Games, prizes, upcoming community events and the coveted Bull Chip Award as well as guest appearances from "Clausneck the Magnificent" and Santa made up the entertainment at this morning's Fun Breakfast sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and Hereford merchants.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber, presented the Bull Chip Award to Steve Nieman. Carr cited Nieman for his contributions to the community and for the extensive volunteer work he has performed. Nieman, who is in the process of moving to Lubbock, was earlier presented with an unlacquered bullchip "to remind him of Hereford" when he gets homesick.

John Stagner and Charlie Bell served as masters of ceremonies for the breakfast, which drew a crowd of 225 sleepy-eyed residents out for a continental style breakfast furnished by local merchants sponsoring a Live For Free in December for Free promotion.

Carol Gerck, representing the 35 merchants participating in the contest, reminded residents to visit the participating stores to register for the drawing, which will take place Dec. 7, and looked on as Amanda Lincoln drew five names, from those present at the breakfast, to be added to the drawing. Roberta Last, Helen Eades, Grace Covington, Nell Rhoton and Wayne Phillips will each have a chance to live for free in December.

By sleeping in, Dean Allen, Dwain Pittenger and G.C. Graves each missed out on a $200 drawing for Hereford Bucks which early-bird Raymond White won.

Other winners at the breakfast included Lois Lomenick whose name was drawn to receive $25 in Hereford Bucks. L.D. Stevens and Nancy Last each won a three-month membership at the Y.M.C.A.

Special prizes were awarded, from Santa, to Raymond Schroeder, Nieman, Mike Carr and "His Holiness" Mayor Wes Fisher. But everyone who attended the breakfast left with a prize as local merchants donated gifts to be distributed.

Next to opening presents, the favorite entertainment of the morning included two games, involving draftees from the audience, and a guest appearance by "Clausneck the Magnificent" (B. J. Gilliland) who miraculously provided answers to questions which had been "sealed in a mayonnaise jar on Clint Formby's porch."

Carr announced new chamber members are Sirloin Stockade, Lupe Chavez, The Insurance Center, Webster Carpets, Herb DeLa Rosa, Don Tice and J & J Portable Porches.

Reminders were given concerning: -Lions Club annual Girlstown Bean Supper tonight at 7:30 in the high school cafeteria.

-Kiwanis Club Christmas Tree sale currently underway.

-Wesley Methodist Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend at the Community Center.

-Lunches being served, each Monday, by the Heart of Hereford Merchants, downtown.

-Toys for Tots program with Stevens Chevrolet serving as the collection point for new or used toys, in good condition, to be given to deserving children at Christmas.

-Community Concerts has scheduled the Broadway Marionettes to appear here Dec. 12 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

-La Madre Mia is sponsoring a Christmas tour of homes on Sunday, from 2-5 p.m. Refreshments will be served at Deaf Smith County Museum and a door prize will be awarded.

-Dec. 17 is the deadline for participating in Project Christmas Card.

-Entry blanks, for the Christmas lighting contest, will appear in next week's Brand. Judging for the contest, sponsored by the Women's Division of the Chamber, will be Dec. 17 and winners will be announced on Dec. 20.

-Ceremonies will be held Monday to light the community Christmas tree located at Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

-Dec. 18 is the deadline for nominations for the Woman of the Year. The woman named must be a member of the Women's Division, but anyone can make a nomination.

-Saturday, Dec. 21, is buck day at the Y.M.C.A. for students first through twelfth grades.

Probation chief tells program

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The head of the Texas Adult Probation Commission told the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday that many Texans had a bad perspective about the role of probation in today's criminal justice system.

Burl Andrews explained that while the number of district courts and Texas' population had tripled from 1930 to 1985, the prison population has grown from 5,028 in 1930 to 38,623 in 1985.

"People just don't understand the problem," Andrews said. "Judges are working harder and doing more to corral the criminal element, but many people don't understand what

For hospital management

HMP presents plan

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A Tennessee-based hospital management firm presented a management proposal for Deaf Smith General Hospital at a special meeting of the Deaf Smith County Hospital Board at the Hereford Community Center Wednesday night.

Three officials with Hospital Management Professionals of Brentwood, Tenn., presented their findings after a 2½-day survey conducted recently at DSGH.

"We're turned on—we want to work with your staff," said Tom Beaver, chief executive officer of HMP. However, Beaver said that the board would need to act quickly to get an administrator in place, "whether you go with us, another company or a single administrator."

The cost to the district would be $117,500 a year for three years. However, Beaver said HMP would attempt to save the district about $2.48 for every $1 spent on HMP's services.

On top of that fee would be an administrator, whose salary "would range from $45,000 to $55,000 a year," according to Stephen Mason, vice president-operations based in Wichita, Kan. There would also be a certified public accountant, furnished by HMP, who must also be paid by DSGH. The CPA would work for about five months to institute financial programs.

The DSGH board was non-committal Wednesday. The board has at least one more administrator candidate to interview, but has promised HMP an answer, either yes or no, within the next two weeks.

"When we first talked to board members and hear about the situation here we were not sure we could do what you needed," Beaver said. "We have determined that we have something we can work with in Hereford."

"It's a tough plan. This is not snake oil, there is no magic, this is not a pig in a poke. We have a proven track record (currently, the company is managing 50 hospitals in 20 states)."

Among the problems at DSGH pointed out by HMP:

-Lack of communications between and among levels;

Management plan

Tom Beaver of Hospital Management Professionals of Brentwood, Tenn., details his company's management proposal for Deaf Smith General Hospital during a hospital board meeting Wednesday.

-An aging of 133 days in accounts receivable that has led to a -9 day cash flow at DSGH;

-Revenue increases through marketing;

-Better determination of Medicare diagnoses for better collections;

-Expense reductions in all areas;

-Contracts and consulting, where Mason said HMP can call on 38 staff people with expertise in different areas, with no additional charge for their services;

-Energy conservation;

-Purchasing;

-Productivity improvement among employees.

"We are not hatchet people," Mason said. "We would reduce staff by attrition, move staff around in the hospital, and be adding new services to better utilize the staff."

Mason also pointed out that DSGH needed additional physician recruitment, and should consider higher pay for registered nurses to make DSGH competitive with area hospitals. "Right now an RN can work weekends in Amarillo and afford to stay home during the week in Hereford," Beaver said.

HMP said it feels—"We wouldn't put the numbers on the board if we weren't comfortable with them," Beaver said—it can save DSGH $291,000 the first year, and increase those savings to $488,000 by the third year.

"You need to look at those savings when you're looking at the management fee," Mason said. "If you focus on the management fee and lose focus on a $9 million budget, you don't want us."

"If it's us or not us," Beaver said, "You need to make some changes, some steps forward. We're trying to tell you in a nice, kind way what you need to do."

"If you don't react to the situation (no administrator, finances and other areas) soon, the situation will become worse. There are several areas that need immediate attention, and we're extremely challenged to come in."

Nurses will be paid

Registered nurses at Deaf Smith General Hospital were assured Wednesday by the DSGH board's personnel committee that they would be paid for extra shifts they have worked at DSGH.

The RN's have been working extra shifts because of a current shortage of RN's at the hospital, but, when they received their paychecks Tuesday, they found a memo from acting administrator Phillis Morrison instead of pay for those extra shifts.

The memo said:

"All monthly employees with extra shifts turned in for pay did not get those paid in this paycheck for the payperiod 11-15-87 thru 11-30-87. The personnel committee from the board of directors will review these Wednesday night after the regular board meeting. Separate checks approved for payment will be ready by noon Thursday. I know this is an inconvenience for you and I ask for your patience. I will be glad to meet with any or all Thursday at noon."

The memo was signed by Morrison.

In all, 24 extra shifts were worked by RN's, and 74 more were covered by RN's on call during the pay period.

In a written statement that was presented by several RN's at the Wednesday meeting, the nurses said they felt their "honesty and integrity have been questioned." (See NURSES, page 2)

Bonds, gifts to help

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Receipt of $1.5 million in bond proceeds and the establishment of an endowment fund are expected to help Deaf Smith General Hospital out of the financial problems of the recent past and to prepare for the future, according to Phillis Morrison, acting administrator.

Administrator Jim Bullard resigned from the hospital on Oct. 6. Three days later, Morrison said she was informed that a bond issue Bullard had sought had been turned down. This was the third bond issue attempt to be denied the hospital since voters approved the concept in 1986.

The primary reason the bond ventures had failed lay in legal problems due to connections with pool funds designed to arbitrage monies, according to Morrison, who said hospital districts are prohibited from participation in arbitrage pool funds.

"On Oct. 9, Terry Colip from Boettcher and Company, of Denver, called me and said the bond counsel had been unsuccessful in getting around arbitrage fixtures in the Texas fixed rate pool fund," Morrison said. "He suggested we start a completely new bond issue and that we issue general obligation bonds. He added that his firm along with Johnson and Swanson Bond Council of Dallas had agreed they would offer to handle the general obligation bond issue for a reduced rate."

On Oct. 9 a new bond issue process was initiated and has been successful. "The bonds are being rated now and the underwriter tells me he expects an 'A' rating to be returned on Friday," Morrison said. It is anticipated the bonds will go to public sale the first part of December and the bond counsel expects $1.5 million to be in the hospital's bank account by mid-December, she said.

"We will pay off previous indebtedness with $1.1 million," Morrison said. A new list of equipment, to be purchased with the remainder of the money, was compiled by the finance committee from a list of needs provided by department heads.

"We are fortunate in that we will be able to take care of almost all of the department requests," Morrison said. "There is some major equipment, that is not of immediate need, which we want to look at financing under a different method once the bonds have been issued."

Even before the hospital passed the hurdle of the bond issue, Dr. Nadir Khuri approached the board with a proposal to establish an Endowment, Memorial and Trust fund.

Khuri recently presented the U.S. makes new treaty violation charges in pre-summit flareup

WASHINGTON (AP) — New charges by President Reagan of Soviet treaty violations are clouding the atmosphere four days before the arrival of General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev for a third superpower summit meeting.

The charges could stiffen conservative political resistance to the missile-destruction treaty Reagan expects to sign next Tuesday and to submit to a skeptical Senate for ratification.

There was no immediate indication in Washington that Reagan's fresh complaints of Soviet treaty cheating — promptly denied by a newly arrived advance guard of the Kremlin contingent — would put the summit in jeopardy.

But, underscoring the atmosphere at the White House as the administration prepared for the meeting, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater pointedly portrayed next week's sessions between Reagan and Gorbachev as a meeting of "enemies."

Besides the new charges, which are centered on a shift of two Soviet radars to the vicinity of Moscow and Kiev, Reagan told Congress in a report Wednesday that "other violations are continuing."

He said he had urged the Soviets to take corrective actions, but the nub of Reagan's submission was that his summit partners were flouting the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty and other existing accords.

Apart from the 15-page report, and a more detailed classified version withheld from the public, Reagan in a series of speeches and statements this past week has renewed charges of Soviet repression at home and abroad.

Fitzwater said, "The speeches that the president has made and his comments concerning arms control and dealing with the Soviets is entirely devised to set a climate that we think is appropriate for the summit."

The spokesman denied that Reagan had sharpened his rhetoric to ease conservatives' concerns that the president was willing to accept a treaty dangerous to American interests.

"This is not a summit, or a session to be taken lightly, between old friends. This is a summit between old enemies," the spokesman added.

The report, required under the law, accused the Soviets of flouting the 1972 ABM-treaty by shifting the two radar installations beyond permitted deployment areas and probably carrying out illegal anti-missile tests.

Reagan also charged Moscow with improving a challenged radar at Krasnoyarsk and possibly preparing an anti-ballistic missile defense of the country in violation of the treaty.

The Soviets promptly denied the latest charges.

In other developments:

—A measure added by House and Senate negotiators on Wednesday to a $3.6 billion State Department authorization bill would require the Soviets to leave their partially constructed new embassy in Washington unless Reagan rules to the contrary.

Soviet Embassy officials have a clear line of sight to the White House, Pentagon and FBI headquarters from the new site, making it an attractive location from which to eavesdrop on U.S. communications, some members of Congress have said.

Reagan could waive the provision by citing national security interests or certifying to Congress that steps have been taken to remove the threat of espionage.

—A dispute over an exchange of weapons data was eased as the two sides pushed ahead for the start of the third Reagan-Gorbachev summit. Late Wednesday afternoon a high-ranking U.S. official speaking on condition of anonymity said the Soviets tardily had turned over the required information in Geneva.

Gorbachev is to arrive Monday afternoon, see Reagan on Tuesday and later that day sign a treaty calling for the destruction of the superpowers' intermediate-range missiles. He will hold further meetings with the president on Wednesday and Thursday.

Hospital Donation

Dr. Nadir Khuri recently donated $1,000 to establish the Deaf Smith Endowment, Memorial and Trust Fund. The donation, which was split to open accounts at First National and Hereford State Banks, and other designated monetary gifts to the hospital will be used to accrue interest which will then be used for major equipment purchases or renovations which the facility may need in the future.

GIFT

hospital with a personal donation of $1,000 to establish the fund. He requested $500 be deposited at First National and Hereford State banks under the name Deaf Smith General Hospital Endowment, Memorial and Trust Fund.

On accepting the donation, the hospital board set up the fund to earn credit interest for the facility and stipulated the principal can only be used "in an emergency to save the hospital."

As the fund is designed, the hospital will be able to accept money to sponsor rooms, departments or specified equipment or projects with use restricted by the donor. The money cannot be used against day-to-day operating expenses.

"The intent is to let the fund build up and then use interest money for purchasing equipment and etcetera, but to leave the principal intact," Morrison said.

This is the first time such a fund has been established to benefit the hospital, she said, and added that any person or organization wishing to donate to help secure the future of the hospital can do so.

"Some have expressed interest in leaving their estate to the hospital, while others have been interested in contributing as a memorial to a loved one who received care here or was involved with the hospital. Still others have wanted to make simple gifts and donations," she said. Donations may be given to the hospital through either bank, or in person, by contacting Morrison.

NURSES

We have been willing to work extra in order to maintain the high standard of care the Deaf Smith General provides to this community and we are willing to continue to do so. However, we feel that we should be able to expect proper and timely compensation for our efforts."

Morrison said that she understood that the board had earlier discussed "not paying so many extra shifts," but Dr. James Herberston, a DSGH board and personnel committee member, said the board had wanted to cut back on the number of overtime hours being worked "for one hour here, two hours there, three hours here. It was not in the sense of nurses working extra shifts. We also had some people that were getting paid overtime whether they worked extra or not, and that was not proper."

"I know what extra time you're working, and no one questions your integrity, honesty, or saying you're putting in overtime for kicks."

Herberston said the ongoing problems at DSGH probably added fuel to the RN's fire.

"We're probably all suffering from a little excess paranoia," Herberston said. "It's a difficult time for all of us."

The personnel committee agreed that all RN's would be paid for the extra shifts they work.

PROBATION

probation is." Probation is the most cost-effective method of dealing with a criminal, according to Andrews.

"If someone is on probation, it costs $120 a month," Andrews said. "Of that, the probationer pays $54 and the taxpayer pays $66."

"If someone is on parole, it costs the taxpayer $180 a month. If someone is in prison, it costs the taxpayer $31.44 per day."

"Now our jails are overcrowded, out prisons are overcrowded, and we, as Texas voters, just authorized the state to spend $500 million to build 19,000 new jail cells so we could bring the system into compliance with a court order."

Andrews suggests a two-pronged sentence structure. Persons who commit crimes against other persons would be imprisoned, while persons who commit crimes against property would get probation.

"When they are on probation," Andrews said, "they will be able to keep a job and pay back the damage they have done."

"With the prisons so crowded, you can sentence someone to five years in prison and they can be back in 30 to 60 days. They don't have to pay as much in fees and they don't have to report to someone as often as they would if they are on probation."

"Plus, you're looking at less tax money being used if someone is on probation. If a person is on parole, the taxpayer is paying $180 a month plus whatever they had to pay while that person was in prison. If they are on probation, they pay those fees, depending upon their classification, every week or month and the taxpayer is stuck with less of a burden."

"Simply put, if they are on probation, they can stay here, have a job, support their family, and pay their taxes."

"That beats having to pay $31.44 a day to put someone in prison."

Arms control not only thing on superpower agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — The focus will be on arms control when President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev meet next week, but the two leaders also will grapple with a long list of other critical subjects.

East-West conflict being waged on bloody Third World battlefields — in Afghanistan, Central America and southern Africa — is among them.

The superpowers have negotiated a treaty banning intermediate-range nuclear missiles, to be signed next Tuesday, but they have had less success in resolving armed conflicts in which both countries have a stake.

For most of the post-war era, insurgencies have been fought in pro-Western Third World countries. But under Reagan the United States has supported rebel movements in countries aligned with Moscow. American-backed insurgents now operate in Nicaragua, Angola, Afghanistan and Cambodia.

At the summit, Reagan will be eager to learn whether there is any truth to reports the Soviets are prepared to announce a 12-month timetable for the withdrawal of their troops from Afghanistan.

This array of conflicts, as well as the situation in the Persian Gulf, comes under the heading of "regional issues," one of four broad agenda topics that Reagan and Gorbachev will discuss. The others are arms control, human rights and bilateral issues.

The highlight of the summit is expected to be the signing of the missile treaty Tuesday afternoon and the discussion of whether agreement is possible on a proposed 50 percent reduction in intercontinental missiles.

Aside from the arms reduction treaty, no major breakthroughs are expected, although an agreement may be signed to increase commercial air traffic between the two countries. They also are working on ways to increase people-to-people exchanges and scientific cooperation.

One nagging issue expected to arise is the status of the American Embassy in Moscow and the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

The United States has halted work on its new embassy complex in Moscow because of shoddy workmanship and evidence that bugging devices have been installed. Until work is completed, the United States won't allow the Soviets to move into a new chancery they have built on a 350-foot-high hill in Washington that critics claim is ideal for spying.

Reagan and Gorbachev are expected to give high priority to human rights. Until Gorbachev's accession 2½ years ago, U.S. efforts to discuss this issue invariably were rebuffed by the Soviets.

But the Soviets are now much more accommodating, demonstrating a willingness to hear out U.S. concerns on such issues as reunification of divided families and people with claims to citizenship in both countries.

Emigration of Soviet Jews also will be discussed. The administration is encouraged that the Soviets, after allowing fewer than 1,000 Jews to emigrate last year, are now giving exit visas to between 700 and 900 a month. That level, however, is far below the peak year of 1979 when more than 4,000 Soviet Jews a month emigrated.

Another area of summit interest to the United States is the fate of political and religious prisoners in the Soviet Union.

For their part, the Soviets have their own list of what they regard as human rights abuses in the United States. One example is the death penalty American courts sometimes impose for crimes committed by minors.

The Soviets once routinely raised the issue of America's homeless, but U.S. officials say that issue has lost some of its appeal to the Soviets.

Judge cancels $850 million debt of Davis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has dismissed about $850 million in T. Cullen Davis' debts, leaving the fallen oil tycoon with less than $15 million in unresolved liabilities.

Judge Massie Tillman's ruling Wednesday protects Davis from action by 200 to 300 creditors, including many of the nation's major banks, but still leaves him with four unresolved claims that total about $15 million.

Twalla J. Dupriest, the court-appointed trustee of Davis' petition, says the ruling will not end his financial woes. She has until mid-January to raise objections to the actions taken at the hearing.

"It's going to drag on," Ms. Dupriest said. "We're not through by any means. Just because he was discharged doesn't mean it's over."

Davis filed Chapter 7 bankruptcy July 2, listing debts of $865 million and property worth only $1.8 million. He lost most of his fortune on ill-fated real estate investments, according to court papers filed Sept. 10.

Tillman's action came without convening a scheduled hearing because no creditors objected to the plan.

"Most of the creditors did not object because they know there's just nothing left," lawyer Eddie Roush Jr. said of Davis' fortune once estimated at more than $100 million.

Roush said he is not concerned about Ms. Dupriest's continuing investigation of Davis' finances.

"We've been very honest about every financial situation," he said.

The bankruptcy petition also insulated Davis from civil suits filed by his other ex-wife, Priscilla Davis, and central figures in the Aug. 2, 1976, shooting spree by a mysterious "man in black" at the Davis mansion.

Two of the claims not affected by Wednesday's hearing in U.S. Bankruptcy Court stem from the 1976 shooting. The other two claims are from one of his ex-wives, Sandra Davis, and the Internal Revenue Service.

Mrs. Davis has testified in court that Davis was the assailant who killed her boyfriend and her daughter.

In 1977, an Amarillo jury acquitted Davis on criminal charges in the death of Andrea Wilborn, his 12-year-old stepdaughter. The oil heir was also not convicted of charges that he plotted to kill the judge who presided over his divorce proceedings from Priscilla Davis.

And earlier this year, a civil jury deadlocked on consolidated wrongful death suits filed by Priscilla and Andrea's father, Jack Wilborn, acquitting Davis once again.

Davis, who was not at the Wednesday hearing, could not be reached for comment.

Two disputed debts stem from the 1976 shooting, in which Andrea and Stan Farr were killed. The child was Priscilla Davis' daughter from a previous marriage and Farr was her boyfriend.

A third disputed debt involves Sandra Davis, who is seeking about $500,000 in support payments. She alleges Davis had been paying her $2,000 per month since 1968 but suspended the payments in July. She contends that the $500,000 would be the total owed to her during the rest of her life.

Priscilla Davis filed a motion September 14 asking that her $10 million suit against her ex-husband not be dismissed.

Roush said another unsettled matter involves how much Davis owes the Internal Revenue Service in unpaid taxes. Davis listed the amount as unknown in court papers.

Junta calls for new electoral council, elections

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A provisional government, which disbanded the Electoral Council after violence aborted Sunday's election, said a new council should be named by tonight and immediately begin planning new elections.

The military dominated junta also said it would transfer power to a newly elected government by Feb. 7, as scheduled.

In a communique broadcast on state-run television Wednesday night, the junta asked the nine organizations that named members to the original Electoral Council to select different candidates to form a new panel.

The communique, signed by Information Minister Gerard Noel, said the junta hoped the new Electoral Council would be appointed by midnight tonight. The Constitution authorizes a civilian Electoral Council to hold elections.

"The new Electoral Council is called on to supervise and organize general elections ... for the designation of the country's new president, freely elected by the people," the communique read.

Rene Belance, spokesman for the original Electoral Council, said in an interview Wednesday he did not think the groups that appointed the first council would comply with the communique. "I don't see why the institutions would do that, they have nothing to reproach their members of the (first) Electoral Council (for)," Belance said.

Members of the disbanded council remained in hiding Wednesday, and it was not immediately possible to obtain their reaction to the junta's statement.

But on Tuesday, the council refused to disband and declared void any elections organized by the three-man junta, led by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

The junta, which was criticized for failing to stop the violence that scuttled Sunday's election, has ruled since Feb. 7, 1986, when dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier fled his impoverished Caribbean island nation.

In Washington, the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Wednesday called on leaders of Haiti's junta to resign immediately.

"If the members of the (provisional government) do not resign, the United States should promptly move to recognize a government in Haiti which has the support and confidence of the Haitian people," Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said in a harshly-worded House floor speech.

Aides to Fascell said the committee is at work on legislation that would put even more U.S. pressure on Haiti's provisional government than the aid cutoff already in place.

Sunday's elections to choose a president and a National Assembly were stopped three hours after balloting began because of widespread violence by soldiers and thugs that killed 34 people and wounded 75.

The four leading presidential candidates declared unconstitutional the disbanding of the Electoral Council. Two of those candidates, Marc Bazin and Gerard Gourgue, said they would not recognize a new Electoral Council.

Another presidential candidate, Sylvio Claude of the Christian Democratic Party, on Wednesday demanded that Namphy step down within 48 hours or face "total civil disobedience" from voters cheated out of free elections.

"Clearly, this is a potentially volatile situation," said a U.S. diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity. "There is the potential for more violence. There are a lot of angry people here."

The institutions that appointed the members of the first Electoral Council include the Supreme Court, the junta and its advisory council, two churches, human rights groups, news media associations and agricultural cooperatives.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sending on some suggestions that might be helpful for families who will be facing an empty chair at a holiday table. I hope you will print them.—J.H.L., Mothers Against Drunk Driving (Hurst, Texas)

DEAR J: Your timing was perfect. Thank you for your thoughtfulness.

You are facing the holidays and someone you love will be missing. You see intact families everywhere — on TV screens, in magazine ads, on holiday cards, joyfully celebrating. You may be overwhelmed with grief as you face an empty chair at your table. The following suggestions may help you to cope:

1. Change traditions. Have Christmas dinner at a different house this year. It is a paradox that the more you try to make it the same as it was before, the more obvious your loved one's absence will be.
2. Balance solitude with sociability. Solitude can renew strength. Being with people you care about can be equally important. Plan to attend some holiday parties. You may surprise yourself by having a good time.
3. Relive the happy memories. Pick three special memories of past holidays with your loved one. Recall them often, especially if outbursts of grief seem to occur at an inappropriate time.
4. Set aside "letting go" time. Schedule specific time on your calendar to grieve. When you know you set aside this time it will be easier for you to postpone your flow of grief in public.
5. Counter the conspiracy of silence. Because family and friends love you, they may think they are doing you a favor by not mentioning your loved one for fear you will be upset. Break the ice by mentioning him or her yourself. Tell your family and friends that it is important for you to talk about your loved one during the holiday season when that missing person is very much on your mind.

6. Find a creative outlet. Write a memorial poem or story about your loved one and share it. Contribute or work with a group that your loved one supported. Use the money that you would have spent for a gift for that special person to buy something for someone he or she cared about.

7. Don't forget the rest of the family. Try especially hard to make it a good holiday for the children. Listen to them. Talk to them. If decorating the tree or buying Christmas gifts is too difficult for you to do this year, ask a friend to do it for you.

8. Utilize available resources. If your faith is important to you, participate in the holiday such services. Some veterans of the faith have a serenity, a kind of healing wisdom. They can help you. Seek out a support group of other victims. Or start your own short-term support group to help you through the holidays.

It is tempting to conclude that life is awful during the holidays. Yes, you will have some difficult times, but you can also experience some joy. Having a good time does not mean that you have forgotten your loved one or that you loved him or her any less. Let yourself go.

Above all, remember that you cannot change the past. You can, however, take care of the present. Total recovery may never come. But what you kindle from the ashes of your tragedy is largely up to you.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send $2.50 plus a No. 10, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

BUSINESS TRAVEL

NEW YORK (AP) — Packing light is a real challenge for the business traveler.

But no matter how light they pack, experienced travelers say they always carry a complete change of clothes on the airplane with them — even for a trip of only one day.

Many tell of having airline meals dumped on them during a bumpy flight and having to attend business meetings in soiled clothing.

BY GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

Wilma Bryan of 840 Blevins loves to help people, and such an interest led her towards attaining her high school equivalency degree in 1963.

"My church had a Laotian pastor then and he and some others were working on their GED," she explained. "I was helping them with their lessons and decided I could do the work too, so I got my GED."

Born 1925 in Paducah, Bryan was only 15 years old when she married her husband, Gaylon, also 15. She is now active in volunteer work and he owns G&W Trucking, formerly Bryan Trucking.

The quiet-spoken lady is involved in many local activities and it is evident that church work is very important to her. She is mission action special project coordinator of the Amarillo Baptist Association, WMU director of the local Avenue Baptist Church, an assistant Sunday School teacher and an outreach leader. Bryan is also now serving as president of the Bud To Blossom Garden Club, is a member of the selective board of nominees for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, works at the Problem Pregnancy Center, and is a member, along with her husband, in the American Legion.

A conversation with Bryan quickly alerts the listener to her inner strength gained through hard times. Bryan suffered a heart attack in 1981, a few months before the death of the Bryans' only son, Douglas. "I knew that the Lord left me here to help other people, so that's why I enjoy it so much."

Her heart attack changed several aspects of her life as she has suffered from Bell Palsy and even lost her eyesight for a few weeks. "The doctors thought I might remain blind, but only by the grace of God did I regain my eyesight. I decided I could either stay home and feel sorry for myself or I could get busy and help others." Luckily for Hereford, Bryan chose the latter option.

A member of the American Heart Association, Bryan teaches a program stressing proper exercise and eating habits for a healthy heart geared toward youngsters. "I give this program to teachers who then take it to their classes. I sometimes teach it to vacation Bible school classes. Some of my students have spotted me in the grocery store and told their mother, 'Oh, don't buy that; there's the lady that says it's not good for you!' she laughed. Such volunteer work earned her a trophy recently for her efforts with the AHA.

The Bryans have two grandsons, Kevin Douglas and Dalton Wayne of Lubbock, three granddaughters, and four great-grandsons. "We raised one granddaughter plus two foster children," she said. "I've always loved children and still enjoy working with them." Bryan has helped with 4-H groups, Acteens, FHA, exchange students, and the Spanish mission. "I also had the honor of helping Kevin Hull attain the rank of Eagle Scout; he's such a nice young man!"

Incredibly, Bryan still finds time for hobbies. "I like to make silk flower arrangements, bouquets, and corsages for weddings and showers and I make a linen cake occasionally," she said. "I collect salt and pepper shakers; I now have over 700 sets and did have more but I broke several."

Bryan also has a lot of books as she enjoys reading. "I hate to throw anything away because I remember how hard it was to acquire such things," she remembered. "I sold Stanley Products for 30 years and was district manager part of that time."

Indeed, the young Bryans saw some lean times as Mr. Bryan was called into the U.S. Army during World War II. "While Gaylon was in training in the states, little Doug and I lived with my grandparents in Cross Plains. When Gaylon went overseas, we lived with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Thompson, who now live here."

Upon Gaylon's return, he learned to be a mechanic, worked in the potash mines in New Mexico, and became service manager at Whiteface Ford. During those years, the Bryans moved around. "This is our fourth time to live in Hereford as we've also lived in Carlsbad, Ruidoso, and Clovis," she said.

As a result of moving around, Bryan has been active in Newcomers Club, helped start the hospital auxiliary, and was instrumental in restarting Westway Extension Homemakers Club and was selected the club's Woman of the Year in 1977, the same honor she received in 1964 in Carlsbad.

Yet despite all her activities, Bryan truly enjoys cooking. "I still collect recipes and love to try new ones. I've had to change my cooking habits for health reasons but I try to keep baking soda, sugar, and salt on hand for times I need a pie!" she laughed.

Bryan is one of those good cooks who, through experience, now cooks more without a recipe. Yet she remembers the frustration she felt when she didn't know how to cook and was told to use a "pinch of this and a pinch of that." "I once asked someone, 'how many pinches are there per person?'" she said.

She credits her mother and North Hereford Home Demonstration Club for helping her learn to cook. "Now I really enjoy cooking for a group, such as church dinners. Pies and meat dishes are my favorite type of food to make, although I also enjoy Oriental food. One of my family's favorite dishes is chocolate syrup and biscuits, and it is a family tradition to have Mexican food on Christmas Eve."

Perhaps Bryan's philosophy of life is best summed up in the following poem she received from a New Mexico club:

Recipe for Dirty Dishes

Thank God for dirty dishes,
They have a story to tell;
And by the stack I have,
It seems we are living well.
While people in other countries are starving,
I haven't the heart to fuss:
For by this stack of evidence
God is very good to us.

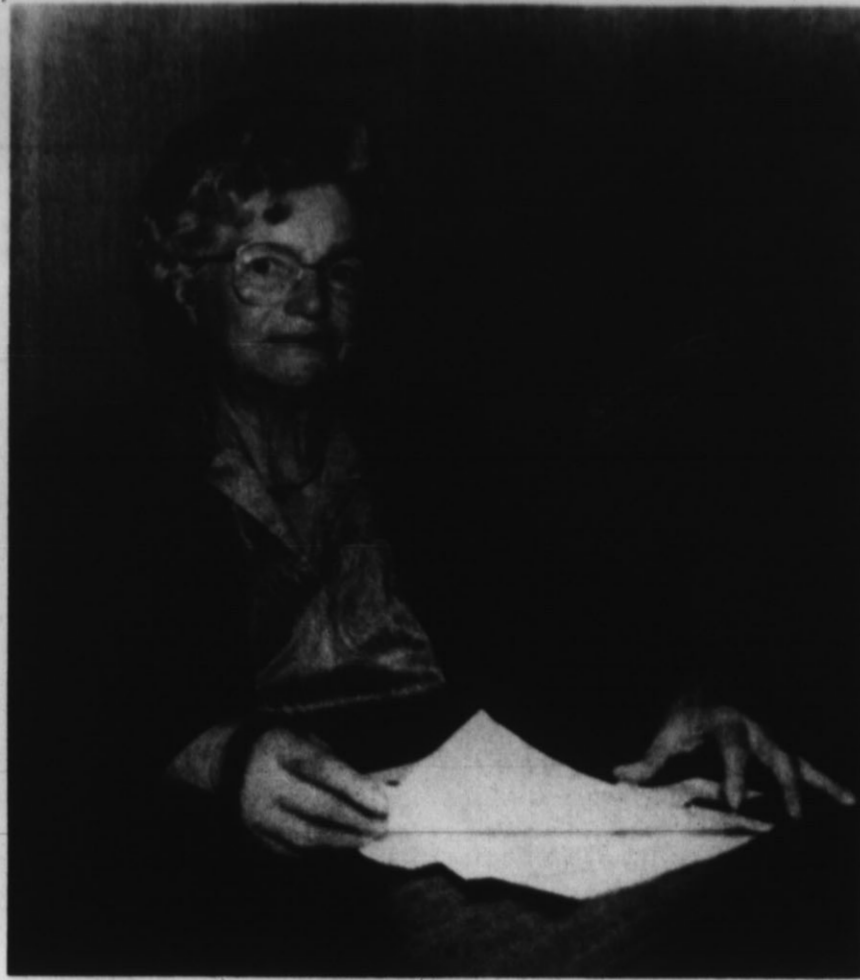

Bryan provided some recipes dealing with Thanksgiving leftovers and thrifty ideas for those on a budget. Following are her favorite tried and true recipes:

Leftover Turkey Casserole

3 Tbsp. chopped onion
1 1/2 c. diced celery
1/4 c. diced carrots
1/2 c. cooked or canned peas
2 c. diced cooked turkey
2 c. turkey gravy or flavored white sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 c. dry bread crumbs
1 Tbsp. melted butter or margarine
Combine vegetables, salt, and turkey gravy; blend well. Place in baking dish. Mix bread crumbs with butter; place on top of casserole. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until the crumbs are brown.
Yield: 6 servings.

Ham and Cheese Rollups

1/4 c. shredded cheddar cheese
1 (3 oz) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1/4 c. margarine, softened
4 - 1/8" thick slices boiled ham
Ritz crackers
In small bowl, combine cheddar cheese, cream cheese, and margarine until well blended. Spread 1/4 of mixture on one ham slice; repeat with remaining mixture and ham slices.
Roll up from short sides, chill for several hours or wrap and freeze, if desired. To serve, slice rolls into 1/2" thick slices and arrange on top of

WILMA BRYAN

Ritz crackers or another favorite type of cracker.
If frozen, let stand at room temperature 20 minutes before serving.

Whole Bologna Ham

3 to 5 lbs. whole bologna whole cloves
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 Tbsp. honey
1 whole orange (juice and rind)
Remove thin outer casing (not skin) from bologna. Score meat diagonally at about 1 1/2" intervals and 1/4" deep to make diagonal-shaped blocks.

Put whole cloves into each diamond; place bologna in a drip pan used for roasting and cover with aluminum foil with dull side out. Cook at 350 degrees F. for approximately 25-30 minutes; turning frequently. Then baste with mixture of sugar, honey, orange juice and grated rind. Cook 10-15 minutes longer; almonds may be added if desired.

Buttermilk Pie

3/4 c. sugar
1/2 c. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
6 eggs, well beaten
1 stick (1/2 lb.) butter, melted
1 c. buttermilk
Mix sugar, flour, salt; add to beaten eggs, butter, buttermilk, and vanilla. Bake in unbaked pie shell one hour at 350 degrees F. This makes two pies.

Social Security

REPORTING EARNINGS

People getting Social Security benefits who work are required to estimate their projected earnings as accurately as possible and to report the amount to the Social Security Administration, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, said recently.

Furthermore, people should revise these estimates, as necessary, during the course of the year.

People must file an annual report of earnings at the end of the taxable year. At that time, the amount of benefits due for the year is figured; if all the payments that were due have not been made, the person is paid the appropriate amount.

On the other hand, if the person is found to have been overpaid, the amount of the overpayment will be withheld from future benefits, or will have to be repaid.

More information about how work affects Social Security benefits can be obtained at the Amarillo Social Security office, located at 3601 W. 15th, Amarillo, TX. The telephone number is (806)376-2241.

Houston goes cold in fourth quarter

Spurs get hot, defeat Rockets, 97-93

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs got hot about the same time the Houston Rockets went cold and it added up to a come-from-behind victory by the Spurs.

The Spurs outscored the Rockets, 29-13, in the fourth quarter enroute to a 97-93 victory Wednesday night. The Rockets had led by as many as 14 points in the third quarter before their cold spell.

Houston coach Bill Fitch said there was a simple reason for the loss. "We missed seven of eight free throws down the stretch," Fitch said. "You can't do that. You have to go up and hit your free throws."

In addition to missing the free throws, the Rockets were unable to convert from the field during the final five minutes of the game.

"It takes guts and character," Fitch said. "Tonight we just lacked that killer instinct."

David Greenwood's performance was less than enviable until the final 1:13 when he gave the Spurs their first lead with back-to-back baskets. The four points were the only points he scored.

"I wasn't hitting any shots tonight," Greenwood said. "Alvin (Robertson) and the guys kept telling me to shoot."

The victory broke a three-game losing skid for the Spurs and after the game San Antonio coach Bob Weiss said he felt along the Spurs could come back.

But Weiss said it didn't take any special urging to motivate the Spurs. "That was our first game of the season where we had the opportunity to comeback and win. And we did," Weiss said. "There was no Knute Rockne speech. I just told them that if we could control the boards and stop the second shots we had a chance."

Controlling the boards is exactly what Frank Brickowski did. He had grabbed a career high 15 rebounds before fouling out with 4:15 remaining.

But by then Houston had already turned cold and was unable to score a point.

Akeem Olajuwon led all scorers with 23 but missed his final three shots from the field. He showed his frustration late in the game when he committed his sixth foul.

"Olajuwon took a lot of shots we wanted him to," Weiss said. "But he was hitting them until the end."

Johnny Dawkins led the comeback with 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter.

Dawkins' performance impressed Houston veteran World B. Free. "Johnny Dawkins showed me tonight that he can play," Free said. "The game just got away from us and we didn't do a lot of things well."

Sacramento 120; Chicago 105, Utah 101; Los Angeles Clippers 88, Philadelphia 85; and Portland 117, Los Angeles Lakers 104.

Celtics 130, Nets 99

Larry Bird and Kevin McHale are back together and as good as ever.

"We have a sense of continuity with Kevin back in the lineup," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said after Bird and McHale led the Celtics to a 130-99 NBA victory over New Jersey on Wednesday night.

Bird, who missed four games with tendinitis in both Achilles tendons, and McHale, who underwent foot surgery last June 22, started their first game together since the NBA finals last June.

In 35 minutes, Bird had 34 points, six rebounds and nine assists, and McHale played 32 minutes and added 23 points, eight rebounds and two blocked shots in his second appearance of the season.

Jones said Bird is fully recovered from his Achilles problems, but McHale will have to be watched closely.

Danny Ainge had 20 points and Dennis Johnson 13 assists although he went scoreless as the Celtics won their 34th consecutive regular-season game at Boston Garden.

Buck Williams had 17 points for the Nets, who have lost their last seven games.

Bird converted all six free throws, giving him 59 in a row and breaking the Boston club record of 55 set by Bill Sharman. Calvin Murphy has the NBA single-season record of 78 consecutive free throws.

Trail Blazers 117, Lakers 104

Portland won its seventh straight game and beat the Lakers at the Forum for the first time since 1983 as Jerome Kersey had a career-high 32 points and a season-high 14 rebounds.

Portland's Clyde Drexler added 28 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. Clippers 88, 76ers 85

Los Angeles snapped a 14-game losing streak against Philadelphia as Quintin Dailey scored 10 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter.

Charles Barkley led the 76ers with 21.

Bulls 105, Jazz 101

Chicago improved its road record to 8-1 as Michael Jordan scored 47 points, including five free throws in the final two minutes.

Karl Malone had 33 points and 14 rebounds for the Jazz.

Nuggets 147, Kings 120

Denver turned the game into a rout in the third quarter as Alex English scored 12 of his 18 points.

Blair Rasmussen had 22 points and Lafayette Lever had 21 points for Denver. Reggie Theus had 35 points for the Kings.

Pistons 115, Bucks 105

Detroit withstood a career-high 33 points by Milwaukee's Randy Breuer as Adrian Dantley scored 25 points.

Bill Laimbeer added 24 points and 16 rebounds and Isiah Thomas 20 points and 13 assists for the Pistons.

Cavaliers 104, SuperSonics 102

Mark Price and Phil Hubbard paced Cleveland with 22 points apiece, while Seattle's Dale Ellis had 25.

Pacers 106, Bullets 102

Indiana fought off a late rally as Wayman Tisdale scored 23 points.

Moses Malone led the Bullets with 21 points and Jeff Malone added 20.

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

PERFECT MATCHES

The traditional accompaniment of wine with cheese is based on balance. In general, one is prone to disappear into a fruity vapor, the other is rooted in earthy richness. However, in a specific sense, there are as many flavors and aromas as there are cheeses and wines. The object of pairing wine with cheese is to not let one overpower the other. For instance, a mature red Bordeaux should be served with an equally delicate Gruyere cheese. A white Sancerre from the Loire Valley is both crisp and full-bodied. It goes best with chevre, goat cheese. An interesting dessert experience can be had by serving a sweet Sauterne from Bordeaux with the strong-flavored Roquefort. Neither will shy away from the other.

The folks at THE STORE are very knowledgeable about wines so don't ever hesitate to ask our advice. Whether you have a question about what wine to serve with a particular menu or need some help in estimating quantities for a party you will receive our personal attention. You'll find us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 where we are open Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Against current free agency system

NFL players file motion

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The NFL could suffer "severe damage" if it insists on abiding by the current free agency system when the contracts of 527 players expire at the end of the season, said a lawyer for the players union.
Edward M. Glennon, who will represent the NFL Players Association in its antitrust suit against the league, has filed a motion that would prohibit league owners from using the current system of compensation for free agents after Feb. 1.

emptions that had allowed the clubs to restrict players from switching teams.

The union had agreed to compensation, which effectively restricted player movement, in the 1977 and 1982 contracts. With the lapse of the current contract, the NFLPA now contends that the language no longer shields the owners from an antitrust suit.

Union executive director Gene Upshaw, meanwhile, said he has met with management negotiator Jack Donlan since the conclusion of the strike, but the sides are no closer to an agreement than when negotiations started April 20.

"Before it's all over, we will have a collective bargaining agreement," Upshaw said. "We'll go without a contract until we get one."

Upshaw said the roadblocks are still the free-agency system, the pension and the duration of the new pact. He said he planned to meet again with Donlan "in the near future."

Upshaw denied rumors that his job is in jeopardy.

In his first public appearance since the end of the strike, Upshaw said the ill-fated walkout was inevitable.

"Several owners have told me, personally, that there was nothing the players could have done to avoid a strike," he said.

He would not identify the owners who told him that.

Says, 'Football doesn't owe me anything

Sayers talks about career

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
Gale Sayers rolled his left pants leg up to the knee for an up-close study of the surgical procedures of another football era.
"Now," he said, "the scar would be a pinhole."
Sayers' scar, however, is more than that. It is long and thin, a souvenir of a Hall of Fame NFL career. So is the numbness in the leg from knee to ankle, a numbness Sayers was told would last a year. That was almost 20 years ago.
There is another scar on the right knee, the one in which Sayers tore all the ligaments and damaged the cartilage, ripping up the joint about as thoroughly as you can.
"That's the game," he said. "Football doesn't owe me a thing."
That, apparently, was football's viewpoint, as well.
When Sayers left the game after a courageous and brilliant seven-year, 68-game career in the NFL, he returned to Kansas University as an assistant athletic director. Then there was a stint at Southern Illinois as athletic director. By 1981, Sayers felt he had served his administrative apprenticeship. So he sat down and wrote letters to each of 28 NFL franchises.

perience notwithstanding. There were polite letters, but no jobs.
It was not a matter of money. "The most I made at Chicago was $80,000," Sayers said. "When I went back to Kansas, I got $17,000. I took that because I wanted to prepare for a job. I knew what I had to do."
What he did, however, apparently was not enough. Sayers did not have to be told twice.
"For me, that was fine," he said. "I was not bitter. I don't know why I was turned down and I don't speculate about it. As far as I was concerned, it was 'OK, goodbye.' I've got more on the ball than to go begging for a job. A player who has to come back begging for a job, that's his fault, not the club's."
Football lost a hard-liner when it passed on Sayers. "I'd be a tough general manager," he said. "I would never re-negotiate a contract. If you sign for three years, you stick by that contract for three years, then come back and see me."
And he would have provided no Indianapolis trap door for Eric Dickerson.
"I'd have sat him down," he said.

"If he didn't want to play for what he agreed to, I'd keep him on the bench until his contract was up."
Rejected by the NFL, Sayers turned to other endeavors. He heads a successful computer company and is spokesman for the Old Spice Rookie of the Year award. His advice to the freshman class is not to think of football as a career but rather a stopping-off point en route to the rest of your life.
Sayers' career burned briefly and brightly. He scored six touchdowns in one game and then, after all but destroying his right knee, came back to lead the league in rushing.
"Nobody had ever come back from a knee injury like that before," he said. "I wanted to prove you could."
When he tore up the other knee, he knew it was time to get on with the rest of his life. "I prepared to play and I prepared to quit," he said. "I walked away and I didn't have to look back. It was, 'Thank you and goodbye.'"
In case he gets sentimental about it, though, he always has those scars to look at.

After Twins offered arbitration

Gaetti to test free agency

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Gaetti, the most valuable player in the American League playoffs, is ready to test the freer free agent market, after the World Champion Minnesota Twins offered him salary arbitration.
The hard-hitting, slick-fielding third baseman said Wednesday he would consider playing for several other teams, including Chicago Cubs, California, Los Angeles, Toronto, Milwaukee and Detroit.

Gaetti said he "would consider almost any offer."
"Why sell yourself short?" he said. "Why would you want to limit yourself?"
The Twins won the American League West title by beating the Toronto Blue Jays in the AL playoffs and defeating the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series.
Gaetti, who hit more than 30 home runs and drove in more than 100 runs for the second consecutive year, homered in his first two playoff at-bats and finished with a .300 batting average (6-for-20) while driving in five runs in earning the MVP award.
"The big reason he won MVP is he got us off on the right foot and set the tone," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said. "Day in and day out, all you have to do is write his name in the lineup ... and don't worry about it. He's always pushing in the dugout, saying, 'Score more runs, score more runs, let's get going.'"
Gaetti will find out his worth to the Twins — and the other major league clubs — during the offseason.
In 1987, he was Minnesota's third-highest paid player, earning $950,000. Gaetti was encouraged that the

And if Gaetti signed with a National League team, it would mean adjusting to a new league.
"It would be an adjustment for the whole first season," he said.
"But sometimes players don't have a choice," Gaetti said. "If it means moving on, so be it."
free agent market, which had been stagnant for the last two years, appeared ready to break open, following the signings Tuesday of Cleveland outfielder Brett Butler by San Francisco and Giants outfielder Chili Davis by California.
"I'm going to do what's best for me," Gaetti said. "If it's a multi-year contract, if it's one year, whatever."
"But there's more to it than leaving the team. It means having to move your family, make new friends and a lot of other things."

For AP All-America football team

Jackson, Hutson are repeat selections

By HERSCHEL NIBSEN
AP Football Writer

Tight end Keith Jackson and guard Mark Hutson, repeaters from last year, are among a record-tying five first-teamers from No. 1-ranked Oklahoma to make the Associated Press All-America football team.

The AP team, announced Wednesday, features five repeaters and also includes a first-ever return specialist — Notre Dame's Tim Brown — and the first Tulane player in 48 years to make the elite first team — record-setting wide receiver Marc Zeno.

The All-American backfield consists of Syracuse quarterback Don McPherson, the national leader in passing efficiency, and running backs Craig "Ironhead" Heyward of Pittsburgh and Thurman Thomas of Oklahoma State, who finished second and third, respectively, in rushing.

The other holdovers from 1986 besides Jackson and Hutson are Brown, Ohio State linebacker Chris Spielman and Miami defensive back Bennie Blades.

Oklahoma's other representatives, all from the nation's top-rated defensive unit, are linebacker Dante Jones, defensive player of the year in the Big Eight Conference; end Darrell Reed, a four-time All-Big Eight selection, and free safety Rickey Dixon.

Since the AP released its first All-America team in 1925, only Army's 1945 national champions had as many as five first-team players. There were no separate offensive and defensive units in those days and Army was represented on the 11-man All-America team by tackles Dewitt "Tex" Coulter and Al Nemetz, guard John Green and backs Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard.

The AP All-America team will be featured on Bob Hope's annual Christmas television show entitled "A Snow Job in Florida" on Saturday, Dec. 19 (NBC-TV, 8-9 p.m., EST).

The All-America team is selected by the AP's sports editor, college football editor and regional sports editors. A player must make his all-conference or all-sectional team to be considered for the All-America first team.

Second-ranked Miami of Florida, No. 3 Florida State and No. 6 Auburn each had two players on the All-America team, which includes defensive lineman Daniel Stubbs of Miami, linebacker Paul McGowan and defensive Deion Sanders of Florida State and offensive tackle Stacy Searels and linebacker Kurt Crain of Auburn.

Notre Dame's Brown was a wide receiver on the 1986 All-America team but his receptions were down from 45 to 39 as opponents double-teamed him and the Irish threw less following an early-season injury that sidelined quarterback Terry Anderson.

"The attention defenses pay to him dictates so much of what we do offensively," Coach Lou Holtz says.

Brown finished sixth nationally with an average of 167.6 all-purpose yards a game and a total of 1,843 yards — 144 rushing, 846 receiving, 401 on punt returns and 452 on kickoff returns. He is Notre Dame's career leader with 2,493 reception yards and tied an NCAA record by returning two punts for touchdowns against Michigan State.

"He's like trying to grab hold of a piece of electricity," Purdue Coach Fred Akers said.

The All-America wide receivers are Zeno, the major-college career leader with 3,725 reception yards, and Indiana's Ernie Jones, player of the year in the Big Ten.

This season, Zeno caught 77 passes — his average of seven a game tied him for second nationally — for 1,206 yards and 13 touchdowns. Jones caught 59 passes for 1,115 yards, an 18.9-yard average. His yardage total and 5.3 catches per game led the Big Ten.

In the backfield, McPherson not only led Syracuse to a best-ever 11-0 regular season, a berth in the Sugar Bowl and a shot at the national championship, but also was the nation's most efficient passer, according to the NCAA. He completed 129 of 229 passes for 2,341 yards and 22 touchdowns and owns Syracuse career records for total offense, passes, completions, yardage and touchdown passes.

Heyward finished second nationally in rushing with 150.4 yards a game and was the eighth running back in major-college history to gain at least 100 yards in all 11 regular-season games. His low was 111.

Thomas, the Big Eight's offensive player of the year, finished third in the country in rushing with 146.6 yards a game and set an Oklahoma State career mark of 4,847. He gained at least 108 yards in every game but one — he was held to seven yards on nine carries by Nebraska. He finished the season with 173 yards against Oklahoma, 202 against Kansas and a school-record 293 against Iowa State.

The 260-pound Heyward is one of three juniors on the 25-man All-America squad. The others are Texas A&M's John Roper, a defensive end-outside linebacker, and Florida State's Sanders. The other 22 first-teamers are seniors.

The rest of the offensive unit consists of tackles Dave Cadigan of Southern California, guard John McCormick of Nebraska, center Ignazio "Nacho" Albergamo of LSU and Clemson placekicker David Treadwell.

Rounding out the defensive unit are down lineman Chad Hennings of the Air Force Academy and punter Tom Tupa of Ohio State.

Moon may not play Sunday for Oilers against Chargers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers starting quarterback Warren Moon may not be able to play in Sunday's game against the San Diego Chargers because of a shoulder injury, team officials say.

Moon, who injured his shoulder Nov. 20 during a game against the Cleveland Browns, saw a team doctor Tuesday and was diagnosed as having a shoulder impingement, the Houston Post reported today.

Team officials said they would list him as questionable for Sunday's game, meaning he has a 50-50 chance to play. His condition will be re-evaluated by doctors on Friday.

A shoulder impingement affects the bursa sac of the shoulder, causing a pinching pain when the arm is moved up and down.

"We don't know if he'll be able to play," Coach Jerry Glanville said, adding that Brent Pease and Cody Carlson will be preparing for the game.

"If Warren can't go, Pease probably would get the call, because he has played more recently," Glanville said.

"We couldn't get much worse news," Glanville said of Moon's injury.

jury. "They say it just needs rest and it will be a week-to-week thing."

Moon is in his fourth year in the NFL and has been having one of his best seasons.

His 17 touchdown passes are a career best and put him in a tie for third place in the NFL with the St. Louis Cardinals' Neil Lomax behind San Francisco's Joe Montana and Miami's Dan Marino.

Finalists are announced for Lombardi Award

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Oklahoma's Keith Jackson feels he has struck a blow for tight ends everywhere by being nominated for the Lombardi Award, which honors the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman.

Ohio State's Chris Spielman wants to win the honor because he has so much respect for the man the trophy honors.

And two other finalists, Syracuse's Ted Gregory and Auburn's Tracy Rucker, are just delighted to be considered after suffering injuries this season.

One of the four will step forward tonight to accept the 40-pound block of granite trophy, named for Vince Lombardi, former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer in 1970.

"I'm more of a lineman than a receiver at Oklahoma," said Jackson, who caught 13 passes in the Sooners' ground-oriented offense this season. "I'm more of a tackle eligible."

"Down through the years, tight ends have been abused," he added. "They're not considered receivers and they're not considered linemen, so I'm glad that the Lombardi decided to recognize us."

Proceeds from the dinner go to the American Cancer Society for research.

Spielman, a finalist for the honor last year, can recite many of Lombardi's inspirational speeches and has patterned his playing style after the discipline Lombardi preached.

"It would be the greatest honor to win this award because Vince Lombardi is a man that I really admired," Spielman said. "I have his sayings on my wall and plaques."

Spielman, a 6-2, 234-pound linebacker, recorded 186 tackles for the Buckeyes this season, 78 of them solos. Spielman's 1987 totals gave him 546 career tackles, including 283 solos.

Jackson, a 6-3, 241-pound tight end, set a school record with an average of 28.1 yards per catch this season, and his 1,739 receiving yards ranked second on the all-time Sooner list.

Gregory, a nose guard for unbeaten Syracuse, was injured in the seventh game of the season but finished the year second in unassisted tackles with 38. He has 242 career tackles.

"I'm surprised to be selected because I was injured for the final four games and a lot of my goals went down the drain," Gregory said. "Then they told me I was a finalist for the Lombardi, so it was a pleasant surprise to still have a chance."

Rucker, the only junior among the finalists, led Auburn tacklers as a freshman in 1985 and despite an injury this season, has 254 career tackles and 16 quarterback sacks.

"People always talk about the Heisman Trophy, and this is something like the Heisman to me," Rucker said. "It shocked me because I was hurt also. Then I got out of the hospital and found out I was a finalist."

Ohio State's Jim Stillwagon won the first award in 1970.

Other winners were: Walt Patulski, Notre Dame, 1971; Rich Glover, Nebraska, 1972; John Hicks, Ohio State, 1973; Randy White, Maryland, 1974; Lee Roy Selmon, Oklahoma, 1975; Wilson Whitley, Houston, 1976; Ross Browner, Notre Dame, 1977; Bruce Clark, Penn State, 1978.

Also, Brad Budde, Southern California, 1979; Hugh Green, Pittsburgh, 1980; Kenneth Sims, Texas, 1981; Dave Rimington, Nebraska, 1982; Dean Steinkuhler, Nebraska, 1983; Tony Degrate, Texas, 1984; Tony Casillas, Oklahoma, 1985 and Cornelius Bennett, Alabama, 1986.

Gold Glove winners named

NEW YORK (AP) — Third baseman Gary Gaetti and outfielder Kirby Puckett of the world champion Minnesota Twins were named winners of the Rawlings Gold Glove Award for fielding excellence during the 1987 season.

Joining Gaetti and Puckett on the American League team were first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, second baseman Frank White of Kansas City, shortstop Tony Fernandez of Toronto, catcher Bob Boone of California, pitcher Mark Langston of Seattle, and outfielders Jesse Barfield of Toronto and Dave Winfield of New York.

The National League winners were first baseman Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets, second baseman Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs, shortstop Ozzie Smith and third baseman Terry Pendleton of St. Louis, catcher Mike LaValliere of Pittsburgh, pitcher Rick Reuschel of San Francisco, and outfielders Eric Davis of Cincinnati, Andre Dawson of Chicago and Tony Gwynn of San Diego.

Raiders' Jackson is NFL honoree

NEW YORK (AP) — Bo Jackson of the Los Angeles Raiders, Joe Montana of the San Francisco 49ers, Al Harris of the Chicago Bears and the entire Buffalo Bills' defense have been honored by the NFL as Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week.

Jackson, won the AFC Offensive Player of the Week honors for his 221 yards rushing and three touchdowns in Los Angeles' 37-14 victory over Seattle Monday night. The rushing total, which included a 91-yard touchdown run, was the longest in Raiders' history.

AFC defensive honors went to the Buffalo defense, which blanked Miami 27-0, the first shutout of the Dolphins in five years. It also ended Dan Marino's streak of touchdown passes at 30 consecutive games.

Montana won NFC offensive honors for his 342 yards and four touchdowns in San Francisco's 38-24 win over Cleveland. Harris, filling in for the injured Dan Hampton, blocked two field goals and had a sack along with five other tackles as Chicago beat Green Bay 23-10.

Armitage to be featured at QWTSU Sunday

The book, recently released by the Syracuse University Press, is an analytical study of Held, an American comic artist best known for his cartoons and illustrations of the Roaring Twenties. As one reviewer noted, "If F. Scott Fitzgerald was the literary spokesman for the jazz age, Held was its illustrator." Armitage will discuss the life and times of Held, present slides of his works and relate her experiences researching the book and dealing with editors and publishers during the 2 p.m. program.

The meeting in the Cornette Library Lecture Room will conclude with the reception and autograph session. All interested persons and Friends of the WT Cornette Library are invited to attend.

Cuban-born bishop going to Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The Cuban-born bishop credited with ending an eight-day prison uprising in Louisiana said he would travel to the federal penitentiary here today to meet with his Cuban "brothers" holding 89 hostages.

"I will go as a brother not a negotiator," Auxiliary Bishop Agustin Roman of the Archdiocese of Miami told WPLG-TV in Miami on Wednesday night.

He said he anticipated an end to the 11-day crisis by the time he arrived at the U.S. Penitentiary so he could "celebrate with my brothers," the 1,107 Cuban detainees holding the prison.

Patrick Korten, deputy director for public affairs for the Justice Department, said Wednesday night there seemed to be a sincere desire among the inmates to end the standoff, but a settlement "is not imminent."

He would not say whether Roman would be allowed to meet with detainees. Korten said Roman would be a part of the negotiations "only if the time comes."

Raphael Penalver, an attorney counseling Roman in Miami, said the bishop "has offered to be a mediator, and I can't say anything else."

The Rev. Francisco Santana, a spokesman for the Miami archdiocese, said federal negotiators had extended the hostage crisis by refusing mediators such as Roman.

Roman's presence helped end an eight-day siege Sunday when Cuban detainees released 26 hostages from the federal detention center in Oakdale, La.

At the Atlanta prison, a taped message in Spanish from Roman was played Wednesday over the public address system.

"I wish the situation would finish well, honorable," he said. "Don't ask more than the law permits."

The detainees took over the prison Nov. 23 after the Justice Department announced that Cuba had agreed to take back "undesirables" among those who came to the United States in the 1980 Mariel boatlift. One inmate was killed and three prison buildings were gutted by fire in rioting.

Calm settled over the 85-year-old prison Wednesday night. No negotiations were held, and the inmates busied themselves by erecting a Christmas tree.

Gary Leshaw, an attorney with the Atlanta Legal Aid Society who was counseling the detainees, said agreement on "one major stumbling block" could bring the hostages' release. He would not discuss what the issue was.

The only specifics about the inmates' demands have come from statements over a makeshift, rooftop loudspeaker they call "Radio Mariel," which was silent Wednesday night.

The detainees said earlier that they want an end to the agreement with Cuba that could lead to their deportation, treatment for mentally ill detainees and admission to the United States under a 1966 immigration law. They said they want an agreement that is legally binding and is more specific than the one reached in Oakdale.

"They're playing to the public ... because they feel they can't trust the government," said Steven Donziger, an attorney who represents five detainees. "These people are not wackos who took hostages for no reason. The reason has to do with fundamental rights and that has to be addressed."

Outside the prison, wives of the Cubans maintained their vigil Wednesday night, singing and praying as temperatures dipped in the 30s.

In Washington, Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., urged that the hostages, who are federal employees, be given medical and financial benefits under a 1966 law.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My doctor here in Japan tells me that I'm a borderline diabetic. He was going to prescribe medicine to see if we could get my blood sugar down, but I suggested that we first try it without medicine. He agreed, but I was not able to get a clear answer as to how I might do that except to eat less and exercise more. It is almost as if he wants me to fail, so I can begin taking pills and then, later, the needle. What course of action should I follow? Is it possible to avoid getting diabetes? I'm 53 years old, 5 feet 11 and weigh 198 pounds.

DEAR READER: Your fasting glucose level of 159 included in the rest of your letter is too high. But it needs to be repeated to confirm whether it is persistently that high or not. Stress and other factors can cause an increased fasting level. Your blood pressure level is borderline and your cholesterol levels are slightly elevated. Losing weight and sensible exercise is important in improving all three of these findings.

You may need additional testing to learn whether you have type II diabetes — also called adult onset diabetes or noninsulin dependent diabetes mellitus. With a diet and exercise program, many individuals with your findings can avoid taking medicines to lower their blood glucose level. If they are successful, it is a better way to go than taking pills. The pills will not improve your cholesterol levels or your blood pressure levels, but weight loss most likely will.

The most important thing to do is lose pounds of body fat. Your doctor is correct in saying the way to do that is to eat less and exercise more. Exercise also helps to improve the movement of glucose from the bloodstream into the cells, and that will lower blood glucose levels.

I would suggest starting a daily walking program. Gradually increase it to walk as much as you can each day. At the same time reduce the calories in your diet by eliminating fats and sweets — the two main calorie-rich food sources. Get as lean and fit as you can and there is a strong likelihood that you will never need medicine for diabetes and will also decrease your risk of heart disease.

I have discussed the things you can do to help in my new Special Report 89, Diabetes: The Sweet Sickness, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to THE HEALTH LETTER, Dept 89, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: What causes unsightly bruises on the arms and hands after getting slight bumps? The bumps don't usually hurt and the skin isn't broken. The places are not sore, but they are sometimes large and look like the blood is right under the skin. Could it be some kind of deficiency in my system? I have asked several doctors but so far haven't received a definite answer.

DEAR READER: If you are bumped hard enough, you will tear small blood vessels and will have a bruise. However, as people get older they lose the elasticity of the skin and some of the supporting structures. It is easy for the skin to be pulled a greater distance, and as it moves, it tears small blood vessels. That will cause small bruised spots just under the surface of the skin. Any condition that decreases blood clotting may also cause easy bruising. That includes taking medicines to prevent blood clotting or the regular use of aspirin. Your doctor could have some blood tests done to evaluate your clotting mechanism to find out if this is a factor or not.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have hypoglycemia. I know I need protein, but I've heard that chromium will help. I want to know if it does. If so, how much should I take and how long will it take to get into my system?

DEAR READER: I am always a little suspicious about someone telling me he or she has hypoglycemia. It is a diagnosis that is frequently abused. Then a lot of people engage in self-diagnosis and think hypoglycemia is "the cause" of their unexplained symptoms. Many people who think they have hypoglycemia actually have anxiety. The anxiety causes an increased output of adrenaline. The symptoms are caused by the adrenaline.

Real hypoglycemia does cause a sudden release of adrenaline to boost the blood glucose level, and that adrenaline causes the same symptoms that are caused by adrenaline release as a result of anxiety and stress. Chromium is not something you should be taking yourself. All of the trace minerals are required in very small amounts in the body. The margin between the amount you need and the amount that is toxic is quite narrow. There is a danger of poisoning yourself. That is why I recommend that people should not take trace minerals unless they are recommended by their doctor.

Individuals who do have reactive hypoglycemia do not need an increased amount of protein. Rather they need a diet that does not cause a sharp rise in their blood glucose. Many carbohydrates that are in bulk foods will satisfy this need. A good example is a raw apple. Many carbohydrate foods do not cause a sharp rise in blood glucose and therefore do not cause a sudden release of insulin and a rebound low blood glucose.

You can also have a rather low level of blood glucose and not have any symptoms. To update you on the current thinking, read my new Special Report 88, Your Blood Glucose Level and Hypoglycemia. Others who want this special report can send $1 and a long self-addressed envelope with 39 cents postage to THE HEALTH LETTER, Dept 88, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. I have included current diet recommendations for hypoglycemia and adrenaline symptoms in this report.
