Court order stops brucellosis quarantine

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge at least temporarily halted a quarantine he said could cause immediate and irreparable damage to the Texas cattle industry by prohibiting the interstate shipment of breeder cattle.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture had scheduled the quarantine to begin at midnight Tuesday.

However, U.S. District Judge James Nowlin issued a temporary restraining order after a two-hour hearing Tuesday that stopped the quarantine at least until he can have a hearing on either June 13 or June 27.

At the hearing I plan to take extensive testimony," the judge said.

Summer school begins

Parents of students in grades 1-6 whose children have been enrolled in the summer school program locally need to be aware that that program began today according to Mal Manchec of the HISD office. Manchec said that the turnout for the first day of the session was somewhat low.

Some 240 students are expected to attend the session, which offers help in the basic skills area, including reading and math. The session is being held at Shirley School, Manchec said.

We had the same problem last year," Manchec said. "In that the beginning of summer schools slips up on some of the parents."

The order for a temporary restraining order was requested in suits filed against the USDA by Frates Seeligson, president of the Texas and Southwest Cattlemen's Association, and Robert Mason, Harris County cattleman. Attorney General Jim Mattox joined in the request.

"Texas has a brucellosis program now that meets the federal standards," said Austin attorney Charles Herring, arguing for Seeligson. "The program has been in effect four years and nothing has happened recently to call for an emergency quarantine."

Herring said Seeligson had several herds of cattle that needed to be moved to New Mexico where grass was available but would not be able to do so if the quarantine was in effect.

Attorney Jerry Hammett said Mason had a sale of purebred Angus cattle scheduled in Burnet County Wednesday and could lose up to $800,000.

Dave Richards, first assistant attorney general, said brucellosis regulations were being enforced in Texas according to 1982 rules that had been approved by the federal government.

He said Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas have higher rates of the cattle disease but are not quarantined.

Robert Duffey, assistant U.S. District Attorney, San Antonio, argued the quarantine was needed principally because one Texas rancher, R.J. Nunnally, Uvalde, got a permanent injunction in 1979 that keeps the Texas Animal Health Commission from in-

Reagan forsees better relations with Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan forsees better ties with the Soviet Union, but if tensions increase, he says the blame will lie with Kremlin leaders.

And, if better relations between the United States and the Soviets are on the horizon, it may not be readily apparent, Reagan said.

Asked in an interview whether he saw better or worse relations with the Soviets in the future, Reagan said, "I see better."

But he added: "This may not be visible in the rhetoric in the immediate future, because there's an awful lot of rhetoric that's delivered for home consumption."

The president also said he did not expect that U.S.-Soviet negotiations to curb medium-range missile deployment in Europe will "really get down to brass tacks" until the Soviets see that the United States and its Western allies are actually going forward with the planned placement of 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe beginning in December.

U.S. and Soviet arms control experts are meeting in Geneva in an effort to reach a weapons treaty.

"We're going to try to negotiate," the president said.

He said the Soviets "have based their entire propaganda campaign, everything they've been doing, on seeking to prevent the beginning of deployment and we have a schedule of deployment ... and we're going to follow that."

The president made the comments in an interview with the eight reporters — five from the United States, and one each from Italy, France and West Germany — in Williamsburg, Va., before returning to Washington on Tuesday after the economic summit conference of the industrialized democracies.

The president was planning to spend today in Washington before heading to Camp David early Thursday morning for a long weekend.

Reagan said that during the two-day summit conference, at which he was the host to the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany, he thought several times about the absence of the Soviet Union at the meeting of the democracies.

"I couldn't help think several times, why in the world isn't that other so-called superpower — why didn't they have someone sitting at that table able to get along with the rest of us?" the president said.

437 die during holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic-related accidents across the nation during the Memorial Day weekend took 437 lives, the largest toll for the three-day period in four years.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 350 and 450 people would be killed between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday local time. Last year's toll was 341, the lowest for a similar holiday span since 1949.

In 1979, there were 528 traffic fatalities. The highest three-day count for the Memorial Day period was 597 in 1969.

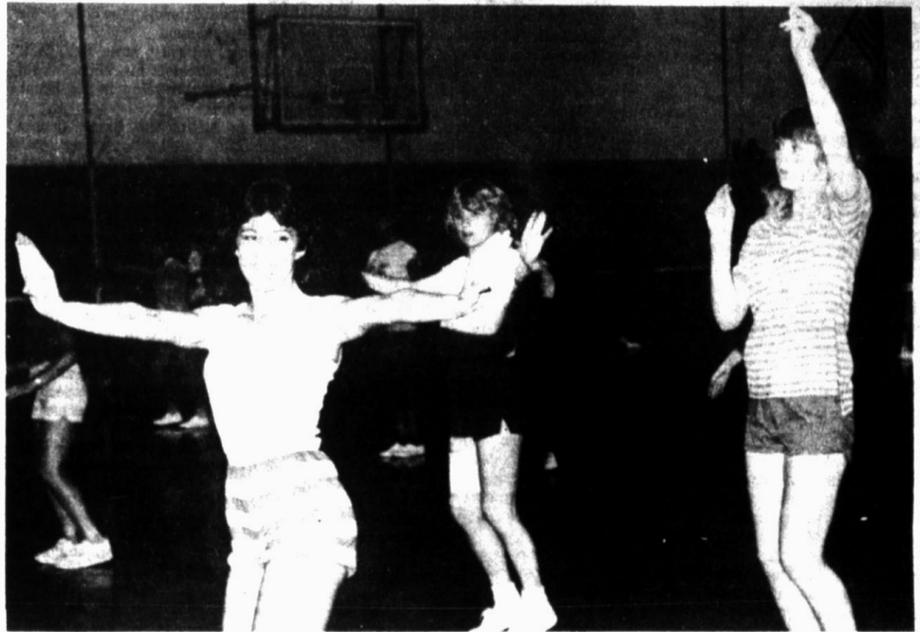

During a non-holiday, three-day period this time of year, 380 traffic deaths could be expected, according to the council.

New wave of concern over interest rates stalls stocks

By ROBERT BURNS AP Business Writer

A new wave of worry about interest rates has hit Wall Street, stalling the stock market's long and powerful rally and boosting the dollar's exchange value.

Many investors are concerned that a recent surge in the nation's money supply — beyond the level targeted by the Federal Reserve Board — will lead to higher interest rates.

That view was supported Tuesday by the comments of a senior Reagan administration official who told

Revell set for spot on tube

Dr. Tim Revell, Hereford physician and chairman of People Opposing Wasted Energy Repositories, is scheduled to be a guest on Good Morning, America Friday.

Revell was contacted last week by ABC writers about an appearance concerning the nuclear repository issue and was confirmed as a guest Tuesday. He said the appearance is scheduled for around 8:15 a.m. or immediately after the news broadcast.

He will share the six to eight minute spot with Jeff Neff, National Waste Terminal Storage program director of the U.S. Department of Energy.

Revell said a script writer will be contacting him on Thursday morning to brief him on the television interview.

Revell and his wife, Cathy, have been frontrunners in the opposition to DOE's nuclear waste repository site selection which includes Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties. Revell, a former nuclear weapons specialist in the service, has been particularly concerned with the health hazards of nuclear waste.

reporters the Federal Reserve might react to the surge in money growth by tightening the supply of funds in the banking network.

"If this money supply continues during June to still be on the high side, obviously some more tightening is going to be needed," said the official, who asked that he not be identified. The expected result would be an increase in interest rates.

On Friday, after the financial markets had closed for the week, the Federal Reserve reported a $2.1 billion rise in the money supply for the latest week. It was the fourth consecutive weekly increase, and the markets took it badly.

On Tuesday, the first day of U.S. trading since the money supply report, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 16.16 points, to 1,199.98. It had lost nearly 13 points in the previous two trading sessions.

Also, bond prices fell and interest rates on government securities rose.

On international currency markets, the value of the American dollar jumped again, setting new records in relation to the French franc and the Italian lira.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—Starting today, the maximum interest rate that savings institutions may pay on six-month savings certificates goes up to 9 percent from 8.97 percent and commercial banks will be allowed to pay 8.92 percent, up from 8.72 percent.

—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Americans deposited $4.4 billion more than they withdrew from the nation's savings and loan associations last month — the best April on record for S&Ls.

—The government said sales of new, single-family houses in April were 4 percent lower than in March but 67.5 percent higher than in April 1982.

Association of America, a trade group, said a record number of homeowners were facing mortgage foreclosures at the end of March, although new foreclosures started in the first quarter of this year were down for the first time in 18 months. At the end of the quarter, about 143,000 of the nation's 27 million home loans were "in the process of foreclosure," the report said.

—The Conference Board said the volume of help-wanted advertising in 51 major newspapers nationwide slipped a point in April after holding steady for four consecutive months.

At 82 on a scale of 100 established in 1967, the index fell one point below the 83 reading that prevailed from December 1982 through March.

—The government said sales of new, single-family houses in April were 4 percent lower than in March but 67.5 percent higher than in April 1982.

SW Bell readying for rate increase request

Southwestern Bell soon will file with the Public Utility Commission a rate request which will significantly increase local rates.

Although the final amount of the request has not been determined, the figure could 1 billion or more, said Paul Roth, vice president-revenues and public affairs. Roth said the filing with the PUC will be made by July 1.

"This filing will not be comparable to any other rate case we have filed," Roth said. "The bulk of the company's request will flow from nationwide changes occurring in the telephone industry." He emphasized that without the impact of those changes, the company's request would be more in the range of past Texas rate filings.

Roth said the company's request will be designed to reflect the massive changes taking place in the telecommunications industry in 1984, and also to meet increasing costs of providing telephone service and give Southwestern Bell a reasonable return on its Texas investment.

Roth said the company's request will be designed to reflect the massive changes taking place in the telecommunications industry in 1984, and also to meet increasing costs of providing telephone service and give Southwestern Bell a reasonable return on its Texas investment.

"Rates must be set to cover, or more nearly cover, the cost of providing each service," he said.

The restructuring means that local rates must increase substantially, Roth said. Details of the proposed rates will be announced at the time the company files its request.

Roth said that the company is presently studying alternative pricing possibilities which would provide customers with options to fit their calling needs as rates increase.

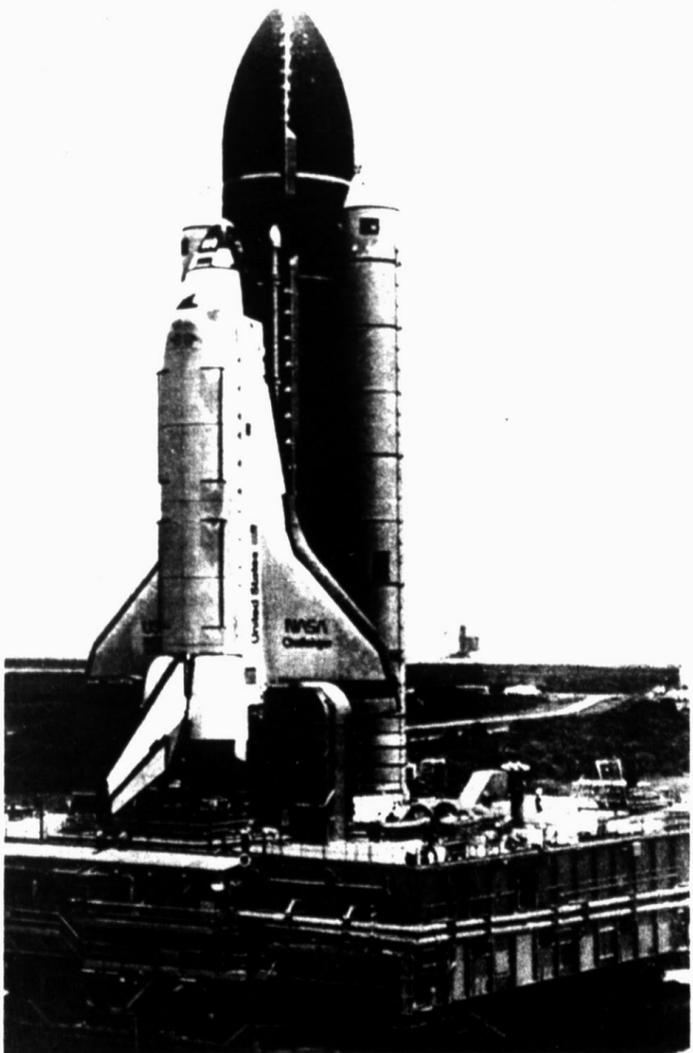

With divestiture from AT&T, Southwestern Bell will lose much of the subsidy from long distance revenues which has helped keep local rates low, Roth said. The shift of telephone service costs from the long distance user to the request will be designed to reflect the massive changes taking place in the telecommunications industry in 1984, and also to meet increasing costs of providing telephone service and give Southwestern Bell a reasonable return on its Texas investment.

"With competition in the long distance market, it's no longer feasible for long distance rates to subsidize local rates," Roth said. "The long term result of competition is that prices will be driven toward costs. That means local rates will have to go up, but it also means that long distance rates should come down."

Roth said the filing will emphasize the need for a comprehensive restructuring of telephone rates in Texas.

DWI convictions cause auto insurance boost

AUSTIN (AP) — Drunken drivers who will face tougher penalties under a bill passed by the Legislature will also have to pay higher insurance premiums if they are caught, the Southwestern Insurance Information Service says.

The insurance industry group said Tuesday a one-time conviction of DWI can trigger an increase of up to 55 percent in car insurance rates.

"Once this DWI bill is signed by the governor, anyone convicted of drunk driving in Texas can face a significant premium surcharge for as long as three years and if convicted during those three years the surcharge for that period may be increased by three consecutive years per conviction," said Jerry Johns, president of the insurance information service.

Under terms of the DWI bill, any person convicted of DWI may be forced by his insurance company to purchase auto insurance from the assigned risk pool for not more than three years. Such insurance carries higher premiums.

"For example, a one-time conviction for DWI can increase insurance rates as much as 55 percent," Johns said in a news release.

Games gobble quarters, taxed $2.5 million

AUSTIN (AP) — There are 185,000 video machines in Texas, and those located in prime locations net up to $75 a week, according to the state comptroller's office.

Revenue from the Coin-Operated Amusement Machine Tax in 1982 totaled more than $2.5 million, an increase of nearly $700,000 or 37.5 percent from the previous year.

"Why the big increase? No question about it — Pac-Man, Donkey Kong, Centipede and Tron and other electronic games are responsible for this new American pastime," said an article by Irene Abeita in the most recent Fiscal Notes publication of the comptroller's office.

Also, an annual occupation tax of $15 is imposed on each video game in Texas, and game owners must apply for a business machine license, which range from $50 to $500 a year.

The figures were reported by Ms. Abeita in the most recent Fiscal Notes publication of the comptroller's office.

"While some industry sources say the video game boom is slowing, many people still find these games an attractive investment," Ms. Abeita's article said. "Licenses are issued to people from all walks of life — from priests to bankers. Licenses issued in 1982 jumped to 4,104, a 99.4 percent increase over 1981. Revenue from license fees in 1982 leaped to $1,149,584, an increase of $645,268 over 1981."

In Texas, the article said, "the saturation point" has been reached and "the machine industry could experience a 40 percent decline in profits in the next two to three years."

Twin towers planned will span expressway

DALLAS (AP) — Southland Corp. will start construction early next year on twin 50-story skyscrapers that will be connected by a glass-vaunted pedestrian bridge over North Central Expressway north of downtown Dallas, officials announced Tuesday.

Plans for the 130-acre "new city" were announced three years after the owners of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain began secretly acquiring land in the area.

The development will contain four 9-story buildings in addition to the two towers and will go up on a 21-acre complex between Haskell and Lemmon avenues on both sides of North Central.

Southland officials also announced plans to redevelop Haskell and Blackburn into a six-lane boulevard running through the company's property between Turtle Creek and Lemmon Avenue.

Southland will reserve acreage for future construction of office, hotel, retail and residential buildings, said John Thompson, Southland chairman.

Legislator jailed because he was late

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Joe Gamez planned to spend the night in jail after appearing 1 1/2 hours late for sentencing on his plea of no contest to a driving while intoxicated charge.

County Court-at-Law Judge Keith Burris reset sentencing for this morning after revoking Gamez' $1,600 bond.

Gamez, a San Antonio Democrat, said he was late for the 3 p.m. Tuesday sentencing because he couldn't get transportation from Austin, where he had been attending the close of the legislative session.

Gamez' attorney, state Rep. Matt Garcia, indicated his client would spend the entire night in the Bexar County Jail.

Larry Smith, the Bexar County assistant district attorney prosecuting the drunken driving case, said Gamez was "very remorseful" when he finally showed up Tuesday.

Smith had recommended the judge sentence Gamez to five days in jail fine him $500.

Chief adult probation officer Caesar Garcia has said he would recommend probation since the legislator was a first offender and has a job.

Gamez was arrested and charged with drunken driving Jan. 28 after an accident at a downtown intersection. He pleaded no contest to the charge in April.

Supreme Court is chicken

The Supreme Court is chicken.

The High Court has juggled, then lateraled, another hot potato.

Confronted with a specific case of reverse discrimination, the High Court sent it back to a lower court with no recommendation.

The issue in Boston was clear. Shucked down to the cob, policemen and firemen with greater seniority were fired because they were white.

They were fired to make room for blacks with less seniority.

District court supported that decision.

United States Court of Appeals upheld that decision.

The Legislature of Massachusetts were properly chagrined. As a way out, the Legislature appropriated more money for Boston so that the fired police and firemen could be rehired.

This gave the United States Supreme Court an excuse to duck a decision. In an unsigned one-paragraph opinion the court decreed that the issue was now "moot because the dismissed white employees had since been rehired."

The issue will not go away. As surely as there is a next layoff in Boston or wherever, another reverse discrimination test case will be on its way up the judicial ladder. A Memphis case may already be on its way.

Eventually the Supreme Court is going to have to determine whether any one man's rights are worth more than another man's rights.

The High Court was under pressure—though it is supposed to be insensitive to pressure—from the NAACP and the Legal Defense and Educational Fund—both of which sought—and successfully—to sidetrack a Supreme Court decision arguing that the case was now "moot."

The state of Massachusetts argues that it is not "moot" inasmuch as the furloughed white officers are still pursuing claims for back pay.

The Reagan administration believes that justice should be colorblind—that the seniority system of "last hired first fired" should prevail over any contrary consideration.

But the Supreme Court, in the name of "affirmative action," has persisted in "legislating" reverse discrimination—until confronted with this case where the reverse injustice was inescapably obvious.

So the court tugged is tail between its legs and ran.

Even through the lopsided Earl Warren years, some of us have criticized the court only with respectful restraint.

But it is obvious that constructionists on the High Court are still outnumbered by philosophical crusaders.

It is not a proper function of the court to condescend.

The doctrine of equitable pluralism which has so strengthened our nation, arbitrarily abridged, could divide us.

Boy Scouts sponsoring garage sale

Boy Scout Troop 51 is sponsoring a garage sale Saturday to raise money for troop activities, including Mountain Camp at Pecos Wilderness this summer.

The sale will be from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. at 142 Greenwood. Whiteface Kiwanis, the troop's sponsor institution, will also be conducting the sale.

Persons having donations for the sale may call George Ochs at 364-6584 or 364-0614; and Hawk Kreig at 364-2297 or 364-1500 to have the items picked up.

Urging Poles to "take up the common effort of shaping the present day and a happy future for the Polish People's Republic," the Politburo acknowledged the party has "not attained the desired results in all fields" since Jaruzelski decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981.

Under military rule the government suspended and later outlawed the independent union Solidarity, but the banned organization and its leader Lech Walesa still enjoy a wide following among workers, farmers, and intellectuals.

The Solidarity underground succeeded in organizing mass anti-government demonstrations in 20 Polish cities on May Day despite government attempts to intimidate the protesters.

Party endorses militant policy to hush dissidents

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee has endorsed a militant new policy of intensified struggle to silence dissidents, while also admitting martial law has failed to achieve all its desired goals.

"Our enemies, though weakened, on the defensive and ever more isolated, are not giving up," said a statement at the end of Tuesday's one-day session, the first meeting of the Central Committee in more than seven months.

"We do not want to multiply enemies," the statement said, "but we shall not be found lacking in determination and perseverance in fighting them."

It said the party "will struggle against that which is pulling us backward, against

Low level waste sites exclude Panhandle area

The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority has tentatively identified at least fifteen major areas of Texas as search areas for the siting of a low-level radioactive waste disposal facility. The areas encompass approximately 35,000 square miles and include portions of 105 counties, predominantly in the north central, western, and southwestern parts of the state.

According to the Authority, the Panhandle area was dropped from consideration due to the Ogallala Aquifer. The closest locations to the Panhandle still considered are in Garza and Hardeman Counties.

The Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority is a state agency created to establish a facility for the burial of low-level radioactive wastes. Low-level radioactive waste includes materials contaminated with radioactivity from hospitals, laboratories, and other industries which handle or process radioactive materials, but does not include spent fuel from nuclear power reactors.

The three-phase siting study is being conducted by Dames & Moore Consultants of Houston under contract to the Authority. In the first phase, Dames & Moore is considering geology, hydrology, mineral resources, population, flooding, and coastal high-hazard zones on a state-wide basis. The study is to be completed by August 31.

The Phase I report will be available for public inspection at the Authority's offices in Austin later this month.

Better

when Kohl visits Moscow in July.

An administration official, speaking on condition that he not be identified, said Tuesday night the subject of a U.S.-Soviet summit was raised in Reagan's meeting with Kohl and acknowledged that "the possibility of a Reagan-Andropov meetings" could come up in Kohl's Moscow discussions.

The U.S. official said there is no plan to have Kohl serve as an intermediary. West German Chancellor Hans-Dietrich Genscher will report to secretary of State George P. Shultz on the Moscow discussions, he said.

Asked for his "gut feeling" about whether tension and hostility between the United States and the Soviet Union would continue to increase,

Reagan said: "If there is an increase in tension, it will be the Soviet Union that causes it."

The president reiterated his criticism of the policy of detente that was developed during a thawing of U.S.-Soviet relations during the Nixon administration. "Detente, as if existed, was only a cover under which the Soviet Union built up the greatest military power in the world," he said.

"I don't think we need that kind of a detente," he said.

One of the other key issues at the summit was the impact of the president's economic policies are having on foreign economies and, in particular, on the currency exchange rates.

The strengthened dollar has weakened the franc, which in turn has hurt efforts to control inflation in France, its government argues.

Bell

local phone bill will not represent any additional revenues for Southwestern Bell, he pointed out.

Another change which will impact the company's filing is an expected increase in depreciation expense for Southwestern Bell. The Federal Communications Commission is considering changes in depreciation schedules which will allow faster recovery of investment costs, Roth said.

He emphasized the need for increased depreciation expense. "Technology and changes in the industry mean that customers want new and improved services. The money gained from more accurate depreciation expense will be plowed right back into meeting the telephone needs of Texas."

Southwestern Bell also will request additional revenues to meet increased costs of doing business and to produce a reasonable return on the company's statewide investment. Roth said that portion of the request will be in the range of previous statewide rate requests.

After divestiture from AT&T, Southwestern Bell will become a stand-alone company with its own share owners. It is one of 22 Bell operating companies which will be spun off from AT&T into seven new regional telephone companies.

"As we leave the AT&T financial umbrella, it will be crucial that Southwestern Bell earn well in order to serve well, and to give our share owners reasonable return on their investment," Roth said. "We're proud of the quality service we provide, and with reasonable regulation we can make that service even better."

Order

specting his herd for brucellosis, on grounds the program was unconstitutional.

"This order prohibits state inspectors from even going on his property," Duffey said, "and Nunnally ships cattle throughout the state although he is free of regulation."

Nowlin asked why the USDA had not decided on the quarantine earlier since it was issued in 1979. The USDA announced its quarantine on May 24.

Duffey said the USDA first considered the quarantine after defeat of a bill in the recent Legislature to place new brucellosis controls on Texas "which could be applied to Mr. Nunnally."

Duffey said if Texas was allowed to continue with the present procedure, other states would place their own quarantines on Texas breeding cattle.

Nowlin's ruling also may affect similar petitions filed in the Rio Grande Valley by the Independent Cattlemen's Association.

Brucellosis causes weight loss and miscarriages in cattle but poses no danger to consumers of meat or pasteurized dairy products.

Under the quarantine, breeding cattle could be shipped out of Texas only from "qualified herds" that have passed two tests for brucellosis. Steers, spayed heifers and other cattle for slaughter would not be affected.

Meanwhile, the Texas Brahma Breeders Association announced a meeting of all cattle breeder associations in Texas in Austin on June 7. About 500 cattlemen are expected to attend and discuss the brucellosis quarantine.

Mulligan's Stew

To Robot Redford

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Homage is due to Anne Arundel Community College in suburban Maryland for the neatest innovation in academic terminal rites since the debut of the mortarboard cap more than a century ago.

This year's graduating class had for its commencement speaker a four-foot-tall, 175-pound fiberglass robot named Robot Redford, who came equipped with an "Off" button and, thanks to modern technology, could be programmed to speak for less than 20 minutes.

Generations of college graduates yet unborn owe an undying debt to the keepers of the cultural flame at this community college near the nation's capital. Not since funeral directors handed out free cardboard fans at graduation exercises across the land, or perhaps not since Harvard set up its first beer tent in the Yard on diploma distribution day, has anyone done so much for the comfort of commencement audiences and the departing seniors.

The far flung ramifications of Robot Redford's commencement address are almost too mind-boggling to contemplate. I can see a new generation of Robot Rotaries rolling off the assembly line to deliver talks to service clubs around the country on a variety of subjects with built-in jokes and a guaranteed cut off time that will get everyone back to the office in time for the afternoon coffee break.

A Robot Cosell could have its tubes tied to control the flow of wordage on ABC's

Monday night football.

With a sufficient antifreeze in their ganglia, robots could easily take over the campaign chores in next year's New Hampshire primary.

A campaign strategist could safely schedule Robot Dole or Robot Glenn or Robot Mondale for a Grange meeting in Dixon's Notch then a bean supper in Moose Brook with no fear of his turning out to be a textual deviate. Questions from the floor would pose no computer problems, since most live candidates evade them anyway or play back the answers written by their speech writers.

When slinky, low cut models become available, robots should make excellent guests on TV talk shows. Phil Donahue would certainly come up with some probing questions about their sex life.

Robots could easily replace the entire Soviet bloc in the U.N. General Assembly, if they haven't already.

Robot columnists cannot be very far "down the road," as we say in computer lingo. Doubtless their infallible electronic chips will preserve them from errors of taste, judgment, spelling and other evils this unscientific calling is prey to and, in the process, spare them the sulphuric reader mail that would quickly rot their tender wires and immolate their memory banks.

Editors, by then, will of course be obsolete. And bartenders, too. The only robots I know with a drinking problem are the ones who continually louse up my checking account balance at the bank.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor: We would like to express our appreciation to the people in the area who supported our Memorial Poppy program by their donations and to the businesses that allowed us to distribute the poppies in their places.

The poppies are made by disabled veterans who receive payment for them. The poppies are purchased by American Legion Auxiliary units who distribute them for donations on Poppy Day. The money thus received is used to help needy veterans and their families, and for veteran patients in the V.A. Hospital.

The poppy was chosen as an emblem because of the poppies growing wild in Flanders, something that was well known because of a poem by John McCrae, IN FLANDERS FIELDS. A familiar quote from the poem is,

"In Flanders fields, the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row."

Flanders Field is the name of a United States Military Cemetery in Belgium where the bodies of many World War I servicemen are buried. Our thanks to all who helped us.

Sincerely yours,
The American Legion Auxiliary Poppy Committee
Pet Ott, Chairman
Clara Trowbridge
Mary Williamson.

Dear Editor: I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank the many people of the area who took the time to attend the public hearings, with a special thanks to those who prepared statements. Also I wish to personally thank everyone who helped to make the Information Fair a success. The many baked goods, sandwiches and contributions are gratefully appreciated.

Though Senator John Tower has stated the dump will never come here, it is more important that we all remain united and active in this fight until we have official written and public notice from the Department of Energy that we are no longer under consideration. We haven't seen the DOE acting in a logical manner in the past so it wouldn't seem likely they've suddenly had a change of heart.

Again my deepest thanks to everyone who has shown support in this issue. Please write or call our state and federal officials regarding this problem. We need every person's continued efforts to win this fight.

Sincerely,
Georgia Auckerman

Ann Landers

Bad example to kids

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am married to a 38-year-old sewer-mouth. Aside from having a short temper, his language is peppered with every filthy word you can imagine.

When we were first married (15 years ago), he rarely said damn—and he excused himself. Bill is well-educated, an executive in a fine firm and comes from a lovely family. I have never heard an improper word from either of his parents.

What bothers me most is the way Bill talks in front of the children. Yesterday he lost his temper and let loose a string of obscenities that made me want to crawl under the rug. The kids looked startled, then embarrassed and finally hurt. I have not spoken to him since.

A few weeks ago when I told him I couldn't stand his filthy mouth any longer he said, "I can't help it—I picked it up at the company." I know several of his associates and not one of them talks like that. His behavior embarrasses and infuriates me. How can I teach the children it is wrong to use obscene language when their father does it?—Cranberry Face In Ark.

DEAR ANN: Something has gone haywire in your husband's life. Until he levels with you, you can't help him. The real danger is that the kids will become junior sewer-mouths. Step in immediately when he uses a dirty word in front of them and say, "I wish your father didn't talk like that, but I can't do anything about it. I don't ever want to hear such words from you."

DEAR ANN: That letter about the averages on sexual activity reminded me of a poem I clipped several years ago. I can't remember where it appeared. Do you have nerve enough to print it?—Middleburgh, N.Y.

DEAR MIDDLE: Of course. You clipped it from my column.

A TIME FOR EVERYTHING

From 20 to 30 if a man lives right, it's once in the morning and twice at night.

From 30 to 40, if he still lives right, he cuts out the morning but performs at night.

From 40 to 50 it's now and then.

From 50 to 60 it's God knows when.

From 60 to 70, if he's still inclined, Don't let him kid you—it's all in his mind.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my early 60s, recently divorced after a long and (I thought) happy marriage. My husband has now remarried and we live in the same community.

What is the best way to answer the question, "What and who caused the divorce?"—A Private Person In Conn.

DEAR PERSON: Why do you feel you must answer every question put to you? Personal questions are asked only by insensitive rockheads. The best way to handle such questions is WITH a question: Example:

"Why in the world would you be interested in something so completely personal?"

DEAR ANN: I need a little nugget of philosophy, something to remind me that we go this way only once. I keep wasting precious time on foolishness. Can you come up with something I can tape to my bathroom mirror?—Alice in Abilene

DEAR ALICE: Here it is—start clipping and taping. Yesterday is a cancelled check. Tomorrow is a promissory note. Today is the only cash you have—so spend it wisely.

76ers rally again to sweep Lakers for NBA title

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers, an overpowering machine in the fourth quarter of every game in the National Basketball Association championship series, are champions at last.

The 76ers dominated the final 12 minutes for a fourth and final time Tuesday night as they rallied for a 115-108 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers to complete a sweep of the defending NBA champions.

The injury-riddled Lakers were trying to become the first team to win consecutive NBA crowns since the Boston Celtics accomplished the feat in 1967-68 and 1968-69.

Instead, they became only the fourth victim of a sweep in the championship series and the first since Golden State beat Washington in four games eight years ago.

Meanwhile, the 76ers have every right to stake their claim as one of the finest teams in the 37-year history of the NBA. They were 65-17 during the regular season, the fifth-best mark ever recorded, and became the first team ever to go through the playoffs with as few as one loss.

"We're going to have to be remembered," said a sweat-soaked Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham amidst a jubilant dressing room celebration. "When you win 12 out of 13 in the playoffs, that's something."

The 76ers, who swept the New York Knicks in four games and eliminated the Milwaukee Bucks in five to qualify for the championship series, trailed the Lakers 93-82 entering the fourth quarter Tuesday night.

But with Moses Malone and Julius Erving leading the way, it was, as Earvin "Magic" Johnson of the Lakers likes to say, "winnin' time."

Only not for Los Angeles. Malone, a unanimous choice as the Most Valuable Player of the series, scored nine points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the final period.

And Erving, a member of the three Philadelphia teams that reached the NBA finals in the past six years only to come up empty, also had nine points in the period including seven in a row for the 76ers in the waning minutes.

The Lakers, playing without starting guard Norm Nixon and key reserve forward-center Bob McAdoo, both sidelined with injuries, nevertheless led most of the way.

They went on top 26-24 on a three-point goal by Michael Cooper as the first period ended and, after a couple of ties at the start of the second quarter, the Lakers led until Erving's steal and dunk with 2:02 left tied the game at 106-106.

Johnson, who played all 48 minutes, made a free throw with 1:44 to go, giving the Lakers a one-point lead. But after Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed a skyhook, Malone rebounded and Erving scored on a fastbreak layup.

He was fouled on the play and made the free throw, giving the 76ers a 109-107 advantage with 59 seconds remaining.

Abdul-Jabbar made one of two free throws with 42 seconds left, drawing the Lakers to within one point, but Erving sank an 18-footer with 24 seconds to go, making it 111-108.

After Cooper missed a three-point attempt, Bobby Jones stole the ball from Abdul-Jabbar and Malone scored on a dunk with 11 seconds left. Maurice Cheeks completed the scoring with another dunk with one second to go.

The 76ers scored 20 of the game's final 28 points and 33 in the fourth quarter to only 15 for the Lakers.

All told, Philadelphia outscored Los Angeles 124-79 in the fourth quarters of the four games after trailing at halftime in every game. It was 65-51 at the intermission Tuesday night.

"I felt to win this game, we had to control the boards," said Malone. "I'm not saying we're the best team ever. We're the best team now. After next year, maybe we'll be the best team ever."

Malone, who signed a six-year, $13 million contract with the 76ers before the 1982-83 season, finished with 24 points and 23 rebounds. In the four games, he averaged 25.8 points and 18.0 rebounds.

"Malone made the difference in the series," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "The guy in the middle makes them a championship team. He was the missing element on the team."

"All four games were great games. Philadelphia was just able to put it all together in the fourth quarter and they beat us. They're a great, great starting guards, Andrew Toney and Cheeks, added 23 and 20 points, respectively. Bobby Jones came off the bench to add 13 for the 76ers.

"I remember everybody crying last year in this building," said Erving, referring to Philadelphia's sixth-game defeat that gave the Lakers their second title in three years over the 76ers. "Seven years (before-winning the championship) is a long time, but it was worth the wait."

It was his (Erving's) game, he said he was taking over," said Jones. "It's in his back pocket now."

"Sure, I wanted Dr. J to get a ring, but not against us," said Los Angeles forward Jamaal Wilkes. "Philadelphia is a second-half ballclub. They made the big plays."

Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 28 points, Johnson had 27 points and a game-high 13 assists while Wilkes added 21 points for the Lakers.

They were three key players on last year's championship team, which shared the best previous playoff record (12-2) with the 1971 Milwaukee Bucks. Abdul-Jabbar was also a member of that Milwaukee team.

"It was winnin' time for Dr. J," said Johnson. "We came to play tonight. I'm happy with our season. We gave it all we had. They proved that they are the best team at this point and were on the top of their game."

Manassa Mauler 'a legend'

Ex-heavyweight champ Dempsey dead

NEW YORK (AP) — He had the golden fists in the Golden Age of Sports.

He was an American hero, a man remembered as a great heavyweight boxing champion who achieved riches and worldwide popularity that lasted long after his ring career ended.

Jack Dempsey, who had been in declining health in recent years, died Tuesday of natural causes at age 87 in his Manhattan East Side apartment. Dempsey's body will be at the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Home in New York today and Thursday. There will be a private funeral and burial.

"He was a legend," said Jack Sharkey, a Depression Era heavyweight champion who was knocked out by Dempsey in a 1927 fight at New York's Yankee Stadium. "It was universal with him. Wherever he went, people knew who he was."

Dempsey, who began fighting in 1914 as "Kid Blackie" for less than $2 per bout, went on to earn the nickname "The Manassa Mauler" — along with the biggest paydays in a bygone era of sports that included luminaries such as Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Knute Rockne and Bobby Jones.

"He put the sport of boxing into the American mainstream," said Harry Markson, head of boxing at Madison Square Garden from the 1940s through 1973, times when the arena was the mecca of the sport. "He was the first to bring in what was called the million-dollar gate."

Dempsey won the heavyweight title on July 4, 1919, by knocking out Jess Willard and held the crown through Sept. 23, 1926, when he lost to Gene Tunney. Ironically, Dempsey — who won 60 of his 80 bouts, 49 by knockout — defended his title just five times while manager Jack Kearns waited patiently for large purses.

Yet Dempsey did not disappoint his faithful fans during that time as he fought scores of exhibitions all over the country. During an eight-year span, his purses totaled more than $4 million.

Perhaps his most famous fight — and one of the most talked-about bouts in history — occurred when he lost a 10-round decision to Tunney in a second title bout in 1927.

In the seventh round of that fight, Dempsey knocked down Tunney but stood over the fallen champion for several seconds. The referee did not begin counting until Dempsey had moved away, and Tunney was able to get up in time to avoid a knockout. Tunney managed to hold for victory in what became known as "the long count" fight.

Despite the two losses, Dempsey and Tunney remained close friends. When Tunney died in 1978, Dempsey said: "I feel like a part of me is gone."

Many who knew Dempsey said they traced the start of his failing health to Tunney's death.

Dempsey retired from the ring in 1932, but came back to fight three exhibitions — he won all three with second-round knockouts — in 1940. He then went on to referee and promote fights and also worked the corners of several fighters he took an interest in, including Max Baer.

In 1974, Dempsey's famous Broadway restaurant was closed in a lease dispute with his landlord. For years, the restaurant had served as a rallying point for his fans.

"He used to sit in the window of that restaurant and shake everyone's hand," recalled Irwin Rosee, who was former heavyweight champion Joe Louis' personal manager for many years. "He was a worldwide attraction."

Four years ago, Dempsey suffered a small stroke and he been plagued by heart problems since then. He was hospitalized in April 1982 when a pacemaker was implanted.

Dempsey spent most of his later years enjoying a simple, private life with his fourth wife, the former Deanna Piatelli. Dempsey, who had two daughters from a previous marriage to singer Hannah Williams, his third wife, gradually limited his public activities to an occasional charity or civic-minded appearance and boxing functions.

"I think I've lost my best friend," said U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over the Watergate case. Dempsey was the best man at Sirica's wedding in 1952.

"He was just like a brother of mine," Sirica said.

Others added their condolences.

"To me, Jack Dempsey was one of the greatest heavyweights that ever lived," said former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali. "He was fast, he had power, he kept coming, he could take a punch, he was controversial and he had personality."

Said former heavyweight champ Joe Frazier: "I remember in 1964 when I came back from the (Olympic) Games I met Mr. Dempsey at his restaurant and he was a fine gentleman. I feel that God gave him the gift inside the ring and he didn't take advantage of a man outside the ring."

Luther Bagwell, 93, is the only person still living in Manassa, Colo., from the days when Dempsey, born William Harrison Dempsey, was a boy.

"When we were kids that age, that (boxing) was about the only amusement we had," Bagwell said. "It was a hard-up family. He had to go barefooted all during the summer, just like the rest of us kids did."

Davis sparks Giant win, Astros outslug Cubs, 12-10

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Just because Chili Davis isn't hitting doesn't mean he can't win games for you.

Without a hit in his last 17 at-bats, Davis used his glove to help the hot San Francisco Giants beat the New York Mets 2-1 Tuesday night.

"Chili's catch was a gamesaver," said San Francisco's Darrell Evans after the Giants closed out May with a 19-7 record.

Hubie Brooks led off the Mets' eighth inning with a drive to the center field fence on a pitch from Giants starter Bill Laskey. Davis raced back and caught the ball as he leaped against the fence, tumbling to the ground.

In other National League action, it was Houston 12, Chicago 10; Atlanta 10, Pittsburgh 2; Cincinnati 2, St. Louis 1; San Diego 5, Montreal 3 and Los Angeles 4, Philadelphia 1.

Laskey, 7-4, won his seventh straight decision getting relief help in the eighth from Gary Lavelle, who gained his eighth save. Scott

Holman, 0-3, was the loser. Astros 12, Cubs 10

Phil Garner drove in four runs with a home run and a bases-clearing double in the seventh inning to lead Houston over Chicago.

Garner's double drove home three runs in the Astros' four-run seventh to help erase a 9-8 lead that Ryne Sandberg had given the Cubs in the sixth inning with his first career grand slam.

Sandberg's grand slam gave him six RBI in the game and came off reliever Frank LaCorte, 3-2, who benefited from the Astros' comeback. Dave Smith pitched the final three innings for his first save.

Braves 10, Pirates 2
Claudell Washington and Brett Butler lined two-run triples, and Bob Horner belted a three-run homer as Atlanta routed Pittsburgh.

Winning pitcher Phil Niekro, 2-4, allowed just three hits over five innings before leaving because of strained hamstrings suffered when he slid into home plate in the fourth inning. Steve Bedrosian worked the final four innings for his sixth save.

Niekro also had an RBI single and struck out two to move past Cy Young into 11th place in the all-time major-league strikeout list with 2,813.

Reds 2, Cardinals 1
Alan Knicely and Paul Householder each knocked in a run, scoring Ron Oester both times, to lead Cincinnati over St. Louis.

Right-hander Charlie Puleo, 1-2, held the Cardinals to five hits before needing relief help in the eighth from Bill Scherrer, who posted his third save.

Padres 5, Expos 3
Steve Garvey hit a two-run homer with one out in the eighth inning to lead San Diego past Montreal. Garvey's blow came off Expos reliever Jeff Reardon, 2-3, and was his ninth of the year.

John Montefusco, 3-1, the third San Diego hurler, worked the final two innings to gain the victory.

Dodgers 4, Phillies 1
Greg Brock hit a home run leading off the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie, leading Los Angeles over Philadelphia behind Jerry Reuss' seven-hitter. Brock ended a long hitting slump with his first homer in two weeks.

Steve Yeager hit a two-run homer in the seventh to give winning pitcher Reuss, 6-3, some breathing room.

Pardee named coach of Houston Gamblers team

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Pardee is throwing away his conservative tag to become a Gambler.

Pardee was named head coach Tuesday of the United States Football League Houston Gamblers, whose owners have promised a high-scoring, entertainment oriented offense when the Gamblers open play next season.

Pardee gained a conservative reputation as head coach of the National Football League Chicago Bears and Washington Redskins, but he's ready to switch philosophies.

"What good coach isn't a gambler," Pardee said. "You don't want to shoot craps on every down but you want to come up with the odds and beat them."

"We want to win but in an entertaining way. We don't want to put the fans to sleep. We'll try to put on a good show. Football has gone that way."

Pardee, a former NFL coach of the year, signed a five-year contract with the Gamblers for an undisclosed sum.

Pardee's new style of coaching fits in with managing general partner Jerry Argovitz' plan.

"What I've said all along is that we'll have an exciting football team," Argovitz said. "Fans don't want to see any 3-0 defensive struggles with three yards to the right and up the middle."

Pardee was fired as head coach at Washington after the 1980 season and spent 1981 as an assistant coach with the San Diego Chargers.

He was out of football last season, serving as vice president of an oil well drilling liquid company in Midland, Texas.

"I spent a year out of football to find out if I could live without it," Pardee said.

Pardee discovered he couldn't do without football, but he waited until the right deal came along.

"How quick we win will depend on the players we get," Pardee said. "The gap will be how much the other original teams have gained on us. If we have four or five good players and surround them with good players, we'll win."

Argovitz said the Gamblers still had not selected a site for home games. The team is negotiating with the Astrodome and Rice Stadium.

Steinbrenner suspended from baseball for week

NEW YORK (AP) — Owner George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees, a noted critic of umpires who call them the way they see them and not the way George sees them, has been suspended — and perhaps even silenced — for one week for his latest criticism of the umps.

Steinbrenner said he would not appeal Tuesday's suspension by American League President Lee MacPhail, the fourth time this season the Yankees have been punished for episodes involving umpires. But he said he would continue to speak out "when I feel that my players have not been dealt with fairly and protected."

The suspension, which begins Friday and bars Steinbrenner from attending games or being in his office until June 10, is the second for the controversial owner, who was barred from baseball by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for two years after pleading guilty to making illegal campaign contributions to former President Richard Nixon. That sentence later was reduced to 15 months.

Last month, Kuhn fined Steinbrenner $50,000 for statements during a spring training game which the commissioner thought reflected on the integrity of National League umpires. Yankee Manager Billy Martin was suspended for three games

Thornton homers in Tribe win, Royals edge Rangers, 6-5

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Cleveland Stadium is 320 feet down the lines, 377 in left-center, 385 in right-center and 400 feet straightaway. It holds 74,206 spectators, but none of the fans who patronize the building had seen a home run hit by the Indians since April 9.

Until Tuesday night, Andre Thornton lined his sixth homer of the season to lead off the second inning, and the Indians got some fine pitching from Juan Eichelberger and Dan Spillner to beat the Seattle Mariners 5-2.

Eichelberger, 2-3, worked 6 2-3 innings, giving up six hits, and Spillner retired the last seven Seattle hitters for his sixth save.

In other American League games, Boston edged Chicago 2-1, New York rallied to beat California 5-3, Milwaukee defeated Oakland 5-2, Minnesota whipped Baltimore 10-3 and Kansas City beat

Texas 6-5. Royals 6, Rangers 5

Hal McRae drove in two runs with a double in Kansas City's four-run fourth inning as the Royals defeated Texas. Bud Black scattered five hits over six innings, and Dan Quisenberry pitched the final 1 1-3 innings to earn his 12th save.

The Royals also scored twice in the second inning on Frank White's bases-loaded forceout and a single by John Wathan.

Buddy Bell homered for Texas.

Red Sox 2, White Sox 1
Boston pulled within a half-game of AL East-leading Toronto, which was idle, by ending Chicago's four-game winning streak. Bobby Ojeda and Bob Stanley combined on a seven-hitter to outduel White Sox left-hander Floyd Bannister, who went the distance.

Yankees 5, Angels 3

Ken Griffey ripped a two-run single to snap a 3-3 tie and cap New York's winning four-run rally in the eighth inning, giving the Yankees five straight victories.

Brewers 5, A's 2
Robin Yount's two-run double sparked Milwaukee to four runs in the third inning, backing Moose Haas to his third victory in four decisions. Haas scattered eight hits for the Brewers, retiring 14 in a row at one point.

Yount sustained a cut leg in the inning and was taken to a Milwaukee hospital. He received nine stitches in his left shin.

Twins 10, Orioles 3
Randy Bush and Gary Gaetti drove in three runs apiece, and Kent Hrbek went 2-for-3 with three runs scored as the Twins pounded out 16 hits to beat Baltimore. Ken Schrom won his fourth game without a loss by scattering seven hits.

Schrom held together his perfect major league record with the victory. He is now 6-0 lifetime, including parts of two seasons with Toronto.

4-H Firsthand

4-H'ers to participate in Roundup at College Station

Deaf Smith County will be well represented at Texas A&M University June 7-8 at the 1983 State 4-H Food Show, Roundup and Project Show. The county 4-H members will be among some 1,600 from across Texas taking part in a host of activities.

This year's 4-H'ers from Deaf Smith County that will be participating are: Kandi Sparkman and Joni Hicks-Dairy Demonstration; Kellie Burrus-Sheep and Goat Demonstration; and Tori Self, Scott Robbins, and Crystal Finley-Grass Judging Team.

A special feature of this year's Roundup will be a 75th anniversary celebration commemorating the beginning of the 4-H program in Texas. The 1,600 4-H'ers attending Roundup will assemble on Kyle Field at Texas A&M to form a huge 4-H clover leaf. Activities will get underway with the State 4-H Food Show on June 7 followed by 39 Roundup contests and the Project Show on June 8.

The opening assembly for Roundup will begin at 6:45 p.m. June 7 with the recognition of 72 outstanding 4-H members who will receive scholarships totaling more than $332,000. Five long-time supporters of the 4-H program also will be recognized with special awards from the Texas 4-H Foundation.

That evening the 4-H'ers will gather on Kyle Field to form the gigantic clover leaf. A special luncheon on June 8 will recognize 28 outstanding 4-H adult volunteer leaders from across the state who will receive special plaques from the Texas 4-H Foundation.

4-H'ers competing in the State Food Show and Roundup contests must qualify by winning in county and district competition. The State Project Show is open to all 4-H youth who are interested in preparing exhibits about particular project areas in which they have excelled.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas

Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

"It's you... It's definitely you!"

WTSU to offer orientation sessions

Five orientation sessions at West Texas State University in June and July will provide the opportunity for beginning freshman students to ask questions and to become acquainted with campus.

For the first freshman orientation session on Friday, June 10, 192 students who plan to enter WTSU as freshmen in the fall semester have registered, said Dr. Bob Stout, associate director of the University Counseling and Testing Center which sponsors the annual summer orientation sessions.

Other dates are Friday, June 24; Thursday, June 30; Saturday, July 9; and Monday, July 25.

Students and their parents may check in and receive orientation materials beginning at 7:30 a.m. each of the mornings at the WTSU Activities Center.

At 8 a.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom, students will be introduced to WTSU through four sessions featuring administrators and staff members discussing student life, registration, academic regulations and costs, including financial aid. Parents also will attend an orientation session during the morning.

Following a lunch break, students will receive academic advisement at 1:15 p.m. at the Classroom Center where they will meet with faculty members in their areas of academic interest to plan a fall semester course schedule.

While the students participate in academic advisement, parents will tour the campus.

A reception at 2:30 p.m. at the Activities Center will bring parents and students together again to visit with members of the WTSU administration, faculty and staff.

Before three of the orientation sessions, interested students may take College Level Examination Program tests to gain academic credit.

The CLEP tests will be administered at 8 a.m. in the Classroom Center on June 9, 23 and July 8. Credit is available in English, math, biology, history and government. Students may take one to four tests at a cost of $25 for the first test and $22 for each additional test.

Students should be invited to orientation sessions by letter from the WTSU registrar's office after their records have been evaluated and they have been accepted to attend WTSU, said Stout. Interested students also must register in advance to take the CLEP exams.

The session on July 9 will be the first Saturday orientation session, said Stout. "We wanted to see if we could attract more people who may work or may not be able to attend during our other times," said Stout.

Five orientation sessions in 1982 attracted 801 beginning freshman students to campus which were among the largest group of preregistered freshmen in seven years.

Additional information concerning the orientation program may be obtained from Stout at the University Counseling and Testing Center.

Asthma questions answered

A specially trained nurse at Denver's National Jewish Hospital-National Asthma Center is available by telephone to answer questions about asthma and other lung diseases.

The toll-free number, (800) 222-LUNG, also provides access to information about emphysema, chronic bronchitis, tuberculosis, lupus, juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, occupational and environmental lung diseases, and other respiratory and immun-system disorders in which the hospital specializes.

An estimated 10 million American children and adults suffer from asthma, a breathing disorder that kills 3,200 of its victims each year. In addition, nearly 60,000 Americans die every year from emphysema, chronic bronchitis and other lung diseases.

National Jewish Hospital-National Asthma Center conducts research and trains physicians to treat respiratory diseases. It also treats patients referred from throughout the United States and from many foreign countries by their physicians.

Class of '38 plans reunion

The Hereford High School class of 1938 is planning to hold its 45th reunion July 8-9 at the Hereford Community Center.

Registration and a reception will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday, July 8, and a dinner is scheduled at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 9.

Members of HHS classes of '37 and '39 and any other classes that were in school around that time are invited to join the class of '38 in the festivities.

Council naming forum to examine farm policy

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Council of America is putting together one of its most ambitious projects yet, a National Agricultural Forum to look at long-range farm policy alternatives.

Council officials say the forum is the centerpiece of a five-year plan approved by the organization's board of directors last September. Further discussions were held at the council's annual meeting on May 9-10 in Kansas City, Mo.

June Saylor, Clovis, N.M., president of WIFE — Women Involved in Farm Economics — last week was named interim moderator of the forum.

An objective of the forum is to develop various possibilities that U.S.

agricultural policy might be geared to in the coming years, including alternatives that could help shape new farm legislation to be developed by Congress in 1985.

The initial effort would be papers drafted by task forces representing all agricultural interests, especially producers.

"These would be refined through discussions by state agricultural forums and similar loosely knit groups of academic experts, agribusiness executives, association representatives and the recently formed Congressional Agricultural Forum," the council said.

Organized 10 years ago, the council has increased its visibility through various projects, including annual Agriculture Day festivities, occasional telephone call-ins to sample public opinion on farm issues, a U.S. Export Education Project and other related activities.

Adrian J. Polansky, a farmer from Belleville, Kan., is the current chairman of ACA, succeeding Lawrence V. Gray, Nampa, Idaho.

The ACA has had strong support from many Farm Belt members of Congress over the years. Currently, for example, Reps. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Texas, and Pat Roberts, R-Kan., have been asked to serve as "honorary trustees" of the new forum.

No specific alternatives generated by the project will be advocated by ACA, officials said. Instead, the project will "only serve to develop and publicize them for whatever use participants and the public might want to make of them."

The ACA and its subsidiary functions such as the forum are privately financed by memberships and special contributions. Currently, it says, the total membership is about 1,800 — which includes approximately 1,100 individual producers or local businesses. The remainder is comprised of regional or national agricultural and agribusiness enterprises.

A look at some of the affiliations of the present board of directors shows the scope of ACA's support. Those include: Gold Kist Inc.; Southern States Cooperative; E.I. duPont de Nemours; Western Idaho Production Credit Association; J I Case Co.; Pioneer Hi-Bred International; The Upjohn Co.; Farmland Industries; Deere & Co.; and First National Bank of Chicago.

The ACA says the recent slump in the agricultural economy has hurt council finances. This year's budget, for example, is about $609,000 — down from $679,000 in 1982 and a record of over $1 million in 1981.

Americans eating more rice

WASHINGTON (AP) — While rice is the main food of more than half the world's population, it has never enjoyed such popularity on American menus.

Yet, says the Agriculture Department, the per capita consumption of rice has increased by 60 percent since the mid-1950s — from an average of about five pounds annually to eight pounds by 1980-81.

Shelby Holder of USDA's Economic Research Service says in a new monthly issue of Farmland that direct consumption of rice accounts for about 60 percent of the U.S. consumption, with the remainder consumed indirectly in processed items. Rice used directly as food includes regular milled white rice and specialty rices, including parboiled, precooked and brown.

"Beer, the second most important domestic outlet for rice, accounts for 25 to 30 percent of all domestically distributed rice," the report said. "For the brewing process, the beer industry uses mostly broken rice kernels, which are sold at much lower prices than whole kernels."

Processed food use, the third category, includes breakfast cereals, package mixes, soups, baby foods and other uses. Those account for about 15 percent of U.S. rice consumption.

The use of rice in processed foods has almost tripled since the mid-1950s, with breakfast cereals making up the largest group in the category, the report said.

U.S. exports half its cotton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will export around 5.3 million bales of cotton in the 1982-83 marketing year that will end on July 31.

If the recent trend holds true, nearly two million bales will be imported back into the United States as shirts, dresses and other textiles, says the Agriculture Department.

"Although the United States produces only a fifth of the world's cotton, it exports more than half of its harvest," says the department's Economic Research Service. "Over 80 percent of the exports go to countries in the Far East."

Meanwhile, U.S. imports of foreign textiles have increased sharply.

"In 1982, they totaled the equivalent of 1.9 million bales, up from about one million in 1974," the report said.

More than 80 percent of the imports came from Asian nations, particularly South Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan and China.

Davison named state 4-H leader

COLLEGE STATION — H.T. "Tom" Davison, who has dedicated most of his career to the Texas 4-H program, is assuming the reins of that program on June 1.

Davison, a 25-year veteran of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H, has been named state 4-H program leader. The position was recently vacated by Dr. John Pelham.

Holly files two complaints

COLORADO SPRINGS — Holly Sugar Corporation today filed a complaint in U.S. District Court in Cheyenne, Wyoming, against California and Hawaiian Sugar Company and Joseph E. Fabek, an executive vice president of C&H.

The complaint alleges a conspiracy to violate Section 1 of the Sherman Act and Sections 4 and 16 of the Clayton Act and malicious interference with Holly's business relationship with beet growers in Holly's Torrington, Wyoming, beet sugar factory area in connection with Holly's 1983-crop sugarbeet purchase contract.

Biomass energy seminar June 15 near Austin

COLLEGE STATION — Getting energy from biomass (plant matter and animal wastes) will be the subject of a seminar and tour at Del Valle High School on June 15. Del Valle is about six miles east of Austin on Texas Highway 71.

The seminar begins with registration at 8 a.m.

Discussions by state and national authorities on various phases of biomass research and energy use, plus a discussion by a farmer on his energy-integrated farm, will highlight the program.

An afternoon tour will feature the Dan Berdoll farm and its various energy integrated systems, including a swine manure digester, ethyl alcohol plant and biogas utilization unit. Berdoll produces swine, grain sorghum, coastal bermudagrass and cattle.

Growers get $2.3 million

Holly Sugar, Inc. has made an additional payment to area sugar beet growers to bring the total payment to $2.3 million.

The checks, sent Friday, bring the per ton payment to $4.15. The total amount per acre for 1982 was $597.62 on an average yield of 18.6 tons per acre on average of 14.8 percent sugar content.

Farmers in China have taken some of the stones from the legendary Great Wall there, to build pens for their pigs.

All leaves, no vegetables

DEAR POLLY — Last year I had a beautiful vegetable garden — until it came time for the tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers to set fruit. My strong, glossy, healthy green plants stayed just that: green. All leaves, no vegetables. I used a lot of manure throughout the season, watered regularly, cultivated, everything. What went wrong? — BILL

DEAR BILL — Sounds like too much of a good thing. You may have used too much manure. Manure is very rich in nitrogen, the element that promotes strong development of green, leafy plants. Most commercial plant foods and fertilizers contain three major active ingredients (plus small quantities of other essential nutrients): nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium (usually in the form of potash). Nitrogen encourages the development of strong leafy green plants. Phosphorus encourages strong flower development, good fruit set and seed production. Potassium is essential for a healthy root system, also encourages heavy fruit set and seed production, and insures quick crop maturity and disease resistance. Depending on the kind of crop you're raising, these three elements need to be in balance to produce the desired results. Too much nitrogen on your tomatoes and not enough phosphorus will give you strong healthy plants and very few tomatoes.

The best all-around fertilizer for vegetable gardens is 5-10-5, meaning 5 percent nitrogen, 10 percent phosphorus, and 5 percent potassium. If you think your soil is already too high in nitrogen, try using a fertilizer that is a bit lower in nitrogen and higher in the other elements. Super-phosphate mixtures can increase phosphorus; wood ashes can increase potassium in your soil. Don't side-dress with manure after the plants are well developed. That's when you'll be adding unnecessary nitrogen when what you really need is a plant food with a higher concentration of the other elements. I'm sending you "Polly's Vegetable Garden Pointers" with other ideas on how to improve your garden this year. Other readers who would like this booklet may send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10101. Be sure to include the title. Happy growing! — POLLY

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Middle-aged impotence

DEAR DR. LAMB — In a rap session with a group of recently divorced or widowed women it developed that those who had attempted dating men in the 54-year-old and up bracket found that most of these men were impotent, even on their first attempt.

One gentleman, 54 years, had a high paying job and was in good physical condition. He exercised, took no medications and didn't smoke. In this new world of swinging "free love" he had more than one ladyfriend and failed on his first attempt and most of his other attempts with someone he seemed to really care about.

We couldn't see how a man at this vigorous age could frustrate his partner so. Why would he want to date when this happened so often? We are puzzled and would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER — Sexual responses involve very complex physiological reactions. The miracle is that these complex reactions work so well most of the time.

Don't think for a minute that a middle-aged man doesn't have fear of failure and the fear itself may cause him to fail. A certain amount of the performance depends upon confidence.

One failure can lead to loss of confidence and more failures. The attitude of the partner does make a difference. Tell your friends that a loving, supporting lady who doesn't intimidate or embarrass her man will get the best results. Don't make it an achievement test for him to pass. Then remember that impotence is a symptom. Alcohol can be a factor. So can depressions which are common in middle-aged men who have had the trauma of a divorce or loss of a loved mate.

DEAR DR. LAMB — It seems like everyone wants to lose weight. I want to gain some and look good again. I'm 5-foot-9 and weigh 130 pounds and am a young looking 49. I am a forklift mechanic and very active.

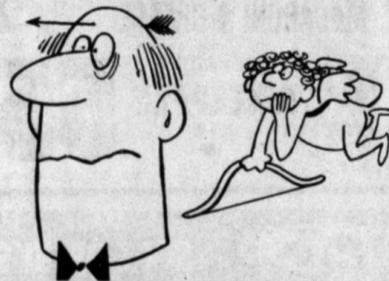

Twenty years ago I had a duodenal ulcer and they removed half my stomach. I can eat good meals, but sometimes miss breakfast or lunch. I get so busy I just don't get hungry.

I take vitamins and was a heavy drinker but quit three months ago. Why don't I gain weight?

DEAR READER — It is that old calorie equation. You use a lot of calories being "very active." On the other hand, by missing meals and perhaps not eating enough you don't consume more calories than you use. I'm glad you stopped drinking but alcohol also contains calories. You can be healthier and better off if you get those calories in good food.

Having part of your stomach removed may have contributed to your being satisfied with smaller meals, and so consuming fewer calories. Just program in enough time to eat regularly and perhaps between meals if you really want to gain some weight.

The vitamins do not provide calories. You need food — not more vitamins.
