

Herd, Plainsmen resume rivalry tonight

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

One of District 3-5A's hottest rivalries continues tonight when the Hereford Whitefaces host the Monterey Plainsmen in a 7:30 p.m. clash at Whiteface Stadium.

The game pits two teams which have baffled preseason forecasters. Monterey stands at 1-2 after being ranked at the top of the loop by the experts. Hereford, meanwhile, has a perfect 3-0 record after being picked near the bottom of the district.

The Plainsmen hold a 9-4 edge in the series between the two teams. Monterey took a 36-14 win over the Herd in 1970, the first year Hereford moved up into the Class 4A ranks. MHS also won last year, stifling late comeback efforts by Hereford to claim a 6-0 win at Lubbock's Lowery Field.

That shutout was one of only two suffered by the Herd last year. The other was a disappointing 38-0 loss to Coronado in the final game, a defeat which probably knocked the Whitefaces out of the playoff picture.

Ironically, the Monterey win last season halted a Hereford win streak that saw the Whitefaces roll past Pampa 34-6, Canyon 31-8, and Lubbock High 42-8.

The Herd has virtually matched that effort this season with a 27-8 win over the Harvesters in the opener, followed by a 33-0 blanking of the Eagles, and a 24-7 win over the Westerners last week.

Hereford head coach Jerry Taylor will be hoping the Whitefaces can improve on their play against Lubbock High, despite the notch in the win column.

"We didn't play very well last week, and I'm afraid it's going to be more of the same against Monterey," Taylor said Thursday.

Whiteface fans can take heart in the fact that the Herd tops the district in both offense and defense. HHS has scored 85 points in three games and allowed just 15, also league bests.

Ronnie Terry, the loop's top rusher with 385 yards, has scored five touchdowns in three games, and is trying to become the third HHS runningback in three years to lead the district in rushing. The 166-lb. senior is following in the footsteps of former Herd standouts Wayne High and Alfred Ball in leading league rushers.

HHS quarterback Mike Scott's strong right arm adds yet another wrinkle to the Hereford attack, which has featured more aerial fireworks under Taylor than seen when former mentor Don Cumpton was here.

Monterey also has a pair of talented offensive backs, with senior David Hagood directing the offense at the quarterback position. Jay Douglas, who sat out part of last season with an injury, is a talented runner.

Monterey can ill afford another district loss after falling to Amarillo High 7-3 two weeks ago. They did pick up momentum with a 27-7 pasting of Coronado last week, however.

"Our kids played hard last week; we knew we couldn't afford another district loss," MHS coach James Odom said Wednesday.

When the Plainsmen stall offensively, Odom can confidently look to All-District kicker Scott Segrist. Segrist didn't miss a field goal try last season, and won three games for MHS with his talented toe. He had one three-pointer of 44 yards in helping the Plainsmen into the state playoffs a year ago.

Both Hereford and Monterey have short weeks next week with their next games set for Thursday. The Herd travels to Amarillo to face Caprock, while Monterey plays Lubbock High.

Gasoline, vegetables push consumer prices up

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for gasoline and fresh vegetables pushed consumer prices up a moderate 0.4 percent in August, matching the gain of the previous month, the government said today.

So far this year, prices have risen at an annual rate of just 3.4 percent. Over the

Band Booster Club meets Monday

A general meeting of the Band and Orchestra Booster Club is slated for 7 p.m. Monday in the Band Hall.

Included on the agenda is a discussion of the coming enchilada dinner. All interested parents and Hereford High School instrumentalists are encouraged to attend.

There are two other general meetings scheduled during the school year. They will not be held monthly, as has been the case in previous years.

last 12 months, the gain was 2.6 percent.

As for last month, the Labor Department said, gasoline prices rose a sharp 1.1 percent after a more modest 0.4 percent increase in July. Those prices, however, were still 8.4 percent below their peak of March 1981.

The 5.8 percent rise in fresh vegetable prices reversed a 3.6 percent July decline and boosted food prices overall a small 0.2 percent.

Food prices, which had fallen in the two preceding months, are likely to rise at a steeper clip in the coming months as the effects of this summer's drought and devastating heat become more apparent.

Initially, though, the bad weather is bringing hefty meat price declines as producers sell off their herds rather than pay higher feedgrain prices. Beef and veal prices fell 0.7 percent in August; pork prices tumbled 0.6 percent.

The continued moderation in the overall Consumer Price Index bolstered economists' predictions that inflation this year will better 1982's 3.9 percent clip. Indeed, some expect inflation could dip to roughly 3 percent, which would be the

Senate slices U.N. payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advocates of slashing U.S. payments to the United Nations by nearly half claim the Senate's passage of the dramatic cutback reflects national frustration with the international organization. But GOP leaders are fighting to keep the action from ever becoming law, calling it a threat to world stability.

The 66-23 vote Thursday night, which enjoyed wide bipartisan support in the Republican-run chamber despite Reagan administration objections, would chop this nation's monetary contribution to the United Nations by nearly $500 million over the next four years.

It would reduce the U.S. payments by 21 percent in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, then by another 10 percent in each of the next three years. By 1987, the U.S. payment would fall to $200 million — compared to the $363 million this nation is scheduled to contribute to the United Nations in 1984.

"I think it was an unfortunate vote. But I'm sure it's not the last word we'll hear on the subject," said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr.

But backers of the move asserted it was high time the United States reviewed its commitment to the United Nations, which has had its headquarters in New York City since its creation in 1945. "Spending at the United Nations is out of control," said Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., author of the funding-cutting amendment.

Thirty-nine Republicans and 27 Democrats supported her proposal, tacking it onto a bill authorizing a variety of State Department programs.

Baker and other opponents of the move indicated they were hopeful the amendment could be killed in conference.

lowest full-year rate since 1967. The department offered these specifics of August price activity: —Medical care costs climbed 0.5 percent, about the same as in the previous five months. Even so, those costs have soared 8.0 percent in the last 12 months, the sharpest advance for any of the major components of the index. —The gasoline price spurt drove overall transportation costs up 1.0 percent, double the increase of July.

—New car prices soared 0.8 percent after being unchanged in the previous month. Used car prices, up 1.5 percent in July, soared 1.8 percent, their fourth sharp gain in a row.

—Housing costs rose 0.2 percent, half the gain of July. Homeowners' costs were up 0.3 percent while renters' expenses were up 0.5 percent.

—Natural gas prices tumbled 0.5 percent, but were up 17.8 percent over the last 12 months.

—Heating oil prices were up 0.6 percent, but down 8.8 percent over the year.

—Fresh fruit prices fell 2.1 percent. Egg prices were down 2.8 percent. Poultry prices rose sharply for the second straight month. —Prices for restaurant meals rose 0.6 percent and prices for alcoholic beverages were unchanged.

—Entertainment expenses were up 0.3 percent. —Clothing costs were up 0.4 percent.

If last month's 0.4 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 5.3 percent.

The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure made public.

All the calculations are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the CPI stood at 300.3 in August, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $30.03 last month.

Thieves get pistol, rifle

Two guns, worth approximately $205 combined, were stolen sometime Wednesday from Maria Zepeda of 428 Barnett, Hereford police reported this morning.

Taken were a .22-caliber pistol and .22-caliber rifle, according to police.

There were three minor burglaries Thursday and one incident apiece of harassing phone calls, minor theft, prowling and vandalism.

Police Lieutenant Vernon Hope reported several items have been recovered thanks the Wednesday arrest of two 13-year-old males. They confessed committed several vehicle burglaries over the summer. Though they could not remember all the victims nor their cars, they did tell police what was taken from what streets. Anyone who thinks they own and wish to reclaim any of the following items supposedly taken by the two juveniles is asked to phone Lt. Hope at the police station.

Abducted baby found safe

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A 3-month-old girl abducted from a day care center was found naked and crying in an Irving apartment laundromat today, police say.

"We found her this morning at 6:20 a.m. and it is a positive ID and the baby is well," said Grand Prairie police spokesman Gaylord Hayes.

Jessica Davis was kidnapped from the Learning Center and Child Care facility in Grand Prairie Monday by a woman posing as the baby's aunt.

Hayes said a couple on their way to work "heard the baby crying and went over there and found her ... She was just in there crying and didn't have any clothes on."

Police detectives accompanied the girl's parents, Charles and Kathryn David, to Irving, where they positively identified Jessica, Hayes said. Irving and Grand Prairie are suburbs west of Dallas which abut each other.

Cotton crop hit hard

Freeze hurts harvest outlook

By REED PARSELL
Staff Writer

Tuesday night's freeze did more than ruin backyard tomatoes and bell peppers; it dealt a serious blow to farmers preparing to harvest in Deaf Smith County.

"We are in trouble on our freeze damage," said John Fuston, manager of the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. "Even more so than I originally thought."

Fuston estimated approximately 30 percent of the county's cotton crop was rendered useless due to the brief freeze. He put the loss for milo at 25 percent, soy beans 20 percent and corn 5 percent. The latter crop, he thought, probably received more harm from harsh winds than from the cold temperatures.

Milo, he said, was hit especially hard since it was generally planted late. A cold, wet spring caused the delay. Along with corn and wheat, he claimed, milo is one of the predominant crops in the county.

Fuston was also concerned about the success of maize seed producers. The freeze may have made it impossible for the seeds to germinate, he believed.

This year's first freeze fell on Sept. 20, exactly one month before what Fuston guessed was normal. He thought it was the earliest freeze since 1926, though local farmer F.A. "Spec" Marnell said he remembered one in late September of 1953.

"We weren't looking at a bumper crop," Fuston said, but one which he felt would have been only average for the county because of the hot and dry summer.

The freeze may prompt harvesting to be done earlier than planned. Normally, Fuston said, milo is harvested in November. Now, it will likely be pulled from the fields beginning within the next couple of weeks.

Corn is usually harvested in October, soy beans the first part of November and cotton for a month starting the middle of November. Corn should go about the normal time, he said, but the other two crops will probably be prematurely harvested.

While inspecting a field of soy beans at Andrew Ker-shens' farm, Fuston said, "I've never seen anything like this before." If the freeze had occurred a couple of weeks later, he felt, the field would have yielded 50 bushels per acre rather than the 35-40 bushels he now thought it would produce.

"And at $8 a bushel," he said, "that adds up."

Monetary setbacks will probably be suffered by more than just the soy bean farmers, Fuston said. He claimed that, except for wheat, the markets have been quite strong this summer and fall. Corn is going for almost $6 per hundred, milo $5.40 per hundredweight and cotton 55-60 cents per pound.

Substantial freeze damage to cotton occurred at Charles Schlabs' farm, Fuston found. About half the crop would be lost thanks to Tuesday's weather, he thought.

Wind Damage

John Fuston, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Deaf Smith County, inspects an area corn field which was affected more by stiff winds than Tuesday's freeze. Fuston thought the corn looked good, though he believed felled stalks might cause a slight decrease in the harvest efficiency.

What The Freeze Did

The damage of Tuesday's brief freeze is well demonstrated above, where John Fuston places a healthy, undamaged cotton leaf next to a plant left dead and wilting thanks to cold temperatures. Fuston, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Deaf Smith County, estimated about half of the pictured field (owned by Charles Schlabs) was ruined by the freeze.

Infant returns to await liver donor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 1-year-old girl whose battle for life led President Reagan to make a nationwide appeal on her behalf is back in Texas to continue her wait for a new liver.

Ashley Bailey, who returned to Fort Worth Thursday, was flown to the University of Minnesota Hospital May 1 where she underwent evaluations to see if her body could accept a new liver and eventually gained five pounds.

Ashley suffers from biliary arteria, a normally fatal, congenital condition in which the ducts in the liver, necessary to drain bile, are missing or too small to function properly.

President Reagan used his weekly radio broadcast to plea July 23 for a donor on Ashley's behalf.

Her family decided to return to Texas because "all we were doing up there now is waiting," said her mother, Annette Bailey Gossett. "It was getting expensive, and we would rather wait here."

"She was doing so well that we really wanted the family to get to see her while she's doing this good. We were not discouraged. She was getting great care up there, but we know she would get great care here, too. She was before we left."

Ashley was readmitted to Cook's Children's Hospital Thursday. She was supposed to return from Minneapolis after doctors there completed their evaluations, but she later refused to eat and developed several infections.

Ashley wore a blue and white flowered calico dress and blue ribbon in her hair when she was carried from a plane after the four-hour flight from Minnesota.

At nearly 15 pounds, she appeared healthy and happy except for tubes protruding from her arms and chest.

"She has a little bit of a cold, and she still won't hardly eat anything on her own, but she's doing real good," Mrs. Gossett said. She's gotten a lot stronger. She sits up alone and can pull herself up on things."

Gas explosions

threaten east Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Gas lines ruptured, causing up to 20 small fires and threatening homes throughout east Boston today, as firefighters, police and utility workers rushed from location to location answering emergency calls, officials said.

"There are gas mains broken, there are water mains broken," said Fire Chief George Gravelese. "I've never seen this happen before."

An urgent call was broadcast for residents to turn off gas lines in their houses to prevent explosions. Boston Edison teams scrambled to shut off gas lines.

"It's very serious because there were 15 or 20 different small fires and large fires and they can occur anywhere in east Boston," said Gravelese.

One dispatcher said at about 4:30 a.m. that fire crews were trying to respond to at least 60 calls for help from residents who smelled gas or saw small fires on their stoves where the gas was coming into contact with pilot lights.

One fire was reported in a restaurant, but with no injuries.

Dispatchers said details of the problem were sketchy and they were too busy to discuss the sequence of events as they tried to handle calls pouring into headquarters.

Tear gas thrown into crowd of protesters

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A jeepload of uniformed armed men threw gas bombs today into a crowd of thousands of protesters in the city's financial district as foes of President Ferdinand E. Marcos vowed to press their campaign to drive him from office.

"They're firing! They're firing!" shouted panicked office workers as the jeep carrying six men in blue uniforms invaded the crowd which had been calling for Marcos' resignation. The men, wearing helmets and gas masks, held rifles aloft, but no shots were heard.

The crowd dashed to safety as mustard-like smell rose amid the high-rise office buildings. There apparently were no injuries, and the affiliation of the armed men was not immediately known.

The spontaneous demonstration, the fourth in suburban Makati in a week, came one day after Marcos threatened to use force against protesters. Opposition leaders, undaunted, said their campaign would continue.

"We will not stop until Marcos yields to our demand," said former Sen. Salvador H. Laurel.

"Mr. Marcos is misreading the determination and resolve of the people," said Jose Diokno, another former senator.

Diokno and Laurel are among the opposition leaders who have been marshaling public indignation over the Aug. 21 assassination of Benigno Aquino, Marcos' chief political rival.

Rallies staged throughout the country culminated Wednesday in a peaceful demonstration of half a million people followed by riots — the bloodiest in Marcos' 18-year rule. Officials said 11 people were killed and about 200 injured.

Paul Harvey News

Call them like they are

Part of our problem with our problems is that we don't call things by their right names anymore.

We don't call a bum a bum anymore.

In the days when we did, the designation set apart from mainstream society a subculture which was willing to take responsibility for its own irresponsibility.

If a Bowery bum chose to drink himself to death he blamed no one but himself.

If a bum caught pneumonia in a dark boxcar buddies would bury him at the trackside with their hats off. He was a valiant "bum."

Itinerants those days might seek a backdoor handout — even offer to work for it.

Today the guy who comes to the front door demanding a share of what you have is something else.

Instead of foraging, he expects you to forage for him.

And if you don't he has government on his side to require that you do.

Our nation has a percentage of halt, lame and ineducable genuinely deserving of our help.

Our cities are presently part populated by a mostly young, mostly poor, mostly uneducated, often drugged bunch of trash.

They comprise what my mother used to call "alley rats;" what former Labor Secretary Wirtz called "the human scrapheap."

They frighten us when we're stopped at a stoplight in those neighborhoods.

Or when they intrude on our neighborhoods.

We think shame on them for dropping out, goofing off, shooting up and for looking so menacing.

And for daring to reproduce themselves.

While this scrapheap is growing toward overwhelming.

We have been letting them get away with labeling themselves "deprived," "disadvantaged," "discriminated against."

Camouflaged by those politician words they have moved in on the genuinely "deprived," "disadvantaged" and "discriminated against."

They are parasites attached to the bent backs of the deserving poor. Extortionists holding hostage the truly needy.

In the years-ago days of the bundle-on-a-stick-over-the-shoulder bums both they and we knew the difference between them and thieves.

Today we need an updated designation, a new identification to distinguish the helpless who need us from the leeches who feed on them and us.

Then surely from even the lowest rung on the social ladder the ghetto child could see that he or she "does not want to be one of those."

day care center and to nearby residents. Worth.

Three of the photographs were of a woman from Garland, another Dallas suburb, and two Grand Prairie women who resemble an FBI sketch of the person who kidnapped Jessica from the day care center operated by Jack and Dee Doshier.

The other photographs were of a 55-year-old woman who is a possible suspect in the unsolved May 10 kidnapping of 7-week-old Cherie Ann Kennedy from a Fort Worth Hospital, and the woman's daughter, believed to be in her 20s, police said.

The mother and daughter suspects are from Illinois but frequently stay in Oklahoma and were in the Dallas-Fort Worth area during the abductions, police said.

Penny Kennedy of Fort Worth, mother of Cherie Ann, also was shown the photographs, but she said she was unable to identify the 55-year-old woman as the person who took her daughter from her arms.

"She had a kind face, but a kind face can fool you," Mrs. Kennedy said. "I never through this woman could do this, she was so friendly and nice."

The Garland woman has been a suspect in previous kidnappings and fits the description of Jessica's abductor, said Grand Prairie police Sgt. D.H. Pfeifer.

Police said there was nothing to link the Grand Prairie women to the kidnapping except for their physical resemblance to the abductor.

Staff members of the Department of Human Resources, which regulates day-care centers, were preparing a recommendation Thursday on whether to revoke the child-care license of the Grand Prairie facility.

DHR inspectors visited the facility Tuesday to determine if it had violated any state standards.

Religious comments free at truck stop

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — At the Big "B" Truck Stop on Highway 75 South a weary driver can fill his rig with diesel, down a steaming cup of java and hear some "old time religion" before the superslab summons him to cities along the line.

The fuel and coffee are there for a price. The religion is free, courtesy of Alvin Reynolds — teacher, preacher, counselor and friend to the trucker.

"Truckers are away from home for two to three weeks at a time," Reynolds explains. "They need someone to counsel and talk with them. I counsel with them according to the Bible, not according to any church."

Pinned to the pocket of Reynolds' white long-sleeved shirt is a button that reads "Jesus Is Love." The red cap he wears bears a cross, Bible and "Christ Is The Answer."

Reynolds, 65, recapped tires until he began his novel ministry from his "trucker's chapel," a renovated bread truck that also serves as his home. Inside are a small bed, table, cabinets and assorted color pictures of the Last Supper, Christ preaching to his disciples and truckers on the road at the time of the rupture. A pair of vinyl-backed chairs used as chapel "pews" sit in a corner next to a cardboard box filled with empty Winston cigarette packages.

"I've been around trucks and truckers for 35 years," Reynolds says as he sips coffee in the dining room of the truck stop. "I've been a layman, preacher and teacher for 25 years. When I retired about three years ago, I put the two together and dedicated myself and everything about me to the Lord."

Born in Blue, Okla., Reynolds worked in Gainesville, Sulphur Springs and Durant, Okla., before moving to Sherman where he retired. Before his eyesight began failing him, he used to take his chapel on the road, he said. Now he preaches and lives at the truck stop fulltime, thanks to Social Security "and what little the truckers donate."

Reynolds estimates that between 15 and 30 truckers visit his chapel every week for the personal brand of religion he practices and the counseling he offers.

"Most of 'em come to me to talk about marriage problems," he said. "There are more marriage problems than anything else. I show them in First Corinthians the whole chapter which talks about marriage."

Reynolds, divorced in 1960, said that experience has helped him deal with those types of problems. "I know what it's like. I've been through it. It has helped me a tremendous lot."

The greatest joy he receives from his ministry, he said, is turning someone to Christ. The stories are numerous.

"There was this woman between 25 and 30 who drove a truck," he recounts. "She came to me about 11 o'clock one day and told me her whole life story. I said, 'Jesus is on one side of the road and you're on the other, and Jesus can't help you until you cross that road.'"

"Well, she left, and a little bit later she burst into my van and said, 'Alvin, I want to accept Christ.' She was dressed in old dirty khaki shorts and her hair was a mess. She wouldn't have gone to any church like that."

"But you see, the Lord used me in this old van to help her. And I did," Reynolds said.

Morticians demand more protection

DALLAS (AP) — Morticians are ordering so much protective gear to protect themselves from communicable diseases like AIDS that a Dallas chemical company is having trouble keeping the equipment in stock.

Pierce Chemicals has sold more than 300 of the kits since they were put on the market in early August, including 30 at a small convention of funeral directors in Florida last week, said company president Paul Bollman.

"As soon as we get them in production, I expect to be shipping 50 kits a day," Bollman said.

The communicable disease sanitation kits sell for $47.25 each and were produced by Pierce Chemical at the request of funeral homes, who came up with the idea.

Bollman, who says his company is the nation's fifth-largest producer of mortician's supplies, told the Dallas Times-Herald that he is receiving an increasing number of queries from funeral home directors about AIDS.

The disease, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome — primarily affects male homosexuals and has no known cure. So far, 2,339 cases have been reported in the United States, including 65 in Texas.

"With the AIDS outbreak, people like myself were concerned about picking up the disease," said Randy Stroud, supervisor of the preparation room at Restland Funeral Home here, one of the funeral homes that asked Pierce to put together the kit.

"We've used two of the kits already," Stroud said. "One was to pick up a typhus case. The other was an AIDS case."

In New York, where the highest incidence of AIDS cases have been confirmed, many morticians became so fearful of contracting AIDS from a deceased victim that the state's funeral directors temporarily refused to embalm any AIDS cases.

The kit, formally called a "first call and embalming protection" package, is intended to be stored in funeral coaches where they can be used by morticians when they are called to move a body from the place of death to a funeral home.

Included in the kit are heavy duty autopsy gloves, protective sleeves, filter masks, goggles, disinfectants and other protective gear.

National competition announced by T.H. Bell

Secretary of Education T.H. Bell announced today at a press conference the start of "Mathcounts" (SM), the first nationwide coaching program and math competition for junior high school students.

Mathcounts officially begins this month in 44 states and the District of Columbia. During the next several months, millions of seventh and eighth grade students in thousands of participating schools will undergo a planned series of math skill-building exercises. This will lead to selection of school teams for a series of math competitions at the local and state levels.

The final event is a national competition in Washington, D.C. in May 1984. Eventually, as many as 7.4 million seventh and eighth grade "mathletes" representing nearly 16,000 school districts are expected to participate.

Mathcounts is the first nationwide effort to combine resources and sponsorship of education, industry and government sectors toward improving math literacy. It will be sponsored each year by the National Society of Professional Engineers, CNA Insurance Companies, National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and National Science Foundation.

Mathcounts has three objectives:

1. Make math achievement as challenging, rewarding and exciting as a school sports event, and instill this image among seventh and eighth graders - considered formative years for higher level math education and career interests.

2. Increase public awareness of the importance of math to the country's future.

3. Pave the way for improvements in math education curricula in junior high schools.

Bell marked his official announcement of Mathcounts as sample competition questions were delivered to team representatives from the Chicago, Ill., and Birmingham, Ala., public schools where prototypes of the math program have been implemented successfully.

Bell pointed to a new study, funded in part by the National Science Foundation, warning that 95 percent of the nation's children may not have sufficient math skills to function in a high-tech society. Other research indicated that half of all high school students in the United States do not study math or science beyond the 10th grade.

"We need more math and other 'back to basics' courses to assure our children a proper education," the Secretary added. "America is faced with the challenge of maintaining our world leadership in technology, and it will be up to our children to carry on with this charge."

The Mathcounts program begins this month and runs through the school year. Students in participating schools will take an initial math test distributed by local engineering societies. This test tells teachers where the students' current levels of math competency are and what areas need to be strengthened.

Teachers then use Mathcounts learning aids, including practice drills and in-class competitions, to help students reach monthly achievement goals and develop better math skills.

The teachers administer a final test which helps the schools select their team representatives for the first round of Mathcounts competitions scheduled for February. Junior high teams will compete in oral and written exams conducted at college campuses wherever the engineering societies have local chapters. First place winners progress to the state competitions. Finalists will be flown to Washington, D.C. for the national contest May 18-19, 1984.

The Mathcounts program was created three years ago by the CNA Insurance Companies, the Chicago Board of Education and the Chicago Urban League to coach inner city high school students to participate in a statewide math contest co-sponsored by the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics and CNA.

In the first year, two inner city schools took honors in regional math competitions and went on to the state finals. One school increased its city math standing from last place to third because of Mathcounts coaching, according to the Chicago Board of Education.

The National Society of Professional Engineers also had shown interest in math improvement five years ago when it launched a junior high competition. The program was pioneered in Alabama by its state society. Results from that program are equally impressive. For example, 1982 student California Achievement scores of Birmingham public schools participating in Mathcounts averaged over a grade higher than non-participating schools.

CNA and the NSPE joined forces last year to take Mathcounts nationwide at the junior high level and adopted the name of the Chicago program. Most of the society's 80,000 members have volunteered to help develop the coaching program, sign up schools and conduct the series of competitions.

CNA and the NSPE are the major sponsors of Mathcounts along with the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, NASA and the National Science Foundation. Other organizations offering their support are the Junior Engineering Technical Society, Mathematical Association of America, National Association of Elementary School Principals, National Association of Secondary School Principals, National Council of Supervisors of Mathematics and National School Boards Association.

Mathcounts is open to all junior high schools - public, private and parochial - in participating states.

Stiff Defense

With their backs to the wall, the visiting Chieftains from Friona found little running room against the defense from Hereford High School's "white" junior varsity squad, shown above in the dark uniforms. This play occurred the third quarter and was followed by a fumble recovered by the Whitefaces. HHS then scored and went on to win 21-14.

Corky Nelson

NTSU coach got break at Baylor

AUSTIN (AP) — Perhaps the biggest compliment Corky Nelson has ever received as a football coach came in 1974 when Baylor head coach Grant Teaff hired him from John Tyler High School after Nelson's top graduating player already had signed with the University of Texas. The player was Earl Campbell.

"I'd probably have been smarter if I'd told Coach (Darrell) Royal to take me with Earl," Nelson said. "But I loved it at Baylor. We accomplished more there, and they hadn't had that kind of success there. At Texas, I'd have just been one of the guys." If becoming an overachiever spurs Nelson on, the 44-year-old San Antonio native might have found the perfect spot at North Texas State, UT's opponent Saturday.

Until the Baylor defensive coordinator stepped on the Denton campus in July 1982, the school had gone through four head coaches, four presidents and four athletic directors in five years with only two winning seasons to show for it.

His predecessor, Bob Tyler, had been forced to resign. An internal audit revealed a deficit of $2.5 million accrued over a decade, as well as spending abuses in the NTSU athletic department. Among the more serious violations were the purchase of 168 footballs as opposed to 60 the year before — Tyler was accused of giving away balls to boosters — missing equipment and extensive long-distance phone usage, probably by athletes.

As a consequence, the Eagles dropped in classification from Division I to I-AA, where they are playing in the Southland Conference with the Arkansas States and Northeast Louisianas.

"The program has been down since Hayden Fry left it," Nelson said. "Jerry Moore could have revived it, but he stayed only two years. There was a lot of turnover and no consistent leadership. The thing was suffering, no question about it."

"I was hesitant until I talked with the administration. After that, I felt it was dang sure worth the gamble. I knew exactly where everything stood."

Ironically enough, the personable Nelson wasn't North Texas' first choice. Bill Brashear, Fry's former Eagle assistant and current Iowa defensive coordinator, turned down the job as did Mean Joe Greene, the school's most famous alumnus and former Pittsburgh Steeler great.

None of that bothers Nelson, who was hired even though he didn't apply after being snubbed the three times he did seek the job.

"I don't imagine I was the first choice," Nelson said, "but I haven't been the first choice in many parts of my life."

A one-time NTSU assistant in 1969-70, Nelson returned in midsummer, left his wife and family in Waco since his twin daughters were on the Richfield High drill team and moved in with an old friend at his ranch outside Denton after bedding down in a dormitory in the summer.

Although the Eagles scared New Mexico and Tulsa — a pair of 10-1 teams — as well as Nelson's former employer, Baylor, they rushed for only 800 yards and scored only two touchdowns on the ground.

American streak in danger

Australia II ties up yacht race

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The stage is set for "the most significant yacht race in history."

Australia II, the spunky, speedy challenger, and Liberty, the steady, unspectacular defender, clash in the final battle for the America's Cup, sailing's most prestigious prize.

It happens Saturday on Rhode Island Sound. A vast armada of spectator craft is expected for the ultimate race in a sport hardly noted for its mass appeal. This time, it's different.

Australia II made it so. She whipped Liberty by a record 3 minutes, 25 seconds Thursday and tied their best-of-seven series, 3-3. One more victory and the never-say-die Aussies will put an end to sports' longest winning streak.

"It's going to be very exciting to be involved in the race of the century," Liberty skipper Dennis Conner, in danger of becoming the first American helmsman to lose the grand prize the United States has held since 1851, said Thursday. "We have a very courageous crew and, somehow, I think we'll pull it out Saturday."

"I'm confident that we'll win," said helmsman John Bertrand after pulling Australia II back from a 3-1 deficit with consecutive must-win victories.

Conner won his fifth consecutive start Thursday, crossing the line seven seconds ahead of Bertrand. But midway up the first leg, Australia II caught up when she picked up a wind shift to the left as Conner failed to cover Bertrand's tacking. Australia II breezed to a massive advantage of 2:29 at the first rounding and led comfortably for the remainder of the 24.3-mile race.

"We tried to cover. When they tacked we tacked on them until they were ahead. Then they covered us," Conner said. "Australia II is a bit peculiar from the standpoint of normal 12 meters inasmuch as she can tack very quickly.

"We made mistakes, but I think that relative to the potential of our yacht, we've gotten a fair bit out of it in this series and we're pleased."

But the tide that was flowing for Conner when he took a 3-1 lead with a 43-second victory Tuesday has now reversed.

The momentum, Bertrand said, is "very important. We've developed a lot of confidence in the way we're sailing Australia II and I believe that we will be improving."

"I also believe we've learned how to sail against Liberty and, as a result, I'm confident about continuing the success that we've had the last two days."

If that happens, his next stop will be the Manhattan mansion of the New York Yacht Club, where the silver pitcher at stake Saturday is displayed.

Robert W. McCullough, chairman of the NYYC's

America's Cup Committee, said if Australia II wins, a presentation will be made Monday or Tuesday at the club.

He said the Aussies would have to sign a document promising to abide by the deed under which the NYYC has held the Cup before it can be transferred.

McCullough said whether the Aussies could change the Cup's name "is a good legal question ... I guess they could change it but I don't know why they'd want to."

White squad ends losing skid, 21-14

Hereford's White Junior Varsity finally scored some points Thursday evening, and it came at the right time as the team overcame a 14-0 halftime deficit to overtake the Friona JV by a 21-14 count at Whiteface Stadium.

After the Whites had claimed their win, the Maroon bunch followed suit and claimed a 13-12 decision over Tascosa. Doug Watts caught an arching pass from Stefan Hacker for the final HHS score, erasing a 12-7 Tascosa lead.

The Rebels offset a 7-6 Hereford halftime lead by returning the opening kickoff of the second half for a touchdown. Watts' heroics came with about five minutes left in the game, and the Whitefaces staved off a final Rebel charge to preserve the win.

Volleyers triumph

After dropping its first 10 matches of the season, the varsity volleyball team from Hereford High School finally won Thursday when it downed visiting Lubbock High School, 15-13, 15-4.

Meanwhile, the Whiteface junior varsity girls remained winless as Lubbock triumphed 6-15, 15-13, 15-8.

HHS coach Sharma Smith said the varsity victory was helped by Lubbock "freeballing everything." Several of her girls had some good hits, too, she claimed.

Senior Shonda White led all scorers with nine points, seven of them coming in the first game. Shannon Evers, another senior, added six for the Whitefaces while junior Cindy Pruitt and senior Rosemary Castillo recorded five apiece.

Sharon Wright was the high-point person for the local JV squad, netting 11 points. Elida Acosta and Gloria Marquez each contributed five to the losing cause.

Both the varsity and JV teams will travel to Tascosa Tuesday before returning home Thursday for matches against Coronado.

Pirates in second

Phillies sweep Montreal; now four up

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer

With the Montreal Expos poised to strike, the stalked Philadelphia Phillies quickly changed into the stalkers.

Veterans Joe Morgan and Mike Schmidt led a first-game power display, and then rookie Charles Hudson fired a four-hitter in the nightcap as the Phillies swept the Expos in a double-header Thursday night.

The 9-7 and 7-1 victories in Montreal put the National League East-leading Phillies four games ahead of the Expos, who dropped into third place. Pittsburgh beat Chicago 8-2 to move into second, three games behind the Phillies.

All three contenders have nine games remaining.

"Two victories, that's just sweet!" exclaimed Phillies Manager Paul Owens during the postgame celebration in the Philadelphia lockerroom, which was closed for a short time after the second game ended.

"It was bedlam," he said.

"The players were rushing around shaking each other's hands and rubbing heads. I felt it was best to keep everyone out for a while until they had cooled down."

Philadelphia has now won seven straight games and travels to St. Louis to begin a three-game series tonight.

The Expos, who play host to Pittsburgh for a three-game set this weekend, realize they dealt their pennant chances a severe blow by losing their last two games of the season against Philadelphia.

"It's very tough to win when you're four back with nine to play," said Expos Manager Bill Virdon. "You've got to get a lot of help and you can't afford to lose any."

In other NL games, Cincinnati stopped Atlanta 6-4 and St. Louis beat New York 3-2.

The Phillies won the opener as Morgan — who has 13 hits in his last 18 at-bats — doubled three times. Schmidt belted his 38th home run of the season, while Ivan De-

Jesus and Ozzie Virgil also homered.

But the big blows were a bases-loaded triple by Joe Lefebvre in the fourth inning, which gave Philadelphia a 5-1 lead, and Len Matuszek's two-run single in the seventh that made it 7-4.

John Denny, 17-6, got relief help from Al Holland, who earned his 23rd save. Charlie Lea, 15-10, took the loss for Montreal, which got home runs from Tim Raines and Chris Speier.

In the nightcap, Hudson, 8-7, outpitched Steve Rogers, 17-11.

Singles by Greg Gross, Bo Diaz and DeJesus made it 1-0 in the fifth inning and the Phillies added four runs in the seventh on RBI singles by Matuszek, Schmidt and Gary Matthews and a throwing error by center fielder Andre Dawson.

"We played hard, we battled hard and probably we tried too hard," said Montreal's Gary Carter, who went 0-for-8 in the double-header and hit the ball out of the infield only once.

"Look, I'm human; I'm not a machine. I just had a bad night."

Pirates 8, Cubs 2

Johnny Ray tripled, doubled and added two singles to help Pittsburgh end its 10-game losing streak in Chicago. Eight of those losses came this season.

Rookie Lee Tunnell, 10-5, pitched a six-hitter to beat Rick Reuschel, 1-1.

Larry Bowa's RBI single gave the Cubs 1-0 lead in the second before the Pirates struck for four runs in the fifth.

With one out, Marvell Wynne doubled and scored on Ray's triple. Walks to Dave Parker and Jason Thompson loaded the bases and another run scored on Mike Easler's forceout.

Tony Pena and Richie Hebner then delivered run-scoring singles.

Ron Cey hit an inside-the-park home run in the ninth inning to account for the Cubs' other run. Cey's 23rd homer came when Parker crashed into the right field wall while chasing the wind-blown fly ball.

Reds 6, Braves 4

Slumping Atlanta missed another chance to gain ground in the NL West as Dan Driessen's two-run homer, his 12th, put visiting Cincinnati ahead 5-4 in the sixth.

The Reds stayed in front and reliever Tom Hume pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Second-place Atlanta, which has won only two of its last nine games, now trails the Los Angeles Dodgers by 4½ games. The Braves, who have 11 games remaining, and Los Angeles, with 10 left, begin a three-game series tonight in Atlanta.

Cincinnati's Jeff Russell, 4-3, allowed six hits over six innings to beat Ken Dayley, 4-7.

Paul Householder's three-run double pulled the Reds into a 3-3 tie in the fourth before Glenn Hubbard's 10th homer in the fifth gave Atlanta a brief lead.

Cardinals 3, Mets 2

Rookie Danny Cox allowed five hits in blanking New York over eight innings before running into trouble in the ninth.

Cox, 3-5, departed after Darryl Strawberry led off the ninth with a single and scored on George Foster's double. Reliever Bruce Sutter gave up pinch-hitter Keith Hernandez's RBI single and then got his 20th save.

Host St. Louis scored in the fourth off Ron Darling, 0-3, on two-out singles by Andy Van Slyke and David Green and a double steal.

Cardinals shortstop Mike Ramsey left the game after breaking a bone in his right hand while trying to field Strawberry's double in the first.

Sharon Sites Adams, a 39-year-old California homemaker, became in 1969 the first woman to sail across the Pacific alone.

Whitaker keys victory

Tigers postpone Orioles' clinching

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

"Sweet Lou" Whitaker has certainly been just that for the Detroit Tigers this year.

As a leadoff man, he's knocked in 70 runs, including three big ones Thursday night against the Baltimore Orioles that staved off virtual elimination for the Tigers in the American League East race.

Whitaker's fourth hit of the game, a two-out single in the 10th inning, drove in the winning run as the Tigers defeated the Orioles 5-4 and kept them from clinching at least a tie for the division title.

"We were down after losing that double-header the night before," Whitaker said of Wednesday night's 6-0, 7-3 sweep by the Orioles. "But, it was just a game. It took a little out of us, but we're always ready. I came to play."

In other AL action, Chicago nipped California 3-2; Texas stopped Seattle 5-2; Cleveland outscored Milwaukee 9-5 and Minnesota edged Kansas City 2-1.

Enos Cabell started the Detroit 10th with a single off Baltimore reliever Sammy Stewart, 9-4, and took second on a wild pitch. Stewart got Chet Lemon on a popup and walked Rick Leach before giving way to Dan Morogiello, the fifth Baltimore pitcher.

Morogiello got Lynn Jones on a pop foul before Whitaker singled down the left field line at Tiger Stadium to drive in the winning run.

Earlier, Whitaker had singled home a run in the third inning and another in the ninth to tie the game 4-4 and send it into extra innings. His four hits raised his season's batting average to .321.

"I just think he's a whale of a ballplayer," Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli said of Whitaker. "He doesn't do anything poorly — hit or field. And, I think he's only going to get better."

Eddie Murray accounted for three of Baltimore's runs with his 31st and 32nd home runs.

The Tigers kept their flickering hopes alive in the AL East race, cutting Baltimore's lead to 7½ games. The Orioles' "magic number" for clinching the division title remained at three with 10 games to go.

White Sox 3, Angels 2

In Anaheim, Tom Paciorek drove home Carlton Fisk from third with a groundout in the eighth inning to lift Chicago over California.

Jerry Koonsman, 11-7, scattered six hits through seven innings to gain the victory with last-inning relief help from Juan Agosto, who picked up his seventh save.

Fisk singled with one out in the Chicago eighth and moved to third on a double by Harold Baines. After an intentional walk to Greg Walker, Fisk scored as Paciorek bounced into a force play.

Ron Kittle hit his 34th home run for the White Sox. The blast left him three shy of the AL record for a rookie, 37 by Al Rosen in 1950.

Rangers 5, Mariners 2

In Arlington, Larry Parrish's three-run double in the eighth inning gave Danny Darwin his first victory since July 1 as Texas beat Seattle.

After Wayne Tolleson, Billy Sample and George Wright all walked in the eighth, Parrish drove them home for the Rangers' winning runs.

Darwin, 8-13, had six losses and three no-decisions in his nine starts since the All-Star break before Thursday night.

Loser Jim Beattie, 9-14, equaled his season high of seven strikeouts but was removed from the game after walking Tolleson to open the eighth.

Indians 9, Brewers 5

In Cleveland, Pat Tabler doubled in two runs and Karl Pagan singled in another as the Indians scored five times during a rain-delayed sixth inning to beat Milwaukee.

Winner Lary Sorensen, 11-10, scattered seven hits in eight innings.

The Indians entered the sixth trailing 3-1. But Tabler doubled home two runs to tie the game just before a thunderstorm struck. Following a rain delay of one hour and 26 minutes, Pagan singled home the tie-breaking run.

Brewers starter Tom Candiotti, 4-3, left after walking Jack Perconte, and reliever Tom Tellmann later issued bases-loaded walks to Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove to make it 6-3 Cleveland and give the Indians their eventual winning run.

Twins 2, Royals 1

In Kansas City, Kent Hrbek and Dave Engle each drove in a run and relief ace Ron Davis posted his 29th save as Minnesota edged the Royals.

The Twins scored both of their runs in the fourth against Eric Rasmussen, 3-6. Gary Ward led off with a single and came home on Hrbek's triple. Hrbek then trotted home with the second run when Engle singled.

Daryl Motley led off the Royals' fifth with his second home run.

Winner Pete Filson, 3-1, scattered nine hits, struck out three and walked three before needing relief help in the eighth from Davis, who got the last four outs.

"I asked Filson to start challenging the hitters more with his fastball and it seemed to work out well," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner. "He pitched well. This is the farthest he's gone since coming off the injured arm."

Texas employers rated good, bad qualities

AUSTIN - A good command of the three R's are important skills to have when applying for a job, but they alone are not always enough to get hired, according to the results of a recently completed statewide survey of employers.

Conducted by the Advisory Council for Technical-Vocational Education in Texas, the survey asked 5,000 Texas employers to rate the "qualities they like and dislike in job applicants." There were 1,143 responses.

Thirty-six percent of the respondents said that occupational skills (characteristic to the performance of a job) in addition to basic education skills (reading, writing, and arithmetic) are required for most or all entry level jobs with their firms. Another 32 percent said they are required for at least some jobs.

Only 32 of the respondents said that occupational skills are not required for any entry level job with their firm.

The employer sample, representative of the state, was developed by the Texas Employment Commission. Employers were asked to base their responses on entry level jobs requiring less than a bachelor's degree.

Seventy-nine percent said applicants with occupational skills in addition to basic education skills will start a higher pay for at least some jobs than applicants with just a basic education. Twenty-one percent of the respondents said they would start at equal pay.

"Newspaper want ads" and "word-of-mouth" are the two leading sources from which employers get job applicants.

A past history of "job-hopping" and a "lack of job related skills-education" are the top two reasons employers give for rejecting job applicants after the submission of an application form.

The top two reasons given for rejecting applicants after the initial job interview are "little interest or poor reasons for wanting the job" and the "inability to communicate during the interview."

Once a choice of applicants for an entry level job have been narrowed to a final few, employers say "previous work experience" and "interest shown in the job" are the top two reasons one applicant is chosen over another.

"Absenteeism" is the number one reason people get fired. The second leading reason is "workers are not qualified to perform the tasks of the job."

When asked where improvement is needed in the preparation of people for work, employers said improvement is most needed in the "ability to write and speak effectively." "Work habits" is the second area in which improvement is most needed.

As an additional goal for public education, employers believe that greater emphasis needs to be put on assisting students in developing the "ability to apply theoretical knowledge gained in the classroom or laboratory to real life situations."

In 1975, the Advisory Council conducted an employer survey similar to the 1983 survey. There are a few significant differences in the results of the two surveys.

Sixty-eight percent of the 1983 respondents said that occupational skills (characteristic to the performance of a particular job) are required for at least some entry level jobs. Only 53 percent said this in the 1975 survey.

The 1983 respondents rated "not qualified to perform tasks" as the second leading cause of employee termination. This reason was not among the top five in 1975.

Hair analysis has little use

Mail-order ads touting "hair analysis" to detect nutritional deficiencies and even diagnose diseases can be found in health-food stores, health magazines, and books.

For a $35 or $40, commercial laboratories will test the hair, send the customer a computerized listing of the minerals it contains, and may attempt to interpret nutritional shortcomings.

The Texas Medical Association notes, however, that hair analysis is unreliable in determining if an individual has a mineral or vitamin shortage, let alone diagnosing diseases.

In addition, an American Medical Association panel says there is no proof that low amounts of an element in hair indicate low levels throughout the body. "The state of health of the body may be entirely unrelated to the physical and chemical condition of the hair," says the AMA panel.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says one purpose for hair analysis appears to be to promote the sale of vitamin and mineral supplements. More often than not, the customer is told he or she has a number of mineral deficiencies and is advised to take several supplements, which the same firm commonly offers for sale.

The FDA says a company also might recommend vitamins even though hair analysis cannot provide this information since hair trimmings contain no vitamins. One hair-analysis company that the FDA checked recommended virtually the same supplements for most customers.

The FDA says hair analysis is useful for studying population groups when enough samples can be taken, but its use is still extremely limited for study of individuals. One problem is that several factors affect the hair's mineral content; the hair's color, the part of the body it came from, the season of the year, and the person's age, sex, and race.

In addition, elements can be added or removed from hair through contact with water, environmental pollutants, shampoos that may contain zinc or selenium, hair sprays, hair dyes, color "restorers" containing lead, hair dressings and treatments for bleaching, straightening, and permanent waving.

State and federal agencies also are investigating whether some commercial hair-analysis firms are breaking the law. Allegations have included practicing medicine without a license, violating license requirements for laboratories engaged in interstate commerce, and making false or misleading claims for hair analysis.

Hunting season requires safety

As the main hunting season begins in Texas, safety should be the foremost concern in using a firearm, says the Texas Medical Association.

This applies particularly to hunters under age 21, who cause almost 60 percent of gun casualties. Persons in this age group also make up about 40 percent of all accident victims. For this reason, hunter safety programs in Texas concentrate on the young hunter.

But safety while hunting applies to all ages. As guidelines, the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife lists the Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety:

- Treat every gun as if it were loaded.
 - Be able to control the direction of the gun's muzzle even if you should stumble.
 - Be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions. Use only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.
 - Unload guns when not in use. They should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
 - Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot. Avoid all horseplay with a firearm.
 - Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. And never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
 - Be sure of your target before pulling the trigger.
 - Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or at water.
- During target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.

-Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

-Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

To protect the hunter from being mistaken for big game, the Texas Medical Association and wildlife officials recommend that hunters wear a brightly colored outer garment or cap. The best color is "hunter orange."

For more information on hunter safety programs, call the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife at 1-800-792-1112.

Drug may offer new hope to MS victims

An experimental drug that prevents the destruction of nerve insulation may offer new hope to chronic multiple sclerosis patients.

The drug, copolymer, is being tested by scientists at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

For most of the 250,000 Americans with multiple sclerosis (MS), the attacks—weakness, numbness, blindness and tremors—come and go. But 10 to 15 percent of them are eventually confined to wheelchairs as attacks get progressively worse.

MS blocks the impulses sent by the brain that tell the muscles to work. Its development is attributed to a breakdown in the insulation, called myelin, which normally allows nerve impulses to be rapidly conducted.

"Like an electrical wire without insulation, a nerve cell without myelin does not conduct impulses at the same rate, and is subject to interruption by a variety of circumstances," said Stanley Appel, M.D., chairman of Baylor's Department of Neurology.

Appel and Loren Rolak, M.D., a Baylor neurologist, plan to test copolymer over a four-year period in 40 patients who have the chronic, progressive form of MS. Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City will test copolymer in patients with the intermittent form of MS.

Recently, researchers have determined that MS may be a result of the body attacking its own myelin. This could be triggered by a virus that infects the myelin. The body's defense system against infection may then attack the myelin.

"Copolymer may be useful for treating MS because it chemically resembles myelin," said Rolak. "It seems to protect myelin and prevent the body from destroying it any further."

"Preliminary studies of copolymer showed that some people got much better, and in some it didn't seem to work. In the Baylor study, we would hope to be able to stop the attacks, or arrest the disease."

The copolymer will be taken by injection. The progress of the patients will be compared to another group who will receive an inactive substance.

MS affects both men and women. Patients tend to be well educated, hardworking and between 20 and 40 years of age.

"They have so much to give to society, but are struck down in their most productive years," Appel said of MS patients.

"One of the problems with MS is that there aren't any treatments that are clearly effective," Rolak said. "This is especially sad for those with the chronic, progressive form of the disease."

He said that current treatments for multiple sclerosis such as steroids, interferon, diet and hyperbaric oxygen produce transient benefits at best.

Persons who are interested in participating in the Baylor study, funded by the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders, and Stroke, should call (713)799-4670.

YHT hints

In observance of National Sewing Month and Young Homemakers of Texas Week, the Hereford chapter of YHT has compiled several hints for those who enjoy sewing.

Sewing can be a creative, money-saving talent when everything goes smoothly. However, when problems arise, it can turn into a frustrating task. Check the sewing machine and equipment for proper sizes and settings before beginning to sew.

—Coordinate needle size with fabric weight and type.

—Coordinate thread with fabric. There are many different types of thread available today. Check carefully to match thread weight and type to fabric being used.

The sewing machine settings are critical to trouble-free sewing. Adjust them to the weight and type of fabric being used.

The sewing machine settings are critical to trouble-free sewing. Adjust them to the weight and type of fabric being used.

—Stitch length—lighter weight fabrics need smaller stitches and vice versa.

—Thread tension—a perfect stitch locks between layers of fabric.

—Pressure foot pressure—soft, sheer fabrics need light pressure. Gradually increase the pressure for heavier fabrics.

Canyon church plans bonanza

A free clothing giveaway bonanza is scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday in the west parking lot of the University Church of Christ in Canyon 3400 Corner Drive.

Approximately 1000 free articles of clean, used, stylish clothing in good condition will be offered, including Ladies', men's, and some babies' and children's clothing, coats and shoes. Each family member is limited to three outfits every three months and there is no limit on discarded items.

The church held a bonanza in June, during which 576 articles of clothing were given to 75 persons, plus huge numbers of discards, which are not counted. The church operates a clothing room every Thursday except during the summer and on holidays.

It's because they so often die prematurely that good intentions are seldom executed.

Dining by candlelight not only is romantic—it spares one the clear view of whatever was wrought for dinner.

Members gather for first fall meeting

Toujours Amis Study Club met for the first business meeting of the fall Tuesday night at the Reddy Room.

Club President Charlotte Tyler conducted the business session. Various committee reports were heard and upcoming events were discussed.

Member Terri Morgan was honored with a "Pampers Shower," however, she was not present due to the fact that she had given birth to a baby boy early Tuesday morning.

Bobby Edwards presented a program on porcelain and soft-sculptured dolls. She operates a business, "The Doll House," out of her home. Mrs. Edwards explained the steps that go into making a porcelain doll and also discussed the value of antique and reproduction dolls.

Hostesses Beverley Lambert, Melissa Richardson, Leisa Lewis and Robbi Ames served a variety of salads, crackers, dips, a vegetable tray and dessert from a table decorated in an autumn theme. Spiced tea was ladled from a large ceramic pumpkin.

Other members present were Susan Sublett, Cindy Black, Marsha Winget, Marcia Boyer, Katy Timmons, Karen Keeling, Rhonda Nieman, Lori Hall, Jan Petree, Sharon Hodges, Diana White, Nena Veazey, Pam Perrin and Shannon Hagar.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - A year ago I had a complete hysterectomy. Although I feel fine, my hair is falling out. I am taking Premarin and wonder if this could be causing my problem. My doctor said it was not unusual for a woman to lose her hair after a hysterectomy and I am lucky to be on Premarin or else I would probably lose it all.
Lucky I have always had a thick head of hair but I'm afraid if it doesn't stop soon I'll end up bald.
I don't know if it matters or not but I am about 40 pounds overweight and I've noticed that cuts don't heal as quickly as they used to heal.
The only other time I lost a lot of my hair was when I had low thyroid problems. My doctor doesn't seem very concerned about my loss of hair and doesn't think any tests are necessary. But I'm very concerned about it and would like your opinion.

DEAR READER - I can't tell you for certain why you are losing hair but I do agree it is not from the Premarin. Premarin is estrogen and may even help prevent hair loss if a person is deficient in estrogen for any reason.
And people do lose hair after surgery in some cases, but if that happens it is usually within a few months after surgery, not a year later.
Your comment about hair loss and low thyroid before, plus being overweight, suggests some tests are indeed in order. It is important to find out if you have a low thyroid function again and need thyroid replacement.
I would suggest you see a dermatologist and let him examine the hair loss and see if there is an underlying reason for it. If you happen to be losing hair from a low thyroid problem, a little medicine could solve the hair loss and improve your health.
Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter 12-6. Hair Care, which explains factors in hair loss. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Two months ago I was experiencing headaches, a swollen neck and fatigue. I was diagnosed as having infectious mononucleosis. I was told the only treatment was rest. Normally I am very active and would like to get back into my exercise routine.
After two months of no exercise, I still tire after normal daily activity. Will exercise slow my recovery time or cause the condition to worsen? How do I know when I'm completely over it?

DEAR READER - Infectious mononucleosis is a viral disease. The virus lives in the tissues in the nose and throat and may be transported by lymphocytes to the rest of the body.
Most people recover from the major manifestations within two to four weeks. A few take several months to recover. Prednisone is sometimes used in severe cases. Otherwise the treatment is symptomatic, including rest. A few people have enlarged spleens and liver changes. You should not engage in lifting or vigorous exercise until your doctor has told you your spleen is not enlarged and it is OK to do so.

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."
— Matthew 17:20

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.
