D. E. Program Interviews Set

Kenneth E. Hart, new teacher-coordinator of the Distributive Education department at Hereford High School, will discuss the coming year's program with interested junior and senior students who plan to enroll for the vocational training program this week.

Hart said he would be at the north end of the high school Agriculture Building from 8 to 10 a. m. Monday through Friday this week. He emphasized that students who would like to take D. E. should contact him whether they are seniors or not.

The annual Distributive Education program at the high school is on-the-job training in retail, wholesale, or service selling business such as selling, shipping, receiving, advertising, display and interior decorating. ## Carrot Harvest Beginning Here; Maize Looks Good

With the harvesting of onions and potatoes nearly complete in Deaf Smith County, vegetable sheds are beginning to prepare for a huge influx of carrots within the next two weeks. Recent rainfall has helped the coming crop of maize, but has not slowed irrigation much, farmers report.

Quality vegetables have fed a "slow" market so far this year, vegetable shed managers reported Friday. The bulk of potatoes and onions will be harvested within the next 10 days, they reported.

Maize growers expect a large crop as last year, in spite of the huge price support cut announced earlier this year. Many say they would plant as much or more grain shortly after the support drop was announced.

Floyd Cole of Frio said his crop has suffered no storm damage to speak of, and he expects to harvest about Oct. 1. He said his crop, planted about the middle of May, looks good.

Harold K. Shearhart of Dawn expects to harvest about the last of September. He planted about the same amount of maize this year as he planted last year, and reports no storm damage.

As he planted his crop the latter part of May, H. H. Miller of Dawn expects to harvest a little later. He did not plant as many acres this year, he said, and his crop looks very good.

H. D. Robbins said his crop received about two inches of rain last week, but he is still irrigating. His crop also looks good, he said.

AAA Truck Service reports that onions will be processed for about three or four more weeks and potatoes will be packaged for about two more weeks at that shed. Workers there said carrot processing has already begun and will be in full swing in about two weeks. Associated Growers said lettuce processing will begin about Sept. 20. Market on lettuce and carrots is expected to be good. They said weather has affected onions in acreage.

Jack Renfro sheds report that onion processing has ended there, and that carrot processing has begun. Market on carrots has been slow, but is expected to improve. Quality has been high on all vegetables processed there, they reported, but market has taken a back seat.

The bulk of potato and onion processing will be finished sometime this week. Hereford Growers and Shippers reported. Direct seeded onion harvest will (Continued on page 2)

Exchange Youths Arrive By Plane

Hereford High School's American Field Service exchange students will arrive in Hereford Wednesday to begin their year of American study.

A 17-year-old Copenhagen, Denmark, boy, Flemming Hansen, and an 18-year-old girl, Miss Liisa Marjatta Niinisto of Hakkana All-Arkilla Salo, Finland, will arrive by plane in Amarillo at 9:50 p. m. Wednesday evening from New York City.

The pair sailed Aug. 10 and will leave New York at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Miss Niinisto will make her home with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. "Buck" Parsons, 114 Ave. J. Hansen will live with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Skypala, 510 N. McKinley.

Hansen is the first male exchange student to study in Hereford. He is sponsored by the Hereford Lions Club. Miss Niinisto is sponsored by the high school Future Homemakers of America Chapter.

Hansen's American brother will be Eddie Skypala, 15, who will be a junior next year at Hereford High. Nancy Parsons, 17, who will be a senior this year, will be Miss Niinisto's American sister.

Hansen, the son of a laboratory worker, attended Fredricksberg Gymnasium high school in Hollandsderve, and Miss Niinisto attended Salon Yhteislyseo, Salo, high school. Her father is a tool and die maker in Finland.

Hansen speaks German, French and Latin and has studied English for six years. Miss Niinisto has studied English five years and speaks German and Swedish in addition to her native language.

Hansen has two sisters, ages 14 and 20, and Miss Niinisto has a 20-year-old sister.

A SIX AND ONE-HALF foot telegram was sent Friday to the members of the Hereford Little League All Stars at Snyder, wishing them good luck for the game played Friday night. ## AFTER LEADING FIVE INNINGS:

Homer Tilts Hereford, 4 - 3

One heartbreaking run dashed Hereford's hope for victory and a trip to Norfolk, Va., when San Antonio dropped Hereford 4-3 in the semi-final game of the state Little League Championship Friday night at Snyder.

Taking a lead in the first inning, Hereford held a two-run margin over San Antonio, when at the last inning, Paul Peters socked one over the fence to tally three scores for San Antonio.

A desperate attempt to regain the lead failed for Hereford in the last chapter of the game.

Scoring began in the bottom of the first inning, when Charlie Moreno advanced to the first base on a walk, and Mike Ranspot and S. D. Balze combined hits to bring Moreno in.

A blank inning by both teams was followed by a third inning, when San Antonio's Ed Joseph scored to get his team off the ground.

Hereford pulled ahead in the bottom of the third inning, when scores were tallied by Moreno and Steve Conaway and a 3-1 score was established to remain for the next two innings.

In the final inning, Bill Strong and Jim Garner got on for San Antonio and Peters came to bat to clobber his game-winning homer.

The winning pitcher was Strong, who relieved Joseph at the end of the second inning. Mike Ranspot went the distance for Hereford.

San Antonio was scheduled to meet Galveston Saturday at 7:30 p. m. for the final game of the tournament.

Former Residents Follow Biblical Footsteps In Asia

The path of the Apostle Paul was followed by Lt. Col. Charles A. Bell and his family while they were stationed for two years with North Atlantic

Political Asylum Usually Granted Revolutionaries

By TOM HORGAN

In 1860 the commander of a British warship delivered William Walker, the American-born president of Nicaragua, to Honduran troops and a firing squad ended his life. Walker's execution was one of recent history's most notable exceptions to a tradition among civilized nations of granting political asylum.

The United States has its share of political refugees. The most recent influx was from Cuba. Fulgencio Batista fled to the Dominican Republic when ousted as Cuban President by Fidel Castro, but many of his followers came to the United States.

While most nations open their doors to political refugees, the custom of granting sanctuary is far from legally defined or governed.

A Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1948, says:

"Everyone has a right to seek and enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution. This right may not be invoked in the case of prosecutions genuinely arising from non-political crimes or from acts contrary to the purposes of the United States."

This, however, is not a law but a declaration of intention and is not legally binding.

The latest political asylum case involving this country was that of Gerhart Eisler, the German-born Communist who in 1949 slipped aboard a Polish ship in New York.

The British took Eisler off the ship at Southampton, and the United States asked that he be returned to this country to serve a sentence for perjury. A British court ruled Eisler had not been convicted for extraditable offenses and he was released.

United States Navy regulations seemingly do nothing to clarify the rules of political asylum. Picture the commander of a naval vessel faced with this definition:

"The right of asylum for political or other refugees has no foundation in international law. In countries, however, where frequent insurrections occur, and constant instability of government exists, usage sanctions the granting of asylum; but even in waters of such countries, officers should refuse all applications for asylum except when required by the interests of humanity."

Navy Secretary Tracy's instructions to Adm. Brown during the 1891 civil war in Chile were no more exact: "Your ships will not, of course, be made a refuge for criminals. In the case of persons other than criminals, they will afford shelter whenever it may be needed. The obligation to receive political refugees and to offer asylum, is in general, one of pure humanity."

Occasionally political asylum has a humorous side. During a Peruvian revolt an alleged leader, Haya de la Torre, sought embassy, which refused to give him up. The Peruvians dug a trench entirely around the embassy to prevent his escape. After lengthy diplomatic wrangling, de la Torre was freed to go on his way.

But Walker's case was perhaps the most unusual. He entered into a Nicaraguan revolution, emerging as the country's strongman. Eventually he was elected president.

War with neighboring republics forced Walker to flee and he surrendered to United States forces. After the United States Navy once thwarted his plans to return to Nicaragua, he again organized an expedition and sailed for the Latin American country.

Finding British and United States ships guarding the shores, he landed in Honduras where a revolution was in progress. He joined the weaker side, and later surrendered to a British warship.

Her skipper suggested Walker claim American citizenship, but he retorted: "The President of Nicaragua is a citizen of Nicaragua."

Instead of granting Walker asylum, the British officer turned him over to Honduran troops. He was court-martialed and led before a firing squad.

Crew Clears Houston Harbor

HOUSTON (AP)—Louis O. (Pete) Deshazo is a remarkably successful fisherman who casts about daily in the Port of Houston harbor. His catches total more than 1,000 tons a year.

Deshazo and the crew of his small vessel fish for debris littering the harbor. His job as harbor control officer is to keep it free of anything that might pose a navigation hazard.

On a day's jaunt they may hook anything from a tree limb to a full-sized barge.

Deshazo, skipper of the "Port Commission No. 1," and his engineer-helper, Arnold Sporn, have worked together for 15 years. Deshazo himself has worked the harbor and ship channel for 30 years.

Their targets are logs, barge and even craft which have been stranded. They once moved a barge 200 by 75 feet to clear the way for channel traffic.

But garbage is probably their prime sore spot. Efforts to educate litterbugs, they say, have been futile.

"Some people just have to be told, but others have to be shown," Deshazo says.

The crew once picked up enough wood to build a pier. The Port Commission had only to pay for nails and labor for the structure.

At Ephesus, the Bells found a group of archeologists from Austria in the process of digging in the remains of the city. When the Bells were there, a third of the old city had been uncovered.

One of the most interesting temples in Ephesus, in the opinion of the Bells, was the temple of Serapis, an Egyptian god. The Bells found temples of various gods in Ephesus.

At Didymus, the Bells visited the temple of Apollo. This is the second largest pagan temple of the world. The construction of this temple continued over a period of 350 years and still was never completed.

The Bells visited Sardis to find an American archeological team working on the remains of this city. The team had uncovered the palace of King Cresus and were continuing digging in the area. The Bells explained that these archeologists must take a long period of time to work on the remains of the cities, because every shovel full of dirt must be sifted to uncover any artifacts that might be in the dirt.

The first coins minted were found at Sardis. Some of these coins of gold and brass are in good condition. Others have been deteriorated by time.

"Really, two years is not long enough to see all there is to see in Asia Minor," commented Mrs. Bell. "We would like very much to return later and see what has been found."

Commenting on foreign relations, Bell explained that Turkey was one of our strongest allies. Bordering on Russia, the Turks are strongly pro-western in their sympathies.

"As a matter of fact, Bell remarked, "the Turkish nation is trying to become as much as possible like the United States."

The Turkish have been a backward nation, only having attained freedom from the Sultans 35 years ago, but they have instituted a system of compulsory education and the government is becoming increasingly democratic, he said.

"The Turks have made tremendous progress in the last 35 years," Bell pointed out, "and I believe that they will make much more progress in the next few years."

Another interesting city visited by the Bell family was Prienne. This city showed a pioneering spirit in city planning. It was a home of talented artists and architects. These people were driven out by the Persians, who destroyed the city, but the inhabitants of Prienne moved to Greece to start the Greek classical period.

On their way to the United States, the Bells visited in Germany and southern Europe, observing that Germany had made much progress in reconstruction. Bell commented that it is difficult to even tell that there had been a war in Germany.

Bell's next duty station will be in the Air Command Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

REMEMBER WHEN?

By Charlie Seeds

One of the great comebacks in the history of sports is still talked about by the fans who were there. It was a classic struggle between Ohio State and Notre Dame on the football field.

Ohio State led 13-0 deep into the fourth quarter. The great Notre Dame star William Shakespeare had been forced out of the game. His substitute, Andy Pilney, came in to take charge of the Irish. Suddenly, with bare minutes to go, he caught fire. Pilney passed and ran, unstoppable, driving his team to two quick touchdowns—but the extra points were missed! State still led, 13-12. It was all over but the shouting.

Then Notre Dame recovered a fumble. Pilney drove them down field—but with time remaining for only one play, he was carried from the field. Then Shakespeare hobbled out for the last play. He faded back to pass—complete for a touchdown... and a victory that added to the legend of the Fighting Irish, who won, 18-13.

Remember the year? Car buyers were shouting that year about a new trend... cars in bright colors! Some buyers weren't too sure... they still leaned toward black or dark blue.

The year was 1935. There's no more colorful beauty on the road this year than the new 1959 FORDS. And you can own this bright, powerful beauty for less than you think! Whether students are learning dictation, dissection or downfield blocking, photography is playing a key role in American education today... through audio-visual programs.

Filmstrips, sound and silent films, slides, television sets and even tape recorders and phonographs are being used by educators, according to experts at Bell & Howell Company, producers of photographic equipment.

Evanston Township High School, in suburban Chicago, is typical of the many schools expanding their use of audio-visual tools to meet increased student loads.

Such equipment is also being used to present specialized material essential to a sound secondary education.

Evanston, like other schools and colleges, obtains many films from rental agencies and gets free films through placement companies from the nation's business and associations. Some instructors provide their own educational materials by shooting slides during summer vacations.

Audio-visual materials also play a role in television education via filmed programs being shown over the nation's educational stations such as WTTW-TV, Chicago.

Many of the programs shown are on film. WTTW-TV has an extensive program of TV classroom instruction including some for which college credit is given.

Whether the student is watching a television set in a family living room or on a screen in a classroom, audio-visual materials are making a necessary contribution to education at a time when over-crowding is almost chronic in the nation's schools and the need for better education is greater than ever.

Talking Magazine Helps Sightless Students

A new and unique educational tool for the blind has been added to the American school curriculum.

Now, current affairs in the world of politics, science, literature, the arts, etc., can be enjoyed by the blind student thanks to NEWSWEEK'S "Talking Magazine." This is the first all-news publication to be "printed" regularly on phonograph records for the benefit of the sightless.

The recorded copies — consisting of four, long-playing 12-inch records and containing the entire contents of each weekly issue — are being used regularly by public and private schools for the blind.

In addition, Braille Institute branches, libraries and other establishments for the sightless from coast to coast, are subscribing to this new medium.

The project — a joint, non-profit undertaking by Newsweek and the American Printing House for the Blind, is regarded by leaders in educational work for the blind — as "one of the greatest contributions in years!" They feel it fills a long-standing gap that blind junior high and high school students have encountered in their search for news.

News content — as in the printed magazine — is departmentalized, a table of contents is both printed in type and in Braille on each record.

The first issue was produced Jan. 1, 1959. So far the project has cost over $50,000. The present cost of the recorded issue — $3.50 — can be reduced appreciably as circulation increases, according to officials.

Educators feel that Newsweek's "talking magazine" will help give greater stimulus to student discussion groups and provoke a greater interest among the sightless students in many other facets of current political, scientific and cultural life.

A NEW LEARNING "TOOL" FOR THE SIGHTLESS is NEWSWEEK'S new "Talking Magazine." Each weekly issue is recorded completely on four, 12-inch long-playing records. The project—a joint, non-profit undertaking by Newsweek and the American Printing House for the Blind, feel that here of last is the proper instrument for creating greater interest among blind students in current affairs, politics and other aspects of daily life.

Too Many Cars Is Continuing School Hazard

Pedestrian accidents may be one of the big dangers for youngsters headed back to school.

"The current trend," said the National Safety Council, "is to drive everywhere. There's a growing notion that children shouldn't walk even a couple of blocks to school."

"This," it said, "has resulted in lots of students driving to school (and driving around during lunch hours), and parents taking their children to and from school every day."

"Students driving to school means increased danger to them and their companions. They also add to the already present danger to pedestrians."

Parents who drive their children to school create a bottleneck around the building. The great number of autos around schools, where hundreds of students are walking, increases the danger to pedestrians — even more.

Accidents, according to the Council, are the No. 1 cause of death to the nation's more than 35 million school-age children.

About one out of every seven pedestrian deaths involves a child 5 to 14 years of age. Children get hurt in pedestrian accidents in a variety of ways — crossing between intersections, high school driver training with after-dark instruction.

Be prepared for any emergency. Carry some emergency lighting or reflectors that can be seen several hundred feet away.

In an emergency, get your car completely off the road.

Avoid roads that do not have modern, reflective signs.

Keep windshields clean. Do not wear sun glasses. Light levels are so low at night that cutting them down even further is dangerous.

Slow down about 10 miles an hour from normal daytime speeds.

SCALED-DOWN version of father from cap to his brief case! This young man knows how to return to learn... with everything he needs inside the handsome ginger-colored leather case. It's washable.

playing on the road, dashing from behind parked cars and jaywalking.

What about the car as a hazard to students?

Nearly six million motorists are teenagers. One out of 10 drivers in a fatal auto accident is a teen. Main fault of young drivers in auto accidents, according to the Council, is a tendency to speed.

"Only kids who lack confidence in their popularity," the Council believes, "need to show off behind the wheel of a car."

Driving a car is an adult responsibility. The driver's seat is no spot for immature show-off — and that's just what kids are if they "horse around" with horsepower.

Young people who drive to school should slow down to keep themselves and their companions alive.

Night Driving Training Lacking In Schools

"Among persons 15 to 24 years of age, traffic accidents account for nearly 40 per cent of the deaths from all causes," reads a solemn report from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Safety officials long have recognized the importance of reducing the number of teenage fatalities on the highways.

One of the results is that 61 per cent of all recognized high schools now have a driver-training program of some sort.

The National Safety Council says that students who have completed a high school driver training course have an accident rate about 50 per cent lower than that of untrained drivers.

Safety experts also recognize the fact that many of these high school driver training programs are far from adequate. For example, according to Dr. A. R. Lauer, head of the Iowa State College driver training laboratory, only one U. S. high school instructs students in night driving.

Yet, night accidents account for more than half of all fatal crashes.

Parents are urged by traffic safety experts to supplement

Returned Strength, New Players Make Whitefaces

The Hereford Whitefaces face a football season with the return of 11 varsity players and a strong array of fresh players from the B team when the team takes the field in its first game Sept. 11.
 Hereford will take the field for its first game with five outstanding players who have distinguished themselves on the field last year. This strength will be bolstered by the support of players who have graduated from the B team of last year.
 Hereford won one game last year and it is expected that they will face similar opposition this year, but the Whiteface team will be stronger in experience than it was at the beginning of the 1958 season when they fielded a virtually inexperienced team.
 Another factor which will pay off in the long run for the Whitefaces is their youth. The majority of the team is either on the sophomore or junior level and will be virtually untouched by the ravages of graduation next spring.
 Hereford is slated to have its first gridiron tilt Sept. 11 when it meets the Canyon eleven at Whiteface stadium.
 Other games on the docket for Hereford are Dimmitt Sept. 18 and Plainview, also played away from home Sept. 25. Oton will invade the Whiteface Stadium Oct. 2 and the Whiteface team will journey to Roswell for a game.
 The Whitefaces will enjoy a breather Oct. 16 before they journey to Oklahoma City for a game Oct. 24.
 Littlefield will come to Hereford Oct. 30 and the Whitefaces will go to Dumas Nov. 6. After a Nov. 13 game at Levelland the season play will end Nov. 20 when Hereford plays Phillips on Whiteface field.

Good Eating Habits Should Begin Early

Don't force a child to eat! He knows what food he likes, how he likes it cooked, and how much of it he wants. And, most important, he'll eat if he's hungry.
 A solution to problem eating is to encourage him to play quietly and relax just before eating, and if mealtime conversation is cheerful, his appetite will improve naturally.
 Color plays an important part in enticing your child to eat. Food items with lots of eye appeal will stimulate his interest in eating, especially if the food is simple, lightly seasoned, and easy to eat.
 Variety in your meals is another important appetite inducement. Be sure to include all the basic elements of good nutrition such as: Leafy green and yellow vegetables; Citrus fruits, tomatoes and raw cabbage; Potatoes and other vegetables and fruits; Milk and milk products; Meat, poultry, fish or eggs; Bread, flour and cereals; Butter and fortified margarine.
 Last, but most important element in enticing your child to eat, Food items with lots of eye appeal will stimulate his interest in eating, especially if the food is simple, lightly seasoned, and easy to eat.

Banks Help To Teach 'Practical Economics'

Even the youngest school age children are learning the basics of economics, thanks to a sound educational program being conducted by banks throughout the United States.

Banks are promoting school savings banking in both grade and high schools; providing scholarships given through state bankers associations, regional banking groups, and individual banks; conducting bank tours, and in general helping to teach young people the economic facts of life.

According to a report by Jean M. Turano, chairman of the Committee on School Savings Banking of the American Bankers Association, there are 5,175,000 pupils of 15,500 elementary, junior and senior high schools in 37 states who have a total of $181,195,000 on deposit in school savings accounts in 714 banks.

This savings program is considered to be one of the best ways of teaching the very important lesson of thrift.

Today, with the relatively new popularity of credit buying, bankers are recognizing they have an obligation to assist young people in learning to maintain a sound financial program and to prevent them from becoming overburdened by debt.

Three Church Delegates Will Attend Meeting

Jonna Lee Blocker of Hereford, delegate from the First Methodist Church, and Mrs. O. L. Citek and Mrs. Elmer Kimball, counsellors, also delegates from the church, will leave Saturday for the National Convocation of Methodist Youth which will be held on the campus of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 24-28.

From 50 to 60 Northwest Texas Methodist Conference youths are scheduled to attend the meeting. Theme for the five-day convocation is "Man's Need And God's Action."

Six thousand youth, adult workers with youth, students and student workers will gather at Purdue. Every district of the five Methodist conferences of the State of Texas will have several representatives.

In morning and evening sessions in the mammoth Edward C. Elliott Hall of Music, delegates will observe two major themes unfolding: in the morning the theological convictions of the church about God's action through addresses by Carl Mehalson, James Thomas, Melvin Wheatley and Chester Pennington.

In the evening they will follow an exploration of the present human situation through drama, jazz, dance, the arts and important personalities such as Eleanor Roosevelt.

Pre-School Nursery Is Important

There are many reasons for placing a child in a play school, nursery school or day nursery, but whatever these reasons are, they should always take into account what is best for the child.

It is well to remember that few children are ready to profit by several hours of group play with other children away from their homes until they are two-and-a-half or three years of age.

Having decided that you are making the desirable or necessary move, choosing the nursery school or day nursery is a matter of real importance.

Since no two approved centers are identical, it is wise to visit the nursery school ahead when the school is in session; take your youngster along so that he may see the children at play and perhaps play with them briefly.

It is difficult for one untrained and inexperienced in nursery school procedure to actually know all of the fine points that make up a good nursery school. However, there are certain fundamental matters that any mother would recognize as being important.

First, are rooms clean, light, attractive, free from crowding and confusion? Is the play equipment adequate, clean and in a good state of repair?

Does the school require pre-registration physical examination and immunization?

Does the center guard against the spread of communicable disease by careful reporting of communicable-disease contacts? Does it have morning health screening on arrival of the children? Careful isolation of the child who becomes ill during the day?

Does the daily program provide for adequate nutrition and rest?

Most important, do the children appear to be active, interested, spontaneous and happy?

This is the vital key to whether or not your child will be happy in this school.

Good Looking Male Clothes Go Schoolward

Boys will be boys, but this fall they'll dress like the men in fashions that play up fabric, color and Continental styling.

Suitings are light in weight (10 1/2 to 13 ounces) but are a hard finish as in worsteds; blends of wool or worsted with orlon, dacron, acrilan or zefran. There's also a new interest in hopsacking in both suits and sport coats.

And as for sportcoats — which boys go for — Shetlands, Shetland types, hopsacking and the "good ole" flannel blazer jacket all come to the fore!

Dark tones... as in olive browns... black-olive... charcoal are lively-looking. Traditional background tones are newly sparked with blues, greens, golds and burgundy.

Brown seems to lead for fall... greys are a very close second.

Neat checks, Glen and shadow plaids, muted stripes, as well as the traditional herringbones and birdseyes are particularly interesting in patterns.

In the boys' and youths' departments, you'll find dozens of variations on Continental themes:

Coats are a trifle shorter and more tapered than the Ivy — some have one button; others two or three — there are peaked, semi-peaked and even shawl collars.

Some have lapel pockets, others don't! Some have trousers with adjustable waistbands, still others are shown with straight fronts; others with pleated fronts.

Some trousers have back pockets; tabbed, flapped or plain... others none at all; some trousers have western-type pockets or slanted welts in the pleat pockets.

Cutaway front or not — the Continental is here in an infinite variety of detailing to suit every boy's taste!

CHANGING TIMES
STERLING, Colo. (AP) — City Hall records reveal just how much times have changed. In October, 1908, the Sterling sugar factory used 19,500 gallons of water and paid $7.32 for it. A half century later, the factory used 10,986,000 gallons of water in one month and paid $732 for it.

Theodore Gill, Harold Stassen and Roger Ortmyer.
In the afternoon there will be more searching through involvement in interest groups, the arts and conversations with the bishops of the church.

The Southern Methodist University Choir of Dallas, will furnish all choral music. Dr. Ortmyer, professor of Christianity and the Arts in Perkins School of Theology of SMU, has written and will direct the opening program for the convocation.

Both Boys And Girls Want A Smart Watch

One of the most popular back-to-school gifts for either girls or boys is a watch, according to a recent survey made by the Jewelry Industry Council.

This same round-up reveals highlights of features that teenage girls and boys expect to find in the jeweled-lever watch.

The younger teenage girl prefers a watch of simple appearance in a neat round or square shape, that can be worn with a sturdy, but narrow gold or gold-filled expansion bracelet.

For the girl of sixteen and over, preferences indicate that a slightly more sophisticated type of gold or gold-filled watch is wanted - but still small and trim in design.

Matching metal expansion bands of gold or gold-filled or colored leather bands are equally popular.

The younger teenage boy wants a sturdy watch, but he wants it to be slim and attrac-

GIELGUD AS DIRECTOR NEW YORK (AP) - After a notable season of acting in this country in his one-man Shakespearean show, Sir John Gielgud is returning next fall as a director.

The noted star will oversee transfer to Broadway of "Five Finger Exercise," current London hit by Peter Shaffer.

The older boy, sixteen and over, follows the preferences of younger men on watches, both with respect to appearance and inner construction.

He wants a jeweled-movement watch that is wafer thin in appearance and also water and shock resistant. In short, he wants a dress-up watch that can stay dressed-up in looks and still lead a rugged life.

By JIMMIE GILLENTE
When school opens in a couple of weeks, approximately one out of every four persons in the United States will be gathering in classrooms around the country. In turn, this means that some 3,000 boys and girls in the Hereford area will enroll to create a sharp dent in the help market, including farms, retail stores, theatres and the vegetable industry — to mention only a few.

It is amazing, though, when you stop to recall that one out of every four persons in the country is attending school. No wonder it is such an expensive process.

A lot of people have been asking if we will have an assistant band director this year. I asked Dub Hair, board president, and he says, "No." The item was set up in the budget and is a post which is definitely needed, according to Dub. However, the board this year faced a gigantic task in whittling their budget to keep from raising taxes — and this was one of the places they had to chop. Dub said they also cut out one coach. The board dislikes this cutting as much as everyone else, but it seems to be a case of not being able to eat your cake, and still have it.

COWARD PLAY DUE
NEW YORK — Noel Coward has completed a new play which he describes as "fairly serious" and is entitled "Waiting in the Wings." The script is scheduled for staging first in London, followed by Broadway presentation.

engagements during the next seven weeks, including five in the Houston territory. He figured this would be a tough area for him, but things seem to be working out to his advantage. Price Daniel and Waggoner Carr are both still on the fence but, if Daniel runs, it is probable that Will Wilson may not announce. I figure this would definitely be to Marshall's advantage, chiefly because it would be hard for Daniel to get elected to anything — even the office of Cattle and Hide Inspector in Deaf Smith County these days.

Kenneth Rudd is an old boy who invariably surprises me by popping up in unexpected places. Recently he emceed a Toastmaster program, and did a remarkably good job. Somehow or other, I would not have figured you could talk Ken into joining the Toastmasters — even for money. However, when he puts his shoulder to the wheel, things usually begin to move. This is fairly typical of a lot of Westway folks. They specialize in getting the job done and usually have a lot of fun while they are doing it.

Robert E. Thompson also handed me quite a jolt the other day when it developed that he is a topnotch swimmer, and a diver of no mean ability. He was the only one among the "old folks" who would go off the tall diving board at all, and he did a pretty fair job for dry land West Texan.

President Eisenhower, meanwhile, is soaring in public popularity. When he out-manuevered "Mr. Sam" Rayburn in the House on the Labor question, you might say he hit a peak. It is the only time since Roosevelt that a U. S. President has gone over Congressional heads to the people. Most folks in these parts are also better pleased with our foreign situation, since Ike is calling the shots instead of leaving decisions to the Secretary of State as was his policy with Dulles. The reason, chiefly, is because we seem to be making some headway.

If Ike had pursued these policies throughout his administration — and insisted on balancing the budget — history would likely have recorded him as a much stronger president and a national benefactor. Dixie Dee West, Hereford meter maid, is beginning to have problems, too. Does she give these midget foreign cars a full Homer calculates the library may be out of business for a couple of weeks, which should be sufficiently long to accumulate some nice fines — or save some — as the case may be.

CARDS AID RESEARCH
WASHINGTON — A simulated aerial missile war is being staged by the aircraft industry with a stack of punched cards, says Planes, official publication of the Aircraft Industries Assn.

The magazine says the object of the program is to provide much of the flight data necessary for engineering study. The punched cards, representing all the operations in the air defense missile's ground guidance equipment as well as the performance characteristics of the missile and target aircraft are fed into electronic data processing machines, and duplicate the flight of a missile to within 200 feet of an actual flight path.

ticket on a red meter, or do they get a half price rate? I guess it turns out like when I go to the barber shop. They always charge me full price, the same as if I had a full head of hair. Sometimes, you just can't win.

Losing the Little League game to San Antonio in such a heart-breaking fashion is enough to get anyone down. However, I keep imagining what would have happened had the tables been turned and Hereford, in the last inning, barged out a home run to cop the important game. Folks would have literally gone nuts around here — and that's for sure.

On the other hand, going into the three-state finals is an accomplishment of considerable note. I am sorry on behalf of the boys, but they sure don't owe anyone any apologies. It's been a long, long time since any Hereford team went so far and did so well. I am mighty proud of every one of those kids and their coaches. They did a wonderful job, which reflects nothing but glory on our community and our town.

School Buses Represent One Million Miles Riding

BY LARRY BOSSE
BRAND STAFF WRITER

Before they graduate there will be some students who will ride more than a million miles in school buses in order to get to school, remarked Bob Wilson, supervisor of school buses for the Hereford school district.

The Hereford school district is one of the largest in the state, covering 70 square miles of territory. To serve these students 21 bus routes are run daily covering about 1,825 miles of road.

The longest route for school buses is made by a bus which runs out in the northern part of the county. This bus covers an average mileage of 125 miles per trip. Students riding this route find themselves in the winter months catching the bus before sunrise and getting off the bus after school long after dark.

Weather often causes a problem for the school bus routes because of road conditions. Roads are well maintained by the county commissioners, who cooperate well with the school bus drivers by fixing the potholes over half the roads the buses go on unpaved.

"We have to keep running in spite of the weather," Wilson said. "We can't sleep in the hotel and we can't feed them, so if we got them to school, we have to get them back."

This often means that a truck has to be dispatched to pull the bus out of the mud.

Road and maintenance problems are not the chief worry of the bus drivers, though. Other drivers are the cause of greater headaches and grey hairs for them. It seems that Texas drivers are not too observant of state traffic laws that require vehicles to stop before passing a leading or unloading school bus. "It's pretty well impossible," explained Wilson, "to know what a kid is going to do when he gets off the bus. He is just as likely to run across the street and be is to do anything else and a driver flying by the bus has a good chance of hitting somebody."

Wilson has encouraged his drivers to report the license number of vehicles that obstruct school buses and he will report them to the highway patrol.

A well equipped garage is maintained by the school for the care of the buses. "This is the most paying thing the school board has. If we sent our work out to the commercial garages we would be in the hands of a receiver in less than a month," Wilson said. One mechanic and a service man work full time doing everything from filling the gas tank to pulling major engine overhauls. Sometimes Wilson helps the mechanic keep the 35 units of the Hereford school fleet rolling.

One project that has been accomplished in the garage this summer has been the conversion of one of the buses to carry hand instruments and uniforms. Before this bus was converted, it was necessary to pack all the hand equipment in a truck and send it accompanying the bus on school trips. Although the truck was covered with a tarpaulin, this provided scant protection from the weather and left hand uniforms in a somewhat rumpled condition.

The bus is fitted with pipe racks and has had all but two of the seats removed for the hauling of the instruments. Many miles are driven on extra tractors for the band and football team. Last year these trips took Hereford buses in trips totaling 23,643 miles. Hereford's football district title

Gay Young Things Shown For Misses

As co-eds, teens and 'twens go back to school, they often are the trend-setters and style-pickers for coming fall fashions for their moms and older sisters.

Highlighting back-to-school fashion themes are some "way-out" variations on popular "notswear" and classic fashions.

With an eye to comfort and color, solid color blazers top patterned pants and skirts and vice versa. Loose-at-the-waist jumper tops give a one-piece look to their slim skirt partners. Bold, colorful shirts in deep-tone hues are casual and smart. Bright, bling-pleated skirts over solid-color tights give nomenclature to the skight costume.

Also few are pained on camel trousers — soft and yummy looking in separates.

Colors are off-beat, stressing "mugs", greens, shaded browns and muted brassy. Red, turn to the waxy tones. And, everywhere white, dewy, spiky, and stand out in bold relief to their darker-color counterparts.

And as for sweaters, — wow — what excitement!

Soft brushed surfaces are everywhere — they're soft to the touch, rich-looking to the eye and smart additions to every gal's wardrobe.

Then too, there's interest in

School Improvement Groups Finish Ten Years Of Work

This year, 1959, marks the tenth anniversary of the citizens' school improvement movement which dates back to the formation of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools in May, 1949.

At that time, only 17 citizens' committees were working for school improvement; today, there are at least 18,000 in communities from coast to coast, as well as 41 state groups.

Not only have these committees worked to build school facilities for an ever-growing school population, but they have helped get and keep good teachers in the classrooms... have helped improve the curriculum and, most important, have kept up a running stream of information about their schools.

According to the president of the National Citizens Council for Better Schools, Henry Toy, "Without the help of the average citizen during this past decade, our schools would be in very serious trouble indeed."

Mr. Toy adds that, "This decade of concern has shown the average citizen what he is capable of doing," and that this success in school improvement, "would be matched by other successes in other areas of our community life that needed help."

The story of the past decade...

Did you know that pencils are a comparatively new innovation? Pencils were made for the first time in the United States only 100 years ago. Before that school children used slates and chalk or charcoal.

Better Schools, "will be met only when citizens in community by community decide on what they want their schools to accomplish and then join together to get the job done."

The job already done by citizens, said Toy, "is immeasurable," and he suggested that this century might very well be called the Century of the Citizen.

Many school districts are still too small to provide adequate high school training for children headed for college or career. "These issues," according to Better Schools, "will be met only when citizens in community by community decide on what they want their schools to accomplish and then join together to get the job done."

The job already done by citizens, said Toy, "is immeasurable," and he suggested that this century might very well be called the Century of the Citizen.

Kids Read More Books Thanks To Library Clubs

Want to encourage your child to read more books and to possibly acquire the reading habit for life? One way is to encourage him to enroll in a branch of the Library Club of America.

This unusual club is non-profit; it neither sells nor recommends books but simply encourages children to read by awarding merit badges as they do in the Boy Scouts.

Reading four books entitles a child to a membership button; reading ten, to an honor pin.

For reading an additional eight books and pledging to read at least two books a month after that, he becomes a "life member," and is awarded a gold-stamped pin.

There are no dues to pay and no requirements for admission other than the child be of school age.

Each chapter decides what type of report is to be submitted as evidence a book has been read. Some require written reports, others oral, and some will accept drawings of incidents or characters in the book.

Other than rolling out comic books and "trash" clubs usually don't tell members what to read. But club records indicate that, left to themselves, the children have shown surprisingly good taste in selecting reading matter.

Children's classics lead the "best-seller" list in many clubs, and books on music, biography, and science are popular, too.

Just LCA chapters are organized by principals of schools, teachers, or librarians, headquarters in school or public libraries. There may be a chapter in your community.

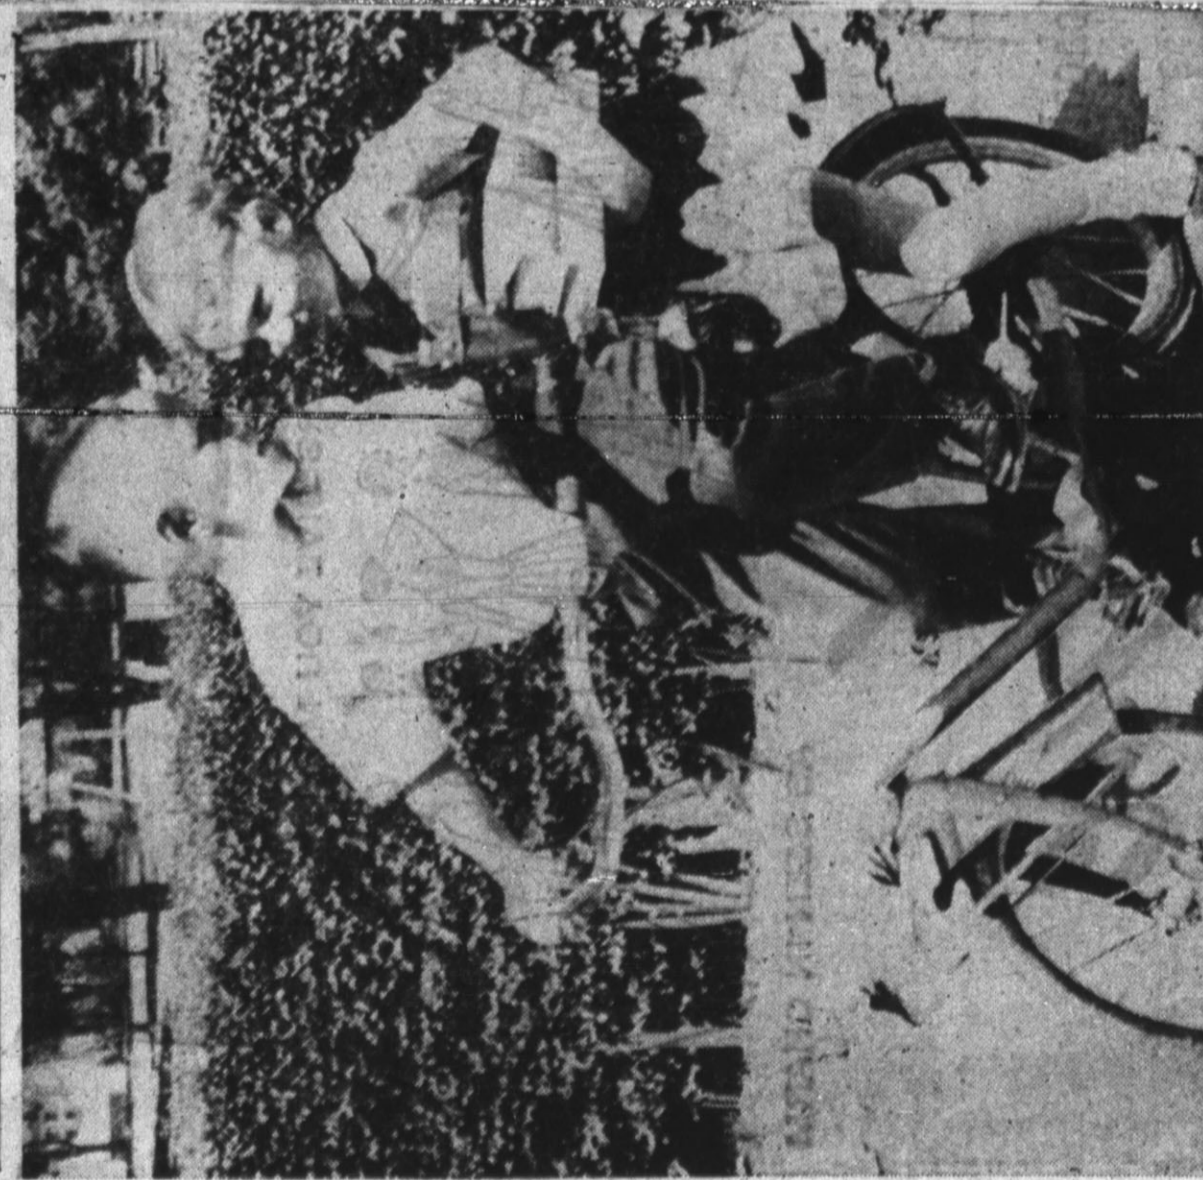

If not, any interested group may form one by writing to the Library Club's national headquarters, 25 West 44th Street, New York 36, N. Y., for a free charter and guidance in setting up the program.

Membership buttons, pins, and a decorative banner bearing the club's motto, "Readers Are Leaders," are priced at cost.

Most People Do!

"PLEASE, Mr. Motorist, take it easy going by schools and driving along school routes. We will be playing and walking to school," say Ross Hardwick, left, a Shirley Elementary first grader and Kay Lynn Alexander, a first grader at Northwest Elementary.

Traffic Safety For Doubly Important For School

The opening of school means a congestion of children and young people in school yards playing and on the streets coming and going to school. It also means that drivers will have to pay special attention to driving and traffic safety.

A program of safety eye-bathes in effect by the Hereford police department, which will use all means of publicity to remind drivers that school is starting and to use extra caution around school zones.

In addition to the publicity, three special patrolmen will guard the crossings for Shirley, Alkman and Central Elementary schools to assist the students in crossing streets in this area. Hereford policemen will make appearances at the schools to lecture on walking and bicycle safety.

Police Chief Henry Aycock offers these tips to children going to school: "If you are walking, don't play along the way. Don't run or push your playmate into the road. Remember there is an automobile that might want to use the road then."

For bicycles, Aycock advises against racing. They should maintain a single file at the side of the road.

One of the things parents who bring their children to school should pay special attention to is the loading and unloading of the students. Aycock recommends that the parent insist the children get in and out on the curb side of the car and never unload into traffic.

"There is no special problem caused by high school students with automobiles," Aycock remarked. "It seems like we have a problem because the cars are concentrated, but we have the same kids driving the same cars all summer."

Aycock went on to explain that a small percentage of the high schoolers with cars thought that they had to drive fast and flashy, but these could usually be controlled by the police talking to them or having a conference with their parents.

Often the police assist in the driver education program by explaining traffic laws to the young people and the need for the laws.

"Really, the ideal situation," Aycock remarked, "is for all the kids to give as much attention to driving in their own car as they do to driving the school driver education car."

GUTHRIE EYES BROADWAY

NEW YORK — Tyrone Guthrie, a British director, has agreed to supervise the arrival of "The Dobbak" from Woodhaven on Broadway next fall.

The play by Paddy Chayefsky is being produced by Saint Suber and Arthur Cantor. Guthrie recently completed staging of "All's Well That Ends Well" for Stratford-upon-Avon's centennial season.

If waffle batter is thick, it will probably have to be spread to cover waffle iron surface.

Male Teens Eye Continental But Ivy-Styling Still Liked

The need for acceptance is important in the minds of school-going boys!

And a proper back-to-school wardrobe will help a lad obtain confidence in himself so that he can feel acceptance.

The Wood Bureau recommends that careful attention be paid to outfitting the young high schooler.

The first day book provides Junior with an opportunity to show off his "Continental" outfit which is styled just like his big brother's. Junior's Continental is proportioned to his physique, yet retains the same details found in suits for the college man.

Because many young boys are self-conscious of their appearance, the wood-sensitized jacket has some shoulder padding to make him appear taller and more broad shouldered.

Jacket is shaped, too, and in keeping with the authentic Continental look. It sports two — not three — buttons. Pockets come slanted. And of course, seams, no flaps. And of course, deep side vents provide a true Continental flavor.

One thing more: matching trousers on the Continental come with side tabs. Don't worry about how they stay up, they do! And last but not least — have them altered without cuffs. Cuffs on trousers are a thing of the past!

Harold Dressler, stylist for the Wood Bureau, has scouted prep shops all over the country and reports that the fall '59's important colors in fine wool worsted suits are in the brown family.

For school, weekend dates, movie-going, partying, high school boys will look their best in the new "burnished" tones, and in subdued tones of olive green, dark grey, brown.

Wood takes to these dyes like a duck to water. In tailoring, too, only wool gives an authentic Continental impression.

Check into class in a checked pattern or a neat striped plaid. Stripes aren't as popular as they have been in the past.

About the easiest wearing fabric is wool hopsacking. Hopsacking got its name from the Here's good news for bludgeoned families! A new process has been added to all-wool sports stacks. Called "Sp-50-Set," it is a permanent creased treatment that gives many hours of extra wear to every active boy's wool slacks wardrobe. It is often called a "permanent crease." Mothers, look for this label if you want extra wear from your boy's slacks.

To keep children's feet healthy, here are some pointers for parents to follow: Don't permit child to wear shoes without insole.

Hosiery should extend one-half inch beyond the toes. Feet should be bathed and powdered every day.

Flexible leather sole, outside should be worn for school and play.

Shoes should be fitted one-half inch longer than the foot.

Problems, Plans Are Counselor's Business

BY LARRY ROSSER
HEAD STAFF WRITER

Schedule problems, college plans and personal problems, the counselor's business. It is the job of the school counselor to help the student find his way into the future. The function of the counselor is to provide guidance to the student, to help him make the most of his opportunities, to take care of such mechanical functions as registering students, giving permanent records and giving guidance on schedule changes.

An important function of the counseling office is to administer a testing program, giving tests and interpreting them for the school as well as administering college entrance and scholarship exams.

The counseling office provides an insight into the student's mind, through the interpretation of the results of tests given to the student, testing his IQ, achievement and personality, provide information for the guidance of the student and his teacher in dealing with him.

Throughout the twelve years of attendance in public school, the student has given to him a series of tests, the results of which are posted in his permanent record. An average file will show results of more than a dozen specialized tests.

Usually the student will have his first meeting with the counselor in the fourth grade. Here he is given an intelligence test, which is usually followed by a battery of achievement tests through junior high school.

A criticism of the testing program is that educators have gone overboard on testing and are using the program to stratify students. There is a movement fostered by eminent educators to determine the subjects taken by students on the level of their intelligence, but this is not the objective of the counseling program.

These tests measure certain things and provide significant information to the teacher which, used in conjunction with the student's attitude in class, his classroom work, and his personality, become a part of the teacher-pupil rapport. Another function of the counseling program is to provide guidance in selection of a vocation. Part of this vocational guidance comes from the administration of a vocational interest test in the students junior year. This, combined with personality tests administered in the 10th and 12th grades and a career day provide a means of determining the type career a student is interested in, and to guide him in preparing for this vocation.

1959-60 School Year Sees Many Changes

When the school bell tolls the knell of the summer vacation, students will find considerable changes in what they will be doing this year.

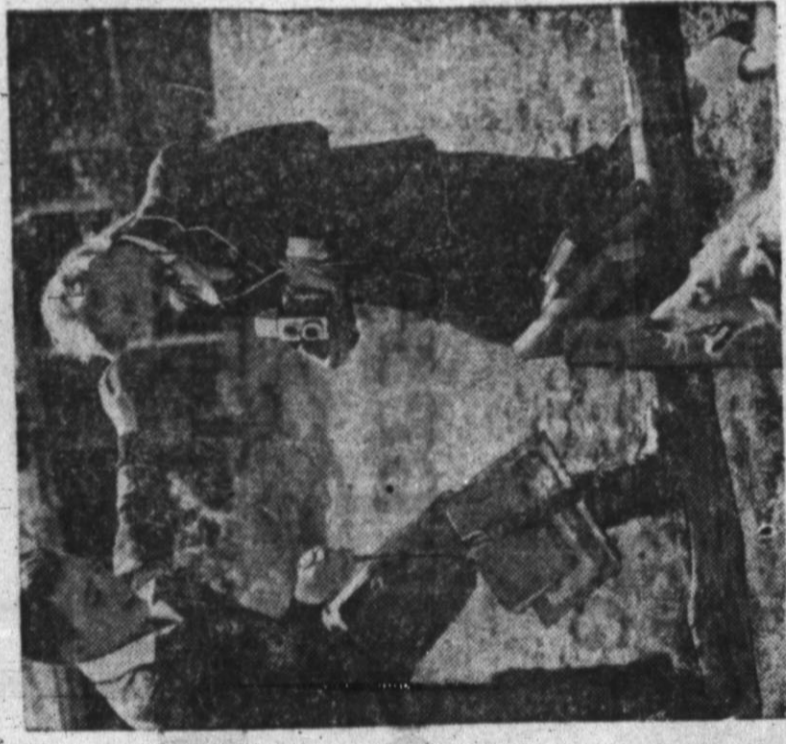

One more grade added to Stanton Junior High School will change the curriculum here by adding driver education and the first year of vocational courses. Junior high school before only offered the seventh and eighth grades and this year the ninth grade will be added.

Those students who take the option of the eight o'clock classes will also have the option of taking seven periods of class work if they wish by taking five subjects and adding band, choir, journalism, or work on the annual, the office for librarians, they may take four subjects and add any three of those courses. They will have the option of taking School this year and six semesters, English I, II, and III are required for graduation, but students may satisfy this extra science for graduation.

Students may satisfy this extra science requirement by taking either two senior sciences like physics, chemistry or biology or by taking one senior science and taking two years of vocational agriculture or home making.

High school students will have the choice of when they go to school this year as they did last year. There will be classes offered at 8 a.m. for those who can arrive at that hour. Bus students will begin their school day at 9 a.m.

Those students who take the option of the eight o'clock classes will also have the option of taking seven periods of class work if they wish by taking five subjects and adding band, choir, journalism, or work on the annual, the office for librarians, they may take four subjects and add any three of those courses. ## Student's Hobby Is Important To Good Study

Students are advised to have English, which will be important for students planning to do college work.

Journalism is added as an elective and the journalism class will publish the Whiteface, the school paper.

The Math Department requires Algebra I for graduation, but it offers a varied selection of other math courses. Algebra II, the second year of that math course, is advised for those who complete Algebra I with a good grade and a selection of plane and solid geometry, trig and advanced mathematics will be offered for the mathematics majors.

A selection of the social studies department offers World, American and Texas History, as well as civics, economic and global geography.

French, Spanish and Latin may be taken by students interested in linguistics and a selection of speech, radio and dramatics will be offered by the speech department.

Spaced fields of study are offered by the commercial department, vocational studies, art and music. Credit is given for some other activities such as distributive education and office assistants.

Parents Should Teach Children Bicycle Safety

According to safety experts, parents have the responsibility of keeping a bicycle safe for their child to ride. They should check the following parts to see that they are in good working order:

WARNING DEVICE: It is important that it works properly. HANDLE BARS: This should be adjusted to body height. STEM KEPT WELL DOWN. REFLECTOR: This must be visible 300 feet. COASTER BRAKE: This must be adjusted. LIGHT MOUNT: Should be checked for damaged links, must fit secured. TIRES: Air pressure should be checked. WHEELS: Wobble should be eliminated, wheel nuts and oil bearings tightened.

The fifth of bicycle injuries involve vehicles with some mechanical defect, and two out of three riders injured usually violate traffic rules. Parents, and children, too, should concentrate on keeping to bikes in good repair, and learn and obey traffic rules and regulations.

Foster-Poage Vows Read In Double Ring Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony read Saturday afternoon, Aug. 8, in the Trinity Methodist Church of Amarillo, Miss Eula Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Foster of Beckley, W. Va., became the bride of Hugh Elliott Poage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Poage of Tulsa.

The Rev. J. Frank Peery, pastor, was the officiant. Mrs. Laverne Corder of Hereford, organist, presented wedding music and accompanied Bob Callahan, soloist.

The bride's brother-in-law, John E. Harrah, escorted her to the altar where sunburst arrangements of yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums, flanked by greenery and cathedral tapers, were placed. The bridal aisle was marked by white satin bows.

Mrs. John E. Harrah, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor and Mrs. Bill Boggs, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. James Hale assisted as bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of pale green taffeta and green crystalline, and carried French colonial bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. All accessories were in white. Susan Kay and Mike Harrah acted as flower girl and ring bearer.

Norman Poage, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and groomsmen were Brent Joy and Jerry Don Herndon of Tulsa.

The bride was attired in a ballerina gown of white silk peau de sole designed with chantilly lace and tulle overskirt. The portrait neckline was outlined with lace embroidered in seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her veil of illusion was attached to a regal crown and pearl earrings picked up the pearl accent trim. Her lace covered Bible, the gift of the bridegroom, was topped with a white orchid showered with white carnations.

The bridegroom's mother wore a beige chiffon dress using pink accessories and a garnet rose corsage.

At the reception held in the church parlors, the bride's table was laid with a lace cloth and held arrangements of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Assisting with the hospitalities Mrs. Bob Harmon, Miss Donna Lynn Word, Miss Patricia Norvill, and Miss Kay Johnson.

The bride graduated from Pocahontas, Va., High School and from Beckley West Virginia Business College. She is presently employed with Sinclair Oil and Gas in Amarillo.

Poage graduated from Tullia High School and attended Baylor University. He is now employed with the Texas Department of Public Safety as a Drivers License Patrolman.

Among the many social affairs given in Amarillo to honor Miss Foster before her marriage were a coffee and kitchen shower given by Mrs. Carey Godwin, a personal shower given by Mrs. Bob Harmon, Miss Antoinette Baird and Mrs. Gordon Craig, a miscellaneous shower hosted by Miss Donna Lynn Word and Mrs. James Hale and a breakfast given by Mrs. Duane Mires.

Upon their return from a brief honeymoon trip the couple will make their home in Amarillo at 442 Parker St.

PRACTICES NOT AUTHORIZED

As these people read God's word for themselves they learn that there are certain practices being observed in their Churches which are not authorized in the Bible. Therefore, they want to be loyal to God and refrain from unlawful teachings and practices.

GO BACK TO PENTECOST

If each person today could go back beyond Catholic and Protestant denominations (divisions) to the time when only the Lord's Church existed, he would learn that the Church of Christ was composed of every Christian. He would learn that in the beginning of the Lord's Church there were no divisions or denominations.

NOT POSSIBLE THEN

Christ's Church had no authority to formulate doctrine or teaching, therefore no Christian could make the statement: "I do not believe everything my Church teaches," because the Church was based on the inspired word of God alone. He might as well have said, "I don't believe what God's word teaches." The Church of Christ remains the same today.

BE JUST A CHRISTIAN

Today it is possible for everyone to be just a Christian, and belong to the divine institution established by Jesus (Matthew 16:18). Members of the Church of Christ (Rom. 16:16) cannot make the statement, "I don't believe everything my Church teaches" for the Church of Christ today is governed strictly by the word of God in name, organization, membership, creed, mission and unity. You are invited to investigate the Church of Christ near you today.

GRAIN SORGHUM ESTIMATES FORESEE NEW RECORD YIELD

Viewpoint Of Guinea Pig Differs From That Of The Lab Technician

U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates the Texas grain sorghum figures well above last year's huge 273,066,280 yield. This estimate compared with the 10-year average of only 96,256,000 bushels is staggering indeed.

The surprising thing about the anticipated record yield this year is the fact that it occurs in face of drastic cuts in support prices on milo. This is especially true in our own area, where producers frequently declare they cannot produce grain sorghum under irrigation and break even on current support price levels.

The answer probably rests on the fact that, although this area previously produced most of the grain sorghum yield in Texas, the crop has spread during the past five years to the point where other areas combine to almost double production on the Plains. Most of these new producers, however, raise grain sorghum as a supplemental crop—and not as their "cash" or chief income crop.

Rainfall, too, has been abundant, and this is always conducive to large yields in Texas.

"If they are losing money, why do irrigation farmers continue to plant grain sorghum?"

This question is the one which generally pops up, sooner or later, and we must admit that it is logical. We recently heard a big-scale producer give the following answer, which is also logical:

"What else can I plant I have no cotton acreage, and practically no wheat acreage, due to allotments based on crop history of my land. Besides, I have to do something. The best thing seems to be that of going ahead and doing the best I can."

In addition, California feeders have been paying above-market prices for milo in this area when it is available from farm storage. Numerous producers, who can finance the holding of their grain, plan to pursue this route.

The other route, which The Brand has pushed extensively is that of feeding the break-even grain to livestock. The idea is based upon the theory that if California feeders can pay for the long haul and make a profit, local feeders can make a better profit in the ever-expanding market in Texas.

In addition, there is always the possibility that the grower may have been slightly prejudiced in his calculations. While he may not be getting rich, he could still show a meager profit on a good crop.

In addition to the local situation, which is not to be sneezed away lightly, outcome of the farmer under present grain sorghum props is quite likely to prove or disprove Mr. Benson's apparent theory of eliminating farm supports as we have known them on high levels. The entire nation may well view the plight of the grain sorghum grower with interest.

Here at home, it is another story. How it turns out pretty well decides the immediate future of every resident in this section of the High Plains. As guinea pigs in the experiment, our outlook is bound to be different from that of the laboratory technicians.

Orchids For A School Teacher

The Hereford Brand would like to join the Board of Trustees of the Hereford district in extending appreciation to Miss Sadye Rigler, who resigned her position in the Hereford schools this year to retire after 33 years of continuous teaching in the school system.

Needless to say, one of the greatest remunerations of the teaching profession is that of genuine satisfaction for a job well done. The fact that several of her former students now serve the same school system in responsible capacities no doubt means much to Miss Rigler, and she can count hundreds of others who have been successful in all types of business and professions.

Devotion to her training methods, along with personal interest in her students, are to us outstanding achievements of Miss Rigler in her chosen field. Invariably, those who took her courses have made good to exceptional records in universities and colleges—and very often these records have paralleled the ones they made in Hereford.

Not everyone can be a school teacher, but we know of no other profession which exerts so much influence upon the community, the state and the nation. So long as we have school teachers of the professional ability, caliber and high standards as those of Miss Rigler, our country will be in good hands.

It is a pleasure, therefore, to join her former students around the world with a word of sincere appreciation to an excellent teacher and a good citizen in behalf of a grateful community and thousands of appreciative parents.

Miss Sadye Rigler, we do appreciate all you have done for us, and we wish you well in the years to come. Our greatest loss, we know, rests with those future generations who will not benefit from your guidance and personal interest.

'Centers' Shift With New States

Texas pride as "the largest state," dented sharply through admission of Alaska, may be soothed a bit with release of new U. S. centers in geography and population.

The United States' newest geographical center is now in Oregon, more than 1,000 miles away from the old center in North Central Kansas. However, the population center of our nation shifted only 17 miles after the two new states became part of our union; it is now 17 northwest of its old location in Southern Illinois.

The only possible conclusion is that

The POWER of FAITH by Howard Brodie

When Don Bosco was a farm boy in Italy, he learned to walk a tightrope stretched between two trees, and required that friends who wanted to watch him should say a prayer by way of a fee.

Wanting desperately to become a priest, he studied after doing farm chores and, at the age of 16 managed to start to school with the help of neighbors who contributed shoes and sacks of produce to the project. These he sold in order to buy books.

Every two months, while working for his keep with a baker, a shoemaker and a tailor, he managed to make up a year's schooling. Finally he had his wish and became a priest. And always he was mindful of youth.

First he taught an orphan in Turin to read and write. The orphan brought six more street boys to him. They played, prayed and studied together. Soon there were 20 boys, then 100.

Finding no welcome in town, they met in the fields for sports, prayer and counsel. As the number grew to 400, Don Bosco bought a shed. The boys transformed it into a chapel. At night it became a classroom.

Jobs were found for the boys. Their moral vigor changed the community. Additional centers were formed in Italy, France and Spain. And thus Saint Don Bosco founded the Salesian Society, with centers, schools, missions and clubs in 73 countries.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Local Residents Tell Of Favorite Speakers

Who is the most engaging or fascinating speaker you have ever heard? Why?

PACK BROGDON—I think the most fascinating speaker I have ever heard was Stuart Harrel, public relations director of Oklahoma University. He was the type of speaker who could completely hold the listeners' attention. He could have the audience just as serious as could be one minute, and the next minute he could have them laughing in the aisles. All this he could do without ever changing the method of his speaking.

URLIN STREU—Generally speaking, I don't hear many speakers and can't give much of any opinion. I do kind of like to listen to myself, though. I find my own audience and myself in complete accord with each other's ideas.

IRVING ALEXANDER—The most engaging and fascinating speaker I have ever heard was Franklin D. Roosevelt. His command of the English language was far superior to any speaker I have heard since. His famous speech in which he repeated the names, Martin, Barton and Fish will forever remain in my memory as one of the greatest speeches I have ever heard.

BOB LAMM—I think I'd rather hear Fulton J. Sheen than any other speaker. He has an excellent style of delivery, uses gestures in exactly the right places and at the right time and has an excellent voice with excellent voice gestures. He has the most interesting material, shows the most preparation, has a great amount of wit and humor and is always pleasing to see and hear.

CHARLIE MARTINEZ—The only speaker I have really paid any attention to is General Eisenhower and I guess the only reason I've listened to him is because he's President.

GENE MOORE—I really can't think of any speaker who stands out in my mind as being the most engaging or fascinating one I have ever heard.

while the two new states add much territory to our nation, they still remain to be developed and populated.

Texas has 30 persons per square mile, and California has 68, while many of the so-called Western states can count fewer than six persons per square mile. Alaska, of course, will be extremely low in the coming census count in 1960. While the territories of Alaska and Hawaii open new frontiers and afford a challenge similar to that once offered by the area in which we now live, their change in status from territory to statehood can be expected to make little immediate difference in our national economy.

COUNTRY CLUB RENEWS DRIVE

Dimmitt Country Club enthusiasts set up a crash program this week in an effort to bring in the remainder of their self-imposed quota of 200 members. The new sales program is based on two sales teams of 20 men each. The two teams are on a drive that will end at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22. At that time they will all meet at the Community Room of the First State Bank to compare sales. The team making the most sales will be guests at a charcoal steak supper, on Monday, Aug. 24, to be furnished and served by the losing team. At present about 85 people have actually signed up and twenty or so more have said they will. Very few have said they couldn't go at all. Promoters of the project are highly optimistic about the possibilities of a new country club. Memberships in the organization are being sold for $500 each, either all cash or $100 down and two years to pay the balance. The site selected is on the Joe Butler place about a mile southwest of Dimmitt.—CASTRO COUNTY NEWS (Dimmitt)

IMPROPER USE BLAMED

Reports being received by Postmaster Leo McLellan recently from H. P. O. clerks indicate that improper use of the outside box located on the north side of the post office building is being made. Recently McLellan received a long distance call requesting that patrons of the local office be informed more fully regarding the use of this box. It was installed and is serviced to improve service between Friona and other towns. The only pieces of mail that should be dropped into the box are first class mail addressed to out of town places. Postmaster McLellan stresses the fact that this does not include bulk mailing of any kind. He also states that it is important that local merchants be very careful in sorting the mail for the box and see that local merchants be very careful in sorting the mail for the box and see that it does not contain locally addressed letters or any for Lazbuddie, Black or Summerfield. Unless we can improve the situation, there is a possibility that we may be deprived of this service. Clerks on the H. P. O. buses cancel all mail by hand and complaints are being made about the volume mail of what they term "unnecessary mailings" they are required to handle.—FRIONA STAR

The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his bindweed farm has gotten wind of Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United States, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor: Right now, me and Washington are doing a lot of thinking and planning about the forthcoming visit of Premier Khrushchev, the Russian dictator, but we're thinking and planning in exactly opposite directions.

Here's the solution: Khrushchev has never visited the United States before, all he knows about the country is what he's heard, and he's heard that from his fellow-Russian propagandists who are notorious for telling about how down-trodden we are over here, how half the country is starving, and all the wealth is owned by two or three families.

And a bunch of Washington thinkers are getting ready to open his eyes.

For example, Khrushchev says he wants to visit an American. What will the Washington experts do? They'll pick out a big, modern farm, owned by a man who's probably a bank director or a grain dealer on the side and has the last word in equipment, and Khrushchev will look it over and go back home and tell his slaves, all right, get to work harder, America is way ahead of us in agriculture.

Now what Washington ought to do is pick out a farm that's, well, a farm sort of like mine, all right, pick out mine, and let Mr. Khrushchev come out here and look around. Let him see a pasture full of weeds, fenced that're falling down, crops over-run with bindweed, bony cattle, a 20-year-old tractor with two flat tires, etc.

Then Mr. Khrushchev will go back to Russia and say, Take it easy, we got nothing to worry about, American agriculture is on its last legs, we got 'em whipped already.

This is a fine opportunity to win a great propaganda war, but I'm afraid Washington's not up to this type of advanced thinking. What it'll do is try to dazzle him, and it will, but he won't resign his job and take up residence here and join the Republican party. What he'll do is go back home and drive his slaves harder.

But if Washington should switch and decide to show Mr. Khrushchev my farm, let me know in advance. I want to let the air out of the other two tires on my tractor.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

Harvest...

(Continued From Page Four) cluding Texas Farmers Union Service Corporation and International Safflower Corporation have made definite plans to construct a safflower processing plant in the High Plains area which will assure a permanent future market for all of the safflower produced in this area.

Farmers who are producing safflower this year have a guaranteed price of $62 per ton. The entire production of this crop this year will be processed for seed and made available to farmers throughout the Plains for planting a crop next year which is expected to total nearly 100,000 acres.

He said the crop is easy to plant and grow, and that no new tools or implements would have to be obtained. The same tools the farmer uses on wheat, cotton or grain sorghums could be used.

Safflower produces good yields, he said, and the seed is about the same size or larger than wheat. It contains 14 per cent protein and 30 to 37 per cent oil.

It makes a good supplement in the feeding of livestock he said, and added that it would not be harmful to livestock eating residue of the crop.

Corn said the crop could probably be planted up to June 1, but advised planting between March 15 and May 15, with 20 to 25 pounds on dryland and 25 to 35 pounds on irrigated land. Corn would not predict acreage in this area, but said 1,200 pounds to the acre would be quite successful. He warned the farmers to expect both "good and poor" yields. The highest yield he had ever heard of was 5,240 pounds to the acre in California.

He said he foresees a good market for safflower in the coming years. "At least," he said, "you will not have to worry about flooding the market with a surplus of the crop."

In reference to the use of fertilizer, Corn recommended that farmers use about as much as they would use on wheat or grain sorghums. He said excessive nitrogen probably would not harm the crop.

OPTOMETRY: The Art and Science of Visual Care

The odds ARE against her

Through 12 years of public schooling, your child must read and understand an average of 432 books. With such great demands on her reading vision, the odds are against her completing these years without developing a visual problem.

She begins life very farsighted, seeing only form and motion. By the time she starts to school, it is assumed her focusing and eye coordination are developed and equal to the task. If they aren't, then serious problems can develop.

Professional optometry can determine if she is "visually ready" to start to school. EYESIGHT IS NO GAMBLING MATTER.

Washer* DISHWATER HANDS

Lovely hands, aren't they? So different from dishwasher hands. When you wash dishes by hand - they should be in 150° water for two minutes - think what that does to your hands - even with gloves on. You end all this with an electric dishwasher - it takes the hot water in stride inside the cabinet. Your hands will be smoother, softer, lovelier. Manicures will last longer, too. Don't have dishwasher hands - have lovely dishwasher hands.

ATTENTION! HUSBANDS

Remember how lovely her hands were before you made a dishwasher out of her? Well, don't let her be a dishwasher - buy one! Reddy's wages to run it will be 1½¢ a day.

Leggy Look Is Story Of Tights

Climate makes no difference from Maine to California, Florida to Alaska, feminine students will be wearing tights.

Only a few years ago tights were just for dancers or for keeping warm. But no longer. Tights this fall are simply too attractive not to wear.

Girls of all ages have embraced them for day and play wear, for fashion and comfort.

On college campuses many of the smartest co-eds will wear the newest lacy-knit tights, for dressiest occasions, in place of conventional hose.

Definitely in the dormitory, tights will be fashion-first for both lounging and keeping extra warm during dream hours.

Under skirts, shorts, bermudas and shorts, tights add an extra dash of fashion spice!

Colorful? You bet! Every beautiful, exciting color appears in tights this season... and sometimes more than one color per pair.

Patterns, too, are diversified, and knit right in... just like the co-ed's favorite sweater.

Weight-wise, tights range from the very lightest to extra-heavy. Many are now seamless. Two "best of all's"... tights really fit, any figure... and they cost very little!

If pastry flour is available in your food markets, you might like to try using it for pastry.

Glowing Colors Ideally Mated To Rich Fabric

It doesn't take a magnifying glass this fall to see that colors are wisely chosen and handsome to see... and most important in the man's apparel picture!

In men's wool suits, it's brown and more brown! Brown and black stripes team up as do blue and black.

Sports jackets go green... muted and olive, predominately. Shetland and wool tweeds demand it! Here in wool flannel, navy gets the nod, plain or combining with maroon in stripes. Wool hopsacking sports coats select casual gray, brown and blue. Honey, in all-wool, is newer than new.

Black and white bold herringbone patterns in wool warm up to suburban coats.

Flashing on sweaters, naturally, are brilliant yellows, reds and orange.

There's no mystery about how fashion experts have decided the best colors for men's apparel this fall. Colors discover the clue in the fabric and the style!
