School 'true' tax rate below state average

Hereford Independent School District had a "true tax rate" of $1,076 per $100 of market value the past year, much lower than the statewide and region averages. HISD imposed a rate of $1,109, including .809 cents by the county education district. Property was appraised at 97 percent of its market value, making the true tax rate $1,076. Statewide, the "true" tax rate averaged $1,259 and the region averaged $1,157. Hereford Independent School District's 191-92 budget provided $4,051 per student for current operations, compared to averages of $3,979 statewide and $4,093 for the region. Current operations includes all expenses except interest costs. The figures comes from the latest issue of "Bench Marks of School Districts Budgets in Texas," an annual publication of the Texas Research League, an Austin-based educational corporation engaged in governmental research. Despite widespread reports last Fall of school budget cuts, trustees across the state adopted the largest spending increase in history--$1.8 billion. Revenue from local property taxes increased by 10.6 percent last year, compared to a 12 percent hike statewide. HISD's budget included $20.88 per student for debt service and $204.91 for capital outlay. Region averages were $261 for debt service and $190 for capital outlay, while state averages were $616 and $337. Region 16 includes the top 26 counties in the Panhandle. The average base salary for classroom teachers paid by HISD in October 1991 was $26,079 plus career ladder supplements. The region average was $26,321 and the state's was $27,553. The HISD average for administrators was $40,970; the average for other professional support employees was $30,099. This compares to region averages of $42,621 and $30,342, respectively, and state marks of $45,958 and $33,406. Four dollar in each five were spent for salaries. Statewide payroll expenses averaged $3,326 per student, while the HISD average was $3,282. The region averaged $3,240. Payroll expense is determined by salary levels and staffing patterns. Taxpayers provided one teacher for 14 students in HISD while the statewide pupil-teacher ratio was 16.3 to one, and the region average was 14.7 to one. The tax on a house that would for $80,000 in the Hereford school district would have been $907. If the homeowner were eligible for homestead exemptions, the tax would have been $719. That compares with statewide average tax bills of $998 and $793 respectively for an $80,000 house. The region average are $921 and $757, respectively.

The state and the county education districts will fund the total cost of the foundation program, which averaged $2,784 per student last year and was $2,794 in HISD. Local districts can levy personal property taxes to enrich the foundation program. Enrichment last year averaged $831 per pupil to which the state added an average of $354 per student to guarantee the tax yield in property-poor districts. Enrichment by the HISD was $297; the state guarantee added $469. For the coming school year, there will be $1.3 billion more for school budgets without any tax increase by school trustees other than the 10-cent increase CEDs mandated by the legislature.

Bush uses opponents' names, promises fight

BUSH

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP) - The elusive Bill Clinton has finally surfaced in President Bush's re-election campaign. After months of referring to the Arkansas governor by different, slightly derisive code words - "a certain Southern governor," "a rookie quarterback" and "the other side" - Bush on Wednesday finally uttered the name of the man who stands between him and a second term. "The Clinton-Gore ticket has two weeks of leave, and then after that convention, I'm going to go after them," the president said on a day of cross-country campaigning from New York to Nevada to Colorado. "We're going to set the record straight," said Bush, whose fortunes continue to ebb in the polls. "We're going to take it to the people," he added, in a fight over "American values." Bush has begun stepping up the intensity of his criticism of Clinton in recent days as the Arkansas governor's poll numbers have risen and his own have dropped. The latest sounding, a Washington Post-ABC News survey, gave Bush an approval rating of 33 percent, his lowest yet. The survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points. The poll was only the latest manifestation of Bush's political difficulty. Others include a sluggish economy, Republican members of Congress expressing nervousness about their own political fortunes, and at least four newspaper editorials calling him to abandon his re-election drive.

Clinton using Bush's words for unique attack

CLINTON

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) - Bill Clinton is trying to deflect the attacks from President Bush with an unusual tactic - quoting them directly in his own campaign speeches. When Bush said the Democrats' health plan "will have the compassion of the KGB and the competence of the House Post Office," Clinton said, it showed "how out of touch this president and this administration is." And when the President "used the word 'trust' 29 times the other day," Clinton said, "The implication, of course, was that you couldn't trust the other fella. That's me, I'm the other fella." Clinton's response: "Before you get elected, they just let you make one decision. My decision was Al Gore. Do you think you can trust me?" His implication, of course, was that Bush couldn't be trusted because of his choice of Dan Quayle. Clinton's counter-punches are being delivered as he and Gore tour north along the Mississippi in the second campaign since his nomination at the Democratic National Convention in New York last month. Staying on the offensive, he will respond to Bush aggressively, campaign aides say. "Negatives always work - if you don't respond to them," said Frank Greer, a senior adviser, and Clinton will try to make the attacks by Bush an issue in themselves. "He'll (Bush) be diminished by his negative attacks," Greer said. While Clinton was in the Midwest on Wednesday, Bush was on a Western campaign swing during which he used the names of the Democratic rivals for the first time. He said the Democrats' had been getting a free ride, and that would end with the Republican National Convention later this month in Houston. Clinton's communications director, George Stephanopoulos, said he expected the Arkansas governor to face a steady bombardment.

Probation revoked for pair

Probations of two defendants were revoked Wednesday in 222nd District Court. Each will serve prison sentences on two convictions. Judge David Wesley Guiley also heard guilty pleas from three defendants who were assessed probated terms. Convicted on charges of criminal mischief in 1989 and credit card abuse in 1990, Freddy Gavina will serve concurrent terms in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division of eight years and five years, on revocation of probation. Two concurrent sentences of seven years were given Ramiro Davila, 23, on revocation of probation on a pair of burglary convictions. He previously was assessed 10-year probated terms on two charges in 1987. He also must pay $500 fines on each conviction. On a guilty plea to having a weapon in a prohibited place, Joe Martin Lozoya, 17, received deferred judgment and two years probation. A five-year probated sentence was given Juan Montes, 46, who entered a plea of guilty to felony driving while intoxicated. He also must pay a $500 fine. Cesar Limon Alardin, 47, also was given five years probation on his guilty plea to felony DWI. His fine was $1,500.

State facing tough times

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says state agencies responsible for some budget savings should be congratulated, but that "tougher times lie ahead." "Agencies that have already begun the belt-tightening process must be prepared to take in another notch in the next biennium," she said Wednesday, after State Comptroller John Sharp presented a glimmer of good budget news amid some tough economic problems. Sharp said that Texas is projected to have a $529 million cash balance when the 1992 fiscal year ends on Aug. 31. That's compared with a $168 million shortfall earlier projected for this midpoint in the two-year budget period. Sharp emphasized that the cash balance is not a reflection of any change in the economy, and it doesn't show how much lawmakers will have to spend when they meet in regular session to draw up the 1994-95 budget. However, he said it does show some good things are happening in state government. Sharp said the projection is due largely to lower-than-anticipated franchise tax refunds to corporations; higher lottery proceeds, thanks to the game starting earlier than scheduled; and state agencies spending less than they were appropriated. However, he also noted that the state is facing some bad economic news. "We're a long way from out of the woods," Sharp said.

American kids going hungry this summer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Millions of low-income children may be going hungry this summer because a federally funded program to provide summertime meals is not available in many communities, a nutrition advocacy group said today. "On Mondays during the academic year, teachers see children who devour their school lunches like they're the first real meals the kids have had since Friday. Just think what happens to these children when Monday at school is three months away," said Robert J. Fersh, executive director of the Food Research and Action Center. The private group said its review of government data found that while more than 12 million low-income children received free or reduced-price school lunches in 1991, only 1.8 million youngsters participated in the summer food program. Participation figures for this summer are not yet available, the group said. Reports indicate that participation is expected to be higher than in 1991, but not nearly enough to close the gap. The Agriculture Department's Food and Nutrition Service operates both the Summer Food Service Program for Children and the National School Lunch Program. FRAC said communities, states and USDA are to blame for the summertime meal program's failure to reach more children.

The summer nutrition program is open to serve hot lunches to all persons under 18 in Hereford during the summer.

The group said most local community groups, public agencies and schools that are eligible for federal money to operate programs do not seek it. Also, it said, some state agencies have not done enough to encourage use of the program, while USDA has failed to promote the program adequately and has made participation by some groups unnecessarily difficult. Phil Shanzholtzer, a spokesman for the Food and Nutrition Service, said the agency agrees in general with FRAC. "We think this is a good program and we'd like to see it grow, too," Shanzholtzer said. "We would like to encourage states and localities to operate the program." Shanzholtzer said USDA did indeed make it tougher for private, non-profit organizations to participate after several unscrupulous groups took the government's money and provided few, if any, services in return. USDA spent $181 million on the summer feeding program last year, up from $113 million in 1986, when participation totaled 1.5 million children. Fersh called on community groups and government agencies at all levels to make the program a priority. The Summer Food Service Program for Children was established in 1968. Sponsors may operate feeding sites in areas in which at least one-half of the children are from low-income households, or at sites where half of the children participating are from low-income families. Sponsors can include public or private non-profit schools; units of local, municipal, county or state government; summer camps and certain private non-profit organizations.

Prostitution clean-up underway in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston police used eight attractive female officers posing as prostitutes to arrest more than 30 prospective "johns" in a sting designed to cut down prostitution during the Republican National Convention.

The sting operation will continue through the convention to be held Aug. 17-20, vice Lt. D.L. Smith said Wednesday.

In one case, a man in a pickup truck pulled up beside a young blonde who was standing beside South Main Street. He called her over and made his proposition. He was led away in handcuffs.

Police had made more than 30 arrests in the early hours of the first day of the pre-convention sting.

"We're expecting a lot of prostitutes along Main Street as the convention nears," Smith said. "And we need to let these guys know that if they solicit a woman on Main Street it's probably a policeman, and they will go to jail."

The police decoys won't limit their activities to the streets not far from the Astrodome. They'll be hanging out in the lobbies of hotels used for convention delegates.

"Our area of concentration will be where conventioners are staying and Main Street," Smith said.

The operation is no picnic for the good-looking "policewomen" who exchange their uniforms for more gaudy attire. Involvement is voluntary, authorities say.

"Somebody from vice one day asked me if I'd like to do a sting," said one of the officers, who was not identified. "I said yes, and I've been doing it ever since."

The woman said she has arrested nearly 100 men on charges of soliciting prostitution since she began four years ago.

There is little danger in the sting, she said.

"Most of the time they have one thing on their mind," she said. "Any thing could happen on the street and they wouldn't notice it."

"I've never had an occasion where I felt like I was in danger," she said.

One of the men arrested Wednesday was said to be on his way to his 12th wedding anniversary celebration.

"There were roses in the car," the officer said.

Victim files suit over 'hit' contract

HOUSTON (AP) - A woman accused of attempting to hire a hitman to kill the mother of her daughter's chief competitor for a spot on a school cheerleading team has been sued by the intended victim and members of her family.

The lawsuit was filed Wednesday by Verna Rae and Jack Heath against Wanda Webb Holloway.

In the suit, the Heaths allege that Mrs. Holloway's attempt to solicit Verna Rae's murder caused the family "pain, suffering, emotional anguish, and emotional trauma."

The suit, which seeks unspecified damages, further claims that Mrs. Holloway's alleged plot caused the family to be "held up to public scrutiny and ridicule and their lives have been forever changed and their common pleasures destroyed."

The woman's actions were "devoid of care and concern for the duties owed to her fellow human beings," the suit claims.

Attempts to reach attorneys on both sides were unsuccessful late Wednesday, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

Holloway was convicted in September 1991 of trying to hire a hit man to kill neighbor Verna Rae Heath, whose daughter, Amber, was Shanna Holloway's chief rival for a spot on the Alice Johnson Junior High School cheerleading squad.

Mrs. Holloway claimed she was "set up" by her former brother-in-law, Terry Harper, the state's star witness, and her ex-husband, Tony Harper, in a dispute over custody of their teen-age children, Shane and Shanna.

Prosecutors alleged that Mrs. Holloway believed Amber, 13, would be so grief-stricken that she would drop out of cheerleading, clearing the way for Shanna.

Mrs. Holloway was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $10,000. But she was granted a new trial because a felon served on the jury that convicted her. No date has been set for a second trial and Mrs. Holloway remains free on bond.

Tony Harper sold film rights to the story last fall for $137,000 to BLT Inc., a Los Angeles-based production company that is making a movie for HBO. Oscar-nominated actress Holly Hunter will play Mrs. Holloway.

A court will divide that money among Harper and the children. Harper is Shanna's joint managing conservator.

Gonzales levels criticism on GOP over investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez has fired off a harsh attack against House Republicans seeking an ethics investigation of his disclosure of classified information regarding the Bush administration's relationship with Iraq.

Gonzalez, who chairs the House Banking Committee, has drawn the administration's ire with his frequent disclosures on the House floor of U.S. dealings with Iraq before the Persian Gulf War.

Wednesday, the day after Republican leaders sought an investigation, Gonzalez blasted them for sandbagging his probe - calling it "the oldest and most tattered page in the Republican book."

"First, they tried to ignore the investigation," he said in a prepared statement. "Then they tried to hide the evidence. Now that the truth is emerging, they're trying to distract people from the facts by accusing me of wrongdoing."

Gonzalez said he was guilty of no wrongdoing "unless telling the truth about how George Bush cozied up to Saddam Hussein right up until the eve of the war is wrong."

But House Minority Leader Robert Michel said failure to restrain Gonzalez could hurt intelligence operations abroad, jeopardize allies' security and justify withholding of information to Congress by the executive branch.

The Republicans stopped short of lodging a formal ethics complaint against Gonzalez but accused him of disseminating information received at a closed committee meeting and violating House rules against improper conduct.

For several months, the San Antonio Democrat was literally the only voice in Congress seeking to probe the Bush administration's pre-war dealings with Iraq.

He contends the Reagan and Bush administrations tolerated Iraq's efforts to build nuclear and chemical weapons and propped up the Iraqi economy with U.S.-taxpayer-subsidized loans.

Gonzalez has since been joined by House Judiciary Committee Democrats, who last month requested an independent counsel investigation of possible criminal misconduct by senior Bush administration officials.

The CIA, which has cut off Gonzalez's access to classified information, is investigating whether his disclosures have damaged intelligence sources. Gonzalez said the agency's charges are without merit and that he would not be frightened away by "piddling,phony charges about national security."

Justice, Treasury and State Department officials also have complained about Gonzalez' release of information dating to last March.

He needs at least 27 votes from the 52 committee members in order to issue subpoenas in his investigation of the Atlanta branch of an Italian bank that made more than $4 billion in loans to Iraq.

Gonzalez wants to subpoena former Banca Nazionale del Lavoro employees, U.S. companies that received loans from BNL and had dealings with Iraq, and federal agencies that won't comply with his requests for information.

Gonzalez has obtained subpoena powers from his committee twice in the last year and a half, but could find the going more tough now that Republicans are demanding an investigation. The committee is composed of 31 Democrats, 20 Republicans and one independent.

"We may indeed meet some resistance tomorrow, but we're pretty confident we'll get the Democratic votes and get the majority of the committee to go for it," said committee spokeswoman Julie Black.

Indictments returned in murders of teens

AUSTIN (AP) - Three men who have been indicted on aggravated kidnapping charges in the abduction and sexual assault of an Austin woman are being sought for questioning in the slayings of four teen-agers at an Austin yogurt shop eight months ago, sources say.

The three men were indicted in a case that occurred less than a month before the slayings at the yogurt shop last Dec. 6, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

Acting Police Chief George Phifer refused to discuss the case but did confirm that a news conference would be held today to discuss the most recent developments.

None of the three was believed to be in custody late Wednesday, KTBC-TV reported.

The indictment names Alberto Cortez, Carlos Saabedra, alias Porfirio Villa, and Ricardo Sanchez, alias Ricardo Hernandez. The indictment was returned by a Travis County grand jury March 23 but remained sealed until Wednesday. Generally, indictments are sealed because law officers want an opportunity to locate and arrest the suspects before making the charges public.

The three men are charged in connection with the Nov. 17, 1991, abduction of a woman who was leaving the Cavity Club. The victim told police that the three men raped her and took her to San Antonio, where she escaped.

Earlier this year, police released sketches of the three men sought in the abduction.

Negotiators believe trade pact near Few stumbling blocks still to be settled

WASHINGTON (AP) - Negotiators working around the clock to complete a North American Free Trade Agreement appear to be within striking distance of resolving the remaining stumbling blocks to a continental accord.

Trade ministers for the United States, Mexico and Canada have been meeting at the Watergate Hotel since Sunday in hopes of concluding the nearly 14-month-old talks.

The pact would create the world's largest trading bloc, bringing together 360 million consumers with an annual output of $6 trillion.

Rumors swirling around Capitol Hill had the trade ministers ready to seal the deal with a handshake Wednesday. As the hours passed and the negotiators adjourned for the day, the focus moved to today or Friday.

"There is no way for anyone - the White House or a reporter or anyone - to predict when this thing is going to be finished," Assistant U.S. Trade Representative Kathy Lydon said Wednesday. "It defies predicting."

But, she added, "I would hope it's tomorrow."

Even if an agreement is concluded now, Congress would not be expected to vote on the pact before next year under the fast-track provisions. But the White House is said to be pushing for completion of an agreement so

President Bush can use the issue in the campaign.

Ms. Lydon declined to discuss the sticking points that remain, saying it wouldn't be beneficial to the ongoing talks.

But congressional and industry sources close to the negotiations said tariffs, automobiles and textiles were the most contentious issues remaining.

"Tariffs are always the last to be dealt with," a congressional source monitoring the talks said on condition of anonymity. "So far, no one has been willing to blink much on those."

Mexico and Canada had yet to resolve their differences Wednesday with the United States over the content requirement necessary in automobile to qualify for duty-free treatment. U.S. negotiators are insisting that automobiles consist of at least 60 percent North American-made parts, while Canada and Mexico don't want a figure over 50 percent.

Environmental, safety and worker protection remain paramount in the minds of many members of Congress.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again: a good free trade agreement must address environmental concerns and provide the kinds of retraining that affected workers need," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, whose Senate Finance Committee has jurisdiction over trade matters.

"If NAFTA fails to speak to these kinds of problems, it won't be approved by Congress," the Texas Democrat said Wednesday.

The House is poised to consider a resolution calling for free trade pacts, including the North American agreement, not to harm American health, safety or environmental standards.

The vote, originally expected today, is likely to occur Friday. The sponsors, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt and California Democrat Henry Waxman, have lined up 219 co-sponsors, of which 11 are Republicans.

Democrats and environmentalists said the administration had worked against the resolution's passage since it was offered last November, but belatedly endorsed it.

"The Republicans who could not beat us are going to glom onto the resolution," said Lori Wallach of Public Citizen, a consumer advocacy group founded by Ralph Nader. The organization is working against passage of the trade pact.

Ms. Lydon said the resolution did not contradict President Bush's earlier promises to Congress.

Life!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've never felt so frightened, alone, angry and anxious in all my life. Why? Because I'm getting ready to be tested for HIV.

I was in a monogamous relationship with another male for five years. Then I met Terry: and thought I might be happier with him. We began to spend a lot of time together and of course we had sex. After nearly a year, Terry and I decided we weren't right for each other and parted.

Yesterday I got a phone call from Terry. He is in the hospital and has tested HIV positive. It never crossed my mind that someone who said he loved me could expose me to a killer virus. Well, if it happened to me, it can happen to anyone. To make matters worse, I returned to my longtime lover and if I am infected, he is, too.

May I give your readers some priceless advice? Never assume ANYTHING. If a potential sex partner tells you he or she has tested negative for HIV, insist on seeing the medical records. If the test results are from several months ago, demand that your partner be tested again. Don't be blinded by love or the heat of the moment. Learn everything you can about your partner's health and past sexual conduct. If there's any question in your mind, DON'T GET INVOLVED.

Above all, always practice safe sex, even when you believe you know all about the person. Remember, caution could save your life.

Ann, it may be too late for me, but if my words of warning can make a difference in just one person's life, I'll feel better about my fate.

Please say a prayer on my behalf, as well as for those who may find themselves in my shoes. This is one mistake I will never make again.--Terrified in the South

DEAR FRIEND: I felt your anguish and said a prayer. I hope you will be one of the lucky ones and escape the illness.

Your letter should serve as a reminder to everyone who is sexually active--straight, gay or bisexual--that there is always a risk involved. Today there is no such thing as safe sex. Condoms reduce the risk of AIDS, but they cannot provide 100 percent protection. Condoms can break or leak and they don't always stay on.

Remember this column when you feel yourself heading toward a passionate encounter. Ask yourself, "Is this worth dying for?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help! It has finally dawned on me that I am burdened with a self-defeating affliction. It is called stubbornness. I am 46 years old and this undesirable trait has caused me enormous grief, not to mention loss of time, money and happiness.

I've been stubborn for as long as I can remember and it has cost me many friendships. Where did this ugly characteristic come from and what can I do to get rid of it? I don't want to see a psychiatrist.--Dead Serious in L.A.

DEAR DEAD SERIOUS: Congratulations. A problem identified is half solved. Someone in your early life was probably extremely controlling and being stubborn was your way of rebelling. In order to understand this better, you need to talk to a professional. OK, no psychiatrist, but do see someone in the field of mental health. Now, don't be stubborn. Get going.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Melodrama Friday, Saturday

St. Thomas Episcopal Church is sponsoring its annual melodrama, "The Villain Wore A Dirty Shirt", at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday on the church grounds, 601 W. Park. Tickets are priced at $5 per person and $2.50 for children 12 and under. Those planning to attend the event are asked to bring a picnic supper, lounge chairs or blankets. Dessert and refreshments will be served during intermission. Rehearsing the play are Emily Knight, who is portraying Sweet Sally, and Joe Weaver, Phineas Flatworm.

NEW YORK (AP) - Ivana Trump must settle her account with a detective agency that claims she owes it $233,000 for snooping done during her divorce.

Investigative Group Inc. charged in lawsuit that Mrs. Trump paid $75,000 of a $308,000 bill for tracking down Marla Maples, Donald Trump's girlfriend.

Justice Shirley Fingerhood, in a ruling last week, rejected Mrs. Trump's argument that she limited IGI to $100,000 worth of work.

Hints from Heloise

STORING HAND-ME-DOWNS

Dear Heloise: I have three daughters who wear hand-me-downs. Each has a foot locker of handed-down clothes to grow into that have been passed on from the older sister.

When one outgrows clothes, they go into the next locker till they fit the next person. This helps keeps clothes sorted till needed. -- Nita Smith, North Metro, Ga.

LIQUID LAUNDRY-DETERGENT BOTTLES

Dear Heloise: I have found another use for the large plastic liquid laundry-detergent bottles.

After a thorough cleaning and rinsing, they make fine watering cans for potted plants. I also mix fertilizers in them.

It's simpler, especially when using the 1- or 2-gallon size containers. -- E. Bullen, Laredo, Texas

Timely tips for school success

Once of the top students of all time said, "Excellence is not an act, but a habit." If Aristotle were studying today, he would be well-advised to apply modern time management techniques to his academic career.

Ron Bianco, head of product development for Day Runner Inc., a leading maker of personal organizers, encourages students to try these tips for academic success:

*It's the result, not the amount of effort that counts. One hour of relaxed, uninterrupted study can be worth a day of half-hearted studying.

*Budget time for an assignment and then add 25 percent. Most people are over-optimistic when it comes to estimating time.

*Prioritized your daily study assignments like an emergency room doctor. Do the most critical and not the easiest assignments first.

*Book it! Plan your time and projects by using the all-in-one format of a personal organizer. These loose-leaf binders have sections for recording assignments and taking notes. Ideas and information can be filed by category inside for later reference when writing papers.

"My organizer has helped improve my study habits and my grade point average," noted a university student in a Day Runner survey. A high school scholar remarked, "It was well-worth my mother's money."

Baylor's Johnson fails in 200-meter semis

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - Michael Johnson went from the heat of Olympic hype and competition into the air-conditioned interview room and the chilling realization he was done.

"I didn't make it," he said after a minute's silent reflection. "It didn't happen."

After the big buildup and a following controversy, the world champion sprinter failed to qualify for the 200-meter final Wednesday, finishing a distant sixth.

With his earlier decision not to compete in the 400 meters and his berth in the 1,600-meter relay in question, Johnson's Olympics may be over.

"I just didn't feel like Michael Johnson today," he said in a dull monotone. "It's just not there."

Ranked No. 1 in the 200 and 400 meters the past two years, Johnson was an early pick to take the gold in both competitions. As late as last week the former Baylor star proclaimed himself the best 400-meter runner in the business.

With world record-holder Butch Reynolds fighting allegations of steroid use and failing to qualify during the Olympic trials in New Orleans, Johnson would have been an important addition to the U.S. effort.

But Johnson, who has a habit of referring to himself in the third person, opted out of the 400. He complained the original Barcelona schedule would have him running the two different races on the same day.

He wouldn't relent, not even after the International Amateur Athletic Federation shifted the schedule to put the 200 and 400 finals on following days.

"They're too late," he said at the trials in June.

After Wednesday night's showing, it was Johnson who was too late for a medal. An intimidating competitor who dominated the 200 over the past two years, Johnson slipped to the back of the pack after the final turn, falling to his knees after he crossed the finish line in sixth place.

"The Olympic gold is what I wanted," he said. "It's behind me now."

It was up to U.S. teammate Mike Marsh to set an Olympic record of 19.73 seconds in the other heat - an Olympic record and only one-hundredth of a second shy of the world record.

Johnson blamed his showing on a virus that ambushed him a few weeks

Lewis primed for long jump battle

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - Carl Lewis has the chance tonight to stamp the Olympics with his unique signature, as he did the Summer Games of 1984 and 1988, and as no one else has so far this year.

Denied the opportunity to prove he's still the world's fastest human, Lewis can soar into history and make these Games his own with one mighty leap.

The 30-foot barrier in the long jump - as imposing as the 4-minute mile was 40 years ago - a world record and a third straight gold in the jump all loom within Lewis' reach.

As Day 13 of the Olympics began today, dozens of athletes have graced the Games with their strength, speed, courage and skills. But none has been so singularly distinguished as Lewis would be if he flies past 30 feet.

History was made in other ways on Wednesday, not all of it good for U.S. teams.

One dynasty ended - the U.S. women's basketball team lost 79-73 in the semifinals to the Unified Team - and another continued as Cuba won the gold in baseball by crushing Taiwan 11-1. Japan beat the U.S. baseball team 8-3 for the bronze.

The heavily favored hoopsters, so confident of gold, have been reduced to battling for bronze after losing 79-73 in the semifinals.

The loss came at the expense of a group considered to be the best women's team ever assembled in the United States, one that had a three-time Olympian, five other veterans of the 1988 Seoul Games and six other players with vast international experience.

"I'm not shocked because any time you step on the court any team can lose..." guard Teresa Edwards said. "But we have a team with a lot of talent, and it's hard to realize all that talent couldn't come through in a game."

In baseball, the United States ended a tournament full of disappointment with the biggest one of all Wednesday - failing to win a medal. The pitching unraveled under pressure once again and the offense went flat.

Martin shines in Cowboys' camp

AUSTIN (AP) - Each year it's the same old training camp song for Kelvin Martin: "Turn out the lights, K-Mart is gone."

Then, as he has done in his last four NFL camps with the Dallas Cowboys, he performs acrobatic catches that dazzles the coaches and clinches his spot on the team.

"It's always been a fight for me," Martin said. "This year it's no different. I kind of get tired of it. They draft a lot of receivers. But I always stick."

Martin has been the best receiver in camp for the Cowboys. Michael Irvin is holding out in a contract dispute and second-round pick Jimmy Smith of Jackson State got hurt the first week.

Alvin Harper has tapered off after an excellent first week.

"It's the same old K-Mart," said

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "He's very consistent and very reliable. He makes plays. That's why he is so valuable to this team. There's a place for him."

Johnson makes room for Martin on the roster although the former Boston College star doesn't have the blazing speed that Johnson loves. However, Martin does have flypaper hands.

"I'm not a blazer but I can move fast enough to get the job done," Martin said. "I ran a 4.45 seconds in the 40 which is down from my 4.49 last year. I'm fast enough to get me where I want to go."

Martin said he relishes competition, which is good for guy always struggling to keep his job.

"I know what I can do," he said. "I want it to stay hard. I don't want it to stay easy. Training camp is never relaxed for me.

"I want the pressure on me. I play better with the pressure. Somebody has to make plays without Irvin around."

The 5-foot-9, 162-pound Martin caught 3 passes totaling 72 yards against Houston in a 34-23 loss last Saturday. It included a 30-yard scoring pass from Troy Aikman where Martin cut over the middle caught the ball and outran the defender to the flag.

Martin has never had it easy. He had a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee that ended his 1989 season after 11 games.

He bounced back in 1990 and led the Cowboys with 64 receptions. Last year Martin caught only 16 passes as he was used sparingly.

However, he contributed to the team with punt returns. His 85-yard touchdown run on a punt return cemented a victory over Philadelphia. It was the longest punt return by a Cowboy since 1974.

"Sure, I'll return punts again if they want me to do it," Martin said. "I just wanted to be on the final 47-man roster. And I think I will."

It would be folly to bet against him.

"Johnson wants speed guys at every position so I guess myself and (safety) Bill Bates are the two exceptions," Martin said. "Speed is nice. But it isn't everything."

Jubilee softball tournament set

The Third Annual Hereford Jubilee Softball Classic will be played Aug. 14-16 at the Nazarene Church softball field.

The tournament is for Class D teams only, though two Class C players will be allowed on each team. USSSA rules apply, as well as the three home run rule. Teams must furnish their own .50 core Blue Stitch Balls.

The entry fee for the tournament is $125, and the deadline for fee and roster is Aug. 12. To enter, call Mark Andrews at 364-7792 or 364-3429, or call Eddie Morton at 364-8386.

A home run hitting contest will accompany the tournament. The contest will be Aug. 15, a Saturday, from noon-1:30 p.m.

Eck gets 39th save as Athletics edge Rangers

By The Associated Press

The Oakland Athletics are looking good because Dennis Eckersley has never looked better.

With their star relief pitcher extending his record streak to 39 saves, the Athletics beat the Texas Rangers 4-3 Wednesday night and took over first place in the AL West. "My favorite word in baseball is relentless," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa. "When we won the three pennants, we were relentless. We're starting to show those qualities."

Eckersley, who earlier broke Tom Henke's consecutive save record of 25, recorded the final four outs for his 35th straight save this season. With their 10th victory in 12 games, Oakland (64-43) moved a game ahead of Minnesota, a 9-5 loser to Chicago.

Elsewhere, it was Toronto 5, Boston 4; Baltimore 4, Detroit 0; Milwaukee 8, Seattle 1; Cleveland 4, New York 3; and Kansas City 5, California 2.

Eckersley preserved Ron Darling's 10th victory, pitching out of trouble in the ninth when the Rangers put a man on third with two out.

Geno Petralli singled off Eckersley to lead off the ninth and had moved to third on a sacrifice and a groundout when Ruben Sierra pinch-hit.

Eckersley went to 2-0, then threw two strikes across the outside edge of the plate before Sierra flied out to end the game.

"I got behind 2-0 to Sierra and I wasn't going to give in to him," Eckersley said. "I didn't want to walk him. I was afraid he'd steal second and then they'd be in position to win the game."

"This was a tough-save situation, but it would have been a more harrowing effort if the runner was on third with one out instead of two."

Darling (10-8) scattered six hits over seven innings before Jeff Parrett relieved him to start the eighth. Texas starter Bobby Witt (9-9) struggled to find the strike zone in his six-inning performance, walking seven.

Jerry Browne knocked in two runs for the Athletics.

White Sox 9, Twins 5

Charlie Hough finally won his 200th career game - in his sixth try.

The 44-year-old Hough (5-7) pitched 7 2-3 innings, gave up eight hits, walked two and struck out four at home.

In 794 games - including 376 starts - Hough's career record is 200-186. Robin Ventura had three hits, including a three-run homer, to pace Chicago's 17-hit attack.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 4

Pinch-hitter John Olerud singled home two runs off Jeff Reardon in the eighth inning.

Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston, starting pitcher Todd Stottlemyre and second baseman Roberto Alomar were ejected for arguing with umpires.

With Boston leading 4-3, Toronto loaded the bases in the eighth off Daryl Irvine (2-1) on Alfredo Griffin's double, Dave Winfield's walk and Pat Tabler's single.

Mark Eichhorn (4-5) pitched two innings of one-hit, shutout relief and Tom Henke got three outs for his 20th save.

Orioles 4, Tigers 0

Mike Mussina pitched a five-hitter and Mike Devereaux capped a four-run seventh with a two-run single.

Mussina (11-4) struck out nine and walked one.

John Kiely (3-1) was the loser.

Brewers 8, Mariners 1

Bill Wegman allowed four hits over seven innings for his 10th victory and the Brewers parlayed the wildness of Seattle left-hander Randy Johnson into an easy victory.

Wegman (10-8) was in control and Johnson (7-12) wasn't. Wegman gave up four singles, walked none and struck out three during his seven innings.

Johnson allowed six walks, running his major league-leading total to 97. He also hit a batter - his major league-leading 16th - and threw two wild pitches.

Indians 4, Yankees 3

Glenallen Hill, in a 1-for-20 slump against the Yankees this season, singled home the go-ahead run in the 11th inning.

Paul Sorrento advanced Baerga with a groundout and Mark Whiten was intentionally walked. Hill then singled.

Derek Lilliquist (5-2) pitched two hitless innings for the victory.

Royals 5, Angels 2

George Brett had four singles to tie Frank Robinson on the all-time hit list and move ahead of Rogers Hornsby in total bases.

Brett's third four-hit game of the season pumped his average to .277, his highest since April 13, and raised his hit total to 2,943, tying him with Robinson for 21st all-time. His 4,715 total bases eclipsed Hornsby for 17th all-time.

Gregg Jefferies also had four hits as Tom Gordon (5-9) won. Rookie Julio Valera (5-9) took the loss.

Roberts injured by wall in Reds' loss to Braves

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds lost their center fielder and another game in the standings to the Atlanta Braves at the same time.

Dave Justice's first-inning triple not only gave the Braves a 2-0 lead in a game they would win 5-1, it also sent Reds center fielder Bip Roberts to the hospital.

Roberts crashed face-first into the padded fence in left-center at Fulton County Stadium trying to catch Justice's shot. He was carried off the field and hospitalized with a sprained neck and a mild concussion.

"It's difficult emotionally to see a teammate carted off in the first inning," Reds starter Tim Belcher said, "especially when the starting pitcher is getting peppered. It makes for a long night."

Especially when you're not scoring - and the Reds were unable to solve Steve Avery until it was too late.

Justice's triple and Lonnie Smith's sacrifice fly gave the Braves a 3-0 lead. Sid Bream and Damon Berryhill added consecutive homers in the fourth off Belcher (9-10) as Atlanta won its fifth straight game and moved 2 1/2 games ahead of the Reds in the NL West.

Avery (9-7) allowed one run on eight hits in 7 2-3 innings despite not having his best stuff.

"I really didn't have a curveball, so I threw most fastballs," Avery said. "They were moving pretty good, and for the most part they didn't hit it hard."

Pirates 6, Mets 2

Rookie knuckleballer Tim Wakefield won his second straight major league start as the Pirates used a pair of double steals to beat the Mets.

Wakefield (2-0) allowed the first two earned runs of his big-league career during his eight-inning stint. But the Pirates gave him plenty of support, parlaying double steals in the first and third to a pair of three-run innings against Pete Schourek (3-5).

Expos 5, Cubs 3

Spike Owen and Delino DeShields each drove in two runs as Montreal beat Chicago at Olympic Stadium.

Rangers throw in extras with expensive ballpark

ARLINGTON (AP) - The Texas Rangers are pitching some extras for the fans to go along with the club's new $168 million ballpark.

Consider the $1 million youth ballpark, or the $2.55 million hall of fame and learning center. And how about a $5 million riverwalk?

The Rangers included a breakdown of the project in a budget submitted this summer to the Arlington Sports Facilities Authority. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported the details Wednesday.

President Tom Schieffer says the Rangers can afford the extras.

"The point of this budget was not to say exactly how much money was going to go for each of these things," Schieffer said. "We wanted to assure people that these would be built and we had the money to do it."

Arlington voters approved a half-cent sales tax voters in 1991 to pay for $135 million of the project. The club is footing the bill for the rest.

The actual ballpark, budgeted for $89.87 million, is scheduled to open in April 1994.

But other extras include a $1 million amphitheater and a $3.595 million linear park to be owned by the city.

Fans should expect top-of-the-line developments, said one person who plans to use the youth ballpark.

"They must be building a heck of a nice stadium for a million dollars," said Carroll Scruggs, baseball commissioner for the Richland Youth Association. "I could build a nice one for $100,000."

The million-dollar youth park is designed to look like the new home of the Texas Rangers, Schieffer said. It will seat up to 2,500 fans and feature a major-league quality playing field and clubhouse.

The youth ballpark, amphitheater, learning center, hall of fame and city park will be built on the current site of Arlington Stadium and its parking lot.

Plans for the riverwalk call for a 12-acre lake with nature areas along the southern edge of Johnson Creek.

In 1976 Nadia Comaneci of Romania became the first gymnast to be awarded a perfect score in the Olympics.

The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia won the first two gold medals in Olympic eight-oar rowing in 1900 and 1904.

Dave hopes to take advantage of 2nd chance

"The decathlon has a lot of traps. It's like a video game. Sometimes one of those munchkins comes and eats you and you don't even see it coming." - Bill Toomey, 1968 Olympic decathlon champion.

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - Even with Dan no longer at his side, life still must seem like one big commercial to Dave. Because at the very moment he nearly was lulled into the same trap that devoured Dan, fate grabbed Dave and ordered a second take.

Competing in the third event of first-day competition in the decathlon, Dave Johnson heaved the shot three times. And each time, almost before it landed, up popped a judge's red flag indicating Johnson had fouled by stepping across the toe barrier at the front of the circle.

"I thought I was out," Dave said. "I was going to plead my case, but I didn't think I had much of a chance. I was wondering, 'What next?'"

Well, there is always the NBC broadcast booth, which is where Dan O'Brien was Wednesday when all this took place.

You remember Dan. He was the reigning decathlon world champion and Dave's foil in the $25 million Reebok ad campaign that began with a question - "Dan or Dave: Who is the world's greatest athlete?" - and ended with the catchphrase: "To be settled in Barcelona."

Dan made it to Barcelona, all right, but not in a position to settle anything. During the U.S. Olympic trials two months ago, O'Brien passed the first height in the pole vault, missed three times at the next and failed to qualify for the U.S. team.

That daunting, haunting memory was on Johnson's mind immediately after he saw red for the third time. There he stood in the circle, hands on his hips, disbelief etched across those Hollywood good looks. He glared at the judge holding the flag that meant disqualification, then stared downfield where a second judge was running to measure the throw.

Suddenly, as if on cue, a referee walked into the picture and toward the first judge. They began talking.

"It seemed like it took an hour," Johnson said. "But it was really only three or four minutes."

During their very measured conversation, Dave stood in the circle trying to discern something in their expressions and struggling to rein in his emotions.

Few people in the crowd, meanwhile, exhibited similar restraint. Scattered whistles and catcalls began cascading down from the stands, becoming a full-throated jeer when the officials' conference broke up and Johnson entered the circle for one more take.

"I felt like all of Spain was against me. ... I'd never been booed before," he said. "But if I'd been in their shoes, I might have done the same thing."

Instead, Johnson tucked the shot beneath his chin and began rocking slowly back and forth at the far end of the circle, trying to time his move forward with the surge of his muscles. Now coiling, now spinning and finally, exploding, Johnson let go of the metal ball and watched with an intensity that even his ever-present sunglasses could not disguise.

As a teen-ager growing up in Missoula, Mont., Johnson prided himself on being something of a hell-raiser, pointed on a collision course with trouble. A dozen years ago, after his family moved to Corvallis, Ore., sports became the priority in his life. Through a high school football teammate, he came to embrace fundamentalist Christianity.

As he traced the flight of the shot across the midday sky, Johnson thought about the path his own life had followed.

"It was my last throw. I don't understand why I threw it so far. I knew there was a lot against me and at that point, I tried to relax and just throw."

The shot came down 50 feet, 1 1/2 inches away - 9 1/4 inches farther than Johnson had ever flung it before. Given his faith, however, this did not come as a complete surprise.

"Somebody picked it up," he said, "and threw it farther."

If that is so, Johnson should have few problems taking it from here on out.

By day's end, he had amassed 4,154 points. That total left him far behind the 4,510 collected by leader Paul Meier of Germany. But just as Dan was considered the best first-day decathlete in the world, so is Dave considered the best at the five events that compose the second day of this most-grueling competition.

Indeed, the almost-unprecedented second take Johnson was afforded Wednesday might turn out to be the very thing that puts him over the top.

"He's just lucky," said O'Brien, suggesting the direction for any future commercials, "that he goes to church."

Dream Team still has some work to do

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - Conceived for redemption, the Dream Team really goes to work now.

Puerto Rico is past, Angola another time, Spain since forgotten, Germany gone, Brazil left behind.

Three teams now stand between the U.S. Olympic basketball team and its goal of gold. Three teams with fractured rosters from fractured countries. Three teams that fractured American ownership of international basketball.

It starts with Lithuania, once again an independent republic, whose basketball history intertwines with the United States.

Lithuania's four stars were the heart of the Soviet Union team that four years ago dealt the United States only its second loss in 52 years of Olympic competition and convinced the Americans once and for all to send their best pro players to reclaim international basketball supremacy.

From that humiliation did the Dream Team spring - Michael and Magic and Larry and Patrick and Charles and all the rest.

Do their job against Lithuania and they advance to Saturday night's gold medal game against either the Unified Team, which four other 1988 Soviet veterans, or Croatia, with four players from the Yugoslavia team that beat the United States en route to the 1990 world championship.

They're the three teams expected all along to give the Americans their sternest test.

Croatia has already tried and failed by 33 points in the preliminary round - a blowout that nevertheless is the closest anyone has come in six games won by Team USA by an average of 44.5 points.

The Lithuanians don't expect to fare any better.

In Seoul, Ramunas Marciulionis scored 28 points, Sarunas Marciulionis had 19 points and hit all three of his 3-pointers, and 7-foot-3 Arvidas Sabonis had 13 points and 13 rebounds. Valdemaras Khomicius added two points.

But that was against an all-collegian team, not the All-Star team they face tonight.

"We know we must lose," Kurtinaitis said. "It's OK. It will be fun. I want to try, but we have no chances."

Marciulionis is now an NBA star in his own right, playing a key sixth-man role on the Golden State Warriors. One of his closest friends is Warriors teammate Chris Mullin, the leading 3-point shooter on the Dream Team.

It was Mullin, in fact, who gave Marciulionis his U.S. nickname, "Rooney."

ago. A fever and diarrhea cost him a week's workouts, 10 pounds and his endurance.

He thought he had recovered. He was feeling confident. At a news conference last week he said he planned to take the gold. His loss in a 200 in June - his first loss in two years - "made me a stronger and tougher person," he said.

Now he was facing stronger adversity, still sweating in the chilly conference room, analyzing his defeat. His first round hadn't been good, he said, but he felt strong. The second round hadn't been much better.

"In the back of my mind I thought the sickness may have taken some strength," he said.

Johnson said he felt good coming around the track's curve, but he just ran out of juice.

"I can't remember the last time I trailed coming into the straight," he said.

Now his chance of Olympic glory hangs on the thread of another 400-meter controversy.

Although he didn't run the 400 in Olympic trials, he was the final candidate for the fourth spot on the men's 1,600 relay, a decision that did not sit well with other team members.

Steve Lewis, Quincy Watts and Danny Everett wanted Andrew Valmon, who finished fourth in the trials. They threatened not to compete.

Johnson remained aloof. He planned to run no matter how his teammates felt.

"I'm not going over to sit down or hash this out with them," he said in June. "I don't have a problem with the situation. They do."

But after Wednesday's poor showing, Johnson's tone was milder.

"I still want to run the relay," he said. "I'll do the best job I can if I run. I'm not saying I should run. That's for the coaches to decide."

The newly humbled Johnson, faced with the reality that his Olympics may be over, instead turned his attention to the future.

"The sun will shine tomorrow - hey, it's probably shining right now," he said. "I might break the world record later this year when I'm Michael Johnson. I won't come back until I'm Michael Johnson again."

The Americans' failure stung so deeply that several players said they never would have gone out for the team had they known it would come to this.

"We have nothing to show for this but fond memories," outfielder Jeffrey Hammonds said.

Jennifer Capriati should have some fond memories of her day.

She showed plenty of courage and stamina in beating Barcelona's own Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 with Spanish King Juan Carlos in the stands.

"It was tough out there, but I blocked it out pretty well, I think," said the 16-year-old Capriati, who plays Steffi Graf for the gold Friday. Graf beat American Mary Joe Fernandez 6-4, 6-2.

The U.S. volleyball team stayed on course for a medal, beating the Unified Team in four sets to gain a semifinal meeting with Brazil.

The Unified Team, meanwhile, kept its lead in medals with 84 total, 35 gold. The United States had 74 medals, 21 gold, and Germany had 57 medals, 18 gold.

At the track, there were many unanswered questions and inexplicable results on a day when the Olympic Stadium looked like a five-ring circus.

It was hard to figure that Quincy Watts, a newcomer in the 400 meters, could win in such spectacular time - 43.50 seconds, the second-fastest in history. He broke the Olympic record of 43.71 he set in the semifinals; only Butch Reynolds' world record of 43.29 is quicker.

It was strange to see Michael Johnson, 1991 world champion in the 200, fail to qualify for the finals, while lesser known teammate Mike Marsh won his semifinal heat in the 200 in 19.73, only .01 seconds off the world record. Johnson, weakened by a recent virus, finished sixth in his heat.

It was a shock to see decathlete Dave Johnson nearly foul out of the shot put, then watch him get an extra throw from a kindly official and stay in contention for the gold with his best toss ever. He's ninth, more than 350 points behind Germany's Paul Meier at 4,510, but Johnson's strength is in the second-day of the 10-event competition that defines the world's greatest athlete.

Johnson clearly fouled on his first two attempts, then his third try was ruled a foul by one official and fair by another.

"Fortunately, the bigger and more powerful referee said it was a fair throw," Johnson said. "I have never seen anything like what happened there. I can't remember it happening."

Lewis, meantime, glided on cruise control when he qualified for the finals on his first and only jump - 28 feet, 5 3/4 inches. That was exactly a foot and a half farther than anyone else and nearly two feet farther than hobbled world record holder Mike Powell.

"My goal was my best qualifying mark ever, and I did that," Lewis said, showing he's recovered completely from the virus that weakened him in the Olympic trials in June and knocked him out of the sprints.

Owls hope to break elusive .500 barrier in '92

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Rice Owls haven't had a winning football record since 1963 but coach Fred Goldsmith wants his team to look at history - recent history.

Rice has won as many games in Goldsmith's three seasons (11-21-1) as in the six previous seasons of futility that included two winless campaigns and two seasons with one victory each.

In Goldsmith's first game as coach, the Owls broke an 18-game losing streak, the longest in the nation at that time. Goldsmith's 1990 Owls came within a two-point conversion of a winning season.

That's the history Goldsmith wants remembered.

"We had a good combination in 1990 and I think the chemistry is good again this year," Goldsmith said. "We should have that balance the next two or three years and hope for recruiting to get even better."

As for that other history, Goldsmith calls it "media stuff."

"These guys are a part of the positive," Goldsmith said. "They were here for that (1990) and it's going to make a difference. They weren't even born when that started."

"They are too busy going to school and playing today's football to worry about that. They don't feel responsible for what happened before. They know they are on the verge doing something good."

The Owls hopes of a winning season begin this season as they did a year ago, with running back Trevor Cobb.

Cobb gained 1,692 yards last season, No. 3 in the country, and scored 14 touchdowns as the focal point of the Owls' offense.

With speedier quarterbacks Josh LaRocca and Bert Emanuel vying for the starting job, Goldsmith anticipates more flexibility in his option attack.

"We didn't intend to be one-dimensional last year, but we had a young quarterback, things like that, and the way things developed that's the way it happened," Goldsmith said.

Both LaRocca and Emanuel are faster than senior Greg Willig, who begins fall drills as the No. 3 quarterback.

"When your quarterbacks run the option and can throw the ball, it gives us more versatility," Goldsmith said. "I thought we had good balance in the spring and I think we'll be balanced from the start of the regular season."

Cobb enters his senior year needing 1,451 yards to break the SWC career rushing record of 5,012 yards by Texas A&M's Darren Lewis.

Cobb bolted 79 yards for a touchdown on the second play of the season and never stopped running. He finished third in the nation in rushing and his 360 carries set a SWC record. He may have a lighter work load this season if LaRocca and Emanuel fully learn the offense.

"Instead of having to go up hill, hopefully we'll be able to take advantage of some things that the defense is more susceptible to than we were a year ago," Goldsmith said.

Emanuel was center stage from his first practice in spring drills after transferring from UCLA.

"I don't think it was fair to him,"

Goldsmith said. "We go out there to get ready for spring practice and nobody wants to talk to anybody on our team but Bert Emanuel. That's major pressure."

The Owls must replace three offensive linemen, including four-year lettermen guard Trey Teichelman and tackle Joel Dawson. Two-year starting guard Larry Stuppy and all-time leading receiver Eric Henley have departed.

Nine starters return on defense, where much improvement is expected over last season when the Owls allowed 434 yards per game. Rice allowed a school record 2,769 passing yards.

Rice plays seven games in Houston this year compared to four last year. They open on the road against Air Force and Duke before playing three straight home games against Sam Houston State, Texas and Southern Methodist.

UH may rotate quarterbacks

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Some coaches would term replacing record-setting quarterback David Klingler scary. But for Houston coach John Jenkins, it's pure excitement.

Klingler continued to etch his name in the NCAA record book although it was a painful 1991 season filled with sacks, injuries and disappointments, as the Cougars tripped from a 10-1 finish in 1990 to a 4-7 record.

The quarterback roll call still includes a Klingler, but it's younger brother Jimmy, along with 1990 backup Donald Douglas and junior college transfer Kyle Allen trying to become the latest triggerman.

"There's some new personalities and it's exciting," Jenkins said. "The insinuation is you're going to tail off. I've always looked at it that there'll be a performer to take that position."

Klingler was there to pick up the smoking run-and-shoot from 1989 Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

"They know the tradition and they want to uphold that," Jenkins said. "Jimmy is a big-time college passer, Kyle has two years of training in junior college and then Donald Douglas has performed extremely well."

Preseason workouts will resemble a quarterback school since Jenkins won't name a starter until prior to the Sept. 5 season opener at Tulsa. But the eventual starter's work load won't be watered down.

"When you attend a practice here, there are more missiles flying around than the Middle East," Jenkins said. "There are enough receivers and drills going on at the same time with defensive backs and receiver groups."

"I can certainly stage a situation where they're all getting high level of repetitions. I'll do that through two-a-days and make sure they all get a good shot."

It's an old Jenkins tactic. He may start the season with two quarterbacks trying to be No. 1. Jenkins rotated David Dacus and Ware during the 1988 season. Ware didn't take over until the eighth game.

"Dacus would always start and then Andre came in for a couple of series and whoever had the hot hand, I'd go with," Jenkins said. "It's a deal where the players will show me and I'll act on their progression."

Houston's offensive line was hardest hit by injuries last season.

"We still led the nation in passing and total offense in the conference and continued to do the things like we've always done," Jenkins said.

The Cougars also allowed 43 sacks and Klingler was the primary benefactor.

"Once we got that rolling at midseason, we got good steady play from our offensive line and four of those five returns," Jenkins said.

"That's been exciting to have that experience in there. The offensive line should be a strength this year."

Marcus Grant (78 catches),

Verlond Brown (33) and John Brown III (24) have graduated from the receiving corps but Freddie Gilbert, who led the nation with 106 catches, Tracy Good and Sherman Smith and newcomer Keith Jack will give the unnamed quarterback plenty of targets.

"Freddie Gilbert will return better than he was a year ago," Jenkins said. "It's a powerful-looking crew at the receiving corps again."

TiAndre Sanders returns at superback to help lead the Cougars' ground attack. He gained 397 yards on 70 catches a year ago.

The Cougars' defense allowed 101 points in the final two games of the season, both losses, and ranked 90th among 106 NCAA Division I-A schools in scoring defense.

First year defensive coordinator Melvin Robertson expects better this year. Linebackers Ryan McCoy and Eric Blount will be key performers if the Cougars expect to rebound.

"We've got a great amount of experience coming back from the defense," Jenkins said. "The experience was pretty evident this spring."

The Cougars opened last season with a 73-3 victory over Southwestern Louisiana before they were decked by Miami (40-10) and Illinois (51-10) effectively ending their national championship hopes.

After their opener, the Cougars hope to get revenge from Illinois in the Astrodome and then play at Michigan.

UT-Pan Am won't fight NCAA

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) - University of Texas-Pan American officials say they don't plan to appeal NCAA sanctions imposed after an investigation found major rules violations in the men's basketball program.

The NCAA on Wednesday placed the program on three years' probation and reduced scholarships through 1994 for violations including helping provide a rental car for athletes and bailing one player out of jail.

The south Texas school could have been dealt the so-called "death penalty," which would have banned men's basketball for one or two years, because the women's basketball team was placed on probation two years ago for similar violations.

But officials said they opted for more lenient punishment because "the university took substantial corrective actions," including firing head men's coach Kevin Wall last spring.

"We thought the decision was fair and within the NCAA legislative scope," said school President Miguel Nevarez. "We thought we had an effective rules education system, but apparently it wasn't enough. It wasn't as effective as it should have been."

The president said he plans to implement a more aggressive program of compliance with NCAA regulations.

"Once you lose trust, it's hard to gain it back," he added.

In addition to probation, the NCAA ordered the school to cut five regular-season men's games scheduled for next season and ordered the number of basketball scholarships, now at 13, reduced to 10 next season and to 12 for the 1993-94 school year.

Sanctions also included bans on live television appearances and postseason play next season, and the school must present a study of its athletic department and rules compliance procedures.

The report also said Wall will be required to testify before the NCAA before he can coach again.

The NCAA said its investigation found that Wall in March 1990 helped provide four players a rental car for a spring-break trip to Houston.

The car rental, which cost $380.39, was secured using a credit card belonging to the spouse of "a representative of the institution's athletics interests," according to the report. The athletes repaid the representative for the cost, officials said.

Wall also was cited for giving $200 to a basketball player's girlfriend in April 1990 to help the woman move into an apartment.

"A few days after receiving the money, the young woman and the student-athlete signed a lease for the apartment," the report said.

An assistant coach was cited for paying a $150 fine for an athlete who was arrested on assault charges after an on-campus fight. The report said Wall knew about the payment but failed to report it to the school or the NCAA.

In addition to Wall's firing, neither of his assistants, Bill O'Conner or Rob Flaska, were retained by new coach Mark Adams.

Howard's extended holdout perplexes Gibbs

By The Associated Press
The Washington Redskins are finding out how hard it is to catch Desmond Howard.

The speedy and elusive Heisman Trophy winner is holding out, which has coach Joe Gibbs so perplexed he's considered calling Howard's agent to try to get the team's No. 1 draft choice in camp.

"I wonder if he would even take my call" Gibbs said. "I'd like to hear what the logic behind this is."

Howard, a star wide receiver from Michigan, was the fourth player selected in the NFL draft. But Howard has yet to agree on a contract. He reportedly is seeking a multi-year deal with an average annual salary of $1.5 million. The Redskins are offering about $1.3 million.

Howard is one of four Redskins holding out. The others are quarterback and Super Bowl MVP Mark Rypien, offensive tackle Jim Lachey and all-pro cornerback Darrell Green.

49ers
Another San Francisco quarterback is hurting.

With Joe Montana on the sidelines for at least two more weeks with a sore right elbow, Steve Young showed up at practice Wednesday with a sore back and participated only in afternoon drills.

"I don't know what the big deal is about," Young said. "This is training camp and you're supposed to get sore."

Patriots
New England wide receiver Hart Lee Dykes was robbed at his home in Sugar Land, Texas, Wednesday by three armed men during a pool party, authorities said.

The suspects scaled a fence and forced Dykes, a maid and several guests inside the home, where they all were bound, said Fort Bend

County Sheriff's Department detectives.

The suspects took jewelry and other items before fleeing in Dykes' 1990 BMW.

Dykes is under medical supervision in Houston. He is scheduled to join the team for the regular-season opener at Miami on Sept. 6 for further evaluation of a fractured kneecap.

Browns
The Cleveland Browns waived rookie Timothy Hill hours after he was shot in a fight outside a Columbus, Ohio, tavern.

Hill, a 176-pound cornerback from Kansas, was in Columbus for rehabilitation of a hamstring injury. He had the injury when he reported to camp and had never practiced with the Browns, spokesman Kevin Byrne said.

Hill was in satisfactory condition at Doctors Hospital North in Columbus with two gunshot wounds to the left leg, spokeswoman Kristi Morris said.

The police report said Hill went to the bar on Columbus' east side with friends, then got into an early-morning argument with a patron.

Buccaneers
Vinny Testaverde will start Tampa Bay's exhibition opener against Denver and play most or all of the first half. Coach Sam Wyche said Wednesday rookies Craig Erickson and Mike Pawlowski will split the rest of playing time with each working at least one quarter.

Veteran backup Steve DeBerg will not play because of a broken finger on his throwing hand.

Bills
Starting defensive end Wesley Scals ended his holdout Wednesday, signing a one-year contract with Buffalo.

"I'm glad it's over," Scals said. "I'm ready to start back working."

Scals, the starter at left defensive end the last two seasons, said he wanted to be traded after the Bills' 37-24 loss in the Super Bowl, then changed his mind.

Lions
Coach Wayne Fontes did just what everyone expected, naming Rodney Peete as his starting quarterback for Saturday's exhibition game. Fontes said Peete would start and play the first quarter, Erik Kramer the second and Andre Ware the second half.

Duke graduates all hoop players

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Some of the NCAA's biggest winners on the field in 1990 were also winners in the classroom.

Duke, which lost the 1990 basketball title to UNLV but won it the next two years, had a 100 percent graduation rate of men basketball players during a two-year period studied by researchers. Colorado, the 1990 college football champion, graduated football players during the period at more than 20 percent above the national average.

The national average for men's basketball players during the period at Division I schools was 38 percent graduation by 1990, the end of the six-year cycle studied. The national average for football players during the same period was 45 percent graduation. Statistics were compiled on 291 Division I schools for freshmen entering in 1983-84 and 1984-85.

The graduation rates were collected by the NCAA staff after schools voted two years ago, in the face of Congressional prodding, to begin making them public. The NCAA collected data based on sport, race and gender.

An overall summary of the findings was released in Washington last month.

"It was a rather monumental amount of work," said Ursula Walsh, the NCAA's director of research who cautioned that the bare figures indicated on the study can be misleading.

"You must keep in mind that different institutions have different missions," she said. "A large state school in a sprawling urban area is bound to have different graduation rates from a smaller private school. Education is a very complex thing. The idea of equating graduation with education gives me pause."

UNLV, the 1990 national basketball champion, in 1990, showed a 25 percent graduation rate for basketball players in the two-year period.

Colorado, which barely missed winning the 1989 national championship and was crowned 1990 champ, showed a 66 percent graduation rate of football players during the study period.

Among the top five teams in the final Associated Press football poll of 1990, only Washington failed to reach the graduation average of 45 percent. The Huskies, No. 5 in the final poll, showed a 33 percent graduation rate.

Georgia Tech, which finished second in the final AP football poll in 1990, showed a two-year average of 64 percent graduation. No. 3 Miami came in at 50 percent and No. 4 Florida State was 49 percent.

Georgia Tech, the only NCAA school to make the top 25 in football and the Final Four in basketball in 1990, had a 57 percent graduation average in basketball that period. Arkansas, the other 1990 Final Four team, graduated 50 percent of its men's basketball players in the period.

Get organized for school

After a long, carefree summer, children can often be a bit wary of heading back to school in the fall. Passing through their heads are questions like "Who will be my new friends? Will I be ready for the next level in math? Will I have everything I need for school?" These are all valid questions which parents should not ignore. Being prepared for the new year is of great concern to many youngsters.

One way for parents to make this yearly transition a bit easier is by helping their kids become more organized. Current market research shows that students of the 1990s are looking to be stylish, fashionable and innovative, but organized and practical when it comes to going back to school. That's why SGI, Inc., a Rhode Island sports and leisure products company, created Wiz, a unique personal locker, designed after interviews with hundreds of children ages 6-11. Wiz serves as a school bag and an activities organizer for after school and weekend projects and events.

"We found that kids in this age group don't have their own lockers yet, but still need a secure place to keep their belongings," says Ed R. Miranda, SGI's director of marketing. "Based on our research, we decided that children really want an ultimate school organizer that will help them plan their whole school day," he continues. Wiz, now available in stores, is a functional, colorful personal locker pack featuring solid construction. The easily portable product has straps on the top and back so that kids have an option of how they carry it - they can either "put a locker on their back" or hold it as they would a conventional school bag. Its sizable main compartment is big enough for a student's lunch box, books and Trapper Keeper. A zipper-close side panel and foldaway top shelf allow room for athletic shoes and lunch boxes. The side panel contains a clip holder and special pockets inside for cards, crayons, and pencils - anything a child needs to locate quickly and easily.

Wiz is fashionable available in four hot color combinations, such as black and cyan blue with neon accents, cyan and fuchsia with a lavender top and detail work, fuchsia and cobalt blue with neon, as well as cobalt and red with terrific black and yellow accents. Kids want 1990s colors, and they get them with Wiz. In addition, the product meets a parent's desire for practicality. A good-looking product that will last is something high on any parent's list.

So this year, the start of school might still be a bit scary, but at least kids will know they're organized and ready to go, carrying Wiz on their backs.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Clint Eastwood will get songwriting as well as acting credits for his upcoming movie, "Unforgiven."

Eastwood wrote an instrumental piece called "Claudia's Theme" for the movie, a Western to be released nationally Aug. 7.

"Clint is a music lover, and it shows," Lennie Niehaus, who orchestrated, conducted and produced the score, said Wednesday in a statement.

Eastwood sang country songs in his movie "Honky Tonk Man" but had never written a song before "Claudia's Theme."

"Unforgiven" stars Eastwood, Gene Hackman, Morgan Freeman and Richard Harris.

Bride-elect honored

A bridal shower was held for Poppy Dione McMennamy Saturday morning, Aug. 1, at the E.B. Black House. Miss McMennamy and Christopher Todd Tardy plan to exchange wedding vows Aug. 15. Guests were welcomed by, from left, Barbara Wirt, the prospective bridegroom's grandmother; Mrs. Don C. Tardy, his mother; Poppy McMennamy, the honoree; Mrs. Jerry McMennamy, her mother; and Peggy Morrison, her grandmother.

Poppy McMennamy honored with shower

Poppy Dione McMennamy, Aug. 15 bride-elect of Christopher Todd Tardy, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday morning, Aug. 1, at the E. B. Black House.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. Jerry McMennamy; her sister, Amy Malkuch; and her grandmother, Peggy Morrison. Also, in the receiving line were Mrs. Don C. Tardy, the prospective bridegroom's mother, and Barbara Wirt, his grandmother.

Brenna Reinauer invited guests to register. Tracy Brush, Julie Cherry and Katie Young served refreshments of sausage balls, mixed fruit, quiche, cinnamon rolls and French pastries.

The table depicted the bride-elect's chosen colors of hunter green and pink, and fresh garden bouquets, arranged by Diane Hoelscher, further enhanced the setting.

The honoree was presented a breakfast table and chairs by the hostesses. They included Beverly Bryant, Thelma Cherry, Pat Confer, Marilyn Culpepper, Linda Daniel, Linda Davis, Charla Edwards, Paula Edwards, Keith Ann Gearn, Betty Gilbert, Evelyn Hacker, Carol Hendrick, Evelyn Henson, Diane Hoelscher, Sylvia Khuri, Juanita Koetting, Lani Long, Vicki Paetzold, Brenda Reinauer, Tricia Sims, Cynthia Streun, Roni Kay Vallejo, Delores Webster and Janie Young.

Pointers on pets

Greyhounds may be best known as the world's fastest dog on a racetrack, but they also are quickly becoming recognized as fast friends when they are adopted as pets. Today, more and more greyhounds are finding their way into the hearts and homes of pet lovers across the country.

These animals have a long history of not only serving as good companions to their masters but, also being revered members of society. The Arabs so admired the physical attributes and speed of the greyhound that it was the only dog permitted to share their tents and ride atop their camels. In Persia, Rome and Greece, the greyhound enjoyed similar stature and is the only canine mentioned in the Holy Scripture (Proverbs 30:29-31).

The same characteristics that won the hearts of ancient civilization are winning the hearts of greyhound owners today.

Greyhounds are intelligent, calm, loving animals that enjoy the attention given from people as much as the attention they received competing on the race track.

Veterinarians who work with greyhounds say they are one of the best natured breeds.

Greyhounds are patient, gentle and sensitive with children making them wonderful playtime companions.

They live with other animals their whole lives and adapt very well to other pets.

These pure-bred athletes enjoy many years of good health. With proper care, they have a life expectancy of 12 years or more.

Greyhound males stand 26 to 30 inches tall at the shoulder and weigh between 65 and 85 pounds. Females stand 23 to 26 inches tall at the shoulder and weigh 50 to 65 pounds.

Greyhounds easily adapt to the lifestyle of their new owners. They make great walking or jogging partners, and can get a real workout just romping in the backyard.

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) - Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy got a birthday bouquet containing a rose for each year of her life - which made for a big bunch, since she turned 102.

The matriarch of the Kennedy clan celebrated her birthday quietly at home Wednesday. Her son, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., sent the flowers, said Melody Miller, a family spokeswoman.

Mrs. Kennedy, who is in frail health after a series of strokes, rarely appears in public.

Relatives will celebrate her birthday over the weekend with a private party at the family compound.

On Friday, the senator will dedicate a plaque in Boston's Dorchester section, where Mrs. Kennedy, daughter of a former Boston mayor, lived as a teen-ager.

To know just what has to be done, men to do it, comprises the whole philosophy of practical life.

A thin coat of oil in a mold before pouring in gelatin can help it unmold easily when it's set.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently, I had a baby. This is my second child and I have awful stretch marks on my stomach. A doctor recommended using Retin-A cream. I have read it is used in treating acne, but I didn't know it was prescribed for stretch marks. Should I use it every night? Are there any side effects such as cancer from long-term use? How long can I use the cream? Can I still tan my stomach if I use the cream at night?

DEAR READER: Yes, Retin-A (tretinoin) is being used to treat stretch marks and it may help. Retin-

A is not only used to treat acne, but got a lot of attention because of its use in treating wrinkles and skin damaged by the sun. It is a prescription item, and your doctor would have to plan your treatment. To avoid excessive skin irritation, you need to gradually increase the strength of the preparation used and the frequency.

Though its main side effect is skin irritation, it does not cause cancer. It might even help eliminate skin lesions that may become skin cancer.
