

14 Die in Winter-Related Accidents; Children Buried

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Rescuers dug with bulldozers and shovels today searching for three children feared trapped under a mudslide formed by one of the worst storms of the century in the San Francisco area, while new snowstorms bore down on the West.

At least 14 people died in weather-related accidents Monday.

Two feet of snow during the night on top of 8 feet already on the ground closed all major roads across the Sierra Nevada and the U.S. Forest Service triggered more than 100 intentional snowslides in hopes of reducing the danger of accidental avalanches.

The Midwest was digging out from under 16 inches of snow that brought Milwaukee to a standstill in that city's worst snowstorm since 1947. Communities in the South were toting up losses from thunderstorms, floods and tornadoes.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was expected to declare a state of emergency today in Marin County near San Francisco where 12 inches of rain in 24 hours washed fancy homes off hillsides and left millions of dollars in damage.

In Pacifica, south of San Francisco, rescuers had little hope of finding three children alive. They were trapped when a hillside collapsed and buried their home under tons of mud shortly before midnight Monday.

"I don't see how they could have survived," said Pacifica Fire Chief Cal Hinton.

Others were searching for possible victims of another mudslide in San Rafael that pushed a home from its foundation.

Winter storm warnings were posted today in the mountains of central and northern California, all of Utah, southwestern Wyoming and the Colorado Rockies.

The snow closed schools in two northern Arizona cities today and many highways were snowpacked and icy, including about 100 miles of Interstate on both sides of Flagstaff. Schools were closed in Flagstaff and Williams.

Across the country Monday, winds were fierce.

Winds reached 90 mph at the top of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. building in Cleveland, 85 mph on a mountain ridge at Park City ski resort west of Salt Lake City and 60 mph in parts of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Thousands of people were forced from their homes and officials closed schools and highways as record-breaking rain pelted northern California.

A six-car Amtrak passenger train derailed in heavy rain at San Pablo, Calif., north of Oakland, injuring 13 people, none seriously. Rescuers had to use rowboats and helicopters to reach the train, since roads in the area were under up to five feet of water, police said. Skiers were stranded in Sierra Nevada lodges where up to 7 feet of snow accumulated.

In Seattle, where snow is rare, the steepest streets were closed Monday because of 2 inches of snow and a sheet of ice.

Three tornadoes touched down Monday in North Carolina and another hit Canton, Ga., destroying an airplane hangar.

At least eight tornadoes touched down in central and northern Alabama and rivers were running above flood level Monday in parts of Georgia, South Carolina and Kentucky.

Some parts of New York state were flooded near Lake Erie, which was pushed above flood stage by high winds during an ice storm Monday.

Roads in eastern and central New York were strewn with dented and abandoned cars Monday morning as freezing rain frosted roads.

At least five people died in storm-related incidents in California, authorities said, including a person who was killed when a house slid off its foundation in Tiburon.

Carey E. Anderson, 61, of Homedale, Idaho was found frozen near his pickup. Five Wisconsin men were reported to have collapsed and died during or after shoveling snow.

Homes were abandoned in wealthy parts of northern California, and mud and water churned at 30 mph through the streets of San Rafael.

National Guardsmen rescued stranded motorists and boats were used to reach 500 people in Vallejo, where the Lake Chabot reservoir rose menacingly within 2 feet of the rim.

"I'm from Chicago," Susan Rabin said as she phoned the Highway Patrol from a San Francisco bar to see whether she could get home to Mill Valley. "I moved to California for the weather."

Reagan Names Clark Secretary of State

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opting for a national security adviser with more authority than he gave deposed Richard V. Allen, is turning to a long-time confidante with little experience in foreign affairs.

The president carried out the first major personnel shakeup of his administration

Monday by naming Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark Jr. to replace Allen, whose resignation was "mutually agreed upon."

At the same time, Reagan said Clark, 50, would be given daily access to the Oval Office, something Allen lacked.

Allen had reported to Reagan through presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, who coordinates domestic and foreign policy.

Clark, a former California Supreme Court justice, was Reagan's chief of staff when Reagan was governor of California and is one of the most senior members of the president's inner circle. He planned to begin work today in the same White House basement office Allen used.

The president, in accepting Allen's resignation, said no evidence of wrongdoing had been found in Justice Department and White House probes of the former national security adviser's conduct.

"It's rather unusual that someone who had been the subject of a lot of rumors and allegations over a long period of time could go through a rigorous and meticulous examination and be substan-

Wind A Factor

Wind is believed to be a major factor in the cause of an accident Sunday afternoon which bashed up this 1979 Fiat. According to the Texas Department of Public Safety, Dan C. Trevino was traveling east on Austin Road (FM 1359) when he lost control and hit a tree off the road on the roadside about 1½ miles east of FM 2943. Trevino and a passenger, Richard Allen Villarreal, 16, Hereford, were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital. Villarreal was treated and released Sunday and Trevino was released today. Both suffered back injuries. (Brand Photo by Kelly Cherry)

Appeals Court Upholds Local Court Decisions

Four cases appealed from the 222nd District Court of Deaf Smith County have been affirmed by the Court of Appeals, 7th Supreme Judicial District, Amarillo.

District Judge Wesley Gulley and Criminal DA Roland Saul were notified last week that the cases had been upheld by the Court of Appeals.

The cases included Zulema Garcia vs. The State of Texas; American Home Assurance Co. vs. Noe Coronado; St. Paul Mercury Insurance Co., et al vs. Tri-State Cattle Feeders; Ranger Lloyds, A Lloyds Insurance Co., vs. Ganado, Ltd.

In the Garcia case, the district court jury had returned verdicts of prison terms ranging from two to seven years and fines totalling $35,754 for 14 convictions of unauthorized possession of food stamps, engaging in organized criminal activity, and gampering with a governmental record. The trial court ordered total term of imprisonment at 12 years.

The appellant sought two grounds of error. She contended that the State failed to prove her guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, and that certain testimony on cross examination amounted to a withdrawal of her plea of guilty. The court overruled the points and affirmed the judgment.

Two of the cases involved suits on insurance policies issued to Tri-State Cattle Feeders and to Southwest Feed Yards. The insurance companies had appealed judgments by district court juries which were favorable to Tri-State and to Ganado, Ltd., a customer of Southwest Feed Yard.

In both opinions written by the justices, it was pointed out that the "ultimate issues" were whether a theft of cattle occurred and whether the feed yards were barred from recovery by their failure to comply with the policy provisions on notice and proof of loss.

Both cases involved activities by cattle buyers. In one case, the buyer was found guilty of theft and placed on 10-year probation in 1977. In the other case, involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were conducted against the cattle buyer. The feed yards contended that cattle were obtained by deception or under false pretext.

District court juries found in favor of the feed yards in both cases. The Court of Appeals upheld the judgments. (See COURT, Page 2)

About Sanctions on Russia

Schmidt Complains That Allies Weren't Consulted

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt complained today that the United States did not consult with its European allies before announcing sanctions against the Soviet Union as a result of the Polish crisis.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Schmidt raised the point repeatedly during a breakfast with them in advance of his meeting with President Reagan.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Schmidt made the "major point that he feels he has not been consulted."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the West German leader cited the Kennedy administration's handling of the Cuban missile crisis in the 1960's "where the consultation was excellent and there was uniform support."

"In this case, there was no consultation and lack of uniformity in support," Leahy added.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said Schmidt "repeated several times during the meeting that he was not consulted in advance and was expected to fall in."

Schmidt has disputed Reagan's assertion that Moscow instigated the Dec. 13 decree of martial law in Poland and has shown no willingness to join the United States in imposing economic sanctions against Moscow.

Likewise, very few of the 13 member nations of NATO have expressed much enthusiasm for the American action.

U.S. officials cautioned against expecting any agreement from today's meeting, but made it clear that Washington is counting on its allies for support. Said one senior official: "If we're not to receive support from our allies for the steps we've taken, obviously this would be a serious matter insofar as this alliance of ours is concerned. There's no question about that. I don't think that's what's going to happen."

Haig will join other NATO ministers in Brussels next Monday to discuss the Polish crisis and assess the possibility of developing an alliance-wide consensus.

The U.S. official, who briefed reporters on the understanding he would not be identified by name, said Washington hoped for "parallel action from our allies where possible" and "complementary steps" in other instances.

"But under any circumstances," the official stressed, "we believe our allies should not undercut the steps we have taken against the Soviet Union."

Looming in the background of the Reagan-Schmidt talks is the threat of a widening NATO rift over the sanctions.

"I think both we and the Germans are going to come into this meeting fully conscious of the fact that we have got to be careful not to let what has been an issue created in Poland by Poles (See SCHMIDT, Page 2)

Officials Monitor Fumes from Fire

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — State and county health officials have joined the efforts of a chemical company in monitoring the air above Galveston Island for possible toxic fumes from a barge that has been burning since Sunday in Galveston Bay.

"The problem is that this is not a thing that really can be handled in a routine manner and most of our hardware is designed for less exotic measurements," said Dr. Ed Ibert, director of the Galveston County Health District.

Ibert said his officers, the state health department and the Texas Air Control Board have been taking air and water samples since Monday and found no immediate health hazard.

He said there have been some problems getting air samples from the fire because of rapidly rising smoke. Water samples were taken by officials manning boats near the barge because of concern that poison might leak from the barge and endanger oyster beds in the west end of the bay, he said.

"We have no indication of a truly dangerous situation except the fire and possibility of an explosion in the immediate vicinity of the barge," Ibert said.

The barge, now lying aground in 10 feet of water and anchored to prevent drifting, carried 400,000 gallons of the toxic and corrosive chemical acrylonitrile, used to make the synthetic fiber Acrulon. The chemical produces poisonous hydrogen cyanide when it burns.

Monsanto Co., owner of the cargo, said tests showed no cyanide or acrylonitrile in the air above Galveston or in the air directly in the column of smoke coming from the barge.

The Coast Guard, monitoring the fire from a vessel nearby, has projected the fire could burn itself out within 24 hours, but officials said the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway might not reopen before Saturday.

"An hour after it happened there was a big bottleneck" on the inland waterway which skirts 1,300 miles of the Gulf Coast from Texas to Florida, said Coast Guard CWO Bill Miller said.

He said tugboat captains who are not licensed to operate in the open Gulf of Mexico cannot take their shipments of grain, sulfur and other cargo around the burning barge but must line up and wait.

The barge was being pushed by a tugboat in a heavy fog Sunday when it smashed into a Southern Pacific railroad drawbridge that had not been raised. An accompanying barge also carrying acrylonitrile was not damaged. (See FUMES, Page 2)

A Cold Shower

A small leak in the city water tower on Moreman between Northwest Drive and Aspen street enlarged itself yesterday. The leak was first noticed last month but a crew has been unavailable to work on it. City Manager Dudley Bayne said that the tank is being drained, and that inspectors would be here tomorrow to check the damage. Bayne added that no significant loss in water pressure would result since the leak occurred in winter, a low-usage period. (Brand Photo by Kelly Cherry.)

Earthquake Hits Fort Stockton

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — An earthquake with a magnitude of 3.8 on the Richter scale was felt in the Fort Stockton area but no damage or injuries were reported, says the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

The earthquake occurred at 10:56 a.m. Monday, said geophysicist Joe Minsch of the NEIS, which is operated by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The agency received reports of the earthquake being felt as far as 20 miles to the north of Fort Stockton and 20 miles to the south, he said in a telephone interview.

NEIS files show that an earthquake with a magnitude of 3.7 occurred in 1974 in the Fort Stockton area, but the agency received no reports of it being felt by residents, the geophysicist said.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. An earthquake of 2 is the smallest normally felt by humans. A quake of magnitude 3.5 can cause slight damage.

Family Of Test-tube Baby Seeks Privacy

BOSTON (AP) — A week old and an ounce heavier than at birth, Elizabeth Jordan Carr, the first test-tube baby born in the United States, spent her first day at home today with parents determined to protect her privacy.

"They don't want the child to have any notoriety," Karen Corrigan, a spokeswoman for Norfolk (Va.) General Hospital where Elizabeth was born, said Monday following the Carrs' arrival in Boston.

After a brief meeting with reporters at Logan International Airport, Judy and Roger J. Carr Jr. left for Westminister, their central Massachusetts home 50 miles northwest of Boston.

"We're glad to be back and now we just want to go home and enjoy our baby in privacy," said Carr, 30, a mechanical engineer at General Electric in Fitchburg. Mrs. Carr, 28, is a former teacher at the private Applewild School in Fitchburg.

The baby snoozed serenely Monday through her first airplane ride to a soggy New England homecoming.

No One Showed Up

HOUMA, La. (AP) — The police department's brand-new 'voluntary' system for criminal background checks on Oil Patch job applicants got under way Monday — but without any volunteers.

"It is going to take a while for it to be kicked off right," said Police Chief Charles Farmer. "It might take a couple of weeks."

Instead of imposing the background check by law — which the courts have ruled unconstitutional — the present system would have the employers require the crime check before hiring a new worker.

Farmer said the office for processing job applicants was opened on schedule and, "We are ready to go."

Efforts to keep tabs on transient laborers in the booming oil fields have been attempted for several years but with little success. Police say men on the run head for the Oil Patch from all over the nation because it's easy to find jobs, with few questions asked.

In the Houma system, the employer could insist that a job applicant undergo the police check before being hired.

Fire Chief Says Arrest Political

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's fire chief, acquitted in less than four minutes of a public intoxication charge, says his trial was political and a waste of money.

A six-member municipal court jury found V.E. Rogers innocent Monday of a charge stemming from an Oct. 12 incident in which a patrolman found Rogers' pickup parked, engine running, in the entrance ramp of a freeway.

Jury foreman Connie Cook, 34, said the jury agreed almost instantly that the prosecution had not proved Rogers was drunk. Rogers said he was really arrested because he was posting campaign signs for former Mayor Jim McConn.

Rogers paid a $50 fine after pleading guilty to a charge of leaving his pickup truck running and prosecutors agreed to drop charges that he illegally posted the signs.

Officer C.W. Trebesh said he saw Rogers and District Fire Chief Jerry E. Walker about 20 or 25 yards from the truck.

During an ensuing conversation, the chief's speech was, "somewhat slurred, hard to understand," Trebesh said. The officer said he arrested Rogers after determining that he was drunk enough to be dangerous to himself or to others.

A search of the truck turned up 12 cans of beer, a half bottle of whiskey and what appeared to be two mixed drinks, Trebesh said.

Defense Motions To Be Heard In Pruett Case

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Hinds County Circuit Judge William Coleman will hear defense motions Wednesday to postpone and relocate the capital murder case of Marion Albert Pruett.

Defense attorney Bill Kirksey said Monday that he and another attorney had "suggested from the start" that Pruett consider a change of venue for the trial, and that Pruett had finally agreed.

Kirksey filed motions Monday asking the court to move the trial because of extensive pretrial publicity about the case and asking for a delay because Pruett's other court-appointed attorney, Alvin Binder, is working on the celebrated Wayne Williams murder trial underway in Atlanta.

Fire Extinguished At Hobby Airport

HOUSTON (AP) — A welding torch spark ignited insulation in a boiler room, setting off a two-alarm blaze at William P. Hobby Airport early Tuesday.

Heavy, black smoke filled the airport terminal, forcing the evacuation of some employees, city Aviation Department spokesman Charlotte Askins said. No one was injured in the blaze.

The fire, which broke out at 4:30 a.m., caused some slight delays in airport operations but no flight diversions were necessary, Ms. Askins said.

Martial Law Relaxed In 10 Polish Provinces

By The Associated Press

Radio Warsaw says Poland's military regime eased martial law in 10 of the 49 provinces and schools and factories reopened across the nation. But teachers were warned not to talk politics and workers were reported wearing black armbands in protest against the repression of the independent labor movement.

The Polish government radio announced that many plants reopened Monday after the New Year's holiday and functioned normally for the first time since martial law was declared Dec. 13. It said employees of most departments were back on the job at the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk, the biggest industrial plant on the Baltic coast and the birthplace of the Solidarity labor federation, after two unsuccessful attempts to reopen the yard.

Radio Warsaw said a "partial lifting" of martial law restrictions was ordered in 10 provinces, including four along the Soviet and Czechoslovak borders and three near Warsaw, because "public order" had improved there. It said telephone and telex communications would be restored in those provinces today.

Elementary and high schools reopened, but all universities remained closed, apparently because authorities feared students sympathetic to Solidarity would start new protests. The government warned high school teachers not to get into debates with the students about martial law.

The official radio claimed the Szczecin shipyard, another major Baltic coast industry that had been closed for two weeks, operated normally Monday, and there was a "good attendance" of Tychy autoworkers in Katowice.

But there was no mention of work at more than 12 other factories that Solidarity sources outside Poland claimed were shut because of resistance to martial law.

In a censored dispatch from Warsaw received Monday, Associated Press correspondent Thomas W. Netter reported that steep price increases for food, tighter meat rations and an uncertain mood among the workers made it unlikely that martial law would be lifted for several months.

Netter said the authorities want to keep soldiers on the streets until the Poles accept a restructured price system doing away with the subsidies which have been such a drain on the economy. Previous attempts to raise prices resulted in rioting and other violent protests, culminating in the nationwide labor unrest in the summer of 1980 that produced Solidarity and the liberalization movement.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of the United States' chief European allies met in Brussels and pledged that their governments would not undermine President Reagan's economic sanctions against the Soviet Union. But proposals to join in the sanctions and to cut off food and financial aid to Poland were postponed, to be "considered as the situation in Poland develops," a communique said.

"Europe will do nothing in any area that might undermine the action of other countries," said the host for the 10-nation Common Market meeting, Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans.

Tindemans characterized as "tragic" a meeting eight of their ambassadors in Warsaw had Monday with Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, Poland's premier, Communist Party chief and head of the military regime.

Paul Harvey News A Son's Identity

My son, my son — has given me a Christmas gift more precious than any. He has given up his identity for me.

I've been reading the newest biography by Winston Churchill's daughter, Sarah. And that was the cause of all her troubles; that she to this day is known only as "his daughter."

You've heard it stated as a cruel irony that Churchill could save the Western world but could not save his own children.

The inference being that such men are preoccupied with world affairs to the neglect of their own children.

But the experience of many statesmen and show business luminaries and others of prominence demonstrates that it is not so much a matter of "neglect" as the fact that the children of the famous are never, themselves, anybody.

Striking Nurses Ready To Bargain

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Nurses who rejected a contract offer that would have ended their record 17-month strike say they are eager to return to the bargaining table, but hospital administrators say there is little to discuss.

About 100 unionized nurses striking Ashtabula General Hospital turned aside a package Monday that would have made them among the highest paid nurses in Ohio and returned them to their old jobs.

"A little money and the jobs we already had just wasn't enough after 17 months," Ashtabula General Nurses Association President Mary Runyon said after the secret vote.

"The bottom line of all this is that it's a union-busting situation," said Kathy Keller, past local president who led the strike.

Hospital administrator Floyd Farley said he was "appalled by the (union's) disregard for the well-being of this community."

"The hospital has addressed in this proposal the one real issue that has separated the hospital and the nurses — the return of the nurses' jobs," Farley said.

The 535-day walkout already holds the record as the longest by nurses, according to the American Nurses Association.

Union bargainers said they would seek a return to negotiations "as soon as possible."

Farley said bargainers will not agree to demands for a modified union shop and a voice in staffing levels of registered and licensed practical nurses.

Most of the striking nurses,

Always they are introduced or passed over as "his son" or "his daughter" or "his family" or they get titles like "Junior" stuck on the ends of their names until they are retirement age.

And I can hear persons of less experience saying, "Well, it's just too bad about those rich kids!"

Yes; so it is.

In our family, any private life is so overlapped by professional activities that they are inseparable.

Over the years out of pride and prejudice I have let you share the birth of our son — his first school day and his last one — and the wrestling match on the living room floor that Thanksgiving when he discovered that he was stronger than his dad — but elected not to prove it.

Some of you attended his first piano concert and who call themselves the "Ashtabula 100," have taken other jobs since the walkout began July 21, 1980. Only a few are experiencing financial difficulty, said Joan Kalhorn, a lawyer for the Ohio Nurses Association, parent group of the local union.

A national shortage of nurses that has made it easy for strikers to find work also has hurt the hospital's recruiting efforts.

Ashtabula General, the only hospital in this northeastern Ohio city of 23,000, will reopen 16 beds Wednesday, increasing to 115 the number of available spots at the 234-bed hospital. Eight of the hospital's 10 divisions will be operating, Farley said.

directed, I report directly to the president on a daily basis or more often as the issues of the day might require," he said. Clark would thus resume a role exercised by Zbigniew Brzezinski in the Carter administration and Henry A. Kissinger, who was Richard M. Nixon's national security adviser.

But unlike Brzezinski and Kissinger, Clark brings only a year's experience in foreign policy to his White House post.

His nomination a year ago provoked a storm of protest in the Senate, and Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said: "He doesn't know anything about foreign relations."

But one senior member of the White House staff said over the weekend that Clark's appointment as national security adviser would demonstrate that the president felt that his performance over the past year as deputy to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. should have resolved any doubts about his ability.

Asked about his qualifications, Clark said Monday that it was the president's role to determine whether he was fit for the position, which does not require Senate confirmation.

As the deputy secretary of state, Clark was an intermediary in a year of feuding between Haig and Allen, apparently winning Haig's confidence while serving as the official closest to Reagan in the State Department.

Clark said the conflict between the secretary of state and national security adviser was inherent in the structure of the jobs.

"I now must view the area of national security from a presidential perspective rather than from a State Department perspective and I hope that that experience at the prior vantage spot will assist in the teamwork we all know must exist among the CIA, the Department of Defense, the State Department," Clark said.

Clark's new job, near the top of the government salary scale, pays $60,662. He will direct the National Security Council staff and "will be responsible for the development, coordination and implementation of national security policy, as approved by the president," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Allen accepted a job as interim consultant to the president's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, at $190 a day, Speakes said.

Asked whether Reagan had requested Allen's resignation in an Oval Office meeting, said to have lasted "several minutes," Speakes replied: "It was mutually agreed upon in the meeting with the two."

Accepting Allen's letter of resignation, Reagan said in a letter:

"As you leave your post, I want you to know that you do so with my confidence, trust and admiration for your personal integrity and your exemplary service to the nation."

Speakes' statement said that Allen and Reagan "agreed that in view of the controversy of recent weeks, it would be better for all concerned to seek a change in responsibilities."

12 Counties To Vote On Non-Profit Bingo

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock reports that voters in at least 12 Texas counties and five cities will decide Jan. 16 whether non-profit groups can legally operate bingo games in their communities.

"This is going to end the confusion about bingo in Texas. From now on, bingo is going to be approved by the voters and licensed by the state or it's going to be illegal," Bullock said.

Cities, counties and justice precincts that approve bingo can also levy a 2 percent gross receipts tax on the games. The Comptroller's office will handle licensing of the games, collect the tax and return it to the communities where the games are held.

Where voters approve bingo, non-profit groups must get licenses from the Comptroller's Bingo Regulation Division and can't legally operate games until 10 days after the local option election, according to Division Director George Garland.

"We are urging non-profit group sin these counties and cities to apply in advance for their licenses by contacting us right away," Garland said.

Organizations should contact the division by writing to 111 E. 17th, Austin, Texas 78774, or call 1-800-252-5555.

According to the new bingo law, cities, counties and justice precincts that don't vote to approve bingo in January must wait until the next constitutional election date of April 3.

To call a bingo election, a local governing body must receive a petition with the signatures of 10 percent of the number of voters who cast ballots in the last governor's election.

The Comptroller's first enforcement priority following the January voting will be to protect those groups who have obtained licenses.

"Especially where the local government has levied the 2 percent tax," Garland said, "we will be checking to make sure every bingo game is licensed. Those that don't have licenses will be urged to get them. If they don't become licensed and keep playing bingo, we will file complaints with local authorities and the Attorney General."

Counties due to vote first on the bingo question include Guadalupe, Comal, Kerr, Maverick, Kleberg, Victoria, Fayette, Milam, Wharton, Nueces, Lavaca, Jim Wells and Webb.

Cities holding Jan. 16 elections include White Settlement, Schertz, Selma, Gergory and Reno.

ed and the Coast Guard managed to free it from the burning vessel and tow it to safety.

Six to 12 families evacuated Sunday in nearby Virginia Point were allowed to return Monday.

Two small explosions gave the blaze new life Monday morning, throwing some of the acrylonitrile into the bay. But Coast Guard spokesman Bob Berry said it all burned off. He said there has been no leakage so far.

The Coast Guard said the crash caused "considerable damage" to the drawbridge, used by five railroads. Southern Pacific spokesman Joe Bart said a repair crew should have it ready for train traffic by Thursday.

Eyes Create Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It took me a long time to find a doctor I could put my faith in. I shopped around for a year and now that I have discovered this terrific person, I have a real problem.

It's his eyes. This man has the most beautiful eyes I have ever seen in my entire life. The minute I walk into his office and he says, "Hello," I forget what I went in for. I keep seeing his eyes for weeks after the visit.

I am a married woman, middle-aged with grown children, and I don't fool around. Please tell me why I go completely off my rocker when this man looks at me. What can I do about it?—Eye-Yi In New Rochelle diplomas on the wall. If he has any pictures on his desk of his wife, try looking at HER eyes. If there are any children, look at THEIR eyes. If nothing works, close yours.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a fireman. Today I saw three children and their father die in a house fire. I have seen death before, but it always hurts more when children are involved. My worst fear is not of being burned or trapped in a cave-in but coming face to face with a burned child or an adult and realizing that I am minutes too late.

But enough about me. Imagine yourself the sole survivors of your family, standing outside your flame-engulfed home, knowing your wife and children are in there and you can't do anything to save them. Our burn centers are filled with victims who can tell you there is no greater pain than being burned alive.

As you read this paper, pause and look at your loved ones. Just for a moment imagine them trapped in a smoke-filled room with temperatures so hot their bedding and clothes could burst into flames. Imagine the fear in a child's heart as he or she looks for a hiding place to escape the smoke.

Put the paper down, take your family and rehearse a fire drill. Teach your children the quickest way to get out of the house from every room. Teach them how to stop, drop and roll if their clothing should catch on fire. Establish a point outside your home where everybody should meet in case of a fire. Often a parent reenters a burning house in search of a missing child who has escaped, but the parent doesn't know it.

Is the telephone number of the fire department taped to every phone in the house? If it isn't, it should be. Visit your local fire department and ask questions about what to do to make your home fireproof. Investigate smoke detectors and fire extinguishers.

Ann, this is not your routine letter. I am not asking for advice, I'm asking for your help. It is my hope that a columnist like you and a firefighter like me can combine our efforts and keep someone, somewhere, alive and keep someone from ever having to know the anguish of being the sole survivor.—Firefighters Everywhere (Pendleton, Ore.)

DEAR PEN: Many thanks from the hundreds (possibly thousands) of people whose lives you may have saved because you took the time to write one letter.

Tips For Hemming Heavy Fabrics

CLEVELAND - Sewing on heavy fabrics such as denim, canvas, upholstery, vinyl and leather can cause difficulty for the home sewer. Hemming these fabrics can further complicate things since you are often sewing through multiple layers of heavy fabrics. Distorted and skipped stitches and broken needles are frequent results.

If you're planning a sewing project that involves hemming a heavy fabric, Carole Fantel, education director for White Sewing Machine Company, offers a few tips to avoid the potential pitfalls.

"Proper needle selection is critical for success when hemming heavy fabrics," said Ms. Fantel. "For denim, canvas and some upholstery fabrics use a No. 14 American size (No. 90 European) denim needle. This extra-sharp needle also works well on ripstop nylon fabric used in backpacks and tents."

"Sewing leather, vinyl or suede requires the use of a size No. 14 wedge-point needle which slices through the fabric and doesn't leave perforation marks," she added. "When hemming double thicknesses of heavy fabric you may prefer to use a roller foot—one that has feed dogs that act like tiny bulldozers. This foot provides good support and helps you ease over a bumpy thick seam. Some sewers think that you must use heavy wire-like thread when hemming heavy material. That's not true. A good grade 100 percent nylon or polyester thread is fine," said Ms. Fantel.

"Most household sewing machines and needles will not accommodate a double-turned hem of heavy fabric, such as denim," she added. "So you heave to 'cheat' a little. After washing, drying and pressing your fabric, measure the hem, leaving about a 3/4-inch edge. Then overcast the edge with a zig-zag overlock stitch. This way, you are only sewing on a double layer."

Ms. Fantel offered some additional tips for sewing over the thickest parts of the hem.

"Follow the suggestions for topstitching and make a small wedge of the same fabric and the same number of layers. Put the wedge behind the needle under the presser foot as you sew to ease the needle over the thickest portion of the hem, sewing slowly.

"This provides better traction between the foot and the feed dogs, and will eliminate uneven stitches. Do not pull the fabric while sewing since this can cause needle breakage," she concluded.

Project Christmas Card Deemed Very Successful

According to members of the Medical-Dental Auxiliary, this year's Project Christmas Card Campaign was tremendously successful, one of the best years in the history of the project. Over $5000 was collected.

This year's proceeds will go to purchase a delivery table for the Obstetrics Department at Deaf Smith General Hospital, and a portion of the proceeds will be placed in the organization's scholarship fund, which provides scholarships to students entering the health fields.

Members of the auxiliary wish to thank residents of Hereford once again for their generous donations to Project Christmas Card.

Booster Club Meets Tonight

The Deaf Smith County FFA and 4-H Booster Club will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Lounge of the Community Center.

Plans for the upcoming stock show will be discussed. On the agenda are discussions of the Parade of Champions and solicitation of donations.

All parents of local 4-H and FFA members are urged to attend. For more information, contact Herb Vogel at 364-5680 or Sue Powell at 357-2577.

Creating A Positive Self-Image

By PENNY REINART County Extension Agent

With this new year approaching, there are many resolutions to be made. There is one very important resolution I hope each of us will consider, "Creating A Positive Self-Image."

Today, one of the major areas of conflict in both youth and adults is that of having wrong attitudes about ourselves. These attitudes affect every other relationship in our lives.

"When the most attractive and popular students on a certain campus were asked if they were satisfied with their basic appearance, over 95 percent replied that they were not!"

How are these wrong attitudes formed? When we take our appearance, abilities, parentage and environment and measure ourselves with the outward standard of those around us in order to gain their approval.

It is when we feel we have fallen short compared to others that we build up resentment that causes a low self-esteem.

We need to begin to accept our appearance, abilities, parentage and environment and even be thankful for them.

Childbirth Classes To Begin

A series of Prepared Childbirth Classes will begin at the Deaf Smith General Hospital tonight and run through Feb. 9. Classes will meet each Tuesday night from 7-9 p.m. at the hospital. Childbirth methods using Lamaze and Kitzinger will be taught, along with other topics. There is a $25 fee for the six classes.

For further information, call Carolyn Andrews at 364-2141 or 276-3240 or Donna Tidmore at 364-2141 or 364-8364.

From Screen Hit To Possible TV Success

NEW YORK (AP) - NBC has borrowed much from the hit movie "Fame," including the title, and turned it into a weekly series that begins tonight about a New York high school for the performing arts.

Whether the integration of story, characters and musical entertainment will work every week is anybody's guess, but tonight's pilot episode is a sparkling hour of warmth, wit and top-flight variety entertainment. As they say on Broadway, a bravura performance; "Fame," the TV show, has enthusiastically captured the spirit, energy and excitement of "Fame," the movie.

"Fame," which won Oscars in 1980 for best song and best original score, still focuses on the lives of students combining standard education with training for careers in music, dance and the stage.

The musical segments elevate "Fame" out of the "Room 222" genre. There have been such notable dramatic fare as "The Monkees" in prime time and Archie and his friends on Saturdays. But they never got heavier than swiping beach blankets.

"Fame" has original musical numbers full of vitality, and, of course, the title song—"Fame"—zinging like a space launch. Irene Cara, the movie Coco who sang "Fame," is not in this series but will surface later this year on NBC in her own weekly show.

But have no fear, there are some spectacular dance scenes and the main musical numbers are ably handled by a new force as Coco, Erica Gimpel. She sings a "Take Me" number in the luncheon and later does that all-purpose rouser, "Fame." Miss Gimpel proves to be an engaging, enthusiastic actress with a smile that knows no bounds.

"Fame" can tap a rich source of poignant material as the drama's high-strung performers struggle to balance teen-age pitfalls with their on-the-job training for the intensely competitive world of show business. Expect to see insecurities unraveling each week.

Three members of the movie have made the transition to the series: Lee Curreri as Bruno Martelli, the electronic music whiz; Gene Anthony Ray as Leroy Johnson, the super-talented but undisciplined dancer, and Albert Hague, who does his less intimidating John Houseman imitation as the music teacher, Shorofsky.

Tonight's episode threads several continuing stories in the manner of "Hill Street Blues," which shares the bill on NBC's revamped Thursday night lineup. The major story line is the introduction of Julie (Lori Singer), the blond-haired cellist and drama student who enrolls in the school because her parents were divorced, and she and her mother moved to New York.

Today In History

Associated Press Today is Tuesday, Jan. 5, the fifth day of 1982. There are 360 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 5, 1949, President Harry Truman labeled his administration the "Fair Deal" in his first State of the Union message.

On this date: In 1762, Czarina Elizabeth of Russia died and was succeeded by Peter II.

In 1973, U.S. airlines began routine scanning of passengers with electronic weapons-detectors following

There are flaws: stereotypical characters and some silly dialogue, but the concept of integrating music, dance and drama, if executed as well in the future, could make "Fame" the best TV-movie ripoff since "M-A-S-H."

Movie Teaches Lesson In Law Abuse

NEW YORK (AP) - There is a gritty, "Hill Street Blues" feel to "The Ambush Murders" - a sensation triggered, perhaps, by the often humorless joshing during roll call in the police squadroom.

For both the acclaimed NBC series and CBS' made-for-TV movie - to be broadcast Tuesday evening, 9-11 EST - begin in that setting, a locale that seems always to suggest trouble ahead.

The relationship between the two TV shows ends there, however, and "The Ambush Murders," based on a real-life story, quickly becomes a gripping lesson in abuse of the law and justice.

"Just give me a conviction," the district attorney tells an associate in a golf-course conversation that sets the tone for the movie. "The people of Lindero are demanding it."

"You mean your reelection is demanding it," the prosecutor says.

"It wouldn't hurt your career either," the DA replies.

"The Ambush Murders" is the story of Ray Ellsworth, a black activist accused of killing two cops in an ambush the evening of April 12, 1971. It begins - after the scene is set - with Ellsworth, played by Dorian Harewood, facing a third trial.

His wife, Kariha (Alfre Woodard), finds a young, white lawyer, Paul Marshall (James Brolin) willing to take the case, but Ellsworth isn't sure he's ready to accept "plain white bread." Marshall assures Ellsworth that he's prepared to commit himself to the accused killer's defense. "We were both in the Marines," he says, searching for some common ground.

First Woman Mayor Of Houston Unlikely Candidate

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — It may seem to the casual observer that voters of Houston made a strange choice indeed when they elected a mayor, someone to lead them in battle against traffic jams, pollution, crime and other problems threatening this city's explosive growth.

They spurned incumbent Jim McConn, a businessman with the experience of two terms in office. They rejected tough-talking Sheriff Jack Heard, who stressed his ability to lead men and fight crime.

Instead, voters chose a person who was not a member of the established political machinery and in any case could never be called a "good ol' boy." They elected a reserved, bespectacled bookkeeper who used neither charismatic speeches nor political wheedling and dealing to court votes.

But their choice, Kathy Jean Whitmire, 35, who was sworn in Saturday as Houston's first woman mayor, is a magna cum laude certified public accountant who proved while serving as city controller that she could reduce wasteful spending and stand up to pressure.

Voters apparently decided it was not strange at all to give the job to a person — man or woman, old or young, traditional or not — who promised to bring the same common-sense, businesslike approach to the rest of city government.

"If managers within the city know what is expected of them and have goals and know they are going to have to be answerable for meeting those goals, that creates that same kind of motivation (that exists) in the private sector," Mrs. Whitmire said in an interview with The Associated Press before she took office.

The statement and Mrs. Whitmire's reputation for trying to get rid of "deadwood" could make some city workers nervous, but she said as controller she was unfairly portrayed as a boss too eager to fire employees, especially men.

"There was really only one person who has been fired in the four years that I've been controller. It's built up like there were a lot more than that because there were some others that I persuaded to leave, men and women both," she said.

She said she does not necessarily prefer working with women, although at one point the four top positions in the controller's office were held by women.

"I do think there are a lot of women who have a lot to offer and deserve to be given a chance," said Mrs. Whitmire.

She said her own sex wasn't a factor in winning the mayor's race. Nevertheless, to her irritation, being a young woman and being a widow — and the other things about her private life she considers irrelevant to her job — have suddenly become matters of public concern.

"I found out very quickly that the difference between being controller and being mayor is dramatic — it is really dramatic," she said. "This is a new experience for me to have so much prying into what I'm doing with my life and where I'm buying my clothes and all that kind of stuff."

"It's an irritation but it isn't the biggest problem in the world. Everything you do has a down side and that happens to be the down side to holding a high-level political office."

She got a taste of being in the public spotlight during her tenure as controller when she was continually making headlines by withholding funds approved by the City Council when she did not agree with the expenditures.

Without the controller's signature, the funds legally could not be released.

Occasionally, like the time she balked at releasing $50,000 to hire consultants to redraw City Council district lines, she later gave in and released the money. That's why she refuses to place a dollar amount on how much she saved taxpayers during her four years in office.

"Even if we were not successful in turning around the Council we made the point that the system was wrong and got public sentiment on our side," she said.

During those years she won the reputation as a strict guardian of public funds that she used a springboard to the mayor's office. Today she insists "I do not intend to run for anything else" and says after she leaves the mayor's office she'll "go back into the private sector, I would expect."

But she confesses her No. 1 hobby is, after all, politics.

"I don't guess I ever considered it as a career. When I first considered running for office was seven or eight years ago. My husband ran for office and his brother (John Whitmire) is in the state Legislature, and so I've been through all those campaigns," she said.

Her husband, Jim Whitmire, who twice ran unsuccessfully for a City Council seat, died in 1976 from complications of diabetes after a long illness. They had been married 10 years.

"I considered him my mentor," Mrs. Whitmire said. "He was the one who always encouraged me and got me to do things if I didn't have the nerve." The Whitmires had no children.

Her sister-in-law, Linda Niederhofer, said Mrs. Whitmire "continues to talk about how wonderful her marriage was. They were extremely close."

Mrs. Niederhofer said when Whitmire's illness caused him to go blind, Mrs. Whitmire changed jobs so she could drive him to work.

A couple of years ago a possible romantic link between Mrs. Whitmire and a man who was a municipal judge at the time surfaced in newspaper columns. It was not front page news back then, but today she says she must consider a much more intense public interest in such matters.

The ideal evening out "would be hard to define because anytime I go out anymore everybody knows who I am," she said. She did not rule out accepting a date with a man, but she said, "being mayor is very demanding and it does require a commitment of virtually all of your time."

Mrs. Whitmire, an attractive, 5-foot-tall woman who projects a humorless, no-nonsense image in public but laughs easily in private, claims she was not popular as a student at San Jacinto High School although she did play the oboe in the band and was chosen majorette. Her main achievement was making good grades.

She was offered an academic scholarship to Rice but went to Southern Methodist instead "because I thought it would be more exciting to move to Dallas." After one year she moved back home and finished her education at the University of Houston, where she earned a master's degree in accounting in 1970.

Her parents, Karl and Ida Niederhofer, still live here. Niederhofer, 71, is an electric contractor. Mrs. Whitmire and her brother, Tom, jointly own a duplex in Houston's Montrose neighborhood, and she lives in the upper half.

The duplex has a hot tub and a heated swimming pool, where Mrs. Whitmire says she likes to relax. "But I don't do that much anymore because I'm too busy," she said.

So why — in addition to the $81,000 annual salary — did a shy accountant who cherishes her private life want to be mayor of a city with such complicated and controversial problems?

"For the opportunity to do something that would make a difference in the long run — the opportunity to accomplish something for the overall good of the city that would change the course and improve the future of this city," she said.

"Once you get in on the fringes of politics, you begin to see how badly it is all run and what kind of people are doing those jobs and how inept many of them are and how little attention they give to what really needs to be accomplished."

"That's when you start feeling like, well, 'this is terrible — I ought to be in there doing that.'"

New York Daily News Made It's Way Into Many Lives

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Daily News is up for sale, and with it a good part of my life. Perhaps the best part.

I never worked for the New York Daily News, but I grew up with it.

"Mulligan, what is that you have under your desk?" Sister Mary Lawrence, the 6th grade nun asked one day.

It was the eve of the heavyweight championship fight between Jimmy Braddock and Max Baer. I guiltily surrendered my copy of the Daily News with its sports section featuring page length photos of the two fighters and statistics comparing their weight, height, reach, biceps and neck size, etc.

"Tabloid trash," she said. But the start of a series on "Inside the Vatican" or the "Boyhood of Pius XI" or something of the sort caught her eye. On following days, I brought her the sequels.

That, of course, was and is the strength of the Daily News. Something for everybody. Often something not found elsewhere.

C.D. Batchelor's Pulitzer prize-winning editorial cartoons often ignored the ponderous political issues of the day to concentrate on everyman's foibles and problems, like taxes and highway safety. I still vividly recall his harrowing "Inviting the Undertaker" series on reckless driving.

Crime is to the tabloids what candles and stained glass windows are to cathedrals. And top crime reporters like Pat Doyle and rewrite men like Henry Lee and Arthur Mulligan lit up our humdrum lives with all there was to know about the likes of Legs Diamond, John Dillinger, Crazy Joe Gallo and Joe Bananas, whose sudden squealing on the mob to the coppers inspired the headline: "Bananas Splits From Bunch."

News headlines jolted the subway reader awake. "FORD TO NEW YORK, DROP DEAD." Its "Voice of the People" letters to the editor column might not be the Times of London's cup of intellectual tea, but it foams with the beery bravado of the strap hanger.

As a picture paper, the News made history in January 1928, when photographer Tom Howard taped a tiny camera to his ankle and caught in harrowing detail Ruth Snyder's death jolt in a Sing Sing electric chair. That was well before my time, but in my mind's eye in Daily News black and white I still can see the Hindenburg in flames at Lakehurst, the Morro Castle on fire off the Jersey shore, the last picture of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, the final dive of the Andrea Doria. Brash captions added depth to the News photos.

Historic Erie

Erie, Pa., is named after the Erie Indians. It was the site of the construction of the ship "Niagara" with which Oliver Hazard Perry defeated the British in the battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812. Erie was also the location of the first lighthouse beacon on the Great Lakes.

Consumer Demand For Big Cars Strengthening

By STEPHEN JONES
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Despite years of talk about the auto industry's move toward smaller cars, the only Ford Motor Co. factory building cars this week is turning out full-sized, luxury models.

While Ford's 18 other assembly plants in North America are closed to reduce inventories spawned by a sales slump, the plant in suburban Wixom keeps building Continentals, Lincolns and Mark VIs to meet a strengthening consumer demand for big cars.

"We have seen a strong surge in the large and luxury car segments" of the car market, J.E. Cappy, general marketing manager of Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division, said Monday.

"Those cars have reflected a great strength right through the model year."

It's happening at other automakers, too. At the end of November, full-sized and luxury models generally were in shortest supply while the manufacturers had huge backlogs of many compacts and subcompacts.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry journal, listed 24 compact and subcompact models, of which 15 had inventories of 90 days or more on Nov. 30. Only three were in shorter than 60-days supply. Automakers generally prefer to keep a 60-day supply of cars on hand.

Of 18 full-sized and luxury car lines, only three had backlogs of more than 90 days and eight had inventories of fewer than 60 days.

"One theory is only the affluent can buy cars right now," said David Healy, an analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York.

But another reason may be that the gap in prices between big and little cars is shrinking. At the same time, gasoline prices are holding steady and the manufacturers have been able to improve the mileage on the larger models, making them more attractive.

At General Motors Corp., only two of five divisions — Cadillac and Oldsmobile — sold more cars in the Jan. 1-Dec. 20 period of 1981 than they did in the same period a year earlier. For comparison, sales of Cadillacs increased 9.6 percent in 1981, while sales of compact Chevrolet Citations dropped 19.7.

At Oldsmobile, sales of Olds 98 and Olds 88 models rose 13.9 percent and 6.7 percent respectively, while compact Pontiac Phoenix and subcompact Chevrolet Chevette models slumped 16.7 percent and 7.1 percent.

At Ford, sales for full-size models did fall from 1980 figures, but still fared better than their compact and subcompact counterparts.

Industrywide, 1981 car sales are off 4.9 percent through Dec. 20.

War of 1812

The War of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain had three major causes: 1) British warships blockading Napoleonic France seized American trading ships; 2) Britain, refusing to recognize naturalized American sailors, seized and impressed thousands of them into service; 3) Britain armed Indians who raided western U.S. borders.

Mount Vernon was originally part of a royal grant of Lord Culpepper, who in 1674 deeded 5,000 acres to Nicholas Spencer and John Washington, great grandfather of George Washington.

The Statue of Liberty, a gift from France in 1884, arrived dismantled in New York. The sections were packaged in 214 crates aboard a steamship.

Merchants Need To Be Aware Of New Sales Tax

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock says that about 1,000 Texas merchants need to be aware of new sales tax requirements on credit sales which went into effect Jan. 1.

The new law affects merchants who make installment sales of taxable items, include the amount of sales tax due in the outstanding balance and keep their books on the "cash" basis of accounting.

According to the new law, a part of the interest paid on the sales tax portion of credit sales will be taxable. This additional amount is to be reported and remitted when the regular sales tax return is filed.

If the interest on the sales tax and the unpaid balance are the same — and the rate is 18 percent or less — the state gets half the interest on the sales tax portion of the total amount being financed.

If the rate is more than 18 percent, the state gets all interest on the sales tax amount above 9 percent. For example, a merchant charging 20 percent interest on credit sales will remit 11 percent interest on the sales tax amount to the state, assuming the rate for the sales tax portion is the same as for the rest of the unpaid balance.

If the interest charged on the sales tax portion of the bill is different from the rate changed on the rest of the unpaid balance, the merchant must remit all of the interest paid on the sales tax portion of the state.

Taxpayers with questions about their new responsibilities should contact the Comptroller's local office nearest them or the Comptroller's Sales Tax division at 1-800-252-5555, a toll-free call from anywhere in Texas.

The number of unmarried persons of the opposite sex sharing the same living quarters has double since 1970.

Monday Rough For Jr. Highs

Monday was a rough day for local junior high basketball teams with only four squads out of 12 posting wins. La Plata's 7th grade boys claimed a 33-20 win over Plainview Blue, while Stanton's 8th grade boys topped Clovis Yucca 34-29; the Dogie frosh ripped Yucca by a 62-59 count, and the Stanton 8th grade girls won over Yucca 20-9.

Kevin Redus tallied 16 points in leading the Dogie freshman boys to their win, while Chet Bunch added 12 points, Chad Stephens had 11, and Lee Brockman scored 10. Mark Artho and David Manchee each tallied seven points to lead the 7th grade Mavericks to their win. Arthur Valdez and Bobby Baker each added six points to the cause.

Stanton's 8th grade got 29 points from Johnny Pena as they defeated Yucca. Stefan Hacker contributed 13 points to the win, while Rodney Torres chipped in 12 more. Sarah Alonzo's 10 points led the Dogie 8th grade girls' win over Yucca, while Melissa O'Rand and Donann Cummings had three points each.

In other junior high action the La Plata 8th grade boys lost to Plainview Blue by a 36-20 count, and the Mav frosh fell 71-64. Don Carl Tardy's six points topped the 8th graders, while Curtis Cotten and Bobby Martinez each had four.

Blair Rogers canned 24 points to lead the Mav frosh in their losing effort, and Mike Scott was just behind with 22 points of his own.

La Plata's girls saw Plainview Blue sweep them as the 7th grade lost 34-22, the 8th grade fell 29-24, and the freshmen dropped a 35-34 decision.

Katie Ramey's six points topped the 7th grade effort, while Tonya Redwine and Robin Carlile each had four. Shelly Edwards led the 8th graders with eight points, while Becky Curtis and Natalie Sims each had six.

Diana Devers' 12 points topped the Mav frosh in their narrow loss, while Sandra Valdez added six points, and Carla Alford, four.

Stanton's 7th grade boys dropped a 34-29 decision to Yucca, as Vincent Brown led the way with nine points.

The Dogie 7th grade girls lost to Yucca by a 47-7 count as Michelle Green scored three points and Bernice Ross and Je Dee Pruitt each had two.

The Dogie freshman girls fell to Yucca 50-27 after trailing by only three points at halftime. Kristin Walterscheid's 12 points led the way for the Dogies, while Lori Niblett had six.

The local 7th grade teams will play in the Canyon Tournament this weekend, while all 12 junior high squads return to district action next Monday.

Cumpton, Mays to Be Honored At Panhandle HOF Ceremonies

Hereford football coach Don Cumpton and former Whiteface track standout James Mays will be among those athletes and coaches honored Jan. 17 during Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame ceremonies in Amarillo.

Cumpton was selected as coach of the year in football after guiding the Herd to a 13-1 season and a spot in the Class 5A semi-finals.

Mays, a former state half-mile champion for HHS, will be recognized as the athlete of the year in track. Mays is the only athlete from Texas Tech University to be named All-America three times.

The ceremonies will feature the induction of three persons into the Hall of Fame. They include Pampa sportscaster Warren Hasse, former All-SWC basketball player Jewell McDowell of Texas A&M, and Pat Gerald, a former football-basketball standout for West Texas State in the 1920s.

Mays twice earned All-America honors in 1981 by placing third in the 800 meters at the NCAA Indoor Track Meet and fourth in the 800 meters at the Outdoor

Meet. The top six finishers in each event earn All-America honors.

Cumpton directed the Whitefaces to their best-ever football season, going undefeated through the regular season, and falling only to eventual state champions Richardson Lake Highlands 10-7 in the semi-finals.

Other athletes to be honored at the ceremonies include former WTSU cager Terry Adolph, former Easter New Mexico griddler Brad Beck, who earned All-America honors this past season, Amarillo High School baseball player Freddie Sanchez, Amarillo golfer Jerry Boeka, and Booker tennis player Brett Maxfield.

Additional honorees to be recognized include Amarillo College girls' basketball coach Kelly Chadwick, Tascosa High School track coaches Jo Meaker and Duane Huey, tennis mentor Brenda Schulte of Nazareth, Farwell golf coach Mike Martin, and AHS baseball coach Dick Jones.

An overall athlete and coach of the year will be selected from the honorees and announced during the ceremonies.

The Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame is sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee and the Y's Mens Club of Amarillo YMCA.

Additional honorees to be recognized Jan. 17 include four special achievement award winners, the Dee Henry Memorial Award winner, and the winner of the Leslie Cazzel Big Play Award.

Tar Heels Survivors In Week of Upsets

By TOM CANAVAN Associated Press Writer

Preseason favorite North Carolina is the near-unanimous choice today as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press college basketball poll following a week in which nine of the nation's Top 20 teams lost at least one game.

This week's poll, in which Virginia replaced previously unbeaten Wichita State as the country's No. 2 team, sets up a matchup of the nation's two top-ranked teams Saturday when North Carolina hosts the Cavaliers in a nationally televised game.

It will mark the second time this season that teams ranked 1-2 in the country have met. Earlier this season, North Carolina retained the nation's bragging rights by downing then No. 2 Kentucky 82-69.

North Carolina, which raised its record to 9-0 with a victory over William and Mary last night, collected 56 of 58 first-place votes and 1,158 points — two shy of perfection. The Tar Heels also posted a thrilling 56-50 overtime decision over Penn State and downed Santa Clara 63-50 in winning the Cable Car Classic last week.

Virginia, 11-0 following a pair of victories over James Madison and one over Richmond, was tabbed No. 1 on the final two first-place ballots. The Cavaliers received 1,095 points from the poll's nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Kentucky, now 8-1 following a 34-28 overtime victory over Notre Dame in a slowdown game and a harrowing 68-66 decision over Georgia last week, inched up one slot to No. 3 with 894 points.

Six of the remaining seven teams in the Top 10 also were ranked there last week, but have played a game of musical chairs.

Missouri, DePaul, Minnesota and Iowa all jumped three positions and are ranked 4-7 respectively.

Missouri, 9-0 after victories over Southern Cal and Notre Dame, got 959 points. DePaul, 10-1, was next with 877 followed by Minnesota at 808 and Iowa with 740.

San Francisco, 11-1, slipped two positions to No. 8 when knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Rice in the Rainbow Classic. The Dons, who received 628 points, rebounded later in the tournament to beat Wichita State, 9-2, which plummeted to No. 9 following its loss to San Francisco and another to North Carolina State.

Tulsa, No. 13 a week ago, closed out the Top 10 with 542 points.

Arkansas, 8-1, dropped six places to No. 11 after being upset by Texas Tech. Louisville is 12th followed by Georgetown, D.C., Houston, North Carolina State, Alabama, Oregon State, Idaho, UCLA and St. John's, N.Y.

Last week, the Second 10 was Indiana, Alabama, Tulsa, Louisville, Oregon State, UCLA, Georgetown, Houston, Villanova and North Carolina State.

Idaho, 11-0, and St. John's, 9-1, are the newcomers to the Top 20, replacing Villanova and Indiana. Villanova lost the championship game to St. John's in the Holiday Festival, while Indiana dropped two games in the same tournament.

Olajuwon, 'The Dream' Leads Cougar Victory

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

They call him Akeem "The Dream" Olajuwon and Houston coach Guy Lewis' dream came true in Houston's Southwest Conference basketball opener.

Olajuwon came off the bench in the second half to dominate rebounding on both ends of the court, score 10 points and lead the 18th-ranked Cougars to a 63-61 victory over the determined Rice Owls Monday night in the SWC opener for both teams.

"It wasn't easy and it wasn't beautiful but it was one victory in the SWC," Lewis said. "I was just glad to see the clock run down." Olajuwon, a freshman from Nigeria, got six rebounds on each end of the court and led an early second-half surge that put Houston ahead for good at 42-41 with 7:37 left in the game.

The victory put Houston in tie for first place in the SWC with Texas Tech, which upset fifth-ranked Arkansas over the weekend. In the only other SWC action Monday night, Baylor defeated Southwestern, 68-59, in a non-conference game at Waco.

Houston sophomore Clyde Drexler scored all nine of his points during the stretch when the Cougars took the lead and Rob Williams, slowed by a wrist injury, contributed 15 crucial points.

"I was nervous all through the first half but in the second half, I felt much more comfortable," Olajuwon said. "The other guys told me the SWC schedule would be tougher and it is — much more physical."

The surprising Owls, who upset sixth-ranked San Francisco and 20th-ranked North Carolina State in their last two games, took a 27-21 halftime lead, paced by high-scoring Ricky Pierce, who scored 37 points in the game.

"Pierce is the toughest player I've ever faced since I've come to this country," Olajuwon said. "He has a great lob shot and has great ability to drive to the basket."

Houston boosted its season record to 10-1 and won its ninth game in a row while the Owls dropped to an 8-5 record after winning the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii with their victories over Hawaii, San Francisco and North Carolina State.

The Cougars extended their series record to 21-1 over their crosstown rivals.

Terry Teagle scored 21 points to pace Baylor in the non-conference victory over Southwestern, but it took a steal by Teagle, a full court drive and layup with 3:05 remaining to give the Bears a lead they never relinquished.

Baylor, 7-3, held only a 34-30 halftime lead and trailed, 59-58, with 4:55 remaining in the game.

Baylor coach Jim Haller was not pleased with his team's performance in the final game before the Bears enter SWC play.

"We were very, very sluggish. Everyone on the team was," Haller said. "Usually, you have one or two guys pick the team up, but tonight we didn't."

"I'm very disappointed that we have to go into conference play on a downer. I was hoping we could play better," Haller said. "We've got to be ready every night in conference play, or we'll be in trouble."

Walsh Named Coach of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walsh, who in just three seasons changed the San Francisco 49ers from the National Football League's losingest team to its winningest, was named today The Associated Press' Coach of the Year.

Walsh was the overwhelming choice of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, named on 61½ of the 84 ballots cast. Forrest Gregg, who performed a "worst-to-first" feat with the Cincinnati Bengals, was a distant second with 15½ votes.

Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins received three votes, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys got two and Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos and Walt Michaels of the New York Jets received one vote apiece.

The 50-year-old Walsh, who doubles as general manager of the 49ers, piloted the team to a 13-3 record, the best in the NFL, in 1981. When he took control of the club before the 1979 season, it had won just 31 of its previous 86 games and was coming off a 2-14 season.

San Francisco went 2-14 again in '79, then improved to 6-10 the following year before storming to its first winning season since 1976 and its first National Conference Western Division championship since 1972.

The redevelopment of the 49ers into an NFL power was achieved in two basic steps. First Walsh put together a potent pass-oriented offense, but one which often couldn't survive the team's defense. Then, in the 1981 draft and in major acquisitions after that, he built a defense into the second best in the conference.

Among the players he drafted his first year were Joe Montana and Dwight Clark, the NFC's leading passer and receiver this year. And in 1981 he used three of his first four selections to draft Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson, three-quarters of San Francisco's defensive backfield, then picked up a pair of defensive stars with contract problems — pass-rushing end Fred Dean from San Diego and linebacker Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds from Los Angeles.

Last year the 49ers' defense was the second-worst in the league. This year it was second-best.

Walsh served his apprenticeship in the NFL starting in 1966 as offensive backfield coach for the Oakland Raiders, then for the next nine years was coach of the quarterbacks and receivers of the Cincinnati Bengals.

During that stretch he developed Ken Anderson into one of the league's best quarterbacks. And in 1976, as San Diego's offensive coordinator, he was instrumental in turning Dan Fouts into one of the game's most explosive passers.

Half of the free world's newspapers are printed on Canadian newsprint.

WHO AM I?

Do you remember me? When I was 16, I became the youngest finalist in the history of the U.S. Open. I'm 5-foot-11. My specialty is a big serve. I've had shoulder problems, though. So I have been lifting weights. That helps a lot.

Smith Hired As Salary Arbitrator

DETROIT (AP) — Tal Smith, former general manager of the Houston Astros, has been hired part time by the Detroit Tigers to represent the team in player salary disputes that go to arbitration.

Smith, who was fired by the Astros in a front-office power struggle after the 1980 season, operates a baseball consulting firm from Houston and works with several other major league clubs.

Last year he assisted the Oakland A's in salary arbitration victories over Mike Norris and Tony Armas which, Smith said Monday, saved the A's $440,000.

The Tigers, who could face as many as 11 arbitration cases this spring, have lost cases to second baseman Lou Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell in recent years as well as losing two celebrated bitter cases to Steve Kemp, the slugging outfielder who was traded to the Chicago White Sox last autumn.

Those cases all were handled by Bill Lajoie, a Tigers' vice president, and administrative assistant Dan Elve, who left the Detroit organization late last year. "The Tigers feel that a respected independent representative helps to provide a professional atmosphere and avoid any unsavory situations between club and player," the Detroit team said in a prepared statement.

Smith said he doesn't want to be viewed as a "counteragent" who is "trying to launch a crusade against players."

However, attorney Rick Brode, the agent who eventually secured contracts for both Whitaker and Trammell, viewed it differently.

"This (hiring of Smith) just shows that this arbitration thing has become a powerful tool of the players and they (the Tigers) are worried," said Brode, who also represents reserve outfielder Rick Peters, who is eligible for arbitration this year.

Brode added that Whitaker, currently in the second year of a two-year contract, likely will seek arbitration next spring.

"And then the Tigers will probably trade him," Brode said. "Jim Campbell (Tiger general manager) is a shrewd businessman and he is entitled to run his business any way he wants. Right now, the money they are talking about (for Whitaker's salary) is not even in the ball park."

49ers Set Up Cowboys Rematch

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers, after another winning roll in their Candlestick Park mud, are one step away from the National Football League's gaudiest bash — the Super Bowl.

They got by the New York Giants 38-24 Sunday, following a pattern which seems standard in this season's playoffs.

"We knew other teams had blown big leads, and we didn't want to let that happen to us. We've been in a lot of pressure games this year," said quarterback Joe Montana, who had the first 300-yard passing day of his three-year NFL career but settled for 28 yards in the second half.

The Dallas Cowboys, 45-14 losers on Candlestick's slow turf early in the season, will be back next Sunday to face the 49ers in the National Conference championship game. The winner goes on to play the AFC champ, the Cincinnati Bengals or San Diego Chargers, in Super Bowl XVI on Jan. 24.

"Dallas has a lot of respect for our club," said San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh. He added, "The homefield advantage is a distinct advantage for us."

However, Giants Coach Ray Perkins said, "Dallas will win. They are a better football team. That's nothing against the 49ers, but the Cowboys have been in this situation before and they are a more experienced team."

San Francisco, 13-3 in the regular season, had its highest-scoring day since the victory over Dallas in eliminating the Giants, an NFC wild-card playoff team. The 49ers' defense, ranked second in the NFL this season, had a generally rough time and allowed three touchdowns passes by young Scott Brunner.

The 49ers held a 24-7 lead after scoring three times early in the second period, but New York came back to within a touchdown, 24-17, and was stopped at San Francisco's 4-yard line on a third-period drive which could have tied the score.

"Defensively, we had breakdowns several times," said rookie cornerback Ronnie Lott, but he contributed two interceptions, one for a late, game-clinching touchdown.

The 49ers also recovered two New York fumbles and held Rob Carpenter, coming off a 161-yard effort in the playoff victory over Philadelphia, to 61 yards rushing.

"When we played the 49ers earlier this year, we made a lot of mistakes. We tried not to today, and we still made too many," said Johnny Perkins, who caught two of Brunner's touchdown passes.

The 49ers will be forced onto a neutral, artificial surface field and an indoor one, the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome, if the team wins its first conference title and goes to the Super Bowl.

"We're starting to love that sloppy mess that everybody's been knocking. It's been pretty good to us," said San Francisco offensive tackle Keith Fahnhorst.

The Candlestick footing was better than expected Sunday, and rain amounted to only light sprinkles until late in the second half when the Bay Area was hit by its latest strong storm. Both teams' offenses came up with big plays frequently.

"I thought it was going to be a defensive struggle," admitted Fahnhorst.

Montana passed for 276 yards in the first half, hitting tight end Charlie Young on an early 8-yard touchdown pass and later connecting with Freddie Solomon on a 58-yard scoring play. Another long Montana pass, 39 yards to Dwight Clark, set up a touchdown as the 49ers scored three times in the opening 4½ minutes of the second quarter.

"We had to get respect from their defensive backs, and that's why we went long. They were playing a lot of zone defense, and we were guessing right," said Montana.

"Montana did some things people didn't expect. He threw deep, and some people had said he can't throw deep," said New York's Brunner, who delivered the two longest touchdown passes of his budding NFL career, 72 yards to Earnest Gray and 59 to Johnny Perkins, in the playoff loss.

The 38 points was the most scored against the Giants this season, and receiver Perkins disagreed with his coach about the Cowboys-49ers title matchup.

"The 49ers have a helluva ballclub. I think we'll be watching them in the Super Bowl," he said.

of game penalty nullified an apparent first down inside the Bengals' 20-yard line.

Joe Ferguson's fourth-down pass to wide receiver Lou Piccone was wiped out by the penalty, and Ferguson overthrew Roland Hooks in the end zone to kill the Bills' last serious threat.

"It's hard to accept because it was a mistake that shouldn't have happened," Ferguson said of the delay penalty that put the ball back on the Bengals' 25-yard line.

Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox wasn't sure of the reason for the penalty, but he downplayed its importance. "That didn't cost us the football game," Knox said. "They moved the football on us. They broke on top 14-0. We came back, made a run at them and tied it up. But we were behind the whole game."

Cincinnati scored on its first two possessions, driving 42 and 48 yards. Charles Alexander bolted 4 yards for the first touchdown and fullback Pete Johnson crashed 1 yard into the end zone for the other.

Ferguson, who failed to complete a pass in the first quarter, connected with wide receiver Jerry Butler on a 54-yard pass play to set up Joe Cribbs' 1-yard touchdown run just before the half and narrow the gap.

The teams traded touchdowns in the second half. Buffalo lost Cribbs to a knee injury on a 44-yard

D.D. Lewis says goodbye

He was born Oct. 16, 1945. World War II ended the summer of that year. The world was at peace. America was honoring its heroes.

The Lewises in Knoxville, Tenn., were pondering a name for their newborn son. Why not in honor of someone famous?

Why not one, or even two of America's war heroes? How about Generals of the Army Dwight Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur?

Today, NFL fans knew that young man, now 36, as D.D. Lewis. That's D. for Dwight and D. for Douglas.

And now it's his turn to retire, too. Since 1968, D.D. Lewis, linebacker, has been going off to his own type of professional battle. This season's playoffs cap his NFL career.

He helped to lead Dallas to its seventh straight post-season NFL berth and the Cowboys' 15th in the last 16 years under coach Tom Landry.

Going into the Jan. 2 game against Tampa Bay, Lewis needed just one playoff appearance to tie former teammate Larry Cole at an NFL record of 26 games.

"Larry Cole and I came in together as rookies in 1968," says Lewis. "The only way he's got a game on me is I missed the '69 season. I had to go in the Army."

Lewis was a longshot to make the Cowboys roster when Dallas drafted him in the sixth round out of Mississippi State. Anchoring the linebacking corps at the time were Chuck Howley, Lee Roy Jordan and Dave Edwards.

But Lewis, at 6-foot-1 and 215-pounds, impressed people with his kamikaze play on special teams. He earned a roster spot.

Says Lewis, "I've just tried to be as consistent as I could, with what I've had to work with, and it's really paid off."

"I was lucky to hook on with a team with someone of Tom Landry's competitiveness and strength. A young man coming out of college needs some help to come along and grow. I was fortunate to have a great teacher and moralist."

The rest is history. This season, D.D. with 13 years experience, was the senior member of the Cowboys squad. So, the playoffs are a fitting ending.

Some of D.D.'s top performances have come in the playoffs.

Most notable was the Cowboys 37-7 win over the Rams in the 1975 NFC championship game. Lewis intercepted two passes in that game.

D.D. has earned the hearts of Dallas fans — especially one in particular.

Recalls Lewis, "A man delivers bacon and steaks to the Cowboys coaches. And one day he stopped me and said, 'My sister is going to get you elected most popular Cowboy. Last year she wanted to elect Pat Donovon but missed by 100 votes. This year she's picked you.'"

So, Annie Underwood of Lubbock, Texas, receives the Lewis' thanks for sending them on a post-season Hawaiian vacation — as winners of the Oak Farm Dairies Favorite Cowboy Contest.

Says Lewis, "My goodness, she must have gotten everybody in Litton Industries, where she works, and all her relatives to sign."

"She had 16,000 votes!" Beyond Hawaii, D.D. looks forward to next fall and winter free from football.

"I feel very confident that my transition out will be pretty easy," says Lewis. "Life is a series of phases — retirement is not an end, just another phase. Life moves on and I'm ready for it."

Spoken like a real veteran.

Chicago Bears 'Cut' Armstrong

CHICAGO — Neill Armstrong is a proud man.

He's proud that in his 27-year professional football career he has never had to apply for a job. He also is proud that, until Monday, he had never been fired from a job.

"Not in 17 years as an assistant and 10 years as a head coach," he said. "Why, I played eight years of professional football and never was cut."

All that changed Monday when Chicago Bears owner George Halas fired Armstrong as head coach. Halas failed to name a successor, but former Bear tight end Mike Ditka, reportedly a prime candidate, has said he is interested in the job.

Armstrong, 55, had been head coach of the Bears for the past four seasons in which he compiled a record of 30-34. He said he plans to leave Chicago with his head held high.

"I intend to walk tall," Armstrong said. "I've seen other coaches lose jobs and I know how badly I felt for them."

"And I've seen a lot of players go. I've had to tell them myself. The ones I remember are the ones who look like me. I intend to be the same."

Armstrong was defensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings for seven years before taking the Bear job Feb. 16, 1978. He succeeded Jack Pardee, who left the Bears after the 1977 season to become head coach of the Washington Redskins.

In his four years at the helm, only Minnesota had a better record than the Bears in the Central Division of the National Football Conference. The Vikings were 31-32-1 in that period while Tampa Bay was 29-34-1, Green Bay 26-36-2 and Detroit 26-38.

The Bears were 7-9 in 1978 under Armstrong and 10-6 the following year when they made the playoffs only to lose in the first round to Philadelphia. The Bears were 7-9 in 1980 and slipped to 6-10 this season.

Although no successor was named, it appeared the job might go to Ditka, currently an assistant coach with the Dallas Cowboys.

Halas recently asked and received permission from the Cowboys to talk to Ditka, but will not do so while the Cowboys are still involved in the National Football League playoffs.

Bruins Blue in Washington

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

It wouldn't take much to convince UCLA to skip its next trip to the state of Washington if such a thing were possible.

At least the 19th-ranked Bruins, who just completed their first all-losing trip to the Evergreen State since 1963, are secure in the knowledge that they won't have to return until next season.

The Bruins, long a college basketball power, dropped a 56-50 decision to the Washington Huskies Monday night after falling 57-51 in triple overtime Saturday to Washington State.

Washington guard Steve Burks scored nine points in the final 1½ minutes Monday to drop UCLA to 6-4 and 0-2 in the Pacific-10 Conference.

The Huskies, who beat Southern California in overtime Saturday night, are 9-2 and have a six-game winning streak. The sweep of the Los Angeles schools was Washington's first since 1977.

UCLA held a 42-37 lead but went nearly 4½ minutes without scoring. Burks put in a layup and free throw with 1:29 to play to give the Huskies a 48-46 edge and he added six more free throws down the stretch as UCLA tried to catch up by fouling.

Burks finished with a game-high 17 points. "Steve Burks rose to the challenge," said Washington Coach Marv Harshman. "I thought the foul shooting at the end was one of the big things."

As for Burks' key three-point play, Harshman said it wasn't part of the plan. "We were going to go down to 20 seconds and call another timeout," he said. "As a coach, I was glad to see the layup."

UCLA Coach Larry Farmer wasn't glad to see how his team reacted at the end of the contest. He said the Bruins took bad shots. "You should look to get the ball inside or shoot free throws," he said. "We didn't."

Among ranked teams in action Monday night, No. 1 North Carolina bombed William and Mary 64-40; No. 5 DePaul eased past St. Mary's, Calif., 96-72; No. 9 Wichita State beat U.S. International 92-67 with a second-half outburst; 10th-ranked Tulsa outscored Creighton 80-55 in Missouri Valley Conference action; No. 12 Louisville trounced Florida

State 79-57 in the Metro Conference; 14th-rated Houston edged Southwest Conference rival Rice 63-61; No. 15 North Carolina State squeaked by Southern Mississippi 46-45, and No. 17 Oregon State whipped Arizona 68-55 in another Pac-10 outing.

Top Ten
Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan had 13 points and James Worthy added 12 for the top-ranked Tar Heels, 9-0. North Carolina led 35-20 at the half after Jordan scored 11 of his points.

DePaul's Terry Cummings scored 22 points and pulled down 14 rebounds, while Bernard Randolph notched all 14 of his points in the first half and his replacement, Terry Grubbs, had 15 points.

Wichita State stormed from a 38-33 halftime advantage behind the strong front line of Greg Dreiling (18 points, eight rebounds), Antoine Carr (15 and seven) and Cliff Livingston (11 and eight).

Tulsa's Greg Stewart poured in 17 points as the Hurricane won its Missouri Valley Conference opener and 24th straight game at home.

Second Ten
Louisville fell behind 4-0, then ran off 15 points and was never headed. Derek Smith scored 22 points to lead the Cardinals.

Houston nipped local rival Rice for the 21st time in 22 games. Ricky Pierce threw in 37 points for Rice, which upset San Francisco and North Carolina State to win the Rainbow Classic last week.

The Cougars rallied as freshman Akeem Abdul Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler led a second-half surge and Rice's Donald Bennett missed a shot at the buzzer.

Derek Whittenburg sank a free throw with two seconds left to lift N.C. State over Southern Miss. The Wolfpack was nursing a two-point lead but Sidney Lowe had his shot blocked on a drive with 32 seconds left. The Golden Eagles' Curtis Green tied it with a 15-foot jumper.

Green then fouled Whittenburg, who made the front end of a one-and-one for the victory margin.

Anderson Accepts Award Graciously

CINCINNATI (AP) — Quarterback Ken Anderson, one of pro football's most accurate passers, accepted a coveted honor in the same low-key manner in which he guided the Cincinnati Bengals to their finest season.

"It means a lot because your team is winning," said Anderson, who was chosen by a panel of Associated Press sportswriters and broadcasters as the National Football League's Most Valuable Player for 1981.

"Leading the league in passing and having good statistics is nice. But the ultimate is winning. That's what makes the award special."

Displaying the accuracy that made him one of the most feared quarterbacks in the mid-1970s, Anderson shattered several personal passing records in leading the Bengals to a 12-4 regular season mark and the American Conference Central title in 1981.

The 11-year veteran from Augustana College in Illinois threw for 3,754 yards and 29 touchdowns, completed 62.6 percent of his passes (his second-best career mark), was intercepted just 10 times in the regular season. He was the top-ranked passer in the NFL.

His precise passing earned him a spot on the All-Pro team for the fourth time in his career and put the Bengals in their first AFC title game.

After suffering through two injury-plagued seasons, the 32-year-old Anderson was benched for his poor performance in the first quarter of the 1981 season opener against the Seattle Seahawks. But Coach Forrest Gregg started Anderson the next week, launching the quarterback's record-breaking season.

"He came back like a champion," said tight end Dan Ross, who led Bengals' receivers with 71 regular-season catches.

Gregg, who thought about benching Anderson for the Bengals' second game but decided to stick with the veteran, concurred with the MVP choice.

Oregon State reserve Rob Holbrook collected a career-high 18 points and the Beavers overcame an early 18-8 deficit.

Unranked Teams
Bradley's players ought to file for extra scholarships after their fourth overtime game this season, a 79-77 double OT Missouri Valley victory over Indiana State. Last month, the Braves lost to Cincinnati 77-75 in a record seven overtimes. They've also had another double overtime contest and a game that went into extra periods.

David Thirdkill made up for missing two free throws in the final seconds of regulation time when he hit a short jump shot with five seconds left in the second overtime. Thirdkill, who scored 18 points, had missed a pair of free throws with the score tied at 73 and only three seconds left in regulation.

In the first OT period, Indiana State's James Smith put in a jump shot with four seconds remaining to tie the score 75-75, forcing another extra session.

In other games, La Salle upended Notre Dame 66-61 and Pittsburgh edged Temple 60-59 in a doubleheader at the Palestra, New Mexico State beat West Texas State 75-66, Illinois State topped Drake 59-49, Seton Hall beat Providence 66-65, Alabama-Birmingham downed Jacksonville 82-62, Richmond defeated South Carolina 58-45, Illinois State outscored Drake 59-49, Kansas State outduelled Nevada-Las Vegas 82-65, Ohio State took Syracuse 67-57, Tulane edged Cincinnati 60-58, Brigham Young ripped New Mexico 76-58, Fresno State stopped previously unbeaten Lamar 56-36, Nevada-Reno nipped Detroit 82-79, Southern California went into overtime to edge Washington State 57-56, Texas-El Paso took Utah 73-61, and, in the opening round of the Hatter Classic, it was New Orleans 83, Centenary 79 and Stetson 68, Morehead State 61.

Anderson, Bengals Like Winning Feeling

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — For the first time in his 11-year career, Cincinnati Bengals' quarterback Ken Anderson knows how it feels to win in the playoffs.

"The feeling is kind of beyond description," Anderson said, wearing a broad smile after he tossed the winning touchdown pass in Cincinnati's 28-21 victory Sunday over the Buffalo Bills.

Anderson completed 14 of 21 passes for 192 yards against a stubborn Buffalo defense to put the Bengals in the American Conference title game for the first time in the 14-year history of the franchise. It was the first playoff victory for Cincinnati in four tries.

Although it marked a milestone for the franchise founded by Paul Brown before the 1968 season, the Bengals celebrated their club-record 13th victory of the season with little fanfare.

"These guys just sort of show up and say, 'We are going to win this game.' No one panics or worries," said All-Pro rookie receiver Cris Collinsworth, whose 16-yard touchdown catch in the fourth quarter snapped a 21-21 tie. "We feel like we can do whatever it takes to win."

The Bills, who held on to beat the New York Jets in the AFC wild card game, were driving toward a tying touchdown with three minutes to play when a delay touchdown burst that tied the game 14-14.

Alexander's 20-yard run put Cincinnati ahead 21-14, but Butler grabbed a 21-yard touchdown pass to tie the score just eight seconds into the fourth quarter. Anderson found Collinsworth alone down the middle on Cincinnati's next possession for the go-ahead touchdown.

Anderson was defensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings for seven years before taking the Bear job Feb. 16, 1978. He succeeded Jack Pardee, who left the Bears after the 1977 season to become head coach of the Washington Redskins.

In his four years at the helm, only Minnesota had a better record than the Bears in the Central Division of the National Football Conference. The Vikings were 31-32-1 in that period while Tampa Bay was 29-34-1, Green Bay 26-36-2 and Detroit 26-38.

The Bears were 7-9 in 1978 under Armstrong and 10-6 the following year when they made the playoffs only to lose in the first round to Philadelphia. The Bears were 7-9 in 1980 and slipped to 6-10 this season.

Although no successor was named, it appeared the job might go to Ditka, currently an assistant coach with the Dallas Cowboys.

Halas recently asked and received permission from the Cowboys to talk to Ditka, but will not do so while the Cowboys are still involved in the National Football League playoffs.

DR. LAMB

Our cells make uric acid

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had three acute attacks of gout. The first attack came on suddenly. The pain was so intense that I couldn't walk. The doctor prescribed Zyloprim for uric acid, Naprosyn for the arthritic pain which I have in my fingers. The gout in my toe was arthritic gout. I would like to know where the uric acid comes from. I am 80 years old, weigh 130 pounds, don't smoke and have a beer at dinner or one glass of wine. I have a brandy before going to bed. I keep busy in my orchard. Could it be the diet? I eat light, seldom eat pork. I eat beef, chicken, veal and keep away from salt.

venting the formation of uric acid but it is not used to treat an acute attack of gout. The acute attack is caused by an inflammatory reaction to uric acid crystals that form in the joint. The big toe is a favorite place for this to occur. Colchicine, Indocin and Butazolidin are all medicines used to relieve an acute attack. Ben Franklin brought colchicine to the United States to treat his own gout.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 68-year-old woman with arthritis of the spine. I am putting in a pool hoping swimming will help me take off excess weight. I'm 5 feet 1 and weigh 154 pounds. What kind of exercises can one do besides swimming that would be of benefit?

DEAR READER — You are doing two things that are right, using a swimming pool for exercise because of your arthritis and making an effort to lose weight. Both will help.

Water helps to support the body weight, avoiding injury to arthritic joints that can occur with jogging, running or even with a lot of walking if your arthritis is severe.

Swimming is great but you can do all types of calisthenics in water. Hang on to the edge of the pool and kick your feet. Bob up and down in the water, whatever suits your fancy; movement is what counts. The best rhythmic movement is swimming but any water exercises will help you use calories.

Don't overdo it. A mistake many people with arthritis make is to try to do too much exercise. The joints should not be overworked, and water support of body weight helps prevent that.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you spoke of niacin as one of the B vitamins. You said it can cause flushing. My question is how do you ask for niacin? Is it known as B-6 or B anything? Or is it just called niacin?

DEAR READER — Niacin belongs to the B complex vitamin group but it is not called B anything. Niacin is really a general term that includes both nicotinic acid and nicotinamide which may be regarded as having the same action. This vitamin is essential to health. It is part of a co-enzyme system that enables normal metabolism within your cells, really part of the energy system that runs your cells.

If you don't have enough you can develop pellagra. This is a serious disease that includes a skin rash and in severe forms can even cause nervous system disorders, including personality changes. I hasten to add that in our modern society mental disorders are seldom due to niacin deficiency.

In large amounts nicotinic acid, but not nicotinamide, can cause flushing and even liver damage. No one should take large amounts of nicotinic acid without a doctor's supervision.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Pup stained floor

DEAR POLLY — I have a young dog who, unknown to me, was frequently wetting on a braided rug. Now there is a black spot on the wood floor. Do you have any information on how to remove this black area from the floor? — O.T.N.

DEAR O.T.N. — First apply paint stripper to the black spot to remove the finish, then treat the spot with wood bleach (available at your hardware store) or regular chlorine bleach. This may well remove the spot. If it doesn't entirely remove the black stain, however, try sanding the black area very gently with fine sandpaper until all the black is removed. After removing the spot, whether with bleach or sanding, refinish the area to match the rest of the floor. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To preserve newspaper clippings, dissolve a milk of magnesia tablet in a quart of club soda in a pan large enough to accommodate the flattened paper. Soak the newspaper one hour and pat it dry. This will make the newspaper last for years. — MARTHA

DEAR POLLY — When my children were young, I covered many a spot and stain (or even small holes) in their clothes with appliques (flowers or other interesting shapes) made from old scraps of fabric. This can be very attractive. I've had lots of compliments on these clothes. If you want to admit that the applique is covering a stain, you'll be considered very clever! — MRS. N.B.

DEAR READER — Most of the uric acid in our bodies comes from our own cells. This is true whether one has gout or not. The uric acid is a byproduct of the cells duplicating and regenerating themselves. In the process of making new nucleic acid we form uric acid. That is a very important point and explains why doctors today pay less attention to the diet and put more stress on medicines, such as Zyloprim (allopurinol) that act by preventing the formation of uric acid by our cells.

Diet is sometimes helpful but even the most severe diet will not decrease the uric acid levels more than about one point, and that is often not enough. I am sending you The Health Letter-number 16-10, Gout, The Uric Acid Disease. This does include the old gout diet which still has some merit. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Zyloprim is useful in preventing the formation of uric acid but it is not used to treat an acute attack of gout. The acute attack is caused by an inflammatory reaction to uric acid crystals that form in the joint. The big toe is a favorite place for this to occur. Colchicine, Indocin and Butazolidin are all medicines used to relieve an acute attack. Ben Franklin brought colchicine to the United States to treat his own gout.

Violent Crime Rate Increase Varies From City To City

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

Jostling aboard a crowded bus on New Year's Eve, a San Antonio, Texas college student and another rider argued briefly over whether the student should say "Excuse me."

Moments later the student lay dead, shot to death.

The homicide was a grim and fitting final statement of the growing violence in 1981 in San Antonio — where the 182 murders last year were the most ever.

According to an informal Associated Press survey, murder totals in many major American cities are the same or higher in 1981 compared with 1980.

Officials in most of those cities blame murder on drugs, liquor, prostitution, family arguments and hand-guns, but grope for explanations of why homicide rates go up or down from year to year.

"I don't think there's a trend," police Capt. E.H. Watson said in Greenville, S.C., where the murder rate nearly doubled last year — from seven to 13. "These people just happened to get together in a pool room or liquor house and got mad," he said.

Final FBI statistics will indicate there were 25,000 murders across the country last year if the trend toward increased violent crime continues.

In 1980, there were more than 23,000 murders in the United States — one every 23 minutes — and the FBI said the nation's murder rate increased by 4 percent during the first six months of 1981.

Dade County, Fla. remained "Murder Capital, USA," with 621 homicides during 1981. The total was an increase of 48 murders over 1980, when the Miami area led the nation with 33 murders for every 100,000 people.

Nationally, the FBI says, there are about 10 murders per 100,000 population.

FBI statistics say that three of four murder victims are male, more than 40 percent are black, and more than 60 percent of all murders are committed with guns, usually handguns.

More than one-third of the people convicted of murder are between the ages of 18 and 24.

Murder totals for 1981 were up in New York; Boston; Chicago; San Francisco; St. Louis; Baltimore; Las Vegas, Nev.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Baton Rouge, La.; Norfolk, Va.; Columbus, Ohio; Providence, R.I.; and Greenville, S.C.

New York City's 1,833 murders, the highest total in the country, included 21 cab drivers, most of them slain in robbery attempts.

Murder figures remained about the same in Denver; Pittsburgh; New Orleans; Jackson, Miss.; Topeka, Kan.; and Mobile, Ala.

But homicide totals dropped in Los Angeles; Detroit; Atlanta; Philadelphia; Salt Lake City; Indianapolis; Nashville, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Omaha, Neb.;

Portland, Ore.; and Oklahoma City.

Totals were up in Houston but down in Dallas; up in Columbus but down in Dayton, Toledo and Cincinnati; up in Syracuse but down in Buffalo, N.Y.

"There's no answer, any more than a couple of years ago when it went up," said Joseph McCarthy, a homicide officer in Buffalo, where the murder rate dropped by nearly half.

In Miami, authorities said the increase in crime — blamed last year largely on the influx of Cuban refugees — has been heightened by economic conditions.

"With the unemployment, there's a lot of robberies — armed robberies — and a lot of people are killed in robbery attempts," John Jones, a Dade County spokesman, said.

In Houston, another fast-growing city which last year was second only to Miami in per capita murder rate, Police Chief B.K. Johnson said the 10 percent increase in homicides in 1981 "is a reflection of the society we live in. The more people you have conglomerate in an area, the more violence you will have."

Even in New Hampshire, where the murder total for the whole state was 25 in 1981 compared with 20 in 1980, authorities blamed the increase on population growth.

But in Los Angeles, where the 898 homicides last year represented an 8.5 percent drop from 1980, authorities said the decrease was due to better assignment of police officers.

William Booth, spokesman for Los Angeles police, said the department had increased the number of officers assigned to a program aimed at controlling street gangs which were responsible for one of five homicides in the city in 1979 and 1980.

In Cincinnati, police Detective Tom Burke said the city's 1981 murder decline was due to a new emphasis on suppression of drug trade, prostitution and liquor-law violations.

Murderers and their victims are relatives more than half the time, but Larry Gray, head of the San Francisco police homicide detail, said there is a growing trend toward violence in casual meetings involving prostitution, drugs — or a shove on a crowded bus.

Lack Of Funds To Close Austin Consumers Union

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The director of the Southwest office of Consumers Union says the local office will close — just when consumers need it most — because of a nationwide financial crunch.

Carol Barger said Monday she must come up with $60,000 by Jan. 29 or shut down the office.

CU's national officials have decided to close regional offices in Washington and San Francisco, as well as Austin, because they do not bring in revenue.

The two-person Austin staff, which opened in February 1979, represents consumer interests at utility and legislative hearings. Its $60,000 annual budget has been subsidized by subscriptions to CU's Consumer Reports, but Ms. Barger said there still is not enough money to keep the office open.

"The tragedy is that with all the Reagan administration cutbacks consumers are in great need of protection now," she said in a telephone interview.

CU's national executive committee has said the three regional offices can stay open if they become self-sufficient. Ms. Barger, a Dallas lawyer, is searching for $10,000 to take to a national committee meeting Jan. 22. She also must present a plan to raise the other $50,000 needed for 1982.

"I need some money to show that it can be done. Then I need a plan to collect the rest. I don't think a plan without any money would be sufficient," she said.

CU has taken on some of Texas' largest lobbies and utilities, and scored some victories.

Ms. Barger recently argued against Southwestern Bell's proposed measured-rate service, which would have allowed the phone company to bill local calls according to time, duration and distance. The Public Utility Commission rejected the Bell plan.

In 1980 CU won a "low-use conservation rate" for Houston Lighting and Power customers who do not use much electricity. CU also persuaded the PUC to approve rules prohibiting utilities from cutting off service when it might create health problems.

During the 1981 Legislature, CU won approval for a generic-drug law allowing pharmacists to substitute lower-cost generic drugs for brand-name drugs.

The non-profit organization won a battle with the funeral industry when Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein issued a ruling that embalming serves no public health function.

CU depends on its three million subscriptions to Consumer Reports for most of its income. The recent postal rate increase, combined with a less-than-needed increase in subscriptions, put the national organization in a financial crunch, said Ms. Barger.

She said the future of the Austin office depends on her fund-raising drive, keyed by a direct-mail campaign.

CU will not accept corporate donations or money from employees of companies whose products are tested by CU. No one can give more than $1,000.

Ms. Barger said money from foundations is welcome but "the competition is very stiff these days."

pany to bill local calls according to time, duration and distance. The Public Utility Commission rejected the Bell plan.

Father Dreads Telling About Mom's Death

HOUSTON (AP) — The father of two children who survived a New Year's Eve plane crash is confident they will recover physically, but worries about an emotional trauma they have yet to face.

Stacey Sadler, 9, and her brother Jimmy, 5, were in stable condition Monday after being transferred to Hermann Hospital from a facility in Durango, Colo., near the site of the crash.

"They do not know about their mother," James E.

Sadler said. Joyce Branham, 39, was one of four people killed when a Sun West Airlines plane crashed and burned in a snowstorm Thursday night.

Sadler said his children would be treated for burns and bruises and that his son might require plastic surgery.

Sadler visited the site of the crash Sunday and said the wreckage "was nothing but a pile of rubbish. You can't even identify it as an airplane. How they ever lived through it is strictly a miracle. There is absolutely nothing left of the airplane."

Sadler credited rescue and medical teams as well as a woman and her four children who live near the crash scene with saving the pair.

Pat Seibert and her children were watching television when her husband Robert, a Frontier Airlines agent, called from the airport saying he thought a plane had crashed near their home.

The Seiberts hiked about a quarter-mile through the snow when they spotted flames from the wreckage.

"The plane was on fire," Mrs. Seibert said. "It was almost completely burned and there were two small children that we found."

"They were in pretty bad shape. We took off our coats and covered them up. They were whimpering but didn't seem aware of anything," Mrs. Seibert said.

Sadler said he spent an hour with the Seibert family Sunday, thanking them for their help.

Officials said the plane was en route from Albuquerque to Durango and was attempting an instrument-only landing when it missed its approach to the runway.

Judge Delays Decision On Moving Trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal judge says he wants to see how hard it will be to select impartial jurors for a police brutality case before he decides whether to move the trial from South Texas.

"I'll acknowledge it," U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela said Monday of the publicity surrounding allegations of brutality by McAllen policemen. "But when we get to jury selection (on Wednesday) we need to take it up at that time."

Former McAllen police Sgt. Roberto Ramos wants his trial on a misdemeanor civil rights violation charge moved from Brownsville. He is charged with ordering other officers to beat a prisoner during an arrest Sept. 24, 1977.

His lawyer, Buck Pettitt of McAllen, entered as evidence the Friday edition of the McAllen newspaper which listed the police brutality case as the top story of 1981.

Ramos and four other officers were indicted in November after a seven-month investigation. The counts are punishable by up to one year in prison and a $1,000 fine. Ramos alone wants a change of venue.

The cases gained national attention when videotape recordings made at the McAllen police booking desk aired on national television, showing officers kicking and abusing prisoners.

The taping system was installed by the police department to protect officers from harassment suits.

Lawyers for the other four former officers indicted asked that their clients be tried before a federal magistrate instead of a district judge and a jury. A magistrate court's jury is made up of six people, while a district court jury has 12 members.

With the agreement of prosecutors, Vela allowed the trial of Isidro Ybanez to be transferred to the magistrate's court. Ybanez is charged with assaulting a man on May 20, 1979.

However, Special Prosecutor Ross Connealy of Washington D.C. objected to trying the others before a magistrate.

The three other defendants — Tom Carter, Alfredo Saldana and Jaime Contreras — are accused of abusing Pedro Dennett Oct. 23, 1978, at the police booking desk.

The Dennett incident was seen on videotapes and shows several officers kicking Dennett, throwing him on the ground and slamming his head against the booking desk.

"It's a very novel and important case," Connealy said. "It is a complex case in that we do have a videotape that will be shown at the trial."

Nelson Sharpe of Kingsville, lawyer for Carter, argued that a defendant had a right to be tried before a magistrate on a misdemeanor charge.

Vela said he would rule later on the request after researching whether a defendant has an automatic right to trial before a magistrate. He said he initially saw no reason to deny the request.

"We're all attorneys," he said of magistrates and district judges. "It's not a situation where we have a justice of the peace."

Ski Mask Rapist Given 20th Life-Term In Prison

DeRIDDER, La. (AP) — Confessed ski mask rapist Jon B. Simonis has been sentenced to his 20th life term in prison after pleading guilty to additional rape and armed robbery charges.

Simonis, 30, of Lake Charles, appeared before state District Judge L.H. Coltharp Jr. to face charges stemming from the Oct. 8, 1981, holdup of a DeRidder family.

Two rape victims in that incident, a middle-aged woman and her daughter-in-law, sat in front seats as Simonis, in flannel shirt and faded jeans, faced the judge Monday and said he regretted what he had done.

"I would like to apologize to the victims for the psychological and physical pain that I have caused them," Simonis said in making his guilty plea.

"I feel that I am a menace to society," he said.

Since his arrest Nov. 28, Simonis has admitted to at least 80 crimes in a dozen states, all of them involving armed robberies, and most involving sexual attacks.

Judge Coltharp told Simonis that his apology was "admirable," but added "These are vicious and cruel acts and I think you know that."

He sentenced Simonis to two consecutive life terms for the two rape charges, plus the maximum 144 years in prison on the other counts.

The sentences brought the total Simonis must serve to 20 consecutive life terms plus 2,191 years in prison.

Simonis pleaded guilty to two counts of aggravated rape, one count of aggravated crime against nature, one count of aggravated burglary, and one count of armed robbery.

His plea came against the advice of his court-appointed attorney, Dave Wallace of DeRidder.

Wallace said he felt the Beauregard Parish evidence against Simonis was "very weak" and could be acquitted in a jury trial.

"I talked to Simonis for about 1 1/2 hours," Wallace said. "In my opinion, he is one of the most intelligent clients I have ever defended."

No date has been set for that arraignment.

motivated and stated before the arraignment, "I'm making up my mind whether I'm going to let them let me out or just go ahead and have them jail me."

The allegations are part of the latest chapter in a power struggle in League City, a north Galveston County community of 18,000. In August 1980 four amendments limiting taxing and spending, endorsed by the League City Taxpayers Association, were passed by voters.

The four councilmen were active in the association which, eight months later, forced the recall of four council members who opposed the new spending limits.

Mrs. Butler criticized the charges because three of the councilmen's political opponents are on the grand jury.

Most Firework Stands Keeping Up With Taxes

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday reported that a rapid fire survey of Texas fireworks stands showed most are keeping their powder dry and paying their state taxes.

"This was a short-fused project," Bullock said, explaining that the canvass had to be conducted while the stands were actually operating.

By Thursday morning, a check of 545 stands in cities throughout Texas revealed 73 stands without the proper sales tax permits.

"Thirteen percent duds is more than you would expect from a string of firecrackers," Bullock said. "We're not sending up any roman candles over these results but at least the next time these stands pop up, they'll be shooting their taxes to the treasury under adult supervision."

Bullock's enforcement of officers were due to complete the survey by 5 p.m. New Year's Eve. The Comptroller will be working with the State Fire Marshal to identify all fireworks businesses and insure fewer tax fizzes during the fireworks season next summer.
