

National unemployment rate jumps to 7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobless rate jumped to 7.0 percent last month as manufacturers cut 38,000 jobs — twice those created in the preceding month. September's 0.2 percentage point rise ended three months of falling unemployment.

In all, a Labor Department survey of households said, civilian employment fell by 264,000 jobs.

The largest jobless increase came among men aged 20-24, rising from 10.3 percent in August to 12.0 last month.

Today's reports, based on the household sampling and a separate business payroll survey, amounted to fresh evidence that the long-awaited turnaround in the lagging manufacturing sector has not yet arrived. Indeed, analyst Allen Sinai commented that, "We're still left asking the question: Has manufacturing bottomed out?"

The 38,000 factory job loss amounted to a resumption of the downward trend in manufacturing that held through the first half of 1986. So far this year, the nation has lost about 200,000 factory jobs.

In fact, the overall economy has regained only about 40 percent of the manufacturing employment lost during the 1981-82 recession.

Employment in the troubled oil and gas industry fell 5,000 last month, bringing to 135,000 those losses this year.

That means that, since New Year's Day, 25 percent of all oil and gas workers have lost their jobs. Moreover, noted the commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, "since the March 1982 peak employment level (when oil prices topped $30 a barrel), the oil and gas extraction industry has lost nearly half of its jobs."

Norwood, addressing the congressional Joint Economic Committee, said the 240,000 overall civilian jobless figure may be exaggerated.

The number, she said, is "probably somewhat overstated" because of changing employment patterns among married women.

She explained that married women, who often leave the labor force at the end of the school year in June, did not do so this year. As a result, there were fewer women to return to the labor force last month.

"It is possible that both the June increase and the September decline

... were somewhat exaggerated," she said.

Normally, employment drops sharply in September with the beginning of a new school year; the department's seasonal-adjustment process is designed to remove the effect of such predictable occurrences.

This year, however, because fewer women were reentering the labor force, the seasonal adjustment may have overstated the September job losses.

Indeed, the department's survey of 250,000 business payrolls showed an overall increase of 107,000 people in non-farm jobs. Meanwhile, the labor force, which had been rising by more than 200,000 monthly, rose only 57,000 this year.

Service jobs rose 150,000, the business survey showed, offsetting a total loss of 43,000 manufacturing and oil-field jobs.

Of the new service jobs, more than one-third were in computer and other business services.

Construction employment, which had risen 65,000 from June to August, held flat last month at just over 5 million.

Gusty winds rip through Andrews, tearing roofs

By The Associated Press

Light rain quickly turned into a heavy thunderstorm accompanied by hail and gusty winds that ripped off part of a bowling alley roof and overturned three mobile homes in Andrews.

No injuries were reported, but another mobile home also lost its roof in the heavy storms that continued through today.

Ray Pope, manager of the Andrews Bowlarama, said, "A tornado hit it."

"It blew part of the roof off, caved part of ceiling in," said Pope, who was inside the bowling alley with his wife shortly before 5 p.m. when the storm struck.

"It'd been raining a little bit, hailing a little bit, then all of a sudden it started raining really hard and made the biggest racket outside I'd ever heard," said Pope.

Although he and his wife, Bertie, were the only ones in the building at the time, Pope said, a tournament had been scheduled for later.

"We'd have had a full house at 8 o'clock," Pope said.

Storms gathered over much of West Texas Thursday evening as moisture arrived from the Gulf and remnants of Hurricane Paine moving out of Mexico.

A tornado watch and flash flood watches were posted for the Big Country and the Concho Valley early today. Watches for far West Texas, the Pecos Valley, the Permian Basin and the South Plains were cancelled.

Andrews is about 40 miles northwest of Odessa, and 30 miles east of New Mexico.

The Andrews County Sheriff's Office reported that four homes had been damaged in a trailer park.

"All the trailers at the time were unoccupied," said Mike Cook, a dispatcher.

"It was not confirmed that it was a tornado. There were several reports that there was a funnel cloud," Cook said.

In the Panhandle, heavy rains continued into the night.

In Childress County, where the heaviest rains were falling, according to meteorologists, jailer Penny Mooney said it had been raining most of the day and continued to pelt the city Thursday night.

The thunderstorm was accompanied by strong winds, she said, but had produced no hail.

Elmer Neel, former Hall County sheriff, said his rain gauge indicated Memphis had soaked up 4 inches of rain Wednesday night and Thursday, and the rainfall didn't seem to be slacking at 8 p.m.

In Paducah, there reportedly was 2.27 inches of rain since 8 p.m. Wednesday, bringing the total for the week to 4.05 inches.

Farmers in surrounding communities, however, reported a weekly accumulation ranging from 7 inches west of Paducah to 9 inches north of town. One said a wheat field had been washed away after a dike separating it from a higher field gave way.

Real Fire Drill

Children at the Norton branch of the Hereford Day Care Center, above, learned what the fire drills were for Thursday afternoon. An electric stove which caught fire was hauled outside by Hereford volunteer firemen. At right, Joe Hamby and Jay Spain inspect the stove. No damage was done to the building.

Texas jobless rate shows improvement

DALLAS (AP) — The jobless rate in Texas showed a modest improvement for the month of September, but officials said the decline was insignificant.

The U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said Texas joblessness declined from 9.2 percent in August to an even 9 percent in September.

"I really don't see anything significant in these figures," said spokesman Bryan Richey. "Until we see an improvement in the industries that have been hurt the most or find an alternate source of employment, then we'll continue to see high rates of unemployment in Texas."

Richey said data showed a small increase in the labor force, a small increase in the number of employed and a slight reduction in joblessness.

The unemployment rate is still far above the 7.1 percent rate for September a year ago.

"Texas figures could drop tremendously to 8 percent and that would still be high, given our figures in the past," Richey said.

September figures showed an increase in the number of whites and teen-agers unemployed, which Richey said is a normal adjustment for this time of year.

Most encouraging, Richey said, is the fact that the figures show a continuing decline in unemployment. The jobless rate peaked in June at 10.5 percent.

But the falling rate still doesn't signal a turnaround in the Texas economy, he said.

Congress struggles to breathe life into FCS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm lawmakers, squeezed for time as Congress moves into its final days, are pushing forward with a plan to breathe the new life into the financially ailing Farm Credit System but not cure all its troubles.

"What we're giving the farm credit system at this point is a life jacket with a hole in it," Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said as the bill cleared the House Agriculture Committee on a voice vote. "But it is a life jacket."

The bill, which provides no direct federal aid to the government-regulated system of farm cooperative lending institutions, should come up for a vote by the full House on Monday or Tuesday, according to Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, committee chairman.

Success would most likely mean an effort in the Senate to attach the measure to a deficit reduction package that traditionally becomes a catchall for last-minute measures when Congress is preparing to go home for the year.

The lawmakers intended to adjourn today but the overflow of unfinished business appeared to have spilled over into next week.

Rep. Edward R. Madigan, R-Ill., said that as of late Thursday the Senate would approve the measure. But he said the banking industry continued efforts to defeat the bill, "not because they're against this but because they aren't getting some things they want."

The Reagan administration has no position on the measure, Madigan said.

The measure would allow the institutions within the system to set rates without seeking approval, as they must now, from the government's Farm Credit Administration.

Institutions also would get an array of complex financial and accounting tools designed to fight the drain that has brought losses totaling $2.7 billion in 1985 and $968 million in the first six months of this year.

The losses are largely the result of depressed conditions in agriculture and the rapid expansion of the system through high-rate borrowing in the 1970s.

Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., sponsor of the legislation, said a recent General Accounting Office report warned that the system could exhaust its reserves by early next year if current trends continued.

Jones told the committee that he would like to see a stronger version of the measure but that such legislation had little chance.

33 named in cocaine dealings

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A five-month investigation which officials say will break up an organized crime ring dealing cocaine in East and North Texas brought warrants for the arrests of 33 suspects.

By Thursday night, officers had arrested about one-third of the suspects named in sealed indictments returned by a Gregg County grand jury earlier Thursday, officials said.

The indictments include 162 counts against the defendants, and all are charged with organized criminal conspiracy, said Longview Police Chief James McLaughlin.

"The number of arrests and the seizures involved in this case make it the largest narcotics investigation in Gregg County history," McLaughlin said.

The arrests, he said, are the culmination of an undercover investigation which will break up "an organized crime ring dealing in cocaine within Longview, Tyler, Texarkana and Dallas."

McLaughlin and Gregg County Sheriff Bobby Weaver said the arrests will cut into the increasing amounts of cocaine circulating in East Texas.

DPS narcotics Capt. Wesley Crites said investigators with the Longview police and DPS began the investigation with undercover purchases in Longview and information gained through Gregg County Crimestoppers and wire taps.

Crites said the undercover buys resulted in the arrests Sept. 12 of Robert Joe Eastman, 43, of Dallas, and John Harley Lindley, 42, and Judy Jones Lindley, 39, both of Gilmer. Both Lindleys, who were out on bond shortly after their arrests, were named in sealed indictments and arrested again Thursday.

Nine other persons were also arrested in Longview in mid-September in connection with the case, Crites said.

Crites said at the time of the September arrests officers seized $118,268 in cash and more than five pounds of cocaine. Also seized were 33 handguns, rifles and shotguns, and nine vehicles, including automobiles, pickups, boats and motorcycles.

Sgt. Jim York of the Tyler DPS said the uncut cocaine that was seized is believed to have been sent to the United States from South America. Crites said the cocaine was sold by Eastman to the Lindleys, who drove it into East Texas for distribution.

The trio was charged at that time with aggravated possession of cocaine, records show.

Residents celebrate after suicide

WRIGHT CITY, Mo. (AP) — Residents haunted by the presence of fugitive Michael Wayne Jackson relaxed today after the suspect in a three-state crime spree killed himself when he was cornered by police in an abandoned barn.

"We can finally unload our shotguns," said resident Nelson Paul, 28, as he stood in the rain outside a police command center early today. "It's like having a load of bricks lifted from your shoulder."

Jackson, a 41-year-old former mental patient, shot himself in the head late Thursday with the same shotgun he had used throughout the rampage that began Sept. 22 and left three people dead, said Hal Helterhoff, head of the FBI office in St. Louis.

"We're pleased to bring peace and quiet back to Wright City," Helterhoff said at a news conference today. "You always get very pleased when you can bring a menace to society to final justice."

Jackson, still bearded and wearing the same clothes he had on when last seen, was positively identified through fingerprints, Helterhoff said.

The barn was less than a ¼-mile from where Jackson was last seen after a shootout with police Sept. 22. Jackson was barefoot and apparently had been trying to dry his shoes, indicating he recently had been in the rain, said state Trooper Walt Ryan.

"He hadn't been in there that long," Ryan said early today. "That barn had been checked and rechecked numerous times. ... There were a lot of cars patrolling all the time, so he couldn't stay in one place very long."

The crime spree terrorized Wright City, a town of 1,200 people in eastern Missouri near St. Louis, and residents armed themselves and locked their doors for the first time in years.

"Michael Jackson has had me in jail," Maxine Schell, 54, of rural Wright City said Thursday night.

Eclipse dims much of U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans needn't be alarmed by that gray shadow crossing the sun this afternoon because it's a rare but natural phenomenon — an eclipse.

Such an eclipse occurs when the moon moves between the sun and Earth, cutting off some of the light. The shadow of the moon moves across the face of the sun, starting with a small area and gradually increasing.

While eclipses are possible with each new moon, they actually only occur about once a year.

The parts of Earth from which they can be seen vary considerably. In North America, today's eclipse will be most visible in New England and Eastern Canada. It will be a total eclipse, with the sun's sphere entirely blocked out of view, in an area of the Atlantic Ocean east of Greenland.

Phillips expects tax gain

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. Chairman C.J. Silas says third-quarter gains by the oil giant are partially offset by adjustments due to reserves reduction.

Phillips expects an after-tax gain of $120 million as a result of money made from restructuring of retirement plans and from asset sales for its third quarter earnings.

Silas said in a statement released Thursday that Phillips recently completed retirement changes that will result in an estimated $155 million after-tax gain being posted in the third quarter, which covers the period from July 1 to Sept. 30.

He said the retirement plan restructuring resulted in the division of the current plan into two separate plans. One plan covers all active employees and the other covers retirees.

Silas said the sale of California oil and gas properties will provide an estimated $28 million after-tax gain.

Partly offsetting the gains will be an estimated $63 million after-tax adjustment to reflect a reduction in reserves value. Silas said the latter is due to current low oil and gas prices.

"Based on preliminary data currently available, it appears our worldwide reserves at year end 1986 will be about 11 percent lower than last year," Silas said, "with an estimated 16 percent reduction in U.S. reserves."

He said the reserves reduction occurs mainly in crude oil and natural gas liquids and results from asset sales, production and current economic conditions.

"The recently completed retirement plan restructuring resulted in approximately $380 million in surplus funds being transferred to the company," Silas said. "These funds will be directed toward reducing debt and building our cash reserves."

Phillips went heavily into debt in fighting a takeover bid by Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. The oil company has been reducing the debt by selling some assets and cutting expenses.

'Fall Guy' co-star recovering

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Heather Thomas is making remarkable progress from surgery on her left knee and is expected to be released from the hospital this weekend.

Miss Thomas, 29, has undergone corrective surgery on both legs at St. John's Hospital and Health Center since being hit by a car as she crossed a street Sept. 16. The actress, co-star of the canceled ABC-TV series "The Fall Guy," was in good condition Tuesday, a day after surgery to repair ligament damage to her left knee, said hospital spokeswoman Mary Miller.

"The ligaments in her left knee should heal in about three weeks, during which time she will continue to wear a (knee) brace," Ms. Miller said. "Meanwhile, the ligament injuries to her right knee have been repaired and are healing very nicely.

"Miss Thomas is in excellent spirits and is resting comfortably."

Her doctors plan no further surgery and have indicated that Miss Thomas could be discharged this weekend if she continues to recuperate at her present rate, Ms. Miller said.

Hereford's ODP dept. one of state's best

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is reprinted from the newsletter of Casa Computer Company in Lubbock).

SH-KUN, SH-KUN, SH-KUN...the northernmost first floor hallway at Hereford High School echoes with the voice of industry. Upon approaching the classroom emitting this rhythmic cadence, even knowing that the vocational department is close, one is surprised by the unfamiliar sounds. Not the usual buzz of power saws and wood lathes, but a chorus of sounds that could originate from a busy office workroom, a copy shop or printing press.

Julie Helms, teacher of Office Duplication Practices (O.D.P.), is in charge of the students working intently with the varied equipment found in the almost crowded classroom. Two years ago, Ms. Helms discovered through workshops and seminars that her O.D.P. program, with two Apple II's, a hydraulic paper cutter, three offset presses, a Newarc camera and darkroom, two copiers, a bindery, floor stapler, collator and jogger was one of the best equipped in the state. No doubt, with the addition of the latest equipment in her classroom, her program will still have that distinction. For Hereford O.D.P. has just added a complete Desktop Publishing Laboratory with six Macintosh computers, one Laser-Writer Printer, a twenty megabyte hard disk, and an Imagewriter II printer.

All computers and printers are tied together on the Appletalk network so they may share a common mass storage disk and the programs stored on it. Microsoft Word and the Macintosh computer will allow the O.D.P. students to learn or brush up their typing skills with one of the most advanced word processors available. The creativity that many high school students love to nurture can be stimulated by the sophisticated drawing program called McDraw, and many predrawn, but modifiable graphics available on disk. The material is tied together on the Macintosh computer screen by an astonishing program called PageMaker, which enables a student to lay out text and graphics on the computer screen. This program allows the creation of newsletters, tabloids, certificates, business cards and anything else that would benefit from a clean, readable look. All cutting and pasting, fitting and cropping, editing, correcting and proofing takes place electronically, bypassing the usual burdensome methods of creating a camera-ready typeset document.

With a Bachelor of Science in Office Education from Wayland Baptist College of Plainview, Julie Helms is well qualified to prepare these Hereford sophomores, juniors and seniors for the competitive job market. Her twelve years in office-related jobs provides her with a realistic approach to educating these young men and women. Students attend class two hours per day for two semesters and have the option of electing second year O.D.P. This year, Julie will have three sections of O.D.P.

4-H banquet tonight

Service employees recognized

Gov. Mark White designated Oct. 14, 1986, as Hospital Central Service Employee Recognition Day in Texas.

White proclaimed that "central service is the heart that constantly pumps clean and sterile life throughout a modern hospital." He also stated that "every department and patient area must rely on this service to provide the proper care and treatment of all patients. Central Service provides the essential sterile supplies, equipment and any specialty items needed for medical and nursing team functions."

Hospital Central Service Employee Recognition Day is sponsored by the Texas Hospital Association (THA) and its affiliate, the Texas Society of Central Service Personnel (TSCSP). Based in Austin, THA is the hospital trade association and has more than 5,000 members.

Most of the nearly half a million people who went west on the Oregon Trail did not ride horses or on wagons, but walked the 2,000 miles to the Pacific.

Happy 18th

Think of benefits

Bugged by beepers?

NEW YORK (AP) — Does the beeping of the check-out scanner at your grocery store bug you a little? Does it get on your nerves when the cashier has to pass the peanut butter jar over the laser beam repeatedly before it registers the code?

Or maybe you have stronger feelings: You think they're impersonal; you mistrust them. But those scanners benefit you in ways that are and aren't readily apparent.

Besides generally getting you out of the store faster, they enable stores to better tailor themselves to your wants and needs.

They also allow stores to be more productive, which could translate into cheaper prices for you.

That's because stores now are using with much more sophistication the huge amount of information that is collected by the computers linked to these scanners.

"Phase one was really the implementation of computer hardware and software into the supermarket and retailing industries, where the systems for the most part generated what I would call data," said John Phipps, national director for food industry consulting for the accounting firm Touche Ross & Co.

"Phase two is using the raw data to develop information that is much more useful," he said.

The scanners certainly are proliferating.

Nearly 12,000 grocery stores in the United States were equipped with scanners at the end of 1985, 18 percent more than the previous year, according to Nielsen Marketing Research.

Grocery stores with Universal Product Code scanners accounted for 45 percent of all grocery store dollar sales last year and this should increase to 58 percent, or more than 16,000 stores, in 1988, Nielsen said.

"Supermarket shoppers and managers alike are faced with an almost overwhelming number of choices when deciding which products to buy and which to stock," said William McNair, manager of marketing communications for Nielsen.

"Fortunately for the retailer, check-out scanners are helping keep track of which items are most in demand," McNair said. That "enables the store and manufacturer to respond quicker to customer needs."

Now, if people in your neighborhood buy a lot of that peanut butter but residents in the next town over don't, the chain can stock its shelves accordingly.

"That is a great application. Many chains for many years had the identical items in many stores," Phipps said. It is also a relatively simple one. The computers' information also can be used in a myriad of more complicated ways.

"The effect on the supermarket industry for those who do it well is a temporary competitive advantage. Ultimately those that aren't doing it well are likely to fall by the wayside," Phipps said.

"In the long run, say 10 years from now, there isn't a competitive advantage because they will all be doing it," he said.

However, Phipps added, "The systems improve the productivity of companies."

WALKING WOMEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The most popular sport, or exercise, for women is walking. That was the conclusion of a survey made by the Women's Sports Foundation in conjunction with Miller Lite.

Jogging was second, followed by calisthenics or aerobics. Weightlifting was a surprise fourth and softball-baseball was fifth. All the way down in 10th place was basketball.

ENMU plays at Texas Lutheran

The Eastern New Mexico University football team, having defeated four straight opponents from the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference, plays NIAA independent Texas Lutheran Saturday in Seguin. The game has a 6 p.m. kickoff at Matador Stadium. ENMU is 4-0 for the season, and Texas Lutheran has a 1-2 record.

Last week ENMU defeated Adams State of Colorado 36-12, and Texas Lutheran lost to Arkansas-Monticello 13-7.

Eastern New Mexico's Rufus Smith was named the Lone Star Conference offensive player of the week for his 173-yard rushing performance in the win over Adams State.

Smith carried the ball 23 times, and rushed for more than 100 yards for the fourth straight game.

Last year, Eastern New Mexico defeated Texas Lutheran in overtime, 27-24. ENMU leads the all-time series against Texas Lutheran at 8-7.

The last time ENMU played at Seguin was in 1983, when the Greyhounds lost to Texas Lutheran 24-10. In 1984, ENMU defeated Texas Lutheran at Portales.

Greyhound Coach Don Carthel said about the Adams State game, "Penalties plagued us again and cost us several scores. Our team rose to the occasion in the second half. Our wide receivers had no drops for the second week in a row."

About playing Texas Lutheran, Carthel said, "It's a long trip to Seguin and Eastern has had trouble winning there in recent years. Texas Lutheran is a good, quality football team with a bunch of big, strong kids. They have as much talent as any team we've played so far."

Fifty-Yard Scamper

Keith Brown (No. 22) rushed for a 50-yard gain in this carry of the ball Thursday in the Hereford junior varsity team's 30-8 victory over Lubbock Dunbar. Brown carried four times for 97 yards, and teammate Kyle Andrews carried 14 times for 101 yards to help power Hereford to its win. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

Stanton 8th, 9th football teams suffer close defeats

Stanton Junior High School's eighth and ninth grade football teams suffered close losses to Plainview Blue Thursday in Plainview.

Plainview Blue won the ninth grade game 13-6, and also took the eighth grade game over Stanton, 8-6.

Stanton held a 6-0 halftime lead in the ninth grade game. Ron Hathaway carried the ball from the four-yard line, but fumbled it.

Anthony Tijerina recovered the fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. Stanton's extra-point attempt failed.

Plainview Blue's fullback rushed 45 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter to tie the game at 6-6. Plainview's extra-point attempt also failed.

The game-winning touchdown for Plainview Blue was scored when it recovered a Stanton fumble, in a punting down, in the end zone.

Plainview Blue held a 8-0 lead in the second quarter with a 50-yard touchdown run and a two-point conversion.

Later in the second quarter, Jermaine Williams rushed 60 yards for a touchdown for Stanton. The two-point conversion run attempt failed.

The second half went scoreless for both teams, and Plainview Blue held on for its 8-6 win.

For the season, the Stanton ninth grade team has a 1-3 season record and the Stanton eighth grade team has a 2-1 mark. Both teams play at home next Thursday against Yucca of Clovis, N.M., with the ninth grade game at 4 p.m. and the eighth grade game at 5:30 p.m.

Stanton's seventh grade "A" and "B" teams play at Plainview Blue Tuesday, at 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Season record now 4-1

HHS JV whips Dunbar, 30-8

Hereford High School's junior varsity football team ran all over Lubbock Dunbar, 30-8, Thursday in Hereford.

The game was played on the practice field next to La Plata Junior High School. The victory gives the Hereford junior varsity team a 4-1 season record. Hereford plays at Levelland next Thursday at 7 p.m.

A game between the HHS sophomore football team and Tulia was cancelled at Tulia Thursday. The Hereford sophomores' next scheduled game is Thursday, Oct. 9 at home against Amarillo High, a 7 p.m.

The HHS junior varsity moved out to a 24-0 lead in the first half Thursday. Kyle Andrews rushed two yards for the first Hereford touchdown in the first period, and Andrews also carried for the two-point conversion.

Also in the first quarter, Chad Redwine rushed 15 yards for a Hereford touchdown. Frankie Abalos rushed for the two-point conversion.

A big play, in the second quarter, resulted in Hereford's next touchdown. Pat Mercer caught a pass from Jason Scott for a 76-yard scoring play.

The two-point conversion run by Keith Brown gave Hereford its 24-0 halftime lead.

Dunbar cut Hereford's lead to 24-8 in the second half, but that was all the scoring the HHS defense would allow.

Brown rushed 15 yards for a touchdown for Hereford in the fourth quarter, giving Hereford its final margin of 30-8 over Dunbar.

Hereford had 302 yards rushing in the game, 286 of those yards by four running backs. Andrews led Hereford with 101 yards rushing in 14 carries, and Brown carried for 97 yards in just four carries.

Redwine gained 45 yards in five carries, and John Washington rushed for 41 yards in five attempts.

Quarterback Jason Scott's passing yardage was 122 yards, giving Hereford 424 yards total offense.

HHS defensive coach Bill Bridge said, "We plugged them up real good. Our goal line stand was good.

Overall, it was a team defensive effort."

The goal line stand came in the third quarter, after Dunbar had a firstdown at the four-yard line. In the fourth down play, Hereford stopped Dunbar within the one-yard line.

Brown, playing at the cornerback position on defense, recovered a Dunbar fumble in the second quarter. Also in the second quarter, Andrews, a strong safety, recovered a Dunbar fumble.

Mavericks win close ball games

La Plata Junior High School won a pair of close football games Friday over Marshall, 7-0 in the ninth grade game and 8-6 in the eighth grade game.

The games were played at La Plata field. The victories were the first of the season for both La Plata teams. The ninth grade has a 1-3 season record, and the eighth grade is 1-2.

Thursday's ninth grade game was nearly a double shutout. But in the last play of the game, Jim Eric Andrews of La Plata intercepted a Marshall pass and returned it for a touchdown.

When Andrews crossed the goal line, one second remained in the game. Teammate Charles Romero kept Andrews' pathway open to the end zone by knocking down three Marshall opponents in one block at the five-yard line.

Eddie Cantu kicked the extra point for the Mavericks.

Coach Ed Coplen said his defensive leaders in Thursday's game included Danny Berumen and Brian Wagner.

In the eighth grade game, Marshall gained a 6-0 lead in the first quarter with a 20-yard touchdown run.

La Plata scored the game tying touchdown in the third quarter. Ricky Lopez rushed 22 yards for the touchdown.

The touchdown was set up by a 40-yard pass completion from quarterback T.J. Head to receiver Zack Farr.

La Plata broke the tie with a successful two-point conversion, which was scored by Amado Lopez.

"Our defense won the ball game for us," said Coach Tommy Bowling. "The whole defense played good. I think Marshall must have had minus yardage rushing."

Coach Bowling said the outstanding defensive players in the game included tackles Arthur Allemand and Bryan Bentley, linebackers Cody Page and Benny Dominguez, defensive ends Garrick McPherson and Mark Daniel, and cornerback Oscar Garcia.

Both the La Plata eighth and ninth grade teams will play at Plainview next Thursday against Plainview Red. Game times are 4 p.m. for the ninth grade and 5:30 p.m. for the eighth grade.

La Plata's other football team, the seventh grade, has "A" and "B" team games on Tuesday against Plainview Red, at 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. at La Plata field.

Hostile Herd Sideline Notes

By Shawn Cockrum

District 1-4A must be wondering what they were thinking about when they put Hereford into that district last year.

Oh sure, the teams in this district have just about gotten used to the fact that Estacado is going to be a state contender, but up until this year, there has been some fierce competition for the runner-up spot.

Now the district teams are wondering if they will ever make into post season play. From here on out, every team the Herd goes up against will be looking to knock off the new kids on the block.

Senior tailback Mark Artho is leading all Hereford rushers as he has amassed 377 yards on 51 carries. Artho is averaging 7 yards every time he touches the ball.

Quarterback Todd Shire has thrown for 521 yards during his first four games of the season. The senior has also connected for 7 touchdowns.

Running back Vincent Brown has scored 8 touchdowns on the season.

It's apparent that this year's version of the Herd is not counting on one or two people to carry the load.

Even on defense the Herd is using a balanced attack. Two Herd defenders have over 30 tackles apiece. Defensive back Ricky Ruiz has 34 tackles, while linebacker Michael Pibbs has 32 tackles. The rest of the Hereford defensive unit is close behind.

Lubbock Dunbar, Saturday night's gracious host, has a season record of 1-3. All four of their games thus far have been played in Lubbock against Lubbock High, Lubbock Monterey, Canyon, and Lubbock Estacado.

Don't forget, game time is 7:30 Saturday.

Next week, as everybody is probably aware of, is homecoming week.

The festivities begin Monday with the famous "Beat the Lobos Day." Tuesday will be "Lasso the Lobos Day," with students dressing to a western theme.

Wednesday will be "Jam the Lobos Day," featuring people showing of their jams.

Thursday is "Punk and Nerd Day," and Friday will be "Maroon and White Day."

A pep rally will be held Friday at 9 a.m. at the high school, and the homecoming parade will begin at 3 p.m. Friday.

The homecoming foes will be the Levelland (you guessed it) Lobos.

The homecoming dance will take place following the football game and will feature Scotty Snipes and Ron Jergens of KTQM radio in Clovis.

The cheerleaders will be holding a pep rally Saturday afternoon at 1:30 near the high school fieldhouse on Stadium Drive.

The pep rally will be a send off for the Herd as they travel to Lubbock.

Be careful, and we'll see you on the sidelines.

A MATTER OF CHOICE

From lieutenants to generals

Manager keeps 'em happy

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — She served Gen. Omar Bradley his last birthday meal, and Jordan's King Hussein personally complimented her banquet.

But even a new second lieutenant is welcome at her tables in the Officers Club at Fort Bliss.

As club manager since May 1985, Jose (pronounced Josie, short for Josephine) Ham, a native of Normandy, France, has found her destiny in the Sun City.

So dynamic and on the go that one customer said you could power Fort Bliss if you hooked a wire to her, Ms. Ham thrives on action.

But she also says of her work, "You have to be crazy to do this job. At least it helps."

If she's crazy, it's kind of crazy that customers like.

She's known for constantly thinking of new menus, decorations and party schemes. Her head is crammed with knowledge and ideas gained from decades of food service work.

She has been working in the business just about as long as she has been able to feed herself.

"I've been working all my life," she said. "Ms mom worked in a restaurant in France, so always worked in food since I was a little girl."

"My daddy died when I was very young, and I worked in a restaurant-hotel."

She came to the United States as the bride of a U.S. Air Force man, but she's no longer married.

She worked as a waitress at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M., from 1968 to 1973. Just a few years later, she came to Fort Bliss and handled various club jobs until her big break came last year.

"I love people," she said in her soft accent. "You have to love people, because if you're not people oriented, this job is not for you."

She lives for the club and its customers, who number as many as 800 per day and provide $60,000 to $70,000 a month worth of business.

To please them, Ms. Ham — who juggles duties as manager, hostess and public relations expert — also tries to keep 62 employees functioning as happily as possible in the 7-day-a-week, 18-hour-a-day operation.

"I know what time I get up each day," she said, "but I never know when I'll get home."

"You're supposed to program your day, but the cashier may not show up, or the salad girl may not want to get up. And when the customers call, you must be available. They come first."

Of course, almost every boss has a boss, and she's no exception. Sgt. Major Rick Talamatez is chief of Clubs at Fort Bliss, and he speaks highly of her.

"You have to be visible and caring in this job, and see that things are done right," he said. "Her job is never-ending. And she's one of the good ones."

She said of herself, "I think I react better when I'm under pressure."

Her idea of pressure, but the kind she enjoys, is Easter brunch, which this year brought in about $9,000 in a couple of hours.

The week before to the brunch was filled with details. Menu. Decorations. Even getting a costumed Easter bunny for the kids.

The club drew 1,000 customers to the 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. brunch.

And, she said, wrinkling up her nose, that the 1,000 "didn't ever count the children younger than 4, who make the biggest mess."

That doesn't mean she regretted all the work and time the brunch took.

"The next Saturday, I came to work, and I said, 'Doggone it, I wish I was back a week.' Then I stopped and said, 'Gosh, I'm a damn fool.'"

Then there are the special events. Those are the ones like the late Gen. Omar Bradley's last birthday party, now more memorable because it did turn out to be the lovable man's last.

And when King Hussein came several years ago, she recalls, "He was really nice. He had all his bodyguards with machine-guns."

"But after dinner, when he was ready to leave, he came back and shook our hands and said what a delicious meal it was."

Besides thriving on such special days, she also enjoys her part of the menu called "Jose's Corner." For $11.75 on a recent day, the Corner featured Chateau Briand with burgundy and mushrooms; Parisienne Potato; pate with small gherkins; fresh vegetables, home made bread and a beverage.

She even had a special French dinner in January. No "mess hall" fare here, as the meal cost $60 per couple.

But ooh, la la, what a feast! Veal cooked in butter and a list of dishes you'd have to be a connoisseur of French cooking to recognize. She bucked many an unschooled palate to keep everything authentic. Her vice rose as she recalled, "I told them when they came in, it's French: You don't drink water and there are no coffee cups."

"My only concession was a little cream sherry."

What she really enjoys, she said, is "people who come in and say, 'Jose, we want something special, something no one ever had.'"

"They may come in three months early and they want to outdo their circle of friends."

Her efforts must have succeeded, because she said many come back and don't even ask the price. They trust her to set up a unique special party.

Her efforts haven't gone unnoticed. The El Paso Chapter of the International Wine and Food Society gave her its Certificate of Excellence in 1981 for "high standards of food preparation, service and restaurant ambiance."

That's right, ambiance. This isn't the old Hollywood version of the Army club where the hard-drinking officers foresake their gentleman status and slug it out in the bar.

Neither she nor Sgt. Major Talamatez recall seeing a fight.

About the only offensive thing that could happen in the club, she said, would be to serve a food that would violate the religious principles of an allied soldier.

So she works with the post's allied protocol officer to be sure her kitchen doesn't serve food a foreign soldier regards as unclean or inappropriate.

If she sounds somehow too perfect, she's actually quite willing to admit that she has a culinary vice or two.

"I love fresh butter, but I know it's bad for you," she said. "And I love heavy cream."

She also admits to liking a juicy hamburger now and then.

But she had to admit she has a favorite place. With a laugh that sounded only partly humorous, she said, "I'm married to the club. No one else will have me."

Ann Landers "Day Off"

DEAR ANN: I have read some awfully good poems in your column over the years. Here's a "payback." It appeared in a little publication called "Time-Out" in Greenfield Park, Ohio—author unknown. Thanks for years of great reading.—A LOYAL ANN FAN

DEAR LOYAL: Thanks for a delightful addition to my column. I loved it and am sure my readers will, too.

DAY OFF

The dishes are all piled high in the sink
The garbage pail is filled to overflowing
The hamper is stuffed right up to the brink
And the carpets all seem to need mowing.

The dust is as high as a chipmunk's chin
The den's a disaster zone
The upstairs smells like a hive of sin
(Who dropped the eau de cologne?)

The bread box is empty, the ashtrays are full
There's a gift from the cat in the hall
The bathtub's a swamp, the kids all missed school
And dinner's a hard frozen ball.

Yesterday's paper's all over the house
(The dog decided to chew it)
What does a housewife do all day long...?
Today I just didn't do it!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My dear wife passed away several months ago. We were married nearly 51 years. She was a daily reader and a staunch supporter of yours. Whenever a reader told you off in the column she would get so mad the veins in her neck stood out. I used to say, "Emily, get hold of yourself or you'll have a stroke!" She'd reply, "I can't help it. I just see red when some stupid reader is mean to Ann!" Emily loved cats. We always had at least two in the house. Several years ago (maybe 15) Emily wrote you a letter and you printed it. She was so proud. Will you please do me a favor and print it again - in memory of one of your most faithful followers? Thank you so much.—G.R. IN DURHAM, N.C.

DEAR DURHAM: With pleasure. Here it is - for Emily:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You printed three letters in favor of bird lovers and only two from cat lovers. In all fairness you must allow me to even the score.

I've always known in my heart of hearts that people who hate cats are not to be trusted. Such persons are invariably underhanded, mean and vicious. I have never met a cat-hater who wasn't a chronic liar, a crook or a hypocrite.

A person who loves cats should not marry a person who does not share these feelings. Such relationships never work out. A cat-hater should marry his own kind. They deserve each other.

We can learn much from these scrupulously clean, dignified felines. The ancient Egyptians were very wise. Anyone who hated a cat was put to death.—MOTHER OF A SIAMESE AND TWO PERSIANS

DEAR MOTHER: Happy to oblige. Now the score is even!

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious-lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

DR. GOTT Tourists' ills are hard to avoid

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — As a child, I lived for a year in Mexico. I prowled the marketplace with a 12-year-old's appetite for all the delicious tacos, chicharones and other "forbidden fruit." A severe case of amoebic dysentery was finally cured in high school. Can amoebic dysentery be spread by migrant workers? And is it true that when Mexicans come to this country, they get the same "tourista" that we gringos get when we visit their country?

DEAR READER — Your question is composed of two parts.

Amoebic dysentery is an acute infection of the bowel caused by tiny one-celled parasites. The amoebae can produce prodigious amounts of diarrhea and are carried out of the body in the fecal waste. In warm countries with poor sanitation, amoebic dysentery is endemic, which means that it is widespread and easily transmitted through the fecal-oral route. Similarly, an infected patient who immigrates north can spread the dysentery if living conditions are substandard.

Traveler's diarrhea is believed to be a somewhat different ailment. It is usually caused by specific toxins or poisons secreted by a common type of intestinal bacterium: E. Coli. Each of us lives more or less comfortably with our own intestinal bacteria. We have become used to each other.

When we travel, we unavoidably eat bacteria with our food. We have not adapted to the new strains of bacteria, so diarrhea will develop until our intestines adjust to the "newcomers." Therefore, travelers to any foreign country might have diarrhea until adaptation takes place. Mexicans eating American food in the United States or Chinese eating French food in France can suffer several days of diarrhea. The problem seems to be worse for people traveling from a northern climate to a southern one, but, as far as I know, traveler's diarrhea is a universal phenomenon.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son has done stonewall construction for several years, carries buckets of cement and uses a trowel all day. Lately, he says his hands become frozen closed and he has difficulty opening them. Is there any reason for this?

DEAR READER — Your son probably has developed a work-related tendon inflammation or injury. Carrying heavy buckets with narrow handles can cause pressure on the flexor tendons of the fingers. This, in turn, can produce spasm of the finger muscles. He should see a doctor for confirmation, but I'll bet that his hands will be more comfortable if he wears heavy gloves when he works or uses padding on the bucket handles.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been dissatisfied with the care I've gotten from one ophthalmologist, so I'm going to another for a second opinion. Should I tell him it's for a second opinion?

DEAR READER — In diagnosing and treating disease, doctors need as much information as they can get from patients. This information often includes other doctors' opinions, mistakes and insights. So, by all means, tell the ophthalmologist that you want a second opinion — and ask him to send a written report to the first doctor for your file.

To help you avoid such problems in the future, I'm sending you a free copy of my new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 28, of Mediterranean descent and two months pregnant. For the past six months I've been using a tanning booth at my health club. Will this hurt the baby?

DEAR READER — The artificial rays from a tanning salon (or natural sunlight, for that matter) will not harm an unborn baby. The rays will be stopped by your skin.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had some midback problems about six months ago. Now, when I touch my chin to my chest, I get pain that runs down my back. When in a stretching position, I can't even get close to touching my forehead to my right knee. A chiropractor didn't help. Where do I go now?

DEAR READER — People often develop back pain from muscle spasm, which can be accentuated by bending or stretching. On the other hand, spinal arthritis, bone abnormalities and ruptured discs also can cause back pain. I think your best bet is to be examined by an orthopedic surgeon. Such a specialist can diagnose your problem and, if you are experiencing something simple like muscle spasm, can prescribe exercises to relieve your pain.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I just lost 100 pounds and feel and look wonderful. However, I have two areas of skin discoloration on my inner thighs and underarms that I'm sure came from 17 years of being overweight. Over-the-counter creams don't help. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — See a dermatologist or a plastic surgeon. You may require prescription creams or, possibly, surgical removal of the discolored areas.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have Osler's nodes. What are they and how are they usually treated?

DEAR READER — Osler's nodes are tender, reddish bumps in the soft tissues of the ends of the fingers or toes. They are seen in some cases of bacterial endocarditis (infection of the heart's lining or valves). They last a couple of days and then disappear. Treatment is directed toward curing the heart infection, of which Osler's nodes are a sign.

Food spray designed to curb hunger introduced

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A spray of apple-cinnamon Danish, a spritz of pizza or a blast of chocolate can give dieters relief from cravings without adding pounds, say researchers who have developed flavored, low-calorie mouth sprays.

"These sprays offer dieters a great way to get the taste of food without the calories," said Susan Schiffman, who headed the research.

The sprays developed by Duke University scientists were introduced by a weight-loss company here

Thursday and will be available at centers in Buffalo next week and nationwide later this year.

Schiffman, a professor of medical psychology and director of the university's Obesity Clinic, has found that overweight people may have a greater ability to determine flavors than others.

But that also means they have a greater desire for flavorful foods. It is that need for flavor that is partially responsible for an overweight person's craving to eat, she said.

Schiffman said she and her team found a way to turn that craving into a helpful dieting tool.

Through a chemical process called chromatography, the researchers were able to separate the odorants from the non-odorant parts of foods. They then developed sprays that nearly duplicated the flavors of foods.

"We found that a concentrated blast of flavor would satisfy the high flavor set point in the obese and overweight, and in turn, they could control the craving for food," Schiffman said.

The idea is that when the craving for food or flavor gets too strong to resist, a person simply squirts a few blasts of the flavor spray on their tongue.

"These little increments of flavor would leave them feeling satisfied," she said, noting that most dieters face bland foods in their low-calorie menus.

The sprays, which come in a small pump container similar to a breath-spray, are available in three flavors through Nutri-System Inc., which sponsored part of Schiffman's research and is marketing the product.

If the pizza, chocolate and apple-cinnamon Danish flavors do well, additional flavors could become available.

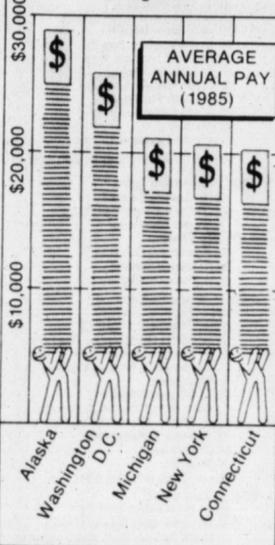

Schiffman said her team has developed about 40 other flavors, including peanut and blueberry cheesecake.

Each spray contains about one-tenth of a calorie, while a 1-ounce piece of fudge has about 120 calories, a 6-ounce piece of pizza 416 calories and a 4-ounce Danish about 384 calories, Schiffman said.

A one-third ounce container, which contains approximately 150 sprays, costs $2.49.

BRITISH ARTISTS AND INDIA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — During the nearly two centuries of British rule in India, artists from Britain traveled throughout that vast land to create a visual record of their compatriots' life in a foreign land.

"From Merchants to Emperors: British Artists and India, 1757-1930," on view at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art Oct. 2-Jan. 4, documents the story of two disparate cultures with some 100 drawings, watercolors, prints and photographs.

The museum says, "The works represent the activities and the attitudes of the ruling class, revealing both the brightest and the darkest sides of colonialism."

JAMIE JOHNSON

Airman Jamie J. Johnson, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Dennis J. Johnson of Robins Air Force Base, Ga., has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. William J. Gilliland of Route 4, Hereford, and the late Dr. Gilliland.

AFRICAN SCULPTURE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "African Sculpture From the University Museum" is on view at the Philadelphia Museum of Art through Feb. 8.

The exhibition consists of 89 sculptures, masks and other objects of ceremonial and everyday use. Most of the carvings are of wood, which was often painted and/or embellished with such materials as copper, brass, nails and beads as well as animal and vegetable matter.

The University of Pennsylvania Museum has been collecting archaeological and anthropological materials from Africa for nearly a century, and has particularly rich holdings from Zaire, Gabon, Angola and Nigeria.

POLLY'S POINTERS Luxuriate with homemade truffles

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for chocolate truffles? Thanks. — MILLIE

DEAR MILLIE — Here's a basic recipe for truffles. You may vary the flavor by adding a little liqueur or flavoring extract. How about amaretto truffles, cherry-brandy truffles or rum truffles?

Pour ½ cup heavy cream into a food processor and begin processing. While the machine is running, slowly pour eight ounces melted semi-sweet chocolate through the feed tube. When the chocolate and cream are thoroughly combined, stop the machine, add three tablespoons unsalted butter cut into chunks and ½ teaspoon vanilla extract (plus any other flavorings, if desired). Process mixture one minute, stop the machine and scrape down the sides, then process one additional minute.

Pour the chocolate mixture into a bowl and refrigerate it for approximately 12 hours, or until the mixture is very firm. Working quickly to minimize melting, roll mixture into 1-inch balls, or scoop out balls with a melon baller. Place balls on a platter or baking sheet covered with waxed paper and chill for 30 minutes.

Roll the finished truffles in Dutch-process cocoa or dip into tempered chocolate (you'll need about 12 ounces of coating chocolate). Store the truffles in the refrigerator in a covered container. This recipe makes about ½ pound plain truffles or about 1½ pounds if dipped in chocolate.

DEAR POLLY — I have several down comforters that are leaking feathers through worn coverings. Is there any way of recovering the down and making new coverings? — ANN

DEAR ANN — Rather than trying to empty the feathers from the old comforters into new coverings, why not just make new covers (using the present comforters as patterns) and put them on right over the old covers? That way you can spruce up the comforters without the fuss and mess of transferring the down and feathers. If you like, you can make a few tacks or quilt stitches through the comforter to secure the old comforter in place inside its new cover, preventing sliding and bunching of the innards.

You can machine-wash and dry the old comforters (unless they're too big to get into your machine) before recovering them. Use a minimum of detergent and make sure the comforters are thoroughly rinsed. Then machine-dry them with a clean tennis ball or canvas shoe or two. The ball or shoe will punch and fluff up the down while it's drying, to prevent matting. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I used to stand on the side of the bathtub to hang a clean shower curtain. I now have bought "S" hooks large enough to hook into the rings on the rod and can now stand on the floor to hook them into the shower curtain. Much easier than traditional hooks.

Before cleaning the bathroom, I put the toothbrushes into a container of hot water with a denture-cleaning tablet. By the time the bathroom has been cleaned, the toothbrushes can be rinsed with hot water and are like new.

When storing my bathroom rugs, I find that if I roll them instead of folding them, the rubberized backing lasts longer without cracking. — MRS. D.

ANSWERING MACHINES

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Telephone answering machines, originally designed for small businesses, are becoming a staple in the home.

General Electric says two factors have spurred home use:

"With the increase in dual career households, answerers have become a means for keeping in touch with friends and family," says Bob Giordano of GE. "In addition, the new models are more compact and have more features, yet are easier than ever to operate."

The Electronic Industries Association estimates that more than 4 million answering machines will be sold this year.

Association proposes disease fighting diet

NEW YORK (AP) — Women confused by a barrage of diets designed to fight fat, osteoporosis and cancer may view new guidelines from the American Dietetic Association as forming a health plan they "can live with forever," says the organization's president.

The guidelines, released this week distill earlier recommendations for combatting obesity, osteoporosis, cancer and menstrual troubles, said Anita Owen.

"What we have done is take all the recommendations and put them into a diet pattern that people can live with forever," she said.

At an association news conference, experts cautioned that only indirect or weak evidence links calcium to osteoporosis prevention, or low-fat, high-fiber diets to cancer prevention, but they said the recommendations were consistent with what is known.

Lawrence Garfinkel of the American Cancer Society said in a telephone interview Tuesday that the guidelines "sound in general pretty sensible."

The dietetic association's news conference was financed by the National Dairy Board.

The guidelines, which generally resemble standard recommendations for fighting particular diseases, include:

— Eat a daily variety of three to four servings of low-fat dairy foods, two servings of low-fat meat or meat alternates, four servings of vegetables and fruits, and four servings of whole grain breads and cereals.

— Limit total fat to no more than one third of daily calories, and select a variety of saturated, polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats.

Choose low-fat meat and milk.

— Eat at least half of daily calories from carbohydrates, especially complex carbohydrates such as those in beans, peas, pasta, vegetables, nuts and seeds.

— Eat a daily variety of fiber-rich foods, such as fresh fruits with skin, vegetables, whole grains and legumes.

— Include three or four daily servings of calcium-rich foods, such as low-fat milk, yogurt and cheese, broccoli, sardine or canned salmon with bones, and collard greens.

— Include plenty of iron-rich foods daily, such as lean meat, liver, prunes, pinto and kidney beans, spinach, leafy green vegetables and enriched and whole-grain breads and cereals.

Women should avoid smoking, limit salt intake, exercise for 20 minutes three days a week, restrict alcohol to one or two drinks a day if they drink and use vitamin and mineral supplements only in special circumstances, the guidelines say.

Those circumstances may include pregnancy and breast-feeding, old age, calorie-restricted diets and certain medical conditions, the association said.

A LOT OF LUMBER

ALCOLU, S.C. (AP) — Pallets, the portable platforms used for moving and storing materials in warehouses and factories, consume more lumber each year than any other wood product end-use except houses, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp.

The building products firm says some 3,000 pallet makers and recyclers use about a fifth of all the lumber purchased in the United States.

Police search for victim's companion

WHITE SETTLEMENT, Texas (AP) — A man sought in connection with the stabbing death of a White Settlement woman worked at the variety store where she was an assistant manager, police said.

But Liz Vacek, manager at the Woolworth store at Ridgmar Mall in Fort Worth, refused to comment on the victim, Pamela Gourley, or answer questions concerning Ms. Gourley's former co-worker.

Police say the man wore a long knife on his belt and accompanied her when she went to buy a new car this summer.

"Woolworth management has told us not to say anything about this," said a woman who answered the phone at the store Thursday night.

Ms. Gourley, 26, was found fatally stabbed in her apartment in White Settlement on Monday. An autopsy found 23 puncture wounds, one in the heart.

The main clue police have is a car dealer's report that she visited his dealership shopping for a new car in July. A man wearing a long knife in a sheath on his belt accompanied her, and she carried a child who she told salesmen was their 4-month-old daughter.

"She said she wanted to take the car and go back to Iowa, but could not take the baby because her parents did not know about it," said Doug Meister of Bill McDavid Pontiac in Fort Worth.

White Settlement police Lt. David Place said Thursday the child apparently was not hers but belonged to the companion — the former co-worker police are seeking for questioning.

Jerry Maier, another salesman at the auto dealership, said the woman told him that she could not afford to put much money down for a new car because of hospital expenses for the baby. She said the child had open-heart surgery shortly after birth, Maier said.

Maier said he was led to believe that the man who accompanied her to the showroom and carried the baby most of the time was her husband or boyfriend.

"When I read in the (Fort Worth) Star-Telegram... that the police said she didn't have any known boyfriends or ex-boyfriends, I said, 'Wait a minute, Jack,' and called them (police) to let them know about this man and the baby they had with them."

Police Lt. Place said there was no sign an infant was living in the apartment where the body was found.

When Jack Gourley of Lenox, Iowa, refused to co-sign a car loan for his daughter, the woman went to Bailey Pontiac in Hurst and purchased a 1986 red Pontiac Firebird that police believe the killer took after the slaying.

A nationwide alert has been issued for the car, which has Texas license plates.

Bailey Pontiac saleswoman Patricia Mayo said no one accompanied Ms. Gourley to purchase the car at that dealership.

"She came in once with a younger girl," said Ms. Mayo, who described Ms. Gourley as "sweet and your sort of basic, really nice girl."

She said Ms. Gourley told her that she "preferred dealing with a woman more than a man and that she felt more comfortable dealing with a female (sales representative) because of mutual trust. She said something about not wanting to be a hassled or hustled by a man."

Panel queries promotion of Mexican factories

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel asked Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige to explain why the government is promoting Mexican factories where American businesses send products to be assembled by low-paid workers.

The Commerce Department has invited 120,000 American companies to attend EXPO MAQUILA 1986 Dec. 3-5 in Acapulco to promote the use of so-called maquiladora, the factories where U.S. goods are shipped for assembly by cheap labor.

The finished goods from these plants, mostly automotive parts and electronic components, are reshipped across the U.S.

order. Commerce Department officials said the agency has promoted maquiladora to help American companies reduce labor costs to meet international competition.

But Rep. Joe Kolter, D-Pa., a member of the House Government Operations commerce subcommittee, argued Thursday in a letter to Rep. Doug Barnard Jr., D-Ga., that the Commerce Department "is using American tax dollars... to encourage, aid and abet the exportation of American jobs. In a sense, some of our taxpayers are paying to create their own unemployment."

"The site of the EXPO is Acapulco, presumably so the executives can get a tan while the government teaches them how to put their friends and neighbors in America out of work," Kolter wrote.

"Maquiladora has a translation relating to assembly plants, but the real meaning is 'adios American jobs.'"

Barnard sent a letter to Baldrige on Thursday requesting more information about the program, indicating the panel may conduct an oversight hearing.

Ted Jacobs, the subcommittee's counsel, said the panel is concerned that the department is promoting a program that is stealing jobs from American workers. Jacobs said a hearing would likely be held next year.

Melissa Coyle, director of the Commerce Department's Mexico trade division, said the government has been promoting maquiladoras since the late 1970s to help U.S. businesses cut labor costs to compete with foreign manufacturers.

About 800 maquiladoras, located mostly along the U.S.-Mexican border, provide a service that helps American companies save money on an expensive, labor-intensive phase of manufacturing, she said.

The maquiladoras may actually help save American manufacturing jobs that would otherwise be lost if U.S. companies were unable to meet foreign competition, she said.

Cousins out to bag cockroach

AUSTIN (AP) — It's not deer hunting, but cousins Mark Warren and David Starr don't mind they're out to bag the wily cockroach.

"I feel like I can do more good for the world shooting cockroaches than deer," said Starr, 29.

"Plus, when you're shooting cockroaches, you don't have to worry about that trophy coming along. One is pretty much like the other. You soak 'em down and let God sort 'em out," he added.

To kill the critters, Starr and Warren hunt at night. Using flashlights for spotting, they are armed with squirt guns filled with insecticidal soap, a substance Warren chose because he says it's safer than plain insecticide.

On a recent outing, the pair was accompanied by John Kelso, a columnist for the Austin American-Statesman, who recounted details of the hunt in the newspaper Thursday.

The hunts begin after sundown. Warren said that's the time of day the bugs are most likely to come out.

"The big guys, they don't come out 'til about 8," he said.

The game is sought in two locations — along a rock wall that runs next to Warren's girlfriend's house in south Austin, and around the concrete picnic tables at a park across the street.

The thrill of the hunt, Warren said, is enhanced by the show the roaches put on when they kick the bucket.

"If you hit him pretty good, if you have a crisp shot right under the wings, they jump up, turn around and go in the opposite direction, kind of like the old targets at the shooting gallery — ting, ting, ting," Warren said.

Warren came up with the idea in midsummer, when he noticed a bunch of roaches on the dog food left outside his girlfriend's house for his dog. The thought of roaches walking on his dog's food angered Warren because Pablo, his pet, won a state Frisbee-catching championship once and "won me a dinner... and a pair of tennis shoes."

So he began to look for entertaining ways to waste the bugs, then remembered the two squirt guns he owns. One looks like a .45-caliber pistol and the other like a machine gun.

Since then, Warren has been on six or seven hunts while Starr has accompanied him on about three.

These days, the two said they prefer the park picnic area to the area near the house because roaches are becoming scarce near the latter spot.

"We've basically overhunted here. We'll have to have a bag limit," Warren said.

Twenty or 30 roaches a night is a good haul, Warren said. That's not too bad, either, he noted, because "I'd never be able to stomp 30 of 'em a night."

The largest of their no-sbig game, he added, was in the range of 1 1/2 inches.

"But they look bigger when they're charging you," Starr said.
