After 3-day standoff

$510 million in cuts settled by solons

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate negotiators sweated through nearly 14 hours of closed-door haggling before agreeing to a compromise of $510 million in spending cuts for 1987. The action just before midnight Friday ended a three-day deadlock. The sole dissenter in the 9-1 vote was Rep. Mike Toomy, R-Houston, who said he opposed it because the budget cuts were not deep enough. "This was real near the target we had in mind and we've finally gotten there," said Rep. James Rudd, D-Brownfield, chief House negotiator. He added that he thought the $510 million total would help the House approve a tax bill. Many members in that chamber have said they wouldn't vote for a tax bill unless it contained at least $500 million in budget cuts. All of the negotiations Friday went on behind closed doors in Rudd's office or that of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Speaker Gib Lewis gave his approval in a telephone call from Dallas. Only the final decision was announced in a public session just before midnight. The final hurdle left that the 10 men had to settle between Senate and House differences involved budget cuts for state colleges and universities. The compromise calls for a 6 percent reduction in 1987 appropriations for higher education. The Senate originally approved 2.5 percent and the House 13 percent.

The compromise also will allow colleges and universities who made voluntary savings in 1986 to regain up to 4.5 percent of those savings, which had been asked by the 1985 Legislature. The compromise calls for a special fund totaling $21 million to be used to help schools that suffered income losses because of tuition rate changes made by the 1985 Legislature.

Local boy's death caused by cocaine

The August death of a 9-year-old Hereford boy was caused by a reaction to cocaine, according to a pathology report received by the county on Friday.

Although the amount of cocaine found in the body of Manuel Saucedo was not enough to kill him, the pathology report said the child had a "hypersensitivity response" to the drug. Justice of the Peace Johnny Turrentine said.

Saucedo was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital just past midnight on Aug. 17 after being found unconscious in his home by an older brother. Police said there were no apparent bruises or markings on the boy and the child had appeared to be in good health.

Dr. Ralph Erdmann, who performed the autopsy, said in his report that the death was caused by "poisonous effect of drugs." Toxicology lab studies found the cocaine in the child's system.

Turrentine said the victim had been exposed to the drug at least one other time in order to have created the hypersensitivity. The drug caused reflex ventricular fibrillation, a condition in which the heart muscle moves so rapidly that blood cannot be pumped, and cardiac standstill.

Bus tour of county scheduled for Saturday

Fall's first weekend will be marked with a visit to historic and geographic points of interest on a bus tour of western Deaf Smith County on Saturday, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

Sites such as Garcia Lake, Mustang Lake, The Tree, the La Plata marker, and the breaks off the caprock are to be included.

Departure is set for 8:30 a.m. with Frank Zinser as emcee. The route will go out FM 1058 (Harrison Highway), north from Garcia into ranchland, through the breaks and stopping at Glen Rio. After going through the Bippus Community, the tour will stop for lunch in Walcott. Travel will continue on FM 1412 through the Simms Community and the Boxcar Ranch, then to the La Plata marker, Milo Center, and Hereford.

Reservations for the $6 day on the plains are being taken until 4 p.m. Thursday at 364-4338 or 364-6847.

Dumping fees affect businesses, also

Non-city dwellers will not be the only ones affected by the latest city ordinance calling for a fee to use the city landfill. Businesses also will be charged a fee for dumping loads of trash at the city dump.

City commissioners last Monday evening adopted an ordinance calling for out-of-town users of the landfill to pay $3 for a pick up or small trailer load, and 50 cents per foot for larger loads if the trash is uncompressed. If the trash is compressed, it will cost $1 per cubic yard.

The ordinance also calls for any commercial user of the landfill to pay the fee, whether the business be located in Hereford or not.

"Take roofers for example," said mayor Wes Fisher. "They will fill up a truck load and haul it out there, people who trim trees for a living are also a good example."

Businesses in Hereford now pay a garbage pick up rate with their monthly water bill, as do homeowners. Fisher said there will be no additional cost to businesses using the dumpsters. But when a business takes a load to the dump, they will be charged.

Under the ordinance, city workers will be asking for proof of residency at the gate of the landfill. Persons will be asked to produce a driver's license or a water stub to show they live in the city limits.

Senate approves deficit bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early Saturday passed a deficit-cutting bill that was more fluff than real stuff, but lawmakers said it was enough to avoid the across-the-board budget cuts of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

The lawmakers followed the 88-7 budget bill approval with an 80-15 vote to lift the threat of the Gramm-Rudman cuts — but with Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., holding out the chance of reconsidering should the deficit bill collapse before final enactment.

The House is expected to move on similar legislation next week, and differences in the two versions would have to be resolved before it could go to President Reagan's desk.

The election-year deficit package managed to avoid any real spending cuts or tax increases but still reduce the deficit about $13.3 billion. It would raise user fees on government services, increase fines on tax scofflaws and pay for tougher IRS enforcement, and sell government assets such as loan portfolios and the Conrail freight railroad.

"It's so much smoke you can't see the mirrors," complained Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, one of many who complained but one of only a few who voted against the budget bill.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Committee, admitted the bill he helped write was "not even close to a good solution."

But he said it was the best that could be done, considering Reagan's ban on new taxes and Pentagon spending cuts, and the election-year difficulty of cutting domestic spending.

Domenici said it would bring the 1987 deficit below the $154 billion maximum set by Gramm-Rudman, although upcoming spending bills in Congress would have to be constrained to keep that promise.

The measure had some non-deficit-related provisions, including guarantees that Social Security recipients get cost-of-living increases in January and that farmers get advances on their crop payments.

Inmate transfer proposal headed to appeals court

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A controversial proposal to transfer prison inmates to ease overcrowding apparently is headed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

State officials who were prevented from temporarily transferring 300 prison inmates to a National Guard armory near Mineral Wells will ask the federal appeals court to approve the plan, according to Gov. Mark White.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler issued a permanent injunction on Friday barring the state from making the transfer, and also from transferring 96 inmates to a Galveston prison hospital to avoid overcrowding of the state's correctional facilities.

Justice issued a temporary restraining order on Sept. 12 blocking the transfers. He extended that order, during a hearing Tuesday, for 10 days or until a permanent injunction was issued.

The permanent injunction would stand until the state reports that adequate facilities and other conditions in an agreement to limit prison overcrowding have been met at the Fort Wolters and Galveston facilities, Justice said in Friday's ruling.

"In sum, the Fort Wolters proposal is sorely deficient," he wrote. "The proposal is inadequate in its staffing plan, medical care provisions, water supply, water quality, kitchen and plumbing facilities, recreation, storage space and bedding."

"No contract exists for emergency medical care and transportation, fire or laundry or food service. Moreover, the facility does not support the full complement of educational or work opportunities offered other TDC inmates," he continued.

White said in Austin the state believes the barracks at the Fort Wolters guard facility is adequate for the temporary housing of low-risk inmates. He said he hoped the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals would approve the transfer.

"The state is filing an immediate appeal. We hope the 5th Circuit Court will allow the Texas Department of Corrections to take the steps necessary to increase capacity of our prisons to protect the public safety and enforce our laws," said White.

Time capsule plans discussed at meeting

Plans for the Sesquicentennial time-history capsule, to be buried Oct. 3, were discussed when the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial Committee met Thursday with Garth Thomas, co-chairman, presiding.

Interment of the capsule will be at 4 p.m., Oct. 3, at the Sesquicentennial memorial site on the west side of the courthouse. The date was selected after The Brand announced a special "progress" edition would be published on the county's 96th birthday.

The Deaf Smith County Historical Society will evaluate and select items and information to be placed in the capsule, which is to be opened in the year 2090. Items must be submitted by Sept. 29. The special Brand edition will be among the items in the capsule.

Concise material describing residents, organizations, or any aspect of current life in the county should be typed on legal-size paper, using both sides. Also, brochures, identified photographs and cassette tapes may be included.

Jim Conkright, a past president of the chamber of commerce, will be the principal speaker for the event. Ernest Brown will serve as master of ceremonies, and County Judge Glen Nelson and Mayor Wes Fisher will bury the capsule. Thomas will pronounce a wish at the ceremony.

A group of Chamber Singers will participate in the event, and the Knights of Columbus will serve as flag bearers. Gary Phipps is providing the capsule, which will be painted appropriately by Elaine McNutt.

The Oct. 3 date is the anniversary of Deaf Smith County's status as an independent county. Although the county was created Aug. 21, 1876, it was attached to Oldham County for judicial purposes for 14 years. In 1890, county settlers petitioned to become an independent county and establish their own county seat of government.

The petition was granted and an election was held Oct. 3, 1890. A majority of the 97 people who voted approved the separation from Oldham, and Grenada was chosen as the county seat. The town couldn't get a post office under that name, however, as there was already a town by that name. They changed the name to La Plata, and it was the county seat for eight years before the coming of the railroad caused the move to Hereford.

Lead found in water, residents file

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — Residents living near the county landfill have filed a complaint with the Texas Water Commission, asking the agency to investigate the source of lead found in their drinking water.

Several of the hundreds of residents potentially affected say they fear their drinking water is contaminated by the toxic metal, and that a test in December 1983 showing unusually high levels in one well has kept them concerned.

"We have 500 to 600 people living around this dump, and I think you ought to be concerned when it affects that many people," said Roland Wallace Norwood, whose drinking water in one test contained .12 parts per million of lead.

That level, found in Norwood's 95-foot-deep well, is more than double the safe level set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency under the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. It is six times greater than the revised acceptable level recently proposed by the EPA.

The residents filed their complaint Friday, and on Thursday night, Norwood spoke during a Texas Water Commission hearing on the protection of groundwater supplies.

He said two follow-up tests in 1984 showed the lead level to be within the existing safety limits.

proposal receives favorable reaction

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A plan to make drug tests mandatory for students, teachers and school administrators in this South Texas city is getting generally favorable reviews from area and national officials.

U.S. Department of Education officials say school Superintendent Mike Taylor's plan to test students in grades 6-12, teachers and administrators would be the first of its kind in the country if it's adopted.

Taylor has formally proposed the plan to Beaumont's school board, and it is pending school district attorney Tanner Hunt's review. No vote has been taken, and a report to the board with further details is expected in October.

"I called (Taylor) and commended him for having the courage to propose that kind of program," said Bob Wortham, U.S. attorney for the eastern district of Texas.

A U.S. Department of Justice spokesman said that early this week, the agency will direct U.S. attorneys to cooperate with local school officials in forming extensive anti-drug abuse programs similar to the one Taylor proposed.

The spokesman said Taylor's proposal "is the kind of thing we ought to help get off the ground not only in Texas, but across the nation."

John Walters, staff director at the U.S. Department of Education, said the department does not recommend voluntary or mandatory drug testing as a first step in attacking drug abuse problems.

"That isn't to say the department will not approve of a mandatory drug testing program," Walters said. "We feel that local school boards are in a much better position to address their own needs. If they decide it is necessary to adopt plans calling for drug testing, we would support that."

Failed bank to reopen Monday

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Bank and Trust Co. will reopen Monday under the umbrella of RepublicBank Lubbock after becoming the 18th bank to fail this year in Texas, officials say.

The failure stemmed from an immense volume of bad loans and "faulty lending practices," state Banking Commissioner James L. Sexton said after the bank was closed Friday.

"There was no particular sort of loan that caused the bank's troubles. There was just a variety of all sorts of commercial loans," he said. "They weren't consumer loans, they were commercial loans, and just not very well made, just not made to people who could pay them back."

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Ken Gorham said no customers of the failed bank will lose any money because of the transition.

"The only people who get hurt are the stockholders. No one else will be inconvenienced," Sexton said. "Everyone does business as before."

Texas Bank & Trust, in financial difficulty since the first quarter of this year, had assets totaling $36.1 million when it failed, said Bill Olcheshki, another FDIC spokesman.

He said that RepublicBank will assume about $30.8 million in 7,500 deposits and pay a $375,100 purchase premium. It will also buy some of the failed bank's loans and other assets totaling $19.5 million.

The FDIC will advance RepublicBank $14.4 million to make the assumption easier and will retain $16.6 million of the failed bank's assets.

Former Mexican official arrested

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — A former government official whose office investigated narcotics traffic in three northern Mexico states was arrested on charges of laundering money for a notorious drug lord, authorities said.

Rafael Aguilar Guajardo was in custody while police charges are investigated, said Guillermo Gonzalez Calderon, commander of the federal judicial police in this border city.

Gonzalez said Aguilar was arrested with six other people he described as "all big fish." He declined to reveal their names.

"I can't tell you any more because this matter is still under investigation," said Gonzalez.

The results of the investigation will be turned over to the federal district attorney's office in Juarez, which could file formal charges, said Jose Quinonez, federal district attorney.

Aguilar was arrested in Torreon, in the state of Coahuila, on Tuesday by dozens of federal judicial police agents armed with machine guns and high-powered rifles, the Diario de Juarez newspaper reported in Friday editions. Aguilar was transferred from Coahuila to Juarez on Thursday, Gonzalez said.

The chief of the federal judicial police in Torreon, Manuel Gallardo Rios, said Aguilar claimed at the time of his arrest that he had "fixed his problems with highly placed officials."

Aguilar was head of the security force in charge of investigating narcotics trafficking in the states of Chihuahua, Durango and Coahuila until 18 months ago.

Unidentified official sources told the newspaper that Aguilar owns several pieces of property in Juarez, including Amadeus, a popular disco, and two houses in an exclusive neighborhood. He also owns the Puerto de Liverpool stores, eight cattle ranches and a meat packing plant in Torreon, the newspaper said.

Aguilar allegedly "laundered" money for Rafael Caro Quintero's drug profits, investing the money into legitimate businesses to conceal its origin, Gallardo said.

Caro Quintero was arrested last year in connection with the kidnapping and death in Guadalajara of Enrique Camarena Salazar, an agent with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Police said Aguilar had lived in Houston over the last few weeks and returned to Mexico recently.

Town turns eyesore into park

COOPER, Texas (AP) — From the rubble of a torn-down building comes a work of art that displays community pride and an appreciation for history.

What was an eyesore of weeds and rubble at the southwest corner of the square in Cooper has been transformed into a "minipark," complete with neatly trimmed green grass, trees, flowers and benches.

On the south side of the small park, a plain, brick wall has been transformed into a wall-size artist's canvas, painted the blue of a clear summer sky.

In the middle of the wall, painted brown, is the rectangular outline of a building with two small eagles painted at the top of two spires. Work on the project is still going on, but it catches the eyes of motorists driving by the park on Dallas Avenue.

The painting is of the old Delta County Courthouse which was located in the middle of the square, but torn down around 1939 to provide work for the Works Progress Administration, which then constructed the current courthouse one block west of the square.

The artist is Foy Burns, a local accountant, who said he agreed to paint the mural because "Someone asked me to do it."

The "someone" who asked Burns to paint the mural was a member of the Professional Women's Club, a local organization which is sponsoring the project originally as part of a Texas Sesquicentennial project.

"It started back last year kind of as a project of the Sesquicentennial group," said Neil Hardy, president of the Professional Women's Club. "We tried for some time — and it took us about a year — to get down to the point where we could get approval because that is a privately owned lot. So we had to get permission to do what we have done with it."

Mrs. Hardy said the owner of the lot is James Garrard, who lives in South Texas and gave permission for the project when contacted by a club member.

Seizing cars more effective than nabbing drivers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — City officials have found that threatening to seize people's cars for past-due parking tickets is far more effective than picking violators up personally.

"Now that we're going to pick up their cars, my God, we're getting more response than when we were picking them up personally," said Luis Garcia, chief municipal court prosecutor. "People are coming in like mad. The response is way over what we expected."

The rush is coming two weeks after city officials warned that violators who did not pay fines were in danger of having their cars impounded. So far no cars have been seized, but the threat seems to be working.

Municipal Court Director Bill Arnette said the scofflaws are flooding into city offices to pay off their fines, and so many payments are arriving by mail that clerks have been called in to work overtime.

"They (payments) have to be processed and credited," Arnette said. "It's not something we can finish in two or three days."

Lone Star law

SECTION 16.01 UNLAWFUL USE OF CRIMINAL INSTRUMENT - A person commits an offense if:

(1) he/she possesses a criminal instrument with intent to use it in the commission of an offense;

(2) with knowledge of its character and with intent to use or aid or permit another to use in the commission of an offense, he/she manufactures, adapts, sells, installs, or sets up a criminal instrument.

(B) For the purpose of this section, "criminal instrument" means anything, the possession, manufacture, or sale of which is not otherwise an offense, that is specially designed, made or adapted for use in the commission of an offense.

(C) An offense under Subsection (a) (1) of this section is one category lower than the offense intended. An offense under Subsection (a)(2) of this section is a felony of the third degree.

PUNISHMENT

THIRD DEGREE FELONY: (A) An individual adjudged guilty of a felony of the third degree shall be punished by confinement in Texas Department of Corrections for any term of not more than 10 years or less than two years.

(B) In addition to imprisonment an individual adjudged guilty of a felony of the third degree may be punished by a fine not to exceed $5,000.

The minipark was built first on the 70-foot by 25-foot lot last spring, and then the idea of the mural was presented and accepted.

Mrs. Hardy said the club started with a $500 donation toward the project from the Delta County Chamber of Commerce, and the rest of the approximately $2,000 used so far has come from donations.

Burns, who is president of the Delta County Chamber of Commerce, said he wanted to become involved in the project.

"Anything they (the professional women's club) do is of interest to us (the chamber), of course, and when one member asked if I would paint something on it, I told them I'd be glad to paint something on it," he said.

He said the mural helps improve the town's image. "I'm a local businessman," he said. "If we don't do something, this little town is going to just dry up and blow away. Really, the only businesses that are left here are virtually service business, mostly, and without them, we wouldn't have anything at all."

Burns said being a local businessman isn't the only reason he is involved in the project, though. "I'd probably be involved in it if I worked (in Paris). I'd probably be involved in it anyway."

Burns also views his work realistically, and said it will probably fall victim to vandalism. "I think we would be fortunate if it will last until Christmas," he said.

But even with that in mind, Burns said he wants to finish the project. "If we didn't put it up there because we thought somebody was going to tear it down, we never would do anything."

Burns said he has spent about eight hours working on the mural and estimates it will take until the end of September to complete because of the many, intricate details of the old courthouse.

But Burns said he is willing make the sacrifice.

"It's worth it," he said. "It's just personally worth it. I paint watercolors mostly — flowers and floral arrangements — but this is the first time I've ever tried to paint the side of a wall, and certainly not anything that big."

Archery has survived generations

By ART STRICKLIN
The Denison Herald

POTTSBORO, Texas (AP) — Historians will tell you that archery and bow hunting have managed to survive through the centuries.

Robin Hood undoubtedly gave the sport a big boost in the Middle Ages, and Jim Hoedebeck is trying to do the same for North Texas' devotees today.

"It's really a growing sport," said Hoedebeck, a Pottsboro builder and archer who recently opened a custom archery shop. "We've got a lot of people interested in it."

On Highway 691, a small sign, "Grayson County Bowmen," shows the way to a target and hunting range used by the 105 members of the Grayson County Bowmen's Association, who pay $25 a year to practice there.

Mike Holder was at the range for the first time this year, but he summed up what he liked about the sport.

"It takes a lot of concentration, and it's challenging to learn how to shoot the thing. It's also more sporting to the animals," Holder said.

"I love it, I just really enjoy it," Hoedebeck added. "I've been hunting with the bow for 22 years. When I was just a little kid, I went hunting for rabbits and things. In 1964 I went on my first deer hunt and have been hooked ever since."

Over the years, he estimates killing 50-60 deer along with many other animals.

"The first time you go, no matter if you get one or not, you can't lay it down. I've been hooked on archery a long time."

Hoedebeck said Grayson County has a large number of bowhunters and the number is growing with the first public bowhunting season this fall.

"This year everybody is really excited about Grayson County having a public archery season."

The first-ever season starts in October and goes through the first week of November. Hunters will be able to use private land, with permission, Corps of Engineers property and the Hagerman Wildlife Reserve.

"We've got a lot of deer here in Grayson County that people have grieved about. We have an awful lot of Corps property which is open. We have a lot more (Corps) property around the lake than most people have."

He stressed the two P's: practice and patience, for anyone who wants to bow hunt.

"Anyone can get good at anything if they practice enough," Hoedebeck said. "If you practice you can become quite effective with the bow, even if you don't practice for more than 15 or 20 minutes a day."

Hoedebeck says he practices daily, either at the Grayson range or in his back yard.

"If I don't go out and practice for two weeks then I can tell it. The people who go hunting in the fall and then don't pick up their bow until spring are the ones who go out there and miss a lot."

Hoedebeck says patience is required to get a trophy using a bow and arrow, because of the weapon's shorter range.

"It's not like when you go out with a gun and see a deer 150 yards away and fire away. You've got to wait until he comes into good shooting distance which I would say is 30 yards and under."

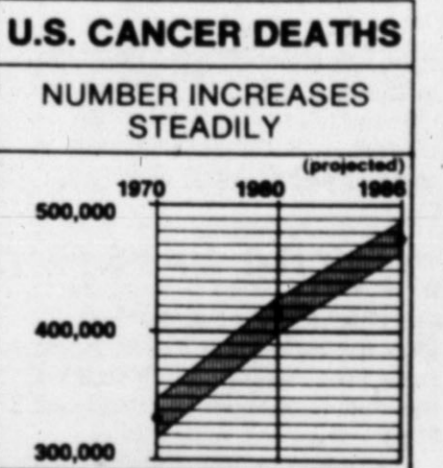

Holder said a hunter must battle his nerves to get a good shot.

"You have to be real patient, but I think it's a good challenge."

Sometimes a bowhunter who makes a bad shot must track a wounded deer.

"Once you shoot him, let him go, and then you can pick up a blood trail and find him," Hoedebeck cautioned. "I've seen a lot of game killed with a bow that wasn't that good of a shot, but the hunter tracked it until it dropped."

While the beginner can buy all types of hunting equipment to get started, Hoedebeck stressed the basic gear isn't that expensive.

The latest fashions for men, women and children will be furnished by Helen's, Louise's, Pants Cage and Etcetera. Also, former Miss Hereford, Amy Quillen Lee, will serve as emcee and Linda Gilbert will be providing musical entertainment. At the conclusion of the show, door prizes will be awarded.

All proceeds from the event will be used to benefit both the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center and the Lifeline program.

The Hereford Satellite Center, formed in 1968, is a branch of the Mental Health-Mental Retardation program. Although the center was initially begun for children, it is now a training center and sheltered workshop for adults.

Lifeline is a service designed for homebound or dependent adults who need to have an open line of communication with the hospital for medical reasons. A unit is installed through the telephone at home and connected with a computer system at Deaf Smith General Hospital. The patient wears a button that he can push in case of an emergency. Volunteers install units and check them once a week to see that they are working properly. This program depends on community donations for support.

Red Cross Update

A first aid instructors class will be held November 14, 15. The class will begin at 6 p.m. Friday evening and finish at 10 p.m.

The Saturday class will begin at 8 a.m. and finish at noon. In order to become an instructor, you must be at least 17 years old and have a current first aid certificate or a current EMT certification. Call the Red Cross office for further information.

The uniformed volunteers will have a workday Thursday at the Red Cross office. Work will start on the toys for the Christmas toys program. Anyone is welcome to come anytime during the day to help clean and repair the toys on hand. Workers staying for lunch should bring a sack lunch.

The chapter has two video tapes available for programs. A new tape is available on the relief efforts in Mexico after the earthquake. The other tape is a tape on aides and is 3 sections dealing with aides. Call the Red Cross office if you would like to see either tape.

Special thanks to Olivia Brown, Margie Guerrero, Margaret Gamez, Alice Gilleland and Jim Scott for their work at the office this month. Special thanks also go to Bill Howard for his work on our audit and to Lupe Chavez for his help with home visits for the Disaster Committee.

We have infant safety seats for rent at the Red Cross office. The seats are for infants from birth until the child weighs 20 pounds. The rental fee for the seats is $10 and $5 will be returned when the seat is returned. A short training session on the use of the seat is required.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency. Our Chapter is supported by the United Way. Thanks to all of the United Way Volunteers for making our work possible.

Sickle-cell anemia causes pain, weakness

Sickle-cell anemia is an inherited disease of the red blood cells that primarily strikes people of African descent. About one in every 1,000 black Americans is born with this disease, says the Texas Medical Association.

Although sickle-cell anemia is present from birth, its symptoms usually do not appear until the infant passes 6 months of age. The most common symptom is called sickle-cell crisis, characterized by severe pain in the chest, abdomen, back, arms, or legs. Other symptoms may include weakness, tiredness, and breathlessness.

The problem involves hemoglobin, a protein in red blood cells. In people with sickle-cell anemia, these cells contain an abnormal hemoglobin called hemoglobin S. It causes the cells to become deformed in the shape of a crescent or sickle.

The cells' irregular shape prevents them from flowing smoothly through smaller blood vessels. The cells may clog the vessels and prevent blood from reaching tissues, resulting in a lack of oxygen in the tissues that makes the sickling worse. This sickle-cell crisis can last for hours or weeks and may occur several times a year. It can be triggered by infection, fatigue, unusual stress, overexertion, or high altitudes.

A person with the disease has inherited a sickle-cell gene from each parent. This condition should be distinguished from sickle-cell trait, in which the person has inherited only one sickle-cell gene from one parent. Approximately one in 12 Americans have the sickle-cell trait, meaning they carry the non-contagious disease but are almost never affected by it.

Sickle-cell anemia cannot yet be cured, but a number of measures can control it. People with the disease should maintain good general health, have proper nourishment and avoid excessive activity that brings on fatigue. A doctor may give medication to relieve pain or prescribe antibiotics if an infection is present.

People of African descent are encouraged to undergo the simple blood test that will tell whether they are sickle-cell carriers. Those with the sickle-cell trait may wish to consider it when planning a family.

According to French philosopher Jean Rousseau, "A feeble body weakens the mind."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Clean marble with cornstarch

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I was told that to remove stains from marble, one should make a poultice of cornstarch. I'm not sure how to go about making a poultice. Can you explain? — MARSHA

DEAR MARSHA — A poultice is simply a paste spread over the stain and covered to keep it moist. To remove stains from marble, mix a quantity of cornstarch, talcum powder, or a non-abrasive household cleanser, with enough hot water to make a thick paste. Spread the paste over the stain and cover it with a piece of plastic wrap or a damp towel. Leave the poultice in place for at least 24 hours, remoistening the towel if necessary. After the 24 hours, gently wash the poultice off with lukewarm water and a soft cloth.

If the stain remains, try applying a second poultice. Then, if some stain still remains, apply a paper towel soaked in a solution of hydrogen peroxide and water (half and half), leaving it in place for an hour or two, then rinse with warm water and a soft cloth. Do not use any abrasive cleansers on marble, as they will destroy the luster and scratch it. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To cover the wire on hanging flower baskets, I cut soda straws lengthwise, then slip them over the wires. This gives the baskets a dressed-up look. — MRS. M.S.

DEAR POLLY — Here's my pet peeve. I do a lot of refunding, but the companies turn me off when the print is so small on the coupons that you have to get a magnifying glass to read street and ZIP code numbers. My eye sight isn't bad, either. Other friends have mentioned it, too. — MRS. R.K.

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for a low-calorie sour cream? My family doesn't care for yogurt. — MRS. G.

DEAR MRS. G. — Cottage cheese can be doctored up a bit to make a substitute for sour cream. It's a bit more full-flavored and mellow than yogurt.

In a blender or food processor, mix one cup low-fat cottage cheese, three tablespoons buttermilk and one tablespoon lemon juice (more or less to taste) until smooth and creamy. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator. Thin with a little extra milk before serving, if necessary.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Cooking for Health," which contains this recipe as well as others for helping you follow the government's recommendations for a healthy diet. The newsletter includes a full explanation of the U.S.D.A.'s "Dietary Guidelines for Americans" and features recipes for high-fiber, low-fat entrees, a couple of salt-substitute mixtures, and low-cal desserts. ## Young women invited to join Concerteens Concerteens has membership openings for young women who are juniors and seniors in high school. The organization is designed to act as the official hostesses at the Community Concert Association events held in Hereford.

The girls eligible for participation in this group are members of the association because their families hold group memberships. Among their duties is the distribution of the programs at each of the concerts as well as acting as aides to the performers themselves, helping in any capacity requested by the visiting artists.

During the concert season, the girls are invited to various social events in their honor. Another highlight is their presentation by their fathers at one of the concert functions. They choose a formal gown to be worn at each concert to identify them to the audience.

Any young woman whose family belongs to the concert association is urged to contact Mrs. Josef Grotegut at 258-7564 or Mrs. Donald Meyer at 578-4486 for further information.

Concerts scheduled at the Hereford High School auditorium this season include the following: The Tennessee River Boys, Oct. 27; Phil Coulter's Pops Orchestra of Ireland, Feb. 1; The Alexandria Quintet, Feb. 26; and Arthur Woodley, bass-baritone, March 31. All performances will begin at 8 p.m. on these dates.

Jones serves as hostess to Wyche Extension Homemakers

"The Master Speaks" was the opening exercise read by Virgie Duncan when members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Camelia Jones.

President Audrey Rusher conducted the business meeting and welcomed Nancy Kochsmeier as a visitor.

Roll call was answered by "A Christmas gift I have made."

Argen Draper introduced county extension agent, Beverly Harder, who presented a program entitled, "Christmas In September." She gave several ideas for making holiday gifts and exhibited wreaths made of cornhusks, burlap, crushed paper and grape vines. Directions and patterns were distributed to members. Also, Christmas recipes were given out.

Refreshments of fruit plate, finger sandwiches, peanut butter stuffed celery, cheese crackers, tea and coffee were served by hostesses, Jones and Duncan. Others attending included Louise Axe, Ethel Logan, Carol Odom, Pet Ott, Clara Trowbridge and Lorena Ward.

We the People

Constitution Week is being observed Sept. 17-23 and, locally, the event is being highlighted to the public by Los Ciboleros Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Daniel Webster said: "It is the people's Constitution, the people's government; made for the people; made by the people; and answerable to the people."

The peculiar glory of the Constitution of the United States is that it is not a charter of rights granted by government to a people, but a limit of powers to which a vigilant people restricts its government. It is not a government edit which the people must obey, but a people's law which government must obey.

"We the people of the United States," these seven potent words were and remain, all subsequent world upheavals notwithstanding, the most revolutionary words on record. But this Republic is as much endangered today by indifference of millions of people as it is by the activities of the open and secret enemies.

Half of our citizens do not even take the trouble to vote. Most of the remainder consider their duty to their country discharged when they have cast their ballot and go about their business during the intervals between elections giving little thought to the national welfare.

Institutions and governments do not preserve themselves. They can be preserved only by the vigilance of those to whose guardianship they have been committed. As a citizen of the Republic, you have a responsibility which cannot be shirked without danger to your country. Its future is worth something of your thought. Here is what the Constitution means to you:

- It establishes for you a stable and responsible government.

- It makes you a citizen of the United States, if native born.

- It gives you citizenship, if foreign born, on complying with liberal naturalization laws.

- It allows you a voice in the government through the officials whom you help to elect.

- It guarantees you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

- It defends your rights even against the government itself.

- It makes you equal with all men before the law.

- It confirms your religious freedom, and liberty of conscience.

- It accords you free, lawful speech.

- It guarantees you together with all people the right of peaceable assembly.

- It permits you to petition the government to right your wrongs.

- It guards your property rights.

- It prohibits the government from taking your property without due process of law.

- It lets you hold any office in the gift of the nation for which you are qualified.

- It enables you to become a citizen of any state.

- It prevents you from being held to answer to a complaint unless you have been lawfully accused.

- It insures your right of trial by jury of your fellow men.

- It grants you the right of habeas corpus, that is, the right to know why you are held a prisoner.

- It assures you a speedy trial.

- It permits your having counsel for defense.

- It prevents your being tried again if once acquitted.

- It permits you to have a trial in the state and district in which you may be charged with an offense against the laws.

- It lends you the power of government to compel witnesses to appear in your behalf.

- It relieves you from compulsion to testify against yourself.

- It forbids excessive bail.

- It forbids excessive fines or cruel punishment.

- It protects you from slavery in any form.

- It keeps any state from depriving you of your constitutional rights.

- It sanctions your bearing arms for the protection of your life and home.

- It secures your home from search except by lawful warrant.

- It guarantees you that the legal obligation of contracts shall not be impaired.

- It permits you to participate in amendment of the Constitution from time to time.

Wisdom with age

Psychologists now say that older people aren't nearly so forgetful as had been assumed. Previous studies were flawed, the psychologists say. Now psychologists think that memory, especially about things that are important to an individual, is pretty constant.

Earlier studies were based on tests that showed only how well young and old people did in solving trivial problems, not real-life ones. New studies indicate little difference between young adults and old ones concerning real-life problems. In fact, it now is believed that older people may be better than young ones at deciding what is not worth remembering, a useful approach to the vast amount of information — and misinformation — a person is exposed to by the time he has lived 60 or 80 years or more.

That seems to translate into the adage that with age comes wisdom. H.L. Mencken said that the older he became, the less convinced he was of the accuracy of that adage. But that rather proves the adage, no?

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek examines the plight of big cities this week, in his own way.

Dear editor:

According to an article I read the other night after giving up on solving the farm problem, five big cities in six expect to end this year in the red.

Although five out of six is a little better record than the Federal government's, which is one out of one in ending the year in the red, I still was a little surprised at the report.

You mean to say cities aren't any smarter than farmers? Even though they operate under roofs and farmers operate out in the open?

At a world conference for mayors recently, it was revealed that nearly every city on earth has about the same problem: more money going out than coming in.

Those mayors might as well be operating farms—they've got the training for it.

It is often said by some, when looking at the farm problem, that if farmers can't make it on the farm they should give up, move to town and try something else.

By the same token, if mayors can't make it in the cities they ought to give up and move to the country.

Come to think of it, a mayors' move to the country might not be a bad idea. It might even be the answer to the farm problem. I can't think of anything that'd wipe out the farm surpluses faster than having a bunch of big city mayors operating farms.

What would happen to cities operated by farmers, I don't have time to go into.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Paul Harvey

After the assassination of President Lincoln in 1865, people protested so vehemently against any further theatrical performances in that theater that the government purchased it.

The theater was remodeled and the second floor became a repository for the books of a pack-rat surgeon of the United States Army, Dr. John Shaw Billings, who took a 29-year-old institution and turned it into the world's greatest medical library.

He wanted the latest and best medical information available in one place.

That library has since become the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda, Md., and it is celebrating its sesquicentennial this year.

The library has been moved, of course, expanded and computerized. Today no medical doctor can know it all; much that he learns in medical school is outdated by the time he graduates.

But now any physician anywhere—Kokomo, Waxahatchie, Kalamazoo—can communicate any question concerning any disease to this NLM and within minutes six million citations will be sifted to tell the doctor precisely what he needs to know.

A doctor could spend all his time reading and never catch up. It's all most physicians can do to peruse three periodicals a month. The National Library of Medicine subscribes to 25,000 medical publications in 75 different languages.

Information is broken down by subject and indexed.

If your Dallas doctor is mystified by certain symptoms or if he needs the present best judgment on what to do about a specific snakebite, he turns to his hospital personal computer terminal—to the NLM—and gets an immediate response.

Last year the NLM handled three million on-line searches for information. As many as 196 users can communicate with the system simultaneously.

What does it all cost? That's the best part. The physician pays $20 per hour for computer time, though he usually has a response to each inquiry within minutes.

And the National Library of Medicine budget, $55 million a year, makes this world clearinghouse available so that even the most remote country doctor can practice the most modern medicine.

And those of us who have to write on medical subjects are more responsible custodians of that responsibility than we could ever have been before the NLM. As a taxpayer, you never got more for less.

THE BEAUTY PAGEANT

At last it happened. The losers of the Miss America Pageant finally let their claws show. I have always known they were not thrilled when someone else won. They have always put on a good front. They seemed to always be in agreement with the choice.

This time they let it all hang out. One girl said the winner was the least popular girl in the group. Another one said she was robbed. She had choice words about all of the top 10 finalists being just alike. The honesty is refreshing.

I can relate to the losers. I quit watching the show years ago out of frustration. If I liked a girl, she had no chance. I have fallen in love with some of them and the one I liked never did make the top 30, much less the top 10. I got to where I would cheer for the ones I did not like so the ones I liked would have a chance. Sort of a back-door hex.

Everytime the pageant is presented, I remember an old story. Bill and Mike went to the county fair. They decided to split up so they could see more. They planned to meet at the end of the day and compare notes. When they met their conversation went like this:

Bill was excited, he had been to the fat sock show. He told Mike, "It was wonderful. They had these magnificent animals. They washed them and combed them until they absolutely sparkled."

Mike said, "They did the same thing where I was."

Bill went on with his report. "When they got them all ready they paraded them around the ring and everyone cheered."

Mike said, "That's what they did where I was, also."

Bill said, "Then there were these judges who looked them over and chose the top animals for the finals. The top ones were paraded around again and the audience cheered for their favorites."

Mike again said the same thing happened where he was.

Bill finally could stand it no more. He said, "Wait a minute. You say the same thing happened where you were? Did you also go to the fat stock show?"

Mike said, "No, I went to the beauty pageant."

Letters to the Editor

More on nuke repository

Dear editor:

Mr. Fred Christensen's letter to the Hereford Brand, published September 3rd, presents the view of a well meaning but small segment of South Carolina's population. He and a few others associated with the Savannah River Plant are clearly not overwhelmed with the not yet begun task of solidifying 30 million gallons of liquid high-level nuclear wastes. These wastes have accumulated in huge and sometimes leaking tanks over the 35 years that the Savannah River Plant has been generating weapons materials.

These wastes, the liquid product of reprocessing defense fuels, must be solidified. As Mr. Christensen relates, tanks holding the liquids were envisioned by some to last a century but have occasionally failed in a decade. Although there are few widely shared opinions regarding nuclear wastes, the importance of solidifying existing liquid high-level wastes is almost universally held.

Facilities are not being designed and constructed at the Savannah River Plant to solidify defense reprocessing wastes. These facilities are scheduled to begin operation in 1990. Assuming they are successful, they will be the first facilities of their type and scale in the world.

The suggestion that commercial nuclear fuel wastes be reprocessed into new forms and new fuels is not new. This experiment, which implies the development of breeder reactors, has been debated for decades; the experiment has been disregarded for a variety of reasons, always including economics. In addition, the activities associated with reducing the volumes of high-level wastes through reprocessing produce several times the original volumes of transuranic and low-level wastes. Nevertheless, reprocessing and new reactor designs are attractive to nuclear scientists who would enjoy interesting and creative outlets for their considerable talents. However, public policy judgments clearly indicate that this is an experiment we cannot afford.

Very few South Carolinians would support the generation of new reprocessing wastes in South Carolina, in Texas, or anywhere else when we have not yet begun to handle existing wastes! Some of our problems are technical, some are political, and almost all of them are constrained by the looming financial concerns. These very real problems must be resolved before we undertake other endeavors.

Mr. Christensen seems to be confident that Deaf Smith County is a reasonable site for the burial of this country's nuclear wastes. In fact, the Texas site is looked upon quite skeptically by observers of the federal waste program. Our experience with the federal operation of the Savannah River Plant during the last 35 years has taught us that skepticism and attention can be helpful.

Finally, most South Carolinians can sympathize with the financial and emotional turmoil which has been thrust upon your communities. South Carolina's farms may be smaller than Texas farms, but we understand your concerns and values and feel they are legitimate.

Sincerely,
Ted Harris, President
Energy Research Foundation

Dear editor:

The probability of a nuclear waste repository near Hereford is too close for us not to take action. The nuclear industry, powerful and profit-oriented, seems to be unconcerned about the health of our people and the threat to our land, our atmosphere and our water. If we have any concern for the future of Hereford, we must do everything we can to prevent the construction of a waste dump.

I work with Spanish speaking people at La Iglesia de San Jose. In trying to inform them about the issue, I am frustrated because materials in Spanish have not been provided by the government. It seems like the Department of Energy is trying to keep us in the dark.

Many of the people in our parish are without jobs because of the hurting farm economy. Some think that the construction of a repository would provide more work opportunities. This is true. However, most of the jobs would be given to specially trained people from other states. Local jobs would probably last for only about 6 months.

What can we do? Talk with our families and friends. Write letters to our senators and representatives. As individuals, we can join others who are working against the nuclear waste repository. Call Georgia Auckerman at 364-7503 or Sr. Mary Jean Ferry at 364-2162 if you would like to do something to stop the construction of the waste repository.

Sincerely,
Sr. Mary Jean Ferry, BVM

Extension Homemaker News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent
Falling leaves, football games and cool days are a sure sign that it is time to garden for next spring.

Planting spring bulbs is an opportunity neglected by many home gardeners to enjoy the spring flowers of daffodils, narcissi, hyacinth, tulips and irises. Bulbs are truly some of the simplest of flowers to grow, easy to care for and inexpensive. All they ask is a fall planting and they will reward you with weeks of early spring color, fragrance and beauty.

One's success with spring bulbs will depend to a large extent on his selection of good, healthy quality bulbs. Second-rate bulbs, or bargain bulbs, produce second-rate flowers and, often, first-rate disappointment. To be assured of top quality bulbs and desirable varieties, September is the time to make your order.

In general, good bulbs produce flowers the first season after planting as the flower buds are already formed when the bulbs are purchased and planted. This emphasizes the importance of purchasing quality bulbs, as the quality of flowers is determined by the bulbs and not affected to a great extent by cultural conditions or growth practices. One can be assured, the larger the bulb, the larger the bloom. Many disease problems can also be eliminated by obtaining healthy, disease-free bulbs.

If you purchase bulbs early before planting time in October and November, store them in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area until planting. Excessively high temperatures will cause the bulbs to dry out and result in injury to the flower bud inside the bulb. Some spring bulbs such as tulips and Dutch hyacinths require a cold treatment prior to planting to have them perform better in the South where the winters are comparatively mild. Tulips and Dutch hyacinths should be placed in the vegetable bin of the grower's refrigerator for 45 to 60 days prior to planting. They should never be frozen and should be planted immediately upon removal from cold treatment.

Choose a number of varieties of bulbs to extend the blooming period. Dutch crocus then tulips, hyacinths and lastly Dutch iris are the usual progression of variety bloomings.

Mass planting of bulbs produces a more desirable effect or display than does planting bulbs singly. The greater the number of bulbs and the more massive the planting the more impressive the display. Select colors to contrast with house color and other spring flower plantings. In placing bulbs, consider protection from the high spring winds.

Early selection, proper treatment of spring bulbs and a wise planting plan now will insure a beautiful and colorful spring planted with the viewing of family and neighbors in mind.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Society pays price of female alcoholism

CHICAGO (AP) — Four times as many men as women are being treated for alcoholism, but recent evidence suggests women born in the 1950s and afterward may be narrowing that gap, according to a study published today.

"As society changes and more and more women are exposed to heavy drinking, we will see more and more alcoholism," said Dr. Sheila Blume, whose article is part of a series on alcoholism in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Another journal article concludes that drivers who drink are two to four times more likely to suffer serious or fatal injuries in accidents, debunking the "extraordinary myth that drivers who drink are looser," and more likely to avoid injury, said Dr. George Lundberg, the journal's editor.

A third article details how severely alcohol depresses the body's ability to fight off other diseases.

Recent estimates have put the direct and indirect social costs from alcohol-related problems at $120 billion annually. But Ms. Blume said that because women use and respond to alcohol differently than men, society may be paying an unnecessarily heavy price for failing to recognize those differences.

Female alcoholics who don't recover lose 15 years of their lives and have a mortality rate 4½ times that of other women, she said.

Another devastating effect of alcoholism is fetal harm, Ms. Blume said, citing studies showing the disease is one of the three most frequent causes of birth defects associated with mental retardation.

Studies also have shown that women develop alcohol-induced diseases like hypertension, obesity and malnutrition faster than men, that women who seek treatment for alcoholism are twice as likely as men to have an associated drug problem, and that drinking and alcohol problems among women have increased considerably since World War II.

Researchers say women show higher peak blood-alcohol levels than men even after adjustments are made for body weight and, thus, may be more easily impaired, Ms. Blume said.

The death rate "for alcoholic women is very high, and there is some evidence it's higher than for men," Ms. Blume said from South Oaks Hospital in Amityville, N.Y., where she works in the Alcoholism and Compulsive Gambling Program.

"Studies have shown women are less likely to be arrested, even when stopped for driving while obviously intoxicated. And even those who are arrested are less likely to be offered an alternative-treatment program," she said. "That's one of the ways males get into treatment, but we find nine men referred for every one woman."

Ms. Blume said the most recent studies have concluded that 13 percent of all adults have been diagnosed as alcoholic at some time during their life, with 6 percent actively combating the disease at any given time.

Herd survives scare from Pampa, 36-28

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

PAMPA — How wild can a football game become? Friday night's District 1-4A opener between the Hereford Whitefaces and the Pampa Harvesters had to be one of the wildest of the wild.

Each team turned the ball over three times; Pampa had several big plays; and much of Hereford's offensive night could have been called "The Bobby Baker Show."

But it all began with some basics of the game of football, in which each time had some lengthy possessions in the first half.

Vincent Brown of Hereford returned the game-opening kickoff 45 yards to the Pampa 49-yard line, and eight plays later the Whitefaces were on the scoreboard.

Bobby Baker, who would eventually catch 10 passes for 172 yards in the contest, caught his first pass of the game with 8:34 left—in the end zone for a 27-yard reception from Todd Shice.

Mark Artho's extra-point kick made it 7-0 in favor of Hereford.

Then it was Pampa's turn for a ball-control possession. Despite three penalties, the Harvesters drove 65 yards in 15 plays for a touchdown.

The touchdown came with 1:47 left in the first quarter when James Ellison completed a pass to Joel Farina. Four plays before, a penalty had nullified a touchdown.

Pampa's extra-point kick failed, and Hereford still held the lead, 7-6.

The Whitefaces moved from their own 37-yard line to the Harvester 29-yard line, but the possession ended when Marcus Brown was stopped for no gain in a fourth-and-one play.

Pampa then put together a 72-yard drive that used up most of the second quarter. The drive of 14 plays ended with 3:01 left in the first half when Mark Williams rushed 17 yards for the touchdown.

A pass for a two-point conversion failed, and Pampa held a 12-7 margin over the Whitefaces.

Not to be outdone, Hereford put together a 70-yard scoring drive to move into a 14-12 halftime lead.

The three biggest plays of the drive were all passes from quarterback Shire. One of them was for 21 yards to Vincent Brown, and the other two went to Baker, for 25 yards and 17 yards.

The 17-yard pass completion set up a five-yard touchdown run by Marcus Brown with 30 seconds left in the first half. Artho's PAT made Hereford's lead 14-12.

The first half was quite even statistically in addition to the closeness of the score. Hereford had 161 yards total offense to 157 for Pampa.

More of Hereford's offense was passing—124 yards—and 98 of Pampa's first half yardage was with the running game.

Pampa was seven for eight in third down conversions in the first half, and Hereford was four for six in the half.

The second half started much the same way that the first half had gone. The Whitefaces began the half at their own 34-yard line, and drove 66 yards in nine plays for a touchdown and a 20-12 lead.

A 33-yard pass to Baker from Shire gave Hereford a first down at the Pampa 10 in that possession. Two plays later, Shire passed to Vincent Brown for an eight-yard touchdown pass with 8:02 left in the third quarter. The PAT kick was not good.

The Whitefaces did not allow Pampa to get a first down in the Harvesters' next possession, and Pampa had to punt the ball.

In the third play of Hereford's next possession, Vincent Brown was carrying the ball near the Hereford 40-yard line when all of a sudden the pigskin was knocked loose—up into the air.

Ellison, Pampa's quarterback who plays at the cornerback position on defense, snared the ball before it went down to the ground and returned it 40 yards for a touchdown, with 5:51 left in the third quarter.

Ellison passed to Billy Butler for a two-point conversion to tie the game at 20-20.

Hereford lost another fumble in its next possession. The Harvesters knocked the ball loose from Artho and recovered it at the Pampa 44-yard line with 3:30 left in the third quarter.

Ellison and Butler teamed up for a 53-yard pass to the Hereford three-yard line. The Herd defense rose to the challenge and did not allow Pampa to get any closer to the goal line in three plays.

The Harvesters attempted a 21-yard field goal to try to go into the lead, but the kick had no height on it at all.

Late in the third quarter, Hereford began its next possession. The Whitefaces moved from their own 20-yard line to the Pampa 35.

Hereford lost eight yards in its first play of the final period, and Williams of Pampa, a safety on defense, intercepted a Todd Shire pass in the play after that one.

But the Whitefaces got the ball right back when Williams the running back fumbled away the ball in Pampa's first play of the fourth quarter. Hereford defensive tackle Richard Dobbins recovered the fumble at the Pampa 40-yard line.

A nine-yard pass from Shire to Baker, a 10-yard run by Artho, and a five-yard run by Marcus Brown led up to a 16-yard touchdown pass from Shire to Baker with about eight and a half minutes left in the game.

Baker also caught a pass from Shire for a two-point conversion and a 28-20 Whiteface lead.

There was a problem with the stadium clock in the fourth quarter, and for nearly four minutes of playing time, the time remaining in the game was not clearly known by players and coaches as well as spectators.

Hereford then stopped Pampa once again, with 6:09 left, when Whiteface cornerback Bill Ruckman recovered a fumble lost by the Harvester quarterback.

That gave Hereford the ball at the Pampa 39-yard line. Two big plays help set up a one-yard touchdown run by Vincent Brown—a 16-yard pass to Baker from Shire, and a 12-yard run by Artho.

Brown's touchdown run, plus a Shire to Kyle Streun pass for a two-point conversion, gave Hereford a 36-20 lead with 3:38 left in the contest.

Hereford lost eight yards in its first play of the final period, and Williams of Pampa, a safety on defense, intercepted a Todd Shire pass in the play after that one. But the Whitefaces got the ball right back when Williams the running back fumbled away the ball in

"The Bobby Baker Show"

Hereford Whiteface pass receiver Bobby Baker (88) gets pulled down by the jersey by Enoch Phetteplace (60) of the Pampa Harvesters after making one of his 10 receptions Friday night in Hereford's 36-28 victory over Pampa. Baker's pass receptions totaled 172 yards in gains, giving him a season total of 310 yards in 19 catches in three games. Baker caught touchdown passes of 37 yards and 16 yards. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

Marcus Brown (2) of the Hereford Whitefaces leaps into the end zone for a five-yard touchdown run with 30 seconds left in the first half Friday against Pampa.

Whitefaces

Pampa attempted on inside kick, but Hereford fell on the ball at the Whiteface 43-yard line.

Hereford was unable to get a first down, and "The Bobby Baker Show" continued when Baker punted the ball 46 yards and out of bounds at the Harvester two-yard line with 1:22 left.

It was desperation time for Pampa, which called two running plays before attempting a pass with less than 30 seconds left.

The pass came in a third down play, and was picked off by Hereford free safety Rodney McCracken at the Pampa 41-yard line.

The Whitefaces ran out the clock and breathed a sigh of relief since the Harvesters' scare was over.

Hereford had 385 yards total offense in the game, including 241 yards passing. Bobby Baker caught 10 passes for 172 yards.

For the season, Baker had 310 yards receiving, averaging 103.3 yards per game. He had 19 receptions altogether, an average of 16.3 yards per catch.

Todd Shire's passing statistics were 15 completions in 24 attempts, with three touchdown passes and one interception. Vincent Brown and Kyle Streun each caught two passes.

Mark Artho led Hereford in rushing with 76 yards in 15 carries.

Marcus Brown had 40 yards in 12 carries, and Vincent Brown totaled 3 yards in 11 carries.

Pampa has 229 yards total offense leading the way for the Harvester was Mark Williams with 65 yard rushing in 16 attempts, and Jame Ellison with 112 yards passing with five completions in 10 attempts, with one interception.

Pampa had only two first downs in the second half. The Harvesters' second half yardage was just 72 yards including 53 yards in that one lone pass play.

On Friday, Sept. 26, the Herd play at home against Frenship at 7:30 p.m. Frenship was smashed by Lubbock Estacado Friday, 60-3.

In other District 1-4A openers, Canyon shut out Lubbock Dunbar 35-0 on Thursday, and Levelland got past Dumas 7-0 on Friday.

WINS LOTTERY

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Catching lightning in a bottle is impossible, but Robert Kaye, a Boston florist, came close.

The NCAA received 41,487 applications for tickets to the Final Four Games of the 1987 post-season basketball tournament in the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans.

Kaye's name was drawn as the winner in a computer lottery, which means he will be able to buy 40 $50 tickets to the championship round. But that's the least of it.

The host committee in New Orleans is arranging for Kaye to have free air fare on American Airlines, four nights on the house at the Hyatt Regency for his party, and breakfast at Brennan's, the noted French Quarter restaurant.

Wilma Rudolph, a winner of three gold medals for the United States in the 1960 Olympics in women's track, had a crippled leg as a child.

Closing In On The Passer

Michael Phibbs (33) of the Herd defense just misses out on sacking Pampa quarterback James Ellison, who got off the pass. No. 57 of Hereford is Derrell Page and No. 60 is Richard Castillo. The Herd defense allowed Pampa only two first downs in the second half, but the game stayed close because of an offensive fumble returned for a Pampa touchdown and a kickoff returned for a Pampa touchdown. Pampa, which lost to Hereford 36-28, managed 117 yards passing and 112 yards rushing against the Whiteface defense. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

In Louisiana swampland

Alligator hunting 'ain't no picnic'

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The rising sun had not yet cleared the tops of the moss-draped cypress trees and the egrets were just beginning to stir from their nighttime roosts as Arnold Villeneuve headed into the swamp.

In the back of his truck were the simple tools of the hunt: nylon rope, 4-inch hooks, a bucket of fish, a four-pronged gaff and a .22 caliber rifle.

"Gator hunting ain't no picnic," he said.

He had previously set 25 lines — each with a pair of baited hooks dangled about 6 inches above the water. Hanging the bait helps ensure that only big ones are caught.

Alligators, once endangered, are plentiful in Louisiana's swamps. The federal government banned hunting in 1973, but after two years, set up carefully controlled seasons. "We landed a 13-foot one once — about seven or eight hundred pounds," remembered Villeneuve as he and Linwood Abbott waited for their hunting partners.

"It took five men to load it onto the trailer. Last year on opening day we got 17."

A small bateau with an outboard pulled up. Harry Simoneaux, his son-in-law Mike Breeland, and Breeland's teen-age son Danny hopped out, and Villeneuve and Abbott unloaded the day's first catch, a 6-footer caught in the boat canal.

Simoneaux and Breeland set off to check another line and returned empty handed. The bait was gone and the once-curved hooks were straight. The men speculated on the size of the escapee and cursed the new stainless steel hooks.

The men, all dressed in old jeans, T-shirts and wading boots, headed deeper into the swamp. No fancy camouflage for this kind of hunt.

The next two lines, baited and tied to a tree, hadn't been touched, and the third was down but nothing was on it.

The fourth produced another 6-footer. Abbott put a bullet into the beast's head from close range with the .22.

Most of the gators swallow the bait and get hooked in the gut, but some only hook the mouth. Since the hook won't kill, the animals are shot. The .22 usually suffices, but Simoneaux brought along an ancient 30-30 — just in case.

After the kill, two men hauled the gator to the trailer while another baited new hooks. The catch had to be tagged immediately.

One man held the still thrashing tail and Villeneuve sliced the top end off, according to regulations. A hole was made in the hide and the tag inserted and snapped.

The tag is part of the careful control of a gator hunt. Game wardens allot tags to hunters and keep exact track of each hide. Villeneuve, a trapper by trade, had 34 tags for the swamp where he is caretaker.

The next two lines produced two more good-sized gators. An eel, caught by the tail on another, was freed.

The fifth gator was harder to corral. He was lying on the bank with the hook in its mouth but the line cut. As a photographer approached, the gator plunged into the water and disappeared. While Villeneuve went after a pirogue, Simoneaux spotted the escapee about 20 yards out. Using his old 30-30 he killed the beast with a single shot.

The elder Breeland waded into the water with the gaff, hooked the 8-footer and tugged him ashore.

Before the hunt ended, four more were landed, bringing the day's total to nine in four hours.

That was the easy part. Back at the house, the hard work waited.

The catch must be skinned daily — the hide stretched and nailed to a board and salted to retard spoiling.

The skinning pattern is changed each year to keep down illegal hunting. A flap of skin must be left at a certain area to prove that it wasn't taken out of season. The hunters don't know where this flap will be until the day the tags are issued.

After Villeneuve skinned the first one, others gutted the carcass and cleaned it. The meat sells for $1 a pound. The hides, worth $18 to $24 a foot, aren't sold until the entire allotment is taken.

Louisiana gator hides are known worldwide because of the lustré. Most of the harvest is shipped to tanneries in France and Spain, but Robert Love of the Fish and Wildlife Department said he expects a tannery or two to open in South Louisiana.

Last year's harvest was 16,000 gators, about 8 percent of the entire population, and this year's will be a little higher — worth a total of about $2 million.

Fourth and Inches

Mark Artho (20) breaks into the open for a 10-yard gain in a fourth down play in which the Hereford Whitefaces needed a few inches for a first down. The crucial play came early in the fourth quarter, and two plays later

September signifies onset of seasons

Hunters can aim at abundance of game

By RAY SASSER

The Dallas Morning News
DALLAS (AP) — Many Texas sports fans love the relatively cool breezes of September because their beloved Cowboys are back in the saddle again. For sportsmen, September signifies the onset of the hunting seasons, which began with dove shoots on Labor Day and will escalate through October, peaking in November and December.

It is hard to talk about Lone Star hunting without sounding like a Texas brag, but because the oil business has fallen on hard times, the Cowboys were winless in preseason and western chic has fallen out of favor in New York, it is good to have wildlife to fall back on.

Texas has hunting seasons for more than 20 naturally occurring game animals. We have more white-tailed deer (about 4 million), more wild turkeys (about 500,000), more bobwhite quail (populations exceeding one bird per acre in some areas) and more mourning doves (5 to 7 million bagged per year) than any state.

Texas hunters spend about 900,000 man-days in pursuit of squirrels and 900,000 man-days hunting rabbits. In a good year, as many as 10 million migrating waterfowl pass through Texas, and about 60 percent of all ducks and geese that migrate down the Central Flyway take advantage of Texas' relatively mild climate by staying here in the winter.

Texas also has regionally popular seasons for pheasants, mule deer, woodcock, antelope, rails-moorhens, gallinules, snipe, coots, prairie chickens and sandhill cranes.

If that does not satisfy your primal instincts, many Texas landowners have stocked exotic big-game animals on their ranches. Seasons on exotic animals never close and bag limits are dictated by your bank account.

In fact, the bad news about Texas hunting is that most of it is not free. Most of the land in Texas is privately owned. According to state laws, the citizens own the game. The distribution of property is considerably less equitable.

In most cases, you must pay a landowner to hunt your game on his property. This is called lease hunting. It originated in Europe, then came to Texas with Germans who settled in Central Texas.

The lease system has its good points. It allows landowners to manage for game, thereby creating abundant small game and high-quality big game.

Alas, with season lease prices ranging from $1 to $10 per acre, many would-be sportsmen simply cannot afford the price for quality hunting. If you cannot afford a hunting lease, there are some people you can contact about free hunting:

— Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744. Phone 1-800-792-1112. Request brochure "Acres for the Asking," which lists public hunting opportunities. Also request brochure "Hunting Opportunities on Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Wildlife Management Areas."

— Anahuac National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 278, Sandlin Building, Anahuac, Texas, 77514. Phone 409-267-3337. Request regulations on waterfowl hunting on national wildlife refuges in Texas.

— National forests in Texas, 701 North First St., Lufkin, Texas 75901. Phone 409-639-8501. Send $1 each for maps of Davy Crockett, Angelina, Sam Houston and Sabine national forests.

— U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Attention SWFOD, P.O. Box 173000, Fort Worth, Texas 76102. Phone 817-334-2705. Request information packet on hunting opportunities and hunting maps for specific corps projects. The corps provides 140,000 acres of public hunting, not including waterfowl hunting on the reservoirs.

— Texas Forestry Association, P.O. Box 1488, Lufkin, Texas. Send for $6 for the current Hunting and Recreation Guide, which provides maps for about 240,000 acres of East Texas open timber company property.

Open lands provided by agencies listed above produce some excellent waterfowl and small-game hunting. Quality Texas deer hunting is primarily on private property. The key to hunting success on private property is to settle on one or two areas and learn them well.

U.S. Forest Service biologist Larry Bonner said the majority of hunters congregate around the convenient areas near access roads.

"The guys who learn an area well and don't mind hiking back away from the roads not only enjoy the highest success rates, they also earn the most aesthetic hunts," Bonner said.

The deer hunter success rate on public property is about 20 percent. Statewide, deer hunter success is 60 percent. On a good lease, the success rate generally is 100 percent.

The best white-tailed deer hunting areas are Central Texas (50 percent of the overall deer herd), South Texas (known for trophy bucks but the most expensive region in which to hunt) and East Texas (the least expensive region in which to hunt and the only portion of Texas with a plentiful deer herd).

If you have the money to spend and are looking for a hunting lease, take some advice from Dr. James Kroll, a wildlife scientist who teaches at Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches.

"Most hunters are so hot to get a lease, they'll take anything that's available," Kroll said. "There are unscrupulous landowners who'll take advantage of hunters. It's important to sit down and talk with the landowner about his land-use practices. If he grazes 500 Angora goats on 1,000 acres, you'd be crazy to lease from him."

One question Kroll frequently fields concerns the stability of the hunting lease agreement. Should the hunter go to all the trouble and expense when his lease could be terminated with little notice from the landowner?

"It happens all the time," Kroll said. "But there are two sides to this coin. When a landowner finds hunters who are serious about managing his game, he's a fool to terminate the lease just because he can get more money from someone else."

Kroll recommends that hunters get references from landowners and make the effort to contact sportsmen who previously hunted the property.

Aside from contacting chamber of commerce offices to locate landowners in the lease market, placing ads in rural newspapers as well as metropolitan papers can put you in touch with lease prospects.

The lease broker business is also gaining steam in Texas, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife and State Agriculture departments are putting together a list of landowners who have hunting available on their proerty. The list is called the Texas Hunting Registry. At last count, there were nearly 1,000 landowners on the list which will be made available to sportsmen after Oct. 1.

Done on private or public property, hunting is big business in Texas. A 1983 Texas A&M study on recreation trip expenditures showed Texas hunters spent more than $538 million that year, the majority on restaurants, food, transportation and lodging. That doesn't include the cost of hunting equipment or lease fees.

As cash crops go, the white-tailed deer has replaced the registered bovine and upland game, ducks and geese have taken the place of domestic fowl.

Both teams are 1-1

Oilers to battle Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bill Maas may be big and strong, but he's not as tough as an empty belly, says Jay Pennison.

Pennison was standing in the unemployment line when NFL training camps fired up this summer, an obscure refugee from the dying USFL. But he'll line up Sunday at center for the Houston Oilers and go eyeball-to-eyeball with Kansas City's Maas, one of the NFL's outstanding young nose tackles.

A crowd of about 50,000 was expected for the 3 p.m. CDT kickoff in Arrowhead Stadium. The Chiefs and Oilers are both 1-1 and hoping to show significant improvement this season. But both are also worried about the consistency of their offensive line.

Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville has lost his most valuable lineman, center Jim Romano, to injury, and journeyman right guard Eric Moran is also sidelined. But Pennison, who last played for the Jacksonville Bulls, signed as a free agent and will be asked to replace Romano.

"I guess I'm kind of in shock," Pennison says of his rapid switch from the unemployment to the offensive line. "I'm kind of nervous, but I'm sure I'll be over that by Sunday."

Maas, AFC defensive rookie of the year in 1984, may deliver a rude welcome. Pennison may not care.

"I was pretty worried about where I was going to get the money to pay my bills," he said. "It was a pretty stressful situation."

Pennison sees only an opportunity. "Hopefully I can prove myself now that I have this chance," he said. "I have to make the best of it. When Jim comes back, he's the center. But I hope I have proven to them I can handle the job and maybe this will help me down the line."

The Oilers, unbeaten in the preseason, have been relying on their offense. In beating Green Bay and losing last week to Cleveland, they rolled up 780 total yards while allowing only 467.

"We're just going to have to get someone to grow up fast," Glanville said. The Chiefs have a swarm of newcomers protecting quarterback Todd Blackledge, including former USFL stars Irv Eatman and Mark Adickes. Also available is No. 1 draft choice, 305-pound Brian Jozwiak. With time, it figures to be the best offensive line the Chiefs have had in years. But with time, they're all new to the system and each other.

"Our offense was not able to put points on the board and we weren't able to sustain many drives during the day," Coach John Mackovic said of a 23-17 loss last week to Seattle.

"We didn't make some plays we needed to make. I said from the beginning that it would take our offense most of September to get done what we needed to get done. We knew from the beginning that we were not going to have everything in place."

Blackledge and Houston quarterback Warren Moon both had problems last week. In a loss to Cleveland, Moon threw three interceptions, three more than he suffered in an unbeaten pre-season.

"It's evident to the staff that we lost some of the execution (against Cleveland) that we did so well in our first game," Glanville said. "But we're going right back to work and work on executing those little things you don't see but that can affect the success of a play."

"Every ball that is thrown is not going to be a neat spiral. That's why the ball is shaped the way it is," he said. "That's part of what sells tickets."

Three members of the 1985 Los Angeles Lakers, the NBA champions, also played on NCAA title teams. They are Magic Johnson, James Worthy and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Amid all the 'Herschelmania'

Dorsett nears 11,000-yard mark

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Amid all the "Herschelmania" enveloping the Dallas Cowboys, veteran running back Tony Dorsett is within 26 yards of another rushing milestone against the Atlanta Falcons on Sunday. Dorsett, who gained 117 yards last week in a 31-7 victory over the Detroit Lions despite a sprained ankle, has 10,974 career yards. "To get 11,000 yards will be a big milestone for me," says Dorsett, who is in his 10th year. "There were a lot of people who thought I'd be too small to play in the NFL." Dorsett ranks sixth on the all-time NFL rushing list behind O.J. Simpson who has 11,236 yards. Herschel Walker will be trying to help defeat his home state's professional football team. Walker, who played high school and college football in Georgia, has helped the Cowboys compile a 2-0

NFL record. Dallas is a 10-point favorite over the unbeaten Falcons. Walker says meeting Atlanta won't be that special to him. "When I played at the University of Georgia, I never really gave the Falcons that much thought," Walker says. "I don't believe the Falcons cared that much for me." Walker, a Heisman Trophy winner at Georgia, helped the Bulldogs to a national title then signed with the New Jersey Generals of the USFL after his junior year. Walker came out of Wrightsville, Ga., to become a Georgia All-American.

"When I was with the Generals I didn't have much time to think about the Falcons," Walker says. Walker has played tailback and flanker in the Cowboys' offense, scoring three touchdowns. He also is expected to be used at fullback. The Cowboys and Falcons are the two highest scoring teams in the NFL. Atlanta leads NFL with 64 points and the Cowboys have 62. Both teams are tied for the top in touchdowns scored (eight). The Cowboys, who lead the series 8-1, downed the Falcons 24-10 in Texas Stadium a year ago. The noon kickoff will be blacked out locally because the game wasn't

Two highest scoring teams in NFL

Cowboys, Falcons to collide

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING, Texas (AP) — The unbeaten Dallas Cowboys and Atlanta Falcons, the two highest scoring teams in the NFL, collide Sunday in what Cowboys Coach Tom Landry believes could turn into a touchdown track meet. "It has all the ingredients of a high scoring game," Landry said. "We'll have to score in the 30s to beat them." Atlanta leads the NFL with 64 points, while the Cowboys are close behind with 62. Both teams have scored eight touchdowns to tie for the league's best.

"Dallas has more weapons than the teams (New Orleans and St. Louis) we've seen so far," said Atlanta Coach Dan Henning. "They have added key players like Herschel Walker. This will be a significant test." The Cowboys, who lead the series 8-1, throttled the Falcons 24-10 in Texas Stadium a year ago, but Landry said Atlanta is a different team this year.

"Marion Campbell is their defensive coordinator and is one of the best in the league," Landry said. "He was tough on us when he was head coach for the (Philadelphia) Eagles. Atlanta is playing good enough defense now to compliment a very good offense."

Landry said he has battled overconfidence by showing his team films of the Falcons.

"They can look at the films and see how much Atlanta has improved," Landry said. "Players are impressed by what they see in the films."

The Cowboys have beaten the New York Giants 31-28 and Detroit 31-7, while Atlanta has battered St. Louis 33-10 and New Orleans 31-10.

Asked if he was surprised by Atlanta's 2-0 start, Henning said, "I'm not surprised. That's what the hell we practice for."

The Atlanta offense has been unstoppable behind running back Gerald Riggs and quarterback Dave Archer.

"Archer has better people around him this year," Landry said.

Asked if he was surprised by Dallas' 2-0 ledger, Landry said, "I sure am" and gave much of the credit to Walker's inspiration. The former USFL star, who is still a backup to Tony Dorsett at tailback, has scored three touchdowns at three different positions.

"We'll play Herschel as much as we can but we can't take away Tony's impact on the team," Landry said. "He's a proven, 1,000-yard runner."

Atlanta's only victory over Dallas was 10 years ago in Atlanta.

"This week we are playing what may be the most established coaching staff in the NFL and a team that has a great tradition," Henning said. "It's a different kind of challenge for our team."

Coping with ag problems researched

LUBBOCK — Southwest farmers have been late-comers to the full-blown set of farm financial problems that have been evident throughout the Midwest for a number of years. But Texas Tech University agricultural economics Professor

Dean W. Hughes said, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona and Louisiana have developed their own methods for dealing with farm problems. Hughes has divided those five states' solutions into four categories:

solve the problem, minimize the damage, ease transition and keep it from happening again.

Under the solve the problem category fall plans for direct intervention in farm credit markets or other direct action designed to keep farmers in business.

"Southwestern states have generally avoided making major responses in this area," Hughes said. "In Texas, actions have been limited to research efforts designed to identify the underlying causes of today's problems, some education of state and national policymakers and searches for better markets."

Hughes said the general consensus in Texas today is that the problems are caused by fundamental economic forces that require more resources than the state controls to make an appreciable change in the circumstances.

Hughes said Oklahoma is the only state he surveyed that has legislation designed to solve the problems. The legislation puts a one-year moratorium on Farm Loan Bank foreclosures. However, he said, it does allow the Farm Credit Capital Corp. to foreclose and there have been questions raised as to the constitutionality of the measure.

Louisiana has some state lending programs, he said, but they are designed to encourage processing and marketing industries rather than farmers, he said.

Hughes said the Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana Departments of Agriculture have all made efforts to expand markets for their states' farm products. The question, as Hughes sees it, is whether these are to be ongoing programs or only responses to current problems.

In an effort to minimize the damage done by farm problems, many states are taking actions to reduce stress and keep as many farmers in business as possible without directly interfering with markets.

Hughes said Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico have all instituted extension programs to develop farmers' financial management by improving their record keeping and planning.

Oklahoma has held a significant number of individual counseling sessions for farmers while New Mexico has held a few group extension meetings, he said. Texas has no plans for individual counseling, but is holding sessions to train extension personnel and county agents in financial management.

SCS needs 5 million pounds of grass seed

If you have grasses or forbs that can be harvested for seed this fall, you might make a bundle of money.

That's because at least five million pounds of seed will be needed to plant 1.1 million acres of land accepted in the Conservation Reserve Program in Texas this year.

And with another sign-up expected this winter, the demand could be even greater.

Bob Perry, district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service at Hereford, said several kinds of seed are needed.

"There is going to be a strong demand for both native and introduced species," Perry said. "And the seed will probably bring premium prices."

Some of the grass seed needed include native bluestem mixtures, little bluestem, indiangrass, switchgrass, sideoats grama, blue grama, King Ranch bluestem, and green sprangletop.

Since land placed in the CRP can be leased for hunting, seed for wild plum and forbs including Maximilian sunflower, Illinois bundleflower, and engelmann daisy will probably be in very short supply.

"If you have land that can produce any of these seeds and it can be harvested, now is the time to act," Perry said. "Removing all livestock from the land will give it a chance to produce a seed crop. You may also recommend that you contact a commercial seed grower to learn if you can work out a contract for handling the seed."

Richard Heizer, state plant materials specialist for SCS at Temple, has offered to serve as a clearing house to put farmers and ranchers who can harvest seed this year in contact with members of the Texas Seed Trade Association. For information, write Richard Heizer, Soil Conservation Service, 101 South Main Street, Temple, Texas 76701-7682, telephone number (817)774-1294.

County SCS signs 87 bids for reserve

Bids on 827,991 acres of land in Texas were accepted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's latest Conservation Reserve Program sign-up for 1987. Bids were accepted from 2,963 farmers. In Deaf Smith County, 87 bids were accepted on 43,045 acres.

The state was divided into seven bidding pools. The highest bids accepted from pools 1 and 2 was $40 per acre on 769,656 acres. These two pools make up the western one-third of the state.

In determining estimated erosion, SCS personnel use the Universal Soil Loss Equation for water erosion and the Wind Erosion Equation for wind erosion.

For land accepted into CRP, farmers will receive their per acre bid annually for 10 years. They will also receive 50 percent cost-share assistance for establishing permanent vegetation or trees.

During the first three sign up periods, 113 CRP contracts for 53,289 acres were made.

Computer short course slated

A short course to help beef cattle producers with computer applications will be held at the Stiles Farm Computer Training Center Sept. 23-25. The Stiles Farm is located in Williamson County on U.S. 79 one mile east of Thrall or seven miles east of Taylor. The short course is called "Records and Management Decision Aids for Beef Cattle Producers (High Rainfall Areas)" and will offer hands-on training in microcomputer use and use of various software packages (computer programs), says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Farm loan program now open

AUSTIN — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced that loan applications for the Texas Farm and Ranch Finance Program are now being accepted.

The Texas Farm and Ranch Finance Program will provide up to $100,000 to qualified Texas farmers and ranchers for the purchase of 50 acres or more of land. Eligibility requires the applicant to be a Texas resident for at least five years. Also, 35 percent of their gross income in the previous three years must have come from a farm or ranch. The applicant's net worth must also be less than $250,000.

Those interested in more information may call 1-800-292-FARM.

Former Hereford resident gets promotion

John N. Fink, who was formerly stationed at the Hereford Holly Sugar plant, has been named assistant factory manager of the corporation's Sidney, Mont., plant.

Fink was a Process Technician I at the Hereford plant in 1964, was promoted to Senior Process Technician in 1968 and in 1969 became the Beet End Foreman.

In 1978, he was promoted to shift superintendent for the Sidney factory where he served until his recent promotion.

Once again we borrow the wise words of Dean Deter, Editor of the "Carolina Cooperator" in his unique definitions of the farmer's life. He describes an Animal Rightist as: 1) a vegetarian who wishes everyone else was. 2) a frustrated urbanite who believes hogs need to root, chickens need to scratch, and Bambi really does listen to Thumper. And, High-on-the-Hog as an economic state of living based largely upon the ability to purchase a pork roast at the supermarket without wincing. Conversely, farmers can be said to live Low-on-the-Hog based upon what they receive for that same pork roast while still attached to the hog. While a nuisance is: what city folk who move into a new neighborhood, bull next to an existing farm, consider that farm. When they moved to the country "to get away from it all" they didn't expect the country to be quite so country. And a Nuisance Suit: is what cityfolk who move into a new neighborhood bull next to a farm find when they discover Elsie and Ferdinand make the fields smell.

Sorghum farmers form coalition

The nation's sorghum farmers have united to form a coalition of all state and national organizations in support of a Grain Sorghum Promotion Federation to coordinate and direct research and promotion of their crop.

The coalition was formed at a national meeting last February. National GSPA has a history of leadership in market development programs. As early as the mid-fifties, the national sorghum association, in cooperation with USDA Foreign Agriculture Service established export market development programs for all U.S. feed grains. This work led to the establishment, in 1960, of U.S. Feed Grains Council for export promotion of U.S. sorghum, corn and barley. The Council now conducts a worldwide program from its Washington headquarters and fourteen overseas offices.

In its charter meeting this month, the Federation adopted a plan of action to launch an aggressive sorghum sales program anywhere there is a feed grain market. That program will include livestock nutrition research and feeding demonstrations for livestock producers in the U.S. and overseas. Market analysis teams have been assigned to five market regions—the Middle East, Mexico, South America and Europe-USSR. These teams will travel to the region to determine why more sorghum is not being sold and to develop plans and implement programs to demonstrate the value of U.S. sorghum.

The formation of the Sorghum Promotion Federation was sponsored by National Grain Sorghum Producers Association and was approved by the state sorghum checkoff boards of Kansas, Nebraska and Texas in a

SLAKE IS BIRD KILLER

AGANA, Guam (AP) — As many as 25 species of birds once inhabited the island of Guam.

Five of these species were found only in Guam. Of these five, all are extinct in the wild, or nearly so.

Reasons are habitat loss, pesticides, hunting and disease along with the worst culprit, the brown tree snake, which was accidentally introduced to Guam at the end of World War II. The snakes multiplied and adapted their diets to include birds, eventually wiping out many of the native birds, says Animal Kingdom.

BY DIANNE PIERSON
Director

Two bestselling books about fashion and beauty are available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. They are "It's You" by Emily Cho and "High Performance Hair" by Jacob Neal and Gloria Byron.

To Emily Cho, the nation's leading image consultant, "It's you!" is the ultimate compliment for any woman. Those two words tell the world you're one of a kind...and that you know how to express your special individuality. Emily Cho and her partner, Neila Fisher, have developed a ground-breaking new fashion theory that lies at the heart of this book. It delineates the six image types of American style—Sporty-Casual, Classic-Elegant, Exotic-Dramatic, Arty-Offbeat, Feminine-Romantic, Sexy-Alluring—to help you understand that image type is the starting point of your individuality.

For each image, "It's You!" deals with dressing for the job at the administrative, managerial and executive level; for your life at home, after work and on weekends; for social occasions, including a casual evening at a friend's house, a cocktail party, and dinner at a fine restaurant. Emily Cho's previous books, "Looking Terrific" and "Looking, Working, Living Terrific 24 Hours A Day," changed the way women approached fashion. With "It's You," Emily Cho and Neila Fisher show you how to go beyond your image type to become what every woman wants to be—an original.

"High Performance Hair", the complete guide to hair care for the active woman, is also available this week. Jacob Neal styles the hair of many of the brightest stars in women's sports, including Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd, Pam Shriver, and Suzy Chaffee. Neal has been one of the major forces in transforming women sports stars from super athletes into superbeautiful women. No one knows better than Jacob Neal that every busy woman needs a hair care program that is quick and easy, and that will keep her looking her best around the clock. In "High Performance" he shares with women everywhere the personalized program he has created for his own exclusive clientele.

Once you've gotten a High Perform-

Girl Scouts set registration date

It's registration time for Girl Scouts. The Girl Scout Membership Caravan will be in Hereford on Thursday at the Hereford Community Center.

A "come and go" meeting will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to register girls in troops and to inform interested parents about the Girl Scout program. All girls and their parents are invited to attend the caravan.

Girl Scouting is a movement that gives girls from all segments of American life a chance to develop their potential, to make friends, to have fun, and to become a vital part of their community. Based on ethical values, it opens up a world of opportunity for youth, working in partnership with adult volunteers.

The Texas Plains Girl Scout Council, which is headquartered in Amarillo, serves Deaf Smith, Moore, Oldham, Potter, Randall, and portions of Carson and Swisher counties.

Miniskirt

According to The World Almanac Book of Inventions, the miniskirt was "officially" created in 1965 by dress designer Mary Quant in her store, Bazaar, in London. The skirt was worn predominantly by young women. At the same time, French designer Courreges was creating a haute couture line of miniskirts.

Couple wed Friday night at First Presbyterian Church

MRS. DOUGLAS PAUL SCHROETER
...nee Joyce Lynette Bridges

Joyce Lynette Bridges and Douglas Paul Schroeter were united in marriage Friday evening in First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Martha Bridges of 205 Brevard and the bridegroom is the son of Alex Schroeter of 705 Country Club Drive.

A brass archway candelabrum flanked by two brass spiral candelabra decorated the main church altar. Further enhancing the wedding setting were yellow votive candles and yellow bows. Family pews were designated by yellow bows.

The bride's mother served as matron of honor and the groom's father was best man.

Bridesmaids included Karen Wright, Sharon Wright, Sherrie Satterfield and Hope Saul. Groomsmen were Ronnie Echevarria of Amarillo, Bryan Kerr of Canyon and Bryan Peeler and Bryan Schroeter, both of Lubbock.

Ushers were Theron Grigg, Alan Wright, Charlie Kerr and the bride's brother, David Bridges.

Flower girl was Delia Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Olson, and ring bearer was the groom's nephew, Heath Kirkeby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kirkeby. Candles were lit by Becky Bridges, the bride's niece.

Mrs. Alan Gowdy and Mrs. Wes Gulley vocalized "Amazing Grace", "I Know Where I'm going" and "The Lord's Prayer." They were accompanied by Mrs. Stan Metcalf.

Given in marriage by her brother, David Bridges, the bride chose to wear an organza Princess A-line styled gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and an overlay of thin chantilly lace.

The high V-shaped neck was trimmed with sequins and patterned lace roses. The full-length chantilly lace sleeves were fashioned with large puffs beginning at rows of lace roses. A matching row of lace roses adorned the gown's skirt and the hemline was accented by a deep lace flounce and swept into a cathedral-length train.

A matching chantilly veil edged with delicate lace ruffles was attached to a floral wreath. The bride carried yellow roses arranged on a white lace fan accented by yellow and white ribbon streamers.

As something old, the bride wore her father's wedding ring; something new, a diamond ring given to her by the groom; something borrowed, her wedding dress and veil; and something blue, the traditional garter.

Bridal attendants were attired in floor-length yellow dresses designed with fitted bodices and full skirts. They were also fashioned with ruffled necklines and sleeves and accented by grey cummerbunds. The matron of honor and flower girls' dresses had elbow-length puffed sleeves. Each carried a long stem yellow rose with yellow and grey ribbons and the flower girl carried a white wicker basket filled with rose petals. All attendants' dresses were made by the bride's mother and aunt.

Special guests at the wedding ceremony were the couple's grandmothers, Sadie Bridges and Margaret Schroeter. Each was presented a long stem yellow rose by the bride and groom as they were leaving the altar.

Debra Schroeter of Canyon, the groom's sister, registered guests at the wedding and Dawn Olson invited guests to the registry table at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Theron Grigg served cake and Mrs. Neil Smith poured punch and coffee. At the groom's table, Brenda Schroeter of Amarillo, the groom's cousin, served cake and the groom's sister, Mrs. Dennis Kirkeby poured coffee.

The bride's three-tiered heart-shaped cake was decorated with a flowing water fountain and trimmed with yellow roses. The groom's cake featured two interlocking chocolate hearts. Also, served at the reception were mixed nuts, mints and heart shaped white chocolate mints monogrammed with the couple's initials.

The couple will make their home at 202 Lawton St.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Hereford High School and is employed by Brownlow Brothers, Inc.

The bridegroom, a 1981 HHS grad, is presently employed by Hagar and Associates Surveyors.

Out-of-town guests represented Amarillo, Lubbock, Sioux Falls, S.D., Mukwonago, Wis., Azle, Texas and Fort Worth.

The groom's father hosted a rehearsal dinner Thursday evening for members of the wedding party. It was catered by The Caison House.

Ann Landers

Another point of view

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read your column for more than 20 years and there have been times when I thought you were 180 degrees off course. But I wanted to hug you when you told off "Chicago Reader," who complained about having her appetite spoiled by the sight of a handicapped woman whose husband was feeding her in the restaurant.

The wheelchair lady had difficulty swallowing. Her husband was wiping up the food as it ran down the sides of her mouth. "Chicago Reader" said the sight was very unappetizing and that she was entitled to a pleasant meal for her money. When she complained to the manager he told her he was sorry but there was nothing he could do.

I am sure all America loves you for your terrific support of the disabled. God bless you, Ann.—Edna R., Also from Iowa

DEAR EDNA: All America? Well, not exactly. Here are some responses from several readers who hold another point of view.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I found your reply to "Chicago Reader" offensive. Has it occurred to you that everyone at some time in his life experiences sad events and it is not their divine right to burden the general public with their problems? Your attitude represents a trend that is gripping this country. We are becoming embroiled in everyone's problems all over the world—disease, starvation and dictatorships. No wonder we have turned to drugs, drink and sexual promiscuity.

Personally, I am tired of Jews in this country who assume the role of arbiter in all situations.—F. Z., Columbus, Ohio

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your response to "Chicago Reader" shows you are not very savvy. Would you believe there are many handicapped people who take great pleasure in flaunting their disability so they can make able-bodied people feel guilty?

I, for one, refuse to fall into that trap. Too bad you did.—Sacramento, Calif.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Usually you're right, but you were wrong to get huffy with "Chicago Reader." I am a picky eater with a queasy stomach. I have the right when I go out and pay good money for a meal to enjoy it. The sight of a woman in a wheelchair with food running down her chin would make me throw up. I believe my rights should be respected as much as the rights of the person in the wheelchair...maybe even more so, because I am normal and she is not.—R.L., Greenville, Miss.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your mean reply to "Chicago Reader" was uncalled for. She has a very good point. In my opinion, restaurants should have a special section for handicapped people—partially hidden by palms or other greenery so they are not seen by other guests. Slobberers, disabled or not, turn my stomach.—D.L., Tampa, Fla.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You owe an apology to "Chicago Reader."

She certainly was within her rights to complain about the woman in the wheelchair. Too many relatives of handicapped folks parade them around town, taking them to the theaters, movies, concerts, art museums and restaurants to show off how wonderful they are. They love to hear people call them "devoted"... "caring"... "dedicated." It's their claim to fame in life and they play the martyr role to the hilt. Wise up, Lady.—John K., Ithaca, N.Y.

DEAR READER: Please forgive me if I do not respond to these folks. They are too far gone for me to reach.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell The Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

El Llano Study Club members attend brunch

Jean Ballard served as hostess when members of El Llano Study Club met for a brunch in her home recently.

Serving as co-hostesses were members of the yearbook committee, Ballard, Avis White, Zula Arney and Donna Warrick. Members came dressed to the event in clothing appropriate for a summer activity in which they had participated in.

During the business session, a thank you from Alice Eades was read and the resignation of Billie Farr was accepted.

Also, a letter from the March of Dimes was acknowledged and volunteers were asked to respond.

The club voted to give $50 to the United Way. Also, it was announced that cake decorating classes at the Community Center will be given and the Barn House on Ave. B is opening.

The yearly club dues were raised to $10 in lieu of a club project. Also, it was decided to discontinue the exchange of secret pals.

New yearbooks were distributed to the following members: Ursalee Jacobsen, Helen Eades, Leona Kendall, Alice Eades, Mozelle Childers, Diane Hoelscher, Roberta Caviness, Dolores Foster, Karen Abney, Elizabeth Cesar, Sue Amstutz and the yearbook committee.

Recognized as a special guest was Karen Abney's mother, Mrs. Leon Zinck.

WATER, WATER

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II of Morocco, whose nation has just lived through five years of drought, is looking to the United States for more water.

The two countries, whose friendship goes back to an exchange of letters between George Washington and the Sultan Mohammed III, are cooperating on scientific projects to increase Morocco's annual rain fall by 10 to 15 percent. The project, due to end in 1989, involves scientists from both nations in a study of ways to increase rainfall.

The project also includes building dams to prevent water from running into the sea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur made his famous "I shall return" statement March 20, 1942, as he fled from the Philippines, which were about to be taken over by Japan.

Many pregnant officers can be transferred to desk jobs

By SUZANNE GAMBOA Associated Press Writer

A number of police departments across the state say they would transfer a pregnant patrol officer to a desk job if she requested the move, but at least one officer says she was fired for her "condition."

Generally, the larger the department, the larger the latitude for allowing personnel to change jobs or shifts when they are expecting a baby.

Lisa Lytle, a former Kaufman patrol officer, was fired last week after asking to trade her patrol car for a desk. Lytle, who is two months pregnant, said her uniform, bullet-proof vest and gunbelt no longer fit properly.

Because the uniform did not fit, she showed up to work in civilian clothing and was fired for insubordination.

Kaufman Police Chief Jack Lawley told the Dallas Morning News that because he only has 10 officers, he could not immediately grant Lytle's request.

For the Dallas Police Department, a much larger staff makes accommodating pregnant patrol officers easier, said personnel Lt. Larry Wesson.

"The way we handle it is once we're notified, if she wants to come off the street, we will go ahead and take her off. If she wants to stay on we let her decide when to leave," Wesson said. "If she decides she needs to come off when she first becomes pregnant... we'll work with her to get her off."

Wesson said his department probably could arrange a transfer in the same day and the officer would be allowed to wear civilian clothing.

Mrs. Lytle, who had been on the job one year, filed a complaint with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission on Sept. 5 — six days before she was fired.

Officials in Tyler require the officer to bring a doctor's note saying she should be removed from street duty, said Sandra Nauls-Mast, community relations officer.

"We did have that situation last year. She was wearing the uniform then it got to where the (gun) belt was too heavy, so she was transferred," Nauls-Mast said.

Nauls-Mast said a job switch probably would take a couple of days. The Tyler police department has 127 officers, she said.

Rowlett Police Chief Bill Fitzgerald said his department of 24 officers has no written policy dealing with pregnant female patrol officers because the situation has not arisen.

Officials in the Universal City Police Department also had not had the situation occur.

"We haven't made any separate policy on that because we would treat it like any other illness, because it really is no different," Fitzgerald said.

Just like an officer with a medical difficulty, a pregnant officer would be granted a transfer right away, he said.

In Austin, the department allows officers a six-week paid maternity leave, plus any unpaid leave an officer feels is necessary, but "they can continue to work up until delivery," said Kellye Norris, spokeswoman for the department.

But, in El Paso and Amarillo officers are automatically placed on desk duty, officials in both departments said.

"They are put on light duty automatically, filling a position where normal exposure to hazardous physical conditions is not present," said Sgt. Hank DiMatteo, El Paso police public information officer.

Lubbock officials said policy is to make an individual decision in each case, but pregnant officers are not required to leave.

"That's a decision that she and her doctor have to make," said Col. brought in."

Desk jobs at the Lubbock police department are filled by civilians, not medical disability, Bartlett added.

Plano Police Chief James McCarley said, "Each case is treated individually depending on the officer's abilities and experience."

Maternity leave provided by the city for all employees is available for police officers as well, McCarley said.

A signed letter by William Shakespeare would be worth around $2 million, according to "The Almanac of Investments."

Kindergarteners on hundreds of school playgrounds with hands above their heads, eyes skyward and faces smiling, will release thousands of brightly colored balloons into the Texas sky, on Tuesday.
 Releasing balloons will be the high point of a 15-minute heart-health lesson being taught simultaneously (9:45 - 10 a.m.) in schools across the state. The lesson includes basic concepts about the heart and blood vessel system, heart songs and the releasing of balloons, with students pledging to care for their hearts.
 These activities celebrate the kick off of the American Heart Association's statewide distribution of the Heart Treasure Chest. Governor Mark White has proclaimed Sept. 23 as Heart Treasure Chest Day in Texas. Heart Association volunteers will deliver 3,300 Heart Treasure Chests this fall to every accredited public and private elementary school with a kindergarten or pre-kindergarten program. The Heart Treasure Chest is a tested and award-winning, hands-on teaching tool that presents basic heart-health concepts to kindergarten-age students. It was developed by volunteers of the American Heart Association in Texas.

Approximately 150 Austin kindergarteners will participate in similar activities at the State Capitol, representing their fellow students across the state. Students, teachers, parents and guests will join officials in a balloon launching representing all Texas school districts.
 At the Capitol, a student will present a Heart Treasure Chest to Deputy Commissioner Dr. James Hill of the Texas Education Agency, simulating one of 1,100 presentations to local school boards, scheduled for the fall.
 "We anticipate that 50,000 kindergarteners and 2,400 teachers will release 100,000 balloons at 1,000 schools during the Heart Treasure Chest Day celebration," estimates Addison A. Taylor, M.D., president of the Heart Association in Texas.
 The Texas-sized program of balloon launches at schools in communities large and small, and a Heart Treasure Chest in every school, is made possible through a grant from the Houston Endowment, Inc.
 "The balloon launches will generate excitement for the arrival of the Heart Treasure Chests in schools," says Dr. Taylor. He adds, "We want teachers to be more excited to use the innovative curriculum, students eager to explore the treasures and learn about their hearts, and parents ready to reinforce the preventive messages in school."

 According to the American Heart Association, heart and blood vessel diseases are progressive in nature, originating in childhood. The Heart Treasure Chest fights heart disease before it starts.
 For more information about the balloon launch at the school nearest you, contact your local American Heart Association office. (See the attached list of locations and telephone number.)

A Flair for Design

This week we are going to discuss the element of Design known as "Form". The term "form" as used here is the outward shape of an object and can indicate either two or three dimensional objects. In the design of a room, form comes into play as we consider balance, dominance, harmony and a number of other principles. For example, it would take an extremely large chair to singlehandedly balance a 90" long sofa, so naturally then one would have to consider possibly two chairs, or a chair and table combination. Understanding "form", and how to use it in the design process will help you to know which pieces of furniture and art will work successfully in a given space.
 At FINISHING TOUCHES, we will be glad to assist you in any design process stages. Call 364-8870 for an appointment, or come by 501 East Park Monday thru Friday.

Play really cookin'

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

"Cookin' With Gus", the Country Squire's new comedy is ablaze with special effects. In the play a gypsy acts like a chicken, the cook, Gus, gets drunk on the word "cup" and a tremendous food fight just barely misses the audience.

Viki Boyle, in her 21st appearance at the Country Squire Dinner Theater, has bruises on her arms from the opening night performance. "Cookin' With Gus" is being performed Tuesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. in Amarillo with dinner at 6 p.m. The show will run through Oct. 4 and reservations can be made by phone at 358-7486.

The play begins with Gus (Viki Boyle) in the kitchen preparing a meal. Gus is a cooking columnist who later gets a television offer from her agent which requires a demo taping.

She has a crazy neighbor who is a gypsy played by Pegi Benson Lovett. The gypsy carries a traditional gypsy bag with everything in it including a bar that even features a pina colada mix.

Gus' friend, her pseudo husband, ends up hypnotizing the gypsy into acting like a chicken. Later Gus, because of her fear of cameras, is hypnotized by the word cup.

Everytime she hears the word, her body reacts like she's taken a shot of vodka.

When it's time for the demo tape to be made, the gypsy co-hosts and the agent puts a record on that sings about cooking.

"It takes a cup of this, it takes a cup of that, and cup-a-cup-a-cup-a..." goes the jingle that is to be the feature song on Gus' show.

By the end of the tape the gypsy and Gus are both smashed. The gypsy has been hypnotized into thinking she's Zsa Zsa Gabor and tries to steal the show.

Gus, just about skunked and almost unable to stir the food in the bowl, decides she's the star of the show and there the food fight begins with the camera rolling.

But this scene is only an inking of what "Cookin' With Gus" is all about.

Said Boyle of the play, "People don't realize the spice and cut of films. If the show's not funny on TV they can even bring in canned laughter. But that's not the way with this show, it's live and there's plenty of laughter."

Boyle recalled being in Hereford before. She said she sat through "many a football games with (the late) Archie Dwyer," a former Hereford resident.

PIPE

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Plastic pipe frequently competes with steel pipe for the same job, but sometimes using the two together answers the problems of handling corrosive fluids.

The steel pipe is used where extra strength is needed, says Phillips Driscopipe. The pipe then is lined with a polyethylene liner because of its resistance to chemical attack.

ELEPHANTINE APPETITES

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Elephants have not found favor here or elsewhere as house pets for more reasons than their huge bodies.

One other reason is that these tremendous animals must eat more than 300 pounds of food a day, ranging from grasses and leaves to twigs and bark.

Don't Be Afraid To Fall

You've failed many times, although you may not remember. You fell down the first time you tried to walk. You almost drowned the first time you tried to swim, didn't you? Did you hit the ball the first time you swung a bat? Heavy hitters, the ones who hit the most home runs, also strike out a lot. R. H. Macy failed seven times before his store in New York caught on. English novelist John Creasey got 753 rejection slips before he published 564 books. Babe Ruth struck out 1,330 times, but he also hit 714 home runs. Don't worry about failure. Worry about the chances you miss when you don't even try.

Goheen installs officers at recent auxiliary meeting

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 met in regular session on Monday night with Marie Goheen presiding.

Helen Bishop was elected chaplain and Betty Boggs was appointed as patriotic instructor to finish the terms of two members who moved away. They were installed by the president.

It was announced that the auxiliary will reveal the names of secret pals at the next meeting, Oct. 6.

The toys from the Buddy Poppy toy parade which was held at District 13 Convention are to be donated to the new child care center at King's Manor Retirement Home and the kindergarten classes at St. Anthony's School. They will be delivered this week.

Members present were Bishop, Boggs, Martha Bridges, Leone Buckley, Lillie Miller, Erma Murphy, Sadie Shaw and Marie Goheen.

The next meeting will be Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. with a supper preceding at 7 p.m.

Prints Presented

Bartley Dowell, right, presented several scenic prints to the president of Hereford Camp Fire, Betty Drake, in memory of Arthur B. Lewis and Hubert Dowell. The prints, depicting scenes in "America the Beautiful", belonged to Cassie Dowell and Helen C. Lewis. Dowell is also the founder of the Hereford Camp Fire Lodge.

Prints donated by founder of CF

Mrs. Cassie Dowell, founder of the first Camp Fire organization in Hereford, and her friend Helen C. Lewis have donated a set of framed scenic prints as a memorial to their husbands, Hubert Dowell and Arthur B. Lewis.

The prints depict different scenes of "America the Beautiful". One of eight pictures is hanging in a separate room at the Hereford Camp Fire Lodge honoring America.

Mrs. Dowell recalled how she got involved with Camp Fire. When she was a young girl she saw an ad for a Camp Fire book in Ladies Home Journal.

Mrs. Dowell had asked her "papa" for the quarter to send for the book in 1914. That same year she started the first Camp Fire group in Crosbyton.

Later, when she and her husband moved to Hereford, the first Camp Fire Lodge was begun here in 1928.

Mrs. Dowell has made several donations to the Hereford Camp Fire Lodge throughout the years including baskets made by Indians in 1916. She has also given memorials in honor of friends who have died.

According to Helen Langley, "She has always had the spirit of Camp Fire in her heart as she remembers its fine programs and ceremonies for building character of our young people."

Mrs. Dowell now resides in California but she seems to always remember the Camp Fire organization here.

Vertical blinds suggested

Looking for a way to give your home a contemporary look without costly redecorating?

One suggestion offered by designers is the addition of vinyl vertical blinds, which are available in a wide range of colors to match any interior design theme.

One style of blind allows for the incorporation of various inserts — such as fabric, woven wood or wall covering — for a change in decor.

The blinds also can help keep rooms cooler in the summer and cut down on fuel bills during the winter because of vinyl's insulating properties.

Sales of ready-made and custom-made blinds and accessories have increased in recent years, and one survey estimates that more than 12 million consumers between the ages of 18 and 49 purchased ready-made drapes in 1985.

"Homeowners are looking for drapes that are sturdy, easy to maintain and affordable," says Dale Stroud, a marketing director in B.F. Goodrich's vinyl division, who notes that vertical blinds are an economical alternative to traditional drapes, which have to be dry-cleaned.

He adds they also fill the bill for rooms where furniture and floor coverings are the focus, and a complementary window treatment is needed.

Most vitamins found in balanced meals

Your body needs food for energy and for creating and repairing tissues. It also needs a variety of complex compounds that, like spark plugs in a car, provide neither fuel nor structural material but are essential for smooth running.

According to the Texas Medical Association, vitamins are such compounds. Although your body can manufacture some vitamins, notably vitamins D and K, most of these compounds come from the foods you eat.

Severe vitamin deficiency is uncommon in this country; when it does occur, it usually is due to prolonged faulty eating habits, alcoholism, gastrointestinal disorders, or long-term neglect. Vitamin deficiency diseases that were once quite common, such as scurvy or pellagra, seldom occur now because many foods are fortified with vitamins and nourishing foods are available year-round.

Slight vitamin deficiency is more widespread. Neglected, undernourished children or elderly people who often do not eat properly may not show symptoms of vitamin deficiencies, but they have few reserve stores of vitamins to help withstand the stresses of serious illness or injury.

The chances of having a deficiency in any one vitamin depend mainly on two factors. First, how available that vitamin is in your diet, and second, how effectively your body can store it. Luckily, most vitamins are present in many foods.

If you eat a varied diet of fresh food and expose your skin to plenty of sunlight to increase vitamin D reserves, you will probably provide all the vitamins your body requires, as long as there are not defects in your metabolism.

Vitamin pills may not harm you, but you are unlikely to need the extra-large doses of vitamins they provide and, in some cases, an especially high dose can be harmful. This is particularly true of vitamins the body can store efficiently, such as vitamins A and D.

In rare cases, in which lifestyle or unalterable habits establish a diet that is clearly deficient in vitamins, vitamin pills may be necessary. To avoid an overdose, consult a physician for advice before you begin taking any vitamin pills regularly.

Nine of our states got their names from the rivers that flow through them — Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin.

1987 La Plata annuals may be ordered through Sept. 26

The 1987 La Plata Junior High yearbook staff will begin taking orders for the 1987 annual Monday and continue through Friday, Sept. 26.

At the time an order is placed, the full amount or a down payment of $5.00 may be paid. Second payments will be due in December.

La Plata students may order an annual before school every day this week in the front hall of the school. Orders may also be placed during the day with staff members, Camille Betzen, Jennifer Betzen, Stacey Cochran, Wendy Emerick, Tammy Holmes, Regina Lewis, and Gail Walterscheid.

In order to receive an annual when they are delivered next May, students must order one this week. Yearbooks are $11.50, plastic dust covers cost $1.00, and students may have their name stamped on the front cover for an additional $2.50.
