'Schools not doing job they should' says Reagan

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — President Reagan said today the nation's schools "are not doing the job they should" and that America's students don't look very good when measured against youths in other industrialized countries.

Reagan's appraisal, in a commencement address to 1,500 graduates of Seton Hall University, amounted to a failing report card for the U.S. educational system. "We spend more per child for education than any other country in the world — we just aren't getting our money's worth," the president said in prepared remarks.

One of the best ways to improve the quality of education, Reagan said, is to pay and promote teachers on the basis of merit and competence, rather than on years of service.

"Hard-earned tax dollars should encourage the best," the president said. "They have no business rewarding incompetence and mediocrity."

However, he said a pay scale based on merit "unfortunately ... is opposed by some of the heaviest hitters in the national education lobby."

Noting the development of microchips, information retrieval systems and other technological advances, Reagan said schools must be capable of meeting the demands of changing times.

"And the sad fact is that, today, such a system does not exist in its entirety," Reagan said.

Reagan said there are many outstanding schools and thousands of dedicated educators, "but taken as a whole, our schools — especially our high schools — are not doing the job they should."

"Since 1963, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores have demonstrated a virtually unbroken decline," the president said.

"Thirty-five of our states require only one year of math for a high-school diploma, and 36 require only one year of science," Reagan said.

"Again and again, when compared to students in the other industrialized nations, American students place badly," the president added. "And it has been estimated that half of our country's gifted young people are not performing up to their full potential."

He called that "a criminal waste of our most precious national resource, our children."

It was his second trip in two (See REAGAN, Page 2A)

Roving killer tornadoes leave 10 dead in Southeast Texas

By KIM MILLS Associated Press Writer

Roving packs of killer tornadoes struck twice in Southeast Texas, leaving 10 people dead, dozens injured, hundreds homeless and thousands without electricity, while rains continued to soak storm-battered Mississippi and Louisiana today.

Twisters, rain and vicious winds also swept across sectioned and then destroyed her mobile home Friday in Prairie View, northwest of Houston.

As many as 18 tornadoes, accompanied by howling winds, torrential rains and baseball-size hail, skipped Friday across a 150-mile area in and around Houston.

More than 70 Texans were injured as the twisters uprooted trees, mangled

Hereford received 1.01 inches of moisture in a quick, hard-hitting storm Friday afternoon, according to a report from KPAN Weather Station.

The wind-driven rain was accompanied by a small amount of hail. The inch of rain fell in about 30 minutes a time. No immediate crop damage report was available.

tions of Louisiana, flooding highways, ripping the roof off a school and knocking out power to portions of that state Friday.

Heavy rain threatened to send streams over their banks in Mississippi where flash flood watches were posted today for all but the southeast corner of the state.

Friday's deaths in southeast Texas raised to 24 the number of fatalities caused by the violent weather that has rocked the South since Wednesday. Six people died in Tennessee, three in Missouri, two in Georgia and one each in Louisiana, Mississippi and Kentucky, officials said.

"I don't remember anything — and I don't want to remember anything. It was horrible," said Paulette Schneider after a twister airplanes and left as many as 200,000 residents without electricity.

Eleven hours after the first wave of storms ripped through, another system tore a swath through a mobile home park in Crosby, about 30 miles northeast of Houston, and barreled through a terminal building at the Jefferson County Airport, officials said. One man was killed and 11 other people were injured, none seriously, authorities said.

At Hooks Airport, west of Houston, the storm tore apart three hangars and damaged several planes.

The second tornado to hit the Crosby Estates trailer park came as residents rummaged through rubble created by the first.

At least 18 of the park's 23 trailers were flattened, said owner Pat Chapman. Carol Brown, a 27-year-old mother of two, died when the twister demolished her home at the trailer park.

Eight of the 10 victims in Texas had lived in mobile homes.

Today's rain increased flood worries in Louisiana.

And in Mississippi, flood warnings were posted today

Cheese, butter distribution set Thursday

Distribution of approximately four tons of surplus cheese and butter will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Applicants should report to the south door with their own sacks in which to carry the commodities home.

Recipients will be required to fill out a form showing proof of total household income, any sources of welfare or assistance and proof of residency.

Eligibility will be based on the application information and a social service worker's interview.

False statements with the intent to deceive could be punishable by a fine of up to $2,000, a one-year jail term, or both. Signatures will be notarized.

Red Cross and Community Action workers will join county employees in distribution.

Commissioners meet Monday

A public hearing on revenue sharing tops the agenda of the Deaf Smith County Commissioners when they meet Monday at 10 a.m. in the county courthouse.

Other agenda items include routine reports, setting a date for a budget work session and amend an order concerning right of way and expenses on a road in Precinct 4.

The commissioners will also have a closed session to discuss pending litigation.

Hereford in dire need of blood donors Wednesday

Hereford is in dire need of blood donors — about 700 — to replace the quantities used since the first of the year.

Betty Owen, local Coffee Memorial Blood Drive chairman, said the large number is due to several persons needing great amounts of blood and that repayment is four pints to replace one pint.

The next blood drive is Wednesday from 4 p.m. until 6:30 at the community center.

The greatest amount needed for replacement is for William Gilbert at 68; followed by Santos Garza and Harold Close at 55 pints.

Next are William Walker 48; Vance Hennington, 41; Ray Martinez, 33; and E.L. Fisher, 32.

Persons needing 20 to 30 pints are A.L. Jordan, Delma Garza, Robin Badillo, and G.A. Brown.

Needing 10 to 19 pints donated are C.V. Marchman, Tom Lyons, Debra Henson, Ramona Garza, Retha Fry, and Frances Cuellar.

Debts under 10 units are Manuel Barba, M. Brookfield, Henry Brorman, Leona Calhoun, William

Clark, Norma Cervantez, Phyllis Cornelius, Ann Combs, James Duncan, Urbano Esqueda, Alice Fry, Clarissa Gamboa, Relles Garcia, Tootsie Hankins, Mark Lindeman, Terry J. Long, Lavon Leon, Pauline Martinez, Simona Martinez, Eunice Peterson, Dianne Perkins, Ozo Palmer, Juan Rodriguez, Tiny Lee Roberson, Troys Riddle, Flora Reyes, Carmen Salinas, Allen Shire, Hollis Shipman, Edwin Stewart, Luselena Sodela, Audrey Turman, Janie Young.

Cowgirl HOF selects 8 women for induction

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center board has announced the eight women it will induct as honorees during festivities, including the Fourth Annual Rhinestone Roundup, on June 25, according to HOF president Margaret Formby.

A noon luncheon at the Hereford Country Club will officially induct the four Western Heritage honorees with the four Cowgirl honorees.

Western Heritage honorees for 1983 are Ernestine Chesser Williams of Roswell, N.M.; Agnes Wright Spring of Ft. Collins, Colo.; Augusta Corson Metcalfe of Durham, Okla.; and Betty Accomazzo of Laveen, Ariz.

Cowgirl honorees are Flax-ie Fletcher of Ft. Worth; Alice Adams Holden of Bluejacket, Okla.; Reine Hafley Shelton, deceased, of California; and Anna Lee Allred of Montrose, Colo.

After the noon induction ceremony, the honorees will be guests of the Hereford Cowbelles at a tea at the E.B. Black House.

The Fourth Annual Rhinestone Roundup and Benefit Auction will be from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Hall of Fame. Reservations are available for the barbecue and dance by calling the hall of fame. Tickets are $25 each.

The HOF research and selection committee gave brief biographies of each inductee.

Ernestine Chesser

Williams — Long acclaimed for her contributions in preserving the southwestern culture, she is known as a pioneer, educator, historian, writer and artist. She is particularly honored by the HOF for her contributions as a writer and historian.

Agnes Wright Spring — During her career as a librarian, writer, and editor, she authored 22 books and almost 600 articles, leading her to be called the "most beloved" of Western historians. She is the only person to serve as the official historian of two states, Colorado and Wyoming.

Augusta Corson Metcalfe — Growing up in Oklahoma, she snatched moments from her ranch chores to sketch cameos of that lifestyle. (See COWGIRL, Page 2A)

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says marriage is an unusual gamble—both partners win or nobody does.

The teacher had asked her third-grade class to write a composition on the things for which they were thankful. One little boy summed it up very neatly: "I am thankful for my glasses," he wrote. "They keep the boys from hitting me and the girls from kissing me."

We lost another good'un this week. Calla Mountz, who came to Hereford in 1908, was loved and respected by all who knew her...and that added up to a lot of people in Deaf Smith County.

Her love of music lasted to the end, and it benefited and touched so many citizens in the community. Calla once told me she had "lost count" when I asked her how many times she had sang solos at weddings and funerals.

Calla always seemed to have a friendly smile and a cheery word for everyone. She was in the hospital a week or so ago and didn't want her friends to be unduly concerned. "Please tell everyone that I'm not sick—I'm just being treated for a muscle spasm," she explained.

We count it as one of our blessings just to have known Calla Mountz. She was a good'un!

Angry Argentines decry 'Assassins'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — About 25,000 screaming demonstrators denounced the military government's final report on the 1970s war against leftists and demanded a new probe into how thousands of friends and loved ones disappeared.

"Assassins! Assassins! We want justice!" they shouted Friday night as they marched 20 blocks to a plaza facing the National Congress building in the biggest anti-junta protest since the military coup seven years ago. Police made no effort to disperse them and there were no reports of violence.

At the plaza, a half-dozen human rights leaders led by Nobel Peace Prize Winner Adolfo Perez Esquivel climbed atop a marble monument and assailed the government's April 28 "Final Report." The document attempted to justify violent action taken by security squads during the 1975-79 war against leftist radicals.

Human rights groups contend that secret police jailed, kidnapped and tortured thousands of civilians in a massive state terror campaign, and that between 6,000 and 15,000 people disappeared.

The government report said disappeared people, unless exiled or hiding, must be considered dead. The conclusion outraged friends and relatives who have been pleading with authorities for years to account for the missing.

"We are on the march and we won't take a step backward," Perez Esquivel told the cheering demonstrators, who included mothers and other relatives of disappeared people, plus political, union and professional groups.

"The only subversives are those in the regime," he said. He denounced what he called "state terrorism," saying the junta "wants to legalize the impunity of those who tortured, kidnapped and killed at will."

Perez Esquivel won the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize for his human rights work in Latin America. He spoke on the 11th day of a fast protesting what he called "hunger, unemployment and political repression."

The march topped an April 15 demonstration by 15,000 people who attempted to deliver the government a petition with 200,000 names demanding the "reappearance" of the thousands missing since the 1970s conflict. The government refused to accept the petition.

In Washington, the State Department said Friday that up to three Americans were among the disappeared. Department spokesman John Hughes identified two as office worker Billy Lee-Hunt and engineering student John Pirmin Arozarema. Hughes said a third American, Tony Motta, is also unaccounted for. He did not provide hometowns for the three.

The military seized power in 1976, toppling the government of President Isabel Peron. The generals have set national elections for Oct. 30 and promised to return rule to civilian officials on Jan. 30, 1984.

Less cheese given away by U.S. Ag Department

COLLEGE STATION — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will be giving away less cheese due to a drop in commercial sales.

In ordering a 52 percent cutback in the cheese giveaway program that was started about a year ago, Secretary of Agriculture John Block cited two reasons—needy people who qualify for free cheese normally buy their own, and some people who are not so needy receive free cheese rather than buy it.

"Evidence that the cheese giveaway program was hurting cheese sales started showing up during the last quarter of 1982," said Dr. Bud Schwart, dairy marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "During that quarter commercial sales were down 8 percent from a year earlier. But the real shocker came last February when commercial sales were down a staggering 29 percent from February of 1982."

The cheese giveaway program was started in early 1982 as a means of reducing government stocks of dairy products purchased under the dairy program. More than 50 million pounds of cheese had been given away each month before the cutback.

"Not having outlets for surplus dairy products complicates the problem of what to do about dairy policy," said Schwart. "The USDA has imposed a 50 cents per hundredweight tax on milk producers to try to discourage increased production which has been hurting the dairy industry in recent years. The assessment will pay part of the cost of the dairy program and will hopefully turn milk production around from its persistent upward trend," he noted.

Bull

meets government standards, according to Ellis Klett, assistant regional director of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service in Albuquerque. Klett told the Canyon News this past week he believes the government would still be liable for flooding from Buffalo Lake.

He said the facility would have to be repaired in such a way as to handle a flood bigger than any that has yet been recorded in this area. Estimates on the costs of repairs have run as high as $18 million. Supporters of the lake project had hoped it could be done, without government supervision, for as little as $2 million.

The question of water sources to fill the lake were also mentioned. Klett said he is doubtful anything can be done

Cowgirl — from page 1

Eventually she was referred to as "The Sagebrush Artist." She is an honoree for her preservation of the true west on canvas.

Betty Accomazzo — The daughter of Arizona pioneers, she devoted untold hours to collecting that state's pioneer family histories. Her efforts chiefly fill five volumes of histories of those pioneers. She is being honored for her writing abilities and her humanitarian contributions in CowBelles, 4-H and community council.

Flaxie Fletcher — Through a job as a nurse for a doctor at the Ft. Worth Stock Show, she fell in love with the rodeo, an eventually in love with a cowboy, Kid Fletcher, and spent her life in rodeo. Though not a performer, she was dedicated to serving the rodeo and was a founder of the Rodeo Historical Society at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Alice Adams Holden — Active in politics, church and business, she is best known for 25 years of action in the rodeo. She distinguished herself as a daring bronc and trick rider and also worked as a booking agent and arena secretary. She is honored for her contributions as an early day cowgirl.

Reine Hafley Shelton — She grew up on the grounds of various Wild West Shows in which her parents performed. Later, as the wife of World Champion Cowboy Dick Shelton, Reine became a star daredevil and trick rider. She is honored for her outstanding pioneer cowgirl life.

Anna Lee Alldred — Born on a Colorado ranch, she began riding at the age of three. At 12, she began riding racehorses in Colorado and California. In 1939, she became the first female licensed jockey and rode on major tracks until 1945 when she switched to trick riding in rodeos.

Judge believes Hubbard lives

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — "I am not a missing person," Church of Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard said in a signed statement that has led a judge to believe the elusive author is healthy despite a son's claim to the contrary.

Superior Court Judge David Hennigan said Friday that the declaration, which included fingerprints experts have said belong to the 72-year-old Hubbard, made him believe Hubbard still is alive.

Hubbard has not made a public appearance in years.

Hennigan said the seven-page document, filed with the court on Thursday, was the primary rebuttal to a civil suit by Hubbard's estranged son, Ronald DeWolf, 48, that contends his father is either dead or mentally incompetent.

"It (the case) would have been resolved in your favor if it had not been for the declaration," Hennigan told DeWolf's Los Angeles attorney, Wilkie Cheong.

The judge gave Cheong three weeks to discredit the document before making a final ruling.

Cheong said he had not had time to fully review the declaration, but "that declaration could have been typed up by someone else who then had Hubbard sign it, not knowing what he was doing ... even assuming the signature is authentic."

DeWolf told The Associated Press late Friday that his attorneys plan to file a petition for conservatorship that would force the court to examine Hubbard directly.

"Assuming this declaration is from my father, this proves that he can be contacted," DeWolf said by telephone from Carson City, Nev. "So we want to know his state of health and who is manipulating him. We are going to file a petition for conservatorship which will require his examination."

DeWolf said that if his father is alive, the son still has enough evidence of illegal drug use and forged legal documents to have Hubbard declared incompetent to handle his own affairs.

Asked if he now was inclined to believe his father was alive, DeWolf replied, "We honestly don't know."

Heber Jentzsch, president of the Church of Scientology International, has accused DeWolf, estranged from Hubbard for more than 20 years, of trying to "cash in" on his father's success.

DeWolf left the church in 1959. Claiming harassment, he changed his name in 1972 from L. Ron Hubbard Jr. to Ronald E. DeWolf. He now manages an apartment complex in Carson City, Nev.

DeWolf filed a probate petition in Riverside County Nov. 10 claiming church officials were systematically looting his father's estate.

Hubbard is the author of 240 books, including "Dianetics: The Modern Science of Mental Health."

Tornado related deaths reported

Thunderstorms that stretched from southern Texas to New England on Friday spawned tornadoes that killed 10 persons and injured dozens of others in Houston and surrounding towns in Texas and Louisiana.

The National Weather Service said 10 tornadoes were reported in Texas; the Texas Department of Public Safety said aerial surveys indicated as many as 17 may have touched down within 100 miles of Houston.

The storms also aggravated flooding problems in the lower Mississippi Valley and the Ohio Valley. Light rain was scattered over Minnesota and the lower Great Lakes, as well as over parts of the high Plains.

Showers and thunderstorms reached along the Atlantic Coast from New England to the Carolinas and Georgia, through Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, as well as over parts of Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 p.m. EDT ranged from 42 in Colorado Springs, Colo., to 92 in Thermal, Calif.

days. He was applauded wildly by thousands of persons Friday in the Little Havana section of Miami when he denounced Cuban President Fidel Castro as the ruler of a "new fascist regime," and declared, "Viva Cuba Libre ... Cuba, Si; Castro, No." The crowd of 2,500 interrupted his speech at one point, chanting, "Freedom, freedom."

In a warmup for today's commencement address, Reagan told a news conference earlier this week that money won't solve the problems in America's schools.

"It takes some leadership. It takes some return to basics," Reagan said Wednesday. He said students should not be advanced in school until they learn what they're supposed to learn.

Reagan said the United States had the world's best educational system, but then let it deteriorate. And, he said an argument can be made that the school system began to deteriorate "when the federal government started interfering in education."

Severe thunderstorms continue in Texas

Weather watches and warnings were issued for much of Texas today as severe thunderstorms continued to pound the state.

Tornado watches were issued for most of southeast and central Texas and the eastern half of the big country near Abilene.

Flash flood watches were posed for southeast and south central Texas and parts of West Texas.

Heavy thunderstorms developed early today over much of the state except far West Texas. Between 4 and 8 inches of rain had fallen over Southeast Texas early today, while south central Texas received between 1 and 2 inches.

Half-inch hail was reported at Smithville.

Afternoon temperatures were expected to reach the 70s and 80s, with overnight lows in the 50s and 60s. Clearing skies were predicted on Sunday.

Winners and losers with one week to go

AUSTIN (AP) — This year's legislative winners include Texans who wanted to pay lower interest rates on Visa and Mastercard accounts and anybody who was against a tax hike.

Losing include backers of pari-mutuel wagering or repeal of the state's "Blue Law."

The 1983 session of the Legislature ends in eight days, and leaders of both chambers say nearly all major issues have been dealt with and most of this session's key accomplishments are already history.

"As far as I'm concerned, we're home free at this stage," said House Speaker Gib Lewis. "The only thing left to do is fine tune some bills that are in conference committees."

Li. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, said, "The only thing that needs to be done that has not been addressed by the Senate yet is the unemployment compensation problem."

Lewis likes to say, "I never count anything dead until sine die," the end of the session, but with a week to go, those who apparently can claim victory include:

— Utility customers who battled the automatic fuel adjustment clause. The bill changing the way the Public Utility Commission regulates utilities, which has not been sent to the governor yet because it was being "fine tuned" in a conference committee, would force utilities to justify their fuel costs.

— Mothers Against Drunken Drivers, who did not get all they wanted (raising the drinking age back to 21 failed) but lobbied successfully for a tougher anti-DWI law. Bills which would increase penalties against drunken drivers won approval in both chambers and were being merged into one bill in a conference committee.

— Opponents of dog-fighting, who sought tougher penalties against people caught promoting fights between pit bulldogs. At present the penalty is a misdemeanor. A bill making it a felony has gone to the governor.

— Credit card customers who wanted to pay lower interest rates. The governor worked out a compromise with bankers and helped push through a measure he said would give Texans the lowest rates in the nation.

— Colleges outside the Texas-Texas A&M systems that wanted a permanent, dedicated fund instead of having to ask the Legislature for money every two years. A conference committee was still trying to reach a compromise, but appeared ready to approve a $100-million-a-year fund.

— Prison reform lobbyists who wanted alternatives to the "brick and mortar, maximum security" approach to the state's increasing prison population. Bills approved would take the governor out of the routine parole process to speed it up, grant special early paroles when the prison population approaches capacity, and set up community restitution centers for certain inmates.

— Divorced parents having trouble collecting child support payments. The Legislature approved submitting to voters in November a proposed constitutional amendment that would, for the first time in Texas history, allow the state to garnish the wages of a delinquent parent to collect overdue child support payments.

Reynolds delighted by 'Whorehouse' character

HOUSTON (AP) — Burt Reynolds, who played a sheriff bedeviled by a television reporter in the movie "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," declared the original Marvin Zindler much more frightening than the movie version.

Reynolds met Zindler, consumer reporter for KTRK-TV, Thursday during a break in filming of Blake Edwards' movie "The Man Who Loved Women."

"I'd rather have to face Dom DeLuise any day than this man," said Reynolds. DeLuise played opposite Reynolds in the film.

Zindler, whose screamed sign-off ("Marvin Zindler — EYYYYE-witness News) could drown out many rock bands, forced the late Fayette County Sheriff T.J. "Big Jim" Flournoy to close down the Chicken Ranch near La Grange in 1973.

His persistent reports, in which Zindler repeatedly expressed his astonishment that Texas contained a house of prostitution, caught the attention of then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who officially ordered the business closed. The Chicken Ranch had reportedly served Texas customers since the late 1800s.

Reynolds said he was delighted with Zindler, whom he said he watches every time he comes to A.N.N.

"I just told him to wear something more colorful next time," Reynolds said. Zindler was clothed in a blinding red jacket, white pants and a blue striped shirt in addition to his customary platinum toupee and purple-tinted glasses.

Wage Law

By TIMOTHY P. ROTH
Texas Foundation for Conservation Studies

Texas' Prevailing Wage Law is a bad law. Passed during the depression, it was intended to preserve local wage structures and protect local jobs. Unfortunately, its intended effects are quite different from its actual effects.

The law requires that, in calling for bids and awarding public works contracts, Texas' state and local governments determine the "prevailing wage" in the relevant locality, specify the prevailing wage in bids and contract awards, and monitor and enforce the payment of the prevailing wage.

Because no statutory guidelines are provided, awarding agencies exercise considerable discretion in determining the prevailing wage. In many cases, prevailing wages are neither adequately nor accurately determined.

Indeed, union wage rates are frequently used as proxies for the prevailing wage—even though these rates are generally the highest rates to be found in a locality.

Predictably, "prevailing wages" are generally set above the market clearing wage. The effects on workers—particularly minority and unskilled job seekers—and on taxpayers are unambiguously bad. Employment is lower than it otherwise would be; fewer construction projects are undertaken, and contractors must limit the number of unskilled positions and on-the-job training opportunities.

The result is a decline in the number of competitive bids, higher-than-necessary bids, higher-than-necessary construction costs, and inefficient use of tax dollars.

Texas' Prevailing Wage Law is a well-intentioned but unambiguously bad law that is anti-competitive, discriminatory, and wasteful of scarce resources. It has not been repealed because the costs of the law are borne by many, while the benefits accrue to a few vocal special interest groups. The only gainers are the unions whose inflated wage scales and inefficient work rules are subsidized, and large contractors who are insulated from competition.

Good public policy is not a zero sum game. Special interests do stand to lose if the prevailing wage law is repealed. But their losses will pale in comparison to worker, minority and taxpayer gains.

Bootleg Philosopher

Hitler diaries

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has a few words on the Hitler Diaries and a few other things.

Dear editor:

One thing to be learned from the "Hitler Diaries" is that handwriting experts, like psychiatrists at a murder trial, can come down on either side. One expert found the 60 volumes authentic, another said they were fakes, just as one psychiatrist can find a murderer sane, another insane.

If I were a lawyer and had a client who was so guilty the best I could do for him was to get a hung jury, I'd like to have two handwriting experts or two psychiatrists on the jury. Regardless of the evidence, each would be positive in opposite directions.

But there was a story in the papers far more interesting than the fake diaries.

An outfit has been exposed selling high school diplomas and college degrees from schools that don't exist. You pick out the diploma or degree you want, send them a check and get your certificate by return mail.

Some people are outraged that you can get a piece of paper certifying you're more educated than you are.

What's wrong with that? High schools and colleges do it all the time.

In fact you might ask, if you can keep a kid in high school four years without teaching him anything, why not let him spend his time playing video games and just hand him a diploma when he reaches the proper age and save the expense of holding him in a class room? Mail rooms issuing meaningless diplomas are a lot cheaper than class rooms doing the same thing.

Back to the to-do over those forged diaries. You need know when such things will show up. You reckon some of the Federal courts' haywire decisions in recent years have come about because the judges were working with forged, inaccurate copies of the Constitution?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Letters to the editor

Topics include commencement, nuke dump, extra school day

Dear Editor:

Once again it is graduation time and what was once a very solemn and meaningful time for the graduate and his or her family has, in the past year or so, turned into a three ringed circus. The atmosphere is one of a sporting event instead of a memorable and quiet moment in which the whole family can participate in the joy of witnessing a child go from one stage in his life to another. Because we tend to get over zealous when our children accomplish something in life we lose site of the fact that everyone else is just as excited for their child too.

Some of the people in the audience at baccalaureate and graduation have traveled a great distance to witness the graduation ceremonies only to get pushed around by people who seem to think that they are the only ones to have a senior graduating. If everyone sat in their seats we could not only see all of the ceremonies, but we could also hear what was being said.

There seem to be more people up moving around and running up and down the aisles than at a sporting event. If you have a hard time sitting still - stay at home. If you do not have a desire to watch the ceremonies in a quiet way, you have no business being there in the first place.

We have ample time to photograph our graduates in their caps and gowns while we are at home before the ceremonies, so let's leave our cameras there. Most of the "action" photos that the amateurs take at an event of this nature are either too far away, too dark or blurred, so save your film and save the dignity of the ceremony at the same time. Please everyone stay in your seats so we can all remember this as a happy and meaningful occasion.

Congratulations to all of the High School Seniors. I hope you will look back on this occasion with fond memories. It has been a pleasure for me to have known as many of you as I have and I wish all of you the very best that life has to offer and that you will learn how to work to achieve all of your goals.

Sincerely,
Mrs. W.E. Russell

Dear Editor:

Again I want to thank all the citizens who cared enough to be present at the Department of Energy public hearing Monday night.

We must also give our thanks to the news media—we do need them. Some statements were misinterpreted but these were all straightened out. I don't like the sound of violence, but those kind of statements always make the news headlines first. I hope our community can fight this DUMP SITE together, not divided.

We need lots of phone calls, letters to our elected officials, and volunteer our time and money to the cause.

Sincerely,
Helen Kleuskens

Dear Editor:

Around the turn of the century, my great-grandfather came to the panhandle of Texas to continue his career in agriculture. My grandfather after him also pursued agriculture in this area. My father farmed all his life in Deaf Smith County, and I also farm in this county. We feel this area is our home.

One thing that disturbs me however, is the attitude of the Eastern establishment toward the people and the resources of other areas of the nation. There seems to be an attitude which causes them to believe they have the right to exploit this area's resources with no regard or respect for the people who live here and produce these resources.

Whenever we try to raise the price of natural gas that leaves our state to the same price we who are users of gas here are paying, we are told it's unconstitutional. Whenever we try to get the price of our agricultural production up to a level that will cover production costs, we are told by the Eastern establishment, "That's inflationary!" and we simply can't have that." In other words, the Eastern establishment seems to be saying, "we don't care about you people or your standard of living; we come first because we have the votes." Now it seems the ultimate slam is being considered.

The Eastern establishment wants cheaper electricity, which we are told can be generated by nuclear plants, but doesn't want to put up with the nuisance and danger of the residue or waste material left after power generation. So what is the answer? Simple, go out west and dump it in the outback in West Texas.

The same highways that are used to haul beef and vegetables from here to feed the establishment will be used to haul back to us their dangerous nuclear wastes so we can live with it until the end of time.

My background is in agriculture and not in nuclear science; therefore, I am not qualified to say whether this material is dangerous or not. However, there are plenty of qualified persons saying it is not safe. Still the same, we have been told by the Department of Energy their plan to bury radio-active waste material here in Deaf Smith County would be perfectly safe. Obviously someone is not telling us the whole truth...or is it possible the Eastern establishment assumes that human life here in West Texas is expendable. Now those of us who live here have some difficulty with that premise.

The bottom line seems to be that since it's always been OK for them to exploit our resources while having no regard for the economic well being of our people, now it will be OK to dump their dangerous waste here with no regard for our well being. I get the distinct feeling we are being told, "YOURS IS NOT TO WONDER WHY, YOURS IS BUT TO DO AND DIE."

Dear Editor:

We in the District Attorney's Office would like to thank all who helped make the 1983 Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon so successful. There were a total of 88 riders who participated, and with approximately 90 percent of the funds turned in, we have collected $7,629.05 for Cystic Fibrosis.

First, we would like to thank all who rode and participated. Special thanks to Ed Barrett who alone turned in $2,285.00 from people who sponsored him. We also want to thank Hereford State Bank that had 19 people ride who contributed a total of $1,406.75, and the First National Bank that had 16 persons ride and contributed a total of $906.75.

Also special recognition goes to Brad Barrett who accounted for $410.00 and won the bicycle in the 7th through 12th grade division. Special thanks also to Casey Berry who collected $169.00 and was presented the bicycle in the K thru 8th grade division.

In addition to those who rode, there were many other people we would like to thank. J.W. McMillon of TG&Y donated the two bicycles as prizes. Vesta Mae Nunley and Rick Nunley donated their time and effort to help serve refreshments to the riders. Beta Sigma Phi donated cookies. The Coca Cola Company donated cokes for the riders. The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department and Hereford Police Department provided escorts for the riders. The Hereford Brand and KPAN both gave us excellent publicity for the event.

Most of all we want to thank those who sponsored riders in the event.

Dear Editor,

Is the Hereford Independent School District in such desperate need of Federal money that our children are required to go to school an extra day? We have been told that "snow days" will be made up. One day was made up on April 1, which was Good Friday, and another is to be made up on May 27. Most panhandle schools are not making up snow days because the state of Texas has okayed these days and does not require that they be made up. I do not believe that the education of my children will be helped by attending school on May 27. I remember that the last 3 or 4 days of school are usually needed to check in books, clean out lockers, etc. Do they need to go the extra day just so the Federal money can be received by HISD?

We have many, many outstanding teachers here in Hereford; however, they are not allowed to "teach" but have rules to teach by. Rules are necessary, I agree, but teachers should be allowed to use their own initiative when they teach. I know that some teachers are leaving the school system because they are not allowed to give students extra help before and after school hours, and cannot go to the child's desk to help him. These teachers want to be able to help the child who needs them, but are told that they cannot because of the rules. Does federal money also set down these rules?

I have had problems in different areas this year and have visited with teachers, principal, and school board members. So far no one has been able to give me any kind of answer. I am greatly concerned that the choir program in the Hereford School system is being phased out and no one I've talked with seems to care. I should say that they "say" they care, but nothing has been done and no reports have come back to me as I was told would.

Perhaps we as parents need to start asking more questions. The future of our children is in the care of HISD?

HOW TO DRESS WESTERN

I made a big mistake a few years ago. I walked around in New York City all afternoon in blue jeans and boots. At that time the basic uniform of the New York gays was blue jeans and boots. No one else wore such garb. I thought the people there were awfully friendly.

A short time later, the film "Urban Cowboy" turned the whole world to western wear. Suddenly everyone was in boots and jeans. People who had never seen a cow were swaggering around looking like drugstore cowboys. Like all fads, this one faded. Now western wear is pretty well back in the west where it belongs.

When I first moved to this country, I had to go through cultural shock. The first wedding I performed featured a groom in a gray tuxedo with velvet lapels. I thought he looked splendid until I noticed his feet. He had on brown cowboy boots. I thought I never could adjust to such garb. But I did.

Now I have been able to put the garb into categories. In case some New York gay wants to dress like us and needs some guide lines. There are degrees to the garb.

There are those who wear badges. Each piece of clothing is an advertisement to their cowboyhood. They come in from the feedlots for lunch wearing their badges: boots, spurs, chaps and bandana around their neck. It looks like a lunch break from a "B" movie. It would not take long to remove the chaps and spurs but then some might not know they were real live cowboys.

On top of their head is a dirty black cowboy hat. They must have those things grafted on. They never take them off. I always thought we were supposed to remove our hats when we were inside a building. I don't think these guys take off their hats to go to sleep at night, and the hats show the results.

Then there is the gentleman cowboy. He wears well-cut western suits and funny looking boots. Boots made out of ostrich skin with pimples where the feathers were. I don't know whether or not I could get used to wearing boots that look like they have acne.

Then there are the almost-converted cowboys. I guess I fit this category. I wear an English style tweed hat, ski jacket, jeans and boots. That is called mixed western. The cowboys will never copy my dress. The New York gays might love it.

Warm Fuzzies,
Doug Manning

As the Years Turn

75 YEARS AGO

Phone messages here Monday morning brought the news that two business blocks in Clovis, N.M. had been burned. No brick buildings were in the blocks consumed. Only the wooden shacks suffering.

Every institution must have some bearing on the growth and progress of the town in which it is located. Hereford, like so many other growing towns, some five or six years ago, had the opportunity to secure the location of a college, then a private institution.

50 YEARS AGO

That Hereford will have a first class cotton gin now appears to be a certainty, whether there will be a cotton crop or not. Most of the old machinery in the gin has been scrapped and what is left.

The largest graduating class in the history of Hereford High School will enter upon the observance of Commencement exercises next Sunday and conclude with the presentation of diplomas Tuesday.

There are 63 applicants for diplomas in this year's senior class.

25 YEARS AGO

Commencement exercises for 120 graduating seniors at Hereford High School will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the high school auditorium.

Approximately 400 early day Pioneers of Deaf Smith County are expected to attend the annual Mid-Plains Pioneer Day Thursday.

Plans to construct a new regional shopping center in Hereford on W. Park Ave. were announced this week by the officers of the JMZ Corporation, a locally owned real estate investment corporation.

Installation of cable for the new cable television system is nearing completion for a major portion of the city, according to Roger Hale, manager of Hereford CableVision Co.

1 YEAR AGO

Damage was estimated at $3 million in the wake of turbulent weather in the Texas Panhandle that spawned at least six tornadoes near Pampa.

waste dump located in their backyard or better yet, in their home town? It is not a pleasant thought is it?

If the government wants to locate a Nuclear Waste dump somewhere I have a very good idea. Let them stick it in their back pockets if they think there is no risk involved in putting it in the Panhandle.

The lives of people in the Panhandle are simple and we are about the friendliest people you'll ever meet. But if we are forced to fight back we will do so and it won't be pretty.

I have lived in Hereford going on 26 years. Life in Hereford has not been bad but its better than being paranoid about every drink of water, every bit of vegetable you eat.

I would like to hear 20 good reasons why we should consent to do this and the first 19 1/2 don't count.

Mears gets in practice elsewhere

Barring further rain, Indy time trials this weekend

By MIKE HARRIS AP
Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — While most people were thinking about speed and preparing for the delayed start of time trials for the 67th Indianapolis 500, track record-holder Rick Mears and the rest of Roger Penske's team spent the past week thinking about going 500 miles.

Qualifications, which were washed out last weekend, were scheduled to open today, with Mears, Don Whittington and Mike Mosley considered strong favorites for the pole position and the other two front-row spots.

However, Mears, who won the 1979 race, didn't spend much time this week worrying about winning the pole for the third time in his six-year Indy career. He and new teammate Al Unser, a three-time Indy winner, took the team's bright yellow backup Penske PC-11 to Michigan International Speedway earlier in the week, and drove it 500 miles.

"We did it over two days," Mears said, noting that darkness ended the test after about 375 miles on Tuesday, the first day. "We both drove about equal time. We had to adjust a few things and make some changes as we went along, but the car performed beautifully."

The Michigan track, owned and operated by Penske, has a 2-mile, high-banked oval, much different from the nearly flat 2½-mile oval of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. But Mears said the test really is an important step in getting ready to run in the May 29 race.

"If anything can live 500 miles on a banked track, where you have tremendous G (gravity) loads and all kinds of stress, it should live longer here, where it's so much flatter," Mears said. "You figure if something is going to break, it'll break there."

Bobby Rahal, whose car owner, Jim Trueman, also owns a racetrack — the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course at Lexington, Ohio — says the fact that the Penske team can just pick up and dash over to run a 500-mile test is a big advantage.

"You can find out an awful lot about your car that way, and there aren't very many teams that have the luxury of money, time or the facility to do it," said Rahal, who finished 11th in last year's Indy race and was the CART Rookie of the Year in the 1982 season series. "Of course, we can't do that because Mid-Ohio is a road course. That wouldn't tell us much about running on an oval."

Mears, who last year set the one-and four-lap qualification records of 207.612 and 207.004 mph at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, got his new car, built by Penske Cars Ltd. in England, over 200 mph on his second day of practice here.

SPORTS

The Hereford Brand—Sunday, May 22, 1983—Page 5A

started working on our race day setup.

"We know (that) when we qualify, we're probably going to get a little bit more out of the car. And you'd like to be on the pole," added Mears, who won from the pole in 1979. "But, what you're really here for is to win the race."

Eighteen drivers have been at 200 or better since practice opened May 7, although two of them — Pete Halsmer and rookie John Paul Jr. — are out of action with injuries sustained in crashes.

Mears' qualifying records may be safe this year, considering the fastest laps of the month have been a 205.996 by Danny Ongais, who failed to draw for a qualifying spot for his car and is not eligible to run for the pole, laps just over 205 by Whittington, Mears and Mosley. But the record average for a 33-car starting field — 197.740, set last year — is expected to fall.

The four-lap, 10-mile qualification runs are scheduled to continue Sunday, with the close of time trials at 7 p.m. EDT. However, if there is any more rain this weekend, the trials could be extended to Monday or beyond.

Sixty-one entries drew for spots in the qualifying line prior to the scheduled start of qualifications a week ago. All of those entries are guaranteed a chance to make a qualifying attempt, provided they are in line at the proper time.

Meet 76ers Sunday

Lakers subdue Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley said his team's 101-100 Western Conference championship win over San Antonio Friday night was a real "gut check."

But Lakers guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who got a hand on Mike Mitchell's first attempt at a game-winning basket in the final seconds, said, "I wasn't worried."

The defending National Basketball Association champion Lakers moved to the league championship series against the Philadelphia 76ers after holding off a late Spur rush.

The Lakers got their final field goal of the game with 2:01 to play when Michael Cooper hit a short shot off a quick pass from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the game's leading scorer with 28 points. Norm Nixon added a free throw 10 seconds later that proved to be the Lakers final and winning point.

It was the Spurs on offense and the Lakers on defense for most of the closing two minutes. A dunk by Artis Gilmore, who had 24 points, pulled the Spurs within three with 1:12 to play.

George Gervin split the Laker defense and tossed in a short, soft shot with 35 seconds to play to pull the Spurs to the one-point final margin and the 4-2 series win.

Jamaal Wilkes, smothered by Spur defenders, missed a jump shot with 11 seconds to play and San Antonio called a time out to set up a final play. Riley said the Lakers knew what they wanted to do, but didn't have the time to set it up.

"We decided we weren't going to give them anything, but we didn't really have much time to discuss it. We wanted to keep it out of (Gervin's) hands," Riley said.

The ball wound up in the hands of Spur forward Mike Mitchell, who pestered the Lakers with his hot shooting throughout the series. But his second shot at a game-winner was tipped by Johnson, and wound up in Gilmore's hands, who couldn't control it in time to get off another shot.

Johnson said he hustled over to help out when Mitchell loaded up for the shot.

"I just ran to help out. You just don't know. Instinct is beautiful," he said. "It wasn't in the cards. I wasn't worried."

Spurs Coach Stan Albeck said he wanted guard Johnny Moore to try to penetrate and draw one of the Lakers' big men out of the middle.

"Mitchell thought the ball was going to go down," Albeck said of the game's final shot.

Mitchell agreed. Gilmore cleared 18 rebounds for the game high, pulling down eight more than Abdul-Jabbar. Johnson led the Lakers with 15 rebounds and 16 assists, but had only two points and took only six shots from the floor.

Moore popped in 17 points and directed the Spurs' offense with 14 assists.

Champions retain titles

Holmes weathers storm; Dokes battles to draw

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes, showing his age, weathered a firestorm in the ninth round and kept the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship with a split 12-round decision over Tim Witherspoon Friday night.

The 33-year-old Holmes' narrow escape came on the same card in which Michael Dokes retained the World Boxing Association crown with a 15-round draw against former champion Mike Weaver.

The WBC has decreed 12 rounds for all its championship fights, while the WBA sticks with the traditional 15.

Holmes was in serious trouble in the ninth, but his experience pulled him through.

Judge Chuck Minker scored it 115-113 for Holmes, while Judge Chuck Hassetz favored the champion 118-111. Judge Herb Santos favored Witherspoon 115-114.

The AP scored it 115-113 for Holmes.

Holmes had the experience and the ring generalship, but the 25-year-old Witherspoon had the power. And Holmes, who scored one-sided decisions in his two previous championship defenses, had his hands full.

Before the fight, Holmes had said Witherspoon was not ready to challenge for the title. At the end of the 12 rounds, Holmes shook Witherspoon's hand in the ring and said, "You fought a good fight."

Witherspoon said, "I won it. I was never hurt. I won it. I am the champ."

The Philadelphian may be a champion some day, but he is not yet, simply because Holmes had the poise needed in tough situations.

In the ninth round, Witherspoon, who weighed 219½ pounds, hurt Holmes with a left hook and right hand to the jaw. Then, with Holmes in a neutral corner, Witherspoon hurt him badly with a left hook, a right and several more head shots. The cham-peon's right eye began to close with swelling.

But Holmes kept his cool and fought his way out.

Holmes looked like an old fighter at the end of the ninth. But he used his jab and movement, and his ability to take a punch, to ride out the final three rounds and win on the lead he built up in the first half of the fight.

Holmes, who weighed 213, might have won because at times Witherspoon would lapse into periods of not punching.

"He dazed me, but he didn't really hurt me," said Holmes, who certainly appeared hurt in that ninth round. "I thought I won."

Witherspoon said he wanted a rematch, but he may have to wait. Holmes appears committed to a mandatory defense against Greg Page, who scored a unanimous decision in a 12-round elimination fight against Renaldo Snipes earlier in the night before an estimated 18,000 in a 20,000-seat outdoor arena at the Dunes Hotel.

Holmes' victory in his 15th defense of the title he won in 1978 was his 43rd in as many fights. It was one of his toughest.

Witherspoon was fighting for only the 16th time, and for the first time since last June 5. And he fought extremely well, surprisingly well in the eyes of most boxing observers.

Dokes looked like he was going to repeat his first-round knockout of Weaver. Dokes won the title from Weaver in 63 seconds and referee Joey Curtis was roundly criticized for stopping the fight.

In the first round Friday night, Dokes almost had Weaver down again, but the former champion fought back and in the eyes of many ringsiders won the title.

The Dokes-Weaver fight was a mean one, both men punching with power, mauling and leaning on each other, although Dokes often tried dancing tactics.

Dokes got off the mark fast with his left jab, and it was that punch that kept him in the battle throughout.

The champion from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who weighed 223 pounds, also scored well with one-tuos, but it was his movement and his jabs that were his best weapons on this hot evening.

Weaver, 218½, of Diamond Bar, Calif., did most of his damage with his jabs and savage punches to the body. He also scored well with left hooks.

There were no knockdowns, but it looked like Weaver might go down and out in the first. Dokes trapped him on the ropes and landed about 12 head punches, and Weaver obviously was in trouble. But he punched his way free.

In the ninth round, Weaver hurt Dokes with a right to the jaw that snapped his head back, and he shook the champion on several other occasions in the closing rounds.

Weaver was marked under the left eye in the seventh round and cut under the right eye in the eighth. Dokes had his nose bloodied and also was marked about the left eye. The body damage to Dokes didn't show, but it was inflicted.

The 24-year-old Dokes' defense was his second draw against 26 victories. Weaver, 30, now is 24-10-1.

Stars' 10-1 mark tops in USFL

Wrangler boss says Bryant is best back

By The Associated Press
Facing New Jersey's Herschel Walker has been no picnic for United States Football League teams.

But Arizona Wranglers Coach Doug Shively thinks it may be even less fun facing Philadelphia's Kelvin Bryant, which his team will be doing Sunday night in Tempe.

Asked whom he thought was the better running back, Shively says: "Well, one guy's got a 10-1 record and the other guy's 3-8 so you have to say Bryant is the more effective of the two."

"Kelvin is outstanding, just outstanding," added Shively. "He's not afraid to stick the ball up in there. He runs, he receives... but they also have the best offensive line in the league. They got a lot of talent and they use it well."

In other USFL games Sunday, Boston will be at Washington, Chicago at New Jersey and Los Angeles will visit Denver.

Monday night, Birmingham will be at Michigan. Oakland meets Tampa Bay tonight.

Atop the Atlantic Division at 10-1, Philadelphia sports the USFL's best overall record plus the league's second-best rusher in Bryant, who has accounted for 60 percent of his team's offense.

Bryant has amassed 11 touchdowns and 1,123 yards on the ground with another 234 yards in receptions and one TD. His rushing total is just 15 yards behind that of fellow million-dollar running back Walker.

The Stars' offensive front is anchored by 6-foot-6, 280-pound tackle Irv Eatman out of UCLA, who signed a three-year contract for a reported $1.2 million. Bryant, who gained at least 1,000 yards in three of his four seasons at North Carolina, signed a five-year pact with Philadelphia for a reported $2 million.

Arizona, devoid of high-priced players and its roster replete with rookies, has lost its last three games and is rated a six-point underdog

Rockets must sweeten pot to get Heinsohn

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Heinsohn says working with an extraordinarily talented 7-foot-4 center would be fun, but the Houston Rockets will also have to come up with money, and lots of it, to hire him as their head coach.

Rockets general manager Ray Patterson met Friday with Phil McLaughlin, the attorney representing the former Boston Celtics player and coach. The Houston Chronicle reported the team offered a four-year contract worth close to $1 million.

Gun club sets shoot Sunday

The Hereford Gun Club will shoot Sunday at 1:30 p.m. All shotguns are invited to come out for practice or competition. Prizes will be awarded in competition while the emphasis of shooting will be for practice.

Longtime Met reliever Allen blanks Dodgers, 4-0

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer
Now that Neil Allen is starting, his problems seem to be ending.

Allen, a longtime reliever who was racked by problems on the field and off it earlier this season, continued his comeback Friday night by tossing a six-hit shutout as the New York Mets blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0.

A few weeks ago, it looked like Allen couldn't sink any lower. He had an 0-4 record after several poor relief appearances, had missed a game after lying about his whereabouts and publicly said he had a drinking problem that needed immediate attention.

"When your back is against the wall like mine was, there's no other direction to go except to go for it," Allen said.

In other National League games, Atlanta nipped St. Louis 2-1, San Diego topped Philadelphia 5-0, Pittsburgh edged Houston 4-3, Montreal ripped San Francisco 7-1 and Cincinnati beat Chicago 9-5.

Reds 9, Cubs 5

Dave Concepcion's fifth career grand slam capped a five-run eighth inning to lead

Jody Davis' solo homer in the seventh put Chicago ahead 4-3 before the Reds exploded against relievers Mike Proly and Bill Campbell. Eddie Milner, who had earlier homered and doubled, walked with the bases loaded to tie the game before Concepcion followed with his first homer of the season.

Cubs starter Fergie Jenkins pitched five innings and struck out five, giving him a career total of 3,120 strikeouts and moving him into sixth place on the all-time list past Bob Gibson's 3,117.

Padres 5, Phillies 0

Rookie Andy Hawkins tossed a five-hitter in pitching his first major league shutout.

Hawkins struck out six and walked one in outdueling Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, 6-3, who struck out four in eight innings. That gave Carlton a career total of 3,511 strikeouts and moved him past Walter Johnson into second place on the all-time list.

He now trails Houston's disabled Nolan Ryan by just 10 strikeouts.

Garry Templeton singled in the first run in the fourth inning and Luis Salazar singled in two more in the sixth.

Pirates 4, Astros 3

Pittsburgh sported a totally right-handed lineup that left regulars Jason Thompson, Dave Parker, Johnny Ray and Mike Easler on the bench, and the combination seemed to work. Dale Berra slammed a two-run homer while Larry McWilliams pitched seven strong innings and Kent Tekulve recorded his first save of the season.

The Pirates took a 4-0 lead before the Astros battled back, helped by Dickie Thon's leadoff homer in the eighth and Tony Scott's sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Ray failed to start for the first time in 199 games, but extended his consecutive game streak to 225 when he was inserted in the eighth inning.

Expos 7, Giants 1

Steve Rogers threw a strong four-hitter while Gary Carter belted a two-run homer and Warren Cromartie added a two-run double.

Rogers, 6-1, retired the first 11 San Francisco batters and finished with his fifth complete game. Rogers struck out nine and walked two.

Carter's seventh homer gave Montreal a 5-0 lead in the third. Al Oliver added a solo homer, his third.

Braves 2, Cardinals 1

Rookie Craig McMurtry, 6-1, won his sixth straight game as he combined with Terry Forster on a three-hitter, snapping St. Louis' seven-game winning streak.

McMurtry allowed just two hits — both first-inning singles — in going six innings. Forster allowed only an infield hit by George Hendrick with one out in the ninth to record his fifth save.

Bob Watson, pinch hitting for McMurtry in the top of the seventh, hit a sacrifice fly to break a 1-1 tie.

Minnesota rips Red Sox, 10-4

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

After unsuccessfully trying to tattoo the cozy left field wall at Fenway Park the night before, the Minnesota Twins changed their strategy against the Boston Red Sox.

On Friday night, the essentially right-handed, power-hitting Twins virtually ignored the so-called "Green Monster" and it paid off handsomely.

Hitting the ball straight away for the most part, the Twins cracked 16 hits en route to a 10-4 rout of the Red Sox.

"We're a pull-hitting club, but we tried to overdo it Thursday night," Minnesota's Tom Brunansky said of the 4-1 loss. "Tonight we tried to go with the pitch. We got a lot of hits by hitting straightaway."

In other American League action, it was Toronto 7, Baltimore 5; Texas 4, Detroit 0; Chicago 9, Kansas City 6; California 5, Cleveland 4; Oakland 8, New York 4 and Milwaukee 4, Seattle 3.

With their 17th victory of the season, the Twins moved more than one month ahead of their pace last year, when they didn't win No. 17 until June 23.

Blue Jays 7, Orioles 5

Jim Gott scattered four hits over five innings and Lloyd Moseby knocked in three runs to lead Toronto over Baltimore.

Rangers 4, Tigers 0

Danny Darwin hurled a five-hitter and Larry Parrish belted a three-run homer in the third inning to lead Texas over Detroit.

Darwin, 3-3, struck out seven and walked five in only his second complete game of the season. It was Darwin's eighth start since being activated April 10 after recovering from an ulcer that put him on the disabled list.

White Sox 9, Royals 6

Greg Luzinski, Tom Paciorek and Ron Kittle hit home runs to boost Chicago over slumping Kansas City. Britt Burns, 1-2, was the winner with relief help from Salome Barojas, as Chicago snapped a three-game losing streak and handed the sputtering Royals their 11th defeat in 16 games.

"My philosophy has always been to take things one game at a time but I hope we can get something rolling," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa. "When players have some success, they can get more confidence."

Angels 5, Indians 4

Doug DeCinces hit a two-run homer, his 11th of the season, and later singled and scored the winning run to lead California over Cleveland behind victory-starved Tommy John.

John, 3-2, scattered eight hits over 7 2/3 innings for his first win since April 11. Three relievers finished up, with Mike Witt recording his fourth save after the Indians scored in the ninth on Pat Tabler's RBI single.

A's 8, Yankees 4

Rickey Henderson homered and scored two runs to lead Oakland over New York in Yankee Manager Billy Martin's homecoming to Oakland, where he managed the past three seasons.

The A's fans greeted Martin with the biggest crowd of the year at Oakland, 38,007. But after the Yankees took a 1-0 first-inning lead on Don Baylor's sacrifice fly, the A's scored six runs over the next three innings and coasted to victory behind Tom Underwood, 3-1, and three other pitchers.

Brewers 4, Mariners 3

Ben Oglivie doubled home the go-ahead run and scored

Police investigating disappearance of farm equipment

DeKALB, Texas (AP) — Police and county authorities are puzzled as to how 19 farm combines, worth at least $1.5 million, could disappear without a trace from a dealer over a three-day period — but they hope to find them this weekend.

DeKalb Police Chief Clarence Kight said he has asked for assistance in his investigation into the disappearance of the 19 pieces of farm machinery, and he hopes to conduct an aerial search of this Northeast Texas area today.

"I asked the (Bowie County) sheriff's department and the FBI to join the investigation because the equipment could be spread anywhere over the county or into the adjoining states," Kight said.

"We just don't know what happened to it," Kight said there were 24 combines and tractors on the lot of the Blackmon Machinery Co. on May 12. Three days later, when representatives of the John Deere company arrived from Dallas to take inventory, 19 of the machines were gone.

"Something happened to all that farm machinery since last Thursday," Kight said.

Eddie Blackmon Jr., owner of the John Deere dealership, could not be reached for comment Friday. His telephone had been disconnected. His attorney, David James of Texarkana, said Blackmon had no idea where the merchandise went.

"We just do not know what happened," James said. "I wouldn't want to speculate one way or the other. We're trying to locate the equipment."

James said Blackmon had been in contact with authorities.

"We've tried to cooperate with them, we surely have," he said.

Kight said the combines sell from between $75,000 to $100,000 each.

Bowie County farmers interviewed by police and John Deere authorities said they had purchased some tractors and left them on Blackmon's lot for storage until they were needed.

"It's not here, though," one farmer told the Texarkana Gazette.

Bowie County Sheriff Thomas Hodge said he had joined the investigation, but he would not elaborate.

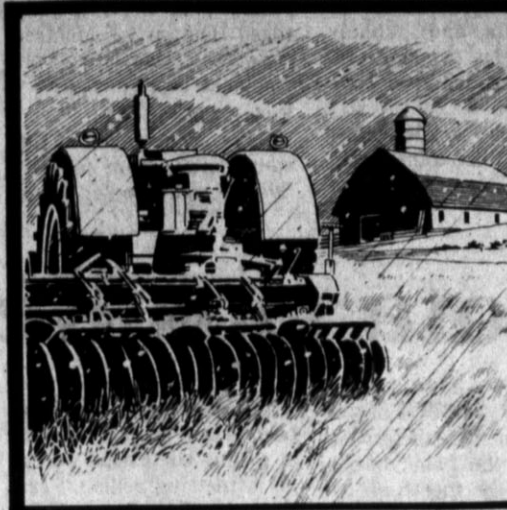

The largest diamond ever found was the 1 1/2 pound Cullinan diamond, unearthed in South Africa in 1905.

Victim jokes about armed robbery

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Investment counselor Glenn Little likes to keep his sense of humor, even when a robber is pointing a gun at his head.

Little says he was in his offices at Little and Co. downtown about 9:15 Friday morning when a man came in. Little said the man wanted to talk about a $900 debt he said was owed him from the company that employs Little's wife.

"I didn't know anything about it so I told him he'd have to talk to my wife, who just happens to be out of town," he said.

Apparently the man didn't like that answer, said Little, because he pulled a large-caliber pistol from the waistband of his trousers, cocked it and pointed it at Little's head.

Little says he told the man, "You have a very persuasive manner. I just happen to have a few hundred dollars in the office. Aren't you lucky?"

He said he gave the man nine $100 bills, then "asked if there would be anything else. He kissed me on the forehead and said if he ever got any money ahead, would I invest it for him?"

Local teacher to spend summer with tour group

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

A dream come true. That's what this summer will be for Cyndi Kiker, a fourth grade teacher at Shirley Intermediate School. When school is out and all her bags are packed, Cyndi will be heading for California to tour with Continental Singers, an interdenominational Christian music ministry.

"This is something I've wanted to do for at least four or five years," says Cyndi with a twinkle in her eye. "I'm very excited, a little nervous, and ready for lots of new experiences and friendships."

The tour group which Cyndi will be going with will travel along the West Coast, through California, Oregon, and Washington; into Canada, including British Columbia, Alberta, and Saskatchewan; and up to Alaska.

Cyndi auditioned for Continentals when a two-man music and drama team called "Jim and I" performed at the First Christian Church here in January.

"Jim and I" is a part of Continental Ministries, as are several other music and drama groups including Jeremiah People, New Hope, Wings of Light, and the Continental Orchestra.

She then had to send in a written application and references. Cyndi received a letter last month letting her know that she had been accepted, but she didn't know for sure where she would be going until making a call to California this month.

There are 15 separate tours, with close to 600 people involved from all parts of the United States and foreign countries, according to Cyndi. Her particular group is to have a 25-voice choir and a 14-piece orchestra.

There will be an intensive rehearsal camp for members of all Continental Singers groups from June 6 to 16 at headquarters in Arrowhead Springs, Calif., before the separate tours divide up to travel in various parts of the world. Most groups spend at least two weeks of the summer outside of the United States.

Continental Ministries is a non-profit organization financed only by sponsorship, freewill offerings, and sales of albums and tapes, so people like Cyndi who participate in Continentals must raise their own support through individual donations.

Any money contributed goes to finance the whole tour, from equipment and inventory to travel expenses, and meals and lodging when not staying in homes on the tour.

"Participants usually are sponsored by members of their church and by friends and acquaintances," notes Cyndi.

A native of La Junta, Colo., Cyndi was raised in Amarillo after her family moved there when she was 2 years old. She studied at Amarillo College for two years and then received her degree in elementary education from West Texas State University in Canyon.

She has been teaching school for five years, in Crosbyton and Littlefield, and for the past two years in Hereford.

She has always loved music and has been involved in a number of choirs and musical groups which have traveled around this area and taken short tours. At Amarillo College she was in concert choir and a girls' ensemble called Wind Song.

She was involved in a church-related singing group, Crystal Waters, while in school at WTSU, and was also involved in the Baptist Student Union there. Through the BSU, she participated in a mission trip to Colorado, presenting "First Love," a drama and musical presentation produced by the Jeremiah People, part of Continental Ministries.

She was involved in a small musical group in Lubbock while living in Crosbyton, and in Littlefield she played the piano in church.

Cyndi is currently a member of the Hereford Chamber Singers and she plays the piano for the Church of the Nazarene, where she frequently sings solos and participates in choral presentations.

"This is a first for something this extensive, though," notes Cyndi. "I've never been involved in something all summer long. I know it will teach me many things and I am looking forward to getting to know many interesting people."

Besides memorizing approximately 16 musical numbers, many of which include narration and choreography, Cyndi is also responsible for memorizing scripture to use in counseling situations following concert presentations.

"There will be a regular program of daily Bible study and prayer," comments Cyndi, "and a time of quiet, intensive preparation at least a half hour before each concert."

There are also costumes to be made and other last minute preparations which will keep Cyndi busy until she leaves for the summer.

"Each person will be assigned a specific job responsibility once we get there," she continues, "so that when we arrive at each place, setting up will go more smoothly."

Cyndi's tour, which is under the direction of Mike Mahoney, a former Continental and assistant director in Jeremiah People, will not be traveling in this part of the country, but several other groups of Continental Singers will tour in nearby cities this summer.

Some of these concerts are scheduled in Plainview, June 19; Levelland, June 22; Lubbock, June 23, July 22, and Aug. 14; Amarillo, Aug. 13-14; and Slaton, Aug. 14.

Wedding planned

Sheryl Green of Temple and Carl Leslie Brown of Los Angeles, Calif., are planning a July 4 wedding at the First United Methodist Church in Malibu, Calif.

The bride-elect graduated from high school in Houston and from the University of Texas at Austin with honors in 1976. She did research at both the Houston and Austin branches of the University of Texas and graduated from the University of Texas Dental School at San Antonio.

Novel recounts struggle to save African elephant

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian
Novels of adventure will head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "Keeping of the Kingdom," by Glennita Miller is an extraordinary group of people to save the African elephant from extinction.

There is a new breed of poachers in operation in the great African wildlife preserve that threatens to decimate the elephant population. The new breed of poachers are armed with fast vehicles and new weapons capable of killing enormous numbers of the animals at once and are a threat different from the individual tribal warriors.

David Karanja, of Aruba National Park in Kenya, is faced with the enormous task of determining how many of the elephants survive, and capturing the killers. He is assisted by a small but dedicated group of people committed to preserving the elephants from the final massacre.

Glennita Miller has written a powerful and moving first novel with the panoramic impact of "The Thorn Birds" and a sensitivity to animal behavior reminiscent of Joy Adamson's "Born Free."

It is based on her own firsthand observations of the struggle to save Africa's wildlife; it is an exciting story of a war, complete with battles and intrigue, between responsibility and greed and it is a story of adventure set against the majestic African landscape.

Also available this week at the library is "Carry the Wind" by Terry C. Johnston. Young Josiah Paddock, running from "ghosts" back East, flees St. Louis in 1831. Memories of unrequited love soon fade as he heads west to the fierce and beautiful Rocky Mountains, to become a free trapper, bound to no man or woman. Hot-headed, impetuous, but touch, he quickly has his romantic picture of life in the mountains crushed by a harsh struggle for survival—against wild animals, fierce Indians, and an unrelenting environment. Half-dead, he encounters the old trapper, Titus Bass, who takes him under his wing and seeks to teach him the ways of the mountains.

"Carry the Wind" is a magnificent historical novel—a literary achievement of the highest order and a thrilling entertainment. Like Vardis Fisher's "Mountain Man" and A.B. Guthrie's "The Big Sky" this book captivates and enthralls, carrying you away to another time and place.

"Carry The Wind" is one of three novels that will span the period from 1831-1840 in the history of the West. Also available this week is "Stand We At Last" by Zoe Fairbairns, "Knave of Hearts" by Philippa Carr, "This Year in Jerusalem" by Joel Gross, and "The F-Plan Diet" by Eyton.

Walterscheid, Yosten vows spoken Saturday

Miss Lindy Jo Walterscheid and Gregg Yosten spoke their wedding vows Saturday afternoon in St. Anthony's Catholic Church with the Rev. Francis Eldridge, S.A., officiating.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Walterscheid of 222 Elm and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Nick Yosten of Route 4.

Two large bouquets of pink gladiolus, carnations, pom-poms, fresh greenery and baby's breath, flanked by single tall tapers arranged in brass and marble candlesticks, decorated the main altar of the church.

Side altars were trimmed with nosegays of pink pom-poms, carnations, greenery and baby's breath.

The couple lit a large white unity candle immediately following their vows. Two white tapers were also arranged in beds of baby's breath, miniature white carnations, pink pom-poms and ming fern.

Serving as gift bearers during communion of Nuptial Mass were sisters of the bride, Donna Tidmore and Brenda Melugin; her brother, Doug Walterscheid; and the bridegroom's brother, Tony Yosten.

Front pews of the church were marked with pink satin bows.

Elise McDowell was the bride's maid of honor and Mike Foster of Torrance, Calif., was best man.

Lori and Kari Walterscheid served as bridesmaids to their sister. Also attending the bride was Lachelle Butler of Greenville.

The bridegroom's brothers, Glynn and Garry Yosten, and Gary Schumacher were groomsmen. Escorting guests were Wayne Boren, Scott Holbert, Eddie Reinauer, and Marshall Formby of Lubbock.

Ron Tidmore, brother-in-law of the bride, served as lector and read the couple's scripture selections from both the Old and New Testament.

Flower girl was Nicole Berend, daughter of Phil Berend of Hereford and Barbie Berend of Amarillo, and ring bearer was Rob Reinauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reinauer.

Gayle and GayLynn Yosten, sisters of the bridegroom, lit candles during the ceremony. Ralph Detten and Karen Zinser, accompanied by Sharon Cramer, vocalized principal wedding selections. They included "His and Hers," "The Bridal Vow," "God, A Woman and Man," "Bless This House" and "Thee Our Father."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of organza and schiffily embroidery. The high Victorian neckline was designed with a sheer yoke reembroidered with seed pearls. Long bishop sleeves were caught at the wrists by deep scalloped lace cuffs.

Venice appliques were scattered on the bodice front and on the sheer sleeves. The full skirt fell to a deep flounced hemline of scalloped schiffily embroidery. Tiny lace motifs seeded in pearls were applied over her bouffant skirt which swept to back fullness ending in a chapel length train. A sheer bow with long streamers accented her back waistline.

She wore a matching schiffily Juliet cap seeded in pearls which held her fingertip length veil of scalloped illusion embroidered in a matching pattern.

The bride carried a traditional cascading bouquet of elegant bridal white roses, carnations and stephanotis in a bed of gypsophilla, laced with ming fern, tiny white picot ribbon and lace love knots.

She presented her mother a long stemmed white rose when she entered the sanctuary and then gave the bridegroom's mother a single white long stemmed rose following the ceremony.

For something old, the bride wore her maternal great-grandmother's garnet and pearl engagement ring which belongs to her mother and was worn by her two older sisters at their weddings.

Her only other jewelry was a pair of pearl earrings which were given to her by the bridegroom and represented something new.

Something blue was her garter and the penny in her shoe was a lucky six pence belonging to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. F.J. Walterscheid.

She carried a lace handkerchief belonging to the bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Phillip Berend that was also used as something borrowed.

Bridal attendants wore identical tea-length gowns of light petal pink chiffon designed with embroidered caplets and sheer yokes of pointdespirit. Matching satin ribbons encircled their waists and Victorian necklines were fashioned after the bride's gown.

The maid of honor carried two long stemmed white roses and gypsophilla tied with pink picot love knots. The bridesmaids carried single long stemmed white roses and gypsophilla tied with pink picot love knots.

Candlelighters were attired in contrasting rose colored dresses fashioned after the attendants' dresses. They wore pink miniature carnation wrist corsages.

The flower girl's gown was of pastel pink organza trimmed with white chantilly lace and satin ribbon. The dress featured a Victorian bodice with a square yoke outlined with lace edged ruffles and full bishop sleeves. The floor-length skirt was edged with a gathered flounce and an apron affect was created with lace and ribbon.

She carried a white lace basket nosegay of miniature pink carnations, white daisies and pink ribbon. Her corsage consisted of miniature pink carnations and baby's breath.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother wore a tea-length rose chiffon gown featuring a rounded neckline and elbow length full slit sleeves finishing in a bow at the elbows. The full skirt was edged with a ruffle.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a pink chiffon tea-length gown accented with a darker contrasting pink cummerbund. The dress was fashioned with a tucked front bodice, long sleeves and full skirt.

Both mothers wore corsages of petal pink roses, baby's breath and greenery accented with pink ribbons.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Tidmore, invited guests to sign the registry book at the reception held in St. Anthony's Parish Hall. The registry table, covered with a white linen and lace cloth, was centered with a pink bud vase holding pink carnations, baby's breath and ming fern. A montage of bridal photographs also adorned the table.

Ms. Melugin, the bride's sister, and the bride's sister-in-law, Lori Walterscheid, served cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Crystal Zinser and Karen Compton.

The bridal table was covered with a white lace tablecloth overlaid in pink. Large hurricane lamps with pink candles in a bed of miniature pink carnations, pom poms and baby's breath were used as decorations.

Centered over a flowing pink fountain, the three tier bride's cake had pink roses and carnations cascading down the side and was surrounded by five heart shaped cakes and topped with a gold wedding cross.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a similar cloth and was decorated with a small hurricane lamp identical to the ones used on the bride's table. His chocolate cake was topped with a colored picture of his Kenworth truck.

The bridal party was served from the head table, which was covered with a white lace over pink tablecloth. Bud vases held pink carnations, baby's breath and greenery. The bridal bouquet was used as a centerpiece.

Guest tables were covered in white and were decorated with matching bud vases.

A dance featuring the "Sound Barrier" was held following the reception. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schilling of Summerfield led the grand march.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the bride wore a tan cream colored sundress with a tan jacket and cream colored accessories. Her going away corsage consisted of a European duster of pink roses trimmed with candlelight ribbon.

The couple will be at home after May 29 in Hereford.

The bride, a 1981 Hereford High School graduate, attended North Texas State University at Denton where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha. She is currently employed by Lone Star Agency.

A 1976 HHS graduate, the bridegroom is engaged in farming and trucking west of Hereford.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Bob Welch of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Shuval of Austin; and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Melugin, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Walterscheid, and Emond Raef, all of Amarillo. Other guests were from Muenster, Gainsville and Lubbock.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal supper Friday evening at K-Bob's Steak House.

Other pre-nuptial festivities included a surprise bachelorette party and lingerie shower held recently in the home of Elise McDowell.

Also hosting the event were Donna Tidmore and Brenda Melugin.

The Hot Dog Vendor

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, Mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him out. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse. Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know." So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight. "You're right, son," the father said to the boy. "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Ann Landers

Lousy at geography

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was shocked when I read your column documenting the ignorance of today's young people when it comes to geography. The writer said out of a group of kids from 16 years to 20, not one could place Bismarck. Tallahassee was unknown to three out of four. More than half didn't know where Albany was.

I just read a story from Coral Gables, Fla., about an instructor at the University of Miami who tested a group of college students, ranging from freshmen to seniors. They were from all parts of the United States. More than half of the students could not find Chicago on the map. Forty-two percent had no idea where London was. "People in this country," said David Helgren, an assistant professor, "are lousy at geography."

More shockers: 7 percent could not find the Atlantic Ocean. Twenty-seven percent were unable to locate the South Pacific. Many students placed Cape Town at the edge of South America.

W.J. Hennessy, vice president of the American Geographical Society in New York, made it abundantly clear that this survey did not indicate that the Florida students were dumber about geography than students in other parts of the country. He said, "We could repeat this test in any college across the country and get the same results. Americans are notorious for their lack of knowledge about the world."

I have no comment to make, Miss Landers. I just wanted to share this information with you and your readers. Maybe somebody, somewhere, will wake up and do something about basic education in this country.--Shocked And Ashamed In Boston

DEAR SHOCKED AND ASHAMED: Thanks for your letter and welcome to the club.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you printed Barry Tarshis' figures on the frequency of lovemaking. People in our office talked of nothing else all day. My wife and I have been married for 34 years. According to those figures, we are much more sexually active than the average couple our age. Does this mean there are a lot of folks out there who aren't doing anything?--Bogart, Ga.

DEAR BO: Undoubtedly some aren't doing anything, but it is not because others are doing more than the average. Don't feel guilty.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My grandfather sent me a little poem a few days ago and I think it makes a lot of sense.

Please print it. It sure straightened me out.

TO ADVICE ADOLESCENTS
Enjoy your age before it's past.
Don't try to be 18 so fast.
You're only 14 once, my dears--
You'll be 39 for several years.

Pro-Family Forum to hold lunch on Monday

The Pro-Family Forum will hold a brown bag lunch from 12 noon until 1 p.m. on Monday at the Community Center Ballroom. Beverages will be furnished.

The program will be given by Dee Ann Clark of Dimmitt on "Your Legislators and You."

Interested persons are welcome to attend.

The Pro-Family Forum endorses the fundamental principals set forth in the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution, believing them to be the most effective instruments ever devised to provide God-given rights, individual freedom, and economic opportunities for the largest number of people.

Also, that families form the building blocks of a stable society, and that all persons have a right to life from conception to natural death.

The forum is a non-profit, non-denominational, non-partisan corporation which was formed to educate on issues which affect the moral and spiritual welfare of the family, to suggest specific things each person can do, and to unite efforts for greater effectiveness.

The custom of "knocking on wood" began because people hoped the noise would prevent evil spirits from hearing about their good luck and taking it away from them.

Michelle Brock wins top honors in 4-H rabbit show

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Rabbit Club traveled to Lovington, N.M., this past week to participate in the Lovington Rabbit Show.

The 4 a.m. rising, three hour bumpy drive and hustle bustle of the show took on a new meaning when 4-H'er Michelle Brock's Silver Martin Jr. Doe won Best of Breed, Best Fancy, and Best in Show awards, thus reaching a first goal by winning all three.

After earning this achievement, Miss Brock's sights are set on the National Convention in Colorado Springs next October.

Other 4-H'ers participating in the show were Brandy Messer, who won first with her Himie Dwarf Buck; Niki Messer, second, Copper Satin Sr. Buck; Jadalynn Conway, first Chinchilla Satin Buck and New Zealand Doe.

Also, Jeremy Brock, Best of Breed, Himalayan Jr. Buck and first, English Spot Black Jr. Doe; and the leader, Jerry Brock, Best of Variety, English Spot Gold Jr. Buck; Best Opposite Sex, English Spot Gold Jr. Doe; and Best of Variety and Best of Breed, English Spot Black Sr. Doe.

To wed in June

Carla Deaton of Arapaho, Okla., and Barry DeHart of Clinton, Okla., plan to be married at the First Baptist Church in Arapaho on June 18.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Deaton of Arapaho and prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. DeHart of Route 5, Hereford. Miss Deaton graduated from Clinton High School in 1980 and attended Southwestern Oklahoma State University. She is currently employed by WECI Security Systems.

DeHart is a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School. He is presently employed with the City of Clinton, Okla.

Amarillo trooper gives safety program

Paul Hoff, trooper for safety education of Amarillo, gave a program entitled "Safety on the Road and in Your Home" following a salad luncheon enjoyed by members of North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club on Thursday in the home of Mrs. Roger Williams.

Hoff suggested that the women should never carry more than they can carry in one arm when going shopping and that they should have the car keys ready in their hands before leaving the store.

Car doors should be locked when riding in town and in case of a breakdown on the road, a white handkerchief should be hung out the window or the hood should be raised. He cautioned the women not to open the door if someone stops, but instead, to have them go for help.

At home, said Hoff, there should always be a light outside the house. He advised the ladies never to dress in front of a window and said that if there are widows, they should use their husband's name in the phonebook and never put "Mrs."

In case of obscene phone calls, Hoff suggested keeping a whistle by the phone. He said never to let strangers in to the house and if possible to buy an automatic dialer for the telephone.

Roll call was answered with "useless things I save."

Members in attendance were Mmes. Bob Campbell, Hazel Ledbetter, J.A. Crofford, John Reid, T.E. Brisendine, W.J. Laeb, Herbert Higgins, Williams, and Miss Roberta Campbell.

Candice Campbell was a visitor and eight members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club were also present. They included Mmes. Argen Draper, Clara Trowbridge, Carol Odum, Loraine Ward, Pet Ott, Esther Thuet, Davis and S.T. Wiseman.

Cansler Studio recital slated this afternoon

Students of Joe Ella Cansler will present a spring voice recital at 2 p.m. today in the First Christian Church fellowship hall.

Those participating will be Robin Sublett, Shelia Mullin, Lisa Garrett, Jennifer Cansler, Niki Hammond, Katie Ramey, Misty Stokes, Donann Cummings, Vanessa Sims, Kim Sims, Clay Strib-ing, Teresa Phibbs, Michelle Clarke and Cathie Weldon.

Following the recital, parents and friends will be invited to visit with the performers during a reception prepared by Mrs. Cansler and mothers of the students.

When you come right down to it, the bottom line is where you sign for all the stuff listed above.

Marriage set

Demus and Loretha Buckner of Lubbock announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Nina Ruth, to Ronnie Afton Brown, son of Wes and Helen Brown of Hereford.

The couple will be married at 8 p.m. May 28 at Miss Buckner's parents' home.

The bride-elect teaches at Springlake-Earth High School and the prospective bridegroom is employed at Deaf Smith Rural Electric Cooperative.

The couple will reside in Hereford after a wedding trip to Houston.

Along the Frio

Floydada couple to present mini-concert

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS A mini-concert at Frio Baptist Church will be given Sunday evening, May 29, by Paul and Christi Newberry from Floydada. They do evangelistic singing. It will be at 7 p.m. and everyone is invited.

Graduating seniors at Frio Baptist Church were honored Sunday morning with a breakfast at the church. Their parents were also guests. The youth department leaders of the church sponsor the event each year.

This year's graduates include Laurie Anthony, Dee Dee Dobbins, Timothy Riley, Todd Taylor, Robin Baldwin, Shelly Frye and Tori Self. All except Miss Frye are students in Hereford High. Shelly is graduating from Dimmitt High, where she is valedictorian of the class with a four year average of 98.15.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd Thornton of Weatherford, Okla., are both graduates of Southwestern Oklahoma State. He is an industrial arts major and she has studied pharmacy as a major. She is the former Linda Ginn, a 1977 graduate of Hereford High School. They hope to locate either in Northeastern Oklahoma or Kansas. Mr. and Mrs. Clark Andrews attended the graduation exercises Friday evening May 13.

This is the year of the graduation for Andrews grandchildren, with five involved in as many different schools. Cay Zetsche, daughter of the George Zetsches, graduated on Friday evening and Saturday morning, May 13 and 14, at Texas Tech, a music major in elementary education, Lynette Andrews Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Andrews, was among graduates from West Texas State University Saturday afternoon, May 14, with a degree in art, also in the elementary education field.

Clint Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Andrews of Carthage, Mo., was a member of the class of seniors of Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield, Mo. with a major in ag economics on May 20.

High school graduates are Jan Bruns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bruns of Amarillo and formerly of Hereford, and Jim Zetsche, son of the George Zetsches, of H.H.S. (Please excuse me if I seem to brag—just have to tell it like it is). Both high school graduates will be May 26.

In old Siam it was considered bad luck if the king could not stand on one foot during a special three-hour ceremony.

Barbados is an independent country in the Caribbean with more than 300 years of English tradition behind it. The 21-mile-long island is famous for its gracious people and graceful landscapes. It's western, Caribbean shore is calm and smooth. The "platinum coast," as it is called, is sprinkled with resorts where guests are sequestered in luxury. The Atlantic side of the island offers a more lively pace and rugged scenery. Here historic Bridgetown offers duty-free shopping. An island tour reveals stately homes and manicured gardens and acres of sugar cane fields. The miles of white beaches are conducive to all manner of sporting activity.

Although Barbados may seem very far away HEREFORD TRAVEL CENTER would like to suggest that you stop by our office and let us tell you more about it. # Attitude important when dieting

BY LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Many people think dieting just means eating less and exercising more. In a sense, that's true. But how you think about your diet can determine how successful you are.

Following are some tips on how to maintain a positive attitude as you adjust to new eating habits. Remember: moderation, not martyrdom, is the key to a successful diet.

-Make a commitment and decide on a date. When you're ready to begin, don't put it off. Then reinforce your commitment by placing a note with your decision on a mirror or the refrigerator door.

-Exercise. In addition to burning up more calories, regular exercise will tone your muscles, make you feel better and improve your overall health.

-Don't skip meals or go below recommended calorie levels. In general, adult males should follow a weight reduction diet of 1400-1500 calories a day and females 1100-1200 calories a day.

-Don't get discouraged by irregular weight loss. Sometimes when fat is burned up by the body, it is replaced temporarily with water. So, while you may initially lose 1½-3 pounds in one week, you may not lose as many the next. Don't worry, the lost pounds will register.

-Use a moderate amount of salt in cooking and at the table. A large intake of salt may be associated with water retention and hypertension. Even after you have lost your desired amount of weight, it is wise to keep salt consumption moderate.

-Avoid impulse buying. Plan well-balanced, low-calorie meals before shopping. Also, never shop when you're hungry—the temptation may be overpowering.

-Eat slowly and savor your food. Allow your body some time to "signal" that the need for food has been satisfied.

-Beware of high-calorie foods. "Normal" servings of desserts and sweets can exceed your calorie allotments. It is wise, therefore, to eliminate these foods or to eat very small portions of them. Also, don't forget about the calories contained in alcoholic beverages.

-Limit your portions. Weigh your servings. You can eat two servings from the meat group a day when losing weight. In addition, you can have two glasses of skim milk a day (1½ oz. of these provides about the same amount of calcium as one glass of milk), two one-half cup servings of fruit (one being citrus), four servings bread and cereals.

-Eat right when dining away from home. Avoid fried foods, sauces, gravies, breads, high-calorie desserts. Eating out is fun - just plan carefully and select food items wisely.

½ tsp. pepper
1 beef bouillon cube
½ c. hot water
2 pkg. (10 ounces each) cut Italian green beans, defrosted
8 oz. mushrooms, sliced
¾ c. buttermilk
1 Tbsp. cornstarch

Trim separable fat from steak; slowly heat fat in large frying pan and Dutch oven to obtain 1 tablespoon drippings. Discard fat. Cut steak in ¾ to 1 inch cubes; brown in drippings. Pour off drippings. Combine salt, thyme and pepper and sprinkle over meat. Crush bouillon cube and dissolve in hot water; add to meat, cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours.

Stir in green beans and mushrooms; continue cooking, covered, 13 minutes.

Add buttermilk to cornstarch, stirring to blend; gradually add to meat mixture and cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Continue cooking 2 minutes. 4 servings.

-Calculated Caloric Values: entree, 415 (4 oz. beef, 320) other foods, 195. Total calories, 610 per person.

-Serving portions: Braised Beef Slimmer, ¼ recipe; salad of ¾ cup shredded cabbage, ¼ cup shredded carrot, ¼ cup green pepper strips, 1 tablespoon raisins; 1 slice whole wheat bread, 1 pat butter; 1 small apple.

Broiled Sirloin Steak
1 beef sirloin steak, cut 1 to 2 inches thick
Salt and pepper

Set regulator for broiling. Place steak on rack in broiler pan, so the top of 1-inch steak is 2 to 3 inches from the heat and 2 inch steak is 3 to 5 inches from the heat.

When one side is browned, season, turn and finish cooking on 18 to 20 minutes for rare and 20 to 25 minutes for medium. Steaks cut 2 inches thick require 30 to 40 minutes for rare and 35 to 45 minutes for medium.

Tangy Broiled Tomato Halves
2 large tomatoes
2 Tbsp. cracked crumbs
2 Tbsp. prepared horseradish
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. paprika
2 tsp. snipped parsley

Cut tomatoes in half crosswise. Combine cracker crumbs, horseradish, lemon juice, salt and paprika. Spread cracker mixture evenly over tomato halves; sprinkle with parsley.

Place on rack in broiler pan 2 to 3 inches from heat. Broil 3 to 5 minutes or just until heated. 4 servings.

-Calculated Caloric Values: 4 oz. beef entree, 235; other foods, 365. Total calories, 600 per person.

-Serving portions: Broiled Sirloin Steak, 4 oz. cooked steak (separable fat removed); 1 Tangy Broiled Tomato Half; 6 asparagus spears; ¼ head lettuce; 1 slice whole wheat bread; 1 pat butter; ½ cup lemon yogurt; 1 cup skim milk.

The Mid-Ocean Ridge is a continuous underwater mountain chain that winds through all the world's ocean basins. A major portion of the Mid-Ocean Ridge is the 12,000-mile-long Mid-Atlantic Ridge, lying almost halfway between North America and Europe. Here violent volcanic eruptions occur and molten rock constantly wells up through the rift as the floor of the Atlantic spreads outward, carrying Europe and North America apart by nearly an inch a year.

Off the Runway

By Anne Winston

Some nut got his hole puncher out and attacked all the shoes being manufactured for spring. To keep from having to fill the holes back up, shoe makers are calling the holey look "perforated." It's turning out to be the hottest trend in footwear. But don't let them fool you, it's really just a bunch of holes!

There's no mercy to all this holiness: perforations come on sandals, skimmers, pumps and sling back wedges. There are even perforated handbags to match.

All these holes will certainly let the sun shine in, which is fine if you have a fetish for polka dot feet.

Look for rope to be another important shoe treatment. Such shoe wizards as Salvatore and Ferragamo are roping their crepe soles in the spring shoe herd.

And what about heel heights? Quiche-eating ladies will obviously opt for high heels, while the rest of us hamburger eaters will live comfortably in the lower wedges, stacks and rubber soles.

Were Cinderella alive today, Prince Charming would never have found her. Even her step-sisters could have squished their ugly feet into this year's comfy styles...a far cry from the tiny glass slipper of once-upon-a-time.

Hanes Hosiery is looking at lots of legs this year. Tell your husbands I'm sorry, but the company is not accepting job applications) The firm is presenting trunk shows at select retailers during 1983.

Called "Fair Lady," the exhibition features a fashion retrospective of four periods from the Edwardian to the Sixties.

Hanes supplies stores with a dressy evening outfit complete with shoes and hose in the tradition of each time period. The store then adds its own interpretation of the Eighties look in ready-to-wear, shoes and hose.

Wonder which hose will appear on the last legs of this race? Color-plussed, polka dotted or sensually laced—there's a thighful of thought.

With all the black and white fashions this spring, a woman needs to make sure her makeup adds color to her life.

"Fresh" and "pure" are the key words for spring faces. It is important for foundations to be transparent, giving the face a natural complexion. In other words, put on just enough to make it look like you don't have on any.

Eyes are softened with a mixture of gray, brown and black shadows. Violet is another important shade for spring eyelids. Brows should be filled in with soft brown or black shadow for a sophisticated drama.

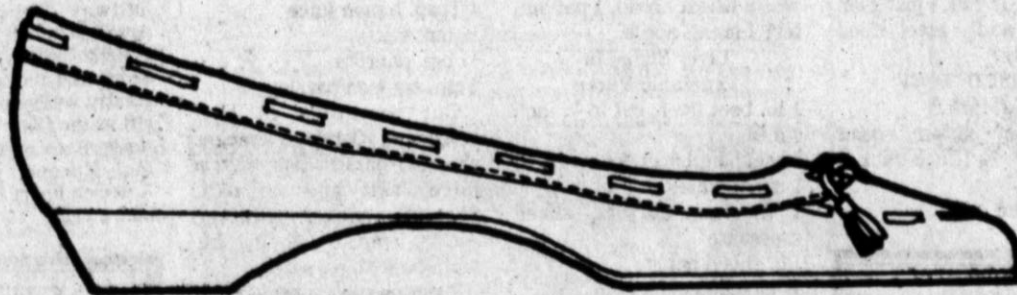

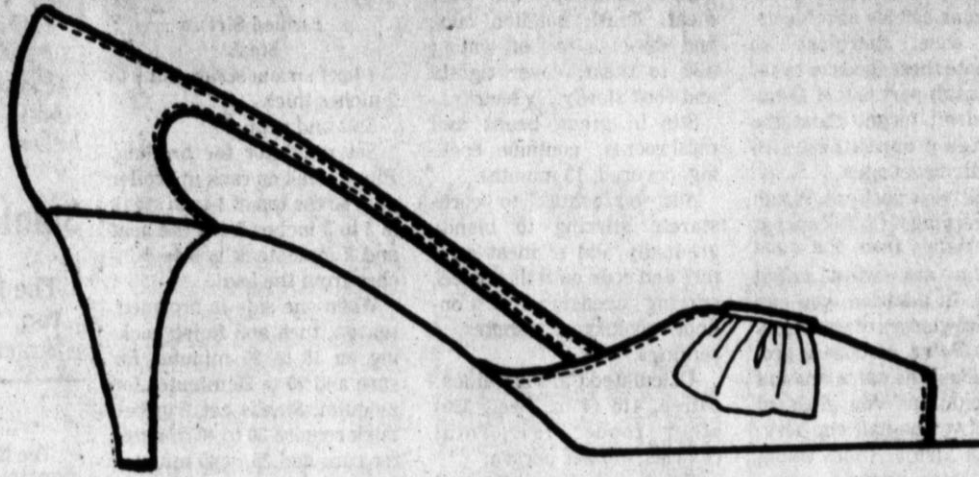

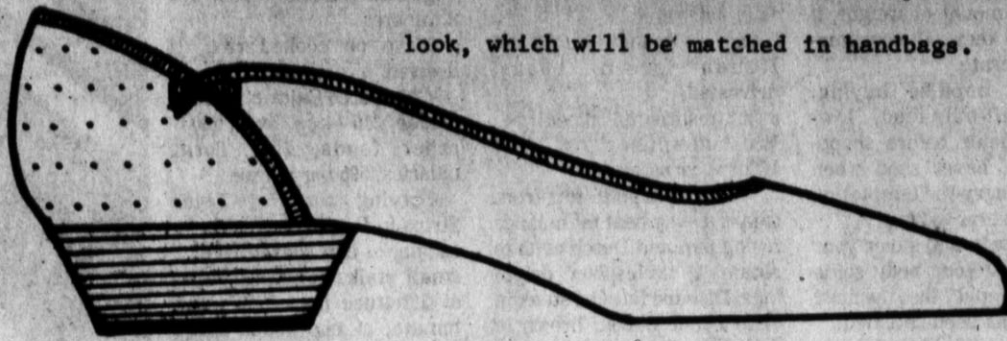

And then the color comes in when cheeks blush with a blend of orange and pink, and lips and nails go blood red.

After all that makeup is applied in an on-so-natural way, don a hat to draw attention to your paint and powder.

The spring couture collections in Paris were full of hats, which means they're swimming the Atlantic at this moment. The flat-topped straw hat is a must for daywear, but only if it's casually tied with a chiffon scarf, according to Yves St. Laurent.

Footwear goes low and comfortable for spring

'83. However, there will still be high heels for those women who wouldn't wear anything else. The hottest trend in shoes will be the perforated look, which will be matched in handbags.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

Special thanks to the Red Cross youth group at La Plata for the donation for our activities. Casey Smith, president, presented a check for $100 at the La Plata Awards Assembly Tuesday. Special thanks to Sharon Charest, sponsor of the group.

Special thanks to the Vermillions for allowing us to use their swimming pool. The cold weather did not stop the advanced lifesaving class from beginning on schedule, thanks to the Vermillions, and students will be able to start their life guarding jobs when pools open.

CPR classes will be held Tuesday, May 24 and May 31 at the Red Cross office. The classes will begin at 7 p.m. Please register by calling the Red Cross office. Extra special thanks to Ruth Romero, who shared her CPR skills.

A CPR Instructor class will be held June 18, at 1 p.m., at the Red Cross office. We are in need of more instructors. Please call the office for further information if you would share your time and skills to teach a very important lifesaving skill.

Dog Obedience School to begin here Friday

The Deaf Smith County Extension Office will be putting on a seven week Dog Obedience School. The school will begin Friday at the Community Center at 6:30 p.m.

The school is open to all kids in Deaf Smith County from 9-19 years old. Younger children are especially encouraged to get involved in this activity.

The classes will be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Speed. The Speeds have had years of experience in training and raising dogs, both for show and work. The Speeds are currently raising German Shepherds for the Amarillo police force.

At the first meeting on Friday, persons will not need to bring their dogs. There will be a film and demonstration. Mrs. Melody Brooks of Dumas, assisted by Dumas 4-H'ers will be there with their dogs to demonstrate what participants will be learning and teaching their dogs.

For more information call the Extension office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Services serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Warners honored for service to Association

Presenting Plaque

Bill Allen, at right, treasurer of the Hereford Community Concert Association, presents a plaque to George C. Warner in appreciation for many years of outstanding and loyal service to the Community Concert Association. Mr. and Mrs. Warner received the plaque and honorary life membership in the association during a board meeting on Tuesday.

In recognition of their dedication to providing cultural programs to the City of Hereford and their outstanding support of the Community Concert Association, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Warner were presented a plaque and honorary life membership by the Community Concert Association Board when the group met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Panciera on Tuesday evening.

The presentation was made by Bill Allen, treasurer.

Mrs. Mary S. Lloyd, New York representative of Community Concerts, and Mrs. Wanda Vice, trainee representative, met with the group to plan for the membership enrollment which will begin Sept. 12 for renewals.

Mrs. Austin Rose will serve as membership chairman. Headquarters will be the Chamber of Commerce office.

Sept. 19-24 are the dates set for enrollment of new members. Membership prices will remain at $15 for the season.

October 26 is the date of the first performance with a presentation of "The Story of Gilbert and Sullivan".

On February 21 a troupe of approximately 30 will present The Nevada Dance Theatre.

The season will close with a performance by two pianists, Steven and Nadya Gordon.

Newly elected officers of the Community Concert Association are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Langley, president, and Dr. and Mrs. Duffy McBrayer, vice-president.

Board members include Mr. and Mrs. John Martinez,

Ms. Virginia Holmes, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grotegut.

Mrs. Kathleen Palmer will again serve as sponsor of the Concert Teens. Junior and senior girls who are daughters of members of Community Concert are eligible for membership and serve as hostesses for the concerts.

It was announced that Sean Stubbs and Kathy Weldon had been notified of their acceptance as members of the Young Americans on Broadway, having auditioned after the concert given during the last season of Community Concerts.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gilliland will serve as concert chairmen for the 1983-84 season and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mandina will serve as publicity chairmen.

Attending the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Brooke, Mrs. Gilliland, Mrs. Wesley Gulley, Allen, Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Austin Rose, Mrs. McBrayer, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Bill Walden, Mrs. Peaches Reinauer, Mr. and Mrs. Mandina, and Mr. and Mrs. Panciera.

Unpacking Poppies

American Legion Auxiliary members, from left, Pet Ott, Clara Trowbridge, and Dee Wiseman have been bush unpacking poppies for the annual Poppy Day distribution scheduled Wednesday in Hereford. The Hereford unit has distributed the Memorial Poppy since 1931.

Memorial poppies to be distributed Wednesday

Memorial poppies will be distributed in Hereford on Wednesday by members of Hereford Unit No. 190 of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Members of the group, which have distributed the poppies locally since 1931, will be stationed at several local businesses throughout the day giving out poppies in honor of veterans.

The custom of distributing the red crepe paper poppy began in 1921, soon after the World War II soldiers returned from France. The American Legion had organized in 1919 and at their first convention the crepe paper poppy was used to decorate the food booths along the parade line.

Thereafter the Legionnaires voted to adopt the poppy as the national flower to be made by disabled veterans. Donations are used for the care and welfare of disabled veterans and their families.

Today In History

Today is Friday, May 20, the 140th day of 1983. There are 225 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 20, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln signed the Homestead Act, opening millions of acres of land in the American West for settlement.

On this date: In 1506, explorer Christopher Columbus died in Spain.

In 1861, North Carolina voted to secede from the union.

In 1927, Charles Lindbergh began his solo flight across the Atlantic in his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis."

And, in 1974, U.S. District Judge John Sirica ordered President Richard Nixon to turn over Watergate tapes and other records subpoenaed by the special prosecutor.

Ten years ago: A Camden, N.J., jury handed down a verdict of innocent in the case of 17 anti-war activists accused of breaking into a federal building in 1971 and destroying draft files.

Five years ago: The FBI disclosed the arrest on spy charges of two Soviet employees of the United Nations as they were picking up classified documents in Woodbridge, N.J.

One year ago: British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher rejected a U.N. appeal for further talks on the Falkland Islands, an indication that Britain and Argentina were about to fight for the disputed South Atlantic territory.

Today's birthdays: Actor James Stewart is 75. Comedian George Gobel is 63.

Thought for today: "The one serious conviction that a man should have is that nothing is to be taken too seriously." - Samuel Butler, English writer (1835-1902).

If you can buy a hose that simply won't kink it's probably because it will split before it starts kinking.

You can't win. Fix the power mower so it won't smoke and the insects will make fly-bys in battalion strength.

To Present Recital

Eric Murray, Dana Cabiness (seated) and Tina Watson, music students of Susan Shaw, will present a junior-senior voice recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in the First Baptist Church parlor. Friends are invited to attend.

Policies announced

Weddings, engagements, anniversaries and similar announcements are published free of charge by The Hereford Brand as a courtesy to our readers.

Those who submit such articles are asked to abide by the deadlines and policies established by The Brand Staff. Items must be submitted promptly in order to be newsworthy. The Brand reserves the right to edit all copy.

Wedding and engagement forms are available in the Brand office, 313 Lee St., as an aid in preparing articles for publication.

Information for weddings should be submitted the Monday before the wedding date. Weddings reported more than a week after the event will be published in condensed form. Please do not ask for articles on weddings more than a month old.

Engagement announcements should be submitted at least one month before the wedding date.

Engagement and anniversary announcements should be submitted by noon two days before publication, or Thursday noon for Sunday publication.

Photos for weddings and engagements should be black and white glossy pictures, which can be picked up after publication. Snapshots are not generally suitable for reproduction.

Articles for bridal showers should be reported for immediate publication. Photos of showers will be accepted only if they are timely and of adequate quality for reproduction in the newspaper.

With Wildlife Conservation Award

Cowan is honored

R.H. Cowan Jr. received an award earlier this month noting him for dedication in his wise use of renewable natural resources.

He was the recipient of the Wildlife Conservationist Award for Region I of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Region I covers all the High Plains and a majority of the South Plains from Snyder to the northern Texas border.

Cowan runs 662 acres of land north of Hereford, with 132 acres strictly reserved for wildlife. Another 444 acres are irrigated cropland; 60 acres of irrigated pasture; and 21 acres of grassed waterways, all providing wildlife habitat.

Cowan manages his wildlife area for pheasants, ducks, and geese.

"The key to wildlife management in the Texas Panhandle is habitat," Cowan says. "Most farmers lose enough grain during harvest to provide food for pheasants and geese, but not all have habitat for protection."

Cowan planted a five-acre wildlife plot in 1974, obtaining trees and shrubs from South Dakota. These were used as a test to see which plant were adapted to the Panhandle. Even though most of the 20 species seemed to adapt, several emerged as the dominant species — including the Skunkbush sumac, Buffaloberry, Choke berry, Nanking cherry, and Mongolian cherry. Many of these trees provide not only food for wildlife, but produce fruits humanly edible.

A farmstead windbreak was also established in 1974 for protection and wildlife use. Cowan continually adds trees to the windbreak.

His irrigated cropland rotates milo and wheat, with a wildlife program fitting in well. Pheasants will always have stubble. As most farmers in the Panhandle, Cowan is converting to minimum tillage and leaving his stubble as long as possible.

"Minimum tillage will help the pheasant population more than anything," Cowan said. The 22 acres of grassed waterways, with a stand of western wheatgrass, provide winter protection and nesting areas for pheasants.

Cowan has re-established 60 acres of tall wheatgrass under irrigation. It was first planted a couple of years ago, but did not make a thick stand that Cowan needed so it is being established this year.

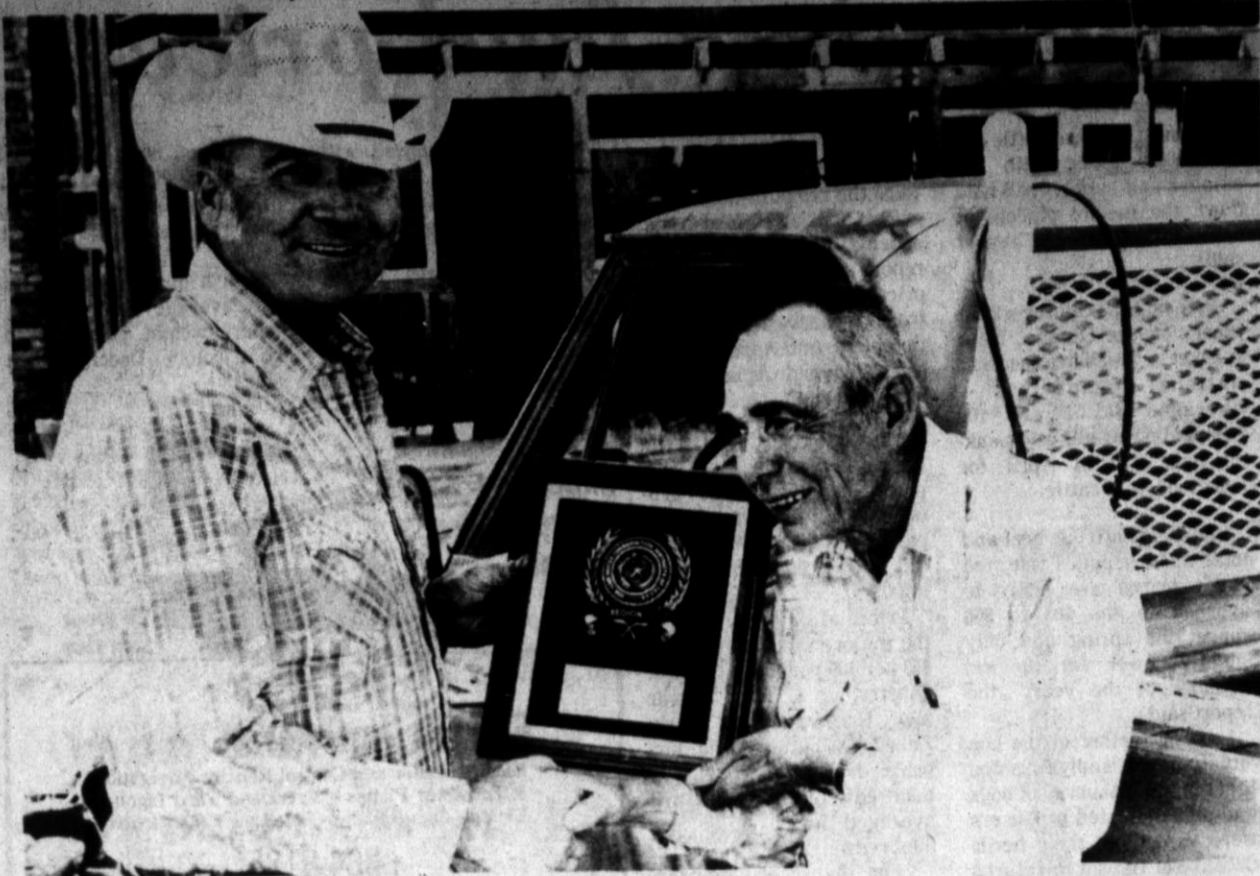

A 40-acre playa lake with 83 acres of native grass surrounding it also provides an excellent waterfowl habitat. The native grass is grazed only once in three or four years to stimulate plant growth and is maintained for fowl the rest of the time. No hunting is allowed on the waterfowl, as Cowan refers to his playa lake as the "island for protection." "These geese and ducks are shot at all the way down from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico and I want to provide an area for the birds to rest and not get shot at," Cowan said.

As many as 2,000 fowl use Cowan's lake for protection with many overwintering there.

Cowan was nominated by the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District in Hereford.

Wildlife Conservationist

which nominated Cowan for the award. Cowan has managed his 662 acres to provide protection and nesting areas for waterfowl.

King Ranch executive awarded National Golden Spur

LUBBOCK — John B. Armstrong, executive vice president of the King Ranch in Kingsville, Texas, has been named 1983 recipient of the National Golden Spur Award.

The award is presented annually to an individual who has made significant contributions to the ranching and livestock industry in both humanistic and scientific ways.

Armstrong will be the sixth to receive the coveted Steuben-designed, gilded OK spur encased in a crystal presentation piece. He will be honored during the National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party Sept. 16 in Lubbock.

Sponsors for the national award are the American National CowBelles, the American Quarter Horse (AQHA), National Cattlemen's (NCA), National Wool Growers, Ranching Heritage (RHA), Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers associations. Armstrong raises commercial and registered Santa Gertrudis and ranches or farms in Jim Hogg, Kleberg and Kenedy counties of Texas. He is managing partner of the John B. Armstrong Ranch, Kingsville.

As executive vice president of the King Ranch, Armstrong oversees the ranch's domestic operations in Mississippi, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Florida. He also is in charge of the King Ranch holdings in Spain, Morocco, Argentina, Brazil, Venezuela and Australia which include cattle, horse and some sheep operations.

He was director of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association from 1969-1974 and an officer from 1974-80, serving as president from 1978-80.

Armstrong is director of the National Finance Credit Corp. and Texas Livestock Marketing Association.

A native of San Antonio, Armstrong completed his formal education at the Texas Military Institute and the University of Texas.

He was recognized as 1979 Man of the Year in Service to Texas Agriculture by "Progressive Farmer" magazine. Armstrong has been president of the Autauga County, Ala., Cattlemen's Association, a member of the Executive Committee of the Alabama Cattlemen's Association as a director at large and chairman of the Beef Promotion Committee.

He has been president of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International, regional vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, chairman of the Beef Industry Council of the National Livestock and Meat Board and honorary director of the Meat Board.

Armstrong was chairman of the Kleberg County Republican Party in 1963 and Republican candidate for Texas Commissioner of Agriculture in 1964.

He is chairman of the Texas Animal Health Commission, a member of the Board of Directors of the National Cattlemen's Association, a director of the Texas Horseracing Association and vice chairman of the Texas 2000 Commission.

Armstrong is married to the former Henrietta Larkin. They are parents of three sons, Charles M., Stewart L. and the late Thomas T., and one daughter, Henrietta Julia Jitkoff.

County records five accidents in April

Sergeant Billy Don Scott, Area Supervisor of Deaf Smith County, reports that for the month of April the Texas Highway Patrol Troopers investigated a total of 5 accidents in this county.

There were 2 injury accidents with a total of 3 persons injured and 3 property damage accidents.

In District 5B, which includes the top 31 counties of the Texas Panhandle, there were 185 accidents investigated by the Texas Highway Patrol.

PIK program has helped escalate feed prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's program to cut back on feed grain acreage this year and the general health of the economy are having a lot to do these days with the livestock business.

According to Agriculture Department economists, the payment-in-kind program to curb crop output has helped drive up feed prices significantly. With higher costs, cattle and hog feeders are doing a lot of figuring on what to do next.

Market prices for fed steers probably have already peaked for this year, says a new outlook report issued by USDA's Economic Research Service.

The hog situation also is coming under scrutiny because of rising feed costs. In fact, the report said, producers may be having second thoughts about expanding their herds.

"Commercial beef production in the first quarter rose only 1 percent from a year earlier because of reduced non-fed cattle slaughter and poor feedlot conditions," the report said.

Wet, cold weather and muddy feedlots caused poor weight gains and higher death losses in major beef areas. But "prospects for an excellent grazing year on pastures and ranges this spring and a graze-out provision for winter wheat (in the PIK program) resulted in a strong demand for stocker-feeder cattle to remain on pasture during the first quarter," the report said.

Most of the cattle will be moved off pasture in May and June, with many of the yearlings — particularly those on wheat pasture — going into feedlots this spring and early summer.

"Increased placements of heavier, fleshy cattle coming off pasture ... will expand fed cattle marketings this summer and early fall," the report said.

That will likely push feedlot cattle placements above year-earlier levels during the summer and early fall, before declining.

"Higher feed prices and the higher break-even prices when most of these cattle are marketed, along with the smaller calf supply, will hold down the feedlot placement rate this fall," the report said.

Prices of Choice-grade steers on the Omaha, Neb., market — which are used as a national comparison — averaged $61.52 per 100 pounds last winter and peaked near $70 in April for selected lots of cattle.

"Consequently, as beef and total meat supplies rise, fed cattle prices are likely to average in the $65 to $68 range this spring and only slightly lower for the remainder of the year," the report said.

Looking further at the hog situation, the analysis noted that the March survey of hogs and pigs indicated producers were expanding their herds because of improved returns in 1982 after three years of depressed income. "The improved returns were the result of higher hog prices and lower feed costs, especially for corn," the report said. "However, corn prices rose over $1 per bushel from the harvest time low in October to mid-April, and hog prices have dropped $9 per hundredweight."

Thus, the report said, "The turnaround in hog and corn prices suggests that producers will re-evaluate expansion plans and may curtail the increases in farrowings."

Prices of slaughter hogs at the major markets averaged $55 per 100 pounds in the first quarter, up $7 from a year ago. However, from early February to mid-April, hog prices dropped nearly $12 per hundredweight, and for April averaged about $47.50 per hundredweight.

"For the second quarter, prices are expected to average $49 to $52 per hun-dredweight, compared with $56 last year," the report said. "Third quarter prices are expected to average $52 to $56 per hundredweight, compared with $62 a year earlier."

Because of "an expected small decline" in pork output from the second to the third quarter of 1983, the normal seasonal rise in market prices "will be much less than normal," the report said.

Fourth quarter hog prices may average $47 to $51 per hundredweight, compared to $55 in October-December last year.

Export Equity Act needs support

WACO -- Texas Farm Bureau has called upon its members to contact their U.S. representatives, urging them to support legislation to expand agricultural exports.

The Export Equity Act of 1983, a combination of several bills introduced by a number of U.S. senators for the purpose of expanding agricultural trade, needs the support of all members of the Texas congressional delegation, according to Ed McKay, TFB national affairs director.

S. 822 contains the following major provisions:

- An export PIK (payment-in-kind) program to authorize the giving of "bonus" commodities to foreign purchasers who buy more from us than they have in the past.
- Make Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) commodities available to exporters so they can meet subsidized competition.
- Urges increased use of "blended interest credit" to gain new customers, and to counter subsidized competition.
- Urges that not less than $1 billion be made available to the export credit revolving fund authorized by the 1981 Farm Bill.
- Expands Food-for-Peace (P.L. 480) programs, and broadens the present law which governs donations of dairy surpluses to include donations of other commodities.
- Exempts exports financed under the blended interest credit program and export PIK sales from cargo preference requirements.

Years of dedication has paid off for Dr. Atkins

By LeANNE HUGHES
Staff Writer

Forty years of hard work and dedication are paying off for Hereford resident, Dr. Irvin Milburn Atkins.

During Atkins' 40 years of research, he has developed 20 varieties of wheat, 16 varieties of oats, 5 barley varieties and 4 flax varieties. One of the most popular varieties of wheat produced was the Westar wheat, a hard red winter wheat that is now being grown on about 40 percent of Texas acres.

Atkins, a retired professor, is author of the book, "A History of Small Grain Crops in Texas," which is used all over Texas in teaching about wheat, oats, barley and flax in Texas.

It was after retirement that Atkins received a grant from Texas A&M University to write his book. It took him four years to complete the book, which has been in circulation for two years. While researching and writing his book, he traveled all over Texas.

"One of the most interesting things I learned, while doing my research was where wheat started in Texas. It was thought that wheat started in the Texas Panhandle, but actually it was brought to the Rio Grande by the Spanish around the 1750's," Atkins said.

Some of the information for his book came from the Panhandle Plains Museum and Texas Tech University Library, but most from his own personal experiences.

During his seed career he has written over 200 scientific, popular reports and articles.

Atkins is one of three brothers in his family who are agronomists. All three received their B.S. from Kansas State University. Atkins went on to receive his master's from Kansas State and doctorate from the University of Minnesota.

While attending college he remembers having to travel to and from school in a horse and buggy.

After graduating from college, he came to Texas by train and began working. He was first employed by the United States Department of Agriculture as junior agronomist and assistant superintendent of the USDA Field Station in San Antonio. He was then transferred to Denton to continue his work on small grain crops.

During the dust-bowl days, Atkins traveled to the Texas Panhandle to work with Ky Lawrence, a Hereford resident. "I hadn't seen Ky since the 1930's until a week ago. It was good to see him again, he's 95 now," Atkins said.

In 1954, he moved to College Station where he continued as state leader of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and USDA Cooperative Small Grain Improvement Program. He also helped many graduate students in their research.

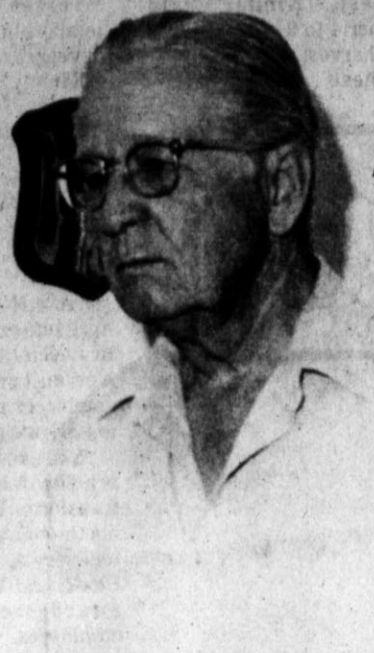

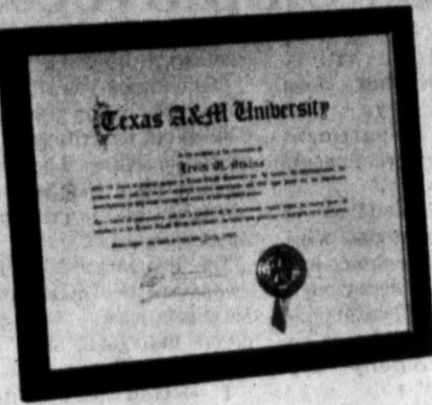

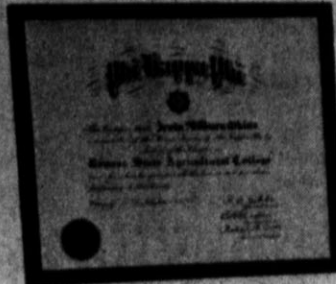

"I have taught many students all over the world. Now some of them hold high positions in their country," Atkins said. He was at Texas A&M until 1969 when retired.

Besides writing a book after retiring, Atkins is a consultant for three seed companies in San Antonio, Denton and George Warner Seed Co., in Hereford.

While working for George Warner, he has developed a semi-dwarf hard red winter wheat called Tex Red, which Warner Seed distributes.

Atkins' newest project is writing an autobiography of his life for his family. He will not publish the book but will leave it to his family for them to cherish in the year to come.

Atkins moved to Hereford about a year ago. He is the father of Mrs. Bill Lyles of Hereford.

Tech lands $3 million farm pact in Senegal

LUBBOCK — A $3 million, four-year contract to improve the delivery of rural development services in Senegal has been awarded to Texas Tech University by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

A nation of 5.8 million people on the west coast of Africa, Senegal is an agrarian country practicing a variety of farm technologies adapted to arid and semi-arid environments.

Working with the National School of Applied Economics in Senegal, Texas Tech representatives will help develop the management techniques and training programs for extension agents to better deliver improved farm methods to primarily illiterate farmers.

Project Director Dr. Richard Vengroff said, "This project is not designed to do the basic agricultural research or upgrading per se, but to add to that an element that is often lacking—the management capability to deliver that knowledge to the farmer."

Texas Tech's management team which will oversee the project will be Vengroff, director, Center for Applied International Development; Dr. Idris R. Traylor Jr., director, International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS); and Dr. Nelson Dometrius, director, Center for Public Service.

Vengroff, a political science professor, will be one of three Texas Tech faculty members spending alternating 18-month stays in Senegal to assess the needs, design a plan and train extension agents. History Professor Robert M. Baum will serve as a rural agricultural development, specialist and agricultural economics Instructor Lapidini Atouga as an organization and training specialist.

In addition, several Senegalese representatives will be sent to Texas Tech for special training. Dr. Sheik Tidiane Sy, director of the National School of Applied Economics in Senegal, already has visited the Texas Tech campus to discuss implementation of the project. As director of the National School, Sy is involved in development projects in Senegal and seven other African nations.

The $3 million contract is based upon a Congressional appropriation for the purpose and was put out to bid by the U.S. Agency for International Development. Texas Tech was chosen from among four universities named finalists after applications by several colleges and universities.

Decision reversed rejection request

FRESNO, Calif. — News that the Senior Interagency Group has decided to grant Korea's request for $50 million in blended credit to purchase U.S. cotton was hailed here today by National Cotton Council President Gerald Brewer as a "tremendous breakthrough."

The decision, made Friday in Washington, reversed the group's March 17 rejection of the request.

Brewer said the request had been pending since last December. The March decision to deny blended credit to Korea was seen by the cotton industry as a severe blow to export prospects, especially in view of the excess supply overhanging the market.

He pointed out that U.S. cotton's share of the Korean market had historically been about 95 percent, but had declined to less than 80 percent within the last few months. This, he said, verified the industry's misgivings about the government's decision to withhold blended credit for Korea.

Council Board Chairman Ed Breihan of Lubbock said that the Koreans normally match credit purchases with cash purchases. "So approval of this line of credit — which would cover about 140,000 bales or more — probably will generate additional cash sales."

The Council president expressed appreciation for the Administration's response to the industry's request that the decision be reconsidered.

Transportation agent says outlook is good

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department transportation expert says the outlook appears good for moving farm commodities through marketing channels this year.

T.Q. Hutchinson of the department's Economic Research Service says in a new outlook report that the large sign-up in the payment-in-kind program "will place additional demands on the transportation system to move grain from existing stocks to deficit grain areas."

Assuming that livestock and poultry feeding patterns remain unchanged, shipments of corn and grain sorghum could require 10,000 covered rail hopper cars over a six-month period, he said.

"Nevertheless, with industry sources reporting that as many as 20,000 jumbo covered hopper cars were idle during most of 1982, the additional PIK-related demand will not likely stress the national transportation system," Hutchinson said.

Further, he said, rail rates for transporting commodities averaged 1 percent above 1982 levels during the first quarter of 1983, including a gain of less than 0.3 percent for grain rates.

"In coming months, rail transportation charges are likely to remain nearly level," Hutchinson said.

Insects, disease, weeds cut crops 30 percent

By DON KENDALL AP
WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department scientist says the world could be much closer to meeting its food needs a generation from now if farmers could harvest their full potential of crops.

But, as it is, large portions of each year's harvests are lost to pests and "environmental stress" — in some respects, those are losses that are not even realized at the time, says Terry B. Kinney Jr., administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Insects, disease and weeds destroy 30 percent of potential production before harvest, Kinney said. Another 4 to 9 percent is lost after harvest.

losses because we never have achieved the potential in the first place," he said. "We will use chemicals to help plants adapt to environmental stresses — to avoid temperature anomalies and develop drought resistance." Kinney's remarks were prepared for a meeting Wednesday night at the agency's Beltsville, Md., research center. The theme of the program, which continues today, is "Agricultural Chemicals of the Future."

The use of chemicals to change a plant's processes could permit crops to withstand greater extremes of temperature and moisture. Genetic engineering of plants also could help, he said.

"Bacteria, viruses, insects and other organisms mutate, adapt and evolve," Kinney said. "So I don't think we will ever have the luxury of saying we have found the ultimate way to control a particular pest."

"Remember that many of these pests have started out long before man. The cockroach is probably the ultimate survivor on this planet."

In any event, Kinney said, if world population continues to increase at its 1.8 percent annual rate, food production will have to double in the next 40 years to keep pace.

Kinney offered three possibilities of what might happen between now and the year 2020:

—If increased productivity does not meet the challenges of the year 2020, there would have to be greater uses of chemicals "to maximize the efficiency of agricultural production. Productivity and the uses of chemicals cannot be separated."

—A more optimistic view assumes that scientists are successful in boosting productivity by at least 50 percent by the turn of the century. "Perhaps we will tailor the chemicals and apply them in ways not even imagined at this time ... "with ever-increasing specificity and increasing precision."

—Another possibility involves the use of a new generation of chemicals "which will control pests and diseases based upon our knowledge of how each pest operates" instead of relying on the shotgun approaches of the past.

"That control will be economical, and it will be tailored to do the job in a specific manner," Kinney said. "It will be less harmful to the land base — so it will protect our valuable national resource endowment."

THE HEREFORD BRAND FARM NEWS

Ag secretary brags on his employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says that Agriculture Department employees are "great people to work with."

"You can be proud that you are the factor which helps transform USDA from just another Cabinet department to a very special institution," Block said Wednesday at an awards ceremony for employees.

"You helped implement the 1981 farm bill. You started the PIK program. You got the cheese distribution organized. Your helping agriculture every day throughout the year," he said.

Block said that public service can be difficult at times.

"Sometimes you may feel you are taken for granted or singled out for criticism," he said. "Sometimes it is hard to see the results of your immediate tasks in relation to the big picture."

The department's highest award — the Distinguished Service Award — went to a dozen individuals and one agency unit:

T. Don Canerday, Cooperative Extension Service, Athens, Ga.; John B. Campbell, Cooperative Extension Service, North Platte, Neb.; Albert M. Carey, Food Safety and Inspection Service, Beltsville, Md.; John E. Carson, Office of Finance and Management, Washington, D.C.; Claude W. Gifford, Office of Governmental and Public Affairs, Washington D.C.; Milo Jean Hassell, Forest Service, Albuquerque, N.M.; Marvin Jensen, Agricultural Research Service, Fort Collins, Colo.; Wallace I. Leary, Food Safety and Inspection Service, Washington, D.C.; Darshan S. Rank, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Washington, D.C.; Richard A. Smith, Foreign Agricultural Service, Washington, D.C.; and the California Mediterranean Fruit Fly Eradication Team, Seattle, Wash.

Repeated use of pesticides causes waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — The repeated use of some pesticides is creating conditions that cause the chemicals to break down rapidly, leaving crops unprotected, an Agriculture Department scientist said today.

Donald D. Kaufman, a microbiologist in USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said that the loss of pesticide effectiveness is occurring in an increasing number of farm soils. Kaufman's observations were prepared for a meeting at the agency's Beltsville, Md., research center on "Agricultural Chemicals of the Future."

Kaufman said the pesticide problem came to light about eight years ago in the Midwest after corn farmers began reporting that certain insecticides and herbicides with similar chemical structures were not doing the job they were supposed to do.

First Guyed Tower

Construction of the world's first commercial guyed tower offshore platform is nearing completion at Port Aransas. Exxon USA will install the platform in 1,000 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico this summer. In addition to steel piles which will attach the tower to the ocean floor, 20 guylines arranged symmetrically around the tower and anchored into the seabed will allow the tower to move slightly with wind, waves, and currents.

Three local scouts participated in Field Day

Three local Boy Scouts of America troops participated in the annual Llano, Estacado Council's Scout Field Day last weekend.

Troops 50, 51 and 52 comprised the local entrants in the competition, which included 16 troops from area towns. The competition was held at Camp Don Harrington.

Competition over the 2½ days was composed of 13 scout skill events. The winner of the field day was determined by the troop scoring the highest composite score for all events. There were two events, in addition to the 13, which were not included in the composite score. The additional events were best campsite and a mystery event by super patrols.

Troop 50, of which Gary Billingsley is the scout master, took top honors in the mystery event, and overall, placed eighth.

Troop 51, Al Simnacher scout master, won the patrol award for having the highest score in the compass event. The troop had a total of six boys in the overall competition. Each boy had to participate in virtually every event, whereas the larger troops were able to divide into patrols which allowed each person to compete in fewer events.

Neal Lemons' Troop 52 took the second-place trophy in the overall competition. They posted the high score in the troop inspection event, as well as the fire-by-friction event.

Lemons was awarded the Rocking Chair Plaque, an honor given a scout master during the field day competition. The honor is given to the scout master, who in the opinion of the judges, is best able to rely on his leadership and the spirit of his troop to successfully complete the field day activities.

How's Your Hearing?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. All hearing problems are not alike and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid but many can. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 50961, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

Beverly Hills real estate market heating up

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Now that the economy is on the upswing, perhaps you'd be interested in moving up, house-wise. If so, there are several celebrity homes to choose from in Beverly Hills — starting at a tad over $1 million.

Raquel Welch's house, for example, is being offered at $1.15 million. It's a stone English-style home not far from the Beverly Hills Hotel and has four bedrooms, maid's quarters, a guest house and pool.

Robert Wagner's place, described in the listing as having "closets for a star," is for sale at $2.9 million. It has six bedrooms, maid's quarters, guest house, gourmet kitchen, three different reception rooms and a huge family room. Wagner bought it eight years ago from singer Patti Page.

Some of these digs can be leased if you don't want to take the big plunge. Yvette Mimieux is asking $3.2 million for her home but would consider a monthly lease of $13,000. Either way, you get three bedrooms and maid's quarters, a gourmet kitchen, six fireplaces, huge windows and a projection room. The place has a Moroccan motif and is on park-like grounds with lush landscaping and a gated entrance.

"The most unusual house in all of California," belonging to none other than Cher, is available for either sale or lease, real estate broker Elaine Young said Thursday. Said to resemble the Mexican hotel where the movie "10" was filmed, the white stucco mansion has six bedrooms and a maid's room, a formidable security system and a $6.4 million price tag. And, oh yes, the lease is $27,000 a month.

Why are so many celebrity bungalows up for sale?

"It's musical houses," said Miss Young. "This is the land of discontent. Everybody's got so much that they're not satisfied with what they've got. And people go through these phases where they redecorate, or even move, according to who their boyfriend or girlfriend is. Then there are a lot of divorcees too, and that helps turnover."

One of the more expensive "For Sale" signs belongs to television talk show host Mike Douglas, who owns the 2.3-acre estate of former Columbia Pictures mogul Harry Cohn. Included within the 10,000-square-foot European-style villa are four bedrooms, maid's quarters, gourmet kitchen and what is reputed to be one of the best projection rooms in town. The price is $11.5 million and includes the two guest houses on the grounds.

Miss Young, partner in the firm of Alvarez, Hyland and Young, says the Beverly Hills real estate market started to pick up last December.

"There are always a lot of things for sale, but houses are moving much faster. The big estates are selling in a matter of months now," she said, citing television producer Aaron Spelling's recent purchase of a Holmby Hills spread for about $10 million. His other place is on the block for $7 million.

WTSU to host review for nurses

WTSU — Nursing graduates may prepare for the new comprehensive state licensing examinations during a five-day review session at West Texas State University June 6-10.

WTSU will host the review for graduates of the WTSU School of Nursing and graduates of other nursing schools beginning at 7:30 a.m. on Monday, June 6, in Room 101 of the Classroom Center.

Registration will be from 7:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. each day with the review sessions beginning at 8 a.m. The sessions will continue Monday through Thursday until 3:30 p.m. with a one-hour lunch break. On Friday there will be no lunch break and the session will conclude by 1 p.m.

Dr. Larry Eustace of the Texas Continuing Education Services for Nurses, Inc., at Dallas, will instruct the review sessions. Eustace, a registered nurse, has conducted review sessions for seven years. He has taught various areas of nursing practice for 10 years. WTSU School of Nursing graduates will be charged $100 for the review session, said Truitt. Graduates of other nursing programs will pay $125 which may be paid on the first day of the session. Payment must be made to the Texas Continuing Education Services for Nursing, Inc., by cashier's check or money order. Truitt said Eustace will not accept a personal check.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the WTSU School of Nursing.

EYE CARE UPDATE

Dr. James Simnacher, O.D.
THE SINGLE-VISION OPTOMETRIST LENS

QUESTION: I've just gotten my first pair of glasses and the doctor told me they were made with single-vision lenses. What does this mean?

ANSWER: The "single" stands for just one set of optical correction in the lens. The single-vision lens can be used for reading or for seeing at a distance. And it can do both: help you see close up and far away. It all depends on the problem that's being corrected. People who have an astigmatism, for example, need help in both directions. Their eyes have two points of focus instead of one. This gives them blurred vision no matter how close or far away an object may be. Corrective glasses or contact lenses clear things up so they can see as well as people with normal vision.

The Consumer Alert

by Jim Mattox
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Everyone finances a car purchase at one time or another, and with the credit purchase goes the risk of "repossession." Many consumers want to know whether the lender has the right to repossess the car and whether it is legal to do so. Whether or not it is legal depends on the terms of the sales contract. All sales contracts will contain certain provisions such as:

1. The right of the lender or seller to repossess the automobile if the "security interest" is jeopardized.
  2. The requirement that the purchaser carry insurance on the automobile, and
  3. The right of repossession if the purchaser fails to pay.
- Whenever the lender or seller feels his security interest is in danger or the buyer fails to buy the insurance agreed to in the sales contract, or fails to make payments, the lender may repossess the automobile as long as no "breach of the peace" is committed. Usually the lender will notify the consumer of the repossession and at the lender's option the consumer may have the alternative of bringing the payments up to date instead of having the automobile repossessed.
- If your automobile is repossessed, the lender must notify you when the automobile will be sold at auction and must account to you for any excess money if it is sold for more than is owed under the contract.

Consumers should be careful, though. If after repossession you sign a statement giving up your right to be notified, you may have no way of knowing if any money is due you.

The proceeds of the repossession sale are applied, first, to cover expenses incurred in repossessing the automobile, preparing it for resale, and then to pay off the purchaser's debt to the lender. If there is a surplus, it must be given to the purchaser.

The law works both ways, and sometimes the consumer may owe the seller some money after the accounting. Usually, though, the consumer is entitled to a refund from the seller or lender. Far too few consumers realize this and fail to claim their rightful refunds.

If you encounter any problem contact your local Better Business Bureau or the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, nearest you. Texas' Attorney General has offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio.

Government pledges aid to drought victims

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government said Thursday it will provide emergency aid for ranchers in northern Mexico, where more than 100,000 cattle have died in the worst drought to hit the region in more than 20 years.

"It has not rained for more than a year," Enrique Garcia Saldivar, a rancher in northern Chihuahua state, told the newspaper Novedades during a cattlemen's meeting in the Sonora state capital of Hermosillo, 1,200 miles northwest of Mexico City.

Exceptionally harsh seasonal drought conditions throughout this nation of more than 70 million have brought water shortages, reports of dehydration among children in impoverished areas and warnings that summer rains will not solve the problem.

"The federal government will provide all the necessary help to overcome the difficulties faced by the cattle industry," the official El Nacional newspaper said Thursday, reporting on talks between ranchers and Horacio Garcia Aguilar, the secretary of agriculture and water resources.

Garcia Aguilar did not say what type or how much aid would be provided by the government, which is holding down federal spending during a severe monetary crisis.

Ranchers have complained that government regulations, chronic problems obtaining feed grains and seeds and low prices for meat products have seriously hurt their industry for years. The major Mexican ranching states are Sonora and Chihuahua, which border Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

One complaint of the ranchers involves low government export quotas for Mexican cattle to the United States. The cattlemen want an export quota of more than 700,000 head of cattle. The current quota is about 500,000 head of cattle, ranchers say.

The drought conditions have further raised feed costs in the northern region, officials said. Garcia Aguilar estimated that 30 percent of early crop plantings throughout the country have been lost because of dry weather.

In Mexico City, there were continued reports of water running out in houses and buildings during the day because of insufficient pressure to reach rooftop tanks. With unusually high temperatures, dozens of children in poor neighborhoods were suffering from dehydration, according to newspaper reports. The reports said some infants had died as a result of the conditions, but there was no confirmation of drought-related deaths from government health officials.

The reports said similar problems had developed in the major cities of Guadalajara, 332 miles northwest of the capital, and Monterrey, 597 miles to the north.

The government mounted a water conservation campaign on television, radio and in newspapers with the jingle, "Be careful with water, because it runs out."

Kid who never grew up

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — "I'm a kid who never grew up."

Enter James Phillips, about 49 years old. A horseman who loves to "work his cattle," Phillips has the look of a classic western cowboy.

Tall and slim, his face is tanned and wrinkled, worn by years in the sun and wind. He is a chain smoker, but never loses a word of his conversation even when he stops to light up. His eyes reveal an apparent contentment with himself and with his life, and he talks with an eagerness to be friendly and cordial, Texas-style.

Technically, he's maintenance supervisor for Pleasure Island, which means he and his staff keep the place clean, do repairs, cut grass.

But on a level where his soul jostles for its rightful place, he's a horseman. No more and no less.

He leased land on the island 10 years ago and built the Pleasure Island Stables. At that time he had only 12 stalls; today he has about 20 and boards horses for private owners.

There is no riding trail on the island, and no arrangements for the public to rent horses. Feed and upkeep costs are too high for that, he says. Phillips simply keeps the horses of city folk while they do their other jobs.

He was born and raised in Cleveland, Texas, and grew up between the city and the country.

"My daddy died when I was four-years-old of all things, can you believe it, pneumonia. Nowadays, that's the best way to get cured ... get a cold, get pneumonia, then they cure you." He chuckled. "That's a horrible thing to make a joke about."

"But anyway, we didn't have no horses but my relatives did and I grew up between the city and the country."

Asked if he could remember how young he was when he first mounted a horse, he chuckled again. "Oh, I don't have any idea (pronouncing it EYE-dee)."

Focus is on Phillips as he begins to talk to his horses. The animals listen to him, perk their ears and shake their heads. Even a dog, asleep nearby, gets up and begins to wag his tail as Phillips comes near.

"I like animals, all animals," he said, grinning. "Thing about city people is, I'm always amazed. They come out here and my dogs start comin' toward them and they start backing up.

"Well, people like myself, that was raised with dogs ... I have no fear whatsoever of a dog. I could walk up in yer yard and a big ol' dog could start barkin', and I'd just say, 'Git out of the way and shut yer mouth or I'll kick yer head' and I guarantee you he'd go lay down somewhere."

"Animals, strictly go by the sound of your voice. If there's one thing an animal can understand, it's fear. If you show fear, an animal'll think, 'Oh yeah, they be bad. Let me jest go on and mess with them,' but if you act like you ain't bothered, they'll back up. They'll think yer crazy and won't wanna bother you," he said.

"You know, I never could understand how a preacher could be in the horse business. Know why? Cuz how can you train a horse without cussin'? Ever' horse I train will definitely relate to cussin'," he said.

Phillips shifts from the subject of horses to heroes. His idol is Roy Rogers.

"Yeah, I kinda like Roy. Course, I go back further than television. I go back to Roy Rogers in the movies."

"As coincidence would have it, his birthday is the fourth of November and mine is the fifth of November, so I keep up with my age by keeping up with his," he said.

He goes on to tell how he once met Rogers at the Rogers museum in Victorville, Calif., "as luck would have it, I'm partial to Palominos cuz that's what Roy rode. I'm just like a kid."

There's a reason he's adopted Rogers as his own, aside from the rough and tough cowboy image, Palomino horses named Trigger, and all.

"Course, I'm always quoting from Roy Rogers, but he said once kids today don't have any heroes. I had heroes — Roy Rogers, Gene Autry."

"Things back then were cut and dry, there was a clean line between right and wrong. It was easy for a kid to identify with it. Back in my day, the good guy wore a white hat, rode a flashy-colored horse. The good guy always won.

"Nowadays, the bad guy might come out on top. Kids have bad guys as heroes. Who do they relate to?"

He stopped. "Course," he said, picking up where he left off, "I'm old-fashioned as hell. Excuse me. That's just the country showing up in me."

Phillips says he's nothing but a cowboy, but says there's few of them. He's done a few rodeos, he says, but that's not what a cowboy is, he explains.

"There's several different kinds of cowboys," he said. "There's drugstore cowboys, dancin' cowboys, rodeo and workin' cowboys. I've always been the workin' cowboy type."

"The true meaning of a cowboy," he said, "is a man who works a cow." That means he and his "cuttin'" horse can get a cow to do anything they want. "A good cuttin' horse, trained, will on his own, without no instructions, hold a cow in a certain place. That horse can stand in front of a cow and just do a war dance." That's a cowboy, he says.

Doctor says patients may die if drug banned

HOUSTON (AP) — A doctor who uses a controversial drug derived from human urine to treat cancer says his patients will die if the treatment is banned.
 The federal government is trying to stop Dr. Stanislaw Burzynski from producing, manufacturing or shipping the drug from his laboratories in Houston and Stafford and from treating people with a drug that U.S. Food and Drug Administration has not approved.
 The FDA filed a lawsuit April 5 accusing Burzynski of failing to follow agency rules concerning new drugs.
 Several of the doctor's patients, some in wheelchairs and other on crutches, packed a federal courtroom Thursday for a hearing on a permanent injunction prohibiting Burzynski from treating patients with the drug, antineoplastin.
 One month ago, U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald told Burzynski he could continue to treat 130 patients with the drug. However, the judge said, the drug could not be administered to new patients.

ment with the drug. Some of the patients were expected to testify today.
 During testimony Thursday, Burzynski said that if his patients stop the antineoplastin treatment, "These patients will certainly get worse. They will deteriorate."
 One patient, a 20-year-old woman living in Canada, has a tumor in the face that does not respond to chemotherapy and radiation, Burzynski said.
 He said the woman, whom he has been treating for a year, has responded favorably to treatment and has shown a lessening of the tumor. He predicted the woman "will lose her right eye and will die a few weeks later" if taken off the drug.
 Burzynski, 40, said he received medical training in Poland and joined the Baylor College of Medicine as a research associate in 1970. He began practicing internal medicine in 1973.

 Burzynski said he began research on antineoplastin in 1967 and received several federally-funded grants for his work in the 1970s. He opened his clinic in 1977 and was visited by FDA personnel in 1978.
 He said he complied with their recommendations and was inspected again in 1982, this time by a team that stayed on the premises for 17 days and made a return visit last fall.
 Burzynski said the FDA gave him a list of omissions "which I immediately took steps to rectify."
 The researcher conceded that he did not file an application for an "investigational exemption" for a new drug until two weeks ago but did not explain why.
 The FDA is expected to rule on Burzynski's application by June 6.

Attorney John Johnson said 16 of those patients have intervened in the lawsuit and are interested in continuing the seven-times-a-day treatment.

Coolidge

In September 1919, Massachusetts Gov. Calvin Coolidge attained national prominence by calling out the state guard in the Boston police strike. This brought his name before the Republican convention of 1920, where he was nominated for vice president.

SAVE 20% ON A GAS GRILL

...JUST WHEN YOU WILL USE IT MOST!

Here's an opportunity to buy a gas grill at a big savings... and have the whole summer ahead to enjoy it. That's a real bargain! You will make the most of our great West Texas evenings and weekends cooking outdoors. Gas grills give food that wonderful outdoor flavor without the mess of charcoal or the bother of LP tanks. And, while you are having a hot time in the backyard, your kitchen stays cool. The money you save by buying now will put a lot of hamburgers and steaks on that grill. Now's the time to move up to gas grill cooking while prices are down.

Prices in this ad reflect corrections from those listed in Energas statement enclosure on gas grills.

10 years for 'Happy Days'

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Who would ever think that a second-season replacement designed to cash in on contemporary teen-agers' nostalgia for the 1950s would end up being one of TV's longest-running successes?

Certainly few did when "Happy Days" made its debut in the winter of 1974. Critics saw it as an unabashed rip-off of the hit film "American Graffiti," with a good dose of "Ozzie and Harriet" mixed in. But the show — which recently marked its 10th anniversary on the air (quite a feat in an era where many shows don't last 10 weeks) — has gone on to become a classic of American popular culture.

So much so that the leather jacket worn by the show's centerpiece, Arthur Fonzarelli aka The Fonz, is now enshrined in the Smithsonian Institution.

Along the way, "Happy Days" helped pull up ABC's ratings from third to first place and spun off three series — "Laverne and Shirley" (who began as a double-date for Richie and Fonzie in 1975); "Mork and Mindy" (in February 1978, Mork, the alien landed on Earth and tried to kidnap Richie); and "Joanie and Chachi" (based on the romance between Fonzie's cousin, Chachi, and his girlfriend).

What accounts for its success? Well, for one, its creators have been shrewd, allowing its characters and situations to grow and age well. The principal characters grew up, graduated high school, took jobs or went into the Army (that's how Ron Howard was written out in 1980 when he left the series). Just like in real life, sort of.

Fonzie began life as a juvenile delinquent and went on to become nearly respectable — as part-owner of Arnold's mail shop and a shop teacher at Jefferson High. The show's writers have also constantly shifted the character emphasis from Richie to Fonzie to Chachi and now back to Fonzie and his single-mother girlfriend, Ashley, and her daughter, Heather — looking, apparently successfully, to capture the youngest audience.

The show has also progressed logically in time. Originally set in the fabulous, fantasized '50s, it has now settled in for an extended run in an equally imaginary early '60s. What's next? Well, maybe Fonz and Ashley will suddenly decide Milwaukee is squaresville and split for Haight-Ashbury; maybe Arnold's will change into a psychedelic head shop; maybe Richie will come back from the service a decorated war hero. Stay tuned.

Rich, happy and popular with a cause

NEW YORK (AP) — He's self-confident and country unburied, instead of suave and city busy. But above all, Kenny Rogers is a huge success.

He's popular and rich and happily married, carrying a bit too much weight on his 6-foot-1 frame, his hair gray and white at 44. And, he's a man with a cause: world hunger.

"Few people in their lifetime are in a position to do a lot of good with little time invested," he says. "I'm one at this point. I feel like it's almost blasphemous not to do it on a cause that is this important."

He and his fourth wife, Marianne, have pledged $100,000 each year for 10 years and started a cash award last year for those in communications who have best presented the world hunger problem.

"I think the consensus is that you have to stir public opinion in order to ultimately get the bureaucrats to move," Rogers says.

Rogers was born in 1938 in Houston, one of eight children. He joined the New Christy Minstrels near the end of the folk music boom. After a year, he and three colleagues formed Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, which had two country-flavored rock hits, "Just Dropped In (To See What Condition My Condition Was In)" and "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love to Town."

His solo career began in 1975 and was not an immediate success. "My hair got gray, overnight ... that year." He also was in the throes of divorce.

He borrowed money from Marianne for rent and child support. His daughter, Carole Lynn, now 24, works for a concert booking company in Houston and his son, Kenny Jr., now 18, has his own band.

The publisher of "Lucille" sent the song to Rogers. His manager for 17 years, Ken Kragen, admits he laughed when he first heard "You picked a fine time to leave me, Lucille."

But Rogers took it seriously, and thought it a potential country hit. It turned out to be a giant hit.

Rogers isn't sure that popular opinion will keep him at the top for ever. That's one reason why he turned to acting. He's done two TV movies, and the feature film, "Six Pack."

Rogers gave 23 concerts in February and March, one taped for Home Box Office. "I work 12 days every month," he says.

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac Book of Who

May 29 — John F. Kennedy (1917-1963), the 35th president of the United States, 1961-63. After being elected to the U.S. Senate in 1952, he defeated Richard Nixon in the 1960 presidential election. He was assassinated in Dallas, Texas, on Nov. 22, 1963.

May 30 — Benny Goodman (1895-1985), the clarinetist and bandleader who is known as the "king of swing." He gave the first jazz concert ever held in Carnegie Hall in 1938.

May 31 — Brooke Shields (1965-), the model and movie star whose most popular films include "Pretty Baby," "The Blue Lagoon," and "Endless Love."

June 1 — Marilyn Monroe (1926-1962), the film actress whose fame surpassed that of any other entertainer of her time. Her films include "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "The Seven-Year Itch," and "Some Like It Hot."

June 2 — Thomas Hardy (1840-1928), the English novelist and poet whose books include "Far From the Madding Crowd," "The Return of the Native," "Jude the Obscure," and "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

June 3 — Jefferson Davis (1808-1889), the soldier and politician who was president of the Confederate States of America during the Civil War, 1861-1865.

June 4 — Bob Fitzsimmons (1862-1917), the British boxer who during his career was the world champion in three divisions — middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight. He weighed only 170 pounds as heavyweight champion.

Music saved David Allan Coe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-songwriter David Allan Coe says music saved his sanity during the 20 years he spent behind bars.

Coe, who wrote the 1977 million-selling hit, "Take This Job and Shove It," recorded by Johnny Paycheck, was released from prison in 1968 after spending 20 of his 29 years behind bars and in reform schools.

"I'd have never made it through prison without my music," says Coe, whose recording of "The Ride" has been zipping toward the top 10 of the May country music charts.

"No one could take it away from me," he said. "They could put me 'in the hole' with nothing to do, but I could still make up a song in my head."

When he was released from Marion Correctional Institution in Ohio 15 years ago, he left with nearly 6,000 songs and poems he had written since age 9 while incarcerated in various Ohio reform schools and prisons.

He drifted to Nashville, where he became president of the local chapter of the "Outlaws" motorcycle club, and continued to write songs. "Would You Lay With Me (in a Field of Stone)," was a hit in 1974 for Tanya Tucker.

Coe became friends with country music stars Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings, and landed a recording deal with CBS.

His life behind bars began, he says, when his parents couldn't handle him and he was placed in a school for boys. He escaped with two older youths and the three of them stole a car. Before his days of crime were over, he had been convicted of possessing burglary tools and possessing obscene literature.

While in prison, he was able to vent some of his emotions by writing. "In prison, you have to be a tough guy 24 hours a day," he said. "You eat tough. You sleep tough. You walk tough."

"Writing was the way I could release the gentle part of myself."

Born a Mormon, he says he doesn't drink or smoke and recently bought a park west of Nashville where "Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and church groups come to have picnics."

The best part of being out of prison, says the multi-tattooed Coe, is "the freedom to be able to get in a car and drive from Ohio to Texas or California or to fly to New York City."

Music gave him the freedom to be somebody, he says. "I'm proud I'm an ex-convict. It means freedom to me. I've become an example to men in prison of what they can achieve when they get out."

Nursing home reopening

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ida Rust, complaining of swollen feet brought about by her daughter's "good cooking," returned to the Greencrest Manor Nursing Home and vowed never to leave.

Mrs. Rust was one of five patients who returned to Greencrest Manor as the facility reopened its doors Thursday. The nursing home was temporarily closed by the state after allegations of negligent health care.

"I'm proud to be back," she said, leaning against her cane. "I didn't want to leave here in the first place."

The Texas Department of Health, which ordered the 10-day closing, agreed to the reopening after the nursing home's owner, the Hillhaven Corp. of Tacoma, Wash., submitted a plan of action proposing changes in health care procedures.

"We have made changes to address all of the things the health department felt needed to be changed," said Steve Tricklin, a district director for Hillhaven.

The home was closed May 6 by a health department order delivered by Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Mattox said the closing resulted from a nine-day investigation into alleged improper patient care, including sloppy record keeping, inadequate medical care, poor grooming of patients and improper handling of medication.

Greencrest Manor administrator Martha Ford said she expects 10 more former patients to check in today. The home has commitments from 30 former patients and will also be taking new applicants to the 75 bed facility, she said.

CARD OF THANKS May God's Blessings be on each one. We want to express our thanks and appreciation to all who so graciously showed their love and concern during the illness and death of our Dad. These prayers & kindnesses have meant so much to us.

The Family of Howard Parker Edna Parker JoAnn Funk Shirley Sanders J.W. Tuttle

IN APPRECIATION Words cannot express our sincere appreciation to the students and teachers for the lovely going-away party honoring Richard Wayne Nolen when he received his diploma from Hereford High School Special Education. We are so grateful to each and everyone who shared this honor with us.

The Family of Dorothy Jean Noland

CARD OF THANKS Simple words aren't adequate to express thanks to all who called, visited and brought food, sent cards, many beautiful flowers, prayers, words of encouragement.

The kindness and care of Dr. Baddour and entire hospital staff and visits from neighbor children who came to my window to tell me to get well soon. They, like the Lord looked beyond my faults and served my needs. Thank you. God bless each of you individually and collectively.

Glen Nelson

Out Story: Prince Yulant prepares to return with his fiancée, but Galan has a change of heart. "It's my own fault," he explains. "The next morning Galan leads me to an ancient warehouse by the waterfront."

YULAN CHEN'S VOICE CRIES OUT ONE BY ONE BUT NOT STANDING STILL. DEVOURING ALL WHILE EATING HIS/NEVER LENT/NEVER EARNED BUT ALWAYS THINKS SPENTY. THE NEXT BUSINESS FINALLY THE NINGES CREAK OPEN.

"AN APPREHENSIVE," YUAN CHEN EXULTS. "I ADVANCED A NOTCH, SURELY, THE WALLS EACH A CLAMOR OF GONGS. FROM INSIDE THE MACHINE TEN BRASS MEN STEP FORWARD AND BOW. THEN THE WATER CLOCK FALLS SILENT. 'I BUILT IT FOR KING ZOO'S FATHER, A MAN OF GREAT WISDOM,'" YUAN CHEN SAYS. "I CAN MARK THE HOURS AND PER THE STARS IN THE SKY WITH THIS, EVEN EUROPEANS COULD ONE DAY BE CHALLENGED." BUT ZOO, WHOSE HISTORY WOULD DUB THE DAWN OF THE CLOCK TO ROT.

YUAN CHEN HAS COME TO TAKE IT AWAY. "MY NEW PERSON, GAVINER HOWARD," AT THE MENTION OF THAT NAME YAL SEES GALAN'S HAND STEAL TO A GLIDED LOCKET ON HIS BREAST. HE SUPPRESSES A SMILE. "WHAT MAGIC DID THOSE DARK, ALMOND EYES OF HERB WORK ON HIS LITTLE BOY? BUT THE CHRONICLES REPORT THAT THE WATER CLOCK STRIKES AGAIN, YOURS BEFORE GALAN YUAN CHEN, FOR PRINCE YULANT TAKES HIS SON HOME."

OPERATION SOFT ANSWER

STEVE IS FURIOUS IF THE FBI HAS LEARNED THAT AN IMPORTANT SEGMENT OF THE OPERATION SOFT ANSWER PLANS HAS BEEN LEAKED...

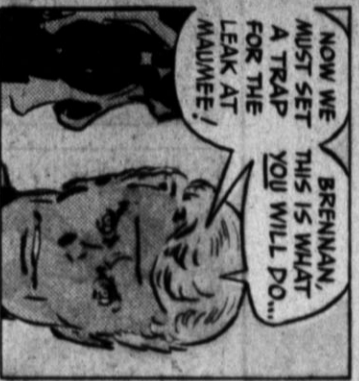

BRENNAN, THE CRAFT PICKED UP DATA ON OPERATION SOFT ANSWER AT HIGH CITY AIRPORT!

EVERY PILOT AROUND HERE HAS BEEN A TOUCH-AND-ALIBI AT THE AIRPORT MOTEL!

USING A RE-PATCH LOG IS KEPT LANDING AND LANDINGS!

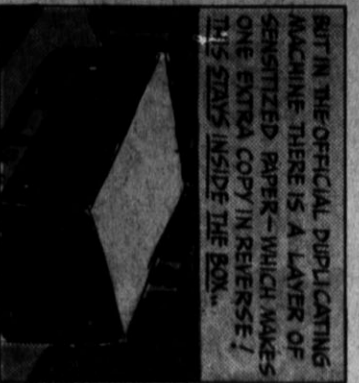

NOW WE MUST SET THIS IS WHAT YOU WILL DO...

THE MAUMEE CAMPUS POLICE HAVE TIGHTENED SECURITY AROUND OPERATION SOFT ANSWER!

EVERY ITEM OF DATA IS CATALOGED AND A SINGLE COPY IS PLACED IN THE SAFE - IN THE PRESENCE OF WITNESSES!

BUT IN THE OFFICIAL DUPLICATING MACHINE THERE IS A LAYER OF SENSITIZED PAPER - WHICH MAKES ONE EXTRA COPY IN REVERSE! THIS STAYS INSIDE THE BOX!

UNTIL IT IS LATER REMOVED AND ROLLED INTO A LONG, THIN TUBE...

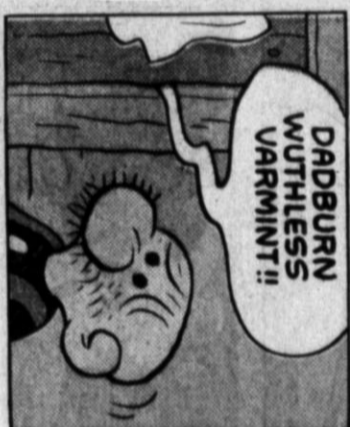

WHICH FITS EXACTLY INTO THE HANDLE OF AN "ORDINARY" UMBRELLA!

BARNEY GOOGLE AND SNUFFY SMITH

ARE YOU IN THERE, DAD?

DAD WHO?

WHAT'S THIS YOU'RE TELLIN' EVERYBODY, SNUFFY...-THAT OL' BULLET CAN COUNT?

LET'S HEAR HIM ARF...UH... COUNT TO THREE

HA!! I KNOWED YOU WAS TELLIN' A WHOOPER!!

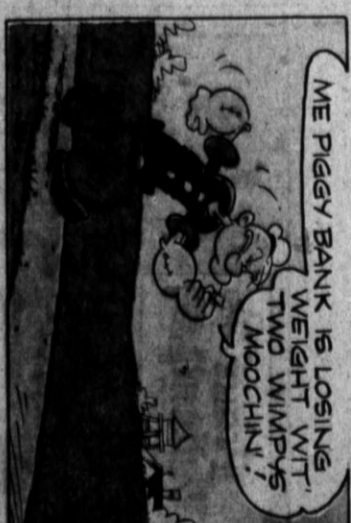

GIVE TH' VARMINT OL' BULLET THREE ARFS, OL' BULLET

POPEYE

DO YOU HAVE THE PRICE OF A HAMBURGER, SIR?

ME PIGGY BANK IS LOSING WEIGHT WITH TWO WIMPYS MOOCHIN'!

YER OUT OF LUCK... YER BROTHER ALREADY MOOCHED ME FER A HAMBURGER!

SIR, YOU HAVE BEEN MOOCHING IN MY TERRITORY!

YEAH! THEY IS WIMPY AND HAVIN' A CONFLICT OF INTEREST!

THAT IS SETTLED! WHERE IS YER BROTHER GOIN'?

BEING A THINKER OF THOUGHTS HE WAS HIT BY A THOUGHT!

HE THOUGHT NO TOWN WAS BIG ENOUGH FOR TWO WIMPYS!

REDEYE

THIS IS PROBABLY JUST A WASTE OF TIME

ONE PLUS TWO, LOCO?

STOMP, STOMP, STOMP!

FANTASTIC! I DIDN'T THINK YOU COULD DO IT!

WAIT UNTIL I TELL EVERYBODY WHAT YOU CAN DO!

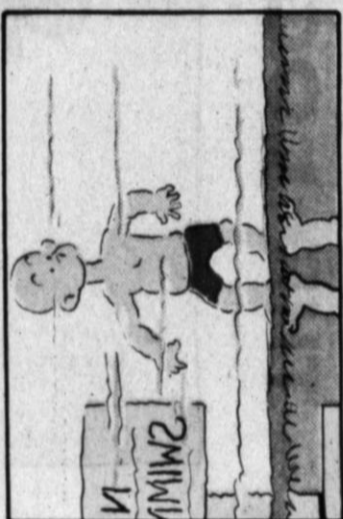

WHAT'S SO FANTASTIC ABOUT STOMPING THREE ANTS?

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

- 1. Gas filler opening is missing.
- 2. Pennant is missing.
- 3. Skirt is shorter.
- 4. Cap is missing.
- 5. Sweatshirt is shorter.
- 6. Foot is missing.

SMALL FAVORITE! Those lacking in height may find small comfort in these "wise" words from a book of old sayings: "IF THES KYWERE TOFALL THEMAN WHOIST ALLNOU LDREHI TFIEST." Rearrange cap-letter spacing for sense. Answer in 30 seconds.

Word Play! Sort the following three-letter words so that when linked with missing central letters they form seven-letter words: FUR SPA RAM FOR HER ARK EAR ROW ARM AGE. Example: FUR-T-HER, FUR-T-HER.

Riddle-Me-This! Who was Toronto's favorite wrestler? The Groan Ranger.

MINDOVER MATTER!

A figure—circle, diamond, square or triangle—containing a number—2, 3 or 4—is to be inserted in each of the vacant squares above in such a way that no two similar figures or numbers will appear in any vertical, horizontal or diagonal row.

When this arrangement is completed correctly, each row of four numbers will total 10. How is it done?

WATER YOU KNOW! An important part of the drawing above is missing. Insert lines to complete the scene.
