Slow Justice Dept. hurt county efforts

By GEORGIA TYLER Staff Writer

Materials that Deaf Smith County officials had hoped would explain the reason for denial of preclearance of new precinct lines and fight a lawsuit came too late to help.

The lawsuit was settled by the time the U.S. Department of Justice responded to a request under the Freedom of Information Act for materials used by the department to reach a decision on the precinct boundaries Requested the day after officials learned the precinct boundaries would not satisfy federal authorities, the materials didn't arrive until three months later.

Even before the papers arrived, a tentative settlement was reached, on July 9, subject to Commissioners' Court approval, for changes in precinct lines and for a new primary election for commissioner of Precinct

Commissioners' Court adopted the plan on July 13 and on that day, the requested Justice Department materials were received in the Austin office of Allison and Associates, the law firm representing the county.

Twenty-five pages are devoted to memos of telephone interviews with Deaf Smith County residents, election information, charts and maps made by the Justice Department.

Names of at least four persons interviewed are blacked out because "disclosure thereof could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," states a letter from the assistant attorney general of the U.S.

The letter also notes that "disclosure thereof could reasonably be expected to identify confidential sources and confidential information."

However, remarks made by those persons interviewed, if quoted correctly, are in error, at times, and sometimes derogatory of public officials.

At least one person interviewed seemed confused about the primary election in March.

"District No. 1 was up and there was a Hispanic candidate, Tony Castillo. He lost by about 49 votes. His opponent was an Anglo, Troy Don Moore, the incumbent," a memorandum quotes from a conversation on March 19.

Either the resident or the interviewer was in error -- Tony Castillo opposed incumbent John Stribling for Precinct commissioner. Moore was the Precinct 3 incumbent candidate.

A week later, according to dates on the memo, the same person -- a woman because the interviewer uses pronouns "her" and "she" in quoting remarks -- was questioned about "electibility" of Sheriff Joe Brown. Why there was concern about described as Hispanic and apparently

Brown's "electibility" is unexplained. He already had won his primary election and is unopposed in the general election.

"She indicated the Joe Brown gets a lot of backing from the county judge and the district attorney. He also gets a lot of instruction from those two officials. He does little on his own and is really just a puppet," the memoquotes. At least one memo page in the packet would seem to have no business being there. The memo is a record of a telephone conversation with Rolando Rios, who represented the plaintiff in the Deaf Smith County lawsuit, but refers to Ward County matters.

One "anonymous" complaint alleged that Sheriff Joe Brown was a "puppet" in the hands of Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons and District Attorney Roland Saul.

Local Roundup Long agenda faces county

A lengthy agenda, winding up with a budget workshop, is waiting for Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court Monday, beginning at 9 a.m. Items also include approval of a plat for Progressive Place, report from the museum, a presentation from Hereford Senior Citizens, discussion of computer system for county offices, hearing a request for computers for the extension office, set a date for a hearing on a block grant and consideration of needs to comply with Americans with Disabilities Act.

Department "specialist" had with Rodolfo Mares Jr., who represented Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., at a re-considereation or that Chavez voted hearing on precinct lines, refers to differently from other commissioners statistics provided by TRLA. But, the information discussed in the conversation is not included in the packet.

In a memo of an earlier conversation, area was proposed for Precinct 1 in Mares claimed that he provided the the first plan drawn by Bob Bass of county with plans that would create two districts with 75 percent Hispanic population.

The TRLA attorney apparently was referring to a map he presented at an Aug. 8 hearing. The map basically created two precincts in Hereford without regard to location of voting boxes and homes of present commissioners Commission minutes do not bear a plan was adopted only Lupe Chavez Mr. Mares was in favor of it, too, but

A memo of a conversation the Justice of Precinct 2 was in favor of reconsideration. There is no record that a request was made formally for at any time in the process of drawing the precinct lines. However, Chavez and residents of the San Jose area objected when that Allison and Associates as well as the plan proposed by TRLA.

After further work, San Jose was returned to Precinct 2 in the Bass plan.

Remarks by Chaves are recorded in a memo of a telephone conversation between him and a Justice Department employee. According to the USJD specialist, Chavez said he "voted for the plan and is comfortable out a contention by Mares that after with it. He had the impression that that he would be more comfortable with a 65 percent district for Precinct

A communication from Southwest Voter Registration to Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons, received after the precinct lines plan had been submitted to the Justice Department, suggests that Precincts 1 and 2 could be formed with Hispanic populations of 73.7 percent and 74.3 percent, respectively.

However, there was no supporting evidence in the communication except in numbers. There were no maps to indicate precinct lines to accomplish desired percentage of Hispanic residents.

A series of maps prepared by the civil rights division of the USDJ offers a proposed plan. However, the plan does not seem to take into consideration any voting boxes or homes of commissioners.

The lawsuit filed in April, Trini Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County, called for a new election in Precinct 1 because boundaries had not been precleared by Justice Department.

In addition to providing for a new election, the settlement reached almost two weeks ago places the Hispanic population at 64.66 percent in Precinct 1, compared with 60.53 in the prior plan. And, Precinct 2 drops from 69.78 percent to 65.80 percent.

Privately, county officials don't know that the Justice Department materials would have helped prepare their case if an appeal of the preclearance denial had traveled to a federal court.

It's a question that apparently won't be answered since a settlement of the lawsuit was reached and became a part of the federal court order.

Bush, advisors, huddle on Iraq

By the Associated Press

President Bush on Friday canceled a weekend trip to his Maine vacation home and called his national security discuss Iraq's "across-the-board" defiance of the United Nations.

Bush told reporters "there is no time frame" for any action against Iraq despite the hasty change in plans. He said he was returning to Washington, then flying to Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains, for meetings with national security adviser Brent Scowcroft and other top aides because he wanted to be sure that all options had been discussed.

Announcing Bush's change in plans, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that issuing an ultimatum to Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to comply with U.N. resolutions or face the threat of military force was "still under discussion" among the Western allies.

'We are prepared to act accordingly to enforce the resolutions," he said.

Parole board approves adjustments

AMARILLO(AP) - The parole of convicted killer Kenneth McDuff and others has prompted tentative approval of a tougher review rule, the head of the state board says.

The new rule could require a unanimous vote by the parole panel before inmates convicted of capital murder be paroled.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice voted Friday for the change. However, a public hearing on the matter before final approval is required.

Also, the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles has final authority on implementing the change.

"The actual rule says that the full parole board must do an administrative review, and it could require that all 18 members vote for a release if it wants to," said Selden Hale, an Amarillo attorney who heads the board. "And we are going to leave it up to the parole board with their own rule-making authority to decide how that will work," he said.

Justice board members said the Texas Legislature and courts will also likely have input. Hale stressed that prison board members want the full parole panel to conduct reviews rather than the three-member system used now. Three members of the parole board currently review inmates' cases, with one member interviewing the parole candidate and the other two studying his or her file.

It then takes two votes for an inmate to be paroled, Hale said.

This month, legislative panels have been investigating state parole and the role played by consultants.

"This (new plan) is a reaction to some parole board members being wrong, in hindsight," said Hale.

In 1968, McDuff had been sentenced to death for the 1966 murder of one of three slain Tarrant County teen-agers. But his sentence was commuted to life when the U.S. Supreme Court found in 1972 that the death penalty, as then applied, unconstitutional.

McDuff's release from prison was ranted by parole board members in 989. But the agency's staff revoked his parole in September 1990 after he was accused of threats against a teen-ager.

McDuff's parole was reinstated by staff attorney months later. The 46-year-old man has since been indicted on capital murder charges in the deaths of two women.

Corn growers urgea to check for army worms

Corn growers are being reminded to check their fields for armyworms which reportedly are attacking cornfields in Deaf Smith County.

Agricultural Extension Agent Dennis Newton describes the pest as being 1 1/2 to two inches long with a greenish-black body. Dark orange stripes run lengthwise down each side and a light white line appears on the back.

Heavy rainfall allowed an abundance of grassy weeds which provided food for the insects, Newton said. Then, as the weed supply depleted, the pests began their assault on corn plants.

The proposed home is projected to be a $1 million facility with construction expected to start in August. It will have approximately 120 rooms and employ 60 to 80 people. We have been awaiting a formal announcement from the developer. It should be another great asset to the community. 000

Hereford is still in the hunt for a cheese processing plant to be located here. The task force formed to lead the project is a broad-based group which includes representatives of the chamber, city and county. The task force is currently in contact with two companies interested in constructing a plant. There is no definite timetable on a decision, but it could be a month or more.

The book, brought to us by a reader, is written by Dixie Lee Ray-former governor of Washington. She has served as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, assistant secretary of state in the U.S. Bureau of Oceans, and is a longtime member of the Zoology faculty of the University of Washington.

Dr. Ray lives on a farm in Washington state and is the recipient of many honors and awards. She received the UN Peace Prize; Harper's named her one of the 10 most influential women in the country in 1977, and she was voted Woman of the Year by Ladies Home Journal in 1973.

Dr. Ray says her book "is an effort to clarify environmental issues, to separate fact from factoid, to unmask the doom-crying opponents of progress, and to re-establish a sense of reason and balance with respect to the environment and modern technology.'

She exposes how little the public knows about the environment and how piddling are man's influence upon it--volcanoes shoot far more pollutants into the atmosphere than do all of man's industrial activities -and how complex are the interactions of natural phenomena.

She calls for environmentalists to regain a sense of perspective, stop hating humanity, and deal with facts instead of letting their ardor carry them into the realm of "noble lies." And, she tells readers how they can help.

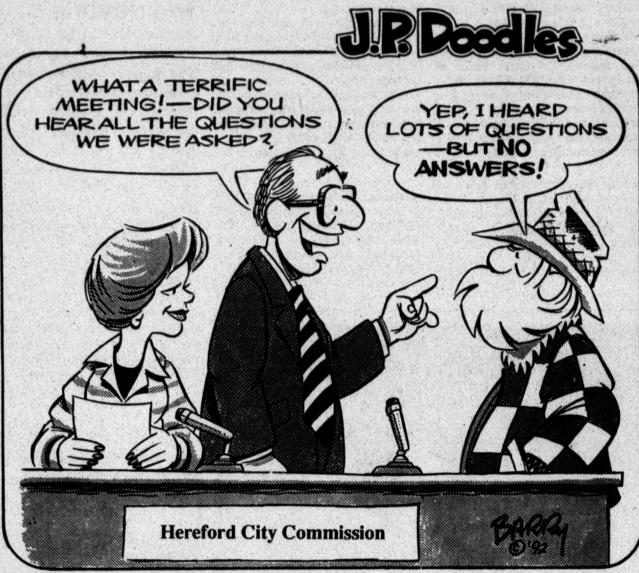

"Our responsibility is to be good stewards of the environment and to remember that a well-tended garden is better than a neglected woodpile," says Dr. Ray.

'Dump veep' movement not new

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dump the vice president movements are, as Dan Quayle said, an occupational hazard. They've ranged from grumbling in the ranks to attempted uprisings against the No. 2 man, none successful except when the president wanted a new partner.

President Bush says he doesn't, calling Quayle's spot very certain. To change the lineup, he'd have to swallow two years of vows to keep Quayle, and admit that he made a mistake in the first place.

Houston next month. In the three weeks plus before the Even if Quayle said it was his convention opens, said Rep. Vin Weber, a conservative who favors changing the Bush campaign but not the ticket, the challenges to Quayle will intensify. "People looking for a quick fix will call for dumping him," the Minnesota congressman said. He said replacing Quayle wouldn't change Bush's standing by one-half of one percent and would only be a diversion from the real problem of defining clearly what the administration would do about the economy and other problems in a second term.

Republicans have made a habit of talking about changes in their tickets. Democrats haven't had the chance; Walter F. Mondale was their only vice president renominated since World War II.

There were conservative calls for President Reagan to replace George cy would be up to the Republican Bush in 1984, but it was only an convention. That summer, Harold undertone. Reagan said when he declared his candidacy that Bush would run with him.

January will be dramatically different from the one now in power. Of the 535 total seats in the Senate and House, as many as 125, and possibly more, could change hands.

To put such a shift into context, the biggest upheaval in Congress since World War II occurred in 1948 when 118 new members were elected. We may exceed that, and even approach the 1932 record for this century of 165 new members.

There are many reasons for the pending upheaval. One is that 1992 is the last year House members elected before 1980 can retire and take unspent campaign money with them for their personal use. Another is a growing frustration of voters who sense our government is out of control and in need of change. The recent House bank scandal also served as a catalyst for political discontent, promoting an anti-incumbent mood. In addition, persistent economic malaise fosters a sense of unease and desire for change.

The call to "throw the rascals out" is not new. But more and more voters are including their "own" rascals in that category. In its April Business Ballot, NATION'S BUSINESS magazine asked respondents if they would support their own representatives in the coming election. A clear majority, 56 percent, said "no.

Predictably, the pending political earthquake has the Washington politi- out of office for their trouble.

WASHINGTON -- It is cal class in a tizzy. Our representatives clear that the Congress are particularly incensed by allegations which convenes next they are out of touch with the people. They contend, and with some justice, that they are only doing what the people want them to do.

> But therein lies the crux of our national dilemma. It is only natural for people to want a long list of services and benefits from government, and low taxes to boot. Of such contradictory demands are $400 billion annual deficits born. We all know this madness must be stopped.

The job of Congress, as envisioned by the Founding Fathers, is to sort through conflicting demands for resources, and choose among them. It is because Congress is too responsive to citizens because it seemingly can't say no to anyone -- that we are in this mess. What we need is a Congress less responsive to what the people want, and more attentive to what our country needs.

In the final analysis, the fault lies not with Congress, but with us. We are the ones who, like spoiled children, demand endless benefits and programs, but balk at the price. We are the ones who threaten any legislator who even dares mention the runaway entitlement programs that are devouring our substance. We are the ones who repeatedly give control of Congress to one party and the White House to the other, rendering any cohesive action impossible. Our only hope is that we will eventually elect a Congress deaf to our pleas and resolved to do what is best for us, knowing full well we will probably boot them decision to quit, it wouldn't be believed. It's Bush's call.

"If I thought I was hurting the ticket, I'd be gone," the vice president said in a television interview Wednesday night. His premise was that he's not hurting and that he is staying.

There hasn't been a winning, overhauled ticket in 48 years. The last vice president to stand aside was appointed, not elected, and the Republicans lost in 1976 anyhow.

Quayle told CNN's Larry King that he'd just as soon not have the stories speculating he's going to be replaced, "but it goes with the territory.

"I think it's probably happened to almost every vice president at some time, is he going to be on the ticket or not going to be on the ticket, because it's a decision of one person," he said. "And so this isn't new. It's not new to me, and it's not new to other vice presidents."

Still, the dump Quayle talk started sooner in his case than in theirs. His ratings in the polls have generally been lower. His gaffes have made it all worse. The sniping at past vice presidents up for renomination usually has been on political or philosophical grounds. In Quayle's case, Democrats and GOP detractors have made it a question of competence.

The United Nations was organized in San Francisco in 1945 and moved to its permanent headquarters in New York City in 1952.

Notes on the Law

What is a will?

A will is a legal expression of a person's wishes regarding disposition of the person's property and the care of any dependents and their property. To be effective, a will must be executed with the formalities required by the Texas statutes.

Who should make a will? It is important for everyone to have a will. Otherwise, your property and, perhaps, your dependents may fall under the control of the State.

Every parent of a minor child should definitely have a will. A will is the only document through which a parent can appoint a person to be the guardian of his minor child upon the parent's death. In the event of a common accident involving both parents, the child would become a ward of the state in the absence of an appointment of a guardian in a will.

Also, through a will, provisions can be made for the use and control of property left to a minor child. The placed in the hands of a conservator to be used for the benefit of the minor child.

Different persons can be named as guardian of a child and as conservator of the property, or the same person can serve as both guardian and conservator.

Single persons do need wills. A single person should make a will if the person wants to give some of his property to a charity, a church or a non-family member. Also, in the absence of a will, the single person's property would be distributed by the percentages established in the statutes. Through a will, a single person could set aside more of his property for a particular family member that might be more needy or deserving.

Persons with large estates need to do extensive estate planning to avoid estate and income taxes. Estates in excess of $600,000 are subject to property can be placed in a trust or state and federal taxes. Proper estate planning can minimize or avoid payment of estate, gift and income taxes by the person and the person's heirs.

> A simple will can generally be drawn and executed with only a couple of visits with an attorney. In the first appointment, the attorney can obtain basic information and can identify the specific issues that need to be addressed. For example, if a guardian needs to be appointed, the attorney can provide some guidance regarding the type of person who should be named as guardian.

More complex family situations or estates will require more time and effort. However, the time and effort invested will insure that your wishes and desires are followed.

Speaking of stock markets, U.S. trading gained following Perot's departure; in Mexico, his withdrawal drove the market up three percentage points on buyers' renewed hope for passage of a free trade pact with the U.S.

No pass, no play

Ironically, the no pass, no play school rule which Perot drove through the Legislature in the mid-1980s surfaced again as an issue needing finetuning.

The rule mandates that students receiving an 'F' are banned from extracurricular activities for a minimum of six weeks.

Carolyn Crawford of Beaumont, chair of the State Board of Education, wants to permit failing students to attend practices and rehearsals, while they work to bring their grades up.

Another proposal is to shorten the competition ban to three weeks for the first offense, but keep the rule's full force for subsequent offenses. Summer school solution

Elementary students in danger of being kept back a grade instead could be required to attend summer school to catch up under a proposal made last week by Education Commissioner Lionel 'Skip' Meno.

"Many youngsters, particularly in the early elementary grades, need more than 180 days in order to be successful," Meno said.

Meno will present his proposal in September to the State Board of Education, which will decide whether to recommend it to the Legislature. Prison suit pact

Hammered by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, a Democrat, and U.S. Attorney General William Barr, a Republican, plaintiff lawyers for Texas prison inmates signed a settlement which should end the courtroom prison reform battle.

The presiding judge still needs to approve the pact which will eliminate all prison populations caps in new prisons and allow the use of tents in prisoner book camps.

Morales comes off a winner. he rejected an earlier pact, drawing flak from the prison board, but he got his terms.

McDUFF

"That struck me as a little odd," Aaron said. "You hear people say things like that in the seventh grade, but you don't expect it from a 45-yearold man."

McDuff never mentioned his previous troubles or being in jail.

"He didn't seem like a killer to me," Aaron said. "I passed him off as a big nerd. In fact, I called him 'Snapper Head,' and he got mad at me one time for calling him that."

Aaron said McDuff worked at Ouik-Pak briefly in mid-1991 but never picked up the basics such as dealing with people or operating the cash register.

"He just couldn't learn, and he was real awkward," Aaron said. "One day he didn't show up for work. I never heard from him or even thought of him again."

Until the spring of 1992.

After viewing the photograph of "Big Mac," Aaron said he had a "gut feeling" about Melissa's abduction.

it."

On Dec. 29, barely two months before Melissa disappeared, a 28-year-old accountant named Colleen Reed vanished from an Austin car wash. Police feared the worst.

Witnesses reported hearing a two men speeding away in a yellow or tan Thunderbird.

But there was nothing at the time to link the disappoarance to McDuff.

That would soon change, although investigators in Austin and Waco did not immediately connect the Reed and Northrup cases even after McDuff's car was found near the Waco Quik-Pak.

April 20 - a week before Melissa's body was found - when one of McDuff's drinking buddies blurted out a chilling story to Bell County authorities.

Alva Hank Worley, 34, said he and McDuff kidnapped Colleen Reed while on a drug-buying trip to Austin. After tying her hands behind her, they sexually assaulted her on the return trip to Bell County, he said, and McDuff raped her again on a gravel road outside Belton.

Worley said McDuff forced the terrified young woman into the trunk of his Thunderbird and announced he was going to "use her up."

bitterness.

Melissa at a Waco Whataburger where both worked as teen-agers in 1989

"She was cooking hamburgers," he recalled with a sad smile, "and I said to myself, I got to have that woman."

They married a year later, on June 17, 1990.

He helped raise Melissa's two children by a previous marriage, Michael, 5, and Amber, 4, whose photographs decorate the wall of the family home. The youngsters now live with Melissa's parents.

Aaron frets over the marital discord that once separated him and Melissa, and the financial problems that kept them apart after they reconciled late last year.

He said they found a new home in February and planned to move in after Melissa quit her job at Quik-Pak. She was abducted on her last night there.

In a voice brittle with fury, he says "Yeah," he said, "McDuff did McDuff should be publicly executed for his crimes, those in the 1960s as well as the 1990s. And so should anyone who helped turn him loose.

"I look forward to the trial, to being there and seeing what goes on and learning what happened that horrible night," Aaron told a visitor to his home outside Waco.

"I look forward to a conviction, woman scream that night and seeing a death sentence, a speedy appeal process. And I look forward to seeing the man die."

But the prosecution should not stop there, he says.

"Whoever accepted the bribe money that eventually got him out, that person should be held as an accomplice to every single crime he committed," he seethed.

'And if McDuff gets a death The Reed case broke wide open on sentence, that guy should die right along with him."

Once said, Aaron concedes much of it is wishful thinking.

"I don't have faith in the system anymore. In fact, I don't have much faith in life itself. I just don't. I guess I'm desensitized.'

He scoffs at those who claim capital punishment is inhumane, particularly lethal injection, which replaced the electric chair as the instrument of execution in Texas.

"If I was going to die, that's the way I'd want to go," he said with a humorless laugh. "Colleen Reed did not get a lethal injection. She was brutally raped and beaten. Melissa was brutally raped and beaten, or at least I assume she was.

"I don't know.

"But I know she wanted to live. She was outgoing and generous and everybody liked her. She touched a lot of people in her life and probably just as many more in her death."

Some days, he said, he is simply overwhelmed with anger at McDuff and the circumstances of Melissa's death.

"Something like this happens only in nightmares," he said.

"I try to convince myself sometimes that it's all a dream. I think I'm going to wake up the next day and Melissa's going to come home and the kids will be here ... I get kind of depressed in the mornings 'cause it never turns out that way.

"It's always real."

Among his most difficult tasks was reading a poem entitled "Forever 17" at Melissa's funeral. Dedicated originally for another young victim of random violence, it begins:

"A million times we've missed

you, "A million times we've cried. "If love could have saved you, "You never would have died."

If there was a dry eye in the chapel, filled with more than 300 mourners, Aaron's was not among them.

intended to kill her.

Searchers on horseback, on foot and in helicopters combed portions of Bell County but found no trace of the missing woman.

"It's really like living the first day (after her abduction) all over again, Ms. Reed's sister, Lori Bible, told the Austin American-Statesman. "I don't know what to do. I don't know what to think."

In Waco, Aaron Northrup was equally shaken by Worley's confession.

"Up until that point I honestly believed Melissa was alive," he said. "It really upset me to know that if Colleen Reed was dead, Melissa might be dead too."

Six days later, Melissa's body, her hands bound behind her back, was found in the gravel pit near the Trinity River bottoms.

For Aaron, the 57-day ordeal, the period of uncertainty, was over. Only to be replaced by endless days of anger, frustration and cynicism. And a fierce desire for revenge.

On May 4, just days after Melissa's funeral, authorities arrested McDuff in Kansas City. A screaming, jeering crowd greeted him on his return to Texas, and a reporter shouted a question:

O's rain hits on Rångers; Pudge hurt

By The Associated Press

When they finally came in from the rain, the Texas Rangers had lost another game, some ground in the standings and their starting catcher. Playing the final four innings in a steady downpour, the Rangers dropped a 9-2 decision to the Baltimore Orioles on Friday night. Baltimore rookie Arthur Rhodes limited the Rangers to six hits in his first major-league complete game.

The game ended, mercifully, in the bottom of the eighth after a 43-minute rain delay.

Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez had to leave the game in the second inning after he was injured by Glenn Davis, who slid into the plate with his spikes high. Rodriguez sustained strained ligaments in his left knee and a laceration on his thigh.

"Pudge took a pretty good shot," Texas manager Toby Harrah said. "He might be out a couple days. It's a day-to-day thing."

Harrah was not particularly pleased with Davis' slide, which was not exactly out of a baseball textbook.

You don't see many slides like that often," he said. "Most of us learned to slide in the Little League. Rodriguez took a good shot to the thigh area ... that's a long way off the ground.'

Jeff Frye hit his first major-league homer for the Rangers, who have lost six of eight. Combined with Minnesota's split of a doubleheader in Boston, the Rangers fell 8 1/2 games behind the Twins in the AL West.

Rhodes (2-0) walked two and

"There's no comparison between his first three games this year and what we saw last year," Baltimore manager Johnny Oates said. "He has a lot of work to do, but he's got a lot more polish.'

It was the first complete game by an Oriole left-hander since Jeff Ballard did it on Aug. 21, 1989. The Orioles got 14 hits, at least one from every starter, off five Texas pitchers.

Down 2-1, Baltimore rallied against Todd Burns (2-3), who remained winless since June 21. Randy Milligan walked and Joe Orsulak singled before Bill Ripken tied the game with a ground-rule double. Jeff Tackett followed with a sacrifice fly and Brady Anderson bounced a double into the center-field seats to score Ripken.

"Burns wanted Anderson really bad," Harrah said. "He has pitched well and I have a lot of confidence in him, so I let him try.'

Danilo Leon replaced Burns and gave up a run-scoring triple to Mike Devereaux and an RBI single to Davis, who is hitting .419 over his last 12 games.

Baltimore made it 7-2 in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Anderson, and scored twice in the eighth on an RBI single by Orsulak and a sacrifice fly by Leo Gomez.

seats, only his fourth extra-base hit in 42 at-bats.

"I settled down after the home run and just tried to keep us in the game," Rhodes said. "It's not like I was talking to myself or anything."

The Rangers made it 2-0 in the third when Al Newman walked, Frye doubled and Brian Downing hit an infield single. Baltimore closed to 2-1 in its half of the inning on an RBI single by Cal Ripken.

Royals 8, Indians 3

The Royals, who entered play Friday tied with the Dodgers for the fewest home runs in the major leagues (44), generated some power for a change, getting two-run homers from Kevin McReynolds and Chris Gwvnn

Luis Aquino (1-1) gave up one run and seven hits in six innings in his second start since coming off the disabled list. Jeff Montgomery earned his 24th save. The Royals broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the seventh off Scott Scudder (6-9).

George Brett had four singles to move into 24th place on the all-time hit list with 2,928, one ahead of Al Simmons.

Twins 5-4, Red Sox 0-5

Scott Erickson (7-7) pitched a one-hitter in the opener, getting 17 groundouts and outdueling Roger Clemens (10-7). Randy Bush led Minnesota with a solo homer and a run-scoring double and Shane Mack added a two-run single.

Johnson upbeat as season approac

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A week into the Dallas Cowboys training camp has yielded mixed reviews on a team thought by some to be of Super Bowl caliber.

Coach Jimmy Johnson has been upbeat although he dreads the NFL-enforced trip to Japan the Cowboys have to make with the Houston Oilers on Monday.

Dallas will be gone a week from the here at the St. Edward's University training base and Johnson has written it off as time lost. Even the holdout of nine veterans including wide receiver Michael Irvin and tight end Jay Novacek hasn't made Johnson edgy.

"We'll be a better team when they arrive but for now we'll work with what we have," Johnson said.

Johnson quickly turns to the positive.

"I'm ecstatic over our linebacking corps," Johnson said. "I think Robert Jones in the middle and Dixon Edwards on the outside have been playing great."

Johnson calls it "the best training camp we've had since I've been coach of the Cowboys."

That's only been three years, but has a lot of talent. The mental as Johnson begins his fourth season there's credence to his feeling that the Cowboys are maturing into an NFL force.

Momentum from an 11-5 regular season and a playoff victory over Chicago have the Cowboys thinking Super Bowl.

"I expect us to have success in the playoffs," is the way Johnson puts Quarterback Troy Aikman is healed from his knee injury and has thrown the ball crisply. Alvin Harper has been sensational at wide receiver. However, not everything is running on all cylinders, Chad Hennings, trying to be a football player after five years as a fighter pilot, is having his problems trying to make the switch.

The former Outland Trophy winner from Air Force didn't make a tackle in the Blue-White scrimmage from his left defensive end position.

"It's going to really be a tough adjustment for him," said Dallas defensive tackle Russell Maryland. 'I know how hard it was for me coming directly from college to the pros.

"But I think Chad can do it. He adjustment is probably tougher than the physical. I know I got a little confused at the start."

Another disappointment has been the pulled right hamstring of top draft pick cornerback Kevin Smith, the 17th player taken in the NFL draft.

It's the first hamstring problem of Smith's career and he's afraid to cut loose on it.

"I'm running at only about 75 per cent and the leg hurts," Smith said. "I know the coaches are expecting more from me."

Right cornerback Larry Brown, the 12th round pick a year ago out of Texas Christian, has had a sensational camp

Nate Newton's new slimmed down figure may prompt an eventual movement from tackle to guard for one of the Cowboys best blockers.

Newton came into camp with a 60-pound weight loss and is much quicker.

Newton can pull out now as a blocker for the running backs without falling flat on his face. A Newton move would give up-and-coming Erik Williams a starting tackle post.

Brad Daluiso, the placekicking heir apparent to Ken Willis who went to Tampa Bay on Plan B, has been inconsistent. Rookie free agent Lin Elliott of Texas Tech has been the most steady kicker in camp.

"It's going to be a great kicking battle and it won't be decided until we make our 47-man cut," Johnson said

If there has been one surprise in camp it has been Jones, the Cowboys second pick in the first round from East Carolina. The Cowboys were thought to be in trouble at middle linebacker when veteran Jack Del Rio took Minnesota's Plan B offer.

Jones showed his speed when he picked off an Aikman pass and returned it 58 yards for a touchdown in the Blue-White scrimmage.

He also made two other plays that had Johnson smiling from ear-to-ear. He ran down a couple of plays that the normal athlete couldn't have made," Johnson said. "We're very pleased with him in the middle. Unfortunately, Jones has been pushing so hard he got hurt, pulling a groin muscle. The heavy working Cowboys lost other rookies to injury, two second-round pick wide receiver Jimmy Smith of Jackson State and fourth-round pick Tomy Myslinski of Tennessee. Both were expected to be out a month with injuries.

Jóhnson hasn't let up and the team got a lot of bruises and cuts in three days of workouts against the Los Angeles Raiders.

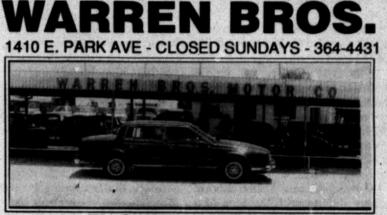

"We can heal up on the flight to Japan," Johnson said.

The Cowboys have about 28 hours on an airplane ahead of them going to and from Tokyo.

"I'm looking forward to our return," is the way Johnson puts it.

The first part of the Cowboys camp is going well.

'But we'll just have to start all over again when we get back from Japan," Johnson said. "It's just an adjustment we'll have to make."

Landry seems like history ancient

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Why does the changeover in the Dallas Cowboys organization seem like ancient history?

Has it really only been 3 1/2 years since the Cowboys changed forever in a violent overthrow of the old guard?

Didn't it really happen about the time Catherine the Great ruled Russia?

The Tom Landry era is not only over, but memories of the two Super Bowl triumphs two decades ago have faded.

Landry predicted the fans and the media would forget him quickly. He was right again.

The hot and humid St. Edwards University training camp has taken root in just three short years as a popular home for the Cowboys of Jimmy Johnson.

The cool Thousand Oaks summer home of Landry and the Cowboys is a far away memory.

Just about every holdover vestige of the Landry days has been erased. Out with the old and on with the new in the NFL's ever-changing personnel tides. Crusty Buck Buchanan still takes care of the equipment and Marge Boatwright, secretary to Landry, works for Johnson. But there are no coaching holdovers. Bob Ackles, director of player personnel, was fired in the offseason and Dick Mansperger, college scouting director, quit to go into private business.

Stephen Jones, son of owner Jerry, is handling the contracts and Larry approval on this new version.

Lacewell has taken Mansperger's job. Austin is agog again over its rejuvenated Cowboys. A successful 11-5 season and a playoff has won over the once pro-Landry faction. Owner Jones and Johnson deserve credit for gambling on leaving the Cowboys' old Thousand Oaks base, but it has paid big dividends.

Press coverage has increased, thus hyping the anticipation over the new season from a team that surprised the NFL with a playoff appearance in 1991.

Large, adoring crowds attend each practice session in an atmosphere that resembles a country, outdoor carnival. Corporations pour money in the Cowboys coffers for training camp seating privileges. Even that old Cowboy hero Roger Staubach has put his stamp of

"I've become a big fan of this team," he said last week, making his first appearance at the St. Edwards training camp. "I didn't want to be against the Cowboys. I'm grateful to Tom and Tex Schramm but this is the future. If you burn bridges then life doesn't work."

win."

The Cowboys are back among the NFL's elite, but only the star on the helmet and the team colors remain the same.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The only observable addition to the Houston Oilers run-and-shoot offense this season is the primal scream.

Offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride installed that feature early in training camp before the veterans arrived but it's not expected to be a permanent fixture.

It's really the same thunder and lightning run-and-shoot offense that has led the NFL in average yards per game the past two seasons and expects to do so again.

Gilbride, who usually directs the Oilers run-and-shoot offense with an even hand and steady voice, broke out in a nuclear bark to make an emphatic point about workout intensity.

A repeat performance probably isn't needed.

"It just bothers me when some of the guys' concentration has evaporated on occasion," Gilbride said. "The thing that always upsets me is when the mental and emotional effort isn't there."

Gilbride's fog horn tactics aside, there are subtle changes that involve progress in learning how to run and shoot. It's the third year of the offense and Gilbride thinks some players are understanding his lectures.

of eye health.

The run-and-shoot will never be a balanced attack as long as Warren Moon and his receiving corps are consuming record-setting yardage. But Gilbride wants to run well also.

"There has always been a strong effort to have an effective running attack, but we'll do what we do best," Gilbride said. "If we're running well we'll do that but when you've got a Warren Moon that can throw the way he can throw, that's what you do.

Case closed, and sorry about White and the other running backs starving for the football.

'The ideal situation is when you can do both and that's what we've got to strive to achieve," Gilbride said. "We've always tried to achieve that but hopefully we can do it. If we can get the running game better that will help, no question."

Morales among those to watch at Olympics

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer Among the 10,000 athletes at the Barcelona Olympics, these men will be among the ones to watch:

Pablo Morales, Swimming

Morales won a gold medal and two silvers at the Los Angeles Olympics. Two years later, he set the world record for the 100-meter butterfly, 52.84 seconds, the only swimmer ever to break 53 seconds for the event.

Then came 1988. Morales never made it past the Olympic trials. He finished third in both butterfly events.

"I thought 1988 was a natural conclusion to my swimming career," Morales said. "I had dedicated a year to get ready for the Olympics. Things didn't work out. You go on." He enrolled in law school at Cornell and put swimming behind him. At least he thought he had.

"My second year of law school, I began playing with the idea of a comeback," he said. "Ten years ago, a person 27 could not think about a comeback. It would not be feasible with a 9-to-5 job. But since I was in law school, it was feasible to take a year off."

To his surprise, Morales made progress in a hurry. "I improved every day, every time I touched the he said. "The whole water," comeback process was fun from Day 1.'

Decent enough to show up at the 1992 Olympic trials in Indianapolis last March, Morales' time in the 100 butterfly was 54.05 seconds - slower than 1988, but good enough to finish first in the trials and earn a trip to Barcelona.

He's still about three-quarters of a second short of the world's fastest swimmers in that event, people like Anthony Nesty of Surinam, Valdislav Kulikov of the Unified Team and Marcel Gery of Canada. He is trying to narrow that gap.

Kenny Monday, Wrestling

It would be hard to duplicate the drama that accompanied Kenny Monday's freestyle wrestling gold medal at the 1988 Olympics. That's fine with Monday.

"I want to dominate this time," he said. "I don't want any close matches."

Monday made his first Olympic team when he defeated longtime U.S. star Dave Schultz in the U.S. team's 1988 wrestleoff. At Seoul, he reached the finals of the 163-pound division against Adlan Varayev, the defending world champion who had beaten him in two of their three previous meetings.

Neither man scored a point for the In 1984, 19-year-old Pablo first four minutes of the six-minute match. Then Monday moved ahead. Varayev responded and took the lead. With just 17 seconds left, Monday evened the match, forcing overtime. Forty seconds into the extra session, he slammed Varayev to the mat and captured the gold.

After capturing the U.S. Nationals, World Team Trials and Pan American Games championships in 1991 - and turning 30 - Monday could have pulled back competitively and concentrated on his job as assistant wrestling coach at Oklahoma State. Except Monday is a wrestling historian and wants to make a little history of his own.

"No other American wrestler has ever won two freestyle gold medals," Monday said. "George Mehnert won in 1904 and 1908, but it was a demonstration sport in 1904. That's the motivation for me. I want to make history."

Dan Jorgensen, Swimming

In the 1986 world swimming championships at Madrid, Dan Jorgensen won three bronze medals and set an American record in his specialty at the trials with a time of 3 minutes, 49.41 seconds. For six years, it remained his best time.

"I had gone into the 1988 Olympics hoping for a personal best in the 400," Jorgensen said. "I didn't get it. I walked away disappointed."

Jorgensen continued on a swimming treadmill until last October. He decided then there were difficult decisions to be made. The toughest was to leave his father, Niels, who had been coaching him, and move to Philadelphia to be coached by Dick Shoulberg.

"Motivation was a problem when I was swimming with my dad and there was the interference you'd expect between a father and son," Jorgensen said.

In the Olympic trials, Jorgensen won the 400 freestyle in 3:49.14, his best time in six years and the second-fastest ever by an American. That's still 2 1/2 seconds slower than world record-holder Kieren Perkins of Australia, but it's progress, something that had been missing from Jorgensen's portfolio for six years.

As for his father, Jorgensen said there was the expected resentment regarding the split. "After the Olympics, I feel we'll be back to normal," he said.

Steve Lewis, Track and Field

Sometimes, success can come too soon for an athlete. Steve Lewis, winner of two gold medals in the 1988 Olympics, is determined not to be one of those case histories.

Lewis, then a 19-year-old freshman at UCLA, was pretty much of an unknown when he lined up for the final of the 400-meter dash at Seoul in 1988. He was bursting with confidence, though, generated perhaps from his 44.11-second time in the Olympic trials one of the fastest in history at that point.

'Going into the final, I felt I could win," he said.

Butch Reynolds in 43.87 - the thirdfastest time in history. He became the youngest male runner to win an individual gold medal in 80 years, since South African Reggie Walker won the 100 in 1908.

Then Lewis ran the second leg of the 1,600-meter relay even faster, in 43.6, and earned a second gold.

Things went downhill after that. "I was plagued with a right hamstring injury in 1989 and a virus in 1990," he said. "I came back a little last year, but then I had a pinched nerve that started in my back and went into my left hamstring."

After healing from the injuries, Lewis' post-Olympic times hovered around 45 seconds. But then he ran 44.45 in the Mount San Antonio College Relays at Walnut, Calif., in April, and 44.08 in the Olympic trials at New Orleans.

"I haven't been in the limelight the last few years, but I still feel I am high bar.

one of the elite quarter-milers in the world," he said.

Grigori Misutin, Gymnastics

Compared to most gymnasts, Gregori Misutin got a late start in the sport. A native of Ukraine, he was already 12 years old when he finally found his way to the mats and bars. But he made up for lost time in a hurry, quickly progressing through the Soviet rankings.

Last September, Misutin won the men's all-around world gymnastics championship, the eighth straight world champion from his country, continuing a string that began in 1978 with Nikolai Andrianov. His total of 59.050 led a sweep at the championships for the remains of the Old Soviet system, with Vitaly Scheroo second and Valeri Liukin third.

His lowest score was 9.775 on the vault, which is his favorite apparatus. He had 9.9s on both the floor and Misutin, 21, followed that in April by winning the high bar in the 1992 world championships at Paris and finishing third in the rings. The 5-foot-5, 125-pound student goes into the Olympics as the gold-medal favorite.

I really do love this man and I'm happy just to be with him, but I feel uncomfortable about a few things. Mike has never offered to help me with the rent, food or utilities. He is living here free. He has a good job but keeps telling me how broke he is. He says his money goes into his retirement account, new car payments, taxes and upkeep on investment property.

I live in a modest apartment, drive a paid-for, older car and have no money for investments or retirement accounts.

Gardening at the Gazebo

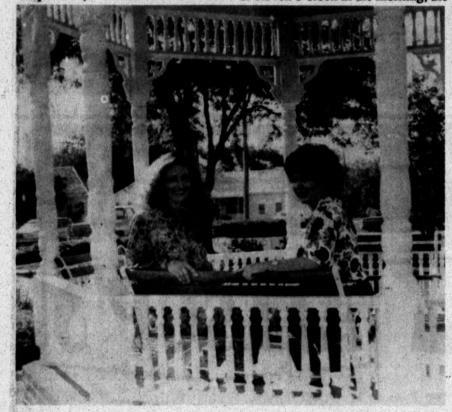

By CARMEN FLOOD

Well, as they say, the "dog days of summer" are upon us. It's hot, it's lazy, and it's time to slow down just a bit to beat the heat, and the time in the garden to keep a close watch for insects and plant stress which can do so much damage this time of the year. Most of the time in the garden is spent weeding, a never ending task, deadheading spent flowers, and checking for yellowing of plants caused by a shortage of iron which is common here on the high plains.

To correct the iron deficiency, we will replace trace elements such as iron, copper, zinc, and magnesium by treating with ionate, iron sulfate, aluminum sulfate, copperas sulfate, crop mix (A combination of these elements), or epsom salts. Many times, plants are inactive through the heat of the nutrients a plant needs are already in the soil, but our heavy clay prevents the plants from making use of them. That is where the trace elements come into play. They facilitate in the unlocking of these necessary nutrients. Used in conjunction with a good balanced fertilizer, allow plants to receive all they need to grow lush and also ward off many diseases and insects.

Trace elements can be applied as a foliar treatment, but we find that this can spot the leaves, so we mix them with water and pour around the plants. This seems to work well. We have also discovered that if foliar treatments are necessary, and are applied before ten or eleven o'clock in the morning, the

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I made some homemade bread, and when I removed it from the oven, the top had a big crack in it. What caused this and how can I prevent it from happening again? - Josie, Karnes City,

There are several things that could cause the bread to crack:

HOME CANNING PEACHES Dear Heloise: For home canning of peaches, use a serrated grapefruit spoon to scoop out the pits. It works the day, and therefore show less spotting or discoloration to the leaves.

FOAM MEAT TRAYS Dear Heloise: I reuse foam meat

We will feed the roses with a systemic rose food plus iron for the last time in July, though we will continue to spray for bugs and fungus until frost. Withholding food from this time or allow the plants to harden-off before winter freeze. Because of the amount of rain we have had in June and July, nitrogen has leached from the soil and will need to be replaced. This will be done along with the iron as the last feeding for all the flowers in July for the same reason as the roses; that is, to allow plants to harden-off for winter.

The hedge trimming done in July and AUgust also comes to a stop then, because the trimming causes the shrubs to experience a growth spurt. If they are actively growing when a hard freeze hits, it can kill or damage them badly, as you may have noticed, we lost several boxwoods last year, and others had much damage on mean. w have cleaned them up however, and they are looking better all the time. It will take several years to completely recover from the untimely hard freeze of 1991. Other shrubs are not formally trimmed, as the boxwoods which outline the flower beds, but are allowed to have a natural shape. This trimming is done by taking the branch down to the base of the plant to allow for new growth which comes from the support of a strong base and root system. It takes time, but we can continue trimming until August.

We have added a few new flowers to the garden this year, and remember that we are still fighting the battle against nut grass which is a large problem at the Black House Garden. Some of our drought resistant flowers, such as our beautiful copper plants, will be fine when it gets very hot and dry, but the rains and relatively cool weather we've been having has slowed them down this year. As with all gardens, ours is an experiment, and some of the flowers planted this year have been a disappointment. One such flower is an annual called "Love-in -A-Mist" (nigelia) which was planted in our Bride's Walk Bed. The name sounds lovely and romantic, but the plant is not rewarding int he least, so it will be left out of next year's plan. A small area just to the south of this bed, however, has an antique rose in the center, surrounded by a small and lovely violet called "Purple Robe" which is not invasive, and is set off by softly colored impatiens. It is worth going to see.

The Daylillies and cone flowers have been exceptional this year, and we would like to point out one new plant which we are especially pleased with. That is a plant called Santolina (actually an herb) which is carefree and lovely, and which we recommend to any one. The pink chrysanthemums surrounding the gazebo garden have been allowed to bloom, and then cut back, and we hope for another fall showing along with the other mums. The garden committee of the Black

House would like to remind you that we are all amateur gardeners and have had no "formal" training, but only an ongoing interest in gardening. Our goals at the Black House Garden are simple: to give the people of Hereford and the surrounding area a tranquil, serene setting to enjoy, and to share with you what we amateurs have learned in the process. Almost all we do, as with all gardening, is done by trial and error. We strive to learn what will work best in this area, which has a beauty all its own, but is challenging to anyone trying to create a setting of lush green growth and beautiful flower. We face many problems here, and we study and look for solutions.

We try to remain open to new solutions, and when we come across something which works, we are more than happy to share with anyone who asks. In turn, if any of you know of something that will benefit this garden, please share that information with us. For example, our rose of sharon have not been particularly healthy for four years, and we've not been able to discover why. We also have two crabapple trees which have never done well. If you have any answers to our dilemma, please get in touch with Donna Brockman at the Museum, and share with her that information. Your help will be much appreciated, and together we can make hereford a place we can be proud of.

To close, we know that many of you have either lost your gardens to hail, or they have been damaged severely, and we want to express our sorrow for that. It takes a great deal of work, thought and determination to make a garden, and if you lost yours, know that we are with you in spirit.

Thank You

I send a special thank you to Msgr. Orville Blum for his spiritual support & to Dr. Johnson for his concern & care. May God bless you all. Sincerly,

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

For crying out loud! Nearly every day books cross my desk filled with words that I find repugnant and offensive. But people demand them, so we order them in and put them on the shelf. Fine. It's a free country, and we're a publicly-funded institution. I can live with that. But now comes a group who are demanding that The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn be removed from schools because it contains, in over two hundred instances, that dreaded "n" word -"nigger". There's no question that Huck Finn operated under some of the prejudices of the 1840's (just as we operate under the prejudices of the 1990's), but neither Huck Finn nor Mark Twain were racists. It seems that, more and more, we "strain at gnats" in being "politically correct," yet "swallow camels" in moral correctness. Enough of that soap box. Now to tell you about some of those trashy books I mentioned earlier.

The Rainbow Runner is the latest by John Cunningham. Hero jack O'Donnohue ranks with Will Kane of High Noon, the author's most famous work. Hired to transport a religious shrine through revolutionary Mexico, O'Donohue finds nothing but trouble betrayed on all sides by Pancho Villa's army.

Elie Wiesel, historian and writer of popular fiction of recent Jewish history, offers The Forgotten, Elhanan Rosenbaum, distinguished psychotherapist and survivors of WWII, is losing his memory and resolves to tell his son Malkiel about his past before it is too late. Malkiel is compelled to go to the ROmanian village where the crime that haunts his father was committed. There he learns the truths that bind one generation to the next.

made aware of authors who have been around for a while. Ed McBain is a good example. Killer's Choice, an 87th Precinct Mystery bearing an original copyright date of 1958, has recently been released in hardcover. I know McBain has produced lots of material and he has quite a following, so I won't try to encapsulate the story, but I did find the new introduction to Killer's Choice entertaining and intriguing.

If you prefer your mysteries true rather than made up, you may want to look at To Honor and Obey, subtitled "a true courtroom drama of love and murder on Park Avenue, and of Michael Dowd, the man known as 'The Woman's Lawyer," Luann Fratt seemed like the conventional society matron until she shoved a knife through her estranged husband's heart. DEAR DR. LAMB: Please clarify your current opinion regarding breast cancer and the use of progestins such as Provera. I understand the use of estrogen can increase the risk of uterine cancer, so progestins are given to reduce that risk, but progestins increase the risk of breast cancer.

I am at that age when I must make a decision. I would like to take estrogen for the benefits to the heart and bones, but am very afraid of breast cancer. My mother and two aunts have suffered with it, and it caused the deaths of both aunts. I also have uterine fibroid tumors. At the age of 50, should I have a hysterectomy, thereby eliminating the risk of uterine cancer with the use of estrogen and have no need to take progestins to eliminate the risk of breast cancer? DEAR READER: My current opinion is that the results of more studies in a larger number of women are needed to really answer your question. There are studies that show both estrogen and progesterone even decrease the risk of breast cancer. A well-done study from Sweden suggested that estrogen increased the risk of breast cancer, but that applied only to pure estrogen and there was no increased risk from conjugated estrogen such as Premarin. The alarming point from the study was that in women who also took progesterone, the incidence of breast cancer was 4.4 times as great. The problem with that observation was the number of women who took progestins was too small to justify a conclusion. But it is a warning.

As long as there is no reason not to take estrogen replacement, I believe it is a good idea to take it. It is true that taking progestins such as Provera will decrease the risk of developing endometrial cancer of the uterus, but since such cancers are no longer that common, and they can usually be detected early and cured if a woman is carefully followed by her doctor, I don't think it is always mandatory to take progestins.

DEARDR. LAMB: For all our lives, we adults were told to drink eight glasses of water a day. Now I am led to understand that your daily water consumption should be based on your body weight - a person who weighs 200 pounds should drink twice as much as one who weighs only 100 pounds. What is the current recommended consumption?

DEAR READER: It is generally true that a larger person will need more water than a small person. But there are so many variables that determine how much water a person needs that such a rule is entirely too simplistic. So is the eight-glasses-ofwater-a-day rule.

You need to drink enough water to maintain a good urinary output.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS Don Taylor

COWS, CUSTOMERS AND CULLS (Last of a three-part series)

n the last two columns we have discussed culling cows and customers. We shared how Missouri dairy farmer, Bill Sienbenborn, had increased his productivity by 58 percent. He selectively culls poorly producing cows and replaces them with profitable producers. In business the same process can improve your bottom line.

A careful analysis of your records may reveal customers who are eating up your profits. Others may be robbing you of time, energy and motivation. Last week we gave two examples of profit robbers. This week we will focus on other types of customers who may be ripe for culling.

The Time Thief

One potential cull is the time thief. I'm convinced that a good many folks don't have enough to do. Or maybe they have plenty to do, but don't want to do it. Time is a precious commodity that is scarce in most businesses. Time thieves waste it as if there were a surplus.

As was the case with the profit robbers last week, you may not have to cull the time thief. However, you must deal with them quickly, firmly and tactfully. Sometimes just pointing out how busy you are will do the trick. If your time waster is slow of wit, try a more direct approach. Say something like, "Bubba, I always enjoy visiting with you, but I've got to get busy." Then get up and get busy. Ninety-nine times out of 100 they will take your hint without hard feelings.

Another potential cull is the demander. Demanders expect special treatment. They want to go to the front of the line or move to the head of the waiting list. They expect you to drop everything and take care of them.

The following incident allegedly happened in the lost luggage line at an airport back east. A very disgruntled passenger bypassed about a dozen people in line and went right up to the counter and demanded service. The obviously harried customer service representative tried to ignore the demander who ranted and raved about his lost luggage.

Finally, she excused herself from the cusotmer she was serving and addressed the demander by asking his name. "Brown," he shouted. "William F. Brown the third."

"Well, Mr. Brown," the service representative said sweetly. "Right now just two people in the whole world give a darn about your luggage. And, frankly one of us is losing interest." He went back to the end of the line.

The Abuser

An abuser is a cusotmer who can tear up a steel ball with a cotton swab. Several years ago, I sold a customer a quality weed trimmer. In a few hours he brought it back with the cutting head nearly destroyed. It had obviously been abused, but I installed a new head - no hassle, no charge - and sent him on his way.

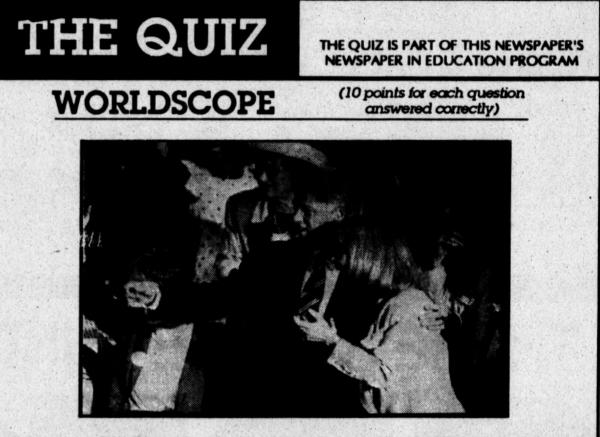

The next day he was back with the new cutting head in the same shape. I told this customer that I didn't think this trimmer was heavy enough for his use. I refunded the purchase price and suggested that he check with a competitor to see if their brand would be more suitable. He had already cost me $30 in repairs, so why not let my competitor share the fun.

In summary, use your records and good judgement to analyze your customers. Cull out those who are costing your excess time and money. Spend the time and money you save to attract and take care of profitable business.

Jackle Nespral and Scott Simon will serve as hosts of NBC's new Saturday Today show. Simon is an award-winning veteran of National Public Radio, while Nespral comes to NBC from cable's Univision. This latest edition of Today will offer features on travel and leisure in addition to news and weather.

NBC trades cartoons for. news, sports, weather

By Suzanne Gill It's a new day at NBC. The peacock network, which was beaten in the ratings this season by a resurgent CBS, has started shedding its old plumage and is putting out new feathers, all in the hopes of wooing the under-30 crowd for its advertisers.

Gone are The Golden Girls, Matlock and In the Heat of the Night. Once proud enough to strut with plumes such as these, NBC has dropped them all. Gone, too, are Saturday-morning cartoons. The new NBC is for those 9 and up - viewers in their preallowance years need not apply. The network is grooming itself for a young, hip, decidedly urban audience.

That means the news. And the weather. And cooking segments, health tips and movie reviews. After launching an overnight news service in November and (finally) getting a workable news magazine off the ground in March, NBC is ready to call it Today every day of the week.

The 40-year-old Today show foundered a couple of seasons ago when the news division underestimated viewer devotion to co-host Jane Pauley, who left the show in January 1990. Audiences fled the upheaval at Today for America, only to be lured back late this hour-long report, for two years. spring by the smart, bubbly style of Katie Couric.

> Nespral and Simon, she adds, were chosen for their diverse talents and backgrounds and for their versatility in moving from hard news to lighter stories. Curry notes that while neither will be pigeon-holed with particular stories, each will bring outside interests to the show. Simon, a big kid from the streets of Chicago, is a sports enthu-siast. Nespral, a wife and mother, has an understandable interest in family matters.

Curry's overall aim is to appeal to weekday Today viewers while attracting working people who may not have time to watch the show until week's end.

"It will have a little bit of everything," she concludes - with not a little panache. O TV Listing Inc

Bloom's career blossoms at night

By Candace Havens Each week it seems there is a daytime actor who has decided to leave a steady job on the soaps to try his luck in feature films and prime-time television. Unfortunately for most actors, they end up wishing they hadn't left.

Not so for young Brian Bloom. After portraying the popular Dustin Don-ovan on As the World Turns for five years, Bloom has succeeded in the crossover to prime time with the upcoming CBS series 2000 Malibu Road, where he is working with some of today's most popular actresses: Drew Barrymore, Jennifer Beals and Lisa Hartman.

"The show is about four women from different walks of life, who all move into this beautiful mansion out on the beach," says Bloom. "It's a very sexy, romantic kind of place, especially through the eyes of our director. Lisa plays a character named Jade who owns the mansion but has to rent rooms to the other three women because she needs the money. The thing that is special about the show is that even though these women live in the same house, they each have their separate stories," says Bloom.

"I play a guy named Eric Adler, who is the heir to a Hollywood dynasty," says Bloom. "His parents are TV and movie producers and he loves them very much, but he has certain things he wants to prove to them, the town (Hollywood) and to himself. He falls in love with Drew's character and they have a star-crossed lovers kind of thing."

The director of 2000 Malibu Road is Joel Schumacher, who is known for his feature films (Flatliners, Dying Young). "He is a really cool director and he always seems to have an eye for young talent," says Bloom.

So why did a big-time filmmaker decide to do a television show? "He and producer Aaron Spelling have been talking about working together since probably before I was born," says Bloom. "I think Schumacher's perspective is another thing that will make this show special in that every week we will be shooting a mini, hourlong movie," says Bloom. "It will be set up and more stylized like a movie and have the polished touches of a movie. I think that is what everybody is hoping for." O TV Listing Inc.

Biondi enters Olympic pool again

T|||M|E| |0|U|

By Dennis Hernandez

U.S. team member Matt Biondi has a chance to accomplish what has not been done by any male swimmer in almost 100 years of Olympic history gold medals in three different Games.

At the Summer Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, the 26-year-old Biondi will have the opportunity to add to the gold medal he won at the 1984 Los Angeles Games and the five gold medals he carned at the 1988 Seoul Games. A favorite this year in the 100-meter freestyle (he holds the world record in that event), Biondi is also slated to compete in the 50-meter freestyle and the 400-meter freestyle relay.

Biondi says, "As a kid I never thought that I'd swim in the Olympics or amount to anything in the sport. I just took it one step at a time and tried to enjoy myself. It turned out to be quite an experience."

With two Olympics already under his Speedo, Biondi is as excited about these games as he was about his first. "We have the strongest team that I've ever been associated with in my nine years of international competition," he says. "The women are a great deal stronger than I've ever seen, and the men are more experienced. We have more record holders and more world champions than any team I've ever been on.

"I think you'd have to be brain dead to not be excited to race in this one."

Gymnast Betty Okino hopes to compete in the all-around finals of the Summer Olympics on Thursday.

Reid pursues dream in 'Underground Railroad'

By Suzanne Gill Back in the '70s, you'd find Tim Reid playing Venus Flytrap, the enigmatic overnight deejay on WKRP in Cincinnati. Though others from the hit comedy — Loni Anderson and Howard Hesseman — have seen their stars continue to rise since leaving Cincinnati, only Reid has labored to become a writer, producer and direc-tor, pursuing new TV projects that satisfy him intellectually as well as financially.

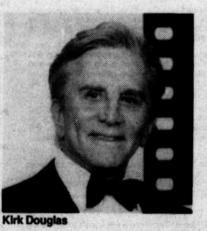

In the late 1980s, Reid was coexecutive producer of the critical hit Frank's Place, playing a New England professor who inherits a New Orleans eatery and discovers his cultural heritage in the land of Mardi Gras. Reid's co-star in Frank's Place and its short-lived successor, Snoops, was his wife, Daphne Maxwell Reid.

Currently, Reid is producing The Underground Railroad, a TV movie to debut next February with a cable simulcast on The Family Channel and BET.

Reed's notion of producing a dramatic treatment of the history of the flight of millions of slaves to freedom dates back eight years. In The Underground Railroad, he hopes to bring out stories of heroism and infamy among both blacks and whites and to show how abolitionists north of the border earned Canada the code name Canaan among slaves who risked their lives to claim their freedom.

Douglas as Wile E. Coyote; Take my Rolls, please

By Taylor Michaels Q: I have been trying to locate the video of a movie I've seen several times, but I don't know the name. It was a hilarious Western starring Kirk Douglas, who wore a black outfit, had clinking spurs on his boots and a black horse that was smarter than he was. It was just a succession of mishaps. -Dorice Watts, Kerrville, Texas, A: The movie of which you write is The Villain, co-starring Ann-Margret and Arnold Schwarzenegger. Directed by stuntmaster Hal Needham, The Villain is patterned after a Road Runner cartoon, even using the "Looney Tunes" theme music in its finale. Q: While in San Diego, I saw a movie in which Randolph Scott played a Marine (an officer, I believe). The picture also starred Noah Beery Jr. As I recall, Beery's character or a buddy Marine married and left for who were frequently paired in action flicks, indeed played buddy Marines bent on capturing a Pacific island once lost to the Japanese. (The phrase "gung ho" is Japanese for "work together," and at the time, the title was meant as a slap in the face of the enemy.)

The Sammy Fain-Irving Kahal song, which was a hit for Frank Sinatra and others, was used as the theme song and supplied the title for another movie made a year later. I'll Be Seeing You stars Joseph Cotten as a shell-shocked war vet who meets and falls in love with a female state prisoner on furlough played by Ginger Rogers. Liberace used the song as his trademark closing piece. The movie is not available on videotape. Q: Please help me. I'm trying to find out the name of a movie that starred Michael Parks and Janet Margolin. -J.N.T., Greensburg, Pa.

A: 1965's Bus Riley's Back in Town starred Parks as an ex-sailor whose homecoming leaves him questioning his life's directions. Ann-Margret plays his wealthy ex-girlfriend, with Janet Margolin, Brad Dexter, Kim Darby, Larry Storch and David Carradine rounding out the cast.

Q: My friends and I love the show copy, you're sure to enjoy Jonathan Frid, as resident vampire Barnabas Collins, in the original.

Q: When a game-show contestant wins, do they have to take all the gifts? How do they pay the taxes if they do not have the money? -- Marilyn Sights, Cherokee Village, Ark.

A: Mom might have been able to overseas. I seem to remember the so "I'll Be Seeing You" being played. Could you please assist me in finding this movie? —L.B., Hurley, Wis. A: Most of the action you describe occurred in 1943's Gung Ho!, in which Randolph Scott and Noah Beery Jr.,

Dark Shadows, and when the show went off the air, we were pretty mad. I heard newhere that it was coming back on the air. Is it true? If so, when? -Jessica Pick, Portland, Ore.

A: The Dark Shadows you were watching was an NBC update of the original series, which aired from 1966-1971. In all probability, the newer Dark Shadows will not return to television. However, the original series is slated for a full rerun on the newly conceived Sci-Fi Channel, a property of USA Networks, which has planned a Sept. 24 launch date. If you liked the make us take our medicine as kids, but when we grow up and win prizes on a game show, no one can make us take them. Though the gift and sales taxes on the high-priced items and cash winnings are pretty steep, I don't believe there is a crisis in finding willing takers for the merchandise. Someone having trouble paying the tax bill for a new Rolls-Royce could always sell it and pocket the leftovers.

Lady in Spain:

Launi's Barcelona dream

Athlete/nutritionist looks to life ahead By Steven Alan McGaw

"I'm getting pretty nervous, like always, " Launi Meili said candidly in an interview conducted earlier this month. "Everyday, I'm working as hard as I can to do what I can do when I get there."

What Meili does is shoot, expertly, for the U.S. Olympic shooting team. A finalist in the 1988 Olympics, Meili has a wealth of awards tucked away, including a gold medal from the 1991 U.S. Olympic Festival. In her career, Meili has set over 100 national and three world records. All that, however, is the past. Now, the Washington native's focus is on the 1992 Games. "I feel I'm shooting as strong as I ever have," says Meili, who competes in the three-position and air-rifle events. An avid aerobiciser. Meili also uses three-position and air-rifle events. An avid aerobiciser, Meili also uses visualization exercises in her rigorous training program. "I visualize myself having the perfect hold, the perfect squeeze and followthrough and then the perfect shot,"

Meili explains.

Meili declares this is her last Olympics,

"There are other areas I want to excel in," she says. "I've put a lot of years in shooting. Now I'm ready to round out my life."

Meili helps her Olympian peers reach their potential by working as a nutritionist in the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. Trained at Eastern Washington University, Meili says, besides training and natural ability, "Diet is the next factor in an athlete's performance."

Besides planning OTC menus, Meili offers individual tips for athletes, from the carbohydrate-rich diets of cyclists and swimmers to those in highly weight-restrictive sports like boxing and wrestling. And does the world class shooter

And does the world class shooter herself observe an exotic or highly restricted diet?

"Not really," she answers, with a laugh, "but I try to cut down on fats. I could always stand to lose 10 pounds." O TV Listing Inc.

Saturday science: How 'Things Work'

By Chris Carpenter

Ever wonder what a key does to make a lock open? Just ask a woolly mammoth.

The cumbersome yet clever beasts, which roam David Macaulay's children's book The Way Things Work, climb from his pages to network television to clear up this and other puzzles of physical science in an upcoming animated children's program of the same name. From inclined planes to pulleys, The Way Things Work marks the brain's crowning achievements through hilarity that spans the ages.

In a rare effort on behalf of an entity other than PBS, the Children's Television Workshop will produce the series based on Macaulay's book for ABC's fall 1993 Saturday-morning lineup. Though the prehistoric ponderings are "embedded" with science, CTW executive Maejorie Kalinz promises the show to be amusing above all else, while avoiding the Neanderthal hijinks of typical children's fare.

"We're not kidding kids about learning," Kalinz says. "Kids like to learn if they're having a good time, and on Saturday morning they don't want to be didactic.

"I hope there's enough in the spectrum to allow all sorts of shows to exist, but I do hope shows become more responsible, because that's the way we're reaching kids. We're trying to entertain and educate. That's very hard to do."

In the last few weeks five Ross Perot video projects, most of them tapes of his television appearances, have been released or announced. Vestron has released Ross Perot: Straight Talk, an interview on public television with David Frost. MPI has two perot tapes: A Conversation with Ross Perot, which has not been shown on television, and an interview on June 29 with Peter Jennings of ABC.

This week, Turner Home Entertainment, the distributor for the Cable News Network, will release a one-hour biography called Perot. The contents are from CNN Video, which was quick to put together tapes about the gulf war and the upheaval in the former Soviet Union last summer. Included will be Mr. Perot's appearance on CNN's Larry King Live talk show in February. Big event set at Clarendon

It'll be a night to tap your toes, swing your partner, or just lean back and listen to good ol' West Texas "swing" music on August 1 at a concert and dance to benefit Yesterday's Children and its proposed Old West park, Thunder Junction. Jay Riley will bring his band of former "Texas Playboys" and their special brand of music known as "West Texas swing" to perform for the event at the rodeo grounds in Clarendon.

The champion Texas Thunder Cloggers will kick off the evening's entertainment at 8 p.m. with exhibition dancing, taking time out to teach the crowd the popular new "Achy Breaky" dance. The band will begin at 8:30. The Big Texan Dancers, led by Margaret Naden, will perform at intermission.

hamburgers, hot dogs, nachos, soft drinks and other food items will be for sale starting at 7 p.m., said Dortha McNutt, Clarendon volunteer and benefit chairman. "We invite everyone in the Panhandle to join us for a great evening! Come on down before the music and entertainment and start and have a picnic with us," she said.

Tickets are $10 each and entitle the purchaser to a chance at several door prizes, including a 1966 vintage Baby Blue Cadillac donated for the occasion by a volunteer. A person must be present to win and at least 18 years old to win the car.

For tickets, check with your senior citizen organization or call Yesterday's Children, (806)371-8468. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

"We'll have hay bales--or you can bring your own lawn chair," said Susie Montgomery, Pampa volunteer and benefit co-chairman. "There'll be dance contests and more, so come on down to Clarendon and dance under the stars August 1st."

Riley, a native of Amarillo now operating Buck Creek Productions out of Pampa, has written such songs as "I Just Can't Forget You," "The Big Bar-B-Que" and "Aces and Eights." Two of his band members, Bob Boatright and Tommy Morrel, are former Texas Playboys.

Supplement to The Hereford Brand

Yesterday's Children, a non-profit organization, is working to develop Thunder Junction as an ongoing, selfgenerating source of funding for senior citizen programs throughout the Panhandle, said Pat Kaiser, president.

Planned for a scenic bluff near Greenbelt Lake north of Clarendon, the park will feature a turn-of-the-century Western town with live demonstrations of frontier crafts, industries and activities. Art work, crafts and other merchandise made in Texas, both on and off site, will also be available at the park.

Margie's notes

Tour time is approaching fast! I will be mailing out the itineries for the October Foliage Tour and the Branson and Kansas City Christmas Tour next week. I'll have copies at the Center also. It seems we have a lot more people who want short tours instead of the long ones. So, we will be organizing more of the short ones.

Herschel Black recently gave me a good idea for a really interesting and fun three-day tour. If you have any place in particular you would like to see and visit, let me know. I really appreciate your ideas and information.

The training for the volunteers of hospice went well this month. I attended some of the classes and found it would be good for everyone to have this training. This would help prepare us for dealing with everyday life with family and friends. We are really fortunate to have the Crown of Hospice program in our community, and to have Kathryn Acton as our hospice nurse.

--MN---

We need to do more outreach for our Center. If you know anyone who needs us--home delivered meals, transportation, or just for fellowship with others, please let us know. We had people in town who didn't know we take our seniors to Don Harrington Cancer Center for treatment. We're here to help! See You at the Center.

DON'T FORGET! All membership fees are now due! $12.50 per person Toward operating expenses.

Quilt show is scheduled

The Hereford Senior Citizens will hold their annual quilt show during the Town & Country Jubilee at the community center. All members of the community are invited to display quilts during the show. We are expecting people of all ages to participate and come to the show, now that the art of quilting is so popular.

Those interested in showing quilts should register their quilt on Friday, August 14th between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Quilts will be displayed at the community center from 9 a.m to 5 p.m., Saturday, August 15, 1992. Judges will select winners in the following categories: Oldest Quilt, Most Beautiful, Quilt Showing the Most Work, and Judges' Choice.

The Senior Citizens will have a drawing for a quilt to be given away at 3 p.m. on the day of the show.

Garage sale is Aug. 21

The Golden K Kiwanis and Hereford Senior Citizens Association will hold a garage sale on Firday and Saturday, August 21 and 22 at the Senior Center, 426 Ranger. All members of these organization are asked to donate itmes for this sale.

We are looking forward to this sale being the biggest and the best we have had so far. If you have itmes you need to be picked up and brought to the sale, please contact us at the center.

'Health care' includes nutrition service

By Charlotte Clark MS RD/LD

The American Dietetic Association and its membership as individuals support the availability of a standard package of basic, comprehensive health services for all. Appropriate care and the linkage of care to patient outcomes are significant steps in enhancing the quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of the health care system.

Our nation is involved in policy debate on how to address the tripartic health care challenges of increasing access, containing costs, and enhancing quality. professional organizations, public interest groups, grass roots coalitions, health service researchers and government policy analysts, along with state and federal elected officials have entered the growing debate.

Quality health care is defined to include nutrition services that are integral to meeting the preventive and therapeutic health care needs of all segments of the population. A package of comprehensive care including preventive as well ad diagnostic, therapeutic, and rehabilitation services should be available to all without regard to age, employment status, ability to pay, preexisting medical condition, geographic region, or ethnic and cultural background. A policy deliberations must take into account economic realities that recommend changes in the health care system must be compatible with society's ability and willingness to pay.

live in families of full-time workers; low wages, seasonal workers, parttime workers, unemployed workers, or non-workers.

It is estimated that 31 million to 37 million Americans have no health insurance; over half of the uninsured live in families of full-time workers; low wages, seasonal workers, parttime workers, unemployed workers, or non-workers.

In 1990, the American Medical Association identified an estimated 1 million people as uninsured because of existing medical conditions.

The uninsured are more likely to receive only sporadic primary care for acute conditions in emergency rooms of public hospitals and to avoid or delay care for chronic conditions such as hypertension and diabetes. health supervision and immunizations in childhood and early and regular prenatal care are frequently lacking. Among other necessary health interventions, nutrition assessment and intervention should be recognized as integral to health promotion throughout the life cycle. In addition, therapeutics nutrition services are essential in the management of many acute and chronic diseases.

The lack of access to health care results in unidentified and untreated disease and the development of secondary complications and expensive emergencies with high levels of uncompensated (charity) care.

In recent years, we have seen the attempts and efforts by major insurance; over half of the uninsured governmental agencies to contain costs and reorganize health care financing along proprietary and competitive lines, but these changes have had marginal impact on the spiraling costs of health care. At the same time, the poor have experienced great difficulties accessing health care. Given these trends, health care policy must address financial as well as organizational and other barriers such as racial, linguistic, and geographic to access for the most vulnerable of our society.

Under the umbrella of accessible, comprehensive health care, all citizens must be included in appropriate medical care when it is indicated. Proposed health plans must provide value that is in balance with the plan's current and future funding requirements and society's ability and willingness to pay for the defined level of health care and its anticipated outcomes.

The definition and evaluation of appropriate care and the linkage of care to patient outcomes must be viewed as significant steps in enhancing the quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of the health care system. Adequate nutrition is essential for growth and development, good health, and reduced mortality from acute and chronic disease. Well nourished individuals are more resistant to disease and better able to tolerate and recover from acute illness and trauma. Inadequate and nutritional intake can precipitate disease or increase its severity.

Many diseases and/or their treatment have negative effects on nutritional status of patients unless steps are taken to provide adequate nourishment and treat malnutrition when it develops, early detection of nutrition-related problems and appropriate nutrition intervention have been demonstrated to be effective in preventing secondary disease.

Benefits from available nutritional services include improved physical, racial, and mental well-being: reduced need for recurrent hospitalizations because of malnutrition and related problems: and maintenance of independent living. It is essential that nutrition services be made available to pediatric, adult, and elderly Americans in preventive, acute-care, long term care,

What caregivers MUST know Young at Alzheimer's disease, the progressive and degenerative brain disorder transforms patients into ghosts of their former selves, leaving caregivers and loved ones trying their bet to cope with patients as their personality, as well as mental and physical health, decline. While the patient is an obvious victim, the caregiver is often called the "second" victim of Alzheimer's disease.

The following caregiver tips are provided by Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceutical Inc. Hoechst-Roussel is one of several companies committed to the research, discovery and development of new compounds to treat Alzheimer's disease.

*Become informed about the disease. Knowing the symptoms and course of Alzheimer's disease as well as treatment options will help the caregiver feel more in control.

Initiate discussion with the patient' physician to become educated.

Try to share cargiver responsibility with other family members.

*Periodically reassess the patient's living situation to make sure it's working. Can changes, minor or major, help facilitate care?

*Establish a financial plan. Help from lawyers and accountants will get the patient's finance in order and ease the economic burden on the caregiver.

*Consider joining a caregiver support groups to share concerns.

Take one day at a time, do not, dwell on the future. Find humor where you can in daily activities.

*Talk out feelings and worries with others-a clergy man, an old friend, or caregiver support group members.

Take care of yourself: eat well, exercise regularly, get enough sleep.

*Be conscious of potential problems that can occur as a result of depression-a common response to the

The choir has been busy the last month.

We went to Dimmitt on June 13th and presented a program ta the Canterbury Villa Nursing Home. A selection of songs from several of our musicals was performed by 33 members of the choir. The same program was given at the evening service ta the First Baptist Church on June 28 by 38 members.

We are working on a new musical, "Learning to Live Again." This is a fun musical and we are enjoying the new challenge under our able director, Steve Paul. Steve went to Glorieta for Sunday School and Music Week and Charlie Bell graciously directed our practice in Steve's absence.

We planned an ice cream social for July 25 at the home of Margie and Al Daniels.

We invite anyone interested to come join our choir anytime.

Golden Line Dancers

enjoyed a seven-day inside passage cruise to Alaska recently. The first leg of the trip was by air to Anchorage. They boarded a bus at Anchorage which took them on a two-hour train ride to Port Whittier. Along the way they saw glaciers, mud flats and streams of melted snow running down the side of the mountain. They boarded the Dawn Princess in time to find their cabin and get ready for the evening meal. The Princess set sail for Sitka about midnight and arrived in Sitka about noon the next day. In the early 1800's Russia fought a bloody battle with th Tlingit Indians and won. Sitka became Alaska's first capital.

was replaced by the Stars and Stripes when the United States purchased Alaska.

A visit to beautiful historic Sitka is a must for any Alaskan visitor. The Russian American and native history came alive as one visits Sitka's splendidly restored landmarks. The next stop was at Skagway, a very windy village. In 1898 gold-rush fever struck the town and it grew to 10,000 inhabitants, when the boom ended, Skagway died as quickly as it had grown. The population of the town dwindled to some 800 inhabitants. Today, Skagway's income is mostly derived from some 150,000 tourists who arrive annually by cruise ship to relive the gold-rush history. Juneau is the capital of Alaska and is the largest city in the United States. It covers 3,108 square miles and its area partly comprises rain forest, lakes, mountains and ice fields. The Mendenhall Glacier was a highlight of the tour in Juneau. the glacier flows from twelve miles down the Mendenhall Valley to its terminus near the visitor center. The ice flows forward at an average rate of two feet per day, but at the very same time, it wastes away at a slightly faster rate. Westage occurs through melting or by large pieces of ice breaking off the face of the glacier. This latter process is known as "calving" and produces the icebergs floating in Mendenhall Lake.

When the rate of melting exceeds the rate of flow a glacier recedes. The Mendenhall glacier has been receding since the late 1700's and currently retreats at a rate of 25-30 feet per year. When the rate of flow exceeds the rate of melting a glacier advances. For the Mendenhall Glacier to begin advancing again, either more snow needs to accumulate in the ice field or melting at the face of the glacier needs to decrease Ketchiken was the next stop. This city is always wet and rainy. Ketchikan is an Indian word meaning "eagle with spread out wings." Visitors are intrigued by the rich Indian heritage shown through the worlds largest collection of totem poles. The Bicentennial Totem Pole depicts 200 years of northwest coast Indian history and represent the cultural change brought about by western influence.

The last stop was Vancouver, 526 nautical miles from ketchikan. Modern-day Vancouver is a cosmopolitan city with a European feeling with a personality all its own. It features a rich ethnic mix including the second largest China town in North America. Many wealthy Chinese are moving to Vancouver from Hong Kong. In 1996, Hong Kong will go back to China and

Betty Jo Carlson and Naomi Hare many people do not want to be a part

The flight home from Vancouver concluded a very interesting and enjoyable trip to southeast Alaska. After such a wonderful trip Betty Jo and Naomi were tired and most happy to get back to Hereford!

Frances and Lloyd Crume spent ten days in Pflugerville with their new grandson, Larson Michael Crume born June 21, 1992. Now would you say that they are PROUD Grandparents??

Audrey Powell's brother and sister, Allan Gilbert and Pat Wilson visited with her. Allan lives in bangs, and Pat ves in Lubbock. Audrey Powell met her daughter,

In 1867 the Imperial Russian flag Sharli Lyne from Bowling Green, Kentucky, in Lubbock. her sister joined them and they traveled to Bangs, Texas for a family reunion. Her granddaughter, Jessie Lynn was also with them. The children of her mother and father were all present plus many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Tom and Kathy Cooper from Plano visited their mother, Bessie Story.

Tiffany Davis of Garland, niece of Marchetta and Carolyn Hutcheson came for a visit. She celebrated her birthday with her mother and dad, Kathy and James Davis, Marchetta and

Carolyn. Jolene Bledsoe spent July 4th weekend in Hale Center with her former classmates. Hale Center has a homecoming celebration every year at this time. A former classmate and her daughter, Hazel Brock Monte and Margaret Thompson of Dracut, Massachusetts shared their time in Hereford with Jolene and Louise Witkowski, another classmate. These gals ha da lot of catching up to do and "Do you remember when!!!"

Congratulations to Virginia Holmes who celebrated a birthday this month.

AARP sets conference for widowed

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) is holding its 15th National Widowed Persons Service Conference Oct. 1-3, in San Antonio.

The theme of the conference is "Taking Charge of Change" and is designed for those who want to help the newly widowed and learn new ways to support those who are grieving.

Earl Grollman, D.D., an author, bereavement counselor and rabbi, is scheduled to be the keynote speaker on Thursday evening, October 1. Dr. Grollman is an outstanding counselor whose books include Living-When a Loved One Has Died and Time Remembered.

The plenary session on Friday morning, Oct. 2, will be addressed by Therese A. Rando, Ph.D. The therapist and author will discuss the transition work necessary for progressing through grief, rebuilding one's life, and continuing to work at adapting to new roles.

Greg Risberg, MSW, is a social d authority on the healing touch and use of humor. He will speak at the closing luncheon on Saturday, Oct. .3. Mr. Risberg has delighted audiences throughout the United States with his warmth and humor.

The conference will also include workshop sessions, exhibits and resources
