Final waste dump decision delayed by budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional conference committee has cut funding from the nuclear waste storage study program and prohibited exploratory drilling at proposed dump sites in Texas, Nevada and Washington, congressional sources said Tuesday.

The action, according to sources, will delay a final decision on where a federal nuclear waste dump site will be established, according to the Dallas Morning News.

A House-Senate appropriations conference committee slashed $212 million from the administration request for the nuclear waste program, leaving the funding at $499 million, the same level as in 1986.

The committee also stipulated that another $79 million would be withheld until the Energy Department reported to Congress on progress in cooperation agreements with the three states where the candidate sites are located.

The administration had requested $769 million for the program, but Energy secretary John Herrington deleted $58 million from the request when he announced that the department was suspending a search for a second nuclear waste site in six Eastern states and Minnesota.

Western lawmakers were infuriated by Herrington's decision and some in the House and Senate tried to kill funding for work in the three candidate Western sites, Deaf Smith County, Texas; Yucca Mountain, Nev., and the Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Washington.

The Energy Department had planned to start drilling at the candidate sites to study the geologic character of the subsurface. Plans call for highly radioactive wastes, with a half-life of thousands of years, to be entombed deep under ground at a stable geologic site.

Residents, particularly farmers, in Deaf Smith County have opposed use of the Texas site, claiming that it the atomic wastes would threaten the subsurface water supply.

Action by the conference committee was greeted with relief by some residents of the West Texas site.

"That's what we've been asking them to do, to back off and look at this thing again," said Wayne Richardson of Vega. His land is part of the study site in Deaf Smith County.

"We're gratified that they (Congress) recognize that things haven't been done right. I guess the system still works," Richardson said

School board considering options to fight drugs

By JERI CURTIS

Trained dogs, urine tests, and teacher training sessions are a few of the options being considered by the Hereford schools trustees to fight substance abuse on campus.

In a meeting Tuesday night, board president John Fuston said he believed the board had a definite concern for the drug problem in Hereford and brought out ideas for fighting the problem.

Superintendent Harrell Holder said he already had discussed use of a drug-sniffing dog with the principals and could safely say that they were in favor of the idea.

Fuston suggested that teacher training sessions be conducted to alert educators on what symptoms to look for in children using drugs. Fuston also said the board would need to develop a policy for procedure if a student is suspected of drug use.

"We're going to make some parents mad, but I feel like we're going to have to do it," Fuston said.

The cocaine death of 9-year-old Manuel Saucedo in August partly prompted the board toward action.

Fuston noted that resources for fighting drug abuse included the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, the Region 16 Education Service Center, and area counseling services.

He said the board will look at bringing in a representative from the Texas War on Drugs for consultation.

The district will consider a counselor who is specialized in dealing with young people on drugs.

Administration of urine tests will have to be studied for civil liability and its accuracy before serious board consideration.

"We are going to do something," Fuston said today.

During agenda business Tuesday night, the board decided to hire an attorney to review and negotiate several unpaid insurance claims filed by athletes. As a result of the problems with those cases the administration will be sending a letter to parents of all students in extracurricular activity to warn of limitations and responsibility on filing insurance claims.

The board also heard a preliminary report from the Texas Education Agency monitoring visit. Holder said most notations were for minor infractions which could be amended immediately.

In other business the board:

—Asked the Pupil Services Committee to consider drafting a policy on classroom parties.

—Approved changes in job descriptions for the central administration office.

—Heard that the Hereford Educators Association and the Classroom Teachers Association had held teacher appraisal workshops recently.

—Approved the teacher appraisal system upon the second reading of the policy.

—Approved the use of La Plata Gym by St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

—Heard that the shipment date for the new band uniforms is Nov. 7.

—Denied a request by the Employee Insurance Committee for payroll deduction of pre-paid legal insurance because the insurance was not cheaper through group deduction than if payroll deducted.

—Heard that district enrollment was at 4,801. Last year at this time the district had 4,745 enrolled. Students are receiving incentive gifts this month to attend school so that the average daily attendance will be high, and thus net more state funding.

Texas Congressmen split over immigration bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen split over an immigration bill that retains criminal and civil sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens and provides amnesty for millions of foreign workers.

An agreement favored by all but one of the House-Senate conferees was announced Tuesday after 5½ hours of closed-door bargaining, but several Texas representatives expressed concerns about the bill.

"It went smoothly, but there was some serious bargaining going on in there this morning," said Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, the only Texan on the committee.

"The purpose of this bill is to send a message to the world that people shouldn't come here illegally hoping to find work," Bryant said. "There is a legal method of coming into this country."

An estimated 3 million aliens illegally entered the United States last year and the numbers are growing, according to figures a Bryant aide said were released by the Congressional Budget Office.

The conference agreement now goes to both houses. Chief Senate conferee Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., asked House members to "assist me in crushing knuckles" in his own chamber where one or two senators could stall the bill.

The bill's centerpiece is still an amnesty program for long-term illegal aliens and a system of fines against employers who knowingly hire undocumented workers.

The conferees accepted House language that would make illegal aliens who have lived here since Jan. 1, 1982, eligible for the amnesty program. The Senate plan to delay amnesty for up to three years was dropped.

Those eligible under the compromise would first be classified as temporary residents, during which they would be granted the right to work and have the same rights as a full citizen except access to welfare benefits, which would be withheld for five years.

After at least one year, the temporary residents could apply for permanent resident status under the bill.

The House dropped its proposal — pushed by Hispanic lawmakers — to end criminal and civil employer sanctions after 6½ years unless Congress extended them.

Several Texas representatives, including members of the Hispanic coalition, have opposed employer sanctions all along, saying they would be discriminatory because employers would tend to avoid hiring anyone who looked like he might be a foreigner.

Bryant said he pushed for retention of sanctions because they will keep Americans working rather than foreigners. The conferees agreed to the provision after agreeing to various methods designed to prevent discrimination.

Under the agreement, employers must check all employees to be sure they hold social security cards — not just those they think might be foreigners — said Bryant, who authored similar language in the House version.

DALLAS — You can bet your paycheck, your house cat and your watch pocket that a Dallas Cowboy-Washington Redskins football game will be officially sold out months before the kickoff.

This year it was sold out since July 22.

But just because you can't go to the ticket window and buy a ticket for a seat on the 50-yard line does not mean you can't find one.

Scalpers line the walkways leading to the gates of Texas Stadium.

"Tickets here, who needs tickets?" can be heard throughout the crowd.

"How much?" a curious fan asks.

"I've got seats on the 50 for $100 each," the scalper replies.

"Too much."

An hour before the game, scalpers sell the $19 tickets for anywhere from $40 to $100 each. As game time gets closer, the price drops.

"A $40 end-zone ticket at 11 a.m. drops to around $25 at 11:45," one of the scalpers explained. "People are afraid they will not be able to get a ticket, so we play on their fears. We tell them that the tickets are going fast and that they won't find a cheaper price," he said.

The scalper, who was not in favor of giving his name to a reporter, said it is all a matter of fear.

"The people who are not familiar with the game (scalping) come down here early and try to deal with us. We usually make most of our money well before the game starts."

"As time goes by, the people who know the routine know that we are down to a handful of single tickets that we sure don't want to have to eat," the tall, slender man said.

"At the time the game starts, we are trying to get whatever we can. We have already made a profit from earlier in the day, so if we'll sell a ticket for half price to somebody after the kickoff, that is just another $10."

The tickets seem to get cheaper the closer you get to the stadium.

Ten blocks away from the Cotton Bowl in downtown Dallas, a seat on the 50-yard line of the Texas-Oklahoma clash would cost a minimum of $150. The closer to the gates of the fair grounds, the cheaper the tickets.

How Tall Am I?

Alyn Garza, 9, found out she was 4' 3½" tall when Monta Cochran of Home Health Care measured her at Tuesday's health fair in the Hereford Community Center. Booths from across the Panhandle offered blood pressure checks, anemia tests, urine tests, blood sugar tests and an array of health and nutrition literature.

Reagan, Gorbachev temper their criticism, to try again

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, while still blaming each other for the stalemate over "Star Wars" in Iceland, are offering reassurances of their determination to reverse the nuclear arms race at the bargaining table or at a future summit.

New instructions will be drafted for U.S. negotiators in Geneva to try to capitalize on the gains Reagan and Gorbachev made toward curbing offensive weapons before their Reykjavik talks dissolved Sunday into disagreement over the U.S. anti-missile program.

And Secretary of State George Shultz announced Tuesday he will leave for Vienna on Nov. 5 to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze during a 35-nation review of the 1975 Helsinki agreement, which was designed to ease East-West tensions in Europe. Shultz said his intention was to reopen the summit discussions.

But Reagan, Shultz and other senior U.S. officials, in a concerted public relations campaign of speeches, television interviews and news conferences Tuesday, gave no indication of yielding to Gorbachev's demand that American anti-missile research be confined to the laboratory.

The Soviet leader took a tough stand on the program, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative. In a televised report to the Soviet people, he said the United States wanted to "bleed the Soviet Union white economically" through an expensive arms race in space.

Gorbachev called the projected Star Wars anti-missile shield "nothing but a trick" by Reagan to gain military advantage over the Soviets. He said he had asked the president "why do you need it?" since all nuclear weapons would be eliminated over 10 years under Reagan's own cutback proposals.

The president gave his answer at a White House meeting with congressional leaders. "SDI is America's insurance policy that the Soviet Union will keep its commitments," he said.

The long-distance debate over Star Wars seemed to ease, however, in a mutual effort not to lose ground gained in Iceland toward curbing offensive weapons.

Recalling his description of Reykjavik as a base camp leading to a summit, Reagan told officials of the State Department and the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency that "there exists the opportunity to plant a permanent flag of peace at that summit, and I call on the Soviets not to miss this opportunity."

Gorbachev also said negotiations could not be abandoned.

He said the summit "prepared a possible step forward for a real shift for the better, provided the United States at long last adopts a realistic position and abandons its illusions in assessments."

Clements gets Briscoe support

AUSTIN (AP) — Andrew Briscoe, defeated Democratic candidate for governor, said he endorsed Republican gubernatorial nominee Bill Clements for the good of Texas' future, and not for money.

However, a spokesman for Democratic Gov. Mark White said Briscoe first offered to campaign for White — if Democrats would pay his $219,000 campaign debts.

Briscoe, a distant kinsman of former Democratic Gov. Dolph Briscoe, got more than 247,000 votes in his May 3 primary bid against White.

"There have been no offers whatever, no guarantees to force my decision so far as supporting Gov. Clements," Briscoe said Tuesday.

Dwayne Holman, White's campaign manager, told reporters that Briscoe offered on Sept. 4 in Dallas to campaign for White if "we could basically pay him $219,000" to cover his campaign debts.

"I'll take a lie detector test on it," Holman said.

"I can't answer that now until the rules are clarified," Briscoe said when asked if he would take a lie detector test.

Clements there was "no consideration of any kind whatever" offered for Briscoe's endorsement.

Clements said Briscoe would be head of Texans for Bill Clements, an organization to appeal to conservative Democrats and independents.

"I urge my fellow Democrats to vote for the future of Texas," Briscoe said. "He (Clements) will help turn the economy around and help create jobs."

Holman said he met with Briscoe at the Lone Star Cafe in Dallas after Briscoe had called him several times.

By JIM DRINKARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's farmers, long vaunted as the pacesetters for world agricultural productivity and efficiency, may no longer necessarily fit that description, according to a congressional study.

U.S. farmers, at least in some parts of the country, have been lured by subsidies into growing crops that would not make economic sense without government price supports, says the report from the Office of Technology Assessment.

Many foreign farmers, because of rapid adoption of new technology and methods, have become more efficient than their U.S. counterparts, the research agency said in a report issued Thursday.

The prime U.S. growing areas — western Kansas for wheat, the Great Lakes states and the corn belt for corn and soybeans — still enjoy a competitive edge over any place in the world, the study says.

But on average, "this country does not enjoy a significant advantage in on-farm production costs" when compared to the best estimates of other efficient growing areas, such as Argentina, Brazil and Canada, it said.

The average farmer who grows corn in south-central Nebraska, wheat in central North Dakota or soybeans in the Mississippi Delta would likely be out of business except for government subsidies because costs of those crops in those areas would not otherwise justify their production, the analysis suggested.

The push in the 1985 farm law to cut U.S. commodity prices as a spur to increased farm exports "could improve the competitiveness of the United States in world markets, but could also slow the concentration of resources in high-cost production areas, which may alter the geography of crop production," the report said.

Such global comparisons are difficult to make because of the lack of comparable data, the researchers wrote. But the narrowing gap in competitiveness clearly is one of several factors accounting for the plunging U.S. share of world agricultural trade, they found.

Competing nations have taken advantage of technological advances and some threaten to leapfrog the United States in that area, the report suggested. U.S. companies, because of regulatory constraints, often develop and test their advances overseas before putting the technology to work in this country.

"Unless domestic research and development efforts are continued and strengthened, foreign competitors may develop production capacities that match those of the United States," the report said.

Agricultural trade has been the salvation of the U.S. trade balance in recent years, keeping a deteriorating situation from becoming far worse.

While farm exports have declined, they still represent a major positive influence on the balance of trade. The United States will export $7.5 billion more worth of food than it imports this year.

The ripple effect of farm trade on non-agricultural industry is substantial. About 60 percent of gains or losses in livestock trade and 45 percent of gains or losses in other farm products occur outside the traditional farming sectors, the report said.

"It's time we realize that the United States can no longer rely on agriculture to offset deficits in other sectors of our economy," Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, a member of the research agency's board, said in a statement.

"Current deficits in agricultural trade are viewed as an aberration by some who cling to the perception that U.S. productivity will never be surpassed. OTA reveals that without strengthening our research and development efforts, U.S. agriculture will not continue to dominate technology or productivity."

Bulk commodities such as wheat and corn, of which the United States still is the dominant supplier, used to be the top generators of agricultural trade income. But in recent years, value-added products — foods that are processed to some degree before export — have overtaken the world trade value of bulk commodities.

Such products allow an extra step of economic gain for the producing country, in effect selling both a raw material and a service at the same time. The leading U.S. high-value products are soybean meal, tobacco, cigarettes, cattle hides and corn gluten feed, the report said.

The Agriculture Department estimates that trade in high-value products is likely to rise by 9 percent to 12 percent annually until 1990, and "the United States has not performed well in these markets," the study said.

Reflecting continued U.S. reliance on bulk commodities, the American share of all world agricultural trade stood at 39 percent of volume in the period 1979-81, while its share in terms of value was just 18 percent. Since 1983, the United States has had a negative trade balance in processed foods.

The outlook for sales of cereal grains remains bleak, the report said. One projection puts export growth in those commodities at a weak 2 percent annually through the rest of the century, and even the U.S. share of that low figure is likely to drop because of increased competition, it said.

Construction workers checked

AUSTIN (AP) — An unannounced check for drugs among workers at a high-rise office building uncovered about an ounce of marijuana in cigarettes and packets, and unidentified pills found hidden under rocks and car bumpers, construction company officials said.

Workers at a high-rise project in downtown Austin were greeted Tuesday by drug-sniffing dogs, urine tests and lunchbox searches in a company crack-down on drug use on the job site.

A team of seven technicians and two dogs from Global Safety and Security of New Orleans inspected workers' lunchboxes and tool chests Tuesday morning and asked each employee one to turn out his pockets. The workers were then ordered to give urine samples.

"Two or three" among the company's 25-member work crew refused to take the urinalysis and will be fired, said Alan Stemberge, executive vice president of Charter Builders, Inc.

The Dallas-based company is building the 30-story One Congress Plaza office building at the northeast corner of Congress Avenue and First Street.

The results of the urinalysis should be available later in the week, Stemberge said.

Stemberge said the drug screening of workers was ordered because the accident rate on its jobs in Austin is higher than in other cities where it has construction projects.

"Charter's interest is safety on the job site," Stemberge said. "If even one death is prevented, it will more than pay for the cost of the program."

Workers for subcontractors will not be allowed back on the job site if they fail the urine test or refuse to take it, he said.

The tests were met with mixed feelings from the workers, who said the search that began at 6:30 a.m. delayed work for about two hours as they stood in line for the tests and searches.

A foreman for a subcontractor said he will send Charter Builders a bill for the two hours that his men were idle waiting for the drug tests.

Drive-in pawn shop has limousine service

HOUSTON (AP) — The owner of a city pawn shop has installed a drive-in window so his well-heeled customers won't be embarrassed to hock valuables as they cope with the devastating oil slump.

"The first thing they tell you is that they've never been in a pawn shop before," owner Jean Davis says his customers at Diamond Liquidators.

Davis said he installed the window about six weeks ago and is believed to be the only pawn shop in the city with a drive-in window. His business also is one of the few places in Houston that will pick a customer up in a black stretch limousine free of charge and drive them to the shop, Davis said.

"We have a lot of upper-class people with money problems, people who need to sell some of their jewelry or art or whatever quickly," he says. "We try to make them feel comfortable here, and not intimidate them."

One oilman hocked his Rolex President watch to make a late house payment to avoid foreclosure, Davis said.

A middle-aged unemployed man in a Mercedes needed $1,000 in cash to take his sick child to the hospital, so he pawned a $35,000 bronze statue, Davis said.

Business has been brisk since an oil-related recession hit Houston, and Davis said he is thinking of opening five new shops.

His store now is stocked with paintings by famous artists, ancient vases that cost more than a new car and top-of-the-line watches. About 80 percent of Davis' clients pick up their hocked items within three months. The interest charge is a sliding scale — from 12 percent to more than 200 percent — depending on the value.

Town gets state money to produce trivia games

HUGHES SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — This tiny steel-poor Northeast Texas town will get state money to produce more computerized trivia games it hopes will be the hit of the Christmas gift season.

About 100 new jobs will be created as a result of the $200,000 state economic development grant awarded to Hughes Springs Tuesday, said City Manager George Fite.

The town will lend the grant money to Cheetah Manufacturing, a fledgling high-tech firm that is producing "Electrivia," a hand-held, computerized trivia game.

"Cheetah will repay this loan within six months, but the injection of working capital means the company can accept a $40 million contract over the next three years that will create 100 local jobs," said Gov. Mark White, who announced the grant award.

Cheetah already has racked up sales in excess of $4.5 million for the game.

Fite said his town of 2,500 decided to apply for the grant and help the new company because it meant new jobs.

"Our area has been solely dependent on steel," Fite said.

Many residents worked at the Lone Star Steel plant in nearby Lone Star until layoffs last year put unemployment as high as 36 percent in Morris County.

GERTRUDE FISCHBACHER Oct. 13, 1986

Gertrude Fischbacher, 81, of Umbarger died Monday. Among her survivors include two daughters, Mary Brorman and Anita Wilhelm both of Hereford.

Rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. today in the chapel at Schooler-Gordon Funeral Directors of Canyon. Mass will be said at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger officiated by the Rev. Pat Carathers of St. Ann's Catholic Church in Canyon. Burial will be held in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Fischbacher, born in Switzerland, had lived in Umbarger since 1927. She was a member of St.

Mary's Catholic Church, Senior Citizens and Alter Society in Umbarger. She was married to Albert Fischbacher in 1927 in Switzerland. He died in 1970.

Survivors include four sons Pete and Joe, both of Canyon, Albert Jr. of Umbarger, and Marcel of Golden City, Mo.; four daughters Mrs. Brorman and Mrs. Wilhelm, Gertrude Walterscheid and Tillie Klein, both of Carlsbad, N.M.; a brother, Adrian Schwager of Switzerland; three sisters, Helen Ricklin, Ottilia Schneider and Anna Brande, all of Switzerland; 43 grandchildren; and 24 great-grandchildren.

Memorials may be made to St. Ann's Nursing Home in Panhandle.

Congress moves to final version of giant spending bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan agreement on military programs could help sound the final gun for the 99th Congress, which has gone two weeks into overtime with a full slate of decision making unfinished.

Meanwhile, for the fourth time this month, inaction could threaten a shutdown of the federal government.

A House-Senate conference committee planned to meet today to settle final details of the massive spending bill that must be passed before lawmakers can leave Washington for their election campaigns.

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., told the House Rules Committee he hoped to bring the bill to the floor quickly, possibly by late today. The rules panel, which sets the guidelines for House floor debate, took the unusual step of approving the bill for action even though the final version did not yet exist.

Negotiators from the two chambers reached agreement late Tuesday on $291.8 billion in military spending and related policy issues. The agreement essentially set more than half of the approximately $560 billion omnibus bill, a record spending measure that also covers nearly all domestic programs outside of those for which recipients are by law automatically entitled payments.

Jury awards first DFW crash suit

MIAMI (AP) — The first court case here involving the Texas crash of the Delta Air Lines jet that left 137 people dead has ended with $1 million being awarded to the parents of a 29-year-old businessman who was killed.

Flight 191 went down in a violent thunderstorm Aug. 2, 1985, at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, killing 137 people. Twenty-seven people aboard the L-1011 jet survived the crash.

A federal jury took 40 minutes to deliberate Tuesday after 2½ days of complicated testimony from three economists who gave conflicting projections of the income Scott Ageloff might have earned had he lived to the year 2030.

"It was a little bit quick for my taste," said Carol Ageloff, the victim's mother and a partner in the family-run chain of children's clothing stores.

But she said that she had decided early in the case to accept the jury's decision because no sum of money would compensate for her son's death.

"I'll never get used to it," she said.

Harry's Kidsworld stores, which have been less profitable since Scott Ageloff's death according to court testimony, will probably be sold, she said.

Mrs. Ageloff and her husband, Harold, had asked for $6.6 million in damages. Howard Barwick, an attorney representing the airline, had argued that $230,000 would be a reasonable award.

"The jury has spoken and we're happy with it," said Robert M. Montgomery Jr., an attorney for the West Palm Beach couple.

"I was disappointed," Barwick said. "I think it's too high."

Delta originally had offered to settle for $400,000, Montgomery said. But he said the figure was too low considering Scott Ageloff's key role in the business. He was vice president of the firm.

U.S. Army drafts armadillos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Polished brass and battle ribbons hung from the chests of several nervous contestants lined up for one of the most primitive battles ever fought by America's armed forces — the race of the armadillos.

Staff sergeants, full colonels, generals clutched "the oldest tank in the world," and stood in a small pen set up in the grand ballroom of the Washington Sheraton Hotel racing their armadillos, surrounded by 400 cheering Texans.

The group was linked by two powerful bonds — membership in the Association of the United States Army, Central Texas branch, and love of scampering, wild-eyed armadillos. The army was in town for its annual Washington convention. The armadillos just came along for the ride.

"That sucker is very strong," said Gen. Crosbie Saint, commander of the 40,000 soldiers stationed at Fort Hood, talking affectionately about his entrant in the race, a smallish armadillo with plenty of get-up-and-go.

"I lift weights and that kind of stuff, but let me tell you, that guy nearly got away from me. He's got muscles of steel."

Saint's armadillo, "Hoover Hog," hit the 15-foot-long track like a well-trained greyhound, then pounded and plodded its way over the finish line to win the day. Some said he was a winner.

Afterward, soldiers tried to drape the winning animal in a 1st Cavalry blanket, but it would have none of that. So the crowd settled for an army sticker on its rippled back.

Ann Landers

Take cards away

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Enclosed is a letter to the editor of the Modesto Bee. I have been so steamed since reading it that I must vent my anger somehow.

Please tell me why a company would manufacture a product that would hurt and humiliate innocent children.

Why would parents buy this kind of junk?—P.R. IN MODESTO, CALIF.

DEAR P.R.: Here's the letter to the editor followed by my comment. TERRIBLE PLAYTHINGS

I am appalled to find the best seller to children 4-10 is "Garbage Pail Kids" cards. The cards depict mutilated dolls, "Pat Splat" and "Beaky Becky." The children take these cards to school and give them to students they feel most resemble them.

I worked for a year as a public health nurse in a child abuse prevention program. One of our goals was to bolster the fragile self-esteem of children. Imagine an insecure, slightly pudgy 8-year-old who gets the card "Large Marge," depicting a grossly overweight doll, underwear showing, rolls of fat, stuffing her face.

The back of one card is a puzzle that depicts a boy with a black eye, and blood pouring out of his nose and mouth. This teaches our children that violence is acceptable, even funny. Please say something, Ann.—PEG KRUEGER, MANTECA CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION AUXILIARY

DEAR READERS: Any parent who sees these cards in the hands of his or her child has a moral obligation to take them away, destroy them and explain that such cruel and hurtful "teasing" will not be tolerated. A parent who would buy such a card is a case of arrested development and sadistic 'boot.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week you printed yet another letter from a daughter-in-law who covered for her husband so his mother would continue to believe he was a wonderful son.

I was one of those daughters-in-law who bought the presents and sent the cards. His mother never knew that he hated to visit her. I literally dragged him there.

One day I came home earlier than expected and found my husband "in the act" with his lover—a guy! He confessed that there had always been a man in his life and said he was relieved that I had caught him.

We decided to divorce. He begged me not to tell anyone the reason because it would break his mother's heart. In all fairness, he was a decent person and I agreed to go along with his request.

I have since heard from many sources that his mother tells everyone we were divorced because I was a miserable cook and a terrible housekeeper.

I have no intention of blowing his cover, but isn't this funny?—NO TOWN PLEASE

DEAR N.T.P.: Funny? Not very. Pretty said if you ask me, but my hat is off to you, Lady. There's an old-fashioned word for what you have. It's called character.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boyfriend and I are planning to be married in December. The only dates we could get for the ballrooms are the 8th or the 22nd.

If we choose the 22nd, it will fall on the second birthday of our baby girl. My question is, would it be fair to her if we got married on her birthday?

Please reply soon: We have to set a date now.—W.T.H. IN WISCONSIN

DEAR WISCONSIN: Choose the 8th. Your daughter's birthday should be HER day. Also, the 22nd is too close to the holidays.

A non-sense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement, Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage - What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DR. GOTT Second opinion for back pain

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had back surgery two years ago. I still have pain, and my job as a nurse's aide requires a lot of lifting. I've had one cortisone injection in my back. How safe is this treatment?

DEAR READER — Without knowing the exact type of back surgery you had, I cannot give you a definitive answer, except to say that continuing pain indicates a continuing problem. If you had a disc removed, you should avoid prolonged or heavy lifting. In my opinion, cortisone shots will not help a ruptured disc and can actually cause more damage, because the drug may weaken tissue.

I suggest that you get a second opinion from a neurosurgeon. Although you may not need additional surgery, you certainly could benefit from another opinion and, perhaps, other tests to see if your back pain could be helped by medicine or special exercise.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 85 and had a heart attack five years ago. My doctor, who died, never told me why he kept me on Peritrate and Anturane; he just said it was for my own good. Why do I need these medicines? I'm dizzy a lot of the time.

DEAR READER — Peritrate is supposed to improve circulation by reducing the stickiness of blood. Anturane is used to treat gout. You may or may not need these medicines. Get yourself a new doctor who will tailor your medications to your needs — and tell you the reasons why you require certain drugs.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Frequently, when I am very tired or nervous, red blotches appear on my neck. What causes this, and is there any treatment available?

DEAR READER — Stress-induced red blotches are due to an opening-up of blood vessels in the skin. The reaction is produced by nervous impulses that bombard the skin's capillaries; it is analogous to blushing. There is no cure, and the condition is entirely harmless.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can you tell me about anaphylaxis? I sure have all the symptoms, even the drop in blood pressure. I have no energy and feel it can't all be blamed on my age (69).

DEAR READER — Anaphylaxis is a severe and sometimes fatal reaction to a foreign substance. It can occur from food, vaccines, chemicals, drugs or insect venom. The reaction appears within seconds or minutes after a person has had contact with the substance.

In its mildest form, anaphylaxis causes redness, itching, swelling, lung spasm and fall in blood pressure. In its severest form, anaphylaxis causes shock and cardiac arrest. The condition usually is treated with injections of epinephrine (adrenaline) that reverse the body's acute allergic response.

Anaphylaxis is never a chronic condition. I'm afraid that you will have to consider other causes for your drop in blood pressure and loss of energy. You might have anemia, for example. Check with your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a continuing cough and expectorate a frothy liquid. The condition is worse when I lie down, but I also cough when I take a deep breath or bend over. A chest X-ray showed clear lungs, and I don't smoke. I'm 70, and this has gone on since more than a year ago, when I developed a severe head and chest cold.

DEAR READER — There are two possible explanations for your cough.

You could have developed a chronic sinus infection from your cold. Sinusitis often causes bothersome coughing because — especially at night — infected mucus may drain from your sinuses, pour down your throat and choke you.

The second possibility is an allergy. This, too, can cause a frothy mucus buildup in your throat, with the cough being your unconscious attempt to clear out the phlegm.

See your doctor for an examination and, if appropriate, consider seeing an allergist to identify what you might be reacting to.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What are the effects of long-term consumption of water that is treated by a water softener?

DEAR READER — When water passes through a water softener, the hard salts in the water are replaced by soft salts in the water conditioner. Usually, calcium salts are withdrawn and sodium salts are added. The amount of sodium depends on the amount of calcium (hardness).

There are no recognized long-term consequences of drinking water that has been softened. However, there are two exceptions. Some patients with weak hearts tend to retain excess salt in their bodies; therefore, they must be careful to avoid salt, even the small amounts present in conditioned water. A water analysis (performed by many municipal health departments and independent laboratories) will tell a consumer how much sodium (and calcium) salt is present in a water sample.

Hereford defeats Dunbar 24-22 in game three

HHS varsity spikers win marathon match

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford High School varsity volleyball players played what has to be their most exciting match, in the eyes of their fans—and their parents—when they won a marathon match over Lubbock Dunbar Tuesday night, 15-9, 11-15, 24-22.

It was the second time this season that the HHS varsity defeated Dunbar, the other time coming on Sept.

16 in a District 1-4A opener at Lubbock.

Hereford is now 2-6 in district matches and 2-15 overall. Hereford also won Tuesday night's junior varsity match, 8-15, 15-7, 15-4.

The junior varsity's season record is 2-11. Tuesday night's matches were played at the La Plata Junior High School gym.

The evening was "Parents Night," in which the parents of the HHS varsity and junior varsity players were introduced before the varsity match.

In game three of the varsity match against Dunbar, Hereford moved out to a 4-0 lead. Wisty Mars recorded a block and a dink for Hereford's first two points.

Soon thereafter, a pair of kills by Shea McGinty gave Hereford two side outs. Dunbar closed the gap to 4-3 before Kristi Wells served an ace for a 5-3 HHS lead.

Dunbar then gained some momentum, moving ahead of the Whitefaces 9-5. Hereford scored two points, one on an ace by Wells, to move to within two points at 9-7.

Dunbar then built its lead up to five points, 12-7. Two service aces by Wells closed the gap to 12-9, and later a dink by Mars kept Hereford within three points at 13-10.

Hereford then tied up the game 13-13. After Wells spiked the ball for a point, Dunbar hit the ball out of bounds for Hereford's 13th point.

Later a service ace by Kamille Martin gave Hereford a 14-13 lead, but Dunbar gained back possession of the ball and scored with a service ace to tie the game at 14-14.

Dunbar moved ahead 15-14, and then both teams committed service errors. Dunbar spiked the ball out of bounds to give Hereford possession of the service.

Tricia Kahlich hit the ball to an open spot in the middle of Dunbar's side for a point, and once again the score was tied—15-15.

Dunbar gained the lead 16-15 with a service ace, and then a dink by Mars tied the game at 16-16. Kahlich served an ace for a 17-16 Hereford lead, but Dunbar tied the game again, 17-17.

Hereford led 18-17, and Dunbar scored two straight points to take a 19-18 lead. Darla Newton served an ace for Hereford to put the game in a 19-19 tie.

After both teams committed service errors, Dunbar moved ahead 20-19. Mars served a pair of points, with Hereford scoring them on errors by Dunbar for a 21-20 lead over the Panthers.

Dunbar then served to aces to gain back the lead, 22-21. An ace by Martin put Hereford back into a tie, 22-22, and a kill by Wells gave the Whitefaces a 23-22 lead.

The spotlight was then on Jeanette Mumau, who had served the ball leading up to the point scored on Wells' kill. Mumau served the ball hard to the Dunbar back line, where a Panther was unable to get the ball under control—and an ace brought to an end the marathon match, with Hereford winning the tie-breaker game, 24-22.

"This had to be the most exciting match in the last two years for Hereford volleyball," said Hereford Coach Brenda Reeh. "The entire match lasted close to two hours with the third game taking at least 45 minutes."

"Sixteen points were played after the regulation 15 in the deciding game of the match. The girls were playing with match point against them several times, but they refused to fold.

"It took a great amount of concentration and determination to endure the extreme pressure. It's hard to express the thoughts and feelings that go through you in a hard-fought match like this."

"After some tough losses in the past, the pride I feel in these young ladies is very special. They're a hard-fighting bunch of athletes."

About the junior varsity match, Coach Reed stated, "The junior varsity also pulled through with a victory. After losing the first game of the match, the kids showed lots of poise by coming back in the second and third games."

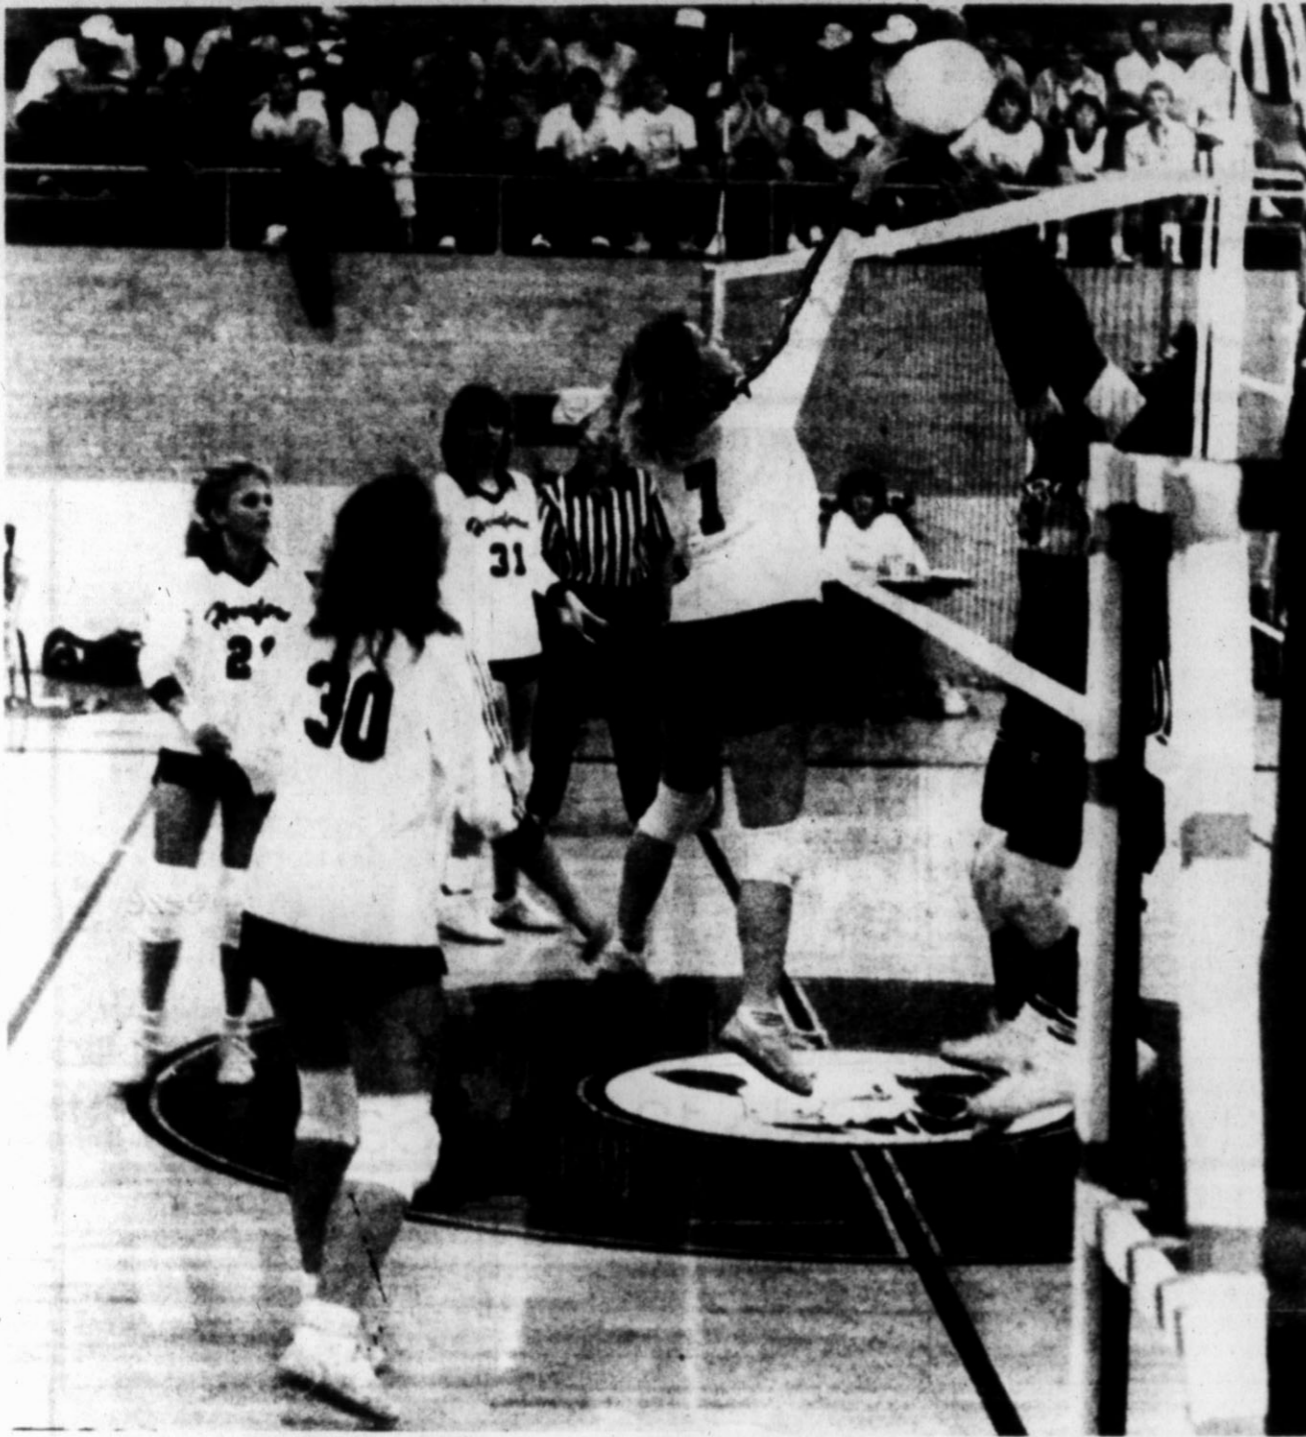

The HHS head coach also said the crowd was a factor during the matches. "I give a special thanks to the large crowd there to watch the action on 'Parents Night.' Their enthusiasm and support helped to pull us through some tough points."

Hereford led 6-1 and 7-3 in game one of the varsity match, before Dunbar moved to within one point at 7-6. The Whitefaces then gained a lead of 13-7 enroute to the 15-9 win.

Service aces in the game for Hereford were two each by Kahlich and Martin, and one each by Newton, Mars, and Wells.

A block by Wells gave Hereford a 12-7 lead, and the 13-7 lead was achieved on one of Martin's aces. Wells scored her service ace for a 14-9 Hereford lead, and Hereford won the game on an error by Dunbar.

Game two was tied at 3-3, 4-4, 5-5, (See HHS SPIKERS, Page 5)

Kristi Blocks Dunbar's Hit

Dunbar attempted a dink here, but Kristi Wells (7) of Hereford blocked the ball back into the faces of two Panthers. The block gave Hereford a side out, and moments later Wells spiked the ball for a kill which moved Hereford to within a point of Dunbar, 13-12, in game three of the varsity match Tuesday. Hereford went on to win game three in overtime, 24-22. Other Hereford players pictured are Jeanette Mumau (30), Tricia Kahlich (21), and Shea McGinty (31). (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

In seventh grade football game

La Plata beats Stanton 40-6

Brady Collard scored three touchdowns, and teammate Roger Ramirez ran for a pair of 65-yard touchdown runs, powering the La Plata seventh grade football team to a 40-6 victory over Stanton Tuesday at La Plata field.

La Plata, which now has a season record of 1-2-1, plays its next game at home on Tuesday, Oct. 21 against Plainview Blue. There will also be a "B" team game. Game times are 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. at La Plata field.

The Stanton seventh grade team has a season record of 0-3-1 and will play at Plainview next Tuesday against Plainview Red. "A" and "B" team games are scheduled, at 4 p.m.

Roger Ramirez scored the first of his two 65-yard touchdown runs with 7:03 left in the first quarter, giving La Plata a 6-0 lead.

La Plata's next touchdown was set up by a 66-yard pass from quarterback Brady Collard to receiver Kevin Kelso. Collard then carried for a one-yard touchdown run, with 2:52 left in the first quarter.

The Mavericks increased their lead to 18-0 over Stanton when Daniel Vallejo rushed 51 yards for a touchdown with 4:35 left in the first half.

But that was not all the first half scoring. Collard scored his second touchdown with an 18-yard run, and Rudy Rocha rushed for a two-point conversion with 1:26 left in the half. That made La Plata's halftime margin 26-0.

Ramirez rushed for his other 65-yard touchdown run with 4:55 left in the third quarter, giving La Plata a 32-0 lead.

Santos Rincon scored the lone Stanton Dogie touchdown with a seven-yard run with 1:05 left in the game.

Collard then rushed 53 yards for the final La Plata touchdown. Steven Montelongo rushed for a two-point conversion, putting the final margin for the Mavericks over the Dogies at 40-6.

65-Yard Touchdown Run

Roger Ramirez of the La Plata seventh grade football team, No. 33 in the white uniform, appears to be trapped by two Stanton defenders. But Ramirez knocked both of them aside and went on to score with a 65-yard touchdown run for La

Plata's first points in a 40-6 victory over Stanton. Ramirez rushed for another 65-yard touchdown run in the third quarter. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Coleman Scores A Point For Hereford

Rachel Coleman (11) dinks the ball to increase the Hereford High School junior varsity volleyball team's lead to 7-3 in game three against Lubbock Dunbar Tuesday night. Hereford went on to win the game, and match, 15-4, after splitting the first two games with Dunbar. Right behind Coleman is No. 38, Mandy Gonzales, and No. 14 is Kendra Tisdale. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Heading For A Touchdown

Santos Rincon (40) of the Stanton seventh grade football team receives the ball from quarterback Damon Godwin (12), and heads through an opening for a seven-yard touchdown run. The touchdown came with 1:05 left in the game Tuesday in which Stanton fell to La Plata 40-6. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Herd dropped to 12th in Harris ratings

AP ranks Whitefaces 6th

A big difference in the football rankings for the Hereford Whitefaces marks this week's ratings by the Associated Press and the Harris Rating System.

In the Associated Press poll, Hereford, an 8-3 winner over Levelland last Friday, moved up from seventh to sixth in the state rankings. District 1-4A foe Lubbock Estacado is ranked fifth.

But in the Harris Rating System, Estacado is back in the No. 1 spot, after falling to No. 3 after it tied Levelland 14-14 two weeks ago. Estacado scored a 55-0 win over Dumas last Saturday.

The Harris Rating System dropped Hereford out of the top 10, down to 12th. New Braunfels and Big Spring replaced Hereford and Uvalde in the top 10.

HHS spikers

6-6 and 7-7 before Dunbar built up a 14-7 lead in defeating Hereford 15-11. Late in the match, two kills by McGinty and an ace by Mars began a rally that fell short.

The HHS junior varsity team lost game one of its match, 15-8. Kendra Tisdale and Mandy Gonzales served aces for the last two points in Hereford's 15-7 victory in game two. Game three was tied at 2-2. Hereford gained a lead of 4-2, and a service ace by Jean Diller made Hereford's lead 6-3.

A dink by Rachel Coleman and two aces by Clarisse Marquez helped Hereford build its lead to 10-3. Coleman then scored a dink when she tapped down an overset ball by Dunbar, for an 11-3 lead.

A service ace by Mandy Gonzales, a kill by Diller, and an ace by Coleman then helped Hereford move on to win the game, and the match, 15-4.

On Saturday, the Hereford junior varsity hosts Canyon at 2 p.m. There will be no varsity match Saturday.

Next Tuesday, the HHS teams host Lubbock Estacado, with the junior varsity match at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity match afterwards.

Guests welcomed at recent meeting of decorating club

Thursday morning at the Community Center, members of the Sweet and Fancy Decorating Club met for their October meeting.

President Karen Martin called the meeting to order and asked the guests present to introduce themselves. The guests were Wanda Huseman, Glenda Chadwick, Mary Perente, and Manuela Melendrez.

Treasurer Alice Koenig reported that 11 students had registered for the cake classes. Betty Henson noted that the supplies that the students would need each time would be bags, tubes, flower nail, wax paper, powdered sugar, bowls, spoons, colors, icing and a cake. The students will learn how to make flowers, stems and leaves, borders, and the last lesson will be focused on character cakes. Karen Martin thanked all members for helping with the first lesson and asked that all members be sure to show up for each lesson.

Henson, who is also the director of the Red Cross in Hereford, showed the club members the baby mannequin that was purchased with the funds that were donated by the club. The mannequin is used to teach CPR for children and has been very beneficial. She thanked club members for the donation.

Vice president Carol Kelly asked that all members give their pan lists to her.

The meeting was adjourned and Elida Balderez, Elveyn Crofford, Esmeralda Dominquez, Beckie Fry, Margaret Gamez, Henson, Kelley, Koenig, and Martin.

Bride-Elect Honored

Tania Willson feted with bridal shower

Tania Willson, bride-elect of Brian Devine, was honored with a shower recently at the Dawn Community Center.

The honoree and her fiancé plan to exchange wedding vows Saturday in the Dawn Baptist Church.

Kari Smith invited guests to register from a table covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a burgundy silk rosebud arrangement.

The honoree, her mother, the prospective bridegroom's mother and her grandmother were all presented with pink and burgundy silk corsages. All silk arrangements were created by Costaline Lee.

Jo Lee served refreshments of cookies and burgundy punch. The table was draped with a pink cloth and covered with a white lace cloth.

Centering the table was a pink and burgundy silk flower arrangement. Also, accenting the table were crystal candle holders with pink candles.

Serving as hostesses were Nelma Sowell, Lois Richardson, Willie Wimberly, June McCabe, Costaline Lee, Ruby Wimberly, Leona Miller, Nita Lea, Helen Caraway, Jo Lee, Lottie Wertemberger and Doris Johnson.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences awarded its first Oscars on May 16, 1929, to actress Janet Gaynor, actor Emil Jannings and the movie "Wings."

Marie Antoinette was married in 1770 to France's King Louis XVI.

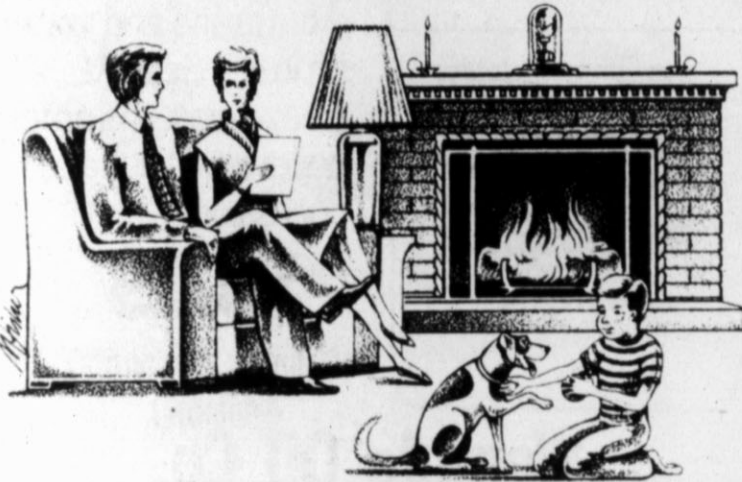

IMMIGRANTS AND ARTISTS

NEW YORK (AP) — "Tides of Immigration: Romantic Visions and Urban Realities" is on view at the Museum of the Borough of Brooklyn through Dec. 2.

The exhibition, in honor of the centennial of the Statue of Liberty, consists of 96 paintings, drawings and photographs and traces artists' depictions of the full range of the immigrant experience.

Works by George Bellows, Peggy Bacon, Lewis Hine and Paul Strand are among those included.

TEAMWORK

TEAMWORK noun a joint action by a group of people in which each person subordinates his individual interests and opinions for the unity of the group.

When the word "teamwork" is mentioned, the most obvious thought is that of football or another sport. While it is true that a football team must have unity, teamwork also applies to business.

COLOR IS MANY SPLENDOROUS THING
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Imparting color to oldtime black-and-white movie classics such as "Casablanca," "High Sierra," "The Maltese Falcon" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy" is a long, painstaking and intricate process, according to Multichannel News.
 Each film first requires extensive research to verify color choices and maintain historical accuracy, notes the journal, which reports on the cable television industry over which the newly colored films will be viewed.
 Specialists then work from colored still photos based on that research, coloring each frame individually through a computer automation process.
 Currently, the color studios can produce only nine minutes of colored film each day.
 Even in Hollywood's earliest days, the journal recalls, producers were hand coloring films in turn-of-the-century movies. Tinting and toning pictures was in vogue later with the 1931 version of "Frankenstein" tinted green to achieve an eerie effect.

Long separated brother, sister reunited

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A brother and sister who last saw each other almost a half century ago were reunited over the weekend amid tears, giggles and fond memories of a childhood in Ohio.

Tillie Swartz, 83, was driven from her home in Las Vegas to once again be with her brother, Joe Rabeck, 93.

When they met at the Arlington rest home where Rabeck lives, they immediately hugged. Their last hug was in 1940.

"I cried," said Mrs. Swartz of the reunion. "So did I," admitted Rabeck.

Mrs. Swartz said Rabeck, one of eight children in their Cleveland, Ohio, family home, played a big role in raising her.

Rabeck said as a teen-ager he found himself responsible for keeping his little sister entertained and in clean diapers. It was tough, he said, to do that and still pursue important things — such as baseball.

He recalled one ball game where he was to play, but "But Mom said I had to take Tillie with me."

Rabeck said he managed, with help.

"When it was my turn to bat, I gave her to somebody else to watch," recalled Rabeck. "They really didn't seem to mind. She was a good baby. Always giggling."

On Sunday, Mrs. Swartz was still giggling at the memory.

Mrs. Swartz's daughter, Loretta Kacel of Las Vegas, and Rabeck's son, Lawrence Rabeck of Arlington, managed to reunite the brother and sister.

The cousins started corresponding three years ago, and decided early this year to bring their parents together. Mrs. Kacel drove her mother from Las Vegas to the nursing home where Rabeck lives.

Mrs. Swartz said she and her brother were always close as children, but the bonds slackened when he joined the Navy and she later married.

"We kind of fell out of touch," she said.

But on Sunday, they both remembered home and that time of youth.

Cincinnati, Ohio got its name from a benevolent fraternal organization, The Cincinnati, set up after the Revolutionary War and named for a legendary Roman hero. The governor of the territory in which the city lay was president of the society.

Maclaskey welcomed as new chapter member

Gay Maclaskey was welcomed as a new member when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in the home of Louann Eubanks. Darla Stengel presented the program on women's emotional needs and self-esteem. Beckie Fry described Beta Sigma Phi to guests and answered questions. Committee responsibilities were also discussed. During the business meeting, food items were collected for Good Shepherd and members were reminded of the stuffed potato sale and Christmas face-painting set Nov. 15. It was announced that Jan

Ramaekers would present the program for the next meeting and Carol Kelley would serve as co-hostess. Following the business session, Lisa Gelatt served refreshments to those present. Recognized as special guests were Glenda Jesko, Wanda Huseman, Rhonda Nicklaus and Janice Betzen. Members in attendance were Jackie Fangman, Holly Bixler, Elizabeth Jesko, Marge Bell, Nancy George, Kathie Kerr, Cindy Garth, Fry, Lisa Rollins, Gelatt, Dona Hendrickson, Eubanks, Kelley, Janet Daugherty, Dee Ann Matthews, Ruby Lee, and chapter advisor, Connie Matthews.

Several complete management course

Several supervisors and potential supervisors at Deaf Smith General Hospital recently completed a mid-management course presented by Amarillo College. "Functions of a Supervisor" was examined during the course taught by Willie Weaver. Those participating in the class received three semester hours. They included Lori Lopez, Frankie Lusk, Peggy Fitzgerald, Amalia Miralles, Gwen London, Karen Haigood, Debbie Walker, Jenny Cassels, Doris Morgan, Minnie Roddy, Janice Klepac, Carolyn Jansa, Martha Rincon, D'au Spin, Karen Fangman, Rudi Botkin and JoNell Satterfield. Another three semester hour course, entitled "Communications in Management," has been scheduled to begin Oct. 21 at the local hospital. Nancy Elliott will be the class instructor. The class will meet for six consecutive Tuesdays from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Tuition is $79 and anyone from the community is invited to enroll. For additional information or to pre-register, contact Rose Ann Smith, R.N. at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Hill, Cocanougher serve as hostesses for meeting

Bessie Hill and Lucy Faye Cocanougher served as hostesses when members of Hereford Garden Club met Friday at the Garden Center, 900 N. Main St. Jerry Jackson gave the program on perennials explaining that they are exhibited best in early spring and should be divided during that season. Ursalee Jacobsen told that peonies come in red, white and pink and have deep green foliage. She also stated that the flowers need full sun and that they should not be planted more than two to three inches below soil. From "National Gardener", Meredith Wilcox told club members that annuals should be planted for color between the spring and fall seasons. She also gave illustrations of the plants in gardens. Elizabeth Wilson said that the rose is seen in history pictures at the old homesteads where the rose garden was popular. Billee Johnson provided the centerpiece which consisted of red, white and blue colors to symbolize the centennial year. Others present were Mozell Childers, Lois Ethridge, Mable Mitchell, Carmen Angel and guest, Maria Esemilla.

Book sale scheduled this weekend

The public is invited to the Friends of the Library annual book sale this weekend in the Bicentennial Room of Deaf Smith County Library. A preview sale is planned from 6-8 p.m. Friday for members of the organization and the public book sale is scheduled from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday and from 2-6 p.m. Sunday. All proceeds will be used to benefit the library.

After climbing for a few years, the poverty rate declined for the second year in a row in 1985. The poverty rate for Hispanics, however, continued to increase. Some experts believe the poverty rate among Hispanics may soon surpass that among blacks.

Father convicted of castrating son being released on parole

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP)—A father convicted of using radioactive pellets to castrate his son is being paroled this week after serving one-third of his 15-year sentence.

The son, Kirk Crocker, is not pleased with the decision by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to parole Kerry Andrus Crocker on Friday.

"It's a cheap trick to have him appeal a conviction, run from police, and once he is finally put in prison, he only spends five years there," the son said Monday.

The younger Crocker, a Houston real estate agent, has tried three times to prevent the release of his father by petitioning the parole board.

The father was convicted in 1973 for placing pellets of radioactive cesium 137 in a sock, then placing it on his son as punishment for siding with his estranged wife over a dispute on visitation rights, testimony showed.

His son spent about three years in bed with burns and sores before physicians diagnosed his injuries as radiation induced. He had to undergo a series of operations until he was 17 to cut out the burns that would not heal.

He still must take regular injections of hormones to maintain a normal appearance.

Kerry Crocker was freed on bond while he appealed his 10-year prison sentence. He jumped bond after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals affirmed his conviction and was finally arrested in 1981. A five-year bail-jumping sentence was added to the earlier term.

Kirk Crocker, 25, said he believed his father still is dangerous because he tried last year to regain his engineering's license that would give him access to radioactive materials.

The senior Crocker will live in a Salvation Army halfway house in Fort Worth under special parole conditions that forbid him to contact his son or to have a job that requires access to radioactive materials, parole board spokesman Mike Roach said.

Conditions of the convict's release require him to report to a parole officer, find a job and ask permission before leaving Dallas, parole board spokesman Mike Roach said.

D.A. fights indictment

WACO, Texas (AP)—District Attorney Vic Fezell may have been indicted for bribery, but he's still a part-time Baptist preacher who quotes the Bible and has a picture of John Wayne on his office wall.

In many quarters of McLennan County in this very Baptist heart of Texas, he's a cause celebre who remains a tough man to beat in the Nov. 4 election.

His "Go get 'em Vic!" bumper stickers are going like hotcakes. They feature a pair of hands, thumbs up, breaking the chain on a set of handcuffs.

The bumper stickers are a reminder of Fezell's arrest Sept. 17 in which he was handcuffed in what he calls "a vulgar display of power."

Fezell gained prominence outside McLennan County through his investigation into a murder confession by Henry Lee Lucas in which a grand jury decided the confession was a lie. Fezell contends the federal charges are largely because of the embarrassment he caused law officers.

His arrest followed a federal indictment, charging him with 12 counts of accepting $19,000 in bribes from defense attorneys to influence his handling of criminal cases. Some of those are believed to involve cases of driving while intoxicated.

Fezell denies any wrongdoing, saying he has never accepted influence money.

"Most of the folks around here know it's a put-up job," he says.

In an interview in the bland brick annex to the imposing, white turn-of-the-century marble and limestone county courthouse, Fezell likened himself to a biblical character.

"Daniel got thrown into the lion's den, but the lions didn't eat him," he said.

The 35-year-old district attorney and one-time police cadet also has compared himself to "Rocky Balboa," the movie character made famous by Sylvester Stallone.

In the case of Lucas and the slaying of a Waco woman, the grand jury concluded Lucas' confession was untrue. Lucas was at one time believed to be the nation's biggest mass murderer. But he recanted on all but one of his confessions, and evidence now calls many of his confessions into question.

"Everybody agrees I was right about that (Lucas case)," he said.

Fezell also boasts of the conviction rate since he took office. According to the Texas Judicial Council's annual report for fiscal 1985, there were convictions in 75 percent of the 498 felony cases disposed of in McLennan County. All but 27 of those cases were guilty pleas, said Sonja Flora, trial court specialist for the council in Austin.

County Republican Chairman Allan Horton predicts a close race between Fezell, a Democrat, and Republican opponent Paul Gartner, with the indictment just the edge Gartner needs to win.

Gartner, a Waco lawyer, was handily defeated by Fezell four years ago.

"On the other hand, Vic Fezell is a pretty good actor and is really good at playing on emotions of (his) being persecuted," Horton said. "The fact that this is a strong Baptist community and he's been a part-time Baptist preacher gets him a lot of sympathy."

At Fatz Brick Pit, a favorite downtown lunchspot, Michael Korpi, who teaches film at Baylor University, said he and many other citizens believe "a lot of unethical things" have occurred in the district attorney's office.

Korpi said he doesn't plan to vote for Fezell but predicts he'll be re-elected to a second term anyway.

"He's a very smart politician. He plays to every major constituency in the county. He's done a real good job of pulling the evangelical community. They think he's just being picked on."

The Rev. R.L. Whitworth, pastor of the Calvary Assembly of God, said he believes 99 percent of his 1,000-member congregation is for Fezell.

"I don't think that man needs those kind of payoffs from some DWI drinker. I think (the charges) are nothing but political smears."

Fezell, who was a guest preacher at Whitworth's church, is capable of keeping a crowd spellbound, Whitworth said.

"I think he's a good man and I heard him preach," the minister said. "All of us go by feelings."

John Ben Sutter, Fezell's top aide who has worked for other politicians, argues that for Fezell to threaten his political future by accepting a mere $19,000 in bribes would be "downright stupid."

The case continues to be perhaps the hottest topic of conversation this fall, along with the usual football fever over the Baylor Bears. A restaurant owner, who asked not to be identified, said he's heard both sides of the argument on Fezell's guilt or innocence.

"It's damn near split 50-50," he said. "The lawyers and leading citizens, they think he's guilty. But to the average working guy on the street, he's the people's hero."

"My forecast is he's gonna win the election hands down."

Fugitive minister hopes to return to protest in Texas

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A fundamentalist minister wanted for contempt of court in Texas says he will return to the state when "God would have me go back."

"They say we're a fugitive from Texas," the Rev. W.N. Otwell said Tuesday. "We're not a fugitive from justice, that's for sure. We're a fugitive from injustice."

Otwell fled from Texas after an arrest warrant was issued when he failed to appear Oct. 6 at a contempt-of-court hearing. Otwell has ignored a March order to have his church-run boys home obtain a state license or close.

He spoke Tuesday to a national conference of unregistered churches, telling the ministers from across the nation that he plans to return to Texas when he has rallied support for his cause.

The Rev. Greg Dixon of the Indianapolis Baptist Temple said Otwell "stands in the tradition of a long line of Americans who have stood for religious liberty."

"We do not consider him a lawbreaker, a rebel, an anarchist," said Dixon, the chairman of the American Coalition of Unregistered Churches. "We consider Gov. Mark White, (Attorney General) Jim Mattox and the authorities of the state of Texas ... the anarchists and lawbreakers."

"When my mission is through, crossing this country, I'll call ... the sheriff in the county I'm from and come in and turn myself in," he said. "I'm not afraid of jail. Jail would be the simplest thing to do."

Otwell said he hopes 100 ministers will join him in Los Angeles was founded by Spanish settlers in 1871.

Geronimo and the Apaches surrendered to the U.S. Army at Skeleton Canyon, Arizona, in 1885.

The first Boy Scout rally was held in England in 1908.

On Sept. 4, 1917, the American Expeditionary Force in France suffered its first casualty in World War I.

Austin next Monday through Thursday to protest against White, Mattox and State District Judge Paul R. Davis, who issued the arrest warrant.

"Who in the name of God do you think you are?" Otwell said the protesters would ask state officials. "Who gave you the authority to attack a church ministry? God sure didn't. You don't have a biblical right. You don't have a constitutional right."

Otwell, 49, faces fines and an arrest warrant in Texas in a dispute over a court order to close his unlicensed boys home operated by his Community Baptist Church in Forest Hill, a suburb of Fort Worth.

He is being fined $100 a day for violating the state law requiring youth homes to get state licenses. Otwell owes the state more than $27,000 in fines, Mattox said Monday.

Texas authorities said Monday they will not try to have Otwell extradited. Otwell maintains the state has done nothing wrong with the home aside from its failure to have a license.

"No one has been damaged physically. There's never been any child abuse," he said. "That church is as clean as it could be."

"We're not perfect. We're not talking about perfection," Otwell said. "We're talking about there is no charges against our church. Hell will freeze over before we license."

Otwell also said he does not take seriously the prospect of the state selling a portion of the home's property to cover the civil penalties he owes.

"He won't never do that," Otwell said of Mattox. "I think a person would be a fool to buy that property. That's God's property. A person would have to be totally an atheist, unbeliever or reborn or one of Jim Mattox's associates."

Church representatives from across the nation are attending the coalition's four-day conference in Indianapolis. Dixon said the coalition believes church-run facilities should have immunity from regulation by government agencies.
