

Reaction to Budget Still Bitter

By CLIFF HAAS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's top economic strategists are campaigning hard on Capitol Hill to reverse the bitter reaction to the president's deficit-ridden fiscal 1983 budget that has caused in Congress. So far, they've won no converts.

President Reagan, meanwhile, was scheduled to visit legislatures in Iowa and Indiana today as he stumps to build public pressure on a reluctant Congress.

Before flying to Minnesota Monday, Reagan formally sent Congress a $757.6 billion budget that projects record deficits of $98.6 billion this year and $91.5 billion for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

That left administration officials shuttling around Capitol Hill, briefing legislators and testifying before congressional panels.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, budget director David A. Stockman and Murray L. Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, were to make a joint appearance before the House Appropriations Committee today to explain the administration's spending plan.

Prior to that, Regan and Stockman planned to brief House Republicans. A meeting with conservative Democrats was scheduled in the afternoon.

Before leaving Washington, Reagan defended his budget proposals, saying they are "the second step...in our program to try and bring government spending back in line with government revenues."

But the harsh criticism that has greeted the budget since it was unveiled over the weekend continued.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called the deficit projections "shocking" and said the true figures are much higher.

"This is really a campaign budget," Byrd charged, saying that last year the administration "fed phony numbers into the computer, and they're doing it again."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, the top elected Democrat in Washington, scorned the president's "Beverly Hills budget."

After a short courtesy briefing at the White House, O'Neill said Monday that the budget shows the president "has forgotten his roots (and) associated with that country-club style of people."

But the president insisted: "It is not true that it (the budget) is balanced on the backs of the needy. We are still continuing to increase sizably our spending on social programs."

He added that he and others have been guilty of referring to the budget figures as cuts, whereas they actually are reductions in the rate of increase from the previous year's spending.

"Our programs are intended to direct the help toward the truly needy, to tighten up administrative procedures wherein people who do not have real need have enjoyed the benefits of these programs," the president said. "Do we honestly believe that someone whose parents earn in six figures ($100,000 or more) is entitled to have food stamps because they're going to college?" Reagan asked. "That's what's been going on."

Holubec Named Teacher of Year

Mel Holubec, a Hereford High biology and physical science teacher, was named Teacher of the Year at the local Texas State Teachers Association Banquet Monday night.

Holubec was one of nine teachers from each of the Hereford schools honored at the banquet. Other nominees for the award were Nancy Priest, Aikman; Mary Duvall, La Plata; Sammy Henderson, Stanton; Bonnie Decker, Shirley; Estelle Wiley, Bluebonnet; Helen Skypala, Northwest; Judy Phipps, West Central; and Betty Sue Worthan, Tierra Blanca.

Holubec is in his second year teaching at Hereford High. He began teaching in 1954 at Lockett Schools as a vocational agriculture instructor. He joined the Air Force and served 20 years, receiving a Meritorious Service Award and medals for commendation of service. Ten years of his military career were in formal classroom teaching.

He received his bachelor's degree from Texas A&M and a master's degree in public administration from George Washington University.

Holubec is a member of TSTA, Classroom Teachers Association, Kiwanis and is active in the Church of Christ. He is the junior class sponsor and serves on the communications committee at the high school.

Japanese Jet Crashes Into Bay, 24 Killed

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 with 174 people aboard hit a series of light poles as it came down for a landing and slammed into shallow water at the edge of Tokyo Bay today, killing 24 Japanese passengers.

After a day of changing casualty figures, a police spokesman said the other 150 passengers and crew members were rescued, but 78 were hospitalized in serious condition, and the rest were slightly injured.

The only foreigner aboard was a South Korean, who was slightly injured.

Seventeen minutes before the crash, Capt. Seiji Katagiri reported he was entering normal descent patterns as he neared the end of a domestic flight from Fukuoka, in southwest Japan. The sky was cloudless and head winds were moderate. But the jetliner clipped several stanchions extending out into the bay with landing approach lights and pancaked into the water at 8:47 a.m.

The nose section of the jetliner broke off and was partially submerged under the fuselage, which came to rest, comparatively undamaged, in the muddy water.

"There was a great shock and the front part of the plane was gone," said a surviving passenger.

Eight hours later, the last person aboard, a crew member who was not immediately identified, was rescued from the crumpled cockpit. Although all eight crew members survived, the pilot and co-pilot were seriously injured.

Although the plane was apparently too low as it came in to land, officials said the reason was not known. They speculated it could have been due to malfunction in the steering gear or the airport's instrument landing system, a sudden turbulence or pilot error.

Most of the seriously injured apparently were in the front of the plane. Many were covered with mud and sludge

County Rejects Paving Requests, Re-Apportionment Plan Approved

By BOB NIGH MANAGING EDITOR

Perhaps feeling the affects of a depressed economy and casting furtive glances at a reduced tax base in the future, the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court rejected two requests for road improvements Monday.

The court, acting upon a motion by Pct. 3 Commissioner Bruce Coleman, agreed on a resolution calling for the approval of the full court for new paving or caliche work on county thoroughfares. The act followed requests for paving on a section of Dairy Road and for improvements in the San Jose area.

A petition calling for the paving of Dairy Road eastward from Progressive Road had been submitted at the last court meeting in January. Pct. 1 Commissioner Bill Bradley said that he felt that the road was not in need of paving, but that "it does need some work on it."

Bradley proposed that the county dig a deeper drainage ditch on the southside of the road and toward its intersection with Progressive Road.

Coleman, also a member of the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District board, informed the rest of the court that due to new legislation the county is facing a reduced tax base of some $58 million this year over last year. The lower base results in the removal of cattle and farm machinery from the tax rolls.

"We are looking at a healthy tax increase sometime in the near future," Coleman said. "And these figures don't take into account any possible homestead exemptions granted."

Pct. 4 Commissioner James Voyles agreed to the court's careful monitoring of funds. "Until things get better economically I can't foresee the county paving any new roads and still managing the upkeep of them," Voyles said.

The motion also affected a request from residents of the San Jose area, who also sought improvements of roads in that area.

The county was informed by phone during the meeting that the U.S. Justice Department has approved the county's reapportionment plan as submitted last November.

The plan was developed by Southwest Polymetrics of Plainview under the direction of Plainview attorney Bob Bass.

The court informed Bass that payment for the services will still be withheld until accurate boundary line descriptions are submitted to the county. Bass agreed to get together with county surveyor Kenny Hagar to get the lines more accurately defined so that precinct line maps can be drawn.

In other action the court called for a special election to decide on making bingo legal in this county, passed a resolution on delinquent tax collection, and approved participation in the Panhandle Alcoholic Recovery Center. County Clerk B.F. Cain submitted certification of 449 signatures of county residents on petitions calling for an election on the bingo question. The petitions had been submitted last month, and 353 signatures were needed to force the court to call for the election.

The court agreed to hold (See COUNTY, Page 2)

Clayton Files Suit Following Scandal

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton is suing Prudential Insurance Co. and two FBI undercover agents, claiming the Brillab scandal caused him "great humiliation and embarrassment" and damaged his career as a public servant.

Clayton and two Austin attorneys were acquitted in October 1980 of charges stemming from the FBI's Brillab "sting" investigation of an alleged scheme to influence the awarding of a state employees health insurance contract.

Clayton's suit, filed Monday in federal court here, contended Prudential acted "with full knowledge of the purpose of the investigation and for its own business purposes."

The attorneys, Donald W. Ray and Randall "Buck" Wood, filed suit in Austin last week against Prudential, alleging the firm willingly participated in the investiga-

Snow fell across the southern Plains to the Ohio Valley today, with more than 6 inches of new snow reported in parts of Oklahoma and central Missouri.

Arctic air moved off southern Lake Michigan and across much of the northern Atlantic Coast, dipping temperatures to frigid lows.

A few snow showers were reported over western North Dakota, but for the most part, skies were clear and temperatures were below zero in the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley. Showers and thunder-showers continued across the lower Mississippi Valley. Skies were fair in most of the Western United States. Light snow was forecast for later today for the Great Basin and from the Ohio Valley and Great Lakes into New England.

Rain and a few thunder-showers were predicted from the Southeast into the mid-Atlantic Coast. Skies will be sunny in the extreme Northwest, the northern Rockies and the northern half of the Plains.

Local Woman Dies in Wreck

Pearl Hulsey, 37, 627 Avenue J, was killed in a two-vehicle accident north of Littlefield Monday when her car spun on ice and was broadsided by another vehicle.

The Littlefield DPS office reported that Mrs. Hulsey was southbound about a half mile north of Springlake when her car hit the ice and went into a spin. Pablo Morales, of Springlake was headed north and was not able to avoid hitting Mrs. Hulsey's car when it came into that lane at about 7:55 a.m.

Mrs. Hulsey was taken to Littlefield Medical Center and pronounced dead at 9:33 a.m.

Morales and his daughter, Hope, were treated and released at Littlefield Medical Center.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Rix Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Jay Conway, pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church, officiating.

Born Jan. 3, 1945 in Quitaque, Texas, Mrs. Hulsey had been a Hereford resident for 13 years. She was supervisor for Handy Hut, a part of Furrs, Inc. and was a member of Greenwood Baptist Church. She was married to Loyd Hulsey in Turkey, Texas in 1963.

Judge Dismisses Three Felony Charges Against Harrelson

HOUSTON (AP) — Three remaining felony charges against Charles V. Harrelson, a convicted hitman linked by federal agents to the 1979 slaying of a federal judge, have been dismissed.

State District Judge Thomas Roult on Monday dropped charges of bail jumping, possession of cocaine and possession of loaded dice against Harrelson.

Prosecutor Ted Wilson said the charges were dismissed because additional prison sentences would not extend the 40-year term Harrelson received recently for cocaine possession and the extra trials would not be worth the expense.

Harrelson, 43, was convicted in 1973 in the murder-for-hire of a Hearne, Texas, grain dealer.

While on parole, he was arrested in February 1980 here and charged with illegal possession of a firearm and cocaine and dice possession. He failed to appear for trial on those charges in July 1980 and was charged with bond jumping.

Candidate In Custody At Psychiatric Hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lowell Duke Embs, a gubernatorial candidate in the Republican primary, is being held in "protective custody" at a psychiatric hospital and has been removed as president of the San Antonio Fiesta Commission.

Embs, 52, an unsuccessful candidate for the Florida Legislature in 1984, was confined by court order Sunday to the San Antonio State Hospital after his arrest for alleged public intoxication.

Fiesta Commission Executive Director Davis Burnett Jr. confirmed Monday that Embs was removed as president because the its policies prohibit a candidate for public office from holding a commission leadership position.

Wilbur Littleton, a former King Antonio, was named by the board to replace Embs on the commission, which coordinates the 10-day Fiesta celebration each Spring, Burnett said.

Embs, the only Republican opposing Gov. Bill Clements in the primary, was arrested Friday by police in suburban Alamo Heights.

The public intoxication charge was dismissed by Alamo Heights Municipal Judge Richard Eyster when County Court-at-Law Judge Blair Reeves issued an order Sunday confining him to the state hospital.

Strangulation Ruled In Coed's Death

HOUSTON (AP) — A University of Houston coed whose partially nude body was found in a dumpster was strangled to death with a piece of her own clothing, medical examiners have ruled.

A garbage truck driver discovered the body of Elena Semander, 20, as he emptied a trash bin outside a southwest Houston apartment Sunday morning.

"It looks like her clothing — something like a black top — was wrapped around her neck," said Harris County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk following Monday's autopsy.

Police said they have no suspects or motives in the slaying.

Guillermo Shaw, an employee of a private garbage collection company, said he was emptying a trash bin into his truck when he saw "a leg go over," detective Paul Motard said.

Motard said Miss Semander had gone to a nightclub with a cousin, leaving about 2 a.m. Sunday.

Ms. Semander's car was found parked near the dumpster, with her purse and money inside, Motard said.

Miss Semander has studied at the University of Houston and was a scholarship soccer player at a college in Denver, police said.

"She was a superb young woman, very active in athletics," said Glenn Ballard, headmaster of The Kinkaid School, a private institution from which Miss Semander graduated and where both her parents are employed.

Company Fined For Fatal Accident

DALLAS (AP) — An investigation into an accident that killed one man and injured another when an elevator platform fell 28 floors has resulted in a $24,000 fine for alleged safety violations by a Mississippi company, officials say.

Dover Elevator Co. of Horn Lake, Miss., was cited for six violations of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 in connection with the Nov. 11 accident, said Les Gaddie, a spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Dallas.

Charles Grace, 27, of Hillsboro, was killed and Lonnie Norman, 24, of Dallas, was seriously injured when an elevator platform carrying the two men fell 320 feet to the ground. The two men were working in a high-rise building under construction in downtown Dallas.

Planes To Fly on Auto Fuel

Airplanes will fly on car gas; more plentiful and less costly.

The Experimental Aircraft Association has been flying a Cessna 150 and several other small airplanes on straight-from-the-pump automotive gasoline for five years.

EAA President Paul Poberezny has repeatedly requested FAA certification for this practice which would mean half-price gas for operators of general aviation aircrafts and conservation which would benefit us all.

Not yet. The bureaucracy, even under Reagan, remains cumbersome.

The FAA under Administrator Lynn Helms is no exception.

His priorities and preoccupations notwithstanding, through the sluggish bowels of the department things still move painfully slowly.

The FAA did allocate to the University of Michigan $75,000 to "study the feasibility" of using automotive gas in airplanes.

The university went through the $75,000 and announced "it won't work." They claimed the engine would vapor lock or gum up or both.

This judgment, mind you, entirely gleaned from outdated textbooks; not one flight test; not even an engine block test!

Ignored by the researchers was the fact that the EAA has flown its test aircraft for more than 2,000 trouble-free hours using only automotive gas.

Before others can fly their airplanes this cheaply, a supplemental type certificate must be issued by the FAA. As is, each piston plane is limited by a "type certificate" as to what fuel it may use. Prescribed is 80-87 av gas or 100 octane low lead av gas.

Since the airlines went to jets, aviation gas has been subjected to less quality control after it leaves the refinery—less than automotive gas.

So airplane drivers are not always getting the octane they're paying for anyway.

Following a recent meeting between Helms and Poberezny, the FAA Administrator ordered his power plant section in Obston to evaluate EAA research and report its findings by January 31, 1982.

The administrator is trying. Last I heard he was still waiting.

Every day such certification is delayed is costing aircraft operators unnecessary expense and unnecessarily depleting our reserves.

From another source, I have learned that many lightplane pilots have been flying illegally on "mogas"—tens of thousands of hours.

Meanwhile, the testing of automotive fuel in aircraft continues at the selfless expense of a small group of individuals through the EAA's Aviation Foundation and a contribution from Amoco. While the FAA procrastinates and the professors say "impossible."

One remembers that five years after Kitty Hawk there was a newspaper editor in Ohio still claiming "it never happened."

Stolen Car Recovered

A car stolen from the First Baptist Church parking lot Sunday night was recovered Monday in Clovis, N.M., according to Hereford police.

City Commissioner Bud Eades had apparently had his keys stolen from a jacket pocket earlier Sunday and when Eades left the Sunday evening service his car was missing also.

Police have two suspects in the theft.

A criminal felony mischief was reported by David Patrick, 441 Avenue B, who told police someone had done extensive damage to his car with a sharp object. His tires were also hit.

Grace Roberson, 606 East Third, reported that her fence had been run over and Roy Reinart, Rt. 3, reported that a couple of .22 rifles were taken from his pickup while parked in town.

Police investigated four minor accidents early Monday morning, all due to slick road conditions. Nine citations were issued and police made 11 calls.

Board To Renew Contracts

Contract renewal for central office personnel and principals top a busy agenda for the Hereford Independent School District board as it meets for a regular monthly meeting at 5 p.m. today in the administration building.

The board will also compare insurance policies for a new contract and hire a collection agency to recover delinquent taxes.

The school calendar for the 1982-83 term will be discussed and new policy development considered.

A call for election date set in April will be made and a board member will be appointed to arrange a past members' dinner in May.

Transferrals of a property deed and an automobile title will also be made in addition to routine reports.

This month's curriculum report will be a continuation of the December presentation by Marjorie Lassiter on special education.

Farmers, Businessmen Meet Monday

A group of more than 40 concerned farmers and business people met Monday night at the Community Center to discuss avenues to alleviate economic problems facing Deaf Smith County.

The meeting dealt with the possible relations of farmers and the Chamber of Commerce, the use of lobbyists, individual involvement, and how the farmer's message has to be presented to various communities and areas of political power.

A committee was appointed to follow up on the group's positive suggestions and to set a schedule for future meetings and activities.

the election on April 3, the next available date for special elections in this state.

Tax appraisal district Chief Appraiser Fred Fox requested a resolution from the court authorizing the addition of a penalty to delinquent taxes. The penalty is intended to help defray the cost of collection of such taxes.

As it is that costs the tax district 20 percent of the delinquent tax as a collection fee by the firm handling the cases. The court agreed to tack on a 15 percent penalty to help recover some of the fee charged.

The court also approved a payment of 10 cents per capita to the Panhandle Alcoholic Recovery Center as they have in the past. The county's payment to the program will be $2,116.50 as based upon the county's population of 21,165.

The commissioners briefly discussed the renovation of the old Walker Building and repairs to the roof of the Bull Barn, and met with County Social Services Office manager Earlene Cook to discuss affects of the recent closing of the local Texas Employment Commission office.

Mrs. Cook told the court that her office has been swamped the last two weeks with persons seeking jobs. "The closing of the Armour plant is also beginning to catch up with us," Mrs. Cook said. "There are not that many jobs available here, and I'm not sure how much farm help will be needed this spring."

Mrs. Cook asked the court to approve more hours for a part time secretary who works in the office due to the increased work load of late. The court agreed to allow that employee more hours.

And, the commissioners briefly met with some concerned citizens concerning possible fire hazards at Rest Lawn Cemetery. Irvin Willoughby, Mrs. Walter Craig, and Mrs. Ed Skypalmet with the court to express their concern.

Mrs. Craig said that Fire Marshall Jay Spain has agreed that a fire hazard does exist at the cemetery due to a thick growth of weeds nearby. "The weeds behind the cemetery are like tumbleweeds, and if they catch fire they will spread to the cedar trees at the cemetery, getting into the developed area causing extensive damage to our personal markets," Mrs. Craig said.

The court agreed that something needs to be done, but told the trio that the county is powerless to act since the cemetery is located on private property. Coleman suggested that civil court action would be the most appropriate way to handle the problem, and told Mrs. Craig that the county would support them in their actions.

Budget

Stockman and Regan held a series of private Capitol Hill briefings Monday, but met with little success in changing the minds of legislators concerned over the high deficits.

One highly placed Republican source conceded that in contrast to last year, there has been no groundswell of support for Regan's proposals.

"It's just the deficits. Nobody is excited about having to support $100 billion deficits," said this source, who asked not to be identified.

Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., emerged from one of the briefings saying, "I don't think anybody likes the budget. The deficit is very distracting."

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said he thought the Senate Budget Committee he serves on would rewrite Regan's plan and approve one that included a "path toward a balanced budget within the foreseeable future" — three or four years away.

Regan's budget assumes deficits of $50 billion or more through 1987.

Following a separate briefing for Democratic leaders, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said administration officials were told that "if the administration's program is set in concrete and there's no willingness to negotiate or compromise, then they will have a very difficult time getting their program through the House."

He added, "If it's just another show-down, political victory that's desired (by the administration), then the Democrats will not be interested in that."

Meanwhile, Republican congressional leaders sought to calm the furor.

"I think the president's budget, perhaps with some modifications, is going to be passed," Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr.,

R-Tenn., told reporters outside the White House Monday. "The essence of it is you can't keep going the way we are."

"That doesn't mean the president will get every last bit that he's asked for — but a good proportion of it," added House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois.

"This idea of trying to portray Ronald Reagan as an Surviving passengers said there was nothing unusual about the approach and no warning of trouble until there was a "sudden jolt" and the plane hit the water.

Nobuchika Shukada, 20, of Fukuoka, said people screamed but the stewardesses immediately took charge and told people to remain in the cabin.

"I was afraid it was going to sink, but it stayed level for an hour until I was rescued," he said. "I never want to fly again."

Haneda Airport, built on reclaimed land about 15 miles from central Tokyo, has been used primarily for domestic flights since the new Tokyo International Airport opened in 1978 at Narita, 45 miles to the northeast.

It was the first major plane accident in Japan since July 30, 1971, when a mid-air collision of an All-Nippon Airways Boeing 727 and an Air Self-Defense Force jet killed 162 people. JAL had not had a fatal accident since Sept. 27, 1977, when one of its DC-8s crashed in Malaysia, killing 34.

The crash was also Tokyo's second disaster in two days. On Monday, 32 people were killed in a hotel fire.

Federal Jury Views Videotape of Incident

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — After seeing a videotape of three former McAllen policemen kick and punch a drunk prisoner, a federal jury must decide whether the officers' conduct was appropriate or "brutal." Jurors viewed the five-minute tape Monday as the trial began for the former officers charged with violating a prisoner's rights on Oct. 23, 1978, at the McAllen police station booking desk.

A monitoring camera routinely taped activities in the booking area as a precaution against future harassment complaints against officers.

Defendants Tom Carter, 32, Jaime Contereras, 28, and Alfredo Saldana, 27, face up to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor charge. U.S. Magistrate William Mallet is presiding at the trial, which is expected to last three to five days.

The men's major defense argument is that they were provoked by the unruly prisoner and used force required to subdue him. Prosecutors contend the kicking and slugging was "brutal and totally uncalled for."

A grim-faced jury watched the tape on two television monitors installed in the courtroom. Dennett refused to stand against the wall, tried to kick one of the officers and was thrown to the ground.

The videotape was used as evidence in a civil police brutality suit filed against the department and several officers. It resulted in a $250,000 out-of-court settlement and reforms in the department's training and review practices.

Newcomer Gets Involved With Club's Activities

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

As second vice-president of the Hereford Newcomers Club, Cecilia Martinez, wife of Assistant District Attorney David Martinez, calls new members and informs them about the club's activities. Along with the other club members, all of whom are new to the Hereford area, she seeks to locate other newcomers and invite them to the regular noon luncheons, held the second Tuesday of every month. "I started going to Newcomers the first month I was here," she says, "and I really enjoy it. Once a year we have a progressive dinner, and it is fun meeting the members' families as well." Cecilia was born and raised in Slaton. "David lived there during his elementary and junior high school years," comments Cecilia, "and went on to finish high school in Grant, Neb. After graduating from the University of Nebraska, he attended law school at Texas Southern University in Houston." After their marriage, they lived in Slaton and David worked for a law firm in Lubbock before moving to Hereford.

Before she married David, Cecilia worked five years at Southland School, south of Lubbock, as a records clerk. "I loved being around the children," she comments, "and sometimes had lunch duty, going out at noon to watch the children."

"It was a little like a teacher's aide," she adds, "and I also helped with the migrant program. I would like to take some college classes in education sometime in the future, as I have always enjoyed working with children."

At present, Cecilia is keeping busy taking care of her son, Justin David, who will be two years old in May. "I enjoy just being with him and watching him learn and grow. Right now his favorite subject is horses," she comments. Cecilia has made several things for his room, including some unique macrame hangers with little figurines woven in between the knots. Cecilia also likes to crochet, and has made several afghans. "I've always loved to sew," she adds, "but right now I don't have a sewing machine, so I've missed that." She is taking a ceramics class on Wednesday evenings at the Texas Gallery. "I really enjoy that," she says, and did a Mr. and Mrs. Santa for Christmas."

Ann Landers Teenager Speaks Out

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old boy who lives in Rochester, N.Y. I try to read your column every day. Not once have I seen anything about a subject I believe is very important. I am talking about teenage murders.

I just read where a 14-year-old girl in California was murdered by her teenage boyfriend. The police out there, who have seen many bizarre murders, were appalled to learn that the girl's body had been viewed by a dozen of the murderer's friends and not a single one reported the crime to the police.

I cannot believe all teenagers are this apathetic and uncaring. It is inconceivable that those kids put such a low price tag on a person's life. I am sure if you asked teenagers in your reading audience what THEY would have done if they had been asked to look at the dead body of a young girl by the kid who murdered her, most of them would tell you they would go immediately to the police and report it.

Do you know of any organization that might help the parents of teenagers who have been murdered? I hope there is one because these people really need a lot of help to get over such a terrible tragedy.—Shocked And

Angry in New York

DEAR SHOCKED: I would not judge all teenagers by the unbelievably callous behavior of those creeps in California

Your concern about the parents is evidence that there are many sensitive, concerned teenagers around. The organization I am recommending is for parents who have lost children in death. It is The Compassionate Friends. There are many chapters in the United States and Canada. The address of the national headquarters is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521. Those who are interested should write at once. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped legal-size envelope.

And thank you for caring enough to write and express your outrage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You didn't try very hard to help the mother of the small child whose birthday fell on Christmas. He felt gyped because he always received one gift to cover both celebrations.)

I was born on Dec. 24, and my mother had the perfect solution. She gave me a "half-time" birthday party on June 24.

Why didn't you suggest this to the troubled woman instead of giving her a sermon about teaching children gifts aren't important and it's how we treat people that counts? You flubbed the dub, Babe.—Gaithersburg, Md.

DEAR GAITHERS: At least 2,000 readers acquainted me with the "half-time" birthday party. I had never heard of it. Not a bad way for Yuletide babies to beat the natal rap and end up with double loot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I take strong exception to your reply to "Mr. Purse in Edmontion." I am a married man, 53, and have carried a shoulder pocketbook for the past four years.

I bought it in Europe when I saw many men using them. Mine is leather and looks like a camera case. I can carry my glasses, wallet, credit cards, comb, pills and handkerchief without loading down my pockets. At no time has anyone ever looked at the funny or asked to borrow my lipstick.

Please rethink your answer. Pocketbooks make a lot of sense. I wouldn't give mine up for anything.—Mr. Purse in Philly

DEAR PHILLY: Shoulder bags that look like camera cases—yes. Alligator and leopard-skin clutch-types—no. There's a big difference.

4-H'ers Learn To Cope With Stress

By ROBBY VANN
County Extension Agent

Stress, related primarily to adults, is an important factor in the health and safety of young people as well. Adolescence can be a trying time, with peer pressure, changing body functions and the search for independence taking their toll. Youth in the 4-H health and safety programs recognize that stress can lead to more serious health problems and also tends to make one accident-prone.

Both programs alert boys and girls to stress-causing factors such as boredom, uncertainties, changes and even routines. Sometimes a break from these stressful situations helps a person return refreshed and ready to cope.

Here are some diversions 4-H'ers recommend as safety valves for stress:

- Spend time on yourself—take a long bath or shower, pamper yourself.
- Take early morning walks.
- Listen to music or play a musical instrument.
- Talk to or play with children.
- Amuse yourself with a pet.
- Work on a favorite hobby or start one.
- Join a chorus or singing group.
- Bake or cook something special, or work on an old car.
- Try jogging, dancing or a sports activity.
- Do volunteer work.

4-H health and safety programs encourage youth to get involved in other projects emphasizing healthy mind and body attitudes and to share this awareness with parents, friends and others in the community.

The health program is sponsored by Eli Lilly and Co. and Kraft, Inc. while the General Motors Foundation supports the safety program. In both programs, medals of honor are awarded to four members in each county, one 4-H'er from each state earns an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, and eight members in each of the programs are named national winners and receive $1,000 scholarships.

In addition, certificates are presented to clubs with outstanding county and state health and safety programs. General Motors also provides $25 to counties with outstanding safety programs.

Boys and girls, 9-19, can learn more about these and other 4-H programs by contacting their county Extension office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Feb. 9, the 40th day of 1982. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 9, 1849, Rome was proclaimed a republic under Giuseppe Mazzini.

On this date:
In 1964, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant made an urgent appeal to Ethiopia and Somalia to end hostilities in which hundreds had been reported killed.

In 1967, about 100 fatalities were reported in an earthquake in the South American country of Colombia.

In 1971, an earthquake in the Los Angeles area killed at least 64 people.

And in 1978, Canada ordered 11 Soviet diplomats and officials expelled, accusing them of a plot to penetrate the security apparatus of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Ten years ago, President Richard Nixon said the United States and Soviet Union had decided on the outline of an interim agreement on strategic arms limitation.

Five years ago, it was announced that diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Spain would be restored, ending a breach that began with the start of the Franco regime in 1939.

One year ago, the Polish Communist Party dismissed Prime Minister Jozef Pankowski and named Defense Minister General Wojciech Jaruzelski to replace him.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I'm a worrier. Especially when the weather is bad and I'm housebound.

Like, where are the Nielsen families and why do they watch all the shows I turn off? They're the most well-kept secret since Judge Crater. Not only have I never seen a Nielsen family, I have never known anyone who has ever seen a Nielsen family or even gotten a Christmas newsletter from them.

In my mind, I visualize them as a family of pale, hollow-eyed TV junkies where the "Daddy" carries the TV knob around in his pocket. "Daddy" likes women with good posture, a good car chase, and has seen more Bows than the latrine officer at Ft. Dix.

My ultimate aim in life is to be offered a television series called "The Nielsen Family" so I could turn them off.

And where is Mrs. Tucker's Inn? My husband and I have been looking for a whipped cream experience in some little lodge off a country road for a long time. It has to be the only restaurant in the world with an unlisted phone number.

And what in the world do all those anchorpersons do with those papers they shuffle around all the time? Dan Rather slides his one at a time to a faceless person off camera. Jessica Savitch marks things on hers. John Chancellor straightens his like he's putting them back in a ream, and Roger Mudd folds his and takes them with him when he goes.

The news is on a teleprompter, so how come they fiddle with all those sheets of paper?

And what's going to happen to the test-tube babies when they grow up and ask the time-honored question, "Where did I come from?" Have you any idea how that is going to confuse the answer of sex-education experts like myself who said, "You come from Ohio?"

I suppose I'm borrowing trouble, but where is our vice president, George Whatshisname? I haven't seen hide nor hair of the man since he attended a wedding...or was it a funeral? No, I remember now, it was the inauguration. Some way he's keeping a low profile. Sandra Dee keeps a low profile.

He was a nice-looking man, as I remember him, and spoke well of his job. I certainly hope he's all right.

I'll be glad when spring comes. I worry less in the spring.

Homeowners, if structural defects are uncovered in your home, you may be able to get the builder to fix them, even if you aren't the original owner, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

In the past, homebuilders' warranties have traditionally covered only problems encountered by the original owner, but the courts have ruled in South Carolina and in Wyoming that builders can be liable for latent defects discovered within the first few years.

Berry is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Laker's Empire For Sale Today

LONDON (AP) — Sir Freddie Laker's bankrupt airline empire went up for sale today after a group of banks and a legion of loyal employees failed to rescue the cut-rate travel company.

The most profitable pieces of Laker's business — the Arrowsmith and Laker Air Holidays package tour companies — were the first on the block.

William Mackey, one of four receivers named to take over Laker Airways' financial affairs when it crashed Friday, said he hoped to have the two businesses sold by tonight.

Next to go will be Laker's 11 DC-10s and three BAC-111 Airbuses, worth about $370 million. There was speculation that Sir Freddie would try to buy back some of them for a new start with a charter airline.

Orion Royal Bank, a subsidiary of the Royal Bank of Canada, tried but failed to put together a $65-million rescue package. Mackey, who had termed the attempt "unrealistic," said, "The best financial brains in the banking world have failed to find a solution."

Orion vice chairman Christopher Chataway said his bank had hoped to inject new money, stave off creditors and reschedule Laker's $502-million debts.

"What foiled us in the end was the particular structure of the creditors. We did not foresee the speed with which the receivers would have to act," Chataway said.

Earlier, 2,000 Laker Airways employees, including busloads of pilots and stewardesses in Laker's red and black uniforms, marched through London to the Houses of Parliament and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's 10 Downing Street residence to petition her to save the airline Laker founded in 1967.

The government, however, stressed it would not put up taxpayers' money.

The employees collected the equivalent of $5.55 million from themselves and

VOTE HERE

Fifteen people have become President of the U.S. with a popular vote less than 50% of the total cast.

thousands of Britons who used Laker's low-fare Skytrain service.

"It's a pity people's hopes have been buoyed up," said Mackey, adding that the campaign never had a chance.

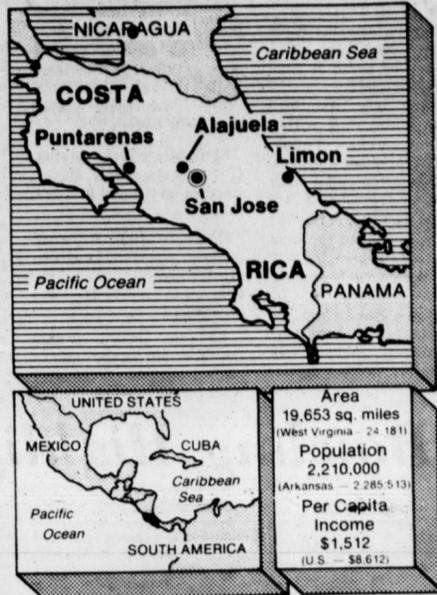

Laker made his first public appearance Monday since the collapse when he attended a High Court hearing in his suit for access to his 4-year-old son. The child lives with his mother, Laker's estranged American third wife.

"I'm overwhelmed by all the support I've received," Laker told reporters. "It's unbelievable. I love you all very dearly."

Laker launched the no-frills trans-Atlantic service four years ago after a five-year battle with the government and rival airlines. His cut-rate service forced major airlines to offer similar deals and made Laker a national hero.

Laker's airline crashed deep in the red due to heavy borrowing to finance expansion that he couldn't pull off because of foreign opposition, a drop in passenger traffic due to the recession, soaring fuel prices and the drop in the pound sterling.

COSTA RICA: Democracy in Trouble

Costa Rica, long the most stable and prosperous nation in Central America and the only functioning democracy, could provide the region with its next crisis. Elements are a deteriorating economy, accelerating inflation, rising unemployment, a massive foreign debt, political dissension and corruption, and tension with the leftist Sandinista regime of neighboring Nicaragua.

New Threat To Close Papers

LONDON (AP) — Press tycoon Rupert Murdoch is threatening to close the failing Times of London and Sunday Times unless the unions agree to the firing of nearly a fourth of the 2,600 employees.

Murdoch set a Feb. 19 deadline for laying off 600 full-time employees and said he wanted to dismiss "several hundred" of the 2,950 part-time workers, most of whom are printers employed on both papers.

"The Times is not for sale," Murdoch told reporters as he left for New York, where he published the New York Post. "We will just close it if we don't reach agreement. Without the help of the unions it dies."

In a personal letter to the full-time staffs, he said both prestigious publications are in "desperate" financial straits and will close unless drastic staff cuts are made "within days."

They are "literally bleeding to death," he said.

Initial reaction from officials of the printing, clerical and journalists' unions varied. Barry Fitzpatrick, whose clerical workers' union reportedly would be hit hardest, said the dismissals Murdoch wants "are not acceptable."

Opposition also was expected from the printers' union, which has borne the brunt of the 600 dismissals since Murdoch bought the papers a year ago. But Paul Routledge of the journalists' union said his group was "ready to talk."

Union sources said Murdoch wants to axe 390 clerical workers, 175 printers and 35 journalists from the two papers.

Closure of the 197-year-old Times, flagship of Britain's press, and its Sunday stablemate, first published in 1822, would be a severe psychological blow to Britain's shaky newspaper industry. However, it would probably help rival newspapers by allowing them to pick up tens of thousands of readers.

In his letter to staff members, Murdoch said the papers were expected to lose $28 million this year, wiping out the profits his News International group earns from two other national British papers and endangering the group.

Murdoch's racy Sun tabloid daily sells 4 million copies a day and the News of the World 4.7 million every Sunday.

He blamed the losses on excess personnel, soaring newsprint costs, the economic recession and the fall in the pound sterling.

The Times had a daily circulation of 297,800 in the last half of 1981, a slight rise from the equivalent period the year before. The Sunday Times had a July-December circulation of 1.43 million, 6 percent less than in the same period in 1980.

'Persevere' And Enact New Cuts, Reagan Tells Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told Congress today to "persevere, to stay the course, to shun retreat" and enact another $27 billion worth of domestic spending cuts for fiscal 1983 to hold down budget deficits.

In the budget message he sent to Capitol Hill, Reagan said the first year of the 97th Congress "will be remembered for its decisive action to hold down spending and cut tax rates...but clearly, there is a great deal more to be done."

Just months after Congress approved nearly $40 billion in cuts, the largest package of spending reductions in history, the administration is urging Congress to wield the ax even more sharply.

Reagan, declaring he will continue a "constant, comprehensive, ceaseless search for ways to reduce" government spending, said, "our task is to persevere, to stay the course, to shun retreat, to weather the temporary dislocations and pressures that must inevitably accompany the restoration of national economic, fiscal and military health."

Members of Congress said, however, it would be difficult to win the cuts Reagan is asking without altering his proposed buildup for defense.

"When we're asked to make further reductions in food stamps and Medicaid and nutrition programs plus lower the deficit...it almost forces us to look at...defense," said Sen. Bob Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "I don't believe anybody realistically believes we're going to accomplish everything the president suggests," the Kansas Republican said.

The No. 2 Democrat in the Senate, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, said Reagan's recommendations were "unworkable, unwise and unfair."

And House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois conceded Reagan's budget would be tough to pass in its entirety.

But budget director David Stockman said Sunday that he thought Congress eventually would go along with most of Reagan's proposals.

A year ago, he said, the initial reaction was skepticism that Congress would adopt Reagan's proposals. "We got more than 80 percent of what we proposed," he noted.

This is what Reagan is recommending this year: —Cuts of $12.8 billion this year and $54.7 billion over three years in benefit programs, many of which were cut last year. Food stamps would be reduced by $2.4 billion; basic welfare by $1.2 billion and Medicaid, the government's health care system for the needy, by $2 billion. Social Security would be exempt from cuts.

—Cuts of $14.2 billion, and $75.6 billion in three years, in other domestic programs, many of which bore the brunt of last year's cuts. Mass transit would be chopped by $1.6 billion and operating subsidies would be phased out by 1985. Housing assistance would be cut by $600 million and low-income energy assistance by the same amount. Education would be cut by $3 billion and health services by $1.3 billion. Non-nuclear energy development programs would be cut $900 million.

Meanwhile, Reagan also proposed a series of $20.3 billion worth of "management initiatives," including accelerating leases for offshore oil and gas deposits that would produce $8.4 billion in 1983.

Other parts of the management plan call for sale of surplus federal property and assets, improved debt collection and stiffened Internal Revenue Service enforcement efforts. Another proposal, to institute tax withholding on income from dividends and interest, already has been disowned by leading Republicans in Congress. But altogether, Reagan said his management improvements could save $68.2 billion over three years.

Reagan also is calling for imposition of user fees amounting to $2.5 billion in one year and $9.8 billion through 1985.

These fees include plans to charge for Coast Guard and Corps of Engineers services, increasing fees for passports and visas and proposals to cover the costs of developing permanent disposal facilities for radioactive nuclear waste.

Benefits for civilian and military retirees would be reduced $2.7 billion in 1983, and no retiree would be permitted a higher cost-of-living increase than active employees may get. Other initiatives the president is recommending would cut federal credit activities by more than $18 billion. Loans and loan guarantees would be reduced for the Farmers Home Administration, public housing, Export-Import Bank, farm price supports, Rural Electrification Administration and other agencies.

Programs Reagan won't seek to cut include Head Start, Urban Development Action Grants, Community Development Block Grants, general revenue sharing, National Institutes of Health, alcohol and drug abuse, mental health block grants, social services block grants, Older Americans Act, Minority Business Assistance, and aid to predominantly black colleges.

Big-Break Night Dismays Metcalf; TTU Wins

By LEIGH SHIRLEY
Associated Press Writer
Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf called it a "big-break night."

basketball came for three of the five teams deadlocked in third place in the league standings.

Houston and Baylor — which are all tied at 6-5, a game behind second place A&M.

"It was a big-break night," sighed Metcalf, whose Aggies lost in overtime after four key players fouled out during regulation play.

end. We got a little shorthanded ... we don't have much depth beyond seven or eight players," he said.

the season. "It was great to see the other guys carry on out there while I was out," said Teagle.

Texas has lost five of its last six games since forward Mike Wacker went out for the season with a knee injury.

Busceme's Plans No Big Secret

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Bubba Busceme, who will challenge World Boxing Council lightweight champion Alexis Arguello Saturday, is making no secret about his battle plan.

Arguello, who has knocked out 59 opponents en route to a 73-4 record, doesn't anticipate much trouble from Busceme's left-handed tactics or his fight approach.

Busceme will present a contrasting style from the champion's last two opponents. Challengers Ray Mancini and Roberto Elizondo each tried to trade punches with Arguello and were knocked out in the 14th and seventh rounds.

"If Bubba can stay away from Arguello's right hand, he will be the new champion," Manager Hugh Benbow said.

Virginia Vaulted Into AP Cage Poll Summit

By The Associated Press
Virginia Coach Terry Holland, his team now No. 1 in the Associated Press weekly college basketball poll, believes there is virtually nothing separating his Cavaliers, or other teams in the top five, from a lot of other teams.

Carolina, 18-2, held the No. 2 spot with 1,090 votes, just eight more than DePaul, 20-1, which got two first-place votes.

that much difference between being 3 or 4 like we were last week and being ranked No. 1.

Herd Gridders Sign Tomorrow

Several Hereford Whiteface football players are expected to sign scholarship pacts with various colleges and universities tomorrow on the NCAA national letter of intent signing date.

The most publicized signing has been that of All-State defensive end Aubrey Ruchburg with Texas Tech. But, several other members of HHS' most successful grid team ever are expected to put their names on the dotted line as well.

All-State running back Wayne High is said to be considering West Texas State and New Mexico State. Others considering signing with the Buffaloes include All-State linebacker John Phibbs, and linemen Bruce Clarke and Barry Josseland.

HHS coach Don Cumpton said it appears that second team All-State tight end Don Delozier has picked UT-Arlington as the place to continue his athletic career.

Still considering several possibilities are Herd quarterback Alan Wartes, who may go either to the Air Force Academy (and join the football team there as a walk-on) or to Howard Payne, and lineman Bob Hammond, said considering Eastern New Mexico among others.

HHS defensive tackle Robert Gonzales is also said to be considering signing with Eastern New Mexico.

The NCAA did away with individual conference signing dates this year, and is holding just the one signing date for all athletes to indicate which school they will attend.

Sonics Enjoying NBA Turnaround

SEATTLE (AP) — Sam Schulman, longtime owner of the Seattle SuperSonics, was apologizing for his National Basketball Association club just last season.

"Now, he's effusively talking about the possibility of a consummate Sonics' turnaround from the Pacific Division cellar to their second NBA championship in four years."

"I don't mind saying it because I think our record speaks for itself," Schulman said Monday. "I definitely think we're a contender for the championship this season."

"There's every reason to believe we have the opportunity to be right in the midst of the fight for the title."

After the Sonics beat, on successive nights, Golden State, Utah and San Diego during the weekend, they had the NBA's second best record at 33-13, a .717 winning percentage that was second only to defending champion Boston's 34-12 mark.

Led the Pacific Division, one-half game in front of Los Angeles, after finishing dead last in the division last season with a 34-48, 23 games behind division winner Phoenix.

Had a six-game winning streak with 14 wins in their last 16 starts, including big road victories in Boston and Los Angeles in January.

Had a 19-4 home record, including eight home victories in a row.

Were 30-8 after getting off to a rocky 3-5 start.

Before going on a four-game road trip to Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Los Angeles, the Sonics can equal their entire 1980-81 victory total with a win in the Kingdom tonight against the New York Knicks.

"Quite frankly," Schulman said in a telephone interview from his Los Angeles office, "I really didn't expect us to be this good. I expected us to be good but not this good."

"Lenny Wilkens (the Sonics' head coach) and Les Hagerberg (Wilkins' assistant) have done an exceptional job. The team has improved and is improving."

"Of course, there are a lot of highs and lows in this business. So I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

At this time a year ago, Schulman was an unpopular man in Seattle. That's because the Sonics were at a low.

In 1978-79, the Sonics won their first NBA title and Schulman was extremely popular here then. But sports fans can be fickle.

Last season, Schulman was criticized strongly locally because he had failed to sign guard Gus Williams, the club's No. 1 scorer for three straight seasons.

But Seattle's collapse last season also came as a result of key injuries — to power forward Lonnie Shelton and guard Paul Westphal. A wrist injury that required surgery limited Shelton to 14 games. Westphal, acquired after the 1979-80 season in a trade with Phoenix for Dennis Johnson, suffered a stress fracture in his right foot last season and played in only 36 contests.

Williams and Shelton, two-fifths of Seattle's starters in 1978-79, are back playing as good or better than ever.

Cage Meeting Said A Success

Representatives of the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA and Kids, Inc. met last week to discuss the possibility of having one unified youth basketball league. According to YMCA Director Weldon Knabe, "the meeting went very well."

"Both groups' objective is to offer the best possible program for the kids," Knabe added. Knabe said that HHS boys basketball coach Bobby Decker, a member of the Kids, Inc., board, has agreed to spearhead a new program designed to help the coaches for the league.

"This will include a clinic for the coaches, providing a format for practice time, and getting the high school players involved in the league as coaches and officials," Knabe said.

Decker told both groups that the fundamentals of the game such as dribbling, shooting, and passing are very important for the younger players to learn. Also, to help better prepare those players who are about to enter the junior high level, the 5th and 6th grade leagues will play full-court basketball, a change from the past.

One concern expressed by both the YMCA and Kids, Inc. is the low participation in the league by girls. Knabe expressed concern that enough players are signed up in order to have separate 3rd, 4th and 5th-6th grade leagues. He pointed out that many of the HHS girls players will be helping with the league, and that it will be a great opportunity for the younger girls to get involved with basketball.

Basketball is the No. 1 participation sport among American high school students. In a survey of competitive athletics during the 1980-81 school year, it led the list for girls and was second among boys for a combined participation total of just short of a million. Figures for the leading scholastic sports were compiled from more than 18,000 public and private high schools, almost 90 percent of the national total. Totals of boys and girls are listed in the 10 most popular sports for each group.

Ploys Fail Colgate, Aid Mississippi Valley

By The Associated Press
Colgate was playing for a tie. Mississippi Valley State was playing for anything but. Colgate, playing a slowdown game against Northeastern Monday night, fell behind 36-34 when forward Mark Halsel scored on a 10-foot jump shot with 4:05 to play. The Red Raiders held the ball for the next four minutes, hoping for a last-gasp basket that would force an overtime. But one shot missed, the next was blocked at the buzzer and the Huskies' two-point edge held up. Mississippi Valley State managed one overtime against Southern University. And another...and another...and another...and another...and another. It wasn't until senior center Bryant Johnson, the Delta Devils' scoring leader with 29 points, sank three free throws in that sixth extra period that Mississippi Valley trudged off the court with a 73-72 victory.

It matched two 1950s games as the second-longest in National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I history. Last Dec. 21, Cincinnati needed a record seven overtimes to defeat Bradley 75-73. "We were looking to send the game into overtime," Colgate Coach Mike Griffin said after his strategy failed and the Red Raiders dropped to 7-14. "Northeastern is a very strong team... We were not going to run with them. We were going to work for the kind of shots we could make." Griffin's last-shot strategy succeeded last Jan. 26 when Colgate, trailing Princeton by a point, held the ball...and held it...and held it...before Eric Jones' jumper with seven seconds to play beat the Tigers 25-24.

Southern rallied a 60-60 tie after regulation play. Neither team scored in the first five-minute extra period, they managed to remain deadlocked through the next three — and neither scored in the fifth overtime, either. With 3:10 gone in the sixth, one Johnson free throw put MVS ahead 71-70. Anthony Bryant's 12-foot jumper gave Southern a 72-71 lead before Johnson hit his decisive foul shot.

Oregon State held a 32-20 halftime lead, but Cal's Mark McNamara, who had 23 points and 17 rebounds, led a charge as the Golden Bears closed within four points with 2:46 to play. No. 9 Arkansas got 20 points from senior guard Tony Brown and 27 from its reserves, including 10 from sophomore guard Ricky Norton and nine from senior forward Greg Skulman. The Razorbacks, 17-3 overall, used a pair of hot shooting sprees to turn back Texas Christian 79-69 in the Southwest Conference.

The Razorbacks turned a 20-11 deficit into a 28-23 lead before halftime and a 40-36 deficit into a 57-46 lead after it. No. 14 Memphis State grabbed the lead at the start, widened it to as many as 16 points in the closing minutes and held off persistent Ball State 75-64. Keith Lee has 24 points, 18 rebounds and three steals for the winners, 16-3. Ray McCallum led Ball State with 23 points. Georgetown, No. 20, trailed 39-34 before catching fire. The Hoyas, 19-5, stayed hot after the intermission, taking a 71-51 lead en route to their 96-79 pounding of Syracuse. Eric Floyd and Pat Ewing combined for 23 of Georgetown's 49 points in that stretch, when the winners outscored the Orangemen 37-12. Floyd finished with 27 points and Ewing added a career-high 22 plus 13 rebounds.

Based upon research and data from previous years, the American Cancer Society forecasts that 835,000 new cases will be diagnosed in the United States during the current year. The year's death toll is estimated at 430,000, 9,000 more than the previous year—and more than a quarter as a result of lung cancer, which 30 years ago accounted for less than 10 percent of cancer deaths.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When funeral directors, used-car dealers, hearing aid companies and mobile home manufacturers didn't like the way they were regulated by a federal agency, they went to Congress for help.

The lawmakers granted them relief with a device called a legislative veto—a majority vote of one or both houses that can nullify a government rule or a presidential decision.

Without the legislative veto, the Federal Trade Commission may have already required funeral directors to disclose price information.

Stringent FTC-imposed warranty practices may already have been placed in effect for the mobile home industry and hearing aid companies may by now have been returning money to people who changed their minds about a purchase within 30 days.

And the FTC's decision to force used-car dealers to inform consumers of vehicle defects may not be facing a legislative veto.

The legislative veto, which Congress says can prevent rulemaking agencies from "running amok" is in legal trouble.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington ruled Jan. 29 that the legislative veto, especially when exercised by only one house, is unconstitutional.

A federal appeals panel in San Francisco also struck down the device in December 1980 and that case is set for argument before the Supreme Court Feb. 22.

When the 1980 decision came down, President Jimmy Carter said it carried "perhaps the most profound significance constitutionally of anything that's happened in my four years."

Carter and President Reagan have opposed the legislative veto on grounds it left no role for the chief executive in lawmaking.

The Washington decision concentrated on the one-house veto, although several lawyers involved in the case said the decision's rationale would also apply to the two-house veto.

have far-reaching effects on the operation of the federal government." That is apparent when one looks at some of the ways the legislative veto can be or has been used.

For example, the mood of Congress could change after the next elections, and the legislators could decide to nullify any future presidential decision to sell arms to Saudi Arabia. That would reverse the policy set when Reagan chose to sell AWACS airplanes to the Saudis and Congress declined to veto the sale.

In the one-house veto that sparked the Washington court decision, the House vetoed a rule by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which tried to shift some of the burden of natural gas price increases from consumers to industry.

In another key foreign policy move, Congress decided last December to institute a two-house legislative veto to prevent military aid to countries that violate U.S. policy on the processing, enrichment, transfer and receipt of nuclear fuel and laws. That involves approval by a majority vote of the House and Senate and acceptance or disapproval by the president. A presidential veto can be overridden by a two-thirds vote in each house.

The legislative veto has been written into specific pieces of legislation since 1932, but its use in recent years has become more frequent. It affects, for example, legislation on U.S. foreign policy and laws controlling rulemaking agencies such as the FTC.

For instance, the device can be used to increase natural gas home heating bills, deny arms sales to Saudi Arabia, prevent military aid to Pakistan and stop the FTC's disclosure requirements on used cars.

"It gives a powerful lobby that wants to do something quickly the chance to stampede Congress," said Michael Pertschuk, a member and the former chairman of the FTC. "The rules on funerals and used cars would both have been law by now (without a legislative veto)."

The Washington appellate court said its decision "may devices. The veto, which could apply to countries like Pakistan, would override a presidential recommendation that aid be granted despite the violation.

The House and the Senate have filed legal-papers supporting the legislative veto.

Eugene Gressman, a law professor at the University of North Carolina and a special counsel to the House, said Congress is proceeding constitutionally because the legislative veto is used not to make new law, but to exercise control.

"If you didn't have the legislative veto, administrative agencies can run amok," he said. "Congress is saying let's stop the evil before it becomes final. This is an effective control mechanism."

He added the veto is legal in many areas of foreign affairs since some of the president's foreign policy-making powers stem from laws passed by Congress.

Another legal scholar, law professor Antonin Scalia of University of Chicago Law School, disagreed.

"Decisions which in the past have been less political will in the future be much more highly politicized" if the legislative veto continues to be used, he said.

"I'm not saying there isn't politics before the agencies. But there's an awful lot more before Congress."

Pertschuk, who was the target of congressional wrath because of the fundamental changes in society he tried to bring about while FTC chairman, agreed with Scalia.

"The effect of the legislative veto is that the FTC staff ends up negotiating ahead of time with a handful of congressmen or their staff," he said.

President Risking GOP Rebellion To Save Tax Cuts, Arms Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is prepared to risk a Republican rebellion in Congress and political embarrassment in public rather than trade his tax cuts and a massive military expansion for smaller budget deficits.

When it became obvious last year that he could not slash personal tax rates, launch a record increase in defense spending and balance the budget by 1984, Reagan abandoned the balanced budget without hesitation.

Even in recent weeks, when it became clear he was facing the largest deficits in history, Reagan resisted his advisers' urgings to seek higher taxes and cuts in his Pentagon budget.

Today, this conservative Republican president, who promised to tame the federal budget, is sending an already dazed Congress a budget plan with deficits averaging a record $91 billion a year from 1982 through 1984 and a plea "to shun retreat" from his tax-cut prescription for economic recovery.

According to many independent estimates, the president's budget deficits easily could soar above $100 billion a year because Congress is certain to reject some, if not most, of the administration's $56 billion package of budget savings for 1983. Without the savings, deficits would swell to $147 billion in 1983 and $167 billion in 1984.

"Our budget deficits will be large," the president said with a bit of understatement in a message accompanying his budget. "But our incentive-minded tax policy and our security-based defense programs are right and necessary for long-run peace and prosperity, and must not be tampered with in a vain attempt to cure deficits in the short run."

But re-educating a Congress facing re-election in nine months will be no easy task for a president who declared one year ago on the floor of the House: "We know now that inflation results from all that deficit spending."

Reagan's Republican allies in Congress, describing themselves as "frightened" and "in shock," spoke over the weekend about rewriting the budget to increase taxes and cut defense spending.

Congressional Democrats, meanwhile, were reviving their campaign to rescind at least part of the three-year, 23 percent cut in individual tax rates that the president won in 1981.

In his first address to Congress on Feb. 5, 1981, Reagan declared: "The federal budget is out of control and we face runaway deficits of almost $80 billion for this budget year. That deficit is larger than the entire federal budget in 1957 and is almost $80 billion more than in interest this year on the national debt."

Exactly one year later, the president's men were forced to defend a budget plan containing a deficit larger than the entire 1958 budget and interest payments larger than the entire 1960 budget.

Undaunted and armed with charts, statistics and explanations, they began the task of squaring record deficits with the president's recovery program.

Budget director David Stockman said the deficits aren't really that large compared with the size of the economy. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said the deficits could be financed easily by all the new savings people would have from the tax cut. Chief White House economist Murray Weidenbaum said the deficits would not get in the way of the tight-credit policy the Federal Reserve Board is pursuing to fight inflation.

In their presentations, the officials made clear what Reagan's budget priorities are:

—Last year's tax cut, which reduces revenues by about $280 billion through 1984, will not be touched except to close $21 billion in business "loopholes" no longer justifiable under the new tax law.

—Reagan's plan to increase defense spending 58 percent between 1981 and 1984 to $253 billion will not be altered. The plan includes a $34 billion boost in 1983 alone.

—Another foray of cuts in the same social-welfare and domestic programs that Congress agreed to cut last year. But even if the president achieved all $27 billion in spending reductions he is asking for this year, the savings would not fully offset the increased spending he wants for the Pentagon.

Critics charge that Reagan's prime objective from the start was to cut taxes for the wealthy and expand the nation's military forces, but that he combined them into an unproven "supply-side" program of economic recovery to win political approval.

The president and his aides insist that the tax cuts will trigger an economic boom yet, although later than they originally predicted. And the new prosperity will finally allow the government to balance its budget, but not by 1983 or earlier as Reagan initially promised, nor 1984 as he later promised.

"Probably somewhere in the range beyond 1988," is Stockman's latest, best guess.

Judge's Panel Discussing Next Step To Redistricting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A three-judge federal panel convened here today to figure out the next step in setting boundaries for Texas' 27 congressional districts.

U.S. District Judges William Wayne Justice of Tyler, Robert Parker of Beaumont and 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Sam Johnson heard testimony in January in a lawsuit filed by Mexican-American and black plaintiffs who challenged the congressional districts set by the 1981 Legislature.

On Jan. 29, those maps were thrown out by the U.S. Justice Department, which said the plans violated the U.S. Voting Rights Act. The federal officials said there were problems with two South Texas districts. Assistant Texas Attorney General Rick Gray, representing the state in the case, said Monday the judges probably would look at proposed plans submitted by both sides in the case.

Because of the litigation, the filing deadline for 16 of the congressional races has been pushed back to Feb. 22.

Democrats Urge Reagan To Accept Salvadorian Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal Senate Democrats are urging President Reagan to consider a negotiated end to the Salvadorian civil war, warning that otherwise U.S. combat troops might be needed to block a leftist victory.

But a high-ranking State Department official ruled out such talks Monday, saying a negotiated settlement that gives a share of power to leftist guerrillas would amount to "handing over" El Salvador to the communists.

Thomas O. Enders, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, cited Nicaragua as a recent example of a coalition government that he said was gradually taken over by leftist elements and turned into a Soviet ally.

Enders' testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee came in response to calls from Democratic Sens. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts and Christopher Dodd of Connecticut for negotiations involving all sides of the Salvadorian conflict.

Saying the administration's current policy of stepped-up military support was leading the United States into a Vietnam-style "quagmire," Tsongas said the "answer to this is a negotiated settlement."

"In other words, senator, we hand it over," said Enders.

"If that's the attitude of policymakers in this administration, then I'm very troubled," Tsongas responded. "This will become at the very least a drain on our Treasury and ultimately a drain on our personnel."

Enders also clashed with Dodd, who called on the administration to "face realities" and seek a settlement to the war while the guerrillas are still willing to talk.

While rejecting calls for a negotiated settlement, Enders refused to rule out the possibility of sending U.S. combat troops to the Central American country.

Enders said the administration's goal was to
