Unemployment dips, labor market rises

By The Associated Press

The nation's civilian jobless rate fell to 8.2 percent in December as the labor market enjoyed its best recovery in 33 years, the Labor Department said today.

The U.S. economy's bullish performance also has put the stock market back on a record-breaking course, and the dollar is smashing records on foreign exchange markets.

And the major retail chains said December sales were the best in several years, while the big five domestic automakers reported the first year-to-year sales increase in four years.

The jobless rate was 8.4 percent in November. Since unemployment hit a post-Depression high of 10.7 percent in December 1982, total

Latest figures show

U.S. civilian employment has soared by 4 million.

The labor market recovery from the business slump of 1981-82 was at the fastest pace of any post-recession rally since 1951, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The agency initially reported the December 1982 unemployment rate was 10.8 percent, but today the BLS revised jobless statistics for the past 13 months and the new figures put December 1982 unemployment at 10.7 percent.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 13.19 points to 1,282.24 Thursday, leaving it less than 5 points below the record of 1,287.20 set Nov. 29, 1983.

Trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange jumped to 159.99 million shares Thursday, easily surpassing the previous record of 149.35 million set Nov. 4, 1982.

Wall Street analysts said stocks, which took a moderate dive in December, were pulled out of the doldrums by a drop in interest rates and the anticipation of healthy reports on corporate earnings for the final quarter of 1983.

The dollar extended its record-setting advance today in European trading by reaching new heights in relation to the currencies of Britain, France, Italy and Norway. It also hit a 10-year high against the West German mark and the Dutch guilder.

The Federal Reserve Board said its measure of the dollar's exchange value, weighted on the basis of international trade with 10 nations, also climbed to a new record.

Today's report said that more than 335,000 Americans went to work last month, and that the total number of those officially categorized as unemployed shrank by 230,000, to 9.2 million. At the height of the 1981-82 recession, more than 12 million were out of work.

This dumpster, owned by the City of Hereford, is one of 44 that caught fire last year. The blaze caused the paint to peel off and then rusting began, which the local fire department said cuts the life of the containers in half.

Saturday first filing day

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Saturday is the first day people may file to become candidates in local and state election primaries, set to be held May 5.

Positions to be decided in Deaf Smith County are sheriff, two commissioners and the tax assessor, collector. Area voters are also to help decide who will represent them as a state senator, state representative, U.S.

For primaries in May representative and U.S. senator, according to County Clerk David Ruland.

Those interested in filing for a post must do so during a 30-day period ending at 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 6. A filing must be made with the county chairman of the candidate's political party. Roy Dale Messer heads the area democrats while the republican party is chaired by Garth Thomas.

At the last primary elections in 1982, no republicans filed for office in Deaf Smith County. Thomas, local GOP chairman since 1979, said republicans have ever filed during his tenure. Ruland, when asked if he thought any would run this year, replied, "From all indications I've heard, I doubt it."

"I think it's a little early to tell," Thomas said this morning over the telephone. "I'm working on a few people. I hope we have some candidates this year. The county needs them."

Messer, meanwhile, seemed more optimistic about democratic hopefuls. "There are several that I'm going to get together with tomorrow," he also said this morning over the telephone.

The current sheriff is Joe Brown, selected late last summer to complete the unexpired term of Travis McPherson. Brown came to the position from the Hereford Police Department, where he was last serving as a lieutenant. McPherson, elected in 1972, 1976 and 1980, is now working with a San Antonio architectural firm.

Precincts 1 and 3 are to be the county commissioner races. Those spots are now held by Bill Bradley and Bruce Coleman, respectively. Bradley is serving his first term while Coleman, on the court for nearly two decades, has announced he will not seek reelection.

Nell Miller, according to Ruland, plans to run again as tax assessor, collector. She was originally elected in 1960 and began serving the following year.

Filing for the county posts requires a $300 fee, payable to the county party chairmen. These monies are used to help finance the primaries, which Ruland said are "ideally self-supporting." However, any balance not so either picked up by the county or subtracted from the stipends election officials are supposed to receive.

Deaf Smith County has 12 voting precincts, Ruland said, averaging about 10 election officials apiece.

Filing fees may be waived should a candidate supply a petition signed by five percent of the registered county voters, though the total number of signatures may not exceed 500.

Thanks to certain election laws dealing with campaign reports and disclosures, those candidates planning to receive donations should have a campaign treasurer, Ruland said. Treasurers may file only through Ruland, who plans to be available for the service on weekday working hours during the 30-day filing period.

"It's just a good policy to file a campaign treasurer if you're going to accept any money at all," said Messer, who has been the county's democratic party chairman since October. He assumed the unexpired term of Suzie Woodford.

Among the donation rules, according to Ruland, are none may be accepted from corporations, each over $50 must be reported as it is public record and no cash amount exceeding $100 may be received.

Dumpster fires problem

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Dumpster fires are a nuisance.

"An average of 20 men leave their jobs and disrupt their day every time an alarm goes out," Fire Marshall Jay Spain said Thursday. He had dumpster fires on his mind, having already sent his volunteers out five times this week to extinguish the blazes. Three of those came in a 15-minute period on Tuesday afternoon.

Dumpster fires are also a burden to taxpayers. Besides taking up their share of the annual Hereford Fire Department's budget (one out of eight calls were to dumpsters last year), the trash containers do not come cheap either. "The smaller ones cost $280 now," City Manager Dudley Bayne said.

Most of the fires are set in the residential-size dumpsters placed along alleys. But some occur in industrial trash containers, which cost a lot more.

"When a dumpster burns, the paint burns off," Spain explained. "Then they rust. Every fire cuts the life of a dumpster in half."

The thing that worries Spain most, though, is the danger. "Dumpster fires are a Code 3. That means lights and sirens. We're as careful as we can be, but every Code 3 means there's a chance we could hit somebody on the way.

Fire Marshall explains

"Not only that," he continued, "but there's the fact that we have people and equipment out fighting a dumpster fire and a major emergency could occur somewhere across town. Everything is out of place, and it could cost a life."

Then there is one more worry, one that involves the firefighters, the people who set the blaze and even the nearby residents. "A can of paint thinner could blow up a dumpster," Spain said. "The things that people throw in those things everyday can explode when a fire is set."

Spain listed aerosol cans, used batteries, disposable lighters, paint cans, old gasoline cans and lawn and garden products as items that are found in the receptacles all the time. And all of them are potential explosives.

The department battled 44 dumpster fires last year. There were at least two every month, with seven counted in October. Almost all occurred after noon, usually between 3 and 6 p.m. Spain said he knows how they were set and why they were set, yet there was not one arrest made last year.

"There are two main causes," he said: "fireplace ashes, and kids who like to see the fire trucks get out."

The volunteers usually have an audience as they extinguish the fires, Spain pointed out, mostly children gathered a safe distance away. "There's not much we can do when there were no eye witnesses," he admitted. "The parents need to know where their kids are at."

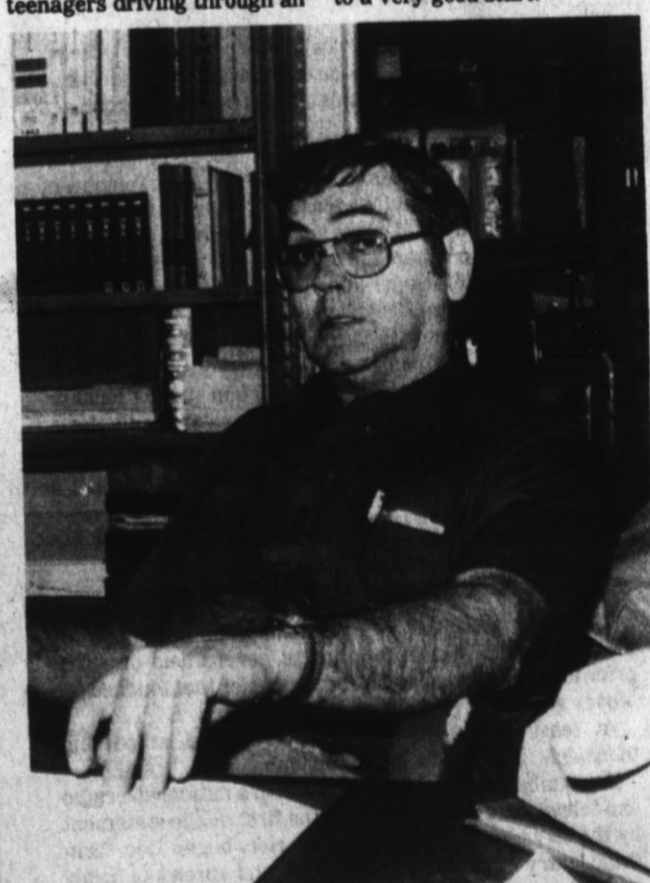

"When you empty your trash, you can help by closing the lid afterwards," he counseled. "It makes the container less handy. Last year a lady spotted a car full of teenagers driving through an alley, throwing a match in every dumpster that was open."

Hot ashes top the list of tinder used in accidental settings. Spain told how he handles ashes at his own house. "I set them outside in a metal pan for a few days. Then I put them in a plastic bag for another day or so. If they didn't burn a hole in the plastic bag, they're ready to be put in a dumpster. However you do it, just make sure they're cold."

Sometimes the arsonists get more than they bargained for. Last year alone, three fences and one garage caught fire from sparks. "We never know what we'll find," Spain said. "That's why we sometimes send two trucks."

He estimated the department drove 250 to 300 miles fighting dumpster fires in 1983. With five fires in the first four days, 1984 is not off to a very good start.

Tired Of Dumpster Fires

Hereford Fire Marshall Jay Spain said dumpster fires in the city, caused mostly by arsons, are a nuisance, an expense for everyone and potentially dangerous. The department experienced a rash of the blazes this week.

Eight area officials testify

At least eight county officials are reportedly in Austin today for a hearing at the Texas Prosecutor's Coordinating Council.

Those expected to attend the hearing were Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, Special Investigator Terry Colston and Jerry Smith, a former assistant district attorney.

Also scheduled to make the trip were Assistant District Attorneys Roxanne Davis and Dino Baralle; Jo Charest, a clerk at the district attorney's office; Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown and his chief deputy, Dean Butcher.

A secretary at the Texas Prosecutor's Coordinating Council office said the designated spokesman, Scott Klippel, was attending the hearing this morning. She also said she was unable to make any comment on the nature of the meeting. That council is headed by Andy Shurval, a former Deaf Smith County district attorney.

Local District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey said although a new grand jury has been impaneled, the previous jury has been extended as it continues in its investigation of the district attorney's office. That jury has not yet set a date to meet this month, she said. The new jury will meet on Jan. 12 to investigate other criminal matters in the county.

YMCA receives donation

Ten thousand dollars was given to the local YMCA's funding drive Thursday by the Amarillo Area Foundation.

John B. Bingham, director of finance and area development for the foundation, presented the check to Weldon Knabe, YMCA program director.

The foundation is reportedly involved in several community projects in the Texas Panhandle, including the Dunas and Moore County YMCA, the Canadian Area Family YMCA, the Borger Community Center and the Amarillo Medical Center.

Dick Harris is president and Jack Cromartie executive director of AAF.

Three arrested

Three juveniles were arrested Thursday for smoking marijuana, Hereford police reported this morning.

All male, the trio's ages were 15, 15 and 14, police said. Investigated were a possible theft of a purse, threats by telephone and the theft of a bed and mattress.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen, meanwhile, responded to a late-afternoon grass fire at the end of Campbell Avenue. A trailer house, owned by Leon Padilla and occupied by Gerald Brinkley, received what Fire Marshall Jay Spain described as "moderate damage" Thursday evening. A short circuit in the electrical water heater apparently caused the blaze.

Artillery, rocket fire exchanged

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Army troops and anti-government Druse militiamen traded artillery and rocket fire near the U.S. Marine base today and mediators worked to wrap up a plan to separate Lebanon's civil war combatants.

Saudi mediator Rafik Hariri was holding talks with Lebanon's top Druse and Shiite Moslem militia leaders in Damascus, Syria, on the new security plan.

Druse leader Walid Jumblatt said Thursday night the plan falls short of a full political settlement, but Lebanese officials said only some "technical and non-essential details" remain to be resolved before it is declared.

The state radio said at least six motorists suffered shrapnel wounds when Druse shells slammed into the army-held Khalde intersection on the coastal highway linking Beirut with Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon.

The area is 300 yards from the southernmost Marine position at Beirut's international airport but Marine spokesman Capt. Wayne Jones said, "We have not taken fire or returned fire."

Police said the Druse-army battle with artillery and multiple rocket launchers broke out at dawn and raged through the morning. It tapered off shortly before midday and the army said the highway was reopened to traffic for "anyone who takes the risk on his own responsibility."

Lebanon's four-man security committee — representing the army and the principal warring factions and in charge of dealing with cease-fire violations — met later to try to stabilize the truce, the state radio reported.

Police said Druse and rightist Christian militiamen battled with mortars, rockets and machine guns through the night in the hills of the Kharroub region, which overlooks the Israeli defense line at the Awali River in southern Lebanon.

The Jiye power plant that supplies Beirut's electricity took direct mortar and rocket hits during the fighting and the state-run power company announced new rationing that would give the capital electricity for only six hours a day.

Jumblatt assailed the Lebanese army and the government in a statement he issued at his Chouf mountain home in Moukhtara before driving to Damascus for talks with Hariri and Nabih Berri, head of the dominant Shiite militia Amal.

"The security plan will introduce a military relaxation in the country, but it offers no

Murdered couple's son charged

LAMPASAS, Texas (AP) — A 29-year-old Lometa man has been charged with the murders of his father, mother and sister, who were robbed and found slain in their home. James Haydon of Lometa was arrested about 4 p.m. Thursday at the sheriff's office, said Lampasas County Sheriff Gordon Morris. Haydon has no permanent address or occupation, Morris said. Haydon, 29, is charged in the shooting deaths of his father Noah Haydon, 60, his mother Edna Haydon, 49, and sister Amanda, 5. James Haydon had reported the slayings, saying he discovered the bodies Monday during a visit to his family's home in the West Central Texas city of 670. Morris said investigators believe robbery was "partially" the motive for the killings, "but I am not at liberty to say at this time what the rest of it was."

Prison violence up last year

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A lawyer for Texas prisoners says a report showing increased unrest among inmates doesn't tell the whole story about violence in the prison system. The year-end report from the Texas Department of Corrections found that the number of inmate killings and prison escapes sharply increased last year. Ten inmates were killed in 1983 by fellow prisoners — the second-highest number in a decade — and 14 others escaped, according to the report issued Wednesday. The report also shows 24,265 inmate infractions in 1983, a 16 percent jump from 20,915 the year before and an increase greater than the growth in the inmate population. The infractions, which are not detailed in the report, could range from minor items like an inmate refusing to report to a work detail, to attacks on guards or fellow prisoners.

Suit over handgun continues

DALLAS (AP) — A small, cheap handgun that accidentally wounded a teen-ager and left him a paraplegic was "a piece of junk" that had no business being sold to the public, a former Chicago police superintendent says. Richard Brzezczek, who headed 14,000 Chicago police officers from 1980 until last April, testified Thursday in a $43 million lawsuit against the marketer, manufacturer and designer of a .22 caliber revolver. David Duane Clancy, 22, of Amarillo, filed the suit in Dallas in 1981, four years after he was shot in the neck while standing in a high school parking lot. At the time of the shooting, Clancy was 15. The shot left Clancy a paraplegic. Brzezczek called the revolver a "piece of junk" and said it had "no other usefulness" than shooting people. He said handguns "in general are inherently dangerous instruments."

Gays protest killer's release

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Concerned authorities refused to reveal any details of today's parole of Dan White, killer of Mayor George Moscone and the city's first openly homosexual supervisor, Harvey Milk, as the gay community voiced outrage. To protest White's parole after only five years in prison, homosexual leaders called for a series of rallies and a noisy, 15-minute "outpouring of feeling" during which all work would stop. White, 37, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the Nov. 27, 1978, slayings and sentenced to seven years, eight months in prison. Prosecutors had asked for a verdict of murder but the jury believed the defense argument that White, a former supervisor who wanted his job back, was too depressed to know what he was doing. He served most of his time at Soledad Correctional Training Facility. Authorities refused to divulge any information about White's parole, including when and where he would be freed. Under state law, he could be released from any prison, county jail, prison camp or halfway house in California — more than 150 different locations.

Customers respond to breakup

Telephone companies around the nation are being swamped with calls from customers asking how the breakup of AT&T affects their phone at home, and at least some people say they want to bring back old-fashioned Ma Bell. Using toll-free "Let's Talk" or "We Can Help" numbers, the regional phone companies created Jan. 1 have fielded tens of thousands of calls from often-confused customers. "The most common question is about equipment," Peter Cronin, a spokesman for New England Telephone, now part of Nynex, said Wednesday. "Whether customers should rent or buy, and who's going to repair it." The 22 local companies that made up the Bell System were spun off into seven regional holding companies in the antitrust settlement with the government. The regional companies are still responsible for basic telephone service. There is no change in dialing local or long-distance calls: AT&T and its rivals handle long-distance calls, as before, but ownership of leased phones has been transferred to AT&T.

Tunisia cancels price hikes

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — President Habib Bourguiba today announced the cancellation of government-imposed price increases on bread and other staples that touched off bloody week-long food riots. At least 57 people have been reported killed and thousands arrested during the disturbances. Bourguiba announced the decision in a nationwide radio and television address that was the first public statement by the 80-year-old leader since the riots began Dec. 29 in the country's poor southern region and spread to Tunis and other major cities. Rioting first broke out after the government decided to increase bread prices 110 percent and those of other basic foods such as semolina by as much as 70 percent. The aim was to cut heavy government subsidies on foodstuffs, whose prices had remained largely unchanged for many years. Other survivors include his

Settlement reached in Mobil Oil lawsuit

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Millionaire rancher Clinton Manges said he would meet in Houston with two firms interested in buying oil and gas leases he won in the settlement of a $1.7 billion lawsuit against Mobil Oil Corp. The settlement was reached Thursday morning and approved by visiting Judge George Miller. Agreement followed months of complex negotiations between Mobil, Manges, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox and Exxon Corp. Mobil was not required to make a cash payment under the terms of the agreement, but Manges and the state will begin receiving proceeds from 129 producing oil and gas wells, 76 belonging to Manges and 59 owned by the state. The money from the state's wells will go to the public education fund. Manges and Texas are expected to receive several hundred million dollars more when the mineral rights they won in the suit are leased. Manges said he was going to Houston Thursday night for a meeting with two potential lease buyers. Manges said he was "real happy" with the agreement. Mobil said in a statement released after the hearing that it was "pleased to have concluded the matter." But it said that it maintained from the beginning that its lease was valid but decided to settle rather than going to trial "because of the extremely high cost of lengthy litigation." The oil company also said in the statement that it, "requested and received a judgment from the court stating we had not violated the terms of the lease. This established the validity of the lease and assures us against future liability." In December, Shearson-American Express, acting as trustee for a Miami investment firm, offered Manges $400 million for mineral rights he holds and another $100 million was offered to the state for its minerals. That deal failed to go through when a settlement could not be reached in December. The settlement was delayed by a challenge from the Exxon Corp., which claims about 30 percent of the mineral rights. Exxon agreed to let the settlement proceed, but may still sue for a portion of the anticipated profits. Manges said profits from sale of the leases may be even greater than the offer made by Shearson-American Express. "I wouldn't be surprised if we didn't get something better than that now," Manges said. Manges said two other firms had either matched or outbid Shearson-American Express. The suit filed by Manges in 1982 alleged that Mobil had not met the requirements on a lease they had held on his South Texas ranch since 1932. Manges claimed all the oil drilled by Mobil since then, worth about $1.7 billion. The state later joined the suit because it owns some of the mineral rights to the land. In the settlement, Mobil agreed to give Manges and the state the lease they held plus oilfield equipment worth about $2.5 million and all records on oil and gas exploration on Manges' ranch. "I'm very pleased (with the settlement)," Mattox said. "The settlement we reached was the first offer I'd made to Mobil management and they accepted the entire offer." Originally, Mobil had fought the claims of Manges and the state and hired the Houston law firm of Fulbright and Jaworski to represent them. Mattox said discussions with Mobil's attorney Thomas McDade rapidly deteriorated, eventually leading to McDade accusing Mattox of trying to damage the bond business of Fulbright and Jaworski.

Leaders differ on education ranking

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Two education leaders in Texas had sharply different reactions to the news from Washington that the state ranks low when compared to school systems of other states. Texas Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum said an influx of Hispanic students helped bring down the state's scores, and he said Texas has not spent enough money on education over the past decade. Dallas businessman Ross Perot, chairman of a state committee on education, said the figures show what he says he already knew — that Texas has to completely restructure its public school system. "The school day in Texas has been so corrupted by non-academic activities that if we don't win that day back for learning, we might as well fold our tents," Perot said. He called for a new system of public schools that would "put a great teacher in every classroom," and said it would only work with strong backing from parents at home. "We want to build the finest elementary system in the world, one that will accept the one-parent kids and 6-year-olds with 50-word vocabularies. We've got to stop pretending everybody comes from fine, upper-middle-class homes," Perot said.

He said if the system does not work for children in the early grades "we've lost them" for good. Department of Education figures showed Texas ranked below the national average in 1982 in Scholastic Achievement Test scores, graduation rates, pupil-teacher ratio and teacher salaries. Bynum said the main reason for the drop in SAT scores over the past decade, from 921 to 868, is "our net growth has been in Hispanic students."

He said 32 percent of the graduating seniors took the SAT test in both 1972 and 1982, but "what we are doing is adding a large minority population because we're taking 32 percent of a much bigger number." But Perot scoffed at using the minority influx as a "crutch" and said the "greatest mistake the people of Texas could make" would be to simply "throw money" at the education problem. "Let's throw away the crutches. Any failure I've ever had, I could make a lot of wonderful excuses. We're at the bottom of the charts. Let's not rationalize why we're at the bottom of the charts — let's spend our time and energy figuring out how to get to the top of the charts."

Perot said the first draft of recommendations by his committee, charged by the governor to come up with a master plan to improve public schools in Texas, would be released March 1. Texas ranked next to last among states in terms of percentage of per capita income spent on public education, behind Nevada, and Bynum said that was a major factor in the state's lower test scores.

"We have not kept up in the last 10 years with the economic growth of Texas in public education spending," Bynum said. "The point here is that we in Texas have moved dramatically in per capita income in the last decade, but we have not moved as dramatically in public school spending."

He said more money should be spent on teachers' salaries and building maintenance. Perot said if Texans did not change the public school system, they could spend all the money in the world on it and "it still wouldn't get us to the top of the charts." He criticized the current system as having too many "soft electives such as credit for hunting and fishing," too many club activities, and too much time spent on band, drill team and football.

Perot promised that the new public school system wouldn't be as much fun as the current one, but he said it would pay dividends in terms of personal success of the state's schoolchildren.

Leftist rebels kidnap 200 coffee pickers

By ARTHUR ALLEN Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels raided plantations on a volcano in eastern El Salvador and marched 200 coffee pickers at gunpoint to a rebel stronghold, a Western source reports. The mass abduction, described as a possible attempt to impress the peasants into military service, was reported Thursday, coinciding with a Red Cross announcement that the rebels had freed 114 government soldiers captured last week — the biggest prisoner release of the four-year civil war. The soldiers were captured when the rebels overran the El Paraiso army base in the northern province of Chalatenango, killing more than 100 troops in one of their major victories of the war.

The guerrillas have waged a campaign to destroy the economy, but this year have limited attacks on coffee production. In another development Thursday, a judge ordered the release of a Salvadoran military officer believed to be a key witness in the murder of two American labor advisers. Judge Nelson Garcia said in an interview that he has ordered police to release Capt. Eduardo Alfonso Avila within two weeks. American officials had sought Avila's testimony about the Jan. 3, 1981, murders of American labor advisers Michael Hammer and Mark David Pearlman and Salvadoran labor leader Rodolfo Viera. Garcia said his investigation has shown Avila to be guilty only of violating military regulations when he fled the country in October 1982 without authorization. Such a violation is punishable by 30 days detention, Avila said, and that will end Jan. 19. Two former National Guard corporals have confessed to killing the labor advisers and testified Avila helped plan the killings. He has never been charged, but U.S. officials hoped he would testify against other suspects.

Elsewhere in Central America, Nicaraguan military sources said CIA-backed rebels in planes and speed boats attacked a Pacific coast port, killing one person and wounding eight. The sources said CIA-aided rebels attacked the port Thursday a few hours before Richard Stone, President Reagan's special envoy to Central America, arrived in the capital for talks with the leftist Sandinista government.

A military officer in the port of Potosi, 110 miles northwest of Managua, said by telephone that two planes, two speedboats and a gunboat "coming from Honduras" strafed and bombed the town, killing one man and wounding eight people. He said the customs house and a hospital were damaged and a sugar plantation set afire. The official, who asked not to be identified, said the attack was launched from a Honduran town 30 miles north of Potosi across the Gulf of Fonseca. It was the third such attack in three days, military sources said.

In 1981, the unemployment rate fell by 3.7 percentage points. The 2.5 percentage-point drop in 1983 eclipsed the 2.3 percent drop in 1980, following the recession of 1959-60, said bureau analyst Deborah Klein. Commenting on the latest unemployment trend, Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, acknowledged that the ever-declining jobless rate might be due in part to the fact that fewer people than expected have reentered the labor force in search of work. Many private economists have said that while they're pleased with the falling joblessness, they believe many unemployed Americans are delaying their return to the labor force. Some say the rate could go up this spring if these people return in droves to the job market.

Management specialist says

Economy begins at home

COLLEGE STATION — In spite of concerns about the national debt, government spending and income taxes, for most of us "the economy" begins at home.

According to Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist, "the family remains the basic living unit, and the basic economic unit in this country."

"In fact, recent research indicates that economic status — including poverty status — is largely dependent on changes in family composition such as divorce, marriage or remarriage, the birth of children, children living home and widowhood," states Granovsky.

Granovsky is one of several family resource management specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service who are concerned with assessing and improving the economic well-being of Texas families.

Assessing family economic status involves research on income and poverty status, consumer spending, credit use, family savings patterns, economic decision-making and other factors related to the economic behavior of families. These economic behaviors affect the standard of living for Texas families.

Many Texas families lack the time, energy, or money to fulfill their expectations for a desirable standard of living, says Granovsky.

Other families have problems using resources when those resources are subject to changing influences from within or outside the family.

Houston defeats SMU 60-59

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer
Houston's Michael Young stole the show, pulling the curtain on Southern Methodist.

"I'm going to Michael Young's commencement exercises to make sure he graduates," SMU Coach Dave Bliss said after a 60-59 loss to the seventh-ranked Cougars Thursday night. "He's really killed us offensively for the last few years." Young was not only an offensive spark for the Cougars with 24 points, but personally pulled the game out with a steal and basket in the last minute.

"I'm the senior and it's my responsibility to pick up the slack," said Young. "I feel like every ballgame we play somebody has to carry the load and I take it upon myself every game."

"On that steal, I just waited back and things worked out. I guess that's what experience does for you." With the victory, the Cougars, 11-2, became the first team to win 25 straight

Sam Perkins scored 21 points to lead North Carolina's over Boston University. The game matched Tar Heel coach Dean Smith against former North Carolina guard John Kuester, who became head coach at Boston University prior to the start of the season.

"Yes, it did feel a little funny to coach against a former player," Smith said. "Of course, I'd rather coach against John Kuester's team than Billy Cunningham's (head coach of the NBA Philadelphia 76ers)."

Kenny Patterson scored 18 points to lead DePaul over Pepperdine. Marty Embry added 17 points and pulled Southwest Conference games.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 North Carolina drubbed Boston University 87-54. No. 3 DePaul beat Pepperdine 81-73. No. 6 UCLA trimmed Arizona State 79-57. No. 9 Louisiana State stopped No. 11 Georgia 81-77. 10th-ranked Texas-El Paso hammered U.S. International 85-59. No. 13

St. John's walloped Rutgers 71-43. 14th-ranked Illinois turned back Minnesota 80-53. No. 15 Oregon State trimmed Stanford 64-59 and No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas crushed Long Beach State 103-66.

Young's 10-foot jump shot came after he stole an SMU pass and drove the length of the floor. Houston freshman Rickie Winslow batted a ball away from Larry Davis to break up an SMU in-bounds play with two seconds left to preserve the Cougars' victory.

The Mustangs were led by Jon Koncak, who had 21 points and 15 rebounds in his battle with Houston's Akeem Olajuwon, who finished with 14 points, five rebounds and four blocks.

SMU lost despite outbounding the Cougars 45-24.

"How can you win a ballgame and get outbounded like that?" said

Houston Coach Guy Lewis. "I feel fortunate to win."

down a game-high 13 rebounds for DePaul, 11-0.

Kenny Fields scored 21 points and gathered six rebounds to pace UCLA over Arizona State. UCLA led only 59-50 with five minutes remaining, but the Bruins scored the game's next 16 points to turn what had been a competitive contest into a blowout.

John Tudor hit two free throws with two seconds left to seal LSU's victory over Georgia. Tudor was fouled after Georgia missed a chance to tie the game when Donald Hartry missed a 20-foot jumper with six seconds remaining.

LSU's Derrick Taylor missed two free throws in the final minute, but led all scorers with 26 points and impressed Georgia Coach Hugh Durham.

'Skins feast on western teams in NFL Playoffs

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Let's put the Washington Redskins in the starring role of their own monster movie: "The Team That Ate The West."

Having devoured the forces from southern California, the Los Angeles Rams, with barely a burp, the 'Skins are poised to feast on the folks from the northern end of the Golden State, the San Francisco 49ers.

But they're only appetizers. The main course comes in a couple of weekends when the Los Angeles Raiders or Seat-le Seahawks ... but that's in the next reel.

Can anything stop these Redskins?

If it really was a movie, they'd be summoning the army right about now, as one town after another was being flattened.

So just comfort yourself by repeating: "It's only a football team, only a football team, only..."

And take WASHINGTON minus 10 over San Francisco.

One rule by which successful punters (and we don't mean Ray Guy and Dave Jennings) live is: "An average team doesn't necessarily become a good one because it beats a good team."

A lot of folks have been writing off the Seattle Seahawks as just another team because it was 9-7 during the year — but, hey, eight of the American Conference's 14 teams were within one game of .500 when the season ended.

Face it, the Seahawks may not be household names yet, but they're not exactly the Houston Oilers, either.

Can they beat the Raiders a third time? Maybe. Maybe not. But they're good enough to keep it close to the end.

Take Seattle plus 7 over LOS ANGELES.

Seattle surprise for Oakland?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can a wild card team make it to the Super Bowl? Yes, indeed, and nobody knows more about that than the Los Angeles Raiders.

Just three years ago when the Raiders, then playing in Oakland, not only got to the Super Bowl as a wild card. They won it decisively.

Now, the Raiders are favored in their attempt to return to the National Football League's showcase event. Standing in their way are the Seattle Seahawks, a wild-card entry in post-season action for the first time.

"What impresses me about them is what impressed me about us three years ago," said tight end Todd Christensen of the Raiders. "They appear to be a team of destiny and that, a lot of the time, is a lot more scary than their ability."

"I think we have a collection of better athletes, but that really at this time of the season is irrelevant. The year that we won the Super Bowl, there were at least three teams that were better than we were but we went all the way because we got the breaks and we made things happen."

The Seahawks will be trying to make things happen Sunday in the American Football Conference championship game at the Los Angeles Coliseum before a hostile crowd of more than 90,000 and a national television audience. Kickoff time is 1 p.m., PST.

The winner will advance to Super Bowl XVIII at Tampa, Fla., on Jan. 22 against the survivor of the NFC Championship game between San Francisco and Washington earlier Sunday.

Three years ago, the Raiders went 11-5 and finished second to San Diego in the AFC West. They got to Super Bowl XV by beating Houston, Cleveland and the Chargers, and won it with ease, whipping Philadelphia 27-10.

"If you'd asked me if I would be surprised to be in the AFC game the first of the season, I would have said yes," said Seattle wide receiver Steve Largent. "But at this point, taking them one game at a time like we have, I would say no. Last week (a 27-20 upset of Miami) was no fluke. We deserved to win."

The Seahawks were 9-7 during the regular season including 38-36 and 34-21 victories over the Raiders. They earned their wild-card berth by beating the New York Giants 17-12 and the New England Patriots 24-6 in the final two games of the season.

After whipping Denver 31-7 in the AFC wild card game, Seattle disposed of the favored Dolphins last Saturday to earn its berth in the title game.

The Raiders, runaway winners of the AFC West title, were 12-4 before blasting Pittsburgh 38-10 in their first playoff action last Sunday. Seattle tied for second in the AFC West with Denver.

"We're a team that's improving and improving the most in the last three games we've played," said Largent. "We're still an unpredictable team. If we can stay in our game plan and run the ball well, we can be awfully hard to beat."

Not only did the Seahawks beat the Raiders twice this season, they've beaten them five times in the last six meetings.

Riggins to play key role in battle against San Francisco

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins' back-to-basics offense — John Riggins left, John Riggins right — is warming up for a busy afternoon Sunday when the defending Super Bowl champions play San Francisco for the National Football Conference Championship.

"We are not so bullheaded as to say we are going to run John 50 times no matter what," said assistant coach Joe Bugel. "But you know that sooner or later John is going to get the ball. The fans would kill us if he didn't."

Riggins, averaging 23 carries a game, rushed for 1,347 yards and scored a record 24 touchdowns this season. In last Sunday's playoff victory over Los Angeles he carried the ball 25 times for 119 yards, the fifth straight playoff game he has rushed for over 100 yards.

Earlier this week, Riggins predicted that he would carry the ball some 37 times.

Bugel, architect of an offensive line that includes All-Pro Joe Jacoby, Russ Grimm and Jeff Bostic, says the Redskins will run straight ahead against the 49ers, moving inside the tackles.

"That's our cup of tea. If you don't stop us there you don't stop us," he said.

Defensively, the 49ers will use both three-four and multiple four-three defenses.

"They show you a number of different looks depending on the situation," Bugel said.

Bugel, who came to the Redskins three years ago after building the Houston Oilers offensive line that carried Earl Campbell to the rushing crown, says the 49er defense is loaded with talent.

"There are some guys back there who can hurt us. (Fred) Dean, (Dwayne) Board and (Jack) Reynolds are three of the best. Their secondary is the best we have seen this year. All hard hitters and all talented athletes," Bugel said.

The Redskins, 15-2, go into Sunday's championship with a 10-game winning streak. The 49ers, who edged Detroit 24-23, last week to advance to the title game, have won four straight in raising their record to 11-6.

The first meeting between the two teams in three years, it will mark the first time that a conference championship game will feature the winners of the two preceding Super Bowls.

"This will be a classic," said Bugel. "They won a Super Bowl and then we won a Super Bowl. What more can you ask?"

The 49ers were to workout today and Saturday at the University of Maryland.

A total of more than 3 billion gallons of water — about eight times the average daily flow of the Mississippi River — is funneled daily through America's water pipes, turbines and irrigation systems. It meets the needs of homes, factories, farms and power plants.

Watson prepares to begin season

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An eager, enthusiastic Tom Watson has one more day to wait before starting his 1984 golf season in the $1 million Seiko-Tucson Match Play Championship.

"I'm very enthusiastic, really anxious to get started," Watson said Thursday when the double-barrelled match play championship — with brackets for both the regular PGA Tour players and the seniors — took a break from competition for the pro-am. The pro-am eventually was rained out.

"I'm really ready to go," Watson said, then flashed that small-boy grin.

"I said the same thing last year, but I didn't mean it."

The difference, he said, is a change in his swing, a change that he said "is exactly what I needed to do."

"I hadn't played that well for the last couple of years. I was just gutting it out. It's been frustrating," Watson said.

But it's been frustrating only by his own elevated standards. Watson, who dominated world golf for five years, has won only twice since June of 1962. Both of those victories came in the British Open.

"But I haven't won a Tour event in a long time. I've had a real long dry spell," Watson said.

"I've made a change I believe will help. I've made a change in my swing that I think is very important."

"It involves pitching and chipping. I wasn't staying down through the ball. I haven't changed my backswing, but I've changed my follow-through, so that I'm keeping the clubhead on the ball longer."

"It's worked like a charm so far. I'm anxious to put it to the test."

Watson stopped off in Dallas en route to Tucson for a visit and practice session with his longtime friend and mentor Byron Nelson.

"Byron was real excited about the change. He wanted me to call and tell him how it worked after I got it in play," Watson said.

That will not be until Satur-

Of open beaches law

AG accused of selective enforcement

AUSTIN (AP) — The state won the first showdown in its effort to prevent the rebuilding of beach houses on western Galveston Island damaged by Hurricane Alicia and left on public beaches because the storm shifted landmarks.

State District Judge Harley Clark on Thursday issued a temporary injunction that prevents Robert Matcha from rebuilding his storm-damaged beach house until the case can be considered by a jury.

Clark approved the state's concept of a "rolling easement," and that ruling will affect other Galveston beachfront home owners whose homes were damaged by Alicia.

State law identifies everything between the median low tide mark on Gulf of Mexico beaches and the vegetation line as public beach. Hurricane Alicia changed the vegetation line and left some of the damaged beach homes on what the state contends is public beach.

Matcha, a University of Houston chemistry professor, was the first homeowner to go to court. He had no comment after the ruling.

West Galveston Island residents have accused Attorney General Jim Mattox of a "selective enforcement scheme" in not allowing some home owners to rebuild hurricane damages houses.

The accusation came in the testimony of B.F. Clifton, Houston builder who was one of the last witnesses in a two-day hearing over enforcement of the Texas Open Beaches Act.

Clifton presented a series of color photographs and identified them as showing the Flagship Hotel and Balinese Room in Galveston and of hotels and condominiums in Corpus Christi and South Padre Island — all inside the vegetation line according to the Texas Open Beaches Act.

"We offer these to show the selective enforcement scheme that is unconstitutional because it is against the small property owner and favored the large commercial firms," said Rice Aston, chief attorney for Matcha.

Clifton said he was one of the 82 plaintiffs that have filed a suit in Galveston seeking an injunction against Mattox's open beach policy.

Mattox has filed civil suits against about 15 West Galveston property owners saying their damaged houses and other structures are blocking public access to the beach because Hurricane Alicia shifted landmarks.

Matcha contended the line of vegetation which marks the inland boundary of the public beach, will shift back seaward as winds and waves rebuild the storm-eroded beach.

David Feinman, Galveston builder and developer and member of the Galveston Planning Commission, testified he had built more than 1,000 beach houses on West Galveston Island.

Feinman said Hurricane Carla in 1961 pushed the vegetation line back at least 100 feet further inland than Alicia.

"Before Alicia, this vegetation line returned basically to its original position when Carla hit," Feinman said.

Feinman said he has taken readings with a surveyor's level along the beach near Matcha's house that show the elevation of the sand just above the high tide mark has risen 3 to 4 feet since Alicia.

He said there is a strip of beach from 125 to 350 feet between the shore line and the property lines of lots owned by Matcha and others that is available for public use.

Earlier Matcha testified that he thought Mattox is following a "disastrous course" in trying to clear damaged homes from public beaches.

Mattox rules against open container bans

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox's decision that local governments cannot ban drinking alcoholic beverages in motor vehicles could help spark approval of a statewide open container ban, according to ban supporters.

"We know these measures are right and will save lives. Eventually, the powers-that-be will see that also," said Sally Madalin of the Corpus Christi chapter of Remove Intoxicated Drivers.

Sen. Bill Sarpalio, D-Amarillo and an open container ban proponent, said the Mattox opinion makes it clear that the Legislature must act.

"You've got to have a law that is equal to all the people throughout the state and not just one that varies from city to city and county to county," he said.

"There are a lot of people who do not support a person who is drinking and driving. They would like to see it stopped. The Legislature failed to address the issue so they tried to address it on a local level. Now that has been ruled unconstitutional," said Sarpalio.

The 1983 Legislature, despite impassioned pleas from relatives of people killed by drunk drivers, did not approve an open container ban.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock and an outspoken opponent of an open container ban, said he'll still fight against it.

"The problem is people being drunk in automobiles, not necessarily drinking in automobiles," he said Thursday. "My point is that officers today have a lot of things to be looking for already. Banning open containers would be one more thing."

Mrs. Madalin and other Nueces County residents asked their county commissioners to enact an open container ban. The county asked for an attorney general's opinion.

That opinion said state's Alcoholic Beverage Code is the only place where the "manufacture, sale, distribution, transportation and possession of alcoholic beverages" can be regulated.

Jerry Wooley, a spokesman for Mattox, said the opinion does not strike down existing local open container bans, but could be ammunition for defendants who fight the ordinances.

"It does allow a citizen to have a little bit more rights on their side if they want to challenge a city or county ordinance concerning open container laws," he said.

Mrs. Madalin wants the next battleground to be a special session of the Legislature, expected to be called this year.

"I think the statewide law is the best, but we were acting locally because there is going to be such a long time before the next session of the Legislature," said Mrs.

Madalin, whose 11-year-old son Robert was killed in front of their home in 1974.

She said the driver had been drinking in his car.

The Mattox decision leaves questions in cities — about 20, according to Sarpalio — with open container bans.

In Midland, City Attorney Joe Nuesse said he would recommend the city keep its ordinance on the books and let it be tested in court.

"It's pretty frustrating at times trying to solve local problems when the Legislature says all regulations in that area are given to the state, and cities have no authority to regulate it at all," Nuesse said, adding that the Midland law has not been vigorously enforced.

Hair-raising experience

Associated Press correspondents lost in the air

EDITOR'S NOTE — It is often said that journalists meet such interesting people in their pursuit of the news. But it isn't often remarked that they also run into unexpected, hair-raising experiences, as two Associated Press correspondents did recently in Central America. One of them wrote about it after reaching home base home safe and sound, with notes on the interesting people encountered: an unflappable airplane pilot and a helpful of potentially hostile Nicaraguans.

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER, Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The last day of the year started out badly and went straight downhill — literally. Associated Press Photographer Jeff Robbins and I had chartered a plane from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, to the Miskito Indian refugee camps in the remote northeastern corner of the country near the Nicaraguan border to report on the refugees there.

The first day the flight was scrubbed because of weather. Saturday, Dec. 31, broke clear and windy but the plane they had waiting for us had no brakes. The airport crew pounded on the wheels with a block of wood but that didn't help.

It was an omen we should have heeded. They rolled out another plane, which had brakes, and off we went into the blue, soon-to-be-wild, yonder.

The weather worsened fast and it wasn't long before the pilot admitted he was lost.

We could not see the ground or 50 feet in any direction because of the clouds. That part of Honduras is bush-pilot country, where there are few settlements and where the dirt landing strips have no radios or other aids and often lack wind socks.

After three hours of this we hit a break in the clouds and eventually spotted a strip near what appeared to be an encampment.

We landed and the pilot and I trudged toward the settlement. Jeff stayed with the plane.

Something felt wrong. We found out what it was when we rounded a curve in the road and saw three empty vehicles with registration plates that said "Nicaragua."

We had accidentally crossed into Nicaragua, with whom Honduras is on the brink of war.

From the clouds the heavily fortified Coco River area, which forms part of the border, was invisible.

The settlement appeared to be a military base but seemed empty. There was a twilight-zone stillness about the place.

A jeep approached, the pilot and I ducked and it passed. We beat it back to the plane, took off apparently undetected and hurtled 15 to 20 miles back toward the Honduran border hoping against hope the boys on the ground were as heedless as they had been an hour earlier.

Fuel was low so we decided to head for Puerto Lempira on the Atlantic coast. The weather got so bad we couldn't find it and had long ago given up finding the village of Mocoron, our original destination in Honduras.

The pilot said he was heading back to Tegucigalpa. "Do we have enough fuel?" we asked.

"No," he said. "Not even close. Are you guys journalists? Well, hide those cameras and keep your mouths shut, I think I know where we can get some." He said the strip was owned by the "contras," American-backed rebels who operate out of Honduras in their battle to topple Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

They sold us the gas. Uniformed troops, not Hondurans, it appeared, were everywhere and two non-Latin-looking chaps gave us the hairy eyeball from a distance.

The strip, said our pilot, was being enlarged to take C-130 transport planes.

One got the impression the pilot had been there before. There is a Spanish saying to the effect that "a closed mouth gathers no flies," and these days that goes double for Honduras.

We took off again and the day got interesting.

We hit turbulence the pilot (he said later) had never before experienced and the single-engine plane took a sudden 500-foot drop and nosed into a 2,000-foot dive. Jeff's cameras ricocheted off the ceiling and walls of the plunging plane, slamming us both hard in the head and somehow missing the pilot, a highly skilled fellow who pulled us out of it none to soon.

The pilot later said he really thought the plane would come apart in the dive. We reached Tegucigalpa with one tank on empty and the other showing an eighth full.

All in all it was not a good day but not a bad one considering the alternatives.

We were told the weather would stay bad for three to four days, possibly longer, and we had other story commitments.

We managed to gather our gear together in the capital fast enough to make the evening SAHSA — a Honduran commercial airline — flight back to San Jose, Costa Rica.

There is a local joke that SAHSA stands for "Stay At Home, Stay Alive."

But on New Year's Eve it looked pretty good.

Stockbroker named in SEC investigation

DALLAS (AP) — Billy Bob Harris, a folksy, drawing stockbroker accused of profiting from insider stock tips provided by Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer, has kept thousands of radio listeners and TV viewers up on the latest ups and downs shaking Wall Street.

Until this week, the unconventional Harris, 44, has been reporting twice a week to viewers on WFAA-TV.

He also regularly reads market reports on radio station KVIL in Dallas and since 1963, he's been a broker with A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc., a St. Louis-based company. Officials there say he is one of their top men and they plan to keep him.

"He's always been very outgoing," said KVIL program manager Ron Chapman. "He doesn't wear three-piece suits."

For now, Harris' early evening appearances on Channel 8 have been cancelled, but the radio station says it will keep him on.

Harris has been accused by the Securities Exchange Commission of using insider tips Thayer gave him while on the boards of the LTV Corp., Allied Corp. and Anheuser-Busch, in 1981 and 1982.

Thayer submitted his resignation to the Pentagon Wednesday, effective Jan. 12. Eight others, including Harris and companion Julie Williams, have been named in the SEC's civil charges.

Both Harris and Thayer have denied any wrongdoing. "I did not trade on inside information... Paul Thayer is a friend of mine. I guess I've known him 15 years..." Harris told the Dallas Morning News.

"The other people are clients of mine, and Julie Williams is a special friend of mine. The other people's accounts I've handled for a long time, and helped them with their investments, as I have a lot of other people... I hate this for everybody involved," Harris said.

"I hate it for Mr. Thayer... He is a great American and wouldn't do something like this."

Last Friday night, Harris used his TV spot to disclose that he had taken a lie-detector test that he hoped would prove he had not received inside information.

WFAA-TV has suspended Harris from his twice weekly appearances, but KVIL, however, said it was standing by him, as did his employer.

"We will not take any action against Mr. Harris based upon news reports," said A.G. Edwards attorney Stephen Sneeringer. "We will continue to keep Mr. Harris in our employ."

Harris did not return telephone calls to his office Thursday and his home telephone number was busy all evening.

Widely known in Dallas social circles, the athletic-looking Harris counts among his friends football, rodeo and country music stars, including Wayne Newton, Kenny Rogers and Don Meredith.

"He's a high-profile, colorful guy," Jim Sale, a broker with Weber Sale & Associates in Dallas told the Dallas Times Herald. "He always had important people as friends, entertaining, interesting people."

Harris' image as an eligible bachelor has been widely chronicled. For example, he was featured in the 1980 book "Real Men: Sex and Style in an Uncertain Age."

Early in his career, Harris was a roommate of Craig Morton, former quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys and now coach of the Denver Gold, a United States Football League franchise.

Harris is active in the fashionable Lovers Lane United Methodist Church, where he serves as an usher, and is involved in civic charities, Sale said.

"I've never known anybody to say anything bad about him," Sale said.

One official with another securities firm said Harris is known as an "aggressive and successful salesman" who prefers individual to institutional accounts.

"He does business with his buddies and their friends and relatives," said the associate, who asked not to be identified.

The SEC alleges Harris made $178,877 profits as a result of tips from Thayer. Ms. Lewis reportedly gained $18,914.

The SEC complaint said Harris and Ms. Williams, a 26-year-old aerobic dance instructor, have maintained a "close personal relationship."

"So what?" said attorney Joel Held, who represents five of the defendants. "They're both single."

The Newspaper BIBLE

THEY SPOKE LANGUAGES THEY HAD NEVER HEARD!

Seven weeks had now gone by since Jesus' death and resurrection, and the Day of Pentecost arrived. As the believers met together that day, suddenly there was a sound like the roaring of a mighty windstorm in the skies above them and it filled the house where they were meeting. Then, what looked like flames or tongues of fire appeared and settled on their heads. And everyone present was filled with the Holy Spirit and began speaking in languages they didn't know, for the Holy Spirit gave them this ability.

Many godly Jews were in Jerusalem that day for the religious celebrations, having arrived from many nations. And when they heard the roaring in the sky above the house, crowds came running to see what it was all about, and were stunned to hear their own languages being spoken by the disciples.

"How can this be?" they exclaimed. "For these men are all from Galilee, and yet we hear them speaking all the native languages of the lands where we were born! Here we are—Parthians, Medes, Elamites, men from Mesopotamia, Judea, Cappadocia, Pontus, Asia, Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt, the Cyrene language areas of Libya, visitors from Rome—both Jews and Jewish converts—Cretans, and Arabians. And we hear these men telling in our own languages about the mighty miracles of God!"

They stood there amazed and perplexed. "What can this mean?" they asked each other. But others in the crowd were mocking "They're drunk, that's all!" they said. Acts 2:1-13

South of the Border

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An English-language newspaper here said Thursday that the Rev. Jesse Jackson's success in obtaining the release of U.S. Navy Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. from Syrian captivity "breathed life into a presidential campaign that, before Jackson's entry, promised to set a new record for dullness."

The editorial in The News said, "President Reagan had no choice but to congratulate Jesse Jackson and welcome Airman Goodman, and undoubtedly he is sincerely happy at the outcome, as are principal Democratic candidates Glenn and Mondale. But in the back of the minds of all three must be the nagging thought, 'Why couldn't I have done it?'"

"Actually, it's doubtful they could have. A black prisoner of war and a black candidate trying to free him presented a unique scenario, and (Syrian President Hafez) Assad played it beautifully for all it was worth," the editorial said.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Resort hotels registered a 95 percent occupancy rate in December, slightly less than had been expected, the business daily El Financiero reported Thursday.

The newspaper said the Mexican Hotel and Motel Association blamed the falloff on bad weather in the United States, which forced some tourists to cancel their vacation plans. The majority of the tourists registered were foreigners, it said.

Ann Landers

Favor cost a young life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this letter. I hope the individual for whom it is intended will see it and learn something.

Dear Generous Person: Thank you for what you did last week when you stopped at a convenience store. A young man approached you and asked if you would make a purchase for him. He wanted two six-packs of beer.

Never mind that he was underage and already had been refused by the manager. And don't let the fact that he was visibly intoxicated bother you. Being a good-hearted soul, you agreed to make the purchase. I'm sure you felt pretty good about doing such a kind deed.

You, Generous Person, helped kill my brother. That nice-looking kid you bought the beer for opened a six-pack and started to drink as soon as he got into his car.

The manager of the store called the police when he saw you give the young fellow the beer and take money from him.

The manager also took down the number of the boy's license plate. But the police got there too late.

Three miles from the store where you bought beer for that nice-looking kid, he passed a car on a hill and a truck hit him head-on, on the other side of the incline.

David was a terrific guy and a fine athlete. He had a lot of friends. The coach at school said David had a great future. Now he's dead.

Too bad you weren't there when the police came to the house and told Mom and Dad and me about the accident. You would have been mighty proud of yourself for having played such an important part in the whole thing.

And it's also too bad the manager of the store didn't get your license number when he got David's. You could have been charged.

Maybe next time a kid asks you to buy beer for him you will remember that you did it once and it cost a young man his life. You also left wounds in the hearts of his parents and sister that will never heal.—Grieving In The Rockies

DEAR SISTER OF DAVID: Thank you for a moving letter. What you have written is sure to make an impression on those who have bought beer for underage youths. It may also prevent others from doing so in the future. My condolences to you and your parents.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We don't want to start another war between the states, but we just moved down here from the north a few months ago and everyone pronounces the name of this state as if it were spelled with an "A" at the end. (Missour-a).

All the TV announcers and the folks on the radio say Missouri, and so do the congressmen. Straighten them out, will you, Ann?—Anonymous in Missouri

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Sorry, three dictionaries say it's either way, but "Mazura" is preferred. So let the townsfolk win.

Another beaut is Louisville. The natives pronounce it Lu-ivull. Anyone who says Looieville is considered a hick.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What to Expect," will prepare you for better or worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11998, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—On January 1, the bills approved during the legislative session last spring became law, and for most Texans, the dramatic change is in the DWI laws.

The crackdown on drunk drivers was among the most emotional of legislative issues, and proponents of DWI reform got almost everything they wanted out of the Legislature.

Although lawmakers resisted passing the "Open Containers Bill," which would make it illegal for anyone in the vehicle to have an open beer can or such, the following changes were approved, effective Jan. 1, 1984:

- Mandatory jail time for repeat offenders: first offenders may still get probation, but a second offense within 10 years requires a minimum of 72 hours in jail, and a third offense carries a 10-day jail minimum.
- All convictions are final: all convictions will become part of the defendant's record, and not erased after probation is completed, as in the past.
- Felony conviction: A third offense can be filed as a felony, with a maximum jail sentence of five years, and a fine from $500 to $5,000.
- Increased penalties: fines of first offenders will range from $100 to $2,000, compared to the old range of $50 to $500.

Videotaping Suspects

—Videotaping DWI suspects: counties with at least 25,000 population are required to buy videotaping equipment to record the actions of DWI suspects, as they are booked into jail, for use in court.

—Refusing breath tests: any suspect who refuses to take a breath test faces a 90-day automatic license suspension, even if later acquitted.

—Mandatory specimen-taking: officers are required to take a specimen of the DWI suspect's blood, breath or urine in alcohol-related traffic accidents where a person has died or likely will die.

—Penalty for lending car: any person who knowingly lends a motor vehicle to a person whose license has been suspended for a DWI-related offense.

—Forfeiture of vehicle: a county may seize and sell the vehicle upon conviction of a fourth DWI offense.

Senate Redistricting

The long, drawn-out struggle to redraw and approve new voting boundaries for Texas senatorial districts came to a close last week when a three-judge federal panel approved the plan passed by the Legislature last spring.

The plan is final until lawmakers must redistrict again in 1990.

Republicans and Mexican-American groups had opposed the plan, but instead have decided to concentrate efforts on the still-pending Texas House and Congressional plans.

Mobil Settlement

State officials were striving last week to reconstruct the $500 million settlement of their lawsuit against Mobil Oil which was killed by the last minute intervention of the Exxon Corp.

The state seeks to find a third party to buy mineral rights on the disputed oil lease land. An anonymous third party had agreed to do that in the original settlement, but allegedly backed out when Exxon's delay destroyed the end-of-the-year tax advantages.

Senate Races

Two candidates for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by John Tower nailed another plank on their campaign platforms last week.

Democrat Bob Krueger, a former congressman and ambassador to Mexico, called for full parity for farmers and ranchers. He also called for farmers to be paid money for set-aside lands, and not paid for stored grain, as they are now.

He also urged the U.S. to buy and stockpile Mexican oil to bolster the border economy.

Republican Congressman Ron Paul of Houston, a medical doctor, advocated a return to the free-market system, including doing away with food stamps and welfare programs for the poor as well as eliminating the subsidies for giant corporations and banks.

He also said he wants to limit foreign aid to communist bloc nations.

Rate Hike Request

One week after being granted $650 million emergency rate hike, AT&T Communications asked the Public Utility Commission for a 27.8 percent increase in long distance rates.

If allowed, the increase would generate over $300 million in revenues for AT&T.

The company says it must pay most of the emergency money to Bell Telephone for use of equipment.

And $4 million

Louisiana Who's Who going to Europe for fun

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — If you want to see Louisiana's governor-elect or almost any other top politician in the state in late January, you'll have to go to Paris.

In what's being billed as the biggest political fund-raiser ever, flamboyant third-time Gov.-elect Edwin Edwards and 500 supporters, legislators and reporters are going to France with side trips to Brussels and Monte Carlo.

"We're getting so many legislators we could hold the next session over there or on the planes coming and going," said Louisiana Senate Secretary Mike Baer, one of the organizers.

Edwards hopes the trip will retire the $4.4 million debt incurred by spending close to $13 million to win the governorship for an unprecedented third time.

"I sure hope this liquidates all of it. When I take office March 12 we'd like to have the debt cleared from the books," said Edwards, a French-speaking Democrat from Louisiana's Acadiana region.

Supporters are paying $10,000 a person, or get two free tickets if they contributed $25,000 or more to the Edwards campaign and are willing to "forgive" $20,000 of the debt.

The group will depart New Orleans Jan. 19 aboard two planes — an Air France 747 and a Sabena DC-10 — and return Jan. 26.

"It's going to be a fun trip — but one that will be of great benefit to the state too. It's a social trip, a cultural trip and an economic trip," said Marion Edwards, the governor's brother and his campaign manager.

"There will be a black-tie dinner at Versailles with heralds trumpeting as the group arrives, visits to 10 of Paris' finest restaurants, a special Mass at Notre Dame Cathedral, a champagne dinner-show at the Lido and a cocktail party at the Eiffel Tower.

It won't be all play for Edwards.

"I don't know how much fun there will be for me with all the meetings scheduled with public figures and industrialists," said Edwards, who was elected in October with 63 percent of the vote. He previously was governor from 1972 to 1980.

His schedule includes meetings with the president of France and the king of Belgium and officials of the Renault Corp., which is looking at New Orleans as a possible site for a bus factory.

A gambler who often traveled to Las Vegas and Reno during his previous terms as governor, Edwards plans to take one of the side trips to spend some time at the dice tables of Monte Carlo.

Earlier this week, the governor-elect invited legislators to go along, saying they could go at cost ($2,100). In two days, 35 signed up.

Also making the trip will be the lieutenant governor, commissioner of elections, the incoming superintendent of education and U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

What about inviting outgoing Gov. Dave Treen, the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction?

"I don't know about that. I'm a little concerned about his recent remarks that he's going to become a fun guy like me. I don't want people thinking I would contribute to corrupting him," Edwards said.

Bank must make loan decisions

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The First State Bank of Odessa has until Jan. 31 to decide what loans it will buy from its failed predecessor, the National Bank of Odessa.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Alan Whitney told the Odessa American that the FDIC's three-member board of directors last week granted the bank a second extension of time for reviewing the loan portfolio of the National Bank of Odessa.

In takeovers of failed banks, the FDIC routinely grants the new bank 30 days to review its predecessor's loan portfolio.

First State was granted an additional 30 days for review, which expired in November 1983.

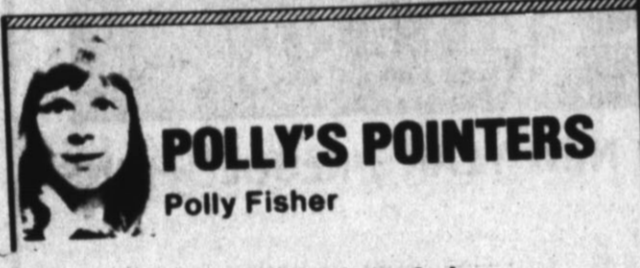

The National Bank of Odessa was 24 years old when it was declared insolvent and closed in September. At the time of closing, the bank had $86.5 million in assets and had lost more than $18 million during the first six months of 1983.

Independent Bankshares Inc., an Abilene-based holding company, assumed $76 million in deposits, $10 million in installment loans and other assets of the failed bank.

First State bank president James Atkins said that about 25 to 30 percent of the failed bank's $62 million commercial loan portfolio were bought by First State.

"We buy some back each week as we get the financial information to make decisions," Atkins said. "We will be buying up until the last of January and for some time after that."

Stuff bird safely

DEAR POLLY — I know you're not supposed to stuff a turkey until just before you cook it, but can the stuffing be prepared in advance? — JEANNE

DEAR JEANNE — Most stuffings can be prepared the night before and refrigerated until you're ready to stuff and cook the turkey, so long as they do not contain fragile ingredients that spoil easily, like eggs or turkey giblets. Stuffings made from bread crumbs or cubes, vegetables like mushrooms, celery and onions, raisins and other fruits, and even cooked sausage meat should be OK, BUT THEY MUST BE REFRIGERATED. Just before stuffing the turkey, remove the stuffing from the refrigerator, put it in the chilled bird and start roasting.

By the way, there's still time to have your last-minute turkey questions answered by calling the Butterball turkey hotline. Dial toll-free 1-800-323-4848. Home economists are standing by Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., through Dec. 24 to answer your questions about buying, storing and preparing the holiday bird. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When potting houseplants, I place a folded piece of paper toweling, tissue or scrap of cloth in the bottom of the pot to cover the drain hole in the bottom. This keeps dirt from leaking through into the saucer below. If your planter does not have a drain hole, put a tablespoon or two (depending on the size of the pot) of charcoal in the bottom before adding the dirt. This provides drainage and will keep the soil from becoming sour. — DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY — I wash muskmelons, then cut them into eighths, peel each section and place the peeled melon pieces in a covered bowl in the refrigerator. They keep well this way and the melon is cut into a handy size for healthful snacking. — MRS. F.E.V.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fertility drugs

DEAR DR. LAMB — I understand that fertility drugs are frequently prescribed for women who have difficulty having babies. I read that many women who take these wind up with twins or triplets. Are the drugs the same as the hormone pills that are taken during menopause?

If a woman in her 50s gets married and takes fertility drugs, can she bear children? I am talking about a healthy woman who had normal menstrual periods prior to several tragedies piled on top of many problems. Her menstrual periods resumed once every three months, then once a month, but now she has none at all. The woman is in a stressful environment and still grieves over the loss of her loved ones.

What is the oldest age at which a woman has had a child?

DEAR READER — No, the fertility pills are not the same as the hormones used for women after menopause, which are estrogens or combinations of estrogens with progesterone.

The fertility pills stimulate the ovaries to release ova. If only one ovum is released, a one-child pregnancy results. Sometimes they cause two or more ova to be released at the same time resulting in multiple births.

The ovaries tend to sputter to a stop around age 50. They don't stop suddenly, which accounts for some of the irregularity during menopause and the occasional menstrual periods some women experience.

This makes it difficult for a woman to know when she has stopped ovulating. The oldest reliable record of a woman giving birth to a child is at 57.

It is hard to know what effect stimulating the ovaries with the fertility pill on a woman in this age group would really have. It might not be wise because it may stimulate the release of ova that are not entirely healthy and it could increase the risk of having a child with a birth defect.

In any case, you will be interested in reading more about normal ovulation, discussed in The Health Letter 17-2, Female Reproductive Functions, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it, to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — As a child and as a young woman my friends and I shelled and boiled apricot seeds. Then we dried and roasted them and used them as a substitute for almonds.

Later we were told that apricot seeds were poisonous, even cancerous, so we quit. What is the truth?

DEAR READER — There is no evidence that apricot seeds cause cancer. In fact, Laetrile was extracted from apricot pits supposedly to cure cancer. But the results from studies done under controlled conditions by reputable scientists failed to demonstrate any curative powers from Laetrile.

However, apricot pits may contain cyanide and there have been reports of deaths from apricot pits on that basis. I would consider the practice you describe as dangerous and would advise anyone to stop using apricot pits in any manner. This is a good example of how natural substances can be dangerous. Just because a substance is natural does not mean it is safe.

An embrace from a self-proclaimed old pal can be as signal for you to check your wallet.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—On January 1, the bills approved during the legislative session last spring became law, and for most Texans, the dramatic change is in the DWI laws.

The crackdown on drunk drivers was among the most emotional of legislative issues, and proponents of DWI reform got almost everything they wanted out of the Legislature.

Although lawmakers resisted passing the "Open Containers Bill," which would make it illegal for anyone in the vehicle to have an open beer can or such, the following changes were approved, effective Jan. 1, 1984:

—Mandatory jail time for repeat offenders: first offenders may still get probation, but a second offense within 10 years requires a minimum of 72 hours in jail, and a third offense carries a 10-day jail minimum.

—All convictions are final: all convictions will become part of the defendant's record, and not erased after probation is completed, as in the past.

—Felony conviction: A third offense can be filed as a felony, with a maximum jail sentence of five years, and a fine from $500 to $5,000.

—Increased penalties: fines of first offenders will range from $100 to $2,000, compared to the old range of $50 to $500.

Videotaping Suspects

—Videotaping DWI suspects: counties with at least 25,000 population are required to buy videotaping equipment to record the actions of DWI suspects, as they are booked into jail, for use in court.

—Refusing breath tests: any suspect who refuses to take a breath test faces a 90-day automatic license suspension, even if later acquitted.

—Mandatory specimen-taking: officers are required to take a specimen of the DWI suspect's blood, breath or urine in alcohol-related traffic accidents where a person has died or likely will die.

—Penalty for lending car: any person who knowingly lends a motor vehicle to a person whose license has been suspended for a DWI-related offense.

—Forfeiture of vehicle: a county may seize and sell the vehicle upon conviction of a fourth DWI offense.

Senate Redistricting

The long, drawn-out struggle to redraw and approve new voting boundaries for Texas senatorial districts came to a close last week when a three-judge federal panel approved the plan passed by the Legislature last spring. The plan is final until lawmakers must redistrict again in 1990.

Republicans and Mexican-American groups had opposed the plan, but instead have decided to concentrate efforts on the still-pending Texas House and Congressional plans.

Mobil Settlement

State officials were striving last week to reconstruct the $500 million settlement of their lawsuit against Mobil Oil which was killed by the last minute intervention of the Exxon Corp.

The state seeks to find a third party to buy mineral rights on the disputed oil lease land. An anonymous third party had agreed to do that in the original settlement, but allegedly backed out when Exxon's delay destroyed the end-of-the-year tax advantages.

Senate Race

Two candidates for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by John Tower nailed another plank on their campaign platforms last week.

Democrat Bob Krueger, a former congressman and ambassador to Mexico, called for full parity for farmers and ranchers. He also called for farmers to be paid money for set-aside lands, and not paid for stored grain, as they are now.

He also urged the U.S. to buy and stockpile Mexican oil to bolster the border economy.

Republican Congressman Ron Paul of Houston, a medical doctor, advocated a return to the free-market system, including doing away with food stamps and welfare programs for the poor as well as eliminating the subsidies for giant corporations and banks.

Rate Hike Request

One week after being granted $650 million emergency rate hike, AT&T Communications asked the Public Utility Commission for a 27.8 percent increase in long distance rates.

If allowed, the increase would generate over $300 million in revenues for AT&T.

The company says it must pay most of the emergency money to Bell Telephone for use of equipment.

Louisiana Who's Who going to Europe for fun

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)

— If you want to see Louisiana's governor-elect or almost any other top politician in the state in late January, you'll have to go to Paris.

In what's being billed as the biggest political fund-raiser ever, flamboyant third-time Gov.-elect Edwin Edwards and 500 supporters, legislators and reporters are going to France with side trips to Brussels and Monte Carlo.

"We're getting so many legislators we could hold the next session over there or on the planes coming and going," said Louisiana Senate Secretary Mike Baer, one of the organizers.

Edwards hopes the trip will retire the $4.4 million debt incurred by spending close to $13 million to win the governorship for an unprecedented third time.

"I sure hope this liquidates all of it. When I take office March 12 we'd like to have the debt cleared from the books," said Edwards, a French-speaking Democrat from Louisiana's Acadiana region.

Supporters are paying $10,000 a person, or get two free tickets if they contributed $25,000 or more to the Edwards campaign and are willing to "forgive" $20,000 of the debt.

The group will depart New Orleans Jan. 19 aboard two planes — an Air France 747 and a Sabena DC-10 — and return Jan. 26.

"It's going to be a fun trip — but one that will be of great benefit to the state too. It's a social trip, a cultural trip and an economic trip," said Marion Edwards, the governor's brother and his campaign manager.

There will be a black-tie dinner at Versailles with heralds trumpeting as the group arrives, visits to 10 of Paris' finest restaurants, a special Mass at Notre Dame Cathedral, a champagne dinner-show at the Lido and a cocktail party at the Eiffel Tower.

It won't be all play for Edwards.

"I don't know how much fun there will be for me with all the meetings scheduled with public figures and industrialists," said Edwards, who was elected in October with 63 percent of the vote. He previously was governor from 1972 to 1980.

His schedule includes meetings with the president of France and the king of Belgium and officials of the Renault Corp., which is looking at New Orleans as a possible site for a bus factory.

A gambler who often traveled to Las Vegas and Reno during his previous terms as governor, Edwards plans to take one of the side trips to spend some time at the dice tables of Monte Carlo.

Earlier this week, the governor-elect invited legislators to go along, saying they could go at cost ($2,100).

In two days, 35 signed up. Also making the trip will be the lieutenant governor, commissioner of elections, the incoming superintendent of education and U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

What about inviting outgoing Gov. Dave Treen, the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction?

"I don't know about that. I'm a little concerned about his recent remarks that he's going to become a fun guy like me. I don't want people thinking I would contribute to corrupting him," Edwards said.

Bank must make loan decisions

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The First State Bank of Odessa has until Jan. 31 to decide what loans it will buy from its failed predecessor, the National Bank of Odessa.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Alan Whitney told the Odessa American that the FDIC's three-member board of directors last week granted the bank a second extension of time for reviewing the loan portfolio of the National Bank of Odessa.

In takeovers of failed banks, the FDIC routinely grants the new bank 90 days to review its predecessor's loan portfolio.

First State was granted an additional 30 days for review, which expired in November 1983.

The National Bank of Odessa was 24 years old when it was declared insolvent and closed in September. At the time of closing, the bank had $86.5 million in assets and had lost more than $18 million during the first six months of 1983.

Independent Bankshares Inc., an Abilene-based holding company, assumed $76 million in deposits, $10 million in installment loans and other assets of the failed bank.

First State bank president James Atkins said that about 25 to 30 percent of the failed bank's $62 million commercial loan portfolio were bought by First State.

"We buy some back each week as we get the financial information to make decisions," Atkins said. "We will be buying up until the last of January and for some time after that."

Stuff bird safely

DEAR POLLY — I know you're not supposed to stuff a turkey until just before you cook it, but can the stuffing be prepared in advance? — JEANNE

DEAR JEANNE — Most stuffings can be prepared the night before and refrigerated until you're ready to stuff and cook the turkey, so long as they do not contain fragile ingredients that spoil easily, like eggs or turkey giblets. Stuffings made from bread crumbs or cubes, vegetables like mushrooms, celery and onions, raisins and other fruits, and even cooked sausage meat should be OK, BUT THEY MUST BE REFRIGERATED. Just before stuffing the turkey, remove the stuffing from the refrigerator, put it in the chilled bird and start roasting.

By the way, there's still time to have your last-minute turkey questions answered by calling the Butterball turkey hotline. Dial toll-free 1-800-323-4848. Home economists are standing by Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., through Dec. 24 to answer your questions about buying, storing and preparing the holiday bird. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When potting houseplants, I place a folded piece of paper toweling, tissue or scrap of cloth in the bottom of the pot to cover the drain hole in the bottom. This keeps dirt from leaking through into the saucer below, keeping it clean. Excess water can still drain through. If your planter does not have a drain hole, put a tablespoon or two (depending on the size of the pot) of charcoal in the bottom before adding the dirt. This provides drainage and will keep the soil from becoming sour. — DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY — I wash muskmelons, then cut them into eighths, peel each section and place the peeled melon pieces in a covered bowl in the refrigerator. They keep well this way and the melon is cut into a handy size for healthful snacking. — MRS. F.E.V.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fertility drugs

DEAR DR. LAMB — I understand that fertility drugs are frequently prescribed for women who have difficulty having babies. I read that many women who take these wind up with twins or triplets. Are the drugs the same as the hormone pills that are taken during menopause?

If a woman in her 50s gets married and takes fertility drugs, can she bear children? I am talking about a healthy woman who had normal menstrual periods prior to several tragedies piled on top of many problems. Her menstrual periods resumed once every three months, then once a month, but now she has none at all. The woman is in a stressful environment and still grieves over the loss of her loved ones.

What is the oldest age at which a woman has had a child?

DEAR READER — No, the fertility pills are not the same as the hormones used for women after menopause, which are estrogens or combinations of estrogens with progesterone.

The fertility pills stimulate the ovaries to release ova. If only one ovum is released, a one-child pregnancy results. Sometimes they cause two or more ova to be released at the same time resulting in multiple births.

The ovaries tend to sputter to a stop around age 50. They don't stop suddenly, which accounts for some of the irregularity during menopause and the occasional menstrual periods some women experience.

This makes it difficult for a woman to know when she has stopped ovulating. The oldest reliable record of a woman giving birth to a child is at 57.

It is hard to know what effect stimulating the ovaries with the fertility pill on a woman in this age group would really have. It might not be wise because it may stimulate the release of ova that are not entirely healthy and it could increase the risk of having a child with a birth defect.

In any case, you will be interested in reading more about normal ovulation, discussed in The Health Letter 17-2, Female Reproductive Functions, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it, to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — As a child and as a young woman my friends and I shelled and boiled apricot seeds. Then we dried and roasted them and used them as a substitute for almonds.

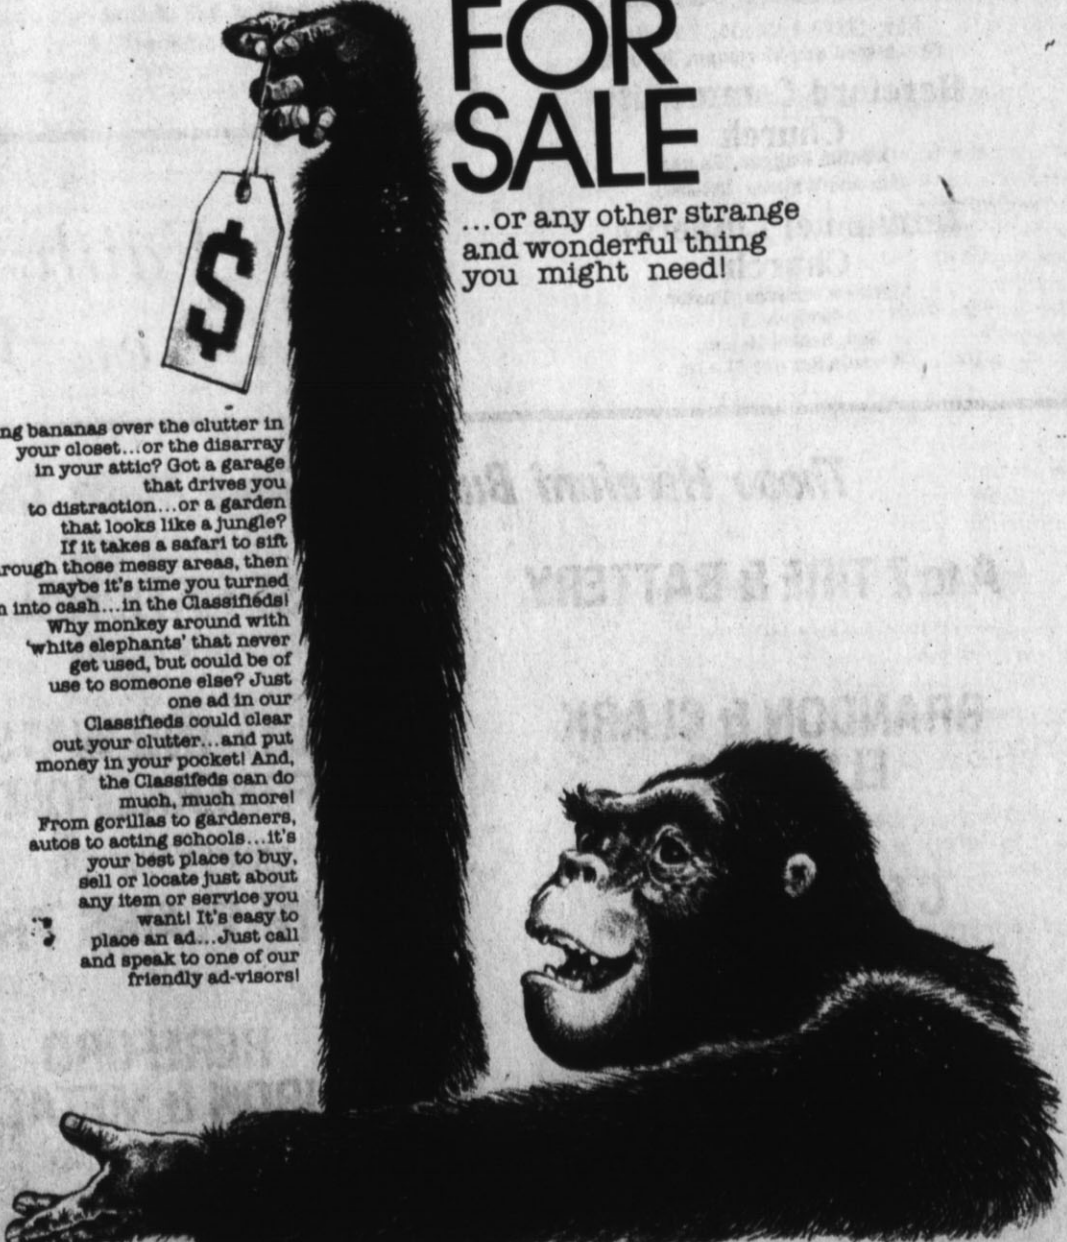

Later we were told that apricot seeds were poisonous, even cancerous, so we quit. What is the truth?

DEAR READER — There is no evidence that apricot seeds cause cancer. In fact, Laetrile was extracted from apricot pits supposedly to cure cancer. But the results from studies done under controlled conditions by reputable scientists failed to demonstrate any curative powers from Laetrile.

However, apricot pits may contain cyanide and there have been reports of deaths from apricot pits on that basis. I would consider the practice you describe as dangerous and would advise anyone to stop using apricot pits in any manner. This is a good example of how natural substances can be dangerous. Just because a substance is natural does not mean it is safe.

An embrace from a self-proclaimed old pal can be touching. It can also be a signal for you to check your wallet.

LET FAITH CONSOLIDATE YOUR NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

As the season of fun and festivity draws to a close, let us give some serious thought to a worthwhile task which most of us have undertaken rather half-heartedly at this time every year, despite our good intentions. Driven by a natural impulse to turn over a new leaf in our lives as well as on the calendar, we compile our annual list of personal reforms and even try to follow it for a few days before consigning it to limbo along with its predecessors. This year for a change, try simplifying it into one all-encompassing resolution: to attend the Church of your choice regularly throughout the coming year. If you will do so and try to live by the lessons you learn there, this will be the only New Year's resolution you'll ever need.

"Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."
— Romans 12:2

I'll turn over a new leaf.
