Teachers to get more than minimum

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Local public school teachers are to continue receiving $1,600 or $1,800 per year more than the state-set required minimum salaries, Hereford Independent School District directors decided Tuesday.

Board members also voted to continue the district's tax on automobiles, said a proposed semi-professional football team could not play its games in Whiteface Stadium and accepted the resignation of Paul Mason from the governing body.

Dr. Harrell Holder, HISD superintendent, preceded the local supplement salary vote by saying he was "positive" the policy could be maintained without financial hardship. It stipulates those with bachelor's degrees be given $1,600 and those with master's receive $1,800. By approving the measure Tuesday, Holder claimed, recruitment of instructors would be helped "tremendously."

The superintendent also said he would recommend taxes remain at 94 cents per $100 valuation. Though around five cents of that rate last year was used to finish a bond payment, Holder felt the approximate $520,000 it generates should be retained over the next two years for building improvements.

Four board meetings are likely to be conducted in the next 40 days, Holder felt, to establish and approve the 1984-1985 HISD budget. The budget committee of the board, he said, is to meet Monday, July 21.

Without continuance of the automobile tax, according to board president Bill Townsend, the property tax rate would have to be raised three to four cents. The tax on vehicles, as unanimously approved Tuesday, will remain at four cents per $100 worth. Taxable amounts are based on trading book values.

Though denied permission to use Whiteface Stadium, the fledgling Hereford Warriors were told Tuesday they may use La Plata Junior High School's football field. Equipment - such as the game clock and yard markers - is to be available for rent, board member John Fuston said.

One player asked why the stadium could not be used. "We've had some problems with our turf," Fuston explained. "The whole center part of the field is frozen out...it'll be really touch and go to get that thing grassed over."

Fuston said he and Robert Amar, fellow board member who assisted in the decision, would prefer Warrior home games on Sunday be played in non-church service hours: noon to 7 p.m. Matt Morgan, team founder, said contests would likely be at either 1 or 4 p.m., whichever was not the Dallas Cowboys' kickoff time that day.

Board decides

Mason announced his resignation in mid-June. His District 3 position is up for election next spring. Townsend said he did not know if or, if so, when a replacement would be named.

"On behalf of the board, I'd like to personally and publicly thank Paul for the amount of time he put in," the board president remarked. "Paul did a yeoman's service, to say the least. He will be missed." Townsend singled out the computer assistance Mason offered during his two years on the governing body.

In other matters, administrator Larry Wartes said the cafeteria system finished with a fund balance about $24,000 above last year's. That, the assistant superintendent indicated, would allow meal prices to remain at the same levels for the coming year.

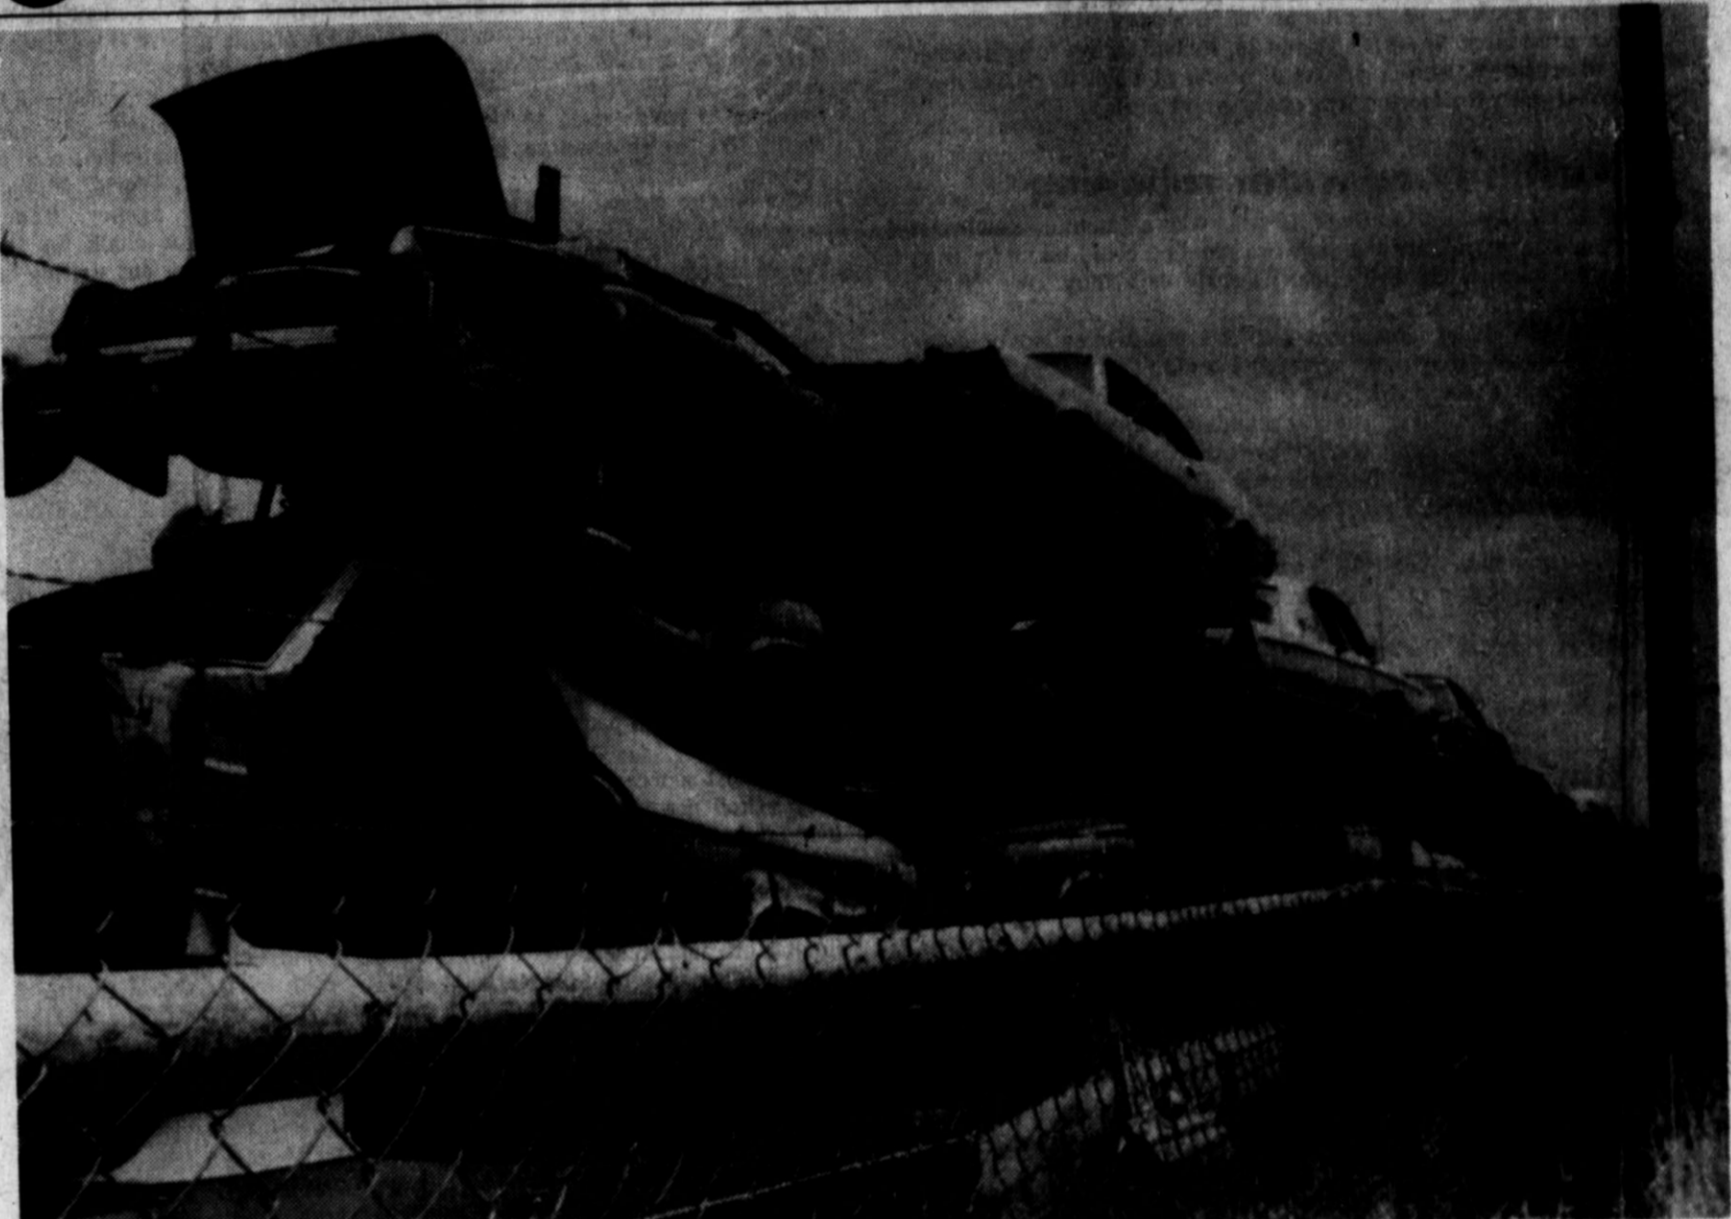

Tax collections for 1983-1984 are still ahead of last year's figure, Wartes pointed out. Approximately 93.4 percent was gathered for the entire 1982-1983 session. Based on accumulations through June, Wartes guessed 93.8 percent would be the final total for the current year.

Among the approved hirings Tuesday was Mike Fields as new Hereford High School varsity boys basketball coach. The La Plata instructor is to replace Bobby Decker, now full-time assistant principal at HHS.

Other people board members approved for employment were Jeanine Avery (Tierra Blanca Primary School), Judith Howerton (Stanton Junior High School), Debra Irwin (Stanton), Kyle Chris Mines (La Plata), Laura Katherine Privett (Northwest Primary School), Patrick Privett (Northwest), Brenda Reeh (La Plata) and Ron Young (La Plata).

Resignations were accepted from Mary Lou Aguilar (Shirley Intermediate School), Mary Brooks (diagnostician), Brenda McClellan (HHS), Sharma Smith (HHS) and

State funds may be boon first, low later

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Though the Hereford Independent School District may for a few years benefit from increased state funding, financial problems could occur within a few years, according to Dr. Harrell Holder.

The HISD superintendent made that point during a presentation he made to school board members Tuesday night. He was explaining recently-passed House Bill 72, which outlines changes to be made over the next few years in the Texas public school system.

Though HISD may not use up all the $2.6 million he expects it to receive next year, Holder said state funding apparently will not be raised correspondingly with district expenditures. The two should balance out in about two or three years, he guessed, before the flip-flop is completed.

State comptroller officials have estimated HISD will receive $2.844 million more in state aid this coming year than it did for 1983-1984. "This sounds really good until you start putting it in perspective," Holder commented. "However, I think if we (approach) this cautiously...there are going to be some other school districts going broke before we do."

One costly change introduced by the legislation is increased minimum teacher salaries. The lowest amount a teacher will be allowed to make is $1,520, an increase of more than $4,000. All Texas instructors are guaranteed to earn at least $1,700 more in 1984-1985 than they did last year. Annual raises of $1,140 are to follow provided instructors meet educational requirements.

Some teachers in the district - Holder estimated 65 - are to be immediately eligible for Level 2 of the career ladder being introduced next year. That means an additional $2,000 annually. As their experience mounts, instructors are to qualify for Levels 3 and 4, which pay $4,000 and $6,000, respectively. That growth combined with other teachers joining the ladder, Holder said, might contribute to future financial difficulties.

One reason state aid may remain the same or drop is it is based partly on average daily attendance, which Holder said will likely decrease in HISD over the next few years. As stated in H.B. 72, school districts are to receive $1,290 per ADA this year and $1,350 - or a greater amount provided by appropriation - every subsequent year.

Additional funding will be granted based on HISD's compensatory and bilingual education programs. The former should yield about $400,000 more than last year, Holder said, while the latter will result in about $60,000 more funding.

Additional state monies are to come from the "enrichment equalization allotment," given to districts whose property value is less than 110 percent of the Texas average. Hereford qualifies for that program, Holder said, and should be

Grand jury indicts four people

Four people were indicted Tuesday by the July term Deaf Smith County grand jury.

Gloria Angela Casias, 18, was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The jury also indicted Ricky Gariball, 18, and 20-year-old Daniel Jimenez for theft over $750 and under $20,000.

Ruben Marry Jr. (also known as Juan Ramirez), 21, was charged with burglary of a building. Eighteen-year-old Robert Christopher Whiteside was indicted for burglary of a motor vehicle.

Fund established for Morris

The family of Hereford resident Jo Ann Morris has established a medical fund in her name at Hereford State Bank.

The 26-year-old Morris, a mother of three, is suffering from an undiagnosed illness. She is scheduled to enter the Scott and White Diagnostic Clinic in Temple for further medical testing.

Two arrested on alcohol charges

Two people were arrested within city limits Tuesday, one for driving while intoxicated and the other for public intoxication, Hereford police reported this morning.

Meanwhile, Anna Casias called the Brand today to say two statements in a Tuesday "Roundup" item concerning a 205 Lawton St. incident were incorrect. "I did not tell the police we (she and her husband) had been arguing before the fire," she said.

Casias also said she is a nurse's aide, not a registered nurse as was printed. Police reported she probably saved the life of her husband - Pete M. Casias - by giving him cardio-pulmonary resuscitation at the fire scene.

TUESDAY'S HIGH: 93 (normal high this date: 91 record: 103 (1933))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 66 (normal: 66 record: 54 (1895))

OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low near 65. Winds are to be 5 to 10 miles per hour from the southeast, increasing to 10 to 20 miles per hour from the south Thursday. A high in the lower 90s is also foreseen for Thursday, which is to be partly cloudy.

Government funds now pegged for direct work

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Government money amounting to $170,000, originally appropriated for a study of Buffalo Lake being made by the Bureau of Reclamation, will now be used for direct improvements to the lake.

The Buffalo Lake Water District Board was informed of the decision at Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting.

"The Bureau of Reclamation didn't need all of the money it was given to do the study, which is really unusual," remarked board member Garth Thomas of Hereford. The funds were left from a $413,000 federal grant approved by the U.S. Department of the Interior for the U.S. and Wildlife Service to use in financing the study.

Thomas said the board learned Tuesday night that $80,000 would go for improvement of the picnic area. Four picnic sites have already been completed, with three more to be installed soon. Thomas said the picnic area is now open to the public.

Part of the $80,000 will also be used for improvement of the Stewart dam, Thomas said. He stated the dam is a headwater dam at the extreme western end of the lake, and that a Hereford firm has been contracted to raise and widen the structure.

The BOR announced its intention to hold a public environmental assessment meeting in mid-August to discuss alternatives for the future of the lake, located south of Umbarger. Thomas said comments made at the meeting will be included in the bureau's study, which is due to be finished in September.

The board did not have the needed quorum to take official action on any of the agenda items. In addition to Thomas, the meeting was attended by Carolyn Waters of Hereford and Charles Johnson Jr. and Enoch Henderson of Randall County.

Factors to allow HISD to receive more money

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Several factors will help the Hereford Independent School District get a generous share of tax monies generated by the state tax bill, according to Sen. Bill Sarpalius.

The state legislator claimed an above-average tax rate, exemptions allowed the county for livestock and farm machinery and HISD's participation in bilingual and vocational programs will result in more state funds for the district.

Sarpalius said Tuesday HISD will get $2,844,000 during the coming school year, most of which is to be collected on luxury items such as cable television, video games and amusement parks. Texas residents are to also begin paying taxes on dry cleaning, hotels and motels, newspaper subscriptions, home fertilizer and repairs on real property.

Sarpalius said Walcott School District will enjoy an extra $65,000 in state revenues next year. He praised the efforts of Superintendent Eddie Derr, who the senator said made some important points while testifying in Austin during the debate over the education and tax bills.

"It was a very hard, but very productive session," Sarpalius said of the special legislative session which on July 3 passed the compromise education bill and approved the $4.8 billion tax increase. "We won our fight for vocational education, which

Sarpalius claims

(H. Ross) Perot wanted to cut back on."

Sarpalius said he also came away pleased that the rural areas will benefit greatly from the tax money, of which about 80 percent will come from the state's largest cities. "We kept with a tax bill that did not affect agriculture much at all," he explained. Sarpalius said when the session began, there was a big movement to take away the agriculture exemptions that are so important to rural Texans.

Though he did not vote for the original senate bill, Sarpalius decided he could support the compromise version even though there were a few things he did not like about it.

"I think the quality of education in the state will improve," Sarpalius predicted. "I like the idea of a smaller classroom-teacher ratio, and requiring students to pass tests before being promoted. The bill has virtually done away with social promotion."

The senator pointed out that he had not supported the idea of competency testing for teachers, as he wished pay hikes for teachers could have been a little larger. "However," Sarpalius added, "some of these things do not go into effect immediately. I look for some changes when the regular session begins in January."

Town hit by cocaine scandal

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — This small North Texas town, a stone's throw from the birthplace of Dwight D. Eisenhower, is the target of a federal drug investigation of white-collar cocaine use that has snared several prominent residents and produced scandal, rumors and suspicion, residents say.

"Everybody's a target," said Barbara Davies, owner of The Feed Store restaurant. "I think people are pointing fingers at anyone who's prominent. They're pointing fingers like crazy."

U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham of Beaumont said federal agents are dealing with "a major case" that is expected to spread to traffickers of cocaine throughout Northeast Texas and Oklahoma.

"There are a substantial number of white-collar participants. The number is growing on a regular basis," Wortham said.

Six prominent Sherman residents, including the former school board president, who said he used cocaine at a charity ball in April, pleaded guilty to assorted drug charges on Tuesday.

Austin near water rationing

AUSTIN (AP) — The city of Austin, under a voluntary water conservation program for the past two months, could be under mandatory conservation restrictions as early as Friday, city officials say.

After three days of treating just under 150 million gallons of water, the city water department reported Tuesday that 151 gallons were pumped and treated on Monday.

The city council has ruled that mandatory water use restrictions become effective automatically if use exceeds 150 million gallons for three consecutive days. If use exceeds 157 million gallons in any one day, restrictions could begin earlier, but officials said they consider that unlikely.

Under mandatory controls, lawn watering and car washing would be allowed only every fifth day, but even then not between noon and 8 p.m.

"We're right on the brink. Whether we'll have to institute the restrictions is going to be a matter of luck and public attitude," said Mike Personett, manager of the city's water conservation program.

Rule could save Texans millions

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas industries blow off a lot of excess steam that could — and soon should — be used to generate electricity and save Texans millions of dollars, the Public Utility Commission chairman says.

The PUC on Tuesday enacted an emergency-basis rule that requires electric companies to team with private industry to generate power.

The new rule encourages "co-generation" of electricity, which means using byproduct power produced by steam already used in industries' manufacturing processes.

PUC Chairman Alan R. Erwin says cogeneration offsets the need for building so many new power plants, and that means millions of dollars in savings for both utilities and their customers.

Erwin says that industrial heat is now being wasted in many cases and should be turning turbines to make power for local electric companies.

Under the new rule, which would have its biggest impact on the heavily industrialized Gulf Coast, utilities wanting to build a new generating plant must first prove that sufficient co-generated power is not available elsewhere.

War makes struggle harder

By CHRIS ANGELO Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — At a school in the north, pupils sat on the floor, their desks boards resting on top of bricks. In a town in the south, there was one teacher for 300 pupils. Everywhere, textbooks were a rarity.

Shortages of funds, facilities and teachers and a high dropout rate are chronic in Salvadoran education. Although these are common educational problems in most of the Third World, the struggle to learn to read and write in El Salvador is worsened by the country's 4½-year-old civil war.

"This morning we heard shots, six bullets," said a teacher in Soyapango, a city teeming with refugees on the outskirts of San Salvador. "We're used to hearing them, like we're used to hearing rockets."

The gunfire did not stop class that morning. In other parts of the country, where bullets and town takeovers by leftist guerrillas are even more common, educators say classes are suspended when there are clashes and resumed when they're over.

More than 800 schools are believed to be closed this year because of the war, an Education Ministry statistician said.

"There is a double effect," a university investigator said of the war. "The closing down of schools in rural areas has been almost massive and there has been migration of teachers from rural to urban and the eastern to western part of the country."

Like most sources in El Salvador, they asked not to be identified to avoid reprisals.

Fighting is concentrated in the east and north and is mostly in rural areas, where it's always been difficult to attract teachers.

About 275 members of the National Teachers Union have been killed in political violence accompanying the war, many of them because they were considered leftists, teachers and the investigator said.

The fighting also forces families to migrate.

"The enrollment changes are endless," the director of 14 schools in an outlying area of San Salvador said. "Students leave because of family problems, because of economic and political problems."

Those who cannot find work go somewhere else. Every month tons of children leave and tons of children come.

Nonetheless, classes have been available to at least 70 percent of the refugees, according to Luis Hernan Conde, El Salvador's director of basic education.

A school at El Amatillo, on the Honduras-El Salvador border, had "one teacher last year, two the year before and this year it's closed," said the local director of a voluntary agency with programs in the east. He said he knew of schools that had one teacher for 200 pupils last year, none this year.

He asked not to be identified to avoid reprisals against the agency's projects and workers.

"The teacher in the rural school is much more resourceful," said Norman Tattersall, a Canadian who is local director of World Vision, another voluntary agency. "They are not waiting for chalk for the blackboard. They're out writing on the ground."

Another agency planned to donate desks, blackboards and notebooks to the pupils using brick and board desks in Copinolito, Chalatenango, and to other schools in the northern area.

At the school in Soyapango, sitting atop a curve in the rocky street, a gray-haired teacher counted the small pile of bills and coins on the wooden table that serves as her desk.

"We're taking up a collection for the classrooms we're building," she said. "We've been trying to build these three classrooms for three years." It added up to $27.50, short of the $95 needed.

BILL

sent about $1 million as a consequence. That amount is to decrease 5 percent the following year.

Determination of school district property values are to be made yearly, not every three years or so as they have been done, the superintendent said. Area property values are now being re-evaluated by the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District staff, as industries are estimated to be 10 percent residences 52 percent under-valued.

Required student-teacher ratios of no greater than 20 to one should not be a problem in HISD, Holder thought. He allowed class size restrictions of 22 in the primary grades, however, could complicate matters during the migrant workers' season in September and October.

Another mandated service is tutorial help, which HISD is to offer an hour per day after school, Holder hoped. He proposed having one tutor per grade at elementary institutions and one per department at the secondary level.

Holder's explanations and comments were based on a nine-page synopsis of H.B. 72 by the Texas Association of School Administrators.

Government ordering air bags

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to order air bags or automatic seat belts in new cars beginning with some 1987 models, but will let automakers off the hook if enough states pass mandatory seat belt laws, according to administration sources.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole was said by aides to have struggled to develop a plan that would be accepted by all sides in the 15-year-old controversy. But advocates and critics of air bags agree no matter what the proposal is, it likely will be challenged in court.

Even though the proposal had yet to be formally announced, consumer and auto-safety advocate Ralph Nader already was criticizing it as "a snare and a delusion."

"It postpones for several more years needed safety protection in cars and carries with it a high vulnerability to auto industry lobbying later this decade," Nader said.

A news conference was scheduled for today to provide details of the new regulations.

Party unity elusive for Mondale

Just five days before the Democratic National Convention convenes in San Francisco, Walter F. Mondale struggled to gather the elusive threads of party unity while his year-long opponents, Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, continued to walk their independent paths.

Hart took on President Reagan in a hardhitting foreign policy address and insisted, "I'm in the race to stay." Digging in his heels, he said he, too, has a list of potential running mates, and Mondale's on it — along with former Rep. Barbara Jordan.

On the heels of his complaint that Mondale was catering to the Jewish community in not considering him for the No. 2 spot, Jackson said he would soon meet for discussions with Jewish leaders.

Despite the potential for convention week discord, a Mondale aide said the former vice president was confident there would be convention unity. Jackson's complaints "raise questions, but there is not a deep concern that we're going to find ourselves in a contentious convention next week," said spokesman Don Foley.

Warplanes destroy boat

Iraq says its jetfighters and navy ships destroyed a large ship, presumably an oil tanker, near an Iranian oil field in the northeast end of the Persian Gulf. Its claim followed an attack, allegedly by Iran, on a British tanker in the gulf.

There was no immediate confirmation of the Iraqi attack and no word on the nationality of the stricken vessel, which an Iraqi military communique late Tuesday referred to as a "big naval target." That phrase when used by the Iraqi military usually refers to an oil tanker.

Neither Iran or Iraq commented on reports earlier Tuesday from shipping sources in Kuwait and Bahrain who described an attack on the British tanker in international gulf waters.

Lloyd's of London, the British vessel's insurer, said the identity of the attackers was still unknown. But shipping sources in Bahrain said the attacking jet was believed to be Iranian.

British Petroleum, which owns the tanker, said none of the crew of 24 Britons and two Maltese were injured.

One missile reportedly ricocheted off the deck, and the other was said to have ignited a small fire, which the crew quickly put out.

Churchmen denounce priest expulsions

By JUAN MALTES Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Managua's archbishop says the leftist government branded itself as a "totalitarian regime" by expelling 10 Roman Catholic priests. His condemnation was echoed by the Vatican and the U.S. State Department.

Nine of the priests flew to San Jose, Costa Rica, where they held a news conference Tuesday. One of them said five of the nine were among 27 priests who took part in a protest march Monday led by Managua Archbishop Miguel Obando y Bravo.

The 10 priests were arrested by immigration agents shortly after the protest march, staged in support of another priest accused by the Sandinista government of subversion.

The whereabouts of the tenth priest ordered expelled, the Rev. Benito Laplante of Canada, were unknown Tuesday night. The official Voice of Nicaragua radio said Laplante was at the office of the papal nuncio in Managua, but nuncio secretary Paul Goebels denied this.

Nicaragua said it expelled the priests because they were "taking part in plans to provoke a confrontation between the church and the state."

However, Obando y Bravo rejected the allegations and condemned the expulsions.

"We energetically protest the priests' expulsion," he said Tuesday. "It is part of Sandinista policy to continue to undermine the church, since they chose (for deportation) the priests who most work with workers and peasants and the least favored classes."

Obando y Bravo called the expulsions "an event of great significance, which is seen only in totalitarian regimes."

In Costa Rica, the archbishop of San Jose, Roman Arrieta, celebrated mass with the nine priests after their arrival in the capital.

In his homily, Arrieta told worshippers: "There were still in the world men and women of good will who did not believe a totalitarian regime had enthroned itself in Nicaragua. Now those people know the truth."

The Rev. Mario Fiamdri of Italy, one of the nine who were flown to Costa Rica, said the church in Nicaragua is being harassed because "it is the only institution that can raise its voice in protest."

Relations between the Sandinistas and the church have deteriorated rapidly in the last month, when the government accused the Rev. Luis Amado Pena of supplying explosives to U.S.-backed rebels. The march on Monday was held in Pena's behalf.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano on Tuesday said the expulsions were an "extremely grave" development that appeared to be unjustified.

Sandinista militants interrupted an outdoor Mass celebrated here by Pope John Paul II in March 1983.

In Managua, the opposition newspaper La Prensa decided not to publish Tuesday after government censors rejected stories and photos on the expulsion, said newspaper director Pedro Joaquin Chamorro Barrios.

It was the 25th time editors at the newspaper chose not to publish because of government censorship. On two occasions, the government shut down the paper.

Ranchers prompted to sell cattle

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Unable to feed their herds on parched pastureland, West Texas cattle ranchers lined up for a half a mile to sell thousands of head of livestock at the weekly Abilene Auction in what some cattlemen called the largest turnout in recent years.

"It's just a disaster, is what it is, for farmers and ranchers," said Waddell Strain, co-owner of the auction barn. Strain estimated that "we'll have over 4,000 head of cattle today (Tuesday) — the most we've had in several years."

If so, that would be more than double the number sold each of the last two Tuesdays. Last Tuesday, 1,800 head of cattle and calves were sold, and 1,978 were auctioned Tuesday, June 26.

Strain said the dry weather has created hard economic times that are leaving cattlemen "out of water and out of feed."

Thomas Hyde, of Sweetwater, and his wife waited in line for more than two hours along Interstate 20 with a trailer full of cattle.

"I just ran out of food for them. I've been haying for a few weeks, but this is it," Hyde said.

Keith Bible, assistant Taylor County extension agent for agricutrue, said, cattlemen were opting to sell their herds instead of buying feed.

"The ranges are very sparse and most of the cattle (in our area) are probably going to be sold," Bible said. "People are having to pull a lot of the cattle off the grass so they (the cattle) won't destroy what little is left."

He said the West Texas market has been "somewhat like this off and on in the last couple of years, with the weather like it's been."

Tuesday's forecast for Abilene, historically a trade and distribution center for a wide West Texas ranching and farming region, called for more hot weather and no rain.

"You could duplicate the forecast and use it for the next two weeks," said Lonnie King of the National Weather Service office at Abilene's Municipal Airport.

Abilene's official rainfall to date this year is 4.53 inches — less than half the normal amount, according to the weather service.

Normal through July 10 is 11.83 inches.

Tuesday morning, the line of cattle trailers at Abilene Auction reached from the barns out to the interstate and continued for the most part through the afternoon. Almost all were cattle, although several horses were in the trailers.

In addition to the regular buyers, the strong market sales are attracting cattle buyers from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, Strain said.

"It was a seller's dream, and a producer's nightmare," wrote Abilene Reporter News Farm Editor Daniel Burgess.

"A little rain won't help much. It's already too late for that," Burgess added.

Asked to confirm whether the sell-off was caused by the weather, he replied, "That's 100 percent of what it is."

Abilene Auction's regular sales days are Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, he said.

Chili Cook-off activities to begin Saturday morning

Chili lovers of all ages are invited to the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage center on Saturday for the third annual Hall of Fame Chili Cook-Off. The event is being planned to benefit the Hall of Fame.

Gates will open at 9 a.m., with goody bags to be presented to the first 50 cooks. A cooks' meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m., with turn-in time for chili judging set for 2:30 p.m.

The public is welcome to taste the chili and to participate in the other activities throughout the day for a $2 admission fee (children under 12 free). Showmanship is scheduled to begin at 12 noon, and a break dancing contest, hairy leg contest, egg toss, and cream pie auction are planned later in the afternoon.

The pie auction will feature Joe Kerr, Karen Payne, Susan Barrett and several other local residents who have volunteered to be auctioned off to the highest bidder who will then have the privilege of throwing a pie in their faces. Jim Tucker of Friona will be the auctioneer of the cream pie auctions.

A total of 16 trophies, donated by Robert and Elsie Lloyd, will be awarded during the cook-off festivities. Ten chili trophies are to be presented to the best chili cooks, and three showmanship trophies will be given to the showmanship teams rated highest in that competition. In addition, a humanitarian trophy is to be given to the cook who collects the most money for the Hall of Fame, a traveling trophy will be presented to the participant traveling the farthest, and the people's choice trophy will go to the cook voted the best by the general public.

wishing to enter the cook-off may inquire at the Hall of Fame (phone 364-5252). Entry fee is $15.

Points are awarded to winning cooks according to Chili Appreciation Society International (C.A.S.I.) and Tolbert rules. Cooks may qualify with points obtained at approved cook-offs to be eligible for the World Cook-off at Terlingua.

Among the local judges are Randy Griffin, Bob White, Frances Berry and Clint Formby.

Booths with barbecue, cokes, lemonade and iced tea, as well as souvenirs, will be featured along with the chili booths. Cooks or showmanship teams

YMCA Men's Champs

The best sportsmanship award in the just-concluded YMCA Men's Church Softball League went to Frio Baptist Church. Four members of the team accepting the award

Until the nineteenth century, solid blocks of tea were used as money in Siberia.

Niekro sees no action

Nationals beat Americans, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was a pitchers' game, and to the displeasure of 45-year-old Phil Niekro, a young pitchers' game.

"It's the knuckleball that gets me here and the knuckleball that keeps me from pitching," Niekro said after Tuesday night's 55th All-Star Game, won 3-1 by the National League.

Ten other pitchers, the oldest age 33, combined for 21 strikeouts, an All-Star Game record. National League pitchers fanned 11 batters, American League pitchers 10.

"There were a lot of hard throwers out there and we were all hitting our spots," said Bill Caudill of the Oakland A's.

He was the most impressive on the AL side, coming on in the seventh inning and firing third strikes by the only three batters he faced, Tim Raines, Ryne Sandberg and Keith Hernandez.

Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers and rookie Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets each had three-strikeout innings, combining in the fourth and fifth for an All-Star record six consecutive strikeouts.

"Every pitcher was deadly tonight," said the Detroit Tigers' Chet Lemon, the fifth batter to whiff in the six-man string. "I'm sure the twilight conditions had something to do with it. We (hitters) were having trouble picking up the rotation on the ball when Valenzuela came in.

"But we're not making excuses. All those pitchers who struck us out are having good years, and our pitchers dealt it to them pretty good, too." "Gooden is in a class by himself," Lemon said of the young right-hander whose fastball travels at well over 90 mph. "He throws hard, and he's deceptive, too, because he throws smooth, so smooth.

"He's one of the hardest throwers in baseball, and I'm sure the fact he's 19 years old is one of the reasons."

Niekro definitely would have changed Tuesday night's pitching tempo. He has survived and thrived in major league baseball by fooling hitters with his wobbly tosses.

So far this season with the New York Yankees, he has 11 victories and a league-leading 1.84 earned run average. But he never even got up in the American League bullpen Tuesday night.

"It's old hat — five All-Star Games and I've pitched to four batters," Niekro said. "I was just keeping seats warm tonight. I'm just a wasted uniform, a wasted body."

Niekro's All-Star record is a perfect 1-3 innings, with two strikeouts, in his two brief appearances.

The duo of Lana Kosub and Terry Morgan finished first in the girls 7-9 grade. Misty Stokes and Lewis Block were second. Alisa and R.C. Hoelscher came in third.

T.J. and James Head took first in 5-6 grade boys. Chris and Carolyn Canon came in second, followed by Brandon Flood and Patsy Hoffman.

The winners of the girls 5-6 grade were Libby Kosub and Janet McWhorter. Kristi and Kathy Allison finished second.

In the 3-4 grade boys and girls division, Teresa and Cindy Baker placed first. Jake and Poppy Head came in second and Temple and Temple Abney were third.

Still openings for kids YMCA tennis

Coach Ruben "Pudgy" Vargas will be instructing tennis lessons for Hereford YMCA's Summer Tennis Classes.

First session is July 16-20. Enrollment is limited to 16 youngsters from grade-school age through junior high.

Students will meet with Vargas 9-10 a.m. at the Hereford High School tennis courts.

The second session, also limited to 16 participants, is to run from July 23-27.

Youths are asked to furnish own racquet and can of tennis balls.

Cost for the classes are $15 for YMCA members and $20 for nonmembers. For additional information or questions, contact Weldon Knabe at 364-6990.

New TV rights plan voted down

CHICAGO (AP) — After 32 years of determining which teams played college football on TV on which Saturdays, the NCAA has been banished from the television business — at least for the time being — by members who voted to take matters and revenue into their own hands.

By a 66-44 vote Tuesday, the football-playing institutions of Division I-A voted down a hastily arranged, one-year NCAA plan that would have replaced one killed recently by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"My own gut feeling is that it came down to there being too much uncertainty and too little time," said NCAA President John Toner. "The vote also tells me that there was no way to keep everyone — and I mean everyone — together in one group."

But waiting to pick up the pieces, as well as most of the revenue, were the College Football Association, which claims 63 members, including most of the traditional powerhouses, or the Football Television Planning Committee, a coalition that enfolded the CFA as well as the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences.

The consensus among athletic directors attending the special meeting was that the coalition would likely emerge as the pivotal bargaining agent in the fall television picture.

The CFA already counts most of the traditional conference powers such as Alabama, Georgia, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas, as well as independent powers such as Notre Dame and Penn State among its number, and the inclusion of the Big Ten and Pac-10 would add enough key television markets to make the group almost as strong as the NCAA had been.

"This clearly demonstrated our inventory is a powerful show," said Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky and chairman of the CFA's television committee. "There's no way of knowing for sure if the coalition will come through, but it's been our position that would be the No. 1 choice."

The CFA and coalition groups set Thursday as the deadline for formal commitments from institutions that elect to participate in their respective plans for 1984. Before Tuesday's vote on the NCAA proposal, CFA members voted 60-0 with three abstentions to commit to either the CFA or the coalition plan.

"If we're not part of the coalition, we'll be part of the CFA," said Gene Corrigan, athletic director at Notre Dame, considered the one school that could write its own ticket because of consistently high TV ratings. "I think what ended the NCAA plan's chances were the worries that it would be everybody against everybody else. There wasn't enough to keep people in line."

Corrigan, who chairs the coalition's television committee, said its plannings many of the CFA proposals, but added, "There's a lot still to be worked out."

The CFA plan would not guarantee any national appearances and would limit any school to no more than four in the upcoming season. It also would grant some "exclusivity" to national networks on Saturdays — similar in many ways to the NCAA plan which the courts found to be in violation of federal antitrust laws.

The CFA also plans to turn over about 4 percent of its revenues to the NCAA to continue administering football-related programs, Singletary said.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said he expected conference members to make a decision on whether to join the coalition "within 24 hours."

"Whatever plan evolves, the Big Ten will continue to play a dominant role in college football," he added.

Pac-10 Executive Director Tom Hansen said, "We'll still discuss the coalition plan, but we're going to examine other options. The whole sports industry is slipping on TV and I'm afraid of what this will mean when we go in for renewals down the road."

Marijuana use by young people can affect development

Editor's note: The following information is part of an educational series of articles provided by the Drug Awareness Council of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Part one of this two-part series appeared in the Sunday, July 8, edition of The Brand.

MARIJUANA AND HEALTH THE REPRODUCTIVE SYSTEM

Marijuana use by young people during or prior to puberty can affect sexual development according to studies reported by the American Council for Drug Education. Active ingredients in marijuana, called cannabinoids, interfere with the nerve cells and hormone glands that control sexual development. In particular, marijuana affects the hypothalamus, which during puberty controls the release of hormones from the pituitary gland. THC, the psychoactive ingredient in marijuana, also is known to have an effect on developing ovaries and testes. Studies of young women found that the incidence of disrupted menstrual cycles was approximately three times higher in women who used marijuana. Males who used marijuana daily also were studied and found to have up to 44 percent less of the hormone testosterone. This hormone is secreted daily by the body and controls development of male characteristics and the production of sperm. In male fetuses, testosterone controls the initial development of the sex organs and is involved with programming the brain for hormone secretion. The effect of marijuana on future generations is unknown but the Council reports that studies have associated symptoms of abnormalities of the nervous system and low birth weight of offspring with marijuana use by the mother during pregnancy.

MARIJUANA USE AND DRIVING

Use of marijuana is having an effect on traffic safety, creating a potential for serious consequences on the highway. For example, a California study indicated that 25 percent of those arrested for unsafe driving were found to be under the influence of marijuana.

Studies reported by the American Council for Drug Education have found that marijuana users experience a decrease awareness of themselves and of the environment around them for three to five hours after using the drug.

Other side effects of marijuana can include a distorted sense of time, inability to judge distances and speed, reduced peripheral vision, impaired immediate memory, lack of coordination and sleepiness—all of which can create driving hazards.

Marijuana use among the nation's young, coupled with the relative lack of driving experience of these drivers, indicates a potential for increased accidents and fatalities on U.S. highways and city streets.

COCAINE AND HEALTH

The number of deaths and convulsions caused by cocaine is increasing at an alarming rate, said Dr. Mark Gold, founder of a national cocaine help hotline, "800-COCAINE," and author of the book, "800-COCAINE."

The increased number of deaths and epileptic type convulsions, Gold says, is due to more widespread use of the drug and to the amount and method of administration.

Known effects of cocaine abuse include heart failure, respiratory paralysis and convulsions, all of which can result in death. These physical dangers are on the increase as cocaine sold illegally is becoming purer, Gold said.

Other side effects of cocaine use include raised body temperature and increased blood pressure and heart rate.

Ann Landers

The girls choice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old son just informed us that his 15-year-old girlfriend is pregnant. We knew they were going steady but had no idea they were into anything as heavy as this.

My husband and I went over to talk to the girl's mother. She is divorced. Her ex-husband has remarried and couldn't care less about this girl. The mother feels that her daughter should have an abortion. She has missed only one period so the pregnancy is in the early stages. The girl has agreed to go along with her mother's thinking.

My husband and I are strong Catholics and very much opposed to abortion. To us it is the same as murder. We realize our son is too young to assume the responsibilities of fatherhood, but we are willing to raise the baby.

The girls' mother told us she had a long talk with her brother who is an attorney and he said, according to law, the decision rests with the pregnant female. There is no way she can be forced to have an abortion if she doesn't want one, nor can she be prevented from having an abortion if she decides it is the course she wants to follow.

We find this difficult to believe and are begging you to rush an answer.—Bay Area Parents

DEAR PARENTS: The woman has given you the correct information. The pregnant teenager does indeed have this choice, irrespective of the fact that the father of the unborn child might be a strong Catholic.

The law gives her this right because HER body undergoes the changes and HER future is at stake. Moreover, she has no guarantee that her boyfriend will be supportive, or even present when he is needed.

If you can't persuade the girl to see things your way, there is nothing you can do but suggest counseling. Planned Parenthood does an excellent job. Look in the phone book.

DEAR ANN: May I comment on your recent letter, "Caring for Elderly Parent Not Easy for Children"?

It is interesting that millions of parents have gone to court in an effort to keep their children, but never have I heard of a child going to court to fight for the right to keep a parent.

When I am old, I hope my children will want me as much as I wanted them when they were young. Sign me—Looking Ahead And Wondering

President is honored guest

Lady Bertha Powers, president of Department Association Ladies Auxiliary Patriarchs Militant, was the honored guest of Hereford L.A.P.M. No. 36 and Palo Duro L.A.P.M. No. 38 Friday at Odd Fellow Hall in Hereford.

Lt. Col. Russel Powers accompanied Lady Powers on her journey. Other visiting dignitaries were Major General Earl Ray Parrish, Dept. Comm. of Patriarchs Militant of Texas and Lady Maria Parrish. Also, George Campbell, Lt. Col. Deputy Comm 1st Reg. 3rd Brig. and Grand Herald and Lady Carolyn Campbell, state musician from Amarillo.

Lady Powers emphasized her motto, "Love One Another," urging all members to consider it in all that they do. Maj. Gen. Parrish stressed membership and stated that the I.O.O.F. is the only fraternity in America privileged to have a military branch that can wear a military uniform.

A covered dish supper was served prior to the meeting. Others present were Retired Dept. Comm. Ben Conklin, Cheveliers Perry Stevens of Amarillo and Charlie Wise of Friona, Charles Clark of Amarillo, Ladies Wilma Wise, Friona, Betty Stevens, Thelma Turner, department nurse, Vera Cole, Maxie Clark, and Alice Wade of Amarillo, and from Hereford, Ladies Helen Bishop, Nellie Beauford, Lydia Hopson, Anna Conklin, Ruth Rogers and Susie Curtsinger.

BARBECUE TIME MACEDONIA, Ohio (AP) — If an outdoor barbecue is on the agenda this summer, chances are some spring cleaning is in order.

Larry Albright of Aerosol Systems recommends a pre-season scrub with a commercially available oven cleaner followed by a rubdown with steel wool.

Touch up the exterior with a heat-resistant paint, he says, then spray the grill with a non-stick food product before each outing.

DEAR WONDERING: The question you raised must have hit some hot buttons across the country. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everybody reads your column. I can think of no better way to get a simple message to millions of people. It is a point of common courtesy when using the telephone.

If you reach a wrong number it takes very little effort to say, "Sorry, I have misdialed," or "I have a wrong number. Excuse me."

How much more civilized than banging the receiver down on a person's ear. Thanks, Ann. —Bugged In

Rochester

DEAR BUGGED: I agree, but more than bad manners is involved. The misdialer is mad at himself. That mistake cost him time and money.

For weekend reunion

Descendants of J.C. Womble gather

Area descendants of Hereford pioneer J.C. Womble gathered here Saturday afternoon to greet visiting relatives from California and Fort Worth.

The impromptu reunion, held in the Community Room of Hereford State Bank, was attended by 42 members of the Womble family. The event was staged to coincide with visits from Mr. and Mrs. Bob Womble of Fort Worth and Mrs. Leslie Schenkel and Heidi of Petaluma, Calif.

A buffet of sandwiches and cookies was enjoyed by family members, who visited until the evening hours. Friends in attendance were Eva Phillips and Blanche Diwiddie, both of Amarillo.

Out-of-town relatives at the reunion were Madge Holley, Irene Barker, Curt Lowe, R.L. and Nona Deen Dowell, Arvell Williams, Lell and Sandy Womble, Lewis and Barbara Womble and Brucie Rose, all of Amarillo; and the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Land and Michael of Canyon.

Attending locally were Ethel Womble, Robert and Alice Thompson, Benny and Joan Womble, Zoe Williams, Bill and Marcella Brady, Kerrie Steiert and Jaime, Janet Moody and Kyle, and Dub and Wilma Curtsinger.

Also, Wayne Phillips, Don DeLozier, Ed and Carlynn DeLozier and Carl, Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Smith and Delmo and Nell Williams.

Ford ice cream social planned

The Ford Extension Homemakers Club will sponsor an ice cream social for residents of the Ford Community at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Ford School.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring sandwiches for their family and homemade ice cream or cake. Beverages, chips and relishes will be furnished.
