

Nation's Grocery Bill Down 1 Percent

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Grocery bills dropped by more than 1 percent last month, according to an Associated Press market-basket survey, which found lower prices for hamburger, hot dogs and eggs. A look at the long-term price picture, however, was less encouraging. The cost of the items checked by the AP has doubled in the nine years since the survey began. The AP drew up a random list of 14 food and non-food products and checked the prices at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the findings of the latest survey: —The marketbasket bill went up last month at the checklist store in four cities and went down in nine cities, for an overall decrease of 1.1 percent.

—Last month's drop was the biggest since a 2.7 percent decline in May 1981. It compared to a 1.2 percent increase in January.

—Comparing prices today with those on March 1, 1973 when the survey began, the AP found the marketbasket bill was up in every city, rising an average of 100 percent.

—Eggs led the list of items decreasing in price last month, dropping at the checklist store in 12 cities. Chopped chuck decreased at the checklist store in seven cities and all-beef frankfurters went down in six cities.

—A look at the overall number of items checked by the AP showed about one-fifth of them increased during February, while more than one-fourth decreased.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that prices paid to farmers went up in February for the second month in a row and warns that the increases eventually may wind up on supermarket shelves. For all of 1982, however, the USDA says that the cost of marketing food — including labor and transportation — will be a more important factor in price increases than the actual cost of the raw food itself.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of (See GROCERY, Page 2A)

Redistricting Panel Facing Yet Another Obstacle to Decision

DALLAS (AP) — A three-judge federal panel encountered yet another obstacle — the government — before hearing closing arguments in their effort to draw new legislative district lines in time for a May 1 primary.

The judges had sidestepped potential problems in Houston and taken a filing deadline shortcut Tuesday before a government attorney warned that the Justice Department might have to clear the plan they approve, a process that could take up to 60 days.

At issue is whether the plan is considered to be legislative or judicial, the latter requiring no government clearance. Justice Department attorney Robert Berman said the distinction lies in the degree to which the judges change the lines drawn by the Legislative Redistricting Board.

Earlier in the day, the panel moved from March 19 to 6 p.m. March 12 the filing deadline for Texas Senate and House candidates. The judges also set the Texas election certification date for March 16.

Without actually ruling on where district lines would fall, they also promised not to tamper with Harris County's precinct lines.

The tribunal — 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Carolyn D. Randall and U.S.

District Judges Barefoot Sanders and Jerry Buchmeyer — said they will rule on district lines for the entire state by the end of the week. Judge Randall said the statewide ruling will be followed in about two weeks by an expanded order.

The judges are considering alternatives to the LRB plan, which was rejected by the Justice Department for violating the Voting Rights Politics will be an important topic in 1982 with many state and national offices up for voter decision. Today is the deadline for candidates to file for local elections, too.

It's a little early for most folks to be making choices, and many of them don't make up their minds until the final weeks of a campaign.

But there appears to be a new awareness among the average voter — an attitude that it's time we stopped looking at candidates as "politicians", but regard them for what they should be: public officials.

For many years, there has been a tendency to elect a person, then re-elect him without really evaluating his performance. Most of us know of office holders — local, state or nation — who are returned to office because they're "good old boys", not because they've performed well.

We expect a good job performance and efficient work habits from employees, yet we often allow a public official to work a few hours a day, be sick 50 days a year, be haphazard in the operation of his or her office duties, and never give it a thought.

The trend seems to be changing, however, and we believe voters will scrutinize candidates this year as never before. If a person seeks public office, it should be understood that the electors expect no miracles, but they simply ask and do expect an efficient job for the benefit of the public who elect them.

A preacher was energetically at work trying to scare his flock onto the paths of righteousness by describing the Judgment Day. "Thunder will roll like chariot wheels across the sky! Flame will spew from the heavens! Floods and cyclones and earthquakes will demolish the buildings of man; yea, even the mountains will fall to dust!"

Wide-eyed with hope, a little boy turned to his mother. "Mom," he whispered, "will I get out of school?"

Alternative to Buildup Is War Says Reagan.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, trying to bury proposals to cut defense spending, says the alternative to a big Pentagon buildup is "a larger and increased possibility of war."

Venable Conviction Upheld

The Court of Appeals for the Seventh Supreme Judicial District of Texas has upheld the conviction of Billy Venable. Venable was convicted of sexual abuse of a child in the 222nd District Court in June 1980.

The punishment in the case, assessed by a jury, was set at 20 years confinement in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The appeal was heard last week by the court of appeals, with Associate Justices Carlton B. Dodson, Richard N. Countiss, and John T. Boyd present.

In his appeal Venable argued three grounds of error, but the court overruled each in affirming the conviction.

Venable's conviction concerned an incident which occurred on Nov. 27, 1979, involving a 9-year-old girl who was attending a wedding with her mother at the home of a friend.

statement Tuesday with a declaration that he is willing to run up a big budget deficit "if that is what it takes to buy peace for the rest of this century."

In an attempt to whittle down the $91.5 billion deficit projected by the administration for 1983, congressional Republicans and Democrats alike are urging Reagan to scale back his plan for an 18 percent boost in military outlays.

"What they say is absolutely true," Reagan said, referring to his critics. "There is an alternative to a larger defense budget. It is a larger and increased possibility of war...."

"A cutback in defense," Reagan said, "would be a cutback in our chance of peace and security."

Reagan sounded the warning before a cheering, clapping, whistling audience at a campaign rally at Albuquerque, N.M., for Republican Sen. Harrison Schmidt. The president also got an enthusiastic welcome earlier at a campaign rally in Cheyenne, Wyo., for Sen. Malcolm Wallop, another Republican.

His message at both stops was that Congress should not cut Pentagon spending or trim the personal income tax cuts enacted last year as a means of reducing the deficit.

Reagan also dismissed pro- (See WAR, Page 2A)

Budget Cuts Take Beating; Panels Prepare Alternatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's 1983 budget is taking a beating all over Capitol Hill as committees get to work on separate pieces of the proposal and most of the punches are being thrown by Republicans.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said Tuesday that Reagan's call for $14.2 billion in domestic spending cuts is all but dead.

"I don't think the $14 billion is there," Hatfield said in an interview.

He said "the optimum outer limit" would hold spending for domestic programs for the 1983 fiscal year to current levels. "I think we'll be doing well to hold the line," he added.

The $14.2 billion in cuts are part of a larger Reagan package that would result in a 1983 budget deficit of $91.5 billion. Without those cuts — or adjustments elsewhere — the deficit would go higher.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican sources reported that several committees which oversee various government programs appear ready to call for spending about $10 billion more than Reagan wants.

Those "program committees" in both the Senate and House are preparing the spending recommendations they will forward to the budget committees in each house. Those recommendations will form the basis of the spending blueprints budget writers will draft. Thus, the recommendations are the first formal action's Congress takes on the president's budget.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has sent Senate committee chairmen a letter urging them to hold down spending.

"Without reductions in spending at least as large as those recommended by the president, we will face the certain prospect of deficits of more than $100 billion in 1983 (See BEATING, Page 2A)

Solon Apologizes To President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The conversation was described as "brisk" and the apology was accepted, but no one thinks Bob Packwood will ever rank as one of President Reagan's favorite senators.

"I'm pretty upset about it, but I accept your apology," Reagan was quoted as telling the Republican senator when he called to apologize on Tuesday.

What upset the president was an Associated Press interview in which Packwood said that during meetings with congressional leaders Reagan sometimes is "on a totally different track." The Oregon senator, who is chairman of the Senate GOP Campaign committee, also said some of Reagan's policies were driving women and minorities away from the Republican Party.

The incident appeared certain to revive speculation that the White House might support a move to oust Packwood as head of the campaign committee.

Some Republican contributors reportedly were angered last fall when (See SOLON, Page 2A)

Order Established Here

Felician Monks Live Modestly

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

It is a modest life for the three men living above the Texas Migrant Council school in the San Jose Mission. But it's a modest life they chose.

Brothers Angelo, Andrew and John are establishing a monastery of the Sons of the Immaculate Heart of Mary of St. Felix of Cantalice, or commonly known as Felician Monks.

It is currently the only such order.

Led by Mother Miranda of the Holy House, USA, in the Lodi Province of New Jersey, the three arrived in Hereford Nov. 13 last year and received investiture Nov. 20 to start their year of formation.

Mother Miranda said over a period of five to six years several young men came to the Holy House seeking spiritual direction and several felt a move to the monastic life. She said after writing many letters across the country, Bishop Leroy Mathiesan of the Amarillo Diocese "responded promptly" and arranged a place for the men at San Jose.

They have taken a nook of the third floor in the Texas Migrant Council school building and made a monastery from donated items.

Each of the men brought their own prayer benches and an organ was found in the San Jose mission. From the attics and basements of home churches on the East Coast came the stations of the cross and other items for the chapel.

In the kitchen the three sit on either a stool, a chair or a bench. The cabinets and refrigerator hold donated food and Brother Andrew, a former dairyman from Vermont, takes milk daily from a kind neighbor's cow.

Although more restrictive than secular life, the Felician monks are not entirely excluded from the world, only semi-contemplative.

"Our life is there at the monastery, that is where our main work is," Brother Angelo explained. "However we do go out."

The objective of the monastic life at San Jose, according to Mother Miranda is to "spread the Gospel to the poor and the message of Our Lord as requested at Fatima 1917, to pray and do penance."

The monastic day begins with waking at 5:30 a.m. and a first prayer at 6 a.m., followed by private meditation. They meet at 7:30 a.m. for chapel and then have breakfast before starting work at 9 a.m.

At noon there is evangelism and lunch, then a rest period before they join for communion and rosary around 2 p.m. After more work are vespers from 5:30 until about 6 p.m. Recreation time is after supper and around 9 p.m. is the night litany and prayer for grand silence until the morning.

"The monk is not the abnormal man," says Brother Andrew. "We are just trying to develop the highest spiritual point we can."

Entering the order was "kind of a last minute decision" for Brother Andrew.

"I really felt the call within, but I was headed in another direction," he explained. "It seemed as though God was saying, 'Come.' Even though I felt drawn to a monastic life, I had not found a community I liked."

Since Brother Angelo was 16 he has leaned toward the monastic life and has observ-

Bomb Found In Dorm At Sheppard Air Base

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities were investigating the discovery of a bomb at Sheppard Air Force Base that prompted the evacuation of an airman's dormitory.

Officials said the bomb was deactivated Tuesday by demolition experts.

The device was discovered about 4 p.m. inside a 1,000-bed dormitory used for housing student airman on temporary duty, said Lt. Marie Easley, a base spokeswoman.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Lee Hale said he could not discuss what type of explosive was used.

But authorities evacuated the dormitory, Cooper Hall, for more than an hour, said Lt. Keith Mirrer, base public affairs officer. No injuries were reported.

An explosive ordnance team from Fort Sill, Okla., was called to Sheppard to neutralize the device, Easley said.

Cooper Hall is located on the east central portion of the base. Officials were not sure how many students were inside the building when the bomb was found.

Error Computes $35,000 Long Distance Bill

BIG SANDY, Texas (AP) — Continental Telephone Co. apparently thought Gary Thomas was letting his fingers do the walking for an entire community when it billed him for more than $35,000 in long-distance calls.

Thomas and his wife, Mary Kay, received 11 stacks of itemized calls this week that cost the phone company $1.00 in postage to mail. Thomas said last month's billed bill came after a company official called to ask how he planned to pay for it.

"At first I could have cried, but then it got funny," Thomas said. "It had to be a mistake and it was ... belonging to the telephone company."

A keypunch error prompted the long-distance calls of more than 700 residents of this East Texas community to be combined and sent to the Thomases at their business office.

"We're embarrassed," Continental spokesman Phil Campbell in Dallas said. "It's our fault the Thomases got the bill, and it's our fault none of the other customers in the Big Sandy area received their long-distance charges."

Campbell said the error resulted in the computer searching through all telephone numbers using the Thomases' exchange and billing them to one customer — for a total of $35,350.88.

Continental personnel were notifying the other customers that the error had been made and that new bills would be sent, Campbell said.

Woman Severs Toes Taking Shortcut

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A 22-year-old woman was taking a shortcut by crawling under a motionless car of a freight train, but the train began moving and rolled over her left foot, police said.

Mary Pittman was in satisfactory condition late Tuesday after doctors operated to remove partially severed toes from her left foot. Two friends who took the same shortcut by crawling under freight cars were unharmed, authorities said.

The three were returning Tuesday to B.M.I. School of Business from a lunch break at a parking lot across the tracks from where the building is located, police said.

"When they started back to school, which is located on the north side of the tracks, there was a freight sitting motionless but blocking their paths," police Sgt. Dean Kinney said. "The three women decided, rather than be late to class, they would climb under the freight."

The two friends passed without difficulty, but Ms. Pittman had not quite emerged from under the cars when they lurched forward, Kinney said.

The train continued moving along the Missouri Pacific tracks into a railroad yard, since officials were not aware that an accident had occurred.

Services Today For Slain Officer

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for a 33-year-old policeman who died when a pickup truck veered out of control and struck his patrol car while he was investigating another wreck.

Lyndon King was dead on arrival at a community hospital after his car exploded from the impact on Interstate 30.

A 29-year-old man charged with involuntary manslaughter in King's death was hospitalized from injuries he sustained in a collision with the patrol car on Monday night.

Dale Ross Looper was in critical but stable condition with head injuries at Methodist Central Hospital in Dallas. Justice of the Peace Fletcher Freeman set bond at $50,000.

Looper is under guard at the hospital after he scuffled with doctors and nurses, said a spokesman for the Dallas County Sheriff's Department.

Witnesses estimated Looper's truck was traveling at 60 to 65 mph when it struck the patrol car, causing it to burst into flames. King, who was standing nearby investigating another accident, was hit by his squad car, a police spokesman said.

Church Cares For Refugee Children, US Funds Help

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer
ZARAGOZA, El Salvador (AP) — Little Hugo cuddles up to visitors but communicates only by grunts and signs.

Asked his age, he shyly holds up six fingers. But he looks younger because he is underweight.

Sores on his shaved head are healing, and his second set of teeth are coming out. He has nightmares and often wets his bed.

Hugo is one of El Salvador's estimated 10,000 war orphans, their parents among the estimated 32,000 civilian dead or the 200,000 to 300,000 adult refugees displaced in the war between government forces and leftist guerrillas.

With financial help from the Roman Catholic diocese of Cleveland, Ohio, the church in Zaragoza is caring for 110 of the children ranging in age from 8 months to 13 years.

"All of them are underweight," said Dr. Jose Romano, the orphanage's physician, in his early 30s.

"Not enough food, and also their background. Most of them came from poor rural families in the first place. Add to that the war and the trauma of seeing parents killed and ..."

"We try to give them a special diet to bolster them up. Plus some vitamins if we get them. Otherwise, they fall prey to all sorts of disease."

"They develop parasites, internal disease, things like bronchitis and catarrh, and because of the living conditions and crowding, also skin ailments like boils and sores."

"They eat beans, rice, corn and milk every day. And we try to give them meat — and by that I mean mostly chicken — twice a week. Three times if we can manage it."

"Our biggest shortages are food, clothing and medicines, in that order. Milk is very difficult to get. Antibiotics are also difficult, like most medicines, there is a shortage. And then we need shoes, and a lot of other things."

Most of the children don't know their surnames and are hazy about their ages.

"When they first arrive here, they almost all refuse to talk," said Romano. "They show acute signs of either depression or hyperactivity."

"They fight a lot among themselves — they're very aggressive. But eventually they slowly quiet down."

"They also have nightmares and many of them, even 6- and 8-year-olds, wet their beds. Eventually the nightmares die down and they begin to have more or less normal dreams, and they start asking for their parents and talk about their parents more objectively as an object of their fondness or love."

The church runs three other orphanages around San Salvador and another at Santa Ana, the country's second-largest city 109 miles to the west. War orphans are also cared for by other parishes across the country and the Red Cross. But most of them are in the refugee camps.

The Zaragoza operation costs between 300 and 500 colones a day, most of it for food, the doctor says. That's $120 to $200 at the official rate of exchange and $75 to $125 at the present black-market rate.

Romano says the government provides no help. The money comes from the church, private donations and the Cleveland diocese.

"There are eight of us here," he continued, "the two priests, a nurse, a director of the school and a teacher, a secretary and a woman in charge of the nursery."

On one side of the yard is a small wooden building with a corrugated roof housing the dispensary, the doctor's office and three crowded classrooms where the older children were receiving basic instruction in reading and writing.

Across the yard was a larger building, 60 feet long and 25 feet wide, also one story, also made of wood with corrugated roofing, divided into two rooms.

The smaller room was the nursery, spotless, with six babies 8 months to 2 years old in crude wooden cribs. Some of the babies played quietly with their toys, others slept perspiring in the noonday heat. Some whimpered from time to time.

The larger room contained three rows of three-tiered bunks, 66 in all.

"The older one sleep one to a bunk," said Romano, "but the younger ones two and sometimes three to a bunk. It helps give the younger ones security if they sleep together."

Strips of rubber cut from old tire tubes were stretched criss-cross to form springs for the bunks. There were no mattresses in the main dormitory or the nursery, just blankets, some of them dirty. One big closet along the dormitory wall was crammed with an assortment of old mended clothes, some shoes and a few tattered comic books and other reading material for children.

Romano said the orphanage is launching an experiment with foster mothers — mostly refugees themselves — who will take in between five and 10 orphans and raise them with some help from the church. Three such women are being trained.

CBS Wins Race With 'Dallas'

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, with five of the week's 10 highest-rated programs, including "Dallas" in first place and "60 Minutes" third, won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the 16th time this season, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS' average rating for the week ending Feb. 28 was 19.3 to 17.6 for ABC and 16.5 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week ending Feb. 28, 19.3 percent of the nation's homes with TV were watching CBS.

It was NBC's eighth consecutive week in last place. The rating for "Dallas" — No. 1 nine times in the weekly competition that began Oct. 5 — was 30.

Blood Donors Eligible For Prizes

Blood donors contributing during the Hereford High Key Club and Student Council blood drive Thursday will be eligible for drawings for $300 in prizes from local merchants.

The Coffee Memorial Blood Bank will be in the high school gym from 8:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. for donations. Approximately 140 students have signed up to give blood. Members of the community may also donate, however, no appointment is necessary.

Tax Board To Meet Thursday

The Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District Board of Directors will consider retirement and insurance for district employees and discuss members of the board of review when the board meets at 7 p.m. Thursday at the board room, 402 W. Fourth.

Other items on the agenda include ratification of bills, office operation, and the oath of office for two members of the board.

Obstacle

Act by spreading minorities too thinly.

The all-Democratic LRB drew its map after Gov. Bill Clements vetoed the Senate plan and a state court threw out the House plan — both of which were devised during last year's legislative session.

Since neither the LRB nor the Legislature was convened, the task of redrawing the lines fell to the three judges.

In the two-day hearing, they heard a variety of plans from the three major plaintiffs — the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund and Republican opponents of the House and Senate plans.

"The offices of the secretary of state, attorney general and House speaker also were involved."

The court could redraw only a few districts since most of the plans presented dealt with Harris, Bexar, El Paso and Dallas counties. Other changes are possible in Lubbock, Val Verde and Zavala counties.

According to Berman, "minor modifications" to the LRB map could transform the plan into a judicial function. But Judge Randall said such changes would not be minor.

She termed the situation a "Catch 22" and said the court has no intention of performing a legislative function.

Berman said the Justice Department was "aware of the very strange situation" in Texas but Judge Randall, noting the tight time schedule, said:

"There is nothing more clearly designed to disenfranchise the people of this state than not to have the election on time."

Another scheduling problem was averted Tuesday when Harris County representatives softened their position and said they might be able to meet the

May 1 primary date.

In testimony Monday, Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver was adamant that her office could not be ready for an election until May 12.

After a late-night meeting, attorney Rex van Middleworth, representing the county, said Tuesday the scheduling changes approved by the judges and a printer's promise to get help would "give us the chance" to meet the deadline.

"We're going to give you the chance, and we're going to expect you to do it," admonished Sanders.

In closing arguments, attorneys for the three groups presenting alternate plans accused the other plaintiffs of slighting minority groups.

Attorneys for House and Senate plaintiffs claimed MALDEF's maps split black communities and paired black incumbents with other legislators.

MALDEF "created their own plan at the expense of the black community," said San Antonio attorney John N. McCamish Jr.

But Joaquin Avila, representing MALDEF, said his plans split fewer precincts than the others' and that blacks were given a higher Packwood was a leader of the opposition to Reagan's plan to sell $1.5 billion in arms to Saudi Arabia, but no real threat to the senator's position materialized.

Packwood's remarks reached the White House Monday, shortly after the senator had attended yet another leadership meeting with Reagan to discuss the president's economic program.

Reagan was described by one source as "livid."

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee had a long, private conversation with Packwood Tuesday morning.

The Oregon senator called Vice President George Bush and White House staff chief James A. Baker III in an effort to find a way to smooth things over. Arrangements were made for him to apologize.

A call was put through while Reagan was flying on Air Force One from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Albuquerque, N.M.

Larry Speakes, deputy White House press secretary, told reporters flying with the president that Packwood said, "I'm sorry. I made a mistake."

Speakes described their conversation as "brisk."

Packwood was not available for comment, but his press secretary, Etta Fielek, said the senator told Reagan he "meant no disrespect and that he perhaps should not have discussed what happened at leadership meetings."

Apparently, what particularly upset the White House was Packwood saying that during one leadership meeting when Senate Budget Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., warned that the budget deficit could reach $120 billion, Reagan responded with a story of an abuse of the food stamp program.

David Gergen, White House communications director, told reporters at a breakfast meeting on Tuesday that Packwood's remarks "if true, were very unfortunate."

He said Reagan "has a wonderful storehouse of anecdotes he has built up over the years," and added that "I have never been in any situation where anecdotes were not told by politicians or journalists."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I clipped this essay from The Hereford Brand somewhere in the mid 40's. We lived on south Main Street, and later to Avenue K. The former Mrs. W.B. Phillips moved next door, and one day I let her read the essay. She said that it was written by her daughter as a school assignment.

After all these years I'd like to see it back in print in The Brand.

P.S. Gossip makes a lot of people sick. More than the doctors can cure.

"Gossip is An Awful, Old, Mean Practice!"
By Earlene Phillips

"I am more deadly than the screaming shell from the howitzer. I run without killing. I tear down homes, break hearts, and wreck lives. I travel on the wings of the wind. No innocence is strong enough to intimidate me; purity pure enough to daunt me.

I have no regard for truth, no respect for justice, no mercy for the defenseless. You will find me in various places, on the tongues of the thoughtless, in the bosoms of the heartless, in the society of beautiful women, in the pews of the pious, and in the haunts of the unholly.

I am something born of hatred, sometimes of idleness, and often, even a thing called friendship. I am wily, cunning, and malicious. I am never without patrons and I gather strength with age. I make my way where greed, distrust, and dishonesty are 'unknown. I feed on the good and bad alike.

I am no respecter of persons. Wherever I go I leave a trail of broken hearts. My victims are as numerous as the sands of the sea, and often as innocent. I never forget, and seldom forgive. My name is gossip."

MAURICE W. MITCHELL

Graveside services for Maurice W. "Mitch" Mitchell, 72, of Amarillo, will be at 2 p.m. today in West Park Cemetery in Hereford with the Rev. Howard Childers, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church in Amarillo, officiating. Arrangements are by N.S. Griggs & Sons Funeral Directors.

Mr. Mitchell died Monday. A native of Mount Pleasant, he was a retired school teacher, having taught mechanical drawing and wood working for 35 years at Amarillo High School and Palo Duro High School. He married Erma McCormick in Santa Fe, N.M. in 1952, and was a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Gary W. Mitchell of Odessa; a daughter, Mrs. John (Mauria) Murray of Fort Worth; a sister, Mrs. Marie West of Charlotte, N.C.; eight grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

The family requests memorials be to favorite charities or the Presbyterian Children's Home.

Beating

and the years beyond," Baker wrote.

"The economic consequences of such prolonged and large deficits could very well be further high interest rates and an aborted recovery that could jeopardize our party's economic platform," Baker added.

Baker's letter was prompted by a confidential survey the Senate leadership has taken of several committees.

Sources who asked not to be identified said the survey showed the Senate committees were likely to recommend spending about $10 billion more than Reagan calls for.

Elsewhere, the Senate Finance Committee voted

Tuesday to hold the 1983 federal deficit to the $91.5 billion proposed by Reagan, but indicated it will do so by raising taxes rather than cutting domestic spending, as much as the president proposes.

The president planned to address the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors today about the budget and his "new federalism" program before heading to Santa Barbara for a 4-day vacation at his mountaintop ranch.

Waste Disposal Firm Sues Ogg

HOUSTON (AP) — State Sen. Jack Ogg denounced as "hogwash, garbage" a $50.2 million lawsuit filed by a waste disposal firm. He called the suit a political maneuver to undermine his campaign for Texas attorney general.

Conservation Management Inc. filed the suit Tuesday against Ogg, claiming the legislator used his position to block its efforts to develop a landfill west of Houston.

Also named in the suit were Browning Ferris Industries; Norman Meyers, the company's executive vice president; and Jack Carmichael, head of the Texas Department of Health solid-waste division.

The suit was filed under the federal anti-racketeering law, and the Houston-based firm could win triple damages, or $150.6 million, if a favorable judgment is returned.

The suit said the Conservation Management in October 1977 sought a landfill permit from the Health Department and purchased a 982-acre tract for the landfill a year later.

Ogg pressured Carmichael to block the permit and in April 1980, Carmichael recommended the permit be denied, the suit said.

The suit accused Browning-Ferris of paying $25,000 to Ogg for his assistance in defeating the landfill application.

Ogg receives a percentage of all fees paid to Browning-Ferris for disposing of garbage because the senator sold the firm a permit to operate a landfill, the suit charged.

Garbage collected in Houston is dumped at Browning-Ferris landfills.

The suit contends Ogg has a financial relationship with Browning-Ferris and had a stake in preventing competition.

Jamail said Ogg has collected $200,000 and stands to get an additional $300,000 from Browning-Ferris through the agreement.

In a prepared statement, Ogg called the suit "hogwash, garbage" and claimed it was a calculated tactic to harm his campaign.

Don Fitch, a Browning-Ferris spokesman, acknowledged the company retained Ogg as an attorney and paid him "in connection with an unrelated transaction" but denied there were any improper payments.

White Accused Of Trying To Fix Endorsement

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Mexican-American Democrats play the endorsement game this weekend, and Attorney General Mark White is trying to fix the contest, according to campaign chiefs for his opponents.

Among those accusing the White campaign of "papering" is Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen, who worked for White as an assistant attorney general.

"One of the things that is going on down here is that Mark White supporters are trying to buy as many (MAD) memberships as possible," said Hinojosa, a Bob Armstrong backer.

"Each member will be allowed to vote. Anybody they can persuade to vote for Mark White, they will buy his ($6) membership and send him to Brownsville to vote," Hinojosa said.

Sources said the Armstrong camp is planning to challenge about 300 MAD members signed up by the White forces. The floor-fight could develop into a battle to prevent proxy votes from absentee members of MAD, which claims about 3,000 members.

The Hispanic vote long has been an important factor in the successful political equation of Texas Democrats. Some observers say Republican Gov. Bill Clements' 1978 election resulted, in part, from the Democrats' failure to get out the Hispanic vote.

White, Armstrong and Buddy Temple, the three leading Democratic contenders, are wooing the MAD endorsement, which goes to any candidate who gets two-thirds of the delegate votes at the Brownsville meeting Saturday. Lefty Morris, Armstrong's campaign manager, also said the opposition, particularly White, has been trying to stuff the delegate ballot box.

"It does dilute, probably, the impact of the endorsement," he said.

Dwayne Holman, White's campaign boss, says there has been no papering by the White camp.

"That is absolutely ridiculous," he said. "But Temple did paper the black coalition meeting in Houston."

Holman was referring to Temple's endorsement last month by the Coalition of Black Democrats.

"Hinojosa and other Mexican-Americans said White is so unpopular with Hispanics that the best he can do by papering is prevent a MAD endorsement of anybody else in the governor's race."

Tony Proffitt, Temple's press secretary, said he also had heard stories of papering by White.

"I hear White's people are going around setting up new MAD chapters like Fuller Brush routes. It kind of smacks of the old politics. Something you'd expect the late (Chicago) Mayor (Richard) Daley to do. Except he did it with Polish-Americans," said Proffitt.

"If White's folks are setting up MAD chapters in an effort to pack the thing, that endorsement won't mean doodley squat to anyone because it will wreck the organization," he said.

Travis County Commissioner Richard Moya, state MAD president, said there has been a crush of last-minute memberships. Last Friday was the deadline, he said. "There is no doubt this is the case," he said. "It appears to me some of the last-minute memberships are out of the Houston area, Mark White votes."

"Is it papering?" "I don't know what word to use, but I think they're doing something," said Moya.

"It's stupid old patron politics," said Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, an Armstrong backer. "We have been trying to do away with that kind of garbage. It's obnoxious, obscene and un-Texan."

Barrientos and Hinojosa say White is unpopular with Hispanic voters.

"He has set up a little track record there that many people have been talking to me about. He has pushed too much, to an extreme, the fight against bilingual education, the education of the children of undocumented workers and the extension of the Voting Rights Act," said Barrientos.

Hinojosa, who worked under White in the attorney general's office and the secretary of state's office, said his former boss has little chance of getting the MAD endorsement.

"The biggest thing he has done to upset the Mexican-American community is coming out against the Voting Rights Act," said Hinojosa. The U.S. Voting Rights Act applies to states with a history of violating the suffrage rights of minorities.

Holman said White opposed only the "preclearance" section of the act. That section gives the U.S. Justice Department the power to review and reject any changes in the electoral process. Holman said White saw preclearance as a "red-tape nightmare," but "the things he feared have not materialized."

Holman also defended White's stance on bilingual education and free public education for illegal alien children.

He said White, as attorney general, had to defend the state's bilingual education program when it was challenged in court.

White's view on free education for illegal alien children is based on the attorney general's compassion for the poor border school districts that would have to cover the cost, said Holman. He said White doesn't oppose educating poor children, but wants the federal government to help cover the cost.

THE STATES are going to have to "do more with less" in cooperation with President Reagan, says Charles Robb, the new governor of Virginia. Such talk is in sharp contrast to the free-spending policies of President Johnson, Robb's late father-in-law. Robb is already being mentioned as a possible Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1984.

Sophomore Leads Attack

Whitefaces Blast Levelland, 13-7

By BOB NIGH
Managing Editor
The Hereford Whitefaces opened the 1982 baseball season on a winning note at Whiteface Field Tuesday, collecting 11 hits in a 13-7 swamping of the Levelland Lobos. In fact, the offensive showing surprised even the Herd's head mentor David Ashby. "I was surprised we hit the ball that well," Ashby said. "Especially the one sophomore we had in the lineup." That one sophomore was leftfielder Mickey Stengal, who finished the contest with three hits, including a double, in four trips to the plate, and had a pair of RBIs. Senior hurler Matt Collier notched the win on the mound for the Herd, going the distance enroute to 12 strikeouts. "Matt got better the tireder he got," Ashby said. The Lobos took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but a seven-hit barrage by the Whitefaces in the bottom of the frame gave Collier a 10-3 lead to work with. The Herd sent 15 batters to the plate in the inning, with Stengal opening the game with a towering double to right field. The sophomore outfielder wound up with two safeties in the frame as did Collier, who aided his cause with a pair of singles. Levelland came back with four runs in the second inning to make it 10-7, but the 'Faces plated three runs of their own in the bottom half of the frame. Third-sacker Mark Collier singled to left field and advanced on Stengal's third hit of the day. Second baseman

Mike Hill rapped a single to right field, and the Lobo fielder let the ball run through his legs, scoring both Collier and Stengal, with Hill winding up on third base. The Herd's final run came on a single by shortstop Ken Cosper, scoring Hill. Collier settled down in the third inning after a base on balls and a single gave the Lobos men on first and second. Collier struck out the next Levelland hitter, then got LHS thirdbaseman Duane Esch to fly out to center field, and completed the frame with another strikeout. The HHS senior really got pumping in the fourth inning, striking out the side. The Whitefaces will try to make it two in-a-row Thursday on the road against Borger. Ashby said that Mike Mason, who played center-field Tuesday, would get the nod on the mound against the Bulldogs. Levelland 340 000 0-7 5 3

Dick Allen Back in Baseball And Relishing Every Moment of It

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP
Special Correspondent
POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dick Allen is back in baseball after five years, and relishing every moment of it. "It's like eating," said the sweet-swinging outfielder whose potentially brilliant career was dimmed by his constant controversies and clashes with the establishment. He will be 40 next Monday but he is working like a rookie in the Texas Rangers' camp, feeding the ball into the pitching machine and then picking up buckets full of batted balls like a lowly caddy. It's demeaning work for a player of such caliber — called by Pirates' Manager Chuck Tanner "the greatest hitter I've ever seen" — but it doesn't prick this man's pride. "Baseball is give and take," he reasoned. "You take from it and you give back. All I'm doing is giving back." Allen, although technically listed as batting instructor, is reluctant even to go into the batting cage where viewers could thrill again to the symphony of his swing. "I don't want to take valuable time from the young kids," he said. There is still a deep bitterness in his heart from the treatment he received from the game he loved, but he doesn't blame baseball as such. He blames the changing times. "Money, money, money, that's all you read and hear about," he said. "Muhammad Ali trains six months for a fight but all everybody reads about is how much money he's getting. It's as bad in baseball. Guys who grew up on well water go to the big city where water is chemically treated and there's all that fast living. "Three days here, two days there, eight days over there — it wrecked my family. My wife rarely saw me. I was hardly ever home when my kids were growing up. "It's a game that gets in your blood. You can't get away from it. But you pay an awful price." In a minor-major league career that spanned 17 years, Allen played in 10 cities, including two stints in Philadelphia with the Phillies. The Philadelphia days were the dreariest and the three years with the Chicago White Sox under Tanner were the happiest, he said. It was at Chicago that Allen had his most productive years, batting over .300 every year and in 1972 hitting .316 with 37 home runs and 113 RBI for MVP honors. "Tanner made baseball fun for me," he said. "He is a great manager — the best. If he whistled tomorrow, I'd come a-running."

Allen didn't always come a-running when someone whistled and this became the source of many of his baseball problems. In retrospect, he explains them all. "While training with the Phillies at Clearwater," he said, "we all wore one uniform and were told we were a team and we had to conform. But after practice all of us blacks had to go crosstown to a different hotel. "We couldn't eat in the best restaurants. Sure, Jackie Robinson broke the color line, but they didn't find out about it down here until 15 years later. "They kept writing of a rivalry between me and Frank Thomas — I was the first black to wear a Phillie uniform. People stoned my house, broke a picture window and wrote on my walls. "I demanded to be traded the first time (1969), the next time (1976) I got the boot." Allen finished his career with the Oakland A's, retiring in 1977. Since then, his interest has been centered on his Pennsylvania horse farm, following baseball largely through TV. "Since I retired, I've seen only two games — Pirates games under Tanner," he said. Allen said he had always been made conscious of the color of his skin. "When I went to Little Rock in 1963, after the integration riots, I was scared stiff," he said. "But I remembered what my mom — she's still living back home in Wampum, Pa. — told me, 'God gives you a skill and a place. You can't let God down.'" Allen was asked if there were any lingering regrets. "I'm sorry I never played on a championship team," he said. "Since I was a kid, I wanted to be a Dodger. Then, in 1971, I went to the Dodgers. "They had all that movie star and commercial stuff going for them. They didn't want me, not even working free in the instructional league. The Dodgers got there but me — never better than second."

Japanese Golfer Boosts Wallet, Confidence

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Ayako Okamoto's victory in a sudden death playoff at the Arizona Copper Classic did more than boost her checking account by $18,750. She said the win last Sunday also boosted her confidence. "Until last week no one noticed me," the 30-year-old Tokyo resident said through an interpreter Tuesday as she prepared for this week's $100,000 Sun City Classic. "During my practice round today (at Hillcrest Golf Course) I had a gallery following. It helps my confidence."

Other big names among the 114 golfers who will compete over Hillcrest's 6,232-yard par-72 layout include 1980 Player of the Year Beth Daniel, a winner two weeks ago, defending champion Patty Hayes, Pat Bradley, Donna Caponi, Kathy Whitworth and Jan Stephenson. She is no stranger to winning though. She has won 20 tournaments in Japan, eight of them last year when she finished first on the money list. Okamoto was considered Japan's top left-handed female softball pitcher nine years ago, when she first took up golf. "I didn't have any interest in golf," she explained. "The company I worked for had its own course. Somebody suggested I play golf. I did because I love sports. It took a lot of practice the first few years but I'm glad I did it." Okamoto has won more than $281,000 over her seven-year career, second only in Japan to Isao Aoki and Masahiro Kuramoto, her counterparts on the men's circuit. She said she enjoys playing in the U.S. because the spectators are well versed in the sport and because the courses in this country are well-suited to her long-hitting game. "Most of the courses in Japan are built in mountainous areas," she said. "They're hilly and narrow. Here they're wide open and flat. I think it makes it easier for me to drive here." Okamoto said she plans to stay on the U.S. tour through April and then return this summer for the LPGA Championship, U.S. Women's Open Championship and World Championship of Women's Golf. "I like it here," she said. "I have a lot of friends like Muffin Spencer-Devlin who helps me. I like the atmosphere of the tournaments. The crowds are very appreciative. "It's a possibility I might spend a full season here some year," she added. "I don't know for sure."

Softball Tourney Scheduled In Canyon

A Men's Class D USSSA Sanctioned Slow Pitch Softball Tournament will be held April 3-4 in Canyon. Deadline for entering the 16-team tournament is 5 p.m. Monday, March 29. The entry fee is $85 per team, with proceeds from the event to benefit the WTSU Women's Softball Team. More information may be obtained from Brenda Marshall, Box 276 WT, Canyon, Texas, 79016, or by calling (806) 656-2651.

The chief reason why the U.S. Constitution provided for a census of the population every 10 years was to give a basis for apportionment of members of the House of Representatives.

Tulsa Rips Creighton; Tigers Cruise by Buffs

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson liked what he saw in the first round of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. And if his Golden Hurricane continues to play as it did against Creighton, he might be enjoying himself right through the NCAA basketball tournament.

Richardson used all 13 of his players Tuesday night as No. 10 Tulsa whipped Creighton 106-81. The Golden Hurricane, 22-5, advanced to the MVC semifinals at home against New Mexico State Thursday night.

"We need to play with this type of intensity throughout the tournament. We had a slow spot in the first half but we got our transition game going and the momentum going in the second half," said Richardson, who guided Tulsa to the NIT title last year, his first at the school.

"I'm happy with all the young men that played tonight. It was the ultimate team effort, everyone got a chance to play and everyone contributed."

Freshman Steve Harris scored all 15 of his points in the second half as Tulsa moved from a 40-38 halftime lead to the rout. The Hurricane had 20 steals, a school-record, and scored the first 10 points of the second period to take charge.

All 13 Tulsa players scored, with Bruce Vanley leading the way with 18. It was the 33rd straight home triumph for Tulsa.

"It looks like we're anticipating a second meeting with Bradley (the regular-season conference winner, which takes on Illinois State in the other MVC semifinal). But we've got to get there first. New Mexico State will be tough. They match up well against us. The nice part is that we are home."

Rockets, San Antonio Involved in Slugfest

HOUSTON (AP)—A coach and a player were ejected, some fights broke out in the stands, elbows were flying on the court — the atmosphere in San Antonio's game at Houston was nearer a prize fight than a National Basketball Association contest.

But Houston's Robert Reid said that's only to be expected.

"When San Antonio and Houston play, it's like two fighters that don't have any finesse," said the Rocket forward. "We just go after it, standing there hitting rights, hitting lefts. Really, we just don't like each other."

San Antonio had built a massive, 16-point lead midway through the third quarter of Tuesday's game, then had to hang on for the 119-117 vic-

In other MVC first-round action, Bradley's Willie Scott set a school record with 20 assists as the Braves upended Indiana State 86-61; New Mexico State rode Jaime Pena's 19 points to a 68-43 romp of Southern Illinois, and Illinois State beat Drake 56-43.

In tournament play involving ranked teams, No. 5 Missouri downed Colorado 72-60 in the opening round of the Big Eight event; No. 9 West Virginia routed Massachusetts 91-70 in the Eastern Eight, and No. 17 Kansas State eliminated Kansas in the Big Eight 74-62.

Top Twenty

Missouri shot 61 percent from the field, got 24 points from conference player of the year Ricky Frazier, and advanced to a meeting with Nebraska at Kansas City, Mo., Friday night in the conference semifinals. Nebraska topped Oklahoma State 60-49.

"It was kind of a see-saw game," Frazier said. "We ran a few buckets, they ran a few buckets. But it was good that we kept the tempo."

Kansas State's Randy Reed scored 24 points to move the Wildcats into the semifinals against Oklahoma, which nipped Iowa State 71-67. The loss gave Kansas, 13-14, only its third losing season in 18 years.

In the Eastern Eight tournament, West Virginia bombed Massachusetts behind Greg Jones' 23 points. The Mountaineers led by as many as 27 points in extending their homecourt winning streak to 32 games.

West Virginia, which won the regular-season Eastern Eight title, takes on St. Bonaventure in the conference semifinals at Pittsburgh Friday night.

Unranked Teams

St. Bonaventure whipped George Washington 69-66.

The other semifinal pits Rutgers, which downed Rhode Island 67-63 thanks to a 17-point effort by Roy Hinson, against Pitt, which withstood a furious rally by archrival Duquesne to advance with a 66-64 verdict.

In the Mid-American tourney, which moves to Ann Arbor, Mich., for Friday's semifinals, it will be Bowling Green against Northern Illinois and Ball State playing Western Michigan.

Bowling Green edged Miami, Ohio, 81-78 behind 22 points by Marcus Newburn; Western Michigan nipped Eastern Michigan 44-42 when substitute guard Tim Waun hit a jumper with three seconds remaining, and Leonard Hayes' two free throws with 41 seconds left in overtime provided Northern Illinois with a 70-68 decision over Ohio U. Ball State, which won the regular-season title, drew a bye into the semis.

The Midwestern City tour-namment will continue Friday night in Tulsa, with Oklahoma City facing Evansville, which had a pass into the semifinals after winning the regular-season title, and Loyola, Ill., taking on Xavier, Ohio.

Oklahoma City took Detroit 69-61 behind the 16-point efforts of Rubin Johnson and James Campbell; Loyola beat Butler 88-71 as Alfredrick Hughes put in 27 points, and Xavier surprised Oral Roberts 74-71 with Anthony Hicks doing much of the damage with 27 points. The Musketeers finished last in the seven-team conference during the season, while the Titans were second.

In the ECAC Metro South division, Siena upset Fairleigh Dickinson 85-81, opening a 12-4 lead and staying in front the rest of the way. Siena will meet LIU, a 56-53 winner over St. Francis, N.Y., in Thursday's semifinals.

The other semifinal pits Baltimore, which topped Towson State 64-60, against Robert Morris, which beat Loyola, Md., 78-69.

ECAC Metro North action Tuesday night saw Niagara ride 28 points of Mike Phillips and 25 by Skip Speakes to a 105-87 defeat of New Hampshire, and Boston University edging Holy Cross 50-49 on Tony Simm's five-foot shot with six seconds to play.

Niagara plays Canisius and BU takes on Northeastern Thursday.

In a regularly scheduled contest, Notre Dame routed Northern Iowa 86-56 as John Paxson scored a career-high 27 points.

95th World Day Of Prayer Observance Slated Friday

World Day of Prayer, an international celebration sponsored in the United States by Church Women United, will be celebrated locally beginning at 9:30 a.m. Friday at the First Presbyterian Church. Everyone is cordially invited to attend the service, and a nursery will be provided.

In its 95th observance, the World Day of Prayer annually sparks a global chain of prayer for peace in more than 52,000 U.S. communities and 170 countries on six continents and around the world.

The service this year was written jointly by a dedicated group of Irish women, Protestant and Roman Catholic, from the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland. It stands as a visible example of the reality of reconciliation in spite of the fighting there.

The theme, "The People of God: Gathered for Worship, Scattered for Service" draws upon religious traditions of Roman Catholic and Protestant women and is a call to peace, justice, and reconciliation - a recognized need in Ireland and in many nations of the world.

Church Women United, official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States, is the national, ecumenical movement which brings together more than half a million Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Orthodox women into a Christian "community of caring."

World Day of Prayer offerings make possible the mission of CWU including the International Grants for Mission program which funds projects, national and international, in support of the empowerment of women, human rights, justice and peace.

Ann Landers Guns Are Dangerous

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister has two sons, 10 and 12 years of age. Her husband was in the Marines. Their home is filled with guns - toy as well as the real ones. I am worried sick that one of these days someone will mistake a real gun for a toy and a tragedy will result. They say I'm crazy.

With all the killings last year and attempted assassinations by nuts, why isn't something being done to crack down on the easy access to handguns?

My sister and her husband say all boys should be raised with guns so they will be a part of their lives. What is your opinion? - Watsonville, Calif.

MY DEAR WATSON: Guns are for killing. Why should killing be a part of anyone's life? What can be done about the nuts who already have guns is a serious problem. But we can and must do something about the sale of "Saturday night specials," those palm-size killers that can be purchased over counters like a package of cigarettes, no questions asked - or in almost any pawnshop. They also can be ordered through the mail by anyone who has the price.

What is needed is a strong federal gun law. The state laws aren't working. These recent figures are enough to make an American hide his head in shame.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with this girl for six months. She is 17, very pretty, plenty mixed-up and unmotivated. She says, "I'll never make it in life. I'm a loser."

We've done a lot of talking, and she has a terrible grudge against her parents because they didn't pay enough attention to her when she was growing up. Her father traveled a lot and her mother was busy with bridge and beauty shops. She is in therapy now, but doesn't like her doctor and says he isn't helping. What can I do? - Rick

DEAR RICK: Urge her to switch to another therapist. Meanwhile, remind her to accept responsibility for herself. Many people succeed in life in spite of poor parenting. If you don't believe me, look around.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: At a luncheon yesterday I overheard some women talking about "those dumb brides" who take wedding pictures with their glasses on. I felt like butting into their conversation and telling them a thing or two, but I didn't have the nerve. So I'm letting off steam by writing to you.

I happen to be one of those "dumb brides" and, believe me, I would much rather have perfect vision. I can't wear contact lenses because of the shape of my eyeballs. So I do the best I can with glasses and am thankful to God I can see. Some people don't know what's important in life. Please tell them. - Fond Du Lac Bride

DEAR FOND: Obviously, you see things others don't. Thanks for the eye opener.

Chapter Elects Officers

New officers were elected when members of Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met recently at the Community Center Lounge.

Alice Christman, chairman, read the nominating committee report. New officers included Ann Cummings, president; Betty J. Mercer, first vice president; Augusta McCarley, second vice president; Wanda Stanley, recording secretary; and Eleanor Hudspeh, corresponding secretary. The

the abundant life

ALERT TO LIFE

LIFE CAN BE a terrible "drag," and, according to what we hear from many persons it is. This, however, is not a satisfactory manner of living; and it is not even a necessary experience. Of course, life seems easier for some people than it does for others, but, generally speaking, it is just about what we make it.

WE MUST BE ALERT to life. There are pitfalls to avoid, with relative ease they can be avoided. There are good opportunities to be used, which are both accessible to us and responsive to our initiative. With enthusiastic display of our intelligence and diligence, with this degree of alertness to life; we can succeed.

THE ALERTNESS of children and young people to life is one of the reasons for their appeal to all of us. Even though this spirit of the young may not be accompanied always with prudence and discretion, we see it as a spirit that is basically honest and sincere; and we like it.

AS WE MOVE ALONG through the years, efforts must be made to preserve this alertness to life and enhance it with wisdom and good judgment. It is most unfortunate that many of us are somewhat inclined to lose some of this spirit, as we move toward adulthood. It is most certainly not a fixed part of the maturation process.

WHATEVER JOY, and satisfaction, and meaningful living experience there is for us will be found in our alertness to life. This doesn't mean that everything will be exactly as we wish, but living will certainly a great experience.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to live pleasantly without prudently, and honorably, and justly; or to live prudently, and honorably, and justly, without living pleasantly." — Epicurus. If however, we are alert to life; we will live prudently, honorably, justly and with wholesome pleasure. It works for all who work it.

WE SEE DAILY people who have permitted themselves to become dull and insensitive to life, and most of them feel justified; but this doesn't ease the pain. With work to be done; service to be rendered; things to learn; wrongs to be righted; building, physical and spiritual, to be done; and unlimited skills to be refined; how can we lose our alertness to life. There is so much of good to fill our days, and enough for all of us.

BEING ALERT TO LIFE is the way we stay alive while we live, and the Creator made all of us for this.

Prepaying Expenses May Save Taxes

(Seventh in a series of "tax tip" articles sponsored as a public service by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

Q. I usually give my alma mater $5,000 in January each year. Can I save any taxes by making my 1982 pledge contribution in December of 1981?

A. President Reagan's tax bill may make it advantageous for you to make this contribution in December of 1981 for the following reasons. In 1981, the highest tax bracket is 70 percent. In 1982, the highest bracket will be only 50 percent. Therefore, for taxpayers who find themselves in a tax bracket above 50 percent in 1981 deductions will result in a greater tax reduction in 1981 than will be the case in 1982.

All kinds of deductions such as medical expenses, interest and taxes, as well as contributions, can be prepaid. For example, property taxes on your residence which are normally billed in September but not actually due until the following calendar year may be deducted if paid by Dec. 31 of the tax year.

Q. I normally receive a cash bonus from my employer towards the end of the year. In light of the new tax laws, wouldn't I be better off by asking that payment be deferred until January, 1982?

A. Deferring taxable income until 1982 will provide greater tax savings in both 1981 and 1982. The effective tax rate reduction in 1982 will be 10 percent as opposed to 1.25 percent in 1981. Most of the new tax deductions such as the marriage penalty relief and retirement savings deductions won't take effect until 1982.

As a result, more deductions will be available to offset 1982 income and any remaining will be taxed at significantly lower rates. Receipt of interest or dividends (in excess of the 1981 exclusion), salary, etc. should be postponed until 1982 whenever possible in order to minimize taxable income in 1981 and 1982.

Q. I make annual contributions to an Individual Retirement Account and I understand the new tax law made considerable changes in the rules. Will this affect me?

A. For years up to Dec. 31, 1981, the maximum Individual Retirement Account (IRA) contribution allowed as an income tax deduction is limited to the smallest of the following amounts: (1) $1,500, (2) 15 percent of the individual's includable annual compensation or (3) the amount actually contributed.

Also, if you are an active participant in a qualified employer plan, a tax-sheltered annuity plan, or a government plan, you will be barred from IRA coverage. These are the rules applicable to tax years beginning before 1982.

Starting with tax years beginning after 1981, an individual may take an income tax deduction for his-her contributions to an IRA each year even if he-she is an active participant in a qualified employer plan or in a government plan.

Also the limits have changed. After January 1, 1982, the deduction will be the lesser of the following amounts: (1) $2,000, (2) 100 percent of the individual's earned income that is includable in his-her gross income or (3) the amount actually contributed.

The rules for a working spouse are the same with a $4,000 maximum deduction available on a joint return. The rules for a non-working spouse are somewhat the same as they were under the old rules except the limit has been raised from the lesser of $1,750 or 15 percent of the individual's annual compensation, to the lesser of $2,250 or 100 percent of the individual's annual compensation.

Outstanding Women Selected

Two local women, Jan Story Metcalf and Virginia Sue Gilliland; and Carolyn Hernandez, a former Hereford resident, are among approximately 23,000 women selected as Outstanding Young Women of America for 1981. This annual award is designed to recognize and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, their professions, and their communities.

The women, who have been selected from the thousands of nominations submitted by respected business and civic leaders throughout the country, are now being considered for one of the 51 state awards to be presented to those who have made the most noteworthy contributions in the individual states.

From these 51 state winners, the Ten Outstanding Young Women of America will be chosen, and honored at the annual awards luncheon to be held this fall in Washington, D.C.

Carolyn Hernandez is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hernandez and is presently Manager of the Affirmative Action Program for Kraft, Inc. in Glenview, Ill. She graduated from Hereford High School in 1969 and attended West Texas State University from 1969 until 1972, graduating from the University of the Americas in Puebla, Mexico in 1975 with a BA degree in International Relations.

In 1978 and 1979 came back to Texas to do graduate studies in government at Sam Houston State University, before starting her career with Kraft as a sales representative.

While in high school, Ms. Hernandez was a member of the band and was involved in Camp Fire. In 1979 she was given the Outstanding Leadership Award by Kraft, Inc. and the YWCA of Chicago and was recognized in Hispanic Achievement by Kraft.

Early Calving Can Bring More Money

COLLEGE STATION — Early calving cows bring in more dollars per head at marketing time.

"Producers who only wean their calves at one specific time during the year need to be aware of the importance of early calving," says Dr. L.R. Spratt of Bryan, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Late calving cows usually wean lighter calves which mean fewer pounds of beef going to market," he notes.

A demonstration on the Nash Ranch in Brazoria County bears this out. Heifers were bred from late May to early September, 1980, and calved from early March to mid-June, 1981. All calves were weaned in late September.

Records show that the calves born between March and April had higher weaning weights and sold at higher prices at marketing time, Spratt explains. Early born steers brought $72 more per head and early born heifers brought $64 more.

To shorten the calving period of cows, Spratt suggests these steps:

1. Replace late calvers with early calving cows.
2. Take bulls out of the breeding herd 10 to 15 days earlier than the past year for three to four consecutive years until a 60-75-day breeding season is reached.
3. Don't let cows get thin before calving because thin cows are slow to rebreed.
4. Synchronize estrus to enable more uniform breeding.

"Shortening the calving season can be an important step in improving the efficiency of cow-calf operations," says Spratt. "And it's something producers can do with a minimum of management."

THE HEREFORD BRAND FARM NEWS

CFTC Arguments Continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration and commodity traders are going toe-to-toe over President Reagan's plans for continued federal regulation of commodity futures, a key in setting daily market prices for farmers.

"We're just getting the initial arguments," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Monday during the fifth day of congressional hearings on whether the Commodity Futures Trading Commission should continue functioning beyond September — and under what conditions.

Both the administration and the industry see a need for continuation of the CFTC, created under a 1974 law to regulate the rapidly expanding commodity futures industry. But they're at odds over the powers the commission should have.

The administration proposal, according to CFTC Chairman Philip Johnson, would streamline procedures for handling trader registration, approving trading exchange rules and dealing with customer complaints.

Johnson says it also would extend existing enforcement "into those shadowy crevices where violators now find shelter." Senate investigators have put a $200 million a year price tag on commodity trading fraud.

The industry, led by officials of the major trading exchanges and supported by major agriculture organizations, acknowledges the need to streamline regulatory procedures and crack down on fraudulent operators. But they contend that in many cases the CFTC plan would make the commission "the chief executive officer of each exchange, not merely a member of the team."

"The commission has made great progress in establishing a regulatory system that recognizes the practical needs of the industry without compromising the basic goal of protecting the futures markets and the public interest," says Bennett Corn, president of the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange in New York.

But Corn adds, "We urge Congress to be wary of other proposals to reshape the present regulatory structure in radical ways."

While there is debate over a number of the administration's proposals, the one drawing most of the attention is the so-called user fee. With the industry growing so fast, Johnson says the fee is the only way the CFTC can keep pace. Industry says the fee is just an incentive for federal regulatory expansion.

The CFTC proposes to charge 12 cents on each commodity futures transaction to traders who are members of self-regulatory organizations like the National Futures Association and 24 cents a transaction to nonmembers.

Johnson says the fee, bringing in $15 million a year or more, is the only way the CFTC can secure the funds necessary to maintain its regulatory role pending development of the industry's self-regulatory agencies. He said the two-tier fee, lower for members of selfregulatory agencies, recognizes the contribution the industry's own regulatory efforts can and will make.

"Our industry cannot rationally be expected to pay twice for the same regulatory process," counters Leo Melamed, president of the fledgling National Future Association. The transaction fee would deprive NFA of its financing base and eliminate its purpose of absorbing regulatory burdens.

Other industry officials, while acknowledging the CFTC's need to obtain financing in times of budget restraint, say the "transaction tax" is inequitable because it forces traders to support almost by themselves a regulatory system that benefits not just them but everyone.

"There is no recognition of the benefits of regulation which accrue to everyone in the marketing chain, including consumers," says Bruce Hawley of the American Farm Bureau Federation, an ardent administration supporter on other issues.

Farmers Should Exempt Tools

Farmers should make application for exemption of farm machinery from personal property taxes, even though the legality of the recent enabling legislation is in question, according to Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District.

Fox said the legislature last year passed a law to exempt farm machinery used directly in producing a crop. Just how much the exemption will be is not yet known, said Fox. The exemptions apply only to individual farmers. Partnerships and corporations will not be exempt.

Those who are eligible should make application at the district appraisal office, located in the old Central Elementary School building.

Drought Resistance Breeding Discussed

LUBBOCK — Breeding for drought resistance in alfalfa and cotton will be discussed by Dr. Merle H. Niehaus, head of the Department of Agronomy at New Mexico State University, at 4:30 p.m. Thursday (March 4) in Room 101, Goddard Hall, at Texas Tech University.

Other speakers will be scheduled this spring by the Texas Tech Department of Plant and Soil Sciences to address topics in horticulture, crop science and soil science.

Persons wishing to be placed on the mailing list for seminar notices should write or call the Department of Plant and Soil Sciences at P.O. Box 4169, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409, or call 742-2837. The talks are free and open to the public.

New Bills To Help Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Dakota's congressman has introduced legislation raising commodity price supports for the 1982 crop and slapping a 1-year moratorium on farm foreclosures by the Farmers

Home Administration. Democrat Byron Dorgan said the two bills are intended to help farmers, facing what could be lowest net farm income in decades, cope with severely depressed market prices.

'Conservation Tillage' Can Help Slow Erosion

"Soil erosion by wind and water is a natural geologic process that has shaped our mountains, valleys, and other features of our landscape," according to Tom Cunningham, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in Hereford. "But modern man's activities have greatly speeded up this process to the point where it is recognized as a serious threat to our economic well-being through loss of our productive agricultural capacity," he said.

"The rate at which soils erode depends upon soil type, steepness of slope, amount of runoff, and other things. But ironically, the solution to much cropland erosion may be relatively simple," Cunningham said. "By leaving residues on the soil surface, evaporation, runoff, and erosion are reduced. We call this 'conservation tillage.'"

Conservation tillage is a crop planting system where residues from previous crops or field conditions are left on the soil surface and current crops are planted in this seedbed. In its purest form, "no-till," agronomists describe it as a practice that allows farmers to plant crops without plowing or cultivating their land.

"Even though special equipment and modified planting techniques are used, the practice has been around for nearly 30 years and can be fitted to most management styles and resource conditions," Cunningham said.

Cunningham said conservation tillage is not the total solution to erosion problems, but researchers agree that using one of the various forms of conservation tillage reduces erosion from 30 to 90 percent, compared with conventional tillage.

Soil Conservation Service studies show that each year soil erosion moves from 2 to 3 billion tons of soil. About 5 tons per acre per year is considered to be a tolerable soil loss on deep soils. Many farms in Texas have annual soil losses greater than this, which will take centuries to replace. In fact, the SCS has estimated that wind and water have damaged 50 million acres of America's best cropland so badly that it is no longer useful for crop production. Another 100 million acres has been severely damaged.

Some conservationists feel a psychological stigma is attached to the acceptance of conservation tillage, according to Cunningham.

"Plowing and cultivating has been accepted for so long it's hard for some farmers to overcome the urge to plow several times each year," Cunningham said. "But no-till and other forms of conservation tillage are gaining ground yearly. Many predict acreage planted under the no-till systems will exceed conventionally planted crops in the near future."

USDA studies estimate that in less than 35 years, 93 percent of all cropland will be planted by conservation tillage.

Interest Rates Up From February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continued high commercial interest rates have pushed the interest rate on federal commodity and storage loans up an additional seven-eighths of a percentage point in March, the Agriculture Department says.

Department spokesman Everett Rank said Monday the interest rate in March will be 14.875 percent, up from 14 percent in February.

SeedTec D701G

Versatile sorghum hybrid tops independent yield trials.

During the past three years, SeedTec D701G has become one of the top-yielding hybrids in independent performance trials throughout the Sorghum Belt. In the Texas A&M Coastal Bend Extension District 14 grain sorghum trials, D701G produced the highest average yield over the past three years combined. The same holds true for extension service trials in Calhoun and Victoria counties. In fact, this medium-late sorghum finished among the top five hybrids in 41% of the yield trials in which it was entered.

Results from yield trials in Kansas and Nebraska prove that SeedTec D701G adapts to a wide variety of growing conditions. In the 1981 Kansas grain sorghum tests, D701G tied for first in the Thomas County (fallow) trial and ranked among the top five hybrids in Brown, Ellis, Ford, Reno, Republic and Stafford counties. Even as far north as Auburn, Nebraska, SeedTec D701G placed second in the extension yield trial while recording the lowest moisture content of all hybrids entered.

Consistent performance like this is no accident. It reflects the fact that D701G is adapted to both dryland and irrigated conditions. Resistance to downy mildew and Biotype C greenbugs, plus tolerance to smut and MDMV, also enable SeedTec D701G to produce heavy yields of high test-weight grain.

SeedTec 652G ranks high in state performance test.

Over the past four years, SeedTec 652G has compiled an impressive record in the Kansas grain sorghum trials. In Greeley and Thomas counties, 652G produced the highest average yields during the past four years combined. Four-year yield averages also show that this medium-early sorghum finished among the top four hybrids in Ford, Finney and Republic counties.

Year in and year out, SeedTec 652G has what it takes to make the most of a little water. Even in hot, dry weather, 652G comes through with big yields of bright red grain. Its other strong points include excellent seedling vigor, fast-drydown, and tolerance to smut, MDMV and Biotype C greenbugs.

Disease-resistant SeedTec 710DR produces healthy sorghum yields. SeedTec 710DR offers the kind of disease resistance a sorghum hybrid needs to produce consistently high yields. With resistance to downy mildew and head smut, as well as tolerance to MDMV, this medium maturity hybrid performs well under most growing conditions. These features, plus strong emergence and excellent standability, make 710DR a wise choice for growers who want truckloads of attractive, bronze-colored grain.

So call your SeedTec dealer today and ask him about the complete line of SeedTec sorghum hybrids.

'Attacked'

By Panel

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas anti-drug committee is attacking civil liberties, "chopping away at the Bill of Rights that makes our society different than the Soviet Union," says the executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union.

John Duncan, using a national magazine article to support his argument Tuesday, said the Texans' War on Drugs Committee is extending an attack started 15 years ago by Republicans Nelson Rockefeller and Richard Nixon.

Rick Salwen of the committee responded at another news conference that the ACLU should "drop its role as an apologist" for drug smugglers and drug pushers.

Duncan was introduced by Playboy magazine's Dan Sheridan, who said the April issue, which appeared on the stands Tuesday, "takes a good, hard look at what could become in the future a police state (in Texas)."

Sheridan described those responsible as "well-intentioned people with bad laws."

The Playboy article by Laurence Gonzales says "shock-troop moms" from the War on Drugs Committee "have done more to undermine basic civil liberties than any other movement since Joe McCarthy's anti-Communist crusade."

Duncan is quoted in the article as saying, "If we're going to create a police state, why do it piecemeal? Let's just tattoo a number on everybody's arm."

He told the news conference Rockefeller, Nixon, Rockefeller again and then Texas Gov. Bill Clements had tried to "drastically alter criminal laws," not to reduce the use of drugs but as a "substantial assault" on civil liberties.

Clements created the Texans' War on Drugs Committee in 1979 and named H. Ross Perot of Dallas as chairman.

"The real difference between the Texans' War on Drugs and Nixon's war on drugs is that there has not yet been a Watergate to bring Clements and Perot down," Gonzales' article said.

Duncan, however, said the committee had gotten "parents to pay more attention to their kids and this will probably do something to deter drug use."

Salwen, who is a lawyer for Perot, said he and Duncan are in 90 percent agreement because the "major thrust of our efforts in Texas" is to get parents to pay more attention to their children.

Salwen said, however, the thrust of Duncan's comments and the Playboy article is that the committee's effort is directed at an unconstitutional attack on civil liberties — "and that's just not so."

"Despite their allegations of constitutional impropriety," Salwen said, the ACLU has not challenged in court the bills sponsored by the committee in the 1981 Legislature.

The bills enacted by lawmakers include a wiretap measure.

"You've got to assume that why they haven't attack the laws in court is because they are constitutionally proper," he said.

Salwen called the misuse of drugs "the most important and dangerous issue that faces us in the 20th century" and said he supports "the toughest possible enforcement consistent with constitutional protection."

Alamo Fans Help State Celebrate Observance

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mike Waters said he was so impressed by John Wayne and Fess Parker movies about the Alamo that he moved here from Brooklyn to be near the 264-year-old Spanish mission.

Kaj Andersen, a big flintlock pistol stuck in his belt, said he has traveled from Denmark four times to visit the Alamo and take part in ceremonies.

The two men are members of the Alamo Lore and Myth Society, nicknamed "Alamo fanatics," who dressed in 19th-century garb Tuesday to help commemorate Texas Independence Day at the Alamo.

Waters, attired as Alamo hero James Bowie was in an official portrait, used a 15-inch long Bowie knife to carve a birthday cake at the Alamo ceremony, which drew about 50 spectators.

Ruby Marshall, chairman of the Alamo chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, explained that March 2 is celebrated jointly as Texas Independence Day, Texas Flag Day and Sam Houston Day.

A force of 5,000 Mexican troops led by Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna laid siege to the Alamo, occupied by 187 defending Texans, on Feb. 23, 1836.

Meanwhile, at Washington-on-the-Brazos, the framers of the Texas Constitution met and declared independence from Mexico, four days before Santa Anna's troops overran the Alamo and killed all its defenders.

The battle of the Alamo gave Houston enough time to group an Army that later defeated Santa Anna at San Jacinto.

"Remember the Alamo!" became the rallying cry for the Texas revolution and made the tiny chapel in downtown San Antonio a world-renowned shrine that draws thousands of visitors each year.

Sam Dibrell, president of the W.B. Travis chapter of the Sons of the Republic of Texas, noted Tuesday that the declaration of independence was signed on Houston's birthday for symbolic reasons.

Ceremony participants watched the Lone Star flag of Texas raised over the Alamo Tuesday. They then pledged allegiance to the U.S. and Texas flags before the cake-cutting ceremony.

Waters said his group has been intrigued by 187 men refusing to surrender in the face of death.

"We've made it more than a hobby," Waters said of the Myth and Lore Society.

He said the group plans to dress in period garb again on Saturday for a "living history" reenactment of the 13-day siege and fall of the Alamo on March 6, 1836.

Andersen came the farthest for the Independence Day ceremony. He was dressed in honor of Charles Zanco, a Danish countryman who was one of the 187 defenders killed in the battle.

"I got interested by seeing movies about the Alamo in the 1950s," said Andersen, who has traveled four times from Denmark to visit the shrine since 1973.

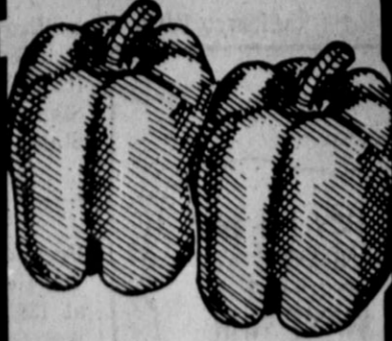

Waters also said he became interested in the Alamo because of movies.

"I'm from Brooklyn and moved down here to be near the Alamo," Waters added. "Fess Parker and John Wayne got me interested."

The Aurora Borealis, also called the Northern Lights, is a broad display of rather faint lights in the northern skies at night.

STATEMENT OF NON-DISCRIMINATION
March 3, 1982
West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative, Inc. has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued hereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities.

Under the Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color, or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meeting of beneficiaries and participants, and the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals to be subjected by the organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, or the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 90 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complaints will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations. West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative Incorporated P.O. METERING THE MILES Car Operating Costs in Major Cities

It costs more to own and operate a car in Los Angeles than in Detroit these days, but wherever you are it costs more than it did two years ago. Average operating costs went up 51 percent in the period, as indicated in a survey of major cities. Most of the overall rise was credited to continuing increases in new car prices and prevailing high interest rates on purchase loans. Surveyed were typical new compact-sized cars purchased new. Major city costs normally are higher than the nationwide average because of higher sales taxes and insurance premiums.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - In one of your columns you mentioned that a certain vitamin can cause fatigue. Which vitamin was it? I take vitamin E and also B and C vitamins. I thought vitamins gave you more energy. I do have fatigue and am wondering if it could be my vitamins.

DEAR READER - First, let me say that if you have fatigue it may have nothing to do with your vitamin intake or even a lack of vitamins. Fatigue is a symptom. It sometimes means a person is bored and in some cases it is a symptom of an underlying illness.

The B and C vitamins are water soluble and the excess you may take is washed out through the kidneys. But vitamins A, D and E are fat soluble vitamins and can build up in your body. Both vitamin A and E in excess can cause fatigue.

Vitamin E is not always innocuous. Reports have implicated vitamin E in thrombophlebitis, pulmonary embolism, high blood pressure, fatigue, enlarged breasts, breast tumors, vaginal bleeding, headache, dizziness, nausea and diarrhea, muscle weakness, visual complaints from antagonizing the action of vitamin A, low blood glucose, chapping of lips, skin rash, aggravation of diabetes, aggravation of angina pectoris heart pain and disturbances in reproduction.

A person is more apt to have one of these complications if he takes large doses. Taking anywhere than 100 units a day is probably not justified.

Vitamin E does have some important functions. Most people get plenty in their well-balanced diet. If not, a small dose is all that medical information really justifies. Its role in the frequency of blood clots in leg veins deserves evaluation in respect to the common usage of large doses of vitamin E by the public.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have an unusual problem and hope you can help me. I'm a 16-year-old boy and have gray hair. I have used several treatments and colorings such as Grecian Formula and none work because I wash my hair often. Why do I have gray hair so early? I know I don't eat right all the time but neither do most teen-agers. There are others in my family who had gray hair at an early age but none this early. It makes me feel sort of like a freak. Is there anything you know that will work and is fairly easy to use and doesn't cost a fortune to buy?

DEAR READER - Don't think of it as making you look like a freak but rather as making you look distinguished. It doesn't hurt to be different. Girls often like a

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Old-fashioned whitewash

By Polly Fisher
DEAR POLLY - Do you know how to make old-fashioned whitewash? My grandfather used to do this. - MIKE
DEAR MIKE - Try the following recipe: Mix enough finely powdered lime into a gallon of milk to make a thick liquid (about the consistency of a good latex paint), then stir in one cup of turpentine. Mix only as much as you need to use at one time, since this doesn't store very well. It is quite inexpensive, however - especially when you compare its cost to regular paint! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - To raise my bed (to replace the casters under the legs), I used my automobile jack. To clean my floor, I use automatic dishwasher detergent. It cleans the floor very well, leaving it shiny without any residue or soap film.

When you're cooking potatoes for salad or to mash, cut the raw potatoes into cubes. They'll cook faster. - MRS. G.K.

DEAR POLLY - I use hydrogen peroxide to remove stains from the underarms of shirts and blouses. Each time I launder, I spray these areas with peroxide, let it soak in for a few minutes, then toss into the washer. If existing stains are very bad, it will take a few treatments to remove all the stains and odor. - IVA MAE

DEAR POLLY - To "clip" items from magazines or newspapers, I use a ballpoint pen. I mark down the sides and tops of the article (pressing hard) and they then peel right out of their spots.

To remove sticky glue left on bottles and jars after removing labels, I use a laundry pre-spatter spray. It works marvelously well and doesn't seem to damage the finish of any plastics. It also removes glue from fabrics.

For frosted windshields, a plastic tumbler is fantastic for scraping off the ice (in the absence of a regular scraper). It keeps your fingers out of the frost and won't scratch your windshield. I've also used the rims of paper cups left in the car. - SYLVIA

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeper or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Fatigue is a symptom young man who looks a little more mature. With a young face the gray hair can be quite attractive. Go to a hair stylist and let him help you choose a style that looks good for you.

I'd forget the coloring at your age. Some preparations, including Grecian Formula, contain lead and there has been some concern about its possible role in causing lead toxicity. It will never look as natural as your natural gray hair.

Hair turns gray because of loss of pigment or from air in the hair shaft. It is not a sign of illness or poor health.
