News conference shows different Clinton

By TERENCE HUNT

AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - With grace and good humor, President Clinton used an East Room news conference to give Americans a fact-filled tutorial on his budget plan - complete with Ross Perot-style charts - and to declare a victory of sorts in Somalia.

He was, at turns, charming and disarming Thursday night. He stopped one reporter in mid-question to compliment him on his Mickey Mouse tie.

To another reporter's question about strained relations with New Zealand, Clinton confessed with a smile, "I've given absolutely no thought to that question."

He also paused to accept a glass of water from a tuxedoed waiter and then cracked, "I hope his mother's watching."

The performance was a distinct change for a president plagued recently by missteps on everything from gays in the military to trouble with appointments.

The only drawback for Clinton was that many television viewers likely didn't see it.

ABC and CBS refused to carry the 8 p.m. news conference live and NBC cut Clinton off after 25 minutes. CNN carried it all.

The White House was angry, recalling that Ronald Reagan and George Bush didn't have much trouble getting prime-time coverage.

"We're really disappointed," Clinton adviser George Stephanopoulos said.

But not with Clinton's performance.

"We are putting our economic house in order," the president said as his $500 billion deficit-reduction plan advanced in the Senate.

Pointing to a multicolored chart tracking the surging budget deficit that he inherited, Clinton said: "I may have a lot to learn but I didn't create the red line."

Explaining his plan in detail and pronouncing it fair and balanced, Clinton promised: "If this plan passes you will see a continuation of what's happened already in the last five months: low interest rates, increasing housing sales, more jobs coming into the economy."

Clinton opened his news conference by saying U.S.-led military strikes had "crippled the forces" of Somali warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

He said the operation "is over and ... it was a success" in punishing Aidid for killing U.N. peacekeepers. "We could not let it go unpunished," the president said. Aidid, however, continued to elude U.N. forces trying to arrest him.

On other matters, Clinton:

-Said he would have preferred preserving a multi-ethnic state in Bosnia, rather than carving it up into three ethnic zones as proposed by international mediators. However, he said the United States would have to look at the proposal very seriously if it accepted by all the parties.

However, Clinton said that "Serbian aggression has been rewarded" to some extent.

-Said he remains optimistic that a health-care reform plan can pass the Congress this year. "We cannot get the deficit down to zero, which is where it ought to be, until we do something about health care costs," he said.

-Said that enacting a reform bill this year depends largely "on how warmly embraced it is by Congress."

The central message of Clinton's news conference was that he is making progress on issues important to Americans after a string of victories in Congress.

He cited action on his deficit-reduction plan, Senate approval of a campaign-finance reform bill and endorsement by congressional committees of his plan to offer college loans in return for community service.

Clinton called the economic plan, which includes hundreds of billions in new taxes, "the most progressive tax plan this country has seen in decades," with two-thirds of the increases to be paid by people with incomes above $200,000.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., grudgingly gave Clinton good marks for the news conference even while insisting that his deficit-reduction numbers didn't add up.

"I thought it was a good performance, but he didn't have his facts right," Dole said. "He's a nice person, he looks good. It's the product that ought to be traded in."

Richards signs 94-95 state budget into law

AUSTIN (AP) - More prison beds, assistance with higher education along the Texas border and an immunization program for all Texas children have emerged as top priorities in the 1994-95 state budget.

Gov. Ann Richards said she signed into law the $70.1 billion, two-year state budget on Thursday, lauding the fact that it will take no new taxes to fund it.

Richards also praised the spending plan for a benefits increase to retired teachers and state employees.

The budget is about an 11.4 percent increase over the 1992-93 spending plan total of $62.9 billion, Richards said.

"The people of Texas said they wanted us to do more with less. They said they wanted government to live within its means," Richards said. "This appropriations bill certainly does that."

Richards said the spending plan that takes effect Sept. 1 is a good example of bipartisan cooperation.

"While gridlock and finger-pointing may prevail in Washington, Democrats and Republicans alike worked to deliver on this most fundamental issue for Texas," she said.

To help balance the budget, legislators agreed on $2 billion in cuts that were identified in audits by the state comptroller's office.

"We have written a budget that requires the state to live within its means, yet still meets the state's most basic obligations," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "It is a Chevrolet, not a Cadillac."

Under the budget, the state should receive more than $19.8 billion in federal funds, up $4 billion from the current budget.

The budget includes a $1 billion increase over current state spending for public schools, and a $4.3 billion increase in health and human services spending.

Bill Cryer, the governor's press secretary, said a list of budget items vetoed by the governor would be released on Saturday.

The amount vetoed was about $17 million, said spokesman Chuck McDonald. He said the funding struck by the governor primarily was for items in bills that didn't pass the Legislature.

The state comptroller had put the total budget at $71.2 billion, higher than the governor's estimate. Comptroller spokesman Andy Welch said that total includes all programs, such as abolishing a lottery stabilization fund and adding the amount to general revenue spending, that may not have been counted by the governor's office.

Governors ask for state autonomy in health reform

WOODSTOCK, Vt. (AP) -

Governors pushing the White House for some autonomy on health care reform are calling for a trial-by-fire experiment: Let states go their own way and see what works. That way, if President Clinton's plan is flawed, not everyone suffers.

"If 50 states have to go off and do things the same way and you have something that fails, you'll have a 50-state failure," said Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida.

"Let Hawaii do one thing, Florida another and Vermont try something else. See what works," said Chiles, one of a dozen Democratic governors meeting in this New England town for a weekend retreat on health care reform, the economy and education.

"There's not a single right answer to medical care in America; there are a number of right answers," said Gov. Barbara Roberts of Oregon. "Different states have chosen different paths. Out of that we will probably get an incredible amount of learning ... and in the end, devise a better national plan."

The Democratic governors said they're looking for reassurance on states' flexibility from Hillary Rodham Clinton during her scheduled talk to them today. Mrs. Clinton is leading the White House task force on health care reform.

In the past, the White House has pledged state flexibility under the developing health care reform package Clinton will propose later this year.

The governors said they're all for the federal government setting a minimum package of benefits for everyone. That way some states won't have anything better than others, they said.

And Gov. Howard Dean of Vermont urged the federal government to mandate whatever financing mechanism will pay for it, whether it's premiums or payroll taxes or something else.

"So the states don't compete with each other on taxes, one having cigarette taxes and another income taxes," Dean said.

"But don't tell us how to deliver health care," Dean said. "We don't want the money going to Washington and then coming back to us. Because they will put all kinds of horrible, bureaucratic, very expensive administrative rules on it that are unworkable."

Each state has different circumstances to deal with, the governors said.

"Don't tell me I have to do what Oregon does," Chiles said, "because it won't necessarily work for Florida."

Oregon, for instance, spent five years developing a health care plan for the working poor. Care will be rationed in the sense that the state won't pay for procedures it considers too costly or ineffective.

Florida just passed a plan that creates regional alliances to improve bargaining power for small businesses and state government. Participation is optional for businesses. Chiles wants to stay away from payroll taxes and draw in the uninsured through a Medicaid expansion.

Because Florida has so many people over 65, Chiles said that with flexibility he'd move more toward long-term care and in-home nursing care. Other states might not want to go that route, he said.

Tax bill heading for debate in committee

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats drafted President Clinton's giant deficit-reduction bill for Senate debate, backed by a White House campaign to show that the measure justly places its heaviest burden on the rich.

Majority Democrats planned to whip the bill through the Senate Finance Committee today, and take it to the Senate floor next week.

The package would pave the way for lowering federal deficits by a record $508 billion over the next five years, largely by taxing the wealthy, businesses and motorists and by slowing the growth of Medicare.

As committee members prepared for what was expected to be a straight party-line vote, Clinton engaged his Republican foes in a public-relations war over whether the legislation was a sensible mix of tax boosts and spending cuts, or a doomed attempt to trim rampant budget deficits with unneeded new levies.

"Seventy percent of the economic gains of the last decade went to about 1 percent of the American people" - the richest, Clinton said at his news conference Thursday night. "They are in a position now to pay more to help make this economy move again, and they will."

The only new levy hitting practically all middle-class Americans would be the new 4.3 percent tax on each gallon of gasoline and other fuels - estimated to cost the average family $29 yearly.

During committee debate Thursday, Republicans argued that the measure's new taxes would do the opposite of what Clinton most wants to do - spark robust economic growth.

"That makes no sense when recovery has just begun," said Sen. William Roth, R-Del.

They also complained that nearly $170 billion of the bill's envisioned savings would have to come from future spending bills or from less federal borrowing. That leaves big tax increases now, with no guarantees that spending cuts will be made later, they said.

"If the Reagan-Bush packages were called voodoo, this package ought to be called deja-voodoo," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa.

The House passed a similar version of the bill in May. After Senate passage, Senate-House negotiators will have to craft a compromise that both chambers will consider.

Like the House, the Senate bill is dominated by higher taxes on the rich and corporate America.

The current top income-tax rate of 31 percent would increase July 1 to 36 percent and 39.6 percent for the wealthiest people.

Connally called 'giant, in every way'

Five governors attend funeral in Austin church

AUSTIN (AP) - Family, friends and dignitaries who gathered for his funeral remembered John Connally as a giant of a man, a dedicated public servant and a Texas legend.

"John Connally was a giant in every way," the Rev. Billy Graham said Thursday in a sermon during the three-term governor's funeral Thursday.

"He not only had lived a full life, but he left his footprints on the history of our generation ... John Connally will stand tall in the history books of Texas and the nation," Graham told about 850 people gathered at Austin's First United Methodist Church.

The service drew all five living Texas governors, former President Nixon, Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen, former U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright, and a lengthy list of other officials.

Hundreds of people waited in the hot sun outside the Capitol for a chance to file past his Texas flag-draped coffin before the funeral and burial at the State Cemetery.

A former Cabinet member, business tycoon and World War II hero who was wounded in the shooting that killed President Kennedy, Connally died Tuesday of pulmonary fibrosis. He was 76.

The 6-foot-2 Connally served three terms as governor, from 1963 to 1969. He was secretary of the Navy under Kennedy and Treasury secretary for President Nixon. He and the late President Lyndon B. Johnson were dominant forces in Texas politics for decades.

"He was big physically, he was big intellectually, he was big politically. He was proud to be from a big state and from a big country," Nixon recalled during an interview.

Former first lady Lady Bird Johnson, delivering one of three eulogies, recalled the Johnson's decades-long friendship with the Connally family.

"It's been a wonderful life, all the more so because our families shared it with John and Nellie," the former first lady said. "We shared our youth, dreams, and ambitions. We shared campaigns and unending work. We shared births, deaths. We shared a war."

"You will always be remembered as a Texas hero and a legend, and perhaps the most dominant political figure of our time," said U.S. Rep. J.J. Jake Pickle, D-Texas.

Pickle, who attended the University of Texas with Connally and was best man at Connally's wedding, recounted their 60-year friendship during a eulogy filled with warm memories.

"We managed to elect three student body presidents - two of 'em were us," Pickle said.

The congressman said "Big John" Connally's career was one marked by great achievements.

"As governor, he had one of the most progressive tenures, accomplishing as much for education as any governor of our time," Pickle said. "He was entrusted by three presidents - Johnson, Kennedy and Nixon - with high duties and responsibilities."

Although Connally lost his bid for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination, Pickle said it was "a position he could have had, should have had for the good of the country. He just looked like a president."

John B. Connally III said his father "was huge in our sight and strode across our lives like a colossus ... He approached yard work and homework with the same intensity that he brought to the international monetary structure."

An estimated 300 people joined the family at the gravesite, where Texas Department of Public Safety troopers sounded "Taps" on two bugles, one echoing the other, and there was a 21-gun salute.

Nellie Connally was presented with United States and Texas flags that draped her husband's casket at different times during the day. Before he was buried, she and her sons sprinkled dirt from the family's Floresville ranch on the casket.

Before the funeral, hundreds filed past Connally's coffin in the Texas House chamber, where his body was lying in state for two hours. The flag covering it had flown over the Capitol the day he died.

Mrs. Connally stood behind the coffin, her two sons and daughter beside her, shaking hands with many of those who came to pay their respects. Texas Rangers flanked the casket.

Pianist Van Cliburn was among the first to file past. One young boy handed the family a small Texas flag.

"He was a governor by whom all other governors will be judged," said Mark White, governor from 1983 to 1987. "He was a good man who did a lot of good things for this state."

Waxahachie seeking assurance of collider

WAXAHACHIE, Texas - Folks in this quiet Texas town aren't banking on President Clinton's avowed support of the super collider.

They want to make sure that Congress follows through with the funding for the $8.2 billion project being built here.

"We want the super collider finished. Let's bite the bullet and pay for it," says Waxahachie resident Richard Moir.

Clinton on Thursday reaffirmed his support for the embattled project in a letter to Congress much to the delight of most collider backers. The House is scheduled next week to consider whether to approve $620 million for the collider for 1994.

"These are tough economic times, yet our administration supports this project as part of its broad investment package in science and technology," Clinton wrote.

Still residents here aren't sure whether the president's stamp of approval will help or hinder the project.

"I'm not real positive about it because I think he's had a lot of negative publicity lately," Moir said.

Instead they're hoping common sense will keep the giant atom smasher under construction.

"They've already sunk so much money into it, if they stop it now, you've wasted all that money for nothing," Moir said.

Resident Mike Lyle agrees.

"I don't want to see a half-done project out there with all the land they've acquired," said Lyle, whose tractor business has benefited from the project. "It'd just be a ghost town if they take it away."

Collider supporters were alarmed earlier this year by reports that budget director Leon Panetta proposed abandoning the project. The Clinton administration denied the reports, but speculation was rampant that the president's support would wane after the June 5 Texas Senate election, which was won by Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Now Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, said Clinton's letter proves his support of the project goes beyond politics.

"It has nothing to do with politics, with Senate races, with anything else," he said. "It's a project (Clinton) supports on its merits and I think that is a very positive signal to send to the entire Congress and it will help."

Raphael Kasper, associate director of the collider laboratory in Waxahachie, said Clinton's reaffirmed support of the project was well timed and will probably help secure last-minute congressional votes.

"The president has in the past indicated his support for the super collider, but coming at a time when Congress is considering the appropriations, it is gratifying to get this concrete statement of support," he said. "It probably will be a useful statement for people in Congress who haven't made up their minds."

Clinton's letter was delivered to the Appropriations Committee just before it took up consideration of a $21.7 billion energy and water development bill that contains $620 million for the collider next year. The bill passed without debate.

The $620 million is $20 million less than the administration requested, but 20 percent more than the $517 million received this year.

Critics are framing the House vote as a test of lawmakers' desire to reduce spending. The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that killing the collider could save as much as $3 billion over five years.

The collider's price tag, still officially at $8.2 billion, is likely to be revised to $10 billion or more later this summer. The administration is trying to stretch out funding, which would delay completion by three years to 2002.

Family turns aside researchers' request to remove fragments

DALLAS (AP) - The death of former Texas Gov. John Connally has prompted various JFK assassination researchers to ask for the removal of bullet fragments still in his body from the Nov. 22, 1963, sniper attack in downtown Dallas.

But family and friends of Connally were cool to such requests, and the government made no attempts to halt his burial or to arrange for an exhumation.

"It's an appalling attempt to capitalize on Governor Connally's death to gain publicity for worn-out theories," said Julian Read, a family spokesman.

Connally, who was governor of Texas from 1963-1969, died Tuesday of pulmonary fibrosis at the age of 76 and was buried Thursday in Austin.

He and his wife, Nellie, were sitting in the back of an open-air limousine with President John F. Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, when shots rang in Dealey Plaza, killing the president and wounding Connally.

According to the Warren Commission report, one bullet struck through the president and struck Connally's back. The bullet exited through his chest, passed through his right wrist, went into his left thigh and later was found on a stretcher at Parkland Hospital, the report said.

Critics long have scoffed at the finding, saying the bullet could not have taken such a path and come out in such good condition.

Bullet fragments taken from Connally were examined in the late 1970s by the House Select Committee on Assassinations. The panel concluded that the fragments came from the same bullet that struck Kennedy.

Nonetheless, the fragments remaining in Connally, were "unique" because they had not been disturbed, said Dr. Cyril Wecht, a Pittsburgh pathologist. Wecht signed a letter to Attorney General Janet Reno, requesting that the bullet pieces be removed surgically and tested scientifically.

Dr. Wecht contended that an analysis of the fragments would show that the same bullet did not strike Kennedy and then Connally.

Connally was a critic of the one-bullet theory, insisting that he believed that he and the president were hit by different bullets.

Unlike JFK researchers, however, he did not subscribe to a conspiracy theory.

Under state and federal law, Connally's body could not be exhumed without the permission of his family or a court order.

The JFK researchers contend that state or federal officials would have the authority to compel an examination of the body because the bullet fragments are critical evidence in an unresolved murder investigation.

"It goes beyond the wishes of the family," Dr. Wecht said Wednesday.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said the department was following the recommendation of Oliver "Buck" Revell, special agent in charge of the Dallas office of the FBI, who recommended removing the bullet fragments if the family gave its approval.

"I think it would be best for the family, best for the government, best for the country to take care of the issue now," Revell said.

Revell said he does not believe the bullet fragments would prove a conspiracy, but he said a credible analysis might silence some critics of the government's single-bullet theory of the assassination.

Although he said he had hoped the removal could be done before Connally's burial, Revell said interment would not necessarily end the matter.

"Matted guards could be posted around the grave until we get this thing resolved," Revell said.

There were no signs at the gravesite that action was imminent, however.

"We are not doing any extraordinary security whatsoever," added Mike Cox, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, which is responsible for guarding the State Cemetery in East Austin.

Federal investigators studying can reports

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal investigators are finding no proof that foreign objects were deliberately sealed into Pepsi cans and are arresting people for lying about finding such things in soft drinks.

"It is well-known that even one report of possible tampering can - and will - lead to unfounded reports," said Food and Drug Administration Commissioner David Kessler. "It is a vicious cycle."

"On the basis of the information we have so far, the notion that there has been a nationwide tampering of Diet Pepsi is unfounded," Kessler said at a news conference Thursday. He said the conclusion was based on investigators' judgment, logic and forensic analyses.

Kessler said there had been a handful of federal arrests of people who claimed to have found syringes, nails or other objects in Pepsi cans and that other people who had made such claims are recanting.

"I would not be surprised if there were other additional arrests," Kessler said.

"Let me stress one point, and I am serious about this: We will prosecute false reports of tampering," Kessler said.

Gardening guide offered

Since roses are heavy feeders, it's important to fertilize them at certain critical times. A generous application of fertilizer in spring will produce luxurious and vigorous flowers.

Dry fertilizers are difficult to apply with accuracy and slow to take effect. A water soluble fertilizer is already dissolved when applied. This allows quick penetration to the roots as well as rapid absorption into the plant. The fertilizer will not damage the foliage and there's no danger of "burning" if package directions are followed.

You can keep your roses blooming almost throughout summer and fall by feeding them every two to three weeks throughout the entire growing season with a water soluble plant food.

Hereford's Rampley to play in national AAU tournament

Hereford's Julie Rampley will join a team from New Mexico to compete in the national AAU 12-and-under girls' basketball tournament, to be held June 25-July 2 in Hartford, Conn.

Teams going to national AAU tournaments are allowed to pick up three players for the national tourney. The Young Guns, a Clovis and Portales area team, chose Rampley and two girls from Colorado.

"They won the state championship in New Mexico," Rampley said. "Last year they got beat out (at nationals) because they didn't have enough players."

"It's a real privilege for me," she said. "This is the first time I've gone out of state to play." She meant besides games in New Mexico, she said.

Rampley played with a Hereford team, the Hereford Heat, during the regular AAU season. The Heat finished third at the regional tournament in Amarillo, narrowly missing a berth in the 60-team national tournament.

Julie, the daughter of Doug and Sherree Rampley, will be entering the eighth grade at Hereford Junior High in the fall.

Bulls play for NBA title tonight

CHICAGO (AP) - One more time, Phil Jackson and Paul Westphal must deliver a winning message - one coach to spur his players to a third straight NBA title, the other to keep his team alive.

The Chicago Bulls play their 100th game of the season tonight, the Phoenix Suns their 105th. It could be the last, and players from both teams already know what to do.

So what can Jackson, who has given the Bulls books, talked to them about meditation and spiced movies with a message into game tapes, possibly come up with?

"Nothing," he said Thursday. "There's nothing to tell them that I haven't told them before."

"For some people I guess it works," Chicago's Horace Grant said of Jackson's motivational techniques. "But the majority of guys sit in there and sometimes fall asleep with stuff like that."

Westphal, in a more desperate situation being down 3-1 in the best-of-7 NBA Finals, hopes his players are more attentive.

"Sure I have to say something. That's what I get paid for," he said. "Mainly it's just to try to correct the mistakes that we made."

Coaches can only do so much. With players that know each other very well, adjustments will be minor.

The Bulls can't afford a psychological letdown. They'll try to get more involvement from players other than Michael Jordan, guard against continuing lapses late in quarters and improve their foul shooting. They'd like a slower tempo but have played well at a quick pace.

The Suns can't afford to lose. They must clog the lane that was Jordan's freeway to a 55-point performance in Wednesday night's 111-105 win and must play more physically against him.

"It doesn't matter who guards him because he's going to beat whoever guards him," Westphal said. "We have to provide help."

The Suns also must shoot better. They haven't made half their shots in any of the four games and were outshot in three.

"I always feel we're going to come back and win. I have tremendous confidence," Phoenix's Charles Barkley said. "I just would like to be in the same situation we were in (Wednesday) night, have a close game with a couple of minutes to go."

Although no team has survived a 3-1 finals deficit, there were no signs of panic or nerves at the Suns practice Thursday.

They faced elimination in the last three games of their opening series against the Los Angeles Lakers and in the last game of the Western Conference finals against Seattle. They won all four.

"We've always managed to play our best basketball when we needed to," Phoenix's Kevin Johnson said.

They also have the confidence that comes with having posted the best regular-season record and having the league's most valuable player, Barkley.

"It's part of our strength,"

Johnson said, "but what you do in the regular season really doesn't mean a heck of a lot at this point."

Only one game matters now. If the Suns win it, they'll go back to Phoenix for Game 6 Sunday night. If they don't, the Bulls are champions once more.

"I told (his teammates) we've got a chance to close this," Jordan said. "We should be able to do this and if anybody wants to go back to Phoenix, they're certainly going without me."

Jordan did his best to keep that from happening Wednesday night as he repeatedly drove to the hoop to sink easy baskets and draw fouls.

"We've got to get some hard fouls on him," Barkley said. "I don't think we really want me to get in foul trouble so I think other players have to pop him when he comes down the lane."

Jordan expects to get hit but intends to keep driving since it worked so well. Grant said the other Bulls don't mind when Jordan takes over, as long as they win.

"When you win," he said, "everything is great."

Chicago is trying to become the third team in NBA history and the first since Boston closed an eight-year reign in 1966 to win three consecutive titles. Phoenix lost in six games in its only other Finals appearance in 1976.

Three straight championships "hasn't really been heard of in today's basketball ... in terms of the competition and the parity that's within the league," Jordan said. "We're confident. I don't think we're overconfident."

Sindelar among leaders after 1st U.S. Open round

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) - It was 1980, Joey Sindelar was 22 years old and playing in the U.S. Open at stately old Baltusrol. A round of 74 had him feeling pretty sharp, until he looked up at the leaderboard.

There, 11 shots ahead of him, were Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf.

"It's my first U.S. Open. I come out here the first day, and I think I'm doing pretty good to shoot a 74, thank you very much," he said. "And that's what blew my mind. Not one guy, but two guys shoot 63."

A lot has changed since Nicklaus and Weiskopf set those U.S. Open records, including Sindelar's opening-round score.

Putting in an early bid to win this U.S. Open, Sindelar shot a 4-under-par 66 Thursday to share the first round lead with Scott Hoch and Craig Parry. One shot back heading into today's second round were Craig Stadler and Lee Janzen.

Sindelar made the turn Thursday at even par, then birdied the 11th, 12th, 13th and 15th holes to go 4-under. His only regret? He didn't birdie either of the two closing par-5s.

Hoch birdied the final two holes, the only par-5s on the course, for his 66, and Parry, an Australian and one of only two foreigners on the leaderboard, birdied the 630-yard No. 17 - the longest hole ever played in the U.S. Open.

Raymond Floyd, Fred Couples and Corey Pavin were in a group at 68 that also included Mike Smith, Robert Wrenn, Blaine McCallister and Rocco Mediate. At 1-under 69 were Michael Weeks, Wayne Grady, Bill Glasson, Jeff Maggert, Grant Waite of Australia and U.S. Amateur champion Justin Leonard of Dallas.

In all, there were 18 players who broke par over the 7,152-yard course.

In practice this week, the players agreed: The rough is not of normal U.S. Open length or thickness. And, with dry, hot weather predicted through the weekend, it's not likely to get any longer, although the greens could get even harder than they already are.

Oilers ink LB Smith

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers have announced that Pro Bowl middle linebacker Al Smith has agreed to terms on their one-year minimum tender offer.

However, there's no word yet from running back Lorenzo White and receiver Ernest Givins, said Bob Schranz, an Oilers' spokesman on Thursday.

For the three Oilers, minimum offers mean big raises, including an increase from $500,000 to at least $2.2 million for Smith.

Under the NFL's new labor agreement, teams had to make contract offers by Monday to retain transition players' right of first refusal. Minimum offers must be at least the average of the 10 highest-paid players at their positions.

Also Thursday, the Oilers released safety Derrick Crudup and quarterback Mike Power, Schranz said.

Red Blaik's Army football teams won 57 games, lost three and tied four from 1944 through 1950.

Pro quarterback Steve Young finished second in the 1983 voting for the Heisman Award.

Cavaliers get Fratello to coach

CLEVELAND (AP) - Mike Fratello doesn't expect to walk into the Cleveland Cavaliers' locker room and command instant respect.

"These are bright people. They'll watch, and they'll either say, 'This guy has no clue,' or 'This guy knows what he's talking about,'" Fratello said Thursday after he agreed to a five-year contract as the Cavaliers' new coach.

Fratello, 46, has a tough act to follow. Lenny Wilkens, the second-winningest coach in NBA history, resigned as Cleveland's coach May 24, a week after the Cavaliers were swept from the playoffs by the Chicago Bulls.

Wilkens has since signed to coach the Atlanta Hawks, the team Fratello coached to a 324-250 record during seven seasons in the 1980s.

Fratello left the Hawks under pressure and began a three-year career as a network television basketball analyst after his 1989-90 team went 41-41, a record he considers commendable in light of the injuries that afflicted that team. The Hawks won 50 or more games each of the previous four seasons.

"That was another 50-win team" had the injuries not occurred, he said.

Fratello flew to Cleveland on Thursday morning from Chicago, where he is working on NBC's telecasts of the NBA Finals. He then returned to Chicago for tonight's fifth game between the Bulls and Phoenix Suns.

Like Pat Riley, who worked as an NBC analyst between his coaching stints with the Los Angeles Lakers and New York Knicks, Fratello said he could not purge his system of the coaching bug during his three years in broadcasting.

In the Cavs, Fratello takes over a team that has won more than 50 games three times in five years, including 54 this year, but has been unable to get over the hump in the playoffs.

Lemieux is NHL's MVP

TORONTO (AP) - Mario Lemieux cried uncontrollably when doctors told him in January that he had Hodgkin's disease, a form of cancer.

Six months later, Lemieux's happiness was equally unrestrained Thursday as he won the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player and the Masterton Trophy for dedication to the sport.

"This means a lot to me because of the adversity I went through," Lemieux said. "I feel pretty good."

Lemieux's selection came as no surprise, and it was as close to unanimous as it could get. The Pittsburgh Penguins center got 49 of 50 first-place votes.

Chicago's Ed Belfour won the Vezina Trophy as the top goalie. Teammate Chris Chelios was the recipient of the Norris Trophy as the top defenseman. Belfour and Chelios were both second-time winners.

Doug Gilmour and Pat Burns ended Toronto's 27-year slump in the individual trophy race, winning the Selke Trophy for the best defensive forward and the Jack Adams award as the top coach.

Teemu Selanne of Winnipeg, who shattered NHL single-season records for most goals (76) and most points (132) by a rookie, was the unanimous choice as winner of the Calder Trophy for the league's best newcomer.

Pierre Turgeon of the New York Islanders won the Lady Bing Trophy for being the most gentlemanly player. Boston's Dave Poulin was

Gonzalez' monster night leads Rangers' rout

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

When Juan Gonzalez emerges from a slump, he does it in a big way. "That 0 for 18 is history," Gonzalez said in describing a slide that ended when he drove in a career-high eight runs to set a Texas team record while leading the Rangers to an 18-2 victory Thursday night over the California Angels. "The last couple of games, I had a lot of pressure on my mind."

Now, who knows? "Maybe tomorrow or next week, you can have 10 RBIs," he said. "Now I'm seeing the ball well and I'm hitting it hard, so there's no problem."

"It never entered my mind that I'd go 4 for 4 with eight RBIs," he said. "I'm just looking for a good game."

Among his hits was a grand slam, which put him into a tie with Cleveland's Albert Belle for the American League lead with 18 home runs.

Kenny Rogers (5-5) got additional home run support from Jose Canseco and Rafael Palmeiro in an 18-hit attack.

Gonzalez established a major-league season high for RBIs, eclipsing the seven driven in by Detroit's Cecil Fielder on June 6 against the Angels. The old Rangers record was seven, shared by Larry Parrish (1982) and Pete O'Brien (1987).

Texas, held without an extra-base hit Wednesday night for only the second time all season, built a 10-0 cushion in the first four innings against Scott Sanderson (7-6).

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Toronto 7, Boston 0; New York 6, Minnesota 5; Detroit 9, Cleveland 5, and Oakland 5, Chicago 2.

The fans at Anaheim Stadium got their only fun of the night from right-hander Chili Davis. The California designated hitter, given the night off, was pressed into service in a mop-up role over the last two innings. He retired six of seven Rangers and hit Canseco with a pitch.

"I asked for volunteers and Chili volunteered," Rodgers explained.

Yankees 6, Twins 5

At New York, Don Mattingly's two-out single in the eighth inning drove in Bernie Williams with the tie-breaking run.

Wade Boggs' sacrifice fly off reliever Larry Casian (1-1) enabled the Yankees to tie the score after Minnesota had gone ahead on a sacrifice fly by rookie Chip Hale.

Bobby Munoz earned his first major-league victory in relief. Steve Farr got his 17th save after pitching out of trouble in the ninth.

Athletics 5, White Sox 2

At Oakland, Calif., Troy Neel, recalled from the minor leagues earlier in the day, hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning for Oakland.

Bobby Witt (6-4) allowed a run on eight hits in 8 1-3 innings. Dennis Eckersley got his 12th save. Alex Fernandez (7-4) walked a season-high eight in six-plus innings.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 0

At Toronto, Al Leiter pitched a two-hitter for his first career shutout, and John Olerud tied George Bell's 1989 club-record 22-game hitting streak.

Olerud, who now has the longest hitting streak in the majors this season, got his major league-leading 25th double in the fifth inning off Paul Quantrill (2-5). But Olerud was 1-for-4, dropping from 406 to 404.

Leiter (4-5) retired the first 10 batters and struck out six in his first career complete game.

Roberto Alomar and Tony Fernandez drove in two runs each for Toronto.

Tigers 9, Indians 5

Detroit overcame Carlos Baerga's three home runs at Tiger Stadium with five of its own - including two apiece by Dan Gladden and Travis Fryman.

Rob Deer added a 465-foot, three-run shot to highlight the Tigers' seven-run sixth inning. Gladden and Fryman also homered in the inning.

Baerga drove in all the Cleveland runs with a three-run homer off Mike Moore in the first and solo shots later that gave him 12 homers and 55 RBIs.

Otherwise, Moore (5-3) allowed only other hit in eight innings. Cleveland's Dennis Cook left with a 4-2 lead after five, but the bullpen failed.

Heathcliff Slocumb (1-1) walked Cecil Fielder and Alan Trammell to start the sixth, then Deer hit his ninth homer for a 5-4 Detroit lead.

Phillies lose third straight

By The Associated Press

Even a three-game losing streak can't make the Philadelphia Phillies worry.

Chris Hammond pitched four-hit ball over eight-plus innings as Florida beat Philadelphia 4-1 Thursday night at Veterans Stadium, giving the Phillies their longest losing streak of the season.

Orestes DeStrade hit a two-run triple off loser Danny Jackson (6-3) in the first inning and the Marlins went on to snap a three-game losing streak.

"The first two months everything has gone our way," said Lenny Dykstra, who has scored runs in 12 straight games. "You can't expect that to keep happening. Nobody's worried in this clubhouse."

They are hurting, though.

Third baseman Dave Hollins will be out until early August after hand surgery and outfielder Wes Chamberlain was placed on the 15-day disabled list Thursday.

Hammond (7-4) struck out five and walked two before Bryan Harvey finished for his 20th save.

"You can't take that club lightly," Dykstra said. "They proved that tonight. They outplayed us. We're going to hit some runs here and there. Peaks and valleys. That's baseball."

Astros 4, Padres 1

Kevin Bass delivered a pinch-hit, two-run double in the seventh inning off Andy Benes (7-6) to help Houston beat San Diego at the Astrodome.

Darryl Kile (6-1) pitched seven innings and gave up one run on five hits for the victory as the Astros took two of three games in the series. Brian Williams worked two innings for his second save.

Giants 5, Reds 1

Bill Swift (9-3) carried a perfect game into the seventh inning at Riverfront Stadium before Kevin Mitchell reached on an infield single. Swift gave up one hit in eight innings.

Matt Williams hit a home run and two doubles for the Giants. He leads the majors with 20 homers.

Williams doubled twice and homered against left-hander John Smiley (3-9), as San Francisco won its eighth game in the last 20. For his career, Williams is 14 for 28 with six homers off Smiley.

Cardinals 11, Cubs 10

Ozzie Smith went 5-for-5 and drove in a career high six runs as St. Louis outlasted Chicago at Wrigley Field for its fourth straight victory.

Chicago's Sammy Sosa matched Smith, also driving in five runs with a pair of homers, his fifth career two-homer game and third this year. Dwight Smith had a two-run homer for the Cubs.

Rheal Cormier (4-3), won his second straight start, allowing nine hits and six runs in five-plus innings as the Cardinals won four straight for the first time this season. Turk Wendell (0-1) was the loser.

Pirates 6, Mets 2

Bob Walk picked up his 100th major-league victory by denying Dwight Gooden (7-6) his 150th win, and Pittsburgh ended a seven-game losing streak by beating New York at Three Rivers Stadium. Jeff King drove in four runs for the Pirates.

Walk (8-5), who had lost his two previous attempts for No. 100, improved to 100-72 over 14 seasons by pitching a six-hitter for only his second complete game in three seasons. Now 77-52 with Pittsburgh since 1984, the right-hander is 5-0 at Three Rivers Stadium this season and 13-3 over the last two seasons.

Owners vote to expand playoffs

DENVER (AP) - Baseball is joining other professional sports by expanding its playoffs.

Owners voted 26-2 Thursday to double the number of postseason teams to eight beginning in 1994, pending approval of the Major League Baseball Players Association. The exact format for the new playoff system has not yet been decided.

The current system has been in place since 1969, when the American and National leagues first split into divisions.

"We're in the 1990s heading into the 21st century and the realities of today are different from 1941," said Bud Selig of the Milwaukee Brewers, chairman of the ruling executive council. "That's hard for some to understand. Baseball doesn't exist in a vacuum."

Owners are feeling financial pressure because their national broadcast money will be cut from about $14 million per club to $7 million per team next season. In the meeting's other vote, clubs unanimously passed a resolution urging management negotiator Richard Ravitch to quickly develop a plan for more sharing of local broadcast revenue.

However, the teams tied revenue sharing to players agreeing to a salary cap, and it is unclear whether the clubs would withstand the work stoppage probably necessary to get players' agreement on a cap.

The playoff vote continues the move from tradition following commissioner Fay Vincent's forced resignation last September.

Baseball had resisted the lengthy postseasons of other sports but decided to change in order to increase late-season attendance and television ratings. Twelve of 28 NFL teams make the playoffs, while 16 of 27 clubs qualified this season in the NBA and 16 of 24 in the NHL.

"The traditionalist point of view, of which I happen to be one, holds us to a higher standard of accountability than other sports," Selig said. "On the other hand, we have a huge body of people who say our reluctance to consider change has been harmful."

The proposal passed 26-2, with the Detroit Tigers and Texas Rangers in opposition. Teams will play a best-of-5 first round with the winners advancing to the league championship series.

Under this arrangement, Game 7 of the World Series would be on Oct. 30 in 1994 and Nov. 3 in 1996.

After a series of relatively close straw votes, owners put off until September a decision on whether to have the second-place teams in each division qualify or the two non-winners with the next-best records. Owners said they will negotiate the exact plan with union head Donald Fehr, whose approval is necessary on all details. Fehr has expressed reluctance and almost certainly will use his approval as a bargaining chip in this winter's labor negotiations.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE SCENE OF A PARABLE!
ASCENDING FROM THE JORDAN VALLEY TO THE HILL COUNTRY IS A STEEP PASS ADJACENT TO JERUSALEM ("THE GOING UP TO" OR THE "PASS OF THE RED"). THIS MARKS THE BOUNDARY BETWEEN JUDAH AND BENJAMIN AND THE SHORTEST AND MOST TRAVELED ROAD FROM JERUSALEM TO JERICHO. BECAUSE IT WAS SUCH A MUCH TRAVELED ROUTE FOR CARAVANS IT BECAME, THROUGH THE CENTURIES, A HIGH SPOT FOR ROBBERS AND BRIGANDS TO PLY THEIR NEFARIOUS TRADE! IN FACT, SAINT JEROME ASCRIBED THE ORIGIN OF ITS NAME TO THE BLOOD SO FREQUENTLY SPILLED THERE BY THE HAWKISH THIEVES AS THEY PILFERED THE LOOT FROM THEIR VICTIMS. NO WONDER THAT IT WAS THE SCENE OF JESUS'S PARABLE OF THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I live in Atlanta, Ga. Every chain supermarket in the United States must be located here. Due to the keen competition, I think we get the best food prices in the country.
My wife, "June," has a gift of memory that is positively spooky. She reads the ads carefully and knows exactly how much every item should cost.
When being checked out, June watches each item as it is rung up. If the price is wrong, she calls attention to it at once. Someone is then sent back to the shelf to check it out, which means holding up the line. June has ever been wrong.
I've just read in Money magazine that people are overcharged for at least one item in 30. Just imagine how this mounts up nationwide.
A supermarket manager might say, "Think of how many errors we make in the customer's favor!" Not anymore. Did you know that in some stores if the scanner fails to register an item and you are walking out with it, a bell will ring and flickering lights will come on?
Most customers assume that the sales slip is correct, and they think no more about it. Please urge your readers to check the sales slip. It could be wrong--49 years in the food business, retired life, I must also settle my parents' estate and build a new life for myself. Some emotional support would be greatly appreciated, but none is forthcoming because "I don't need it."

I'd like to tell your readers--if you have been a caretaker, be proud of what you have done. You have been given one of life's most precious gifts--an opportunity to serve.
And for those of you who know a caretaker, ask yourself if you've been supportive and understanding. If so, bless you. If not, I'm sure you are feeling some pangs of guilt at this moment.
If you know a caretaker, offer to free him or her for a few hours on the weekend. It would be the greatest gift you will ever give.--Philadelphia
DEAR PHIL: Beautiful. Thank you for saying it so well.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were right when you said divorce can be very difficult for children. But fathers especially must realize that even if they are given the status of a second-class parent, their children still love them.
Here is a poem written by my son, Joshua, who is 17. I hope you will print it.--Irwin Eisenstein, New York City
DEAR IRWIN EISENSTEIN: Thanks for echoing the sentiments expressed by many divorced fathers. And thanks, too, for sending your son's poem. It spoke volumes.
You should be very proud of Joshua. How nice that it arrived in time to appear on Father's day.
A Lesson From My Crazy Dad
It's raining, it's pouring,
My homework is boring, and
In walks my father from a Hard day's work.
"Dad, I don't understand my math."
"Wait," he says--
He takes off his jacket.
"Let me take a look," he says--
He does it wrong, and in many Painstaking steps.
"No, Dad, not like that," I say--
After about an hour of theoretical Explaining and arguing and Frustration
"With his ignorance, I realize--
I really like my father--and I know
My math much better than I thought.

Gem of the Day: Happiness is not getting what you like but liking what you get.
