Dump opponents protest port traffic

HOUSTON (AP) — Transporting nuclear wastes across the state to a dump site in West Texas could threaten residents and the economy, opponents to the federal proposal say.

Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle is one of three finalists the U.S. Department of Energy has chosen as a possible site for a high-level nuclear waste repository. The others are in Nevada and Washington.

But opponents of the plan told members of the Texas House Subcommittee on Hazardous Materials Transportation it could hurt farming and cattle industries and pose additional danger if transported through the Port of Houston and across Texas.

"Let's just say no to the DOE," said Angela Lamb, Amarillo District Supervisor for the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"We don't want the repository. We want to protect Texas from the DOE's takeover attempt," Ms. Lamb said at the subcommittee hearing Wednesday in Houston. "Please, don't waste Texas."

The proposed site is about 35 miles north of Hereford. If chosen, highly radioactive wastes would be transported to the site and buried underground, according to the state agriculture department.

The energy department was told about the hearing but sent no representatives, state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said. About 50 people attended the hearing.

Hightower said all Texans should ban together to fight the storage of "nuclear trash."

"We can beat it," he said. "We're all in this together."

State Rep. Al Luna of Houston, chairman of the subcommittee, said he also was worried about a preliminary plan involving the shipment of wastes through the Port of Houston and across Texas because of possible accidents.

"I think we share the concerns of people in the Panhandle that this is a bad program, a bad plan," he said.

"We would like to see it killed as soon as possible."

Surrounding farm land and the Ogallala Aquifer could be harmed by accidents at the proposed site, opponents said.

Bill Cleavinger, president of Texas Sugarbeet Growers, said if the aquifer was contaminated by radiation, the area would become a "desert."

"Water is a very, very precious item to us," the Wildorado resident said.

Cleavinger also said there may be a stigma attached to food grown or processed near a nuclear waste dump, thus hurting the economy.

Farm trade deficits unlikely to become permanent, USDA says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm trade deficits that produced shock waves this summer and worsened the U.S. balance in world markets are unlikely to become permanent, according to an Agriculture Department estimate.

"U.S. agricultural trade will remain in surplus and the surpluses will almost certainly grow in future years as the impact of the current farm program "and the weaker U.S. dollar become apparent," it said.

It called increased exports the key to improving the farm trade balance and said they would be brought about by the farm program approved last year by Congress which has lowered commodity prices.

The forecast came in the department magazine Agricultural Outlook published Wednesday, a week after the close of the 1986 fiscal year in which exports are estimated at $26.5 billion, compared to $44 billion five years ago.

The department is estimating imports at $20.5 billion, or 30 percent above the 1982 level.

The estimated $6 billion agricultural trade surplus is the lowest since 1972 and comes at a time when the nation's projected merchandise trade deficit, which figures in the value of farm products, is projected at more than $170 billion for calendar 1986.

The shock waves came from what the Commerce Department calls agricultural trade deficits in May, June and July. The Agriculture Department, which uses a different calculation system, says the balance was marginally in the black in June and that the only deficits were in May and July.

Either way, the deficits filled the election-year silo with political fodder and brought on a new round of what-went-wrong rhetoric.

"Do the recent short-term deficits threaten to become long-term?" asks the article in Agricultural Outlook, a publication of the department's Economic Research Service. "Probably not."

One reason it says is that agricultural imports are stimulated mainly by forces unlike those that drive other imports.

Weather and production factors elsewhere in the world sometimes determine the value of American imports.

Fully 40 percent of U.S. imports represent coffee, tea, pepper and other goods deemed non-competitive because American farmers do not produce them.

The 1985 drought that withered

Brazil's soybean crop and gave U.S. bean growers a shot in the arm also drastically curtailed coffee production and thus sent prices soaring. That meant it cost America more to import coffee. It did not mean an increase in coffee imports.

Coffee prices have fallen since their January peak, but import prices remain about 50 percent above a year earlier and are likely to stay high in coming months," the report says.

The value of spice imports also increased because of a shortfall in world pepper production.

"Fluctuations of this nature do not reflect real changes in the United States' competitive stance," the report said.

It did acknowledge, however, that import values increased for several years preceding 1986 because competitive products made inroads into the U.S. market. In specific it cited Canadian hogs and European pasta as well as Brazilian frozen orange juice which climbed from 5 percent of the U.S. market in 1981 to nearly 50 percent in 1985.

Even in the citrus sector, however, the weather was a major factor, it said. It cited four winter freezes in Florida since 1981, killing 200,000 acres of orange trees.

Since the most severe freeze in 1985, milder weather has brought a falloff in orange juice imports and a 27 percent drop in prices.

U.S. imports of grain and grain products rose 68 percent in the first half of the 1980s, live animals 79 per-

If you don't have a ticket for the Homecoming game here Friday night when Hereford takes on Levelland, you may not be able to get one. Only 420 tickets on the east side were left Wednesday, and they'll be placed on sale at the game Friday night.

It should be a great football game with the Whitefaces sporting an undefeated record this season and the Lobos fighting to stay in the district race after a 9-0 loss to Canyon and a surprising 14-14 tie with No. 1 ranked Estacado. Levelland is gaining football recognition again under Coach Gene Mayfield.

The Herd will also be protecting a Homecoming streak of six straight. No HHS team has lost a Homecoming game in the '80s. See you at the game...if you have a ticket!

"A free press serves a Free People," is the theme for National Newspaper Week which is being recognized across the United States this week. And you can bet it's not a worldwide recognition.

The United States was born over 200 years ago. A strong character trait of that glorious beginning was the birth of this country's freedom of the press.

Although America represents a melting pot of cultures and influences, freedom of the press was an innovation of this country. Many of our laws were inherited from the British more than 200 years ago, but freedom of the press wasn't included in those adoptions. It didn't exist in Britain at the time.

Freedom of the press has been handed down, nurtured and preserved because it is essential to the free society we still enjoy in 1986.

Obviously media organizations recognize the importance of a free press as it is celebrated this week. But so do others who realize its essential link for preservation of the individual freedoms which we sometimes take for granted.

Freedom of the press comes with a heavy dose of responsibility, a responsibility this newspaper takes seriously with each edition that rolls off the press.

Although we have a philosophy of accentuating all that is positive and

Band seeks 29th consecutive superior marching rating

In seeking to obtain the 29th consecutive year of superior marching ratings on Saturday, Hereford High band instructors are trying to incite fervor from the 204 players by wearing caps—in class—from competitive schools in District I 4-A.

James MacLaskey, band director, was joined in pre-contest hoopla by the Band Boosters who have plastered the music hall with victory posters.

Contest begins at 8 a.m. on the Berger field with the HHS group scheduled for 5:45 p.m. Admission will be $1 each. Band busses will leave the high school at 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

Canyon, Berger, Pampa and Dumas are the other contenders.

Friday night's halftime show at the Herd game in Whiteface Stadium will be what the band will perform Saturday.

Selections are "Malaguena," "My Favorite Things," and "You've Lost That Loving Feeling." The drill team and twirlers will perform with the band in contest and twirlers will be entering individual contests there Saturday.

Judging will be on music performance and selection, marching uniformity and precision, general effect and general appearance.

The panel of judges will consist of Dr. Harris Brinson, San Angelo University; Ray Lashaway, Macamy High School; and James Mallow, Brady High School.

In addition to keeping the Hereford tradition of superior rating alive, the band hopes to be one of two bands of the five in the district to be selected by the judges as representatives to regional competition.

MacLaskey said that in this district the drop to 4-A puts Hereford in traditionally stronger music competition than in 5-A, although statewide 5-A is usually stronger.

"We feel like if we can get through our district here, then we have a good chance of going to state," he said. "We will probably be the biggest band (in 4-A) which should be our favor."

FBI holds for test results

AUSTIN (AP) — Investigators hope to know by Friday results of preliminary tests on the electronic bug found in the office of a Bill Clements campaign official, the FBI says.

Byron Sage, agent in charge of the FBI's Austin office, said the device was received by an FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday. It is undergoing technical examination as well as tests for fingerprints.

"We're trying to determine everything — its point of origin, who the manufacturer was, the capabilities of the device, its sophistication," Sage said Wednesday.

The bug was found Sunday in the office of Karl Rove, an Austin-based political consultant who is the top strategist for Clements' GOP gubernatorial campaign.

The matchbook-sized radio transmitter powered by a battery was found behind a picture hanging about 4 feet from Rove's desk telephone.

Use of such listening devices without authorized court orders or without the knowledge of those whose conversations are being monitored is a felony under both state and federal law, said officials of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

During an interview in Houston, where he made a speech Wednesday, Clements refused to comment.

Noting that both the FBI and DPS were investigating, Clements said, "it would be inappropriate" for him to say anything about the incident at this time.

Kalb quits State Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Kalb says he quit as the State Department's chief spokesman "to enter a modest dissent" from a reported U.S. government disinformation campaign on Libya that damages American credibility.

Kalb said Wednesday he chose to step down rather than "allow myself to be absorbed in the ranks of silence."

The 64-year-old former newsman praised Secretary of State George P. Shultz as a "monument to integrity, credibility, courage and strength."

Kalb said he was not "dissenting" from Shultz but from the reported disinformation program. "I am concerned about the impact of any such program on the credibility of the United States," he said.

"Anything that hurts America's credibility, hurts America," he added.

None of the reports had suggested Kalb played a role in any effort to mislead the media and the public. The New York Times said last Friday, however, that the campaign grew out of a mid-August State Department document to the White House laying out a "deception" campaign.

The Washington Post, which broke the story last Thursday, said the campaign originated with a memo written by Adm. John M. Poindexter, who is President Reagan's national security adviser.

"Faith in the word of America is the pulsebeat of democracy," Kalb told a farewell news conference.

Kalb, who held the job for nearly two years after a long career with The New York Times, CBS and NBC, will be succeeded by his deputy, Charles E. Redman.

The departing spokesman said he told Shultz of his decision Tuesday night. "The secretary is a man of such overwhelming integrity that he allows other people to have their own," Kalb said.

Captured American to stand trial

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — An American captured when Sandinista troops shot down a rebel supply plane "is a delinquent" who will be tried by Nicaraguan courts, a presidential spokesman said.

The government has announced no charges against 45-year-old Eugene Hasenfus of Marinette, Wis., but Sandinista officials say cargo found on the plane indicates it was part of a CIA operation to supply U.S.-backed rebels fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

In a note of protest over the supply plane, Nicaragua on Wednesday called on the United States "to abandon its politics of force, threats and intervention in Central American and accept the path of dialogue."

The note was signed by acting Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco, addressed to U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and delivered to the U.S. Embassy.

President Reagan and other U.S. officials deny that the plane or the men were connected with the American government.

Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Angela Saballos said the bodies of three people killed when the plane was shot down on Sunday would be returned to their families.

Nicaraguan officials identified the dead as pilot William J. Cooper and co-pilot Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr., both U.S. citizens, and a man who has not been identified but is believed to be an American. The plane was hit by a surface-to-air missile and crashed into the jungle of southern Nicaragua.

In Tegucigalpa, Honduras, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, largest of the rebel organizations, said the men on board the plane had worked with them since 1984.

Drug summit planned

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) — U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III will likely press Mexican authorities at a hemispheric drug summit on the murder of an American drug agent and the kidnap-torture of another.

Mexican Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez said the focus of the summit that began Wednesday and ends Friday will be to discuss general drug enforcement strategies.

"The problem of drug trafficking is a complex phenomenon. It is necessary to understand its characteristics in detail in order to combat it," Garcia Ramirez said earlier this week.

In addition to the United States and Mexico, the government says justice ministers will be attending from Belize, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Colombia, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Brazil, Panama and Jamaica.

The conference is being conducted in this Pacific resort in Jalisco state. The western Mexican state is considered one of the major centers of the drug trade in the nation.

In Washington last week, Meese said he would discuss with the Mexicans the slaying of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar and the detention by Jalisco state police of Victor Cortez, another DEA agent.

Camarena was abducted in February 1985 in Guadalajara in front of the U.S. Consulate by Jalisco state police who turned him over to drug traffickers who beat him to death.

Cortez was grabbed in August by Jalisco state police who allegedly beat him before freeing him after U.S. officials demanded his release. Mexican officials at first denied the abduction, but after a strong U.S. diplomatic protest, 11 policemen were charged with abuse of authority and injuring Cortez.

Foreclosures hit high-rent districts

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — Mansions valued at fancy six figures are joining thousands of more modest tract houses on the auction block in Texas as economic hard times stir up a blizzard of foreclosure notices in virtually every neighborhood of the state.

Financial troubles — caused by slumps in the energy, agriculture and real estate sectors — are touching hearth and home in the enclaves of wealth in Dallas, Houston, Midland, Abilene and throughout the Texas heartland.

Homes of oil and corporate executives are joining those of construction workers and clerks on foreclosure posting lists.

In the lush Dallas suburbs of Highland Park and University Park, speculators who once struck gold by redeveloping lots are left holding half-million dollar palaces that nobody wants to buy. Many face foreclosure.

In River Oaks and Hedwick Village, Houston neighborhoods where Mercedes are more common than crab grass, mansions are being marketed at fire sale rates by hard-pressed owners who seek to get out with credit and reputation intact.

More than 40,000 properties have gone on the foreclosure auction block in the last two years in Texas, and several times that number have been "posted," or notified of intent to foreclose.

"They are all over the place," says Ken Edelman of Bacca Publications, a Houston firm that reports on real estate activity. "They're in just about every neighborhood you can think of."

In Highland Park and University Park, the Dallas "Park Cities" suburbs favored by the wealthy, hard times are sinking speculators by the dozens. Foreclosure Listing Service Inc. shows 77 foreclosures posted in the Park Cities in 1986, compared to just 14 for all of 1985.

"Many of the people who owned some of these (foreclosed) residences were energy company executives," said William Brueggeman, professor of real estate at Southern Methodist University's Edwin L. Cox School of Business.

"But the more significant problem is that it was an extremely hot market for six solid years and an incredible price appreciation was going on in the Park Cities," he said. "Twenty percent a year for six years is not out of line."

Brueggeman said that skyrocketing valuations left many small homes, some of which were built 50 or more years ago, sitting on lots worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Developers scrambled to buy the sites and raze the old houses to build modern, spacious homes, usually on borrowed money.

"What builders did was to buy a site, tear the house down, redevelop it and sell at a price range of $500,000 good about this community, we also recognize a strong responsibility to "watch dog" the public's right to know. The news is not always pretty and positive, and neither will be our coverage as long as we fulfill our obligation of being a fair, full-service newspaper.

This includes coverage of all governing bodies, making sure they conduct the public's business according to the Texas Open Meetings act. A free, thinking public doesn't want its decisions made behind closed doors.

With the demands of work and family in the '80s, many don't make to $700,000," he said. "For a two- to three-year period, there was a brisk market but they basically overdid it."

When the market softened, developers found themselves holding heavily mortgaged property which they couldn't sell. Banks started foreclosing.

David Bywater, senior vice president at InterFirst Bank Park Cities, said the foreclosure rate in the area is at an all-time high.

"Most of these foreclosure situations involve people who did not have the financial wherewithal and were speculating in the Park Cities," said Bywater.

Elaine Schneider bought a run-down house across the street from her home and planned to rebuild on the lot for a tidy profit. But the property she bought for $200,000 in August 1985 was posted for foreclosure last month.

"I stayed with that one as long as possible," she said. "But even the banks said there is only so much you can do."

Ms. Schneider, a 15-year real estate veteran, adds: "I have never seen a market like this."

Edelman said that though scores of houses in River Oaks and other lavish Houston neighborhoods have been posted for foreclosure, most of the homeowners find a way out of their problems or manage to salvage something from their homes.

As an example, he said, a resident may live in a $500,000 home that has a $250,000 lien. When foreclosure is posted, he may sell it for $400,000, pay off the loan and still pocket $150,000, his credit intact.

"It's a win, win, win situation," said Edelman. "The seller gets some money back, the buyer gets a bargain and the lender can retire the loan." Eventually, though, such bargain selling can affect the basic value of homes in the neighborhood. A resident with a high mortgage could then find himself owing more for his home than it is worth.

That situation is common, said Edelman, in the more modestly-priced, $80,000 to $100,000 neighborhoods. Foreclosures often have a less happy ending there.

"The guy can't sell it, so they'll usually tell the bank to take it and just walk away," he said. The home then joins hundreds of others in an auction sale.

The Federal National Mortgage Association, a major federal loan guarantee agency, has held 14 actions involving hundreds of homes in Dallas, Houston and other cities since May 1985, an official said.

"We are carrying 2,000 foreclosed properties in the state of Texas to dispose of now and we had 2,000 in 1985," said FNMA spokeswoman Bonnie O'Dell in Washington.

Veteran Administration foreclosures totaled 880 this fiscal year through June 30, out of 10,967 loans guaranteed, said Lee Kramer, loan guaranty officer for the agency's Waco regional office.

Foreclosures of VA loans in the 160-county North Texas region increased to 950 in the last fiscal year on 11,108 loans guaranteed, compared with 703 foreclosures on 15,804 loans in the 1984 fiscal year, said Kramer.

"We are seeing more foreclosures this year and last year than we did and that is continuing to rise," he said. "Part of that is that we made a record number of loans in 1983. The ratio of foreclosures did not change dramatically."

He said the foreclosure ratio was greater in the West Texas cities of Abilene and Midland, both of which have been hard-hit by the slump in energy prices and drilling activity.

VA and FNMA deal only in loans guaranteed by the agencies. Hundreds of other mortgages are so-called "conventional loans" held by private lending institutions.

cent, vegetables 60 percent and fruit 208 percent, according to the report.

The big increases, however, do not reflect a deep market penetration, based on a comparison of cash receipts for the commodities paid to farmers with the value of imports, the report concluded.

The article concludes that the major culprit in the declining farm trade balance is the dismal export picture.

It estimates that imports climbed 16 percent while exports dropped 34 percent in fiscal 1986.

Export volume fell to an estimated 108 metric tons compared to 125 million the previous year, it says. It says part of the problem is that purchasers delayed such action in anticipation of lower prices under the farm program approved by Congress last year.

It also cites a drop in Soviet grain purchases.

DR. GOTT Head injuries and dizziness

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In 1982, my 20-year-old daughter suffered two head injuries from sports. She had X-rays and was told that she had no concussion. Several months later she started to get attacks of vertigo. She never loses consciousness; everything just spins violently, and she is nauseated and lightheaded afterwards. Exams show nothing and her neurologist is at a loss. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER — I'm confused about your neurologist's confusion.

Head injuries, even relatively slight ones, can cause the brain to be wildly buffeted within the skull. To one degree or another, brain bruising can result. Quite simply, this is a concussion.

X-rays can show whether the skull is fractured, thereby indicating that the patient received a tremendously powerful blow to the head. However, X-rays never will show a concussion, because the brain tissue is soft and does not show up well on routine skull-X-ray studies.

Your daughter appears to have suffered a concussion and has developed post-concussion syndrome. This relatively common ailment causes recurring headaches, memory difficulty, feelings of "things not being right," insomnia and — occasionally — vertigo, the sensation of spinning. With time, your daughter's symptoms will disappear. However, I believe she needs an examination by an ear-nose-and-throat specialist, to make sure that she does not have an unrelated inner ear problem.

Incidentally, there are medicines that can be prescribed to counteract her vertigo. Ask the otolaryngologist about them.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have fluid buildup in the middle ear and have had at least five ventilation tubes put in. A light-scope test found scar tissue blocking the Eustachian tube where it goes to the nose or throat. Can surgery be done to remove the blockage?

DEAR READER — Chronic serous otitis (the presence of fluid in the middle ear chamber) can be difficult to treat. Removal of scar tissue blocking the Eustachian tube (the ear's vent) can be particularly difficult.

I do not know whether such surgery would be appropriate for your condition. I suggest that you obtain a second opinion if your otolaryngologist does not perform this kind of surgery. Perhaps the ear, nose and throat doctors at a large medical center would be willing to try to relieve the blockage.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two months ago I had a tonsillectomy, and it has left me unable to taste anything. This is a terrible problem for me, since I am a caterer. Is this a normal complication of such surgery?

DEAR READER — Loss of taste following tonsillectomy is troublesome, but usually temporary. Once the tissue has healed and the swelling has receded, your taste should return to normal.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been to several doctors about my problem, and one practically laughed in my face. I am unable to control the passing of gas. A gastroenterologist told me that I probably have a weak muscle and that nothing can be done. I find that hard to believe. I understand that having gas is a natural, normal response in the digestive process, but I don't like having a perpetual gas leak.

DEAR READER — Passing gas provides the basis for much folk humor, but it's not funny when it happens to you. Try eliminating gas-producing foods from your diet, carbonated beverages, legumes and spices. Make sure that you are not swallowing air when you eat or drink. Try anti-gas compounds, like simethicone. Omit milk products. Ask your gastroenterologist to teach you exercises to strengthen your sphincter.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on DIGESTIVE GAS, which tells what causes this common problem and how you can manage it. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is there any scientific evidence to support the claim that wearing a copper bracelet helps relieve the discomfort of arthritis?

DEAR READER — Nope. That was simply a popular fad several years ago.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son-in-law says that if an alcoholic completely abstains from alcohol, he won't live long, because his system has come to depend on it and has lost the ability to process food. Fortunately, this is not my problem, but is this true?

DEAR READER — Your son-in-law's viewpoint is pure hogwash. The reverse is true: If an alcoholic does not abstain, he will die. Alcohol is a poison for anyone. For an alcoholic, it is worse. Under these circumstances, booze — in the form of wine, beer or liquor — is a one-way ticket to court or to the mortuary. Alcoholism is a fatal disease, but it can be treated by abstinence. And that is the only successful treatment.

By the way, does your son-in-law drink a good deal? His irrational rationalizations sound very much to me like what is known as "alcoholic thinking."

Powder puff mechanics topic of recent chapter program

Young Homemakers of Texas, Hereford Chapter, met for their monthly meeting recently at Jerry's Exxon, 403 25 Mile Ave., where Jerry Collier gave a crash course concerning powder puff mechanics.

Collier gave tips on how to check the basics of a vehicle and emphasized that engine trouble should be checked by a qualified mechanic.

Following the program, the group adjourned to Gene Ann Marasco's home where the business meeting was held and refreshments served.

The group discussed decorating Halloween sugar cookies. Cookies will be sold through Oct. 25 and delivery of them will be made from Oct. 27 through Oct. 31. The price is $3 a dozen for an order of one to four dozen and $2.50 a dozen for an order of more than 10 dozen. Melinda Henson, president, will take orders after 6 p.m. Oct. 25 by contacting her at 364-0222.

A luau for prospective members will be held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center. Members discussed refreshments, decorations and music.

The group has been asked to cater the Christmas Open House from 1-5 p.m. Nov. 16 at Park Ave. Florist.

The next meeting was planned Nov. 11 at La Plata Junior High School in the homemaking department.

Residents attend activities

Mr. and Mrs. Horace La Fever of Hereford sampled campus life at Austin College recently during Parent's Weekend. More than 800 parents, grandparents and other relatives of Austin College students attended the eighth annual Parent's Weekend.

Ways with Wine
by David Hutchins

TANNIN TALK
Tannin is a group of organic compounds that exist in the bark, wood, roots, and stems of many plants. It is also present in wine, especially red wine. To the taste, it is astringent and makes the mouth pucker. This is almost always so in the better young red Bordeaux wines of good years. It is particularly pronounced in wines that have not been separated from their stems before fermentation. Some additional tannin is certainly picked up by wines stored in oak barrels. This improves them greatly. Tannin forms part of the natural sediment that fine red wines throw as they grow older. A mature wine has less tannin than a young wine.

When you need help in choosing a wine stop in and talk with us at THE STORE. We love to talk about wines and to answer any questions you may have. Are you planning a wine tasting party this fall? If so, feel free to discuss your plans with one of us at THE STORE. We'll be happy to help you regarding the quantity of wine you will need. You'll find us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Come in and look us over. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Wines with the highest tannin levels generally improve with age.

Don't ignore hidden fats

Consumers may associate fat with meat because it is visible, and tend to ignore the hidden fats in other types of food, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Mary K. Sweeten explains that there are three types of fat in food:

-Polyunsaturated fats are liquid at room temperature. These fats tend to lower blood cholesterol. Vegetable oils, such as corn, cottonseed, safflower and soybean oil are all polyunsaturated fats.

-Monounsaturated fats seem to lower blood cholesterol, but still provide fat-based calories. Peanut butter and peanut oil, nuts, avocados and olive oil contain monounsaturated fats.

-Saturated fats are solid at room temperature and tend to raise blood cholesterol levels. Animal products, such as cheese, meat, butter and lard are a main source of saturated fats. However, vegetable products including cocoa butter, coconut oil and palm oil also contain large amounts of saturated fats.

"Unless people read food ingredient labels, they are often unaware that coconut oil, palm oil and other saturated fats are frequently used in baked goods and other processed foods," Sweeten remarks.

One way consumers have tried to cut back on saturated fats is to choose lean meat, says Sweeten.

According to the nutritionist, results of a recent national study conducted by Texas A&M University showed that consumers evaluate the leanness of a cut of beef primarily by the amount of trimmable fat, or the "plate waste" fat that would be cut away and not eaten.

"The degree of marbling in the meat also contributes to its fat content," she says, "so consumers may wish to select beef on that basis as well." In general, USDA "choice" grades of beef have more marbling than those labeled "good."

About 3 to 6 percent of fat from marbling is necessary for tenderness and taste appeal in beef, says the nutritionist. A 3-ounce serving of cooked lean beef has 192 calories.

Sweeten notes that some of the leaner cuts of meat include flank steak, top sirloin steak, bottom sirloin, top loin steak, top round steak, chuck top blade steak, beef tenderloin steaks, round tip roast and bottom round roast.

Both the U.S. Dietary Guidelines and the American Heart Association Dietary Recommendations advise Americans to cut back on their consumption of fat so that it is no more than one-third of their daily calories. In addition, the Heart Association recommends reducing saturated fats to under 10 percent of daily calories.

"That means consumers need to be thinking in terms of their total fat intake," says Sweeten. "They may want to watch their intake of saturated fats from processed foods and baked goods as well as select lean meat."

Using a minimum of fats and oils and choosing to broil, bake, poach or steam foods instead of frying will also help reduce total fat consumption, she says.

Northern Ireland includes six of the nine counties in the northeast corner of the country. It covers an area of 5,463 square miles, with parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry. About 1,450,000 people live there.

Warts caused by viruses

For almost as long as people have been getting warts, rumor has placed the blame on the lowly frog.

Mark Twain no doubt had fun spreading this misconception in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," not to mention wart "cures" involving a spunk-water stump, burned beans, and dead cats.

The truth is that warts are not caused by frogs or toads but by viruses, says the Texas Medical Association. And though Twain's home remedies are far more interesting, modern-day cures are far more effective, to put it mildly.

A wart is a lump on the skin produced when a virus invades skin cells and causes them to multiply quickly. Because they are caused by viruses, warts are contagious and can be spread by direct contact with another person or indirectly.

They may appear at any age but are most common in teenagers and uncommon in the elderly. No serious health risks are associated with warts, but their appearance can be unsightly.

There are several kinds of warts, each caused by a separate virus. The common wart is a small, hard, white or pink lump with a cauliflower-like surface. Though it can appear anywhere on the body, the common wart usually grows on the hands and often is pushed in level with the skin's surface, if on the palm. Plantar warts are found only on the soles of the feet.

Other kinds are flat warts, usually occurring on children's faces, and venereal warts, found on or near the genitals and anus.

Most warts will disappear naturally, possibly in a few months, but sometimes this takes several years. If you do not wish to wait, one non-prescription treatment often effective against common and plantar warts is salicylic acid. Do not treat warts on delicate skin such as the face and genitals. People with these should see a physician. And people over age 45 who develop any sort of wart, which could instead be skin cancer, should definitely check with a doctor.

To treat a wart, a physician may prescribe a more effective cream. If this fails, the doctor can remove the wart by scraping it.

POLLY'S POINTERS

In jelly recipes, water may differ

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I have been making grape jelly and am puzzled by the differing amounts of water called for in different recipes. The liquid pectin recipe calls for 1/2 cup water added to three pounds of grapes before cooking to yield four cups juice, while the powdered pectin specifies 1 1/2 cups water to each 3 1/2 pounds grapes, to yield five cups juice. That is a whole cup of water for the extra half pound of fruit, which seems quite a lot. One really doesn't know how much juice one will get until it's way too late to change the amount of water, so it's hard to determine beforehand the type of pectin to buy. Can that much water be added after the juice is extracted? Comment, please. — PAT

DEAR PAT — The exact proportion of water to juice is not terribly crucial. I have reliable recipes that call for four pounds grapes simmered in one cup water for dry pectin and 3 1/2 pounds grapes simmered in 1/2 cup water for liquid pectin. The water is an aid to cooking the fruit without sticking or burning, and to extracting the juice. It also, of course, dilutes the juice slightly. However, the proportion of the final juice to the pectin and sugar is critical and should be followed strictly.

If you find you are short on juice, water may be added by letting it drip through the drained grape pulp in the jelly bag. This picks up some of the grape flavor so that the juice is not too diluted. For this reason, be sure to measure the juice before discarding the pulp. It helps to be a little bit generous with the grapes in the first place, so you are assured of having enough juice.

In the final analysis, I've found that it's best, when working with these commercial pectin products, to follow the recipes exactly. Then you can continue to use whichever one seems to give you the best results. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I have an aloe plant that has never flowered. Any ideas why? — MRS. W.G.

DEAR MRS. W.G. — The aloe plant is not only attractive, but useful as well. The leaves can be crushed to obtain an ointment that soothes and promotes healing of skin abrasions, cuts and burns. Of course, the aloe need not bloom to provide this benefit, but it can be brought into flower during the winter if desired.

To encourage blooming in the aloe, keep the plant in a very cool location in winter (about 45 degrees F) and allow the plant to get very dry between sparse waterings. The plant requires full sun and, during the rest of the year, moderate temperatures (50 to 60 degrees at night). Water it thoroughly in the summer, allowing the soil to dry between soakings.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Hints for Healthy Houseplants," which has care instructions for 20 of the most popular houseplants, including your aloe, as well as African violet, asparagus fern, aspidistra, dieffenbachia, jade plant, philodendron and more. DEAR POLLY — I've been secretly adding squash or canned pumpkin to our meals to add nutrition and to lower fat. To a double batch of macaroni and cheese I add about 1/2 can pumpkin and no margarine or butter, plus a little extra milk. To a big pot of chili I add a whole can of pumpkin or squash. To mashed potatoes I add enough to make them a nice rich buttery color (no margarine or butter). I've used squash or pumpkin in spaghetti sauce, gravies, cheese dishes, casseroles, stews, meat loaf, sloppy Joes, etc. My husband even complimented my "out-of-a-box" macaroni and cheese dinner. Best of all, we're all getting more yellow vegetables and less fat — and no one knows it but me! — TERESSA

COMBEST COMMENTS

by Congressman Larry Combest

This past August, my wife Sharon and I made a two-day, 15-county tour of the 19th Congressional District. I've driven these roads many times during the past several years visiting with the people in each county. From Odessa in the south to Hereford in the north and Farmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Yoakum, Dawson, Terry, Gaines and Andrews counties in between, I've listened to the people, kept them up-to-date on developments, and made every effort to represent their interests in the United States Congress.

I've traveled several thousand miles to stay in touch with the people and to make sure that their thoughts and concerns were voiced in Washington, D.C.

This most recent trip was to personally announce my candidacy for re-election to Congress. In taking my campaign to the people, just as I did when I first announced for Congress in August 1983, I didn't make inflated promises -- instead I pledged to continue to stay in touch with the people, to fight for our district and to work as hard as I possibly can in representing the people.

We face some difficult economic times in West Texas. These problems won't be solved by simplistic, quick-fix methods. Anyone who says differently either fails to comprehend the situation or is all talk and no action.

Working together, however, we can and we will return to economic prosperity and we will survive -- stronger and more determined than ever. We will build a better future for our children and grandchildren.

In the next several weeks I will be writing this column to discuss some

Friday night at Whiteface Stadium

Herd battles Lobos in homecoming game

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The District 1-4A games are becoming more and more crucial the Hereford Whitefaces as they approach Game No. 6 of the 1986 season—a battle against Levelland in the Hereford High School homecoming game Friday.

Friday's meeting between the undefeated Whitefaces, ranked in the top 10 in the state by both the Associated Press and the Harris Rating System, and the 3-1-1 Lobos, who tied Lubbock Estacado 14-14 last week, is set for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Whiteface Stadium.

"It's by far the biggest game we've played. We've got the toughest part of our schedule coming up. We've just got to rise to the challenge," said Hereford head coach Don Cumpton.

The game puts the hard-smashing Herd defense against the Levelland wishbone offense, and the balanced Hereford offensive attack against a Lobo defense which is noted for their secondary.

"They're a ball-control team and they don't like to throw the ball. But when they do throw, they get some big plays, because they get you so conscious of their running game," Cumpton continues, noting that Levelland completed just three passes against Estacado—but for 75 yards in gains.

"It should be a good matchup between our passing offense and their secondary. They've got some good athletes in the secondary," Cumpton said. The Levelland secondary is led by three seniors—Michael Shepherd, 6-0, 185 pounds; Jeff James, 5-8, 165 pounds; and Ron Arrington, 5-9, 165 pounds.

Levelland also has three experienced linebackers in Tim Ecsue, a 6-3, 220-pound senior; Kirk Pearson, a 5-10, 185-pound senior; and Juan Gonzales, a 5-8, 165-pound junior.

Coach Cumpton, summing up the Whitefaces' objectives of the game, said, "The No. 1 thing we've got to do is for our defense not to let them control the football. When we get on offense, we've got to do a good job of executing."

Levelland won its first three games of the season, 42-18 over Lamesa and 20-3 over Snyder in non-district games, and a 7-0 win over Dumas in its first district game. After losing to Canyon 9-0 on Sept. 26, the Lobos scored the upset tie

WTSU hosts ASU in homecoming game

West Texas State University opens its Lone Star Conference season Saturday night when the Buffaloes host Angelo State University at 2 p.m. at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

The game is the homecoming contest for WTSU, which is 1-4 for the season. Angelo State is 3-2.

The schools have met twice on the gridiron before, with each team winning once. West Texas State defeated Angelo State 12-10 in 1985. The Rams beat the Buffaloes 10-3 in 1983. Both of the games were played in Canyon.

West Texas State, 25-17-2 in homecoming games, had seven players injured in a 36-31 loss to Stephen F. Austin University last week. They were linebacker Joe Yankovich, bruised ribs; defensive back Blake Garnand, strained groin; noseguard David Newman, sprained ankle; defensive back Kelvin Miles, bruised heel; defensive lineman Shawn Rickel, bruised lower leg; defensive lineman Todd Wade, bruised shoulder; and linebacker David Wood, strained lower back.

All seven of those players were listed in the middle of this week as probable for Saturday's game.

Angelo State defeated Central State of Oklahoma 23-21 last week.

WTSU attempted 70 passes against Stephan F. Austin, breaking the school record of 68 attempts made in a 29-27 win over Indiana on Oct. 5, 1985 at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

Buffalo receiver Stan Carraway has 13 touchdown pass receptions in his career and needs two more to pass Curtis Bennett for first place on the all-time WTSU list.

In the loss to Stephen F. Austin, West Texas State had 412 passing yards, the most this season in one game by the Buffaloes. WTSU also had season highs with 28 first downs, 21 first downs passing, five first downs by penalties, 86 total offensive plays, two touchdowns rushing, longest run from scrimmage (25 yards by J.R. Compton), 242 return yards, and 116 punt return yards.

Running back Wayne High of Hereford has rushed seven times for just two net yards. He has gained 15 yards and lost 13 in his rushing attempts. High has caught eight passes for 53 yards, with the longest reception totaling 20 yards.

against Estacado last week.

Hereford is averaging 344.2 yards total offense per game, compared to 204.0 yards by its opponents.

Six Herd defensive players had nine or more tackles in the 28-15 victory over Lubbock Dunbar last Saturday, and two others had six or more.

Johnny Beltran led the way with 12 tackles, Lee Young and Fidencio Cantu both had 10 tackles, and Brent Berry, Michael Phibbs, and Keith Herrera each had nine tackles. Robby Collier totaled eight tackles, and Brent Bowling had six tackles.

For the season as a whole, the leaders in tackles for Hereford are: Phibbs, 41; Ricky Ruiz, 35; Cantu, 32; Bowling, 31; Berry, 29; Young, 25; Beltran and Donnie Rieves, both 24; and Collier and Tim Long, both 23.

Collier, a cornerback, leads Hereford in taking the ball away from opponents. He has intercepted three passes and has recovered one fumble. Beltran, a defensive end, has recovered two fumbles, and Ruiz has one interception and one fumble recovery.

Offensively, Todd Shire, Bobby Baker, and Mark Artho continue to lead Hereford in major categories.

The Hereford High School homecoming football game Friday against Levelland has been sold out on the home side of Whiteface Stadium.

The seats on the home side of the stadium total 3,256, including seats for the public and a section for students.

Bobbi Kitchens, business office manager of the Hereford Independent School District, notes that the only tickets available will be for 420 seats in Section J on the visitors' side of the stadium. Those tickets will be available only on the night of the game, she adds. The total number of seats on the visitors' side of the stadium is 1,650. A packed stadium on both sides of the field would mean a crowd of more than 4,900 people.

Kickoff for Friday's game is 7:30 p.m. The contest is a District 1-4A game between the undefeated Hereford Whitefaces, ranked in the top 10 in the state in both the Associated Press poll and the Harris Rating System, against the 3-1-1 Levelland Lobos, ranked 36th in the state after tying Lubbock Estacado 14-14 last Friday.

Flag Football Season Has Started

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA opened its 1986 flag football season last Saturday, with six games played in two of the leagues. Winners in the first weekend of games were the Oilers, Chargers, and Broncos in the fifth and sixth grade league, and the Cowboys, Rams, and Giants in the third and fourth grade league. The first and second grade league was scheduled to open this week.

Weather conditions play big role

Red Sox prevail over Angels 9-2

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — It was a beautiful day at Fenway Park — bright sunshine with a wind that cooled the early autumn air.

The weather conditions were just the start of the California Angels' problems Wednesday.

The Angels, the veteran-laden team who led the league in defense, committed three errors in one inning, lost two balls in the sun — one a grounder — and had problems running the bases as the Boston Red Sox prevailed 9-2 to even the best-of-seven American League Playoffs at one victory apiece.

The teams were scheduled for workouts today at Anaheim Stadium, the site of the next three games, including Friday night's Game 3 with Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd facing California's John Candelaria.

The Angels' bad day Wednesday was summed up in Game 2's fifth-inning key play.

After Wally Joyner pulled California into a 2-2 tie with a solo homer in the top of the fifth inning, Bill Buckner singled with one out and took second on a two-out walk to Don Baylor, who had two hits and walked three times.

Dwight Evans hit a high pop up behind second base. Second baseman Bobby Grich and shortstop Dick Schofield looked at each other, then up in the air, at each other again and upward again.

At the last moment, Grich lunged, but the ball dropped safely for a double, scoring Buckner.

"It was not one of my better games," Grich said. "I've played here for 15 years and have played in tough sun fields. I misjudged the wind and the sun on the same play."

"It was very difficult with a high sky, a blinding sun and the wind blowing toward left," Evans, Boston's Gold Glove right fielder, said. "On my hit, I saw them looking up at it and at each other and I knew it was trouble. I always try to run hard on a pop up and this time it paid off."

By no means was Grich the only player to have problems Wednesday.

Wade Boggs led off the Boston first with a triple on a ball off the wall misplayed by center fielder Gary Pettis. Boggs then scored on Marty Barrett's opposite field double to right.

In the Boston second, with runners on first and second, Boggs hit a high chopper just to the left of the mound. Starter and loser Kirk McCaskill appeared set to make a routine play, but lost the ball in the sun. Barrett followed with a single to make the score 2-0.

"I don't ever remember seeing a pitcher lose a ball in the sun," McCaskill said. "I guess you could call it a ground up."

The Angels pulled within 2-1 in the fourth when Schofield got an RBI single on a grounder that shortstop Spike Owen couldn't get out of his glove.

Joyner hit the first home run by a rookie in the history of the playoffs to even the game off Boston's Bruce Hurst who went the distance with an 11-hitter and set the stage for Evans' double.

The trouble, however, wasn't over for the Angels.

With one out in the California sixth, Grich and Schofield singled. Bob Boone followed with a line single to left and Grich rounded third, only to be held up by Coach Moose Stubing nearly halfway down the line. Left fielder Jim Rice's throw was cut off by Boggs, whose throw to Owen covering third got Grich trying to get back to the bag.

"I was running as hard as I could and it was a tough play for us," Grich, who slammed his helmet to the ground in anger and had a few choice words after being caught after rounding third, said. "It seemed to take the momentum away from us. That's baseball."

"I made a wrong decision," Stubing said. "I waited too long to commit. It was my fault all the way."

The Angels' worst inning was the seventh when they tied a playoff record with three errors in one inning, two on fumbled grounders, the other an errant throw.

"Every break went against us," Angels third baseman Doug DeCinces, one of the defensive culprits, said. "It was one weird thing after another. It wasn't our day."

The Red Sox managed three runs in the inning and they added three more in the eighth, two on a home run by Rice, for the final margin.

"It was probably the toughest day seeing I've ever played," Boone said. "It was a very bright day and the time of day made it very tough — and it showed."

Boston Manager John McNamara, grateful for the end of a five-game losing streak which started in the final regular-season series with the New York Yankees, dug into his bag of cliches when asked about the misplays.

"It is a game played by human beings," McNamara, who rejected an offer to remain in California to come to Boston two years ago, said. "Errors are going to be made. You don't do it on purpose. No one is infallible."

Hostile Herd Sideline Notes

By Shawn Cockrum

Having the opportunity to have been able to see Levelland play last weekend against Estacado, I feel it is safe to say that Hereford will be in for one whale of a ballgame.

Levelland runs a wicked wishbone offense powered by quarterback Jeff James and running backs Ron Arrington and Michael Shepard. The defensive squad is coming off a game that only allowed powerhouse Estacado 14 points.

So what does all this mean? Does this mean that the Herd should just stay home Friday night?

No way. Position for position, Hereford outmatches Levelland. James may be able to out run counterpart Todd Shire, but James will never be able to outgun the Herd's senior quarterback.

During Levelland's contest with Estacado, James completed three passes — not bad considering he only threw the ball four times. But every time he threw the ball, it seemed to take Estacado by surprise.

James threw the ball while on the run, giving the impression that the Lobos were running the option.

Hereford's defensive line will have little troubles with the Lobos. Look for Lee Young, Johnny Beltran, Derrell Page, and Richard Castillo to cut off the Levelland's outside ground game. The Herd should be in Levelland's backfield all night long.

Prediction: Hereford 35, Levelland 14.

Former Hereford standout Lee Brockman will be starting at strong side linebacker this weekend when the University of Texas

Longhorns take on No. 6 Oklahoma in Dallas.

This will Brockman's second starting assignment of the season after starting the Rice game last weekend.

Brockman missed Texas' first game against Stanford with a neck injury, and replaced former starter Bobby Duncum after he injured his knee in the game against Missouri.

Brockman has been credited with 10 solo tackles this year and has pressured the passer on three occasions.

According to UT coaches, Brockman should play the entire game against rival Oklahoma.

Look in Tuesday's Hereford Brand for photos of Brockman and the Longhorns as they take on the Sooners. I will be traveling to Dallas to talk with Lee and experience the game from the sidelines.

Did you know that in 1910 the Longhorns beat the Baylor Bears by a score of 1-0.

Baylor left the field because of a disagreement with a referee; the game was tied at 6-6 at the time of the argument.

Only 420 tickets are left for the Hereford homecoming matchup against Levelland. Those tickets will be for section J on the east side of the field.

All seats on the west side of the field have been sold out since Monday. The Hereford School Administration has sent 1,100 tickets to Levelland.

The remaining tickets will go on sale at 6:00 Friday evening at the ticket window under the east side bleachers.

With 1-0 victory in game one of series

Astros gain 1-0 lead over New York

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Scott and Glenn Davis followed a well-defined script en route to a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets in the first game of their National League playoff series.

Scott, accustomed to throwing low-hit games and getting no hitting support from his teammates, nursed Davis' second-inning home run through nine gruelling innings Wednesday night and made it stand up, putting the Astros up 1-0 in the best-of-seven series.

The Astros had their chances, but failed to score twice after loading the bases with one out and left a total of eight runners stranded.

But that was nothing new for Scott, who suffered all season from a lack of hitting support by his teammates. At one point, Scott had a three-game losing streak during a span in which he gave up only five earned runs and struck out 22 in 23 2-3 innings.

"It would be nice if we could score a few runs for Scotty," Astros second baseman Bill Doran said. "He looked tonight like when he threw the no-hitter."

"We know if we score one run for Mike we've got a chance. If we score a few runs, our chances for victory go way up."

The Astros made up for their lack of hitting with several key fielding gems.

Billy Hatcher and Jose Cruz made running catches in the second and sixth innings to preserve the shutout.

Davis made an even bigger play — a diving stab of Mookie Wilson's hot grounder that he flipped to Scott for the second out in the ninth inning.

"Mike Scott pitched a great game and we all played good defense," Davis said. "It was a great game."

Scott finished with an NL playoff record-tying 14 strikeouts, allowed five hits and matched a playoff record by recording four strikeouts in a row.

Meanwhile, Davis made Mets starter Dwight Gooden pay for one of his few mistakes with a home run in his first playoff at-bat.

It was the first playoff home run ever for an Astro player, and only Joe Morgan and Rick Sutcliffe have hit homers in their first playoff at bat.

Hernandez and Gary Carter struck out.

Darryl Strawberry singled in the ninth, stole second base and went to third on Wilson's grounder to Davis. He was the only Met to reach third base, but could only watch as Scott fanned Ray Knight to end the game.

Scott left two key Mets, Carter and Hernandez, fuming.

Carter drew boos from the sellout crowd of 44,131 when he asked home plate umpire Doug Harvey to check for illegal scuff marks on the ball in the first inning.

"He had some movement on the ball I've never seen before," Carter said. "I've got to tip my hat to Scott. It was like a dry spitter and that's what Doug Harvey told me. It has no movement."

Hernandez and Carter each struck out three times. Hernandez was irate after being called out on strikes in the sixth on a 3-2 pitch he thought was outside.

Red Raiders play another ranked team

A second road game in a row is scheduled for the Texas Tech Red Raiders Saturday when they play at Arkansas at 2 p.m. at Razorback Stadium in Fayetteville, Ark.

Texas Tech is 2-3 after losing to Texas A&M 45-8 last week. Arkansas is undefeated at 4-0 after scoring a 34-17 win over TCU.

Last year, Arkansas led Texas Tech by just one touchdown, 14-7, in the third quarter before Arkansas won by a final margin of 30-7. Arkansas leads the all-time series against Texas Tech 25-4, and the Red Raiders have never won in Fayetteville—in 1963, 1965, 1971, 1975, 1978, and 1982.

In playing Arkansas, Texas Tech will be playing a nationally ranked team for the fourth time in six weeks. Arkansas is ranked eighth in this week's Associated Press poll, the same ranking the Razorbacks had last week.

About last week's loss to Texas A&M, Texas Tech Coach David McWilliams said, "We didn't make some early first downs we should have made so we couldn't keep our defense off the field. It's really tough when you give A&M's offense that many opportunities. One of these games we are going to stop making those mental errors that are killing us and wind up putting a complete game together."

"We are going to continue to try to do better. We eliminated some of the mistakes against A&M but it is obvious we have a lot more work to do in practice. We are going to do the same things, only do them better."

"We have players who want to win and believe in what they are doing. I still believe it is going to come. When we hold on to the football and not give up the big plays we'll be there. It seems like sometimes we make a big play and then relax and come back with a play not so good."

McWilliams said about Arkansas,

"They're aren't as big as some teams we play but they make great use of their speed and quickness. Their wishbone puts a lot of pressure on the defense, especially at the ends, and they have excellent receivers."

"Add to that the fact that Fayetteville is a tough place to play and you can see the challenge we have in front of us. I see it more as an opportunity for our football team to do something no other Texas Tech team has ever done—win in Fayetteville."

Saturday's game marks the 20th anniversary of a Texas Tech victory over Arkansas, 21-16, in a season finale that was voted the biggest upset of the 1966 season.

The Red Raiders went into the game with a 3-6 record. Arkansas was 8-1 and had won to go to the Cotton Bowl. Texas Tech's win over Arkansas put SMU in the Cotton Bowl. The week before, SMU lost to Arkansas 22-0.

Mental mistakes hurt the Red Raiders in their 45-8 loss to Texas A&M. Texas Tech did not get a first down until just 2:48 was left in the second quarter. The Red Raiders did not score until there were 48 seconds left in the game.

Texas Tech has attempted 247 passes this season, just 71 short of the school record of 318 attempts in 1981. The Southwest Conference record is 504 passes attempted by Rice in 1976.

Romance movie set for women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You don't see much romance on television. Not the old-fashioned, hand-holding, looks-across-a-crowded-room, champagne-and-roses kind of romance that ends up with a white gown at the altar.

Sam Malone proposed to Diane Chambers on NBC's "Cheers" on a borrowed yacht in the moonlight. But she said no and he made her jump into the water.

David Addison has a thing for Madeline Hayes on ABC's "Moonlighting," and the sparks do fly when they're together. Often as not those sparks are caused by friction.

So, with a little violin music in the background, Showtime introduces the first of its Harlequin Romance Movies, "Love With a Perfect Stranger." The movie, which stars Marilu Henner and Daniel Massey, will have its premiere this Sunday. It will be repeated five times, until Nov. 4.

"We felt romance was something the audience wasn't getting," said Harry Chandler, Showtime's director of program development. "It's programming that will appeal primarily to women. We felt it was a good complement for our male-oriented programming, like boxing."

The new movie series is a joint venture of Showtime, Harlequin Books, Atlantic VideoVentures and Yorkshire Television Ltd. of England. Harlequin publishes more than 250 million books a year and accounts for approximately 35 percent of all the paperback books sold in this country.

Two other Harlequin Movies, "Cloud Waltzing" and "Dreams Lost, Dreams Found," are on the Showtime schedule. Chandler said if they are well received by the audience Showtime will probably telecast four to six a year in the future.

The Harlequin novels offer romantic fantasies about women being swept off their feet by dashing lovers in exotic, far-away places. The formula is simple: a single woman by coincidence meets a man and there is an immediate attraction. Complications develop, are resolved and off they go, into the sunset.

In "Love With a Perfect Stranger," Victoria Duncan (Marilu Henner) is an American fashion executive on a business trip in Italy. She meets an Irishman named Hugo DeLacey (Daniel Massey) on a train, and after an initial attraction she resents his interference. There are more complications, but he woos her with strolling musicians and a moonlight carriage ride through Florence. He asks her to marry, but she's reluctant and they agree that she will think it over for three months.

Once she's back home, of course, she can't get Hugo out of her mind. She sells her fashion business and dashes off to Ireland — where she learns he's really the Earl of Dromore, has a huge estate, a racing stable and a textile mill she can turn into a fashion business.

"One of the challenges of adapting these," said Chandler, "is to keep them from looking like formulas."

Beer collectibles don't stop with cans

LIBERTY CITY, Texas (AP) — Collecting beer cans can barrel out of control if you're not careful, according to beer can connoisseur Andy Guinn.

"It might start off with you collecting all kinds of different brands of beer cans. Then you might start specializing and collecting only one particular brand.

"Then there are all the other things that get involved. Like the beer coasters, post cards, glasses, steins, can openers, bottles, advertisements, posters, salt and pepper shakers," Guinn said. "I've even got neon signs."

Guinn, of Liberty City, started collecting all types of beer cans around 10 years ago, he said. Then, about four years ago, he started collecting only beer cans made in Texas. Two years ago he started collecting only Schlitz cans because "I started running out of space. I had to specialize and I chose Schlitz because the majority of Schlitz cans have dates on them. They dated their cans until 1976."

According to Guinn, Schlitz was the only brewery that had a thorough dating system. "Another reason I chose Schlitz was because you can collect Schlitz cans without spending a lot of money, since they were the top seller for so long."

Guinn has beer cans that range in value from 25 cents to $700. Included in his collection is the first version of Schlitz Lager ever made. The can, which sells for $200, was found in the attic of an old hotel in Illinois, Guinn said. The can is yellow and brown and has the words "Scientific-Sanitary-Safe" written in small letters on the side, while "Sunshine Vitamin D" is printed in bold letters on the front.

An employee of an Australian-based oil company, Guinn is especially proud of a 16-ounce Burgermeister can made in Longview. "You see, Burgermeister is a west coast brewery that Schlitz bought out in the early 1960s. They say that Burgermeister was never made except in California, yet I have a Burgermeister can with a Longview label on it. It's a pre-1966 can."

Guinn also has a 16-ounce Schlitz can made in Longview between 1966 and 1968 before 16-ounce cans could be sold in Texas. "They made them and shipped them out. I found this one in Hot Springs, Arkansas," said Guinn, who also has a 10-ounce Schlitz can never sold in Texas but made in Longview. "I found that one in Ohio.

"I was told by people who worked in the Longview Schlitz brewery in 1966 that a lot of oddball beers came through during that time."

The first beer can ever made is a Krueger's Special Beer with the date 10-15-33 scratched on the top. In January 1935 Krueger Finest Beer became the first beer can ever marketed. Schlitz produced the first one-top can in the summer of 1935, according to Guinn. "Schlitz was the first to put beer in 16-ounce cans in 1954," Guinn said.

"In 1956 they were the first to put beer in 24-ounce cans. Schlitz was the first to have the flat top and easy-to-open super-soft top cans in 1960. In 1962, they were the first to use the pop-top can."

Guinn displayed a two-piece Crowntainer called "Fehr's" made around 1940. "Most of the Crowntainers were silver. The first can I ever owned was a Crowntainer. They're harder to collect than others because it's hard to find one in good condition. They were either white or silver and rusted real easily."

According to Guinn, Pearl Lager Beer cans are worth $1,000 and since there are only three known to exist, they are the highest sought after by collectors.

He has placed his entire collection inside one room in his house. "It's his beer-can room," said his wife, Wanda. "It's his room. It's not a room we use like the rest of the house. Our three kids know not to play in there."

Guinn also collects coasters and bottle and can openers, among other beer memorabilia. Besides a collection of Schlitz coasters, he has pre-prohibition coasters. A good coaster costs between $5 and $10, he said.

"It depends on the condition. A 1957 coaster may cost only $1 and a 1976 around 50 cents." Of course, the coaster usually must have an advertisement for some brand of beer on it in order to interest collectors. Guinn tries to find full set of coasters in mint condition.

"There's something in this hobby for everyone," he said. "See, I don't even hardly drink beer. In fact, half the collectors I know don't drink. We even have a priest in the club."

The club Guinn spoke of is Beer Can Collectors of America, which boasts a 5,000 membership of which 40 percent are women.

Teacher extends sign language knowledge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The sounds of silence surround Job Ayantola's everyday world. The 36-year-old Nigerian native has been deaf since the age of 4, which has forced him to live without knowing such noises as alarm clocks, emergency sirens or his children's cries.

Understanding the heartache such a condition can bring, Ayantola is devoted to reducing frustration for other deaf people. He teaches sign language at San Antonio College so people who can hear can communicate with those who can not.

He also is a supervisor at Southwest Center for the Hearing Impaired where he helps deaf people learn to live independently by "acting as a role model."

"Deafness is not visible and that is a problem," Ayantola said, with the help of his friend, Susan Rapp, serving as a sign language interpreter. "We need to work through the problems that face us. We must fight through the tough times. It's part of our life."

Ayantola came to the United States in 1976, after the Nigerian government awarded him a college scholarship. He moved to San Antonio in 1984, after earning a bachelor's degree in California and a master's degree in Maryland.

He said physicians have not been able to determine why he lost his hearing. He has come to grips with knowing his problem can not be reversed, but he admits there have been some trying times. It has meant dealing with people who treat him as if he is mentally retarded. And, it has meant spending a lot of money to buy machines for his telephone and television so he can read captions in place of hearing.

Using Rapp's voice to make himself heard, Ayantola said his major pet peeve is the high expense of such gadgets that are necessary to alert the deaf of danger, emergencies and everyday events happening in the world.

"I feel it's not fair for the deaf to buy them because they are expensive and some people can't afford them. I think the government should do something. We need help so we can be independent."

He also contends local television stations could do more if they had people who know sign language interpret local newscasts so even the hearing impaired would know what is going on in the city and be able to prepare themselves for turbulent weather.

Meanwhile, Ayantola said his deafness has not made it difficult to teach sign language to hearing college students. He simply uses an interpreter until the class has a large enough sign vocabulary to understand his lectures.

America's Cup

The Australian yacht Australia II defeated the United States yacht Liberty in four out of seven races to win the America's Cup on Sept. 26, 1983. It was the first time the United States had lost the America's Cup series, after having successfully defended the cup against 24 challenges, dating back to 1851.

Otwell says no purpose served in turning self in FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Speaking by telephone from an undisclosed location, the Rev. W.N. Otwell said he has no plans to turn himself in but will remain a fugitive, traveling from state to state to rally support for freedom of religion.

Otwell, a 49-year-old fundamentalist pastor, has been on the move since Monday.

A warrant for his arrest was issued after he failed to appear at a contempt-of-court hearing in Austin before State District Judge Paul R. Davis, who had ordered the closing of an unlicensed boys home operated by the Community Baptist Church in suburban Forest Hills, where Otwell is pastor.

Otwell and the church face heavy fines for ignoring the court-ordered closing of the home.

Otwell called Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter Wednesday and later talked with a reporter from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"To start with, I don't need to go to jail because I haven't done anything wrong," he told the newspaper.

"At this point I am not a criminal. I have my biblical rights. I'm not fighting for W.N. Otwell. I'm fighting for the cause of Christ and the freedom of mothers and dads to raise and educate their children."

Otwell said he told the sheriff that "when I felt like the time was right and that my mission was accomplished, that he would not have to come and get me, and that I would turn myself in. I'm willing to go to jail if that's what God wants me to do."

Discovering America

Norwegian Vikings sailing out of Iceland and Greenland are credited by most scholars with being the first Europeans to discover America. They made at least five voyages to areas they called Helluland, Markland and Vinland, which were possibly today's Labrador, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland or New England.

A trademark is a brand, symbol or word registered by a manufacturer or dealer and protected by law to prevent others from using it.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"BECAUSE I BELIEVE, I AM IN CHAINS!"

It was three months after the shipwreck before we set sail again, and this time it was in "The Twin Brothers" of Alexandria, a ship that had wintered at the island. Our first stop was Syracuse, where we stayed three days. From there we circled around to Rhegium; a day later a south wind began blowing, so the following day we arrived at Puteoli, where we found some believers! They begged us to stay with them seven days. Then, we went on to Rome. The brothers in Rome had heard we were coming and came to meet us at the Forum on the Appian Way. Others joined us at the Three Taverns. When Paul them he thanked God and took courage.

When we arrived in Rome, Paul was permitted to live wherever he wanted to, though guarded by a soldier. Three days after his arrival, he called together the local Jewish leaders and spoke to them as follows: "Brothers, I was arrested by the Jews in Jerusalem and handed over to the Roman government for prosecution, even though I had harmed no one nor violated the customs of our ancestors. The Romans gave me a trial and wanted to release me, for they found no cause for the death sentence demanded by the Jewish leaders. But when the Jews protested the decision, I felt it necessary, with no malice against them, to appeal to Caesar. I asked you to come here today so we could get acquainted and I could tell you that it is because I believe the Messiah has come that I am bound with this chain. Acts 28:11-20

LONDON (AP) — Princess Diana attended a royal gala performance of the new "Phantom of the Opera" musical, and appeared startled by the special effects. A giant chandelier crashed from the high ceiling of Her Majesty's Theater within a few feet of the princess' front row seat during Wednesday night's performance. It was part of the special effects of the $3 million production by composer Andrew Lloyd Webber, but it made the princess sit up straight in apparent surprise. The gala performance, the final preview before tonight's official opening, was expected to raise $120,000 for charity.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Members of the rap group Run-D.M.C. have called for a day of peace between warring street gangs. "This is the first town where you feel the gangs from the minute you step into town to the time you leave," Jason Mizell, known as "Master J," said Wednesday. Singer Barry White, a former gang member whose brother was killed in street violence in 1983, joined the rap group at a news conference to announce that they would be on KDAY radio late this afternoon to take telephone calls from gang members, their parents and victims.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor has been released from the hospital after being treated for tooth pain for 13 days. Miss Taylor was released Tuesday and was resting comfortably at her Los Angeles home, said publicist Chen Sam. Miss Taylor, 54, was admitted Sept. 25 to the Hospital of the Good Samaritan with severe pain and infection from a tooth extraction in her upper left jaw.
