Trade bill sweeps House despite veto

WASHINGTON (AP) - A veto threat hovered over major trade legislation containing curbs on imports that swept to House approval despite President Reagan's warning it was guaranteed to "plunge the world into a trade war."

Described by Reagan as "openly and rankly political" and by an aide as "an A-1 candidate for a veto," the trade bill cleared the House on a 295-15 vote Thursday and headed for

The 458-page measure also would authorize $1 billion for education, pave the way for international negotiations and make numerous other refinements in U.S. trade law ranigng from eased export controls to new tariffs.

A heavily debated provision would sent a 10 percent target for annual rollbacks in surpluses gained by Japan, Taiwan and West Germany in trade with the United States.

Critics countered that it would hurt consumers. They said any benefits would come at the expense of farmers and exporters of aircraft and roadbuilding equipment who would find themselves shut out of overseas markets.

Minutes before the House voted, Reagan told the American Retail Federation that the Democratic leadership "has put together a trade bill, rather, I should say ananti-trade bill, that is openly and rankly

"This anti-trade bill, this protectionist legislation, would have our nation violate the most basic tenets of free and fair international trade. Indeed, it would plunge the world into a trade war eroding our relations with our allies and free-world trading partners," he said.

"Economic growth, in America and around the world, would be the casualty," he said, adding the measure would "cost American consumers billions and undercut the millions of American jobs connected with foreign trade."

Democrats plan to spotlight the issue in fall congressional races, a factor that brought pressure on REpublicans to break with the administration and support the bill.

In the end, 59 Republicans supported it. The North Carolina and Pennsylvania delegations, keenly aware of plant closings in the textile and steel industries, provided heavy GOP support.

Disputes over evidence halt

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) -Disputes over admissibility of evidence twice halted testimony in the third day of the trial of W.W. "Doc" Taylor and James Gentry, charged with conspiring to defraud Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association of Hereford.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson twice directed jurors to leave the courtroom Thursday afternoon so she could hear arguments on the contested evidence.

During the first hearing, defense attorneys urged the judge to admit testimony on a report prepared by Charles S. Taylor, a former Federal Home Loan Bank Board examiner who conducted an in-depth investigation of the S&L's records in early While Taylor's main report had been used as the basis for questioning, this special, supplemental report had not.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Alexander, chief prosecutor in the case, argued that report should not be admitted since the government has never made reference to it. He also said he didn't know whether the government has a copy of the document. Taylor said he believed the special report contains hardly any informa-

But a defense attorney argued the report should be admitted because it may contain information favorable to W.W. Taylor and Gentry. Judge Robinson instructed pro secutors to try to find a copy of the report and bring it to her, so she may decide whether it is admissible. During the second hearing, defense attorneys urged the judge to instruct Taylor he must testify about a second investigation he made of the S&L's books in 1984.

Taylor had balked on the stand, saving the contents of that examination are confidential.

But Travis Shelton, Gentry's attorney, argued the second examination may reveal the S&L received more collateral for disbursements than Taylor's previous testimony has made it appear.

The second report may contain documentation of an additional $2.6 million in time-share paper given to the S&L as collateral in March 1983, Shelton said.

At the close of the hearing, Judge Robinson said, "I'm concerned about the confidentiality of those documents. I'm also concerned that this defendant have all the information that he should have. There are competing interests."

She said she would reserve judgment on the issue since other

Memorial Day weekend marks the start of summer, when the driving is speedy, and police are trying new wrinkles to enforce the sometimes unpopular 55 mph speed limit.

In some states police are being sneaky, using unmarked cars and airplanes. In others, they try to be as visible as possible, or combine both

"Speed seems to be a real problem when the warm weather hits," said Gary Whitney of the Utah Highway Patrol. "People just get out there ona sunny day and go a lot faster than they should."

The prime minister's office said the letters and photos were turned over to Antenne 2 Thursday night, but refused all comment on how it obtained them.

Sources said the letters were short notes assuring that the four were in good health. Only one of the letters carried a date, May 14.

The four were kidnapped March 8 in west Beirut as they returned from covering a meeting of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, also known as the Party of God.

Europe pays heavily for terrorism

LONDON (AP) — The Dutch have told jittery U.S. travel agents that the Netherlands is not really dangerous, and British Airways is offering 5,600 free rides across the Atlantic to show how far Europe will go to lure Americans who fear terrorism and radioactive fallout.

Airport attacks and airplane hijackings already had hurt the tourist trade prior to the U.S. bombing of Libya on April 15. But Americans became even more jittery after the air strike, fearing more terrorist activity.

Less than two weeks later a cloud of radiation spread across Europe after an accident at the Chernobyl nuclear plant in the Soviet Since then, cancellations by American visitors have reached the Tourist authorities from neutral Finland, a Soviet neighbor, to President Reagan's staunchest ally, Britain, estimate the number of American visitors will decrease between 15 percent and 50 percent.

That will cost them each millions of dollars. While terrorism is still the prime reason, abetted by a weaker dollar, the fallout from Chernobyl is particularly difficult to combat because there are no feasible safety precautions equivalent to tightening airport security against terrorists. The air now is thick with European jibes about stayaway Americans, and bitterness about the radiation for which the Soviets gave no warning. There also is some resignation.

For instance, the tourist board in Finland says it is just too late to try to reverse the 10,000 American cancellations after the Chernobyl accident. The tourists had also been scheduled to go to the Soviet

Tear gas used against whites

PIETERSBURG, South Africa (AP) - Tear gas, which is used daily in South Africa to combat anti-apartheid unrest, was turned on hundreds of whites after extremists stormed an auditorium and prevented Foreign Minister R.F. Botha from speaking.

Two barrages of tear gas, one to clear the crowded hall and a second to disperse rival factions regrouping outside, climaxed a chaotic showdown Thursday night between supporters of Botha's governing National Party and members of the right-wing Afrikaner Resistance Movement, or AWB.

It was one of the largest and most bitter confrontations ever within the Afrikaner community, which has dominated South African politics since 1948 despite representing only 2.5 million of its 30

There were unconfirmed reports that several people were injured in the stampede out of the hall after the tear gas was fired. Schalke Schalkwyk, deputy chairman of the National Party in Pietersburg, said several thousand dollars worth of furniture and windows were damaged at the hall. Botha finally did appear at the local National Party headquarters, and in a brief speech he vowed that the government would press ahead with its reform program. He compared the Afrikaner Resistance Movement's disruptive tactics to those of the black-led African National Congress guerrilla

NEW YORK (AP) - Betty Crocker turns 65 this year, but she doesn't look a day over 35 in her new dress-for-success suit and hoop earr-

The latest makeover, her seventh, has turned the fictitious homespun housewife into a middle-aged yuppie.

"It's about time they changed her look," Faith Popcorn, a New York market consultant who had criticized the old look, said Thursday. "She's been a little too grandmotherly looking. She's got to look more like the woman she's talking to."

General Mills hopes the new Betty will attract a young consumer - but not alienate the older ones who remember her as the stern homemaker of the past.

Ms. Popcorn, advertising experts and consumers all advised the company on Betty's new look.

"We wanted a certain fashionableness about her; not too dowdy, not too trendy, since she's going to be around for six to 10 years," said Marcia Copeland, a General Mills spokeswoman.

The updated Betty Crocker portrait, painted by Harriet Pertchik of Roslyn, and the sixth edition of Betty Crocker's Cookbook was being unveiled today at the National Book Sellers Convention in New Orleans.

"She looks like somebody you feel you know, which makes her approachable to the consumer," says Mrs. Pertchik, who also has updated the pictures of Nabisco's Blue Bonnet Sue and Quaker Oats' Mama Celeste.

She said she modeled the new Betty on three women, including her 25-year-old daughter, but is quick to note, "She's absolutely a fictitious person."

The cockbook, which has sold 22 million copies since 1950, represents changes in food trends, said Mrs. Copeland. "So we thought it was time for a fresher, more contemporary Betty as well," she said.

But it was not clear from Kokhlenkov's comments how many people had come back, and whether they had returned for good or merely to seek belongings.

Pravda today reported that the body of Valery Khodemchuk, an operator at Chernobyl, was never recovered after an explosion ripped through the No. 4 reactor building, igniting a fire that engulfed the structure.

Vladimir Shashenok, the other man killed immediately in the accident, was brought out of the blaze and was able to mutter only "there, Valery," before he lost consciousness and died, Pravda said.

Workers are now toiling to encase the reactor in concrete where it will remain for centuries to prevent any radiation leakage. Pravda suggested that the casing bear an inscription to Khodemchuk.

The Legislature enacted the law in 1971, four years after the commission had adopted the prohibition as department policy.

Although the law prohibits signs other than numbered signs along a roadway, the highway department may erect special sign-names at entrances or intersections.

For example, in Austin, Loop 360 is known locally as the Capital of Texas Highway, and the department can erect Capital of Texas Highway signs at entrances or intersections for guidance. But only the numbered sign, Loop 360, may appear along the

Also, local governments may furnish memorial markers to the highway department, which can be placed in areas "most suitable to the department's maintenance operation." This would include rest areas or scenic overlooks.

In an effort to find out why the department needed a policy or law against certain highway signs, inquiries were made to a dozen current and former highway officials, including Dewitt Greer.

Greer, 83, joined the department in AUSTIN (AP) - The reason the 1927 and later served on the highway district engineers in May 1982, "We state highway commission doesn't commission, retiring in February highways is encyclopedic.

Nevertheless, asked why the prohibition came into being, Greer said, "I don't remember. Count me out."

Others, such as Dr. C.V. Wootan of the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M University and Gene Robbins, former president of the Texas Good Roads Association, also drew blanks.

Still others, however, speculated that the department was getting too many requests to name highways for prominent persons.

"It was probably decided that it was a good thing to have a law to keep jokers from getting roads named after them when they were going off the commission. They have a tendency to try to perpetuate themselves," said one longtime commission observer who asked that his name not be used.

One person's memory and a highway department memorandum indicate that it was a case of too many applications from local communities.

Not to mention confusing.

Chief maintenance engineer Milton Dietert said, "We need something out there continuous for the motorist to follow. If we signed names, our maps would change continuously.' The law seems to work because ap-

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I feel an injustice has been done to the industrial arts students and teachers in Hereford. There are several students that failed to receive recognition for their superior work and awards at the district and state contests.

There were State winneres that had pictures taken but they didn't appear in the Hereford Brand. This wasn't because the Brand wasn't called, pictures were bad, or ample notice wasn't given. The competitions were held April 25 in Canyon and May 2 in Waco. I wonderwouldn't the public be upset if the sports scores and pictures weren't publicized till weeks later?

I can remember football, basketball, baseball, track, etc. teams not even getting to state competition, but their pictures were splashed on pages of the Brand.

This is not the first year these kids have encountered this problem. There's been some young men and women hurt by this. They also fall under the same rules of no-pass-noplay. They've worked hard physically and academically.

They are all winners and should have been given more publicity. I felt you, the readers, should be aware of this problem. Hopefully bringing this to your attention will help kids in the

Over the years (I am in my middle 50s) I have seen many people cry when they are unhappy, but I also have seen people cry when they are overjoyed.

The most recent example was a woman who won $10,000 on the Dick Clark show, "The $25,000 Pyramid." It was very exciting. She got her last correct answer a second before the time ran out. Three relatives dashed up from the audience and hugged her. She sat down in a chair and cried!

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AG HEARINGS OFF TO GOOD START

AUSTIN - We were more than a little concerned last Tuesday when we arrived at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center auditorium in Amarillo to conduct this year's first Senate Agriculture Subcommittee public hearing.

This was to be the official beginning of the subcommittee's most ambitious interim study ever, a comprehensive look at Texas government's role in agriculture finance and marketing. The study was considered so important that the Senate voted to add six public members to the five-senator subcommittee.

Yet, here we were last Tuesday. five minutes before the scheduled 9 a.m. start for the public hearing, and the large auditorium was occunied by only a handful of people. The hearing trad been wellpublicized, so there was no danger that people hadn't heard about the hearing. Could it be no one was interested?

As it turned out, there was no need for concern. Before the hearing was 15 minutes old, a respectable-sized crowd was sitting in the auditorium. Those testifying were giving the committee extremely interesting information and recommendations and the hearing clearly was going to be a success.

Nearly four hours later, the hearing finally concluded and the subcommittee's work was off to an outstanding start.

Four invited witnesses and about six others who testified on their own provided the committee with needed background information on the current state of ag finance and marketing and preliminary recommendations for ways the state could help alleviate problems in both those areas.

We learned, among other things,

*Texas lending institutions, on the whole, have not been as hard hit by the depression in the ag economy as lending institutions in the midwest.

* Farmers. however, are finding sources of credit harder to obtain. Lending institutions here desperately want to avoid the mistakes of the midwest and are becoming extremely wary of lending to farmers and ranchers.

*There is relatively little state government involvement in ag marketing. Most marketing efforts are handled by the commodity associations. Those government marketing efforts currently in effect are somewhat limited in scope and not altogether successful. *There seems to be some sentiment among farmers to increase government work in each area. While no one wants to see government take over either enterprise, there appears to be interest in getting state government to guarantee loans for qualified farmers and increase marketing assistance. Even this support is qualified, though. Everyone seems to want to keep the cost to the taxpayers at a minimum, if there is any taxpayer cost at all.

Obviously, most of the Amarillo hearing was devoted to background. although a few tentative recommendations were heard. No headlinegrabbing plans were made, but it's clear our subcommittee hearing is headed in the right direction. From here, the committee moves to McAllen for a June 13 hearing and then to Austin for a final hearing on July 1. Suggestions and recommendations for committee action probably will begin to come hard and fast at those two hearings.

Once the hearing process is completed, our subcommittee staff will begin to digest the information gathered at the three meetings and prepare a final report for the 70th Legislature. That final report will contain specific legislative recommendations that we will introduce when lawmakers return to Austin next January.

It's too early to tell exactly what those recommendations will be, but rest assured they will be designed to give farmers a chance to compete in one of the world's most demanding enterprises.

If you have any questions about our interim study or other issues, please contact us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

Ervin changes name; group backs Gibson

AUSTIN (AP) - P.S. Now his name really is Sam.

Democratic Railroad Commission candidate P.S. Ervin, denied the use of the nickname "Sam" by Democratic Party officials last week, says he has legally changed his name.

"Due to years of unhappiness and mental anguish over my full name of Percival Strother Ervin, and for business and public relations reasons, I have legally changed my name," Ervin said.

Ervin said Thursday that a state district court in Dallas issued a decree this week formally changing his name to P.S. "Sam" Ervin, the way it appeared on the May 3 primary ballot.

Ervin, 71, a Dallas oil and gas consultant, faces state Sen. John Sharp of Victoria in the Democratic runoff for the Railroad Commission nomination.

Sharp and others have speculated that many voters confused Ervin with the late U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin, the North Carolina Democrat who headed the televised Watergate investigations in the 1970s.

Texas Democratic Party officials last week refused to allow Ervin to list himself on the runoff ballot with the nickname Sam. They said he was unable to prove that he had used the nickname in the past.

But the name change won't make any difference, a party spokeswoman said, because ballots for the June 7 runoff already are being printed.

Ervin said he was a first cousin of the U.S. senator and that he was surprised over the fuss created by his using Sam as a nickname.

"It is amazing that so much attention has been given to this name nonissue instead of my 47 years experience in the oil business," he said.

In another, political development Thursday, a group of Mexican-American lawyers endorsed Jay Gibson for the Texas Supreme Court over his runoff opponent, incumbent Justice Raul Gonzalez.

"This is one time we must rise above ethnicity," said Frank Herrera Jr. of San Antonio, head of the Equal Justice for All Committee.

Herrera said the approximately 70 Hispanic lawyers in the group disagree with Gonzalez's opinions as a judge and believe Gibson's philosophies are more in line with the needs of Mexican-Americans and other minorities.

"We have reviewed every decision Justice Gonzalez has written. Though he professes to be of humble beginnings, as most of us have, his decisions do not reflect the judicial wisdom to protect those who are least able to do so," Herrera said.

"Rather, they seem to protect the rich, the powerful, the insurance industry, the business and corporate community," he said.

Herrera said Gibson, a former state representative from Odessa, has a proven record of concern for minority interests. "Gibson gave every ounce of energy he had and many days and state budget to save money for universities whose students were predominantly either black or Mexican-American," Herrera said.

Royals get past Rangers, 5-4

By The Associated Press

In their big league careers, Kansas City's Frank White and Jorge Orta have hit more home runs against the Texas Rangers than against any other team in the American League.

In addition, Orta has 20 more runs batted in against Texas than against any other club.

So it comes as no surprise that on Thursday night at Arlington Stadium, White and Orta did the bulk of the offensive damage as the Royals nipped the Rangers 5-4 to break a two-game losing streak.

White hit a solo home run in the second inning off Texas starter and loser Charlie Hough, 2-2, to give the Royals a 1-0 lead. It turned out to be the game-winning RBI, White's second of the series.

The home run was his 13th career blast against Texas. Orta followed that with a solo clout in the third, his first of the season and 16th off Ranger pitching over the years.

In the fifth, Orta drilled a two-run double to hike Kansas City's lead to give starter and winner Danny Jackson a 4-0 lead.

"Orta's the kind of guy who'll sit around and never complain," said Royals manager Dick Howser. "Then he'll step up to the plate and get the job done."

Jackson took a two-hit shutout into the seventh, but failed to survive the inning as the Rangers laced five consecutive singles good for three runs.

Dan Quisenberry relieved Jackson with the bases loaded and retired Gary Ward on a liner to short, then had to be bailed out himself in the bottom of the ninth after giving up a run that cut Kansas City's lead to 5-4.

Left-hander Bud Black came in to face left-handed hitter Pete O'Brien with the potential tying run on base and nailed down the victory by getting O'Brien on a roller to second.

Black said he wasn't surprised to be called on to replace one of the game's premier relief specialists.

Blue Jays 5, White Sox 0

Jimmy Key may have found a new way to handcuff American League hitters.

The Toronto left-hander, pounded in the first month of the season, pitched a one-hitter and struck out eight Thursday night as the Blue Jays snapped a seven-game winning streak by the Chicago White Sox with a 5-0 victory.

"I couldn't get anybody out," Key, now 3-3, said of his 0-3 start. "The farthest I got in the first three starts was 3 2-3 innings. My bread-and-butter pitch had been the slider breaking down and away to right-handers. It got me through last year when I won 14 games, but suddenly word must have gotten around the league and soon everybody was hitting the pitch.

"I had to start doing something else with my pitches. I was told to start pitching more to the inside of the plate and my success now has been phenomenal."

Key, whose earned run average dropped from 8.33 to 7.01, lost the no-hitter in the fifth inning on an infield single by Ozzie Guillen. But despite a little wildness—three walks and a hit batter—Key went on to post his first major-league shutout.

Yankees 4, A's 3

Mike Pagliarulo's 400-foot single over a drawn-in outfield with one out and the bases loaded in the 11th inning gave New York the victory over Oakland after Dan Psaqua's second home run of the game tied the score in the ninth.

Royals 5, Rangers 4

Kansas City fought off two Texas rallies after taking a four-run lead with the help of Jorge Orta's homer orta hit his first homer of the season in the third.

Orioles 6, Angels 3
Fred Lynn had a three-run homer and Eddie Murray a two-run double for Baltimore against California.

Scott McGregor, 4-3, improved his career mark against California to 18-6 although he lasted only 5 2-3 innings. He got relief help from Rich Bordi.

Murray hit his double with the bases loaded in the fifth, improving his career average in bases-loaded situations to .455.

Mariners 5, Tigers 3

Seattle ended a four-game losing streak and pushed Detroit under the .500 mark as Alvin Davis scored one run and drove in another.

Davis hit the first of three consecutive singles as the Mariners took a 2-0 lead in the second inning, and he singled in another run in the third.

Indians 5, Brewers 4
Cleveland scored four runs in the sixth inning, three of them on Brett Butler's bases-loaded triple, to defeat Milwaukee.

Cleveland starter Neal Heaton, 2-3, was the winner.

Why is Indy 500 a popular attraction?

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There are people who have never seen the Indianapolis 500 and can't for the life of them figure out the attraction.

The noise. The heat. The dirt. The hospital standing ominously off to the side of the infield, its staff waiting for customers, hoping there won't be any, but almost always getting them. On race day, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway sometimes isn't a very pretty place.

But until you've experienced it, until you've seen 400,000 people packed into this historic track, their colors making them look like human confetti, until you've heard 33 race car engines ignited at the same moment, it's hard to explain the experience.

The first thing you notice about Indy is the noise. Imagine the loudest sound you've ever heard, an absolute frontal assault on your sense of hearing. Then magnify it 10 times, maybe 100 times and you get some small idea of what it's like.

No matter how many times you walk though the garage area where these low-slung, high-tech machines are tuned and re-tuned each day by teams of master mechanics, the sound of an engine starting turns your head. It is impossible to ignore.

On the track, it is just as impossible to follow the cars. They hurtle by too quickly for the human eye to adjust to their speed. You hear a car first, look for it, see it for an instant and then it is gone, swinging into a corner, sometimes nosing perilously close to the wall, an unforgiving mass of concrete that has swallowed its share of cars over the years.

Danger is a permanent partner here, always hovering over the scene.

Veteran drivers remember the crashes, spots where their cars and those of their friends have ended their runs, million-dollar machines reduced to heaps of rubble in an instant

On the eve of the race, the drivers gather for a largely ceremonial meeting on the track to hear final instructions from chief steward Tom Binford. There is something poignant about how they are aligned in the bleachers for a sort of class picture, 11 rows of three drivers each, mirroring the way they will approach the starting line Sunday.

There was a reminder Thursday of the thin line these cars and the daredevils operating them travel constantly. The 33 starters were scheduled for their final practice runs. They call it carburetor testing, even though the cars don't use those devices and haven't for years.

Suddenly, there was a mishap in the pits. A frightening puff of smoke billowed toward the sky — the worst thing you can see at a motor speedway. Crews with their drivers still on the track raced toward the accident, fearing what they would find.

A broken wheel or blown tire apparently had triggered a chain-reaction accident and in a moment, the area looked like a bumper car ride, machines disintegrating on impact. Four cars were damaged, some so badly their remains were hauled off on flatbed trucks. Two drivers, Dennis Firestone and George Snider, were taken to the hospital with minor injuries and later released.

One of the other drivers involved was Josele Garza. Within minutes, he was being interviewed over the track's public-address system, sharing his play-by-play version of the accident with the fans. It was a strange, haunting peek at the frightening side of this carnival show.

For an hour, the track was shut down while repairs were made to the pit wall. Fans occupied themselves eating cotton candy and funnel cakes, dietary staples here that you won't find in a health food shop.

And then the racers were back, speeding around the track again, their return announced by that low, throbbing roar of engines that envelopes the area.

It was as if nothing had happened. Hopefully, nothing will on Sunday.

Pirates say Knepper 'knows your mind'

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates were ready to believe there was something mystical about Houston pitcher Bob Knepper's performance.

"He knows your mind," said Sid Bream, who went hitless in four attempts.

"He doesn't give you what you think you're going to get," said Michael Brown, also 0-4 with two strikeouts. "I was up there looking for fast ball and he gave me breaking pitches."

It's true that Knepper befuddled the Pirates with a seven-hitter and shut them out 4-0 Thursday to become the first pitcher in the major leagues to win eight games this season.

But he quickly denies any notion that he reads batters minds.

"I don't go into any game trying to out-think batters," said Knepper, 8-2. "I get myself in trouble that way. I let my pitches make the decisions."

Knepper struggled in the first inning before settling down to strike out five and issue one walk.

He did it with good command of his

"He doesn't overpower you, he just beats you," Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland said. "He doesn't give you many chances."

Houston got enough runs for Knepper in the fourth inning off Pirates starter Rick Reuschel, 3-4.

Kevin Bass hit into a double play but it allowed Terry Puhl to score from third base on the play.

Bass blasted a single off Reuschel's ankle in the sixth inning, extending his hitting streak to 11 games in a row, longest on the team this year.

Houston added another run in the sixth inning when Mark Bailey doubled to leftfield and scored on Knepper's single to centerfield.

Two more runs scored in the eighth inning on Jose Cruz' single and a bases loaded walk by Pirates Teliever Jose DeLeon.

The victory gave Knepper an 8-2 record and 1.97 earned run average. "Against a guy like Knepper, if you get a couple of chances early and come up empty, it can be a long afternoon," Leyland said. "He had great command of his breaking

Knepper said he concentrated too much on his delivery in the first inn-

"I worried too much about rhythm and not enough about getting the hitters out," he said. "It just took me awhile to get started."

Leyland was even impressed with Knepper's fielding, including a sixthinning double play started by Knep-

"Not many pitchers make that play," Leyland said.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was San Francisco 10, New York 2; Cincinnati 6, St. Louis 4; San Diego 6, Philadelphia 2; Atlanta 2, Chicago 0; and Montreal 5. Los Angeles 2.

Braves 2, Cubs 0

Joe Johnson pitched a five-hit ball over 8 1-3 innings and Bob Horner broke a scoreless tie with a double as Atlanta defeated Chicago for its seventh straight victory.

"I was trying too hard just to throw strikes," said Johnson, who used 96 pitches and stretched his scoreless string to 17 1-3 innings.

Johnson, 6-3, struck out four and walked two.

Reds 6, Cardinals 4 Rookie Tracy Jones drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double as visiting Cincinnati sent St. Louis to its 21st loss in 28 games.

Jones' hit came off Danny Cox, 0-4. who pitched a one-hitter over six inn-

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Giants 10, Mets 2

It was payback time for New York Mets right-hander Dwight Gooden, but it was San Francisco's Chili Davis who collected.

Davis entered Thursday's game with lifetime mark of 7-for-14 against the 1985 National League Cy Young winner and improved that to 9-for-16 (.563), as the Giants crushed the Mets and Gooden, 10-2.

It was Gooden's second straight defeat and his worst pounding since his rookie year when the St. Louis Cardinals reached him for 10 hits and seven runs over three innings on Aug. 1, 1984.

Gooden, 5-2, left Thursday's game after facing four batters in the fifth - retiring none. He allowed nine hits and seven runs, six earned.

"It felt strange leaving that early, and I was doing a lot of thinking about what I was doing wrong," Gooden said. "I feel like I'm throwing the ball as well as last year, but everything's going wrong.'

It was Gooden's earliest exit from a game since he departed after 2 1-3 innings against Atlanta last July 4. Padres 6, Phillies 2

San Diego's Kevin McReynolds, Tim Flannery and Steve Garvey each homered to to send visiting Philadelphia to its fifth straight setback.

Phillies starter Steve Carlton, 2-6, pitched six innings and allowed five hits, striking out three. Expos 5, Dodgers 2

Andre Dawson's two-run double highlighted a three-run seventh inning that lifted visiting Montreal over Los Angeles.

SWC seeks more CBS telecasts

Notice of Public Auction

June 14, 1986 10:00 a.m. Little Bull Barn Conducted by Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Southwest Conference athletic directors - seeking to boost the league's basketball image nationally - have asked CBS for more national telecasts, SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby said.

The network is in the midst of a four-year deal involving extensive Big East coverage.

CBS officials, in discussions during the SWC's spring meeting, said Thursday that the Big East has gotten more exposure than other parts of the country because "television goes heavily for individual stars," Jacoby said.

"Last year we were in a transition period - all of our major stars had graduated, plus we lost two star coaches (Eddie Sutton and Jim Haller). But the pendulum will swing back," Jacoby said.

SMU athletic director Bob Hitch said the difficulty in upgrading schedules is that the top schools seldom will agree to home-and-away arrangements with SWC schools.

"We can get games with the Georgetowns and North Carolinas but only if we go play them on their court," Hitch said.

Texas Tech announced it has signed for a basketball game with Kentucky in Lexington and is close to a deal with Kansas. The university said the move is an effort to upgrade its basketball program.

Jacoby said Thursday that officials at the SWC spring meeting approved a preliminary football telecast schedule this fall, and Texas Christian is included.

Jacoby said the schedule will be released Saturday. The Horned Frogs, along with Southern Methodist University, are on NCAA probation. The Mustang football team is banned from televised game appearances in the 1986 season, but games. TCU paid a penalty for past TV appearances, instead.

The commissioner said the schedule with Raycom includes moving Texas A&M's game with LSU in Baton Rouge from Sept. 6 to Sept. 13.

ESPN representatives said the Texas-Texas A&M football telecast Thanksgiving night last year got the top rating of the season. The basketball coaches chose game officials, and football coaches spent the morning exchanging information with representatives of 14 bowl games. The athletic directors met and heard reports from Raycom, CBS, the College Football Association, and the Cotton Bowl. At the end of the day's business,

Jacoby said he is concerned with the league's image because of the various instances of NCAA violations being investigated during the past

"It's been a wrenching year," he said. "The disturbing things about all this is that these investigations keep turning up things that are legitimate problems.

'We've been placed in a reaction situation, and normally, you prefer to act rather than react.

"But the best thing we can do is try to turn a negative into a positive. I don't like problems - in my personal life or professional life - any more than anyone else does. But when they arise, you have to face them - not walk away from them.'

Jacoby said he would discuss the problems with athletic directors and faculty representatives today and Saturday, but preferred to wait until after the meetings to outline any course of action.

The Italian version of bowling is known as bocci.

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson

Alcoholics deny DR. GOTT problem drinking

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My husband DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband drinks eight to 10 beers every day. With all those calories, he's still skinny as a rail (6 feet, 128 pounds). He says the beer's good for him; I think that, after 20 years, he's become an alcoholic. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I can't say. Only your husband can decide for himself. Having made that statement, let me point out the obvious: Beer is let me point out the obvious: Beer is not good for him — or anybody. He clearly is drinking excessively. His drinking is alarming the family and I'll wager that it's affecting his work and other interpersonal relations as Alcoholism is a disease of denial; patients deny they have it. I'm not la-beling your husband an alcoholic, but I think you could learn a great deal about the disease by joining an Al-Anon chapter. Al-Anon can help families of alcoholics to cope more effec-tively. Alcoholism is a family disease, and you need to learn more about your role in your husband's drinking pattern. You might not be able to al-ter your husband's alcohol intake, but you can certainly learn to alter your reaction to it.

For more information, check your local white pages for Alcoholics Anonymous or Al-Anon. DEAR DR. GOTT — Three months

I developed allergy-like symptoms in my right eye (watering, burn-ing, itching). Then I took a plane trip and my ears plugged up. My right ear has never cleared up. Now the whole right side of my head aches, beginning at the back of my neck and going up through my jaw, teeth, ear and eye. My doctor prescribed antihistamines, which didn't help. What can I do to treat this problem?

DEAR READER — See an ear. nose and throat specialist. You may have developed a chronic ear conges-tion from the allergy and the plane flight. The doctor may have to use mechanical methods to equalize the pressure. Sometimes the ear can be "blown out" by gentle air pressure; at other times, the specialist may have to perform a myringtomy - lancing the eardrum to clean out the middleear chamber.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am 56 and had a hysterectomy in 1962. Now I have terrible hot flashes, but am unable to take Premarin because of a blood clot and high blood pressure.
What other drugs can I take?
DEAR READER — Female hormones are probably the only satisfactory way to treat your symptoms of menopause. Hypertension and a tendency to develop blood clots do not prohibit hormone replacement, provided you take the medication under medical supervision. For example, your blood pressure can be controlled with anti-hypertensive medication and your clotting tendency can be reduced by other medicines while you are taking hormones. Check with your gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT - About four months ago I was in a car accident and suffered a "blowout fracture" under one eye, which was repaired. I still have occasional vague headaches and bouts of slight nausea or imbalance. Sometimes, when I go outside, things don't look quite right. A brain scan and eye exam showed that everything was normal. Our family doctor moved elsewhere and I don't know whom to consult for this problem.

DEAR READER — The type of injury you describe is serious, and it can have long-lasting consequences if the fracture involved the skull bones around the ear, as well as the cheek You may need to be examined by both an otolaryngologist (ear doctor) and a specialist in maxillofacial injuries. At this point, I think your best option is to find a qualified family doctor who, if necessary, can refer you to the appropriate specialist.

What are the benefits of VITAMIN E? Dr. Gott's new Health Report tells what's true - and what isn't. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Vitamin E.

KNOCKED TO THE GROUND...BY A

VOICE! Saul, threatening with every breath and eager to destroy every Christian, went to the High Priest in Jerusalem. He requested a letter addressed to synagogues in Damascus, requiring their cooperation in the persecution of any believers he found there, both men and women, so that he could bring them in chains to lerusalem.

As he was nearing Damascus on this mission, suddenly a brilliant light from heaven spotted down upon him! He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul! Saul! Why are you persecuting Me?" "Who is speaking, sir?" Saul asked. And the voice replied, "I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting! Now get up and go into the city and await My further instructions." The men with Saul stood speechless with surprise, for they heard the sound of someone's voice but saw no one! As Saul picked himself up off the ground, he found that he was blind. He had to be led into Damascus and was there three days, blind, going without food and water all that time. Acts 9:1-9
