HISD Approves Staff, Calendar

By JERI CURTIS Staff Writer

The Hereford Independent School District board of education readied for the 1982-83 term by hiring teachers, adopting textbooks and accepting a calendar during its regular monthly meeting Monday night.

Members Paul Ramirez, Tom Simons, Bill Townsend and James Gentry voted in favor of the calendar. R.C. Hoelscher and Sallie Strain opposed the calendar. Mrs. Strain expressed preference to having several long weekends rather than a full week spring break.

Teachers wil report for duty Aug. 19 with students starting class Aug. 24. Fall vacations for students include Labor Day, Sept. 6, and inservice days on Oct. 4 and Nov. 5. Thanksgiving break is Nov. 25 and 26. Christmas holidays are from Dec. 20 to Dec. 31 with classes resuming

Ma Bell Ordered To Continue Refund

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Southwestern Bell has been ordered to go ahead with a $21 million refund to customers even though its fight against the amount of both the refund and a rate increase continues in court.

State District Judge Hume Cofer, in a letter issued Monday, denied Bell's request for a temporary injunction. He said he would reveal the basis for his ruling later this week.

Attorneys for the telephone company said they would wait until Cofer explains his ruling before deciding whether to appeal.

Bell has taken the Public Utilities Commission to court over a $243.6 million rate increase - which Bell contends should be $89 million higher - and the amount of the refund - which Bell contends should be only $600,000. Cofer also ruled Monday that Bell must submit its arguments on the rate hike by April 1, and the PUC must respond by April 26.

In a three-hour hearing Friday, Bell attorneys argued that the PUC's rate and refund rulings last December

The Ford dealer's bid was for $7,257. Other bids submitted were $7,396.99 for a 1982 Chevrolet pickup by Stevens Chevrolet, Inc., and $8,066.57 for a 1982 GMC model by Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC.

County Judge Glen Nelson asked the court to approve a resolution endorsing a plan submitted to the 26 counties in the Panhandle last week by Dr. Richard Erdmann.

Dr. Erdmann's plan calls for him to continue doing forensic pathology work in the area. He asked each county to endorse his plan and to submit a $100 retainer fee. Dr. Erdmann will continue to do autopsies for a $500 fee. The $100 retainer will be discounted at $50 each for the first two autopsies requested by a particular county. If less than two autopsies are needed by a county, the money will be refunded.

The court agreed that Dr. Erdmann's services were needed and financially attractive, and approved the resolution as drawn up by Judge Nelson.

County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley presented a report on the county's Revenue Sharing funds to the court. Disbursements from the funds during January and February totaled $251,649.75. Taken from the $372,689.27 in the account, that left a balance of $32,320.71.

Mrs. Nunley pointed out that the county had $50,000 inunused obligation funds.

The court agreed to transfer the $50,000 and the $32,320.71 into the general government category to cover obligations already made to that category, including $71,000 for the Walker property recently purchased

O'Neill Calls For Car Import Embargo

DETROIT (AP) - As the United Auto Workers began drafting a plan to shore up American Motors Corp., House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. took a sharply divergent approach on help for the ailing auto industry and called for an embargo of Japanese imports.

"If I were president...I'd fix the Japanese like they've never been fixed." O'Nell said Monday in an unusually harsh speech. "I would put a moratorium on automobiles, an embargo on automobiles."

tarily limited auto exports to the United States, but the U.S. government hasn't restricted imports even American though automakers claim that foreign competition is hurting sales.

Leaders of the United Auto Workers union agreed Monday in Milwaukee to open negotiations with AMC on an updated proposal for the company's hourly workers to lend the ailing automaker $150 million.

In the first direct meeting with company officials since the proposal was offered in November; AMC Chairman W. Paul Tippett, Jr. outlined the proposal to a delegation of 50 UAW officials headed by union President Douglas Fraser. The union officials agreed to negotiate with AMC but rejected the company's investment plan. Union leaders then gathered to draft a counterproposal, but Fraser said he was not sure when an alternate plan might be ready.

Company spokesman Richard MacCracken said AMC is willing to begin negotiations immediately, adding talks might begin in earnest this week. He said the updated plan was little different from the plan outlined. in November.

AMC, which lost $136.6 million in 1961, had proposed that employees invest 10 percent of their wages over 22 months to raise about $150 million toward the company's $1 billion product development plan. AMC said it would begin repaying the money, plus 10 percent annual interest, as early as 1984. MacCracken said that job-

Strake Makes Short Campaign Visit Here

George W. Strake, Republican candidate for Lt. Governor of Texas, stopped in Hereford Monday for a brief meeting with local voters at a meeting of the Deaf Smith County Republican Women organization. Strake, grandson of a Houston cotton man is on a two-day swing through the Panhandle area, and will conclude his visit to the area today in Lubbock.

Other stops on the swing included Springlake, Plainview, Floydada, Ralls and Idalou.

Strake, 46, is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame. He was an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1976, and was named campaign chairman for William Clements in 1978.

He was appointed Secretary of State by Clements in 1979, and served until October 5, 1981 when he resigned to announce his intent to run for Lt. Governor.

Strake said that the Lt Governor of Texas is the most powerful number two man in the nation, and he favors a limiting of the number of years a person may serve in that capacity.

"One of the first things I would do would be to introduce legislation to limit

Strake said that one of the main reasons he chose to run for Lt. Governor was Hobby's "lack of leadership." He said Hobby probably could have saved the recent water fund bill which was defeated statewide.

"It was drafted poorly," Strake said. "If he had had any leadership at all he would have re-done it to have it drafted clearer so the people would have really understood Strake also said that plans for the future have to formulated now in the wake of predictions of great population growth in Texas.

"We will grow by 50 percent over the next 20 years," he said. "It is projected that Texas will have 22 million people by the year 2,000, and we need to get on with the business of getting plans forgrowth."

Strake, son of a pioneer oil operator, has carried on the oil business after his father's death in 1969, but says he is not a novice to the ranching business. He has owned a ranch in Colorado for 13

Overdose Caused Belushi's Death

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) - Friends and family of John Belushi gathered near his home on Martha's Vineyard, where his body was brought for burial, while reports surfaced in Los Angeles that the young comedian's death was caused by a drug overdose.

The comedian's body was flown to the island retreat off the coast of Cape Cod on Monday and his wife, Judith Belushi, and about 20 friends arrived by ferry Monday night. They were expected to be joined today by some of Belushi's former co-stars on television's "Saturday Night Live" at a private viewing of the body and funeral services.

The Los Angeles Times, meanwhile, reported today that a source in the coroner's office said Belushi, whose nude body was found in a Los Angeles hotel room Friday, died of complications from a cocaine overdose. ABC News also reported that sources said a drug overdose killed him, and said the drug was "probably cocaine." The Los Angeles coroner's office said it would have no comment on the reports, in reply to repeated telephone

Like many celebrities, the 33-year-old TV and movie comedian had sought privacy on Martha's Vineyard, off the coast of Cape Cod. He spent the last three summers at his vacation home on the Chilmark oceanfront, which he bought in July 1979.

Burial was to be at Abel's Hill cemetery, located about one mile from Belushi's home.

Many residents recall seeing Belushi jauntily driving around the island in an open jeep. At night "he would often be seen at The Ocean Club in Vineyard Haven, hanging around the bar, making people laugh," said Peter Simon, a photogapher and resident of the island, which has a yearround population of about 10,000 and a summer population about five times as large. Belushi often was an unannounced performer at the Hot Tin Roof, an island rock club partially owned by Simon's sister, Carly.

"I've seen the serious side of him, but that was rare." said Simon, who said he was with Belushi about 15 times over the three summers.

Fraud Charged In Guatemala Election

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) With the government's military candidate for president leading by 46,000 votes, two of his civilian opponents called on the public to demonstrate today in Guatemala City's main square to support their charges of vote fraud.

Gen. Angel Anibal Guevara held his lead all day Monday but apparently was not going to get the majority needed for election. The outgoing congress then will decide between the two top candidates, and since it is dominated by the rightist government coalition, Guevara's election appeared certain.

With 578 of 889 polling places reporting, the former defense minister had 176,825 votes, or 37.4 percent, the Electoral Council reported. Mario Sandoval Alarcon of 117,544, and Gustavo Anzueto Vielman of the Authentic Nationalist Center was a distant fourth with 48,196.

Maldonado Aguirre held a news conference Monday night to air their charges that the voting Sunday was rigged by the military-dominated government. They demanded a new election within 60 days and called on the public to support them with a demonstration late this after-

Fire Believed Accidental

HOUSTON (AP) - Investigators probably will conclude that the hotel fire that killed 10 people was accidental, according to the supervisor of the Fire Department's arson division.

"From all indications, we're leaning toward an accidental fire," supervisor Paul Cline said Monday.

Deputy Fire Chief Leonard Mikeska said the fire probably started in an overstuffed chair in Room 404 of the Westchase Hilton and that a cigarette was a possible cause.

The fire early Saturday morning was confined to the single room, but thick smoke from the blaze spilled into the rest of the hotel. Medical examiners said all 10 victims died from smoke inhalation.

Investigators also are continuing to look into whether hotel employees were adequately trained in the use of the hotel's alarm system. Fire officials said a hotel clerk, James Harvey, apparently was not familiar with the system and repeatedly shut the alarm off Saturday morning before it activated the general alarm.

Mikeska said the alarm shuts down the hotel's ventilation system and buzzes the front desk for two minutes before sounding a general alarm in the guest rooms. The two-minute delay was designed to give the hotel a chance to confirm the fire or turn the guest alarm off if no fire is found.

By repeatedly shutting off the buzzer at the front desk, Harvey also reactivated the ventilation system, which drew the lethal smoke into other parts of the hotel, officials said.

Second Brother Dies Just Before Rescue

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) - A Continental Airlines pilot kept himself and his brother alive for three days after their light airplane crashed in the snowswept Colorado Rockies, then watched his brother die hours before help

William Clayborn, 39, of Dallas, was in stable condition and "continuing to improve" today at Aspen Valley Hospital, where he was brought after being plucked from the 11,700-foot mountainside by a helicopter and rescue workers on Sunday. He suffered frostbite, exposure and numerous cuts, a spokeswoman said.

Richard Clayborn, 38, of Fresno, Calif., died Sunday, his brother told a National Transportation Safety Board investigator. Pitkin County sheriff's deputy John Unger said rescue workers delayed retrieving the body on Monday because of the high avalanche danger at the site.

The brothers carved a snow cave under a wing of the single-engine Mooney after Thursday's crash, said NTSB investigator Gary Mucho. Clayborn refused to talk with reporters on Monday.

Envoy Arrives In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib arrived today from Israel on what could be the last leg of a Middle Eastern tour to head off a war between Israel and Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

Lebanon's state radio said the American troubleshooter will have a lunchtime meeting with President

Elias Sarkis and later confer with Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan and Foreign Minister Fuad Butro

Israeli officials said Monday that Habib appeared confident that there would not be an outbreak of fighting between Israel and the Palestinians, and felt that his mission had been accomplished.

Last July, Habib helped mediate a truce to end two weeks of cross-border fighting between Israel and the guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The two sides have been accusing each other of planning renewed attacks, and Habib came on his fifth Mideast shuttle in a year to pacify the situation.

Habib has traveled to Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Syria and Egypt and has made several stops in Israel and Lebanon on his latest tour.

Man's Body Pulled From Trinity River

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) - An autopsy was scheduled today for a 26-year-old Euless man whose body was recovered from the Trinity River northwest of Palestine.

Authorities identified the man as David Anthony Hanzelka. Justice of the Peace Charles C. Lee said Hanzelka was identified through personal papers in his possession.

Fishermen at the Trinity River discovered the body, which authorities said had been in the water for at least five days before it was recovered on Monday.

Besides choosing a successor to President Gen. Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia, who was barred by the constitution from re-election, the voters also balloted for the vice president, 66 members of congress to take office July 1 and municipal officials. No

The leftists boycotted the election, saying their candidates would be killed by right-wing death squads and the voting was a rigged farce to provide a facade of support for the government.

The United States indicated a clean election could influence the resumption of arms aid to the government, which was suspended in 1977 because of the country's human rights record. Church and human rights groups estimate that 300 people a month were killed in 1981 in left-right political violence, and 500 in January 1982.

Reagan's proposal to kill Clements said that he told Reagan, "In my judgment, the Reagan administration does not have an energy policy. If you disagree with that, tell me what it is."

He said Reagan did not answer. Clements, a wealthy oilman, said he has watched the progress of every president since Lyndon Johnson. There is no more of an energy policy now than there was "under LBJ in the '60s," he Magnificent Yellowstone was never more so the February day Bill Nielson took friends on a snowmobile tour of the park. When Old Faithful erupts in frigid mountain air it appears twice its size.

And the splendid herds of elk and buffalo, some moose, sheep, deer ... the flocks of geese and swans ... held the visitors enrapt, mesmerized by nature's incomparable masterwork.

Then, after a lazy loop of Yellowstone in snowmobile, the party turned back toward Cody, Wyoming.

At Fishing Bridge they saw a young woman park ranger and two men who might have been rangers standing on the bridge.

Below them, a buffalo had broken through the river ice and was struggling for its life. The men were taking pictures. "Why," the Nielson party wanted to know, "were they not trying to help the helpless beast or put it out of its misery."

The ranger replied, "That's not the way of the wild; better that nature take its course."

Bill Nielson demanded to know if park supervisors had been advised. They had been. "What are they going to do about it?"

"Nothing."

Former Residents Return

By LINDA CAUDLE Family News Editor

After being away from Hereford for about ten years, Patricia Weldon and her family are newcomers again since the middle of October. The Weldons lived in Hereford four and a half years before moving to Stephenville in 1972.

'Moving back has been real funny," says Patricia, "I recognize many faces, but can't quite put names with them right away - it's hard to remember after so long. So many of our old friends have moved away, too, and there are a lot of new people here."

Patricia's husband, Jerry, is with the Volunteer Purchasing Group, a farm chemical company, and works in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle. Their son, Kenny, is a freshman at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Co., where he plans to major in computer engineering or aeronautical engineering.

Cathie, a junior at Hereford High School, is busy with band, speech, ballet, basketball, voice, and guitar, as well as being active in the youth group at the First

After being captain of the drill team in Stephenville, and having gone to state in prose interpretation through her school there, Cathie has managed to make the move here quite smoothly, says Patricia. She had several friends from when they lived here before, and came up to visit several times during the summers. "The kids have accepted her so well, and she's made a good adjustment," she adds.

"As for me," comments Patricia, "wherever my family goes, I'm happy." She grew up in Louisiana, and loves the trees, but although she does miss them, Patricia states that it is nice to be back in West Texas. "The people here are so open and receive you so well," she says. "I also love to see the changing of the scenery during the growing season here," she says, "especially the wheat and maize."

Patricia enjoys canning and hopes to get a pardon going this year. She also wants to start a herb garden, and already has a place picked out for one. In Stephenville, she had a large herb garden, and grew a variety of spices, mints, and even catnip for Pasquillie, their cat. The Weldons also have a small dog, which was given to Cathie for Christmas. She named him Hubba, after the "Herd."

joyable hobby. "I bake on Mondays," says Patricia, "and send my son a goodie box every week. He enjoys that - and so do all the other guys in the dorm!'

Patricia loves to sew and design clothes for Cathie. "My mother always sewed." she says, "and I always said 'I'll never sew.' I didn't for quite a while, but when I got started, I really began to enjoy it." Patricia sews very quickly too, which helps because results can be seen much faster.

Patricia also likes to play the piano and read, and especially likes to play bridge. "That's the one indulgence that I do just for me," she says. "In Stephenville I was in two duplicate bridge clubs, one with just ladies, and one couple's club that my husband and 'I belonged to."

"As a family, we enjoy snow skiing," says Patricia. 'We went to Colorado a couple of weeks ago to ski and visit Kenny. We also enjoy going to sporting events," she adds, "and got here just in time for the football season. Kenny always played all kinds of sports while he was growing up - he presently plays football at the academy - and so we've spent many vears watching games."

"Another thing I enjoy is having kids come by just to visit," adds Patricia. "I love teen-agers. My kids and I have always had a nice relationship and have been able to talk and listen to each other. I think that's very important.'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am pleading with you to print this. It is about saving lives.

I read your column in two papers every day because one of them doesn't run the entire column, and I like to read everything you have to say. The paper that gives us the abbreviated version never runs the tag about the booklets you offer. Several months ago I phoned to complain about the cutting and the booklet omission, and the editor said, "Space is always a problem and we don't feel like helping Ann Landers sell anything.'

I want you to know that your new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," was the best $2 I ever spent in my life. It should be in every school library and in every home where there are children.

We were worried sick about our 15-year-old son, suspecting he was on drugs, but didn't know how to approach him. He was surly and secretive, doing poorly in school and went from being very quiet to rowdy and loud. We didn't care for his friends and wondered where he was spending his after-school hours.

I sent for your new drug booklet and it confirmed my suspicion. I searched his room from top to bottom and could find no evidence, so I decided to leave your booklet on his pillow with a note,"Please let us help. We love you. Mom and Dad."

Three days later our son came to us, booklet in hand, and confessed that he had been taking PCP, smoking pot and snorting cocaine. He said he was getting in deeper and deeper but didn't know how to quit. He had been shoplifting to get money for drugs and was sure he would

The problem is he has been coming over in the afternoons (he works the night shift) and waits for them to come home from school. I'm ashamed to tell you I still and care for him. NOTED HYPNOTISTS IN HEREFORD TO HELP SMOKERS & THE OVERWEIGHT

Director of Techniques for Living Are you overweight or a cigarette smoker?

Have you tried to lose weight or stop smoking, only to fail time and time again? If you find yourself answering "yes" to either of these questions then the Techniques For Living Seminar, under the direction of Wade M. Genthner F.A.I.H. at The Ranch House (formerly Dickies Restaurant), West Highway 60, will be the place for you to be on Monday, March 15 Techniques For Living will be conducting their famous Lose Weight - Stop Smoking Seminar which has helped thousands of people throughout the United States. Techniques For Living is a national organization dedicated to helping Americans solve these and other problems that have kept them from enjoying their lives to the fullest.

The subject of numeous newspaper and magazine articles as well as television appearances, Mr. Genthner and his staff have been conducting these seminars throughout the country. In a comprehensive and fascinating three hour program, those who attend the seminar experience the relaxing and beneficial effects of clinical hypnosis. Not only do people permanently lose weight and stop smoking as a result of the seminar, they also report that they sleep better, feel more energetic, and generally enjoy life more than they had previously. Mr. Genthner's skill is clinical hypnosis was noted by Dan Rather of CBS' "60 Minutes", who referred to him in a nationally televised report as a well-trained and highly experienced hypnotist." "Clinical hypnosis is the easiest way there is to solve these problems," Genthner says. "Simply put, it helps to eliminate these types of problems per-

Genthner says that the reason clinical hypnosis is so successful is that "it removes the causes of problems, not just the symptoms." For example, he explains: "People who are overweight go on diets. A diet is only good for as long as you can follow it. Once you stop the diet you regain the weight. Hypnosis is permanently because it eliminates the causes of overeating, not just the symptoms." The same holds true for smokers where the need to prevent cravings for cigarettes or weight gain is just as important. Both problems are covered at the seminar, and each seminar leader is personally trained by Mr. Genthner. Further information can

AUSTIN-When a mobile home owner rents space on which to park a mobile home. the home owner should be well informed about making improvements. Most leases for space are for only a short period-six months or a year.

If there is no lease, then the home owner may be required to move upon thirty day notice. If the home owner wishes to landscape, or to build a driveway, carport, patio, porch or another room, the home owner should have a written and signed agreement with the park owner that improvements may be removed legally by the home owner, or that the park owner will reimburse the home owner for such improvements if the home owner is required to move.

Recently a mobile home owner from the Valley brought a problem to the attention of my office. She had lived in a mobile home park for several years and had made many improvements to the lot which she was renting. The park ownership changed. The home owner has received notice that she must move within 30 days. She has no lease or understanding in writing. Her addition to her mobile home probably will break up if moved. In fact, the lot owner could raise the question of whether she could legally remove the addition which is attached to the land. More than 200 other people live in this park. Moreover, the new land owner could have brought the land to use for another purpose and required everyone without a lease to move in 30 days. In this case, the Attorney General's office can do very little other than to alert mobile home owners that such a situation could occur. The cost of buying and repairing mobile homes is becoming more expensive, as is almost everything else. Any number of problems may be created by moving a mobile home. Mobile home buyers and owners are protected by state and federal laws to some extent, but mobile home residents should protect themselves where possible. Before any document is signed, the mobile home buyer or owner should read, understand and agree thoroughly to what the document says that he or she is to sign, and if possible, have a lawyer approve any agreement the home owner plans to enter into

Appellate Judge Says He Could 'Pull The Switch' Himself

By KATHY BAKER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Truman Roberts has frequently dissented when his colleagues affirmed death sentences. But he said there were times during his career as a trial judge when he could have executed the criminal himself

"I never had to sentence anybody to death," Roberts said in an interview at his office in the Texas Supreme Court Building.

"But there were several cases, about three - where female children were abducted and brutally raped - I could have pulled the switch on one of those guys and never looked back.

Will Gray has spent about 25 years of his life battling capital punishment. Currently, the Houston defense lawyer has more than two dozen clients on death row, cases he took on appeal after the money ran out and earlier lawyers dropped their cases.

"I don't think it's right," Gray said. "Most of them up there on death row can't hire lawyers and had courtappointed lawyers. There's nothing fair about it. I just think it's wrong." Gray and Roberts are only recent voices of an old dilemma - between society's need to protect itself from brutal criminals who show no hope of reform, and a belief that if society says murder is wrong it should not itself murder in the name of justice.

But arguments for and against the death penalty easily leave moral ground and head for more practical

The margin of error in our present legal system haunts many attorneys, including Houston defense lawyer Percy Foreman. "The law should not take away from any individual anything that the law cannot restore upon proof of error," the 79-year-old attorney said in an interview. "A man once executed is executed for good." One defense lawyer tried unsuccessfully - to overturn his client's death sentence on grounds execution would deny him a constitutional right to seek recovery for false conviction. A question that Bishop Vincent Harris of Austin once posed to a legislative committee has been used by defense attorneys quizzing potential witnesses in capital murder trials - "Wouldn't you rather see a thousand criminals go free than to see one innocent person go to the electric uniformly answered "yes," then sentenced the attorney's client to die.

In a recent capital murder

But former Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance turns that argument on its head: "I would rather save an innocent life by putting somebody guilty to death," he said from his private law office on an upper floor of a Houston skyscaper.

"When a person determines to take another human being's life, where there is no reason - it's not in the heat of emotion, satisfies no reason, it's just pure meanness or lust - when it's under those extreme circumstances, he's really made the decision. He's forfeited his own life,"

Foreman said it's not that simple. "Life is too precious to be at the disposition of an individual, whether he be vested with some official title or otherwise. The Scripture does not say 'thou shalt not kill, except in groups of 12.' It simply says 'thou shalt not kill."

After the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the death penalty in 1972, Texas came up with a new law that applies only to murder and only in five specified types of cases. And after conviction, before recommending a death sentence, jurors must answer "yes" to three 'special issues," including whether the defendant is likely to commit a violent crime in the future.

Those new conditions satisfied the U.S. Supreme Court, and in 1976 they upheld But Gray says the law still

"The procedure in Texas is geared to produce the death penalty in these kinds of cases," he said. "Proportionately more of the people who receive the death penalty are blacks and Mexicans. All these Anglos (jurors) think they're more likely to commit crimes of violence to start with.

"So they've got two strikes against them going in. It callous killers now under sentence and a license for future killers to prey upon society with impunity," said Fort Bend County Sheriff R.L. "Tiny" Thornton.

He was not quite right. Most of the death row in-mates had their sentences commuted to life. Others got new trials, but none was simply released.

"I think it's pitiful," said practically guarantees the death penalty for anybody who's black or Mexican." Roberts says he gives jurors more credit than that. "I think most juries are very, very careful," he said. 'They've got to get down in their consciences."

Texas Department of Corrections officials say the present ethnic make-up of death row inmates is 52 percent white, 37 percent black and 11 percent Mexican-American.

But the judge does agree "future the that dangerousness" issue is a touchy one.

"I can't ever see putting a person to death on the basis of some psychiatrist going in and interviewing somebody and testifying that this person is likely to commit crimes of violence in the future," he

After the Supreme Court's 1972 decision, many Texas law officers decried the ruling as an invitation to criminals.

"This means amnesty for then-Harris County Sheriff C.V. "Buster" Kern. "It's going to cause crime to increase. A lot of people, if they knew they were facing the electric chair, would think a long time before pulling the

And that is one of the most argued questions about capital punishment - is it a

"Common sense tells me it's a deterrent," Vance sait And common sense tells me there will still be murders even if we have executions; But I just don't think we'd have as many capital murders, by a long shot."

Foreman said, "If we're going to give the death penal ty the purpose of deterring crime, we ought to execute hot check writers. They're the ones who persistently and forever keep writing checks. That would deter crime. course, we rebel at the very suggestion. But therein lies the inconsistency of the law."18

Said Gray: "It doesn't mat ter if they kill all of them. They're still going to have the same amount of capital crimes, unless they attack the social problem, which they're not going to do. It's just a cosmetic deal. It's easier to kill them than attack the social problem tack the social problem.

"You can't convince anybody one way or the other," he said. "If you're a killer, you're for it, if you ...ren't, you're against. Most people are killers, but they don't see themselves that wav."

Survivors-The Forgotten Victims

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) -They are often the forgotten crime victims - the survivors who bear the scars of pain and grief after losing a loved one to criminal violence.

None suffer more than the relatives and friends who live in wake of the often brutal, sense-shocking murders that brought the death sentence down on 165 men and two women in Texas.

For some, it is the anguish of words unsaid until too late. Perhaps it is the agony of imagining the victim's last, harrowing minutes.

- A nurse left bleeding and nude for four days in a ravine near San Antonio, who clung to life 14 hours after being found.

- An attractive 20-year-old woman engaged to be married, shot in the head at pointblank range inside a car trunk.

- The store clerk who thought his robbery ordeal was over, only to die needlessly after handing over cash to a gun-brandishing killer.

A policeman investigating a jewelry store robbery who drew his service revolver a split second too slowly.

After trials - where prosecutors help assure them the crime will not be forgotten they must wait alone and wonder if Texas will ever again execute anyone.

Survivors are frequently surprised at the long appeals process. Under Texas law, capital punishment cases automatically go through an exhaustive appeals process. "I thought they gave the death sentence right away. I thought it would take place and they would get it over with," said Mary Suarez, left a widow at age 23 when her husband, a policeman, was shot to death behind a burglarized store.

They had been married two

Matt Collier tossed a sixhitter, and the Hereford Whitefaces used a three-run outburst in the second inning to cruise to a 5-3 win over the Amarillo High Sandies Saturday. The win boosted the Herd to 3-0 on the season, while AHS fell to 0-2 after a 2-1 loss to Canyon earlier last

The win was highlighted by Collier's pitching, and a perfect day afield for the Faces, who played errorless ball. Collier notched five strikeouts while walking four AHS batters as he upped his personal mark to 2-0 this

Ken Cosper went two-forthree at the plate for the Whitefaces, while Mike Hill plated a pair of runs in the big third inning for HHS. Mickey Stengal also went two-forthree for the Herd, raising his season batting average to .600

The Sandies took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, but Collier settled down to give them a goose egg in the next four innings. The Whitefaces took a 3-1 bulge in the second, and made it 4-1 in the third and 5-1 in the fifth.

Amarillo scored twice in the sixth to make it 5-3, but Collier hung on for the win to keep Hereford undefeated.

HHS coach David Ashby said that he would probably start Stengal on the mound as the Whitefaces go on the road to Dumas this afternoon. The 'Faces will host seven other teams in their annual tournament this weekend.

Exercise misinformation

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is it harmful for women over 50 to jog, do jumping jacks and jump rope? I attend an exercise class four or five times a week and we do these, plus stretching and strength-building exercises. We do these for 40 minutes be 54 in another month. A friend told me her doctor told her these exercises are very harmful for women over 50. She said a woman's bladder will fall and she will have kidney and bladder troubles, also trouble with the female organs.

Is this true? I don't want to give up the exercising but I don't want to hurt myself

DEAR READER - The advice your friend got is a good example of exercise misinformation. There are very few exercise programs that are entirely safe for all people. But exercises such as jogging and rope skipping will not harm a woman of 50 if she is in good health to begin with. They will not cause her female organs to fall out or her bladder to drop unless she already has weakened pelvic muscles and structures that permit this anyway.

A dropped bladder and female organs that drop do so because of a rupture.

They are really hernias. They tend to drop or rupture whenever there is increased pressure inside the abdominal cavity. A bowel movement is more apt to increase abdominal pressure than jogging. I am not recommending that women should not have bowel movements but this points out how ridiculous such comments really

Obviously if a woman does have a rectocele (ruptured rectum into the vagina), a cystocele (bladder rupture) or prolapsed uterus she may need to take special precautions or she may and often should have a surgical repair of these hernias. Telling her she can't exercise isn't the answer.

until we got married and now I get them as regularly as he does. I understand cold sores are caused by the herpes simplex virus which I have apparently caught from my husband. Is there anything we can do to prevent the onset of cold sores? What do you suggest for treatment? Also we have two small children and I would welcome any suggestions you could give me about preventing them from getting these painful sores their father and I have suffered

DEAR READER - Cold sores have been around a long time. They are caused by herpes simplex and are spread by physical contact. Studies suggest that 30 to 90 percent of the population have had the infection by the time they are young adults. You need to know that it is not transmitted through the air. Kissing usually spreads the cold sore variety. The virus (type 1 or 2) can be spread by hand contact.

Your doctor may be able to give you some local medication to help relieve pain. But the big hope is that one of the new antiviral agents will be able to safely eradicate the virus.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had a gastric ulcer operation a couple of years ago, also a small section of my stomach was removed. Will drinking four or five ounces of sweet vermouth mixed in cranberry juice every day be harm-ful to my stomach? I also use Granola and bran and prunes frequently. Lately I have been having pains in my stomach and am wondering if all of these foods are causing them. I am 69 years old.

DEAR READER - Any beverage that contains alco-hol should not be used by anyone who has either a gastric or duodenal ulcer or for that matter any form of

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY - Do you have any advice for getting rid of food odors in plastic containers? — L.G.

DEAR L.G. — One of the following Pointers should do the trick. 1) Soak containers in a solution of water and baking soda. 2) Wash containers with vinegar. 3) Let the containers air out in the sun: 4) Wrap a little charcoal in a piece of newspaper and close up the container for several days. 5) Scent the containers with a less objectionable aroma: put in a cinnament stick or a few cloves or wine out with a couple a cinnamon stick or a few cloves, or wipe out with a couple drops of vanilla extract. 6) Rub the inside of containers with lemon juice. And if all else fails, and the problem is really serious, I've heard that burying the open containers in clean soil for a week will destroy odors. Haven't tried it, but any port in a storm! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I've found a way to get crayon marks off walls that really works. Rub the marks with a DRY paper towel until the color is dull and faint. Then, spray on a commercial all-purpose cleaner and rub with a damp sponge. The marks will be completely gone. — DONNA DEAR POLLY — To remove the odor from the underarm area of clothes, wet the fabric, then rub with a bar of deodorant soap. Launder as usual. Works every time! — MRS. G.B.

DEAR POLLY — Towel hangers that fasten onto the wall with suction cups usually loosen after a time. To make them stick again, put vegetable oil on the insides of the cups and press them back into place on the wall. This will hold for a long time. When the cups come loose again, repeat. — MRS.

A.R.

DEAR POLLY — To keep my pins and needles handy, I stick them into a cork. They stay neat, safe and secure in my drawer of odds and ends. — SHARI

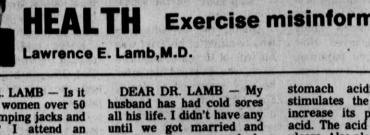

DEAR POLLY — To keep gloves or mittens from getting lost, especially when you put them away for the season, clip them together with a clothespin. They'll be easy to find without any rummaging around to find the missing glove. — VERONICA

DEAR POLLY — I bought my husband three 100 percent wool shirts. One of these shirts is very itchy and scratches him. The other two are all right. What can I do to remove the itchiness? I've been having these expensive shirts dry cleaned, but it's very inconvenient for me since we live so far from the cleaner. Can these shirts be washed? — FRIE-DA

DEAR FRIEDA — To answer your last question first: Yes, the shirts can be washed. In fact, that may well be the answer to your first question as well. Woven wool shirts can be washed by hand in cold water, using a mild detergent designed for hand washing delicate fabrics and wools. Be sure you rinse very thoroughly in several changes of cold water. Try adding a dash of fabric softener to the final rinse water (don't pour it directly onto the fabric), which should make the shirt less scratchy. Vinegar added to the final rinse is also very good for softening wools. I've found that handwashing, especially when a little vinegar or fabric softener is used, usually leaves wools much softer than dry cleaning. Hope all this helps. It should certainly save you some money on your dry cleaning bills! — POLLY

While the administration is budgeting extra billions for U.S. arms to catch up with the Soviets, figures for total East-West expenditures suggest that the NATO allies have consistently outspent the opposition. Warsaw Pact spending has been rising steadily, however, while NATO's has been erratic. Figures are in 1979 dollars and taken from "World Military Expenditures and Arms Transfers 1969-1978," published by the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and the 1981 report of the Secretary of Defense to Congress.

'Candy Man' Vows To Profess Innocence At Hour Of Execution

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas
(AP) — Even the hardened convicts on death row, all condemned for murder of one kind or another, were repulsed by Ronald O'Bryan's crime. They taunted him as "the Candy Man" and refused to associate with him when he arrived.

That was 71/2 years ago. Today, O'Bryan says he has no trouble getting along with the others, whose memories of the Halloween crime may have faded with time.

Most of the 165 men on death row arrived after O'Bryan was already here, and may not be fully aware of what happened on that rainy Thursday night in Deer Park, Texas, Oct. 31, 1974.

For that matter, no one, except perhaps O'Bryan himself, has all the answers about that night - and if he knows, he intends to take the information to the grave with him. For he insists to this day that he is innocent of fatally poisoning his 8-year-old son, Timothy. He vows he will not change his story at his hour of execution.

"My last words would be no different than what I've said all along - I still maintain my innocence," the slightly overweight, 6-foot-tall convict said in a recent interview at the Ellis Unit of the Texas

Department of Corrections where condemned men are

So far, O'Bryan's appeal has gone all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. Not only was it turned down each step of the way, in one rejection a Texas appeals court judge wrote, "A more calculated and cold-blooded crime can hardly be imagined."

The jury foreman at O'Bryan's trial said the evidence that the Deer Park optician murdered his son and intended to poison his daughter too in hopes of collecting more than $60,000 in life insurance policies was "overwhelming."

Since then, O'Bryan has had one execution date, Aug. 8, 1980, but his courtappointed attorneys won a stay to give them time to prepare a new appeal.

O'Bryan, 37, claims he did not know that the "Giant Pixie Styx" he fed his son that night was impregnated with cyanide. Prosecutors said he put the poison there himself. The chilling story shocked

Houston suburbs of Pasadena and Deer Park, where it ended the tradition of "trick or treating" for a time. Even today, neighbors say, only newcomers dare let their children knock on strangers'

the nation and scarred the doors on Halloween night.

O'Bryan was at home alone with his kids, Tim and 6-yearold Elizabeth, after having taken them on a trick-or-treat outing that night. O'Bryan's wife was away visiting a friend.

Earlier, O'Bryan had promised his youngsters one piece of Halloween candy each if they behaved. Now they were in their pajamas, ready for bed, and it was time for the payoff.

O'Bryan held the brightly colored plastic straw and watched as the powdered candy poured into the boy's eager mouth. O'Bryan told a detective when the candy stopped coming out, he rolled the straw between his hands to prompt out the last bits. Tim complained the last gulp did not taste good, so O'Bryan gave him some Kool-Aid to wash it down. The little girl, who is now 13, did not eat her Pixie Styx.

Tim got sick at once and collapsed in his father's arms. The cyanide in the candy in the straw swiftly attacked his heart and central nervous system. He fell into a coma and died within an hour after arriving at a hospital.

O'Bryan, who was troubled with mounting financial debts but had recently enhanced life insurance policies on his children, figured he was $31,000 richer.

He says the circumstantial evidence against him was all a coincidence or lies told by witnesses who were coerced by detectives anxious to find a "scapegoat" for the sensational crime.

Among the 51 witnesses who testified at his trial was his wife of 10 years. Daynene Ruth, who divorced him after he was sentenced to death. She told jurors she knew nothing about the $20,000 extra life insurance on the children O'Bryan had bought less than a month before Tim's death. "She has come (to death row) twice, when I first got down here, with two specific purposes about property. She wanted me to sign property to her. That's all," he said. He said he has not seen his daughter since his arrest.

"She was 6 when this happened. I send her birthday cards, Christmas cards several cards each year, and I don't even know if she gets them. The initial ones I sent in care of my wife were returned to me," O'Bryan

O'Bryan's ex-wife has since disappeared from the public eye to escape the notoriety of her ex-husband.

"I know where she is. She's doing fine, raising her daughter. That's all I want to say about it," said Jim Bates, 40, the neighbor who was with O'Bryan the night the two men chaperoned their children on the fatal trick-ortreat outing along the treelined streets of a quiet

Pasadena neighborhood. Bates testified it was toward the end of the outing that O'Bryan began handing out the poison-filled candy

Things in the community have not been the same since. "It's become an entirely different neighborhood, and we date it from that period," said Carolyn Melvin, who still lives in the house on Donerail Drive where O'Bryan said a man with a hairy arm handed him the deadly straws.

Bates said O'Bryan lingered in the shadows of the Melvins' front porch after the children had rung the doorbell, gotten no response and run to the next house. O'Bryan then alighted from the darkened porch holding the straws, Bates testified.

Mrs. Melvin said she was at home at the time, but had run out of candy and had stopped answering the door. Her husband,, Eugene, has hairy arms, but he was at work that night at Hobby Airport, as several co-workers testified. Bates said he harbored private suspicions of O'Bryan at the boy's funeral on Saturday just two days later, but O'Bryan was not arrested until the following Tuesday.

In the meantime, 'Everyone wanted everyone else in the neighborhood to be guilty," Mrs. Melvin said. "It really caused hard feelings. There are very few of the original families still here."

But the Melvins and the Bates have stayed. They have remained friends through the years, perhaps drawn closer because of the bizarre crime that threatened each of them for a time.

The Bates' two older children, now teen-agers, were among five youngsters who received one of the poison-laced straws. The fifth child was 11-year-old Whitney Parker, who knocked on the O'Bryans' door later that night with some other children and testified that O'Bryan held up the last Pixy Stix and said "Who wants this?"

"I said, 'Me! Me! I go to your church," the boy testified. He was handed the lethal straw, but only Timothy O'Bryan actually ate the substance. The others were warned in time after Tim's death.

In his solitary cubicle in the J-23 cell block of death row, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, showing the trace of a middle-aged paunch at 210 pounds, does sit-ups and push-ups to keep his weight under control.

He reads, watches television and hopes for the day he may win a new trial. One point he harps on is the fact that prosecutors never said where he was supposed to have purchased the cyanide or the candy.

"Prove something to me," he complains in a highpitched voice. "Prove I bought the candy they said was used. Prove I bought some cyanide somewhere. Don't just say, 'Well, we think this is where he got it.' If you can prove any of those things, then I will have no argument."

Keeping The Legacy Of Ayn Rand Alive

NEW YORK (AP) - She was a small woman with an iron spine and a keen mind, a Russian immigrant who became an exultant and tireless advocate of rational selfishness, godlessness and pure capitalism.

Now Ayn Rand is dead at age 77.

But her controversial heroes are immortal - fictional characters such as Howard Roark in "The Fountainhead" and Dagny Taggart in "Atlas Shrugged." And her followers vow to keep her philosophy alive.

'She challenged the philosophic tradition of over 2,000 years on all its essential points and provided an alternative," Leonard Peikoff, her long-time associate, said Monday. Her alternative included "reason as opposed to any kind of mysticism, including religion, and selfishness as opposed to any form of altruism or selfsacrifice."

One day, he predicted, her ideas "will change the direction of the world and create a new renaissance. In what period of time, I don't know." Peikoff, 48, also said that he had assured Miss Rand that he would continue her work.

Before her death Saturday, she made two requests: that her favorite music - gay, turn-of-the-century tunes be played when friends an end in itself." gather at the funeral home, and that the poem "If" by Rudyard Kipling be read at her burial today.

Miss Rand labeled her philosophy "objectivism." Its thesis was that only individual ability and effort account for real achievement and that laissez-faire capitalism provides the optimal environment for talent.

She despised altruism as personal weakness and believed it responsible for much of the world's misery. Selfishness was a virtue, she

Her views spilled from the mouths of her characters always a stubborn, proud, talented, atheistic man or woman whose "own happiness was the moral purpose of his life, with productive achievement as his noblest activity and reason as his only absolute."

There was Howard Roark, the architect in "The Fountainhead" who destroyed his own construction project because others had altered its design. "The Fountainhead" was rejected by 12 publishers, some of whom told Miss Rand it was too intellectual, too controversial and had no audience - a fact Miss Rand noted in her introduction to a 25th anniversary printing of the book.

After the book was published in 1943, Miss Rand wrote the screenplay and Hollywood agreed to cast her choice for the lead - Gary Cooper, who friends say bore a striking resemblance to her husband, Frank O'Connor.

In 1957, in the middle of her career, she wrote "Atlas Shrugged," a brilliant and bitter tale of how men and women of selfish integrity escape a world falling to pieces. Her haunting phrase "Who is John Galt" represented the hopelessness of the masses and the vision

She once said that "The Fountainhead" was an overture to "Atlas Shrugged," and she concentrated on nonfiction from then on. When she died, she was writing a television mini-series based on "Atlas Shrugged," which Peikoff hopes to finish.

The purpose of her writing, she once said, was "the projection of an ideal man. The portrayal of a moral ideal, as my ultimate literary goal, as

From the mouth of Howard Roark came this version of her philosophy:

"I do not recognize anyone's right to one minute of my life. Nor to any part of my energy. Nor to any achievement of mine. I am a man who does not exist for others. I recognize no obligations toward men except one: to respect their freedom..."

In her own life, Miss Rand was most like Dagny Taggart, the heroine in "Atlas Shrugged." She wrote in longhand on a blue pad in her East Side luxury apartment, and spent many hours with her stamp collection. She liked Agatha Christie mysteries, reading them over and over.

She was an admirer of television because she considered it potentially an intellectual medium. However, she made sure she had absolute control over the miniseries she was writing.
