Campbell St. dwellers may face annexation

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

A new water and sewer system to be installed in a neighborhood outside the Hereford city limits may be hooked to city lines, but residents of the area were served notice Monday night that they may expect to be annexed to the city if they receive the city services.

City Commissioners voted during their regular meeting to allow connection of the new water and sewer lines in the Campbell Street area, but made it contingent on voluntary annexation.

In other action, the commission upheld two decisions of the planning and zoning board, denying mobile home designation on two pieces of property; authorized completion of plans and bid requests for a park pavilion, extended the time asked for improvement of property previously targeted for condemnation; approved a grant to Kids Inc.; appointed members to city boards; approved expenditure of funds on a water well, and designated Bowie Street for no-parking during school hours.

The Campbell Street area has obtained a community development block grant of approximately $250,000 to install sewer and water lines. However, since the new service must be connected to the city lines, the commission was asked to approve the hook-ups.

Appearing before the commission Monday night, Tina Ramirez, a resident of the area who has led the effort to secure the services, asked if garbage service could be extended, also.

City Manager Chester Nolen said the city has not provided that service outside the city limits, but "on annexation it would be provided."

He also observed that the rates for water and sewer would be at the city level after annexation, instead of the 1 and 1/2 times regular rates charged for customers outside the city.

Nolen suggested that the commission approve the connections, contingent on voluntary annexation. Mrs. Ramirez asked when the annexation should take place.

"It should be ready by the time construction starts," replied Nolen.

On motion by Carey Black, second by Irene Cantu, the commission approved the sewer and water tie-on with the provision suggested by Nolen.

A zoning change for 128 Avenue I, requested for designation for a mobile home in a residential-two neighborhood, was denied by the commission which followed the recommendation of the planning and zoning board.

Jon Ward, who has placed a mobile home on the property, presented a petition, signed by 28 persons, supporting his plea for the zoning designation.

Nolen said the property was "grandfathered" in 1986 for mobile home use. However, the lot was vacant for two years, causing a reversion to R-2 designation.

He explained that if property is vacant for more than a year, it reverts to the regular zoning designation.

The request for the change was denied several months ago, also. Ward placed his mobile home on the lot before obtaining a city building permit or asking for zoning information.

He said the property owner was Lee Umsted, who lives in Tennessee. But, Umsted and Ward have a lease-purchase agreement, Ward said.

The commission voted unanimously to uphold the zoning board, on motion of Dennis Hicks and second by Roger Eades.

Another zoning change request, on 333 Avenue A, also for a mobile home designation, was denied, also, as the commission upheld the zoning board.

An extension was granted Santos Gonzales on proposed condemnation proceedings on a house at 322 Avenue A. Gonzales is renovating the structure.

After a brief discussion, the commission directed the city engineer and architects to finish plans for a pavilion and advertise for bids.

Street parking on Bowie, adjacent to Hereford High School, will be prohibited during school hours, beginning this fall. Nolen said residents on the street requested the no parking designation.

After hearing a request from Manuel Gavina, president of Kids Inc., for funding, the commission approved a $2,000 grant which is included in the current budget.

HISD, Commission to study pool

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Further study of a proposal for building a new swimming pool in Hereford will be delegated to a committee of members of the City Commission and Hereford Independent School District board.

A joint meeting of the two entities Monday resulted in agreement, also, to discuss the proposal with the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court and the board of Deaf Smith Hospital District.

Although no concrete action was taken during the city and school session, the consensus appeared to direct all entities to search for funding possibilities for building the new olympic-size pool.

A $500,000 grant was awarded by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to the City of Hereford in January for the pool and park improvements. To qualify for the state money, though, the city must come up with matching funds or in-kind services of approximately $500,000.

Mayor Bob Josserrand opened Monday's meeting by saying, "It makes sense to cooperate with schools for a year-round facility, one that can be used for handicapped students as well as sports."

He said the city "is to the point if we're to have swimming in Hereford, we have to build a new pool."

HISD Board President Ron Weishaar observed that "it's been way too long since we've gotten together to focus on needs" of the community.

Josserrand suggested that a cover would permit year-round use but could be removed for summertime swimming.

Asked the price of covering, Josserrand replied that an inflatable is estimated at $70,000 to $80,000.

"We're not looking at a large additional construction cost but at higher long-term maintenance costs than now," added Josserrand.

Responding to a question about cost of operating a pool, City Manager Chester Nolen said, "A pool does not pay for itself." He added that summer use of the pool in Dameron Park is high, an average of more than 300 youngsters per day.

Weishaar suggested that a committee from the public entities work on details to be brought back for further action.

School representatives noted that the budget for the next year must be adopted by Sept. 1, lending some urgency to a decision on what HISD may contribute toward the project.

Two spectators at the meeting called into question funding of the pool.

Virgil Kelley asked about the possibility of a tax increase to finance the project. He observed that the $500,000 TP&WD grant also "is tax money."

City Manager Nolen replied, noting that the grant money comes from a fund supplied by so-called "sin taxes."

"Taxes collected from alcohol and tobacco go into TP&WD grants," he added.

James Brownlow argued that "we can't afford" a new pool.

Weishaar responded by noting that "we have to keep up... we offer less and less, we lose population. This could be an economic development situation."

School Superintendent Charles Greenawalt said he and his staff plan to explore possibilities of obtaining grant money for special education improvements.

Members of the school board attending were Jim Marsh, Steve Wright, Raymond Schlabs, Joe Flood, Raul Valdez, Mike Veazey and Weishaar.

Representing the city were Commissioners Carey Black, Wayne Winget, Dennis Hicks and Roger Eades, and Josserrand.

Congress seeks meaning in Hutchison landslide win

WASHINGTON (AP) - Kay Bailey Hutchison hasn't even set foot on Capitol Hill yet since her commanding Senate victory and already Congress is trying to assess what her election means.

While pundits are spinning their conclusions on whether her victory was a referendum on President

Clinton or a sign that Texas voters are becoming more Republican, lawmakers are using the GOP victory to jockey for position in the upcoming floor fights on the super collider and Space Station Freedom.

For opponents, Mrs. Hutchison's message of spending cuts over tax increases fits right in with their campaign to kill both programs. They also contend that with two Texas Republicans in the Senate, Democrats have little need to support high-visibility, high-dollar projects in an era of tight budgets.

For supporters, however, both projects were going to have a tough fight anyway regardless of who was elected. "I think that Sen.-elect Hutchison is right," said Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan., a leading collider opponent. "We need to cut some of this unnecessary spending."

"As far as I'm concerned, the election in Texas has strengthened the hand of the group in the Congress that has been trying to kill the super collider," Slattery said Monday. "I sure hope she'll vote with us."

That's something Mrs. Hutchison is unlikely to do, since she voiced support for both projects during the campaign.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, heretofore a collider and space station supporter, hinted Sunday that Mrs.

Hutchison's victory could endanger them. The New York Democrat, who chairs the Senate Finance Committee, said the nation "can't afford" the super collider. "It's a great idea for the next century," he said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

"And space station never was a great idea in the first place," Moynihan added.

A Moynihan spokesman didn't respond Monday when asked whether the senator will vote against both projects later this month.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called Moynihan's comments "typically partisan bravado." He also sought to minimize the impact of Mrs. Hutchison's victory on the future of both projects. "It would have been a problem no matter what happened in the election," Gramm said Monday, noting that the House voted last year to kill the collider. The Senate later reversed the action.

The collider, now pegged at $10 billion, appears to be in greater peril because it is more closely linked to Texas in the minds of lawmakers - a belief Mrs. Hutchison already is working to counter.

"This is very important for the whole world. It's not just a Texas project," she said Monday in an interview on the Fox "Morning News."

Deaf Smith County voters help Hutchison win Senate election

While Texas voters were pushing State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison into the U.S. Senate with a 2-to-1 majority over incumbent Bob Krueger, Deaf Smith County voters were doing their part.

Across Texas, Hutchison obliterated Krueger by a 1,183,766 votes to 574,089.

That translates to 67 percent for Hutchison and 33 for Krueger.

In Deaf Smith County, the debacle was worse -- Hutchison garnered 1,442 votes out of the 1,715 that were cast, giving her 84.1 percent of the vote.

Krueger received 272 votes in the county, while one vote was a write-in that was disqualified.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners canvassed the vote Monday morning.

Official results of Deaf Smith voting, with Hutchison's total listed first are:

Early vote -- 703-134
Precinct 1 -- 89-21
Precinct 2 -- 81-32
Precinct 3 -- 342-49
Precinct 4 -- 112-17
Precinct 5 -- 33-5
Precinct 6 -- 31-9

Precinct 7 -- 24-3
Precinct 8 -- 7-1
Precinct 9 -- 20-1

Cost of conducting the election in the county was placed at $2,373, or $1.38 per ballot, reported County Clerk David Ruland.

He described the expense as "about average" for a special election although higher than regular election costs.

Ruland said election judges held down staff costs. "When they saw they didn't need extra counters, they called workers and told them not to come," he said.

White House to scale back energy tax

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House is agreeing to scale back its proposed energy tax and to go for deeper spending cuts in an effort to breathe new life into its endangered economic program. President Clinton says the concession will produce a bill "that can pass the Senate, pass the Congress."

Clinton agreed in a meeting with Senate Democratic leaders Monday to accept changes in the energy proposal - one of the most controversial portions of his $500 billion, five-year deficit reduction plan - in hopes of winning moderate and conservative support.

"There will be less in the way of taxes... There will be more in the way of spending cuts," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said following the meeting that included Clinton and his top aides and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

The president summoned congressional leaders to the White House today to further explore the possibility of a compromise.

Neither the administration nor Democratic leaders said how much a cut in the energy tax - designed in its original form to raise $72 billion over five years - would be acceptable to the administration.

But administration officials, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said Clinton could live with scaling back the tax back by about $20 billion.

The officials said Clinton at this point did not want to abandon a broad-based energy tax - based on the heat content as measured in British thermal units - entirely.

However, Clinton himself seemed less than adamant when asked about the tax at a picture-taking session at the start of Monday's meeting.

He said only that he wanted the final bill to have "an energy component" that would promote energy conservation and clean fuels.

Clinton said he was giving Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen and Budget Director Leon Panetta broad negotiating powers.

Gimme a kiss, porker

Derrell Rogers, center, Texas Employment Commission regional director for this area, puckered up to kiss Erica, a Vietnamese pot-bellied pig at the Hereford TEC office last week, as employees of the office look on. Rogers pulled his stunt after pledging to kiss a pig at the TEC office that raised the most money per capita in a recent contest sponsored by the International Association of Personnel in Employment Security. The Hereford office won the contest among the 41 counties in Rogers' region.

Lawmakers divided on DOD plans

Lubbock misses cut in bid for accounting center

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some lawmakers are critical of Defense Secretary Les Aspin's new plan to streamline the Pentagon's financial operations, while others remain warily optimistic that their cities may end up winners in the long-running jobs contest.

Lubbock, Texas, and 19 other cities had been under consideration for one of several regional Defense Finance Accounting Service centers until Aspin halted the process in mid-March. The 20 semifinalists were culled from 112 cities in 33 states in a process begun by the Bush administration.

The semifinalists, seeking one of several regional finance centers that would have brought anywhere from 4,000 to 7,000 jobs, put together multimillion-dollar packages to sweeten the pot.

Aspin was troubled by the economic incentives, saying he had qualms about the propriety of communities putting up millions of dollars for centers the Pentagon should be bankrolling.

The new DFAS process Aspin unveiled Monday eliminates the need for cities to provide economic incentives. But critics say it also gives few if any advantages to the 20 cities that spent countless hours and dollars putting together their bids. Lubbock spent about $250,000 in public and private money to put together its package. Another semifinalist, Oklahoma City, spent about $300,000 promoting its incentives package.

"Our starting point for the DFAS review will be the 20 communities that were under consideration during the previous process," Aspin wrote lawmakers Monday. "Their effort has been considerable and they will be given full consideration in this new process."

While the 20 cities remain contenders, they don't come into the new process with any special advantages over other communities that may throw their hats into the ring, Pentagon spokeswoman Susan Hansen confirmed.

"Having communities bid and compete holds down taxpayer costs," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "And I am stunned that an administration that is slashing defense now throws away tens of millions of dollars of savings."

Lubbock Mayor David Langston also expressed disappointment, noting that his city's $88 million bid was freely offered up by residents who endorsed a half-cent sales tax hike to finance the proposal. "That was the one thing that our community had to offer that some communities couldn't offer."

Texans weren't the only ones questioning the process.

Ken Gibb, director of economic and community development for Bangor, Maine, said he was frustrated by the decision because the cities had made a good faith effort under rules created by the Pentagon.

"This is not over," Gibb said. "But it's going to be much more difficult because of the expanded competition."

Gary Pence of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce said his city would remain in the running. But, he added, "I doubt if you'd see anybody want to put a lot more money into the process."

Under Aspin's new directive, DFAS will perform an economic analysis leading to a consolidation of more than 300 sites nationwide to anywhere from five to 15 centers.

Four criteria will be considered: cost to the government, maintenance of government service, use of defense assets rendered useless in the post-Cold War era, and good labor supply.

"It would appear that Lubbock would have a really difficult time reaching the criteria," said Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock. "I don't want to appear pessimistic, but on the other hand I think reality is setting in."

As part of its analysis, DFAS also will examine whether it would be more cost-efficient to lease office space in the five cities where the Pentagon has major accounting operations. Some 11,000 people are employed at the five central locations in Denver; Cleveland; Indianapolis; Kansas City, Mo.; and Columbus, Ohio. Another 16,000 employees are spread out in more than 300 other sites.

DFAS also will examine whether excess Defense Department space currently vacant or due to become vacant under the base-closing process could be used.

The semifinalists were: Lubbock, Texas; Bangor, Maine; Cleveland, Columbus and Youngstown, Ohio; Shreveport, La.; Denver; Indianapolis and Evansville, Ind.; Huntsville, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Macon, Ga.; New Orleans; Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Lawton, Okla.; Pensacola, Fla.; Saginaw, Mich.; San Bernardino, Calif.; and Southbridge, Mass.

Evangelist says facts 'doctored' in program

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - The Rev. Robert Tilton claims "PrimeTime Live" doctored facts about his ministry to fit what he calls its slanted expose.

Tilton left the stand Monday afternoon after repeatedly claiming ABC anchor Diane Sawyer and her staff ignored, omitted or slanted information to suit their purposes in the segments.

"It's quite obvious they just tape-edited it and fabricated it as they went along," Tilton said, interpreting the segment as he showed it to the courtroom via television monitor.

The Texas evangelist pointed out what he said were inaccuracies in the report, and claimed derogatory remarks about him actually were coming from the ABC reporter rather than the people featured in the program.

ABC has said it stands by its story. Tilton is asking U.S. District Judge Thomas Brett to bar ABC from rebroadcasting the segment during summer reruns. It originally aired in November 1991 and again in July 1992.

Tilton's request is a precursor to a libel lawsuit filed against ABC News Inc., Sawyer, producer Robbie Gordon and Capital Cities ABC Inc.

The segment alleges Tilton trashed prayer requests after removing contributions, bought holy items from Taiwan and falsely claimed to run an orphanage in Haiti.

Tilton claims the expose has devastated his followers' faith in him and prevents him from being an effective minister.

He said one implication in the ABC report was that he had little to do with the support of 12 Guatemalan private schools.

Hereford man hurt in wreck near Claude

Kevin Hull, 21, of Hereford and a friend, Robert Babcock, were seriously injured in a one-vehicle accident early Monday morning about three miles west of Claude.

Hull, a student at Clarendon Junior College, was driving the 1991 Ford pickup about 2:30 a.m. Monday, according to a DPS trooper, when the vehicle drifted off the road, hit several highway signs and rolled about 2 1/2 times.

Hull, son of Mary Sue Hull of Hereford, was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital and was listed in serious condition with internal injuries Monday afternoon. He reportedly sustained a punctured lung, lacerated kidney, ruptured spleen and broken ribs.

Babcock, 20, was taken to St. Anthony's and had surgery Monday morning. He sustained head and neck injuries and was listed in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Baby boomers still have much to offer as they age

Baby boomers who have rounded the corner to forty something and dread the ravages of advanced age can relax. For a while. Good news comes from a report in the March/April issue of Contingencies, the magazine of the actuarial profession published by the American Academy of Actuaries.

The Contingencies article reports on the results of the Baltimore Longitudinal Study on Aging conducted by the National Institutes of Health (NIH). The study, begun in 1958, has followed 1,124 men and women who are given a series of 109 physiological and psychological tests every two years. The results show that many long-held beliefs about aging are nothing more than old wives' (and husbands') tales.

The research done to date shows that aging brings only "gradual and modest" changes in mental performance before age 70. For example, in tests of ability to respond to infrequent and unpredictable stimuli, 65-year-old men performed as well as or better than much younger men. People up to age 70 also showed no decline in ability to solve problems logically. In fact, the study shows that older people whose memories have faded are often able to draw on their larger stock of information and experience to solve problems better than younger people.

Average mental performance does decline after age 70, but not uniformly. Tests indicate a strong correlation between mental agility and longevity: Study subjects who retained problem-solving ability past 70 lived longer than their less sharp coevals.

Aging is not altogether a bed of roses, however. A good thing too, for the flowers' fragrance becomes increasingly difficult to appreciate: The study shows an average decline in the ability to discern smells beginning at age 45.

One notion long associated with the elderly is disproved by the NIH study: Negative personality changes are not linked to the aging process. Administering the Guilford-Zimmerman Temperament Survey to a population of 200 over ten years showed no increase in average levels of depression, withdrawal, or apathy. It seems the cranky old lady and crotchety old man are merely continuing the behavior of their unhappy youth and miserable middle age.

American society, demographically dominated by the generation that came of age in the 1960s, is facing the graying of its citizenry and its work force. The U.S. will no longer have the luxury of disregarding the talents of its elderly. Perhaps this study can teach baby boomers that even as they age, they will still have much to offer. Chronology is not destiny.

Legion Auxiliary reports big success on Poppy Day sale

During an American Legion Auxiliary meeting recently, plans were made to send two delegates to Girls' State June 15-25.

President Betty Jo Carlson reported the Hereford membership is 94.4 percent toward goal and the district goal is 95 percent. She reported that Chris Kimball received the ALA Scholarship for $250.

The president reported the Memorial Day Poppy distribution was a success this year, and the Auxiliary should thank volunteers and all citizens in the community who participated. Flags were also posted in the Hereford cemeteries for the Memorial Day holiday and some Auxiliary families volunteered for that service.

The nominating committee had met and will announce the 1993-94 slate of officers at the July meeting.

A "thank you" note was read from Clara Trowbridge and family in the loss of her husband, Ned Trowbridge.

The next Legion and Auxiliary meeting will be an ice cream social on July 5. Hostesses were Bea Cargo and Bernice Layman, with Irene Berger helping serve. Members present were Carlson, Dorothy Shannon, Alta Hudson, Irene Berger, Bernice Layman, Ella Caudle, Anita Wilhelm, Bea Cargo and Lou Ann LaFever.

Time would stand still on the surface of a black hole, a superdense body created when a massive star collapses of its own gravitational pull.

Library displayer for June

HHS class of '43 holds 50th anniversary reunion here

The Hereford High School Class of 1943 had its 50th anniversary reunion in conjunction with the Mid-Plains Pioneer celebration held here May 29.

Honored guest was Mac Best, the coach of 1940 who started a series of district championship football teams. The class met Friday night at the Senior Citizen Center and again Saturday morning at the Pioneer Celebration. The class was recognized by L.J. Clark, president of both organizations.

Mrs. Phyllis Dishman gave the response and Bill Hutson worded the invocation. Saturday afternoon the group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bartley Dowell (Jeane is a 1943 graduate.)

A dinner was held at the American Legion building Saturday night. At a business meeting, Kenneth Rudd was elected as president and Marjorie Thomas as secretary for the next five years. Phyllis Radovich Dishman and Carlisle Fry Lehr gave an entertaining program on activities of the class in the '40s. A special highlight of the meeting was that Gerald Banner, house-bound for several years, was able to attend.

Those attending the meetings included: Frankie Potter Barrett and husband (Richard) and her sister, Betty Jo Carlson; Gerald Banner; David Neal Beavers; Betty Sue Morton Burnett; Mary Ann Acker Carroll; Jewell Clark Cheatham; Harold Clark and wife (Bonnie); L.J. Clark and wife (Wilma); Erva Fluitt

Cornelius; Bess Hagar Cottrell; Frances Gollehon Crume and husband (Lloyd); Thelma Malm Curb; Virginia Curtsinger; Phyllis Radovich Dishman; Jeane Williams Dowell and husband (Bartley); Nona Dean Rose Dowell and husband (R.L.); Vera Rea Gray; Bonnie Miller Hamilton; Harold Harvey and wife (Rae Delle); Robert Hickman and wife (Joyce); Bill D. Hutson and wife (Wynelle); Texie Ruth Reynolds Jarman; Betty Ann Dunlap Jones; Kathryn Danforth Kendall; Marcellia Koelser; Carlisle Fry Lehr and husband (Theron); Edna Mae Wilhelm Marnell and husband (Speck); Evelyn Walker McCrary; Joe "Red" Merrill and wife (Naomi); Ruth Taylor Miller and husband (Roy); George Olson and wife (Betty); Juanita Kelley Owen and husband (Warren); Marjorie Malm Paul and husband (John); John Douglas Pitman and wife (Mary Jane); Burnice Rhodes and wife (Bessie); Kenneth Rudd and wife (Neta); Billie Louise Crawford Short; Ella Mae Parsons Sweeney and husband (Joe); Marjorie Morrison Thomas and husband (Jim); George Turrentine and wife (Johnnie); Thurman Williamson and wife (Elizabeth); Elvin Wilson and wife (Bobbi); Billie Sexton Wolf and husband (Charles).

Teachers who came to share this time with the class were: Coach Mac Best and wife (Fenton); Lois McCasland Gilliland; Katherine Kirby Perrin, and Kathryn Easter Vardell and husband (O.F.).

Pull the plug on pests

As recently as 1935, before widespread mosquito control, 4,000 Americans died of malaria each year. During the summer of 1878, a mosquito-carried yellow fever epidemic affected 132 cities and killed 16,000 Americans. It's been said that history repeats itself.

Not if pest control operators have anything to say about it.

Control and monitoring of public health pests through integrated pest management (IPM), including the use of specialty pesticides, has greatly improved America's health and quality of life. Pest-management programs keep pest populations in check.

A pest-free living environment: -Wards off disease. Pests, such as mosquitoes, no longer pose the disease threats of the past, when cities and nations were wracked by outbreaks of malaria, yellow fever and typhus. Since 1940, the average American's life expectancy has climbed from 63 years, to 75.

But the battle continues. Rats still bite more than 45,000 people annually. Lyme disease, transmitted by the deer tick, infects thousands each year. Cockroaches transmit digestive tract disorders, including food poisoning, dysentery and diarrhea.

Protects the food supply. Without pest control, rodents and insects would dine on much of the food meant for human consumption. Even with specialty pesticides in wide use, experts estimate that rodents still destroy enough food each year to feed 200 million people.

Enhances property values. Pest-free homes and offices enjoy a longer life span and maintain more of their original value.

Without proper chemical controls, termites and other wood destroying insects spell big trouble. It's estimated that worldwide they cause nearly $2.5 billion in structural damage annually. In the United States alone, termites cause an estimated $800 million worth of damage to more than 600,000 structures.

Boosts outdoor recreation. Popular tropical tourist destinations, such as Florida, once were seen as outfit places for humans to live or visit. Pest control cleared the way for development and commercialization of recreational facilities.

So, take comfort, most pest-related maladies have been committed to the history books.

Kitchens brothers capture Hereford Partnership title

Keith and Kelly Kitchens shot a low-ball 66 Saturday and a 67 Sunday to capture the championship of the United Way/Hereford Partnership Golf Tournament.

The Kitchens brothers--both former outstanding Whiteface athletes--also won the title last year. Keith is athletic director at Shallowater and Kelly is a coach in the Houston area.

The team of Paul Hubbard and Craig Nieman, both of Hereford, took second place with a 67-69--136, three shots behind the winners. Paige Burelsmith of Abernathy and Chuck Darden of Shallowater were third at 140. Most teams had higher scores Sunday due to high winds.

The tourney had only three flights this year. The first and second flights were grouped according to handicaps and scoring was based on low nets. Butch White and Dewayne Cassels won the first flight with a 60-64--124 low-ball net. J.R. Blackwell of Amarillo and Steve Sanders of Hereford took second at 126, while the team of Scott McGinty/Mikel Walser won third at 127.

Second flight honors went to Leo Hollowell of Hereford and Pete Flack of Killeen with a low net of 119. Chick Russell of Amarillo and Bob Sims of Hereford won second with a 125, while the team of Don Martin and Cuby Kitchens captured third place with a 126.

There was no winner in the Hereford Rotary Club's Hole-in-One contest. Nobody even hit the green, Rotarian Chester Nolen said. An ace on No. 10 during Sunday's finals would have earned $25,000.

"When you add up an 180-yard hole with a 40-mile per hour wind--it was a little bit of a difficult hole," Nolen said.

The brother combination of Kelly (left) and Keith Kitchens won the United Way/Hereford Partnership Golf Tournament. The tourney was played Saturday and Sunday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Rickman finishes season as top all-around cowgirl

Hereford's Chasity Rickman finished the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association season as the year-end all-around cowgirl.

The TSHSRA finals concluded Saturday at Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo. Rickman and two other Hereford participants excelled at the finals.

After the finals, the year-end results were released, and Rickman was the winner of three of the four girls' events. She won year-end titles in breakaway roping, barrel racing and pole bending (she tied for the win in poles). She also finished second in goat tying.

Samantha Winters, also of Hereford, won Saturday's third go-round in goat tying with a time of 9.270 seconds. She won the finals average in goat tying, totalling 35.364 in three goes to beat Sonya Coy of Wheeler and her 38.858 total. Winters finished third in the year-end goat tying standings, behind Coy and Rickman.

Hereford's Justin Henderson finished second in bareback riding in both the finals average and in the year-end standings. Henderson won Saturday's third go with a score of 70.

Rickman won the finals average in pole bending with a total of 64.282, nudging Hub City's Deana Schwartz and her 64.802. In Saturday's round, Rickman finished fifth in pole bending (21.410 seconds), second in barrel racing (17.431) and fourth in breakaway roping (5.427).

Winters placed sixth in breakaway roping (15.340) on Saturday.

Finally, a cowboy with Hereford connections performed well in the team roping competition. Jake Monroe, a native of Hereford now living in Amarillo, won the finals average in team roping. He and partner Brook Beardon of Dumas totaled 45.966 to win by nine seconds.

Monroe's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Hall of Hereford. His parents are Kerrie and Jimmy Monroe of Amarillo.

Royals win in 'new' stadium

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals changed the name of their stadium, but not their luck.

Playing for the first time in renamed Kauffman Stadium, the Royals took advantage of two mistakes in the first inning Monday night and beat the New York Yankees 8-3.

The ballpark had been Royals Stadium since it opened in 1973. It was officially changed Monday to pay tribute to team founder and owner Ewing Kauffman, 76. Kauffman recently announced he has bone cancer.

"I am honored by it. It couldn't happen at a better time, when the team's playing the way it is," he said.

The AL West-leading Royals won for the seventh time in eight games. They are 21-8 since starting the season 10-16.

In other games, Toronto topped California 4-2; Baltimore beat Oakland 3-2; Chicago defeated Detroit 7-3; Milwaukee stopped Seattle 5-3; and Texas beat Minnesota 8-2. The Boston at Cleveland game was postponed because of rain.

In the National League, it was Atlanta 4, San Diego 0; Cincinnati 12, Montreal 3; Philadelphia 7, Houston 5; New York 7, Chicago 2; and Florida 5, Los Angeles 3.

Three Hereford girls make AAU all-tourney teams

Three Hereford girls made all-tournament teams in the West Texas AAU Girls' Basketball Tournament, which was played over the weekend in Amarillo.

Julie Rampley and Catie Betzen of the Hereford Heat 13-under team, and Danielle Cornelius of the Hereford Heat 14-under made all-tournament teams. One team was picked for each age division.

Rampley's and Betzen's team made the best showing of any Hereford team, coming back from the losers' bracket to finish third.

Cornelius' team lost its first two games in the double elimination tournament. Another team from Hereford, the 12-under Hereford Hotshots, won its first game but lost its next two.

Vagrant, the winner of the 1876 Kentucky Derby, was from a dam named Lazy.

On Sept. 11, 1974, the Cardinals defeated the Mets, 4-3, in a 25-inning night game.

Sanderson, Blea excel in all-star game

Hereford's Richard Sanderson and Steven Blea led the North team to a 22-6 win in the ASA Greenbelt Bowl, a high school all-star football game which was played Saturday in Childress.

Quarterback Sanderson ran for a team high 63 yards on eight carries, including a game-clinching eight-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter. Sanderson was the co-MVP for offensive backs along with fellow North quarterback Joe McGill of Highland Park.

Blea received the MVP award for offensive lineman. Hereford coach Danny Haney attended the game and said Blea was an easy choice for his position's MVP award.

"Steven dominated the line of scrimmage, in the running game particularly," Haney said. "They put two or three (linemen) out there and he blocked every one of them."

Sanderson was the North team's quarterback during the first and fourth quarters. (McGill took the second and third quarters, and he threw for 91 yards.)

Sanderson moved the team in the first quarter, Haney said, but they didn't score. In the fourth, though, Sanderson's option running accounted for most of the yards on the final touchdown drive.

"In the last quarter he came in and moved them 80 yards for a touchdown, and I think he had about 58 yards (on the last drive)," Haney said.

Earlier touchdowns were scored by Dumas' James Smith on a three-yard run and by Randall's Tim Cox on a 54-yard run. The South's touchdown came in the first quarter on a 12-yard run by Cory Sanders of Tulia. Sanders led all rushers with 73 yards.

Haney said Sanderson's and Blea's performance was well worth the trip to Childress.

"I was extremely proud of them," Haney said of his two former players. "It spoke well for the team that just graduated. Of course that never hurts the school or the community when they perform well. I was real pleased with what they did."

Nets' Petrovic dies in wreck

By NESHA STARCEVIC
AP Sports Writer

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) - Drazen Petrovic, a raw European talent who developed into one of the finest NBA shooting guards in two-plus seasons with the New Jersey Nets, died in an automobile accident. He was 28.

Petrovic was killed at the scene about 5:20 p.m. Monday, about 15 miles north of Ingolstadt, on the highway going to Munich, police said. He was traveling in a Volkswagen Golf with two women and was sitting in the front passenger seat.

In heavy rain, the Golf slammed into a trailer truck that had skidded on the slippery road. The driver of the Golf apparently had to brake suddenly and lost control, hitting the rail separating lanes headed in the opposite direction and then hitting the truck.

The two 23-year-old women from Munich suffered serious injuries.

Brian McIntyre, NBA vice president in charge of public relations, said, "Obviously, we're saddened to hear the news about Drazen. It's a tragedy, and our hopes and thoughts go out to his family."

Petrovic, who played on his country's silver-medal winning team in the Barcelona Olympics, had just finished playing for Croatia in a special qualifying tournament in Wroclaw, Poland. Croatia advanced to the June 22 European championships in Germany.

In his last game, Petrovic scored 30 points in Croatia's 94-90 loss Sunday to Slovenia, another former Yugoslav republic.

Petrovic, selected to the all-NBA third team, averaged 22.3 points on 52 percent shooting and was one of the league's top 3-point shooters.

However, his season ended in turmoil.

His contract with the Nets had expired and Petrovic was upset the club did not offer him a new contract until March. After the Nets were eliminated by Cleveland in the first round of the playoffs, Petrovic said he probably would play in Europe next season rather than return to the Nets.

Petrovic was acquired by the Nets on Jan. 23, 1991, from the Portland Trail Blazers for a first-round draft pick in 1992. He was an unrefined player when he arrived, but he developed quickly with added playing time.

He averaged 12.6 points in 61 games after the trade and boosted his output to 20.6 points the following year. He led the Nets in scoring this season.

Coplen signs

Coplen signs with SWOSU

Hereford's Greg Coplen signed a letter of intent on Saturday to play tennis at Southwestern Oklahoma State University. Coplen also will be a placekicker for the football team.

Rocky Powell, the head tennis coach and assistant football coach at Southwestern Oklahoma State, gets two athletes for the price of one.

"I know he's a real good tennis player," Powell said, at Saturday's signing party at the HHS fieldhouse. "We like to get a couple of good tennis players every year, and he's one of our top freshman prospects."

Also, we wanted to get as a kicker for our football team."

Powell made Coplen feel very wanted.

"Coach Powell—he called all the time," Coplen said. "He's call to check up on me every three nights."

Coplen also was attracted to the university.

"I went to the school and liked what I saw," he said. "I met a couple of the players, and they were real nice. It's a good school with a good program...I expect that I can go in and play a top position."

He added that the Southwestern tennis team was ranked fourth in the nation in NAIA, the small college version of the NCAA, and the team did not lose any players to graduation.

Coplen played on the varsity tennis team for three years and capped off his career by advancing to the state tennis tournament last month as a singles player. He served as the placekicker for the Herd football team during his senior season, connecting on 2-of-6 field goals and 31-of-37 extra point tries.

Morrison wins in Foreman's (possibly) last fight of career

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Age and a lively young Tommy Morrison didn't do in George Foreman so much as a soft heart.

Once a glowering fighter with a mean streak, Foreman came to the end of his second incarnation in the ring as a man who finally lost the will to put his opponent away.

A fighter can lose speed, quickness, even power, but when he loses viciousness, that killer instinct, he is finished, as Foreman surely was Monday night after dropping a 12-round unanimous decision to Morrison.

"When I got in the ring tonight, I hit Tommy Morrison with a 1-2 and he bowed his head on my chest and I backed away and let him off," Foreman said in the locker room, his right eye almost closed and both cheekbones red. "When a guy starts doing that, maybe it's time to get away."

"It's strange. I almost got him going for the knockout in the last round. But then I said, 'This kid has gone 12 rounds, why take him out now?' Maybe I should have gone for the knockout."

He spoke plainly, not bragging that he might have won, just acknowledging that he "let the kid off the hook a few times." Asked if he had any regrets, Foreman shook his head.

"I was doing something decent," he said. "I was teaching kids that you don't need all this killer stuff, all this animosity. That's probably the last contribution I'll make to the sport."

If this was Foreman's final fight at 44 - he said he didn't think he would box again, yet left the door open for a title bout if one were offered - it marked the emergence of Morrison as a serious contender and a likely opponent for Lennox Lewis later this year.

Morrison, 24 and with a 37-1 record, won the vacant and relatively meaningless WBO heavyweight title, and would fight Lewis for the WBC belt that Riddick Bowe dumped in the garbage.

Morrison legitimately won the fight, throwing more punches, landing more effective ones and getting the benefit of a point deducted from Foreman by the referee in the 10th round for a third warning against unintentional low blows. But few ringside observers agreed with the wide margins on the scorecards of the judges, who had Morrison winning 117-110 on two cards, 118-109 on a third.

"I was hurt a few times," said Morrison, 30 pounds lighter at 226. "Because of the slower hand speed he had, I was able to see the punches and roll with them."

The decision probably ended Foreman's quarter-century of boxing history, a grand run that began as a fearsome, much slimmer man winning the Olympic gold medal in 1968 and parading around the ring with a tiny American flag.

There's a TV series in his future now, appropriately casting him as a retired boxer. He can quit with his pride and senses and rotund good looks intact, and eat to his heart's content. His record stands at 72-4-0 with 67 knockouts.

He can be satisfied that he not only bounced Joe Frazier all over the canvas 20 years ago to win the heavyweight championship and survived an ego-crushing loss to Muhammad Ali in Zaire, but also won a new generation of fans with his remarkable comeback crusade.

Comebacks reign at CWS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - No lead apparently is safe at the College World Series this year. Ask Arizona State, Texas or Texas A&M.

Louisiana State Sunday night set the tone for the tournament with a six-run bottom of the eighth rally past Texas A&M 13-8. Oklahoma State needed only a pair of runs in its eighth to slip past top-ranked Arizona State 5-4 Monday, then Wichita State used a four-run eighth to overcome Texas' 6-1 lead in a 7-6 Shocker victory late Monday.

The results set up tonight's elimination games matching Texas A&M (53-10) and Long Beach State (44-18) in Bracket One, followed by Texas (51-15) against Oklahoma State (44-16) in Bracket Two.

"I told you guys this the other night. Don't you guys ever leave a game we're involved in," Wichita State coach Gene Stephenson said.

Casey Blake's two-run single tied the game for the Shockers in the bottom of the eighth against Texas, then a Longhorn error by shortstop Tim Harkrider with two outs let Blake score the game-winner.

"The third inning we were down a little bit but the coach told us it was still early and we could come back," said Wichita State designated hitter Darren Dreifort, whose 11th-inning home run lifted the Shockers to a 4-3 victory over top-ranked Arizona State in Saturday's first round.

Dreifort hit a two-run shot, his 11th homer in 11 games, to cut a 6-1 Texas lead to 6-3 in the sixth.

"It was a great ball game, a tough one to lose," said Texas coach Cliff Gustafson. "We couldn't hold on to it. They're the kind of team that you feel you have to stay ahead of late because of their bullpen. They have lots of heart."

Wichita State used four walks, three by freshman reliever J.D. Smart, and a pair of hits to get its four runs in the bottom of the eighth. Shocker relief ace Jamie Bluma (8-2) then put the Longhorns down in order in the ninth.

Smart took the loss, his first in seven decisions, after relieving Ryan Kjos. Kjos limited Wichita State to six hits before Gustafson removed him.

"I thought he pitched well but he didn't have much good stuff left," Gustafson said of the pitching change. "I didn't want him throwing breaking pitches to Dreifort. So I brought in J.D."

Monday's first game was marred by a bench-emptying shoving match that resulted in ejection of ASU first baseman Doug Newstrom and Cowboy catcher Joe Wallace.

Oklahoma State's Ernesto Rivera singled in the game-winning run, while reliever Jay Hogue was shutting down the Sun Devils from the pivotal sixth inning on.

"This was nothing new for us," said Rivera. "We get confidence from our pitching staff."

"I made good pitches," said Hogue. "I can perform under the pressure. It seems like when I come in to pitch we start to rally."

Hogue (8-0) threw four innings of two-hit relief.

The Cowboys tied it 4-4 in the eighth on a two-out walk to Jason Heath and pinch singles by Thad Chaddrick and Hunter Triplett. Rivera then delivered the game winner off Arizona State starter Dax Winslett (10-5).

"I wanted to step up," Rivera said. "I saw the pitch I wanted and hit it."

Cody McKay, Arizona State's No. 8 batter, hit his third homer with Todd Cady on in the second, and ninth-place batter Sean Tyler hit his second career homer, both in the College World Series, with none on in the fifth.

Sean Hugo singled home a run in the first and Roberto Lopez had a run-scoring single in the third for Oklahoma State.

In the sixth, Newstrom doubled and scored on Paul LoDuca's single. The throw from Heath in right field hit Newstrom as he crossed the plate in front of OSU catcher Wallace and a shoving match ensued when Wallace went to retrieve the loose ball.

"I think it's kind of normal," Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward said of the confrontation.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your column in the Stars and Stripes newspaper in Ankara, Turkey, where I work for a contractor. Our greatest links to what's happening in the United States are CNN and Stars and Stripes.

Recently, there was an article in Stars and Stripes about how LSD is making a big comeback among the youth of America. I was a teenager in the '60s, and although I never was involved in the drug scene, I remember hearing a lot of horror stories about young people jumping in front of trains, off roofs and out of windows while under the influence of LSD.

I am very concerned for this new generation of LSD users. I realize most teenagers do not listen to their elders, but I do feel that a great many of them read your column and pay attention to what you say. Maybe if you would encourage readers who have had some experiences with LSD in the '60s to write, you could publish some letters describing how this drug ruined their youth and possibly their adult years as well. Some families lost loved ones because of LSD, and perhaps they could tell today's teens how it affected their lives.

Please do what you can to open the eyes of this new generation.--K.A.S.

DEAR K.A.S.: I too, have heard and read that LSD is becoming popular among young people again because it is cheap and easy to come by. The prospect of this dangerous drug making a comeback is bone-chilling.

This mind-altering drug has been responsible for many deaths. Flashbacks which can occur years after the user has sworn off can be frightening. Thank you for suggesting that individuals who have had experience with LSD write to me. I will be happy to share some of the letters with my readers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife is a very good cook, and she also bakes the best pies in the world. What I am writing about is the pies which caused a lot of trouble last Friday.

"Erma" baked two cherry pies and put them on the counter for cooling. They looked wonderful. About an hour later, I went back into the kitchen and noticed that two slices had been taken out of one of the pies. I went to get a plate and a knife to help myself to a slice when Erma walked in. "What do you think you're doing?" she asked. "I'm going to have a piece of pie," I replied. "No, you're not," she yelled. "That's for company."

Anne Boleyn, the second wife of England's King Henry VIII, was beheaded in 1536 after being convicted of adultery.

"Who had the two pieces that are missing?" I asked. "Oh," she said, "I put them aside for 'Ruth' (our daughter) and her husband."

That really burned me up, but I didn't say anything--just walked out of the house to cool off. I need to know from you if I am right to feel like a second-class citizen in our house. Please answer in the paper.--P.O'd in Ga.

DEAR GA.: Second-class citizen? Undesirable alien is more like it.

I hope the pie incident is rarity and Erma doesn't treat you that way all the time. Make sure she sees this letter. The woman's lack of consideration is disgraceful.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend told me that I should not use aluminum cookware or aluminum foil or drink beverages that come in aluminum cans because it could cause Alzheimer's. Is there any truth in this?--Concerned in Kentucky

DEAR CONCERNED: Not a shred of truth in any of the above. Forget it.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Toujour Amis Study Club at Hotel Turkey

Club spends night in Turkey

Members of Toujour Amis Study Club recently spent the night at the Hotel Turkey in Turkey, Texas. The group drove to Turkey where they toured the hotel which is classified as a historic landmark. Supper was served outdoors from a chuckwagon which consisted of chicken cooked over mesquite, ham, beans, bread, fresh fruit, and homemade cherry cobbler.

Later in the evening secret pal gifts were exchanged and secret pals were revealed to end out the club year. Games were played and exciting secrets unveiled.

Sunday morning a delicious homestyle breakfast of flapjacks, sausage, fresh strawberries, and juice were served to club members. After breakfast club members were then taken on an old fashioned surrey ride around the streets of Turkey.

Those members present were Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Patti Brown, Trish Brown, Kim Buckley, Tami Charest, Lisa Formby, Donna Kemp, Lisa Klett, Sarah Lawson, Leisa Lewis, Lori Paetzold, Becky Reinart, Jill Savoini, Cindy Simons, and Donna West.

The U.S. government does not recognize the term "penny;" the government calls the coin a "cent."

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - One day following adjournment of the Texas Legislature, State District Judge Scott McCown said public schools will remain open — at least for the coming year — under a new plan aimed at equalizing wealth between property-rich and property-poor school districts.

But Gov. Ann Richards' signature on the multiple-choice plan was barely dry before its legality was thrown into doubt when lawyers for property-poor districts announced they would challenge its constitutionality.

"There are still inequities in the system," said Al Kauffman, an attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund that represents the plaintiffs in the long-running school finance lawsuit.

Three Reasons Plan Unfair
Kauffman listed three reasons the current system is unfair and should be declared unconstitutional:

- It doesn't provide property-poor school districts equal access to school revenue at similar tax rates.
- It doesn't address inequities in classrooms and facilities.
- It leaves a gap of $600 to $1,000 in per-student funding between property-poor and property-rich school districts.

Since 1989, the Texas Supreme Court has struck down the state's school finance system three times. The court's last order said school funds would be halted June 1 unless lawmakers had devised a constitutional plan.

Without judging the new plan, Judge McCown declined to strike down the funding measure.

"The court presumes that an act of the Legislature signed into law by the governor is constitutionally sufficient," said McCown.

Even if challenges are filed, McCown indicated that schools likely would remain open through the coming year.

Utilities Lose Tax Break
In the final hours of the session, the House and Senate discarded the 86-page Public Utility Commission sunset bill and passed a one-page measure extending the life of the agency for two more years.

Disagreements over allowing telephone and electric utilities to keep $800 million in "phantom taxes" prompted lawmakers to merely leave the PUC unchanged while a study is done.

In the eyes of newspaper publishers and consumers across the state, the issue was favorably resolved.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he would authorize a study of Texas' telecommunications industry to be conducted during the legislative interim. A $400,000 appropriation already has been set aside for the study.

House Speaker Pete Lancy, D-Hale Center said a thorough study could help any future utility bill that includes regulatory changes by preventing such a measure from becoming bogged down by special-interest groups.

Leaders Praise Session
Lt. Gov. Bullock and House Speaker Lancy said they were pleased with the accomplishments of the 73rd legislative session.

Bullock said he had set out to have "one of the most productive sessions in the history of the Texas Senate. I think we did."

Lancy said he considered the school finance bill the "biggest success" of the session, his first as speaker.

Session highlights include:
■ A $70.1 billion two-year budget that holds the line on taxes and makes no major cuts in services.

■ Lawmakers voted to create a system of 22,000 "state jail" beds for non-violent criminals.

■ Overhaul of the state's penal code, doubling the prison time for violent criminals.

■ The governor has already signed bills revamping products liability laws and making it harder for foreigners to sue in Texas courts.

■ Passed legislation to make health insurance more available and affordable for small businesses employing three to 50 people.

■ Passed a bill to immunize children against preventable diseases.

■ Voted to build 10,000 prison beds and fund 7,000 prison beds for substance abuse treatment.

Hunters, Speeders Aided
Lawmakers sent Gov. Richards two bills about two things Texans are known for — hunting and speeding. Under the legislation:
— Motorists ticketed for driving 70 mph in a 65-mile zone on interstate highways would not see the ticket reflected in their auto insurance rates.

— People who interfere with or harass hunters would face up to six months in jail and a $1,500 fine.

Other Highlights
■ In less than three months, the Governor's Fugitive Squad has captured eight of Texas' most wanted parole violators. "We have sent a message to the parolees in this state that they had better not mess up, or they'll be going back to prison," Gov. Richards said.

■ Senators elected John Whitmire, D-Houston, as president pro tempore. Members praised the Houston Democrat for directing the overhaul of the state penal code.

Texas farmer says Btu tax could raise costs by $5 acre

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
FARWELL, Texas (AP) - Irrigation sprayers in the summer corn fields run round-the-clock in this windy Panhandle town on the New Mexico border.

Farmer Bert Williams and his neighbors fear a proposed energy tax could drive up the cost of running each pump as much as $1,000.

Not only irrigation - every step from hauling seeds, fertilizing, to harvesting and delivering crops - would cost more if the Btu tax becomes reality. Texans say the high energy-use farmer would bear a disproportionate share of the Btu burden.

"It's hard for us to take any more hits," the 66-year-old Williams said. "There's got to be a stopping point somewhere."

The Btu, or British thermal unit, is the energy unit upon which a tax would be based. The proposal is part of President Clinton's $500 billion deficit-reduction package being considered this week by the Senate Finance Committee.

Texas Department of Agriculture predicts the Btu would add 7.5 cents for a gallon of gasoline, 8.3 cents for a gallon of diesel and about 4.6 percent more for each kilowatt hour of electricity.

"This is not just a bad tax, it's a bad and confusing tax," state Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry says in anti-Btu speeches. "It's a tax that probably will require another bureaucracy just to administer it."

Then we can pay more money to finance the bureaucrats who are collecting more of our tax dollars. It just doesn't make any sense."

But Rep. Kika de la Garza, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, defends the levy as part of a comprehensive plan to cut the deficit and spur investment. The resulting economic growth would actually help farmers, the Texas Democrat said.

Texas A&M University economists estimate the Btu tax would raise production costs $5 an acre in the state.
"Farmers are at the mercy of the marketplace," said Ed Smith, an A&M extension economist. "On costs that are passed on to them, they are the taker. A producer on his own is incapable of passing costs on."

"Texas farmers have had a tough time making ends meet for the last five years anyway," said Steve Pringle, national affairs director for the Texas Farm Bureau and agricultural representative for the new Affordable Energy Alliance.

The energy tax "directly increases their cost of production and therefore will cost directly from the bottom line in terms of net income," Pringle said. "This tax will put marginal producers out of business."

Three on Clinton's short list for court

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is keeping the Beltway crowd guessing about his choice for the U.S. Supreme Court.

The scuttlebutt early Monday had Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt as a shoe-in. Can't miss. No. 1.

Not so, a White House official said later in the day.
"There is more than one candidate at play here," press secretary Dee Dee Myers said.
A senior administration official said Monday that Clinton had three names on his short list: Babbitt and federal appeals judges Stephen Breyer of Boston and Gilbert Merritt of Nashville, Tenn.

Even that came with a caveat: Clinton has a habit of expanding his list at the last minute.

"Stay tuned," the president said. "I have not made a decision yet, but I'm working on it."

Myers said Clinton would not make his choice before the end of the week.
He could still turn to federal judges Ruth Bader Ginsburg of Washington or Stephanie Seymour of Tulsa, Okla., to replace retiring Justice Byron White. Other possibilities include federal judges Jon O. Newman and Jose Cabranes, both of Connecticut.

But officials believe Babbitt, Merritt or Breyer will get the nod.
The Washington Post, quoting unidentified administration sources, reported today that Clinton already has begun a search for a replacement for Babbitt at Interior. It said Babbitt met with administration officials Sunday night for a "vetting" session to review his background.
Among those being mentioned as possible replacements for Babbitt are Colorado Gov. Roy Roemer; former North Dakota Gov. George Sinner; Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M.; and Assistant Interior Secretary Bob Armstrong.

Babbitt, 54, is a former two-term governor and attorney general in Arizona.
