Transfer caps historic rise and fall of thrift

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association was started by well-meaning men with a well-meaning premise, and $125,000, in August 1957.

It came to rest Friday, as a branch of Bluebonnet Savings Association. Its deposits were sold to AmWest Savings. The signs are being taken down this weekend, and the oncept-association will become home of Hereford Cablevision on Monday.

In its 35 years, Hi-Plains became the granddaddy of what is now a super-huge government bailout of proportions only a bureaucrat could understand. The Resolution Trust Corp, the S&L bailout agency, has spent $87 billion to close 652 thrifts. RTC is spending at least $5 million a day to clean up the mess left by failed real estate deals, the culprit at HPS&L, and downright fraud at some others.

Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association was chartered Jan. 28, 1957 and gained approval from the Federal Savings and Loan Administration in August. In the planning since October 1956, it opened at 128 East Third on a simple premise in simpler times.

"The organization is prepared to make home loans (both building and repair) and provide a place of insured savings which will pay 3 1/2 percent interest compounded semiannually."

said the Hereford Brand in August 1957.

It was a good time for a savings and loan in Hereford. Hereford was building. In five years, it would begin to boom.

There was oil drilling activity in the northeast part of the county. The "new Hereford coliseum," today's Bull Barn, had opened; it played host to a joint meeting of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative and "Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative" in April.

New buildings going up included Cooper's Market, Hereford State Bank, Suit's Auto Supply and Cowser and Bybee Law Offices.

Jimmie Allred was the president, and Bob McLean of the Dimmitt banking family was chairman of the board. Ray Cowser was secretary and treasurer. Those men would lead Hi-Plains to prosperity that paid stockholders back many more times the original price when the organizers had to come up with that first, tough $125,000 capital.

Hi-Plains grew conservatively in size of building but rapidly in worth over the next 25 years. The building needed better quarters, and moved to new quarters at 119 E. Fourth. (An interesting side note: Hereford Cablevision came along at about the time Hi-Plains moved. Cablevision is moving from 126 E. Third, or next door to the original Hi-Plains, to 119 E. Fourth.)

The assets boomed with Hereford. Hi-Plains financed well over half of what is north and west of the present football stadium and Centre Street. It was here to help with home loans, both building and repair, and provide a place of insured savings.

Then came rapid inflation, rapid growth, and rapid change.

Savings and loans seemed to be doing pretty well, but needed to grow with the times. It was, after all, the 1970s. Hi-Plains, like other S&Ls, was allowed to enter the money market and certificate of deposit business. It made sense that if loans were 20 percent and above, no one in the thrift business would get hurt if they paid super-high interest rates for long-term investments.

So they did. Besides, they needed the money, the $1,000, the $10,000, the $100,000, to invest in the real estate boom that was almost here.

New investors, new directors, some from the big city with big city ideas, put their ideas to work at Hi-Plains. They came, they saw, they took. And took. And took. After all, a former director said privately this week, everything looked and sounded so good. Management, he said, had earned their trust. In fact, he said, management didn't do anything wrong.

Two of Hi-Plains principals, James Gentry and W.W. "Doc" Taylor, essentially sacrificed their good name to prove they weren't up to no good.

End of an era at old savings bank

Friday was the last day of business for the Hereford branch of bluebonnet Savings Bank. The transfer of accounts to AmWest Savings ended an era for this building, which was headquarters of Hi Plains Savings and Loan Association. Hi Plains was one of the first institutions to go down in what has become known as the "S&L bailout."

An Amarillo jury declared them not guilty in a trial in 1986. Gentry was a Hereford native who was active in civic and church work here. He was a partner in First Realty of the Southwest before climbing into the president's chair at HPS&L. Taylor ran Southwest Mortgage Service Corp. in Dallas, and had a hand in a Clovis thrift.

The two were charged with conspiring to fraudulently obtaining money from Hi-Plains. The government (See BLUEBONNET, Page 2A)

"House" at Coronado Acres

This "house" has sat vacant for some time at Coronado Acres. The appearance of the property at the development south of Hereford has some folks worried about a new development planned northeast of Hereford. Charlie Bell, who sold lots at Coronado Acres and is the principal in the planned Progressive Place, said deed restrictions preclude houses like this.

Hearing is Monday on development 'Progressive Place' raises questions for some citizens

A new development planned northeast of Hereford will be the subject of a hearing Monday night by the Hereford City Commission.

Progressive Place is an 80 acre tract about 1 1/2 miles northeast of Hereford on Progressive Road. Charlie Bell of Hereford and John Davis of Corpus Christi plan to divide the tract into 28 lots and sell them.

Several citizens are concerned the subdivision could become another Coronado Acres, a subdivision that was sold by Bell over 10 years ago about seven miles south of Hereford along U.S. Highway 385.

At Coronado Acres, lots were sold in five acre tracts with virtually no deed restrictions. While some of the lots have a good appearance, others do not. Several have makeshift livestock pens on them; others have

Brand story leads to arrest in '89 vandalism

A story in the Hereford Brand over two years ago led to the Friday arrest of Mario Flores Jr. for criminal mischief on Halloween 1989 at West Park Cemetery.

Flores, 24, was arrested last month in the murder of Johnny Martinez, 15, on Sept. 2, 1990 southwest of Hereford.

Flores was arraigned Friday by District Judge David Wesley Gulley for criminal mischief, causing damage between $750 and $20,000. The charge says Flores pushed over grave markers and caused them to break.

If Flores is convicted of that charge, he could be sentenced up to 10 years in prison and fined up to $10,000. He could also be forced to pay restitution.

Flores' bond was set at $50,000 on the criminal mischief charge. Flores is in Deaf Smith County Jail in lieu of $100,000 on the murder charge. He was charged in Blackfoot, Idaho on July 1. He waived extradition and was brought back to Hereford by Sheriff Joe Brown and district attorney's investigator David Wagner.

Flores is believed to be the man that called Brand Managing Editor John Brooks at his home in Hereford. The man in that conversation took credit for the damage at St. Anthony's. The man also said that "something big" was going to be done near Hereford "that will blow people away."

It is not known if there was a connection between that statement and the Labor Day weekend bludgeoning murder of Martinez at an abandoned house just southwest of the city.

Privately, investigators said they were able to find several links between the story in the Brand and statements from Flores that led to the arrest in the cemetery vandalism.

Republicans weren't always welcome in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - The first Republican elected president didn't get a single vote in Texas.

Things didn't get much better for the GOP in the next 100 years or so, either.

But today, the incumbent president is a Texas Republican. Texas this month will host its second GOP national convention in eight years.

And the nation's third-largest state remains, as Richard Nixon's strategists once described it, the "big enchilada" - a huge electoral vote prize. No modern Democrat has won the White House without carrying Texas.

"There's no doubt that we're a two-party state now," said George Strake of Houston, former state GOP chairman who presided over dozens of election victories during the 1980s.

It wasn't always so. From the Civil War to the 1960s, Texas was like other Southern states - while there may have been liberals and conservatives, all voted Democratic.

President Bush, who calls Houston home, recounted that dilemma in his autobiography, "Looking Forward," when discussing his early involvement in Texas politics.

"The case against Republicans, as far as Texans were concerned, went back a century, to the Civil War and Reconstruction era. The state was solidly Democratic, and the allegiance of Texans to 'the party of our fathers' became even stronger during the lean years of the Depression," Bush wrote.

How lonely were Texas Republicans?

"Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican U.S. president, got no votes in Texas. He wasn't on the 1860 ballot.

"The first Republican elected governor, E.J. Davis in 1869, is described by one book as "the most vilified" in Texas history. He left office only after President Ulysses S. Grant denied his request for troops following his election loss to Democrat Richard Coke.

Republicans lost control of the Texas Legislature in 1871. They've never regained it.

-By 1892, Republicans were so scarce that gubernatorial candidate A.J. Houston - youngest son of Texas hero Sam Houston - received only 1,322 votes, less than 1 percent of the total received by winner Jim Hogg, a Democrat.

-The first Republican to win a statewide race after Reconstruction didn't do so until 1961. Wichita Falls college professor John Tower's victory in that U.S. Senate race came by a margin of 10,343 votes out of 886,091 cast.

-The 1964 presidential victory of Texan Lyndon B. Johnson swept most Republicans from office. "All GOP congressmen in Texas were defeated, and only one Republican was elected to the Legislature. The work of a decade was in shambles," says the newly published "Texas Almanac's Political History of Texas."

-In 1975, elected Republicans remained hard to find. The GOP held just 17 of 181 seats in the Legislature, one of 254 county sheriff posts, eight of 254 county judgeships and 19 county commissioner seats out of 1,016.

-A total of 105 years passed between the time the first GOP governor, Davis, left office in 1874 and the second, Dallas oilman Bill Clements, entered in 1979. Defeated in 1982 and elected again in 1986, Clements remains the only Republican governor since Reconstruction.

"It was a long time" between those victories, Strake says. "I remember that when I became secretary of state (appointed by Clements), I was only the third Republican. I said my goal was to be the best ... I think the first one committed suicide and the second was indicted."

The first cracks in the Democrats' stranglehold occurred in the 1950s, when Dwight Eisenhower twice carried Texas in presidential elections. The split between conservative "Tory" Democrats and liberals began to widen.

Then, in 1961, Republicans grabbed their first major prize. Tower won a special election to the U.S. Senate, filling the seat vacated by LBJ's election as vice president.

"If a political Richter scale had existed on May 27, 1961, it could not have registered the magnitude of this sudden, fierce earthquake that shook the entire state of Texas," writes Austin consultant John Knaggs in his book, "Two-Party Texas."

"Nor could it have measured the massive aftershock that rumbled across every other state of the old Confederacy

Beville ready for defense

Bob Beville and his family, including Nelson, Lauren and Katherine, clean the grills as they get ready to defend their title in the annual Jubilee Fajita Cookoff. The event is sponsored by Hereford CattleWomen and will be held August 14 in Dameron Park. Entry information is available at the chamber office. Beville said he issued a challenge to Mike "Nocook" Hatley and others to take on his I-O (no-bar-oh) cooking team's secret recipe.

Crimestoppers offers reward

Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers is offering a reward of up to $300 for information leading to an arrest and indictment in the Crime of the Week. Hereford police are investigating a burglary that occurred sometime July 25-26 in the 200 block of Sixth Ave. Several items, worth $1,000, were taken. Missing are a VCR, Nintendo game center, jewelry box, 10-speed bike and an exercise bike. If you have information about this or any other crime, call the Clue Line at 364-2583. If your information leads to an arrest and indictment, you will receive a reward of up to $300. All callers may remain anonymous by using a code name or number. All final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

Police arrest four persons

Hereford police arrested four persons Friday: a man, 27, for driving while license suspended and evading arrest; a man, 39, for no seat belt and violation of promise to appear; a man, 18, for minor in possession; and a woman, 35, for theft of $102 worth of items in the 1100 block of W. Park. Reports included criminal mischief in the 1100 block of West U.S. Highway 60; assault in the 1100 block of W. Park; theft of beer; broken windows in the 200 block of North; domestic violence assault in the 600 block of Irving; domestic disturbance in the 800 block of S. McKinley; discharging fireworks in the 700 block of Stanton; and injury to a child in the 600 block of Irving. Police issued 23 tickets Friday and investigated a minor accident. Hereford volunteer firefighters extinguished a dumpster fire behind Edwards Laundry on Friday morning.

City will meet Monday

Hereford city commissioners will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at City Hall. The agenda includes bids for an office at the wastewater treatment plant and sale of a used fire truck; consideration of the final plat for Progressive Place; approval of a resolution to participate in a state grant for airport improvements; and appointment of a city representative to the Hereford Beautification Alliance.

Columbus celebrations planned worldwide

EDITOR'S NOTE - Cities on both sides of the Atlantic are celebrating the voyage of Christopher Columbus 500 years ago with an endless variety of expositions, parades, picnics, museum exhibits, regattas and rodeos. But it is a time of mourning for Native Americans and others who say the explorer brought to the New World colonialism, plunder, slavery, racism, and decimation of the native population.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The largest city in the world named for Christopher Columbus is serenely sailing into headwinds of controversy and nimbly tacking around shoals of political correctness to celebrate the quincentennial of America's discovery.

Or conquest, depending on how you read history's revised charts. The Ohio capital's AmeriFlora '92, a combined mini-world's fair and international flower show, is the centerpiece of Uncle Sam's grudging salute to the beleaguered Genoese navigator.

But this city has discovered it no longer charts quite so lonely a course. Other cities have joined in celebrating the 500th anniversary of that first landfall in the Caribbean on Oct. 12, 1492 which Columbus-bashers say led to colonialism, plunder, slavery, racism, environmental damage and decimation of America's native population by disease and the sword.

Of course Genoa, Italy, Columbus's sister city which donated the huge bronze statue of her favorite son in front of city hall, is going all out with Colombo '92. Built around the theme of "Ships and the Sea," the exposition is costing the Italian government a half-billion dollars or five times as much as America's best effort.

And, since Chicago for fiscal and political reasons backed down on reprising its great Columbian

Exposition of a century ago, Seville, Spain - where Columbus gathered most of his crew - is now alone in hosting Expo '92, a $2.5 billion world's fair with exhibits from more than 100 nations. The summer Olympics in Barcelona round out Spain's jubilee celebration.

Considering that Columbus never got to North America, where his image has taken the hardest hits, the quincentennial observance across the United States is its endless variety. Activities range from parades, picnics and museum exhibits of Columbian artifacts to marathons, regattas and rodeos honoring Columbus for reintroducing the horse to America after an absence of 10,000 years. Observances in Miami, Cincinnati and San Francisco feature rarely performed operas based on the explorer's exploits by - respectively - Darius Milhaud, Jacques Offenbach and Alberto Franchetti.

Columbus, Miss. (pop. 30,000, incorporated 1821), one of the oldest U.S. cities named for the navigator, is celebrating with "tales from the crypt," a visit to the graveyard where Memorial Day was born in 1866 when ladies placed flowers on the graves of both Confederate and Union soldiers and a re-enactment of Columbus's landing transposed to the banks of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway.

Columbus Junction, Iowa, perhaps the smallest community bearing his name, will celebrate his feast day by doling out soda pop and ham sandwiches to each of its 1,616 inhabitants and any visitors who happen by.

Columbus, Kan., is asking everyone born on Oct. 12 to join its big birthday bash, and Columbus, Texas, invites everyone named Christopher or Columbus to line up in its quincentennial parade behind grand marshal Christopher Lee of Boalsburg, Pa., a descendant of the explorer.

Decked out in the full fig of a renaissance admiral, including the floppy velvet Ph.D. cap, Joseph Lauffer of Columbus, N.J., has dropped by a number of communities to help hail Columbus. Out of the blue he descended on Columbus, Wis., in a hot air balloon to make the point of "Columbus discovering Columbus."

Least any Columbus-Christened community go undiscovered, photographer Rick Vanderpool of Athens, Ga., has visited all 63 U.S. cities, counties, towns, hamlets and whistle-stops bearing any variation of the name to assemble a photo exhibit.

A number of communities not eponymously related to the Genoese mariner have scheduled commemorative

Holly announces new positions

Holly Sugar Corporation has announced the appointment of two new agriculturists in Hereford. Holly also announced the transfer of a former Hereford employee, Eddie Thompson, to research agronomist in the plant pathology department at Holly's factory in Tracy, Calif.

Moving to Hereford are Ricky Backus and Dave Dahlsad.

Backus, a native of Nazareth, Texas, is the son of Hubert and Joan Backus of Nazareth. He graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Texas, with a bachelor of arts degree in business management. Prior to joining Holly, Backus worked as district sales manager for R.C. Young Seed Company in Lubbock. In 1990, he worked as a part-time agriculturist for Holly at Hereford. His background also includes farm work with J.C. Pohlmeider Farm in Nazareth.

He and his wife, Crystal, reside in Hereford.

Dahlsad, a native of Georgetown, Minnesota, is the son of Vernon and Gladys Dahlsad of Moorhead, Minnesota. He received a bachelor of science degree in agronomy from North Dakota State University in Fargo in 1987. He is also a graduate of the beet and sugar technology courses of the McGinnis Institute of Beet Sugar

BACKUS

Technology at Colorado State University.

Dahlsad worked for American Crystal Sugar Company during campaigns from 1971 to 1979. From 1974 to 1983, he farmed near Georgetown, Minnesota. Dahlsad was a technician's assistant for an oat breeding project at North Dakota State University from 1983 to 1987, and in 1988, he was a technician for the university's Sugarbeet Extension Service.

DAHLSAD

He and his wife, Kathy, the parents of Derek, Simon and Erin, reside in Hereford.

Thompson, a native of Sweetwater, Texas, is the son of Charles and Mary Ann Thompson of Garland, Texas. He has both a bachelor of science degree and a master's degree in plant science from West Texas State University in Canyon. Thompson joined Holly as an agriculturist at the Hereford, Texas, factory in 1988.

THOMPSON

Before joining Holly, he was employed from 1979 to 1988 as a technician with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Stations in Amarillo and Bushland. His background also includes employment with a family-owned business, Sweetwater Ice Company, and with Bell Pest Control in Amarillo, Texas.

Thompson and his wife, Celia, have two children, Kelly and Zachary, and reside in Ripon, California.

BLUEBONNET

alleged that Gentry wired $3.8 million from Hi-Plains to accounts under Taylor's control.

The jury was not convinced, however, that there was a conspiracy, and acquitted them both.

During the trial, Gentry said he approached HPS&L's board because he knew Taylor was interested in purchasing stock in the association. The two contracted with Hi-Plains, in the fall of 1982, to obtain high-rate loans for the thrift. Two months later, on Dec. 13, 1982, Gentry was elected to the board; a month later, he became its CEO.

In December 1982, Gentry said, Taylor opened a $6.6 million line of credit with the thrift, purportedly to purchase loans that would be assigned to Hi-Plains. However, the association had no collateral for the transfers, some testified. Defense attorney Travis Shelton showed there was collateral worth its purchase price and that other members of the board agreed to transfer the money without first obtaining collateral.

Gentry said he pressed Taylor for collateral, but Taylor told him time-share paper had been held up in Texarkana. The defense was able to prove there was over $2.5 million worth of collateral paper in the safe on one occasion the thrift was audited; somehow, the collateral was not shown as an asset.

"It's a sad situation when a man can be charged with serious crimes without substantial evidence," Gentry said after the jury returned its not guilty verdict.

Since the feds didn't get their pound of flesh in the criminal trail against Gentry and Taylor, they filed suit Nov. 20, 1987 against 24 former directors and officers of the thrift. FSLIC claimed breaches of "fiduciary duties, ...statutory duties, ...contractual duties, negligence, gross negligence and conspiracy of the persons and entities described as defendants."

A handful of local folks, many of whom lost out in the thrift's fall, were named. But the feds went after folks from Dallas, Victoria, Houston and Austin. One group was trying to make a go of it in Austin, another, in Dallas, another in Houston. In all, the loss of $119 million was laid at the feet of 24 people. The local folks settled their difference, best they could, with RTC. Some of the other cases are still out there, lurking as mostly-empty buildings across Texas piling up debt in the RTC.

Just as banks and S&Ls didn't pay interest "compounded semiannually" like Hi-Plains did when it opened in 1957, the interest it had to pay was compounded daily. There was interest to pay, and there were losses incurring. All of the real estate in which the thrift had invested was going down the tubes faster than a lab rat. By the time the thrift was assumed by Bluebonnet Savings in December 1988, the thrift was losing $700,000. That was despite having basically made no new loans, good, bad or indifferent, in four years.

Hi-Plains was put under the control of state supervisors in April 1985. The board was turned over to University Savings Association of Houston, and was renamed Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association FSA. According to the RTC, it was just a "pass through receivership..." for the old assets and liabilities.

Hi-Plains sat there, trying desperately to cut losses without a lot of success, for four years. There was nothing to do. Other S&Ls were beginning to experience the same problems HPS&L had been going through for four years. Suddenly, there were no buyers out there except the buyer of last resort.

The federal government.

When Hi-Plains went to consolidated Federal Savings Bank (now Bluebonnet) in December of 1988, it had the second-biggest liability mark of all thrifts at that time. Liabilities were over $111 million, and assets were $45 million.

Bluebonnet basically got a sweetheart deal to get Hi-Plains and 14 other thrifts. Some were almost as bad as, others were in a lot better shape than, HPS&L: Lamesa Federal was only $300,000 in the red. That's what Hi-Plains was racking up every two weeks, according to the RTC.

The holding company led by private investor James Fail got the 14 thrifts for an investment of $120 million. The FSLIC provided a $836.7 million, 10-year note to restore net worth, capital loss coverage on certain assets, and a yield maintenance agreement on some assets. Fail and the others share gains on covered assets with the government on a 10/90 basis for the first $15 million, with a maximum of 20 percent.

The fed also got a warrant for 20 percent of Consolidated/Bluebonnet's common stock, with a $10 million payment at the end of the 10-year agreement in addition to the warrants. In return, the RTC kept most of the non-paying assets, while Bluebonnet got to pick the cherries, the people who were making house payments and land payments and interest payments.

It was too good of a deal for Howard Metzenbaum. He called it "very sweet."

The crusty Ohio senator, as is his right, decided to hold hearings, seeing if he could find out why James Fail got such a good deal on the Texas thrifts.

The committee came out with loaded guns. It pointed out that not a lot of work went into Fail's background. Fail had been in trouble in Alabama with his insurance business. That, Metzenbaum and others claimed, should have been brought forward by Fail, the FSLIC or someone. He charged no one did anything about it.

Metzenbaum also claimed that Fail "made a total investment of $120 million in return for $3 billion from the American taxpayers... You got an investment of $270 million in 1989 (from the federal government)."

Fail and his leaders, however, claim that Bluebonnet is profitable not because of sweet deals but because of astute management. Howard Neff, Bluebonnet's CEO, said in 1989 that Bluebonnet would get $1.2 billion from the feds over 10 years to manage the assets. Those assets must be sold or Bluebonnet will have to buy them.

Bluebonnet has played hardball with its liabilities, including newspapers that have run negative articles about the thrift's dealings with the federal government. After a Brand series in 1989 over the Fail acquisition, Bluebonnet's ad agency in Dallas canceled its advertising schedule with the paper and threatened to refuse payment for an ad in that issue. The ad, however, was paid for, and the company later advertised a handful of times.

PROGRESSIVE

had old houses and other buildings, many of which are dilapidated, moved on to them.

The subdivision has been the subject of several debates in the Castro County commissioners' court. Commissioners, however, have no zoning powers.

Bell said this week that Progressive Place "will be different," and said he no longer had anything to do with Coronado Acres.

"We sold all of those lots long ago," Bell said. "It's really up to the neighbors to police themselves."

According to the proposed deed restrictions for Progressive Place, things will indeed be different.

Restrictions will forbid:

- Junkyards, wrecking yards salvage yards, liquor stores and commercial feed lot operations.
- Each owner must provide for water and waste disposal systems in compliance with government regulations.
- Any house moved onto a lot must be in livable condition, and any partially completed residence must be fully completed with a year after it is moved onto a lot.
- No shacks or old barracks can be moved onto a lot.
- No more than two trailer houses may be located on a lot.
- These will be 2.5 acre tracts, half the size of those at Coronado Acres, and I think that will keep a lot of the junk out," Bell said.

City Manager Chester Nolen said Friday that Herb Vogel, who appeared before the county commissioners' court on Monday, had already been to his office to talk about the development. Others have also indicated to Nolen they will be at the city meeting Monday.

The city has zoning jurisdiction over the proposed development even though it's outside the city limits. Law gives the city a five-mile extra-jurisdictional prerogative over developments like this.

Parade entries being accepted

Hereford's Whiteface Kiwanis Club will try to outdo 1991's parades with the 1992 Town and Country Jubilee Parade on August 15. Bikes, floats and other entries are being accepted at the chamber office, Seventh and Main. Jim Ward and Robert Chavez are co-chairmen.

The Officers and Members of the Hereford Chapter of Ambucs wish to express their gratitude to the Local Businesses and individuals who purchased tickets to the recent Medicine Show. We also want to THANK everyone else who helped make the show a success. Our entire proceeds from this activity are contributed to The Big Brothers-Big Sisters Organization at The Local Level.

REPUBLICANS

... The once Democratic Solid South, shaken somewhat by the revolt for Dwight Eisenhower in the 1950s, had been cracked wide open," Knaggs wrote.

Tower's victory was staggering. Texas Republicans hadn't even bothered to hold a primary election in 1960. But liberal Democrats couldn't bring themselves to vote for conservative William Blakely of Dallas, and many figured Tower would be easier to knock off when the term ended in 1966.

He wasn't. Tower won re-election in 1966, 1972, 1978, retiring in 1984. His seat remains Republican. In 1984 and 1990, it was won by Phil Gramm, a one-time "Boll Weevil" Democrat who had changed parties in 1983 and is widely considered a 1996 presidential prospect.

"The political system prior to Tower was one party with two factions," Knaggs said. "It didn't change the whole picture immediately, but Tower's election provided a rallying point for Republicans at lower levels who'd been voting for conservative Democrats."

Current GOP Chairman Fred Meyer of Dallas says the gradual change in voting by conservative Texans has boosted his party's ranks.

"Go back 20 years ago, the conservative Democrats were in control," Meyer said. "The thing today is that somewhere between 50 and 60 percent of voters in Texas identify themselves as conservative. They may not all be Republicans, but they're conservatives."

Republicans say several factors contributed to GOP growth:

-Republican women's clubs. For years, they staffed phone banks, licked envelopes, conducted get-out-the-vote drives. "I give them a huge amount of credit. They provided the determination and the workers that allowed us to get where we are today," Strake said.

-Party switching. In 1962, Democrat Jack Cox switched parties after losing a close gubernatorial race against Price Daniel. In the early 1970s, former Gov. John Connally switched. During Strake's tenure as GOP chairman, 55 incumbent or former Democratic officeholders did the same.

"Two people who helped on that were Phil Gramm and George Bush," Strake said. "I could call them night or day and say, 'I've got a county commissioner who's thinking about becoming a Republican.' They would make the calls. You get a call from a United States senator or the vice president of the United States, that's pretty impressive."

-Immigration. As the Texas economy boomed in the 1970s and 1980s, thousands of Republicans moved in from the Northeast and Midwest. For the newcomers, voting Republican wasn't an alien notion.

-Ronald Reagan. His 1984 renominating convention was held in Dallas, and his personal popularity helped candidates down the ballot.

Despite the gains, change has come slowly.

In many areas, Texas remains a Democratic stronghold. Nearly two dozen counties didn't even hold GOP presidential primary this year. Democrats control the state House and Senate. Of the seven top statewide offices, only two - treasurer and agriculture commissioner - are held by Republicans.

But Republicans are only one vote short of a majority on the nine-member Texas Supreme Court, hold more than one-third of the state House seats and count eight seats in Congress. Hundreds more hold local offices, which Meyer and Strake see as the real achievement.

"We control 23 of the 254 counties, but it's 45 percent of the population," Meyer said, noting GOP success in the state's metropolitan areas.

"It's not so much that we have a Texas Republican as president, or the fact that we've had a Republican U.S. senator for the last 31 years, but more that we have 800-plus Republicans who are in the courthouses now," Strake said. "That's what makes it a viable two-party state."

ATTRACTIVE NUISANCE

When someone is hurt on your property despite your warnings to stay away, the obligations rest on the concept of an attractive nuisance. It presumes that children are curious creatures and are likely to get into trouble as a result. You as the property owner will be held liable if a child hurts themselves while in a tempting place such as your pool or tree house even though you have warned them to stay away. Piles of building materials or an uncovered hole on the lawn also might be attractive to children. It's really your obligation as a homeowner to see that dangers are removed. As a homeowner you should take every effort to prevent such accidents by erecting fences, warning signs and eliminating unnecessary hazards. Pools are especially tempting to children so you might consider a cover that completely covers the pool and be sure that your are covered by the correct amount of liability insurance.

No trust fund

"Take-home pay" is a common phrase used by folks who earn a regular paycheck. Most of them probably don't pay much attention to the itemized stub which includes two big items--federal income tax withholding and their contribution to the FICA, or Social Security system.

The FICA amount is matched by the employer and then sent to Washington to be safely stored away in a trust fund for employees' retirement years. Well, that's the way it's supposed to work.

But there is no such thing as a Social Security Trust Fund. Every dollar that is sent to our nation's capitol is immediately spent, either for benefits for current retirees or by the general fund. It's called robbing Peter to pay Paul. The social security funds provide a ready source of cash for all the other spending that Congress has mandated for the year.

What really blows your mind is to consider this: If the federal government had set up a separate fund to draw interest on those dollars when the Social Security system was initiated--and had not used the money except for retiree benefits--that fund today would form the richest treasury in the world! That's the word from a former administrator of the Social Security system.

And, if that had happened, we wouldn't have to keep increasing the FICA contributions.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says anyone who's on a diet no longer thinks of the refrigerator as an entertainment center.

Why is a newspaper ten times more interesting when somebody across the table is reading it?

A boy is grown up when he walks around a puddle.

Hats off to the members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department and the EMS crew for helping avert a near tragedy here Monday. Most of us usually take these volunteers for granted, but they provide a safety net in our community that often saves lives.

Did you know that more than half of the delegates to the Democratic convention were women? And, according to a Washington Post/ABC news poll, more than half the delegates consider themselves liberal.

The word "profit" is probably unknown to most of those folks. Most of them earn their living from the non-profit world--they're either elected officials or work for a public interest group, an environment organization or a university.

The poll also revealed that a majority of the delegates make more than $50,000 a year; 44% have post-graduate education, and 28% are college graduates. Almost 500 delegates are members of either the National Education Association or the American Federation of Teachers.

Some local folks made another delivery of food items to tornado victims at Fritch. We previously reported that Ray Reddinger, with the Hereford Elks, and his wife, Celia, made a delivery of donated items from Holly Sugar and Panhandle Milling.

Another trip was made with potatoes donated by Colville & Wilson, chips, sweet breads, tortillas and hot sauce given by Ramirez & Sons, and meat donated by IBP and Excel. Harry Stevens and Reddinger provided a truck and van for the delivery, which was made by Reddinger, his wife and Susie Pearson, the latter two employed at Holly Sugar.

A Sunday School student, when asked which Bible story he liked best, had a ready response: "The one in which everyone loafs and fishes."

Speaking of Sunday School stories, we liked one about how a sixth-grade teacher who found a way to deal with a boy who was acting up and being very disturbing to her and the class.

She finally walked over to him, put her arm around his shoulder and whispered in his ear. He recoiled, looking at the teacher fearfully, then sat up straight and was a model student the rest of the morning.

What had she whispered to him? "If you don't be quiet, I'll kiss you."

Behind every great man is his mother. If you don't believe it, just check these historical examples presented by a humorist in Delaware:

Mrs. Morse: "Sam, stop tapping your fingers on the table--you're driving my crazy!"

Mrs. Lindberg: "Charles, can't you do anything by yourself?"

Mrs. Armstrong: "Neil's got no more business taking flying lessons than the man in the moon!"

Mrs. Washington: "George, if you can't pick those cherries any faster, I'll never get this pie baked!"

An AP News Analysis

Clinton schooled in counterpunch

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the last campaign, the Democratic nominee cringed when George Bush called him too liberal. This time, Bill Clinton mocked the very idea as a scratched Republican record with the needle stuck.

On labels, on foreign policy, on capital punishment and other matters, the Clinton campaign has adopted a strategy of prompt - sometimes preemptive - rebuttal.

It may succeed and it may not. The Republicans haven't yet launched the full fall campaign offensive that is sure to begin at their convention in Houston, which opens Aug. 17.

But the Clinton campaign already has established that its candidate will not play the passive resistance politics of 1988, when Michael Dukakis stuck to his own script and seldom counterpunched. Dukakis now says the new campaigners have learned and applied the hard lessons of his losing race against Bush.

The difference is on display in the liberal labeling argument.

Dukakis said in 1988 that the campaign and election were about competence, not ideology. He ran that way, even after Bush made L for liberal a major liability that equaled spending, taxes and softness on crime, on defense, even on patriotism. In every set speech, Bush said he, not "the liberal governor of Massachusetts" shared the beliefs of most Americans.

Republicans now seek to change the tune but keep the theme. Bush says the middle-road, moderate image of Arkansas Gov. Clinton is only camouflage for a liberal. Clinton says "liberal" is the only word the Republicans know, calling it an old dog that won't hunt again.

In his pre-convention campaigning, the president quotes George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic nominee and an unabashed liberal, as saying that Clinton and Sen. Al Gore, the vice presidential nominee, would show themselves to be liberals once they were elected. Bush said they stand for big government, for spending and for taxes.

That's bull, Clinton told a liberal audience in San Diego on Monday. He said Bush is trying to make it a campaign of "liberal versus conservative, left versus right" instead of talking about new ideas and solutions.

"People try to put on yesterday's broken record that sticks in the same old place in the song: tax and spend, tax and spend, tax and spend," he said in a mocking singsong voice, to applause and laughter at the National Urban League convention.

"And then they have the negative handlers push the arm a little farther. It sticks again and it goes: liberal, liberal, liberal."

Dukakis, by contrast, said early in his campaign that Bush should stop criticizing others. He avoided the liberal description and complained in two campaign debates that Bush kept trying to apply it to him. Then, nine days before the election, he said he was one. "I'm a liberal in the tradition of Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman and John Kennedy," he said.

Clinton said all along that he was a counter-puncher, schooled in a state where politics can be tough and personal, prepared not only to match attacks but to escalate them.

After Bush said he was the man the voters could trust on foreign policy, and his spokesman called Clinton reckless, the Democrats delivered a three-way rebuttal seeking to put the argument in their own terms. It came from Clinton, Gore and former President Carter.

The Democratic National Committee issued a four-page compilation of statements by Republicans saying, as Clinton had, that the United States should consider air strikes to guard United Nations relief efforts in Bosnia.

Clinton and company wound up sounding tougher than Bush toward Serbian cease-fire violations in Yugoslavia, and toward Saddam Hussein in Iraq.

In prior campaigns, Republicans have usually taken the hard line on foreign policy. In this one, they talked of making an issue of Democratic leaders' opposition to the resolution that authorized Bush to use force in the Persian Gulf.

But Gore voted for the advance authorization in the Senate; Clinton, in Arkansas, was vague about that but backed the war once it began.

So, too, on another question: crime and capital punishment. Clinton said Wednesday he was appalled that Vice President Dan Quayle was trying to make an issue of the suggestion that he would appoint justices opposed to the death penalty.

"Dan Quayle and George Bush can talk about capital punishment," said Clinton, who has signed off on four executions as governor. "I'm the only one who's carried it out."

EDITOR'S NOTE - Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 25 years.

Notes on the law

When you rent a car, the rental agent is certain to offer the "extra coverages" to you. If you respond that you do not need the extra coverages, the agent is trained to make you feel as though you made a big mistake.

Inevitably, as you drive away, there is a lingering question in your mind as to whether you should go back and take the extra coverage. So what is the answer?

Basically, if you have comprehensive coverage on your personal vehicle, then you are fully covered while driving the rental vehicle. Your policy may limit coverage of rental vehicles to 20 or 30 days, so you only need extra coverage if you intend to keep the rental car for an extended period of time.

You should keep in mind that if your liability limit is only the minimum required by state law, then purchasing the extra coverages could be an inexpensive way of increasing your protection. If you are driving in heavy traffic or in an unfamiliar location, then the extra liability protection might prove valuable.

If you have liability coverage and uninsured/underinsured coverage on your personal vehicle, then you should buy the extra coverage for property damage. If you damage the rental car, neither your liability or your uninsured/underinsured coverage would pay for repairs.

With uninsured/underinsured coverage on your personal car, damages caused to the rental vehicle by some third person would be covered by your insurance in the event the third person had no insurance.

Likewise, if your only carry liability coverage on your vehicle, then you would want to accept the extra coverages offered on the rental car. Under the rental agreement, you are made liable for property damage to the rental car and also for loss of use of the rental car while it is being repaired.

This column is based on general provisions found in most insurance policies. The column is not intended as specific advice regarding your insurance coverage.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS PROMOTING COMPETITIVENESS

by Dr. Richard L. Lasher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON - Politicians who champion competitiveness, like lawyers who extol ethics, should first get their own house in order before they attempt to help others.

To the extent we have a competitiveness problem, it is largely the result of laws and policies made in Washington. Before Congress sets out to help business become more competitive, it should first recognize how it has undermined productivity and efficiency, and seek to undo the damage.

A good start would be to repeal foolish tax laws that punish saving and capital investment. Even those critics who insist we are not overtaxed will admit we are badly taxed. No better examples exist than the punitive taxes on savings income and capital gains. Once they are consigned to the incinerator, capital investment will take off like a rocket.

Congress should be replacing punitive taxes with incentives to encourage capital investment, such as accelerated depreciation and investment tax credits. It also would be wise to restore Individual Retirement Accounts to encourage savings.

Next Congress should take a chainsaw to the regulatory thicket that is strangling our private sector. More than 122,000 federal bureaucrats are grinding out new rules and regulations by the barrel. If Congress will not trust the executive to ride herd on federal regulators, subjecting new rules to a strict cost-benefit test, then it should create an alternate mechanism to perform such a review.

It is an open secret that our infrastructure is under stress from years of neglect. We must begin now to upgrade our highways, bridges, rail systems and airports. That kind of long-term investment, as opposed to consumption, more than justifies use of borrowed funds.

We also desperately need a coherent energy policy that will permit rational development of our natural resources, and full use of our most abundant, safe and environmentally clean source of energy -- nuclear power.

One of the most troublesome afflictions besetting our economy is the irrational product liability system that promotes frivolous lawsuits and discourages innovation and expansion. Yet, Congress continues to duck the issue.

Likewise, there are many promising options Congress can undertake to improve our K-12 schools, and rein in the soaring cost of medical care. The key is a nationwide high performance computer network that will become an information equivalent to the Interstate Highway System. It will promote educational excellence, improvement of medical care, and more effective research and development, among other things.

There is no great mystery to competitiveness. Our vision of the future is clear, and beckons us onward. What is missing is courage to make hard decisions, and a will to act.

activities. Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti will be grand marshal of Philadelphia's big parade on Sunday, Oct. 11. Salt Lake City's Mormon Tabernacle Choir scheduled a nationwide tour to serenade the doughty discoverer with folk songs, spirituals and classical choruses.

Corpus Christi, Tex., and St. Augustine, Fla., also observed Queen Isabella's birthday on April 22, braving further slings and arrows from Jewish and civil rights groups who grimly note that the Jews she expelled from Spain sailed on the same tide that carried Columbus out to sea on that first voyage. Corpus Christi, designated the official Texas city for the quincentennial, winds up its celebration with the dedication of a larger-than-life bronze statue of the explorer. St. Augustine was named by Ponce de Leon, the Fountain of Youth faddist who acquired his taste for exploration by sharing crew quarters with horses, goats and pigs on Columbus's second voyage.

Reprising those epic voyages, Spain dispatched replicas of the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria to 21 New World ports at a cost of $15 million. As was the case the first time around, the natives so far have not always been friendly. In several ports between Galveston and Baltimore Native Americans symbolically paddled out in war canoes to repel Spanish invaders. However, the volunteer Spanish naval officers aboard have been warmly applauded for their skill in navigating the tiny caravels with instruments similar to what Columbus used. Re-crossing the Atlantic was no picnic: Several sailors tired of coping with the cramped quarters aboard jumped ship in the New World.

What appears to Columbus buffs as only meager United States participation in the quincentennial has been redeemed by AmeriFlora '92 in Columbus, a rattling good show that manages to blend the exotic blooms of a European horticultural event with the wonder of a Disney theme park and the rural charm of a Midwest state fair.

This largest U.S. event is being staged at Franklin Park, a splendidly revamped 100-year-old municipal park covering 88 acres and graced with a magnificent Victorian glass house that went up right after Chicago's Columbian extravaganza. Enlarged and fitted out with computerized technology, the conservatory re-creates the ecosystems of seven climate zones ranging from a tropical rain forest to the peaks of the Himalayas.

Disney-trained specialists were brought in to liven up what was first conceived as a flower show inside the abandoned Ohio penitentiary (asbestos roofing nixed that idea). The event soon blossomed with Epcot-style multimedia shows, a century-old carousel, a topiary garden of Mickey Mouse characters, theme restaurants evoking an Irish pub, a Bavarian beer garden and a Hawaiian luau, and a midway alive with strolling mimes, still walkers, magicians and marching bands.

"Horticulture was still our hook, but what do you do after you see 4,000 roses? Audiences today are more demanding," explained general manager Richard Franks of the Columbus Dispatch, who like his publisher, John Wolfe, AmeriFlora's chairman, has been a mover and shaker in his city's 500th anniversary salute to its namesake.

Fifteen nations, including Japan, Korea, Italy, Australia and Malaysia, contributed exhibits ranging from a Russian dacha and a bonsai courtyard to a live wallaby and an English garden.

Among the attractions luring tour buses by the hundreds from Canada to Texas is Dino Discovery Dig, which AmeriFlora's master planner Scott Girard, a 23-year-Disney veteran, calls "the world's largest sand box. As soon as the gates open hundreds of kids get in there and dig for souvenir toys and trinkets we've salted away. By early afternoon they have uncovered the stainless-steel skeleton of a 70-foot long brontosau-rus." The mallway is dominated by Navstar, a 30-foot high stainless-steel sculpture by Columbus artist Stephen Canneto, depicting the three billowing sails of the explorer's caravels heading west into choppy waves created by dancing fountains.

Columbus has its own replica of the Santa Maria moored downtown in the Scioto River, against the dramatic backdrop of the skyscraper skyline. Other events include art and music festivals, a world horseshoe pitching tournament and a marathon with an international field of 6,000 runners. A local brewery has brewed up Columbus '92 to toast the jubilee, and the zoo features Qin Qin and Xing Xing, giant pandas from China. On Columbus Day the celebration reaches its climax when the big parade follows a purple stripe painted along Broad Street past the state capitol where another Columbus statue, not quite as large as William McKinley's, has been refurbished with a fountain gushing down a pedestal of Ligurian slate from his home province in Italy.

Quincentennial booster Franks admits the organizers were several years into their planning "when the issues of political correctness surfaced. We weren't sensitive to it at first, but we tried to deal with it honestly. We felt the best way was to bring in the Smithsonian's 'Seeds of Change' exhibition which deals with the good, the bad and the ugly of the encounter."

The Smithsonian show, which draws long lines at AmeriFlora, shows how life on both sides of the Atlantic was affected by five "seeds": corn and the potato, which transformed European agriculture; the horse, which changed the Indian way of hunting; disease, which reduced the native population from 100 million in the time of Columbus to under than 2 million now, and sugar cane, which replaced Caribbean rain forests with plantations worked by African slaves.

"We also worked hard to include Native Americans in the program, with an authentic long house displaying their culture and crafts" said Franks, "but I'd be very surprised if they all agreed with what we've done."

Among the most vocal Native Americans not in agreement is John Sanchez of the Yaqui nation, a professor of communications at Capital University in Columbus. Sanchez was among the protesters at the gates of AmeriFlora when Air Force One made its flyover and delivered George and Barbara Bush for the opening day ceremonies. The Columbus legacy, he insists, "includes murder, rape, plunder, disease, racism, pollution and more. To us he's Hitler. The $95 million spent on celebrating his 500th anniversary could have been better used helping the homeless and unemployed among this city's large Native American population." He derides Indians staffing the long house at AmeriFlora as "Uncle Tom-Toms who don't represent their people."

Sanchez has decided against any protest activities during the Columbus Day weekend. "Our tribal council of elders has declared this a year of mourning, and we have been asked not to be confrontational. Instead I have invited hundreds of tribal leaders from reservations around the country to set up teepees and lodges, hopefully on the Ohio State campus, for a day of mourning."

Courier, boxer Griffin upset in Barcelona

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer
BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - There's no such thing as a sure thing - just ask Eric Griffin or Jim Courier.

Griffin, far and away the top U.S. boxer, and Courier, the world's No. 1 tennis player, were wiped out of the gold rush today after a pair of stunning defeats to unheralded opponents. Both were considered medal shoo-ins.

Griffin's date with Olympic destiny was canceled by a hometown hero who won a narrow decision with a controversial judge. Courier was wiped out in straight sets by a Swiss player ranked No. 44 in the world.

Griffin, generally considered the best amateur fighter in the world, lost in the second round of the 106-pound competition to a squat Spaniard - as shocking a loss as the U.S. boxers could suffer and the biggest upset of the Games.

The two-time world champion from Jasper, Tenn., thought he was beaten by the judges, not by Rafael Lozano.

"I felt like I dominated from the first to the third round," Griffin said. "I feel like I scored 25 to 30 points. I think sometimes the judges get mixed up and give punches to the wrong corner."

The fight was scored 6-5, although Griffin landed enough punches in the second round to make Lozano take a standing 8-count. Griffin, 24, managed a weak smile and congratulated Lozano just before the decision was announced.

One of the five judges for the bout, Keith Dadzie of Ghana, was working his first fight since returning from a two-day Olympic suspension for low scoring.

Courier went down to big-serving Marc Rosset, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1. The third-round shocker came on clay -

While Griffin and Courier encountered more than they could handle, victories by the U.S. water polo and women's basketball team had players on those squads asking the same question: Where's the competition?

The women hoopsters, heavy favorites for their third straight gold medal, pounded China 93-67. The Chinese hung tough until a 24-2 U.S. run in the second half gave the Americans their second straight win.

Medina Dixon of Norfolk, Va., led the Americans with 19 points. In their first game, the women blew out Czechoslovakia, 111-55 - setting U.S. records for most points scored and largest margin of victory.

Over at the pool, the favored men's polo team opened play with an 8-4 victory over Australia. But the talk among the players wasn't the game; it was the missing Yugoslav team, which is the defending gold medal champion.

"I really feel bad for those guys," captain Terry Schroeder of Agoura Hills said. "It's kind of sickening when politics comes into play. ... But if we win a gold medal, I'll go away happy." Schroeder was on the United States' two silver medals teams in (See OLYMPICS, Page 7A)

Rangers, Astros fall

The Texas Rangers and the Houston Astros both were beaten by three-run homers Friday.

In Arlington, California right fielder Von Hayes, who hadn't hit a home run in 61 games, hit a three-run shot in the eighth inning as the Angels claimed a 5-3 victory. The home run - Hayes' fourth of the year - ended a drought that went back to May 24.

It also ended Bobby Witt's time on the mound. Witt (9-8) lasted 7 1-3 innings, allowing eight hits and the five earned runs while falling to 1-3 in his last six appearances.

In Cincinnati, Barry Larkin did the deed off the Astros' Butch Henry (3-7), helping the Reds win 6-1. Larkin also turned in a pair of sparkling defensive plays, robbing Pete Incaviglia and Eric Anthony of hits.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh reclaimed first place by beating St. Louis 3-2, Philadelphia shut down Montreal 2-0, San Diego beat Los Angeles 4-3, and San Francisco downed Atlanta 4-3. The Cubs-Mets game was postponed by rain.

In the AL, Minnesota beat Milwaukee 4-1 and Kansas City beat Oakland 6-5 in 10 innings, giving the Twins a half-game lead in the AL West. In other games, Toronto beat New York 13-2, Detroit downed Cleveland 9-6, Seattle defeated Chicago 6-3 and Baltimore and Boston split a doubleheader. The Red Sox won the first 7-4, while the Orioles claimed the rain-shortened second 4-3.

Options in Eyewear

Time was, everyone's glasses looked and were made the same: round glass lenses held together with a piece of wire over the bridge of the nose and wire earpieces to hold them on. There's a wider choice today.

Lenses may be glass or plastic. Plastic is preferred for high-powered lenses that would be relatively heavy if made from glass. Plastic is not only lighter but more impact resistant as well. Glass is used for photochromatic lenses -- the glasses that get darker automatically when you go out in the sun. Because plastic is more vulnerable to scratches, a scratch-resistant coating is often recommended.

Your optometrist may suggest lightly tinted lenses -- for good looks or to ease eyestrain, especially if you spend your day at a video display terminal. And for those who spend a great deal of time outdoors, a coating to filter out ultraviolet rays from the sun is advisable.

Autograph-seeking has gotten out of hand

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The football was almost as large as the little girl who tried to grip it. She clutched the ball as her father lifted her over the chain-link fence into the maelstrom that ensues at the end of every Dallas Cowboys practice at St. Edward's University. The 4- or 5-year-old just escaped being trampled by one large set of football shoes. A golf cart carrying some escaping players just missed her as it sped down "autograph alley" fleeing the hordes of autograph seekers. Stumbling over her feet, down she went but somehow managed to keep from fumbling. A large hand came out of the crowd, helped her to her feet, and autographed her football. Soon another Cowboy signed the ball. Her mission completed she returned to the fence where she finally found her father. Pleased, he reached down and grabbed the football quickly analyzing the "autograph" take.

The man took two steps to leave and realized he forgot his daughter. He finally lifting her back to safety out of reach of the thundering herd. Switch the scene to a nearby Tex-Mex restaurant the next evening. Jerry Jones is holding court in the liquid refreshment area. Several fans drop by to get an autograph from the Cowboys owner. He eagerly complies, writing on napkins, shirts and hats. Then two female fans decide they want more. They take turns holding a camera while the other sits in Jerry's lap. There is another scene from last summer. Quarterback Troy Aikman is at a restaurant. Several fans request autographs. "Wait until after my meal and then I'll sign," he says. One fan can't wait. He grabs Aikman's arm as the quarterback tries to fork down a bite. Irritated, Aikman said, "I'll sign for the rest of them but not for you." Fans have so crowded the lobby of the Howard Johnson-Austin Plaza

South that it's difficult to check in or out. They are hawking autographs from the Los Angeles Raiders, in Austin to scrimmage the Cowboys. There's some fierce hitting in an attempt to get the post-up position near the elevators where the players are certain to emerge. One kid grabs the leg of a player. The player stops and is about to sign his autograph when he recognizes the boy. "Hey, I just signed nine of your autograph cards an hour ago, get out of here," the Raider said. These are just some examples of how the autograph craze has gotten out of hand. Even the mild-mannered Aikman admitted one day during camp: "It's amazing how rude some of these kids can be." Aikman is one of the most patient of the Cowboys autograph signers but he's getting a stomach full. The players are under siege at St.

Edward's University. They are staked out to and from practice, to and from the dining hall, to and from their rooms. "It's like a giant cloud of mosquitos hovering around," said one player who asked not to be named. "You are swatting at them all the time." It makes one wonder if one would like to be a rich football player. It would be nice to have the salary, but it would be tough never to have a moment of public peace even at a hamburger joint. Of course, the logic is that the fans pay the players' salary. However, there is a sneaking hunch from this corner that most of the autograph seekers have never been inside Texas Stadium. Like the guy in a battered pickup truck, who had sent his son into the autograph gauntlet with NFL cards. "Looks like you did a pretty good job." Dad said analyzing the day's take. "We've got some from the Raiders and the Cowboys that should be worth something. Let's do some Tex-Mex to celebrate." If I were a player I think I'd resort to Billy Casper's old trick to get away from the autograph hounds. One year at Colonial he threw about 50 pre-signed autograph cards on the ground.

While the collectors scrambled for them like chicken after scattered corn, Casper made his escape. I used to think that was a cheap trick. Now, I think I understand. --- EDITOR'S NOTE - Denne H. Freeman has been covering sports in Texas for The Associated Press since 1967.

OLYMPICS

1984 and 1988. Yugoslavia, under United Nations sanctions over the civil war there, could only send individual athletes to compete; all teams were barred. Nearly a week after they won - and then lost - their opening match with Japan, the U.S. volleyball team found out today its last appeal to get the victory back was rejected by the International Volleyball Federation. "The federation politely turned down the request and promised to look into the matter in the future," United States Olympic Committee spokesman Mike Moran said. "There's nothing more we plan to do." A red card for repeated complaints about the officiating cost the United States the game. Although the referee allowed the teams to finish play, with the United States winning, the federation reversed that ruling and awarded a penalty point to Japan. Since the infraction occurred at match point, Japan was declared the winner. The volleyballers, seeking a spot in the quarterfinals, play France today. There was more action in the boardroom this morning, as the International Olympic Committee rejected a proposal which would allow two British weightlifters banned for steroid use to compete at the Games. The British Olympic Association argued the drug used by the pair was not on the IOC list of banned substances. The two athletes were sent home Wednesday after testing positive. Four athletes with failed drug tests in the past won four medals Friday. If disgraced sprinter Ben Johnson is looking for inspiration, he can glance across the Olympic Stadium or over at the U.S. swim team. On the day the Canadian track star returned to the Summer Games, four fellow Olympians found redemption after drug suspensions - three of them U.S. athletes, two in the same stadium where Johnson ran again. The most stunning victory Friday came in the 1-2 finish of shot putters Mike Stulce and Jim Doehring, who gave the United States its first gold-silver sweep in the event since 1968. Bronze medalist Vyacheslav Lykho of the Unified Team won bronze; all three were returning from drug bans. Angel Martino of Americus, Ga., who failed a 1988 drug test, returned to get a bronze medal in the women's 50-meter freestyle. Day Seven of the Games brought another gold for swimmer Matt Biondi - a record-tying 11th career medal, earned while he watched from poolside - and for teammate Summer Sanders, who won her fourth. Biondi, who won eight golds over three Games, didn't get wet for the last one - a world record tying 400-meter medley relay. He swam in a qualifying heat, but sat out the final after a poor showing in the 100-meter freestyle. Qualifiers count when it comes to handing out medals, and that's how Biondi won the one that ties him with swimmer Mark Spitz and shooter Carl Osburn. He finished with two golds and a silver in Barcelona. Jeff Rouse of Fredericksburg, Va., Nelson Diebel of Hightstown, N.J., Pablo Morales of Santa Clara, Calif., and Jon Olsen of Jonesboro, Ark., made up the U.S. relay team, which finished in 3:36.93. The Dream Team cruised again, led by Charles Barkley's 30 points in a 127-83 victory over Oscar Schmidt and Brazil. Chris Mullin scored 19 points and Scottie Pippen had 14. The American boxing team put four fighters in the quarterfinals, and 10 of 12 U.S. fighters remain in the competition. Nine have won. The final four for the first baseball medal was set after the United States stole 10 bases in an 8-2 victory over Puerto Rico. The Americans will join Japan, Taiwan and - sorry, fellas - Cuba in the medal round. It was a busy day for the former Soviet republics, which had their ups and downs - in one case, both in the same game. The new world order matched the old world's gold medalists against each other in basketball - four of the 1988 Soviet champions on the Unified Team, four on the Lithuanian team. The Unifieds, in a stunning comeback, overcame a 19-point deficit with 15 minutes to play and won 92-80. The first-ever Estonian medal went to Erika Salumae, a gold in the women's cycling sprint. The introduction of the new nation confused somebody - the Estonian flag was flown upside down at the medal ceremony. Last, but far from least, was the Unified Team's Ibragim Samadov, who won the bronze medal in 180-pound weightlifting - and then refused to accept it. Angry after losing in a tiebreaker, Samadov walked off the medal stand in the middle of the ceremony. The winner: Pyrrros Dimas, who won the first Greek Olympic weightlifting gold in 88 years.

Davis remembers days with Houston Buffs

By KEVIN NEWBERRY
The Houston Post
HOUSTON (AP) - It is dark inside. A single uncovered light bulb casts an orange glow around the room but doesn't quite reach the corners. It is 95 degrees outside, but even hotter inside.

The walls are covered with old, yellowing copies of The Houston Post. Almost all of the articles are related to baseball. One wall is lined with programs from funeral services. Must be 50 of them, all friends or relatives who have come and gone.

Otis "Fritz" Davis has outlasted them all, but this little Third Ward shanty is all he has to show for his 72 years of living - and one glorious day when he became the first black man to play professional baseball on a white team in the 20th century.

"I knew that someday, somebody would have to be the first," Davis said. "I figured it might as well be me."

The year was 1932, some 15 years before most in the white world of baseball even heard the name Jackie Robinson. Moses "Fleetwood" Walker and his brother Wellday Walker were the first black men to play in the major leagues; in 1884 for the Toledo Blue Stockings of the American Association. But they combined to play only 47 games before baseball went back into its deep, segregated sleep for 63 more years.

Fritz Davis grew up a few blocks from Buff Stadium and used to stop on the way home from school to watch the Houston Buffs practice. The players learned to like him, and one day Fritz was in the right place at the right time when Manager Joe Schultz fired the batboy. Homer Peel ran in from right field to the fence where Fritz was standing and said, "Hey kid, want a job?"

This was where Fritz became friends for life with Dizzy Dean and Joe Medwick, both of whom would be enshrined in Baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., and Joe Schultz Jr., the manager's son and the team's other batboy, who went on to participate in three World Series.

Together, they shared the joy of the Buffs' 1931 Texas League championship with a 108-51 record. Dean went 26-10 that year with a 1.53 ERA and had 303 strikeouts, while Medwick hit .305 before being called up to play for the St. Louis Cardinals the final month of the season.

While Fritz did all the grunt work from shagging balls to shining shoes, he was more than just a batboy. He earned the Buffs' respect and they taught him everything they knew.

Owner Wayne Ankenman took good care of Fritz. Ankenman paid him $19 a week, but Fritz also would get tips from the players after each game. Fritz asked Ankenman to keep his money for him until he needed something, then Ankenman went out and bought it for him.

"They loved me," Fritz recalls. "They thought, 'Good God almighty, that boy can play. We need to keep him.'"

Whenever the Buffs would travel to a game by car, Medwick would pile 12-year-old Fritz into the front seat. On off days, he would drive over to Davis' Third Ward neighborhood and play sandlot games with Fritz and his friends.

"Joe was my boy," Fritz recalls with a big smile on his face. "Good God almighty, he taught me everything. He was the best. He gave me everything I had. He took me anywhere I wanted to go. He loved black people."

"One day my boy told me, 'Fritz, if I can do it, you can, too. One of these days you're going to be playing this game.'"

As the 1932 season dragged toward its close, the Buffs missed the playoffs. They finished on the road against the Galveston Buccaneers on a Sunday evening, and Schultz decided he wanted to have some fun in a season-ending doubleheader.

The Buffs won the first game as George "Lefty" Darrow pitched a three-hitter and Galveston scored three runs in the fifth on the way to a 6-1 victory.

Then things got crazy in the nightcap. With darkness falling around Moody Stadium and a crowd of 1,400 watching, Schultz decided to do something no other manager on record had ever dared.

Nearly every Buffs infielder took turns pitching, with second baseman Bill Narlesky, shortstop Hank Baker and first baseman Lee Stebbins all taking turns on the pitcher's mound before Schultz himself took the mound to face portly left-hander Hank Thormahlen.

Then came the seventh. Schultz sent in his 13-year-old son, Joe Jr., to the plate to face Thormahlen and the boy responded with a single back up the middle to become the youngest player in pro baseball history to get a base hit, a record that still stands today. Joe Jr. eventually stole second and scored the Buffs' final run in a 6-2 loss.

"It wasn't planned that way," said Schultz Jr., who coached in St. Louis from 1963-1968, the expansion Seattle Pilots in 1969 (remember Ball Four?), and replaced Billy Martin as manager of the Detroit Tigers in 1974. "Dad just came up to me and said, 'OK, son, it's your turn to hit.'"

"I was excited, because I always loved to hit in batting practice. All I remember is facing that big left-hander and hitting a grounder back through the box."

When the crowd turned to the on-deck circle, they began to laugh when little Fritz Davis picked up his favorite bat, took a few nervous cuts, then walked into the batter's box. This was the chance Schultz and Medwick had promised him, the chance he and many other black men before him had been waiting for.

He was announced as "Gene Rye," but newspaper accounts the next day called him "Snowball." One newspaper box score carried the name Snowball; another chose not to list his name at all.

"I was just a kid and scared. Oh, yeah, people were laughing," Fritz recalls. "Joe told me, 'Don't worry about anything. You know how folks are. You just go up there and don't worry about them.'"

Fritz swung at the first pitch, then pulled two balls foul down the left field line. He battled until the count reached 2-2, but then struck out on another Thormahlen curve.

Davis was more upset with the outcome than he was taken aback by the historical significance of the event. A black man playing a white man's game. In Texas. In 1932.

It was meant more as a gesture of appreciation than a social statement, and it would be 15 more years before Jackie Robinson became the first black man to cross major league baseball's color line.

"We didn't think anything of it back then," Schultz remembers. "To us, Fritz was just one of the guys."

Davis didn't really understand the separation of black and white people until he left the Buffs as a batboy in 1941 at the age of 21 and began a professional career of his own as a shortstop in the Negro League. He played for the Kansas City Monarchs, New Orleans Black Pelicans, Cleveland Clippers and Chattanooga Choo-Choo.

Like many of the Negro League players, Davis was talented and waiting for a chance to play in the majors. Fritz said he hit 45 homers one year and stole 40 bases and must have hit somewhere close to .850 ("I hit everything they threw at me," he says), but he felt like he was starting all over again.

"The owners knew there were plenty of talented black players," said William "Fireball" Beverly, a former Negro League player who lives in Houston and is writing a book on the subject. "We would draw large crowds, and probably 60 percent of them were white people because they knew we played good baseball."

"The owners knew it, too, and they started signing us and sending us to the minor leagues, but they were just hiding us so that other owners couldn't have us. We eventually figured out what was going on, but we were just so glad to be playing anywhere.

"The owners were afraid to field a team with too many blacks. They were worried that the public wouldn't accept it, but they eventually found out the public doesn't care as long as you play good baseball."

Davis knew Jackie Robinson during his days with the Monarchs, and he believed he was every bit as talented.

"He (Robinson) told me, 'I can't hit it or catch it like you can,'" Davis recalls. "You the best one we got."

Branch Rickey, general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, knew there would be tremendous pressure on the first black player in the majors. Rickey believed Robinson was most capable to meet the challenge.

"He made the right choice," said Beverly, who recalls that Robinson learned everything he knew from Kansas City teammate Willie Wells. "Jackie had the kind of temperament to take the pressure. And when we happened to be in the same town, he would come to our hotel and tell us all the dos and don'ts."

"He told us that women would come chasing after us, because they liked the limelight. But he said don't chase them. He said just go to your room and tell the desk clerk that you didn't want any phone calls forwarded to your room and not to give out any extra keys."

The heat pump captures it to heat and cool your home naturally.

The Dual Fuel Heat Pump uses existing heat to keep your home comfortable...naturally. Because it does not have to create heat, it is very efficient. For each unit of energy it uses, the Dual Fuel Heat Pump creates two or three units of heat.

Dual Fuel Heat Pump owners say it costs them less to operate than other systems. And, because it's electric, the Dual Fuel Heat Pump is cleaner.

There is heat in the air on the coldest days. The heat pump captures it to warm your home.

In summer, it becomes a high efficiency air conditioner. During hot weather, the heat pump captures the heat inside the home and takes it outside.

Greenville team once beat mighty Yankees

By BRAD PRESS
Greenville Herald-Banner
 GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) - In 1949, the New York Yankees won 97 games, captured the American League pennant and launched a string of six straight World Series titles.

But that spring, at least for a day, the Greenville Majors were one run better.

The Majors' 4-3 victory over New York on April 10, 1949, remains one of the most memorable sports triumphs of Greenville and Hunt County.

The exhibition game meant nothing in the standings and provided no obstacles to Casey Stengel's powerful Yankees. But it did and still does to those who still cherish the long-gone memories of big-league baseball in Greenville.

Marie Heidmann spent many a summer night at the ballpark. She jokes that her golden years have robbed her of last week's memories. They haven't, however, stolen her recollection of the old days.

"After supper, we would sit back on the porch and talk. A little after 7 p.m., we would hear sounds from Phillips Field (then the name of the stadium, not the current high school football field). It would start with 'Take Me Out to The Ball Game.' So up we went, to the ballgame," she recalled.

"That really was a wonderful, wonderful time. Nobody had much (money) then but you really didn't need it. People didn't have to pay a lot to see a baseball game. It was family entertainment. Those were the nicest boys. And they could play, too."

So the Yankees discovered. The April 10, 1949, edition of The Greenville Morning Herald called the upcoming game "one of Greenville's biggest sports events in history."

East Texas State University archivist and oral historian Dr. James Conrad said the meeting - scheduled to be one of two straight played against major league clubs - was the result of a "major coup" by Greenville's new owner, George Schepps.

Schepps, a Dallas businessman, bought the Majors, a Class B team in the Big State League, and promised a winner. The Majors had been anything but that the previous year, finishing last and losing their final 12 games.

At the annual league owners meeting in Minneapolis, Schepps arranged for the Yankees to play Greenville in a spring game. It would be the first major league club to play Greenville in a quarter of a century, but only because an April 9 contest against the Chicago Cubs was called off due to rain.

The belief among some that the heavily-favored Yankees played a line-up of scrubs is a myth. The Bronx Bombers started five players who held starting berths during the '49 season, including Joe DiMaggio. DiMaggio hit .325, belted 39 homers and drove in 155 runs the year before, so his presence alone would probably have been enough to incite a near-frenzy among the 3,000 fans jammed into Majors Stadium.

But the talent didn't stop there. Starting shortstop Jerry Coleman later won Rookie of the Year honors. Starting pitcher Allie Reynolds won 17 games that year, second to Vic Raschi's 21 triumphs. Catcher Yogi Berra hit 20 homers and knocked in 91 runs that year.

Starting for Greenville that Sunday afternoon? Guys named Slick, Conk, Red, Pepper, Buddy and Melvin.

"Before they knew it, Greenville was ahead and they sent in their big players," said Heidmann. "There were reporters (nine in all from New York, including broadcaster Mel Allen) in the pressbox working for their papers. They never caught up and lost 4-3."

In the end, the Yankees' infield led to their downfall. Greenville scored the winning run in the seventh inning without a hit. New York, displaying a lack of fundamentals that seems to haunt today's big leaguers, committed three errors in the inning.

The winning run scored, according to an account of the game in the Morning Herald, on a "neat and headship piece of baserunning" by Pepper Martin. Martin scored from third on a Chris Sidaris grounder to the pitcher.

"Apparently, it was a surprise to everybody down at Majors Stadium Sunday, except to the members of the hustling Greenville Majors baseball club, themselves," the Morning Herald reported.

"Our boys played like nobody had ever seen," Heidmann said. "My daughter was there and asked Casey Stengel for an autograph. But he was so mad! He just said 'nope' and walked away."

Stengel, known as much for his grouse as his nickname of "The Old Professor," eventually relented and offered his signature.

Heroes of the game for Greenville were Martin, who knocked in two runs, and winning pitcher Tom Pullig, who yielded two runs in five innings. DiMaggio had one hit and scored a run.

But the Yankees seemed no worse for the wear. New York went on to win 10 of the next 14 World Series. DiMaggio was injured early in the '49 season, retired after the 1951 campaign and made the Hall of Fame in 1955 with a .325 career average and 361 career homers.

Stengel, after a 25-year managing career, made the Hall in 1966, Berra in 1972.

And for the Majors? Just finding one that made the big leagues is a task. Sherman native Elmer "Red" Durrett, who started at second for Greenville that day, played two years for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1944 and 1945.

His 19-game total: seven hits, no homers and a .229 average.

Local and baseball historians cannot verify without a doubt, but it appears the most extensive major league actions may have been seen by Martin.

Johnny Leonard Roosevelt Martin, "The Wild Hoss of the Osage," played for St. Louis in the National League from 1928-1944 and played in three World Series: 1928, 1931 and 1934. That same "Pepper" Martin, according to historians with the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., played for Greenville in 1924 and 1925, went to the majors and returned to play for Greenville in 1947. But records show Martin playing one game for Miami in 1949 and list him retiring in 1951. The chances of another "Pepper" Martin playing for Greenville are slim to none, but neither the Hall of Fame nor Conrad could guarantee the same Martin that scored the winning runs against the Yankees belted 59 career home runs for St. Louis.

Greenville's win over New York put the Majors in a league of their own for a day. But the Majors came crashing down to earth 24 hours later in a 14-4 loss to the Buffalo Bisons. Though likely the most notable, the success against the Yankees isn't the only memory of Greenville baseball dear to old-timers.

Season tickets for Greenville games were $4, the same price as a general admission ticket to one Texas Rangers game. To say players received less money than they do now

Notice Of Votes To Be Cancelled

The following is a list of voters in Deaf Smith County who (in most cases) have moved over the past two years but have not informed the County Clerk's Office of those changes. IN ACCORDANCE WITH TEXAS ELECTION LAW, THE FOLLOWING VOTER'S REGISTRATIONS WILL BE CANCELLED ON AUGUST 16, 1992.

If your name, a friend's name, or family member's name is listed and you feel it is in error; the voter needs to get in contact with the County Clerk's Office immediately. There is still time to correct your registration for the November General Election.

Any United States citizen who considers Deaf Smith County as their permanent residence may register to vote in this county. There is NOT a 6 months waiting period. HOWEVER, a person must be registered at least 30 days prior to any election in which they wish to vote.

APPLICATIONS MAY BE PICKED UP AT THE COURTHOUSE, LOCAL BANKS, OR FROM A VOLUNTEER DEPUTY REGISTER.

QUESTIONS MAY BE DIRECTED TO:

DAVID RULAND, DEAF SMITH COUNTY CLERK/VOTER REGISTRAR

would be the understatement of the year. "They were the nicest young men you could imagine," Heidmann said. "Eddie Palmer, Gibby Ray ..."

"It meant so much to them that he was taking the time to talk with them," Heidmann said. And, she said, baseball meant a lot to Greenville.

GREENVILLE

As it turned out, nine of the 11 National League MVPs from 1949-59 were black. While Robinson went on to fame and fortune and opened the door for many other black players to follow, Davis decided to call it quits the following year.

The legendary boxing champion Sugar Ray Robinson had 85 amateur fights before turning pro. Jack Kelly, the father of Grace Kelly, won the single sculls gold medal in Olympic rowing in 1920.

Davis dressed up in his Sunday best on April 7, 1979, and in front of a crowd of almost 30,000 at the Astrodome, he finally got a chance to be in the limelight. "I knew I could play with them and they knew it too, but they never would let me in," he said.

CHRISTINE KLAS, MICHAEL ALLRED

Couple to marry

Christine Marie Klas and Michael Stephen Allred, both of Tulsa, Okla., plan to marry Sept. 12 in Fredonia, Wis.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ivan and Maureen Klas of Fredonia, Wis. and the prospective bridegroom is the son of former Hereford residents, Lynton and Joyce Allred of Amarillo.

Miss Klas graduated from Ozaukee High School in Fredonia in 1983. She received a B.A. degree in psychology from Texas Tech University in 1989 and obtained her master of business administration degree with emphasis in both management and finance from Texas Tech University in 1991. She plans to enter law school at Tulsa University in the fall.

Allred graduated from Hereford High School in 1984. He received a bachelor of science degree with a double major in finance and economics in 1988 from Trinity University in San Antonio. He earned a master of business administration degree with a concentration in finance from Texas Tech University in 1990. He will graduate with a juris doctorate degree from the University of Tulsa School of Law in December 1993. He is currently employed by the Tulsa County District Courts.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Wall announce the engagement of their daughter, Andrea Janenne, to Kevin Edward Davis, son of Dan and Laura Jones of Abilene.

The couple plans to exchange wedding vows Aug. 17 in Hawaii.

The bride-elect is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and is presently attending Hardin-Simmons University where she and her fiancé plan to graduate in December.

Pharmacist's discovery may end obesity

WASHINGTON -- After solving the problem of his own obesity, a pharmacist, now director of National Dietary Research, may have discovered the solution for others with the same problem.

Dr. William Morris, pharmacist, inventor and author has discovered a natural food tablet, aptly named Food Source One, that replaces some of the calories normally obtained from food. Food Source One replaces high calorie fats with other natural food ingredients with little or no caloric value so you can lose weight without giving up all your favorite foods, as explained in NDR's Lifestyle Maintenance publication, available where Food Source One is sold. "The secret to meaningful weight loss is not in decreasing the amount of food you eat, but in controlling the fat," says Dr. Morris.

According to Dr. Morris, weight loss results while using Food Source One will depend on how many pounds a person needs to lose. However some overweight people are experiencing extra-ordinary results with Food Source One. A Metairie, Louisiana nurse lost 71 pounds. She stated "I never had to sacrifice the foods I dearly crave!" "Food Source One is very easy and anyone could do it," says a Niagara Falls, New York woman who lost 26 pounds and 15 inches. "The results are great" she added.

Food Source One is available at pharmacies without a prescription.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I've been "adopted" by many stray and unwanted cats and dogs. To keep track of each animal, I started a notebook.

I use a three-ring notebook and business-size envelopes. I have one for each animal. I write each one's name, sex, description, birthday (if known), spay/neuter history and any special medical problems. I then place a picture, vaccination certificate and any other medical papers in the envelope.

I also have a page for each one that includes where it came from and any amusing stories. In the front of the notebook I keep a calendar to mark when each needs to visit the vet.

This will not only help me keep them straight, but also if anything would happen to me, I know this information will help their next "mother." — Sue Womer & the Zoo, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

You are an adopter's dream! How lucky your four-legged friends are to have you care for them.

A big Heloise hug for you and your zoo! — Heloise

USE LABELS

Dear Heloise: To make learning new computer programs and commands simple, I jot down the needed information on address labels or file labels and stick them on the back of my computer keyboard.

Once I have the commands memorized, I remove them. They really are a big help. — Marilyn Anderson, Dallas, Texas

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 512-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

LONDON (AP) - Michael Jackson is suing a London tabloid over articles claiming he was disfigured by plastic surgery.

The Daily Mirror falsely claimed Jackson is "a scarred phantom whose face is covered with scar tissues, with a hole in his nose, one cheek higher than the other and an oddly sagging chin," his representatives said Monday.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thanks for printing Lyle Prouse's letter about his recovery from alcoholism and his efforts to get a recovery program going while in prison. Prouse's appeal for public outrage at the reluctance of prison officials to cooperate in a recovery program inspired me to write.

Prouse was responding to a letter from Lincoln Warkocz, an inmate in Florida who couldn't seem to get any drug rehabilitation in prison. I, too, read the letter from Warkocz and thought that this Florida prisoner was just whining instead of taking advantage of recovery programs that surely must already be in place in Florida and everywhere else.

Shame on all public officials who are responsible for running our prisons. Locking people up and denying them access to drugs or alcohol does not, and never will, cure addiction.

Addiction is a disease, just like diabetes or any other illness. It is chronic and progressive, has no cure and can kill you. To recover from addiction requires a life-long effort. It takes courage and the continuing support of other recovering addicts in 12-step programs such as Alcoholics Anonymous. To deny prisoners access to this kind of help is criminal.

My eyes were opened to the true nature of addiction when my son began treatment six months ago. I still choke up when I drop him off at his 12-step meetings. He is only 17 and his courage at going into mostly adult meetings with total strangers amazes me. I'm not sure I could do it.

So I say to prison officials everywhere: Get smart, get educated and get help to those inmates who want and need recovery programs. All they have is YOU; and you have the authority to establish these programs. Every minute wasted is a life lost.--G.A. in Lithonia, Ga.

DEAR G.A.: You've written a letter that is filled with good sense. I pray that prison officials will pay attention, and they just might if a tremendous number of readers clip this column and send it to the governor of their state. Phone your public library for the name and address of your governor, folks. A blizzard of letters will attract some attention.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married to a good man for seven years. He is a wonderful husband and father. The problem? "Jake" has gained at least 50 pounds since we've been married and gets larger every year. He's only 30 and comes from a family with a history of heart disease.

A lusty sexual relationship inside marriage is important to me. I've told Jake his beer belly is a total turn-off, but he doesn't get the message.

I've suggested programs such as Weight Watchers, but he won't go. Ann, I want this marriage to work but it's difficult to live with someone you no longer want to have sex with. He refuses to come with me to a marriage counselor, saying it will make matters worse if we drag a stranger into it.

Your old advice, "Are you better off with him or without him?" doesn't seem to apply here. I DO want him--just skinnier.--T.R., Little Rock, Ark.

DEAR LITTLE ROCK: Nagging, threatening or withholding sex never works. You need outside intervention.

Call his physician and insist that he lay down the law. (How's his blood pressure, cholesterol, ticker, etc.?)

Many obese males don't understand that sex is much harder on the woman, and they need to be made aware of this.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. New Hearing Instrument Lets You "Understand" In Noisy Places

Hereford, Tx. Finally a hearing instrument has been developed to help improve moderate hearing losses in noisy situations. Plus, this instrument fits totally in the ear.

NU-EAR Electronics of San Diego, CA has made amazing advances in miniaturized hearing technology. Until now, the benefits of hearing instrumentation meant making sacrifices in personal appearance. This new instrument, manufactured under the name Micro-xSM (XS for extra-small) allows the hearing impaired to experience the benefits of better hearing.

When enhanced with NU-EAR's patented HiFidelity Sound SystemSM with SDS, Micro-xSM users can hear the fullest, richest sounds ever experienced. Then, with the flip of a switch, the wideband sound can be channeled to precise amplification of voices and conversations in noisy situations.

Take the health quiz

If you'd like to put back pain behind you, you might want to take this little quiz. You may find that your problem is a slipped disc-and you may also discover a possible solution to that problem.

1. Did the pain start in your back, then move to the leg? If yes, add ten points.

2. Is your leg pan now worse than your back pain? If yes, add ten points.

3. Would you describe the pain in your leg as sharp, piercing or squeezing? If yes, add ten points.

4. Does lying on your back or unaffected side with knees flexed or elevated on a pillow decrease the pain? If yes, add ten points.

5. Does coughing or sneezing increase the pain? If yes, add ten points.

6. Do you get a tingling/pins and needles" or cold feeling in the calf or foot of the affected area? If yes, add five points.

7. Does bending over or lifting something make your pain worse? If yes, add five points.

8. Are you more comfortable sitting in a hard chair than a soft chair? If yes, add five points.

9. Is it less painful to stand and move about rather than sit or lie down? If yes, add five points.

10. Is it very difficult for you to straighten up and get out of bed when waking up in the morning? If yes, add five points.

Add up your points. If your total is 40 or more, you may have a slipped disc. Fortunately, in most cases, bed rest, pain medication, exercise and back support will help. In cases that do not respond to this treatment, however, your doctor may recommend surgery or a procedure that requires no surgical incision.

Called chemonucleolysis, it involves injecting a natural enzyme called chymopapain into the center of the herniated disc. While chemonucleolysis isn't right for everyone, in carefully selected patients it is likely to be as effective as surgery, but with fewer adverse effects.

Something as innocent-seeming as gardening can bring on a painful attack of nighttime leg cramps.

Kalka, Heinrich wed Saturday afternoon

Former Hereford resident, Carolyn Suzanne Kalka of Midland, became the bride of Brian Paul Heinrich, also of Midland, during a mid-afternoon nuptial Mass Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Officiating was Msgr. Orville Blum.

The bride is the daughter of Melvin and Bernadette Kalka of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Eugene and Jeanette Heinrich of Slaton.

The bride's parents were united in marriage on the same date 30 years ago in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a formal-length gown which featured a chapel train. The dress was designed in natural white silk shantung with alencon lace. A wide border of scalloped alencon lace, pearls and sequins encircled the hemline of the entire gown. The drop-waist bodice had a sweetheart neckline in front and a scalloped deep V-shape back, covered entirely with alencon lace, pearls and sequins. The elbow-length puffed sleeves were made of softly pleated silk shantung with alencon lace inserts.

The bride's veil was styled to match the seven looped bow at the back of the bodice. Both bows were made of silk shantung. The single-layered chapel-length veil flowed from the back of the bow.

The bride carried a silk elongated bouquet consisting of white and pink roses, stephanotis, baby's breath, alstroemeria lilies, pearls and a rubrum lily in the center with cascading needlepoin ivy.

To complete her attire, she wore a single strand of pearls with a diamond drop and diamond-pearl dangle drop earrings. For something old, the bride carried a white satin covered prayer book that belonged to her late grandmother, Rose Kalka. As something blue, she wore a blue garter; something borrowed, a gold rosary belonging to her mother; and as something new, her wedding attire.

Serving as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Joani Guyer of Amarillo. Bridal attendants were Patricia Heinrich of Lubbock, the groom's sister; Gina Heinrich Kalka of Dallas, the groom's sister and sister-in-law of the bride; Gayla Heinrich Seale of Lubbock, the groom's sister; and Joan Potter of Amarillo and Denise Detten of Hereford. Junior bridesmaid was Brooklyn La Fleur of Fort Collins, Colo., the bride's cousin.

Flower girl was Camille Vasek, daughter of Ronald and Janice Vasek of Hereford.

Ring bearers included the groom's cousin, Logan Heinrich, son of Dean Heinrich of Lubbock, and the bride's nephew, Brantley Guyer, son of Joani and Paul Guyer of Amarillo.

The attendants were attired in hot pink moire taffeta floor-length gowns with brush trains created identical to the bride's dress. Each wore a six-looped bow in their hair and a single stand of pearls and pearl stud earrings which were given to them by the bride and groom as wedding mementoes. They carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet.

The flower girl's white dress, which was designed similar to the attendants' dresses, was made of moire taffeta as was her bow. She carried a white basket filled with pink roses, alstroemeria and greenery.

The best man was Lane Odom of Fort Worth. Groomsmen were Erich Heinrich of Slaton, cousin of the groom; Keith Kalka of Dallas, the brother of the bride and brother-in-law of the groom; Melvin Kalka Jr. of Arlington, the bride's brother; Scott Smith of Amarillo; and Alan Vinson of Lubbock. Junior groomsmen were Trey Bezner of Hereford, the bride's cousin.

Guests were escorted by Steven and Gregg Kalka, the bride's brothers; Paul Guyer of Amarillo, the bride's brother-in-law; Glenn Seale of Lubbock, the groom's brother-in-law; Thomas Patrick Gordon III of Fort Worth; and Pete Kelley of El Paso.

Candles were lit by Steven and Gregg Kalka.

Acolytes were Kevin and Dan La Fleur of Fort Collins, Colo., the bride's cousins, and Zachary Vasek.

Craig Rogers was the reader.

Eucharistic ministers were Kevin La Fleur of Fort Collins, the bride's uncle; Bob Kalka of Mages, Miss., the bride's uncle; Margaret Heinrich of Slaton, the groom's cousin; Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bezner Jr., the bride's aunt and uncle; and Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Yosten.

Musical accompaniment was provided by organist, Marcella Crabtree of Canyon, and pianist, Jane Matthews, both aunts of the bride. Vocalist was Beth Rohrbach of Adrian.

Vocal selections were "Perhaps Love," "A Love Until the End of Time," "Only a Shadow" and "The Wedding Prayer." Processional was the theme from "The Sound of Music" and the recessional was "Wedding Bell Recessional."

The bride's mother wore a silk shantung mauve two-piece suit. The V-neck jacket was fashioned with elbow-length sleeves and was accented with gold and rhinestone buttons. The border of the sleeves and skirt were trimmed with silk embroidered roses and cut-out lattice designs.

The groom's mother wore a linen two-piece fuchsia suit. The elegant V-shape neckline jacket was created with three-quarter sleeves and pearl buttons. Both mothers wore white silk rose and alstroemeria corsages.

The church altars were decorated with large gladioli arrangements placed in gold vases. An arrangement of gladioli and rubrum lilies adorned the organ.

A dinner-dance was held at St. Anthony's auditorium. The cake table was covered in white lace and held the five-tiered white cake decorated with pink roses which cascaded down the side of the cake. The first layer was accented with the bridal couple's names and the top layer was adorned with musical Precious Moments bride and groom figurines. The groom's chocolate on chocolate cake was decorated with a law insignia and a golfing scene.

Registering guests were Alisa Hoelscher and Sandra Eady of Lubbock. Cake was served by Stacy Bromlow and Jennie Perales.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School and attended Texas Tech University. She graduated with a bachelor of science degree in physical therapy in 1991 from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas. She is currently employed as a licensed physical therapist at Midland Memorial Hospital in Midland.

The groom is a 1984 graduate of Cooper High School in Lubbock. He received a bachelor of science degree in agriculture economics in 1988 from Texas Tech University. He received his doctor of jurisprudence from Texas Tech University School of Law in 1991. He is currently employed as an attorney with the Midland law firm of Cotten, Bledsoe, Tighe and Dawson.

Following a honeymoon in Ocho Rios, Jamaica, the couple will reside in Midland. As her going away ensemble, the bride wore navy and white nautical city shorts with white leather heels and navy and white accessories.

The bridal couple were honored with numerous showers including a couple's shower in Odessa, a bridal shower in Hereford and a shower in Slaton.

A bridal luncheon was held at the Ralph Detten home hosted by Judy Detten, Mary Zinser, Betty Kriegshauser, Diane Hoelscher and Carmen Flood.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at K-Bob's Friday evening.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

A basic rescue and emergency water safety class will begin at 11 a.m. Monday at the City Pool. The one hour class will meet for two weeks with Mike Manchec instructing.

A CPR class will begin at 7 p.m. Monday at the Hereford Community Center. The cost is $10.

The water safety instructor update will be held Monday and Tuesday from 7-10 p.m. at the Red Cross office. Ronny Sanders, WSI trainer, will lead the workshop.

Seventy-five years ago, Aug. 2, 1917, the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross received its charter from the National American Red Cross. Since that time, the local chapter has worked to meet the needs of military personnel, disaster victims and provide safety training for residents.

The local chapter is still working to meet the needs of service personnel, disaster victims and teach safety as well as many other services.

LONDON (AP) - Actor Peter Ustinov provided the laughs at a dinner celebrating Queen Elizabeth II's 40 years on the throne.

Joining the 66-year-old monarch and her husband, Prince Philip, were Prince Charles and his wife, Diana, and all five prime ministers since 1964.

Ustinov made a surprise appearance after the dinner at Spencer House, once owned by Diana's family.

Fashions can fit like glove

All men may be created equal, but women aren't - at least when it comes to clothing sizes.

Nature has more of a sense of humor than the garment industry and thinks nothing of putting a Size 10 bust on Size 12 hips - or the reverse. Some try to beat the fitting game - and save on the budget - by sewing their own clothes. But even paper patterns used to measure and cut fabric generally need to be altered.

Now comes Dress Shop from a California company named Livingsoft. The $99.95 computer program generates patterns tailored just for you.

Dress Shop works on just about any IBM PC or compatible with at least one floppy drive and 512,000 characters of memory. If you're a "larger" size, the manual says you should have 640,000 characters of memory. Avoid the embarrassment of having a machine call you Tubbo and use Dress Shop only with 640-K. That way you can tell yourself without fear of contradiction that a skinny 512-K would have worked.

Installation means just copying the files onto a blank disk or a hard drive. The program comes with 3.5-inch and 5.25-inch disks. There's a setup program that lets you tell the machine what kind of monitor and printer you have.

The printer part is important, since the patterns you select will be produced on a dot-matrix printer running continuous-form paper. Dress Shop supports Diablo, Epson, IBM, Panasonic, Star Micronics and Tandy printers. If you don't have one of those, make certain your printer will emulate either an Epson or an IBM. Many do.

The key to making an accurate pattern is a tape measure, a trusted friend and brutal honesty. Thirteen measurements are required, and the software prompts you by highlighting the appropriate areas on a mannequin figure. The manual says that taking your own measurements is "difficult, if not impossible."

It was both difficult and impossible to convince wife or daughter to volunteer measurements for national distribution, so I volunteered my own 46 Regular. The program without even a smirk obligingly generated a pattern on 46-38-39 measurements to make a mid-knee sheath in a self-selected Lycra spandex fabric. So OK, Bill Blass doesn't have to worry, but the process was quick and painless.

The number of sizes on file is limited only by disk space, and the program offers 38 pattern variations for dresses, skirts, pants, blouses, coat and blazers and accessories. Dress Shop assumes you already know from sewing, but the manual nicely illustrates terms. I now know a Peter Pan collar is not a Puritan collar, nor even a Mandarin, ruff, funnel, wing or Chelsea collar, not to mention a shawl, convertible, tie or Jabot collar.

Auxiliary officers elected

Honorary mayor named at Westway reunion

Wilma Nell Pierce was named honorary mayor for July 1992-July 1993 during the Annual Westway Reunion held July 26 in the former Westway school building.

Pierce expressed appreciation to the 34 guests present. She explained that her family, the N.P. Sikes, had moved to the section of land where the former school stands in 1927. She said that her family had a bumper wheat crop, but at only 18 cents a bushel, it was not enough to make their land payment in the early 1930s.

Ulys Pierce voiced the invocation and the pledge to the United States flag was recited as the opening exercise.

Reunion President Cindy Nunley welcomed those present and extended special thanks to Bussy Kaul for bringing gifts which were donated by Arrowhead Mills and Hereford Grain Inc. Appreciation was extended to Leta Kaul who has maintained Westway scrapbooks for many years and who was responsible for displaying last year's reunion pictures.

Nunley presented gifts to several persons. Joe Landers, 91, was recognized as the oldest man present; Leta Kaul, 87, oldest woman; Jim Hartman of Rego Park, N.Y., person who traveled the greatest distance; Joe Landers, longest continuous resident having lived in the Westway community since 1928; Ulys Pierce, earliest resident moving to the community in 1909; Wesley and Jana Rudd, newest residents moving to Westway this year; Cody Cleaver, seven months, youngest boy; Melisa Little, 13, youngest girl; Wilma Nell and Ulys Pierce, couple married the longest (58 years); Jeremy and Donna Cleaver, couple married the shortest time (September 1990); and Little/Rudd family, most family members (12 present).

Others recognized included two former teachers, Leta Kaul and Vesta Mae Landers. Their former students who were present were Ulys and Marlin Pierce, Elvin Wilson, Howard Gore, Nina Simpson, E.H. Little, Kenneth, Harold and Homer Rudd, Oleta Houser, and Larry and Walter Lynn (Bussy) Kaul.

Also on the business agenda was the election of officers. Neil Witherspoon will serve as president; Homer Rudd, vice president; and Jewell Hargrave, secretary-treasurer.

Leta Kaul presented a brief memorial for a longtime friend and former Westway resident, the late Grady Wilson. Vesta Mae Nunley also gave a tribute to the late Gladys Gore Angelo, who had also resided in Westway.

Ross Joe Landers dismissed the meeting by reciting a prayer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A man has been charged with mailing threatening letters to pop singer Janet Jackson while stalking her for six months.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Gregory Jessner said Wednesday that Frank Paul Jones, 33, of New York, sent up to 40 letters to Miss Jackson threatening her, her boyfriend, her brother Michael Jackson, President Bush and others.

Jones, who allegedly believes he is married to Miss Jackson, was arrested June 22 and held on $15,000 bail for investigation of trespassing in the driveway of the Jackson family compound in suburban Encino.

He was scheduled for trial this week on trespassing and stalking charges, but Deputy City Attorney Holly Beckner said those charges were dropped Wednesday after federal prosecutors took over the case.

Thank You

Dear Friends,
Thank you for all the expressions of sympathy, love and support shown by your many acts of kindness during our loss.
The Emmett Duke Family

Thank You

Words cannot express the gratitude I have for everyone that helped at the accident Monday morning. I wish to thank my fellow employees, the rescue team, EMS personnel, ER Staff, Dr. Bidwell, Dr. Johnson, ICU nurse Karen Fangman and the many people who checked at the hospital, and phoned.
A special thank you to my God, my brother James, and all the prayers that collectively saved and restored my health.

*God Bless You

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) - Don Knotts, who has made a career playing the sort of guys who were probably picked on in high school, was actually class president and voted most likely to succeed when he graduated in 1942.

And on Saturday night, he came home to an adoring crowd of classmates.

Knotts, who played Officer Barney Fife on "The Andy Griffith Show" and had a role in "Three's Company," thanked his classmates for encouraging him when he left West Virginia for New York with no job.

"You have to commit yourself if you want to make it," said the 68-year-old actor. "That's about it. I knew (acting was) what I wanted to do when I was 6 years old."

Jack Feck, chairman of the reunion committee, said he had been trying for 30 years to get Knotts back for a class reunion.

"I've been trying to bring him back, but not as Barney Fife," Feck said. "We want him here as the president of the class of '42. Although we're proud of him for what he is, we're proud of him for being our class president."

Style show, luncheon scheduled Aug. 13

The Back To School Happening Style Show and Luncheon has been scheduled from noon until 1 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13, at the Hereford Country Club. Serving will begin at 11:30 a.m. The event is being sponsored by members of the Style Show Committee of the Women's Division.

The public is invited to the event with tickets priced at $8 per person. Tickets are available at participating merchants and at the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main St. Back to school and fall fashions will be shown by C.R. Anthony Co., Betty's Shoes, Boots and Saddle Western Wear, Etcetera, Little's, Pants Cage, Kids' Alley, The Vogue and Class Act.

Door prices will be given throughout the show by the merchants. Keith Ann Gearn will serve as emcee for the show.

According to the Women's Division President Rita Bell, the purpose of the style show and luncheon, which are being held in conjunction with the annual Town & Country Jubilee Celebration, is to showcase local merchants and to encourage residents to shop in Hereford.

Janet Brigrance is serving as the chairman of the Back To School Happening. Others assisting include Patu Brown, Marilyn Culpepper, Lori Hall, Lajean Henry, Mary Beth Messer, Cynthia Miller, Gene McDaniel, Kyla McDowell, Ruth Newsom, Jan Page, Gayla Sanders, Jamie Thomason and Donna West.

Discovery Center to host special events

Making plans for Labor Day weekend? Discover '92 should be at the top of your entertainment agenda. Once again the Don Harrington Discovery Center presents great music, family fun and an awesome fireworks display at Medical Center Park. Many new and exciting activities have been added to Amarillo's premier outdoor event. Plan now to celebrate the end of summer in spectacular fashion on Sept. 5-7.

The Discover '92 weekend will begin in style with a musical journey through the fabulous fifties. Amarillo Little Theatre's production of The Taffetas can be enjoyed by all at 8:15 p.m. on Saturday, September 5. This project is supported jointly by a grant from the Texas Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts. Families are invited to picnic behind the Discovery Center at 7 p.m. and enjoy an evening of "Theatre Under the Stars."

"Sunday in the Park" sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will surround the Discovery Center with exciting, fun-filled family activities. Our traditional KiteFest will fill the skies with flying objects of every size and description on Sunday, Sept. 6. Sunday's events will begin at 12:30 p.m. with the opening of all concessions. Exciting and entertaining activities can be viewed throughout the day on the north lawn and on the stage. Don't miss out on the Inflatables Clown Bouncer, sponsored by Parties, Picnics and Promotions, Wimberley's Waterworks & Bubbletown, Amarillo Developmental Gymnastics obstacle course, face painting and much, much more.

Discover '92 will explode on Labor Day with live music from the Discover Stage beginning at 5 p.m. provided by "Thirty Something". An incredible display of colors provided by "Skydive Amarillo" will fill the skies above Medical Center Park at 7:30 p.m. Bring your blanket, your friend's blanket and your friends to relax and enjoy the spectacular performance by the Amarillo Symphony and the awesome display of fireworks sponsored by Cellular One of Amarillo. There is no other like the show of Discover.

Bring your portable radio and listen to KGNC/Talk Radio 71 and K-Lite FM 98 for the Amarillo Symphony concert starting at 8 p.m. and a simultaneous broadcast of the synchronized fireworks display music.

You will also want to enter the Discover Drawing for two round-trip tickets to Madrid, Spain courtesy of American Airlines.

Parking spaces are limited in the Medical Center Park. For fewer traffic hassles park at Target, also a Discover '92 sponsor, and hop aboard the free shuttle for a comfortable trip to the Discovery Center.

There will be great food for you and your family to enjoy each day of the Labor Day Weekend at the Discovery Center. Bring your appetite and we will provide your favorite summer foods and beverages. Our concession stands, sponsored by Amarillo Coca-Cola, will be open for the duration of our fun-filled weekend. They are sure to have your favorites.

Interested in having a front row seat and a country style picnic with seven of your closest friends or co-workers? We have a patron table reserved in your name. There are still a few tables available in each of the three sections in the Patron area. The Grand Finale section features seating for eight in the front area, a buffet dinner, complimentary beverages, VIP parking and table favors. The Roman Candle section features seating for eight in the middle area, a buffet dinner, complimentary beverages, VIP parking. The Sparkler section features seating for eight in the rear area, a buffet dinner, complimentary beverages and reserved parking. Thanks once again to Amarillo National Bank for sponsoring the Patron Area. For further information or to reserve a table please call 806-355-9548, extension 11.

Discover '92 weekend will be your last opportunity to experience our educational and entertaining temporary exhibit Summer O' Science. Don't miss out on this high tech show featuring our Apple Orchard and the Great Robot Show.

MR. AND MRS. TOM DRAPER

Tom Draper receives 50-year lodge pin

Tom Draper received a 50-year membership pin Monday evening during a special ceremony conducted at the Hereford Masonic Lodge.

The pin was presented by Robin Ruland, worshipful master of the Hereford Masonic Lodge #849. Argen Draper pinned the award on her husband.

Ruland was assisted by Milt Draper of Tahoka Lodge, Lynn Jones Sr., deacon, and Orville Knowlton, chaplain.

Mr. Draper also was given a Certificate of Performance and recognized as a lifetime member. The certificate stated, "As a visible token of their fraternal love and grateful appreciation, this certificate is presented by his Brethren the Masons of Texas, with the fervent hope that his years of service to the craft will continue to increase."

Following the service, 60 guests and members enjoyed a fellowship hour.

Talk to doctor about formulas before birth

HOUSTON -- Parents should discuss formulas with their pediatrician before the birth of their child if they plan to bottlefeed, says Dr. Kathleen J. Motil at the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston.

There is such a large selection of formulas; it is never too early to talk about choices, says Motil, an assistant professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine.

Modern formulas are adapted to be as nutritionally close to breast milk as possible. They all supply proteins, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals, but one formula may not fit the needs of all infants.

Formulas fall into one of three groups. Based on protein content, the 20 or so infant formulas on the market today are classified as casein/whey, soy, or pre-digested protein called hydrolysates.

Casein/whey or cow's milk-based formulas make up the largest group of formulas. Approximately 85 percent of infants thrive on these formulas, Motil said.

Infants who cannot tolerate the casein/whey protein in these popular formulas or who have a family history of allergies may need a soy-based formula. Industry studies indicate that 12 percent of the infant population falls into this group.

According to Motil, sensitivity to cow's milk protein may result in vomiting, diarrhea or poor weight gain.

"Consult your doctor if feeding problems arise," she warns. "This is not the time for a parent to experiment with a new formula. Vomiting and diarrhea can quickly lead to dehydration in young infants."

Hydrolysates are the easiest to digest but the most expensive. Because they contain pre-digested cow's milk protein, they reduce the likelihood of allergies as well. Hydrolysates are designed for infants who fail to gain weight or suffer from severe diarrhea or disorders such as cystic fibrosis.

Formulas are also available "with" or "without iron." Motil believes iron is unjustly blamed for stomach upsets, and she recommends iron-enriched formulas.

"We are finding that infants who are taken off iron-enriched formulas too early may become iron deficient."

Parents will quickly discover that formulas are available in three forms: powdered, concentrated liquid, or ready-to-feed preparations.

All three forms of formula have advantages. Powdered is compact and economical, concentrated liquid is easy to prepare by mixing equal parts of water and formula, and ready-to-feed offers trouble-free preparation—just open and pour. Choice will be determined by family finances, convenience and lifestyle.

Parents can provide their pediatrician with valuable background information so he or she can recommend a formula best suited to their infant's needs. "The decision making then becomes a joint effort," Motil said.

Nothing reveals a man's character better than the kind of joke at which he takes offense.

Egg whites can be frozen for up to a year.

Planning for white elephant sale

The Hereford Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization is having its second annual white elephant trunk sale from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday, Aug. 8, at Sugarland Mall parking lot. Preparing for the event are Alice Eades and her Little Sister Kimberley Betts.

Hints from Heloise

LIGHT SWITCH PLATE
Dear Heloise: I just painted my living room and decided I needed to write down the information about the paint since I was so happy with it. I wasn't sure where I should keep the info.

A friend suggested writing the paint brand, the color and other pertinent info on a small piece of masking tape. Then remove the light switch plate and put the piece of tape on the back of the plate and put it back.

I thought this was a good idea and couldn't resist sending it in. — Linda Golden, Sàlida, Colo.

This is a great hint! Thanks so much for taking the time to share it with us.

If anyone has more good home fix-up hints, I'd love to hear from you. — Heloise

It's sweet to be remembered, but it's often cheaper to be forgotten.

Gehres, Troxell reunion held recently in Hereford

Fifty-four of the descendants of the Frank Gehres/Charles Troxell families met in reunion in Hereford on July 24-25.

The group attended the Friday evening performance of "Texas" and on Saturday, visited ad had lunch at the American Legion Hall. Co-hosts for the event were Ben and Jean Gunn of Lubbock and Ralph and Jane Packard of Hereford.

The Gehres and Troxell families migrated from Switzerland and Germany into Pennsylvania from 1733 to 1750. Following the Civil war, they relocated into Indiana and in 1908 moved to the South Plains of Texas. They settled in Hereford in about 1930.

Esther Blevins of Lubbock was the eldest surviving descendant in attendance and her sister, Lavera Gillies of Nipomo, Calif. had traveled the greatest distance to the reunion and also had the most descendants in attendance. Youngest children in attendance were four-week old Ashley Hayes, daughter of Billy and Charla Hayes of Amarillo, and two-week old Mike Lynch, Jr., son of Michael and Christine Lynch of Denver, Colo.

Others in attendance were Annie and Sherry Kendall, Katie Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Kendall and Hay, Louise Packard, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lambert and Jeffrey, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Packard, all of Hereford; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gunn, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Warren and Heather of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Tim Gibson and Alex, Meighan Hayes, and Charlotte Wimberley and Royce of Amarillo; Cherri Kerr and Ziad and Sammy Hammad of Canyon; Joyce Wall of Marshall; Mr. and Mrs. James Packard of Spring Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Pinson and Denise, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Pinson, Karri, Shannon and Samantha, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Eccles, Mr. and Mrs. Orville McIlvanie, Julie Thompson, Kira and Kyle, and TJ Lynch of Denver, Colo. and a guest, Texie Jarman of Las Vegas, Nev.

Harvest Days set in Dimmitt

Castro County Harvest Days will be held in Dimmitt Aug. 11-15.

Activities include the county fair, arts and crafts show, parade, rodeo, car show, carnival, barbecue, street dance, early settlers reunion and much, much more.

The theme for this year's celebration is "Let's Be Kids Again". Information on all event sis available from the Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce, 115 West Bedford, Dimmitt, TX 79027, or call 806/647-2524.

What Does a typical Brand Reader Look Like?

That's difficult to say because you are as different as your substantial number would imply! You are one of the 4,100 households we're invited to every evening. That's quite a few. According to the most recent census, our township has slightly less than 5000 households.

Your vocation is part of a broad spectrum as well -- white collar, blue collar, owners, managers, cowboys, teachers, housewives, students and professional.

Yet, with all your individual complexities, your interest in local issues and news gives you and other readers a common bond which is separated only by your level of curiosity.

You are an informed, intelligent and often vocal audience, and we're happy to be a part of your household every evening!

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

MADE IN USA

"I just finished the late Sam Walton's autobiography, Sam Walton: Made in America. It is fascinating reading if you are a small business success story fan. It's pretty good reading even if you're not.

Although Mr. Sam and I were a generation apart, we had several things in common. For example, we both attended high school in north Missouri. We both served as class officers and lettered in more than one sport. We both opened our first retail store in small rural towns and we started out with exactly the same number of stores - one.

Okay, I know I've stretched a bit to find similarities, but I mean it in fun. Please don't take my comparisons too seriously. I respect and admire what Sam Walton achieved in becoming the world's greatest retailer.

Mr. Sam launched the first Wal-Mart store in 1962 when he was 44 years old. Today there are nearly 2,000 stores in the chain. I was a sophomore in high school that year, and I still don't know what I want to be when I grow up.

In Made in America, Walton shares the essence of his success under the heading of: "Sam's Rules for Building a Business." I think "Sam's Rules" are worth sharing in this column.

Sam's Rules

Rule 1: "Commit to your business." To Mr. Sam, that meant pouring his heart and soul into Wal-Mart. Although he took time for God, his family, bird-hunting and tennis, he remained committed to building his business.

Rule 2: "Share your profits with all your associates and treat them as partners." Early in the book Walton said that profit sharing was a major force in the partnership forged between Wal-Mart and its associates. He cited examples like Bob Clark, a 20 year Wal-Mart truck driver, whose profit sharing account is more than $700,000. Joyce McMurray, a company trainer, has nearly $500,000 in her retirement account. Sharing profits began with the first store managers. Many of them are millionaires today.

Rule 3: "Motivate your partners." Mr. Sam stressed setting high goals, encouraged healthy competition and avoided becoming predictable.

Rule 4: "Communicate everything you possibly can to your partners." Mr. Sam wrote, "The more they know, the more they'll understand. The more they understand, the more they'll care. Once they care, there's no stopping them."

Rule 5: "Appreciate everything your associates do for the business." Mr. Sam believed in the value of sincere works of praise. He praised his associates openly and often.

Rule 6: "Celebrate your success." All though the book, Walton points out funny experiences that happened during Wal-Mart's growth years. The message is don't take yourself too seriously, have fun and enjoy.

Rule 7: "Listen to everyone in your company." Mr. Sam probably spent more hours in his stores listening to associates than any other company founder. I believe it worked.

Rule 8: "Exceed your customers expectations." Walton always tried to give every customer exactly what they wanted - and a little more.

Rule 9: "Control your expenses better than your competitors." Recently, we analyzed the top American retailer's annual financial statements. Wal-Mart's operating expenses, compared to sales, are nearly a third less than No. 2 K-Mart and less than half of No. 3 Sears. That takes dedicated control.

Rule 10: "Swim upstream." Walton said that the statement he remembers hearing more than any other, was that a town of less than 50,000 population can't support a discount store very long. All through his discount career he ignored the "conventional" wisdom.

Hear's some conventional wisdom I think Mr. Sam would approve of: Read Made in America. Who knows, the next "Mr. Sam" may be a Minding Your Own Business reader, too!

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105

Real Estate

IMPOSING TWO STORY BOASTS FINISHED FULL BASEMENT

Basement Includes Pool Room, Play Room And Storage

An exotic two story formal entry foyer displays a graceful circular stair that soars to the second floor balcony and a tray ceiling. Coat closets flank the recessed entrance and a wet bar is nestled behind the stairway for immediate convenience to the family room.

The formal living room and dining room are separated by the foyer and fully isolated to every day traffic but still accessible to the kitchen and family room. Notice that guests may circulate into the living room from the family room and the sun room is also open into the family room, allowing a tremendous expanse of space for entertaining. The family room is shown with a fireplace and open rail stair to the second floor and basement. Sky lights and a sloped ceiling are included in the sun room. Deck access is from the sun room only. All of the above mentioned rooms are amazingly larger than average.

The kitchen includes an abundance of cabinet space, an island surface unit with snack bar and the adjoining breakfast room is endowed with a bay window and nine foot pantry. The laundry room is in this area too. It is shown with a pantry and a convenient toilet for daytime use.

The huge master bedroom suite is complete with a sizeable walk in closet and luxury bath.

There are three bedrooms shown upstairs, including an additional master bedroom, huge closets, and tray ceiling. Each bedroom is complete with a private bath.

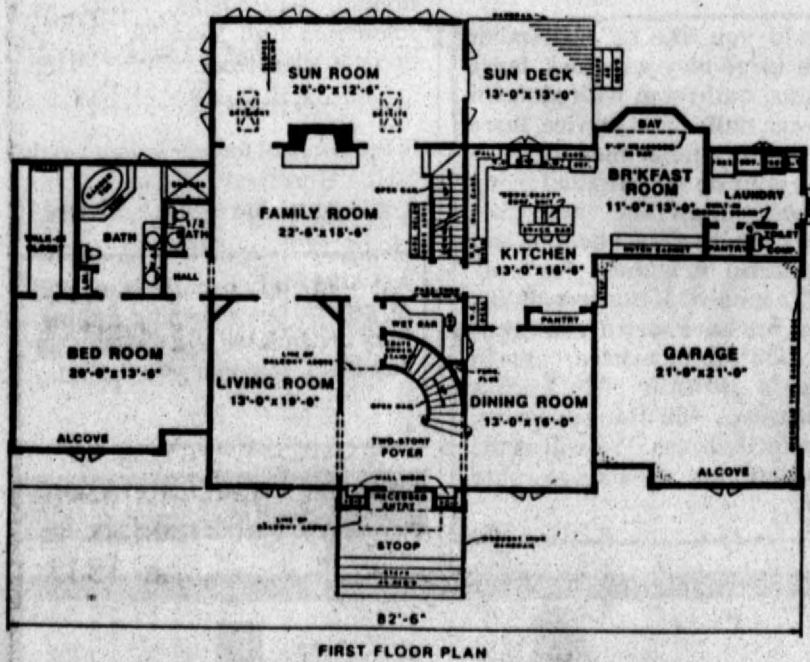

Rooms may be finished in the basement that already includes a pool room, play room and storage.

The exterior is constructed of stucco, enhanced by corner quoins, balcony, ornate window and hip roof design.

The plan is Number 4308. It is a computer generated plan. The total square footage for the first and second floor is 4,313. The sun room adds 351 square feet and finished basement is an additional 1,163 square feet. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

'To Be the Best' falls short of goal

Sunday and Tuesday on CBS, Emmy winner Lindsay Wagner stars in To Be the Best, a four-hour, two-part miniseries based on the international best seller by Barbara Taylor Bradford. Wagner plays a businesswoman whose department store empire is challenged by evil machinations from within her own family. Anthony Hopkins also stars.

Wagner, Hopkins struggle with cliché-ridden script

By Steven Alan McGaw

The miniseries To Be the Best, based on a best-selling novel by Barbara Taylor Bradford, has played in over 90 countries around the world since it was released in 1991. Presumably, this four-hour excursion into the lifestyles of the rich and evil (or at least the rich and ambitious) has been a popular, if not critical success, or its distribution would have petered out around country No. 32. Ms. Bradford's books (including A Woman of Substance and Hold the Dream) have built a devoted worldwide fandom surely ready to appreciate the dramatization as well.

American audiences can judge for themselves when CBS presents the two-part drama on Sunday, Aug. 2, and Tuesday, Aug. 4. Lindsay Wagner and this year's Academy Awards' Best Actor Anthony Hopkins (Silence of the Lambs) star in the work, which was filmed on locations in London, New York, Hong Kong and Macao. The large supporting cast includes Stephanie Beacham, Christopher Cazenove, Fiona Fullerton and Christopher Blake. Robert Bradford, the author's husband, produced the miniseries, and Tony Wharmby directed from a teleplay by Elliott Baker.

Wagner plays Briton Paula O'Neill, the designated heir to the Harte's Department Store empire founded by her grandmother. Under O'Neill's farsighted, humane guidance, the business flourishes, and now she sets her sights on conquering America. Her plans, unfortunately, are no secret to evil Jonathan Ainsley (Cazenove), O'Neill's vindictive cousin, who was banished from the family business for embezzlement. Aided by his wily (and equally duplicitous) henchman Tony Chiu (James Saito), Ainsley plots an elaborate scheme to gain controlling shares of the business and depose Oscar winner Anthony Hopkins plays keen-eyed Jack Figg in CBS' To Be the Best.

O'Neill. As the plot thickens to a near-impenetrable consistency, it seems that only canny Jack Figg (Hopkins), O'Neill's droll director of security, can prevent corporate upheaval.

The path taken by Bradford's tale is littered with overwrought subplots, from the cruelly engineered downfall of Sandy (Blake), O'Neill's gambling-addicted cousin (who's dying of leukemia), to poor Madelena O'Shea (Fullerton), who's terrorized by an old boyfriend, an alcoholic soap-opera actor played to riotous excess by Stuart Wilson.

Wagner is an able actress and palatable enough in good material (like 1988's The Taking of Flight 847: The Uli Derickson Story), but she's no match for the high-dudgeon histrionics handed her here. No material (at least not yet) can vanquish Hopkins, and his portrayal of stolid, observant Jack Figg is the work's best.

It falls to Cazenove and Beacham

Holy rumor, Batman!; Where ez Perez?

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My daughter heard that Jodie Sweetin of Full House died on the Batman ride at Great America about a month ago. She is distraught! Can you tell us whether it is true or not? Thanks for not using our names; if it isn't true, my daughter doesn't want to get teased at school. —No Name, Marinette, Wis.

A: No one I talked to would substantiate this sordid rumor, and my guess is the story was concocted by one of your daughter's friends who harbors a little jealousy for the bubbly, flaxen-haired actress. These sorts of rumors have been circulating as long as there have been kids.

Q: On June 28, one of Charles Kuralt's guests on CBS News Sunday Morning was a young fellow — I think his name was "Pizzarelli" or something similar. He sang some Bing (Crosby) and some Frank Sinatra, and he also played the guitar with his father. Can you tell me who he is and if I could buy a video or some cassettes of his music? He was wonderful! —Ins Burcham, Plymouth, Mich.

A: The correct spelling of this jazz artist's name is John Pizzarelli. Armed with this information, a call or two to your local music stores should produce one of his recordings, but no music video of him exists.

Q: I was wondering, what happened to the guy who played Roy in the movie The Boys Next Door? —Michael Cuzko, North Adams, Mass.

A: Maxwell Caulfield played Roy, a disillusioned high-school grad who turns to murder for kicks, in the quirky 1985 offering. Since that time, Caulfield has appeared in a number of other scare flicks of the direct-to-video nature. These are: The Supernaturals (1986), a ho-hum, spook 'em piece about the ghosts of Civil War soldiers who appear to a band of modern-day infantrymen; MindGames (1989), wherein a psychotic hitchhiker runs afoul of the populace, as they generally do; Sundown: The Vampire in Retreat (1990), a picture about a Western town run by a horde of vampires; Fatal Sky (1990), a film concerning the sighting of UFOs over Norway; and Dance With Death (1991), focusing on a reporter's plan to learn who's killing dancers on the Sunset Strip by posing as one. Take your pick.

Q: Recently, my son and I took in the movie The Babe. We both really enjoyed John Goodman's portrayal of the famous baseball player. I would appreciate knowing where I could write Mr. Goodman to thank him for doing such a great job in making the film. —Mark S. Cenfield, Nashville, Tenn.

A: You may write Goodman in care of The Gersh Agency, 232 N. Canon Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90210.

Q: My aunt and I were watching the premiere of Melrose Place and came to a disagreement on the subject of actress Vanessa Williams. I believe the previous Miss America Vanessa Williams is not the same Vanessa Williams that stars on Melrose Place, but my aunt bet me she is. Could you please clear up the question for us? —Sara Spears, Portland, Ore.

A: You're right, Sara. The dethroned Miss America and the Melrose Place series star are two different people.

Q: I was wondering where to write Rosie Perez. You might know her from her performance as Woody Harrelson's girlfriend in White Men Can't Jump or as Spike Lee's angry lover in Do the Right Thing. She is also the choreographer of the Fly Girls on In Living Color. —Dre Duffey, Pittsburg, Texas.

A: You may write Perez in care of Creative Artists Agency, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Send your questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. 961089, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

Connie Sellecca discusses her latest telefilm on Wednesday's edition of Entertainment Tonight.

CABLE NEWS

Cable returns to original 'Cape Fear'

By Dan Rice

Terror can be subtle. Although Martin Scorsese's remake of Cape Fear made a huge impact on this generation, it does not detract from the tension in a lower key created 30 years ago in the original. On Sunday, Aug. 2, A&E airs the prototype of the chiller, starring Robert Mitchum as Max Cady, the recently released sex criminal who seeks revenge on the family of lawyer Gregory Peck, whom he deems responsible for his prison stay. The throbbing background score by Bernard Herrmann (Psycho) helps make this unforgettable cinema.

Truth is more gripping than dramatizations. On A&E Friday, Aug. 7, Time Machine With Jack Perkins: The Trials of Claus von Bulow documents the real-life melodrama that was the basis for the feature film Reversal of Fortune. Edited from over 100 days of courtroom proceedings, this program tells the story of von Bulow's conviction for the attempted murder by insulin injection of his socialite wife, Sunny, and his successful appeal.

Here's a break from the Olympics ... well, almost. It's Animalympics, debuting Tuesday, Aug. 4, exclusively on The Disney Channel. The 1979 animated spoof of the Games and the obligatory TV coverage casts animals as the participating athletes and Gilda Radner, Billy Crystal and Harry Shearer supplying the voices.

Donahue's adopted brother; Littlefield signs Carson

"He's the son my mother always wanted to have." So says Phil Donahue, that icon of sensitive guyness, of his new talk-show partner, Vladimir Pozner. Donahue and Pozner will team up beginning in September for a new-issues forum on CNBC. The consumer- and business-news network has become the Jekyll and Hyde of cable television, presenting stock-market tickers by day and talk, talk, talk by night. A wholly owned subsidiary of NBC, CNBC is currently available in 47 million homes.

Pozner & Donahue, a weekly one-hour telecast, will feature a mix of guest interviews, call-in time and tete-a-tete summits between its hosts. A native of the United States and a speaker of six languages, Pozner has lived most of his life behind the Iron Curtain and first worked with Donahue on a pre-1985 Citizens Summit via satellite in 1985.

TNT has announced an ambitious series of movie projects for 1993. In the literary-remake category, the network has announced a version of Jack

Phil Donahue

London's suspense tale The Sea Wolf to star Charles Bronson and Christopher Reeve, and will even produce a Frankenstein starring Patrick Bergin as the obsessed scientist, with Randy Quaid as the monster.

Garth Brooks and Dame Edna are but two of the entertainers returning to NBC in the fall. In a July press conference, network entertainment chief Warren Littlefield announced upcoming specials by the country-music sensation and the faux celebrity-interview host, plus a brand-new deal with Johnny Carson for original programming — either in the form of specials or a series. Littlefield has also collected contractual autographs from Dana Carvey, John Candy, Henry Winkler and Michael Bolton for upcoming series and specials.

An estimated one in ten children have symptoms of asthma or eczema at any one time.

STAR NOTES

Making films half the battle for Okazaki

By Dan Rice
Steven Okazaki is a documentary filmmaker who knows the ins and outs of public broadcasting. He is "in" this week, when PBS airs his Troubled Paradise on Sunday, Aug. 2. The hourlong film reveals the problems of native Hawaiians and their struggles to preserve their land and culture.

Okazaki makes pictures about issues that leave most Americans feeling uncomfortable. Survivors was the first English-language film of accounts by Hiroshima and Nagasaki survivors of the United States' atomic attacks. The Oscar-nominated Unfinished Business told the story of three Japanese-Americans who legally challenged the United States' wartime incarceration of their people, and Days of Waiting remembers Estelle Ishigo, one of the few Caucasians interned with Japanese-Americans during the war.

"There's so much conservatism (governing) the kind of programming that you can do, I'm just finding it very frustrating," Okazaki says of his making documentaries for PBS. "You can get funding from the government, but (PBS) might not even let you show the film. My film Days of Waiting, which was funded by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, was rejected by PBS. We found another way in through this program P.O.V., and then it won an Academy Award. It's a really stupid system." © TV Listing Inc.

Linking Ivan's affection to Stalin's seduction of a nation, the director Andrei Konchalovsky abruptly darkens the mood. But the film's odd shift from wryness to pathos works to its advantage. Rated PG-13. Four Boxes

RAMBLIN' ROSE: (1991) Starring Laura Dern, Diane Ladd, Robert Duvall and Lukas Haas. We'll know by the time you read this column if Laura Dern earned an Oscar as Rose, a frisky, tempting nineteen-year old who goes to work for a Georgia family in 1935, and if maybe Diane Ladd won an Oscar as the understanding mistress of the household. Both certainly deserved the nominations and, if selected, aptly earned their honors. (The first real life mother and daughter Oscar nomination ever.) All long legs and open manner

Rose takes a shine to Daddy (Duvall) and raises the temperature of young Buddy (Haas). Honest and engaging, Martha Coolidge's film is an uncommon coming-of-age story in which a whole family questions the mysteries of sex, loyalty and love. There are a lot of winners in this movie, the viewer among them. Rated R for brief nudity, mature themes and sex. Four Boxes

PARADISE: Starring Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson. Who's the sexiest homebody country wife in the town of Paradise? Melanie Griffith. She and Don Johnson (as, of all things, a shrimp fisherman), both excellent in their respective roles, are a couple trying to restore their relationship after the death of their child. Elijah Wood is a wise ten-year old who eventually helps them acknowledge their loss. Rated PG-13.

Three Boxes
SLACKER: (1991) Orion. Richard Linklater wanders around Austin, Texas doing what some other film makers would love to do: make a movie composed solely of climaxes. A number of Austin characters sound off in unconnected episodes. A man runs over his mother with his car; another tries to pick up a woman jogging, and so on. Surprisingly, the pieces blend into a film with enough local color "to stock five years worth of ordinary movies." Rated R for mature themes. Not everyone's cup of tea but, for committed film buffs, viewing is recommended. Three Boxes

THE INNER CIRCLE: (1991) Starring Tom Hulce. Released mostly in art houses, this unique film is worthy of home viewing. On his wedding night an humble Soviet citizen named Ivan Sanshin (Tom Hulce) is summoned to the Kremlin and given the unsettling news that he has been appointed Stalin's private projectionist. His predecessor died of a heart attack when yelled at, but Ivan finds the Soviet leader (Aleksandr Zbruyev) a charming fellow not above coyly hobnobbing with the help. In his desire to please, Ivan becomes cheerily oblivious of the regime's brutality and more devoted to Stalin.

Double Duty Protection

SURE PROFITS AGAINST SUMMER AND FALL'S BIGGEST HEALTH THREAT!

PROBLEM: Ixodes dammini - A small tick that can inflict a big problem - Lyme Disease

SOLOUTION: Use Cutter Tick Repellent as Part of Protect and Check Program

CUTTER TICK REPELLENT
OFFERS DOUBLE DUTY
PROTECTION AGAINST TICKS

In recent months the national media has addressed a growing concern regarding the spread of Lyme Disease, a potentially serious and debilitating disease that is transmitted and spread by an incredible small woodlands and grasslands tick. Health officials and the Lyme Borreliosis Foundation recommend the use of repellents containing DEET in conjunction with other simple precautions to maximize protection against ticks. Cutter Tick Repellent contains the most effective tick-fighting ingredient you can wear and spray on both skin and clothing. CUTTER TICK REPELLENT is specially formulated to offer double duty protection against ticks.

BEADED SEAT CUSHIONS

MASSAGES

Gentle massaging action, as you move increases circulation, improves alertness and reduces fatigue. Soothe your tired and aching muscles and learn why it's called the "TAXI DRIVER'S FRIEND."

SUPPORTS

Added lumbar support improves posture and makes even long trips comfortable. A must for truckers, taxi drivers, salespeople or anyone who spends time on the road or sitting.

VENTILATES

Open weave design maximizes ventilation for cooler seating in summer, warmer seating in winter.
