HOME TALENT PLAY SUCCESS

Big Crowd Greets Players At Opera House Monday Evening-Receipts Above $85

Those who had witnessed former appearances of the members of the cast which presented the play "That Awful Telegram," at the Opera House Monday evening were anticipating an entertainment of a high order, but the most sanguine of the initiated were unprepared for the splendid production so admirably given with so much of the professional's skill that one could scarce realize that the players were ami-

Perhaps there was inspiration in the large audience so evidently in sympathy with the performers-there may have been encouragement in the knowledge that nothing had been spared in the preparation for the event-the costumes, the staging, the setting in every way so fittinghelps, there was without question genuine histrionic ability such as is seldom equaled on the amateur stage. There was the smoothness, the grace, the naturalness that claimed and kept the audience from the beginning.

The assignment of the parts was most fortunate, each character being so admirably adapted to the role he assumed. In fact, it will be difficult hereafter to believe that the J. J. Lust Falls From Wagon and part of Messrs. Barnett and Dameron as the cheerful liars, so apparently past masters in the art of prevarication, was only assumed for the occasion. The consummate skill with which they glided out of one falsehood and into another would seem to be possible only from lifelong habit.

Mrs. Leslie Moreman was irresistable as the loving and dutiful wife, well meaning, but the victim of circumstances; her splendid stage presence, her well modulated voice and her graceful manner with just the right hint of conscious aristocracy, added to the distinctive becomingness of her costumes, was the seat in front of the fore wheel truly admirable.

Equally fascinating was Mrs. Paul Barnett as the dignified society matron fearful of having innocently injuring the lungs and other internal overstepped the bounds of propriety. Magnificently gowned and with the ease and grace of the born actress, she was altogether charming.

Mrs. Gibson was indeed a refreshing spectacie in her excellent porway it the character of the injured wife. Her splendid interpretation of this difficult role was enhanc- Lust then being conscious. It was ed by the singular appropriateness of her costume which was surely a triumph of the designer's art.

Miss Snyder was the personification of youthful beauty and as the sweet little sister, very much love, she completely captured her audience. Her naive simplicity of manner was delightful.

Messrs. Jones and Walker were each a whole show in himself. A character intended only to amuse and to make opportunity for the more Important characters, must be exceptionally strong to be acceptable and cwing to their excellent rendering of these difficult parts, no other part of the program was better received.

Mr. Patton, combining so excellently the dignity of the army officer with the ardent impetuosity of the young lover, was perfect and was a favorite with the audience.

The play was given for the benefit of the Cemetery Association, and thanks are certainly due the company for their splendid contribution to a worthy cause. The time and labor necessary to insure such a signal success as was Monday evening's entertainment, must have necessitated much self-sacrifice on the part of the promoters-a sacrifice for be grateful.

The receipts were about $85.

PROMINENT FARMER KILLED

Is Fatally Injured—Expires Before Reaching Home

On last Saturday evening J. J. Lust a promnient farmer of west of Dimmitt while on his way home faom Hereford fell from his wagon which was heavily loaded and was run over and fatally injured, dying before reaching home.

Mr. Lust had been in Hereford Saturday bringing in a load of hogs. For the return trip he loaded up with coal and posts and was sitting on a box on top of the load. The wagon either hit something or the team scared and Mr. Lust fell from and both the front and rear wheels passed over his body below the shoulders crushing the ribs and

The accident occured about seven in the evening and he was not found till about nine o'clock when Mr. Alex Lowery who had also been to Hereford came along and heard his growns. He stopped and tried to render assistance, werabout a mile further to Mr. Lowry's house and being unable to lift Mr. Lust in the wagon hastened on to his home and phoned for help and for doctors both at Hereford and Dimmitt and then with some of the neighbors returned to Mr. Lust.

He was taken to Mr. Lowrys home and as they were unloading him to take him into the house he expired before medical aid reached tha place. His side and ribs were badly crushed where the heavy wheels went over him.

The funeral was held on Tuesday and the remains laid to rest in the Dimmitt cemetary. Mr. Lust was about fifty two year old and had lived in that community for many years and was an upright and highlp respected citizen.

A Hole In The Rabbit Scalp Law Editor of The Brand.

Dear Sir :- There is a bit of discussion as to the new scalp law legislature. Some of our farmers thought the law already effective and have been bringing in jack rabbit scalps to secure the bounty but, of course, were disappointed.

Whether such a law is good or not, we have our doubts. The present law carries with it an appropriation of $100.000 which at 5 cents per head for jack rabbits would pay for 2 million, if none of the money was used to pay for wolf and wild catscalps. After this money has been spent, there will still be enough rabbits left in all of the counties to produce as many more by the time the next regular session meets, and this $100.000 then would have been wasted.

But the law itself. How many farmers and county commissioners. have read the law? It provides for the payment of $5 for wolf scalps, must make oath that he and no better to the body of the tree. other person killed said animals, ear disfigured in the least, cut, slit, those following. or any defect that may have been Since the various species of borers absolutely perfect.

ects, cuts, slits, or any defect kept covered. fcaused in the killing. This law should make expert marksmen out of the boys for they must not shoot the rabbits in the head or likely some of the shot will puncture the ears and thus puncture the 5 cent bounty on them. This might not be loop in the flaw for criminals to escape but it is certainly a "hole" thru which the bounty may escape.

If the legislature had passed a law givitg a bounty on the scalps of laxes for a better cause This political pabulum offered by the legislature to the farmers of the Plains is just about the thinnest soup served in many a day; but perhaps he more substantial will be brought n later on as the political pie servers get detter acquainted with he guests.

Yours for mor scalps. A Farmer.

Panàma-Pacific International Exposition

Marvelously Fulfills Every Pledge and Promise Made by San Francisco

ITH an attendance for the first week greater than the combined attendance for the same, period of the world's expositions at Chicago and St. Louis, the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco has started on a career that the most conservative judgments predict will break all records for exposition success.

The exposition opened on February 20, 100 per cent complete structurally, and opened to an attendance of one quarter of a million people. From every state of the United States and from the nations of the world came critical visitors to pass on the merits of the celebration that had been so widely heralded. They found nothing to criticize. Every claim made by San Francisco and the exposition was fulfilled. It is safe to say that not a single visitor went away disappointed. The result has been that the advertisement by word of mouth, and by letters home and to friends—the most powerful form of advertisement—has been given the exposition. In consequence the transportation companies report a constantly increasing booking for travel to San Francisco both by land and water.

Exceptionally low rates have been given by the transportation companies from all points within the United States to San Francisco, offering many people an opportunity that could not otherwise be taken, of combining a pleasure journey to the exposition with a sightseeing tour through California and the West.

A feature of the exposition that has called for universal comment is the "action" that marks exhibits, every exhibit capable of operation by steam or electricity being shown in motion. A flood of inquiries concerning rates and hotel accommodations has been received by the information bureau of the exposition since the news of its successful opening was flashed around the world, all such inquiries being given prompt attention. San Francisco and California are fulfilling their host duties and living up to the reputation the West has always had for hospitable treatment for the stranger.

HANDSOME SIXTY-PAGE BOOK ON THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION SENT FREE OF CHARGE TO ANY ADDRESS.

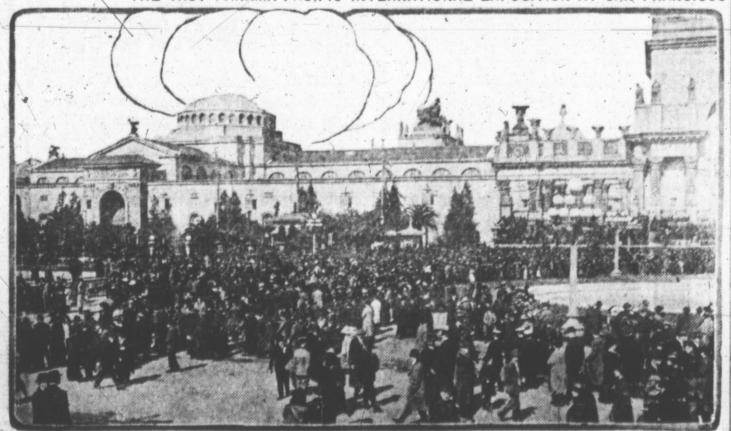

Those who are interested in this great exposition may obtain free of charge a handsomely illustrated book of sixty pages, reproducing the exhibit palaces in their natural colors and giving essential data about the exposition, San Francisco, California and the Panama canal. To obtain this book send a letter to the Manager, Bureau of Publication, Panama-Pacific International Exposition Grounds, San Francisco, Calif.

THE FOUNTAIN AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

The labor that went into the building of the Panama canal is symbolized in the Fountain of Energy, by A. Stirling Calder. This heroic sculpture stands in the center lagoon of the three lagoons of the South Gardens and faces the main entrance gates. The waters were first released on opening day, February 20, coincidently with the opening of the portals of the exhibit palaces and by the same means: the electric spark transmitt d across the continent when President Woodrow Wilson opened the great exposition at San Francisco by wireless.

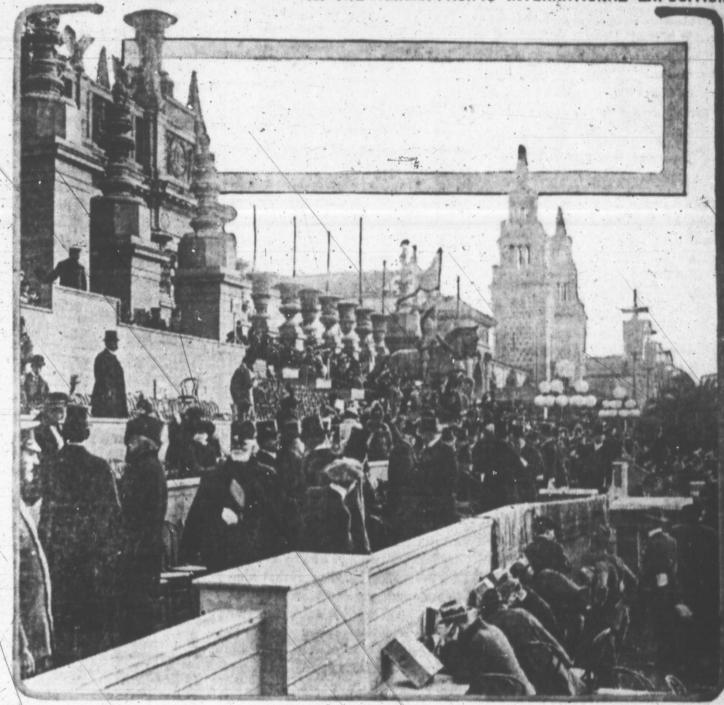

WHEN A QUARTER OF A MILLION OF PEOPLE INAUGURATED THE VAST PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO

Transportation reports show that every state in the United States and most of the nations of the world were represented in the great throng of 250,000 people who inaugurated the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco on February 20. This picture, showing the mighty South gardens, gives a glimpse of a small fraction of the opening day throng. In the first five days of its progress the exposition had an attendance larger than the combined totals of the Chicago and St. Louis expositions and the ratio continues in a degree to justify predictions of the most spectacular success for the expecition.

DURING A LULL IN THE OPENING DAY CEREMONIES

AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

The Panama-Pacific International exposition was opened by a wireless spark, dispatched by President Woodrow Wilson at Washington, and caught on the tendrils of a wireless aerial on the lofty Tower of Jewels at the exposition Instantly the power was released in the mighty Palace of Machinery and the portals of the exhibit palaces opened. The scene is on the grand stand after the ceremonies had ended, Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. n of California, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, President C exposition and a notable group of visiting dignitaries being seen in animated discussion of the epochal event. In the prevs box the correspondents are seen flashing to the world the news that the exposition had opened.

We just naturally would'nt have a disposition that kept us from wanting to go-a-fishin.

Dont ask us, "whose new car is that?" We dont know. So bloomin' many of 'em we can't keep count.

Thanks, Jess, maybe now we can pick up a paper without reading of a new "white hope." That got so it jarred on our nerves.

Many Hereford property owners are improving their property by the planting of shade and ornamental trees along the outside property line.

The question of teaching the Bible in our public schools does not concern us one half so much as to our homes.

Ever try optimism for that "all in" and "run down at the heels" feeling? It certainly is one more remedy. Lots like advertising tho, ence started you have to keep everlastingly at it to do any good.

You can't buy it, yet every human can possess it, because God gives it away. Maybe you think you don't want it but once in your possession a world of money could not tempt you to part with it-that priceless gem, Cheerfulness.

If you have a rough grouchy disposition and your stomach is out of fix and you feel compelled to vent your grouch on someone, reverse the usual order and keep your smiles for the home circle and vent your spleen on the public. They wont care much nor worry long about you. Smile at home.

Who loves Howers loves God. That's true as Gospel. Man can not separate the two and the Almighty will not. Hereford ladies are believers in making their yards veritable flower gardens each summer, and you will also note that Hereford's church services and Sunday Schoole are invariably "full to overflowing."

Cheerfulness! Plant it, cultivate it and dispense it! That's our idea of a job for every man, woman and child in the universe. Funny thing about it, too-the more you tend the crop the better you'll like it and more anxious you'll be to increase acreage and yield tomorrow. It is a good deal like "Topsy," it "was never born, it just growed."

We suppose its just that touch of jealoasy "that makes the whole world kin," that prompts each residence owner of Hereford to improve his home and surroundings just as fast as his neighbor does "hisn" that's the reason, perhaps, that Hereford boasts of more shade trees along her streets than most towns her size in the Panhandle. Glory be!

Most lives worth while have the pathway pretty evenly sprinkled with the bitter and the sweet. He is the real optimist who can step softly over the rough places and be ever ready to smile at the flowers that border the way and the sunshine that falls along the way gilding both hill and dale. In every pot of ointment there is a lurking microbe. Learn to swat the microbe and enjoy

Card of Thanks

To those who rendered such loving care and assistance during the illness and death of our loving wife, mother and sister, we wish to say that we know not how to express oor appreciation of the many kind and whether or not it is being taught in loving deeds done. There were those that knew her and loved her that came; those who said, "O how many times she has come to us in need." Others yet who never knew her until after her illness, that come to her rendering every help in their power. The many kind remembrances she received coming from the coast to far off Minnesota, from the eastern part of the State to California, many of them with flowers. To one and all we can only say Thank You, and commend you to our Heavenly Father who puts it into the mind and heart of people to do as you have done.

Public School Notes

First Grade

Lonye Witherspoon had the misfortune last Sunday to get her arm, broken. We are sorry to have her absent from school.

Third Grade

Those pupils named below have been perfecet two weeks in spelling. Frances Fullwood, Jesse Winterrowd, Mable Renfro, Oscar Wommack, and Edna Schultz. And these were perfect the past week :

Mary McDonald, Thelma Tynes, Johnnie Biggs, Minnie Fallwell, and Ruby Moreman.

There were ten boys absent Thursday, and only five girls.

Fourth Grade

We of the fourth grade are pleased with our new book shelf which Mr. Casteel made and put up for us.

Mrs. LeGrand very kindly presented the grammer grade with a acres section 59, block K-3, consid- set of Stoddard Lectures some months ago so we felt that they merited a shelf.

> Lulu Orr is absent this week with appendicites.

Fifth Grade

Having finished the study of Asia we invited Miss Edwards, a returned missionary from Korea, to give us climate etc of that country

Miss Edwards talked to the Fifth and Sixth grades and the children were so interested that we are sure that they know much more about Korea than they did before hearing her talk.

Commodore Wheeler is back in school after working several days on the farm.

Roy Thompson and Raymond Mooney have quit school on account of having to work on the ranch.

As the first day of May comes on Saturday the pupils of this grade are looking foward to a "May Day

Sixth Grade

Ruth Lee is again at her post in school after several weeks absence on account of sickness.

We celebrated our third month of no tardies by being dismissed at afternoon recess last Friday. Much time is saved in school by every one being on time.

The Domestic Science department sent their work to Austin this week, of course we hope to get affiliation on our work.

The Domestic Art girls are very busy making a set of table linen for the school.

Boring Thin Glass.

Everybody who has tried understands how difficult it is to bore a hole in a strip of thin glass. The following method is said to be very successful: Press a cake of wet clay upon the glass and then make a hole through the clay of the desired size, laying bare the glass at the bottom of the hole. Then pour melted lead into the hole, and it will drop through the glass, making rough aperture. The explanation is that the sudden application of heat cracks the glass in a circle corresponding in size with the hole in the clay.-New York Trib dora is left an orphan at an early Her father is killed in a gold mine Zudora and the fortune from the mine, which grows to be worth $20,000,000, are left in the guardianship of Frank Keene, Zudora's mother's brother, who has set himself up as a Hindu mystic and is known as Hassam All. He decides that must die before she can have a chance to come into possession of her money, so that it may be left to him, the ment of kin. Hassam Ali sees an obstacle to his scheme in the person of John Storm, a young lawyer, for whom Zuhas taken a fancy, and he commands the girl to put the man out of her Zudora insists that if she cannot magry Storm she will marry no one.

renounce him. Zudora unravels a mystery and wins her first case—a case in which John Storm is saved from being convicted of a murder stigated by Hassam Ali himself. Zudora and Hassam All visit Nabok Shan's house, where sleep overcomes every one whenever Nabok attempts to marry a princess. Storm, seeking Zudora, is made a prisoner. Zudora foils Nabok Shan, restores the princess to her original lover and saves Storm from death.

A maker of diamonds tells Hassam Ali his secret. Storm informs Zudora that his life is being attempted frequently. Storm suspects Hassam Ali. Storm is arrested for stealing the diamond maker's gems, but Zudora discovers the real thieves-a pair of mice.

The negro help employed on Storm's father's farm are fleeing because a great skeleton hand appears at night upon a hill near by. Storm is baffled in his investigation, but Zudora learns that her uncle has employed Vimmy Bolton, a half witted man, thus to annoy Storm's parents. Zudora finds Bolton operating a big magic lantern and is attacked by Storm appears and saves her.

Hassam Ali asks Zudora to find a gem lost by two mysterious old men. Zudora gets a photograph of the gem and it burns in her hand. An old house is mined by Hassam All and the old men. Storm and Zudora are lured there and narrowly escape destruction when the house blows up.

John McWinter, endeavoring to trap and kill George Smith, is killed himself, and Smith is charged with murder. Hassam All conspires to have John Storm meet the same fate as McWinter, and he and Storm are overcome by powerful fumes. Zudora saves them, proves that McWin-ter's own dog trapped and killed him and saves Smith from a band of lynchers.

An inventor blows up a submarine with a powerful heat ray which he sends ough water. Hassam All sends Zudora to a photographer directly beneath the inventor's laboratory and orders the inventor to kill her. Zudora gets a warning, you. I've warned those two enough and her life is saved. The heat ray madestroyed, and the photographer, after a quarrel with Hassam All, is found dead in the river.

Wu Chang prevents Zudora's elopement with John Storm by hypnotizing her, and he and Hassam All sttempt to smuggle her out of the country. This plot is frustrated by Storm. Baird, Hassam All's double, falls in love with Zudora. Baird and Mme. Du Val kidnap Zudora and the Van Wick child. Storm rescues them, and Hassam

With Hassam Ali dead Zudora is released of her pledge to solve twenty cases. She confronts, however, the greatest mystery of all, which is the mystery of her own life, and the ambition to secure the vast fortune of $20,000,000 left to her. This great photo serial is being shown in the leading moving picture theaters by the Thanhouser Film Corporation. Among those participating are Marguerite Snow, Mary Elizabeth Forbes, James Cruze, in the new role of reporter-hero, Sidney Bracey and Frank Farrington. On looking through her uncle's papers Zudora finds that her father left her an interest in a diamond mine, and Storm and Baird both lend assistance in trying to regain for her possession of this es tate which is being appropriated by rogues under the leadership of Mme. Du They plan to frighten that she will run away. Falling, they kidnap Zubera and Howard, the mine superintendent, and put them in a private insane asylum. Howard dies, but Zudora, nearly famished, is rescued by Storm and his, friends. Detective Hunt and Baird find the Zudora gold mine. Mrs. Copeland's jewels are stolen, but recovered through the cleverness of Hun and Baird. They investigate the mysteries of Mme. Du Val's house. A map of a mine is stolen from Zudora, who later is kidnaped and held prisoner. Storm rescues her, but the thieves escape with the diamonds.

And they'd have got house, while Bruce and Gyp ran away with it completely but for the toward the road. Through his fieldstumbling on to that code message. plasses Hunt watched them, carefully in his eagerness he did not notice that only two men came into focus. The minute the boat made a landing he jumped out and began running toward the spot where he had seen the two men last. Baird occupied himself with the painter. The engineer knelt before his cylinders and hunted for a possible bit of damage. The man lke thought that he might just as well dispose of Baird. In that event the detective would be between two fires, and they might be able to put him out of his misery. Baird was in the act of tying the painter when Ike struck him a violent but fortunately a glancing blow on the head. Baird stumbled and fell, and Ike drew his knife with murderous intentions. But Baird turned in time, caught the wrist and fought savagely for all that his head was ringing like discordant chimes. He succeeded in making his assailant drop the knife; then he stepped back and began to spar. As Ike stooped to recover the knife Baird caught him fairly on the chin. Baird did not wait to learn whether the man was senseless or not. He took to his heels, confident that Hunt would presently have urgent need of him.

Hunt was a famous runner, and he reached the house on the hill just as Bruce and Gyp entered it.

The two smugglers went directly to the kitchen. Bruce dropped the water bottle on the deal table, unscrewed the top and dumped out the diamonds. Hunt saw this obliquely through the kitchen window. He now wished he'd brought Baird along with him.

And Baird had lost his way. Neither Hunt nor the men he was pursuing were anywhere in sight. Baird swore and began rubbing the side of his head, which ached painfully. Where the deuce had Hunt gone?

Meantime Ike recovered. Instead of attempting to follow Baird he staggered off to the first telephone he could and and called Radcliffe, who, he was sure, had arrived at Mme. Du Val's by this time. Radcliffe had his hands full of documents, most of them rightfully belonging to Zudora, when the telephone rang.

"It's Ike." he said to madame. "He says he needs us. Here, put those papers in your hand bag. We'll go right to Storm's office first. You'll know what to say." Storm, having left Zudora safely at home with Mrs. Ramsey, had returned to his office. He was vastly surprised to see Mme. Du Val enter, but he managed to form his features into graciousness. He was curious to learn what the woman wanted. He dismissed his typist, who, making a pretense of leaving the room, stole behind a screen.

She Wanted Advice About Some Pa-

Storm readily discovered her identity. What did the woman want?

She wanted advice about some papers. When she brought them out of her hand bag Storm felt a flurry of excitement. But they were only some insurance papers regarding madame's property. Storm managed to read them over carefully. He returned them with the remark that they were perfectly in good order. He named a nominal fee for his investigation. It was paid and Mme. Du Val left the office. "Well, hang me, if that isn't a funny game. What the dickens can she want? Or was she just getting the lay of the office for some future work?"

As he could not solve the enigma, he went back to his own work. Zudora would be along presently.

On going out of the office madame had set the latch so that it would close but not lock the door. When she saw Zudora coming in at the entrance of the building she hid herself and followed the girl back upstairs. The typist was leaving.

Zudora ran into the office, threw her rms around John's reck and hugged

"And to think this morning I was a prisoner, wanting to die and be free of it all. Oh, I've gone through so much that I never want to hear the word adventure again."

"And I don't blame you." Mme. Du Val stole in noiselessly and tiptoed behind the screen,

"Do you believe that Mme. Du Val was really made a prisoner too?" "Temporarily, yes. But it all looks a bit fishy to me. Here's the postman. Let's see what he brings." He opened up the letters one by one. "Why, here's a letter from that man Marcus Villiers, who is managing your mines in Montana." "I failed in my last effort to deliver to you some valuable papers concerning your late father's estate. I am now sending them by express and trust they | time.

noting the direction of their flight. But | will reach you safely.' I hope to heaven these papers will show as some light. We need it, girl."

"Oh, let's bother no more about money. It's only brought misfortune. I'd have been married to you long ago but for a stupid pride. John. I'll marry you inside of three months, no matter what happens."

"Will you, honestly?" "Honest Injun!"

"Well, nothing less than a tiptop dinner tonight will match up a promise like that. I can take care of you, girl, and we'll have our honeymoon in the West Indies somewhere. Now, let's that in Quo Vadis. 'Member? That get out of this stuffy old office. Hoop-la! Come on!" When they were gone Mme. Du Val slipped out from behind the screen and stood listening intently. When she was assured that there was no possible chance of the two lovers returning she walked over to Storm's desk and futilely tried to open some of the drawers. So they were beginning to suspect her? She smiled. They could not find the least proof in the world. And, more than this, in the end they would surely be beaten in trying to recover the property. But in some manner she must get hold of those papers the man Villiers was sending from Montana.

definite. But we saw them put the diamonds back into the water bottle. Then they drew out of the range of his vision. What now? he wondered.

Bruce opened up a plank in the floor and hid the bag. Then he and Gyp left the kitchen. Hunt came down from the porch, waited until Bruce and Gyp left the house, then crawled in at the window. He saw the loose plank and straightway investigated. He chuckled. Here were the goods, all right. He was surely a lucky man, and Bruce was becoming a careless one. A fine day's work: Zudora freed and the smuggled diamonds under his vest. As he came out of the house he espled Baird hotfooting it up the path.

"Hello! Where did you come from?" cried Hunt.

"Got lost. Saw Bruce and his man leaving and concluded that they had done for you." answered Baird, rather breathlessly.

"Not so you'd notice it. Jim, I've got the diamonds." "By George, that's great work! Sup-urgent business in town:

The Poet's Ideal and a Sad Case of Hopeless Love. Petrarch was one of the unfortunate poet lovers. One day in the Church of St. Clair, in Avignon, he met Mme. de Sade, better known as "Laura," a delightful blond, whose soft, dark eyes contrasted strangely, yet coquettishly. with the pale golden hair that rippled in ringlets over her white forehead. This dainty dame was of noble birth. enjoyed a high social standing and was considered the belle of the entire sunny south of those days.

The Italian poet fell helplessly and hopelessly in love with the French beauty. He wrote in her honor hundreds of sonnets full of the choicest tenderness, in which he described his, sweetheart's mental and physical charms, and vowed that never lived a fairer woman than she. Yet she was obdurate to his suit, though she confessed herself pleased with his society. She was by nature fond of admiration. and she felt proud of the fact that she had won the devotion of one of the greatest, poets of the age. Wherever she promenaded, whether in the parks or streets, she heard the gossips murmur as she passed, "There goes the beloved of Petrarch."

Laura was platonically fond of her poet, but no amount of poetry could induce her to bestow a warmer affection upon him. She died of the plague in 1348. Her death was a rude shock to Petrarch, who still loved her and mourned her loss for the remaining twenty-six years of his life.-Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Hopeless Case.

Jake-Gymp, who was notoriously bad pay, took advantage of a new storekeeper in the town and managed to get a dollar's worth of horse feed on credit. Finally, when the money was not forthcoming, the storekeeper set out to collect.

"I came to see you about that dollar for horse feed," said he, approaching Jake in a field some distance from the house. "Do you think you can pay me today?"

"How's that?" returned Jake, putting a hand to his ear and speaking in a highly pitched voice. "What did ye say? "I said," returned the storekeeper.

The other day a person dropped down in an apoplectic fit immediately in front of a police station and was carried inside. A moment after a woman forced her way in through the crowd gathered around the door, exclaiming:

"My husband! My poor busband! Clear the way and let in the air!"

She then busied herself by taking off the man's cravat and performing other little offices until a surgeon arrived, when the patient gradually recovered his senses. On this the sergeant in charge observed that it was a happy relief for his distressed wife as well as for himself.

"My wife!" exclaimed the man. Why, I am a bachelor!"

On seeking for the woman it was found that she had disappeared and with her the watch and purse of the patient, which she had adroitly abstracted under the very eyes of the Tailed Englishmen. Natives of southern Arabia believed that Christians were hats only to hide their horns. Formerly the continent of Europe clung to the conviction that the Englishman's netber garments concealed a tail. So late as the reign of Edward VI., according to Bale, "an Englishman cannot travayle in another land by way of marchandyse or any other honest occupyinge, but it is most contumeliously thrown into his tethe that all Englishmen have talls." The belief probably arose from the legend of the "Kentish Longtails." The people of either Canterbury or Strood (for the legend varies) mocked at Becket as he rode by on an ass and cut off the ass' tail. Wherefore they and their descendants were cursed with talls thenceforth. At least so said jesters of other countries, and the slander eventually reacted upon Eng-

Japanese Tapestry.

For centuries Japanese weavers in slik have been famed for their exquisite tapestry work, or tsuzurenishiki, as it is known in the native tongue. Nowhere are more artistic productions wrought, and along certain lines the Japanese workman, with his tiny handloom, creates a tapestry which no other race has so far equaled. How long Japan has been cultivating the art of weaving pictures from silk and gold in this manner is not accurately known. but some of the national specimens of silk brocade are very old, and it is altogether likely that the art has been tnown since Japan's first acquaintance with China in the very remote past.

SAILORS OF ELIZABETHAN AGE Memorial to Famous British Mariners is Far Off the Tourist Track. Bir John Benn has persuaded the London county council to commemorate the Elizabethan sailors at Old Ratcliffe Cross, says the Manchester Guardian. The scheme hung fire for a time because the antiquaries could not fix the site of the cross, which has vanished as utterly as the name and reputation of the Ratcliffe highway near by. The place chosen is a little east of Rotherhithe tunnel, where a grimy wharf has preserved the name of the cross where so many of the stout-hearted explorers set sail for the northern seas.

Perhaps when Shadwell gets its riverside park there will be a few bold exploring sightseers from the West to look upon the memorial which is otherwise far from the tourist track as any spot in London. It shows square-ended Tudor ships under full sail above the names of Sir John Willoughby, Sir Martin Frobisher and other great names in Hakluyt and in English memories. Frobisher lies near Milton in St. Giles', Cripplegate, well within the tourist area.

If you go from the memorial up Butchers' row into Stepney you are in the traditional sailors' town, although nowadays you find the sailors farther east, where dockland has grown up since the Elizabethan sailors went to sea. The church in Stepney's one bit of green is the sailor's church of London, unless Deptford with memories of the shipbuilders is admitted to have as good a claim. All the children born at sea were baptized parishioners of Stepney. Mariners' tombs are as thick here as those of Dutch merchants in Austin Friars. The discoverers should go back by Wapping, packed in between London docks and the river and still keeping in a score of tarry inns suggestions of the Frobisher times. You can drink ale in the "North American Sailor" and think of the great days of old when they used to hang the pirates somewhere about Wapping Old Stairs. It was Johnson advised Boswell to explore Wapping but Boswell did not find much that was exciting-"perhapsfrom

Tuberculosis Among Alaskan Indians Has Been Laid at the Door of the "Paleface."

The great prevalence of all forms of tuberculosis among the Alaskan Indians, as proved by a report by Dr. Emil Krulish, is explained by the Journal of the American Medical Association as follows:

"Tuberculosis is a comparatively ew infection amo indians, be stowed upon them by the benevolent paleface along with firewater and certain other blessings of civilization. Among these blessings must probably be counted scarlet fever, measles, influenza, whooping cough and diphtheria. Not yet possessing the racial immunity which it takes many generations to acquire, the poor Indian suffers from them in greater degree than does the white, and more frequently dies of them. Then there are the overcrowding and the unsanitary conditions prevailing in most of the homes of tuberculosis sufferers; while at least this much good arises from their misfortune that after the disease is well developed in them its progress (unless they are well cared for) is rapid, and death removes what would otherwise remain a menacing focus

Tuberculosis was one of the chief causes of the dying out of the Indians all over North America.

Two Famous Names.

"Thomas Atkins" is a newcomer compared with "Jack Tar" of the senior service. "Jack Tar" as a nickname for sailor is first recorded in 1786, but aflors were known as "tars" for more han a hundred years before that. The ame already appears in literature in he latter half of the seventeenth cenury. "Tar" may be short for "taraulin." Sailors were called "tarpauns" early in the seventeenth century. 'arpaulin, of course, is canvas tarred make it waterproof, and the sailors' at made of that material, something ke a sou'-wester, was called a taraulin. However that may be, British ailors have been "honest tars," "jolly ars" and "gallant tars" for 200 years. here is more steel and oil about a odern battleship than tarry rope, erhaps, but probably Jack will remain ack Tar for another hundred years et .- Manchester Guardian.

First English Newspaper. The first newspaper printed in the nglish language, with its old English pe and its quaint account of events foreign countries, was a pamphlet med in 1621. MARS AND GUPID MIX

By HARMONY WHEELER.

Captain Blake, realizing that he owed his life to Private Young, offered him all that he had to offer for the time, and that was a lasting friend-Cross a short time later.

When they could be moved from the hospital Blake insisted that Young go with him to the suburban cottage to recuperate.

The little English nurse who was ministering angel to some twenty tered to them during eight weeks with out a full night's rest, took charge of them even to the moment when they were put on the hospital ship and transferred to England. She too, was in need of rest.

THE HEREFORD BRAND

A Lesson from the Past

Years ago, before baking powders were so well known, the housewife sometimes made her own from cream of tartar and soda.

These materials were then comparatively expensive and processes of refining had not been devised to bring them to the high state of purity of the presentday well known cream of tartar baking powders, such as Dr. Price's; and yet she never thought of buying alum, then as now a cheap and inferior substitute for cream of tartar. She wouldn't think of permitting an ounce of alum to enter her kitchen.

Yet housekeepers are to-day asked to buy alum baking powders with which to make food for their children.

The statement on the label affixed to every can naming the ingredients of which the baking powder is composed affords a method of protection against the use of undestrable kinds.
