Carter Meeting Proves 'Disappointing'

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

While much of the country was in a romantic mood in observance of Valentine's day Tuesday, dejected representatives of the American Agriculture farm strike movement came away from a meeting with President Carter at the White House Cabinet Room yesterday convinced that the administration will make no effort to help America's hard-hit farmers in the face of severely depressed farm income.

And though cupid may have been softening the hearts of many an American during the course of the day, Geraid McCathern of Hereford made it apparent in a telephone interview with the Brand late Tuesday that there was no love lost between the American Agriculture movement and President Carter in the wake of the session

McCathern, one of only three American Ag movement representatives allowed to attend the session with the President, had his own observations on just who he felt the President was heeding during the Tuesday gathering.

"I feel the President was listening to the President," McCathern stated bitterly. "We didn't expect much when we went in, but we came away disappointed. There was only a superficial show of attention, and we felt American Ag representatives were ignored. The administration has apparently made up its mind not to help the farmer, and to let the whole thing run its course. Survival is now in the hands of farmers. If we expect a fair price for our commodities next year, we are going to have to cut production drastically," he added.

Ironically, American Agriculture requested the meeting with the President, but was allowed to send only three representatives to the White House, although six were originally

Spokesmen for the movement were also allowed only about four minutes to speak during the 45 minute session with the

The President took up much of the alloted meeting time with his opening and closing remarks, according to McCathern.

A total of some 20 farm groups were represented at the meeting, and Mcathern indicated that Farm Bureau and NFO spokesmen were allowed more speaking time than any other

McCathern was joined at the meeting by fellow American Ag representatives Bud Bitner of Kansas and Jim Kramer of

Carter opened his portion of the session with a 15 minute statement in which he praised Ag Secretary Bob Bergland and the current farm bill

"He told us Bob Bergland is doing a good job, and the present farm bill is sufficient. He didn't give any indication that any new measures would be implemented in the farm bill in order to alleviate the hardships under which farmers are now operating, said McCathern.

The Hereford farmer pointed out that one Carter statement was particularly disturbing to him.

'Mr. Carter said the present farm bill is a good one, and we should eventually see some better prices for those farmers who survive. With many farmers on the brink of disaster, that term 'survive' was pretty upsetting," McCathern commented.

Bitner, the lone American Ag representative allowed to speak during the session, was eventually given only four minutes to NFO president Orin Lee Staley of Corning, lowa credited the American Agriculture movement with a figurative role in setting up Tuesday's meeting, and told those present for the session, we owe American Agriculture's great debt of gratitude for their courage in pointing up problems in agriculture.

Joyce Robinson, a representative of Women Involved in Farm Economics from Montana also spoke in support of the American Agriculture movement, and it was following her statements that the President called a halt to the session.

McCathern reported that he got in only one question, and that at the conclusion of the session while the President was shaking

"I asked the President, if Congress passed legislation acceptable to the nation's farmers and ranchers, would he sign it. The President responded that he feels the present farm bill is sufficient and said he would have to review any such legislation before he could say if it would get his signature," said

McCathern observed that America's farmers are now more-or-less on their own in obtaining any improvement in farm

Whether any new farm law is passed or not, it is apparent we are going to have to cut production by 50 percent," said

He added that farmers will continue to lobby in Washington. with the American Ag movement giving testimony at House Agriculture Committee hearings today and tomorrow.

Senate hearings on the farm matter will get underway Feb. 23, and McCathern reported that American Ag representatives will continue to offer testimony during those hearings.

Asked about the "flexible parity" bill introduced by Sen. Robert Dole (R. Kansas), McCathern commented, "New farm legislation is being presented every few days and we are taking a wait-and-see attitude on what type of bills are presented. We will support any bill built around the original recommendation of American Ag.

The Hereford farmer stated grimly, "We have sort of taken the attitude of John Paul Jones on this farm issue. We have just Questioned about Carter's apparent indifference to the plight of the farmer, McCathern stated, "Carter and the administration are saying the exact opposite of what the Democratic platform that got him elected called for. The platform said Democrats were for parity prices for agriculture based on prices covering the cost of production plus a reasonable profit. I campaigned for Jimmy Carter and I voted for him, but this farmer would not vote

Begin Calls Warplane Sales Obstacle in Peace Negotiations

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today President Carter's plan to sell warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia was "an obstacle to peace negot.ations" and called on the United States to reconsider the arms

The proposed sale "is a grave danger to the chances of peace and to the security of Israel." Begin told the Israeli

He said sale of U.S. attack planes to Egypt would reinforce war threats sounded in the Egyptian press and make negotiations more difficult.

The United States "has to understand that the supply of aggressive weapons at this time cannot be other than obstacle to peace negotiations." Begin

Sources said Begin had made his feelings known on Tuesday to U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis and made an official protest about the arms decision. The deal also includes warplanes for Israel, but only about half the amount requested.

Begin brushed aside assurances that advanced F-15 planes in Saudi Arabia would not be deployed against Israel. 'No matter what the promises, these weapons will find their way into any new war and to the front itself," Begin said.

Begin also announced he would go to Washington next month for meetings with Carter on Mideast peace talks and the arms issue. No dates were announced.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman also was expected to press for reconsideration of the aircraft deal when he travels to Washington March 6.

Begin was replying in the Knesset to opposition motions contending that Israeli-American relations had fallen to a low point. The motions all were referred to committee on voice votes following Begin's speech.

The prime minister spoke of the 'unique relationship' between the United States and Israel despite what he called "serious and grave" arguments. Begin said he was confident the

World Population Growth Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) - The rate of the world's population growth has unexpectedly peaked and is now actually declining, according to reports from population experts Tuesday.

The decline was attributed mainly to "a sizable and generally unexpected decline in fertility in the poor countries of the world," according to Nick Eberstadt. an associate at the Harvard Center for Population Studies. This fertility decline is good news for the world - especially the poor world." Eberstadt told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Eberstadt reported that the rate of world population growth had reached a peak of 1.9 percent per year "somewhere around 1970" and was down to 1.7 percent in 1977.

"The drop in fertility means that world population will stabilize sooner and at a lower level than previously expected," according to the Eberstadt report.

By the year 2000, Eberstadt said, the world's population may rise from its present 4.1 billion to between 5.5 billion and 5.8 billion. Previous United Nations population projections estimated the world's population for that year of 6.5

In another report, W. Parker Mauldin of the Population Council in New York. said the decline in the birth rate has been accelerating. The drop in birth rates between 1970 and 1977 in less developed countries was three times as great as the drop between 1950 and 1970.

However, total growth in population will continue well into the next century. with the figure reaching perhaps 10 billion before the year 2100. Mauldin told a news conference. He noted that there had been no declines in the growth rate in Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nigeria and nearly Another report suggested that greater equality in income distribution had a significant effect on the birth rate. And in still another report it was argued that birth control programs played only a minor role in most poor nations.

But there was disagreement on this point among the experts. Birth control programs were said to be successful in Mexico and Columbia.

HISD Collects 93% of Forms

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Workers from the parental Involvement Office of the Hereford Independent School District have begun knocking on doors this week in the second phase of the district's language-survey plan, the HISD director of program development told the school board in its regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

'Ninety-three percent of the forms have been returned, which is excellent." Mat Manchee told board members. "I attribute this to the great press coverage we received on this.

'The office of Paul Abalos will be working the rest of the week in getting the other seven percent of these forms returned

Survey forms were sent home with students early last week. Parents were asked to indicate the language first spoken by the child, the language spoken in the home and the language most often spoken by the child.

The survey is the first step in a plan adopted by the district to place students on a scale showing language dominance. The Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education and Welare recently wrote Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder concerning deficiencies in Hereford's bi-lingual program in grades 4-12. Hereford does not, according to HEW, identify students with language barriers in those grades and has no programs to dcal with those having limited English-speaking ability. Programs will be developed throughout the year as committees meet, Manchee told the board

A survey form indicating Spanish to any one of the three questions will result in the child taking a language-assessment-scale test to determine if he is of limited English-speaking ability A woman attending Tuesday's board meeting expressed concern over the fact her daughter and son will have to take the test "and they make straight-A's."

She said both her children are bi-lingual.

"You can give it (the test) to everyone else but don't give it to my daughter and Holder explained to the woman that HEW "does not trust the Hereford Independent School District to make the decision.

The board in executive session Tuesday night following the three-hour open portion of the meeting granted new two-year contracts to school district administrators and principals.

Contracts were granted to Larry Wartes and Bill Phillips, assistant superintendents; Richard Robinson.

vocational director; Majorie Lassiter. special education director; Ed McCreary, director of special programs; Mal Manchee, director of evaluations, and Louis Montano, bi-lingual director.

Principals getting new contracts were Jerry Don George, high school; Bill McCarley, Stanton Junior High; Pat Hughes, La Plata Junior High; Robert Ray. West Central Elementary; Phillip Shook, Tierra Blanca Elementary; Howard Birdwell. Shirley Elementary; Charles Duvall Northwest Elementary; Rodney Laubhan, Bluebonnet Elementary, and John Poindexter, Aikman Elementary.

In open session, Holder explained what impact HEW regulations concerning the handicapped might have on the school district

The regulations will force the district to make all parts of all school buildings easily accessible to handicapped people. The board looked at two proposed calendars for the 1978-79 school years. Calendar "A" begins the school year on Sept. 5, ends it on May 31 and has 12 student holidays. Calendar "B" begins school on Aug. 28, ends it on May 28 and has 16 student holidays.

A calendar will be accepted at a future

The board hired Muleshoe assistant football coaches Lester Kirkland and Gary Goodin to join recently hired Don Cumpton (formerly of Muleshoe) in the 1978-79 school. Also hired were Delyte. Pratt, reading coordinator; Larry Walls, high school athletic trainer, and Jan Wilks, high school math teacher.

Becky Price was granted a leave of absence from the high school.

Trustees discussed the May dinner for past board members and appointed Holder and board members David Hutchins and James Gentry to the planning committee for the event.

The enrollment report presented to the board showed a total district student population of 5,283, six fewer than on Feb.14 last year.

The tax office report showed that January taxes collected totaled $212,478, with delinquents adding $3,530 for a $216,008 monthly total. The district has collected nearly $2.4 million in taxes this fiscal year, about 85 percent of the total

"We're about three percent below last year but we were a little late in getting the second notices out," said Fred Fox, tax assessor-collector.

The board gave the YMCA permission to use the Stanton gymnasium for a youth basketball program in the spring.

Snow Moves into Texas, Causes Driver Advisories

By The Associated Press

Much of North Texas looked today like one of those paperweights you shake to turn a tranquil landscape into a blizzard. Large white flakes of snow began falling just before dawn, obscuring visibility and cloaking highways in a slippery mantle. The wintry conditions prompted some schools - including Azle and Coppell, northwest of Fort Worth - to cancel classes and others to delay the opening bell until midmorning.

A travelers' advisory continued in the Texas Panhandle, where additional snow overnight added to the woes of drivers. A general snow cover of 1 to 3 inches

How To Live Better, Part III Borrowing Often Disastrous

Managing Editor

Joe is 27, married, the father of two young children and, although he holds a steady job, in debt up to his neck. Joe (a fictitious person) is typical of thousands of other folks who cannot pay their obligations.

It all started when he was 20 and single. he borrowed money for a new car, using his father as a co-signer. He opened credit accounts at a few stores, buying clothes and records and jewelry and all the other necessities....uh, niceties....a young person on his own needs to survive.

Joe wrecked his car then borrowed money from a finance company to have it repaired. Joe got married. Joe had a child. Joe bought a house, again borrowing what he needed after he put whatever savings he had mustered into the down payment. Joe had another child. Today, his outgo has exceeded his income. The bank and finance company refuse to rework his loans or consolidate his bills until he has acquired sufficient collateral and a satisfactory credit rating.

'There's not much he can do, except either make more or spend less." said Harlan Vander Zee, Hereford State Bank

Vander Zee acknowledged that in some cases, like Joe's, it is really too late to do either. Persons in that position usually are forced into second or third jobs, borrowing from relatives, or bankruptcy.

Joe's first late payment was the initial symptom.
"That's the first sign," said Paul Mason, Federal Credit Union manager. "After that comes refinancing the same loans. After that, putting up personal items for hock. They go through that process, then default 'If it reaches the late-payment point, the individual needs to sit down and talk to someone in his financial institution. Financial institutions are usually willing to go along with a lot of the circumstances if they'll just be pre-warned. "If he'd just tell us he's going to have a late payment or he's running behind. He shouldn't be embarrassed about it - all of us find ourselves in that boat at one time or another." Hereford's banks, savings and loans, finance companies and Credit Union all offer financial advice. But they usually won't help unless they are asked.

"There's certain specifics about making a budget that need to be known and adhered to," Vander Zee said. "We give advice....when it's asked for."

Most loaning entities do advise, whether they are asked or not, on the feasibility of borrowing money. If an individual has a poor credit rating or would go over his head in debts with another loan, the advice comes in the form of a rejection of his application.

"Before we make a loan to anybody," said Larry Alley, SIC Manager, "we have to see if they can handle their payments. We take what they make and subtract their living expense. food, clothing, utilities and payments, and add up everything "It would be to their advantage if they have 20 percent left

The first step to building a good credit rating and devising a budget plan, according to Mason, is to start a systematic over to cover emergencies."

"Everybody needs to, even younger people. If they could just put $2 a week or $5 a week into savings - if they'll budget to pay themselves first - they are on the right track.

Budget to save systematically. If you can do that, it not only helps you start off on the right road, it makes anybody in the process of lending you money take a favorable look at your situation "If a young person wants to get started, let him start a savings program first. The credit part can come along later." The secret for an adult to keeping a successful budget is to total all monthly expenses, then put twice that amount into savings, Mason said. "If it costs $1,000 a month for he and his family to live, he should have a minimum of $2,000 backup. Just breaking even is not the right approach simply because there are always those bills you haven't even thought were coming along. 'In buying a house, for example, people ought to look long and hard in the investment. There are so many different payments they don't see. The $350 to $450 house payments are just the tip of the iceburg."

Once the budget is started and the backup is established. the next step is sticking to the program, taking care not to exceed monthly expenditures, according to Bob Baker, loan officer at First National Bank.

"Don't break your budget because you're going to have to revise it. It's hard to stick to a budget but it's so important to

None of the loan officers interviewed by The Brand advocated bill consolidation as part of a budget program. "It's not the best route usually," Vander Zee said. "It's bad unless they can see where they can handle increased debt and refrain from creating additional debt until that is out of Mason said, "Usually, you're just prolonging the cost. The ause for bill consolidation usually is because an individual finds himself credit-bound."

Ann Landers Absurd Data

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work at the Legal Center for Battered Women in Chicago and am writing in response to "Just Plain Facts." She quoted a National Institute of Mental Health study asserting that domestic violence is directed at the husband as often as toward the wife. That study left many mistaken notions which I would like to correct.

First, the study used unscientific data, namely comic strips and nonrepresentative samples. It's fine with me if the author of this "academic" study is enamored with the Sunday funnies, but I find it appalling that she generalizes from the battering of husbands depicted in the comic strips to the incidence of domestic violence in the real world. Although there is a large body of evidence that injuries are much more severe when the husband attacks the wife and that the beatings usually occur continuously, over long periods of time, these facts were ignored perpetuates blindness to such ems, but it's harmful to women whose lives are endangered by domestic vio-lence. On the basis of the "findings" of this study, funding was refused for a badly needed refuge shelter for battered women in at least one major city.

At the Legal Center we do everything that can possibly be done for women through the law, but it is a "Band-aid solution" to a terrible problem. Often the police do not respond to a call for help from a battered wife, and when they do, they usually walk the guy around the block. That leaves the woman in the same position she was in before, except now her husband is angrier because she called the cops. If she signs a warranth, the odds are overwhelming that

1. The charges will be dropped because the states' attorney will convince her the case can't be proved.

2. The judge will remind the parties of their mutaul obligations, talk about "kindness.

and make up" when the woman has been hospitalized as a result of a beating and is trembling with fear.

Woman abuse is an overwhelming yet much-ignored problem in our society. Anything that diminishes the seriousness of the problem endangers the lives of women, children and even the men who are caught up in it. We, and numerous other groups, are trying to provide resources and options, but "trendy" studies hinder our efforts to provide these women with justice, either in their lives or through the courts. I urge you to perform a badly needed public service and set the record straight by printing this letter. - Marlene Drescher, Legal Center For Battered

DEAR MARLENE: Rarely do I devote an entire column to a single letter, but I did today because I believe this subject is a serious one which needs to be explored from all angles, and you are entitled to ample space for an adequate rebuttal. Thank Ali was 22 and in his 20th pro fight when he won the title for the first time with a stunning seventh-round upset of Liston in Miami Beach, Fla.

There are some boxing observers, however, who feel that Spinks can pull a surprise. They feel his winning combination could be his youth and aggressiveness, combined with Ali's age and the fact that he has slipped as a fighter.

Ali's plus factors are his ability to take a punch, his long experience and his size. Ali, who stands 6-foot-3, 11/2 inches taller than Spinks, will enjoy a four-inch reach advantage and a 27-pound weight advantage.

'Real Pioneers Came Ahead of Our Time'

[Editors note: As a memorial to the Hardy M. Benson, who died Sunday. Mrs. Hattle Jones has submitted an article written by Mr. Benson and published in Texas Country Western Magazine in 1976].

This story is built around a remark made by a man sitting on horseback at about the turn of the century. But before I tell you what that man on horseback said, I would like to describe the surroundings in which he spoke. and I listened.

At that time we were living in a half-dugout dug into the bank of a small canyon about twenty miles below the mouth of the Palo Duro Canyon. Our small place was surrounded for miles in every direction by the very large pasture of the J A Ranch. My father was a farmer. He raised Indian corn, shelled it and been almost scalped by and sold it to the J A's as feed for their saddle horses.

We did not consider ourselves to be pioneers. The real pioneers came ahead of our time. They came in covered wagons, had hunted the buffalo and fought with the Indians. But when my people came to the Panhandle of Texas about 1892 they rode the train. They found that the Indians and buffalo were gone and in their place were cowboys and cattle. To my young mind, cowboys and cattle were a very poor substitute for buffalo and Indians. I thought it must have been great sport to have hunted the buffalo and with a horse-powered sheller them. But there were no Indians for me to be-almost scalped by. I was born fifty years too late;

In those days, there were many veterans of the Civil War. They told and retold the stories of that terrible conflict. From listening to them, I got the idea that it must have been great sport to have been a soldier and been almost hit by a cannon ball, as my grandfather had been. But the message of peace and love had now been spread to the ends of earth. There would be no cannon balls for me to be almost hit by.

This was the end of a century: naturally a time for taking a backward look. It was the end of been almost run over by a the century that had begun with stampeding herd of them, or to the old spinning wheel and ended with the spinning jenny. the power loom and storebought clothes. It was the end of a century that had begun with primitive methods of starting fire and it had ended with the match which could be ignited by friction on the seat of one's pants making the modern cigarette habit convenient. It was the end of a century that had begun with the speed of a horse being the fastest method of communication between distant points ever devised by man. It had ended with the telegraph and telephone. It was the end of a century that had began with the horse-drawn vehicle as the fastest method of overland travel ever devised by man. It had ended with the railroad which had wiped out the frontier.

It was about the year 1900 when a cowboy rode into our place. He was the man on horseback I spoke of in the beginning. He sat on his horse and talked as my father stood on the ground and I, a little shaver stood nearby. What that conversation was about I do not remember, but one thing that man on horseback said I do remember very well. He said. Everything has been invented that can be invented." Maybe it did look like everything had been invented. Inventors were playing with a thing called a horseless carriage. But that could only be a plaything for the rich. Then there were a couple of preacher's sons trying to build a heavier-than-air flying machine -and of course flying was reserved for the angels.

But they did make a success of that horseless carriage. I saw my first one a few years later. We had been to Clarendon to a 4th of July picnic and had started home. Just as we were leaving the outskirts of town we heard something go "Honk! Honk!" behind us. One of the kids in the back seat yelled, "It's an automobile!" My father took a firm grip on the reins to prevent the mules from running away. The thing pulled around us and sped on down the road.

That was a day of days for me. I had now seen one of those much-talked-about horseless carriage! But little did I imagine on that day how many of them I would see before my days were done. We got our first car in December of 1912. It was a Model T Ford. It could travel twenty miles per hour over the roads we had in those days - five times as fast as l

Tower Says Henry Grover Not Threat in Senate Race

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said Tuesday he does not consider Henry Grover a serious threat in the U.S. Senate race. "I have a strong base of support and I do not think it will be eroded away by his entry into the race." Tower told a news conference.

Tower added that he would think Grover, who made a surprise announcement Feb. 6 as an independent candidate. could not poll a very large vote, "not as high as the Raza Unida candidate."

In Tower's last senatorial campaign the Raza Unida candidate got about two percent of the vote.

"It is too early to make predictions but I feel I should win by a high percentage so five or six percent for an additional candidate will not affect me," he said "I also feel that it is just as likely he would take some votes away from the Democratic candidates also. Grover ran very strong in Harris County in his previous races."

Tower said he felt that any votes Grover gets likely would have been anti-Tower votes all along "I have been around long enough to realize that some GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart, people just don't love me." he said, "and in addition, labor has marked me for defeat this year. I consider this a very high Tower said the "reaffirmation of support from the Texas Republican Party has been tremendous." He said State who has differed with Tower previously on presidential nominees, was the first to call after Grover's entry and to offer his support. Then the next day a staff aide of Ronald Reagan called and offered his "good will ... I assume he was speaking for Ronald Reagan."

The Louisville Cardinals, the ation's ninth-ranked college sekthall team, marched to the seat of a different Drummer fuesday night and were rummed right out of the lead in e Metro 7 Conference.

This Drummer, named Sammy scored 25 points to go with Fico Brown's 24 as Georgia Tech shot a school record 66 percent - 31 of 47 - and upset Louisville 69-59.

Louisville Coach Denny Crum was properly impressed. "Drummer hit some shots mere mortals don't make," he said. "He ought to sign pro."

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds have given up their quest for pitcher Vida Blue and have decided not to take baseball Commissioner Bowie

Kuhn to court. Kuhn last month nullified an apparent trade which would have sent Blue from the Oakland A's to Cincinnati in exchange for minor league infielder Dave Revering and $1.75 million.

"We have tried to alter the trade through a talk with owner Charlie Finley of the A's, but without success" Bob Howsam. Reds president, said Tuesday. "Further, we do not wish to pursue the trade through the courts."

Howsam said that although Blue would have been a valuable addition to the Reds. we did not consider the Blue team. We felt we could win before we made this trade and we still feel that way."

Howsam concluded that the fans, as well as the ball club, are tired of legal hassles.

"The fan wants us to play baseball and that is what we intend to do," Howsam said. "We have informed the commissioner we do not intend to initiate a law suit in an effort to overturn his decision on the

"We want the baseball owners and general managers to understand clearly the concerns we have and make their own good judgements." Howsam said.

Kuhn's decision did not really address the Revering-Blue trade, Howsam said.

"It is the commissioner's effort to promote for the public record his personal belief regarding 'competitive balance." Howsam said. "And that's really what this decision should be called - the competitive balance decision." Kuhn turned down the deal, saying that trades involving such large sums of money were framework of the game to not good for the sport.

Other top Texas signees last week were tight end Lawrence Sampleton of Seguin. quarterback Charles "Booger" Brooks of Andrews, running back Brad Beck of Perryton, defensive back Adrian Price of Galveston Ball and lineman Joe Shearin of Dallas Wilson and Mike Baab of Euless Trinity.

Texas A&M was attempting to secure what Coach Emory Bellard called "a good crop," including 230-pound running back Milton Collins of Blooming Grove, tackle Kevin Kennedy of Conroe and running back Ro Wiley of Humble.
