State weather records fall as heat continues

By The Associated Press

Record-breaking dry weather continues to seethe across the state this summer, claiming at its latest victims residents in Central and South Texas.

Austin and San Antonio on Friday broke records for consecutive days without rain as both cities hit day 55, and forecasters aren't calling for a change any time soon.

In San Antonio, this summer's rainless period is the longest dry spell in more than a century.

The Alamo City had a 44-day dry period last fall, from Sept. 15 to Oct. 28. The current spell, however, stands alone in the city's 108-year-old collection of weather records.

"For the agricultural community, this is most definitely a drought," said Mike Albach, manager of the planning division of the Edwards Underground Water District.

"But for San Antonio, which has a public water purveyor, this is just a prolonged dry spell because of the ample amounts of underground water after the wet spring," he said.

Austin shattered a 1962 record of 54 consecutive days without rain. That dry spell was from July 1 to Aug. 24. And Friday's high of 100 degrees tied the record of 11 consecutive 100-degree days set in 1962 and 1986.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area in July marked its first rainless month since November 1903. Besides 0.66 inch of rain recorded on Aug. 7, Dallas has seen no rainfall since June 25, according to the National Weather Service.

For those people whose patience is pushing the mercury along with the temperatures, forecasters say hold on a little longer. The current dry streak is expected to continue into next week.

The stagnant late-summer pattern that has prevailed is expected to break down at some point, although it was hard to tell Friday when or how that would happen, said San Antonio weather service forecaster Robert Blaha.

Ask Neil McNutt of Hereford what he liked best about his vacation this summer and he most likely will respond: "Everything!"

And well he might. McNutt was one among 927 civilians sailing from Hawaii to San Diego aboard the U.S.S. Nimitz, a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

He boarded the giant ship in Pearl Harbor on July 23 and arrived in San Diego, Cal., on July 29. The days, and nights, were chockful of new experiences for the veteran agricultural pilot.

McNutt was invited to make the cruise by a Hereford High School graduate, Steve Hope, who is an E-3 petty officer aboard the Nimitz.

Operation Tiger Cruise is a special public relations program of the Navy. Guests were invited by a family member or friend to join the cruise.

"Steve and I got to be good friends when he worked for me at the airport," said McNutt, senior pilot with American Dusting Company. "He was responsible for my invitation."

Except for the air fare from the mainland to Hawaii, the cruise cost neither McNutt nor Hope a penny.

In a week full of experiences to cherish, McNutt believes the departure of the Nimitz from Pearl Harbor, sailing past the World War II sunken U.S.S. Arizona, will remain forever in his memory.

"The men were wearing dress whites, standing at attention on the flight deck as we passed the Arizona," he recalled. "I could look down and see the outline of the sunken ship."

"There was not a sound on deck. They held the hand salute until we had cleared the harbor."

"It causes chills all over you when you see it."

During the next several days, Navy personnel conducted the visitors on tours of the ship, introduced them to the day-to-day operations of the carrier and treated them to a display of the Navy's strength.

"We got to watch aircraft launch from 'vultures row' on the control island of the carrier," he explained. During the launch activity, McNutt was positioned just behind the "air boss," the man responsible for all the take-off and landing procedures.

The visitors toured all areas of the ship except the nuclear reactor and main shaft rooms, McNutt said. During the cruise, he learned to get around the ship alone although he usually was accompanied by his sponsor, Steve Hope.

"I could find my way to chow and to quarters," said McNutt. Speaking of food aboard ship, the Hereford man said he found most meals nourishing and tasty. However to break the monotony of shipboard meals, the carrier has a fast food mess hall.

"They call it the McNimitz," laughed McNutt.

Besides launch and recovery of the ship's aircraft, there were training sessions involving gunnery, aircraft fly-by and other maneuvers.

The carrier was accompanied by three other ships and although McNutt said they were told a submarine was in the group, too, he never saw it.

The nuclear carrier, named for Admiral Chester Nimitz, the Texan who commanded the fleet in the Pacific during World War II, is a

Experience with pope changes youths' lives

LINDSAY RADFORD
Summer Intern

Youth and adults from Hereford added their voices to thousands greeting Pope John Paul II and worshipping with him during World Youth Day in Denver, Colo.

Traveling by bus to Colorado, the Hereford delegation of youth and adults between the ages of 13 and 39 joined with people from 105 different countries in the celebration.

St. Anthony's Catholic Church and San Jose Catholic Church members joined forces over six months to pursue their dreams of visiting with leader of the worldwide Catholic Church.

"The pope is the father of all people in the Catholic religion," said 16-year-old David Farr. "He is the most important man in the world."

Directed by their respective coordinators, church members initiated bake sales, donation drives and breakfasts to raise the necessary $162 per person.

"Our responsibilities were minimal. The Amarillo Diocese organized transportation and tickets for the 572 area participants," said Teresa Munoz, a chaperon on the trip.

Each diocese was placed in a lottery to determine who would receive tickets for the numerous events.

About fifty Hereford residents left for Colorado early in the morning on August 11.

Arriving in Denver, the group was welcomed by the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church who served as host to the Texans.

The youth immediately began a whirlwind of activities.

"We got to the church and then turned around and went to the Civic Center Park for a concert with Wynona Judd and Ricky Skaggs," said Trisha Munoz, a twenty-year-old participant.

"I was surprised at the number of free concerts," said Jacquelyn Bezner.

"We left the park at 11:30 p.m. and could still hear the music for hours later."

Bezner attended the celebration with a church from the Fort Collins, Colo., area.

She was one of a few students chosen to attend the opening mass early Wednesday afternoon.

"It was a beautiful procession of bishops and cardinals from around the world," said Bezner.

Amy Liscano also received a special opportunity after a nomination by her pastor based on her faith and dedication to the community.

"I was nominated by my pastor to meet the pope and President Clinton as they arrived at Stapleton Airport

Recalling trip

Among the travelers to the World Youth Day activities with Pope John Paul II were Hereford youth, from left, Paul Guerrero, Trisha Munoz, David Farr, Jacquelyn Bezner and Amy Liscano. They have several items they obtained in trades with youth from other parts of the U.S. and the world.

Thursday," said Liscano, a 17-year-old member of San Jose Catholic Church.

While the pope and president arrived separately, the waiting crowd enjoyed music despite a constant drizzle of rain.

"Even though I was sopping wet, having the pope so close to me was amazing," stressed Liscano.

"I couldn't believe how big the President's plane was. But, he and his family look just like they do on T.V.," she said.

Those not fortunate enough to attend the airport ceremony participated in seminars throughout the day. Students were divided by age groups.

"The purpose of the seminars was to get everyone to communicate with one another. All of the speakers encouraged us to take what we learned over the week and evangelize in our communities," said Trisha Munoz.

At 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, a crowd of approximately 75,000 gathered in Mile High Stadium to officially welcome Pope John Paul II.

"When everyone saw the pope fly in they screamed and hollered. You couldn't hear anything," said Farr.

The noise level reached such high levels the stadium screens shook.

"Seeing the pope made me tingle all over," said Paul Guerrero, a 15-year-old from San Jose. "My heart had never beat so fast."

During the welcome, the pope focused on the theme, "We are One Body."

Gifts presented to the pope included a pair of tennis shoes with gold laces.

"It was hilarious. He even wore

County posts agenda

Deaf Smith County commissioners will meet in regular session at 9 a.m. Monday. Among items on the agenda is a public hearing on the county's operating budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and adoption of the tax rate to fund the budget. Commissioners also will discuss water passage to San Jose lake, constitutional amendment election details and security fees to be charged by county and district clerks.

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced its August immunization clinic scheduled for Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. Charges are based on family income and size and ability to pay. Funds are used to help keep the clinic open. Regular clinics will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursdays. Remaining clinics for the months will be held Aug. 26. The clinics are held in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B.

EMT class slated

An Emergency Medical Technician course will be held beginning Aug. 30 in Hereford. The class will be taught by Edward McGinley, NREMT/P. It will run from Aug. 30 to Dec. 20, with classes held from 7 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. every Monday and Thursday in the Hereford Community Center. For more information about registration and cost, call McGinley at 364-2141, ext. 121. Registration will accepted up to the first night of class.

GOP says probe needed of Richards' treasury work

By CHIP BROWN

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - State Republican leaders say operations at the state Treasury under Gov. Ann Richards should be investigated the same way the agency is being examined during U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's tenure.

Karen Hughes, executive director of the Republican Party of Texas, said records from Richards' tenure as state treasurer show she ran a sophisticated political operation on state time.

Richards' press secretary Bill Cryer said the Republicans' allegations are "ridiculous."

Richards, a Democrat, was treasurer from 1983 until 1991. Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, succeeded Richards as head of the agency and served 2½ years before winning election to the U.S. Senate June 5.

A Travis County grand jury is looking into allegations that state equipment and employees may have been used for personal and political purposes under Mrs. Hutchison.

But Ms. Hughes says records obtained by The Associated Press Friday from Richards' tenure at the Treasury "appear to show an entire political organization in a state office."

"If they have allegations that anything was done political in nature at the Treasury, they are barking up the wrong tree," Cryer said. "Nothing like that was ever done."

The records outline several headings for files stored on Treasury computers under Richards, including, "Campaign Services," "Contribution" and "AWR Personal Correspondence."

Cryer confirmed that the 10 pages of records filled with headings for various files were kept on agency computers. But he said the file names were a simple catalogue for letters that came in or were sent out by Richards or Treasury employees.

Cryer said if a letter was political or personal, it would be forwarded to Richards' campaign office, which operated separately from the Treasury.

"This is a correspondence log," Cryer said. "When we received letters at the Treasury asking a political question or asking for political information, we undoubtedly logged it in and then batched it up and sent it over to the political office."

"I am sure that's the way any thoughtful political official handles this. We have no control over who sends us letters or why."

State law forbids public officials from using a state office for non-state business.

The records were discovered by attorneys assisting Republican U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison through a two-month-old grand jury investigation of possible wrongdoing while she led the Treasury, according to Mrs. Hutchison's campaign spokesman David Beckwith.

Ms. Hughes said Friday the matter needs to be investigated the same way Mrs. Hutchison is being examined by Travis County District Attorney Bonnie Earle, a Democrat.

Mrs. Hutchison has called the probe an attempt by Democrats to derail her re-election bid next year.

"This raises disturbing questions, not only about Richards' use of state computers for personal and political business, but also the fairness of justice in Travis County," Ms. Hughes said.

"This is hard evidence that state computers, state offices and employees, who worked on those computers, were involved in personal and political work on state time."

Ms. Hughes said the Treasury file names from Richards' tenure such as "Campaign Services," "Contribution" and "Congratulations" appear to have very little to do with state business and very much to do with running a state campaign.

"These are the kinds of files you put together when you are running for a political office in the state of Texas," Ms. Hughes said.

"I don't really have any idea what 'Contribution' or 'Congratulations' are," Cryer said. "I don't have any ability to go and dig these things out."

"A lot of this probably was destroyed as a matter of space-saving stuff. As it should have been," Cryer added. "The state records retention law says that correspondence of this nature is eliminated in one year."

Ms. Hughes questioned a file dubbed "Forgive and Remember."

"Forgive and remember in politics means forgive your enemies but remember who they are and what they have done," Ms. Hughes said.

Hereford residents to be locked up for MDA

Some of Hereford's most notorious residents will be locked up for "good" on Tuesday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at Homeland to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Honorary chairman of the event is Susan Hennessey.

The public is invited to visit the prisoners and contribute toward their release.

According to Judge Ernest Mean, a descendant of Judge Roy Bean, the Meanest Judge East of the Pecos, "I want to put these residents of Hereford behind bars for 'good'!"

Bread and water, as well as a few extras, will be provided at the jail.

The funds raised through the Hereford Lock-Up will help improve the quality of life for more than 200 children and adults in the Panhandle area who are served by the association.

These services include monthly clinics at St. Anthony's Hospital, support groups, therapy, orthopedic equipment, genetic counseling and youth summer camp for children ages 6 to 21.

All of these services are provided at no direct cost to the patients or their families.

The following is a list of local residents for whom arrest warrants have been issued:

The Chamber and You

BY MIKE CARR
Executive Vice President

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce would like to express its appreciation to the many groups, organizations and individuals that worked so hard to make the recent Town and Country Jubilee a success.

A project such as this takes a great deal of cooperation. We are currently evaluating this year's Jubilee and will look at ways to change or improve the event to make it even better.

The date for the future Jubilee will be decided within 30 days.

The Chamber Health and Education Committee hosted a "Welcome to Hereford" reception for Dr. Kent Walker and his family last Sunday.

We are excited to have these folks as they become involved in our community. We sincerely welcome them and hope each of you will also let them know we are glad to have them.

Thanks to Chairman Carmen Rapp and her committee for their work.

The Business Retention Committee is currently visiting local industry to express appreciation and to offer assistance in any way necessary to help with growth and expansion.

Their next meeting will be held Monday, Aug. 23, at the Chamber.

Bits and Pieces Mark your calendar for the next Fun Breakfast which is set for Sept. 16 and will be sponsored by the United Way.... For the first seven months of 1993, Hereford has had 20 new businesses to open and nine expansions or relocations.... Retail sales figures continue to show an increase.... Let's all do our part to try to shop Hereford first. Your support is important... to the businesses, let's all evaluate our performance on every level and be sure we're doing the best we can.

Had some very favorable comments from out of town shoppers in Hereford here to shop at High Plains Coral Reef on West Harrison Highway. Hereford is fortunate to have this fine business offering a first-class selection of fish and aquarium supplies.... Also, congratulations to owners Kit and Judy Sanders on new expansion to build and provide backyard ponds and landscaping. If you haven't visited their business, do so soon. They do a great job.

Let's all work together to help HUSTLIN' HEREFORD show folks that HEREFORD MEANS BUSINESS!!

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

The first three days of school went well even though many classes are full and some are even fuller! Teams and the counselors are working to alleviate this problem. HJH had an average of 755 students and expect an increase each day next week.

Junior Historians began sales of pens, mechanical pencils and folders on Friday. They plan to add other items to their "little store" later in the fall. These sales will be from the bookroom.

Faculty members were pleased with the appearance of most of the students as school began as they were well-groomed and neatly dressed. There didn't seem to be as much competition as there usually is in the area of what was worn to school.

Jim Walsh, lawyer, and a guest speaker for the faculty meeting on Monday left us with several "smooth stones as shot from God's slingshot." Those included: have a vision; be persistent in learning and teaching; stay in shape mentally and physically; lighten up; don't just be a teacher, be a coach; be a special educator; attack cynics of education with the truth about education; remember the oath you took as you signed on as a parent or teacher, (this oath is registered in Heaven); and remember whose side you're on-on the side of the good guys, helping to promote, not tear down. Walsh concluded his message with, "As parents and teachers, you are called upon to be in God's slingshot. You're doing the will of God."

Preparations for a "Builders Club" to be organized at HJH are underway. This club is similar to the Key Club and Keywanettes at High School. Sponsors will be Janna Rudd for girls and Nisar Chand for the boys group.

Organization is one of the strong points that teachers are stressing as the school year begins. Folders for all classes are required, as well as regular rule paper and only blue or black ink pens. Number two pencils are to be used in many classes.

Most students will be taking a classroom expectations list home for parent signatures. Parents, please read these and return them promptly. Also, the student emergency card should be signed, returned and filed as soon as possible. Parents, if you have not been presented with these, ask your student about them.

The future of civilization is, to a great extent, being written in the classrooms of the world. Milton L. Smith, Be sure that your child is in the classroom daily to be a part of the planning for the future!

An AP analysis

Country's savers having problems

By JOHN CUNNIF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - What has this country got against savers?

Extolled in words by presidents, legislators, bankers, economists and those who proclaim them to be the salt of the earth, savers and the things they stand for are frequently violated in deed.

Not organized politically, they are often overlooked, taken for granted, ignored.

By whom? Well, to cite the latest case, the president of the United States and his staff, who suggest that their proposed tax increases will be greatly offset by low interest rates.

It's true in a way: true for borrowers, but painful for savers, who are the lenders. But thinking of savers, even at the expense of savers, is an old habit at the very highest levels of government and industry.

Some might recall, for example, those awful 1970s (for savers), when inflation allowed borrowers to repay in ever-cheaper dollars and take a tax deduction on top of everything.

While borrowers were thus enriched - it was a decade when real estate millionaires were made overnight - savers were forced to accept a cap on interest "earned," and pay income tax on fictional earnings.

They were earning nothing, of course; they were losing every day because inflation was depreciating the buying power of their savings. And then they had to pay taxes on their interest "income," making their losses even worse.

Meanwhile, those who borrowed the money of savers were in effect making money every day and getting a tax deduction to boot. They borrowed $1 and repaid perhaps 25 cents, and had their note stamped "paid in full."

Something had to be done for savers. Weren't they, after all, the folks who provided capital for economic expansion, i.e., for the creation of new companies and jobs and wages and profits? And, of course, tax revenue!

Deregulation of banks was instituted in the late 1970s, allowing interest rates to seek market levels. Immediately, interest income as a percent of disposable income soared, from under 11 percent in 1978 to 18 percent in 1989.

In addition, Individual Retirement Accounts came into being, allowing

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former Guns N' Roses drummer Steve Adler says he was cheated out of millions when he was kicked out of the band because of his heroin addiction.

"Nobody denies the band's right, after they tried to help him get clean, to leave Steve behind. That's not what this case is about," Adler's attorney, David Chodos, said as the trial began Wednesday.

Adler claims that before he was fired in 1990, he was tricked into signing over his share of profits. Chodos put Adler's share at $4 million to $10 million.

Lawyers for the band and its managers contend their clients kept Adler in the group as long as they could.

PETS IN THE HOME

A cat or dog may be your best friend, but once your property is listed for sale, the homeowner must be extra careful about pet odors. Prospective buyers may have pets that smell just like yours, but they will be put off by animal odors. If there is a problem with pet odor, hire a professional to clean the carpet and furniture. They will use products to completely remove stains and odors. If your pet happens to be a cat, keep the litter fresh and clean up spills. When the home is shown, confine the pet in one area of the house or if possible put them outside. Some people have allergies while others may be afraid of some pets. It is difficult for a prospective buyer to feel comfortable in your home if they have either of these problems, even if the house is just what they have been looking for. Guards at Smithsonian do more than just protect museum relics

By NITA LEVYELD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - All day long they get question after question: "Where's the bathroom?" "Where's the Hope Diamond?" "Have you seen my 5-year-old son?" Sometimes their feet hurt. Sometimes they get headaches. Still, many Smithsonian museum guards say nothing beats peak tourist season.

"I love it, I love it, I love it," said Martin Slydell, a guard at the National Museum of American History. "I mean - Arizona, Texas, Georgia, Alabama, California, Chicago, New York - there are people from everywhere."

In the summer months, the paths along the national Mall fill with rivers of people, cameras dangling from their wrists, money pouches around their waists, sneakers on their feet.

The museums of the Smithsonian often are their first destination in town. And the museum guards among the first people they met.

So protecting precious artifacts is only a small part of each day's work for the guards: They're also part tour guide, part Dear Abby. They explain how to use the city's subway system, tell visitors where to find exhibits they came to see, point them toward landmarks like the Capitol, and make them feel welcome.

Many visitors zigzagging through the dimly lit American History lobby fail to notice Slydell - a 50-year-old man standing tall and proud in an immaculate guard's uniform.

But he takes everything in. In the year he's been at the museum, he has methodically memorized everything. Whatever the question, chances are he'll have the answer.

Those who ask about the Foucault Pendulum, a top attraction, are told:

"There are 64 pegs up there. One is knocked down every 20 minutes. When one is knocked down ... it means the Earth has rotated 15 degrees. ... In a 24-hour period, all of them will be knocked down. The museum is rotating beneath the pendulum."

Slydell talks to curators when they set up new exhibits. He reads all the pamphlets.

When he offers facts and figures, visitors often stare in wonder.

"A lot of people are expecting security to say, 'Don't do this. Don't do that,'" he said. "They don't expect us to be educated."

When 22-year-old Elaine Slay got a job as a Hirshhorn Museum guard two years ago, she didn't know a Picasso from a Calder. She was like many tourists who wander into the donut-shaped museum of modern art.

"They may say things like, 'What is this? My child can do this. You guard this stuff?' Is this what they call art?" Slay said.

But Slay has grown to love the paintings since she started reading exhibit labels and listening to tours.

"Just because a painting has squiggly lines doesn't mean it's art. But it doesn't mean it isn't art either," she said.

Remembering those who made it fun to learn.

Everyone can remember the excitement and the dread as a new school year emerged, but it's also easy to remember those teachers who turned that uncertainty into bold new confidence.

Good teachers engrave a part of themselves into everyone's life. They are the individuals who have found a way to make learning fun, who fill young hearts with pride and encouragement, and who recognize accomplishment in gains large or small.

We at Hereford State Bank regard each educator in our school system with high esteem, and we commend your efforts in providing each student in our community with the desire to learn new and wonderful things.

Putting a bet on the Boy Scouts

BY JAMES ROBERTS

The Andrews County News
We've got our money on the Boy Scouts.

Among the many rules of the Boy Scout organization is one that states: "A Scout is polite to everyone regardless of age or position."

Officials of that organization evidently this week were adhering to that rule by not going public with a snub from the President of the United States.

Every four years, the Boy Scouts of America hold a Jamboree that is traditionally capped by a visit from the president or his stand-in.

From President Roosevelt on, our presidents have managed to find the time to put in a visit to the Jamboree. But not this year.

The White House's explanation was that scheduling problems precluded President Clinton from attending the event held in Fort A.P. Hill, Virginia. So the president's stand-in, Bruce Babbitt, the secretary of interior, was detailed to make the Jamboree. But Bruce Babbitt canceled late Monday.

Boy Scouts are not an "in" group, politically speaking, among the progressive folks in the Clinton administration. A president who appointed Roberta Achtenberg as assistant housing secretary cannot be very sympathetic to Boy Scouts.

Remember, she's the gal from San Francisco that fought United Way funding for Boy Scouts because of the Scouts' ban on homosexual scout leaders.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Well, I guess we can all breathe easier, since Davis Ford saved us from buying the nicest office building in town. After all, who would want to own a nice building for a fraction of its market value? Not HISD.

What school district would want a building that is fully accessible to the handicapped? What school would want a nice building in a high-profile location on a major highway, which could even serve as a point of pride for the district? What school would want to plan ahead, possibly consolidating some administrative positions by co-locating all the administrative functions? What school would want to provide top-notch office and auditorium space for its employees and teachers and students? Not HISD.

What school would benefit from having extra meeting spaces, to be utilized by groups of students or even "tax-weary" members of the community?

Just think, next time you drive by 15th and U.S. 385, that nice white building could have been OURS, not some German company's. It's much better to have it sit vacant for eight more years, Right, Davis?

Despite the scare tactics and outright distortions that have been circulated word-of-mouth over the past two weeks, the purchase of the Smith building would have been accomplished without a property tax

Editorials from around the state

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

Aug. 12

Austin American-Statesman on TEA Delay:

The news that hundreds of Texas schools are performing so poorly they could be closed by the Texas education commissioner was bad enough. Worse yet was the way the state agency chose to "report" it. ...

TEA spokeswoman Della May Moore said agency officials wanted to make sure the lists were correct and give superintendents time to appeal rankings, because it appeared some schools may have been listed incorrectly. Moore said State Board of Education rules on accreditation affords districts this measure of confidentiality pending appeal.

Although concern for accuracy is not unappreciated, it seems that the delay was, at least partly, motivated by politics. The additional time allowed the agency to put a spin on the fact that 94 percent of Texas schools are considered performing up to capacity, rather than focus on the 6 percent that are in trouble. ...

Aug. 13

El Paso Times on Clinton's crime bill:

President Clinton introduced a tough anti-crime package ... calling it a "down payment" on his campaign promise to make this country safer.

The $3.4 billion five-year package includes provisions from former President Bush's unsuccessful omnibus crime bill, and other elements that Clinton has added - such as putting 50,000 more police on the nation's streets.

Clinton will use his executive powers to stop importation of foreign-made assault pistols ... and to review rules governing gun dealers.

But he will have to go to Congress for approval of other measures, such as expansion of the death penalty to cover nearly 50 offenses and boot camps for young offenders. ...

Clinton's crime package should not face major opposition. Most taxpayers are more than willing to spend more on law enforcement and prisons.

But the next installments in a plan to make America safer must include less-popular measures to deal with the roots of crime: child poverty, lack of education, and deep pockets of urban unemployment.

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

I, for one, am very disappointed right now in the Hereford ISD board of trustees.

Not because they voted against purchasing the former Smith building for the district, but because of the way they did it.

As you recall, the board and several members of the community toured the former Department of Energy facility last Monday, as part of the consideration about possibly purchasing it.

Along for the tour -- as was their right since this was a public meeting of the board -- were two or three people who were quite vocal in their opposition to the purchase.

Because nothing was published ahead of time, rumors were rampant about the use of the building, its cost and how it would be paid for.

Naturally taxpayers would be reticent to back the purchase if they believed 10 administrators would occupy a 50,000-square-foot building that they thought cost $2 million.

Some of this opposition might have been countered had something been done ahead of time to inform the public.

2. The district failed to get the word out to enough people to join the tour and hear exactly what was planned and see what was available.

Oh, sure, they published their notice of the meeting as required by law, but for an issue like this, perhaps the district should have gone the extra mile to try and encourage as many people as possible to tour the center.

3. Trustees failed to seek input from the community as to their informed feelings on the matter.

It's one thing to listen to people grumbling about rumor -- it's quite another matter to have a public hearing, tell them what the building will be used for and seek public input.

In fact, the best would have been to set a public hearing in the Smith Building for a night when the most people possible could attend.

Then they could have seen the facility in person and talked to trustees about it.

4. Trustees failed to -- I believe -- act with their heads. They heard negative comments during the tour and during a later meeting back at the school office. They heard people grumbling in the restaurants about the matter.

But they should not have allowed two negative comments to sway their votes.

At the very least, trustees should have tabled a vote on the issue until their next regular meeting this week, talked to people in the community, read letters to the editor about it and sought to make the best decision possible.

5. Finally, trustees failed to look to the future.

Superintendent Charles Greenawalt talked to me on Monday about the building.

One point he stressed was that the district needs to constantly look toward the future.

This building would have allowed that to happen. By moving offices out of the current Central Office and Stanton Educational Services Center, more room would have been created for classrooms, which in turn would have led to better education of students.

It would have enabled the district to save money on purchasing supplies, commodities and other items because there would have been ample storage space.

What happens when the warehouse currently used for storage becomes unusable. It won't be long, because Greenawalt said the building is falling apart.

What happens when the old West Central school cannot be used any more because of decay.

Then the district will be forced to go out and spend just as much or more on storage space after letting this opportunity pass.

Maybe it isn't too late for them to reconsider.

It might not change anything. The final vote might still be to abandon the idea.

But at least they will have given the public a chance to have a say and they will have voted with their heads, not their hearts.

If you agree, maybe a call to your trustee would be in order -- before the building is sold to someone else or the opportunity is lost for good.

Similarities surface between Ike of 1951 and Gen. Colin Powell of 1993

By MIKE FEINSILBER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The general had charm and command presence. No one knew if he was a Republican or a Democrat, but the Democrats were in office so it was logical for him to run as a Republican. But would he run? Was he interested?

That was Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1951. And that's Colin Powell in 1993.

Like Ike, Powell has the makings of a formidable presidential candidacy, if he's interested.

The Republicans have plenty of potential candidates but they're all politicians - senators, governors, former cabinet members for the most part - in an anti-politician era. They carry accumulated baggage and bear the scars of old enmities. None yet stands out from the crowd.

Powell stands out. If he has a public enemy, no one knows about it.

And he's a clean slate, like Eisenhower was. No one knew how Ike stood on the issues, so no one could disagree with him on them.

A few months after Truman inherited the presidency in 1945, he told Eisenhower that he would gladly bequeath the job to him. "General, there is nothing you may want that I won't try to help you get," Truman said. "That definitely and specifically includes the presidency in 1948."

Eisenhower declined, but in 1952 he allowed himself to become the candidate of the Republican Party.

The GOP, out of office for 20 years, hungered for victory and lacked anyone with Eisenhower's charisma.

Colin Powell, of course, may be a Democrat, out of sync with Republican thinking. And, of course, he is not a hero of the stature of the five-star liberator of Europe in World War II.

But he is widely admired. If Clinton looks strong as 1996 approaches, the Republicans could find Powell irresistible.

Born in Harlem, the son of a seamstress and a shipping clerk, both immigrants from Jamaica; educated in public schools and at the City College of New York; non-West Pointer who got his start as a ROTC cadet; the winner of the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star during two tours in Vietnam; America's top military man at the time Saddam Hussein was humiliated and Kuwait liberated; it's a dream political biography.

He demonstrated administrative skills - and a mastery of Washington's ways - as adviser to Ronald Reagan and George Bush and as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under Bush and Bill Clinton, who once considered asking him to serve as his secretary of state.

Powell is a nonpartisan figure who can appeal across party lines," said historian Gary Reichard of Florida Atlantic University. "He is articulate and he proved his loyalty in the way he has conducted himself since Clinton came to office."

Powell's lack of partisan identification could be an advantage. Ross Perot showed the appeal of a non-politician.

Powell opposed Clinton's idea of opening the military to homosexuals but did so in such a way as not to lose Clinton's respect or his own.

ever was," added John Mueller, a political scientist at the University of Rochester. "Powell understands politics, has a good feel for it. He understands the political atmosphere, what kinds of things are possible. He resonates moderation, compassion and toughness."

As a Republican candidate, Powell would draw strong support from blacks, who now constitute an essential, and the most loyal, component of the Democratic constituency.

"I can't imagine any other black person in American life who would garner more white support," said Alonzo Hamby, an Ohio University historian.

But pitfalls exist. Sometimes military leaders look diminished when they trade in their uniform. The Persian Gulf commander, Norman Schwarzkopf, lost some of his heroic stature in civvies, giving television interviews to plug his autobiography. Powell is retiring at the end of September. As a civilian, Powell will be less able to avoid expressing opinions, and opinions are divisive. He's being paid a reported $6.5 million for his memoirs, and they're bound to raise some controversy.

Tim Blessing, director of the presidential performance study at Alvernia College in Reading, Pa., said Powell's best bet, if he has political ambition, is "to virtually disappear," to go abroad on a humanitarian task, or take a college presidency, and stay off television. "If he gets down and dirty with Bob Dole or Jack Kemp in New Hampshire, that would detract from his image."

Siamese twins separated in surgery; Amy dies so Angela could get heart

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Kenneth and Reitha "Joey" Lakeberg sacrificed one daughter so her twin might have a chance to live.

After 5 1/2 hours of surgery to separate the 7-week-old Siamese twins, Angela Lakeberg was resting comfortably in intensive care today at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Her condition was critical but stable.

"I honestly didn't think either one would make it out of the operating room," the father said. Although doctors gave Angela a slim chance of long-term survival, Lakeberg said he felt "totally optimistic."

"She looks good," he told WBBM-TV of Chicago. "She's got her color. She opened her eyes just briefly, and then went back to sleep of course. But we got to hold her hand and stroke her hair and she looks good."

The other twin, Amy Lakeberg, died about two-thirds of the way through Friday's operation, said Dr. James A. O'Neill Jr., the chief surgeon.

Members of the 18-member surgical team that severed Angela's liver from Amy's and sewed the twins' shared heart into Angela said they were encouraged by early signs of success.

"I don't think it was a miracle," O'Neill said. "It was a lot of hard work."

Doctors decided which twin would live based on anatomy, O'Neill said. Before the surgery, nurses painted Angela's tiny fingernails pink and left her sister's bare.

Georgia Welsh, the twins' aunt, said she was surprised at the choice, since Amy seemed to be more aggressive. "Amy was always leaning over and pinching Angela," she said.

Family members said their good-byes to Amy before the operation.

Surgeons first separated the twins' liver tissue, then moved on to reconstructing the six-chambered heart. A normal heart has four chambers.

The shared heart was insufficient to keep both alive for more than a few more weeks, doctors said.

Welsh sat outside the hospital during the early hours of the surgery. In one hand, she clutched a plaster imprint of both the twins' 2-inch bodies, made minutes before they were anesthetized for surgery. In the other, she held a clown doll the twins played with during their last moments of consciousness together.

The operation was the fourth at the hospital on conjoined twins with shared hearts. The longest survivor, separated in 1977, died of liver failure after three months.

O'Neill acknowledged the chances of long-term survival for Angela were slim. He said, however, that surgery would not have been recommended had there not been a reasonable chance.

The twins were born June 29 at Loyola University Medical Center in suburban Chicago. Doctors there opposed separation.

Lakeberg, of Wheatfield, Ind., and his wife brought their daughters to Philadelphia on Tuesday.

Indiana Public Aid provides $997 per day, and Children's Hospital has said it will absorb the rest.

TAES to cut number of districts from 14 to 12

COLLEGE STATION -- The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has decided to redistrict in order to cut administrative costs and respond to the changing needs of the state.

The plan reduces the number of districts from 14 to 12, but no district offices will close, said Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Extension Service. Neither will extension programs be curtailed because of the change.

The plan eliminates one of two current district offices located in Overton in East Texas and one of the two located at the Bryan annex of Texas A&M University.

Several of the district Extension director positions are vacant, so staffing changes are expected to be minimal. Two district directors and some support personnel are expected to be reassigned.

This plan will save more than $300,000 per year to Extension, and allows for a more uniform distribution of counties and county Extension agents among the 12 districts," Carpenter said.

The plan goes into effect Sept. 1. A one-year period will be allowed for various groups served by Extension to make adjustments to the new district lines.

"As these adjustments are made, I hope that the number of youth and adults serving in leadership roles will not be diminished, but rather enhanced through creative organizational structuring," he said.

Carpenter said the redistricting provides for a more uniform grouping of urban and rural counties for more efficient and effective consumer and family education programs.

The plan essentially returns the Extension Service to the same number of districts it had 20 years ago.

What's the noise a deer makes called? Belling, dear.

With the Lord's help, you made it possible!

We, on behalf of St. Anthony's 21 participants of World Youth Day in Denver with Pope John Paul II, are so very grateful to the following people:

1. Arrowhead Mills, MANY St. Anthony's Parishioners, and the Hereford Brand for help in raising necessary funds;
2. Ron Rives and Deaf Smith General Hospital for the First Aid Kits (used on several occasions)
3. Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce (pins, pens, keychains, etc) and the St. Anthony Rosary Makers (1000+ rosaries) items which we enjoyed exchanging with others from across the globe;
4. Elaine McNutt, whose sign-painting on the bus windows "put Hereford on the map" again, and impressed the world! Ours truly was the best-looking bus among hundreds...it caused many to honk, point, smile, wave & cheer us on!

All of the above made a "Hereford Proud" statement (to only-God-knows-how-many) when approximately 50 local 'pilgrims' journeyed (or were HERDED among half a million others!) to a place of prayer, faith-sharing, worship & learning, and a whole lot more!

Love & Prayers to everyone who made this awesome experience possible.

Enjoying a 'More Abundant Life In Christ Jesus' (WYD theme),

Herd has work left after Plainview scrimmage

By JAY PEDEN

Sports Editor

Hereford's senior and junior football players got their first work against real opponents Friday in Plainview, and they came away knowing they had work to do.

The tough, older Plainview squad was clearly ahead of the Herd. The Bulldogs, ranked third in Class 4A by one publication, returns the better part of last year's team that beat Hereford in bi-district.

Each team got six sets of 20 plays on offense. Plainview got into the end zone 10 times while Hereford didn't at all.

"The offense, execution-wise, was very poor. The things we worked on in practice, we didn't do in the scrimmage," said Hereford coach Danny Haney, adding: "I thought we hurt ourselves badly with dropped passes and fumbles."

The Whitefaces are adding a new passing system to the offense, and it'll take time to get it down, Haney said. Hereford had some success with it Friday, but most of the passes by quarterbacks Elias Reyna and Michael Brown went for incompletions, though several good passes were dropped.

Hereford showed some fire during the first-team offense's second set.

Tight end Mark Kuper caught a 20-yard pass, then tailback Marquise Brown ran over Bulldogs on consecutive plays, but Hereford ran out of plays at that point.

In Hereford's last offensive session, two drivers went deep into Plainview territory, but both were killed by turnovers—one on an interception on a tipped ball.

Most of Plainview's scores came when the second or third squads were in the game, and many of them were on long plays—a problem which can be corrected.

"I thought in the first round, the first 20 plays, we played very good defense," Haney said. Plainview scored twice in the session: once on a 20-yard run by the quarterback, and once on a 20-yard pass play.

"We stood up toe-to-toe to them," Haney said. "They're a lot bigger than we are, but we stood toe-to-toe with them. They had to pass to score. We made some mistakes in the later sessions that allowed them to score with the run."

Herd DE Kuper on all-star team

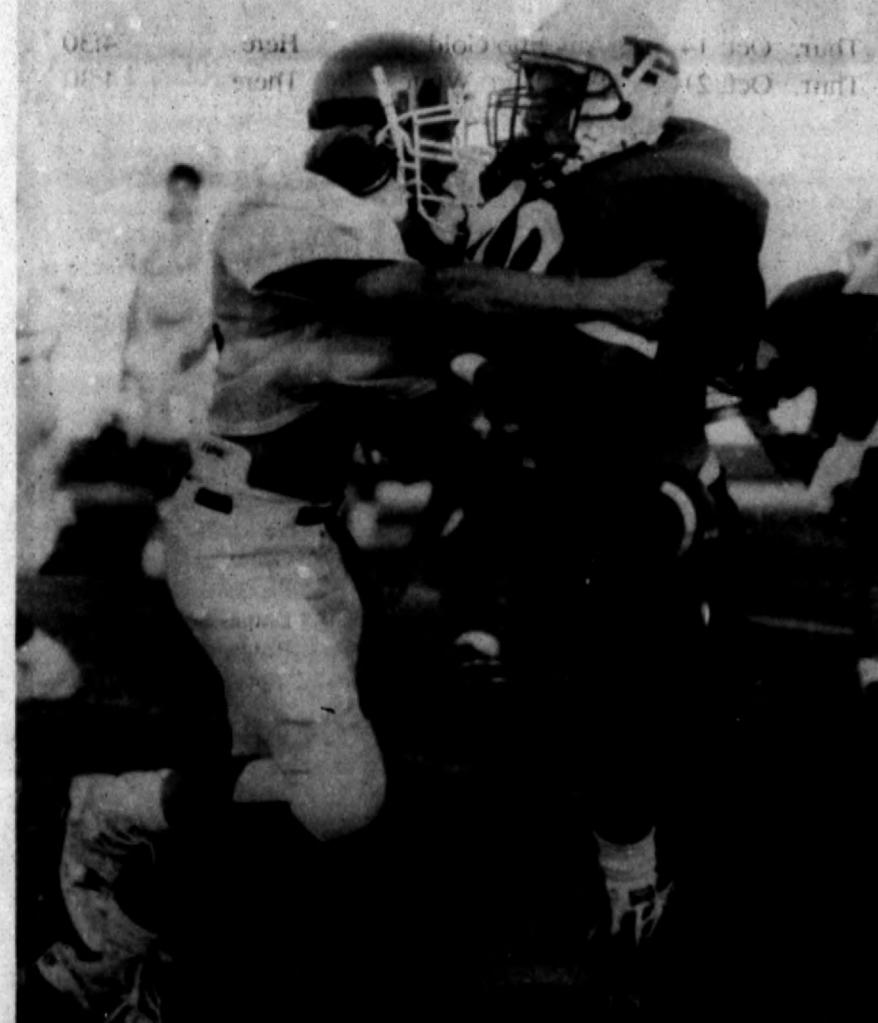

Hereford senior defensive end Mark Kuper received a statewide honor by being named to The Associated Press Preseason Super Team, which was released Saturday.

The Super Team is an all-class, all-star squad selected by a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. The complete team can be found on Page 8A.

Daylight

Hereford fullback Justin Wright (11) finds some running room after a handoff from quarterback Michael Brown (3). Running room was scarce against the tough Plainview defense.

Fumble

An unidentified Hereford defender forces a Plainview running back to fumble. Plainview recovered the fumble.

S'lake Carroll will repeat; Davis may just win

By JAIME ARON

Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Sure, Southlake Carroll looks like a lock for a repeat Class 3A title, and Jerod Douglas is the type of player that can make Converse Judson the first Class 5A repeat winner in six years.

But those aren't very risky picks. This is going out on a limb:

Houston Davis will win.

No, no a state title. Not even a District 20-4A crown. But they will finally win, ending the nation's longest-ever losing streak that enters the year at 73. Their last victory was in the sixth game of the 1985 season.

The run likely will end either in week six on the road against Houston Furr or two weeks later at home against Houston Wheatley.

"We figure we'll start with the first one," Davis coach Chuck Arnold said. "If it doesn't pan out we'll go to the next one and just keep trying until we get the monkey off our back."

As for the rest of the 1993 season, here's what The Associated Press' crystal pigskin sees:

CLASS 5A: Converse Judson in Division I; Arlington Lamar in Division II

Judson is a no-brainer; as easy a choice as it is hard to tackle Douglas.

With one of the state's largest talent pools to choose from and a recent tradition rivaled only by Odessa Permian, the Rockets will celebrate the 10-year anniversary of their first title with their third.

An interesting sidelight to this year's team is that the quarterback is Clint Rutledge, the only child of coach D.W. Rutledge.

The elder Rutledge's words are tinged with emotions as he describes the bond he has with this team because of his son and his friends, whom the coach has watched grow up on and off the field.

"Every year, I get to know the classes well, but when they're always at your house, you get even closer to them."

One game to watch is a week four game on the road against defending Division II champion Temple, which ended Judson's long home winning streak last year. It was the Rockets' only loss of the season.

As for Lamar, coach Eddy Peach's squad is poised to avenge a 1990 title game loss to Aldine.

The Vikings have a lot going for them, especially a region in which Dallas Kimball and Dallas Carter are the top threats. Carter knocked Lamar out of the playoffs in the first round last year.

Lamar returns 36 letterman and eight offensive starters from last season's 9-2 squad. The only question mark is shoring up a defensive that already was undersized before the loss of two top secondary starters.

The offense features several exciting players, beginning with the tandem of wide receiver Aaron Oliver (son of former major league baseball star Al Oliver) and quarterback John Rayborn, who reminds many of former Viking and current Baylor star J.J. Joe.

CLASS 4A: A&M Consolidated

The mere thought of repeating last year's exciting Class 4A title game between Waxahachie and Jeff Watson-err, A&M Consolidated-is a great thought.

But with the Indians having lost quarterback Lamont Moore to Baylor, the Watson-led Tigers are a lock to win their second title in three years.

The only possible weakness is a lack of experienced running backs, but that'll be overcome by Watson and a strong receiving corps.

A challenge will come in the opening week against Belton, which beat A&M each of the last two years. Should they get past that hurdle, an undefeated season could loom.

CLASS 3A: Southlake Carroll

Who else?

Bob Ledbetter's victory machine is the team to watch again as it adds to its state-record regular-season winning streak of 61 games and heads toward a national record with its seventh straight undefeated regular season.

Graduation has taken its toll, but with all-sport superstar Dane Johnson in the backfield - at quarterback or running back - the Dragons are the surest thing going.

But don't expect Ledbetter to agree.

"This is the year people have been looking for Carroll to have," he said. "We're a normal school and we'll have these ups and downs."

Sorry, Bob. Normal schools don't go 96-5-1 in seven years.

CLASS 2A: Honey Grove

This will be a sweet choice and even tastier revenge for the Warriors, who sprung to a district title in 1992 after winning five games the previous year.

Unlike the cartoon coach by the same name, Charlie Brown has a solid squad. He's getting back nine starters on offense and 10 on defense from last year's team that went undefeated until losing a tiebreaker in the first round of the playoffs.

The Warriors' biggest challenge will be getting past highly touted

Omaha Paul Pewitt in Region III.

CLASS 1A: Runge

More revenge, this time for the Yellowjackets.

Like Honey Grove, Runge's only non-victory was a playoff tie. The Yellowjackets' season ended because of one more penetration by Bartlett, which won the state title two weeks later.

Coach Carl Peters returns half the starters from a 12-0-1 team that should again breeze through the region (even getting past Bartlett, which is rebuilding after losing six key players) and into the semis.

From there, it's just two more wins and a title.

Converse Judson star

leads AP all-star team

Herd's Kuper makes Super Team

By JAIME ARON

Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - What can Jerod Douglas do this year for an encore?

Maybe rush for 3,000 yards, breaking his state record of 2,967 set as a junior in 1992.

Or lead Converse Judson to an undefeated season and a second straight Class 5A Division I title.

Could be both - he's that good.

That's not just hype from his coach, but the opinion of almost everyone who's seen Douglas take the ball, slash through a hole, make a move on a helpless defender and blaze upfield.

Douglas is one of many talented Texas players named to The Associated Press Preseason Super Team, an all-class, all-star squad selected by a panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Part of what makes the 5-foot-10, 170-pound Douglas so special is his attitude toward the game.

"I hear a lot of stories about a lot of running backs and I don't want to be one of them," said Douglas, whose list of busts he doesn't want to follow include former Judson star Chris Pryor, the previous single-season recordholder.

Rockets coach D.W. Rutledge said he expects Douglas to succeed because the youngster already keeps things in perspective, including the lofty heights most believe his team will achieve.

"He's got a real good approach and, because of that, his teammates really respond well to him," Rutledge said. "He really doesn't put on air to him and feel like he's the star and they'd be in trouble without him."

Robinson aims to revive Southern Cal

By JOHN NADEL

AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Southern Cal hasn't been the same since John Robinson left after the 1982 season. Now Robinson is back for a second term as head coach, hoping to restore the glory to one of the nation's most famous football programs.

USC's record under Robinson from 1976-82 was 67-13-2. The Trojans have declined since then, going 26-20-1 in four seasons under Ted Tollner and 44-25-3 in six years with Larry Smith at the helm.

Even worse, Southern Cal was 0-10 against Notre Dame and 4-5-1 against UCLA in the Tollner-Smith years. In Robinson's first head coaching stint at USC, the Trojans were 6-1 against Notre Dame and 5-2 against UCLA.

Southern Cal's appearance in the Freedombowl last winter turned out to be Smith's final game. He was fired after a 24-7 loss to Fresno State and Robinson, who was let go by the Los Angeles Rams a year earlier, was rehired almost immediately.

With Robinson in charge and a lot of starters returning, the Trojans should improve on last year's 6-5-1 record.

"Offensively, we will try to evolve back to the type of offense that we've run in the past, which I've always referred to as a balanced offense," Robinson said.

That means a lot of student body left and student body right, a run-oriented system that produced two Heisman Trophy winners - Charles White and Marcus Allen - in Robinson's previous seven-year tenure.

Returning to the top of the Pac-10 might be too tall an order for the Trojans considering the opposition.

The Washington Huskies, 31-5 the past three years, hope to play in their fourth straight Rose Bowl on New Year's Day and are the preseason favorites. However, their fate might be determined before they play their first game.

The school's football program had one of its best years in 1992, sending a record five teams to bowls. WAC coaches believe this season could be even better.

"The competition in the WAC is the best it's been in 32 years of

Famous Punch

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Ring historians rate it one of the greatest punches in the history of boxing, if not the greatest.

It was thrown by Rocky Marciano in the 13th round of his heavyweight title fight against Jersey Joe Walcott in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium. The date was Sept. 23, 1952.

Less than a minute of the 13th round had gone by when Marciano, the challenger, caught the wily champion with a right hand that dropped Walcott to the canvas. Walcott was counted out officially at 43 seconds of the round.

The American team won nine of the 12 track and field events at the first modern Olympics in 1896.

The Olympics have been held in the Southern Hemisphere only once, in 1956 at Melbourne, Australia.

Amarillo man remembers hug from pope

By JAMI WILCOXSON

Amarillo Globe-News
AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Frankie Rocha returned home from Denver late Sunday night in a state of awe.

An Associated Press photographer captured Rocha's emotional personal meeting with Pope John Paul II and transmitted the historic image to news agencies around the world.

For Rocha, the trip meant that he had overcome the obstacle of his poor health to achieve his dreams of performing his music for the young people at World Youth Day and actually meeting Pope John Paul II.

In a single word, Rocha described his experience: "Beautiful."

"It was an experience I never thought I was going to have," Rocha said, humbly. "I can't even believe it. It was a blessing I received. He showed me what my gift was."

When Rocha left for Denver, he thought his gift was his music. He sings, plays the saxophone, piano and the guitar.

"The one miracle I want is to share my music with the young people of the world," Rocha said before his Denver trip.

As Rocha prepared for his trip, he visualized meeting the pope.

"Touching his (Pope John Paul II) hands, him giving me a hug, and telling me it's going to be fine. I want to see Jesus through him and (for Jesus) to heal me of my disability," Rocha said.

When Rocha met the pope in person, the pontiff told him about another gift.

"He said my gift is healing the hearts in people," Rocha said.

The pope also told Rocha that the whole world would know about him, and that he would make miracles in this world from now on.

Thousands of people dreamed of meeting the pope, yet Rocha was chosen in a process that would defy mathematical probabilities. The Amarillo Diocese initially picked Rocha to represent the area at Saturday's mass. Many people who attended the mass still did not meet the pope.

Rocha said, "When I saw him walking down the aisle, I completely broke down and started crying. My hands got numb, and I got on my knees and asked Jesus for the forgiveness of all my sins."

A photographer spied Rocha and began snapping pictures of him. Then came an avalanche of photos.

When the mass was over, Rocha was still crying. He had not met the pope, nor did it appear that he would. Then, a Los Angeles Times reporter asked to speak with Rocha.

"I was crying so bad," Rocha said. "He (the reporter) told me to wait a minute, and then he went and got a priest."

Rocha spoke with the priest, who then told him, "You have a gift. You need to see him. But I want you to be the very last."

The priest then obtained security clearance for Rocha to meet the pope.

Rocha recounted the magical moment: "He saw me and said, 'Come here, son, and give me a hug.' I told him, 'I love you very much,' and then he said, 'You have so much to give.'

"He told me he loved me and he said, 'You are going to be all right,'" Rocha continued. "He told me I would not receive a physical healing, that my blessing was beyond that. He said his home was my home, and he said I would be traveling all over the world healing hearts."

"He told me, 'Nothing is going to get in your way. You will be an example to the whole world.'"

Rocha's experience did not end with the papal meeting. A cardinal approached Rocha and told him, "You are beautiful - so beautiful. You are amazing. You have made us (the other priests) see a lot of things."

Rocha said that the cardinal told him he loved him, and that he (Rocha) had broken the boundaries of God's gift. Rocha believes the cardinal's words mean that everything is going to change for him - in his life, his music ministry, his tears, and now, the traveling.

The media continued to bombard Rocha with questions and pictures - so much so that security had to lead him away from the crowds. The LA Times reporter, who had first brought the priest to Rocha, returned to Rocha's side to walk out with him. Rocha's experience had moved the reporter to tears.

"He said to me, 'The media told me to tell you that you are going to be in every magazine and every newspaper in the country, and all over the world,'" Rocha said. "He told me I might get more than I expected, not to be surprised."

Rocha went to Denver to seek a miracle - but his life is not short of miracles.

When he was 5, a doctor diagnosed a fatal heart condition and told his family that he might not live longer than three more months. One bypass surgery and five open-heart surgeries later, friends and family call Rocha "the walking miracle" at age 25.

During one open-heart surgery at age 16, Rocha almost died. Only machines kept his heart beating.

"I remember I saw a big light, and it was calling to me. I couldn't see his face. It was a shiny light, like the sun, beautiful. I could see his hands and his feet."

Rocha explained that he felt himself lying on the table, but he also felt himself going up, like a spirit.

"I feel like a white dove, free. It was beautiful."

With or without physically healing, Rocha feels at peace with his illness.

"Miracles can happen, not only by being healed physically, but spiritually - becoming stronger," he explains. "I fight with my illness. I tell it, 'I am not going to let you beat me.'"

Rocha said that his illness has taught him to accept rather than to question even when his health failed him.

Between the ages of 15 and 21, Rocha worked as a disc jockey for three Amarillo radio stations and attended Amarillo College. He graduated from KD studios in Dallas with an acting degree.

Eventually he collapsed and spent the next four months in bed recuperating.

In 1991, Rocha ran for the Amarillo City Commission. In recent years, he has worked in the production departments of two Amarillo television stations.

About two months ago, doctors told him that he had six to seven months to live. Though a heart transplant is an option for Rocha, he told the doctors he did not want one. Even with the transplant, Rocha would only have a 50-50 chance of surviving.

Rocha said his decision is based on more than just the 50-50 chance.

"Jesus gave me my heart, and that's the way I want to keep it. To me, it would not be the same if I had someone else's heart. My heart has made me strong."

"I feel well with myself," Rocha said. "Why would I want a different heart? Even though I'm suffering, that's what makes me strong."

Changes help compliance with wetlands regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) - A White House task force is trying to make it easier for farmers to obey regulations protecting wetlands, Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy says.

In a speech Friday in Stuttgart, Ark., Espy said the department's Soil Conservation Service would have sole responsibility for determining what agricultural land should be classified as wetlands.

Farmers complain they must deal with the Army Corps of Engineers, Environmental Protection Agency, Soil Conservation Service and other agencies when deciding whether to plant, build on, or fill in land.

Biological parents continue fight

Girl switched at birth says she does not plan to have children

By JAMES MARTINEZ

Associated Press Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - The girl who was switched at birth and won a court order barring her biological parents from contacting her said she will never have children of her own.

"I don't want them to go through what I went through," 14-year-old Kimberly Mays told a news conference Friday.

She was responding to comments by the attorney for her birth parents, Ernest and Regina Twigg, that even when she is an adult they will seek visitation rights with her children as the biological grandparents.

The Twiggs have been pursuing Kimberly for five years, since the swap at a rural Florida hospital in 1978 came to light.

Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan ruled Wednesday that Bob Mays, who raised Kimberly since the swap, is the girl's legal father. Dakan said the Twiggs have no right to act as her parents or even visit her.

Describing her immediate reaction to the decision, Kimberly said, "I jumped up and down and yelled. I got goose bumps."

"It was a wonderful feeling," her father added, "almost like a cancer was removed from my body."

Kimberly, a blond, bespectacled girl who wore a white dress and broad smile, thanked her father and his current wife, Darlene, for helping her during the tough times. The ninth-grader also talked about her plans.

"Going to school - boys," she said. "Going to the University of Florida, being a model, helping children."

As for the Twiggs, Kimberly said she just wants them to leave her alone. "I want to get on with my life," she said.

The Twiggs have promised to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary. Kimberly didn't talk about what would happen if the Twiggs win.

The case began when delivery identification tags were switched, sending Kimberly and another baby girl home with the wrong parents.

The Twiggs took home a girl they named Arlene, who died of a heart defect in 1988. Genetic tests showed that Arlene wasn't related to the Twiggs and that Kimberly was their biological daughter.

After a visitation agreement broke down between the two families in 1990, Regina Twigg began publicly raising unproven accusations that the Mays had something to do with the switch.

Treasury Department lets ministers take bus to Cuba

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - Ministers who have staged a hunger strike aboard a school bus can deliver it to Cuba, the U.S. government said Friday after declaring the bus to be humanitarian aid instead of a prohibited export.

Following two days of negotiations, the U.S. Treasury Department said the agreement was reached in Washington shortly before 7 p.m. EDT by Assistant Secretary Ronald K. Noble in talks with the Rev. Lucius Walker Jr. and seven other representatives of Pastors for Peace.

"We have determined that it (the bus) was humanitarian aid," said Michelle Smith, a Treasury Department spokeswoman in Washington. "We went around the provision that they had to apply for a permit to take the bus to Cuba."

She explained that the pastors had not wanted to apply for a permit because it would have meant that they were agreeing with terms of a Cuban embargo, which they opposed.

"What we did, was that we said we would issue them a license as if they had applied for it," said Ms. Smith. "This was a way in which we could both win. From our perspective, they are within the law now."

Walker told federal government officials that they could not apply for the license because "the embargo is the centerpiece of a policy that causes a great deal of suffering for 11 million Cubans. And as Christians and as people of conscience, we cannot participate in any aspect of such a policy."

The bus has been the site of a three-week hunger strike by the pastors' group.

Rush Rehm, a spokesman for Pastors for Peace, said the 1979 bus, which has 150,000 miles on it, likely will be transported Monday through Mexico and on to Cuba.

Rehm and John O'Connor said they believe the government was embarrassed by the negative national attention it was receiving about the school bus.

"What maybe caused them to break was our resolve," O'Connor said.

Hunger strikers and supporters celebrated their victory.

Ms. Smith said that U.S. Customs Service agents were inspecting the bus Friday night at the Texas-Mexico border in preparation for allowing it to cross.

"On a philosophical ground, the pastors had said they would not apply for a license," she said.

Agent advises on control of grubs

Lawns should be checked for infestation

Homeowners suspecting an infestation of white grubs in their lawns should check on the possible problem and apply chemicals to control the pests.

Jay Johnson, Deaf Smith County

Extension Agent, suggested that a section of the lawn, about a foot square, be dug out to a depth of about four inches. If as many as four grubs are found per square feet, step may be needed. He also said the lawn should be checked in more than one spot for an accurate determination.

The white grub occurs in most parts of Texas. The adult form is what commonly is called a May or June beetle. After mating, the female beetle bores into the earth and lays between 30 and 40 eggs which hatch in three to four weeks, giving rise to small larvae or grubs.

The larvae pass through three stages, becoming larger with each successive stage as they feed voraciously on grass roots, Johnson pointed out.

Stages one and two require only about three weeks for development while stage three is in the soil for the remainder of the year, or even two years, and causes most of the lawn damage. Large numbers of larvae feeding on a lawn causes grass to turn yellow. Positive identification is possible when yellowed grass can be lifted easily by hand from the ground.

The larvae pass through three stages, becoming larger with each successive stage as they feed voraciously on grass roots, Johnson pointed out.

He reminded, too, that some beneficial organisms, such as earthworms, may be destroyed by the treatment for grubs.

In each case, the insecticides should be thoroughly washed into the soil with about one-half inch of water.

The agricultural agent reminded that children and animals should be kept off the lawn until the insecticide has penetrated the soil thoroughly.

Johnson advised that instructions from manufacturers should be followed in applying chemicals.

Cotton in colors gives some encouragement to West Texas growers

By EDUARDO MONTES
Associated Press Writer

COYANOSA, Texas (AP) - Despite some discouraging news early on, farmer Elmer Braden Jr. will see colored cotton sprouting from his West Texas fields this season.

The few meager acres he's growing aren't much.

But they are more than he had counted on.

Even a little bit is good for farmers trying to cling to an industry still struggling with growing pains and instability.

"It's a boost. It's better than nothing," said Braden, who like other Pecos County farmers was told he wouldn't be needed to grow the lucrative crop this year. "Hopefully, it'll help us get a foot in the door and help us to expand next year."

Braden eventually may get his wish. Setbacks notwithstanding, suppliers, agriculture officials and some clothing manufacturers are high on the specialty cotton with its brown, green and red hues. And they foresee its popularity increasing.

Farmers like it for a simple reason: colored cotton can net them two to three times what they can get for growing regular white cotton.

"I can see this cotton competing well," said C. Harvey Campbell Jr., president and chief executive of BC Cotton Inc., one of the country's two major suppliers of colored cotton.

"It's never going to be the major cotton in the United States, but its use can and is growing," Campbell said.

The budding industry has faced some obstacles in Texas, however.

Brent Wiseman, coordinator for the Texas Department of Agriculture's organic programs, said there are roughly 2,000 acres of colored cotton growing statewide this year, down from an average of 2,500 to 3,000 acres in previous years.

The actual amounts being grown are hard to estimate because Campbell and his competitor, Sally Fox's Natural Cotton Colors, are secretive about their production.

Campbell would only say BC Cotton is growing "substantially more than we had last year."

The Bakersfield, Calif.-based company is making a comeback after losing most of its first Texas crop of about 900 acres to foul weather last year.

"That's a major setback, but it didn't take us out of the picture," he said.

Meantime, Wickenberg, Ariz.-based Natural Cotton Colors has scaled back its Texas production, although some 5,000 acres are thriving in Arizona.

Ms. Fox, the original supplier of colored seed for farmers in Coysano, about 200 miles east of El Paso, told Braden and other growers that she wouldn't need cotton from their area this year because she didn't get any orders from Levi Strauss & Co.

"We don't just grow because we think someone's going to buy it," Ms. Fox said. "We grow it because somebody orders it."

She said she does expect Levi Strauss eventually to renew its contract with her.

"They're probably going to order next year," Ms. Fox said. "It's not like we're not ever going to grow (there) again. Some people have the idea we should be risk takers. If people want to take big risks that's their own thing."

Levi Strauss has been using the cotton in a limited clothing line called "Levi's Naturals" introduced in 1991.

The company recently took the "Naturals" clothing off the market after it failed to meet sales expectations, Levi Strauss spokesman Brad Williams said.

The admittedly pricey line was limited to one style of jeans, shorts and denim jackets, all in "coyote" brown.

"What we heard was that people wanted to see more fashionable colors, colors easier to coordinate," said Williams.

He said the company is looking at ways of improving the line. "We want to get it back to market because we do think there is a potential for items like this," Williams said, although he could offer no timeframe.

Danny Kraus, a spokesman for Esprit in San Francisco, agreed there is a market for products made of what he terms "environmentally responsible" colored cotton.

Esprit uses it in a research and development line targeted at environmentally conscious consumers. But the material has yet to make it into the company's primary clothing lines.

For now, colored cotton is doing best as part of the niche market for so-called environmentally friendly products.

The agriculture department's Wiseman estimated "a good dozen" companies are using not only colored cotton but also organically produced cotton - grown without synthetic chemicals or pesticides - to make products that appeal to environmentalists.

Wiseman anticipates more of the color production will go organic.

Yet overall, he doesn't anticipate actual acreage amounts in Texas to increase much beyond where they are now.

"I think we're going to see about 2,500 to 3,000 (acres) every year," he said. "It's going to be a consistent market and a consistent price."

Regardless, people farming rugged West Texas land like Elmer Braden will welcome that consistency.

Luster has faded from U.S. space program

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - It was 1969 and three men had just returned from the moon. They got parades and medals and a presidential dinner. Their burn-stained space capsule was hauled around to all 50 state capitals, escorted by highway patrolmen with the reverence and awe accorded to Old Glory herself. It was hot as the dickens but people lined up for hours just so they could say they had seen the thing.

It was history and triumph and the United States was No. 1. Oh, my, America was proud.

Fast-forward to 1993.

Apollo is history. Skylab is forgotten and the space shuttle has flown 57 times since 1981. Ho hum.

With the tragic exception of Challenger, all launches and landings look the same - up and down, up and down - and network television long ago quit carrying them live. Ask the man on the street to name a current astronaut and get a blank stare.

For nine years, there's been a boring debate in Washington: does the United States need a space station? Last month, in Congress, the no-sayers came within one vote of killing the project.

Where have all of NASA's friends gone?

In the 1960s, NASA could do no wrong. It had the whole country in its corner and the goal was simple: beat the Soviets.

Nobody's head rolled when the early rockets blew up or when John Glenn failed 10 times to get off the ground before becoming the first American to orbit Earth or when NASA spent $26 billion to get 12 men onto the moon.

"NASA was a creature of the Cold War," said Don Fuqua, the former chairman of the House space committee and now president of the Aerospace Industries Association. "When the Berlin Wall came down, there no longer was this enemy out there that we had to compete with."

The bleachers where the cheerleaders once sat now are filled with critics.

One of them, a congressman, told his colleagues recently that NASA had led them around by the nose for years and "bamboozled" Congress. Even NASA acknowledges it underestimated costs and overpromised results.

That was just one of the many confidence-eroding circumstances.

The Challenger disaster, which killed seven astronauts on the 25th shuttle flight, was "an accident rooted in history," according to investigators who concluded the agency had gotten sloppy.

Lowering cost essential to make space travel common

By EDUARDO MONTES

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) - Since the nation's space program began decades ago, humans have orbited the Earth, walked on the moon and dreamed of the day when spaceflights would become as common as airplane trips.

But a crucial obstacle must be overcome if travel is to take that next step. The problem is not so much the frigid void of outer space or gravity, but the prohibitive costs of launching spacecraft.

"I think like any new frontier that has been opened, it always waits on reasonably reliable and low-cost transportation," said Bill Gaubatz, program manager for McDonnell Douglas' single-stage-to-orbit (SSTO) rocket project. "Space is that kind of frontier waiting to be opened."

YOUR EYES POST-CATARACT OPTIONS

When the eye's natural lens becomes clouded and the cataract is removed, it must be replaced by another clearer lens to focus light onto the retina so the patient can see clearly. There are a number of options open to the patient; the doctor will usually recommend the one most appropriate for the particular individual.

- Glasses can be worn to take over the task of the missing lens. The glasses can enlarge the image, but side vision will be restricted.
- A contact lens can be worn in the affected eye to take over for the natural lens. Soft or extended-wear lenses are usually prescribed if they are effective for the patient's vision needs. The patient must be able to insert and remove the contact lenses.
- An intraocular lens can be implanted directly in the eye during surgery as a permanent replacement for the lens removed.

Most often eyeglasses will still be needed to provide additional correction for sharper vision, even if contacts or implants are used.

cut the cost in half. Goldin had the station redesigned and downsized for the umpteenth time and Clinton adopted a version he said would save $18 billion. The Zimmer forces still shuddered at the idea of spending that much.

"This space turkey," was a recurring phrase during the House debate. Allusions to Columbus failed to sway doubters. "Egyptians, Ottomans and Romans all were victims of their own foolishness," said Rep. Marge Roukema of New Jersey.

"The price tag is out of this world," said Rep. Carolyn B. Maloney of New York. "One hundred billion dollars for a Motel Six in space when we have an infant mortality rate in Harlem ... that rivals many third world countries."

Where have all of NASA's friends gone?

The NASA Alumni Association recently began talking about staging an event next year to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the moon landing. It dropped the idea for lack of interest.

"The pioneering days of space are simply over. Even a Mars landing doesn't have nearly the appeal that a moon landing had," says Walter Cronkite, an unabashed booster in the space program's early days when he covered flights for CBS.

"There has been a big change in tastes," says John Chancellor, who did the same for NBC. "I was in Moscow when (Soviet cosmonaut) Yuri Gagarin went around Earth."

"I saw a country of 200 million people have a nervous breakdown in front of our eyes. There was a huge amount of nationalism then, an us-and-them nationalism. Now there are no commies under our beds," Chancellor says.

A young congressman from New Jersey, Dick Zimmer, has led the fight against the space station.

"I consider myself a friend of NASA," he says. "I think I'm giving it tough love."

Where have all of NASA's friends gone?

As a candidate, Bill Clinton was a friend of the space station and as president he practiced tough love, ordering NASA back to the drawing board. With good reason.

Since 1984, when Ronald Reagan proposed it, the station's expected costs climbed from $8 billion to $31.3 billion by NASA's own estimate.

Even that, said the General Accounting Office, was low. The station would cost at least $40 billion to build and more than $100 billion to operate over its 30-year planned lifetime.

Clinton gave NASA administrator Daniel Goldin new marching orders:

station made it a point to say "I'm not against the nation's space program." More tough love.

On one House roll call, the station survived by a single vote, 216-215.

"They like space and they like the idea of space but are not willing to spend the billions that NASA wants to spend on it," says Howard Benedict, executive director of the Mercury Seven Foundation.

Will the excitement return? "I don't think it can. Going to the moon was a one-time thing. There will never again be an adventure like that, even going to Mars," Benedict says.

It is indisputable that when NASA is doing spectacular things, the interest revives. All the networks, with their millions of viewers, watched fascinated when three astronauts caught a huge satellite in their gloved hands last year after days of trying the capture it the way it had been rehearsed.

NASA's friends surely will be watching in December or January when the agency undertakes its most challenging mission in years, repair of the Hubble telescope.

It will involve the magic formula of derring-do and risk, acts of great courage and potential calamity.

"Hubble is a very bold mission," says administrator Goldin. "This is the type of thing Americans are about. They love it."

Mark Albrecht, who ran the Bush administration's National Space Council, thinks "nay-sayers and Luddites" are always present when it comes to spending money on space research. Their voices are muted, he says, when NASA is engaged in missions and projects that are captivating.

"When we stop talking and fiddling and start building the space station, with construction measured in a few years, it's got the potential of getting people excited," he says. "We post-World War II Americans have space wired in our primary fabric."

Perhaps it was a generational thing in the early days, says Brian Duff, formerly of NASA, who had the happy duty of escorting the Apollo 11 capsule around the country after its triumphal return.

In those days, NASA had powerful friends in the White House and elsewhere.

"John F. Kennedy invited John Glenn to Hyannis, where he went waterskiing with the president," Duff says. "Lyndon Johnson didn't let an astronaut come back from a space flight without giving him a medal."

Where have all of NASA's friends gone?

James Webb, who headed NASA then, liked to say that government is good at doing things people want done. People wanted to go to the moon and NASA did it for them.

"I don't think there's popular enthusiasm for a space station or going to Mars or the moon," says Duff. "My sense is that NASA is going to have to figure out what people want done."

Lyles, Andrews wed Saturday evening

Charity Breanne Lyles of Canyon and Kyle Lynn Andrews of Amarillo were united in marriage Saturday evening in First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Officiating for the ceremony was Glenn Shock, youth minister of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lyles of Pampa and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Andrews of Hereford.

Serving as maid of honor was Jill Morgan of Canyon and matron of honor was Jessica Lloyd of Plainview.

The bridegroom's brother, Jim Eric Andrews of Canyon, was best man.

Bridesmaids were Amy Andrews of Hereford, the groom's sister; April Lyles of Amarillo, the bride's sister-in-law; and Shelley Collum of Amarillo.

Groomsmen were Chad Maupin of Amarillo, Reagan Frye of Canyon, Todd Schroeder of Canyon and Ronnie Lyles II of Amarillo.

Guests were escorted by Glen Parker, Thad Hill and Jason Ewing, all of Hereford.

Flower girls were Alexandria Lyles, daughter of Ronnie and April Lyles of Amarillo, and Jennifer Alward, daughter of Mike and Cindy Alward, also of Amarillo.

Ring bearer was Matthew Sanders. Candles were lit by Jason Garren of Canyon and Scott Lucas of Plainview.

4-H Enrollment Night scheduled Tuesday

Deaf Smith County 4-H will sponsor 4-H Enrollment Night from 4-6 p.m. Tuesday in the banquet room of the Hereford Community Center. All youths interested in joining the local organization are invited to attend.

New Arrivals

John and Cynamin Bennett are the parents of a daughter, Tidra Dawn, born Aug. 17, 1993, in High Plains Baptist Hospital. She weighed 6 lbs. 13 oz.

Grandparents are Johnny and Janice Brownlow and great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith and Faye Brownlow.

ATLANTA (AP) - Berry Gordy and Michael Jackson were honored at the annual Jack the Rapper awards, named for the pioneering black disc jockey.

Gordy, the founder of Motown Records, received the "Original 13 Award" for his legendary work in the music industry. The "13" were a group of black DJs, including Jack "The Rapper" Gibson, instrumental in pushing early rock 'n' roll and soul.

Others honored included, DJ Jazzy Jeff and the Fresh Prince, Sade and Sinbad.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

4-H is an exciting youth program that helps young people learn how to do new and interesting things through learn-by-doing projects. Members of 4-H come from all types of backgrounds. 4-H is a non-profit educational program which is open to all youth regardless of socio-economic level, color, race, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Boys and girls, age 9-19, take part in 4-H by joining a 4-H club. Each club consists of boys and girls who participate in 4-H projects, run their own club, elect officers, and develop their own programs with the assistance of adult volunteer leaders. Improving leadership and citizenship are two of the greatest benefits of 4-H club membership. Above all, 4-H is educational. 4-H explores everything from rabbits to rockets, from canning to camping, from square dancing to veterinary science.

4-H projects help you learn better ways of doing things in the sciences, agriculture, home economics and recreation. There are over 70 projects from which to choose.

4-H involves the family in fun and work. Members select and conduct their projects with the approval and support of parents. Parents provide encouragement and much of the resources needed by the 4-H'er for project work. The understanding parent is often the force that helps 4-H members through their beginning years of 4-H and sets the stage for fulfilling and enriching experience as a senior 4-H member.

For more information about the 4-H organization, call Jay Johnson or Beverly Harder at the Deaf Smith County extension office, 364-3573.

Centers fighting disease

A new clinical trial of a drug which may help slow the progression of Parkinson's disease (PD) will begin at 18 major medical centers across the country this fall.

The clinical trial will last for 56 weeks and participants will be treated on an outpatient basis, without charge. Candidates for this trial are previously untreated patients--those not currently taking anti-Parkinson medication.

Parkinson's disease is a serious disorder of the nervous system that leads to difficulty with movement, including the initiation of movement.

For free brochures about PD and for the facts about the trial nearest you, write Parkinson's Disease Foundation at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, 650 W. 168th St., New York, N.Y. 10032.

Breast screenings scheduled Sept. 3

The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital Mobile Mammography Unit will be in Hereford from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at South Plains Health Care Providers, Inc., 603 E. Park Ave.

The screening program in Hereford is co-sponsored by Deaf Smith General Hospital. Exams are done by appointment only. For information or to schedule an appointment call 1-800-377-4673 or 1-359-4673.

The total cost of the screening is $70. This includes the x-ray, physical breast exam and the radiology fee for reading the mammogram. Funding has been provided by the Texas Department of Health to allow for free breast screenings for women who qualify.

The major goal of the clinic is the early detection of breast cancer. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a registered nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self-examination and a mammogram. Currently, the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer.

The guidelines are:

1. Learn and perform breast self-examination every month.
2. Have a physical examination every year.
3. Have a mammogram according to recommendations by age:

40--One baseline mammogram.
40-49--A mammogram every one to two years.
50 and over--Yearly mammograms.

Use water wisely

BY JAY WADE JOHNSON
Deaf Smith County
Extension Agent-AG

The last few weeks we have seen rains that have turned our yards green and shut off the sprinklers. But, as the days turn hot, many of us will turn those sprinklers back on. It's important that we water wisely.

Ideally, a lawn should be watered just as it begins to wilt. If your grass takes on a dull, dark appearance, and shows tracks when someone walks across it, then it is time to water. A common bermuda grass lawn should be able to go at least five days between waterings. The soil type also will factor in length between waterings.

It is important that when you water, the soil is set to a depth of four inches. One inch of water will wet most soil types to this depth. Too light or too frequent water applications can cause a shallow-rooted turf, making it more susceptible to heat and drought stress.

When applying the water, it is important to apply it as evenly as possible. To find out the distribution pattern of your sprinkler, set out three to five empty cans in a straight line going away from the sprinkler. Run the sprinkler for an hour then measure the amount of water in each can. Each can should roughly have the same amount of water.

Over watering can be just as damaging as under watering. "Wet wilt" occurs when plants receive too much water or when soils do not drain properly. Oxygen taken up by the plant roots is inhibited by a saturated soil.

If you have put a new yard in, you should have considered two factors. The first factor is the variety planted should have been bred specifically for your particular climate. The second factor is how stress tolerant is the variety you planted. Most common turf grasses cannot survive a typical Texas summer without water. Yet, there are more stress tolerant than others.

So now that we know how long to water for our specific turf and soil types, we think we know everything. Wrong. The time of day to water is just as important as how long. The best time to water is early in the morning. The wind is usually calmer and the temperature lower early in the day. This results in less water lost to evaporation. The worst time to water is late in the evening because the lawn tends to stay wet all night making it more susceptible to disease.

The water infiltration rate will vary according to soil types and conditions of the soil. Water penetrates sandy soil much faster than clay soil so water must be applied at a slower rate to prevent runoff from lawns on clay soil. If runoff does occur, stop the sprinkler. Allow water to soak into the soil for half an hour then start the sprinkler again.

The last thing to do to use water wisely is avoid fertilizers high in soluble nitrogen. Apply a slow soluble nitrogen which controls fast leaf growth while still providing a dark green color.

Some of these practices may be more time consuming in the beginning. However, in the end, we all have nice green lawns are using our water resources wisely.

The first design for a bicycle may have been created by Leonardo da Vinci or one of his pupils. The design shows a machine propelled by cranks and pedals.

Extension News

One of the most important dietary guidelines for older adults may be the one of drinking plenty of fluids daily. Drinking more water, soups, juices and other beverages will help to fulfill the required 6-8 glasses per day.

Fluids are essential to carry nutrients to all body cells and to help flush the kidneys removing waste products from the body. By drinking adequate amounts of fluids, the process of elimination can be eased and may even prevent the formation of kidney stones. Also of importance especially during the long, hot Texas summer is that it helps prevent dehydration and keeps your body functioning well.

Drinking eight glasses of water a day is difficult for some, but all the fluid you drink doesn't have to come from the tap. In fact, most of it doesn't. Here's how one survey breaks it down:

- 28 percent from drinking water.
- 24 percent from tea and coffee.
- 9 percent from vegetables.
- 9 percent from milk and dairy products.
- 8 percent from soft drinks.
- 7 percent from meat and eggs.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them.--Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three months ago, I hired the daughter of a good friend to work as a secretary in my office. Fortunately, I have two other secretaries who are very competent.

This girl can't type. She is a poor speller and knows nothing about punctuation. Her grammar is terrible, and she can't handle the phone. She was late three times last week and takes long lunch breaks.

The young lady's father thinks she is brilliant and tells me repeatedly how much she loves her job. He has done me many favors, and his friendship means a great deal. I don't know what to do. His daughter's presence in this office is creating problems. She is definitely not carrying her share of the load. What shall I do? Please respond in the paper. The dummy opens all the mail.--Boxed In

DEAR BOXED: You are paying a girl who can't spell, can't type, knows nothing about punctuation, uses poor grammar and can't handle the phone? And you call HER a dummy. Give the doll her walking papers, and the sooner the better. A friendship that hinges on keeping a relative in your employ isn't worth much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 67-year-old father was told by a fine dentist several months ago that he should have his few remaining teeth extracted and wear dentures. His mouth was in terrible shape. After much begging, pleading and cajoling, we finally persuaded Pop to get his teeth extracted and dentures put in.

Instead of making the situation better, it is worse. The new teeth cost a fortune. They look unnatural and don't fit, he refuses to wear them. The dentist adjusted them three times without charge and say she simply can't do any more.

Mom won't go any place with Pop unless he wears his dentures. He says the dentures kill him, so they stay home and fight. We don't know what to do. Please negotiate a peace settlement.--The War Escalating

DEAR ES: The dentures should be sent back to the lab (by your father's dentist), and the teeth should be realigned and made to look natural. If, after this is done, the teeth still don't fit, the dentist should take another impression and start all over again. This should be done without charge. Going without teeth can be bad for one's health. I hope you will follow through for Pop's sake.

DEAR ANN: Our 15-year-old daughter received a fur jacket from her 18-year-old boyfriend for her birthday. I don't know a great deal about fur, but I'm afraid it's mink. When my husband saw it, he screamed, "No daughter of mine is going to look like a kept woman. Give the thing back."

Our daughter is upstairs this minute, crying her eyes out. She loves the jacket and says that her boyfriend saved his money to buy it for her and that Dad is being unfair. What are your views? They've gone together (steady) for three months.--mama in the Middle]

DEAR MID: A 15-year-old girl needs a mink jacket like she needs a third row of teeth. She must have found this kid with a Geiger counter. Insist that she return the fur piece. Now.

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them.--Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am getting pretty fed up with all the knocks from people of your generation who seem to think our music is crazy. My grandparents are just about your age. They gave me some record albums that they thought were terrific in their day.

The lyrics made no sense at all. What is a "Flat-Foot Floogie with a Floy Floy?" Then there was one about "Three Little Fishies in an Iddy-biddy Pool." The craziest one was "Beat Me, Daddy, I Ate the Bar."

How about translating some of this gobbledegook? Or don't you know what I'm talking about?--Born in 1963

DEAR BORN: I know exactly what you're talking about. The name of that last number is "Beat Me Daddy, Eight to the Bar."

Don't ask me what it means. It didn't make a lot of sense then and makes even less sense now. Some of those lyrics of the '40s were wiggly, but every generation has its lunatic fringe. We had ours, and you have yours.

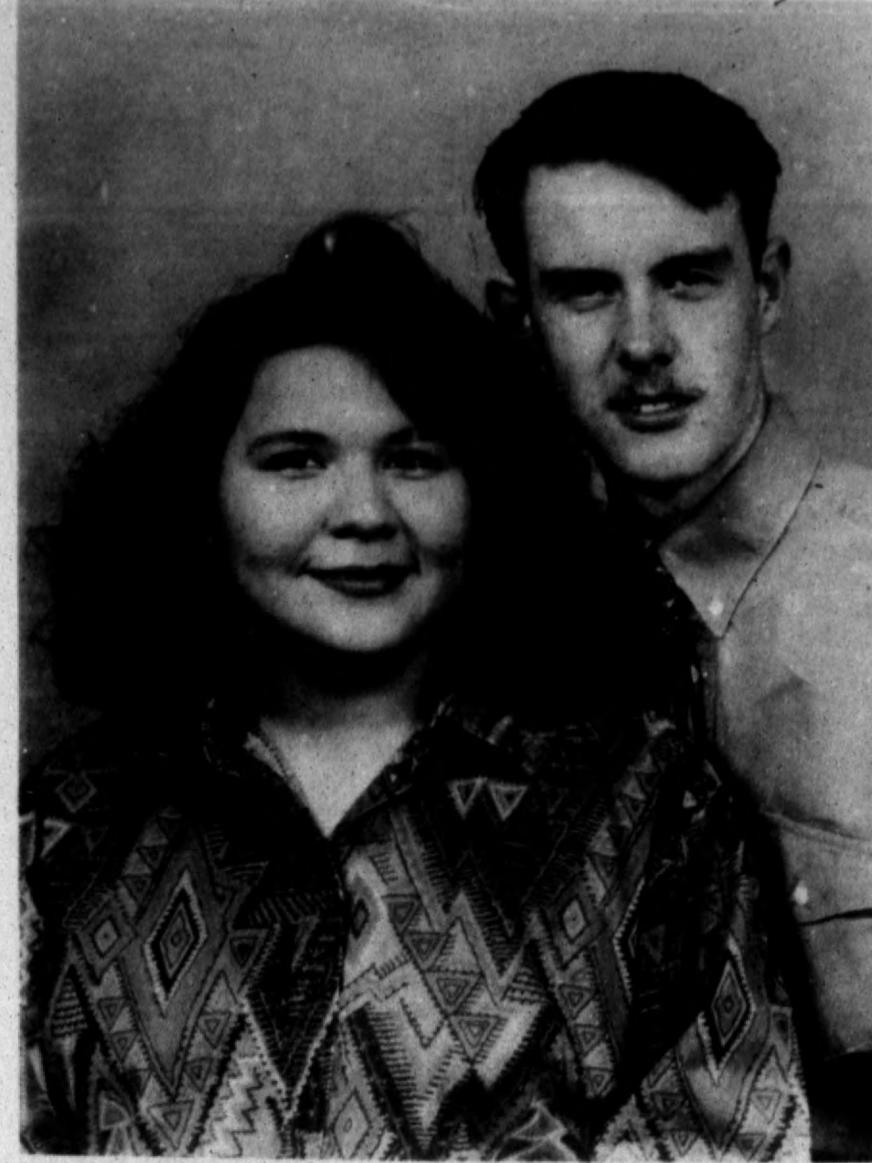

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote this poem to help me sweat out my finals. If it's too late for the spring nightmares, it might come in handy next fall:

TEST PRAYER

Now I lay me down to study,
I pray the Lord I won't go nutty.
If I should fail to learn this junk,
I pray the Lord I will not flunk.
But if I do, don't pity me at all,
Just lay my bones down in the study hall.
Tell my teacher I did my best,
Then pile my books upon my chest.
Now I lay me down to rest
And pray I'll pass tomorrow's test.
If I should die before I wake,
That's one less test I'll have to take.
-Sufferin' Student

DEAR SUFFERIN': Thank you for a light touch to a heavvvv problem.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

CYNTHIA RUIZ, JOHN RICKMAN

Wedding date set

Hereford residents, Cynthia Charlene Ruiz and John David Rickman, will wed Oct. 9 in the Fellowship of Believers.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Charlie and Lilia Ruiz of 411 Centre and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Johnny and Martha Rickman of 239 Ave. D.

Miss Ruiz is a 1993 Hereford High School graduate.

Rickman is a 1991 HHS graduate and is employed by Suit's Auto Supply.

NEW YORK (AP) - Rank does have its privileges. Gen. Colin Powell will get a reported $6.5 million for his autobiography.

The yet-to-be-titled work is planned for publication in 1995, Random House announced Tuesday. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff will begin work on the book after his retirement at the end of September, Random House said.

The New York Times, quoting unidentified rival publishers, reported today that Powell would be paid about $6.5 million - $1.5 million more than retired Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf reportedly got for his memoirs.

Powell's agent, Marvin Josephson, refused to give a figure but said, "There were many publishers interested."

Powell rose from the South Bronx to the highest ranks of the military.

Large-winged butterflies beat their wings about four times per second; houseflies, about 200 times per second; and some midges, about 1,000 times per second.

Wedding planned

Alma Gonzalez and Cesar Vazquez plan to wed Aug. 28 at San Jose Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Arturo and Maria Gonzalez of 117 Ave. F. and the prospective bride-

Between The Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Have you ever thought of the library as an exciting place? Just think how many murders are committed right here on the shelves. You can go to the moon, a thousand miles underground, into another dimension, or a zillion other places. You can be

Tom Jefferson, Genghis Khan, or Richard Nixon. Recently I found a new source of treasure at the library. It's called The Bottom Shelf.

Over the past few weeks I've been weeding out some of the books that have not been read in a while, and I've discovered some that I'm sure would be read if they were more accessible. You might consider looking there the next time you're looking for something you haven't seen before.

I've mentioned two of the displays for August in previous columns, so it's time to mention Victoria Perez. Victoria, ten, has an incredible collection of trolls in all shapes, sizes, and hair colors. Unfortunately I was not here the day she brought them in, and I have not been able to reach her by phone, so I don't have much information about her or her impressive collection.

By the way, if your child was in the Summer Reading Program and earned tiger stripes for reading, AND you have not picked up the tiger, you had better do so this week (if you want it). Next week, it's file 13.

If you are a do-it-yourself type of person, or if you just like to look through project books, do we have a deal for you. This week we have a number of new do-it-yourself books, covering projects from The Art of Flower Arranging to The Weekend Woodworker.

We were able to scrape up one biography this week. The Frontiersman is billed as "the real life and the many legends of Davy Crockett." If you prefer Davy as interpreted by John Wayne and Fess Parker, then you probably won't want to read this, but author Mark Derr probably gets as close to the truth as one can. This is not, I believe a "revised" history, but as the jacket notes state: "In this biography, he is rescued from the vicissitudes of popular and scholarly opinion and presented as a real person, a man of wit and intelligence."

There are several books on the fiction shelf that will claim attention, the most prominent of which is Vanished by Danielle Steel. There is already a waiting list, so be prepared for a wait. Set in the shadow of the Lindbergh kidnapping, Vanished is the story of Marielle and Malcolm Patterson, and their son Teddy, who is kidnapped shortly after Marielle runs into an old flame. It is an "intriguing tale of guilt, desire, and suspense," and is likely to be as popular as Steel's previous works.

Now that a new year (sort of) is getting under way, this is a good time to say thanks to a couple of businesses on whom this library greatly depends.

The Hereford Brand and KPN. Both are eager to inform the public of special programs and special people, and they make our job easier and more satisfying. Thanks, guys, for all your support.

Encourage your child

By encouraging your child to read regularly, you can help ensure a lifetime full of reading pleasure and academic success.

Here are some approaches you can try:

- Visit the local library. Ask the librarian to recommend a wide range of books, appropriate for your child's age. Vary the selection so it includes adventure, history, biography and other subjects.

- Link the subject matter to family excursions. After your child reads a book of dinosaurs, arrange an afternoon at the national history museum. A biography on a famous person could be tied to a trip to a related historic site.

- Encourage children to bring the book to life. Children can entertain family and friends by acting out a favorite scene from Huckleberry Finn, Anne of Green Gables or The Wind in the Willows.

- Make reading a family affair. Set time aside each week to read aloud to your child and ask her to read a favorite chapter to you.

- Set reading goals and rewards for performance. Post a chart on the refrigerator to track numbers and titles of books and award small prizes when certain benchmarks are reached.

- Suggest to your child that he become an author. By keeping a journal of books read and activities, a child can cross the threshold from reader to writer.

Former resident honored

CHAD SANDOVAL

Former Hereford High School student, Chad Sandoval, was recently honored as the first recipient of the American Maize-Products Dimmitt Inc. Kenneth Cleveland Memorial Scholarship. AMP-Dimmitt established the scholarship in memory of Cleveland who coached the Dimmitt High School basketball team for 23 years.

A 1993 graduate of Dimmitt High School, Sandoval graduated in the top 15 percent of his class and was a member of the National Honor Society. He will begin his work at West Texas A&M University in the fall as a pre-engineering major.

In order to help pay college expenses, Sandoval has worked the past several summers. This summer he is working with a custom harvesting crew.

American Maize-Products Dimmitt Inc., formerly American Fructose Company Dimmitt Inc., established its first endowed scholarship at WT in 1992. Royce Schulte, a junior agriculture major from Dimmitt, continues as the first recipient of that renewable scholarship.

"American Maize is one of the Panhandle's most outstanding corporate citizens," Betty Howell, WT A&M director of development, said. "We welcome them as a partner in providing an education for students from Dimmitt."

As part of the West Texas A&M University Foundation, this second AMP-Dimmitt endowment gift earned a 10 percent bonus from the Amarillo Area Foundation to be awarded for current scholarships.

NEW YORK (AP) - David Brenner won permanent custody of his 11-year-old son after a seven-year battle with the child's mother.

The comic was granted temporary custody of Cole Brenner in 1991 after Charisse Brody, Brenner's former girlfriend, refused to submit to a court-ordered drug test.

Education starts at home

Even while school is in session, your home is the chief learning center for your child--and what's learned at home can really enhance the learning experiences that go on in school, educators agree.

Here from Dr. Robert J. Kealey, executive director of the elementary Department of the National Catholic Education Association (NCEA), are some suggestions for valuable home learning experiences:

-At least once a week, take your children on a planned trip--to a museum, the zoo, nature trails, sporting events, the shopping mall.

-Each day a few minutes should be set aside for the family to do nothing but read. This will establish a daily habit as parents serve as healthy role models.

-Children should also be involved in a variety of activities that foster writing skills. These activities can be as simple as writing a shopping list to writing a letter to a classmate or a report about a favorite TV show or activity. Keeping a diary also fosters the writing habit.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

CLIMBING THE LADDER

(Last of Two Parts)

Last week in Part One of this column we discussed and shared several definitions. Though we may define success differently, most of us desire fulfillment from our careers and personal lives. We would rather have wealth than poverty and we prefer respect and admiration to dishonor and disgrace.

You must anchor your "ladder of success" on a firm foundation if you aspire to reach great heights. The best foundation has one leg of the ladder planted firmly on honesty and the other on integrity. Those who enjoy the fruit of their labors live their lives with honesty and integrity.

Alexander Pope said, "An honest man's the noblest work of God." Sam Houston said, "I would give no thought of what the world might say of me, if I could only transmit to posterity the reputation of an honest man." George Washington called honesty "the most enviable of all titles."

Success factors

• A sense of direction - A common factor found in the lives of successful people is knowledge of where you want to go. For example, consider a factory worker who desires to become a foreman. The worker should learn about the requirements of the foreman's position. What special knowledge or expertise is required? Do training programs, educational courses or books exist that might help him prepare? The worker should direct his efforts toward that goal.

Consider the example of a small business owner who wants to grow her business and hire additional employees. She might focus a portion of her time on developing a marketing plan to ensure growth and devote other effort to learning how to manage employees.

• Not afraid to work hard - Thomas Jefferson said, "I'm a great believer in luck, and I find the harder I work the more I have of it." I've known a good many successful men and women and they all receive pleasure from working hard. I'm not sure whether their happiness comes from their hard work or is the actual work itself.

Study the lives of successful people like Henry Ford, Helen Keller, Norman Vincent Peale, Marie Curie, Billy Graham, George Washington, Wilma Rudolph, and Abraham Lincoln. You will find that they not only loved their work, but they also loved to work.

• Perseverance - Another rung on the ladder of success is an unwavering commitment to do whatever it takes, for as long as it takes. Edison might never have perfected the light bulb had he given up after a hundred tries.

A young, aspiring artist submitted samples of his sketches to a prospective employer. He was encouraged to find another line of work. "You will never earn a living as a commercial artist," the employer stated. The young man didn't accept that advice. Instead he practiced, studied drawing and struggled onward. He developed his skills and eventually became successful. Today, Walt Disney's work is known around the world.

• Enthusiasm - Ralph Waldo Emerson said "Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm." W. Clement Stone calls enthusiasm, "the inspiration to action."

Those whose success we admire most are enthusiastic about their work, their dreams and life itself. Everyone will love you if you maintain an enthusiastic attitude in everything you do.

• Balance - Successful people have balance in their lives. Although they may have developed one talent or skill above all others, they did not neglect other important aspects.

Some of the most successful people I know are balancing their career, family, physical, spiritual and emotional needs effectively. By maintaining the balance they enjoy happiness and fulfillment.

A final personal thought on success. I may never achieve wealth, fame or other distinction in this life. Therefore, I approach every day as a short journey whose destination is satisfying in and of itself.

5 days per word	.59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classification display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid-word lines-those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the City Commission of the City of Hereford, Texas, will conduct a public hearing on Thursday, September 2nd, 1993, at 7:30 p.m. at the City Hall, 224 North Lee Street, Hereford, Texas 79045, and the purpose for the public hearing will be to consider a project which has been proposed by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District.

The Deaf Smith County Hospital
District has requested the city of Hereford, Texas, to convey to the Deaf Smith County Hospital
District the following described property, to-wit: Lot No. 1 in Block No. 10 of Whitehead
Addition to the Town of Hereford,
Deaf Smith County, Texas.

The property was originally conveyed to the City of Hereford, Texas, to be used as a park for the benefit of the public, and the property is located immediately to the East of the current Hospital facilities.

The Deaf Smith County Hospital
District intends to construct health care facilities on the property. The health care facilities will house the Hospital's physical therapy department, and the majority of the health care facilities will be leased to physicians who are members of the Medical and Dental Staff of the Hospital.

At the public hearing, the City Commission will consider and determine whether (1) there is no feasible and prudent alternative to the use or taking of such land; and (2) the project includes all reasonable planning to minimize harm to the land as a park, recreation area, scientific area,
wildlife refuge, or historic site, resulting from the use or taking.
This notice is given pursuant to Chapter 26 of the Texas Parks
And Wildlife Code.

DATED: August 2, 1993.

Robert D. Josserand,
Mayor
City of Hereford, Texas

City Commission meetings are available to all persons regardless of disability. If you require special assistance, please contact

Days of 'Living Single' may be numbered

Rap diva Queen Latifah (upper left) stars as a magazine publisher who lives with three roommates in "Living Single," a comedy series debuting Sunday on Fox. Regine Hunter (bottom), Erika Alexander (center) and Kim Fields also star.

BY JOHN CROOK

If imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, then Fox's new sitcom "Living Single" is fawning over the CBS hit "Designing Women." The half-hour comedy series premieres Sunday, Aug. 22, immediately following the season premiere of "Martin."

"Living Single" follows four upwardly mobile black women living and working in New York City. Khadijah James (rap artist Queen Latifah in her first series role) plays the founder and publisher of Flavor magazine, an urban publication with a female slant. Assisting her is Synclaire James (Kim Coles of "In Living Color"). Khadijah's airheaded cousin. They share a brownstone with Khadijah's childhood friend Regine Hunter (Kim Fields, Tootie from "The Facts of Life"), a nouveau-riche social climber and Maxine "Max" Shaw (Erika Alexander of "Going to Extremes"), a wisecracking divorce attorney.

The parallels to "Designing Women" are obvious, to say the least. Khadijah is a younger Julia Sugarbaker. Synclaire correlates to sweet but naive Charlene Frazier, Regine to Suzanne Sugarbaker and Max to Mary Jo Shively. It's a comparison the producers and cast try to downplay.

"We're ... not going to handle as many issues (as "Designing Women"). It won't be an issue-driven show at all," says Alexander. She tweaked the shrill and preachy final seasons of "Women" by adding, "No one will sit on the couch and spout a percentage or a statistic."

Also starring are T.C. Carson as ladies' man Kyle Barker and John Henton as geeky handyman Overton Wakefield Jones, who may be the perfect match for Synclaire. Neither character does anything to improve the image of black men. At the same time, the pilot episode relentlessly portrays men as conniving liars. At one point, the women wonder aloud about what life would be like without men, and Khadijah, who is frequently referred to as "mother," proclaims, "There'd be a lot of fat, happy women and no crime." Yet both cast and producers seemed taken aback by accusations of male-bashing.

"I don't think there's male-bashing, to be honest with you," says Latifah. "I think there's some realistic situations that we deal with, and men and women are going to argue. And women are going to get mad at men, but it's not done distastefully, and we as women who love men don't want to do that."

The plain fact is that the premiere episode of "Living Single" is loud and crude. Three of the four actresses are generally up to snuff, given the limitations of their characters as written. Fields, however, while absolutely beautiful, plays Regine so broadly that she looks as if she's taking part in a bad improvisation exercise. And the male characters pop up only in order for the female foursome to make human origami out of them.

"Living Single" has a good time slot, sandwiched in Fox's Sunday comedy lineup between the popular "Martin" and "Married With Children." If the show is going to survive, though, some massive retuning will be necessary. One big factor "Living Single" has going for it is Latifah, who shows herself to be a promising comedian of considerable skill. As series creator Yvette Denise Lee puts it, "Khadijah is ... the pot that all these strange other plants are growing from. It all comes back to her."

Hold that thought, Ms. Lee.

CBS has 'Tall Hopes' for black comedy

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - In recent seasons, CBS seemed content to let the other broadcast networks bring some measure of racial diversity to television.

Series with predominantly black casts could be found on ABC, Fox Broadcasting and, to a lesser extent, on NBC. But CBS went without.

Not by design, CBS President Howard Stringer reassures us. In attempting to explain his remarks took on a kind of "Where's Waldo?" quality - you knew there was an answer buried within, but it was tough to find.

"That would be pretty stupid, actually, if we did have such a policy," he said. To survive, a network has to try for mass appeal.

But in television's changing, expanding world, networks also must craft a distinctive identity, Stringer told a recent gathering of television critics. Then it got confusing.

"I think CBS needs to define itself directly as the network of Letterman and the network of Rather and the network of Connie Chung. ... A thoughtful - I don't want to use the word 'elitist,' because that's an ugly word - but I think a sort of quality, for want of a better word."

"And that's the way we define ourselves," he said. But, he added, "that's still a broad-based audience, and I would like our audience to include more minorities, and I would like our shows to include the same."

We know Stringer couldn't possibly be suggesting that it was harder for minority-oriented programs to meet CBS' standards of thoughtful quality.

That would be an ugly notion, with or without the word elitist attached.

And as if to prove Stringer's intentions are only honorable, along comes an engaging new CBS comedy, "Tall Hopes," about a working-class black family in Philadelphia.

It stars comedian George Wallace and Anna Maria Horsford ("Amen") as the parents of a 6-year-old girl and two teen-age boys, one a high school basketball star and the other a budding, Spike Lee-like filmmaker.

"Tall Hopes," debuting at 8:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday, Aug. 25, includes the same airy silliness that permeates so many sitcoms.

But it also offers a loving, intact family (rare for TV, whether black or white), kid actors not soaked in saccharine, and a willingness to tackle more than petty family problems.

In one scene, bright young Ernest (Kenny Blank), the aspiring director, tries to convince brother Chester (Terrence Dashon Howard) that he can't ignore his schoolwork even if he plans on NBA stardom.

"You know about Arthur Ashe, right?" Ernest says, referring to the late black tennis star. "He said it's hard enough being black in America. But without an education, it's close to impossible."

"For you to have a chance at an education and blow it, that's unforgivable," Ernest says passionately.

Rich Eustus, executive producer of the series with Michael Elias, says they took the series idea to CBS because word had it the network was in "the mood to buy some 8 o'clock shows" for the family viewing hour.

Network executives also were interested in a black show "that was not too silly," he said.

Give credit to CBS where it's due: When critics complain about how blacks are treated on television, they often condemn the jive-talking stereotypes found on so many sitcoms.

"After that, it fell into place because they liked the premise," Eustus said. Each member of the Harris clan is striving for a dream, sometimes stumbling as they try to keep sight of what's important.

'Snowy River' takes Hamner down under

BY JOHN CROOK

Earl Hamner Jr., creator of "The Waltons," has come out of self-imposed retirement to create a new series for The Family Channel. "Snowy River: The McGregor Saga," based on a famous ballad by A.B. "Banjo" Paterson, debuts Saturday, Aug. 28. Set in the Australian Alps during the late 1800s, the romantic action-adventure series includes characters from, but is not associated with, the "Man From Snowy River" feature films. Aussie actors Andrew Clarke and Guy Pearce star.

Kiefer Sutherland ("A Few Good Men") stars and makes his directorial debut in "Last Light," a brutal prison drama debuting Sunday, Aug. 22, on Showtime. Co-star Forest Whitaker's ("The Crying Game") first directorial gig (or HBO's "Strapped") was unveiled earlier in the month.

Mary McDonnell joins her "Passion Fish" co-star David Strathairn in Arthur Miller's "The American Clock," debuting Monday, Aug. 23, on TNT. It's adapted from Miller's play about his own family's experiences during the Great Depression.

Jon Brandeis and Caroline Rhea are the hosts of "Fools for Love," a half-hour series premiering Friday, Aug. 27, on VH-1. The show takes a sometimes sardonic look at dating and relationships as viewed through the eyes of contemporary comedians.

Bad Girls Dormitory ★ (1984) Carey Zuris, Teresa Farley. Inmates at a female reformatory contend with a sadistic headmistress and her vicious guards. 2:00. □ August 22 2am.

Batman ★★ (1966) Adam West, Burt Ward. Joker, Riddler, Penguin and Catwoman join forces to defeat Batman and Robin in this feature film based on the campy TV series. 2:00. □ August 22 1pm.

The Beastmaster ★★ (1982) Marc Singer, Tanya Roberts. In a mythic world of the past, a young man with an unusual command over animals searches for the villain who destroyed his village. 2:30. □ August 22 10:30pm.

Carradine must be contacted; 'Curves' returns to late night

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: Where may I write David Carradine? I need to contact him for very personal reasons. —K.L.R., Trail, British Columbia.

A: Write to him in care of Velasco-Cardinale & Associates, Raleigh Studios, 650 N. Bronson Ave., Suite 102, Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

Q: I'm very interested in obtaining some information on David Janssen of the TV series "The Fugitive." Could you please print something about him? I realize he has been gone for a long time, but it's hard to find anything on him now. —S. Burke, Truro, Nova Scotia.

A: Janssen starred as Dr. Richard Kimble in the popular ABC series "The Fugitive," a role now occupied by Harrison Ford in the motion picture release of the same name. Born in Naponee, Neb., in 1930 to a Miss America runner-up, he made his film debut in 1946's "Swamp Fire." He landed minor theatrical and television roles before achieving stardom as the title character in producer Dick Powell's "Richard Diamond, Private Detective." After a successful three-year run on the show, Janssen made guest appearances on "The Millionaire" and "Zane Grey Theater" before landing his most famous role in "The Fugitive." The series, which ran from 1963-1967, told the story of Kimble, a doctor wrongly accused of murder, as he fled the law and pursued the real killer, a mysterious one-armed man. Subsequent forays into feature films, including "Macho Callahan," "The Green Berets" and "Once Is Not Enough," failed to fully utilize his talent. Soon he was back on TV in "Harry-O," "Centennial" and television movies including "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead" (the pilot for "Harry-O"), "A Sensitive, Passionate Man," "High Ice" and his last role, "City in Fear." Janssen died suddenly of a heart attack on Oct. 28, 1980.

Q: What happened to Davey Allison was tragic. We enjoyed watching his racing career. Where can we write to send our condolences? —Ken and Nancy Humbert, Portland, Ore.

A: Allison, a fine Winston Cup driver who died from injuries sustained in a helicopter accident July 12 at the Taladega (Ala.) Superspeedway, will be missed by the racing world. Condolences may be sent to the Allison family at P.O. Box 28, Hueytown, Ala. 35023.

Q: Where can I write to Richard Dean Anderson? —Alisha Billings, Cornelius, Okla.

A: Mail to Anderson may be sent c/o Wolf-Kasteler, 1033 Gayley Ave., Suite 208, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

Q: I would like to see "Breezy," with William Holden, again. Is the movie available on video? —Pat Hilbert, Sacramento, Calif.

A: Unfortunately, this 1973 Clint Eastwood-directed romance is not currently available on video.

Q: Why did CBS take "Dangerous Curves" off the air and replace it with "Johnny Bago" on Wednesday nights? "Dangerous Curves" is the best "Crime Time After Prime Time Show." When will it come back on? —Barbara Mickens, Brooksville, Mass.

A: Never fear — "Johnny Bago" ended its eight-week summer run last week. CBS was merely implementing the same twice-a-week strategy it used to give "Northern Exposure" its strong foothold. "Dangerous Curves" will be reinstated to the "Crime Time After Prime Time" lineup this Wednesday, Aug. 25, though it will soon be bumped back one hour to make room for David Letterman's new show.

SOAP WORLD

Viewers curious about Australian soap

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Many of you have written in concerning the new Australian soap "Paradise Beach," airing in syndication. The program focuses on the lives of some young adults who spend a great deal of time at the beach.

"PB" is shot on Australia's Gold Coast, and beautiful scenery accompanies the beautiful bodies featured on the show. One of the show's stars, Matt Lattanzi, who plays Cooper Hart, calls it "mind candy."

While the show is targeted toward a younger audience, the readers who wrote to ask questions about the show were of all ages.

Quite a few readers requested more information on how the characters are related to one another. Here is a breakdown on the "PB" characters:

Tom Barsby (Robert Coleby) is the "daddy who owns everything and everybody." He is ruthless and doesn't care whom he steps on. His children are Cassie and Kirk.

Cassie Barsby (Kimberly Joseph) is a "poor little rich girl" who tries to fix the many problems her brother and father cause.

Kirk Barsby (Jon Bennett) is a winner of the Iron Man competition and brother to Cassie. He steps on anyone who gets in his way.

Sean Hayden (Ingo Rademacher) is trying to find his way in life. He often tries to protect his sister, Tori, from the harsh realities of the real world. Sean likes Cassie.

Tori Hayden (Megan Connolly) is Cassie's best friend and she has an on-and-off crush on Kirk.

Roy McDermott (John Holding) is Sean's suburban best friend. Things never seem to go his way.

Lisa Whitman (Tiffany Lamb) is a former flight attendant who is engaged to Tom. She had an affair with Cooper.

Cooper Hart (Lattanzi) is a photographer who has achieved his career goals but feels he missed the boat as far as romance is concerned.

Nick Barsby (Andrew McKaige) is a surfer dude who owns a store. He is feuding with Tom over Andrew's affair with Tom's ex-wife.

Miller's moving plays make memorable movies

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

TNT presents Arthur Miller's "The American Clock," a new installment in the cable network's acclaimed Screenworks series, on Monday, Aug. 23. The drama stars David Strathairn, Mary McDonnell, Loren Dean, Darren McGavin and many others in a moving memoir of the 1929 stock market crash and the toll the Depression exacted from most Americans.

All of Miller's plays, in one way or another, are about debts and obligations, the inevitability of consequence; it is no wonder that one of his most involving, disquieting plays is called, simply, "The Price."

That show, in fact, was the basis for a fine TV dramatization some years ago. Unfortunately, that program is not available on video, nor is the '60s version of Miller's "Death of a Salesman," starring Lee J. Cobb. Still, many of his works, either adapted or written directly for film or television, are available for home viewing.

1948's "All My Sons" features Ed-

Captain Courageous ½ (1937) Spencer Tracy, Freddie Bartholomew. A spoiled boy's life changes when he becomes friends with the Portuguese fisherman who rescued him at sea. Colorized. 2:30. ■ August 26 11am.

Cast the First Stone ½ (1969) Jill Eikenberry, Joe Spano. Fact-based story of a small-town schoolteacher, pregnant by rape, who fought to keep her job after officials accused her of immoral behavior. 2:00. ■ August 22 3pm.

A Casualty of War  (1990) Shelley Hack, David Threlfall. Frederick Forsyth's story about British intelligence efforts to break up an arms-smuggling deal between Libya and the Irish Republican Army. 2:00. ■ August 24 10am.

The Chase  (1966) Marlon Brando, Jane Fonda. A convict escapes and heads for his Texas home where his wife is having an affair with a wealthy man's son. 2:50. ■ August 26 11:40pm.

Cheerleaders' Wild Weekend * (1979) Kristine DeBell, Jason Williams. A busload of cheerleaders is hijacked by a quartet of former pro football players. 2:00. ■ August 26 12am.

Christine Cromwell: Things That Go Bump in the Night  (1989) Jaclyn Smith, Ralph Bellamy. Defense attorney Cromwell uncovers greed and adultery while investigating the plight of a woman accused of murdering her wealthy husband. 2:00. ■ August 25 9am.

Chrome Soldiers  (1992) Gary Busey, Ray Sharkey. Vietnam veterans reunite to avenge their friend's murder and liberate a small town from the grip of drug traffickers. (In Stereo) (CC) 2:00. ■ August 28 12pm.

City Across the River ½ (1949) Stephen McNally, Thelma Ritter. A Brooklyn youth's criminal tendencies take a fatal turn when he and a fellow gang member kill a teacher. 2:00. ■ August 26 8am; 27 3am.

Clarence, the Cross-Eyed Lion  (1965) Marshall Thompson, Betsy Drake. A lion that can't properly focus its eyes upon its prey is befriended by a young girl and her animal-behaviorist father. 2:00. ■ August 26 3pm.

TNT's 'America Clock' chronicles American watershed

Monday on TNT, Felton Perry (left) and David Strathairn star in Arthur Miller's "The American Clock." Based on the playwright's memories of the Depression, the drama also stars Mary McDonnell and Loren Dean.

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

"There's never been a society that didn't have a clock running on it, and you can't help wondering 'how long?'"

So muses a character in Arthur Miller's "The American Clock," a moving Screenworks presentation airing Monday, Aug. 23, on TNT.

There was, perhaps, a time in America when people didn't hear the ticking clock. In the 1920s, many Americans were prosperous. Those who weren't at least believed in the idea of prosperity, almost as a birthright.

Then came Oct. 29, 1929, and the crash of the stock market (Almost simultaneously, a devastating drought hit the Midwest, compounding problems in the heartland.). Suddenly, millions of Americans had no job, little or no money, no help and no hope. Until the start of World War II, men, women and even children in the U.S. experienced desperation and disillusionment as never before. Economic fortunes have, of course, fluctuated wildly since those dark days of the '30s, but the shock has never been equal to the onset of that watershed time known as the Great Depression.

In Miller's shrewdly assembled play, four elderly persons (ghosts?), played by Darren McGavin, John Randolph, Roberts Blossom and Estelle Parsons, muse on how the Depression affected their lives and families. Then we see their younger selves interacting with others in a nation changed overnight by profligate spending and short-sighted investment.

David Strathairn effectively plays Arthur Huntington, a guilty investor tortured by his own shrewdness in selling all his stocks before the crash while his friends lost fortunes. Mary McDonnell is moving as Rose, an aristocratic wife and mother unprepared for the hardships of leaving her spacious apartment and pawning her jewelry. Loren Dean excels as Rose's son, Lee, who turns to communism in trying to understand the crumbling world around him.

Directed by Bob Clark, "American Clock" also features fine performances from John Rubinstein, Kelly Preston, Tony Roberts and Yaphet Kotto.

Bowden still seeking first national title

BY MICHAEL SCOGIN

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden continues his quest for his first National Collegiate Athletic Association title when his Seminoles face the Kansas Jayhawks in the Kickoff Classic, the first game of the 1993 college football season, airing Saturday, Aug. 28, on ABC.

Despite a successful coaching record, Bowden has always been marked by his inability to win a national title. His teams have won eight consecutive bowl games, but continue to be college football's bridesmaids. They finished in the top four six-straight years, including an 11-1 record last year, good enough for yet another No. 2 ranking.

Bowden and Florida State supporters will be forever haunted by last season's loss to the Miami Hurricanes, who blew into Tallahassee and crushed Bowden's title hopes yet again. The Seminoles have lost seven of their last eight games to the Hurricanes, but none was as heartbreaking as last year's 19-16 gut-wrencher. Florida State fans watched in disbelief as the Seminoles blew a 16-7 fourth-quarter lead at home and then in agony as kicker Dan Mowrey missed a potential game-tying field goal with minutes left.

With a preseason No. 1 ranking in many polls, Bowden and Seminole fans can only hope it's their turn to catch the bouquet.

15% Trade-In Savings

B&S[®] offers one of the most generous trade-in allowances of any jeweler. For instance, if you originally purchased a ring at $1000, we'll apply that same $1000 toward a diamond ring costing at least 50% more ($1500 in this example). For a limited time (until 8/28/93), you can receive an additional 15% toward your diamond purchase. In this example, that would be $150!
