Arab Youths Battle Soldiers

Rioting Errupts In West Bank

By MAX NASH Associated Press Writer

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) - Fierce anti-Israel rioting erupted in Nablus Saturday and an Israeli army officer was injured as troops battled Palestinian youths hurling stones and using slingshots to fire bottles and chunks of metal.

Israeli troops fired into the air and shot tear gas canisters in the narrow alleys of the old marketplace to disperse the rioters who shouted "Palestine is Arab." Soldiers arrested dozens of Arab youths, and some troops were seen beating the Arabs they took into custody.

Israel radio also reported disturbances and anti-Israel demonstrations in the West Bank towns of Bethlehen, Bet Sahour and Hebron as a wave of trouble continued in the wake of Israel's dismissal of three Palestinian nationalist mayors in Nablus, Ramallah and El Bireh.

Five Arabs and one Israeli have been killed since the riots erupted a week ago.

Shakaa and Khalaf were crippled in car-bombings, and Tawil narrowly escaped an explosion in his boobytrapped garage.

Israel's new civilian governor of the occupied territories, Menachem Milson, said Friday that local Arabs would be appointed to run the three cities. Milson said the three radicals were ousted so that a moderate leadership could emerge in the West Bank to negotiate with Israel.

He charged that the three mayors took orders from the PLO to incite violence with the aim of sabotaging the Camp David Plan for limited self-rule for the 1.3 million Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza.

The Palestinians so far have refused to join the stalemated talks on details of self-rule, and since Milson was appointed last November to replace the military governor there have been recurring waves of anti-Israel violence in the occupied ter-

Trying to break a general strike, soldiers used boltcutters to break padlocks on shops in Nablus. Israel radio reported that police in the Arab sector of Jerusalem had arrested about 50 shopkeepers for refusing orders to open their shops.

In the Gaza Strip, merchants kept their businesses closed until troops forced them to open. Reliable Arab sources in Gaza said a sitdown strike was held at a charity office by a group of doctors, engineers, lawyers and students to protest Israeli policy in the occupied territories.

Landing at Northrup Strip U.S., Nicaragua To Conduct Talks In Mexico Next Month

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Mexico's U.N. envoy says the United States and Nicaragua will hold highlevel talks in Mexico City next month to improve frayed relations, but the Reagan administration says his statement is premature.

"We call upon our two friends, the United States and Nicaragua, to agree to an effective truce in words and facts that will permit the creation of propitious climate for understanding," Ambassador Porfirio Munoz Ledo told the U.N. Security Council on Friday.

Munoz said the United States and Nicaragua have agreed to an April meeting in Mexico City "to discuss the main questions that separate them." He said the talks would be held at a "high political level."

In Washington, the State Department said in a brief written statement that "no such meeting has been agreed to." But it said the Reagan administration is willing to address issues dividing the United States and Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

In Mexico City, the Foreign Ministry said the U.N. ambassador's statement 'faithfully reflects the results of conversations by the Mexican foreign minister during the last three weeks with officials of the United States and Nicaragua."

Mexican Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda has been shuttling between New York, Havana and Managua to calm an increasingly tense situation in Central America and the Caribbean, where the Reagan administration claims Nicaragua and Cuba are inciting leftist revolutions.

Washington also alleges Nicaragua is building a defense force beyond its needs and funneling weapons from Cuba to rebels fighting the U.S.-backed junta in El Salvador.

The Sandinistas have accused the United States of planning to invade Nicaragua with anti-Sandinista exiles based in neighboring Honduras. The 15-nation Security Council began debate Thursday on Nicaragua's complaint, which U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick called 'groundless.' In his speech Friday, Munoz said Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo had been assured by President Reagan that the United States does not intend any military action in Central America. He also said Mexico would support a nonaggression pact between the United States and Nicaragua, and between Nicaragua and

neighbors.

In Managua, the new U.S. Ambassador to Nicaragua Anthony Quaiton on Friday called for a dialogue "to reverse the adverse direction of relations between the two countries."

The United States previously had no ambassador in Nicaragua for seventh months to replace Lawrence Pezzullo, a Carter administration appointee. The delay was seen as a move by the Reagan administration to show disapproval of the Sandinista government, which took power after a leftist revolution overthrew right-wing dictator Anastasio Somoza in

Blacks Urge Reagan To See 'Misery'

WASHINGTON (AP) Black clergymen say they have told President Reagan he needs to get out of the White House and visit the "bosom of black misery" to show he is compassionate and cares about the poor.

"I'm hoping it's not too late, but I'll tell you right now it's later than the White House thinks with black Americans," said the Rev. Hosea Williams, one of the clergymen who ate lunch with Reagan Friday.

Agents Recover Over Half Million In Misdirected Funds

DALLAS (AP) - Ten agents from the Social Security regional inspector's office have recovered more than $500,000 in misdirected funds and expect to top the $1 million mark soon.

The agents began their investigation here Oct. 1, and are examining almost 400 cases of uncashed Social Security checks and repayments from Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Three people have been convicted of fraud or forgery and 35 additional cases have been referred to prosecutors.

Gene Richardson, chief of the Dallas office of the Health and Human Services Department, said only cases in which people forged checks or lied about the deaths of Social Security beneficiaries are being referred for prosecution. People who collected uncashed checks may turn them in without risking criminal charges, he said.

The investigations began after a "death match" of computer records was performed last fall. Department officials in Washington found that about $60 million in routine payments had been made to 8,000 dead people.

One local suspect is suspected of collecting 126 checks mailed to his deceased mother 101/2 years after her death, Richardson said.

Several cases involved more than $20,000 in benefits, he added.

One New Orleans man insisted his elderly mother, whose checks he had been endorsing, was living in a nursing home, Richardson said. The man asked investigators to allow him a couple of days to prepare her before they visited her at the home.

The man's attorney later called to say his client had intended to hire an elderly woman to pose as his mother so he could continue receiving her benefits, Richardson said.

New Mexico Utility Guilty of Conspiracy

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) - A federal court jury has determined that the parent company of New Mexico's natural gas utility conspired to fix prices in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The six-member jury's verdict, which was reached about 5 p.m. Friday after seven weeks of testimony, concluded the first phase of the twopart trial.

In the next trial phase, a jury is to determine the amount of damages Southern Union Co. of Dallas will have to pay the plaintiffs in the case.

The company was charged by a group of plaintiffs of conspiring in 1976 to raise prices in the San Juan Basin of northwest New Mexico to benefit gas production companies with which it had connections.

The gas prices are paid by consumers of Gas Company of New Mexico, a Southern Union division, through a direct pass-through approved by the New Mexico Public Service Commission in 1972.

Gas from the San Juan Basin region goes to consumers in an area including Albuquerque, Belen, Gallup, Farmington, Questa, Taos, Santa Fe and other communities.

Plaintiffs in the suit include a group of Clovis-area residents led by the Hecht Co., and Southern Union residential gas consumers as a class, led by Sheila Brewer of Gallup.

Other plaintiffs are 14 agencies and educational institutions of the state government, and Public Service Company of New Mexico, the state's major electric utility and a gas customer of Southern Union.

Man Survives 345,000 Volt

Jolt From Tower

HOUSTON (AP) - Quick thinking by a telephone cable repairman and a passerby helped save a Kansas man jolted from a 90-foot metal transmission tower by 345,000 volts of electricity, authorities said.

David King, 25, of Winfield, Kan., suffered second and third degree burns on his chest, arms and face and multiple fractures to both legs. He was in poor condition late Friday at Ben Taub Hospital, a spokeswoma

King said he climbed the high voltage tower in southeast Houston Friday because he was hypnotized, said paramedic Mark Maddox. However, he did not know who hypnotized him or why, Maddox said.

"Another five minutes and we wouldn't have been needed... Time was critical because he was losing a lot of fluids due to the burns and blood because of the broken legs," said

Mike Murphy, a repairman working on a utility pole, was talking by telephone with his supervisor when he saw King tumble from the tower, authorities said. Murphy told his boss what had happened and asked him to call an ambulance, police said.

King, with his clothes aflame, fell 15 feet onto a metal beam, "laid there and smoldered a while, then fell to the ground. He was definitely on fire. Flaming when he came down," said D.R. McKinney, a passerby.

Murphy grabbed a water can from his pickup truck and doused the flames, police said.

McKinney, who lives in nearby Jacinto City, told authorities he was driving by when he heard an explosion "like a shotgun going off. You could seek the smoke and could still see fragments of clothes flying.'

McKinney stopped the car, pulled out a hunting knife and cut off King's burning clothes, police said.

"He told anybody that was listening to shoot him to put him out of misery. I told him that was against the law," McKInney said.

King told authorities he came to Houston recently but had not found a job or a place to stay.

Scouts Take Icy Float Trip

Boy Scout Troop 52, sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Hereford, recently returned from a six-day trip of canoeing, fishing, and hiking on the Buffalo National River in the Ozark Mountains of northwest Arkansas.

Four adult leaders and 12 scouts made the trip, which covered approximately 1,400 miles. The group left Hereford March 13 and arrived at BSA Camp Orr near Jasper, Ark. later that day. Camp Orr is operated by the West-Ark Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The group spent Sunday, March 14 canoeing 12 miles of the river from Camp Orr to Pruitt, Ark. on an orientation float of that stretch of the river which is a relatively slow area with a few small rapids according to Scoutmaster Neal Lemons.

"Rain, snow, drizzle, and later, fog, failed to dampen the spirits of the boys, and they handled their canoes well even though most of them had little or no previous experience," Lemons said.

After heavy rains hampered floating Sunday night and Monday the group managed to float a safe section of the river Tuesday, and the weather was better Wednesday as the group took side trips to navagate rapids such as "Wrecking Rock,"

"S-Turn," "Hell's Half Acre," and "Grey Rock," among others as well as visiting a waterfall.

The group returned to Hereford March 18.

"Troop 52 is an active outdoor unit, and tries to provide 25 to 30 days per year for camping and other outdoor activities," Lemons said.

The troop also plans a trip to Canada in either 1983 or 1984.

A slide show of the Arkansas trip and others taken by the troop will be presented at the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church at 7 p.m. Monday. The public is invited to attend the slide show.

Those making the recent trip in addition to Lemons included Assistant Scoutmaster Craig Hinger, Troop Committee Members Bud Thomas and Troy Don Moore, and scouts Michael Foster, Hunt Foster, Kurt Simon, Buck Brinkley, Bobby Baker, Cory Fox, Shaun Moore, Allan Hyer, Brian Thomas, Jay Beene, Chris Hinger and Jimmy Gowdy.

A dipper's or chewer's mouth may show signs of "leukoplakia," wrinkled; thickened and white leathery areas inside the mouth.

About six percent of persons with leukoplakia develop oral cancer, Shirer remarks.

Notonly does tobacco cause tissue irritation, but chewers and dippers tend to have greater tooth wear than nonusers, the specialist notes.

The gums tend to recede in areas where tobacco is held, as between the lower lip and gum, she explains.

Consequently, bare roots caused from receded gums become more susceptible to decay and are more sensitive to heat, cold, air, certain food and chemicals, Shirer says.

Also, tobacco that has been sweetened may increase tooth decay, she adds.

Tobacco juices also contain hundreds of chemicals which may delay would healing, especially when a tooth has been pulled or oral surgery has taken place, the specialist reports.

DEAR DR. LAMB - The American Heart Association points out the following as heart attack symptoms: uncomfortable pressure, squeezing and fullness or pain in the center of the chest, behind the breast bone; pain spreading to the shoulder, neck or arms; nausea; shortness of breath;

a feeling of weakness.

My husband has all of these symptoms. He is 65 and weighs 180 pounds. His doctor didn't seem concerned and advised him to lose weight, lay off salt and double his Ser-Ap-Es for his high blood pressure. He is doing all of these.

DEAR READER — Obvi-

The child was returned here unharmed to her mother, Patricia Thompson, who had remarried after the girl's father died.

The Gress brothers' mother, identified by FBI agents as Susan Schmidt, had named the child Susan Dawn. On Friday, when the voungster was returned home, she at first refused to be called Denise and didn't immediately remember her family, said her mother.

"She cried. She didn't want to come with me and that's what broke my heart," Mrs.

Thompson said. "But she's getting to know me. Everything's fine now as far as I'm concerned."

Don Gress told police he had noticed the child on a visit last Sunday to his family's home in western New York state. He said he was a friend of the girl's late father, Earl Gravely, and had heard about the case. Gravely died of carbon monoxide poisoning four months to the day after his daughter was reported missing. The coroner ruled the death a probable accident.

Reduce Programs Or Raise Taxes?

Do the American people want government programs restored and expanded more than they want a reduction in their income taxes?

This seems to be the opinion of a number of political leaders in Washington and the frightening thing about it is that they just may be right.

Rep. Tip O'Neill, Speaker of the House, told members of the National Newspaper Association last week that President Ronald Reagan is dead wrong in his program of budget cutting.

Instead of cutting federal spending, cutting corporate and personal income taxes, Rep. O'Neill believes the U.S. should raise taxes, restore cuts in government programs and restructure the tax program to "soak the rich" instead of the lower income people. This is good politics, of course. There are not that many rich people and these are not the powerful political force that O'Neill would have us believe.

President Reagan's budget cutting program, which went into effect only last October, has been attacked on all sides, not only by the Democrats, but by some leading Republicans who now fear they made a mistake in passing the tax cutting, budget cutting, package last year.

-Can it be that we have reached a point of no return? U.S. News and World Report last summer had a startling article on the way things are going. Last year for the first time, the number of people in the United States who are receiving government money outnumbered the number of people who are contributing government money in the form of taxes.

Any nation that has more people getting than giving has a problem and we may just be in that situation right

If so, it may be hard, if not impossible, to reverse the frend. It may be that we can't cut government spending and let Americans keep more of what they make.

Rep. Jack Kemp told the NNA audience that Uncle Sam is buying 95 million meals a day for Americans and this is close to half of the population. Will those who receive free or subsidized meals be willing to give them

The U.S. economy is in trouble right now and there is a great amount of unemployment in the land, the farmers are looking at a depression, things are not going well.

Is it time to turn away from this feeble attempt at cutling government spending and instead crank up the printing presses and turn out more money to give to the people that need it?

Can the government be all things to all men as some people seem to believe? Is it too late to go in the other

AUSTIN -- Ten people tecently died in Houston in aterrible fire in the middle of the night. Put yourself in their place | for a moment. You're in a strange town, asteep in your hotel room. You're either all alone, or with your family. Suddenly the smell of smoke awakens you. You jump up and try to find your clothes so you can leave. You stumble around for a light switch. You think you find it, but the lights won't work. Now you are really scared. Smoke is coming into your room from under the door. You run to the window and look down. All you see is pavement and concrete 40 feet down. You run to the door and burst out into the ballway. It's full of smoke but you make a run for it. The next day, they put a note about you in the newspaper. That was the way the last weekend on earth was for chose 10 in Houston.

It shouldn't have ended that way and doesn't have to be that way for others. Souston Fire Chief V. E. logers said a sprinkler sysem in the hotel would have reduced the death toll.

We supported a bill that would have required sprinkler systems in new hotels and hotels that were reconditioned. It would not have required systems for existing structures. The sponsor of the bill thought that would be too great a burden for hotel owners.

Even this modest measure did not pass. The powers that be in this state decided it would be too expensive to require builders and remodelers of hotels to install sprinklers.

This is not the first time people have taken a calculated risk. Indeed, there is nothing wrong with doing so. We do it every day when we don't put on our seat belt in our car, or maybe even when we get into the car to begin with. The key is that the decision to take such a risk must be reasonable.

Was the decision not to require sprinklers in hotels reasonable? That's up to you to decide.

Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius and tell us whether you think hotels should have sprinkler systems. Our address is P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas

The game is slicker than boiled okra. The rules (if there were any) are: if there is anything a congressman wants to shove through, he simply puts it on a bill as a "rider." The rider does not have to have anything to do with the bill it is attached to. The bill can be a tax break, and the rider can be a new dam for Georgia. The bill goes through and gets the publicity, the rider also goes through and gets buried in the shuffle. Riders are to Congress what small print is to

The game gets more complicated as the pros learn to play it. If they want some legislaion and know it has no chance of passing, then they simply choose a bill to ride that must pass. If they want some good ole pork barrel and do not want the publicity of having to ask for such a ridiculous thing, then they just hide it by making it a rider. If there is pressure on them for some legislation and they do not want it to pass, then they attach it to a bill that has no chance. The bill fails, and so does the rider. Next election, they can say they tried to pass legislation on the matter, but their near sighted colleagues

Through February, the agency said, wind damaged fewer than 2.1 million acres in the Great Plains, compared to nearly 4.2 million in the same period in 1980-81. The SCS reports on Great Plains wind erosion damage during the season which runs through May 31.

Land is considered damaged by wind if enough soil has been removed or deposited on it to subject the land to further erosion hazard, or to impair its productive capacity.

Norman A. Berg, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, said this season's wind erosion decline so far has been attributable to "good snow cover and adequate soil moisture."

Total damage in the sixmonth 1980-81 season totaled nearly 12.5 million acres in

Carlson Returned From FLBA Meeting

Roy H. Carlson has just returned from Houston when he represented the Federal Land Bank Association of Hereford at the 37th Annual Stockholders' Meeting of the Federal Land Bank of Texas. The meeting was attended by members of the 56 Federal Land Bank Associations in Texas.

In his report to the stockholders, Thomas H. Benson, Land Bank president, said that the demand for loans made 1981 the largest year in the Bank's history, with 3,638 loans closed for a total of $408.2 million. This compares to 1980 figures of 3,774 loans closed for a total of $322.3 million.

"While we see some real problems in extending credit, we do not see the demand lessening, and anticipate that our growth will continue," Benson said.

Keynote speaker for the meeting was Frank Naylor, Jr., under secretary for Small Communities and Rural Department, United States Department of Agriculture, who said that people working in agriculture are paying more than their fair share for an economy and high-cost programs that are running out of control.

Those attending the meeting from this area were Mr. & Mrs. George E. Turrentine, Mr. & Mrs. Clint F. Homfeld, Mr. & Mrs.

Clarence A. Betzen, Mr. & Mrs. Roy H. Carlson, Jim Perrin, and Dave Peterson.

With the purchase, Center Plains also significantly expands its capability to provide dealers with dry fertilizer. The Plainview plant has been producing about 100,000 tons of ammonia sulfate and 20,000 tons of blended fertilizer annually.

Executives of Center Plains hope to steadily increase production of the newly acquired facility. "We feel this purchase represents a continuing expansion, along with our Monsanto acquisition, into the dry fertilizer business," said Center Plains executive vice president, Bill

Bass also said that additional personnel would be hired as projects develop at the plant. "We would hope to have increased the number of employees to fifty or more within two or three years," the executive vice president said.

The plant is located on a 119-acre tract and includes a 10,000-ton refrigerated ammonia storage tank, a specious warehouse, an ammonia sulfate plant, a dry fertilizer granulation plant, railloading facilities, dry and liquid blending facilities, as well as a modern office building.

Retail Food Prices Expected Up 6%

WASHINGTON (AP) - economics, said Tuesday that Retail food prices now are expected to rise only about 6 percent this year, the smallest annual increase since 1976, says the Agriculture Department.

The department had been saving a food price increase of 7 percent could be expected in 1982, compared to a 7.9 percent average increase in 1981.

According to department records a 6 percent increase would be the smallest since food prices rose 3.1 percent in 1976. They gained 6.3 percent in 1977, 10 percent in 1978, 10.9 percent in 1979 and 8.6 percent in 1980.

"This was partly attributable to the effects of cold weather in January which damaged the Florida fresh vegetable and citrus crops," he said.

USDA Investigating Imported Adulterated Meat?

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -Although it has made no public announcement, the Agriculture Department says it is investigating the entry of some "adulterated meat" from unidentified foreign countries into the U.S. market.

However, the agency provided a background sheet that was distributed to meat importers, some farm organizations and the meat

"An on-going investigation has revealed the clandestine movement into domestic channels of adulterated imported meat which had been refused entry into the United States, based on FSIS import inspection," the paper said.

Consequently, it said, the agency is tightening procedures used in stamping boxes of imported meat with the official mark, "U.S. Inspected and Passed" and is assuming full physical control of all meat that has been rejected.

'Security measures will be invoked and the product maintained under FSIS control until it is destroyed or removed from the United States," the paper said.

Dr. Don E. Ethridge sees a decrease in the number of small farms. Units that survive, he said, will become larger and employ more sophisticated technology. Those operations will be the ones which are most efficient in a competitive industry.

"The farmer cannot influence the price of products he produces nor can he influence the prices of production inputs--fuel, energy, vehicles, chemicals, wages and interest rates," Ethridge said. "Some people think food price increases are caused by

He said there are several underlying reasons and a long history of evolution to today's agriculture situation.

"The fact that American agriculture is highly commercialized and a capital intensive industry makes it the envy of most of the world, but it also presents one of the industry's major problems," Ethridge said.

"By today's standards the farmer is no longer a small business," he said. Managing assets worth $500,000 or more, farmers have a lot to lose by making wrong deci-

"Agricultural production requires large quantities of capital to purchase production inputs. Most of this capital is borrowed and current financial markets are characterized by high interest rates," he said.

Banks are understandably reluctant to loan money to farmers whose prospects of making a profit to repay the loan are not good," Ethridge said.

In the long run, the consumer also loses when the agricultural industry becomes depressed.

"As agricultural production becomes riskier, more farmers are likely to go out of business driving down the supply and driving up the price of agricultural commodities," Ethridge said.

Farmers' problems with prices and costs are centuries old, he said.

But in recent history, agriculture operated under a price-support system-government subsidies on "major" agricultural products such as grains and cotton. Price supports led to relatively unsuccessful acreage control programs which attempted to limit sup-

With time, most producers adopt the new system or equipment and everyone lowers costs. The competitive structure of the industry brings down prices. Those who implement new technology after it already is being widely used may be too late to reap substantial benefits. Those are the ones for which breaking even is the best they

Ring Around Seed. More Life from the Land.

RA 450 hits 80.72 bu/a, all-time Texas high.

The Texas Soybean Association's 1981 yield winner, Mike Carthel of Lockney, says he'll "put Ring Around's soybeans up against anybody's.' Carthel planted Ring Around Mitchell 450, the variety that offers growers a real advantage when it comes to shatter scores, standability and phytophthora resistance. And, in spite of dry weather on the High Plains and weakened underground irrigation, he came up a winner with 80.72 bu/a and a new high for the state.

Yields like this are only part of the Ring Around soybean story. For example, Ring Around research is responsible for time-tested Mitchell soybeans and has also developed RA 480 especially for the High Plains of Texas. RA 480 gives good shatter resistance and can take the highest pH of any known soybean variety.

A GUARANTEED STAND

In addition the the latest research and the highest quality, Ring Around gives you one of the strongest guarantees ever. When you plant Ring Around brand soybeans, you're guaranteed a satisfactory stand-or we'll replace each and every bag for replanting during the 1982 planting season. While your seed might not make a stand for virtually any reason-frost, drought or other problems (anything, in fact, except chemical damage or intentional destruction)—the guarantee still stands. And that's true regardless of which high yielding Ring Around proprietary soybean variety you buy. No guarantee on public varieties, of course. Just remember-no stand, no problem. Ring Around guarantees it.

TFB Proposes 12-point Plan For Economy

WACO - Farm Bureau across the nation are supporting a comprehensive 12-point program designed to improve. depressed farm income, according to Carrol Chaloupka, Dalhart, president of the Texas Farm Bureau.

Chaloupka, a grain and beef cattle producer, is a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors which has adopted the plan calling for action on the immediate, short-term, and long-term fronts.

"Our main problem is that we have over-expanded our agricultural production plant compared to demand," Chaloupka said. "This came about partly because of federal farm and credit programs which have stimulated too much production. In addition, federal budget cuts are hurting at a time when farm prices and income are

Immediate actions needed,

Chaloupka said, include the

- Implementation of the Economic Recovery Program. The farm leader said that the projected federal deficit of $92 billion "cannot be accepted." He called for reducing this deficit to $50 billion through cuts in entitlement programs and a moratorium on all cost of living adjustments in federal spending programs.

- Passage of legislation which guarantees that grain purchased by foreign buyers scheduled for delivery within 120 days will not be embargoed for any reason short of war.

leader said. This change he said, should include a price level where farmers could sell out of the reserve without a penalty; no increase in the loan and release prices from the reserve for the 1982 or 1983 crops; no waiver of first year interest; and no increase in yearly storage payments.

Chaloupka said Farm Bureau wants three longterm actions:

-- End the farm-held reserve. The U.S. has become the residual supplier of grains to the world because the government has encouraged long-term storage.

- Work with international agencies to teach developing nations the value of building storage facilities and buying U.S. grain when prices are

- Expand market development activities in cooperation with other U.S. farm groups and U.S. Department of Agriculture with particular emphasis on those developing

Chemicals Cause Third of Eye Injuries

Eye injuries on the farm can happen from doing something as complex as spraying chemical fertilizers or something as easy as chopping wood, reports the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. Some 3,000 farmers were treated in hospital emergency rooms for eye injuries in 1980. This figure does not include farmers who sought private medical attention.

Eye injuries from pesticides, fertilizers and other agricultural chemicals account for nearly one-third of the reported injuries. The remaining two-thirds of farm accidents stemmed from work with hand-tools, threshing machines, combines, milking machines and numerous other farm tools and equipment.

Among the most commonly used chemicals on the farm today is the fertilizer anhydrous ammonia. this important fertilizer also presents great danger to the "Anhydrous ammonia has a natural affinity for water," explains R.E. Margo, M.D., State Medical Chairman. "The eye is about 80 percent water. Upon impact, damage to tissue is almost instantaneous, and often results in partial or total blindness."

In addition to wearing tight-fitting chemical goggles working with anhydrous ammonia and other agricultural chemicals, the Society recommends that farmers carry a plastic squeeze bottle filled with water in their shirtpockets. A five gallon tank of water should be attached to the tractors and applicators. All equipment should be carefully checked for possible leaky valves or faulty hoses. Protective eyewear should be worn when examining equipment.

"Immediate washing of the eye with fresh water is essential upon contact with chemicals. Water must be circulated on the affected area for at least 15 minutes, and them prompt medical attention sought," says Dr. Margo.

Cuts and punctures to the eye and eyelids from work with machines and farm tools are among the other most common causes of farm eye injuries.

If an unprotected eye is cut or punctured from work with tools or machinery, the Society recommends that the affected area be lightly bandaged, and a doctor immediately contacted. Unlike procedures for chemical burns, the eye should not be washed in case of a puncture, nor should an untrained hand attempt to remove any foreign object stuck in the eye.

"Industrial quality safety glasses and goggles should be used on the farm," Dr. Margo comments. "Farm eye hazards are not unlike their industrial counterparts. Industry has been using eye protection successfully for many years. The use of protective eyewear on the farm will likewise greatly reduce the number of senseless blinding injuries."

The potential hazards of working with anhydrous ammonia without safety goggles are dramatically depicted in the film, "For the Rest of your Life." This movie is available for booking through the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, P.O. Box 20-20, Houston, TX 77001. For a copy of the free brochure "Blinding Facts about Eye Safety on the Farm," send a self-addressed, long, stamped envelope to the same address.

Soybean Growers Add Their Trade Policy and increases the U.S. trade until prices are low. In the event of a declared

ST. LOUIS - The American Soybean Association (ASA) has proposed a U.S. trade policy that would restore international confidence toward the U.S. as a reliable supplier of soybeans, grain and other exports.

The ASA proosal calls for the U.S. government to honor private export company contracts reported to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Specifically, the proposal would require the U.S. government to honor all legitimate contracts for private exporter shipments to Most Favored Nation (MFN) countries. For non-MFN countries such as the Soviet Union, the agreement would cover only shipments scheduled for delivery within six months.

"The four export embargoes in the last 10 years have seriously damaged the U.S. reputation as a reliable trading partner," says ASA President Charles Hamon, a Kansas soybean farmer. "Our state and federal governments maintain laws requiring U.S. citizens and companies to fulfill contract commitments. It's time our own government follow the same principle in international trade. Without this type of policy, our trading partners will continue to seek other suppliers for soybeans and grain and the U.S. will become the supplier of last resort. Such action not only reduces farm profits but also reduces export-related jobs deficit.'

In previous embargoes, the U.S. government has canceled private commercial contracts between U.S. companies and foreign importers, Hamon said. He cited the following advantages of the proposed policy:

All most favored nations would be assured that the U.S. would honor private, commercial commodity export contracts except after a declared national emergency or declared war. The Soviet Union and other non-MFN would be assured that their contracts to purchase U.S. commodities would be honored for six months in the future, except under dire circumstances.

The Soviets and other non-MFN would make U.S. purchases on a consistent basis in order to guarantee delivery under the agreement. This would prevent them from holding purchases

Texas Waylays Wayland, SPORTS Meets Rutgers In AIAW Finals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Terri Mackey scored 23 points to lead Texas to its 32nd consecutive victory, 82-63 over Wayland Baptist, in an Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for tournament semifinal game Friday night at the Palestra.

In the earlier semifinal here, Junior Jennie Hall made all eight of her shots from the floor and sank all eight of her free throw attempts to lead Rutgers to an 83-75 victory over Villanova.

Texas, now 35-3, will meet Rutgers, 24-7, Sunday afternoon at the Palestra for the AIAW national championhip.

Wayland, 19-14, which had aiready lost four games to Texas this season, led in the early stages of the game and trailed by only 34-30 at halftime as eight different players scored for the Flying

The Longhorns broke the game open early in the second half when Sherryl Hauglum scored eight points and Annette Smith four during a 14-2 surge that put Texas ahead 54-48 with about 12 minutes remaining.

The Longhorns were never again threatened. Smith finished with 18 and Hauglum 17 to join Mackey, who hit nine of ten free throws, as Texas' leading scorers.

Kelly Braisher had 14 to lead Wayland.

The Rutgers triumph in the opener snapped Villanova's 15-game winning streak:

Rutgers led 39-38 at halftime and scored the first six points of the second half. Villanova then responded with an 11-3 scoring spree as Kathie Biesel hit five points to put the Wildcats ahead

49-47. But June Olkowski and Terry Dorner led a 10-point surge as Rutgers took the lead for good, 57-49.

Hall, a 5-foot-9 forward, totaled 24 points while Dorner had 21 and Olkowski added 18 for Rutgers, 24-7.

Nancy Berhardt scored 20 points and Biesel had 19 for Villanova, 28-4.

Money, Morality Cloud College Cage Showdown

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -College basketball is putting its biggest show onto the vast stage of the aptly-named Superdome in an atmosphere of money and morality.

As North Carolina, Houston, Georgetown and Louisville assembled here today for their summit meeting to decide the NCAA championship, and split the biggest money pool in Final Four history, the sport was under the cloud of allegations of recruiting irregularities.

Almost as much attention at Friday's press conferences on the eve of the national semifinals was devoted to talk about the eye-opening proclamations by Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps as the games themselves. Phelps' remarks that some schools were paying topflight players $10,000 a year for their services set the tournament scene afire with discussion and controversy.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson, for one, was outraged about the form that Phelps' blast took, describing it as a vague allegation. Thompson was particularly unhappy with the idea that Phelps neglected to reveal the schools under suspicion.

"I have a problem with that," said Thompson. "Anytime you say 50 percent, you might as well say 100. I feel like it (Phelps' remarks) is a black mark against the coaching profession."

As for the reported payment to players, Thompson was aghast.

"I consider paying ballplayers very similar to said the slavery," Georgetown coach, himself a celebrated center at one time with Providence University, "and I don't want to be anybody's slave master." While other coaches considered payments to college players immoral, they aknowledged that the pressures and money involved in big-time basketball these days had fostered

The suit, filed Friday in state district court, charged team physician Dr. Harold Brelsford and three doctors at Methodist Hospital were negligent in treating Richard before and after he suffered a stroke while working out in the Astrodome on June 30,

The other doctors named in the suit were Michael Feltovich, a specialist in internal and diagnostic medicine; Charles H. Mc-Collum, a specialist in cardiology and vascular surgery; and Ben Cooper, a neurology specialist.

The suit does not specify damages sought by Richard and his wife, Carolyn, but challenges a Texas law limiting malpractice awards to $500,000, said Richard's attorney, Jeffrey Parsons.

The suit seeks to declare unconstitutional the statute limiting doctors' liability when alleged malpractice occurs during their hospital duties and asks that the couple be awarded damages "many times" the amount now allowed by law.

Watson Game Moving, Shares Heritage Lead

By BOB GREEN AP Golf

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Tom Watson, exhibiting more enthusiasm than he's shown all season, has his game moving in the right direction.

"If I played at 75 percent Thursday, this was about 85 percent today," he said Friday after a windblown, 3-under-par 68 had staked him to a place in the crowd of five men sharing the lead at the halfway point of the $300,000 Sea Pines-Heritage Classic

"I feel good about the way I'm hitting the ball," said Watson, aggressively seeking a return to the form that made him the outstanding performer in world golf. 'This was a good round of golf. I feel very good about my position for the next couple of rounds."

Watson, a winner in Los Angeles earlier this season, shared the No.1 position with four career non-winners, Tommy Valentine, Mike Mc-Cullough, former tennis pro Frank Conner and tour sophomore Fred Couples. All were at 137, five shots under par on the relatively short but very testing Harbour Town Golf Links which Watson called "a great golf course, proof that it doesn't have to be long to be a great golf course."

Its subtle demands were complicated by a gusty, swirling wind which produced, as Conner said "extreme difficulty in determining which way it was going to take the ball."

He solved those difficulties better than anyone else, however, with six birdies and an eagle-2, the latter off an 8-iron shot that took one hop into the cup on the ninth. His 66 was the best round of the Couples had a 68, Valentine 69 and McCullough 70.

It was two strokes back to the group at 139 which included Craig Stadler, George Archer, Dan Pohl, John Mahaffey, Doug Tewell and the two men who shared the first round lead, Buddy Allin and Mike Donald.

Allin and Donald each went from an opening 64 to a 75. Archer and Pohl shot 69s, Stadler, a winner earlier this season, had a 70, while Tewell and Mahaffey matched par

Tom Kite, who last season replaced Watson as the game's leading moneywinner, and Bill Rogers, who broke Tom's four-year string as Player of the Year, were at 142 and 143, respectively. Kite had a 73 and Rogers, the defending titleholder in this event, shot 73. Jerry Pate, a winner last week, slipped to 76 and 144.

Hale Irwin, twice a winner seniors champion Arnold Palmer failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Irwin at 76-149, Palmer 74-150.

Watson, who played the front side in 33 including 2-putt birdies on both par-5s, got two strokes in front of the field on the back nine with birdies from 25 feet on the 10th and 12 feet on the par-3 14th, "but botched it up with a couple of bad shots," he said.

One of those was a 1-iron in to the woods on the 15th and the other was a drive into fairway bunker on the 16th each of which led to a bogey and dropped him back into a tie for the top.

McGraw Tests Arm; Shuts Out Chisox

AP Sports Writer

There surely are a number of shell-shocked pitchers after the latest home run barrage, but one scoreless inning hurled by a veteran lefthander may have been the most significant development on the exhibition baseball front.

Tug McGraw, the 37-yearold relief ace of the Philadelphia Phillies, tested his surgery-repaired left elbew for the first time this spring and came through with flying colors.

He faced four batters Friday, walking one and retiring the others on two grounders and a fly ball, in the Phillies' 8-7 victory over the Chicago

Lewis' Critics Unconvinced

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

His backers say the name should be Guy V. for victory

His critics say it should be more like Guy L. for clutch losses Lewis.

Gliy - V for Vernon -Lewis will never convince everybody he can coach until his Houston Cougars win the NCAA basketball title.

Give Lewis credit for 23 straight winning seasons? Give him his dues for 13 NCAA post-season appearances? Give him kudos for his third visit to the NCAA's Final Four?

His detractors would rather give credit to an unemployed migrant farm worker.

A national sports magazine once called Lewis one of the five most overrated college basketball coaches in America.

This Guy is among the 25 winningest coaches of alltime and he's overrated?

Perhaps some of Lewis' silly habits keep him from being seriously. taken sometimes wears red underwear as a good luck charm...he constantly wrings a polka-dotted towel like it was a chicken neck...some of his sportscoats look like recycled autombile seat

But he had coached well enough to be on the winning side of 499 games going into the NCAA semifinals Saturday against North Carolina. The only other persons who coached as many consecutive winning years as Lewis were Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, John Wooden of UCLA and Bernard Hickman of Louisville.

"Tug threw good at times and not so good at other times," said Manager Pat Corrales. "We'll try to get him another inning next week. The thing which concerns me the most is the cold weather we'll get into back North.'

Gary Matthews hit a threerun homer for the Phillies, boosting his spring average to .435 with 16 runs batted in over 16 games. Philadelphia scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth when George Vukovich raced home from third base on Julio Franco's one-out chopper.

The Toronto Blue Jays outslugged the Houston Astros 15-10 although winning pitcher Juan Berenguer was tagged for six runs on seven

Lewis' critics say his teams are undisciplined. They say his squads are too inclined to run-and-gun on offense and walk-and-wave on defense. They say it catches up with him in the NCAA playoffs where his is just barely above

But not even Lewis' secondguessers claim he is a bad recruiter.

He thoroughly scouts the Houston playgrounds and recreation centers where he finds most of his talent.

His network is national and international. A friend found seven-foot Akeem Abdul Olajuwon in Nigeria.

Lewis sometimes has so much ability on his team he has problems figuring the correct combinations.

His teams do play better on an unbeat-almost-hyper' tempo. They sometimes are too eager to snipe at the hoop from 20-25 feet where the law of averages yields diminishing returns.

The Lewis teams also normally have a hard time playing a solid slowdown game when they get ahead.

It's not that Lewis can't coach the four-corners. It's just that he has thoroughbreds who want to Lewis, who already is in the company of Rupp and Wooden in winning seasons, is still an apprentice in some closed eyes.

Only a national title will open them.

Patrick Ewing, stylus in hand, listens intently. He is learning those relationships, and, at the same time, developing another link - a human bond that ties teacher to student, student to teacher.

The lives of Thompson, basketball coach at Georgetown University, and Ewing, 7-foot freshman center; are becoming inextricably tied to each other as they pursue the common goal of a national championship.

Shue Reaches 600 Win Level

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Gene Shue has his sights set on a long-range goal and an immediate one. Right now, getting the Washington Bullets into the playoffs has taken priority over moving to the top of the National Basketball Association coaching ladder.

Shue became only the fourth coach to reach 600 victories when his Bullets toppled the New Jersey Nets 104-88 Friday night. The triumph moved Washington a halfgame ahead of the Nets for the fourth best record in the Eastern Conference. Six teams make the playoffs.

"It's terrific," said Shue, who also is the NBA's losingest coach with 597, two more than the Knicks' Red Holzman. "But what I'm really interested in is trying to get the team into the playoffs."

The Bullets seem on track after their seventh victory in the last 10 games. Washington, 35-34, built a 76-53 lead late in the third quarter and coasted. Spencer Haywood tied his season high

"I'd like to be the winningest coach in basketball," said Shue, who trails Boston's Red Auerbach (938), Holzman (693), and Portland's Jack Ramsay 602.

"I always seem to have bad teams that start out at the bottom and work their way up," added Shue, recalling he coached the Philadelphia 76ers the year after they had gone 9-73.

"It was just one of those nights," said New Jersey Coach Larry Brown. "Anytime we'd make a run, we'd dribble the ball off somebody's foot or miss inside. It was discouraging. We'd go inside and miss, and they would hit from 20 feet."

Thompson, Ewing More Than Player, Coach

"He's a great coach," Ewing says, an unmistakable overtone of admiration in his voice. "That's why I came here. I feel he has helped me progress more than just as a basketball player, but as a person."

"Patrick does what he has to do to help," Thompson says. "One game, it'll be offense. One, it'll be defense. He'll be really awesome when he can get it together." There is no less admiration in Thompson's voice for the Jamaican-born Ewing.

Despite widely divergent backgrounds, they have one thing in common. Thompson, now 40, was the backup center to Bill Russell in the golden age of the Boston Celtics. Ewing, too, is a center, albeit with vastly more potential than Thompson. Big men seem to appreciate each other in a way men of lesser physical stature never can unders-presenting the latest research on young children, including handicapped and multicultural children, and their families is scheduled Tuesday through Friday at Texas Tech University.

Conference to Present Research for Children

The "Research in Action" conference, sponsored by the Texas Tech University Institute for Child and Family Studies, will present the research findings and suggestions for making the research applicable to local communities.

Featured speakers will include Texas First Lady Rita Clements, Texas Tech University President Lauro F. Cavazos and leaders from five major national early childhood · education organizations.

Demonstrations on the use of computers in early childhood education will be given by Texas Instruments, Agriplex Electronics Inc., and Radio Shack throughout the day Thursday.

The conference is open to the public for a $10 registration fee. Pre-registration deadline is Tuesday. Persons may register by calling the Institute for Child and Family Studies, 742-3296. Texas Tech students may attend any session free, on a space available basis.

The conference opens at noon Wednesday, in the Texas Tech University Center Courtyard. Most activities will be in the University Center.

Mrs. Clements will speak on "Texas Children: Our Most Valuable Resource" at 1:30 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. Since her husband's election as Governor of Texas in 1978, Mrs. Clements has made public education one of her top priority areas of interest.

Dr. Lawrence Schweinhart, with the HI-SCOPE Education Research Foundation of Ypsilanti, Mich., will speak at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center Banquet Hall. His topic will be "Early Education as a Cost Effective Social Investment." He is codirector of the foundation's Center for the Study of Public Policies for Young Children.

> A first-time forum discussion by national early childhood education leaders is scheduled for the conference's closing general session from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Friday in the University Center Ballroom. Hanley Foster, National Head Start director, will serve as moderator.

Panelists will include Barbara Bowman, president of the National Association for the Education of Young Children; Dr. Lyndal Bullock, vice-president for the Council of Exceptional Children; Dr. Nancy Quisenberry, chairman of the research committee for the Association for Childhood Educational International; John Reese, president of the National Head Start Association; and James Strickland, president of the National Day Care Association.

Panelists will respond to participants' questions on the current issues in the field of early childhood education.

Workshop sessions, featuring professionals from coast to coast and dealing with early childhood education and special education legislation, bilingual - multicultural education, preschool handicapped, gifted and talented children, volunteer programs, infants, families, computers, and program management, will tack place Wednesday afternoon, all day Thursday and Friday morn-

About 250-300 participants are expected from more than 20 states for the conference.

Veterans Memorial Becomes Reality

WASHINGTON (AP) -When Jan Scruggs first began pushing the idea of a memorial to Vietnam veterans three years ago, it was a lonely fight. Now his goal is in sight.

Scruggs joined 125 Vietnam veterans and dignitaries Friday to break ground for the memorial to remember the 2.7 million Americans who fought in one of the nation's most divisive wars. The goal is to finish in time to dedicate it Nov. 11, Veterans Day.

On a blustery day, Scruggs and the other Vietnam veterans were widely praised during the hour-long ceremony, with backers of the memorial hoping it will help unite the nation in honoring the men who fought.

'Let this memorial begin the healing process and forever stand as a symbol" of national unity, said Scruggs. Scruggs, an Army infantryman who was wounded in Vietnam, is president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial created to raise the $7 million needed for the memorial.

The memorial is being built on two acres in Constitution Gardens between the Lincoln Memorial Washington Monument. It is in the shape of a "V," with the ends pointing toward the structures honoring the two presidents. The black granite walls will be inscribed with the names of the 57,692 dead and missing Americans.

Designed by a Yale University student, the memorial was criticized by some veterans, 27 members of Congress and the conservative publication National Review. They said it did not properly honor the veterans.

Two days ago, Scruggs announced a compromise in which a flagpole, a statue and two inscriptions will be added to the memorial. One inscription will read:

We are honored to have had the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances ... God Bless America!" Those were the words spoken by Jeremiah Denton, now a Republican senator from Alabama.

At Wits End BY ERMA BOMBECK

I read the other day that the average marriage that ends in divorce is over at six and a half years. Why? Why is six and a half years the end of the line for

At the end of six and a half years, the pretenses go. Company manners are put aside. Courtesies are no longer a consideration. His feet have started to smell. She leaves toothpaste on the bowl. He cleans his fingernails at the table. She doesn't just blow her nose. She flushes it!

Astronauts Press Ahead

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. Columbia's astronauts pressed ahead toward a full seven-day mission today despite a crippled communications system. Even if all radio channels were lost, a flight director said they could figure out how to get home with their handheld computers.

Return to Earth was set for Monday, but weather at the New Mexico runway could force them home a day early or as much as three days late.

Astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton were treated to a tape recording of all of their family members shortly after waking up this morning.

"God bless you, we love you and have a nice day," said Lousma's wife, Gratia after his three children sent him short messages of greeting. Even Lousma's 11/2-year-old son Joseph piped up with some cooing and mooing, the latter in imitation of a cow.

"Good morning, Gordo, we love you," said Fullerton's wife Marie, who followed their children Andrew and Molly Marie on the tape played by Mission Control in Houston.

'That was a good idea and all signals came over loud and clear," Lousma told ground controllers after the tape was played.

Actual Value Of Oscar Unknown

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -What is an Oscar worth?

The price the Dodge Trophy and Awards Co. charges for the statuettes the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will hand out Monday night is a secret, but Hollywood legend has it that winning an Oscar can bring actors and movie companies millions of dollars.

While the legend may be accurate for some companies, it's not always so for actors.

Theater owners are apt to book and rebook the winning film, and viewers of the Oscar awards ceremony are drawn to theaters by the hoopla and by film clips of the winner, said Charles Powell, former publicity and advertising chief for MGM and Universal and now head of a film marketing firm.

"The best-picture award can mean a minimum of $6 million but closer to $10 million in ticket sales," said Powell. "That has been the experience over the past 10 years."

Sometimes the entire release pattern is built around the awards. Four years ago, Universal faced a problem with "The Deer Hunter," an expensive, unrelenting treatment of the Vietnam war. The company decided to release the film in Los Angeles just in time to qualify for the awards. A few more bookings were added in February, with the broad release scheduled to coincide with the Oscars.

The strategy worked. "The Deer Hunter" was named best picture of the year, and a problem picture became a huge moneymaker. The rentals in the United States and Canada totaled $31 million, meaning more than twice that amount poured through box offices.

Does Oscar have the same golden touch for acting award winners?

· "It certainly didn't help Luise Rainer, who won two years in a row and then dropped out of sight," says Billy Wilder, who directed the 1945 film and Oscar winner "The Lost Weekend." "It certainly didn't help Ernest Borgnine," he said. And what about winners Louise Fletcher, Miyoshi Umeki and George Chakiris?

"Individual winners don't mean as much for a box office gross," said Gordon Armstrong, advertising and publicity head at Universal. 'What counts is the bestpicture award or multiple winners. Last year the Oscar for Sissy Spacek added little to the 'Coal Miner's Daughter' business. The picture had been released more than a year before, and it had already played out."

Armstrong is hoping for a big win Monday night for Universal's "On Golden Pond." The film, which was playing in 972 theaters, added another 200 this week. It has grossed $70 million so far.

'The public doesn't really care about individual winners," Powell said. "Ask almost anyone, 'Who won the supporting awards last year?' and I doubt if you'll get an answer."

In case you don't remember, either, the winners were Timothy Hutton for "Ordinary People" and Mary Steenburgen for "Melvin and Howard.'

Red Cross Gives Tornado Tips

No one in this country is completely free of the threat posed by tornadoes. Although they are most likely to occur in the South and Midwest, every state has experienced these destructive storms in the past half century. Tornadoes have killed over 10,000 people in the last half cen-

According to the National Weather Service, a twister can strike at any time of the year, but about half of them occur between April and June, and over 80 percent of them between noon and midnight.

The American Red Cross says tornadoes usually telegraph their strike by the prevalence of unusually warm and humid weather with light winds and an ominous sky.

Tornadoes can whirl at speeds of up to 300 miles an hour, but their forward speed is usually at the rate of 40 miles per hour. Their force is tremendous, uprooting trees, exploding buildings and homes, and picking up railroad freight cars and cellar, familiar throughout the Midwest. The National. Safety Council reports that no one has been killed by a twister while taking refuge in a storm cellar.

The Red Cross states that the safest place during a tornado is a special cyclone

For those who live in a with a basement. statistics show you are also pretty safe if you follow this Red Cross advice: Go to the basement and protect yourself under a heavy piece of furniture, such as a table.

The same holds true in houses without basements. The best refuge is the ground floor, and, again, cover should be taken under a strong piece of furniture, as far away as possible from windows and doors.

As noted above, tornadoes travel at a speed of only 40 miles per hour, so if you are in an automobile there is little need to panic. Move at right angles to the storm's path and you can easily get out of its way.

If you're caught in the open, lie flat in a ditch or other depression. The same advice, says the Red Cross, holds true if you're in a parked or stalled car. Get out and lie flat in a depression or

Care Of Cancer Patient Is Topic At Symposium

"Quality of life" - a phrase often associated with the care of cancer patients - will be the topic of "Supportive Gare" 82: Giving and Receiving Cancer Care," a symposium to be April 2 and 3 in Amarillo.

Purpose of the symposium will be to provide a better understanding of "quality of life" for those who care for the cancer patient and his family. The conference will probe the cultural, ethical, medical, religious and social aspects which influence the individual's "quality of life."

Supportive Care '82 will be open to all who care for cancer patients and or families of cancer patients on a professional, volunteer or student basis.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be C. Richard Poh, director of Health Concepts Unlimited, of Oklahoma City. Topic of his keynote address will be "Visions of Wellness: A Quality of Living."

Pohl has worked as a health educator, chaplain, professor and pastor. He has developed numerous programs for the cancer patient and his family, including:

"Fighting Cancer Together," family conferences for Baptist Medical Center;

"Mastectomy Isn't The End," for American Cancer Society in Oklahoma City;

History Deadline April 1

The deadline to turn in all material for the Deaf Smith County History, "The Land and its People," is Thursday, April 1, according to project chairman Troyce Hanna.

This includes all written material, general county history, business, church, and organization histories, memorial and tribute pages, photographs, additions and corrections, as well as research presently being gathered.

All material must be in the Project County History office at the E.B. Black House by Thursday to be included in the book.

Most of the material is already in the office and staff members are processing it to be ready for the publishers next month.

Hanna reminds those who wish to order books that this must be done before the copy goes to the publisher. A deadline on book orders will be set soon, and residents are urged to get their orders in before the last minute.

Price of the book is $36.75, including sales tax, and payment must accompany levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Carnival Today

Local Artist Featured In Exhibition

Watercolor portraits of children, painted by artist Jena Rawley-Whitaker, will be presented in an open house exhibition today from 1-5 p.m. at The Finished Frame, located at 501 E. Park Ave. The public is invited, according to co-owners Elaine McNutt and Terri Hutson.

Several portraits of Hereford children will be on exhibition. A watercolorist, Ms. Rawley-Whitaker has been painting portraits of children for approximately three and a half years.

She presently has art representatives in Big Spr-Midland, Fredericksburg, Dallas, New Orleans, Ruidoso, Corpus Christi, Amarillo, and her newest is The Finished Frame in Hereford.

The Oak Ridge Boys' smash single "Bobbie Sue" was the result of the first conbined efforts of writers Dan Tyler, Adele Tyler and Wood Newton, However, the idea for the song actually originated with the Tylers' 2-year old son,

Dan overheard his son sing-"Bah, Bah Black Sheep softly to himself one night --but little William was stuck on "bah-bah" part. The stuttering sound sparked the idea that eventually evolved into "Bobbie Sue." Says Tyler: "I just started playing around with several names that began with a 'B.' 'Bobbie Sue'

Greg Gordon and B. James Lowry of the Boys' Band have signed as exclusive writers with Nashville's House of Gold Music. Gordon has worked with Tanya Tucker, Elvis Presley, Pat Boone and the Oak Ridge Boys, while Lowry has played with Rachel Sweet and Larry Gatlin. Rusty Golden rounds out the Boys' Band.

Don King, whose latest, 'Runnin' on Love," was also penned by "Lonely Nights" writers Keith Stegall and Stewart Harris, recently ventured into Canada to tape that country's popular syndicated country music program, "Family Brown Country.

Ricky Skaggs has been on the road promoting his single, "Crying My Heart Out Over You." Ricky is appearing on separate bills with Don Williams and Ronnie Milsap.

Bobby Bare has been in the studio with producer Allen Reynolds, whose credits nclude discs by Crystal Gayle, for an album to be called "Nothin' to Lose."

Simon and Garfunkel -"The Concert in Central Park" (Warner Bros.) - On September 19, 1981, 10 years after they broke up. Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel held a reunion in front of 500,000 fans in New York's Central Park. The concert raised a small fortune for New York City's Parks Department and generated a cable television special and double-I P set. The album is perhaps more a souvenir than a record, but the timelessness of these songs and the delicacy of two voices and a guitar are still strong after 10 years' absence This is not simply pleasant nostalgia: If "Homeward Bound" or "The

Simon & Ross Collaborate Again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) That remarkable team of Simon and Ross is back in the nation's movie theaters this month with "I Ought to Be in Pictures.'

The partners are Neil Simon and Herbert Ross. And while they are not as inseparable as Sears and Roebuck or even scotch and soda, they are just as popular.

for the pair. It's more of a drama with comedy overtones - the story of a failing screenwriter who is suddenly visited by the daughter he left in Brooklyn 16 years ago. Walter Matthau and Dinah Manoff, daughter of Lee Grant, are the leads, with a handsome assist from Ann-Margret as Matthau's understanding girlfriend.

"I think the film ('Pictures') is greatly improved over the play," said Ross, who directed both. "The film is more refined, much sharper, clearer, more touching and less dependent on comedy than on sentiment."

Matthau, Ross pointed out, is the third Herb Tucker he has directed. The play opened is something a little different on Broadway in April, 1980 to mixed reviews. It starred Forum in Los Angeles with Ron Leibman and Miss Manoff. The play originally was done at the Mark Taper

EDITOR'S NOTE: You $100 a head, you're invited Sunday evening to bid on a signed portrait of Elvis Presley.

> Or how 'bout the autographed original script from "Who Shot J.R.?"

Maybe you'd like to purchase a walk-on part in those daytime dramas "Days of Our Lives" or "The Young and the Restless." This includes lunch with the cast.

If show biz isn't your bag, there are vacation trips to Hawaii, Aspen, Winter Park or the Caribbean.

weekend on former baseball magnate Brad Corbett's yacht out of Pompano Beach, Fla., or take a VIP tour of the White House.

The occasion is the "First Annual United States Olympic Auction" from 5 p.m. until midnight Sunday at Billy Bob's Texas.

Almost any Texan can tell you that Billy Bob's is the world's largest and liveliest C&W palace, notwithstanding Gilley's of Houston and "Urban Cowboy" fame.

But no matter. The party overshadows the place and the good surely outweighs the bad, even if John Wayne's "True Grit" eyepatch is a bummer.

Proceeds go to support and train America's 1984 Olympic team.

The auction, while innovative, also has an admirably unique touch. One of the gift items is craniofacial surgery for the deformed child of a Pecos truckdriver. The recipient, Kevin Leyva, 5, suffers from Crouzon Syndrome, a defect which prohibits natural growth and development of the brain, head and face.

Corrective surgery will curb facial distortion and prevent potential mental retardation and blindness.

Such surgery and hospital bills would cost at least $25,000, medical experts say. Though the surgery was donated, it still will be auctioned and the money funneled into the Olympic fund.

"Craniofacial surgery is a new specialty of plastic surgery," said Dr. Kenneth Salyer, the Dallas donor who heads the medical team.

"It combines techniques of the neurosurgeon and plastic surgeon working together to effect major changes in the cranial and facial skeleton."

Salyer told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram: "If the surgery were not done (for Kevin), it would be a major disaster."

The idea of such an unusual auction item grew from a suggestion that Salver donate a facelift, which would hardly raise an eyebrow among some of the other items.

No doubt there will be a scramble over Sylvester Stallone's custom-made Harley-Davidson used in "Rocky III."

And who could live without Hugh Hefner's autographed pipe or Carol Burnett's trademark washerwoman hat? With the pipe you get a tour of the Playboy mansion.

Should you want a Texas Longhorn to go with your Texas Longnecks, L.S. Ranches has donated one. There's also a quarterhorse named "Dusty Deck Bar" for sale.

For the daring, there's a hot air balloon ride for two, dubbed the "Champagne Flight Adventure."

More conventional items include a full length natural mink coat with sable collar, a case of Chateau Lafite-Rothschild, a Buick Skylark and a baby blue 1975 Cadillac. Billy Bob hisownself has donated a steer, slaughtered and packaged and earmarked for the charity of the buyer's choice.

For the athletic among you, there is Texas Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg's baseball glove, six tickets and parking pass to a Dallas Cowboys game or a round of golf, and lunch, with Byron Nelson.

In that vein, Gerald Ford's putter is up for grabs.

Jetsetters can vie for the first-class, round-trip fare to London via Braniff ... if there is a Braniff. Or five nights in Mexico City.

There is some truly spectacular art work on the block. but autographed portraits of Mork and Mindy, Carroll O'Connor and Ryan O'Neal hardly fit that category.

Nor does the original theater poster from Elvis' first movie, "Love Me Tender," or Gene Autry, John Wayne, Clint Eastwood and Dustin Hoffman posters. Dolly Parton, Jacqueline Bisset and Jane Fonda posters come a little closer, but still seem somehow less than true art. For the clothes horse, there is Sally Field's original wedding gown worn in "Smokey and the Bandit" and Sissy Miner's Daughter." The musical backdrop for this epic will be provided by

C&W entertainer Razzy

Spacek's outfit from "Coal

Bailey, who has given us such classics as the currently popular "She Left Love All Over Me." It is only fitting that Gov.

Bill Clements has christened Sunday "Olympic Day" in III Texas. No doubt the fiesty'sdi

Republican governor would wall cherish a signed, original theater poster from "Hellcats of the Navy," starring Ronald Reagan. See you at Billy Bob's, Guv.

USTIN, Texas (AP) dy Renko describes nself as "just a 31-year-old ite man trying to make his y in the world." He's more cerned about his motorcyand his love life than solvthe larger issues of our Renko is the barrelested, swaggering, dneck cop who gets all the nny, throw-away lines on C's touted police series Hill Street Blues."

So imagine the surprise on meeting Charles Haid, actor who paints Renko ith what he admits are very broad strokes.'

At a shopping mall promoon early in the day, Haid as "on" - delighting the undreds of fans who lined up or his autograph, teasing the hildren and giving the omen pecks on the cheek.

But the Haid who appeared t a downtown Austin hotel ar that night ordered what Renko would probably call 'designek water" and inisted he is on his way to ecoming one with the universe through the practice of Siddha yoga.

Haid is not a large man. He wears rimless glasses, speaks very seriously of himself and his craft and seems prone to brooding.

Raised in a big, Irish, "kind show-biz" family in San Francisco, Haid started out on the other side of the lights, producing "Godspell" at 24. He played supporting roles in couple of quality, late '70s TV series that didn't make it, and appeared in several movies. The most distinguished was Ken Russell's well-received 1980 visualization of Paddy "Altered Chayefsky's States."

Haid played Mason Parrish the Tennessee endocrinologist who tried to act as referee between William Hurt and Ultimate Truth.

In earlier, more pedestrian times, Haid turned down a regular part on the longrunning police comedy "Barney Miller" for a directing job.

"I did not wish to do situation comedy," Haid said. "I was not looking for and still am not looking for that kind of reputation as an actor. Though I paint Renko in very broad strokes, there is hopefully something within that performance that says I'm an actor."

The industry apparently thinks there is. Haid was nominated for an Emmy last year. His HSB colleague, Michael Conrad, won it. "Hopefully, one's reputation is based on what one does, and I couldn't do better in what you might call Look at poor, lost John 'popular entertainment' than 'Hill Street Blues.' It's sort of top of the heap right now, and I guess it's because most of the people involved in it have the same kind of dedication to what they do that I have, or else it wouldn't have come

A half-dozen of the HSB actors, including Haid, have appeared together in other series produced by the creative minds that spawned "Hill Street" - Steven Bochco and Michael Kozoll.

For instance, Haid and Conrad co-starred in the 1978 show detective "Delvecchio." Bochco's wife, Barbara Bosson, and Kiel Martin - both HSB regulars guest-starred periodically.

And Bruce Weitz - now known affectionately as "Belker the Biter" on HSB was a college classmate of Bochco and Bosson.

"This business is nepotistic, to say the least," Haid said, "but usually because certain kinds of people, certain kinds of energies attract one another. And that's why things like this show come about - a fusion of a certain point of view, I suppose." Haid said he would prefer to do móvies exclusively but has not found anything of the quality of "Hill Street Blues." In fact, he had only agreed to do the show's pilot - Renko and his partner were gunned down in the penultimate scene, and Renko was supposed to die.

But this is television, and because Renko appealed 'marketwise," and because Haid was so impressed with the pilot, Renko lives.

"That's what really turned my head around was the pilot," Haid said. "When I saw what had been accomplished, I said, 'Man, I want to be a part of this."

Haid said Renko - a cop in some northern city - has a southern accent, because Haid sees him as "confused" and living a cowboy fantasy. Renko is a racist, Haid said, because he doesn't understand that we really are one with everything.

"My whole philosophy, the way I operate is based on Siddha yoga," Haid said. "I'm serious. That's after a long, long search for all these other things. There has to be a reason for what one does, rather than just taking home a good paycheck.

"If you don't believe in anything, there wouldn't be any reason to do anything. It would be easy to excess your way right out of existence.

The 1958 comedy, "Auntie Mame," nominated for six Academy Awards, tells the story of the eccentric and indomitable Mame, who raises her young nephew following the death of his father. When the crash of 1929 forces Mame to find employment as a sales clerk at Macy's, she does so with a style and zest for living that amazes and delights all who know her.

In 1974, "Auntie Mame" was revamped into the musical film "Mame" starring Lucille Ball. Despite the later film's show-stopping musical sequences, the original "Auntie Mame" is recognized as the classic. The actress who played the flamboyant heroine is credited with giving the definitive portrait of Auntie

Forum To Meet Monday

The Deaf Smith County Women's Forum will meet for a 12 noon covered dish luncheon at the Community Center on Monday, March 29. All women in the Hereford vicinity are invited to attend.

Hostesses for the event are members of the Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club, Young Homemakers, Summerfield Study Club, Young Mother Study Club, and the VFW Auxiliary.

Joan Coupe of the Hereford Travel Center will present the program, and new officers will be elected during Presently consisting of nine clubs and a number of individual members, the forum was organized in 1929 as the Deaf Smith County Federation. Its purpose is to allow women from various clubs to get acquainted with one another and share ideas. Its annual project is to purchase an item for the Hereford Community Center.

Definition Of Maturity Deserves Rerun

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I laughed when a reader wrote, "I loved your definition of maturity, but will you please add this line: 'Maturity is being able to keep from clobbering your kids when you can't find the Scotch tape (again) to paste up your definition in a place where they can see

Hereford Senior Citizens I need to see it at least once every three years, and so Whiteface does everyone else. Do a Breakfast Club at Ranch rerun for all of us, will you?-Your Faithful Reader in Chapel Hill, N.C. DEAR FAITHFUL: Here it is. Thanks for asking. Maturity is the ability to Hereford Child Care Protolerate an injustice without viders, home of Ann Lueb, 500 wanting to get even.

Maturity is patience. It is the willingness to postpone immediate gratification in favor of the long-term gain.

Maturity is perseverance, sweating out a project in the face of heavy opposition and discouraging setbacks.

Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness and frustration, discomfort and defeat without complaint, collapse or attempting to find someone to blame. Maturity is humility. It is being big enough to say, "I was wrong." And, when right, the mature person is able to forego the satisfaction of saying, "I told you so."

Maturity is the ability to evaluate a situation, make a decision and stick with it. The immature spend their lives exploring possibilities, changing their minds and in the end do nothing.

Maturity means dependability, keeping one's word, coming through in a crises.

The immature are masters of the alibi. They are confused and disorganized. Their lives are a maze of broken promises, former friends, unfinished business and good intentions that never materialized.

Maturity is the art of living in peace with that which we cannot change, the courage to change that which can be changed and the wisdom to know the differance.--Ann Landers

Over the past seven years, more new car buyers chose Cutlass than any other car. Total value is why. The ride. The room. The comfort. The fine Olds quality. The traditionally high resale value. Cutlass

Supreme offers all of this—plus standard features like power steering, power front disc brakes, automatic transmission and extensive anti-corrosion measures. Engines? A 4.3-liter diesel V6, popular 5.7-liter diesel V8 and a new 5.0liter gasoline V8 are now available. Isn't it time you traded for the solid value of a Cutlass Supreme? Drive one today at your Olds dealers.

This is what a small car can be...when it's an Oldsmobile! This newest, smallest Oldsmobile shows impressive quality throughout. Front-wheel drive, MacPherson strut front suspension. The fun-to-drive Firenza is ready for your test drive.

INTRODUCING CUTLASS CIERA!

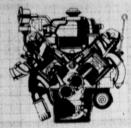

Cutlass Ciera. It's the first Cutlass with front-wheel drive. With all that Cutlass style, plus impressive traction. A 2.5-liter L4 engine with electronic fuel injection is standard. Cutlass Ciera, a new Cutlass up with the latest automotive technology. PRESENTING OMEGA ES!

That smart, sophisticated ES package that gave Omega sedans the grandtouring look inside and out is now available on Olds Omega coupes!

INTRODUCING

A brand-new 4.3-liter diesel V6 joins America's best-selling diesel family. Available on all Cutlass Supreme and Cutlass Ciera coupes and sedans.

Agency Closer To Awarding Funds WASHINGTON (AP) -

After seven hours of discus-U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp.'s board of directors emerged late Friday to announce five

The winners come from five different states. Three of the plants in Tennessee, Kentucky and Wyoming would convert coal into either liquid or gaseous fuels, a North Carolina plant would produce liquid methanol from peat and a California plant would convert heavy crude oil into

Combined, the plants represent an investment of $8.4 billion to produce the energy equivalent of 87,000 barrels of oil daily. That equals less than 5 percent of the goal set by Congress of producing 2 million barrels a day of synthetic fuels by the year 1992. But since taking office, the Reagan administration has sharply scaled back the scope of the synthetic fuels pro-gram championed by former President Carter.

Instead of a proposed $88 billion, the corporation has only $14.6 billion to hand out as subsidies to attract the private investment needed to. build the gigantic facilities.

All five finalists are seeking either loan guarantees of price guarantees from the government.

By far the biggest of the five plants is a $5.2-billion, facility planned for Breckinridge County, Ky., to produce 50,000 barrels of liquid fuels a day from coal, That project is sponsored by subsidiares of Ashland Oil and Bechtel Corp.

New Building Another Step Forward In 81-Year History of Newspaper

When The Hereford Brand opened for business in its new building Nov. 9, 1981, it marked another step in a series of many that have taken place since the newspaper first began as a weekly in 1901.

The newspaper started published regularly as a semi-weekly on July 4, 1948; the newspaper converted to the offset printing method in 1961, and the paper became a daily on July 4, 1976.

facilities at 313 Lee St., The Brand traces its history back to the weekly Hereford Reporter, introduced Feb. 23, 1901. Hereford was almost two and one-half years old and had a population of 700 when the Reporter started.

The name of the paper was changed to The Hereford Brand in 1902. Frank L. Vanderburgh was the first publisher (1901-1904) and a series of short-term owners followed until 1917. Other publishers include J. Ray (1904-1906), C.E. Edwards (1906), D.W. Hawkins, a former school superintendent (1906-09), A.C. Elliott, former Panhandle Christian College president, and Miss Millicent Griffith (1909-15), B.F. Now occupying modern Guthrie (1915-17), and Earl

> For historical purposes, the owners and publishers of The Brand might be recorded in four general areas. The pioneer publishers (1901-1917), the Mr. and Mrs.

(1917-1939), the Jimmy Gillentine reign (1939-1971), and the management since that time of O.G. Nieman.

After the series of pioneer publishers, Holman took over in 1917 and provided a successful weekly operation. He was active in business and civic affairs and served as president of the Panhandle Press Association in 1921. Ill health plagued Holman for many years, however, and he decided to sell the paper in

Two area publishing companies owned the paper for the next three years. But the Holmans love for Hereford brought them back in December, 1932, as owners Holman years once again. Holman was still a sick man and he died July 20, 1933 at the age of 51. Mrs. Holman continued to act as publisher, and her editors included R.E. Kessie, DeWitt Landin and Earnest Hayley.

She announced Feb. 11, 1937 that a young editor from Wellington, Jimmy M. Gillentine, was moving to Hereford as managing editor of The Brand. It was the start of an almost 35-year association

He purchased a half interest in the paper in 1939 and became sole owner on March 1, 1949 when Mrs. Holman sold her remaining interest. She had served as president of the Panhandle Press

Gillentine was a strong industrial and agricultural booster of the community, and his "Hereford Bull" column provided a personal touch with the readers. He installed a new press on Dec. 6, Business boomed after the war, and The Brand progressed, too, as the number of pages increased. On July 4, 1948, Gillentine published the first issue of The Sunday Brand. It was one of the few semi-weekly papers in the country to be published on Sunday, and it was a success from the start.

Articles from The Brand found their way in the news headlines around the state and nation in the 1960s as the community welcomed rapid growth and industrial expansion. Gillentine and several other area publishers established a central newspaper printing plant in Hereford in 1961.

The Southwest Offset Printing plant was a success, and Gillentine decided to devote more of his time to that venture. He turned over the management of The Brand to Melvin Young, the advertising manager. Young first worked for the paper as a printer in 1948, and after service with the Marines had returned to work in the advertising department.

Young became general manager in December, 1962. During the next nine years, Young continued the newspaper's strong support in broadening the county's economic base. He wrote a chatty-style column, "The Branding Iron", about happenings and events around town. The newspaper moved to remodeled offices at 130 W. 4th St. in 1964.

Gillentine's printing business continued to grow and he added a Southwest Offset plant in Amarillo in 1965, and a large plant in Dallas several years later.

In December, 1971, Gillentine announced the sale of The Brand and his Southwest Offset plant in Hereford to a corporation of several West Texas publishers, with O.G. Nieman moving to Hereford as the president and publisher of the paper.

The Brand became an award-winning semi-weekly newspaper under the guidance of Gillentine and Young. It continued that tradition under Nieman.

The Brand was converted to a daily paper on July 4, 1976 - exactly 28 years after it had started publishing twice a week. The daily schedule is actually five times a week, skipping the Monday and Saturday datelines.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Brand building were conducted May 27, 1981, when some civic leaders and the Hereford Hustlers joined the Brand staff in shoveling the first dirt.

The new offices have been occuied since November, but the "open house" was delayed to allow time to complete the exterior trim.

Public Invited 1-4 p.m. Sunday

Although the new Hereford Brand building has been occupied for several months, the "open house" for the general public was delayed for the completion of the exterior trim and interior built-ins.

Publisher O.G. (Speedy) Nieman says that while he believes the structure is an attractive addition to the downtown business area, "our most important consideration was to make it functional . . to provide an efficient flow in the production of toay's modern daily newspaper."

Nieman mapped out the floor plan; contractor Emory Brownlow drew the blueprints, and Lavon Nieman selected wall and floor coverings and chose the colors.

The L-shaped building contains approximately 11,750 square feet of floor space and houses both The Brand and North Plains Printing Co. The two corporations were formerly in separate locations.

From the front door to the back, the building's layout has allowed for efficient movement to all news and advertising copy from the time it is received until it reaches the circulation area at the rear of the building.

From the reception and bookkeeping offices at the front of the building, customers and visitors can view the advertising sales and news rooms. Advertising copy flows around one side to the ad composition area.

The news copy flows from the other side and moves into the typesetting and paste-up area, which lies adjacent to the ad composition room. These two areas are the "control center" where all news and advertising matter is converted to type by means of computerized equipment.

The copy from each of these composition departments goes to the adjoining paste-up department, where the pages are assembled and made ready for the page camera and plate-making department in the printing plant. A coffee room is situated between the newspaper and the press area.

After page film is processed through an automatic film processor, the offset metal plates are fed into the press room. A new Harris V-15 press, with a capacity of 16 standardsize newspaper pages, is the final printing stage. The press can deliver about 20,000 papers per hour.

The interior of the new building features vinyl wall coverings in light brown, with blue and orange accent walls adding color in various areas, carpeted floors in the business areas, and resiliant floor covering in the production areas.

The newspaper offices were designed on an "open" concept, with the only closed-door area being the publisher's office, the photo darkroom, the library of back issues and microfilm, and the rest rooms. The ad director and managing editor have semi-private of-

Five rest rooms are located in various areas throughout the building. Three rooms are designed for storage and another serves as a photography studio.

The suspended acoustical ceilings contain fluorescent lighting and maintain desirable lighting and sound levels. To provide a pleasant atmosphere for employees and visitors, the building has six zones of heating and cooling. Additional soundproofing has been provided between the newspaper and printing press.

The new plant includes offstreet parking on the north side of the newspaper building, and there is additional parking for visitors in the front of the offices. The printing plant has a small parking area in front of the entrance on West 3rd Street.

Association in 1940-41, the Students Report on Brand Tour

By Raymond Romo

I am in the sixth grade at Bluebonnet. Recently my language arts class took a field (trip to North Plains Printing and to the Hereford Brand. Here are a few of my comments and observations.

First of all we were able to see the printing press in action. It was incredible to see the press print up to 19,000 copies an hour. After that we were toured through the Hereford Brand.

We saw where and how they get their news, and we were able to see how they write their stories, we also met their photographers. We saw just about everything and learned generally how the Hereford Brand is put together.

To me the trip certainly helped our class to understand the world of journalism better, and taught us how a real newspaper is put together. Our class puts out the school paper, and this trip has taught us how alike our paper is to the Hereford Brand and how we could maybe improve ours. The whole trip was a learning and interesting experience. I am really glad that our class was able to take this field trip.

Dear Brand Readers,

On Wednesday, February 17 we went on a tour of the Hereford Brand. It was very interesting and full of life.

The Brands printing press was my favorite. It was so much larger than ours at Bluebonnet. They use a giant roll of paper to print it. This paper weighs 900 pounds, when ours only weighs one pound. They can also print 19,000 in one hour! We can only print around 250 in about 2 hours.

We also saw the humongous camera they have. After Nanah Braly told us about it she got a metal sheet and put it through the picture printer. Then we went to another dark room and saw them fixing just normal pictures.

We also saw Janey Allmon. Boy, she sure is a fast typist! After letting Janey get to work we went to another room.

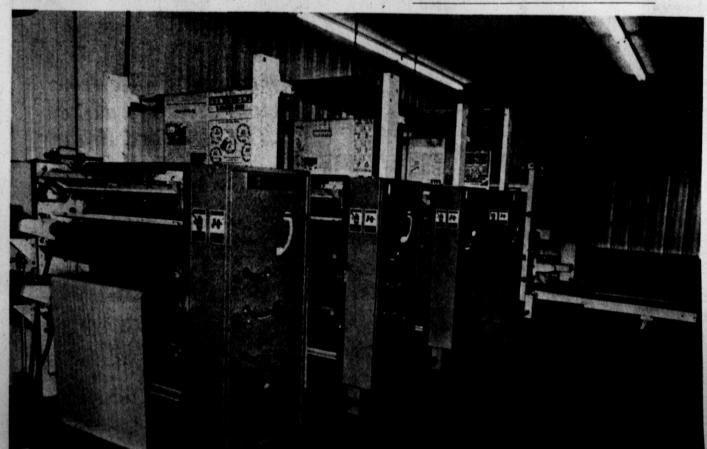

Then Mrs. Nieman took us to the circulation room. It was quiet since they were still printing the paper. It was a great day and since the Brand is a great paper,

three cheers for the Hereford

Brand!

Mrs. Williams has been employed at The Brand for 14 years. She is the wife of Hank Williams, former county cy arises.

After a year, Nieman was promoted to editor of the Lamesa paper but he left in 1953 to return to Tech for his degree. He graduated in 1954 with a major in journalism, then held newspaper jobs in San Angelo and Andrews before returning to Lamesa in 1958. Meanwhile, two sons were born to the couple in 1954 and 1957.

Nieman served as editor of newspapers at Brownfield and Littlefield in 1962-64, then moved to Slaton as publisher and partner in The Slatonite, a weekly newspaper. He converted the newspaper to an offset publication and, with three other publishers, established a central printing plant at Floydada.

His wife, Lavon, became active in the newspaper operation at Slaton, working as a reporter, bookkeeper and office supply salesperson. He served as president of the chamber, Lions Club and Little League and, in 1970, was named "Man of the Year" at the annual C of C banquet.

The Niemans moved to Hereford in January, 1972, when he and several West Texas publishers purchased The Brand and the printing plant from Jimmy Gillentine. Nieman is president and publisher of The Brand and president of North Plains Pringing. His partners include publishers James Roberts of Andrews, chairman of the board; Walter Buckel of Lamesa, and Roy McQueen of Snyder.

Since moving to Hereford, the Niemans have continued their community involvement. He has served as president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and the Lions Club, as well as being on numerous civic boards and heading the United Way drive for two years. He is a deacon of First Baptist Church.

Lavon served two years as Nieman is serving as president of the Texas Press Association this year, after serving as president of both the West Texas and Panhandle Press associations in previous years. He is vice president of Blanco Offset Printing in Floydada and a stockholder in five other West Texas newspapers.

The couple's two sons graduated from Hereford High School. Steve, a graduate of West Texas State University, is in the insurance business in Hereford. His wife, the former Rhonda Hall, is employed as a legal secretary and is also completing college work at WTSU.

Craig is publisher of the newspaper at Littlefield. His wife, the former Kim Hudson of Amarillo, is completing her college work at Texas Tech and will teach in the Littlefield schools next year.

News Staff

Pretty smiles aren't scarce in the Brand's newsroom. The news staff includes Family News Editor Linda Caudle (left), general assignments reporter and photographer Sandy Pankey (center), and Farm Editor Jeri Curtis, who also covers school and city beats. The trio helps provide comprehensive coverage of local events.

Reporters Assigned to 'Beats' For Coverage of Local Events

The scornful phrases "just like a darn reporter" and "you ask too many questions" are actually the best compliments a news person can hear, from a journalistic viewpoint.

Whether typing a routine club report or investigating for an enterprise story, the reporter tries to get as much information as possible, and that sometimes perturbs the interviewee.

The news department at The Brand is headed by Bob Nigh, managing editor, and he has three capable staffers to call on for the various types of news articles, features and photographs.

Each staffer is assigned separate "beats" and features, but they find that working together is both necessary and more in-

At present, Nigh covers county government, sports and other areas. His chief aide is Jeri Curtis, who moved to Hereford in September from Vinita, Okla., where she was news editor of the Vinita

Daily Journal for two years.

Police, fire, city commission, school and farm news are primary beats for this young journalist. A graduate of Bethany Nazarene College in Bethany, Okla., she earned a bachelor's degree in English, with minors in journalism and religion. She was on the college newspaper and magazine staffs.

Ms. Curtis was features editor at the Duncan Morning Eagle immediately after graduation from college.

"I've wanted to go into journalism since I was in the sixth grade, Ms. Curtis says. "I came from a family that never threw away magazines and newspapers. I always wanted to learn as much as I could about everything and this kind of job gives me an excuse to poke around in different areas."

Ms. Curtis does some crative writing in her spare time and says, "My big dream is to write the great American novel and-or win a Pulitzer prize for in-dreams!"

She says the best part of her job on The Brand "is that I get to do a lot of enterprise reporting, that is, stories that I think are interesting and

Linda Caudle, Brand Family News Editor, is in charge of home-oriented feature articles, a recipe column, club reports, special civic campaigns cover pages, church news – anything of human interest to the family.

The Texas Tech graduate, who also attended Oklahoma Baptist University, holds a B.B.A. in Marketing. She said she enjoys her job because writing is creative.

"I've always loved to write and I especially enjoy doing features," she said. "I like to do the cover pages, because they are more creative and take a lot of thought to put together. Most of them are campaigns that benefit the community or are for special events."

"During the day I try to alternate doing the routine things, like the calendar or school menus, with the more 'fun' stuff," she said.

Ms. Caudle moved to her parents farm south of town in June after graduation and joined the Brand staff in October. She is in the Chamber Singers and recently became a member of the Merry Mixers square dance club.

Sandy Pankey, a former Brand staffer who re-joined the news department in February, assists with the family news pages, covers general news and features and does a major part of the photography work.

"I write wedding stories, features and I get the general leftovers," explains Ms. Pankey. She worked on The Brand staff for several years and won a couple of feature writing awards in press association contests before moving to Friona.

Ms. Pankey recently moved back to Hereford and rejoined the newspaper staff. "This job is more interesting than any thing I've done before." She attended West Texas State University and Amarillo College and is a Hereford High graduate.

She trained in photography during her first stint with the Brand, and is taking a more active role in that phase of the business this time around. Besides taking many of the photographs, Ms. Pankey does a majority of the developing and printing in the darkroom.

Nigh Supervises News Staff of Daily Paper

As managing editor of The Hereford Brand, Bob Nigh supervises the news department and coordinates all areas in the copy preparation and production of the printed pages.

A member of the Brand staff for more than five years, the 31-year-old newsman served as sports editor and ad manager before assuming the managing editor's post in April, 1981.

Born in Fort Stockton, Nigh and his family moved to Oklahoma City, where he graduated from Northwest Classen High School. He graduated from Central State University at Edmond, Okla., in 1974 with a BA in journalism. He was a member of Sigma Delta Chi and Pi Delta Epsilon journalistic societies.

He worked as sports editor on The Marlin Democrat from August, 1975 to July, 1976, then moved to Hereford as sports editor. Nigh left The Brand for a brief period in 1978 to work as news director for KPAN Radio, then returned to take the ad manager's job in October, 1978.

Nigh teamed with former news writer Jim Steiert to coauthor an award-winning series of articles on the San Jose water and sewer conditions in 1978. The series won The Brand a community service award for a regional press association.

Nigh has been active in community affairs, serving on the YMCA and Hereford Day Care Center boards, and has served three terms as president of the local American Cancer Society board. He is a former chairman of the sports committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and is active in the Lions Club where he served on the board for three years.

He is also a member of the bass section of the Hereford Chamber Singers, and is a member of the First Baptist Church choir.

Nigh's wife, Glenda, is employed at First National Bank. They have two children – Jeremy 4, and Kristin, 2. His parents live in Oklahoma City and he has one sister and two brothers.

The Nighs are active in First Baptist Church. His hobbies include jogging and being an amateur radio operator. He is also a member of the Southwest Basketball Officials Assocition.

position department of The Brand might be termed the "control center" of the newspaper.

These departments contain some of the latest computerized electronic equipment in the field of offset printing. Housed in the composition area are three minidisk terminals, two output phototypesetters, two display typesetters, a wire recorder and an IBM composer typewriter

Most of the equipment is made by Compugraphic Corporation and is designed for fast production of various sizes of type.

The output phototypsetters operate from a mini-disk input and produce copy at the rate of 50 lines a minutes. Each disk holds 87,000 characters. That represents some 40 to 45 pages of typewritten copy. The Associated Press wire machine is also connected to the mini-disk system, allowing the paper to retrieve all stores sent over the wire. The output machine can be set to produce type from the small 6-point (used on box scores and market reports) up to 72 points - used for big headlines on news articles or in advertisements.

The display machines can produce type from 14 point to 72 point. The output machines contain film fonts and the type is flashed onto photomechanical paper contained in a light-proof cassette. An automatic processing machine, with a developer and stabilizer, makes the paper ready for pasteup in a matter of seconds.

The mini-disk terminals use a floppy disk for input. The MDT is a self-contained unit which features on-screen electronic editing, file management capabilities and programmable keys. The floppy disk tells the outpout machine the size and type it wants, as well as the width and spacing between lines.

floppy disk can be placed back into the MDT for editing and corrections. Although reporters are still typing stories for the typesetter, it would be possible to provide an MDT for each writer.

The mini wire recorder (MWR) captures wire service stories from Associated Press on four disks, which can store about eight newspaper pages of news.

The final product from the output machines and processors is a high quality print on a column, or multicolumn, width of paper ready to be proofed, trimmed and pasted on its designated

Ad Staff Provides Variety of Talent, Experience

The staff of The Brand is departmentalized, but all departments must work together as a team in producing each issue of the newspaper.

Working in ad sales and layout are Mauri Montgomery and Randall Quick. Their "gal Friday" is Pam Melugin, who is in charge of advertising composition.

Montgomery has been with The Brand since December, 1979. A graduate of Texas Tech University, he came to the newspaper as sports editor. After two years, he ment and has found the move to be "very satisfying."

A top-notch photographer, Montgomery has used that experience to be very useful in preparing many of his ads. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Dick Montgomery of Hereford and is a graduate of Hereford High School. He was a standout gridder for the Whitefaces.

Randy Quick has been with The Brand a short time, moving to Hereford about eight months ago from Albuquermoved into the ad depart- -que, N.M. An artist, Quick paints in the mornings and works for The Brand in the afternoons.

> He has had more than four vears in education and training in advertising, and was employed with McElheney

Advertising Agency in Albuquerque. He attended Arizona State University and the Advertising Art School.

He is married to the former Judy McMorries of Hereford. They have two children -Kurt 12, and Carrie 3. Randy was the winner of several advertising awards in New Mexico Advertising Federation contests, and he was one of the top 10 winners in a Saturday Evening Post illustration contest in 1974.

His oil paintings are being displayed by Newman Gallery in Dallas, and a private show is being scheduled for June.

Ms. Melugin has been with the Brand since September, 1977, except for about a sixmonth period when she left to try another job. She was formerly a typesetter and still serves in a back-up capacity should the need arise.

Her primary job is in "building" the ads that go into The Brand. She takes the layout made by the ad salesmen, sets the type and places borders and illustrations that might be needed in Press Jobs Hard?

Mrs. Browns reading class took a field trip to the Hereford Brand on Feb. 17, 1982. I thought it was a very interesting experience at the Brand. It took a whole lot of paper to run the presses and make the newspaper. I also thought it was neat how they developed the pictures.

I think some of their jobs down at the Brand were very hard but I imagine that it is very rewarding too. Thy have to do nearly everything stories and taking the pictures the staff really has to and the people in the circulation department and all the rest have very hard jobs.

Also the people have to get up at 2:00 o'clock in the morning to cover a story. But I also think it is very rewarding because you can gain alot of experience by covering a story or something in that manner.

Our paper the Bluebonnet Times and the Hereford . Brand are basically the same except for such things as they can take pictures and we can't. We don't have advancperfect. In covering all the ed printing equipment like they do. Our paper and the Brand do differ but basically work hard. All the printers we try to do the same thing.

North Plains Central Plant for Area Papers

North Plains Printing Co., which was started in 1961 as Southwest Offset, serves not only The Brand but is a central printing plant for area newspapers and commercial print work.

Supervisors in the plant are Nanah Braly and Casper Morales, two veterans who started with Southwest Offset. Ms. Braly heads up the camera room and platemaking department, while Morales supervises the pressroom crew.

Assisting in the platemaking area are Sherry Davis, who has almost eight years experience at the plant, and Elodia Reyes, who joined the department last year.

Ricky Castaneda is the No. 2 man on the press and has been with North Plains since February, 1974. Scott Zevely worked part-time as a schoolboy, starting in 1979. He attended a trade school for one year then returned to the plant.

After the pages of the newspaper are prepared, the plant takes them to a computerized camera room for shooting by a large camera that resembles a hospital x-ray machine.

The page-size negative that results is developed automatically and placed on a light table to be checked for blurs and spots. The negative then goes to the plate burner, where the image is "burned" onto a sensitized metal plate .009 of an inch thick.

An automatic processor "scrubs" the plate and, in effect, raises the printed materials so they will accept ink in the press. The pressroom crew bends plates by a special process and mounts them on the press.

nounts them on the press.

The plant has a new Harris

V-15C press, installed when the new building was completed. It is capable of producing 20,000 papers an hour. A folder unit delivers the papers in half-fold or quarter-fold fashion.

Once the plates are in place, the press is rotated slowly and a water-chemical solution removes the thin, protective gum layer from them. Then the ink and water rollers are engaged, along

Paper is fed into the press from large rolls, which average almost 900 pounds each. A mechanically-controlled balance of ink and water determines the images that are printed. The nonimage areas (white space) of the plates are treated with a water solution which prevents them from accepting ink; while the image areas receive ink from rollers that pass over them.

North Plains Printing uses about 400 tons of newsprint a year. Along with printing the Brand five days a week, the plant also prints three semiweekly papers – The Canyon News, Lamb County Leader-News, and The Prairie, the college paper at West Texas State University.

Other customers include

The Castro County News, Friona Star, Bovina Blade, State Line Tribune (Farwell), all weekly newspapers and two shoppers out of Amarillo – Thrifty Nickel and the Tumbleweed. Several Amarillo high school and junior high papers are printed during the school year, and the plant produces some booklets and programs that are adaptable to a large
