Fireworks may be a fun way to celebrate the Fourth of July -- just don't use them in the city

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

So you say you're looking forward to running out to a fireworks stand sometime in the next couple of weeks and picking up some items to celebrate the Fourth of July.

Well, Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain would like to make a suggestion.

Don't. You see, it's illegal to possess or shoot off fireworks inside the city of Hereford.

"It's very much against the law to possess or fire fireworks inside the city limits," Spain said Wednesday, the first day that fireworks stands could open for business here.

"The fire department and the police department will be enforcing the law."

If seeing fireworks go off is your desire, Spain said, go to the Veterans Park Independence Day celebration, which includes a 30-minute fireworks display that is free to the public.

Those are set off by a commercial firm trained in the use of fireworks.

If anyone is caught in possession of fireworks in the city -- or nabbed in the act of firing them off -- Spain said, the offending pyrotechnics are confiscated on the spot and the owner is "written a ticket for possession (or use) of illegal fireworks."

The case is then heard in Municipal Court, where an appropriate fine is assessed.

"It can be up to $200," Spain said.

The fine for first offense use or possession in Municipal Court is not to exceed $100, plus $20 court costs. For second offenders, the fine cannot exceed $200, plus court costs.

Anyone who is caught throwing lit fireworks from a vehicle also will get a ticket.

But that one is easy to determine the fine on, Spain said.

"It will be $200, because that's aggravated," he said.

If you have extra fireworks and want to sell them to the neighbors to make a little cash, that, too, is a no-no, Spain said.

"If they're selling them, I'm probably going to take them to jail," he said.

Selling them also is a Class C misdemeanor. The fine for that offense is between $10 and $25 for each separate offense, plus $20 court costs.

Fireworks stands are opening up just outside the city limits.

Spain said they may operate between now and midnight on July 4, after which time they must shut down.

However, the law says certain steps must be followed before the stands can even open.

'Standing' around

This fireworks stand, like others around Hereford, will soon be bustling with pre-Independence Day activity. But, warns Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain, people buying fireworks need to remember that it is illegal to possess, sell or discharge fireworks within the Hereford city limits.

State asks judge to put off finance trial

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A trial should be delayed until next spring on challenges to Texas' new school funding law, giving the measure a chance to work, state lawyers say.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter on Wednesday asked State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin to reject a plea by poor school districts for quick action on their complaints about the new education funding law, known as Senate Bill 7.

"If this court holds a hearing ... now and grants or denies the motion and the issue goes to the Supreme Court, the process of implementing S.B. 7 will be confused and confounded," Ms. Hunter said in a document filed with McCown, who oversees the long-running school finance case.

The group of poor districts earlier asked McCown to declare the new law unconstitutional and require a new way of distributing state aid before school opens in the fall. Ms. Hunter said the new law meets constitutional requirements.

The districts have won a Texas Supreme Court order for lawmakers to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. Texas' 1,048 school districts rely on state aid, local property taxes and some federal funds.

Two previous attempts by lawmakers to meet the Supreme Court mandate were ruled unconstitutional.

The latest law, passed last month, gives the school districts with the most property wealth in the state several options for sharing some of their wealth with poorer ones. They are required to get down to a property wealth level of no more than $280,000 per student.

Poor school districts, among other things, say that the way state aid is distributed under the new law hurts students in poor districts more than those in rich ones.

State leaders have acknowledged that the Legislature did not put in enough new state money to cover enrollment growth. But Ms. Hunter said changes in the distribution of funds benefit school districts with high local property taxes and hurt those with low taxes, regardless of whether they are rich or poor.

Delaying a trial until next spring would give school districts time to exercise their options under the law and establish tax rates, Ms. Hunter said.

In addition, she noted that McCown earlier set July 15 as the deadline for challenges to be filed to the law. She said the state shouldn't have to fend off some challenges in June, then deal separately with challenges that may be filed later by other districts.

In an interview, Ms. Hunter added, "What this litigation is about is not maintaining the exact amount of revenue that you had the preceding year, but about fiscal neutrality and equality."

"When you examine Senate Bill 7 on that standard, it does provide for greater equality in the system than there ever has been," she said.

Locating summer work is a struggle for Hereford youth

By LINDSAY RADFORD
Summer Intern

Scrambling for summer employment, 19-year-old Jill Dutton returns her seventh application with feeble hopes. The last three job opportunities she received were withdrawn because she will return to Angelo State University in the fall.

Unfortunately Jill is not alone in her continuing search for summer employment. Hundreds of Hereford students, 16 and older, actively seek full or part time work throughout the community each summer.

"I looked around at different businesses and restaurants, but I was never called back," said Sherry Fuston, a '93 graduate of Hereford High School.

For employers, there are often more disadvantages than advantages in hiring youth with little or no experience. The costs of training only hinder immediate financial progress in a slow economy. Training also becomes a waste for the company as students generally hold their positions for a period of three months.

The limited availability of office positions forces many students to turn to the agricultural industry.

"Grain companies always need help in the fields. It was the only assured job I could find last year, so I took it," said Fuston.

Brooke Weishaar, a Hereford High School senior, said, "Field work is a common job among students, and you hear a lot about it. Unless you have the right connections, it's almost all you can get."

There are alternatives to the traditional job hunt for some students. Hereford High School provides a co-op program through the Vocational Office Education.

The co-op program, directed by Amy Cole, is a year-long program designed to allow high school students to work in office positions while continuing their education. Approximately one third of the jobs ran into the summer for the 20 participants of the '92-93 class.

"The program develops maturity in the students and provides marketable office skills," said Cole. "Sixty percent of our participants are college bound."

Through the program, students receive training in computer processing, interviewing, resume writing and other office skills.

Christine Flores, a two-year participant in the co-op program, said, "considering the poor availability of jobs in Hereford, the program is a huge success."

The Texas Employment Commission also provides employment through the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) which is administered by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in Amarillo. The purpose of the Summer Youth and Training Program is to place financially restricted students 14-21 years of age with non-profit organizations for summer employment.

Currently, 33 students work through the federal program and are employed for a period of eight weeks. Federal cuts, however, have limited the number of participants despite an increase in job opportunities.

"Many times the program helps students return to high school. The program is designed to promote good work habits and behaviors to make students successful in the future," said Carmen Rapp, TEC area manager.

TEC helps students who do not qualify for special programs through their regular services.

For those students who are not fortunate enough to enter one of these programs, "the only success they'll find is if they get out there and look," said Don Cumpston, Hereford Independent School District assistant superintendent.

HISD hires about a dozen students each summer. Through the JTPA program, another 12 students receive employment.

Despite the limited job opportunities for high school and college students, good jobs can be found. The best time to begin looking for summer work is in early spring.

Most college students begin applying during this time. To be considered for a wider variety of jobs, high school students must also search for employment during this period.

A piece of advice to job seekers: be assertive. Jobs can be found in all professions. It's often just a matter of looking in the right place at the right time.

Search continuing for parents of 'Baby Jane'; case continued

A Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputy testified Wednesday in 222nd District Court that the investigation is continuing to identify the parents of Deaf Smith Baby Jane, an infant found in an incinerator on March 18.

Deputy Coby Lassiter under questioning by Jim English, assistant district attorney, said leads are investigated as they come to the sheriff's office.

A hearing Wednesday afternoon was the latest in a series required by law before Judge David Wesley Gulley may rule on a motion from the state to terminate parental relationships, even though the mother and father of the baby are unknown.

The motion also asks the court to place managing conservatorship of the infant in the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

The TDP&RS has temporary custody of the baby until the ruling is made. Baby Jane has been in foster care in another county since she was discharged from Northwest Texas Hospital in late March.

She was found by workers at an animal clinic soon after 8 a.m. on March 18. She had been wrapped in a plastic bag and placed on top of trash in the incinerator. After initial treatment at Deaf Smith General Hospital, she was transferred to NWH where she remained for about 10 days.

State law requires a hearing at two-week intervals until a ruling is made on the motion filed by the state for conservatorship.

Lassiter told the court Wednesday that he has worked on the case since the baby was found. He reported that he has pursued leads in Amarillo as well as Hereford.

In at least one instance, a name of a woman was suggested by personnel at an Amarillo hospital, he said, but he had no success in locating her.

Oney Avalos, child protective specialist with TDP&RS, testified that the baby continues to grow satisfactorily, now weighing more than 11 pounds.

Larry Canada, appointed by Judge

Gulley to represent the interests of the infant in the legal system, asked Avalos if any medical problems had appeared in the baby. Avalos said the baby is progressing satisfactorily.

"Do you have any reservations about leaving the baby in the home?" Canada asked. Avalos replied, "No."

Attorneys appointed by Judge Gulley to represent the interests of the unknown parents, Jerry Smith for the father and R.C. Hoelscher for the mother, questioned Lassiter about the continuing investigation. They indicated they feel the "need to explore the investigative process."

English said he would like to see a final hearing as soon as possible. By law, the court may act as early as June 28, after specified time has elapsed after publication of the legal notices to notify parents of the pending action.

Judge Gulley continued the hearing until July 1, at 11 a.m.

Labor Department reports number filing unemployment benefits jumps by 8,000

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits jumped by 8,000 last week to the highest level in nine weeks, the government said today.

The Labor Department said new applications for unemployment insurance totaled 353,000, up from a revised 345,000 during the week ended June 12. The June 12 claims originally were estimated to be 344,000.

It was the largest increase since 9,000 new claims were filed during the week ended May 29 and boosted the total to the highest level since 356,000 claims were filed during the week ended April 17.

Many economists had predicted in advance of the report that claims would edge up by just 1,000.

The less-volatile four-week moving average of jobless claims, which analysts prefer to track because it more accurately reflects the labor situation, rose 3,750 to the highest level in two months.

The average totaled 347,000 during the latest reporting period, up from 343,250 during the period ended June 12 and the highest since 351,750 during the period ended April 24.

The report also said 28,781 applications were filed under a federal emergency unemployment program during the week ended June 12, up from 25,663 during the previous week.

Thirty-six states and territories reported increases in regular claims during the week ended June 12 and 16 recorded decreases. One was unchanged.

The biggest increases were in California, 7,439; Michigan, 4,206; Florida, 3,299; Texas, 2,473; and Georgia, 2,318.

The largest decreases were in Illinois, 1,390; Louisiana, 503; Massachusetts, 417; Oregon, 366; and Idaho, 302.

The emergency claims and individual state figures lag the overall total and the four-week moving average by one week. The national figures are adjusted for seasonal variations, but the individual state figures and the emergency program numbers are not.

Republican efforts coming up short in battle against Senate tax measure

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans are waging a last-gasp attack on the proposed new gasoline tax, but Senate Democrats and their deficit-reduction package emerged triumphant over a GOP plan with no new taxes.

The Democratic bill largely follows President Clinton's economic plan and leaders of both parties anticipated passage today. The House approved a similar bill in May, but a compromise will have to be written before it can become law.

Asked this morning if the bill would pass, Clinton crossed his fingers and said, "We're working on it."

White House Budget Director Leon Panetta predicted victory, but said, "It's going to be a tough vote, a close vote."

"But I think in the end we'll have the votes because the members (of the Senate) understand that there is no other alternative but to put this plan in place," Panetta said on ABC.

The Democratic plan is aimed at paring $516 billion from federal deficits by 1998. The GOP alternative was dispatched on a near party-line 55-43 vote.

Republicans said their alternative and its spending limits on Medicare and other programs would have driven budget deficits even lower than the Democratic measure.

"Unless we get a grip on the (benefits programs) ... of this United States, in the year 2030 your grandchildren will be picking grit with the chickens," warned Senate Whip Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

They also said the $249 billion in new taxes in the Democratic bill would do little more than hinder the economy and cost jobs.

"The employees of small businesses are going to suffer the most," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Democrats chided Republicans for offering a package that would have killed one of the keystones of Clinton's deficit-reduction plan: higher taxes on the best-off Americans and on business.

"Those who make more than $200,000 a year - we wish them the best, they're great Americans, they've done well, they've succeeded, they should participate in sharing the burden," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

Similar criticism came from administration officials.

"They have ridden to the rescue of the wealthy Americans in the country, and sacrifice the middle class in the process," said White House budget chief Leon Panetta.

According to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office, more than three-fourths of the bill's tax burden would hit Americans earning more than $200,000 annually.

The legislation's major impact on the middle class would come from its 4.3 cents-per-gallon increase in the tax on gasoline and other motor fuels. Families earning between $50,000 and $75,000 a year would see their federal taxes rise by an average $216 a year, the budget office said.

World/Nation

WASHINGTON - The Senate rejects Republicans' no-new-taxes plan of deficit reduction. A 55-43 vote that dooms the GOP proposal on a technicality apparently clears the way for passage today of a Democratic package of tax increases and spending cuts designed to reduce the federal deficit by $516 billion.

-- A 26-year-old male was arrested for bond jumping and failure to appear.

-- A report for information only was filed on a juvenile shooting a BB gun.

Fate of Kelly AFB remains in doubt

Base is one of six in Texas targeted by committee

WASHINGTON (AP) - The fate of Kelly Air Force Base is as much in doubt today as it was before the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission met to weigh the merits of the Texas base against four others.

The San Antonio base is one of five Air Logistic Centers nationwide being eyed for closure by the independent commission, which met Wednesday.

While the Air Force has recommended closing Newark AFB in Ohio, the seven-member commission added the four other Air Logistic Centers for comparison purposes.

Joining Kelly and Newark in the comparative round are McClellan AFB in California, Robins AFB in Georgia and Tinker AFB in Oklahoma. McClellan was removed from the Pentagon's "hit list" by Defense Secretary Les Aspin to lessen the already heavy economic blow California is expected to take in this year's base-closing round.

The commission's discussion Wednesday of the logistics bases came as the panel prepares to vote on the future of 238 military facilities and activities nationwide. The vote on Kelly and the other logistics bases is expected Friday.

When the commission concludes its decision-making Sunday evening, it will have debated the future of five other Texas installations. Other Texas bases being reviewed for closure are Naval Station Ingleside near Corpus Christi, Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, Naval Hospital Corpus Christi and Dallas Naval Air Station. The Red River Army Depot near Texarkana is being reviewed for realignment.

"I really do feel cautiously optimistic about our bases," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, who met last week in private with some of the commissioners.

"I think that Kelly is in good shape on the merits. I feel the (Corpus Christi) naval air station is also in good shape. I think that we have had to really do a lot of question-answering on Ingleside and I think we've done that."

During Wednesday's debate, none of the commissioners indicated how many of the logistics centers they think should be closed.

Chairman Jim Courter said the panel intends "to close the maximum number of depots we can based on excess capacity," but he later declined to tell reporters how many Air Logistics Centers he expects the commission to recommend for closure.

Commission analysts told the panel Wednesday that the Air Force has from 25 to 50 percent excess capacity in its Air Logistics Centers. They told the commission that three of the logistics bases could be closed and still leave enough capacity to handle the Pentagon's future projected workload.

Air Force estimates show that closing Kelly, Tinker or Robins would not produce any savings for more than a century. It would cost $1.1 billion to close either the Kelly or Tinker depots, and $940 million to close Robins. Closing McClellan would cost $494 million, while shuttering Newark would cost $31 million. Savings wouldn't be realized until 2094 for Kelly, Tinker and Robins; 2008 for Newark and 2003 for McClellan.

The closure costs don't include environmental cleanup of the bases - which in the case of McClellan are estimated at anywhere from $1 billion to $10 billion, commission analyst Roger Houck said.

Commissioners will forward their recommendations to President Clinton, who has until July 15 to accept or reject the list. If he turns it down, the panel has an additional month to change its recommendations and resubmit them to Clinton.

After the president accepts the list, Congress has 45 working days to vote it up, or down, without amendment.

FIREWORKS

Spain said stand operators must notify him in writing of the location of the stand, its inventory, operator and other information before opening for the first time.

And, just to make sure that requirement is followed, Spain has located all area stands and is informing operators of the law.

The local ordinance prohibiting the use or possession of fireworks in the city was passed several years ago because of the large number of fire calls each year.

One year, Spain said, things got so bad that all six of the department's trucks were out fighting fires and there were nine more burning.

If you want to fire them off outside the city, that's fine -- provided the land owner agrees.

"They can go anywhere in the county as long as they've got the landowner's permission," Spain said. If the permission is not granted and the property still used, then the landowner can file trespass charges, which are more serious.

One final warning from Spain -- if you do use fireworks, watch out for fires.

"If they set a fire, they are financially responsible, not only for the damage the fire costs," but for any injuries suffered in the fighting of the fire, plus the cost of fighting it.

Anyone who sees someone using, possessing or selling fireworks in the city is asked to call the Hereford Police Department at 364-2323.

Have fun on turf

Certificate presented

A certificate of appreciation was presented to Adam Treff of KPAN Radio Station for his service as chairman of the recent "Longest Day of Golf" fund raiser sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society. The event raised approximately $1,400 for the ACS. Making the presentation was Nicky Walser.

Protect your health

If you're one of the 50 million Americans who have allergies, asthma or respiratory diseases such as chronic bronchitis or emphysema, a free brochure may help you breathe easier.

It may also help someone who regularly complains of fatigue, headache, cough, sore throat, itchy or watery eyes, a runny or stuffed up nose, wheezing or a tight chest.

Called Facts You Should Know About Indoor Air Pollution, Allergies And Your Health, it's based on a study sponsored by Honeywell, Inc. and reported in the medical journal Immunology & Allergy Practice. The study discovered distinct health improvements in allergy and asthma sufferers who got electronic air cleaners for their homes.

The findings included:
-More than 80 percent said the cleaner provided relief so they felt healthier during the day and slept better at night.

-Most respondents were able to reduce or even eliminate their allergy medication.

-Twenty-eight percent reported more energy.

-Twenty-eight percent felt more physically active.

-Twenty-three percent said they missed fewer days of work or school.

Even people with no known allergies may benefit from an electronic air cleaner, doctors say, particularly infants, children, the elderly, women who are pregnant or breast-feeding and smokers and those on regular medication.

A whole-house electronic air cleaner from Honeywell uses the same amount of electricity as a 40-watt light bulb, but saves even more in energy costs because it keeps central heating and cooling equipment coils cleaner. That lowers operating costs and reduces wear and tear so furnaces, air conditioners and heat pumps last longer. What's more, because your indoor air is cleaner, you save time, money and effort on house cleaning. Your furnishings, walls and draperies are also protected.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 45 years old. My husband and I have been married for 26 years. We have three beautiful grandchildren. Our life hasn't been all peaches and cream, but for the last 13 years, I thought things were pretty OK.

"Hank" is in the Army National Guard. He signed up when he was 30 years old. He is now 44. He was deployed in December 1990 for Desert Storm and was gone for six months.

He returned in June, and things were fine until February. Then Hank developed some sores on his genitals. We went to see a doctor together, and the diagnosis was full-blown genital herpes.

I accused him of being with someone while he was in the war, which he denied vehemently. Now I have found out that the first outbreak of herpes usually occurs two to 26 days after having had sex, which would mean Hank was with someone in the states.

We've been through a living hell ever since that visit to the doctor. I've contacted several other doctors and called the herpes hotline. The information I've been able to gather points to the same thing. Hank must have had sex with someone else.

Of course, I was tested also. The reports were negative, which was no surprise to me, because I've never been with anyone else. Even Hank's sister, who is an R.N., wants to know why he won't 'fess up. I need to know the truth, no matter how much it will hurt. It's the lie that's killing me.

Now I find myself questioning every move he makes. I love Hank very much and don't want to divorce this man. I need your help--Trouble in Toledo

DEAR TOLEDO: My medical consultants say it is possible, though not likely, to get herpes through skin-to-skin contact that is non-sexual. Since you want desperately to keep your marriage together, go with the long shot and accept his word as the truth.

I hope you have talked with your gynecologist about how to protect yourself from getting infected. If not, do so at once.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a nurse at a local clinic. I have just written to the publisher of one of the leading magazines, requesting that he discontinue advertising perfumes by inserting ads saturated with fragrance.

Some of our patients are extremely allergic to these perfumes. When a magazine or any other advertisement arrives with these inserts, it is quickly discarded. I feel especially sorry for the postal workers. When some of these magazines are delivered, all the correspondence received at the same time reeks with the fragrance.

I'm sure many of your readers will be grateful if you can bring this to the attention of those responsible for such advertising--Nurse in Roanoke, Va.

DEAR VA: The perfume advertisers already have the message, probably because of complaints such as yours.

The fragrances in magazine ads, as well as mailings, are now sealed, and the reader must break the seal to get the scent. Maybe I'm an oddball, but I enjoy those sample scents and congratulate the advertising genius who came up with the concept.

Glacier National Park in Montana was established in 1910.

So, your kids are whining "nothing to do"? Here's an idea for fun and games on your own turf. Make a knapsack-style checkerboard.

First, lay out a light-colored cotton bandanna scarf on a picnic table. With a ruler and felt-tip pen, draw a grid on the fabric to resemble the squares of a checkerboard, eight squares down and eight across. For easy measuring, make the squares one inch by one inch. Fill in alternate squares with the pen.

Next, look for smooth rocks, shells, acorns or buttons to use for game markers. Each player will need 12 pieces of the same type of item. (Have several larger-size items on hand to use when a marker becomes a king.) Place two sets of markers on the checkerboard to begin playing the game of checkers.

When the game is over, place the markers in the center of the bandanna, bring the four corners together and tie them with a ribbon or a rubber band.

Men players having fun at Wimbledon

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Worries about security, injuries and performance have taken the fun out of Wimbledon for some players. For others, it's been pure delight.

Take Andrew Foster, a Briton ranked 322nd in the world who suddenly finds himself a national hero after back-to-back upsets. Or Henri Leconte, the charismatic French veteran, enchanting the crowds with his exuberant, daredevil play against a rival 10 years his junior.

Then there's Andre Agassi, not only defending his title with gusto on Centre Court but relishing his post-match press briefings.

"No, I'm having fun with this, it's all right," Agassi assured an official Wednesday who tried to stop reporters from asking how the champion's chest and body hair had virtually vanished.

"It's a revolutionary idea on how I do it because it keeps it a certain length," Agassi said. "I may even market the idea."

Seemingly cured of a nagging wrist problem, Agassi moved into the third round with a four-set victory Wednesday over Portugal's Joao Cunha-Silva.

Heading into today's matches, the 13 top-seeded men and 10 top-seeded women had avoided upsets, even though several were rated below form as the tournament began.

Fourth-seeded Boris Becker, a veteran at 25, was among those considered a question mark, despite his three Wimbledon titles. But he rated his play Wednesday against outgunned Alexander Volkov as "very good" and said he felt like he was 18.

"Maybe people who have doubts about Agassi or Becker know not as much as they think," he said. "Every year when I come here, I always have a good feeling.... I'm having a good time."

Perhaps no player is having a better time than Foster, whose upsets of two unknowns - Thomas Enqvist and Luis Herrera - have thrust him from obscurity into the national media spotlight in Britain.

"It's the best I've ever played," he said. "This being the best tournament in the world, it's just head down, take every point at a time. I was enjoying it and it was great out there."

No British man has won the singles at Wimbledon since Fred Perry captured his third straight crown in 1936.

Leconte, who will turn 30 on July 4 when the men's final takes place, savored his straight-sets victory over 20-year-old David Prinosil of Germany.

"I play instinctively," said Leconte, a semifinalist here in 1986. "I love playing, so when I'm playing I think the public likes it because they're playing with me at the same time."

The top seeds, Pete Sampras and Steffi Graf, had today off, but second-round matches were scheduled for the No. 2 seeds. Stefan Edberg faced Amos Mansdorf of Israel, a loser to the Swede in all of their previous seven matches, and Martina Navratilova sought to boost her career record to 10-0 against Rosalyn Nideffer of South Africa.

Graf breezes, Capriati scrapes at Wimbledon

By JOSEPH WHITE
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Steffi Graf danced magically again on Centre Court. Many of her movements - the whipping forehand, the 100 mph serve - were familiar, but others showed evidence of a champion not afraid to broaden her repertoire.

Next door on Court 1, Jennifer Capriati sweated and struggled as a little-known Australian gave her a lesson in grass-court tennis. Capriati relied on one weapon alone - power - and it was only just enough to defeat Elizabeth Smylie 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Women have been playing at Wimbledon now for 100 years, yet many of today's top players freely admit to being novices when asked to play the grass game by the book. Some are learning quicker than others.

Graf, her game unaffected by the incident involving a zealous spectator the day before, dispatched Britain's Claire Wood 6-2, 6-1 in just 65 minutes Wednesday.

The outcome was never in doubt. The 109th-ranked Wood did not serve well and volleyed even worse. Graf could have been content to patrol the baseline the entire match, whipping her opponent into submission with that awesome forehand.

Instead, the four-time champion experimented, darting toward the net when it suited her, getting full extension from the racket to dig out the occasional half-volley.

It's the way tennis is supposed to be played on grass. Yet, Martina Navratilova aside, there are no masters of the serve and volley in the top echelon of the women's game today.

"I never will be a serve-and-volleyer," Graf said after her victory. "That's not my goal at all. I think you have to be that right from the beginning. My game is from the back."

But that doesn't deter Graf from trying to develop an all-round game. Or at least from having fun.

"I'm enjoying coming in a lot more now," Graf said. "And I kind of know where to go on the net, and that's more or less fun."

Mary Joe Fernandez, Gabriela Sabatini, Monica Seles and Capriati also have been working on the net game, with varied degrees of success. Capriati even hired a grass court expert - former doubles champion Paul McNamee - to coach her just for this year's Wimbledon.

But McNamee's pupil has a lot to learn. Smylie, ranked No. 104, played serve-and-volley by the book in winning the first set. A frustrated Capriati stood rooted to the baseline, occasionally taking a few tentative steps toward the net, but usually retreating.

"I was thinking about serving and volleying," Capriati said. "I just never planned it. I think I was being aggressive at the right times. I'm mixing it up, but my game is groundstrokes and I'm not going to try to do something else."

Capriati won the next two sets simply by hitting the ball so hard that Smylie couldn't return it. But the American knows it's a tactic that may not work against better opposition.

"I think I'm improving," she said. "I feel like I'm volleying better. I definitely feel like I can be more aggressive and attack the net."

And Graf, a player with 10 Grand Slam titles to her credit, knows there is always room for improvement. After all, she is projected to meet Navratilova in the final.

"To be at the top you have to be a complete player," Graf said. "It's something that for the future will be very, very important for all the players."

28 easily wins scramble

A foursome combined on a 28 to win the Wednesday Scramble by two strokes at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. Tearing up the front nine were John Robinson, Steve Stevens, Mary Shelton and Cliff Jones.

In second place with a 30 was the team of Scott McGinty, Perry Ray, Dave Bone, Rose Marie Robinson and Jerry Shipman.

The third place team combined on a 31 and took third on a scorecard playoff (they eagled No. 8). That team was made up of Dave Kaesheimer, Roy Kaesheimer, Tony Edwards and Martha Jones.

Dates set for sports camps

Now that coaches have been hired to head Hereford's baseball and boys' basketball teams, dates for summer youth camps in both sports have been set.

The hiring of coaches Randy Dean for basketball and J.J. Villarreal for baseball was announced Tuesday.

The baseball camp, for boys aged 9-14, will be only three days long: from June 29-July 1. Each day's session will be in the morning only, from 9-11:45 a.m.

Skills in hitting, fielding, pitching and baserunning will be taught. The fee for the camp is $25. To sign up, call boys' athletic director Danny Haney at 363-7626 or at 364-2566.

The boys' basketball camp will be July 5-9, and the fee will also be $25. There will be two sessions: boys entering the fourth, fifth or sixth grades will attend in the morning, from 9-noon, and boys entering the seventh, eighth and ninth grades will attend from 1-4 p.m.

Registration for the basketball camp will be conducted at the beginning of each of the July 5 sessions.

Cuban Cardinal gets warm welcome in Miami

By The Associated Press

Politics and baseball, usually not a very good mix.

In Miami, however, the two can be unavoidably linked.

Such was the case Wednesday night as Rene Arocha, a pitcher who defected from the Cuban national team two years ago, faced the Florida Marlins as a member of the Cardinals. St. Louis won 4-3.

A substantial number of Cuban-Americans were in the crowd of 37,936, and they warmly cheered the St. Louis right-hander every time his name was announced. Arocha even received a standing ovation when he left the game.

"It was a very warm feeling to get a reception like that," Arocha said through an interpreter. "In my baseball career, no town has ever backed me like Miami has the past two years."

"I was surprised how loud the crowd was," Cardinals catcher Erik Pappas said. "It sounded like they were more for him than they were for the Marlins."

Arocha (6-2) earned the victory in his shortest stint as a starter. He gave up six hits, two walks and two earned runs while striking out two.

Another Cuban, Orestes Destrade, figured in each of the runs scored against Arocha, but missed a chance to pull out a victory in the ninth when he grounded out with runners on first and third to end the game.

Arocha helped his own cause by driving in two runs with his first major league hit.

The Cardinals' other runs scored on a bases-loaded walk to Rod Brewer in the second and a two-out single by Gregg Jefferies in the fifth off Ryan Bowen (4-8).

Elsewhere in the NL, Philadelphia beat Atlanta 8-3, San Francisco defeated San Diego 6-2, Colorado beat Cincinnati 15-5, Montreal edged New York 4-3, Pittsburgh downed Chicago 9-4 and Houston beat Los Angeles 5-3.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

Eric Anthony's three-run homer with one out in the ninth gave Houston its first ninth-inning comeback in 28 tries this season.

Anthony hit a 1-2 pitch over the right-field wall off loser Jim Gott (2-4). Doug Drabek (6-7) pitched eight-plus innings, allowing six hits, striking out three and walking two.

Phillies 8, Braves 3

Atlanta's bullpen allowed six runs in the seventh inning at Philadelphia.

Phillies starter Ben Rivera (7-3) allowed seven hits, an unearned run, struck out seven and walked one in eight innings. John Smoltz (6-7) worked six innings, allowing three hits and two runs while striking out 10 and walking five.

Reliever Greg McMichael started the seventh and gave up a two-run single to Jim Eisenreich and RBI singles to Darren Daulton and Mickey Morandini. Two more runs scored on bases-loaded walks by Mark Wohlers and Steve Bedrosian.

Rockies 15, Reds 5

At Denver, Vinny Castilla and Danny Sheaffer each drove in a club-record five runs as Colorado completed its most successful homestand ever. The Rockies went 8-4 in the 12-game set and drew 679,635 fans - more than San Diego, Montreal and Milwaukee have drawn all season.

Jeff Parrett (2-2), making his first start in three years, went five innings to get the win. Tim Lincecum (3-9) took the loss for Cincinnati.

Giants 6, Padres 2

At San Francisco, Robby Thompson had the first two-homer game of his career and Bud Black won his fourth straight start.

Thompson hit his fifth homer in the first and his second of the game to lead off the seventh, chasing Greg Harris (7-8).

Black (7-1) allowed five hits in seven innings and struck out eight while walking one.

Expos 4, Mets 3

Dennis Martinez won his sixth straight decision and Larry Walker hit a decisive two-run homer at Shea Stadium.

Walker's eighth homer, in the sixth inning, snapped a 2-2 tie and sent the Mets to their 16th loss in 18 games, a day after general manager Al Harazin resigned. Martinez (8-5) allowed five hits, struck out six and walked three in 8 1-3 innings.

Pirates 9, Cubs 4

Jeff King homered and hit a run-scoring triple and Don Slaught had two doubles and a single as Pittsburgh won for the seventh time in its last eight home games.

Redboarding

NEW YORK (AP) - A word used frequently in horse racing is "redboarding." It goes back almost a century and had its origin in the way the 1-2-3 finishes in a race were posted.

Before the days of electronic results boards, the finish was posted on an infield board by numbers dropped into the 1-2-3 slots.

When the race was declared official, a red board was posted underneath the numbers. Hence the word redboarding, meaning second-guessing.

Buhner hits for cycle in Mariners' win

By The Associated Press

The first cycle in the history of the Seattle Mariners came from an unlikely player at an unlikely time.

"It's kind of ironic," Jay Buhner said with a grin. "Mr. Fleet on his feet."

Buhner hit a first-inning grand slam and a 14th-inning triple Wednesday night to lead the Mariners over the Oakland Athletics 8-7. He added a double in the third and a single in the fifth.

"It's kind of tough to do in this ballpark, too," Buhner said. "They don't hit many triples in the Kingdom."

The score was tied at 7 in the 14th when Buhner hit the fence in right-center field and the ball bounced back past center fielder Lance Blankenship.

"I was hoping it would go out," Buhner said of his lead-off hit. "But when it hit the wall and bounced away, I put my head down and went as fast as I could. ... It's something I've never done before. Even in Little League. I don't hit many triples, so this was extra special to me. But the big thing is that we won the game."

Tino Martinez then was intentionally walked and Greg Littin bounced into a force play before Shawn Hillegas (2-6) threw a wild pitch past catcher Terry Steinbach, allowing Buhner to score the winning run.

In other games, New York beat Toronto 8-7, California beat Kansas City 8-7, Cleveland beat Milwaukee 3-1, Boston beat Minnesota 3-1, Baltimore beat Detroit 6-2 and Chicago beat Texas 7-4.

Dwayne Henry (2-1), the fifth Seattle pitcher, pitched three innings for the victory, Seattle's third in its last 19 games against the A's. Oakland had taken a 7-6 lead in the eighth on RBI singles by Brent Gates, Mike Bordick and Rickey Henderson, but Bill Haselman, a pinch-hitter, homered off Rich Goosage with two outs in the ninth. It was Haselman's third home run this season.

Red Sox 3, Twins 1

Aaron Sele won his major league debut and sent visiting Minnesota to its ninth consecutive loss. He struck out eight, allowing five hits in seven innings. Greg Harris finished for his first save.

Minnesota's losing streak is the longest in the major leagues this season. Eddie Guardado (0-2), making only his third major league start, gave up all three runs in seven innings.

White Sox 7, Rangers 4

Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer, his 14th of the year, and rookie Jason Bere (3-1) allowed two runs and three hits in six innings as Chicago completed a three-game sweep over visiting Texas.

Roger Pavlik (3-4) gave up five runs and four hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Indians 3, Brewers 1

Jose Mesa (6-5) allowed three hits in seven innings as Cleveland sent visiting Milwaukee to its fifth consecutive loss. The Indians rallied from a 1-0 deficit in the seventh on Paul Sorrento's RBI single and Thomas Howard's sacrifice fly.

Bill Wegman (4-12) gave up three runs and three hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Angels 8, Royals 7

Kelly Gruber drove in four runs as visiting California took an eight-run lead, then hung on to drop the Royals from first place in the AL West.

Gruber hit his third home run of the season, a three-run drive in the third off Chris Haney (3-1), who was tagged for seven runs and five hits in three innings.

Billy Hathaway got his first major league victory, allowing three runs and seven hits in six innings. Steve Frey pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

Orioles 6, Tigers 2

Rick Sutcliffe (8-2) won his sixth straight decision and Chris Hoiles hit his fourth home run in three games. Cal Ripken also homered.

Sutcliffe (8-2) pitched his first complete game since July 10, 1992, allowing eight hits, walking three and striking out four. Mike Moore (5-4) gave up six runs - three unearned - for the visiting Tigers.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 3

Jimmy Key (9-2) beat Toronto in his first start against his former club.

Key, signed by the Yankees as a free agent on Dec. 10, gave up three runs and five hits in six innings, struck out six and walked three. Steve Farr pitched the ninth at the Skydome for his 18th save.

Todd Stottlemyre (4-5) allowed four runs and nine hits in five innings.

Rangers' Brown has been unlucky in bad streak

By SIMON GONZALEZ
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - There is nothing wrong, Kevin Brown says, beyond fickle fortune. His pitching coach begs to differ. Brown dropped to 5-6 on the season with a 7-6 loss to the Chicago White Sox on Monday night. It continued one of the worst streaks of his career, a streak in which he has lost three consecutive games. He allowed 17 earned runs in 13 innings in those three starts. "Where's Brownie?" has replaced "Where's Waldo?" as the favorite game among Texas Rangers watchers.

The answer, according to the person in question, is where he has always been. But without any luck. "There's no difference than when I went out there and had games that were good," he said. "Somewhere down the line, luck has to change and things go bad. I make good pitches, and they get hit. Every time I make a mistake, they capitalize on it."

Pitching coach Claude Osteen, observing with the benefit of 36 years in professional baseball, disagrees. "I don't believe it's bad luck," Osteen said. "I'm not going to say luck doesn't happen. It does. But luck is what you make of it."

It's bad luck, Brown said, to hit Joey Cora on the elbow with a pitch that might have been in the strike zone, as he did.

"That's strike three, and I'm out of the inning," Brown said.

It's not bad luck when Frank Thomas hits the next pitch for a three-run homer. Not when the next pitch was a hanging slider.

"Luck is what you make of it," Osteen said. "You can do something about bad luck."

What Brown can do, Osteen said, is not get upset when things that could be construed as bad luck happen. When bloop hits fall in, when fielders make errors, when umpires miss calls.

"You've got to be able to keep your competitive nature under control," Osteen said. "(Composure) is something you have to maintain."

When bad things happen behind Brown now, he tries to do too much with the next pitch and, as a result, loses his mechanics.

Instead of sinking, fastballs stay up in the zone. Instead of breaking sharply, sliders flatten out.

Instead of getting ground balls, line drives fly around and out of the ballpark.

"It's my opinion when he let things get to him too much, he comes out of his shell and starts overthrowing," Osteen said. "The more you overthrow, the less movement you're going to have."

As Osteen said, that's his opinion, based on what he observes.

Brown doesn't share that opinion. "The pitch that Thomas hit, I don't think it was that bad a pitch," he said. "It was more like he was looking for it."

He does admit, though, that he feels something close to anger when "bad luck" happens.

"You can't help but be frustrated," he said. "You get frustrated when things don't go well. I know all it takes is one ball, one call and it can change the whole game around."

Whatever the reason for the recent run of bad outings, the man who makes out the lineup cards anxiously waits for Brown's luck to change.

"I know one thing," manager Kevin Kennedy said. "He's not going to quit. He's too much of a competitor."

A&M re-associates with booster

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas firm owned by a Texas A&M alumnus whose association with a quarterback once got the school put on probation will soon be promoting a "Century of Greatness" of Aggies football.

The school recently hired Dockery House Publishing to merchandise centennial football literature, posters, videos and other items, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The firm is owned by Rod Dockery, who was among four boosters banned for at least two years from associating with the school's athletics after his dealings with quarterback Kevin Murray played a part in the NCAA putting the Aggies on probation.

Dockery, a one-time A&M yell leader, was accused of improperly providing Murray with a car and a job at his printing company, for which Murray was paid but did not work.

His punishment was for an undetermined length, but athletic marketing director Dave South, chairman of the selection committee, said the term must have expired.

"If there was a problem, he wouldn't have been allowed to make the presentation in the first place," South said.

Dockery's company's bid asked for a higher percentage of the sales receipts than a rival firm, documents show, but interim athletic director Wally Groff said Dockery's proposal was chosen because, "our main concern was not so much the financial end of it, but that it be done in a class manner."

But Dockery's proposal did face objections from several key university administrators, according to contract information obtained from Texas A&M by the Morning News.

"He's served his punishment, and I'm not one of these Aggies who wants to continue to flail on this guy," said Ross D. Margraves Jr., chairman of the A&M Board of Regents. "He didn't do the right thing and he served his consequences and, hell, as far as I'm concerned, that's behind the guy."

But on April 16, Dockery sent a letter to then-athletic director John David Crow asking for his firm's proposal to be withdrawn.

"I have learned that the athletic department and president's office at Texas A&M do not want my name nor my company's name associated with the ... project," he wrote.

A contract was signed May 3 by university vice president Robert Smith and Groff and was sent to Dockery.

Dockery did not return telephone calls from the newspaper. There was no Rod Dockery listed in the Dallas telephone book.

Under Dockery's plan - a copy of which was obtained by the newspaper under the Texas Open Records Act - 20 percent of the profits will go to A&M's athletic department, and 5 percent will be donated to an alumni group or other A&M organization.

One Big Blow

PITTSBURGH (AP) - It was a lopsided World Series, but it was decided by one swing of the bat.

In 1960 the Pirates beat the Yankees in seven games, despite being outscored in total runs, 55 to 27. The Yanks won their three games by scores of 16-3, 10-0, and 12-0. The Pirates won by scores that were close, especially the seventh and deciding game.

The score was tied at 9-9 in the last of the ninth in Pittsburgh. Bill Mazeroski, first up, took a ball from Ralph Terry, the Yankee pitcher. He swung at the next offering and hit it over the left field wall. Final score: Pittsburgh 10, Yankees 9.

Audit of firm prompts Pantex investigation

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Pantex Plant auditors are investigating a waste-management firm's subcontract after an audit revealed more than $3 million in questionable costs, government records show.

The plant, about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the nation's primary assembly and disassembly plant for nuclear weapons. It is operated for the Department of Energy by contractor Mason & Hanger Silas-Mason Co.

An energy department report said Mason & Hanger's auditors raised questions about the subcontract of Chemical Waste Management Inc., after their audit found "many significant and serious findings" in December.

Chemical Waste Management, an Illinois-based subcontractor that provides waste-management services to weapons plants across the country, said it hopes to resolve questions raised by the audit.

"The findings were related to unauthorized commitments, performance outside the scope of the subcontract, lack of administrative controls, duplicate charges, inadequate documentation and questionable costs in the approximate amount of $3.5 million," the energy department report said.

The energy department said Mason & Hanger auditors were first to question subcontracting charges, but that plant officials must monitor such contracts more closely.

Bruce Campbell, a spokesman for Mason & Hanger, said plant officials can't discuss the contract since it is still being analyzed.

Bob Reincke of Chemical Waste Management said his company has been discussing the audit with Mason & Hanger officials.

DARE camp being held at WTA&MU this week

The West Texas A&M University police department, in cooperation with several other agencies, is sponsoring the second annual Drug Abuse Resistance Education Day Camp this week at the Canyon campus.

Approximately 200 participants between sixth and eighth grades are taking part in the activities.

Students will participate in instructional activities including self-esteem building and identifying and dealing with peer pressure. Recreational activities are also included.

The camp began Monday and will be held through Friday.

"The goal of this day camp is to promote a drug-free and violence-free lifestyle," said Cathy Watson, DARE coordinator for the Randall County Sheriff's Department. "These are the same principles that have been taught in health education for years, but we use a different perspective. We help kids identify peer pressure and use role-play situations to show them how to respond to that pressure."

WTAMU facilities are being made available to DARE at no cost, while reasonable meal costs are being provided by ARA Services, the university's food service.

Other agencies helping to sponsor the camp are the Canyon and Hereford Independent School Districts, Canyon and Hereford police departments, Randall County Sheriff's Department, Canyon Fire Department, Department of Public Safety, Emergency Medical Service and Randall County Juvenile Probation and Adult Parole.

Flier distributed in San Antonio called 'racist' by GOP chairman

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Democratic Party defends a flier distributed during the recent U.S. Senate campaign in Texas, denying that the flier used "race-baiting tactics."

State Republican Party Chairman Fred Meyer on Wednesday accused Housing and Urban Development Secretary Henry Cisneros of having attempted to inflame racial tensions.

Cisneros' picture appeared on a campaign flier for Democratic candidate Bob Krueger that read: "Don't let our families get shut out. If we send a second Republican senator to Washington - a second Phil Gramm - our families will get shut out."

The flier, which was put out by the state Democratic Party, was hung on doors in Hispanic neighborhoods.

Meyer said the phrasing "was clearly designed to stir up an 'us versus them' attitude and inflame racial tensions in a desperate attempt to boost turnout for Democrat Bob Krueger." He called on Cisneros to apologize.

Texas Democratic Party executive director Ed Martin said Meyer was wrong.

"We're simply trying to communicate with the community what we have fought for, and the Republicans have ignored," he said.

Cisneros, a Democrat, was not immediately available for comment, his Washington office said.

Krueger was defeated by Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison in the June 5 election.

Martin said if anyone owes an apology it's Mrs. Hutchison. He noted that when she was asked during a debate to name minority role models, she identified only slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

"When Kay Hutchison was asked for minority role models, she didn't name one Hispanic," he said.

Meyer also said a flier was used in black neighborhoods with Judge Morris Overstreet's picture on it. Overstreet is black.

Overstreet said the campaign flier was not race-baiting.

"The tenor of it was that there was a need to elect a Democratic senator because the Democratic Party has shown a greater interest in those matters that concern the less fortunate in America," the judge said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My neighbor and I have been having a friendly argument about proteins and hope you can straighten us out. She says your body cannot manufacture proteins; I say it can. She also claims that you can eat all the protein foods you want and you will not gain weight because of it. I say that if you eat too much of any food, you will get fat. Her argument is based on weight-loss diets that are strictly protein.

DEAR READER: You are the clear winner. The body can manufacture proteins. That is how your body grows or forms important hormones such as insulin. Proteins are made up of amino acids. The body can even manufacture many of these. But there are some amino acids the body cannot manufacture and are called the essential amino acids. You have to include these in your diet.

Good sources of protein that provide these essential amino acids include the meat group (red meat, fish, poultry) and milk or milk products. If you don't get enough of the essential amino acids you will have health problems. An adequate intake of protein is essential to build and maintain muscles and bone. A lot is said about calcium to prevent osteoporosis, but you must also have an adequate amount of good quality protein.

Proteins contain two main types of amino acids. One group can be converted to fatty acids and the other group can be converted to glucose. Both fatty acids and glucose are sources of energy, and if you have too much of either, the excess calories will be stored as body fat.

The catch is that many high-protein foods are really low-calorie foods. A whole pound of lean round steak, raw, only contains about 600 calories. Of course, you need to choose protein foods that are low in fat to lose weight. But if you consume enough calories as protein, and don't need the protein, it will simply be converted to fatty acids and glucose.

You and your neighbor can resolve your arguments by reading Special Issue 32-12, Amino Acids and Proteins, which I am sending you. It will also give you information on sources and requirements for amino acids. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-12, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Keep in mind that many foods that are called high-protein foods are really high-fat foods. Whole milk contains more calories as fat than of protein.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I started having colds very early in life. The doctor ran tests and found my antibodies wouldn't fight off infections. He started me on gamma globulin shots every month until I was 3 years old and then every other month until I was 5.

My mom and I were wondering since the AIDS virus makes antibodies ineffective, maybe they could try gamma globulin shots to build up the antibodies so they could fight off infections and maybe give AIDS victims a surviving chance.

DEAR READER: I'll give you an A-plus for thinking and your interest. Unfortunately, it isn't low gamma globulin levels that make AIDS patients susceptible to infections. There are many different steps the body uses to fight infections. The T lymphocytes, a type of white blood cells, are essential in fighting infections and when too many of these are destroyed, the body cannot defend itself adequately, even if the gamma globulin levels are normal. The AIDS virus enters T lymphocytes and destroys them. And that is how these patients lose their immunity mechanism.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Celebrant Singers to perform

The public is invited to hear the Celebrant Singers perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Church of the Nazarene, 1410 La Plata. The concert is free of charge and a free-will offering will be taken. The group has travelled throughout the United States and 52 foreign countries and have sung to more than four million people in live concerts. Nations of ministry include India, Iran, Egypt, East and West Africa, Latin America, all parts of Europe, Hong Kong, the Philippines and most recently Cuba.

Keep hearts healthy

Surprising to many women is the fact that heart disease and other cardiovascular diseases are truly a problem for them - not just their husbands, fathers, brothers or sons.

Overall, about ten million women of all ages suffer from heart disease. One in ten million women of all ages suffer from heart disease. One in ten women aged 45 to 64 has some form of heart disease, and this increases to one in four women over 65. Over 500,000 women suffer heart attacks each year.

One of the best presents you can give your wife, mother, sister or daughter is to encourage her to get a complete medical checkup to find out whether she has any cardiovascular disease risk factors. Risk factors are traits or habits that can make a person more likely to develop a disease.

While any one risk factor will raise your chances of developing heart-related problems, the more risk factors a woman has, the more concerned she should be about prevention.

One way to help reduce your risk factors is by reading a newly published book that identifies the risk factors that women can control. The book Healthy Heart Handbook for Women, is published by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute. The book shows how, by taking an active role in heart health, a woman can lessen her chances of developing cardiovascular disease.

If a woman has high blood cholesterol, high blood pressure, is overweight or smokes, now is the time for her to get started on a personal program for a healthy heart.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: This may not seem like a big deal, but I have stopped taking bags from stores unless I really need one.

I think of the thousands of times over the years when I've left a convenience store or book store with a little bag, only to immediately throw it away.

If everyone stopped taking these bags just as a matter of habit, we could save lots of money and resources. — John Walsh, Kihei, Hawaii

You are right! For years I've said, "No bag, please."

Just think if each of us did this how much landfill space we would save. If you do get bags, try to use them again before discarding them, or give them a resale or consignment shop.

Thanks so much for writing in and reminding us to help by doing our share. — Heloise

FAST FACTS
Dear Heloise: I enjoy your column in the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette. I want to share some other uses for old toothbrushes.

- Keep one in a tackle box to clean fishing lures.
- Keep with automotive tools to clean small parts.
