Spooky Siblings

Spooks and goblins such as these two will be popping out from behind pumpkins tomorrow night as area children make their annual Halloween canvass of town. Joshua Reed will be out to sink his teeth into the fun dressed as "Fangface," while sister Michelle will take a lighter tack, hitting the candy trail dressed as a more docile "Tweety Bird." The two are the children of Ms. Jennifer Reed of Hereford. Residents are urged to drive with caution tomorrow night as the children make their rounds. (Brand Photo by Kelly Cherry).

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are more pessimistic about the economy than at any time since Ronald Reagan became president, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

But while Reagan got his lowest marks for handling the economy and there was less optimism about the economy in general than in any previous poll in 1981, the poll reported no change in how respondents foresee their family finances over the next year.

The poll, of 1,588 adults telephoned Sunday and Monday in a scientific random sampling, said 23 percent think the economy will get better during the next year, while 41 percent said it will get worse. The rest said it will either stay the same or were not sure.

The five previous times this year when the AP-NBC News poll asked about the future of the economy, the average response was 38 percent better and 22 percent worse.

But while respondents in the latest poll were more pessimistic about the overall economy, they remained consistent with polls earlier this year in regard to the future of their family finances during the next year: 20 percent said their families will be better off, 26 percent said worse off, 52 percent said about the same and 2 percent were not sure.

The most recent poll said more people may be thinking 1981 has been a better financial year for their families than 1980 was: 25 percent said their families are better off financially now than a year ago, while only 19 percent said they were better off last January than they were in January, 1979.

And while respondents in the August and September polls singled out inflation as a more important economic problem for the government to help control than inflation or interest rates, the latest poll showed the gap narrowing so that respondents thought high unemployment, high inflation and high interest rates are about equally important.

People who said either inflation or interest rates were the most important economic problems were more likely to give Reagan favorable economic ratings than those who said unemployment was the most important problem for the government to help control.

In addition, people who were more optimistic about the future of the economy and their personal family finances were more likely than other respondents to give the president good or excellent ratings for his handling of the economy.

Ronnie, Nancy Have Physicals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, confident his first full physical checkup in two years will show "how healthy I am," spent the night in a military hospital before completing a two-day battery of tests today.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, who checked into a VIP suite Thursday at the National Naval Medical Center in suburban Bethesda, Md., planned to fly to the Camp David retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains after being discharged today.

A hospital spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. Ronald Arrison, said both the president and the first lady were getting a "full standard physical examination," including tests for hearing and sight.

"I haven't got any problems," the 70-year-old president told reporters as he left the White House on Thursday. "They're going to tell you how healthy I am."

Dr. Daniel Ruge, the White House physician, promised to make a public report on Reagan's health.

"It certainly won't be detailed," Ruge said. "It will be an honest report."

Ruge indicated his report would state merely whether the president had a normal reading on various tests. "I'm opposed to giving numbers," Ruge said. "Somebody's going to say it's 118 today, it was 119 yesterday. What's wrong?"

Reagan, Hua Discuss Taiwan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua talked about Taiwan Thursday, but there was no indication they reached agreement on continued U.S. arms sales to the island.

Those arms sales have threatened to hamper evolving relations with the mainland and Reagan's chief spokesman, David R. Gergen, said he didn't mean to give the impression the two leaders agreed on everything when he described their meeting as a "warm, friendly and sincere exchange."

At one point, Gergen referred to the 40-minute meeting as a "courtesy call," but under questioning acknowledged that Taiwan was discussed.

"We're not going to go into detail about that," he said.

Gergen said the two leaders, who had their ad-

Reactions Quick, Widespread To Redistricting Measure

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements vows to get even at the polls, a West Texas legislator has moved and another lawmaker has filed a federal lawsuit — all as a result of new House and Senate districts.

Reaction to the new districts approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board this week was quick and widespread.

The first of what could be numerous lawsuits against the board was filed Thursday in Dallas federal court by Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, who said the Senate plan is unfair to urban areas.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, chairman of the all-Democratic, five-member board that approved the maps, is the bad guy, said Emmett.

"If a county could file rape charges, Bill Hobby would be dubbed the 'Redistricting Rapist,'" Emmett told a Capitol news conference.

State Republican Chairman Chet Upham said Thursday his party would file lawsuits against the House and Senate plans.

Clements spent much of his Thursday news conference railing against the plans. He promised ballot box revenge against the Democrats who approved the maps.

"There will be a price that is going to be paid by the people who advocated that plan," he said, referring to Hobby, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Attorney General Mark White and Speaker Bill Clayton.

Rep. Walter Grubbs, D-Abilene, took his political future into his own hands by moving. The House plan pairs Grubbs with Gary Thompson, D-Abilene. Clayton paired the two to avoid forcing 28-year House veteran Bill Healy to run against Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, for re-election.

Grubbs said as of Thursday his residence was in Merkel — in Healy's district. He'll run against Healy for re-election. The board "dealt a low blow to Thompson and me," Grubbs said at an Abilene news conference.

"They moved my residence outside my district in what is considered to be a gerrymandering effort to protect

Administration Encouraged By Saudi's Peace Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a sudden switch of position, the Reagan administration says it is encouraged by Saudi Arabia's eight-point Middle East peace plan because it recognizes "Israel as a nation to be negotiated with."

The plan, put forward by Crown Prince Fahd in August, is the Saudis' alternative to the Camp David peace accords.

After earlier dismissing the plan as nothing new, administration officials said Thursday that some of its points may be absorbed into the Camp David peace process and that it may lure moderate Arab nations into participation.

"There are aspects in the eight-point proposal made by Crown Prince Fahd by which we are encouraged," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said.

President Reagan told reporters that "the most significant part is the fact that they recognize Israel as a nation to be negotiated with."

Haig said the Saudi proposal includes "a direct, a very implicit recognition of Israel's right to exist."

"There are other aspects of these eight points... which are issues that must be negotiated by the parties," he added.

Saudi participation in the peace process was one of the conditions that Reagan set forth to win approval Wednesday of his sale of AWACS planes to the Arab monarchy. Reagan said the arms deal would help achieve that and added after the Senate vote, "The cause of peace is on the march again in the Middle East."

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, meanwhile, acknowledged Thursday that the conditions included in Reagan's letter to the Senate will not require U.S. military personnel to be aboard the aircraft once Saudi crews are trained.

However, some 800 Americans will be based in Saudi Arabia to help main-

Norm Berg, soil conservation chief for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said Thursday that any budget cuts in his agency would be absorbed by the upper echelon of administration, "not by our people at the field base level."

Berg lunched with several Hereford men here before going to view an irrigation efficiency plot in Castro County. He was in Amarillo Wednesday and Thursday for the state convention of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

The local luncheon was arranged by Jim Conkwright, county director of the High Plains Underground Water District (HPUWD). Other local citizens attending included Tom Burdett, C of C president; Mike Carr, C of C executive VP; James Hull, Deaf Smith REC manager; Speedy Nieman, Brand publisher; and Chip Formby, KPAN Radio.

Accompanying Berg on the tour were Wayne Wyatt of Lubbock, executive director of HPUWD; Carl Spencer of Temple, state director of the Soil and Water Conservation Districts; and three USDA irrigation specialists.

Berg announced that the Secretary of Agriculture would reveal Thursday the proposed soil and water conservation program which was required this year by the Resources Conservation Act of 1977.

"All of our people at the field level will have these documents. The public will be given an opportunity to respond to the program. At the end of the response period Jan. 15, 1982, the secretary will evaluate the proposals and send them to the President. They will then be forwarded to Congress for enactment into law.

Conkwright and Hull spoke with Berg about irrigation and energy cost problems in this area. Asked about budget cuts and how they might affect his agency, Berg said the agency "is prepared to adjust, but we won't make cuts at the expense of our men in

The Hereford Whitefaces go for their ninth straight grid victory and the district title when they travel to Lubbock tonight to play Coronado. Another large Hereford crowd is expected to follow the Herd.

In case you haven't heard, there will probably be a drastic realignment of districts next year. Speculation is that the University Interscholastic League will combine districts 3-5A and 4-5A to form one super nine-team district.

On this plan, Pampa would drop back to 4A classification, leaving four Amarillo schools, three Lubbock schools and Plainview and Hereford as members of the new loop. One advantage of such a league is that one loss, or maybe two, would not eliminate a team from the race.

One disadvantage would be in finding two non-district games, especially if a school's open date falls late in the season.

Local school officials, as well as others around the league, feel sure that the nine-team district will be the plan presented by the UIL.

FBC Youth Director Always On The Go

BY JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

Gayle Thompson has taught English and speech, worked in the Biblical Literature department of Texas Tech, been a youth director in Canada and gone on river missions in Mexico. Now she is one semester short of certification in physical education so she can coach basketball.

"I just do things because I enjoy them," she mused, considering her present occupation of full time youth director at First Baptist Church. "I just don't like to consider anything a 'job'."

With her 19 weekly class hours at West Texas State University and a full time position at FBC, Gayle finds herself "going 90 miles an hour" most of the time. If she is not committed to being somewhere, she is in the church office or at home making her house welcome to a load of teenagers who constantly drop in for television or talking.

"It's the neatest thing about it; to get my paycheck. When I get it, I just think 'this has been so fun,'" she laughed.

She acquired the youth leader position after doing some summer-work at the church. When school started she went full time.

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are school days for Gayle, with afternoons free, mostly for getting her own errands and homework done. Tuesdays and Thursdays are for planning and publicity at the church.

Her "big days" are Wednesday, Sunday and Saturday. Wednesday nights she leads a Bible study which has about 30 junior and senior high kids attending. Sunday she spends at church or with the teens and Saturday is open for retreats and special activities.

Gayle has no specific goals as a youth director in jacking up attendance or "saying that they will all be 'Super-Christian' by May'."

"I think when you start setting stuff like that you're going to get unrealistic," she said.

Gayle doesn't use a publication or program for her youth talks. It's flat Bible

Training B-52

Crashes In Colorado

LA JUNTA, Colo. (AP) — A B-52 bomber on a training mission from California crashed on remote rangeland eight miles east of this southeastern Colorado town early today, killing all eight crew members, sheriff's deputies said.

Air Force officials did not immediately confirm the deaths or release the identities of the crew.

Staff Sgt. Ada A. Martin of Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs said the plane was a B-52 on a low-altitude training mission from March Air Force Base near San Bernardino, Calif.

No weapons were aboard the intercontinental jet bomber, she said.

The Otero County Sheriff's dispatcher said a caller reported hearing an explosion at about 4:45 a.m. MST and authorities who went to the scene said wreckage was scattered over a three-quarter mile area.

For Missing Soldier

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A career Army man has joined authorities in neighboring Comal County in a search for his missing soldier son.

Gene Knapp, 42, today issued a public plea for anyone with information about his missing son to come forward.

He flew to San Antonio from Germany to help look for his son, Army Spec. 5 Joseph Knapp, 25, the oldest of his six children.

Joseph Knapp, a medic assigned to Korea, left the home of his sister, Julie Weldon, bound for Canyon Lake on Oct. 5, at about 7 a.m. Authorities said he bought some bait, rented a 16-foot aluminum boat and set off for a day of fishing.

When he failed to return the boat by 5 p.m. that day, a recreational service manager at the lake notified authorities and a search of the lake found the boat on the Guadalupe River.

The elder Knapp said he was baffled by his son's disappearance because he was a good swimmer.

Pressler Urges Repeal Of FTC Used Car Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., urged Congress today to repeal a Federal Trade Commission rule requiring used car dealers to inform customers of the condition of the vehicles for sale on their lots.

Pressler told the Senate Commerce consumer subcommittee the FTC went far beyond its authority in issuing the rule in August. If such a rule is needed, he said, it should be imposed by legislation and not a federal agency.

The senator said more than 2,500 franchised automobile and truck dealers have gone out of business in the past two years and more than 125,000 dealership employees have lost their jobs, partly because of high interest rates and government regulations.

Despite the economic hardships he is facing, Pressler said, a dealer "may shortly be finding himself faced with a $10,000 non-compliance penalty for a regulation which is not only unnecessary but also extremely difficult to interpret."

Attorneys Want

Government To Pay

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Attorneys who represented 10 prisoners by pressing a lawsuit against Bexar County are asking for $380,000 in fees for the 3,240 hours they estimate were spent on the case.

The suit ended in an out-of-court settlement and left the county facing a $47 million bill for building a new Bexar County jail.

The bill for legal fees was filed with U.S. District Judge William Sessions by five court-appointed attorneys, their nine law associates and one paralegal.

In affidavits, the associate attorneys and paralegal asked for fees ranging from $35 to $70 an hour, but lawyers Gerald Goldstein, Les Mendelsohn and James Heidelberg said their services were worth $150 an hour.

Charles Campion, Lonnie Duke and Charles Benbow, the other three court-appointed attorneys, said they should be paid $90 an hour.

End Rumored

In Police Negotiations

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A possible breakthrough has been reported in the deadlocked contract negotiations between the city and the San Antonio Police Officers Association.

Mayor Pro Tem Joe Alderete Jr. said the breakthrough came late Thursday night and the city council was briefed in a closed session on the remaining unresolved contract issues.

Negotiating teams were to meet again today, Alderete said.

Members of the police union defeated the first contract proposal because they disagreed with a provision giving city officials more control over officer appointments and abolishment of the detective-investigator rank.

Cigarette May Have Caused Blast

DALLAS (AP) — An explosion that tore through a Corpus Christi grain elevator, killing a federal inspector and eight other persons, started when a cigarette or heat from six other possible sources ignited volatile dust, a federal safety report said this week.

Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials listed a worn conveyor bearing, smoking in dusty areas and electrical sparks among possible ignition sources for the blast that injured 29 persons and caused an estimated $30 million in damage. The report also suggested ways to improve worker safety in grain elevators.

But a federal grain supervisor said Thursday his inspectors already were following the recommended safety precautions when the blast occurred in April.

"Most of what they suggested we were already doing or were scheduled to do," said Larry Nafzinger, field office supervisor for the Federal Grain Inspection Service in Portland.

Many of the six inspectors injured in the blast had been working in two grain laboratories that were scheduled to be moved further from the Corpus Christi Public Grain Elevator, he said. Four of the men have not returned to work since the blast and one inspector is paralyzed from the waist down.

A spokesman for the Port of Corpus Christi, which owns the elevator, disputed portions of the report, saying it contained "significant generalizations" and unsupported findings.

"It is important to note that there is no evidence that many of the locations they cite played any role in the explosion," said Don Rodman, port director of public affairs. "Many of the points were extraneous."

OSHA officials said three possible ignition sources were at a rail dumping pit between the elevator headhouse and "A" House. Rodman said no evidence at the site suggested that it or a second dumping site were at the explosion's origin.

"Even though we realize that the grain elevator ... was a public elevator, and not under the control of FGIS, we have listed a number of hazardous conditions that were determined to exist at or prior to the time of the explosion and fire," Thorne G. Aucher, OSHA assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health, wrote in the report.

The American Federation of Government Employees requested the OSHA investigation after the grain inspectors' injuries. D.R. Galliard, FGIS deputy administrator, said the report is still being reviewed.

Rodman said the findings will be studied by two Toledo, Ohio consultants who are developing their own independent reports.

OSHA recommended that airborne and accumulated grain dust should have been minimized by "frequent and effective housekeeping." Ironically, dust collection and emission control devices costing almost $4 million had been operating in the elevator for the past three years, port officials said.

A member of a NAS panel studying grain elevator explosions said dust collection hoods installed over a basement conveyor belt as part of the system actually trapped dust inside that carried an explosion throughout the elevator.

"When they were installed, they modified an existing system but did not go all the way in the modifications," said Dr. C.W. Kauffman, a University of Michigan research scientist. "This allowed some ledges in the conveyors to be collectors. We could clearly say the explosion propagated through the conveyors."

He said the evidence forced NAS scientists to modify their findings in a report on grain elevator explosions due at the end of this year.

Although port commissioners have not made a point-by-point response to OSHA, Rodman said elevator officials have eliminated three possible ignition sources from consideration.

He said Robert Anderson, an elevator design expert, ordered a massive pulley shaft removed from the base of a "bucket elevator" for examination. Metallurgical tests by a Houston laboratory showed that the shaft and bearings had not heated enough to ignite grain dust, Rodman said.

Kauffman disagreed, saying the pulley assembly had been "destroyed" by friction.

"The bearing had seized up," he said, "and the shaft had worn down to half its original size."

Kauffman said the pulley has not been ruled out as a possible ignition source by members of the Panel for the Causes and Prevention of Grain Elevator Explosions. A locomotive which OSHA investigators said was traveling over a dump pit and might have sparked the blast with its drive wheels was actually two railroad cars away from the dusty grain pit when the blast occurred, Rodman said.

He also said smoking had been prohibited in dusty areas around a rail dump pit, which OSHA identified as another possible ignition source.

Davis Layne, OSHA deputy regional administrator in Dallas, said witnesses recalled seeing workmen smoking within 60 feet of the rail dump pit and 30 feet of the truck pit — both high-dust areas.

Layne said the science academy, under contract to OSHA, supplied information on the worn bearing.

"We have identified these as areas of concern, which we feel could very easily have been sources of ignition," he said. "We're just saying that our interviews, on-site analyses and investigation came down to these seven as the possible causes of ignition."

To Be Filed

Charges of burglary of a vehicle will be filed today on a 17-year-old male caught in the act early today.

Sgt. Vernon Hope said officers were called to a residence on South Douglas where a man was awakened at about 2:40 a.m. by someone making noise around his vehicle. Officers found the youth breaking into the vehicle and made the arrest.

Police also issued two traffic citations Thursday.

Firemen reported to 607 W. Third at 5:45 p.m. Thursday where some insulation caught fire while plumbing repair was being done. Firemen said the fire was minor.

and provide a district for Hgally," said Grubbs.

Clements, like Emmett, is upset about urban districts in the Senate plan, particularly Dallas and Tarrant Counties.

"I can tell you the people in both Tarrant and Dallas counties are irate over this, and rightfully so," the governor said.

Clements is upset because the plan puts GOP suburbs in the Metroplex into districts with Democratic outlying areas, minimizing the chances of those suburbanites electing Republican senators.

The job of drawing new Senate districts automatically was turned over to the board when the governor vetoed the plan approved by the 1981 Legislature.

State Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle has said the plan could reduce the number of GOP senators from eight to four.

Clements said, "The one that I vetoed was tragic. The one put forward now is tragic. How much more tragic it is I am not prepared to say."

Emmett said the plan would leave Harris County residents underrepresented. The county is entitled to 5.25

Senate seats, he said. The plan, drawn by Hobby, a native of Houston, gives the county two seats. Six other districts are partially in Harris.

"I am particularly appalled that the major urban counties were dissected and residents of these counties were placed in predominantly rural districts," Emmett said.

"It is hard to believe that Houstonians will be in Senate districts that extend to the Louisiana border on the east and to the northwest of Austin on the west," he said. "The effect of these bizarre districts is to dilute urban interests and to deny residents of urban counties their deserved voice in Austin."

Although the governor said he is not as upset with the House plan, he also predicted lawsuits would be filed against both plans.

Clements said his dislike for the Senate plan was not based on partisan matters, but more of a philosophical dislike.

"Texas is a conservative state. What we have here is a plan that violates the majority of the people of this state," he said.

Among a number of failures of goof-ups listed by the magazine is the effort by a group of Hereford businessmen to market Bravo cigarettes in 1965. Despite the lettuce cigarettes lacking nicotine and tar, Bravo cigarettes never proved popular and the venture was dropped.

The state's constitutional convention of 1974 was cited for its contribution to the list of failures. After a committee worked eight months drafting a new constitution, legislators spent another seven months and $5 million, then lacked three votes approving the new document.

One of the most ridiculous federal goofs dealing with the state happened in 1855 when Congress appropriated $30,000 to import camels into Texas, supposedly to use them as military pack animals.

A year later, 34 camels landed in the state and were taken to San Antonio. The Civil War caused the military to drop its interest in the animal, and they eventually died out, although some were around as late as 1891.

More 'Other Woman' Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I offer some advice to the "other woman?"

Accept the fact that much of what your lover say is not true. No matter how honest and up-front he may seem, he will lie about his wife, his marriage and other women. It may take a while before he begins to make statements that don't add up, but eventually, if you listen carefully, you will hear them.

Accept the fact that he will call all the shots. He will tell you when he is available, and your plans will have to fit his. Many dates you thought were firm will be changed at the last moment. His wife comes first.

Realize that you are merely a diversion—something to add a little zest to his life—and that he may drop you at any moment for any reason. It could be someone younger or prettier, or more exciting or—if his wife becomes suspicious—you could be dumped with a 30-second phone call. Keeping his marriage intact is vital to his "image."

Don't get so hooked on him that you close out all other possibilities. Keep your eyes open and you will see that there are OTHER men around. Remember, your married man is seeing another woman—his wife—and sleeping with her, too, in spite of what he tells you. And there may be another side dish or two in the picture, as well. A man who cheats on his wife will cheat on his mistress.

When it's over (and he will probably be the one to end it), part with dignity. Don't try to hang on. There is nothing so boring to a married man as a silly dame who wants to stick around and settle for crumbs from an already crummy relationship.

Don't be a fool and fall for that worn-out line. "There's no reason we shouldn't be friends." The pain will be less severe if the break is clean.

Finally, accept the fact that when you become involved with a married man, you are destined to lose. The only thing I can say to my credit is that I was a quick study. I invested less than a year of my life in a no-win situation. My signature is also my appraisal.—It Wasn't Worth It

DEAR WASN'T: Sometimes the other woman wins, but more often than not she loses. And strangely enough, maybe when she loses she wins. As you said, "If he cheated on her, he would cheat on you." I can imagine few situations more agonizing than being married to a man who couldn't be trusted.

Thanks for giving a lot of women, both married and single, something to think about today. As for the married men who cheat, they stopped reading this letter a long time ago and went for

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 17 years old and not very experienced in the ways of the world. My 40-year-old unmarried aunt tells me there is no such thing as love. She says it's something that happens to people when they get sexed up.

According to my aunt, the only things that are real are money in the bank, good clothes and a car you can drive.

How do I respond to this?—Hate My Dream Killed (Akron)

DEAR AKRON: Take it from me, your aunt is wrong. With an attitude like hers she will never experience the richest of all experiences, poor thing, and she'll die believing she was right.

4-H Members Earn Salute

Two outstanding 4-H Club members from Deaf SMith County will be honored at the Panhandle District 4-H Gold Star Banquet at 6:30 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 7 in Amarillo.

Among the top 4-H'ers in the district being honored will be Glenna West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill West of Hereford, and Casey Cobb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cobb of Hereford.

State Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa will address the banquet at the Hilton Inn on I-40 East. Master of ceremonies will be Flynn Farris of Dallam County, chairman of the district 4-H council.

Some 300 persons, including parents, distinguished guests and special friends of 4-H will attend the banquet to salute the county winners, Robby Vann, county Extension agent said.

To qualify for the Gold Star Award, highest 4-H honor at the county level, a 4-H'er must be at least 13 years old, have completed three years of club work, and be active in 4-H. The award is intended to stimulate winners to higher achievement and to encourage other young people to participate in the county 4-H program, Vann said.

The awards will be presented by Mrs. Sue Farris and Paul Gross, district directors for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. 4-H is the youth program of the Extension Service.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Not Just A Customer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The first two fingers of his wrinkled left hand curl around a half-smoked cigar which he uses to point to a newspaper clipping. It's an article all about him.

"This is wrong," the old man says, peering at a visitor through his smoky, gray-framed glasses. "I smoke R.G. Dunns — there's 50 in a box, see. I've smoked them ever since 1947."

"Here, you want one?" he asks with a chuckle, parting the left side of his checked sportcoat to reveal a shirt pocket crowded with seven cigars and two ballpoint pens.

Herman P. Hoffner is sitting at a small table in Rax Roast Beef Restaurant on Columbus' far west side, one of hundreds of fast food franchise outlets that line the freeways of this big Midwestern city.

But this isn't just any restaurant to Herman Hoffner. It is a sort of home. Hoffner is as much a fixture as the plastic container of barbecue salt.

He's not an employee. He's a customer — but one whose social life revolves around the people who work at or patronize the restaurant. He's been coming here since 1968.

"I sit here and watch the people come in and I talk to them, visit with people," Hoffner says. "A lot of them come in here that I've known for a long time and we just make conversations of different kinds. I love it. I like to be around people."

Seven days a week, Hoffner boards a bus and arrives at the employees' entrance about 9 a.m. He gets a cup of coffee and waits while the chocolate chip cookies bake. He heads for his usual table, and there he stays until early evening when either his daughter, one of the workers or a transit service for the elderly drives him back to his small apartment a few miles away.

The restaurant threw a party for him on his 87th birthday, August 17, complete with friends, relatives, cake and gifts.

Politics and the economy are among the topics he discusses during the day.

"This is almost unbelievable," he says, pulling from his wallet two heavily-creased copies of typed menus from the Old Mill Restaurant he once owned in Chillicothe.

The menus, dated 1940, feature Swiss steak at 34 cents; meatloaf for 29 cents; roast pork and dressing, 30 cents; orange juice, 10 cents; and something called the Swan Special of the Week for 15 cents — a three-decker sandwich of cream cheese and jelly. "That's what I call the good old days," he says with a laugh.

A former central committeeman back in Pomeroy, where he once owned a dairy — "I can't remember what year, it's too long ago" — Hoffner always urges his friends to vote: "I still vote. I wouldn't miss it. Express your opinion — that's your privilege."

He is wearing a wide, blue tie, embroidered with elephants and the letters "YCGVSOYA."

He watches the customer sitting across from him trying to decipher the letters. He doesn't ask for the question.

"You Can't Get Votes Sitting On Your 'A,'" he translates. "You got to get out and shake the bushes. And that's what I did and that's why I beat the man I was running against."

Hoffner says he meets a lot of young people during the hours he logs at Rax, but he thinks they're much different than they were in his days.

"Years ago, you could get people to work. Today, it seems like they don't want to work. All they want to do is put in the time and wait for the check."

Hoffner seems sad only when speaking of his wife. She died a few years back, he says. He doesn't remember when.

"There's my wife," he says as he tugs her photo out of his wallet. "She passed away," he continues, a distant look in his eyes. "I'm all alone now, 'cept for my son and daughter who come and visit me. Edna was her name. We got married in 1916, when we were both 22."

"We enjoyed ourselves, my wife and I, working together every day. It was a lot of hard work," he says. "I was up at 4 o'clock every morning. Never had an alarm clock in my life...Automatically woke up at 4 o'clock. Still don't use one."

He looks around as a few customers come in.

"I like it here very much," he says. "I've been coming here every day...If I didn't have this," he says, tapping the handle of his tripod cane, "I'd be out there helping them (the restaurant employees). I like it that much."

Because He Can't Do It Himself

Man Wants Death Sentence

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Marion Albert Pruett insists that he deserves to be executed in Mississippi's gas chamber for a string of murders in Mississippi, Colorado and Arkansas.

"Let the man upstairs decide where I should be placed — heaven or hell," Pruett said Thursday during a jailhouse interview. "I think the people want to see me dead as much as I want to be dead."

Pruett, 32, said he had killed two people in Colorado on Oct. 16 because he was high on drugs and "I just decided I wanted to kill somebody ... like a crazy dog would do."

He said he wanted to be executed in Mississippi but would not mind a death sentence from Colorado. "It doesn't matter," he said. "I don't care..."

"I want to be put to death ... because I took innocent lives," he said. "I ain't got enough heart to kill myself, but I got enough heart to kill you." Pruett discussed the slayings during a meeting with reporters in the Jackson City Jail on Thursday, his second meeting with newsmen since he led officers early Wednesday to the body of Peggy Lowe, a Jackson savings and loan employee who had been missing since she was abducted during a Sept. 17 robbery.

However, Pruett again refused to provide details of the four slayings. Pruett, who calls himself a "mad-dog killer," again said he was responsible for slayings in Mississippi, Colorado and Arkansas and for a series of robberies in several states. He is wanted for violent crimes in eight states.

He said he had agreed to meet with newsmen again because he wanted the public's support in his efforts to be tried and executed in Mississippi for the Lowe slaying.

Pruett, as was the case on Wednesday, appeared tired and smoked a cigarette constantly during the interview in the jail's old drunk tank. He again wore a jail jumpsuit and white slippers.

He had led Mississippi and federal officers to Mrs. Lowe's body off a rural road in western Alabama during the predawn hours Wednesday. The 43-year-old mother of two had not been seen since she was abducted during the robbery of the Metrocenter branch of Unifirst Federal Savings and Loan in Jackson.

ATTENTION RETAILERS!

...are co-op advertising dollars slipping through your fingers?

Are you missing out on co-op advertising funds that are available to you? Did you know that co-op advertising help from many of your manufacturers and suppliers can pay anywhere from half to all of your advertising costs? Every year manufacturers and suppliers make millions of dollars available to retailers, yet a good part of that help is lost because many retailers are not even aware of the fact that this money is available to them. Our advertising staff has been especially trained to help you locate hidden co-op opportunities. They will help you prepare your ads, supply you with attractive, attention compelling art, write your copy and put it all together in an eye-catching layout. Our staff can produce results for you, and best of all, the co-op available to you can pay as much as 100% of the costs. Don't let co-op money slip through your fingers. It is really your money and if you don't use it, you'll lose it and all the potential sales that it can produce. Call your local newspaper advertising representative now and take advantage of the hard-hitting results this paper can generate. If you're not already advertising and using valuable co-op dollars, we'll show you how co-op can stretch your promotional budget and, at times, pay the entire bill.

Sweep Of Plainview Gives Team 4-0 Record For Half

Volleyballers Win Second Half Championship

Now For Our Next Surprise

Coach Sharma Smith seems to have everything in hand as she and the HHS volleyball team congratulate each other after Thursday night's win over Plainview. With the win, the Whitefaces claimed the second half title with a 4-0 record. The Herd has been surprising this year as they won seven of eight district games.

By MARC HERRING
Staff Writer

Thursday night's volleyball game was very important to the Hereford High School volleyball team. If they won, the second half title would be theirs. To make sure that the scenario panned out the way it should, Peggy Miller took the matter into her own hands to lead the varsity to a 15-9, 15-3 win.

Miller, who starts at the left front spiking position waited until she had moved to the servers spot on the rotation and then proceeded to put up 12 of the 15 needed points for the first game.

Others to contribute from the serving line were JoLynn O'Leary and Beatrice Moreno.

In the first game Plainview jumped to a 6-2 lead before Miller tied the game with her first round of serves. While Miller was at the serving line, the front line, consisting of Ginny Coronado, Moreno and O'Leary, kept the Plainview team off-balance with timely spikes and dinks.

On her second round of serving, with the score at 9-7 in favor of Plainview, Miller finished the game with eight successful serves.

The comeback win seemed to break the Bulldogs spirit as the second game did not prove to be much of a contest as Hereford was able to move ahead 6-1 and then finish off the game with only Sandy Cagle having to serve twice.

Moreno was the big server in game two as she put up six of the 15 winners.

With the win, the Whiteface spikers finished the district season with a 7-1 record and the second half title. The playoff for the overall district crown will be against Coronado the first half winner.

Coach Sharma Smith feels that the girls can beat Coronado, if they play their game.

"We will need to give it our best effort if we want to beat them again, Smith said.

"When we played them the last time, (at Hereford) I think that we had them overconfident and by the time they figured out that we were capable of beating them, they couldn't adjust their strategy."

"We are good enough to win, and if the girls can play up to capabilities, the match will take care of itself."

Hereford goes into the playoff with some strong credentials. The volleyball team has made tremendous strides since district competition began. Currently the spikers are on a six match winning streak, with the last three matches being straight game wins over Lubbock High, Monterey and Plainview.

The spiking of O'Leary and Coronado, as well as that of Miller has been a bright spot for the Whitefaces. To make the spikes possible, the setting of Moreno and Suzanne Rameriz have enabled the points to be accumulated at a steady rate. Lisa Cortez is the sixth member of the starting crew, and her steady play in the backcourt gives the front line people the chance to produce the points.

Series Sober George

If nothing else, perhaps the Yankees' lapse against the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series should have a sobering effect on boss George Steinbrenner.

The stern, demanding Yankee owner found out that baseball is a game played by human beings, with all their faults and frailties. Money can build bigger shipyards. It can't guarantee a World Series championship.

Steinbrenner has openly aligned himself with the credo of the late Coach Vince Lombardi, who said, "Winning isn't everything — it is the only thing." Yet somebody always has to lose. It's as basic as that.

In this instance, the Los Angeles Dodgers won. The Yankees, with all their pride and multi-million-dollar skills, lost. Sometimes you get the feeling that Steinbrenner thinks the Yankees should win all the time.

The recent World Series showed that even the greatest array of talent can't always measure up to a standard level — as if computerized. First of all, they are flesh and blood, subject to pressures, slumps, anxiety, pain and lapsing concentration just as all of us. Furthermore, they can't control crazy bounces, seeing-eye hits through the infield and plain luck, not to mention superior strategy and the mettle of the enemy.

But it was no accident. These Dodgers are a solid club from the top, where low-key Peter O'Malley sits, and the ebullient, frisky manager Tom Lasorda through the ranks — a hard-playing, dedicated crew most of whom have been together for 10 years.

Penn State's Number 1 Stay in Jeopardy

By HERSHEL NISSESON

This is the time of year when a lot of people from Brooklyn head for Miami's sunny clime, so why should Joe Paterno be any different? Well, the only difference is that Brooklyn Joe of yesteryear is now State College Joe. And he won't be traveling alone to Miami this weekend; he'll be taking a group of rather large young men with him.

Paterno's Penn State Nittany Lions have been ranked as the nation's No.1 college football team for the last two weeks, but that exalted status is in jeopardy Saturday when the Lions head South to take on the Miami Hurricanes.

Although four other teams were ranked No.1 this season before Penn State, Paterno says that "being No.1 isn't a problem as long as you don't pay any attention to it. If you get all wrapped up in it at this stage, it can be distracting."

The game will be on national television (ABC-TV, 3:45 p.m., EST) and Miami Coach Howard Schnellenberger is ecstatic that "we have the opportunity to play the No.1 team in the country and have the whole country see us. The players were three feet off the ground anyway and now that they know they're on national TV, they're 10 feet off the ground."

Penn State is a 5½-point favorite. One week off is long enough for the No.1 jinx. Upset Special of the week...Miami 20-17.

Last week's score was 48 right, 19 wrong and one tie for a .716 percentage. For the season, it's 350-141-8—713. Against the spread, last week produced a 14-18-2—438 mark. On the year, it's 113-126-4—472.

No.2 Pitt (favored by 19) at Boston College: The Eagles are flying high after last week's rout of Army and they have the size to give the Panthers a run for their money...Pitt 28-14.

Wake Forest at No.3 Clemson (21): If the Tigers are looking ahead to North Carolina, Wake's Gary Schofield could pass them dizzy...Clemson 31-14.

No.14 Washington State at No.4 Southern California (13): For an unbeaten-though-tied team, the Cougars of the Palouse are ranked kinds low. This one could make believers of the pollsters, unless...Southern Cal 27-7.

Temple at No.5 Georgia (No Line): The Owls already have played Penn State, with Pitt on tap later down the line...Georgia 34-9.

Texas Tech at No.6 Texas (20): The eyes of Texas are upon the Southwest Conference championship...Texas 30-6.

No.7 Mississippi State at No.8 Alabama (7½): The Bulldogs ended Bama's long winning streak a year ago. Bears like Bryant and Red Elephants like Alabama never forget...Alabama 17-9.

No.9 North Carolina at Maryland (NL): The previously unbeaten Tar Heels were knocked off by South Carolina last week and lost six more regulars in the process. Second Upset Special...Maryland 17-14.

No.11 Iowa State (19½) at Kansas State: They don't call 'em the Cyclones for nothing...Iowa State 34-14.

Kansas at No.12 Nebraska (29): The Cornhuskers haven't yielded a touchdown in four games...Nebraska 31-6.

No.13 Southern Methodist (3½) at Texas A&M: If you haven't noticed, the Aggies are 5-2, losing twice by a total of three points...Texas A&M 24-20.

No.15 Michigan (10) at Minnesota: The Gophers pulled off an upset last week, knocking off Iowa. The Little Brown Jug belongs to...Michigan 28-14.

No.16 Iowa (4) at Illinois: The Hawkeye's Roses may be whithering...Illinois 24-17.

Stanford at No.18 Washington (NL): The Huskies can't afford another Pac-10 loss...Washington 31-24.

Colorado at No.19 Oklahoma (26): The Sooners broke the bank last year with 82 points...Oklahoma 42-21.

No.20 Arkansas (9½) at Rice: Do Razorbacks like Rice? They do now

...Arkansas 28-17.

Houston (10) at Texas Christian: Frogs catch Houston between a rock — Arkansas — and a hard place — Texas. Third Upset Special...TCU 27-18.

Oregon State at California (13): On a hunch, a Fourth Upset Special

Gun Club Schedules Shoot

The Hereford Gun Club will hold a fund raising shoot this coming Sunday at the club's range. The shoot will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon with turkeys, hams and bacon given as prizes.

Everyone is invited to enter the shoot with competition available for different levels of ability.

NFL's Division Leaders Surprising As Second Half Looms Ahead

The Kansas City Chiefs will be brought rudely back to earth Sunday as the National Football League starts the second half of the season.

The Chiefs, one-game leaders over San Diego and Denver in the American Football Conference West, are coming off an emotional victory at Oakland. Now they have to try and hit that pitch again at San Diego.

That's a tough order, made tougher by the fact the Chargers sauntered light-heartedly into Chicago last Sunday and got beaten in overtime by the Bears. They'll be ready for the Chiefs.

Pittsburgh could be ready for another jolt. Last Monday night, the Steelers managed to survive a Houston comeback and beat the Oilers. Now here comes San Francisco. The 49ers also might be due for a letdown following its triumph over Los Angeles last Sunday, but we think they'll keep it too close for Pittsburgh's comfort.

Last week's picks against the point spread, 6-8. For the season, 53-57.

This week's picks, (home teams capitalized):
SAN DIEGO minus 6½ over Kansas City: The Chiefs' pass defense, wobbly at best, won't be able to withstand Dan Fouts' assault. And Kansas City's ground game, its strong suit, is going against one of the league's better rush defenses.

San Francisco plus 4 over PITTSBURGH: The Steelers' secondary has been burned plenty. Joe Montana is carrying a lighted match. It could turn into a stick of dynamite.

PHILADELPHIA minus 3 over Dallas: The Cowboys have been waiting since last January's NFC title game to get back at the Eagles. Revenge won't be quite so sweet.

MIAMI minus 7½ over Baltimore: The only thing worse than the Colts' rushing defense is the Colts' pass defense. BEST BET.

Cleveland plus 4 over BUFFALO: Brian Sipe vs. Joe Ferguson. Head for the air-raid shelter. UPSET SPECIAL.

New England plus 1 over OAKLAND: The Raiders seem to blow hot and cold from game to game and quarter to quarter.

Minnesota plus 4½ over DENVER: Tommy Kramer won't put too many dents in the Denver defense — just enough to keep the Vikings within field-goal range at the final gun.

Other games:

LOS ANGELES minus 6½ over Detroit.

Atlanta minus 6½ over NEW ORLEANS.

TAMPA BAY minus 6 over Chicago.

CINCINNATI minus 4 over Houston.

GREEN BAY minus 4 over Seattle.

WASHINGTON minus 3 over St. Louis.

New York Jets plus 1½ over NEW YORK GIANTS.

Sports World Speculation

By Murray Olderman

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — I have never seen unhappier men publicly than athletes making $500,000 and up annually — and complaining about how they're treated...

If I had a pro football franchise, the first collegian I'd want to build my team around is Art Schlichter of Ohio State. He's the only college player I've seen who patted his coach on the rump to start a game...

After Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Lee Trevino, I'm hard-pressed to recognize the face of any pro golfer. And I have to think hard on Watson...

The most meaningful gesture I've seen in sports in years was when Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns, at the end of the seventh round in Las Vegas, Nev., touched their gloves in mutual respect before going back to their corners...

I keep looking for a college coach who doesn't talk in clichés — Lou Holtz of Arkansas may be excepted — particularly in those vapid post-game interviews...

Maverick Ninth Tie, Eighth Wins

Junior Varsity Whallops Mustangs, 21-0

Defense took the starring role Thursday in football action as the Hereford junior varsity and La Plata ninth grade teams turned back all scoring attempts by their opponents.

In the junior varsity game the Longhorns muscled to a 21-0 victory over the Coronado team. The Mavericks came up with a common score in their game, as they fought to a 0-0 tie with Clovis Yucca.

In the JV contest, Larry Jimenez put the Whitefaces on the board as he crossed the goal in the first quarter from three yards out. After a successful extra point kick by Roy Salinas, the Hereford team had all the points needed to win the game.

Jimenez made it 12 points for the night, as he followed the line into the endzone from five yards out. David Zuniga then came in and booted the extra point and Hereford finished up their scoring.

Coronado's only threats of the evening came in the final period as they twice drove the ball inside the Hereford five yard line, but stingy defense stopped them both times.

Outstanding defensive plays for the Herd included an interception by Salinas from his free safety position that killed one of the drives. The JV's, coached by David Ashby are now 4-4 for the season and will host the Plainview JV next Thursday prior to the varsity game.

La Plata's ninth grade once again proved to be very difficult to score on, as they recorded their fifth straight win of the year. Jose Villalobos and Albert Tijerina led the Mavericks with a fumble recovery each and Larry Granado came away with two interceptions.

The offense for the freshmen was able to move the ball as they were able to get to the Clovis 20 twice, but each time, penalties and mental mistakes stopped their progress.

On the first play of the game, the Mavericks looked to have an apparent touchdown, but a holding penalty eliminated the points and stopped the locals from securing the win.

For the La Plata eighth grade, scoring was not the problem as they recorded a 14-8 triumph over the host Clovis team.

Coronado One Step

Phillies' president Ruly Carpenter, representing the family ownership of the Phillies, announced the sale of the club his grandfather purchased for approximately $500,000 in 1943.

Giles will be the general partner and sole operator of the franchise for the new group. The others are limited partners with little or no input in the running of the club.

Arkansas To Face Always Tough Rice

There's just something about the two Southwest Conference teams in Houston that give the Arkansas Razorbacks trouble and they can look for some more of it this week at Rice Stadium.

The Razorbacks, stunned by the University of Houston 20-17 last Saturday, trail Rice 28-25-3 in their all-time series.

Last year, Arkansas carried a 16-0 lead into the last quarter and lost 17-16 on a field goal with 21 seconds left. Arkansas is 9-17-3 against Rice in Houston although the Razorbacks have won on their last three trips.

Both teams are 2-2 and face elimination from the conference race.

"I don't think we're in the race," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "Heck, we're just fighting for survival now ... we're not thinking about the conference race."

"Right now, the only thing I'm interested in is seeing some Arkansas pride and tradition against Rice. I want to see our players play their hearts out this week."

He noted last year's comeback, saying "Last year we were in this same situation after Rice beat us. Rice is a lot better than it was a year ago. (Quarterback) Michael Calhoun has thrown 12 touchdown passes in three weeks. He's difficult to slow down."

Arkansas was a field goal favorite over the Owls.

In other SWC games, No. 6 ranked Texas was a 22-point favorite over Texas Tech in Austin; No. 13 ranked Southern Methodist was a four-point pick over Texas A&M in College Station; and Houston was a nine-point selection over Texas Christian in a 11:30 a.m. regionally televised game in Fort Worth.

Probation-blemished SMU and the Texas Aggies are tied for the SWC lead with 3-1 ledgers.

Texas is 2-1 while Baylor, idle this week, is 3-2.

Arkansas, Houston and Rice are all 2-2 while TCU is 1-3 and Texas Tech 0-4.

It's the earliest in the history of the SWC since it started round-robin play that no undefeated team remains.

The SWC finished its inter-sectional record at 18-8-1, best since 1949.

On playing luckless Texas Tech, Longhorn Coach Fred Akers said "Tech has a better team than its record ... they have lost a lot of close games."

Akers added "We always seem to bring out the best in Texas Tech."

Stanford's Elway--All American Boy

Together they walk down Sam McDona,d Road, named for a black equipment man in the early days of Leland Stanford Jr. University. The players aren't hassled. No one spits on them or grabs at them. Only families and friends flock around. They're very civilized about football in northern California.

On a late Saturday afternoon, John Albert Elway Jr. — with a white number 7 on his cardinal red jersey, carrying his plastic helmet under his right arm, straight blond hair dangling over his eyes — makes this walk.

The first person who stops him is his mother, Janet, dressed smartly in a light pantsuit. She hugs him maternally. She is crying. After she releases him, John limps away. Post-game tailgate parties are already under way on both sides. Then a youngster, maybe 10 years old, blocks his way and sticks out a game program for Elway to sign his autograph.

"You sure you want mine?" asks John.

"Yeah," nods the kid. "Even though you were awful."

Elway grins ruefully. The kid is right. It is the worst day in the athletic life of 21-year-old John Elway, who went into the 1980 season acclaimed as the best quarterback in college football and a prime contender for the Heisman Trophy, which goes to the outstanding player in the nation.

Against San Jose State — coached ironically by Jack Elway, his father — the Stanford star completed only six passes in 24 attempts for a meager 72 yards. Five throws were intercepted. He was also sacked seven times. Stanford, a 14-point favorite, lost, 28-6.

John Elway has an excuse. He played with a sprained ankle suffered against Purdue in the season opener a week earlier, when he electrified a national TV audience by throwing for a career record of 418 yards on 33 completions in 44 attempts.

Against San Jose State, he limped perceptibly every time he walked up to the line of scrimmage. "I couldn't pivot," says Elway, "and I couldn't throw off my back foot. It was the most frustrating day of my life."

He clutches bruised ribs, inflicted in a second-quarter blow.

"As a coach," says Jack Elway, who walks across the field to console his son, "I'm thrilled. As a father, I'm not very happy."

John Elway spends that night with his parents in San Jose and signs a contract to play baseball next summer with a New York Yankees farm club in Oneonta, N.Y., for a bonus reputed to be $140,000. He is obligated to spend only 45 days there before he returns to Stanford for his final year of varsity football. In January 1983, he can decide on professional baseball or football as a career — the Yankees retain only a six-year option on his services if he chooses baseball.

"It's a helluva summer job for John," says his father, who advised him. "I'm thrilled that he will be able to buy a second pair of shoes."

A week later, Stanford has lost again, 24-19, to Ohio State — the team's third straight defeat. But John Elway completed 28 passes in 42 attempts (22 of the completions coming in the second half), gained 248 yards and in the fourth quarter twice hit receivers in the end zone for touchdowns. A fumble after a reception at mid-field killed a chance to win the game in the last minute.

Then Stanford loses a fourth straight game — to Arizona, 17-13, in a mistake-marred performance. Elway is out of sync with his receivers, who run the wrong pass routes or look up futilely while the ball sails over their heads. The team is on a disaster streak.

That's not the way it was planned for John Elway in the fall of 1981, when Stanford had expectations he would become the second winner of the Heisman Trophy in the school's history. The first was Jim Plunkett in 1970.

In October 1980, UCLA coach Terry Donahue declared: "Before he's out of school, Elway will definitely be a Heisman Trophy winner. He can't miss."

Proclaimed Dick Steinberg, the personnel director for the NFL New England Patriots: "John Elway is the best quarterback prospect I've ever seen. He is the best player in college football today. He has no flaws."

The universal raves for Elway derived from a sensational sophomore year in which he completed 65.4 percent of his passes (248 out of 379) for 2,889 yards and 27 touchdowns. He was the first sophomore to win the Pacific-10 Conference Player of the Year award.

He is also polite and humble and soft-spoken. He still looks like a teen-ager with a round face and clear blue eyes and teeth that always show. Only his size surprises. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 204 pounds, with big shoulders, strong legs and large hands.

He has a steady girlfriend, lives in a fraternity house and studies every night. He's so much the All-American boy it's almost saccharine.

John doesn't care. "I'd rather be an All-American boy," he shrugs, "than a lady hunter, one seen in bars and all that. But I don't try to live up to it. I just try to be myself and have some fun."

His father once spanked him when he was in the fourth grade. He once reportedly sulked when his twin sister, Jana, (a student at San Jose State) beat him in Ping-Pong. And he has even been seen having a couple of beers.

He'll have plenty of chances to walk down Sam McDonald Road next year. Maybe with happier results

JOHN ELWAY, Stanford's ace passer, was touted before the 1981 season as the best college quarterback in the country. But Elway discovered that the life of an All-American has its ups and downs.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Self-treatment is not wise

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother practically lives on antacids. I don't know how many she takes, but a box disappears very quickly. And she uses several different kinds. I have suggested that she should see a doctor but she says it is just too much acid and the doctors would just give her an expensive prescription for the same thing she can buy herself.

Is there any danger from taking all those antacids, even if you can buy them without a prescription? Is there a difference in the pills and if so what one is best?

DEAR READER — There hasn't been a pill invented yet that is safe for everybody on all occasions. The biggest danger here is the same you have with many pills people can buy for themselves — the patient may be self-treating the wrong thing. Anyone who requires the regular use of antacids to prevent complaints of indigestion deserves a medical examination. She may have a hiatal hernia — or even a cancer of the stomach. Fortunately these are more rare today. She could even have gallbladder disease.

There are a lot of problems associated with antacids. Some authorities have been concerned about the possible relationship of aluminum (found in aluminum cookware) and possible brain cell changes of the type seen with aging, but you will absorb much more aluminum from antacids that are made with aluminum preparations — and a major portion of them are Magnesium in antacids can be a real problem. After age 50 people don't eliminate magnesium as easily from the kidneys and they may accumulate a high blood level which causes magnesium toxicity. The symptoms are those of confusion and senility. Because many older people are the very ones who get overloaded with magnesium in antacids and laxatives, the danger is that someone will be thought to be senile when in fact magnesium toxicity is present.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can an eight-hour open heart surgery cause a complete personality change in a person? The surgery was done 10 years ago on my husband at age 40. There wasn't a sweeter and nicer husband or father on this earth before that time. Then five years ago at age 45, he had a complete change in his personality, morals, habits and everything. He became a non-caring, non-feeling, heavy drinker and started dating very young girls.

Four men had the same surgery about the same time. Two have died and one has been in the hospital for a nervous breakdown. They were all about the same age.

DEAR READER — Don't

blame it on the surgery. It is true that many patients do develop a postoperative psychosis after major surgery. That can be open heart surgery or other operations. But that change would have been immediate and not five years later. Your husband may be reacting to his life stresses or be in need of psychiatric counseling. Depending on which came first, the alcohol may be a cause or a result of his problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband drinks at least one 6-pack of beer every day, and often two or three 6-packs. Sometimes he mixes this with whiskey. He seems to be in exceptionally good health. When he has a checkup the doctors never suspect he drinks. He is 40 years old and has been drinking heavy since he was a teen-ager.

I think his personality is changing. He is irritable and quick with me and our boys. He tells me I'm the cause of his drinking but, Dr. Lamb, we didn't get married until he was 30 years old and his family says he had a worse drinking problem before we were married than he does now.

Can this amount of beer eventually cause brain damage? Is there any change in his diet that I can make to curb his desire for alcohol? Is there anything I could put in his beer without him knowing that would make him so sick he would want to quit drinking? Is there any help at all without his cooperation?

He likes beer and getting drunk. He says he doesn't have a drinking problem because he works every day.

DEAR READER — He has a problem. And anyone who lives with an alcoholic has a problem. Look in the Yellow Pages of your phone book under Alcoholism Information and Treatment Centers for help in your community. If you have an Al-Anon organization they may be able to give you some useful advice on your specific problem. Al-Anon is often listed under the Alcoholics Anonymous organization and is for family members and friends of alcoholics.

Yes, your husband can develop brain damage from his persistent overuse of alcohol. Yes, a person can appear healthy and a doctor may not know he is drinking. Alcohol is often the hidden factor in many illnesses. Liver damage may not be apparent until it is rather extensive. About 60 percent of all deaths from cirrhosis of the liver are caused by the excess use of alcohol.

There is not much you can do without his cooperation, including putting anything in his drinks or by diet.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am confused by what friends tell me and what my doctor says. Friends say that after cosmetic surgery on my face I should avoid the sun. Yet the surgeon advised me I can be out in the sun. I understand that professional advice is best but so many have told me to avoid the sun that I would really like your opinion.

DEAR READER — I know that some plastic surgeons do not mind if you expose your face to the sun but I think it is a matter of degree. Excess sun exposure does age skin whether it has been operated on or not.

I would say you should treat your face like you would have if you had not had an operation. For good skin care that includes avoiding excess sun exposure, sunburn and particularly for fair-skinned people, the use of sun screens to protect your skin. Failure to do so will result in the need for more cosmetic surgery sooner as the skin is injured by excess solar radiation.

That does not mean you can't have a suntan, though.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

House closed for winter

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When we turn off the furnace and close up our house for four months this winter, will there be any danger to my china and furniture? I have some fine antique china and glassware that I hate to leave exposed to the cold if anything like "checking" would occur. Also, would canned goods (home-canned or commercial) freeze in the below-ground basement? — MRS. B.J.L.

DEAR MRS. B.J.L. — Your china and furniture should be OK in the house, even though the temperature is likely to get quite cold. Since china and glass are hard and not porous, there is little danger of moisture freezing in the pieces to cause any kind of cracking. However, I wouldn't leave any kind of canned goods — especially those home-canned in glass jars — in the house. Since you live in the northern part of the country, the temperature in the basement will almost certainly get below freezing. Any kind of canned goods will freeze, expand and are likely to break the jars or burst the seams of metal cans. You might take these foods with you, or give them to a neighbor.

The most important consideration when closing up a house for the winter is the protection of your plumbing. Be sure all interior pipes, sinks, toilets, tubs, etc. are completely drained. And don't forget to check water-using appliances such as the dishwasher. Before you leave, pour some antifreeze into the sink and toilet traps. Leave your refrigerator door open with the unit turned off.

Also be sure your house is well sealed against drafts and moisture seepage. This is your best protection against any kind of damage from the elements. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Place tomatoes on aluminum foil in a window to ripen them quickly. — MAGGIE

DEAR POLLY — To separate the leaves of a head of lettuce, remove the core, then hold the head, core end up, under cold running water. The leaves will open out and come right off. Happy cooking! — D.E.M.

DEAR POLLY — My husband does a lot of painting. Here's his method for cleaning and softening dried paint brushes. Soak the brushes in lacquer thinner overnight. Then soak in a commercial brush cleaner overnight. Wash in soap and water, rinse in clear water and hang up to dry. — MRS. G.A.S.

DEAR POLLY — When preparing asparagus for cooking, remove the scales below the tip and start cutting bite-sized pieces from the tip end first. When you feel the stalk becoming tough and difficult to cut through, peel the remainder of the stalk with a knife or potato peeler and continue cutting it into pieces. You'll avoid wasting the tough part of the stem, since once it's peeled, it's much more tender. — JEANNETTE

DEAR POLLY — Here's how to keep geraniums that you've pulled up in late fall. Put them in a large brown paper sack and set an open jar of water in the sack. This will keep the plants from drying out. You might need to add more water during the winter if your basement is too warm. I staple the sack shut. In spring, the stems will be bare. Soak the roots in water and when the stems start to become green, plant them outside. The geraniums will take a while to get established, but when they do, they'll bloom beautifully. — A READER

HALLOWEEN SHOWS US SOME MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT FAITH

Everyone knows Halloween as an occasion of fun and mysterious excitement for children, as well as costume parties for all ages. However, few of us are aware of the true religious origin of this October event, and there some confusion reigns because of the similarity of this ancient Druid festival in name and date to the All Hallows' Eve of the Christian tradition. This is but one minor example of the many misconceptions about religion, as well as the commercialism of all our holidays. You and your family should learn the truth about your own faith, including the origin of its customs and proper observance of its holidays, and the best place to separate fact from fantasy is at the Church of your choice, at any time.

"...in the later times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."
- 1 Timothy 4:1

Nothing is so firmly believed as what we least know.
- Michel de Montaigne
