Noyes recalls Army days after WWI

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

B.B. Noyes of Hereford was serving as the company clerk and truckmaster of the Motor Transport Company 340, Section of the Quartermaster, when he might have invented something the U.S. Army has used ever since.

Noyes doesn't claim to be the inventor of the term, but he was the first person he knows of that used the term "GI" to refer to soldiers.

Truck drivers would stay in the barracks waiting for orders that were sent through Noyes at Camp Gordon, near Atlanta, Ga.

"I didn't know what that 'GI' was that was stamped on every box those guys would bring in," Noyes said. "I asked one of the drivers what it meant. He said it meant 'Government Issue.' I thought about it for a few minutes and I told 'em they were 'GI's'. I'd never heard anyone use that term before.

"It wasn't a week until 'GI' was being used to address soldiers, sailors, the Coast Guard, everybody. I guarantee you I had never heard it used before, and that makes me think I coined the phrase. It went around the world and they're still using it today."

That is not the only lasting impression of B.B. Noyes. If you can be a youngster at 89, then Noyes is a youngster.

He's slowed a little by emphysema and glaucoma. "And sometimes, I'll lose track of something. The mind isn't quite what it used to be," Noyes said. But all it takes is a little jog to get it back on track.

If happiness has anything to do with living long, then Noyes still has a number of years left. The emphysema may have cut back on the emphasized guffaw, but this is a man who loves to smile big and laugh loud and often.

He's fought off much worse. "I was in the National Guard in 1918," Noyes said. "I went in in July and the war was over in November. But Noyes caught the flu, just like many others in the epidemic in 1918. I got over it, then I had a relapse. It was worse the second time around." He eventually recovered, then went into the "Regular Army," first stationed at Camp Gordon.

"I liked it in the Regular Army, but after three years I decided to get out and start a family."

So he went back to his hometown of McKinney, Noyes said to hold on for a minute: He had to go get a picture

"Now lookit this," Noyes said proudly. He pulled a large black-and-white photograph out of a folder. It was a picture of a huge, beautiful home with his mother, father, their children and their maid standing out front.

"I was about seven years old when this was taken," Noyes, born in 1900, said. "You see my father here. He was pretty old. He fought in the war."

"The Civil War. He was with the New Jersey Cavalry, and he was down South when the war ended. He just stayed in the South."

Noyes recalls several of the Civil War stories his dad told him, including how they fought not only against Rebel troops but against Indians at times.

"My dad loved to tell this story about these two Indians they had caught stealing, and they hanged them," Noyes recalled. "Later, they told my daddy to bury them before other Indians came and stole the bodies. Well, they had been hanging there for quite some time."

That was probably his dad's worst experience in the Civil War.

When B.B. was seven, his father decided to take his young son with him to Baltimore, where his dad's father,

Fickle weather patterns keep changing

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

Summer was only two days old when the chill factor in Hereford dipped to 38 degrees.

That same dawn found an inch of snow on the ground in Denver.

Five months ago, during mid-winter, tulips were blooming in Europe, Canadians were working in shirt-sleeves and the American winter wheat belt was dry as a bone and bleaching under summer-like conditions.

Floods have repeatedly swamped a stretch of real estate this year from the Central Gulf Coast north-easterly across the continent to the Potomac. Tornadoes seem to dip and dive as frequently in New England or Upper Midwest as in the "Tornado Alley" of the Southwest.

Is this erratic weather pattern just another fickle feature of nature or is tied to a global pattern that has been around since the dawn of time?

Weather forecasters have done a masterful job in missing weather predictions during the past couple of years as highs and lows flitter around the globe like spring butterflies. Meteorologists say they don't have the answer. Some blame this abnormal weather behavior on the so-called greenhouse effect while others say it is the result of El Nino, a name given to the warming of the Pacific Ocean near the Equator. However, El Nino is supposed to be on its final fling for this time around and the Pacific waters should return to normal by 1990.

Whether it is El Nino, aerosol residue or nature, weather upheavals eventually touch the hip-pocket of every commodity buyer, producer and consumer in the world. The winter drought socked it to winter wheat producers for a cool 20 percent of gross is the tally is not in for the season but it's expected to run into the billions of dollars. Smaller things, such as a hailstorm in Texas or greenbugs in Kansas will send economic vibes to commodity floors of Chicago, New York, London and Tokyo.

The Great Plains contain some of the world's largest concentration of cattle, cotton, corn, soybeans and grain sorghum. And this vast region of agricultural production could easily be tagged as the Protein Belt of the world—the balancing weight between world food and world hunger.

Booms and busts have been round in commodities since the dawn of civilized trading, but patterns in commodity production and prices have been related to lunar cycles for at least 100 years. A graph found in a distillery in 1885 and published in Dun's Review in 1937 predicted fairly accurately the economic cycles of commodity prices and weather between the mid-1930s and 1986. It is believed that the author of the graph was relating to grain prices since the sketch was found in a distillery.

Though the author of the graph is not known, he was right on target with the Great Depression of 1932 and the agricultural "bust" of 1985. As predicted in the graph, grain prices were low in 1932, 1951, 1967 and 1987. A pattern of lows occurred every 18.6 years. Lows also occurred in eight additional cycles, averaging 9.3 years apart from 1891

El Nino's effects are almost over in U.S.

El Nino has been effecting weather in the United States for several years. El Nino is a huge high pressure area in the Pacific Ocean, and was basically responsible for heavy snows in the winter of 1983-84, and last year's above-normal precipitation for the first eight months.

to now. U.S. corn yields showed similar patterns of the 18.6-year cycles since 1891—1899, 1917, 1936, 1955 and 1973. Low yields seemed to follow groups of high yields in the annual chartings, with peaks hovering around the 18.6-year mark. A secondary peak showed up in the graph cycles following a dip after a cluster of high yields.

Complicated? Not to a mathematician R.G. Currie, a math professor at State University of Stony Brook, N.Y., has become an authority on the 18.6-year cycles in weather and commodity yields and believes the production patterns may be tied to lunar tidal forces which have created volumes of debate through the ages.

They're moving steadily northward, their progress basically unchecked.

They mix and match with their surroundings. Eventually, they don't blend. They change their surroundings to suit themselves.

They are Africanized honey bees, and they'll be here, in Hereford, in about three years.

The honey bees we see now are the European honey bees. They can sting, but they generally won't attack unless provoked. They are mellow.

Africanized honey bees are not mellow. "Africanized bees are more defensive and will react more vigorously when disturbed or provoked," said Dr.

John Thomas, an entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The bees were brought to the Western Hemisphere from Africa in 1956-57, about 30 swarms introduced in Brazil for breeding purposes. In a worst-case scenario of what can happen with unchecked genetic engineering, the surviving bees took on all of the aspects of the African bees.

Then, they began moving northward. The most-northern swarm is about 80 miles north of Veracruz, Mexico, or about 420 miles south of Brownsville. With the swarm's usual pace, the first bunch will be in South Texas by next March.

The results of the bee's migration have been devastating. They have wiped out hives of honeybees used for commercial purposes along the way. If they get to Texas and infest hives in the state, that could mean close to $1 billion in damage to the state.

The value of Texas' beekeeping business is about $11 million a year, and up to $200 million throughout the U.S.

A greater value is derived from crop pollination, worth $800 million in Texas and $20 billion in the United States.

Officials don't agree on how far north they will come, but they do agree that there has been little to stop the bees so far.

Glenn Hall, a bee researcher at the University of Florida, said at a conference last October in Weslaco that studies in South America and Mexico show the Africanized bees retain their genetic integrity while continuously increasing their range.

Researchers had long thought that the African genes would be diluted as they mixed with the European variety.

"These findings are truly phenomenal and they are conclusive," Hall said. He said the rapidly-reproducing bees had "virtually a total absence of European mother lines" after 1,000 generations.

Despite reports to the contrary, the bees should not be a major health concern. The "killer bee" reports are largely unfounded.

"There is really no cause for the public to be alarmed about Africanized bees," said Bobby Davis, an Austin medical entomologist. "Africanized bees will not overwhelm either the public or private health sector in Texas. It hasn't happened in countries where the bees are already present, and it won't happen here."

"A lot of frightening stories have been written about the bees and how they will get a menace to society. It just isn't so."

Davis feels most attention was focused on the death of a graduate student in Central America a few years ago who died after being stung hundreds of times by Africanized bees while on a research project.

"What happened was that he stumbled onto a nest of the bees and his foot got caught," Davis said. "He couldn't get away, so he was an easy target for the bees."

"That same thing could happen with domesticated bees, wasps and hornets, even with fire ants, particularly if the individual was hyper-sensitive to insect stings."

Davis said that other who were with the student were stung by the bees but suffered no lasting effects.

"In no country where the Africanized honey bee is present do officials consider it a serious threat to public health," Davis said. "If it were, then individuals traveling to those countries would be warned, just as in cases of diseases, security or other matters."

"There should be no problem in people learning to live with Africanized bees. They will not launch an unprovoked attack; they must be disturbed, as is the case with most pests. Their behavior in defense of their nest may be a bit more intensive, but if you leave them alone, they will leave you alone."

If some scientists are right, we might not have to worry about the bees in the Hereford area.

Some officials have felt that cold temperatures would hinder the bees' movement and that the bees would not survive in areas where the average high temperature during the winter months was less than 60 degrees.

However, new information based on their survival in high altitudes in Mexico shows the bees may be more cold-hardy than was earlier thought.

The Associated Press and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service contributed to this report.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, July 2, the 183rd day of 1989. There are 182 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On July 2, 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed into law a Civil Rights Act, the most sweeping legislation of its kind since Reconstruction.

On this date:
In 1566, the French astrologer, physician and prophet Nostradamus died.

In 1776, the Continental Congress passed a resolution saying that "these United Colonies are, and of right, ought to be, free and independent states."

In 1881, President James A. Garfield was shot by Charles J. Guiteau, a disappointed office-seeker, at the Washington railroad station. Garfield died the following September.

In 1890, the Sherman Antitrust Act was passed.

In 1926, the U.S. Army Air Corps was created.

In 1937, aviator Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, disappeared over the Pacific Ocean while attempting to make the first round-the-world flight at the equator.

In 1955, the "Lawrence Welk Show" premiered on ABC.

In 1961, author Ernest Hemingway shot himself to death at his home in Ketchum, Idaho.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy met Pope Paul VI at the Vatican.

In 1976, the Supreme Court ruled the death penalty was not inherently cruel or unusual.

In 1980, President Jimmy Carter signed a proclamation requiring young American men born in 1960 and 1961 to register with the Selective Service.

In 1982, using a lawn chair hoisted by 42 helium-filled weather balloons, Larry Walters of North Hollywood, Calif., took off from San Pedro and rose to a height of 16,000 feet.

In 1987, 18 illegal aliens were found dead inside a locked boxcar near Sierra Blanca, Texas, in what authorities called a botched smuggling attempt. A 19th man in the boxcar survived.

Ten years ago: The Supreme Court gave trial judges broad powers to order massive busing plans to racially desegregate public schools in northern cities.

Five years ago: Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale interviewed U.S. Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York at his Minnesota home as a potential running mate.

One year ago: Steffi Graf, 19, defeated eight-time Wimbledon winner Martina Navratilova, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1, to capture her first Wimbledon crown.

Today's birthdays: Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall is 81. Actress Polly Holliday is 52. The daughter of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Luci Baines Johnson Turpin, is 42. Actress Cheryl Ladd is 38. Actor Jimmy McNichol is 28.

WEATHER

Another act of nature that involves atmospheric interactions is an oceanic event known as El Nino—the warming of the Pacific Ocean at Points along the North and South American coast lines. When an "El Nino is in effect, the results have been excessive rainfall in the Midwest and eastward in the late spring and early summer as a result of high-pressure ridges that form over the Western states and a trough across the Corn Belt.

Art Douglas, a weather expert at Creighton University, in 1988 said during a speech at a cattlemen's convention the current warming trend of the Pacific—El Nino—began in 1986 and should end this year. Though Douglas missed a few 1988 predictions, such as "good crop growing conditions in the wheat area and Cornbelt," he did hit the widespread drouth of the Great Plains right on the nose.

He predicted wetter times for Mexico as El Nino moves out but fairly tough times for Canada, monsoons in India, better growing conditions in Southeast Asia and Africa and Russia.

While there is small doubt that the global climate will become warmer in the decades ahead, the impacts of such warming have brought about much debate and speculation.

"Global warming is under way and is greatest at high altitudes in the Northern Hemisphere," said Dr. William W. Kellogg, senior scientist of the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo. "This warming trend will continue as long as people burn fossil fuels and release carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases into the atmosphere."

He added that the warming, or "greenhouse," effect should lead to a general drying out in the central part of the North American continent. "Thus, we should see more dry years in the heartland of the United States and Canada as the earth grows warmer," said Kellogg. "On the other hand, the Gulf Coast and West Coast areas, because of their closeness to sources of water vapor, may turn out to be relatively more favorable as far as soil moisture is concerned."

So far this season, Kellogg's predictions have been right on target. Wave after wave of downpours have swept across the Gulf Coast regions of North America as tropical storms followed a north-easterly route rather moving inland across the Great Plains.

"The climate change in store for the world will create new and serious problems and enormous readjustments," Kellogg added. "No country will be unaffected by it, but it is clear that some countries will be hurt more than others. Some may even benefit."

Carbon dioxide that was fixed by plants over a span of millions of years is now being released by man-made devices within a relatively short period of time. The clearing and burning large amounts of forestland to make way for human settlements have also contributed greatly to the releasing of stored carbon dioxide.

Normally, carbon dioxide makes up .034 percent of the Earth's atmosphere and is essential for photosynthesis, the process by which plants convert the sun's energy into a form that can be used by both plant and animal life. Plants which are the primary producers in the food chain also act as regulators of the Earth's atmospheric composition by serving as something of a barbon trough. However, since the beginning of industrialization about 100 years ago the atmospheric carbon dioxide levels have increased from around 275 parts per million to 343 parts per million.

The mean Global temperature has risen nearly 1 degree during the past 100 years. Meteorologists predict that the carbon dioxide level, by the 22nd Century, will be twice the level in the 19th Century. If this pattern holds true, the overall global temperature could rise as much as 7 degrees during the next 100 years.

Some experts believe the U.S. may reach pre-industrial carbon dioxide levels as early as 2030...or sooner. A seven-degree rise in world temperature has been unprecedented in the known history of the Earth. Temperatures have been equal to or greater than those of today only 8 percent of the time during the last 700,000 years.

NOYES

stepmother and several other family members had moved.

"My grandfather had run the throttle of a passenger train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for several years, then he went over to Russia to set up their first standard-gauge railroad," Noyes said.

"We loaded up on the train at home and took off for Newport News, Va.," Noyes said. "After four days on the train, we took a boat on up to Baltimore."

"I was asleep down below, and I woke up, walked out on the deck, and looked right up one of the streets of Baltimore."

"He hadn't heard from his dad in a long time because of his stepmother, but they were all glad to see us. Well, I don't know, my aunt picked me up and threw me in the bathtub, since I hadn't had a bath in four days. I had cinders in my hair and was just a big mess."

Noyes' father ran an abstract business from the family's home, and it was there that he learned a skill that helped him in the Army.

"I had gone into the company clerk's office to type a letter to send home when the captain walked in," Noyes said. "He asked me what I was doing and I told him. When the clerk left a few weeks later, I was made the company clerk, and earned my corporal's stripes."

Those stripes were changed a short while later.

"The Army decided to add in these "specialist" rankings, like Spc. 4," Noyes said. "Well, I didn't think a whole lot about it until I drew my pay and I was about $5 short."

"I asked the paymaster about it, and he told me about my new ranking. I had been a corporal and almost got busted to buck private."

Another skill he learned, riding motorcycles, landed him a the truckmaster's job.

"Sometimes one big shot or another would need a ride, and I'd just go out and pick them up on my motorcycle. It had a sidecar on it. I'd pull up in that thing and they'd ask me what in the hell I expected them to do. I'd just tell 'em, 'Get in. You're in as good as hands with me as you are with anyone else.'"

"Later on I got transferred to Fort Sill, and I was taking this captain around on the gunnery range. They had some asphalt on the roads, but it was real thin and didn't do much."

"They had so many gullies and places that they didn't build any bridges. Well, it had rained some earlier and here I was with this captain in the sidecar. We came up over a hill and not 30 yards away was this washed out place in the road. I just went around as smooth as you please."

"The captain just looked up and said, 'You'll do.' Shoot, that made me happy."

He stayed in Greenville and McKinney for a few years, years that became rough during the Great Depression.

Noyes has lived in Hereford for over 40 years, coming here originally to make wooden sucker rods for wells and windmills.

"I came to Hereford and was down at one of the lumber yards," Noyes said. "I figured I could make those cheaper than what they were getting them for at the lumber yard, and sure enough I did."

"You see this?" he asked, holding out his upturned palm. "I got into the saw a little too much one time, but it didn't bother me any."

"Things fell apart in the Thirties," Noyes said. "We never went hungry, but sometimes we got by on baked potatoes or something."

"Sometimes the sucker rod business was great. I'd start out from home with a truckload of rods and enough money for another tank of gas. I'd have to sell some or go without."

"One time I went to one place, then another, then another, and couldn't sell 'em to anybody. I just made it back to the first place I went and told 'em I was broke, out of gas, and needed to sell those rods. They said 'yes,' and I sold 'em to it."

"A lot of people helped out a lot of other people during the Depression, or we never would have made it."

"I've lived in a lot of places. I could've picked out anywhere to settle down after World War II, when I worked up at Pantex, but I picked Hereford as the best city in West Texas, and I think it still is today."

Swim class starts Monday

Adult swimming classes that were to begin July 10 have been rescheduled to begin on Monday. The Red Cross-sponsored classes will last from 6:30 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. at the City Pool. cost for the two week session is $5.

Brand sets deadlines

Deadlines have been moved for Wednesday's issue of the Brand and for the next issue of the Reach 4 More. Classified advertising for Wednesday's Brand and for the next issue of the Reach 4 More should be submitted by 9 a.m. Wednesday. The next issue of the Reach 4 More will be published one day later than usual and will be distributed on Thursday. The Brand will not be printed on Tuesday (July 4 is one of the "approved" holidays for the Brand). Advertising representatives for the Brand will be available on Monday, but the news desks and offices will be closed. All departments will be closed Tuesday.

Fireworks precaution urged

Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain said that extra patrols will be sued to crack down on fireworks in Hereford this year. Discharging or even possession of fireworks within the city limits is against the law. Persons who bring fireworks into the city limits, even if they are going somewhere outside the city to discharge the fireworks, are breaking the law. This also means that persons cannot legally take fireworks into the part of Veterans Park outside the city limits, a popular spot on the night of July 4, because persons must bring them in through the city limits. Spain also urged persons who will be discharging fireworks outside the city limits to be as safe as possible around the fireworks. Persons planning to use fireworks should remember to obtain the permission of property owners before going onto their land to discharge fireworks of any sort.

Women's Division meet set

Wednesday at noon is the deadline to call the chamber office at 364-3333 for reservations for Thursday's Quarterly meeting of the Women's Division. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Dress for the meeting, which is a hamburger cookout, should be casual.

Reports included burglary of a building in the 600 block of East Park where a scanner, worth $200, was taken; a domestic dispute in the 300 block of Avenue E; a family disturbance in the 300 block of Whittier and in the 500 block of Grand; theft of $19.98 worth of gas in the 100 block of South 25 Mile Avenue; assault in the 100 block of Avenue C; juvenile problems in the 200 block of Hereford Calle; assault by threat in the 200 block of Norton; possession and discharging of fireworks in the area of South Schley and Gracey; Theft of a billfold, including $479, in the area of West U.S. Highway 60 or the 600 block of South 25 Mile Avenue; assault by threat in the 600 block of Avenue I; criminal trespass in the 600 block of Irving; and two reports of burglaries of motor vehicles in the 200 block of North Lee. Police issued 14 citations and investigated one accident Friday. The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department responded to three calls Friday and early Saturday, including a grass fire, a structure fire and an accident, all on Progressive Road. The grass fire was at 3:44 p.m. Friday. A structure fire and accident were reported after 2 a.m. Saturday.

Lung Assn. launches 'Nondependence' Day

One day after the nation celebrates its independence, the American Lung Association's NonDependence Day, July 5, offers millions of Americans a chance to declare a new freedom--freedom from nicotine addiction.

Smokers who have tried to quit once, twice, even three times, and failed, need not despair. Throughout the country, 134 Lung Associations will celebrate the new holiday with special festivities to call attention to ALA's highly acclaimed Freedom From Smoking programs.

A simple written test to help smokers determine their level of nicotine dependency will be available, as will declarations of nondependence. Supported through a grant from Lakeside Pharmaceuticals, NonDependence Day is also a day when the nonsmoking family and friends of smokers can declare their support for and encourage their loved ones to quit.

"Many of the smokers who contact us about quitting are physically and psychologically addicted," said Jana Jahns, American Lung Association of Texas program administrator of Smoking or Health. Nicotine addiction is a continuing process from the very first puff. On NonDependence Day, July 5, Freedom From Smoking programs smokers will begin to break the bonds of their nicotine addiction.

The 1989 Surgeon General's report reaffirms earlier reports that smoking is the single most important preventable cause of premature death in our society. The report found that smoking education efforts like the American Lung Association's Freedom From Smoking materials and clinics had led millions of people to stop smoking or never start. The same smoking education efforts eventually will postpone or avoid approximately 2.9 million deaths between the years of 1964 and 2000.

Last year, the Surgeon General reported that nicotine is the drug in tobacco that causes addiction. The American Lung Association's Freedom From Smoking programs address the specific behavioral problems of nicotine addiction, enabling the smoker to overcome the many obstacles that are encountered along the road to freedom from smoking.

Smoking materials and clinics had led millions of people to stop smoking or never start. The same smoking education efforts eventually will postpone or avoid approximately 2.9 million deaths between the years of 1964 and 2000.

The American Lung Association is the oldest nationwide voluntary health agency in the United States. Founded in 1904 to combat tuberculosis, today the Association is dedicated to the prevention, cure and control of all lung diseases and some of their related causes, including smoking, air pollution, and occupational hazards. ALA's public health education and research programs are supported by donations to Christmas Seals and by other voluntary contributions.

Making bookmarks

Adult swimming classes will begin Monday, July 3, at 6:30 to 7:30 at the City Pool. Registration will be at the first class. Cost of the class will be $5 for the two-week session. Karen Martin and Barbara Franks will be the instructors.

A shortage of Water Safety Instructors again this year means we will not be able to offer as many classes as we need to teach children how to be safe in and around water. A Water Safety Instructor class will be held later in the summer. Now is the time to begin practicing swimming skills to be able to take the WSI class. Please call the Red Cross office if you would like to become an instructor so that training and practice sessions can be scheduled.

Special thanks to Mary Zinser, Dalene Burns, and Lisa Blakely for their work in teaching classes.

Thanks also to Mike Manchee and Deanna Hobbs for helping with the class.

A babysitting class will be held July 10-14 at the Red Cross office. The class will start at 2 p.m. and last until 5 p.m. each day. Cost of the class will be $10 per person. Infant and child CPR, first aid, and other topics will be taught. The class is open to anyone 12 years and older. Call the Red Cross office to register.

TRAVELING THIS SUMMER

There is nothing more frustrating than breaking or losing your glasses five miles or 5,000 miles from home. Unless you have an extra pair with you, it can destroy a vacation or certainly put a damper on a business trip. Even if you have packed a copy of your prescription, an optometrist in the wilds of Canada or the canyons of Wall Street may not be able to replace your glasses immediately.

That's one good reason to have an extra pair of glasses with you when you travel. It also makes good sense to have an extra pair in your office desk and in the glove compartment of your car.

Extra pairs should have your latest lens prescription and should fit you properly. You may wish to have them made as attractive as your primary pair, with tints or anti-scratch coating. Or, for economy's sake, your latest prescription can be put in simple, moderately priced frames.

In any case -- to borrow a phrase -- don't leave home without extra glasses.

Panhandle Alliance

The Panhandle Area Alliance has been formed, funded and is now in operation out of new headquarters in Amarillo.

What is this outfit?

It is an organization designed to help the political, legislative and economic development of the entire Panhandle.

The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce has funded it with $75,000 for the first year of operation and $50,000 the second. Presumably, other Panhandle cities will be asked to chip in money to help keep it going.

Dave McReynolds, who has been the Dumas Chamber of Commerce manager for a number of years, resigned that post to become executive director of the PAA. The board of directors has four representatives from Amarillo and seven from outside Amarillo. Cities of Stratford, Canadian, Pampa, Tulia and Hereford are represented thus far, with more to come.

Formation of this kind of organization seems to be a step forward in getting the Panhandle to pull together and cooperate on projects. In past years, there has been too much pulling different directions and it has to be admitted that most Panhandle cities view Amarillo as the kingpin who will gobble up the good economic prospects.

This can change. Certainly when it comes to the legislative arena, the smaller cities of the Panhandle can be of great benefit because they carry considerable political clout.

The alliance can be an organization that can get the chambers of commerce, the cities and the counties working together. It can be as successful as the newly-formed Texas Chamber of Commerce has been since it melded the West Texas, East Texas and South Texas chambers into one organization, all going the same direction.

It will take some getting used to on the part of smaller Panhandle cities before they learn to use the PAA effectively. But it is a good idea and a good start. Whether or not it work is up those who use it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

We were traveling from Amarillo to Artesia, N.M. on June 25 and had a flat tire 10 miles outside of Hereford.

A very kind young man, Robin Ruland of the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office, came to our rescue. He called in to see if it was possible to buy a new tire on Sunday. He found a station that was open, and found a new tire at a reasonable price for us.

We wanted the people of Hereford to know that they are well represented on the highways by this young man.

Leon and Sharon Dudley
Artesia, N.M.

Dear Editor:

I am sure you are aware of the recent Supreme Court ruling that states "burning an American flag is a person's right protected under the right to free speech and free expression." Well, Mr. Editor, I'm here to tell you that this is BULL. America won its independence—against overwhelming odds—because of pride. Pride is what keeps this country free, and the Supreme Court has just stripped Americans of that pride.

I would like to tell you of another high court ruling that you may not be aware of. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, the highest criminal court in Texas, stated, "There is no sound legal basis for asserting that a victim's family has any (recognized) right to testify in a criminal trial."

This great bit of wisdom came about in the reversing of a murder conviction in Harris County last spring. During the trial, the mother of the deceased was called to the stand to testify that the morgue picture of the victim was her dead son.

In doing so, the mother directed a statement towards the defendant: "May he rest in hell. May he burn in hell. Oh, my baby." The trial judge immediately removed the jury and instructed them to disregard this outburst. The appellate court reversed the case for prosecutorial misconduct and stated that the prosecutor should have known better than to let a grief-stricken mother identify her son's dead body in a photograph. A murderer walks free!

The court went on to state that crime victims have no rights in a criminal trial and the very notion is "frivolous." They have got to be kidding! What the courts are telling us is that in Texas, only defendants have legal rights in a criminal trial—that a criminal trial is a day in court only for the defendant, not for his victims or the law-abiding. The Court of Criminal Appeals justifies its position by saying that neither the prosecutor of a criminal case nor the individual victim of a crime is entitled to any constitutional due process in a criminal trial. Mr. Editor, both the U.S. and Texas constitutions explicitly grant due process rights to "all persons."

According to the court, only restrained and impassive victims may testify in Texas. Frequently, however, only the victim can identify the defendant as the person who committed the crime. Should rapists and robbers walk free because they have successfully traumatized their victims so much that they may become emotional on the witness stand? A defendant can take the stand to plea for mercy and become an emotionally distraught as he chooses, for his rights must always be protected. If the courts cannot find due process rights for the law abiding citizens in its constitution, then that constitution can and must be changed.

Mr. Editor, isn't it time we Americans stand up and say, "Okay, that's it, we have had enough." Criminals have more rights than law-abiding citizens. Juvenile criminals are getting away with murder; they stand in the face of the police officer and say, "You can't do anything to me cause I'm a juvenile." They are right and the juvenile system is a farce. Now, to make matters worse, the U.S. Constitution protects flag burners, taking away from me what little pride I have left.

Well, I'm mad and tired of everyone screaming about their rights being violated. It's time we scream, "What about us?" instead of "What about me?" President Bush is in the process of amending the constitution to outlaw flag burning. The citizens of this country should shout their support for such an amendment. And that requires that the media get involved and make the people's voices heard.

If the people can overturn this supreme court ruling and remind these highly educated, common-senseless magistrates that they work for the people and not against, maybe we can recover some of that "American Pride" that makes this country so great.

Then we can go to work on recovering the rest of our rights as law-abiding citizens. Rights that the lawmakers have taken from us by their misinterpretations of the law. Criminals violate their victims' rights, the justice system should give those rights back to the victims. (Note: Portions of this letter are quotes from "What About Victims' Rights in Texas Courts?" Texas Police Journal, July 1989). Sincerely,
Roy Rector, Hereford

PIANO DREAMING

There are two kinds of people in the world: Those who divide everyone into two kinds of people and those who don't.

Guess which one I am.

There are only two kinds of people in the world: Those who play the piano, and those who want to.

This is not entirely true. There are a few who do not want to play; they took lessons as a kid.

Since my wife teaches piano I can speak with some authority on the subject.

Since my wife teaches, one would think I would learn how to play. The shortest route to divorce court is taking piano lessons from your wife.

I took piano in college. Thousands of dollars in tuition and hundreds of hours of agony produced a very bad rendition of "Polly Wolly Doodle All The Day."

When you consider how many kids are dragged to lessons there should be a lot more piano players than there are.

When you consider how many adults wish they could play, there should be a lot more piano players than there are.

There is a law of piano playing: It can best be learned when you are young and had rather be doing anything else.

When you want to learn how to play, you are too old.

I am not sure pianos were meant to be played. I think they were designed to look nice in living rooms. Like children, they should be seen and not heard.

Nothing could be harder to master. You have to learn how to read four things at once and direct ten fingers at the same time.

Music theory is a form of Chinese torture written in Greek.

Practicing little ditties over and over is not designed for learning how to play. It is a method for punishing parents for making you take lessons.

Thousands try (most drop out) then spend the rest of their lives dreaming the age old dream, "They laughed when I sat down to play, but..."

Warm Fuzzies,

Letters of protest pour in from 19th District

Combest shares outrage on flag burning

BY U.S. REP. LARRY COMBEST

Pure outrage. That is the only term I can use to describe the feeling I share with a majority of West Texans who object to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision which allows the burning of the American flag. Few things have angered me as much as the decision which will allow protesters to desecrate and dishonor the symbol of our nation without fear of prosecution or punishment.

The court decided the flag burning, in some cases, is a legal display of freedom of speech. The decision stems from the case of Texas vs. Johnson. The case centered around a demonstration in 1984 in which a group of protesters in Dallas ripped the flag from a bank building, poured lighter fluid on it and set it ablaze. While the flag burned, the group of self-described Communists stood around it and chanted "America, the red, white and blue; we spit on you."

The Supreme Court ruling touched off a flood of mail and phone calls from people in the 19th District who were equally angered that the nation's highest court could allow such a blatantly anti-American action. The letters and calls came from all over the district, from a vast cross section of people. Parents, businessmen and women, students voicing a strong, unified sense of disbelief and rage that flag burning is considered legal. I would like to share some of the comments I have received in the mail.

A woman in Andrews wrote: "There can be no purpose to such a law except to give those who hate our country another way to tear it down. I could not just stand by and express my sadness at the passing of such a law."

A Lubbock man who is an officer in the U.S. Air Force wrote: "I will be fighting to uphold and possibly die for America's freedom. It is now legal to burn America's symbol of peace. What has this country come to? Has freedom of speech taken over?"

A 22-year-old Lubbock man wrote to say that too many people have died for the ideals the American flag represents to let this decision go into effect without a fight. "I have not been around during a major war, but I do know many Americans have fought and died to protect our flag. It gives me a sad feeling inside to know that a flag that makes me feel so proud can be intentionally burned by an individual who obviously cares very little about what the flag really means."

This young man urged me to protect the flag from those who will belittle its importance in our nation's history: "Please don't sit by and let the ideals of our forefathers be rewritten to disgrace our war dead, and above all God and country. Save what little respect this country has left—respect for Old Glory, our flag."

From Petersburg, a couple with children called to share their dilemma over how to explain this to their children. "How are we going to teach them respect the flag?" they asked.

A woman from Lubbock wrote to say she does not know how to express her "absolute anger" about the "pathetic decision" made regarding our American flag. "All my life I have been taught to believe that the flag was sacred, special and stood for our freedom," she wrote. "Now, I have to watch on the news about a group of disgusting youths that decide to burn this precious piece of our heritage and spit upon it. Somewhere, something has gone terribly wrong."

This concerned American says what so many others say. She believes the concept of free speech has gone far beyond that intended by our founding fathers.

An Odessa man had a suggestion made by many others. He said that if somebody wants to desecrate the flag, they should leave the country and go to a nation where Old Glory is not a respected national symbol. He further suggests that protesters might reconsider the move after losing the very freedom they take for granted.

I am doing everything in my power to reverse this decision. Every night after work I drive pass the Iwo Jima Memorial. I see flying above the U.S. Marines the symbol for which our flag stands. My son, a Marine, is stationed in a foreign country where we cannot fly our flag—and yet he is there defending our right to fly it at home.

I voted for H. Res. 186, which expresses the sense of Congress to ban flag burning, and I am co-sponsoring a bill to amend the U.S. Constitution and make it a federal offense. I intend to fight this court decision which allows desecration of our nation's symbol with every tool I have available. Like those who have called and written, I cannot stand by and let the American flag—and the freedoms represented by the flag—go up in flames with the implied consent of the American government.

Border security

Texans are fed up with inadequate border security and, according to the latest poll, elected officials had better start paying attention to their concerns.

A survey just released by the Federation for American Immigration Reform has found that Texans - including Hispanic Texans - agree that border security should be stepped up ...

The Texas congressional delegation ... should pay close attention to one particular finding. Fully 81 percent of Texas voters surveyed believe their elected officials are either doing a "fair" or "poor" job in combating illegal immigration. Having succeeded Peter Rodino, D-N.J., as chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Jack Brooks, D-Texas, is in the perfect position to respond to concerns by riding hard on border security legislation.

These concerns should not be interpreted as reflecting an unfriendly attitude toward Mexico, which has recently been making an aggressive effort to round up key drug traffickers. But the responsibility for U.S. border security is hardly something the Mexican government should have to shoulder; that job belongs to the U.S. government.

No one better understands life on the border than the rank-and-file citizen in El Paso or Laredo or Brownsville. And the warning they are sending the rest of the nation is that the border is out of control. To ignore these signals would be a mistake for which interior states will have to pay sooner or later. Instead of reducing the budget of the immigration service as some are proposing, Congress should earmark still more funds for border security.

More funding sought for Alibates site

FRITCH, Texas (AP) - Panhandle residents have formed a new foundation aimed at obtaining increased federal funding for the Alibates Flint Quarries, the state's only national monument.

The prime objective of the Alibates Area Heritage Foundation is to secure an interpretive center for the old Indian site southwest of this small Panhandle town. Plans for the center were drawn a decade ago, but federal funds for construction have never been allocated, said Bob Smith, an amateur archaeologist from Stinnett.

He said in interpretive center would explain to visitors the history behind the shallow indentions where flint was mined for 12,000 years and explain the Indian ruins nearby.

"Without it, there's nothing," Smith said. "That's just a pile of rocks out there to most people until you show them what it is."

The interpretive center and other improvements at the Alibates site will cost about $4 million, said foundation president Charles Williams.

For those who are fans of terror, this is the book for you. John Saul, author of such books as Suffer the Children, The God Project, and the Unloved, has written a new novel of horror entitled Creature.

The Tanner family just moved to a small Colorado town that seems perfect. A job promotion for Blake; new friends and activities beckons Sharon. And in the majestic Rocky Mountain air, their shy, nature-loving son, Mark, will have an opportunity to overcome physical frailty an illness has caused.

Silverdale, even the high school seems perfect, a model school where well-behaved students make teachers and parents proud. And the football team never-ever-loses.

But soon, Sharon Tanner will begin to suspect things are not as perfect as they seem. A terrible secret lurks beneath the surface of Silverdale.

The hidden places in deep cellars where steel gleams coldly against the dark, the steel of cages built to contain an unimaginable evil.

The sudden violence that turns a loving child murderous. Soon, perhaps too late, Sharon Tanner will realize that beneath Silverdale a terrible presence watches...and waits. Through sleepless, fear-racked nights, she will listen to an eerie cry of unfathomable rage and pain. A Wail so horrifyingly unearthly it could belong to no living thing, animal or human, she has ever known.

And then, Sharon will know that within Silverdale, perhaps within her own home, a monstrous evil is harbored, an evil so unspeakable it has no name except...Creature.

Here is a master storyteller's most suspenseful work, a novel of a terror so real, so immediate, the reader can almost feel the cold, killing touch of...Creature.

Another book of interest, on the bestsellers list is The Diamond Throne by David Eddings. Eddings begins a new series of novels of dark magic, chivalry, high adventure, and selfless courage, set against a complex history dominated by the quest for a jewel of supernatural powers.

After 10 years of exile, Sparhawk came home to Elenia to take up his duties as a knight. It was not a happy homecoming.

His young queen, Ehlana, was stricken with a fatal disease. Only Saphrenia's magic saved her. Now she sits on her throne, frozen in a block of crystal, doomed unless a cure can be found within the year.

Annias, by using the kingdom's treasury, bribed his way to being in power over all the land opposed by Saphrenia and the Church, and he has dark plans for them. Sparhawk and Saphrenia sought to save Ehlana and the land, they discovered the evil was greater than they dreamed. Annias and his henchmen are working to destroy the one person in the west who might defeat him, Sparhawk!

Timeless Towns and Haunted Places from Florida to Maine by J.R. Humphreys is a journey through the American Past.

For three decades, J.R. Humphreys has traveled America's back roads in search of glimpses into the past. Places that history, and modern development, have left largely unchanged from the way our grandparents or even our great-grandparents, might have known them.

Today the timeless towns are harder to find, but every region still has them. Timeless Towns is the record of the author's journey from Florida to Maine through nineteen eastern states. Along the way, his researchers into local history and antiquities yield dozens of beguiling anecdotes of heroes, pirates, ghosts, and long-lost ancestors. Much more than a travelogue, this is a lively and personal look at the American Landscape and the past's place in it.

The text is complemented by forty-eight pages of photographs, offering a tantalizing vision of some timeless places. And for those readers who want to seek out timelessness for themselves, the volume includes a full appendix listing towns, inns, and restaurants.

Eva's Story: A Survivor's Tale by Eva Schloss the step-sister of Anne Frank. This is the true story of courage, survival, and hope against all odds that charts a turbulent journey through war-torn Europe. Eva Schloss, like her schoolmate Anne Frank, was deported to Auschwitz while in her teens. Here she recounts the terror she and Anne and thousands of Jewish girls like them knew.

Born to successful parents in Vienna, Eva and her family were forced by the German Annexation of Austria to seek refuge, first in Belgium, then in Holland, giving up their friends, their accustomed way of life, and their livelihoods. With each move, their freedom became more limited, until their world was encompassed by the tiny hidden rooms in Amsterdam apartments provided by a network of neighbors and friends who became increasingly unreliable as the Nazi occupation clamped down. For two years they lived this way, Eva with her mother, Eva's father and brother secluded elsewhere. On Eva's fifteenth birthday, the family was reunited—by the Gestapo. Soon they were on board the cattle cars to Auschwitz.

There, their concerns from evading capture to fighting death. Again the family was separated. Eva's hopes of freedom, were constantly dashed by the reality of the prison camps barbarism, by the ever-present fear of being "selected" either for the gas chambers or, what was worse, Dr. Mengele's infamous experiments.

This moving first-person account, told without rancor or sentimentality, is a testament to the power of human beings to survive and even triumph in the most inhumane of circumstances.

Other titles of interest, Word-struck by Robert MacNeil, recreates his own youth and recaptures the lost world of his childhood.

The Fire Dream by Franklin Allen Lieb captures the depth and essence of the Vietnam War experience.

Ranger comeback falls short as Seattle holds on, 4-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Seattle Mariners starter Bill Swift began Friday night with an 8.34 earned run average over his previous five starts. Texas Rangers starter Nolan Ryan took a no-hitter into the eighth inning of his last outing and was working on shutouts in the ninth innings of his previous two starts. On the surface, Friday's match-up seemed a mismatch. But Swift pitched five-hit ball over six innings to beat Ryan and the Rangers 4-3. "Swift has been struggling lately," Mariners manager Jim Lefebvre said. "But when he gets groundouts like he did tonight, he gives us a chance to win. "I told our club that to beat Ryan, you need two things: talent and the patience to work him. He (Ryan) is the eighth wonder of the world." Swift, 4-2, viewed his duel with Ryan as an opportunity to turn some heads in the Mariners organization. "When you pitch against Ryan, you have to concentrate more because you know he isn't going to give up much," said Swift. "I know I have to put a string of good starts together if I want to stay here (in the majors)." Swift took a three-hit shutout into the seventh before running into trouble, allowing a lead-off single to Rick Leach and an RBI triple to Pete Incaviglia. Reliever Mike Jackson recorded two outs before Cecil Espy drove in Incaviglia with a single, narrowing Seattle's lead to 4-2. Texas made it 4-3 in the eighth when Ruben Sierra singled with two outs, advanced to second on right-fielder Darnell Coles' error and scored when Julio Franco doubled to right field. But Jackson got Pete Incaviglia to pop out and stopper Mike Schooler worked out of a first-and-second two-out situation in the ninth, striking out

Rafael Palmeiro for his 17th save. Schooler got Palmeiro to pop out to end the game with a runner on second in Thursday night's 2-0 Mariner victory. "That was a great ballgame," Lefebvre said. "The key to the game was striking out Palmeiro. That's a damned good hitter to get out in that situation. When you start winning games like this, you can start believing in yourself." Seattle won for the fifth time in its last six games. Ryan, 9-4, gave up four earned runs and five hits in 5 1-3 innings after taking shutouts into the ninth inning in two of his previous three starts. A groin injury has bothered Ryan over his past few starts but Ryan refused to use it as an excuse. "I could still feel it but it didn't affect me as far as throwing the ball," Ryan said. "The key was I got behind in the count and I didn't make very good pitches. A couple of those hits were in the right spot but the others I gave them a fastball in the zone to hit and they hit them like they should." Ryan had won his previous four decisions. Ryan walked three and struck out eight, padding his major league-leading strikeout total to 136. A one-out solo homer by 5-8 Greg Briley in the first staked Swift to a 1-0 lead. "That was a real poor pitch on my part," Ryan said. "He's a fastball hitter with a 3-2 count and he likes the ball down. To me that's a batting practice pitch. If I ask him where we want the ball, he'd tell me right where I threw it."

Montreal runs past Astros, 6-1

MONTREAL (AP) - Houston manager Art Howe reacted to pitcher Bob Knepper's performance in a way that was typical of his soft-spoken, demurring manner. "Bob struggled tonight, there's no question about it," Howe commented after Knepper and the Astros were defeated 6-1 by the Montreal Expos on Friday night. "But really, it's unusual for him not to keep us in the game." It may be unusual for Knepper to fail to keep things close, but it's becoming habit-forming for him not to win. Knepper, 3-9, has lost his last three decisions, and is winless since May 29. The Expos wasted little time adding to his loss column, taking a first-inning lead on Andres Galarraga's two-run homer, his 12th. "He took an outside pitch and went with it," Expos manager Buck Rodgers said. "We jumped ahead and then just tacked on some more." Montreal added a run in the third when Houston shortstop Rafael Ramirez made a throwing error on a Tim Wallach grounder, allowing Rex Hudler to score from third, and another pair in the fourth on a two-run single by Otis Nixon. The Expos' final run came when Mike Fitzgerald doubled home Damaso Garcia in the fifth, but with Dennis Martinez on the mound, the first-inning shot by Galarraga was all they needed. Martinez, 8-1, pitched a five-hitter for his second complete game, and won his seventh straight decision. "I felt very strong tonight," said Martinez, who struck out six and walked two. "I had good control and I was able to stay ahead of the hitter most of the night.

Martinez lost his shutout bid in the sixth when Terry Puhl reached third on a three-base error by right fielder Hubie Brooks and scored on a wild pitch. Brooks injured himself when he crashed into the fence on the play, but left the game without assistance.

Texas Open in trouble

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The PGA commissioner Deane Beman says San Antonio was once among golf's best cities for pro golf, but it is danger of being wiped off the pro tour. Beman was in San Antonio to be honored at a dinner by the San Antonio Golf Association, but he warned the group that the 1989 Texas Open might be the last if the tourney loses as much money as last year. "We can go just about anywhere else," Beman said. "We don't want to, but there are lots of places that would like to hold a tournament." Beman said the Texas Open was once one of the bright spots on the PGA tour and he would like to see its luster restored. "Back in the '20s, '30s, '40s and '50s, San Antonio was not the biggest city in the United States. But it had the biggest golf tournament," he said. "There is in this community the ability to put on a quality golf tournament. You can't look to anybody but yourselves if you want to have a great tournament." Beman, who own the Texas Open in 1969, said the San Antonio community must act immediately. The 67-year-old Texas Open lost approximately $85,000 last year, according to Bill Southwell, president of the SAGA. And its contract with the PGA's major corporate sponsor, Nabisco Brands, runs out in 1990. The San Antonio Golf Association, which runs the Texas Open, has been searching for a new corporate sponsor, sending proposals for sponsorship as far away as Japan.

But Beman said local support is more important than a corporate sponsor. "The corporate money should be frosting on the cake," said Beman. "I can't assure you success. SAGA can provide the leadership. But the future of this golf tournament is in the hands of the city." "I think SAGA has done its part. The PGA has done its part. Sooner or later, the test is whether the community is wanting to put on the event," Beman said.

Mandarich wants $10 mil to fight Tyson

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When Tony Mandarich talks, people listen. This is a function of being 6-foot-6, weighing 315 pounds, and having muscles on top of your muscles.

So you can understand Mandarich's frustration when he started talking contract with the NFL Green Bay Packers and they stopped listening. This had not happened to him before, but then he had never asked anybody to pay him $10 million before.

"Green Bay knew my attitude," Mandarich said. "I've got a chip on my shoulder. I was the second player picked and I'm going to use that to my advantage. They knew I was asking for the most money."

"Two million a year. That's my number."

That is skill-position money, not the kind of numbers guys earn in pro football's pits. It is more, in fact, than the six-year, $11.2 million deal Dallas gave the No. 1 pick, quarterback Troy Aikman.

Now, Mandarich appreciates the unique situation he is in. He knows that people who play quarterback, like Aikman, get big bucks. And he knows that the largely anonymous large people who play the offensive line don't. He has a solution for that problem.

"I'll move to defensive end," he said. "They pay those guys. I'll drop down to 290 and move to fullback if they want. I'll do whatever they want, as long as I get the money."

Or, he offers another alternative. "If $2 million is too much, I'll take whatever they're paying the guy who is 6-6, 315 pounds, bench presses 550 pounds, and runs a 4.640. I'll take the same money he gets," he said, "if you can find him."

Sounds perfectly reasonable, doesn't it?

For some reason, the Packers remain less than enthusiastic about Mandarich's various proposals. So, the two sides are at something of a standoff.

Green Bay opens training camp July 17 and Mandarich views that as his deadline. "You don't want to miss a day, because there's so much work to be done with a new system to learn and all," he said. "I want to play but I don't come cheap. They knew that. If I don't sign on time, I don't think I'll sign with Green Bay."

And that is why every day that goes by brings Green Bay closer to the offensive line that last year doomed the Packers to a 4-12 record and, Mandarich says, brings him closer to Mike Tyson. The football player says he is intrigued by the idea of fighting the heavyweight champion.

First, there is the physical challenge of it. "I haven't been physically challenged for the last two years," he said.

And then, oh yes, there is also the matter of money, a fact of life that occasionally occurs to promoters.

"This was not my idea," Mandarich said. "They called us."

Why wouldn't they? This one might qualify for the P.T. Barnum Hall of Fame. You get this huge football player and put him in the ring against the undefeated heavyweight champion of the world. Then you sit back and let the cash registers play their happy tune.

So, promoter Shelly Finkel came to Mandarich and whispered something about $5 million guaranteed in his ear. Mandarich told him the same thing he told the Packers.

"Ten million."

Tech regents call for discipline

WACO (AP) - A regents committee at Texas Tech is trying to establish ways to restore discipline in the school's athletic department, several regents say.

"It's awful the way some scholarship students act in public," said regent J.L. Guley Jr. "It embarrasses me and it embarrasses the institution."

The three-member athletic affairs committee met in Waco Thursday to informally discuss ways to improve the Texas Tech athletic program and to monitor the athletic department, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported.

J. Fred Bucy, president of the Southwest Conference school's board of regents, told the committee he wants active participation between his board and Tech's athletic department.

After the committee formally adopts some of the policies discussed Thursday, their plans will be forwarded to Tech President-elect Robert Lawless and Tech Athletic Director T. Jones for their input.

Guley said Tech's athletes should remember that the school is picking up the tab for their education.

"If they like that scholarship so much, it can be taken away from them," Guley said. "You can expect more if you're paying for it. Some sense of discipline will have to be exerted. We don't have that much discipline."

Guley said he wants the guidelines for scholarship athletes clearly defined. He said if someone violates Tech policy, the school should withdraw that student's scholarship money.

Under current guidelines, a student who violates Tech policy can be disciplined by the dean of student affairs. That office enforces the Code of Student Conduct for all students.

"They're (athletes) governed under the same rules and regulations as all students, but I don't know if they've been disciplined the same way," said Carey Hobbs, the regents' Athletic Committee chairman.

Guley predicted that if regents and administrators nationwide fail to straighten out the problems in college athletics, they will begin getting mandates from government to ensure that more student athletes graduate.

"What I'd like to see is Tech to be the leader," Hobbs said. "I want us to upgrade our system and step out in front. Let the country emulate us."

"We must monitor athletic recruiting more," Guley said. "If he is going to spend four or five years at Tech he must be capable. Whether that should be up to the coaches to make that decision, I don't know."

Hobbs said regents need to be apprised of activity within the athletic department, especially when it affects class schedules.

"I think we have a responsibility to see if those games affect finals," he said. "If they go to the playoffs and it disrupts finals and we don't know beforehand that it's happening, then we're being derelict in our duties."

Value of Rose memorabilia high despite investigation

DALLAS (AP) - As federal investigators grapple with gambling allegations against the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, collectors are betting Pete Rose memorabilia will retain its value, regardless of the outcome.

While some dealers say sales of "Charlie Hustle" collectibles have stalled during the investigation, others say Rose's baseball cards will be worthwhile, regardless of whether he makes it to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"The price on a (card featuring) Shoeless Joe Jackson - the star of 'Field of Dreams' who was involved in the 1919 World Series scandal - if you could find one, it'd be worth thousands of dollars," said Bill Allen, manager of Lone Star Comics and Science Fiction in the Dallas suburb of Mesquite.

"And it's the same with Rose," Allen said. "All people will remember is he was a good player."

Jackson, who played for the Chicago White Sox, was banned from baseball in 1920 after he and seven other Soxers were accused of throwing the 1919 World Series, even though a trial failed to prove the allegation.

Rose could face a jail sentence if the Internal Revenue Service can prove allegations by a former associate that Rose tried to hide income from his gambling, memorabilia sales and card shows. A federal grand jury in Cincinnati is studying his taxes.

Testimony given to baseball's investigators indicates that Rose accepted cash as payment for card show appearances whenever possible so he wouldn't have to claim it all on his taxes.

But Allen said the scandal could work to Rose fans' advantage.

"Infamy and fame are just two sides of the same card," he said. "Either one can make something valuable. And when it comes to collectibles, the worst story in the world is 'I used to have ...'"

Allen said he believes even if Rose is "denied admission to the Hall of Fame because of this, the value on his card is still astronomical."

"If he gets cleared from all this, the cards are definitely going to go up in the price guide," agreed Tim Frazin, owner of Double Play Sports Cards in Dallas. "But even so, since Rose is in the paper everyday and everybody is looking at his record, he's getting more exposure. That makes his cards more valuable, too."

Collectors say Rose's 1963 Cincinnati

Reds rookie card could be worth $600. "I think it will be the hottest selling card, if he gets cleared," Frazin said. "If not, it's going to be really hard to sell anything with Pete Rose on it."

"The bottom has fallen out of Pete Rose baseball cards and memorabilia," said Phil Matthews of Baseball Card Exchange in the Dallas suburb of Richardson. "We're not buying any Pete Rose cards, and I can't remember the last time someone came in asking for him. We don't even have 'em out any more."

But Allen said ballplayers' personal problems have not had a major impact on the values of baseball cards.

Boston Red Sox slugger "Wade Boggs went through the adultery scandal and basically embarrassed his wife, his family, the woman he was involved with - everyone he knew. But none of this affected his batting average whatsoever and, in the long run, that's what people remember," Allen said. "Every year, there are all these scandals in players' personal lives: drugs, adultery - you name it."

"But that's what they are: They're baseball players," Allen said. "They're not heroes and they're not role models. They're ballplayers."

Dallas' new Randy White plays a different kind of ball

An AP Sports Analysis By MARK GODICH Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Only moments after he had drafted Louisiana Tech forward Randy White in the first round of the NBA draft, Dallas Mavericks Vice President Rick Sund was asked what he thought of the fans' boisterous approval of the selection.

Sund laughed.

"We've had a huge response with Uwe Blab and Mark Price and a lot of players," he said, only half in jest.

Recent Mavericks drafts have produced laughter for all the wrong reasons. Of the 18 players drafted over the past three seasons, only forward Roy Tarpley remains. And the Mavericks haven't landed a starter through the draft since selecting Sam Perkins in 1984.

The franchise that came within an eyelash of reaching the NBA finals two seasons ago qualified for the draft lottery in 1989. A review of last season becomes all the more painful when you consider:

- Center James Donaldson missed the final 23 games with a career-threatening knee injury.
- Tarpley missed 14 games near the start of the season with a knee injury, played nine games, then was suspended for the next 49 when he violated the league's drug policy a second time.
- Disgruntled forward Mark Aguirre said he wanted out of Dallas. The Mavericks obliged by shipping him to Detroit for Adrian Dantley, who was so excited about the trade that he reported eight days later.

Now the Mavericks, whose working list of can't-miss college prospects had seven names, were holding the eighth pick in the draft.

And then Indiana took Florida State guard George McCloud.

And then a MacLeod of a different spelling smiled.

"We felt that we finally had some good luck," Mavericks coach John MacLeod said, an understatement.

Mavericks officials like White because he reminds them of Utah forward Karl Malone. Both played at Louisiana Tech. Malone is 6-9, 254 pounds; White is 6-8, 256. Both play with a physical style. Both run the court well.

Malone was named most valuable player at this year's NBA All-Star Game and was a first-team All-NBA selection.

Malone also is all too familiar to the Mavericks, a player many fans believed should have been the organization's No. 1 pick in the 1985 draft. The Mavericks opted for Delf Schrempf and the rest is, well, a nightmare.

Schrempf now plays in Indiana. Malone plays possessed, as if he's on another planet. Some insiders say the Mavericks created a monster when they passed over Malone, who had openly politicked to play in Dallas in the days leading up to the draft.

Now, along comes a Malone clone who not-so-coincidentally indicated his preference to play in Dallas.

What's a basketball team to do? "Last year, we got absolutely battered on the front line," MacLeod said. "We got knocked all over the place. When you're 6-8 and 256, you're big. He's big and powerful. Not necessarily is he such a jumper, but when you watch him on films with bodies all over him, he's the one that comes up with the rebound."

"This gives us a legitimate power forward."

That said, it also gives Mavericks fans reason for optimism.

Yet the organization once considered the NBA's model franchise missed the playoffs last season for the first time in six years - no small accomplishment. The Mavericks recently announced they would raise ticket prices for the third time in as many seasons.

Donaldson expects to return next season, but the knee injury leaves his career in question. Tarpley remains one positive drug test away from being banned by the NBA for life. Dantley is 33. Shooting guard Rolando Blackman is 30; Brad Davis, his backup, 33.

"He has some big shoes to fill, being Randy White in Dallas," Mavericks owner Don Carter said in reference to the former Dallas Cowboys football star.

Not to mention being a Malone clone.

Tryout attracts special players

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) - There are no rules as to just who might get a tryout with a major league team.

It could be the girl next door or the that young boy who went off to a special school. The 240 trying out at Atlanta Braves camp at Blinn Junior College found that out when Splendora second baseman Shay Sloan and Texas School for the Deaf outfielder Jason Plummer displayed their talents.

Ms. Sloan, bound for the University of Nebraska on a full softball scholarship, was among the first to turn plays in the infield, while Plummer attended the second day of the 2 1/2-day event.

Ms. Sloan had played both second base and short stop in her high school days with the boys at Splendora but elected to get with the one involving the short tosses in front of the Braves scouts the day after her graduation.

"I thought I'd be through playing baseball when our season ended weeks ago," she said.

Ms. Sloan believes it was a combination of both softball and baseball experience that earned her the right to choose from 10 scholarship offers. She had narrowed it down to Nebraska and Texas A&M but loves the Cornhusker campus and Lincoln.

"I never played softball 'til last year, she said. "I guess it was baseball. They figured if I could play baseball I could play softball."

"I'm hoping to be playing short stop. I finished this year playing short stop, but I'm really a second baseman. That is where I have more experience anyway."

And any way you look at him, Plummer stacked up quite a resume of athletic accomplishments while playing for TSD. He graduated shortly before hitting camp.

He started out by running a couple of 6.9 60-yard dashes, which put him ahead of a lot but behind a few in what John "Red" Murff, Braves scout and camp director, says was talent-wise one of the best camps he has had since he first started running them in 1962.

Another outfield tryout, Derrick Durry of Brenham, who had played two years of football at Blinn and had inked another scholarship agreement with Angelo State, led 60-yard times with a sharp 6.2.

Plummer hit a .455 for this year's 8-6 TSD team. It mostly played against schools in the Texas Association of Private Schools, such as Austin Hyde Park, San Marcos Academy, Giddings State School, Austin St. Stephens and other University Interscholastic League schools like Waco Reicher in tournament play. On the mound, he was 5-2 with 81 strikeouts to his credit.

"They only had three real baseball players," said Joey Plummer, his older brother and interpreter. "He was a two-time first team All-American in the National Association of the Deaf. He made it the first time as third baseman."

Plummer also stacked up similar high NAD honors in football play as an 8.5 yards-per-carry fullback, defensive linebacker and kick returner, taking back two kickoffs for at least 100 yards while playing on association national championship teams last fall and in 1986.

"He wants to play baseball somewhere, or football, but he would prefer going into the minors over school," said Joey Plummer.

"Texas wanted to give him a football scholarship, but he's not on an academic standard with them. They don't have vocational programs, but he's had letters from 21 major schools. Earl Campbell (former Texas Heisman Trophy winner and Houston Oilers running back) has taken him under his wing and is trying to get him in somewhere."

"He's plenty good," Campbell said in a telephone interview. "He's a pretty good kid. Right now I'm not sure if anything is gonna come through for him. I like him."

"I'm glad you're here," Braves scout Murff told Plummer, with a hand on his shoulder and looking into his eyes, knowing he can read lips.

"Thank you for coming."

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

Bioluminescence, the benign light from a living organism such as the lightning bug, is being developed into medical technology that has many applications, according to scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The technologies range from an alternative to radioactive tracers to detection and identification of disease-causing bacteria, as well as their antibiotic sensitivity.

Besides these applications of immediate practical value to society, the lux genes (which direct a living organism to produce light) have immense value in basic research. Dr. Thomas O. Baldwin and his Experiment Station associates at Texas A&M University were the first to successfully clone the lux genes from a bioluminescent organism.

Baldwin used these genes to produce bioluminescent E. coli, a common nonpathogenic (doesn't cause disease) bacterium found within the intestine of healthy humans. He has freely supplied the lux genes to hundreds of laboratories worldwide, and they are getting wide and enthusiastic acceptance from scientists as a valuable research tool.

The primary value of the lux genes and the entire bioluminescence-based technology stems from the light emitted from the system. Unlike radioactive sources or X-rays, which have sufficient energy to cause damage to living tissues, the radiation emitted from the bioluminescent sources is visible light, which is totally harmless.

Techniques for detection of light are exquisitely sensitive and readily automated, making bioluminescence a prime candidate for applications in medicine and the allied health sciences.

Sorghum group sets election

Texas Sorghum producers are slated to elect six directors to the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB) this summer.

The election will mark the final phase of a statewide districting plan that began in 1987. Following the balloting, three directors from each of the state's five districts will have a seat on the Board. The districts have been created to give greater representation to all sorghum producing regions of the state.

Directors will be elected in only four of the districts this year—the Panhandle, East Texas, South Texas and the Upper Coast. The only district not holding elections is West Texas. In future elections, one director will be elected from each of the five districts every other year.

Any person engaged in the business of producing grains sorghum is eligible to vote, including owners of farms and their tenants and sharecroppers, if the production occurs within the area covered by the board and if the producer is required to pay the assessment that is collected on grain sorghum in Texas. The assessment is collected on a refund-only basis and is used to fund programs of research, disease and insect control, education and promotion.

Any person eligible to vote may place his name in nomination for membership on the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board. Nominations must be filed with TGSPB no later than August 2. Forms must be signed by the nominee and ten eligible voters, and must include their current mailing addresses. Nomination forms although not required, are available from the TGSPB offices (P.O. Box 530, Abernathy, Tx. 79311).

TGSPB will provide ballots to eligible voters prior to the election. These ballots must be postmarked before midnight September 1. Persons qualified to vote, who do not receive a ballot 15 days prior to the election, may obtain one at their local county Agricultural Extension Office or grain elevator.

Watermelons make comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Department analysts say watermelons may be making a comeback but have no first-hand figures to back it up.

That's because nobody at USDA has counted watermelons since 1981, although the annual production of honeydew melons is reported faithfully, including the number of acres planted and harvested, along with the crop's yearly value.

Watermelon output is probably four, five or six times that of honeydew production, which is concentrated in Arizona, California and Texas. Commercial watermelon farmers are reported in more than two dozen states.

"I don't know why they aren't reported," says Gary Lucier of the department's Economic Research Service. "I asked that question, too."

In a telephone interview on Monday, Lucier said production information from the industry apparently will be relied upon heavily as USDA develops a new marketing program financed by watermelon growers and handlers.

Lucier and Amy J. Allred, another economist, analyzed the U.S. watermelon situation in a new report issued by the agency.

"Through 1980, U.S. production was trending downward and domestic utilization was in a tailspin," the report said. "Domestic watermelon production gradually fell from 29.3 million hundredweight in 1960 to 26.1 million in 1981, the last year USDA officially estimated production."

Although national figures from the department are lacking, some states continue to report production. These show that production in those states have increased one-fourth since 1981, including gains in Florida, South Carolina and Arizona.

"Favorable grower prices have contributed to the gains," the report said. "In addition, available state production data show that per capita (use) has increased one-fifth since the 1980 low."

Part of the per capita increase is due to an overall trend to more fresh produce in diets, more watermelon imports and the convenience of relatively new "icebox" and seedless melons - plus better produce marketing in retail stores.

A major step was taken in February when commercial watermelon growers and handlers voted in favor of a national promotion program authorized by the 1985 farm law. The USDA is in the process of writing final regulations and clearing the way for naming a 29-member National Watermelon Promotion Board.

The board's program will be financed, beginning in 1990, by an assessment on watermelons sold for human consumption. The levy can be set at a rate of up to two cents per 100 pounds, paid by first handlers and producers who grow five or more acres of melons.

A grower who also is a handler would pay assessments for each function. The fees are refundable upon request, but the National Watermelon Association hopes the plan will raise $1 million annually.

The association last week held its annual Watermelon Feast Day on Capitol Hill and in the Agriculture Department itself, including the appearance of this year's national watermelon queen, Jennifer Morris of Southern Pines, N.C.

According to the association, the U.S. watermelon industry - with a farm value of $160 million - "produces two billion or more pounds of watermelon in nearly 30 states," led by Florida and followed by Texas, Georgia, California, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama, Indiana, Arizona, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Missouri, Maryland, Delaware and Arkansas.

Practicing melodrama

Several cast members of "Belle of Bisbee" have begun rehearsals for the local melodrama set for July 14-15. Sponsored by St. Thomas Episcopal Church, the humorous play will begin at 8:30 p.m. each night with a dinner preceding it at 7:30 p.m. The outdoor-type dinner theatre will be held at the church. Among the cast members are, from left, Wendy and Kim Emerick, Butch Davis, John Gililand, Melissa Davis, and Claudia McBrayer. Cost for a family is $25 and single adults is $10. Children under age six will be admitted free.

Safe summer trips begin at home

A long car trip may be a summer vacation for you and your family, but it means lots of hard work for your car. To make certain that your car is up to the task, the experts at Midas advise you to have a qualified technician inspect and repair worn parts, before you leave home.

"Preventive maintenance by a qualified technician on your home turf is the best safeguard against the inconvenience, delay and expense caused by a sudden breakdown," said Walt "Doc" Alley, director of training at the Midas Institute of Technology (M.I.T.) in Palatine, Illinois.

To ensure a safe, trouble-free drive, Alley advises motorists to have their cars inspected at least a week prior to departure, to allow ample time for any necessary repair work. Following is a pre-trip checklist. For further information, refer to the owner's manual for your particular vehicle.

Exhaust System: Check exhaust manifold, exhaust pipe and muffler for leaks, rust, loose brackets or broken hangers.

Cooling System: Check radiator coolant and water pump. Replace radiator cap, if necessary.

Brake System: Check and adjust brakes and repack wheel bearings. Check the fluid level in the master cylinder.

Belts: Check the alternator, power steering, radiator fan or air conditioner belts for wear. Tighten loose belts, and replace those that are cracked, frayed or glazed. Check windshield wiper blades for wear.

Tires: Check air pressure, tread wear, front and rear wheel alignment, and wheel balance. Tire pressure and alignment should match manufacturer's specifications.

Electrical System: Check battery water level, and inspect posts and clamps for corrosion. Check alternator, lightbulbs and spark plug wires.

Air Conditioning: Check freon level and recharge system.

Fluids: Change oil and filter. Most cars today use multi-viscosity oil year-round, such as 10W/30. Check transmission, power steering and washer fluid levels.

As a service to motorists planning car trips this summer, Midas Muffler and Brake shops nationwide are offering free under-the-car safety inspections, throughout the season.

For a free "Summer Go Guide," produced with the assistance of the National Safety Council, write to: Midas International Corporation, P.O. Box 11172, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Sunburn Poses Skin Cancer Risk

Some 400,000 new cases of skin cancer, the most common form of human cancer, will be diagnosed in the U.S. this year. Most of them, recent studies conclude, will be the result of repeated overexposure to the sun. And as might be expected, because of the state's climate, many of the patients will be Texans.

Dr. Clift Price, TDH Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services, said, "Texans, used to outdoor work and recreation, sometimes fail to realize that the temporary discomfort of a sunburn is not as serious as the permanent radiation damage that goes unnoticed, sometimes for years. Some people think of sunburn as an annual ritual they have to live through in order to get a glamorous tan."

Dr. Price warned that the repeated ill effects from the sun are cumulative. "It is as if each person has an individual tolerance for how much of the sun's ultraviolet light he or she can stand in a lifetime." He explained that children and older people, especially those with light skin, generally have a lower tolerance to overexposure than those with dark skin. "But even dark-skinned people have their limits," he said.

People should watch for warning signs of skin cancer as they grow older, since the likelihood of skin cancer increases with age, he said. Warning signs include a sore that does not heal or any unusual skin condition, such as a change in size or color of a mole or birthmark.

The American Cancer Society recommends a monthly skin self-examination. Use a full-length mirror and hand mirror to study the whole skin carefully for overall condition and tiny changes, including the skin of the scalp and between the toes. Any noticeable change warrants a medical opinion.

To reduce the risk of overexposure to the sun, Texans are advised to:

*Wear protective clothing, including hats, long sleeves, even gloves.

*Choose--and use--sunscreens which are best suited to skin sensitivity. Apply a waterproof sunscreen (rated 15 or higher) at least an hour before going into the sun, and reapply after swimming or heavy perspiration.

*Avoid sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., when the sun's ultraviolet rays are most intense.

*Do not use sun lamps or tanning pills.

*Be especially cautious of sunlight when using prescribed drugs, since some tend to increase the skin's light sensitivity.

*These precautions and common sense can help most people to avoid skin cancer. And if they do develop skin cancer, they will discover the condition early if they routinely examine themselves," Dr. Price said.

He added that with early detection, most cases of skin cancer can be completely cured.

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent
Pressure Canner Safety
Checks To Be Offered

The County Extension office is again offering free pressure canner gauge testing. It is most important to remember to have the gauge tested each canning season. If the lid is dropped the gauge should be retested.

To have the test performed only the lid with the dial gauge attached should be brought to the office. It is helpful to call the office at 364-3573 so that the equipment can be preheated.

Process Adjustments at high altitudes

Using the process time for canning food at sea level may result in spoilage if you live at altitudes of 2000 feet or more. Water boils at lower temperatures as altitude increases. Lower boiling temperatures are less effective for killing bacteria. Increasing the canner pressure compensates for lower boiling temperatures. Therefore, when you use the pressure guides, select the proper processing time or canner pressure for the altitude where you live.

Deaf Smith County altitudes range from 3200 to 4200 ft. Therefore a dial gauge should be at 13 lbs. of pressure to equal the same as 10 pounds of pressure. Do not change processing times.

If using a weighted gauge canner, use the 15 pound instead of the 10 pound selection. Process at the recommended time.

All rubber gaskets and pop off valves should be checked to make sure that they are flexible and not leaking steam.

New guidelines were issued in 1988. Anyone canning food should have a copy of the new guidelines and may obtain these free of charge at the Extension office of the fourth floor, west side of the courthouse.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Club meets

Veloda Study Club members met Saturday evening in the home of Gid and Juanita Brown.

Husbands of the members were special guests at the annual summer ice cream and cake supper.

President Norma Walden directed the group in playing Pictionary. The "big money" or points won by one team is to be matched from the club treasury. This amount is to be given to the club's favorite Hereford organization: Hereford Day Care Center.

Groups may now sign up for April luncheons

Members of clubs and organizations now planning their upcoming club year may wish to consider April luncheons sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

"We had a tremendous response this past April as several people took advantage of these luncheons," said Donna Brockman, executive director of Deaf Smith County Museum. "But the response was so overwhelming that we had to turn many groups away. That's why I urge everyone to make plans now for our luncheons set in April, 1990."

Set at the historical E.B. Black House, the luncheons are served at noon each Tuesday and Thursday during the month of April to groups of at least 20 and not more than 32. There will be limited days for small individual groups of two, four, etc.

Cost per plate is $7.50 as a gourmet meal is served by Society members who also conduct a style show in conjunction with the meal.

Reservations, which are required, can be made by calling the Museum at 364-4338.

Barbecued Beef Ribs

If you think you can't have barbecued ribs on your diet, think again. This is a low-calorie, low-cholesterol, low-fat version. And absolutely delicious. A great dish to serve on the 4th of July.

- |                                |                                     |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 2 pounds lean beef ribs | 1 tbsp. vinegar              |
| 1/4 cup peach preserves | 1/2 tsp. paprika             |
| 1/2 cup water           | freshly ground black pepper         |
| juice of 1 lemon               | 2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce |
| 1 1/2 tbsp. brown sugar |                                     |

Place the ribs on a rack in a shallow baking pan and roast in a 450° F. oven for 30 minutes.

In a small saucepan, combine all other ingredients and cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Set sauce aside. Remove the ribs and rack from pan and pour off the fat. Reduce oven heat to 350° F. Return ribs to the pan, and pour the sauce over them. Bake uncovered, basting occasionally, until ribs are tender, about 1 hour.

Yield: 4 Servings

Meat Tip: The leaner the meat, the higher the protein content. Choose lean cuts of meat, trim all the fat you can see, and throw away the fat that cooks out of the meat.

A Dream Made Possible With Your Help!

400 RANGER DRIVE P O BOX 1999
HEREFORD, TEXAS 79045-1999
June 19, 1989

Dear Friends:

The "quality of life" is a phrase much touted these days, but the reality is that too few of us have the opportunity to enjoy life to its fullest throughout all of our years.

King's Manor is dedicated to the belief that life is a matter of continual fulfillment, not merely extended years. This belief has been actively practiced and promoted through our decades of service to our residents - service which has added life to years and years to life.

While most of our residents pay the full cost for the services of King's Manor, twenty-six percent receive some financial assistance. This amount was approximately $120,000.00 this past year. With a continuing policy that paying residents will never be charged one penny more to help offset costs for those unable to pay the full amount, King's Manor must rely on funds received through donations to make up the difference. Since 1979, contributions resulting from the barbecue have helped to bridge this gap.

The eleventh annual Founder's Barbecue will be held on campus, Saturday, July 8, 1989. Serving hours will be from 5:30 P.M. to 8:30 P.M., with entertainment provided. For complimentary barbecue tickets, we do request a minimum contribution of $10.00 per person or $25.00 for a family of four.

Please order your tickets today and let's make this the best barbecue ever, as we each share in this worthy ministry.

Sincerely yours,

Bob Sims

MRS. FELIX SOLIZ
...nee Pamela Hartman

Hartman, Soliz united in marriage

Pamela Hartman and Felix Soliz, both Dallas residents, were married Saturday evening, July 1, at Paramount Baptist Church in Amarillo. Rev. Shad Rue officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartman of Amarillo and is the granddaughter of Mamie Lou Hartman of South Plains.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jo Soliz of Hereford and is the grandson of Margarita Olguin, also of Hereford.

An arch decorated in greenery with white bows enhanced the church. Flanking the arch on each side were candelabra containing 14 candles. Large baskets of white gladioli and white roses completed the setting and pews were marked with white satin bows highlighted by white roses and greenery.

Matron of honor was Kristy Martin of Amarillo and maid of honor was Dawn DuVall of Oklahoma City, Okla.

John Josseland of Amarillo served as best man.

Bridesmaids were Paige Russell of Dallas, and Amarillo residents Shelly Barron and Kelly Wright.

Groomsmen were Joe Soliz, the groom's brother; Esiquio Martinez, Jr., the groom's cousin; Norman Hill of Dallas, and Glenn Potter of Los Angeles, Ca.

Serving as ushers were Chuck Hartman of Amarillo and Roben Hartman of Dallas, both brothers of the bride, and Gil Hamilton of Dallas.

Judy Bledsoe provided wedding music and Mark Hotmann sang such selections as "Wind Beneath My Wings" and "The Wedding Song."

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride chose as her wedding garb an elegant designer's gown of white satin. It was fashioned with a V-shaped neckline, in the front and the back, featuring tulle culminating in a wedding ring collar. The leg o' mutton sleeves were fastened at the wrist with miniature buttons and were spotlighted by elaborate floral appliques, pearls and iridescent sequins.

The fitted bodice was styled with a Basque waistline which was pinpointed with a floral design of individual petals centered with pearls and iridescent sequins. The gown featured a full skirt with a lace hemline which flowed into a chapel-length train.

A large satin bow marked the back of the gown at the waistline and was set off by a smaller version of the floral design that pinpointed the sleeves and front.

Her veil offered a dainty triple pouf and flowed to waist length. Pearls and sequins were scattered throughout this creation which was designed by the mother of the bride. The veil was attached to a braided pearl headband accented with silk white roses.

She carried a bouquet, also designed by her mother, composed of blue and white roses with baby's breath. Silver, white, and blue streamers underscored the creation.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length royal blue crepe-backed satin dresses fashioned with a princess bodice, pleated skirt, and back bow. Fabric roses bedecked the shoulders of the dresses, which were designed by the bride's parents.

Bouquets of blue and white silk flowers emanating from a white lace fan were carried by the bridal attendants. Each arrangement was garnished with royal blue, white, and silver streamers, all of which were designed by the bride's mother and Mrs. David DuVall.

A reception followed at the church with Melissa Soliz presiding at the registry. Jana Hartman served cake from the bride's table while Rita Soliz served cake from the groom's table. Punch and coffee were served by Patty Hartman and Marizelda Soliz at the bride's table and groom's table, respectively.

A white, four-tier Italian Cream Cake was served from the bride's table in "Dotted Swiss Dream" style accented with white roses. Refreshments were served from silver appointments and the bridal bouquet centered the table, which was topped with white lace. Silver bows marked each corner.

A blue tablecloth with an overlay of white lace topped the groom's table. A German chocolate cake and an arrangement of fresh fruit were offered. The bride chose, as her traveling costume, a two-piece sundress with a fitted bodice topped with a jacket featuring a black background with peach, blue, and yellow flowers. The couple left for a wedding trip to St. Martin and will be at home in Dallas after July 9.

The bride graduated from West Texas State University with a degree in accounting. She is employed in Dallas at Club Corporation International as an accountant.

The groom received a degree in marketing from WTSU. He is employed in sales in Dallas at Thermo-Serv.

Pre-nuptial events included miscellaneous showers and a bridesmaids' luncheon.

MR. AND MRS. CHUCK DOUGHERTY

Vaughn, Dougherty recite nuptials

Amarillo residents Tonya Michelle Vaughn and Chuck Dougherty exchanged wedding vows in Hereford's Church of the Nazarene on June 17.

Bob Huffaker, pastor of the church, officiated at the afternoon wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Vaughn of Hereford and Lillie Smith of Dimmitt. The groom's parents are R.B. Dougherty of Shamrock and Polly Dougherty of Lincoln, Ark.

Kim Smith of Silsbee served as the bride's honor attendant. Danny Mitchell of Prairie Grove, Ark. was best man.

Ushers were Bryan and Shane Dougherty of Shamrock, the groom's brothers.

Jacqueline Anderson and Chris Anderson, children of Vicky Anderson of Prairie Grove, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Cynthia Streun provided organ music and Jim Hail and Susie Merrick sang tradition wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin wedding gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline and Bishop sleeves. The bodice, bedecked with lace and beadwork, culminated into a fitted waist from which flowed a chapel-length train.

Completing her ensemble, a fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion cascaded from a headpiece adorned with lace appliques and pearl designs. She carried a bouquet of white roses enhanced by white lace and baby blue ribbon.

A reception followed in the church's fellowship hall. Leann Paetzold served cake while Kelly Smith of Silsbee poured punch and coffee. Denise Paetzold presided at the registry.

Embarking on a wedding trip to Oklahoma City, Okla., the bride wore a bright yellow and red dress accented with a quilted vest. A heart design touched off the vest, matching the design found on the dress's bodice.

The couple are now at home in Amarillo.

A 1987 graduate of Hereford High School, the bride was active in HHS organizations as band, drill team, and Keywanettes. Now attending West Texas State University, she is employed at Mervyn's in Amarillo.

The groom graduated in 1987 from Shamrock High School and is employed at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. He plans to attend Amarillo College and major in physical therapy.

Burford to attend

Wash. D.C. seminar

Washington D.C.—On Tuesday, Christy Burford of Lovington, N.M., will have the rare opportunity to see the U.S. government in action with approximately 350 outstanding college sophomores and juniors from across the country at the 1989 Collegiate Seminar hosted by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council.

Burford, the daughter of former Hereford residents Bill and Joyce Burford, was selected for the honor based on demonstrated academic achievement, leadership, and citizenship.

The theme of the Collegiate Seminar is The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today. Throughout the six day conference, the scholars will meet with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps. "It is one thing to read and learn about one's government in a textbook," says John Hines, Executive Director, "but it is a completely different educational experience to see, firsthand, one's government at work and to witness the democratic process."

Highlights of the program will include a breakfast panel discussion led by prominent journalists at the National Press Club, a government relations forum comprised of lobbyists from various corporations and public interest groups, and a visit to a diplomatic embassy. Significantly adding to a program will be the Honorable Jack Kemp, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, who will address the students on the subject of HUD's role in solving the housing problems of the nation's homeless. The scholars will also be directly involved in a crisis situation simulation which allows them to decide policy on major issues such as nuclear arms and U.S. foreign policy in Central America.

The Collegiate Seminar is sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council which was founded in 1985 by Co-Chairmen Barbara Harris and Richard Rossi. The Council is a non-profit, non-partisan educational organization committed to recognizing outstanding youth and providing them with a "hands-on" civics learning experience in the nation's capital. The Council has over 240 Members of the United States Congress who comprise its Honorary Congressional Board of Advisors joining in the commitment to educational excellence.

Burford, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, now lives in Lovington, N.M. and attends Texas Tech University.

Things they never told you about a heat pump.

Fact #1

A heat pump unit costs more than an equivalent high-efficiency air conditioner. And it's more expensive and complicated to install.

Yet it won't cool your home as well, and it's more expensive to operate and maintain.

If you need a new air conditioner this summer, replace it with a modern high-efficiency air conditioner. Not a gadget.

Nuptials said by De Shazo, McCuistian

Carrollton resident Pamala De Shazo married Gary McCuistian of Irving in an afternoon ceremony held June 18 in Mary Immaculate Church of Farmer's Branch.

Officiant was Fr. Leon Duesman of Mary Immaculate Church in Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Norman and Sonya De Shazo of Carrollton. McCuistian is the son of Lewis and Dolores McCuistian of 338 Centre, Hereford.

The bride's sister, Nancy Calegari of New York, N.Y. served as matron of honor. Trent McCuistian of Los Alamos, N.M. was his brother's best man.

Bridesmaids were Jennifer De

Shazo-Pugh of New York, sister of the bride; and Karyn McCuistian of Lubbock, the groom's sister.

Groomsmen were Craig McCuistian of Lubbock, the groom's brother, and Donnie Hrock of Irving.

Ushers were Roger Fowler of Houston and Jason Murdock of Dallas.

Jacqueline De Shazo-Pugh, daughter of Jennifer De Shazo-Pugh and Richard Pugh, was flower girl. Michael Calegari, son of Nancy and Joseph Calegari of New York, was ring bearer.

Craig McCuistian lighted candles. Musical selections of "Ave Maria", "There is Love", and "You and Me" were featured.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a designer gown fashioned entirely in shimmering white silk shantung. Her gown featured a bateau neckline and long, fitted lace sleeves accented at the shoulder by silken pleated folds. Tiny buttons and loops closed the sleeve at the wrist.

The dropped torso and fitted Basque bodice were lavishly embellished with imported beaded and sequined Alencon lace. An alluring backline in a soft V-shape featured the same silken pleated folds. The full silk skirt fell gracefully into a cathedral-length train. Scattered medallions of glistening lace appliques adorned the train and outlined the entire hemline.

The complete her ensemble, the bride wore a tiara of silken roses accented by sprays of tiny pearls. A large pouff adorned the back and fell into a short-length layer of illusion.

She carried a bouquet of delicate pink rosebuds with cascading lily of the valley and rosebuds.

In keeping with bridal tradition, she wore her mother's diamond engagement ring as something old; her wedding dress was something new; pearl earrings belonging to her sister, Jennifer, were something borrowed; and a garter of blue ribbon, lace, and pearls, handmade by the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Julia Fowler, was something blue.

A catered reception, featuring dinner and dancing, followed at Vic's on the Square in Dallas. Members of the bridal party and Sherre Franklin and Jennifer Feather, cousins of the groom, served refreshments. Vickie Clutter of Carrollton presided at the registry.

A denim suit with a cotton knit shirt and jacket served as the bride's traveling costume when the couple departed on a wedding trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica.

The couple are now home in Carrollton.

A graduate of Newman-Smith High School, the bride attended Brookhaven College in Dallas. She is employed as supervisor for Computer Warehouse in Austin.

The groom, a 1977 graduate of Hereford High School, received a bachelor of science degree in construction engineering from Texas Tech University. He is employed by Specified Protection Systems, a division of Gamewell Int.

In addition to the out-of-town guests already mentioned, others were Richard and Kitty Wickboldt of Great Neck, N.Y.; J. B. Fowler of Amarillo; Barbara Fuller and Veronica La Fuente of Lubbock; Mrs. Tom Franklin and Sherre of Albuquerque; Mr. and Mrs. Neal Fowler, Troy, and Duane and Mrs. Julia Fowler of Irving; Gene Fowler, Donna Milholland, and Suzanne Feather, all of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. E.D. Fowler of Victoria; and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Hart of Bedford.

Pre-nuptial events included the rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents on the eve before the wedding, in the banquet room of Harvey's Hotel-Addison.

A wedding party was hosted for friends of the bridal couple by Mr. and Mrs. Neal Fowler of Irving, the groom's aunt and uncle, at their home on June 4.

Use the right appliance for the job.

Sometimes it gets hot enough to fry an egg on the sidewalk. But on an electric iron? There are better things to use.

And when you need to cool and heat your home, there are better things to use than a heat pump.

A heat pump can't cool your home in summer as well as a high-efficiency air conditioner. And it can't warm your home in winter as well as a natural gas furnace.

Think of winter this summer. For comfortable efficient heating in your home, the most effective appliance ever made is a natural gas furnace. Period. ENERGAS

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last evening four couples who were having dinner at our home became involved in a heated discussion about homosexuality. I won't go into the various notions that were expressed, but there was a great deal of disagreement and more than a little ignorance.

Will you please answer the following questions?

(1) What causes homosexuality?
(2) Is it possible for a homosexual to become straight through psychotherapy?

(3) Do you believe that most homosexuals would be straight if they had the opportunity to choose?

(4) Do you believe that AIDS is a punishment from God?

Thanks for serving as our moderator in absentia.--L.P. in Madison, Wis.

DEAR MADISON: (1) No one knows for certain what causes homosexuality. For many years it was believed that homosexuality was due to improper parenting, perhaps a domineering mother or a father who was absent or rarely around, or a mother who was overly protective and too emotionally involved with her son, or a cold and indifferent father who rejected the boy. These theories have now been rejected.

The experts whose opinions I respect believe that on one's sexuality is determined by one of the following factors: hormonal, genetic, psychological, social, or a combination of all four.

(2) Most authorities say it is virtually impossible for a homosexual to become straight, even with intensive therapy. Some gays may abandon that life style and have intimate relationships with women, but their homosexual desires are never completely eradicated.

(3) I believe that because of the way society views homosexuals, most would, if they had a choice, be straight.

(4) I do not believe that AIDS is a punishment from God. Only a homophobe would think this way.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have lost my wife. No, she didn't die. She didn't leave home to make a career for herself. She didn't run off with another guy. She got hooked on refunding.

Delores is constantly clipping coupons, mailing rebate forms, saving and filing product wrappers and labels. Nothing can be thrown away in case someday it might be proof of a purchase. As a result of collecting refunds and coupons, she has piled up enough food to last for two years. On my last trip around the house I counted 34 boxes of dry cereal and 27 boxes of crackers.

We can't have company because the house is so cluttered. I doubt that Delores makes the minimum wage for all the time she puts in, but, even worse, it has turned her into a minimum wife.

What should I do, Ann? I'm ready to send her back to her mother for a refund.--L.B., Pennock, Minn.

DEAR PENN.: Delores, who probably was always a frugal shopper, has slipped over the line. She is now obsessive-compulsive.

The woman needs professional help. This isn't funny. I hope she gets it.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. # It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

'Fun' quarterly meeting set by Women's Div.

"Styles, Snacks, and Sneakers" will be the theme of Thursday night's quarterly meeting of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center will be the site of the 7:30 p.m. meeting that will feature a hamburger cookout and sportswear style show.

"We hope to have a fun time at this meeting, which will include a brief business session," said Donna West, president of the Women's Division. "Dress should be very casual because we'll meet outdoors on the patio, weather permitting."

The All Star Sports Center will host the style show, modelling some of the latest fashions in the sportswear line. Door prizes will be offered and games are planned for the event.

Members are encouraged to invite guests. Also, women who have recently moved to Hereford can call the Chamber of Commerce office for more information about the Women's Division, and are invited to this meeting.

Reservations for the Thursday meeting must be called in to the Chamber office, 364-3333, by noon Wednesday.

Conference on child sexual abuse set

Co-sponsored by the Panhandle Coalition for Child Abuse Prevention and the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, the conference will focus on the new concept of a multidisciplinary team approach to the processing of child abuse cases.

Baystate Medical Center in Springfield. The Child Abuse Unit is on the advisory board of the National Center for the Prosecution of Child Abuse in Washington, D.C. Mr. Shugrue has lectured, and visited many child abuse units throughout the country, on multidisciplinary team approach to child abuse.

In 1988, he was one of 50 prosecutors, from across the country, to receive a special invitation to attend a national meeting of prosecutors from state and federal offices addressing issues dealing with the national prosecution of child abuse sponsored by the National Children's Advocacy Center.

Panel members will include: Rolf Habersang, MD., Associate

Chairman, Department of Pediatrics, Texas Tech School of Medicine; Pattilou Dawkins, Board Chairman, Texas Department of Mental Health Mental Retardation; Jim Coventry, CSW, ACP; Jon Waggoner, Assistant District Attorney, Potter County; Vicki Howard, Assistant District Attorney, Randall County; Eddy Turner, Board of Directors, The Children's Trust Fund of Texas; J.C.
