On repository timetable

TENRAC hopes to slow down DOE

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

The ideal situation for Deaf Smith County would be to be nominated for a nuclear waste repository site, but not recommended, according to a Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council representative.

Steve Frishman told the approximately 300 attendants of POWER (People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories) Tuesday night that from the six sites chosen by the Department of Energy, one will go into reserve for future consideration, two will be cast out forever and three recommended. From the three recommended, one will be named as the site and the other two put in reserve. However, Frishman said he doubts the county will be so lucky to be one of the two cast out.

Several groups and individuals gave opposition to the nuclear waste dumpsite during the first meeting of POWER, moderated by Dr. Tim Revell. The High Plains Gas Users, Texas Corn Growers Association, and the Farm Bureau noted group opposition.

Frishman said one his agency's goals is to put the brakes on DOE's accelerated calendar. That is being done now by demanding specific guidelines from DOE. He said one problem with DOE's standards is that guidelines for the repository are "wholly inadequate." Many of his queries are answered with "the engineers can take care of it," Frishman said.

He said the state agency is also wary that, since the DOE is running about 1 1/2 years ahead of schedule, a site possibly could be named this summer only days after the July 7 deadline finalizing the guidelines. The original schedule calls for three nominations in January 1985.

He said that so far there are no real qualifications for a site, nor rules for what could disqualify a site.

The recent bulletin that Deaf Smith County had been chosen for the final three, was somewhat hastily leaked, according to Frishman. He said more data concerning critical elements of seismic measurements and questions about faulting in the county would be coming in rapidly through June.

"The new data will at least provide credible data," he said.

Frishman said his office has expanded the agendas of scoping hearings in April to include public comment on guidelines and what the public thinks of the locations in Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties. "All of the hurry-up planning is aimed at hitting that 1987 date," Frishman advised. March 31, 1987 is when the Secretary of Energy is to recommend a site to the president. Frishman said that although DOE act like 1987 is a firm date, a year allowance is available upon request to Congress.

The second site is to be recommended in 1990.

Senator Bill Sarpius has joined two other lawmakers to introduce a bill requiring a permitting process for shaft drilling. Frishman called the bill a "one shot deal." If not passed now, the law would not be prohibitive enough.

The legislation calls for rigorous technical information to be provided, including how the shaft will be built and what effect it would have on the water tables. It also calls for a mandatory public hearing on shaft drilling applications.

Frishman, Revell and several of the citizens urged letter-writing as one of the punches for the fight against the repository. Revell called attention to the potential contamination of underground water which feeds "clear to South Dakota" and supplies water for 176,000 irrigation wells on farmland for 25,000 square miles.

The crowd at the Hereford High Cafeteria was split about 60 percent county residents and about 40 percent city residents, according to a hand-count survey.

A slide presentation of "Don't Waste America" was shown before Frishman's talk.

POWER will continue to meet on Tuesday nights with speakers scheduled from DOE and its contracted research agency, Battelle.

What You See....

Robert "Geraldine" Mercer's antics weren't enough to get David Ruland elected secretary of the Lions Club Tuesday night, but the crowd enjoyed the spectacle anyway. Chris White defeated Ruland for the office.

Ed Line elected Lions' president

Ed Line was elected president of the Hereford Lions Club Tuesday evening as the club held its annual election party and ladies' night at the community center. Line, and the new slate of officers, will take over the leadership of the club in July. He will replace Charles Watson as "Boss Lion."

A good crowd of Lions, their wives and guests, including District 2T-1 Governor James Thames, attended the event, which included the usual posters and campaign propaganda as well as the popular "speeches" by campaign chairmen of the presidential and secretarial candidates.

Joining Line in being elected Tuesday night were vice presidents Troy Sublett, Bob Nigh, and Rex Lee; Chris White, secretary; Benny Womble, treasurer; Jackie

White and Jerry Smith, tall twisters; Jerry Morgan and K. Don Spurgin, directors; and Temple Abney and Jay Eubanks, lion tamers.

Line out-pollled Greg Black for the club's top office, while White defeated David Ruland in the race for secretary.

Rocky Lee was Line's campaign chairman, while Sid Shaw touted Black's qualifications. Charlie Bell led the crowd-cheering for White, while Robert Mercer kept the crowd in stitches in his skit for Ruland.

The incoming officers will be voting delegates to the District 2T-1 Convention in mid-April, and will be looking forward to the International Convention Hawaii later this summer. The club will send Line and White as its official representatives to the international meeting of the Lions Clubs.

Gasoline, oil drops fuel consumer prices tumble

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record declines in gasoline and fuel oil prices sent consumer prices tumbling 0.2 percent last month, the government said today. It was only the second time since 1965 that consumers' costs have actually fallen.

Gasoline prices plummeted 6.7 percent; over the last four months they have fallen 10.8 percent. Fuel oil prices fell 4.7 percent.

The costs of food and housing were unchanged. Medical care expenses soared 0.8 percent.

Today's report from the Labor Department — following three months of little or no gain — boosted economists' predictions that the Consumer Price Index for all of 1983 may match last year's 3.9 percent, the smallest rise in a decade.

As for gasoline and home heating oil, economists say they expect even further declines in the coming months as a result of OPEC's decision last week to slash its base price for crude oil by $5 a barrel, to $29.

Today's report said that gasoline prices, as of last month, were 16.6 percent below their peak level of March 1981. Last month's record drop came after a 3.3 percent decline in January and a 0.8 percent fall in December.

Food prices, unchanged last month, have risen only 0.8 percent in the last 12 months. Economists, however, expect those prices to pick up somewhat later this year, partly as a result of the heavy farmer participation in the Reagan administration's new Payment in Kind program to trim price-depressing crop surpluses.

Analysts also say the heavy rains on the West Coast may have damaged California fruit and vegetable crops so severely that prices will rise further. Last month, however, those prices tumbled sharply.

Food prices had risen 0.1 percent in January after being unchanged in both November and December.

Last month, fruit and vegetable prices fell 1 percent. Prices for meat, poultry, fish and eggs rose a slight 0.1 percent, as did prices for dairy products. Cereal and bakery goods prices rose 0.3 percent while restaurant meal prices were unchanged and prices for alcoholic beverages rose 0.5 percent.

For the last 12 months, consumer prices overall have risen 3.5 percent.

If last month's 0.2 percent (See PRICES, Page 2)

show adversaries how good — or how bad — U.S. capabilities are.

"These will not be the most dramatic photos we could present because of our concern for revealing methods and sources of intelligence-gathering capabilities," said the official.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, strongly indicated Reagan will not use tonight's speech as a forum to make new arms proposals for limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

The pictures that Reagan will display have been used previously in classified briefings and are the type that have been seen by members of congressional intelligence committees, the official added.

However, the official said the pictures are not among the most recent ones available to U.S. intelligence agencies.

An administration official, speaking anonymously, said Reagan would display now-secret photos that document the existence of Soviet-supplied arms and installations in Central America and perhaps in the Middle East. As president, he is empowered to declassify secret material.

Intelligence specialists have long been opposed to disclosure of reconnaissance photos from spy planes and satellites, arguing it would show adversaries how good — or how bad — U.S. capabilities are.

An administration official said the pictures probably would be those taken by high-altitude aircraft, instead of by super-secret space satellites which reportedly are capable of taking pictures from as far out as 25,000 miles.

Reagan to reveal photos of Soviet-supplied weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, stepping up his sales campaign for a big Pentagon buildup, will reveal on television tonight secret aerial photos of Soviet-supplied weapons and installations in trouble spots around the world, a senior White House official said today.

Reagan will speak from the Oval Office at 8 p.m. EST.

The photographs are expected to document the existence of Soviet-supplied arms and installations in Central America and perhaps in the Middle East. The materials were declassified in recent days.

Intelligence specialists have long been opposed to disclosure of reconnaissance photos from spy planes and satellites, arguing it would

Tests slated for Siamese twins

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Doctors were more hopeful that Siamese twins born here could be separated following the detection of two heartbeats, a hospital spokesman said.

Officials at Providence Memorial Hospital also said they expected results today from tests made to determine if the newborns' livers are attached.

Doctors detected two separate heartbeats during the twin girls' second day of life Tuesday.

"That means it's that much stronger that there will be less of a problem in the separation" of the two girls, said Gary Conwell, Providence's public relations director.

But he said that doctors caution that the dual heartbeats don't guarantee the hearts aren't attached.

Chances are slim the babies, who were in stable condition, can survive if their hearts and gall bladders are attached, Conwell said.

Preliminary tests indicate "a significant sharing of major organ tissues," said Dr. Richard Heath.

The twins were named

Brenda Ivon and Miriam Aracely Hernandez on Tuesday by their parents, Maria Delores and Raul Hernandez of Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

Hernandez, 27, who had been worried and incredulous at first, said Tuesday that his

Senate nears bailout for Social Security system

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only one major fight remaining, the Senate is looking toward passage of a landmark package to rescue the faltering Social Security system with higher payroll taxes, a curb on benefits and an increased retirement age.

The Senate was set today to end a week of wrangling on the bipartisan $165 billion rescue plan and send it to congressional negotiators who will work out the differences with a version passed by the House on March 9.

Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., who is guiding the bill through the Senate, said he hoped the final vote would occur today.

Congressional leaders hoped both houses could then ratify the compromise package before leaving town at the end of the week for a 10-day Easter recess.

The last issue that stood in the way of passage was over a provision to extend Social Security coverage to new federal workers.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., a 34-year veteran of parliamentary skirmishes in the Senate, was leading the battle for an amendment to delay mandatory coverage for federal workers until Congress approves a supplementary pension plan for civil servants.

Opponents said that Long's amendment would amount a major change in the delicate bailout plan and could unravel the entire package.

For the most part, the Senate has followed the lead of the House and stayed close to the recommendations of the National Commission on Social Security Reform.

Those recommendations called for higher payroll taxes, a six-month freeze on benefit increases, a levy on

House committee approves tickets

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee has OK'd a bill allowing police officers to give tickets for misdemeanor offenses — a bill that an anti-drug group says will lead children to believe that drug use, prostitution and homosexuality are condoned by the state.

The Criminal Jurisprudence Committee voted 6-1 Tuesday in favor of an amended version of Rep. Bill Blanton's bill. The revised version requires ticketed suspects to show up for booking within two days. Blanton, R-Farmers Branch, had called for a 10-day period.

Although the bill does not reduce penalties, the Texas War on Drugs Committee argued the measure would give the appearance of condoning some drug offenses.

"If you want to send a message to our kids that it's OK to use drugs, that it's not bad to be a homosexual, it's all right to be a prostitute, then you need to pass this bill," Rick Salwen of the War on Drugs Committee testified earlier this month.

Under the bill recommended by the committee on Tuesday, ticketed suspects would have to show up within two days for routine booking procedures and to have bond set.

Rep. Tom Waldrop, D-Corsicana, sided with the War on Drugs Committee.

He said that as a father of five and grandfather of nine, "I've found that the trauma of being arrested, dragged to the station and being mugged and (finger) printed" serves a "constructive" purpose in reducing crime.

But Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, said the proposal could keep police on the street, rather than spending their time doing paperwork.

Panel approves limit on insanity defense

AUSTIN (AP) — A criminal defendant would have to prove he was "severely" mentally ill and did not know his actions were wrong before a jury could acquit him as insane under a bill cleared for the full Senate.

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, was sent to the Senate floor on a 9-2 vote by the Senate Jurisprudence Committee on Tuesday.

It would also allow judges to keep tabs on defendants found not guilty because of insanity.

Farabee said he became interested in the subject after a jury in his district acquitted a woman who said she cut her child's heart out because she thought the little girl was possessed.

Under current law, a defendant can try to prove either that he did not know his actions were wrong or that he was incapable of conforming his behavior to the law in question — a fine line of difference, but one important to defense attorneys, many of whom had testified against the bill.

Farabee wants to give defendants only one defense — that they did not know what they were doing was wrong.

The two dissenting senators, Craig Washington, D-Houston, and Tati Santesteban, D-El Paso, wanted to leave the two avenues of defense intact.

Senators discuss government response

AUSTIN (AP) — When a tank truck leaked a hazardous insecticide in San Antonio March 13, seven hours elapsed before the city's public health director, Dr. Courand Rothe, was notified.

"I have no argument with what was done" to contain the spill, Rothe testified Tuesday. "But I should have been notified."

Rothe addressed the House Subcommittee on Public Health, which met to investigate state and local government response to toxic spills.

The hearing was prompted by three unrelated accidents last week in Waco, Lukin and San Antonio involving hazardous chemicals.

Subcommittee Chairman Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said the hearing was prompted by the seven-hour time lapse Rothe complained about, as well as a time lag of four days before the March 13 incident was officially reported to the Environmental Protection Agency.

Thirty homes were evacuated in San Antonio after the tank truck was discovered leaking the chemical Mevinphos. Traffic was re-routed and local health officials ordered food in the vicinity destroyed. Five people were overcome by fumes.

The next day, a freight train derailed in Hallsburg, near Waco, spilling two to five gallons of the industrial solvent Phenol. The Hallsburg Elementary School was closed and 400 people within a half-mile radius were evacuated.

A Dow Chemical spokesman said the spill was contained five hours after company officials were notified, but Truan said he sees the need for better communication between local, state and federal agencies.

Injured teacher's transfer delayed

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The bodies of three women killed in a weekend automobile accident in Mexico, and held there until international red tape was cleared, were set to be flown to Dallas today for services planned here.

Killed in the crash were Jane Wells, 50, a government teacher; Margaret Tucker, 63, a retired teacher; and Helen Ziesenheim, 53, an art teacher. All were from Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Wells' son-in-law, Jerry Norris, said the bodies were to be loaded onto a jet in Mexico City at 7 a.m. today for the flight to Dallas, then transferred to Wichita Falls.

The survivor of the accident, Retta Tinney, remains hospitalized in Mexico City pending her transfer to a Dallas hospital.

Mrs. Tinney, a Wichita Falls home economics teacher, posted a bond totaling about $630, officials said.

Michael Urniak, an aide to U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower of Vernon, said Tuesday that Mrs. Tinney could not be transferred to Dallas from the American-British Hospital in Mexico City until she posted a 100,000 peso bond, which equals $628.93 at Tuesday's exchange rate.

Mrs. Tinney was injured when the car she reportedly was driving had a tire blow out and veered out of control near San Miguel Allende, Mexico, early Saturday.

Democrats taking gamble on alternate budget victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are making an all-or-nothing gamble that they have the votes for approval of an $863.6 billion alternative budget for fiscal 1984 which President Reagan attacked as a return to the big government days of the 1960s.

The House was scheduled to vote today on a budget blueprint which cuts Reagan's defense buildup by more than half, allows a $30 billion tax increase next year and increases spending for many domestic programs the president wants to cut.

"This is a radical departure," said Republican Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas, who switched parties last year after battling as a Democrat in support of Reaganomics.

Another Republican, Newt Gingrich of Georgia, said the Democratic proposal "kills jobs, kills savings, kills incentives."

Democratic Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas noted the record budget deficits and 10 percent proposed increase in military spending in Reagan's budget and said, "What we are trying to do is restore some sense of balance."

In a key test vote on Tuesday, the House agreed 230 to 187 to a voting procedure which closes off the Congressional Black Caucus and southern conservative Democrats, the so-called Boll Weevils, from proposing budget alternatives of their own.

Preventing black House members from seeking to further slow the increase in defense spending or adding to social programs "is an insult to black people, to working people...," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., a leader of the Black Caucus.

Nonetheless, there were only 30 defections among conservative and liberal Democrats on the procedural vote. House Democratic sources said on the vote on the budget itself, they can afford to lose up to 48 among the total 268 House Democrats.

None of the 166 House Republicans voted with the Democrats on Tuesday, but a handful of GOP switches are expected today.

Whatever the outcome, the vote was expected to be close.

Reagan has waged an unceasing war against the Democratic budget plan, but House Republicans have not introduced the president's own budget proposal in the certain belief that it would be soundly defeated.

In the Senate, Reagan also faces problems from Republicans who also oppose his $245.3 billion defense budget, which would raise the Pentagon budget by 10 percent after inflation is counted.

Reagan said earlier this week that if the military spending levels suggested by the Democrats became law, "Nothing could bring greater joy to the Kremlin than seeing the United States abandon its rebuilding program after barely one year."

The president scheduled a nationally-televised address tonight to warn against the impact if Congress refuses to approve his own defense program for 1984, and has been personally lobbying House members by telephone.

Economic relief bill stalls short of passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4.6 billion recession relief bill stalled just short of final congressional approval, hung up in a complex dispute over how to distribute money to hard-pressed regions of the country.

Congressional leaders said late Tuesday they expected to win passage today, providing not only money for food, shelter and public works jobs, but also an additional $5 billion in loan and grant money needed urgently to continue unemployment benefits in more than two dozen states.

President Reagan has indicated through aides he would sign the bill.

Both houses approved the overall shape of the bill easily on Tuesday — the House on a vote of 329-86 and the Senate on an 82-15 roll call.

To alleviate the longest recession since World War II, the measure provides about $325 million in food and shelter for the needy and more than $400 million in additional funds for a variety of social programs.

There is also $1 billion in grants to local governments, of which $375 million may go to pay for public service jobs. That was a provision advocated by women's groups, who complained that most of the public works construction jobs financed by the bill would go to men.

Most of the rest of the money would go for government building projects covering everything from highways and airports to flood control, repair of Veterans' Administration hospitals and Forest Service and Park Service projects.

Twins

hopes are high the twins will survive.

Heath, the El Paso pediatrician leading the examinations, said he couldn't recall any cases in which Siamese twins connected by the heart had been successfully separated.

"Something in the pit of my stomach tells me this may be OK, even though all the odds are against it," Heath said in a telephone interview. "I'm tremendously optimistic."

The exam scheduled today, called a heart catheterization test, will determine if such optimism is warranted, Heath said. Dye will be injected into the infants' hearts, and X-ray equipment will trace its flow through the blood stream.

Doctors examining the infants also were scheduled to review results of Tuesday's arteriogram to determine how extensively the livers are joined, if at all.

The girls, weighing six pounds each, have separate respiratory and cardiovascular systems, Conwell said.

They "move back and forth with each other," Conwell said. The babies occasionally flail out with the arms, striking the other, he said.

Two pediatricians who helped separate Siamese twins elsewhere in the country said the heart test is one of two exams that will determine the twins' chances for survival. The babies will have a good chance of living if their hearts and gall bladders are separate, they said.

"I think if you've got twins that are facing each other...

Arms

"There's a lot of debate going on about how much to reveal," the official said. "Whether we show the most sophisticated stuff — I doubt it."

For strategic reconnaissance outside the Soviet Union and China, the United States frequently uses the Blackbird SR-71 spy plane, which flies at above 100,000 feet.

Although aerial photos frequently appear grainy to the untrained eye, they can provide a wealth of information to photo interpreters. Pictures taken by satellite 150 miles above the Earth and beyond can show sharp details about personnel, missiles, submarines and tanks and can be used to track the progress of missile silo construction, according to military officials.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the major objective of tonight's speech "is to acquaint the American people to the threat we face."

Asked how the address would differ from Reagan's earlier speeches on national defense, Speakes said, "The president thinks its important to underscore his viewpoint on it, and to address it in what may be certain new terms."

After conferring with Reagan on defense issues, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., quoting the president as saying "he would allow some photographs to be used that might help share his concern about the threat that we face from the modernization program advanced by the Soviet Union."

Prices

decline held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly drop would be 2.4 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure the department makes public.

Consumer prices rose 0.2 percent in January, fell 0.3 percent in December and were unchanged in November.

The February and December declines were the only two recorded since the 0.1 percent drop of August 1965.

The department reported these other details of last month's consumer price activity:

—Natural gas prices rose 0.2 percent, after rising 1.7 percent in January. Analysts generally attribute this winter's higher gas prices to congressional decontrol of new-gas costs.

Speakes pointedly noted that congressmen have been urging Reagan to declassify some secret material and share it with the public.

"While I can't promise it, I would urge you to wait and see," said Speakes.

Administration strategists hope the speech will encourage Americans to put pressure on an increasingly balky Congress for a big increase in defense spending.

—The plummeting gasoline prices forced overall transportation costs down 1.6 percent for their fourth straight monthly decline. Automobile finance charges fell 2.7 percent for the seventh straight monthly fall in a row. New car prices were up 0.9 percent and used car prices rose 0.8 percent.

—The 0.8 percent increase in medical care costs matched the increases of the two previous months. Charges for physicians jumped 1 percent and hospital room fees soared 1.6 percent.

—Homeowners' costs were up 0.2 percent and renters' costs climbed 0.3 percent.

—Clothing costs rose 0.5 percent, reflecting an end to winter sales and the introduction of spring styles.

—Entertainment costs climbed 0.4 percent.

All the changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

and they've got a separate cardiovascular system in each one of them, that's an optimal case," said Dr. Franklin Harberg, chief of surgery for Texas Children's Hospital in Houston.

Harberg, who has helped separate two sets of Siamese twins, called the examination period "a matter of studying the hearts."

Dr. Mary Ann South, a former El Pasoan now on loan to the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., said the twins probably will die if they can't be separated.

"I don't think they could live for an extended time," she said.

Ms. South was the pediatrician for Siamese twins separated successfully by Dr. C. Everett Koop, now United States surgeon general.

the benefits going to more affluent retirees and the mandatory coverage for new federal workers and employees of non-profit organizations.

The Senate bill would raise the retirement age from 65 to 66 by one month a year between 2003 and 2015. It also would cut initial benefits for retirees in the next century by 5 percent.

The House bill would raise the retirement age to 66 by 2009 and to 67 by 2027, but not cut future benefits.

The bill also contains provisions revamping Medicare as well as a $2 billion, six-month extension of emergency jobless benefits. The measure would allow up to eight more weeks of benefits for workers who have exhausted 55 weeks of state and federal benefits before April 1. Some 1.6 million jobless workers would be affected.

On Tuesday, the Senate untangled itself from a fight over tax withholding on interest and dividends to begin its final push toward passage of the bill.

However, separating the volatile withholding issue from the Social Security bill required the efforts of President Reagan, Senate leaders and organized labor. The AFL-CIO sent its lobbyists to the Capitol to remind senators, especially Democrats from high-unemployment states, that aid for hard-core jobless would run out March 31 unless Congress quickly wrapped up the Social Security bill.

To Perform Sunday Night

The sanctuary choir from First Christian Church will perform an Easter musical entitled "Hosanna!" at 8 p.m. Sunday in the church sanctuary. The public is invited to this special presentation, which will be under the direction of Ray Owens, minister of music at First Christian. Biblical costume, staging, and lighting will be used to add special effects to the Easter story told in song and the spoken word. (Brand Photo by Linda Caudle).

First Christian choir schedules performance

The sanctuary choir from First Christian Church will present "Hosanna!" an Easter musical celebration by John Lee, on Palm Sunday evening, March 27, at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of the church.

The 40-voice choir will be in full costume as they present the Easter story in song and spoken word with dramatic effects including staging and lighting.

Cindy Burns is in charge of costuming and John Gilliland will run the lights and staging. The choir is under the direction of Ray Owens, minister of music at First Christian.

Soloists for the presentation are Caria Hardt, David Burns, Steve Gilbert, David Grounsnick, and Dalene York.

Everyone is invited to attend. The Rev. Mack McCarter is pastor of the First Christian Church.

Signing Up Member

This week members of the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce are having their membership drive. March 28 is the deadline for recruiting members. Prizes will be awarded to the persons having the most new members with winners being announced at the April quarterly meeting. Donna Jones, at left, is welcoming new member. Lanette Leasure. Anyone interested in joining that has not been contacted may sign up at a booth from noon until 5 p.m. Saturday at Sugarland Mall.

Anti-herpes drug offers new hope

Between 15 and 20 million Americans have genital herpes. A related disease, oral herpes, is estimated to affect a fourth of the world's population.

These statistics have intensified the search for a cure for herpes, says the Texas Medical Association. And a researcher at The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio is one of the leaders in the quest.

Dr. Kendall Smith, a professor of microbiology, is testing an experiments drug called BIOLF-62. Laboratory tests indicate it can eliminate 100 to 1,000 times more herpes virus than other drugs.

Hopes were high last year when the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved another anti-herpes drug, acyclovir, for commercial use. The ointment has proved effective in healing the initial outbreak of genital herpes sores but ineffective for additional eruptions.

Though somewhat similar chemically to acyclovir, VIOLF-62 offers more hope than its predecessor. Smith has discovered that BIOLF-62 is effective against several herpes viruses, including genital, oral and some forms found in horses.

In addition, BIOLF-62 is about 10 times more water soluble than acyclovir. This means that when applied to the skin, BIOLF-62 has a much better chance of penetrating to deeper tissues where the virus is multiplying. The experimental drug also seems to have fewer toxic effects that most current herpes treatments.

Herpes viruses that enter the body apparently remain for life. They reside in nerve cells and pass through dormant and active stages. Although BIOLF-62 does not eliminate the virus, the compound prevents infected cells from producing more virus.

Applied to the skin of experimental animals within 24 hours of exposure to the virus, BIOLF-62 has prevented herpes sores. In cases where the virus is dormant, the drug may prevent additional outbreaks if applied soon after the person feels the tingling, itching or burning sensation that precedes a herpes sore.

Up to this point, BIOLF-62 has been tested only on animals. Similar studies on humans will begin when the drug is approved for clinical trials.

Ann Landers

Another teen speaks out

DEAR ANN LANDERS:
 May I say a word to that 16-year-old dope-head who signed herself "Truth Will Win"? I am also a teenager. This is my country, too. I am well aware that hatred, conflict and violence are tearing our nation apart. We have paid a terrible price for becoming involved in a war we had no business getting into. I, too, have grown up amidst riots, pollution, racial strife and drug addiction.

Our generation will inherit the problem of taking care of the kids with fried brains. What plans do these spaced-out vegetables have for themselves? People like me, who kept it all together, will have to provide hospitals for the sick ones. Keep telling it like it is, Ann. You will not reach everybody, but someone is sure to listen.

Musical to be held Friday

The spring musical sponsored by the Dawn Music Club and the March meeting of the Dawn Community Association will both be held Friday evening at the Dawn Community Center.

The musical program, presented by youth and adults of the Dawn Community, will follow a meal and will be the program for the association. Everyone is invited to attend.

Awake In Waco

DEAR AWAKE: I plan to—until my typewriter falls apart. Thanks for the encouragement.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 18, a girl 5-feet-6 inches tall and I weigh 128 pounds. Every since my best friend developed anorexia nervosa, I have been especially conscious of my weight.

My life has become a continuing treacherous nightmare. I starve myself for a week and lose between 10 or 12 pounds. Then I go crazy and eat everything in sight. Within 10 days I gain back all the weight I lost.

I have gulped a whole box of laxatives in a single day. I also take diuretics. I know I am not fat, but I feel I should lose at least 15 or 20 pounds to look my best.

My parents know nothing about this. I have become well informed on eating disorders. I read everything I can get my hands on. I'm sure I have both anorexia and bulimia. My doctor says I have iron deficiency anemia. How can I break this horrible cycle? It has taken over my life and I hate it. — Feeling Fat In Hawaii

DEAR FEELING FAT:
 You don't need information. You have the facts. Your physician should recommend a specialist in eating disorders. You need to talk about your self-image and your feelings about those close to you. Many experts say anorexics believe they are being controlled by a parent (usually the mother) and engage in bizarre eating patterns as a means of exercising authority over their own lives. This is an oversimplification, but it may give you some insight.

Be aware that people who persistently punish their digestive systems end up with horrendous physical problems. Sometimes they die.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:
 This is for the angry parent whose son was told a loss could actually be a win if he learned from it.

You should have informed the nut that the only time you learn is when you make a mistake, analyze it and correct it. Parents should teach their children not to be afraid to fail. They learn nothing from victories. Defeats are the real teachers. — Little League Coach In Arkansas

DEAR ARK: You scored on this one, Coach. Thanks for the input.

Association begins planning Pioneer Day

The Mid-Plains Pioneer Association met Tuesday morning in the Chamber of Commerce Board Room to make plans for the 1983 Mid-Plains Pioneer Day to be held May 28 at the Hereford Bull Barn.

It was announced that dues will be $3 this year. A nominating committee was selected which includes Argen Draper, Bartley Dowell, Vesta Mae Nunley, Donald Hicks, and Benny Womble.

Invitations for the Pioneer Day celebration will be ready to mail by April 15. Plaques will be given for the person traveling the farthest distance and the oldest man and woman present.

The Pioneer Day Committee is made up of Ms. Draper, president; Grace Covington, vice-president; Nell Culpepper, secretary; and Ms. Nunley, Dowell, Leatrus Clark, and Juanita Hershey. The next meeting of the committee will be April 26.

Today In History

Today is Wednesday, March 23, the 82nd day of 1983. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 23, 1775, statesman Patrick Henry made a plea for American freedom from Britain with the famous words: "Give me liberty or give me death."

On this date: In 1919, Benito Mussolini founded a new political movement in Italy.

In 1933, the German Reichstag granted Adolf Hitler dictatorial powers.

In 1942, the United States began its program of moving Japanese-Americans from their West Coast homes to internment camps during World War II.

And, in 1945, American and German forces crossed the Rhine River in Germany during World War II.

Ten years ago: An Israeli government report disclosed that millions of dollars in property that belonged to Egyptians in the Sinai had been looted by the Israelis in the months after the 1967 Six-Day War.

Five years ago: The Senate completed action on a bill raising the mandatory retirement age to 70 for most Americans.

One year ago: Dissident army officers seized power in Guatemala, just 15 days after a conservative general had been elected president of the Central American nation.

Today's birthdays: Former Atlanta mayor Maynard Jackson is 45. Irish Catholic leader Bernadette Devlin is 36.

Thought for today: "From the little spark may burst a mighty flame." — Dante Italian poet (1265-1321)

On the Yap Islands of the western Pacific, currency consists of massive stones measuring 12 feet in diameter and weighing 4,000 pounds. They can be traded for one wife or an 18-foot canoe.

Circus Cycle Tricks

Hunt Foster demonstrates his riding skill on a unicycle to a young hobo (Steve Banner) who looks as if he would like to try some of the cycle stunts which will be a part of the Scout Circus, set to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Bull Barn. Tickets for the circus are available from any Boy Scout of Cub Scout or may be purchased at the door.

GETTING HOOKED ON VOLUNTEERING
TARENTUM, PA. (AP) - John Henry, 10, has more than a famous name.

He has his own individual fishing coach on "Fish for Fun Day," an annual event for handicapped children.

The outing is led by volunteers such as Gulf Oil's Bob Bargerstock Sr., who has been involved for five years.

"We enjoy ourselves as much as the kids do," Bargerstock said.

Tap new volunteer resources

COLLEGE STATION -- Looking for volunteers to help with a community project or charity drive? Don't despair. According to June Cline, an organization specialist, research shows that 65 million Americans are potential volunteers.

"The problem is that we must find ways of asking people to volunteer," says Cline, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Volunteer recruiters tend to go to parts of the community where they expect success, rather than reaching out to tap new volunteer resources, observes Cline.

Cline, who has worked with Texas voluntary Extension organizations for the past seven years, suggests several strategies for recruiting help.

"Start by looking beyond your circle of personal acquaintances and people already serving on committees," recommends Cline.

Also, don't be afraid to recruit in the areas that have a need for the program, or among those who will be receiving the services. Recruit retirees to work in programs directed toward senior citizens, for example, or parents to work with youth programs, she says.

According to Cline, a well-planned publicity campaign to reach people aged 18-24 and over 65 can be quite productive.

Students are often interested in developing work-related skills and receiving school credit for volunteer activities. They can be recruited through school counselors and student professional or service clubs.

People over 65 are seeking a means to maintain their involvement in the life of the community, she notes, and can be recruited through a variety of senior citizen groups.

Regardless of who is being recruited, personal contact is probably the most important factor in "marketing" a volunteer program, says Cline. "You must be willing to go to people and their groups, talk to them, be enthusiastic, and answer their questions," she says.

Cline also suggests that recruiters think in terms of recruiting one "special" volunteer for a particular job, rather than a pool of volunteers for unspecified jobs.

The names of potential "special" volunteers can be found by asking members of other organizations for ideas, watching the local newspapers for stories about people with special skills, or contacting the librarian for the names of people in specific fields. These people can then be recruited through personal letters or direct contact.

"Everyone is self-directed at something," says Cline. "The job of a volunteer recruiter is to discover that self-direction in each individual, then find a place where it can be used positively," she adds.

U.S. 59 is a four lane gold mine for two towns

SPLENDORA, Texas (AP) — Splendor and Patton Village are tiny towns, but it's a cinch to find them. Just head north on U.S. 59 and pull over when everybody's brake lights start flashing.

The 55 mph speed limit means just what it says in the two cities in south Montgomery County. The welcome wagons in both cities have a cherry on top and an unforgiving radar gun inside.

"Everybody seems to hate us," said H.L. Patton, the man for whom Patton Village was named. "They talk about us in every filling station from Lufkin to Corpus Christi."

Speed traps? Those are fighting words around here.

"As I understand it," former Splendor Alderwoman Hazel McCracken said, "the general consensus is that it's illegal to speed. Anybody going over 55 ought not to be resentful of the fact he can get a ticket for it."

"All of our police cars are in plain view. So we're no speed trap," Patton Village Mayor Pro Tem Wilson B. Holder said. "All we are doing is enforcing the law."

But there is more to the story than that. In both Patton Village and Splendor, the police chief takes the place of the tax assessor-collector. Neither town has raised a dime through property taxes, but each takes in thousands of dollars in traffic fines every year.

In Splendor, for example, 85 percent of the $315,000 general fund will be underwritten by heavy-footed visitors this year. Patton Village projects a $240,000 budget, with 76 percent of it coming from the highway.

Nevertheless, the four-lane gold mine has spawned political controversy so wild and bitter that some locals wonder if Patton Village and Splendor are ready for democracy.

Patton Village, for example, has gone through seven police chiefs in 20 months. Former Chief Carlton "Bud" Watson says he threw up his hands shortly after an alderman threatened five times in one day to have him fired.

Watson must like adventure, because he is now acting police chief two miles away in Splendor, where political leaders spent much of 1982 firing police chiefs and trying to throw each other off the City Council.

In both cities, the political powder keg is U.S. 59.

The trouble started in Splendor last May, when then-Police Chief Wallace

Wiegth tangled with then-Mayor Travis Lynn Bishop over Wiegth's extensive highway patrols. Bishop said the rural community of 900 wants its police officers in the neighborhoods rather than on the highway shoulder.

Wiegth resigned, but his successor, acting Chief Joe Don Ford, won council approval in August over Bishop's objection to step up the highway patrols and double the police force to eight officers.

Bishop responded by revealing Ford was on six-months probation for forging a high school equivalency document to obtain a peace officer's commission. Aldermen Marvin Clark and William Griffin, who supported the highway patrols and opposed Bishop, then disclosed that Bishop was a volunteer deputy constable and thus ineligible for city office.

Bishop resigned both offices, asking council to reappoint him as mayor. After a month of bitter squabbling, council gave Bishop his job back on Oct. 22. Within days, he temporarily suspended Ford after Bishop said he overheard Ford bemoaning the town's lack of a "legal mayor."

Griffin and Clark were so distressed by the turn of events that they began boycotting council meetings. Robbed of a quorum, council couldn't even pay for paper clips for more than a month until the disgruntled aldermen resigned last December.

The new order lasted exactly four days until Bishop resigned to reactivate his peace officer's commission. Council promptly appointed construction contractor Joe Lucas as mayor, and Lucas replaced Chief Ford with Chief Watson, who had learned a thing or two about revolving doors in Patton Village.

"I think things have settled down," said Lucas, who favors the highway patrols. Lucas' two months in office have seen nary a firestorm, and in Splendor that is quite a record.

Backgammon

The origin of Backgammon has been traced to a dice and board game found in the ancient city of Ur, dated to 3000 B.C. Later the Romans played a game remarkably similar to the modern one. The name "Backgammon" is variously ascribed to Welsh ("little battle") or Saxon ("back game").

Testimony scheduled to wind down in trial

DALLAS (AP) — The final witnesses in the federal civil rights trial of seven New Orleans police officers prepared to testify as the defendants continued denying charges of conducting brutal interrogations following the killing of a patrolman. Five more defense witnesses were expected to be called today and prosecutors said they would put on two rebuttal witnesses before both sides begin presenting closing arguments. Detective Dale Bonura, one of the seven defendants, testified Wednesday that an alleged police brutality victim was afraid to answer questions about a patrolman's killing but he knew something about the slaying and wanted to get it off his chest. But Bonura denied he or his partner, Stephen Farrar, beat or threatened any of the men they questioned. Five men who lived in New Orleans' predominantly black Algiers section testified they were threatened with guns, beaten, stomped, kicked and abused during interrogations about the killing of white patrolman Gregory Neupert. Another defendant, Detective Thomas R. Woodall, testified that he heard Farrar and Bonura question one of the alleged brutality victims, Robert Davis, but did not participate in the interview. Detective Richard LeBlanc, a third defendant, claimed he was not assigned to the case. Prosecutors contend the officers were criminally overzealous in pursuit of the killer of a fellow officer. Defense attorneys maintain the alleged victims lied about being beaten to hide their cooperation with police from people on the street. If convicted on the federal charges, Farrar, Bonura, detectives Woodall, LeBlanc and Ronald Brink, Sgt. John McKenzie and Officer Stephen Reboul could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000. Bonura said Tuesday that he and Farrar considered Davis a "possible vital link" in their investigation and said they wouldn't beat a witness whose help they might need later in court. "You don't press a witness that might break the case for you," said Bonura. Instead, he said he and Farrar tried to win Davis' trust. He said Davis was scared and nervous when they, acting on a tip from an anonymous caller, picked him up and questioned him about what he saw when Neupert was killed on Nov. 8, 1980. "I believed he knew something but was afraid to say. You could see he wanted to get it off his chest but he was scared," said Bonura. "Davis trusted us to a degree, still not enough to get involved," he said. He said he and Farrar left the interview room and came back a short time later and found detective Oris Buckner, a black officer who has testified for the prosecution under a grant of immunity, yelling in Davis' face. A short time later, Bonura said Davis told them he heard the shots that killed Neupert and saw a man run past him. He testified Davis said he knew the man only as Comanche. Comanche was a nickname for James Billy Jr., one of four people killed during a police crackdown in Algiers after the shooting death of Neupert. Bonura said Davis also gave them the name of Johnny Brownlee, a black man who alleges he was beaten by police. Bonura also denied beating Brownlee and said Brownlee told the officers he saw Comanche and another man at the police car. Woodall testified that he entered the interview room while Davis was being questioned, but only stayed 15 to 20 minutes. "I listened, made no comments, and shortly left the room," he said. Asked by defense attorney Walter Rothschild if he ever saw Davis again or participated in other interviews, Woodall said no. No charges were filed in connection with the four deaths during police raids that followed Neupert's slaying. However, the controversy surrounding the crackdown prompted the resignation of Police Superintendent James Parsons.

Well.... almost everyone

Everyone has favorite team

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Favorite team .. virtually everyone has one. You know, that team you kinda live and die with, waiting anxiously to pick up the paper the next day, or trying to pick up a late-night sportscast to find out how it did last night.

It suddenly dawned on me. I've been in this business going on 15 years, and have been a true sports fan since I was old enough to pick up a baseball bat.

But, the stark realization hit me. I don't really have a favorite team.

I've known guys who take their favorite team to heart. They're the kind of guys who take it personal when their team loses.

Heck, you might as well knock him down, kick sand in his face, or even worse, kick his dog, just don't be around him when HIS team gets beat, especially if it's a big game.

All of a sudden, what with the NCAA basketball tournament winding down, the USFL getting into high gear and the major league baseball season about to begin, I feel kinda left out.

I don't have any team to live and die with.

Oh, sure, there are some teams I like to see win. There are some I enjoy seeing lose. But, none that simply make it hard to go to work the next day if they lost last night.

All of a sudden I feel like I'm in a minority.

Gosh, it seems like I should root for someone.

Oh, I'd enjoy seeing North Carolina State win the NCAA tournament. But, that's probably too far-fetched.

I'd kinda like to see the 76ers finally win the NBA title. Now, that's a bit more likely.

As for the USFL, I really don't care who wins. Too tell the truth, it just seems hard to get into pro football this time of the year, what with everything else going on.

I think it'd be kinda nice to see the Chicago Cubs win a pennant. But, again, that's pretty far-fetched. Wouldn't mind seeing the Phillies do well, because of Pete Rose and Steve Carlton. That's more realistic, too.

And, I even think it would be pretty nifty to see Billy Martin finish on top this season — that is if he lasts the season with the Yankees.

Mind you, though, I'm not a big Yankee fan ... more of a Billy Martin fan.

It wasn't always this way, though.

Heck, I can remember when I was a kid I used to root like crazy for the Milwaukee Braves. You remember them, don't you. They're now the Atlanta Braves (WTBS calls them America's Team). I don't pull as hard for them anymore.

I used to be nuts about the St. Louis Hawks ... back when they had Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagen. Now, they're in Atlanta too.

Seems like all my old boyhood favorites have moved South.

I was a super Baltimore Colt fan as a youngster. Used to love to watch Johnny Unitas.

But, who can root for the Colts now. They're awful, and Johnny U. is gone.

I often like to think of some of the teams I used to hate. Used to hate the Boston Celtics, especially when they were winning the NBA title every year. Now, they're not so bad. At least they don't win it every year.

At one time I despised the Dallas Cowboys. Used to love seeing them lose ... back around the time Dandy Don was the quarterback.

But, even that's changed.

Now, I kinda like the Cowboys. I still don't love them, mind you, I just don't hate them. It'd even be nice to see them back in the Super Bowl.

I do like the Steelers, though. My wife curses me for that. Now, there is a person who hates .. especially the Steelers, and Terry Bradshaw in particular. Heck, I think he's one of the better QB's around.

I was never a UCLA fan, especially when they were winning the national championship every year. Now, I kinda like them, too.

Most people don't like Bobby Knight of Indiana. Some, in fact, can't stand the man.

Shoot, I enjoy watching him ... especially when he gets upset at his players, and especially the referees.

How, I wonder, can any man be that intense? When they invented the word PERFECTIONIST, they must have had Knight in mind.

If I had an un-favorite team right now, it'd be the Texas Rangers.

You know them, they're the team Eddie Chiles gets mad at every season.

Heck, he should. With the talent that team has had, and the kind of records they've had, I'd get mad, too, if I were Eddie.

Individual personalities, that's more my bag.

I like certain individuals ... such as Rose, Doctor J., Bradshaw.

Probably few people thought much of John Madden (former Oakland Raider coach). Most, if they thought about it, didn't like him. I did. Used to love to watch the TV cameras focus in on him ... ranting and raving, throwing his hands up in the air and running up and down the sidelines.

Most people don't like Howard Cosell.

Neither do I, so we're in agreement there. It would be nice if Howard went back to practicing law.

Well, that's enough of this trip down memory lane.

Sometimes it's just kinda nice to look back and reflect on things past.

NIT quarterfinals

Frogs eye Nebraska

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Texas Christian University basketball team features an all-senior front line that ranges from 6-foot-8 to 6-10.

That could present some tall problems for Nebraska in Thursday night's National Invitation Tournament quarterfinal game at Lincoln, Neb., according to Husker Coach Moe Iba.

"They're a tough team for us to go against because of their size," says Iba. "They play a good matchup zone defense and the 30-second clock will favor that. They'll also run their motion offense as well as anybody we'll play all year."

The TCU-Nebraska game is one of three NIT contests Thursday night. In other action, Wake Forest meets South Carolina in Greensboro, N.C., and Fresno State plays at Oregon State. The quarterfinal round will conclude Friday night, when Mississippi takes on DePaul in Rosemont, Ill.

Quarterfinal winners will advance to the semifinals Monday in New York's Madison Square Garden. The title game will be played March 30.

TCU is playing some of its best ball of the season. Two weekends ago, the Horned Frogs upset then sixth-ranked Arkansas 61-59 in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament in Dallas. TCU followed that victory with a 62-59 loss to nationally top-ranked Houston in the SWC championship game.

In the first two games of the NIT, the Horned Frogs took a 64-62 decision over Tulsa, the 1981 NIT champion, and then beat Arizona State last Monday night.

"TCU will be a very physical team for us to play," says Iba, thinking mainly of the Horned Frogs' front line of 6-10 center Brian Christensen and 6-9 Doug Arnold and 6-8 Doug Cucinella at forwards.

"We're going to have some short practices, so we don't wear our kids down. They're better off fresh. You've got to make sure you have your legs and some bounce in a physical game, you've got to be able to jump."

Nebraska beat Tulane 72-65 in the first round and then knocked out Iona 85-73 in the second round.

In Monday night's other second-round games, Mississippi won 65-57 over South Florida, DePaul downed Northwestern 65-63, South Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 75-68, Fresno State turned back Michigan State 72-58, Wake Forest beat South Florida 65-57 and Oregon State walloped New Orleans 88-71.

The Ole Miss victory has pumped up Ken Turner, Mississippi's assistant coach. "We're in Newark, just across the bridge," said Turner, implying that he had the New York skyline in his sights.

The most exciting game of the second-round was between DePaul and Northwestern, won by the Blue Devils on a 35-foot buzzer shot by Kenny Patterson. Ironically, Patterson wasn't even first choice to take the final shot for DePaul. The plan formulated by Coach Ray Meyer called for either Bernard Randolph or Tyrone Corbin to take the final shot.

Iona Coach Pat Kennedy missed his team's loss to Nebraska. Kennedy had stayed at home Sunday when his wife gave birth to a son, and then was unable to make connections for a flight to the game Monday.

Iona's knockout marked another NIT tourney without the possibility of a New York-area team in the winner's circle. The last team from the city area to win the New York-based tourney was St. John's in 1965.

Registration will be held at the Community Center on Sat., March 26 from 10 am to 3 pm . Bring either this clipping or the one handed out at school.

Gerulaitis cleared of drug charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis star Vitas Gerulaitis has been cleared by a federal grand jury of allegations that he had agreed to purchase $20,000 worth of cocaine.

Following a year-long probe, U.S. Attorney John S. Martin Jr. announced Tuesday that no charges would be filed against Gerulaitis, who currently is ranked fifth in the world and known for his jet-setting lifestyle.

Martin said he would not press misdemeanor charges, though he could do so without an indictment. And he said the grand jury action marked the end of the Gerulaitis investigation.

"I'm just happy it's ended," Gerulaitis told reporters, via a telephone hookup between the office of his lawyer, Thomas Puccio, and Milan, Italy, where he was waiting to play his first-round match in the Cuore Cup tournament.

"I know that both sides did what they both felt was correct and just," Gerulaitis said. "I'm just happy with the result."

Gerulaitis, a Brooklyn-born resident of Kings Point, said his family was "greatly relieved" at the outcome of the investigation, though he said he always believed he would be exonerated.

Puccio praised Martin and the grand jury for conducting the case in "a highly professional and conscientious manner."

Goble, 36, a Florida backgammon player, was convicted last Sept. 2 of conspiracy to buy a share of synthetic cocaine from federal undercover agents.

In his conversations with the agents, Goble boasted that he was a close friend of Gerulaitis, whose earnings of $450,875 ranked eighth last year. He has won $2,251,466 in his career.

Sampson taking playoffs one game at a time

By The Associated Press
Ralph Sampson is taking them one at a time in his pursuit of one of the few things to elude him in his brilliant college basketball career — a national championship.

Sampson and the fourth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers meet the fast-flying Eagles of No. 11 Boston College in the West Regional semifinals at Ogden, Utah, when the NCAA Tournament resumes Thursday night.

One slip and the 7-foot-4 Sampson's college career — he is a three-time All-American — will be over. That is why Sampson is throwing around the old bromide about playing them one at a time.

"I probably thought about that once," Sampson says when asked about the stigma of never having won a national championship. "I try and think about what I have to do Thursday to get the job done to get to Saturday."

Coach Terry Holland, however, concedes his towering center may be feeling some pressure.

"It's his last turn around and, fair or not, that's the way people will label him for the rest of his life," Holland says.

"It's definitely going to be tense because it's that time of year when you have to win one game or you're out, and nobody wants to go back home," says Sampson.

Utah and No. 16 North Carolina State are paired in the other West semifinal.

Thursday's other action is in the Midwest Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., where second-ranked Louisville meets No. 9 Arkansas and fifth-ranked Indiana faces No. 12 Kentucky.

On Friday, in the East Regional at Syracuse, N.Y., third-ranked St. John's meets Georgia and eighth-ranked North Carolina, the defending NCAA champion, plays Ohio State. And in the Midwest Regional at Kansas City, Mo., top-rated Houston plays No. 17 Memphis State and No. 13 Villanova tackles Iowa. The regional winners advance to the Final Four in Albuquerque, N.M., April 2-4.

Sampson says Virginia must play better than it did last weekend in a 52-49 victory over Washington State, a game in which Sampson was held without a field goal in the second half.

"We have to rebound the basketball, run the break and play defense inside the lane and outside the lane and not give up easy shots," Sampson says. "I'm going to be hard on myself and the team anyway because I think we can play better always."

Besides Virginia, the two other Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the tournament — North Carolina and North Carolina State — are still alive. The Wolfpack of N.C. State are bidding to become the Cinderella team. First, they knocked off North Carolina and Virginia on successive days to capture the ACC tourney. In the tournament, they nipped Pepperdine 69-67 in double overtime and sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas 71-70.

"I've been waiting four years for this," a senior engineering major shouted from the midst of the throng during the latest demonstration in Raleigh on Sunday night. "Four years."

After trailing by as many 12 points in the second half, N.C. State came back again. Thurl Bailey grabbed a missed shot and scored with four seconds left, handing UNLV only its third loss of the season.

"When we were down 12, I just told the kids not to quit," said Coach Jim Valvano. "I told 'em that when we do some 'smart' things at the end, something good usually happens."

North Carolina expected to have its hands full with Syracuse on the Orangemen's home court, but Ohio State altered that with a 79-74 upset of the Orangemen.

"Some of you were talking about playing Syracuse at Syracuse — that's why you should never discuss some game that won't come about," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said Tuesday.

Smith said the Buckeyes will provide problems because of the quickness of guards Ron Stokes and Troy Taylor, who account for almost 22 points per game, while 6-foot-7 forward Tony Campbell leads the team with a 19.1 average.

"I don't think anybody is quicker than Stokes and Taylor," Smith said. "Campbell is All-Big Ten and we think that he's just a tremendous player. If we can play defense as well as we did last Saturday (in a 68-49 victory over James Madison), then that will go a long way to helping us. Everybody I've talked to says they're a better team than they were last year."

Since Syracuse lost to Ohio State, ticket sales for the East Regional have slowed to a standstill at the Carrier Dome. A spokesman said Tuesday that just over 22,000 ticket packages had been sold for the arena, which seats 32,000 for basketball.

In Knoxville, however, fans are paying $300 and more for $30-ticket sets to the three-game Midwest Regional, whose biggest selling point is the possibility of a Saturday match between Kentucky and Louisville — the "dream game" which Bluegrass basketball fans have been awaiting for years.

"I've been at UT 33 years and I've never seen anything like this," said Gus Manning, Tennessee's ticket manager.

Knoxville's two newspapers carried 21 classified advertisements Tuesday for tickets and would-be buyers outnumbered sellers 19-2. One ad offered a pair of ticket books for $500. Another said, "Will pay any price." One advertisement, with a Louisville telephone number, offered to pay cash or swap for Kentucky Derby tickets.

Tennessee fans, whose Vols were eliminated by Indiana, don't seem to be parting with their tickets.

"Everybody is calling from up north saying, 'When are the Tennessee fans going to sell their tickets?'" Susan Crane of UT's ticket office said. "But they're not. Most of the fans here just want to see the good basketball games."

The Knoxville Journal quoted an unidentified man who said he sold 16 ticket sets for $2,000. A short time later, another man called offering to pay $4,800.

"I was sick," the scalper said. "If he had only called earlier."

Top prize is $126,000

Strong field ready for TPC

POINTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Gary Player and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton have withdrawn from the Tournament Players Championship, leaving a field of 131 to compete for the $700,000 in prize money.

Player, the little South African veteran who is one of four men to win all the world's major championships, told tournament officials by telephone he is suffering from a back ailment and would be unable to compete in the prestigious event that begins Thursday. Stockton didn't say why he was staying away.

Even with their absence, the field represents the best of the year. It is the last remaining Designated Tournament, one in which leading players are required to compete. It includes the top 125 money-winners — all of them — from last year, all tournament winners from this season and three special invitees.

Included in that last category is an Australian star, Greg Norman, who must be ranked among the leading contenders for the $126,000 first prize. In his last five starts, Norman has won twice, finished second twice and fifth once.

The other special invitees are Arnold Palmer and Tommy Nakajima.

Jerry Pate, suffering from a shoulder injury that has sidelined him much of the year, has little hope of repeating his 1982 victory. He celebrated that triumph by shoving PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman and course architect Pete Dye into a lake by the 18th green, then diving in after them.

"It's not right yet," he said of the shoulder troubles, "but it's coming along."

The leading contenders include Jack Nicklaus, a three-time winner of this title, who has finished eighth or better in his last four starts and appears to be bringing his formidable game to a peak; Bill Rogers, Ray Floyd and Tom Kite.

Rogers, in a slump all last season, showed a return to the form that won him 1981 Player of the Year honors with a victory last weekend in New Orleans. Neither PGA titleholder Floyd nor Kite played particularly well in his last outing, but each has been in title contention on a consistent basis this season.

Tom Watson, holder of both the U.S. and British Open titles, is coming off a disappointing performance in New Orleans. "I didn't putt well, I didn't hit the ball well — I didn't do anything particularly well," he said.

Some other major standouts include Masters champ Craig Stadler, Johnny Miller, Cal Peete, Bob Gilder, Gil Morgan and Lanny Wadkins.

The site is the controversial Players' Club course, a 6,857-yard, par-72 layout that was played last year for the first time and was the subject of considerable criticism as being too difficult.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be telecast nationally by CBS.

Tom is terrific again

Seaver, Mets blank Red Sox

By The Associated Press
For the time being, Tom Seaver is Tom Terrific again.

The 38-year-right-hander, winner of 264 games and three Cy Young Awards, held Boston to five hits in seven innings Tuesday as the New York Mets trounced the Red Sox 8-0 in an exhibition baseball game.

After 5½ years with Cincinnati, Seaver is back where he spent his first 10½ seasons in the major leagues. And for a change, he was the Seaver of old rather than the old Seaver who struggled to a 5-13 record in 1982, including a 5.50 earned run average.

Another right-hander, John Fulgham of St. Louis, is 12 years younger than Seaver and pitched 10 complete games in 19 starts four years ago but is coming off rotator cuff shoulder surgery. Tuesday, he hurled four scoreless innings, allowing four hits and striking out three as a solit squad of Cardinals blanked the Cincinnati Reds 4-0.

Jorge Orta smacked a two-run homer and Ernie Whitt, Jesse Barfield and Hosken Powell added solo shots as The Toronto Blue Jays walloped another group of Cardinals 10-5.

Chili Davis, who started the spring with an 0-for-15 slump, continued his recent torrid pace with two singles and two doubles — he is on an 11-for-18 tear — in leading the San Francisco Giants past the Seattle Mariners 7-5.

Jerry Reuss pitched seven innings and hit three singles as the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the Houston Astros 14-4. The Dodgers broke the game open with six straight hits in the fourth inning. Mike Marshall homered.

Ex-Dodger Steve Garvey hit his first home run in a San Diego uniform, a first-inning shot off Milwaukee's Moose Haas, as the Padres defeated the Brewers 6-1.

Lynn Garrett homered in the 11th inning to give the Oakland A's a 2-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians. Rick Sutcliffe, the American League ERA leader last season, tossed six shutout innings for Cleveland.

Pascual Perez and Brian Fisher shut out Texas on seven hits and Bruce Benedict's third-inning single accounted for the only run as the Atlanta Braves beat the Rangers 1-0.

Bill Gullickson and Ray Burris combined on a five-hitter as the Montreal Expos blanked a Kansas City Royals split squad 3-0.

Dick Schofield's two-run double highlighted a five-run fourth inning against Chuck Rainey that gave the California Angels a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Richie Hebner had three hits and four RBIs to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Tony Bernazard doubled home two runs and Pat Tabler drove in two more with a triple and single as the Chicago White Sox edged the Minnesota Twins 6-5. Another White Sox squad whipped the other Royals squad 8-2 as Britt Burns allowed one run in six innings.

The Philadelphia Phillies and Baltimore Orioles played to a 3-3 tie in a game that was called after 13 innings. The Orioles loaded the bases with none out in the bottom of the 13th but rookie Ed Wojna retired the next three batters.

Philly point total lowest of season

King sparks red-hot Knicks past 76ers, 89-76

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

The New York Knicks did a number on the Philadelphia 76ers.

Seventy-six, to be exact. Bernard King hit 16 of 18 shots and finished with 33 points as New York defeated the 76ers 89-76 in National Basketball Association action Tuesday night.

The 76ers' 76 points were 19 fewer than they compiled in their previous lowest-scoring game this season. And they lost for only the 10th time in 67 outings.

"Of course I'm upset," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said after the Knicks snapped Philadelphia's seven-game winning streak. "They deserved to win. They outplayed us. It's as simple as that."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Atlanta 111, Indiana 102; Washington 121, Utah 98; Milwaukee 116, Boston 108;

Detroit 134, Chicago 116; Dallas 111, Golden State 102; Kansas City 117, Cleveland 94; Denver 130, Phoenix 117; San Diego 128, Houston 98; Portland 119, San Antonio 102; and Los Angeles 123, Seattle 108. Philadelphia was playing its fifth straight game without star forward Julius Erving, who has a wrist injury, and the 76ers also lost forward Bobby Jones with an ankle sprain in the first quarter.

So the Knicks, who have the No. 1 defense in the NBA, blanketed all-stars Moses Malone and Andrew Toney, who were 6-for-15 and 4-for-15 from the field, respectively. Franklin Edwards led Philadelphia with 18 points, while Malone had 14.

Bucks 116, Celtics 108. Milwaukee pulled within two games of Boston in the race for a home-court advantage in the playoffs as Marques Johnson scored 29 points and Brian Winters 23, including the go-ahead basket with 2:07 to play. The Celtics rallied in the fourth quarter after Milwaukee outscored them 14-2 in the last three minutes of the third quarter to take a 91-80 lead.

Blazers 119, Spurs 102. Darnell Valentine, appearing in his first game since Jan. 4 because of a broken foot, and Calvin Natt led Portland's rally from behind to beat San Antonio. Valentine had eight of his 14 points in the second quarter to help in the Blazers cut a 16-point deficit to six, while Natt scored nine straight points in a span of 2:15 in the third period as Portland, which outrebounded the Spurs 52-35, took the lead for good.

Lakers 123, Sonics 108. Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 23 points, 15 rebounds and 11 assists — his 12th "triple-double" of the season — to lead Los Angeles over Seattle. Jamaal Wilkes led the Lakers with 26 points. Nuggets 130, Suns 117. Kiki Vandeweghe had 29 points and Rob Williams sparked a rally with his passing as Denver beat Phoenix. Williams had three of his 11 assists during a 10-0 rally that gave the Nuggets a 66-52 lead just before halftime.

Hawks 111, Pacers 102. Dan Roundfield scored 35 points and Johnny Davis 29 as Atlanta won its fourth straight game and handed Indiana its 16th defeat in 17 outings. Davis had six points during an 8-2 Atlanta spurt that broke a 93-93 tie. Mavericks 111, Warriors 102. Rolando Blackman.

quelled a Golden State rally with seven consecutive points and finished with 25 as Dallas handed the Warriors their sixth straight loss. Golden State center Joe Barry Carroll scored 34 points in defeat.

Kings 117, Cavaliers 94. Mike Woodson led six Kansas City players in double figures with 23 points as the Kings dealt Cleveland its sixth consecutive defeat. Woodson had 10 points in the second quarter, when the Kings hit their first 10 shots en route to turning a nine-point deficit into a 53-37 lead.

Pistons 134, Bulls 116. Istiah Thomas scored 33 points, Kelly Tripucka 32 and Vinnie Johnson 29 as Detroit scored virtually at will against Chicago.

Bullets 121, Jazz 98. Washington outscored Utah by 10 points in both the second and third periods to overcome an early deficit against the Jazz. Jeff Ruland scored 25 points and Don Collins 24 for the Bullets.

Clippers 128, Rockets 98. Michael Brooks scored 25 points and Lionel Hollins 23 as San Diego handed hapless Houston its 56th loss in 68 games. The Clippers led by as many as 32 points after scoring 41 points in the third quarter.

Franklin learning college game

HOUSTON (AP) - Alvin Franklin, the freshman point guard charged with quarterbacking the University of Houston's powerful inside game, has spent the season trying to learn how a freshman starting guard should behave.

"I don't know how I'm supposed to act or play, so I just go out and play the best I can," said Franklin, who will guide the UH attack Friday night against Memphis State in the third round of the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament at Kansas City, Mo.

"I wish somebody would tell me so I would know." The confident LaMarque, Texas, teen-ager earned a starting position because no one told him a freshman wasn't supposed to start for the nation's No. 1 ranked team.

In last Saturday's second-round victory over Maryland, no one told him a 6-0 freshman wasn't supposed to drive the baseline, score a triple-pump basket over a 6-9 opponent and then draw a foul.

His loudest cheering section was the UH bench. "That move was awesome," fellow guard Reid Gettys said. "I tried to count the pump fakes and I lost track after three. He was so quick. It was just great to see him take it right at their big guy like that."

Franklin, who led the state's schoolboy scorers last year, has had to sacrifice his urge to take the ball to the basket because of UH's powerful inside corps led by 7-0 Akeem Abdul Olajuwon.

Franklin has been forced to play the outward role of the assist man but he still has the heart of a shooter.

Franklin's confidence now is riding as high as Houston's

23-game winning streak.

"I'm glad I've earned the confidence of the other fellas," Franklin said.

A New Year for Two Million More Americans

SOURCE: Census Bureau MEA/Mark Gabrenya

More Americans than ever before ushered in 1983. The Census Bureau's estimate of the total population as of the first day of the new year was more than two million greater than the year before.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Bothersome broiler

DEAR POLLY — The broiler in my electric oven simply won't broil a rare steak! I must accept it either pale gray on the outside and only slightly pink on the inside or nicely seared on the outside and dry, tough, leathery and overdone on the inside. I had a repairman in to check the unit but he insists there is nothing wrong with the broiler or the range. — K.T.

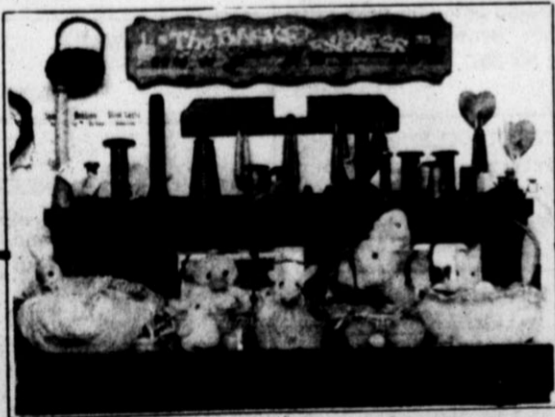

DEAR K.T. — Two questions: Are you preheating your broiler before putting in the steaks? How thick are those steaks anyway? According to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, these questions point up two major mistakes made in home broiling that lead to overdone steaks. A broiler must be preheated so the outside of the steak sears as soon as it's put in. This gives the steak a nice brown crust and seals in the juices while the interior of the steak is still rare and juicy. Also, steaks really should be at least one inch thick to broil successfully. If steaks are much thinner, there's no way you can keep the meat from cooking through while the outside browns.

For thinner steaks, I recommend pan broiling. Preheat a skillet (either on the range or use an electric skillet) until a drop of water dances wildly when flicked into it. Then sprinkle a little salt in the bottom (helps prevent sticking) and put in your steaks. Turn them midway in the cooking process using tongs (a fork will pierce the meat and cause unnecessary loss of juices). A one-inch thick steak will usually be fairly rare after three to three-and-one-half total cooking time, so watch closely and time your steaks accordingly.

A big advantage of pan broiling over oven broiling is that you can keep a closer watch on how the meat is coming along, since you're standing right there over an open pan. If you're uncertain as to when it's actually done to your taste, cut a tiny slit in the top of the steak when you think it's done. You can easily peer into the slit to judge the proper degree of redness.

DEAR POLLY — My idea is to use coffee filter liners in the dog's or cat's food bowl. When the animal is through eating, just lift out the liner and throw it away. The bowl stays clean and needs to be washed only occasionally. These liners are cheaper than paper plates, especially if you buy the generic brands. — PATRICIA

DEAR POLLY — If you get stuck while driving on icy roads, just place your car's floor mat under the tire. The mat, usually ridged on both sides, gives you instant traction. — GLORIA

Senators asked to end mandatory life sentences for repeat criminals

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas prisons could be weeded out of non-violent criminals sent there for life under Texas' 127-year-old repeat offender law, a senate panel was told as it considered various bills to repeal or alter the law.

Houston defense attorney Scott Atlas told the Senate Jurisprudence Committee Tuesday that a second-time rapist can get as little as 15 years in prison, but that a third-time hot check writer automatically gets life.

"In no other state or territory can you get a life sentence for petty property crimes," Atlas said. "I believe the vast number of Texans believe in justice tempered with fairness."

Atlas said he was the attorney who argued unsuccessfully before the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of a man who wrote hot checks and received a life sentence.

Atlas was among several witnesses who lined up to give sometimes emotional testimony on a proposal by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, that would allow juries to give anywhere from 20 to 99 years for third-time felony convictions.

"By setting the mandatory punishment at 20 years with the possibility of a life sentence, society's concern for protecting itself and deterring crime can be satisfied without sacrificing the time-honored principle that the punishment should fit the crime," argued Atlas.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes said an escalating crime rate, increasing recidivism and public sentiment dictated leaving the law intact.

Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Chuck Miller testified in favor of Farabee's proposal, asking senators to "bring the law to the level of civilization and humanity to which we have evolved."

Holmes argued, "We haven't changed. We've gotten worse." He said the threat of a mandatory life sentence allows prosecutors to extract pleas of guilty for lesser sentences.

Other members of the committee bowed out of an exchange between Holmes and Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, a defense attorney who also is sponsoring proposals that would limit mandatory life sentencing.

Washington argued that even innocent defendants would plea bargain for fear of being wrongly found guilty and sentenced to life.

"Have you ever pleaded someone you knew was innocent?" asked Holmes. Washington said he had not.

After the two argued for several minutes over whether the public favored the proposal, Washington finally told Holmes, "Be aware that I have a vote in the Senate and you don't."

"I am aware of that," Holmes said before excusing himself from the witness chair.

Jesuit priest Robert Costello of Rockhurst College in Kansas City, Mo., told the senators the state could not afford the law.

He said a study of 113 repeat offenders serving life sentences in Texas prisons revealed that 45 committed no violent crimes.

"Punishment is a limited and expensive resource," said Costello, who offered as an example a man who wrote three hot checks totaling $585, but whose incarceration he estimated will cost Texas $69,180.

West Texas District Attorney Bill Mason said repeal of the mandatory life sentence law would "reduce my effectiveness as the single prosecutor for a 30,000-square-mile area."

"Anything that will help me obtain a plea should not be done away with," said Mason, whose district encompasses Pecos, Crockett, Reagan, Sutton and Upton counties.

Holmes said an alternative argument that repeal of mandatory life will relieve overcrowding in Texas prisons is "like me emptying my coffee pot in Clear Lake to raise the level."

In Siberia

Soviet boomer trying to make it

NERYUNGRI, U.S.S.R. (AP)—A cooperative apartment in the warm Crimea where the late President Leonid I. Brezhnev used to summer, a Bulgarian-made car, and vacations to Cuba are all within the reach of construction worker Anatoly Platonoyov.

Seven years ago, Platonoyov packed up his

The 40-year-old Platonoyov, attracted by the challenge and promise of wife and year-old daughter and said goodbye to cosmopolitan Leningrad. He is one of the bolder examples of the socialist boomer created by the Kremlin in its push to dot eastern Siberia with industrial complexes.

Now, an open pit coal mine that will be the Soviet Union's largest, yielding 13 million tons a year by 1985, is in operation. A huge coal dressing plant and a power plant to supply a planned corridor of metallurgical complexes are under construction.

The work is hard and living conditions tough for most of the 40,000 workers now on the project.

It's more than 10 hours to Moscow by plane. Housing is utilitarian, and when workers can't idle away spare time sitting outdoors or going to the movies, the barracks-like existence can be depressing.

Then why come?

"It's like alpinists," said Platonoyov. "They climb because it is a challenge. Of course the best advantage of working here is accumulating money."

He has saved 3,000 rubles — $4,200 — in the seven years here. He earns between 700 and 900 rubles a month, the wages geared to output, and his wife makes 400 to 500 rubles as a painter. Combined, they make more than seven times the average Soviet monthly wage (177 rubles or about $250). And there are bonuses for each year they stay on.

"I'm not trying to save a lot," he says. "I am much more interested in spending the money."

Platonoyov has vacationed in Cuba, and in July he'll go to Bulgaria. He is entitled to special coupons allowing him to buy a Bulgarian car, and because his 120-man construction team won the Socialist Emulation Award, they were bumped ahead on the two-to-three-year waiting list for an apartment.

Every three years, the state pays his round-trip air fare to anywhere in the Soviet Union for a vacation, which at 42 days each year is longer than the average Soviet worker's month off.

Because such benefits accrue with longevity, Platonoyov says, the workforce is stabilizing.

"The first ones who came here were disposed to grabbing as much money as they could land, then leaving," he said. "Now it's a great rarity if they quit."

A fellow resident of Leningrad, excavator Vladimir Ilyich Zakharov, arrived eight months ago.

"I was sick of the big city," he says. "It is a noisy place, and now that I am getting advanced in age (48), I would like to be able to get a country home."

His 350-ruble monthly salary in Leningrad has been almost doubled. He makes 650 rubles now, and while high earnings were an incentive, Zakharov says money alone did not draw him to Neryungri.

"My real motive in coming was to bring my eldest son (who is 25 years old)," he says. "The big city spoils young people. They need to know how to walk around in the forest, having only dry bread, no sausages, no liquor. They've grown accustomed to the easy and lazy life."

He confesses he doesn't believe a totally austere life is good.

Asked about drawbacks in Neryungri, he said: "There are no good restaurants and no theater."

For the new arrivals, most of them much younger than Zakharov and Platonoyov, lodging is in the workers dormitory, where two to three people share a room, while they wait for apartments.

The only entertainment is lectures on the Soviet development plan, how to be a good worker, and dancing to records and tapes.

Many workers simply get drunk, although since Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov's worker discipline campaign, the punishment has been stiffened — four people were fired for drunkenness and ordered to leave Zakharov's 380-worker dorm.

Group gives Texans low consumer ratings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Texas congressional delegation generally received low marks on their consumer voting records last year in a study released today by the Consumer Federation of America, the nation's largest consumer organization.

Sen. John Tower, a Republican, was one of four senators who qualified as "consumer zeros" for failing to cast a single vote for consumer interests in the study of 14 key Senate votes on consumer issues in 1982, the organization said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat, voted 36 percent of the time for consumer interests during the 14 votes, it said.

Only four House members from Texas received ratings of more than 50 percent from the federation.

The federation ratings were based on a study of what it regarded as 14 key votes in the Senate and 13 in the House on legislation affecting consumers.

Included were proposals lowering interest rates on mortgages, scaling back tax cuts for the wealthy and for corporations, providing funds for low-income energy assistance, requiring used car dealers to inform customers of car defects, extending unemployment benefits and eliminating telephone and cigarette tax increases.

In each case, the federation interpreted whether a "yes" or "no" vote on the issue was in the consumer interest and used the interpretation to draw its overall ratings.

It was the second time this year that members of the Texas congressional delegation had been given generally low ratings by a consumer organization.

A similar study released in February by Congress Watch, founded by Ralph Nader, reported that during 40 key votes last year only three members of the Texas delegation voted more than half the time in favor of what the organization regarded as consumer interests.

In releasing its evaluation, the Consumer Federation said that the overall Senate rating was 44 percent and the overall House rating 47 percent.

Volunteers patrol county after Sheriff forced to resign

COLDSPRING, Texas (AP) — The San Jacinto County sheriff's office has been run almost exclusively by volunteers since the former sheriff resigned last week, admitting he tortured prisoners and searched passersby for drugs without cause, officials said.

County Judge Kent Morrison said Tuesday he had sworn in 12 reserve officers Monday night to take the place of the previous staff, which new Sheriff Robert E. Brumley fired Friday.

Morrison said Brumley asked for the resignations of the previous staff immediately after being appointed to fill out the term of James C. "Humpty" Parker. Parker pleaded guilty to two counts of federal civil rights violations and one count of extortion Friday.

Brumley, 50, said his house cleaning was aimed at removing "all shadow of doubt that has hung over this office" during the investigation of Parker.

But Brumley said he did not mean to imply that the former staff was involved in criminal activity. He said he just wanted to hire "all my own officers."

Brumley retained one deputy in the warrant division and hired a full-time secretary, Morrison said. Otherwise, the department will be staffed by the reserve deputies, who volunteer 16 hours a month as patrol officers.

Brumley, a former Houston police detective and two-term mayor of this community, took over the post after Parker, 47, admitted operating a "marijuana trap" on heavily traveled U.S. Highway 59, as well as subjecting jail inmates to water torture to gain confessions and testimony.

Criminal charges said Parker's deputies were ordered to stop "hippies," blacks, and people whose cars bore bumper stickers advertising a rock radio station in Houston. Officers also were told to stop drivers with Louisiana license plates issued around Shreveport.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Scott Woodward said sheriff's officers believed there was "some connection between people traveling to those points and people carrying drugs."

The charges also said deputies often strip-searched men and women stopped in the trap on U.S. 59, about 70 miles northeast of Houston.

Figures from the Texas Department of Public Safety showed 1,124 drug-related arrests were made in 1981 in San Jacinto County, which has a population of about 10,000. Only Harris County, with 2.1 million residents, had more such arrests that year, with 1,172.

Brumley said those who resigned Friday were four deputies, four dispatchers, one secretary and the entire reserve force of 18 deputies.

The sheriff said he wants to meet soon with 12 new reserve officers to discuss an extensive training program and a strict set of department guidelines.

"They will have to play by our rules or we just won't have them," Brumley said.

Prosecutors have recommended Parker be sentenced to three-year terms for each of the civil rights violations and five years' probation for extortion. Parker could have

HEALTH Risk factors and diet
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me what a healthy diet would be for a man who has a history of heart disease on his father's side and diabetes on his mother's side? This man is a compulsive workaholic and in early middle age. He maintains a proper weight for his height and smokes a pipe. What foods might be wise to avoid? He currently lives on junk food, cheese, diet pop and diet cookies.

DEAR READER — The decision as to whether to diet or not for medical reasons really depends a lot on the risk factors. If a person has optimal levels of cholesterol and blood pressure and doesn't smoke, he has good risk factors and is less likely to have heart attacks or strokes. But if his cholesterol is high or his blood pressure is high, then he may need to change his lifestyle.

Weight control is very helpful in lowering both blood pressure and cholesterol levels. Obviously the approach here is to limit calories in line with physical activity to eliminate and prevent the accumulation of body fat. Even a few pounds can make a difference. You may think this man has no weight problem but if either of these two risk factors is increased and he has any fat under his skin that you can feel, he needs to lose body fat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know how to get rid of a double chin. I have never been overweight. I am a 20-year-old male, 5 feet 11 and weigh 170 pounds. I have a very noticeable double chin and would like some exercises to get rid of it.

DEAR READER — I hate to discourage you but there is no such thing as spot reducing. If you want to reduce that double chin you will need to reduce fat all over and that means the usual diet and exercise routines to eliminate calories stored as fat.

Some people have an inherited tendency for a double chin. About the only way to remove this is by surgery, in which the fat pad is simply removed.

The exercises to firm the muscles at the floor of the mouth involve opening your mouth and tensing your lower jaw. Stick your tongue in and out and feel the muscles under your chin. You can exercise these muscles this way but it won't eliminate fat. It may help firm the muscles though.
