfield recalled recently. "But, the next day I was hot, especially when the other guys went to practice and I didn't have to. And, when people told me, 'You know who the gold-medal winner really is,' that hurt even more. I know they were trying to say something nice, but it was hard to hear that."

"The Olympics are over. They're behind me now. I'm now ready to work my way up from the preliminaries all the way to the top," said Holyfield.

In most circumstances, these fights, billed as "A Night of Gold," would be preliminaries, six-round pro debuts by fighters who have never gone more than three rounds. But these are not most circumstances. These are Olympians.

Thus, Holyfield, Whitaker and Biggs will each receive $75,000, Breland, the headliner, will get $100,000 and Taylor will receive $50,000 — all part of a four-year contract with ABC which, promoter Dan Duva says, will guarantee each fighter more than $1 million. By comparison, Sugar Ray Leonard, the most charismatic of the 1976 Olympic gold medalists, received $40,000 for his first pro fight.

Virgil Hill of Los Angeles, who won the Olympic middleweight silver medal, also is on the card — but he's not part of the Duva stable, Main Event Productions, Inc. Nor is he part of the ABC contract package. So, Hill will be getting only about $10,000, and his four-round bout won't be televised.

The Garden will be packed to see Holyfield vs. Lionel Byarm of Philadelphia (9 wins, 1 loss, 2 draws, 4 knockouts); Breland vs. Dwight Williams of Syracuse (7-1, 2 kayos); Biggs vs. Mike Evans of Los Angeles (3-1-1, 1 kayo); Taylor vs. Luke Lecce of Pittsburgh (14-2-1, 8 kayos); Whitaker vs. Farrain Comeaux of Nederland, Texas (10-0, 6 kayos), and Hill vs. an opponent who was to be named today. He had been scheduled to fight Pedro Montero, but the Franklin Square, N.Y., boxer failed the physical Wednesday because of an irregular heartbeat.

A packed house, yes — but not a sellout. None of the 21,000 seats was sold for this card. They were given away in a lottery. "We could've given away 50,000," Duva said.

Baseball officials begin contract negotiations

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In a sense, the first round of negotiations for a new baseball contract could be characterized as encouraging, says union head Don Fehr.

In one sense only. "All I can say is this: The parties said all the right things ... people were stating their intentions to reach an agreement without rancor, without threats," he said. "They pledged to do that."

"So, to that extent, it was encouraging."

Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, and his associates met for about 1½ hours Wednesday with a management negotiating team that included the owners' Player Relations Committee President Lee MacPhail and three owners. It was the first session to negotiate a contract to replace the one that expires on Dec. 31.

"There was a better tone," said MacPhail, who was American League president during the last negotiations which broke down and resulted in a seven-week strike during the heart of the season. "I think both sides learned from the problems in 1981."

The strike was over free agency, and it could again be a topic of discussion.

However, if any issue poses a strike threat, it is expected to be the manner in which $1 billion in television revenue is allocated to the players' pension fund. Fehr says the union will maintain its "historic" approach that it should get one-third. Owners may be unwilling to put up the one-third this time because it represents a lot more money than under previous television deals.

"I don't want to try and measure this against some of the other issues or combinations of issues," Fehr said. "I don't think it makes much sense to do that. But it's no secret it could be a major issue, and it could be something that would cause us a lot of problems."

Present for the union along with Fehr were his special assistant, former major league shortstop Mark Belanger, and four current players, Don Baylor of the New York Yankees, Steve Rogers of Montreal, Kent Tekulve of Pittsburgh and Jim Beattie of Seattle. The management team included owners Bud Selig of Milwaukee, John McMullen of Houston and Edward Bennett Williams of Baltimore, and both league presidents, Bobby Brown of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National League. In past negotiations, owners have not been represented at the bargaining table.

The next negotiating session is scheduled for next Tuesday in New York. The two sides will not meet again until after their respective annual winter meetings, held concurrently Dec. 3-7. The owners meet in Houston, the players in Las Vegas, Nev.

"That following week there'll be some meetings in New York and the week following that some meetings in California," Fehr said. "Then, we'll get down to specifics."

SWC crown at stake

Frogs battle Longhorns

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Chatting with a few hundred admirers this week, Texas Christian football coach Jim Wacker allowed as how there's not much at stake in Saturday's showdown with the 10th-ranked Texas Longhorns.

"It's just our first sellout in 25 or 30 years and the game's on national TV," he quipped.

"It's only for the conference championship and a trip to the Rose Bowl."

The Rose Bowl? "Cotton Bowl, folks, Cotton Bowl," Wacker corrected himself, adding with a laugh, "You can tell I'm not nervous."

Actually, both Wacker and Athletic Director Frank Windegger insist there is little pressure on the 12th-ranked Horned Frogs as they approach their most important game in a quarter of a century.

The two teams are in a virtual tie for the conference lead, TCU at 5-1 and Texas at 4-1.

"The pressure has been the getting to this point," says Windegger, in his 10th and most rewarding year as TCU athletic director.

"We've had two pressure packed weeks, the Houston game and the Texas Tech game, just to get here. I feel a heck of a lot more relaxed this week than the last two weeks."

Wacker agreed. "It's fun time now," said the second-year TCU coach, whose 1983 team won only one game.

The 1984 Frogs, 8-1, notched back-to-back Southwest Conference victories over Houston and Texas Tech and could claim at least a share of the SWC title by beating Texas.

No one is suggesting that will be easy, although Wacker is hardly pessimistic. Says Windegger:

"Jim Wacker is the only Christian who knows he can go into the Coliseum day after day and beat the Lions."

The Longhorns, whose only loss came last week against Houston, lead this series 49-19-1, including wins in their last 16 meetings. The Frogs last beat Texas in Fort Worth in 1958, the year of their most recent outright SWC title and Cotton Bowl appearance.

"I have to believe that it is anybody's game," said Wacker. "Hey, we have just as good a chance to win it as they do. It's going to be fun."

"It's a big, big showdown and all the chips are on the table."

If it's fun for Wacker, it's ecstasy for Windegger.

"I'd just love to have two more weeks (like the last two) and be at that Cotton Bowl," he smiled. "It would be the greatest turnaround in NCAA history, and I'd sure like to be a part of it."

He said such an occurrence would make "10 years of hard work" worthwhile.

"And even if it doesn't happen, it's been a great, great year," he said. "It's beyond everybody's expectations."

Each week, after each game, Wacker has described the TCU turnaround as "unbelievable." Looking out at an overflow crowd of at least 700 cheering boosters this week, Wacker said:

"I've got just one thing to say: It's unbelievable!"

NBA roundup

Pacers break Rockets' unbeaten string, 125-117

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer
For eight games, the Houston Rockets used the talents of rookie Akeem Olajuwon and second-year men Ralph Sampson and Rodney McCray to post the only unbeaten record in the National Basketball Association.
On Wednesday night, an even more youthful team, the Indiana Pacers, broke the streak.
The Pacers, who have five rookies and only one player with more than three years' experience, got 26 points from three-year veteran Herb Williams and 25 from rookie Terence Stansbury to hand the Rockets their first loss, 125-117.

"We're a very young team, and they had to be struggling confidence-wise," rookie Coach George Irvine said of the Pacers, who won for only the second time in nine outings. "Winning was important, but more important was that we played better. We could see ourselves improving."
Stansbury, whose previous high in a game was 15 points, scored 11 in the final period after Houston's John Lucas scored all 14 points during a 14-2 spurt that put the Rockets ahead early in the fourth quarter.
"Stansbury showed a lot of courage. When we were struggling a little bit, he took it upon himself to beat people," Irvine said. "One game doesn't make a career, but it certainly shows he has the ability to play in this league."
The 6-foot-5 Stansbury, who played his college ball at Temple, was traded to the Pacers from Dallas just before the season started.
Lucas led the Rockets with 24 points, while McCray added 22 and Olajuwon 20.

Pistons 137, 76ers 133
Kelly Tripucka's 45 points, including eight in overtime, and Isiah Thomas' 27 points and 14 assists offset an NBA season high of 51 points from Philadelphia's Moses Malone.
Vinnie Johnson, who added 20 points for the Pistons, hit a jumper from the corner with two seconds left in regulation to tie the game at 120-120. Johnson then put Detroit ahead to stay with a three-point play midway through the overtime, and two free throws by Tripucka made it 132-127.
The 76ers led by as many as 15 points in the first half before Detroit rallied behind Tripucka's 26 second-half points.
Celtics 115, Knicks 99
Four players, led by Larry Bird, had more than 23 points as Boston overwhelmed injury-plagued New York.
Bird had 29 points, Robert Parish 26, Kevin McHale 25 and Dennis Johnson 23 for the Celtics. The Knicks, with Bernard King and four other front-court players sidelined because of injury or illness, led 72-68 in the third period before Bird triggered a 15-6 Boston spurt with a three-point goal.

Bullets 125, Spurs 106
Gus Williams scored 10 of his 24 points and Jeff Ruland 10 of his 22 as Washington outscored San Antonio 38-21 in the third period en route to its fourth straight victory.
The third-quarter streak gave the Bullets a 97-70 advantage going into the final 12 minutes.
Mike Mitchell led the Spurs with 19 points, but George Gervin was scoreless from the field and had only three points, just the seventh time in 652 NBA games he has failed to reach double figures.

Suns 98, Nets 86
Phoenix, leading the Pacific Division with a 7-3 record, broke a two-game losing streak by outscoring New Jersey 33-19 in the second quarter.
After the first period ended 24-24, the Suns used 7-0 and 10-0 streaks to build a 17-point lead before settling for a 57-43 halftime bulge.

Association listens to history of artist O'Keefe

Two new members, Cindy Smith and Rita Simons, were introduced at the monthly meeting of the Hereford Fine Arts Association held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Dillard. The meeting began with a prayer led by President June Owens. Reports were then given by the various committees. The nomination committee chairman, Linda Minchew, read the names of those selected by the committee to be considered by the members as officers to serve in the 1985 year. Those approved unanimously to serve were: president, Linda Minchew; vice-president, Norma Hendon; program chairman, Jean Lyles; secretary treasurer, Gary Hammett; show director, Jolene Bledsoe; refreshment chairman, Vinita Wear and reporter, Shirley Wyssman. The officers will be installed at the December meeting which will be the annual Christmas party to be held at K-Bob's on Dec. 11, 1984. Each member was reminded that home crafted Christmas gifts will be exchanged. Spouses and guests will be welcomed at this meeting.

Program chairman, Jean Lyles introduced the guest speaker Suzy Wall. Wall is a student of fine arts studying at this time at Amarillo College. She gave a unique program featuring a review of the life of a well known modern artist, Georgia O'Keefe. O'Keefe, 82, resides in New Mexico. At the early age of 12 she showed much talent and interest in art and was given private art lessons. She is well known for doing the complete opposite of what is expected of her just to be different. She does not want to be fitted into a mold. At a period in her life when she took a look at her work she realized that everything she had ever painted had been forced on her by some person or instructor. Never had she done anything for herself. She moved from the Northwest where she grew up and lived in Canyon for awhile and painted a number of scenes of West Texas including Palo Duro Canyon. Going east to New York she met and eventually married Alfred Stiglet; who was known as the Father of photography.

Georgia O'Keefe is the only woman modern artist to be recognized outside this country. When Alfred Stiglet grew ill their winters were spent in New York and in the summers he stayed at Lake George with a nurse and Georgia spent time in New Mexico painting. After the death of her husband she moved permanently to New Mexico purchasing a house from the Catholic Church. She is eccentric to the point that the inside of her house is painted stark white and she will wear only black clothing. She wants nothing around that will detract from the vivid colors of her paintings. In her declining years Ms. O'Keefe began to lose her sight and employed Juan Hamilton to assist her. He is one of the few people she has let into her home. He convinced her to try the art of pottery for a while but she said it did not talk to her as a paint brush did. It is interesting to note that of all the paintings she has done of New Mexico, the only one owned by the State of New Mexico in their permanent collection is one of Lake George.

At the end of her review, Wall showed some of the pottery she has done in her class at Amarillo College, starting from making the clay to throwing it on the potters wheel. Serving as hostesses for the evening were Wear and Melba Dillard who served finger sandwiches, pumpkin pie, apple cake, fudge and hot spiced tea and coffee. CowBelles elect new officers

Members and guests of the Hereford CowBelles gathered at the Hereford Country Club Tuesday for their monthly luncheon and meeting.

Charmayne Klett, president, called the meeting to order and Della Hutchins gave the invocation. Donna Jones submitted the treasurer's report.

Mildred Garrison announced the 1984 CowBelle of the year as Klett.

The program was given by Sue Sims and Klett on their recent trip to Texas A&M where they attended a "Short Course on Beef." Both Sims and Klett were given a complete tour on beef processing.

Klett reported that researchers are working on a leaner type beef animal by the genetic process. She also reported that many facts were presented on how beef is not harmful to one's health, despite recent controversy.

Sims reported on the special luncheon they attended with "restructured beef" being the main entree. Restructured beef is 100 percent beef with no synthetics added.

Following the program, the 1985 officers of the Hereford CowBelles were installed. They are Dee Anne Trotter, president; Kay Hall, first vice-president; Loraine Anthony, second vice-president; Juanita Bowles, secretary; Donna Jones, treasurer; and Elaine Mies, Beef for Father's Day.

All of the new officers were installed by Sara Lawson.

Klett introduced Sophie Richardson, member, as being the winner of the Lincoln Continental given away at the Continental Ball in October.

The next meeting of the CowBelles is set for Dec. 4 at 11:30 a.m. at Klett's home. Anyone interested in joining the CowBelles may contact Klett.

The greatest distance between any two points in the United States is the 5,850 miles between Elliot Key, Fla., and Hawaii's Kure Island.

India's Sikh president torn between religion, politics

NEW DELHI, India (AP)

— India's recent turmoil has torn President Zail Singh, a devout Sikh often called the "people's president," between his religion and politics.

Singh, the first Sikh to hold the country's highest office, is known for his unflinching loyalty to assassinated Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, whom he referred to as "my leader."

"I have lost my dearest friend and the world has lost the greatest woman leader mankind has ever produced," Singh, 68, said in a national address on Oct. 31, the day Mrs. Gandhi was killed, allegedly by two men identified as Sikh members of her own security guard seeking vengeance for her crackdown on Sikh extremists.

As a member of the minority sect, the president has been called upon to support some of the most controversial decisions by Mrs. Gandhi, including her order to the Indian army last June to storm the Sikhs' Golden Temple in Amritsar to dislodge Sikh militants entrenched there.

Following the assault, he came under pressure from many Sikhs here and abroad to resign. The Indian press published persistent rumors that he was persuaded not to do so by Mrs. Gandhi.

Singh openly grieved for the Sikhs when the army invaded the Golden Temple. About 1,200 people were slain in the battle, according to reliable accounts; though the government claimed only 600 people died in the June 4-7 assault.

While never openly criticizing Mrs. Gandhi's policies about strife-torn Punjab state, where most of India's 13 million Sikhs live, Singh made it clear by his actions that he did not always necessarily agree with her decisions.

He went to the Sikh holy city of Amritsar on June 8 to see the damage at the complex himself and was believed to have been deeply hurt by the destruction in and around the holiest Sikh shrine.

A Punjabi preacher by profession, the affable Singh entered politics during India's independence struggle against the British. He joined the ruling Congress party and rose to become India's seventh president in 1982.

Singh, though sympathetic to Sikh demands, is clear on the issue of Khalistan, the name Sikh separatists give to an envisioned separate state.

"No sardar (Sikh) in India wants Khalistan. Some sardars and foreign interests living abroad are responsible for creating the issue," he told a Bombay-based newspaper shortly after he was elected president.

Asked to comment on the status of Sikhs, Singh said, "I am against regionalism, communalism and casteism. No injustice is being done to any minority in India."

He was declared guilty of a "grave religious crime" by Sikhism's five high priests when, as supreme commander of the armed forces, he accepted the responsibility for ordering the army into the Golden Temple. He never condemned the raid.

"Resign if you have any conscience," said a telegram from members of the Sikh community in the United States. His likeness reportedly was put on doormats in Sikh shrines and trod upon by the faithful.

Singh later was exonerated after secret negotiations between his emissaries and the priests. He appeared in the temple complex and did penance.

"Why should all this have happened when I was the president? I pray for forgiveness from all of you," he said in the Golden Temple, formally apologizing in front of the priests. Singh is also believed to have hastened the process of handing the Golden Temple back to the Sikhs in September, ending nearly four months of army occupation.

In an editorial, the independent Telegraph newspaper said, "Those who thought that he would be a complete rubber stamp now have enough evidence to rethink their assessment. He has shown he can be his own man."

Rusty Staub of the New York Mets and Frank Robinson, manager of the San Francisco Giants, share the major-league record of hitting at least one home run in 32 big-league parks.

When Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees hit safely in 56 straight games in 1941 he had 56 singles and also scored 56 runs.

Ann Landers

Nice to be appreciated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the letter from "Had My Say In New Hampshire" in response to "No Chauvinist—Just Honest."

all races and many nationalities. Let me tell you that American women are the most sensual, inventive, responsive, magical, creative, warm, exciting and sincere bed-mates of all.

I have also discovered that American women are highly stimulated by intelligence, understanding and sensitivity, whereas European and Asian women are motivated to be inspired bed companions only if a man is goodlooking—or worse yet, rich.

It is my pleasure to propose a toast to all American women. You are the greatest! Small wonder we are the most envied nation in all the world.—A Connoisseur In Monroe, La.

DEAR CON.: On behalf of all American women—thank you. It's lovely to be appreciated. Here's another point of view.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "No Chauvinist—Just Honest" is right, but his attention needs to be more widely focused. It is my observation, after 50 years in the Orient, that the superiority of Asian women goes far beyond the bedroom.

There are cultural differences that are reflected in many ways: How woman act toward men, how children behave in the classroom, how workers work, how management manages, etc. As long as the Asian and particularly the Japanese resist Westernization, their superiority in certain areas will go unchallenged. Being less demanding, Asian women more graciously accept their subservient roles. At least this is true of my Japanese wife, who compares to my first wife (an American) like a diamond when placed alongside a piece of coal.—Oakland, Calif.

DEAR OAK: Thank you for a response that touches on the sociological as well as the philosophical and psychological differences between America's culture and that of other nations.

Surely you are aware that not only is Japan becoming Westernized, but Russia and the People's Republic of China as well. They have become enamored with the trappings of our high standard of living and are becoming TV-crazy and fashion-conscious.

The fact that your Japanese wife

"graciously accepts her subservient role" gives me a very good idea why you consider her a diamond—as compared with your first wife, an American, who was "a lump of coal." All women tend to behave in a manner that reflects the value placed on them.

You say you've been in the Orient 50 years. Come home, Mister. You'll discover some changes that will shatter your bifocals.
