Hospital launches 'historic' CPR program

CPR training program launched

An ambitious program to train 5,000 local adults in CPR was launched by Deaf Smith General Hospital Tuesday night in Hereford Community Center. Keynote speaker Gene Weatherall, Texas Department of Health, presented certificates to Ron Rives, DSGH administrator, and L.V. Watts, EMS director, at the meeting and urged local residents to get involved in a "historic" program.

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN Editor-Publisher Hereford is on the "verge of national recognition and in a position to make history," keynote speaker Gene Weatherall said Tuesday night at the kickoff rally for a unique CPR-training program sponsored by Deaf Smith General Hospital. Weatherall, chief of the bureau of emergency management for the Texas Department of Health, spoke to an enthusiastic crowd of about 145 people attending the kickoff program in the Hereford Community Center.

"This is not an easy undertaking but don't give up--it may take longer than nine months," said Weatherall. During the meeting, he announced that TDH has awarded Hereford EMS a grant for a computer, and he also presented certificates of recognition to Ron Rives, DSGH administrator, and L.V. Watts, EMS director. Watts gave the welcome at the rally, and Rives explained the hospital's commitment in sponsoring the program. "We are working hard at Deaf Smith General to earn your trust, and we hope the community sees the progress we're making."

The goal of the CPR program is to train 5,000 adults in the 18 to 64 age range during a nine-month period from September through May. Participants must attend one 4-hour course to get the basic CPR training.

Classes will be conducted each Tuesday from 6 to 10 p.m., giving participants plenty of time to choose a convenient Tuesday night.

Plans are already underway to sign up clubs, groups and business forces. Watts was pleased with the turnout for the rally, especially since "Meet the Herd" night was also being held at Whiteface Stadium.

"I've had a number of great experiences in my life but none as significant as knowing I've saved someone's life," Weatherall told the audience. That statement was echoed during the program by John Sappington, American Heart Association, and Elizabeth Davila and Jennifer Elliott, two Dimmitt college students.

"It was a total high," Davila related when she and Elliott told the story of saving a man's life with CPR on the road between here and Canyon. Ironically, the pair had just finished a CPR training course at West Texas State University.

Sappington said it is "incredibly easy to learn CPR" and he explained away any negatives. "Worried about giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation? There are precautions to take and who are you likely to give it to? Probably someone you know," he said. He also stated that the "Good Samaritan" law provides legal protection in administering CPR.

"Your hospital is to be commended for offering this program. We tried to teach 2,500 in Amarillo and didn't reach the goal," said Sappington. "A strong chain is the key. That's the EMS, the hospital and medical facilities, and the community. Usually, the community is the weak link. That's why our slogan of "Neighbors Helping Neighbors" is so great. You are showing that you care and by signing up in the program, you are showing you care enough to do something about it."

Terry Bavouset, TDH director of public health for the region, was the other speaker. He reported that the program "will impact many lives in this community," not only in saving lives but in community awareness about public health. "I applaud this effort and I encourage involvement in the program. Learn CPR before you need it."

Weatherall said not many communities have been successful in mass training CPR programs. He said King County, Washington trained 20 percent of its population in the years 1971-1980. He added there was a chance to develop some "great statistics" with such a program here.

Rives, in closing, urged the audience to tell their loved ones, friends and neighbors about the program and to encourage them to participate.

For registration information, contact L.V. Watts at 364-2141, extension 121. DSGH is asking for a $3 donation for each participant. As Sappington pointed out, this does not even cover materials used in the training.

Louisiana reeling from wind, floods, tornadoes

FRANKLIN, La. (AP) - Hurricane Andrew threw its deadly fury into Louisiana's bayous and marshes, striking only a glancing blow at New Orleans before heading deep into Cajun country today. It weakened as it moved inland but still pounded towns and fields with winds of 100 mph.

The storm, already labeled the costliest natural disaster in U.S. history with damage put at more than $15 billion, added plenty to the bill it ran up earlier this week in Florida and the Bahamas.

A tornado spun off by the storm ripped through a New Orleans suburb, and 30 people were reported injured. Andrew also flooded roads, uprooted trees, tore off huge limbs and started power lines popping throughout the region.

"This house is falling apart around me," said Ken Perry, manager of an airport in Patterson, 60 miles west of New Orleans. "I'm standing in water right now in the house, and we're 10 feet above sea level."

A high school in Patterson where 120 people took refuge lost its roof to the wind, said Sheriff Huey Bourgeois of St. Mary Parish. He said no one was hurt.

Andrew was blamed for 17 deaths - 14 in Florida and three in the Bahamas. Official reports of any deaths in Louisiana were not expected for hours.

Tens of thousands of people rode out the storm in shelters and boarded-up homes.

The hurricane's leading edge came ashore about 11 p.m. CDT and scraped along Louisiana's coast, a marshy area dotted with cypress trees, Spanish moss and fields of sugar cane. The storm center came ashore four hours later, 55 miles south-southeast of Lafayette.

As the storm passed through Franklin, a town of 22,000 some 35 miles southeast of Lafayette, Bourgeois said the losses to cane farmers would be severe.

"Once this cane is flattened, they can harvest, but the sucrose content will be so low they'll lose much of what they would have had," he said.

"The rain was whipping really bad. We could see it, but you couldn't see outside because the rain was hitting the window in sheets," said Junius Crochet, assistant police chief in Morgan City.

A tornado cut a swath seven miles long through LaPlace, a town o nearly 20,000 people 20 miles west of New Orleans. Nine homes and some offices were destroyed, said Arnold Labat, St. John the Baptist Parish resident.

"There's nothing left but splinters," Lucille Perilloux, 46, said of her home. "All I heard was a loud, loud noise. I turned to go into the house and it picked me up and threw me. It rolled me across the ground, almost to the street."

Thirty injured people were taken to River Parishes Medical Center, which was without power, said hospital spokeswoman Rose McDuffie. She said three of them, all seriously hurt, were being taken to New Orleans-area hospitals.

A natural-gas pipeline exploded early today in a residential section of Kenner, a New Orleans suburb, said

Capt. Mike Zito, Fire Department spokesman. He said the blaze might have been ignited by an exploding transformer. No injuries were reported, and the fire was brought under control. About 75 people were evacuated.

Parts of Grand Isle, a 7-mile-long barrier island 110 miles south of New Orleans, were under water, and power was out. The 1,452 residents had left in the first wave of evacuations Monday. In all, at least 200,000 people in the southeast part of the state were without electricity this morning, with that number expected to increase as reports from south-central Louisiana came in.

Bridges across the Mississippi River were closed south of Natchez, Miss., about 200 miles north of New Orleans, because of high wind.

Three killer storms have hit two coasts

Three hurricanes this century have hit both Florida's Atlantic Coast and the Gulf Coast before Andrew struck.

-1926 Hurricane hit Miami Hit Alabama coast two days later Sustained winds of 96 mph in Miami Very severe damage. 243 deaths.

-1917 Very large hurricane smashed into Florida on Sept. 17, Louisiana two days later Sustained wind of 121 mph gusts to 155 mph Heavy wind and water damage. 51 deaths.

-1965 Hurricane Betsy clipped southernmost Florida on Sept. 8, struck Louisiana the next day Sustained wind of 136 mph Flooding caused most damage. 75 killed.

City gets grant for new lights

A grant for runway lighting improvements at the Hereford airport has been approved by the Texas Department of Transportation.

City Manager Chester Nolen said he had learned Tuesday afternoon that the state will provide 90 percent of the expense of the project, estimated at $67,000.

New electrical cable and fixtures will be installed on each side of the mile-long runway.

"The state will provide $60,300 for the job and the city's share will be $6,700," Nolen said.

Engineering has not been completed for the new lights, said Nolen.

"We can't start anything until after Jan. 1," the city engineer said, "because the state money won't be available until then."

The need for new lights on the runway became obvious some months ago when the runway was re-surfaced. Exposed wiring was discovered as well as other problems with the system.

Runway and taxiway improvements at the airport were financed by federal grant money.

Canyon police nab area church burglar

CANYON (AP) - A convicted burglar accused of preying on 20 Panhandle churches over the past two months wore gloves to hide fingerprints, but his footprints gave him away, authorities say.

Cecil Ray Comans, 31, of Canyon, was arraigned Tuesday on two counts of burglary. State District Judge Patrick Pirtle set bond on each count at $25,000.

"Usually you make burglary cases on fingerprints," Canyon Police Chief Bobby Griffin said Tuesday. "But in this case, this fellow was wearing gloves and worked at concealing his fingerprints. We had to look at other avenues and shoe prints was one of them."

Griffin says Comans may be connected to 20 break-ins at area churches and three robberies at the local Veterans of Foreign Wars Center over the past two months.

Comans nickle-and-dimed the churches, a few residences and the veterans center for about $3,200, some jewelry and four cans of beer, Griffin said.

Comans, who was arrested Sunday and has a prior burglary conviction in Mississippi, was being held in the Randall County Jail Tuesday and could not be reached for comment. He appeared in court without an attorney.

Canyon police and county sheriff's deputies began suspecting Comans after noting some footprints outside of the burglarized veterans' center.

Officers found a distinct tread mark in the dirt and began investigating the make of the shoe. Authorities took an image of the print to the Wal-Mart store in Canyon and learned a pair of prints with the identical print and size had been returned recently, said Lt. Roger Short of the Randall County Sheriff's Office.

Authorities checked the receipt of the returned sneakers and discovered Comans' name, Short said. Police began staking out a home and a number of churches before Comans' arrest Sunday, Short said.

"It's just one of those crazy cases where the burglar does something really dumb," Short said. "The morning after committing three burglaries, he takes the shoes back to the store. Of course, we are glad he did it."

Griffin said the string of church burglaries in Randall County began almost the day Comans cut a canyon.

Bush draws new line in the sand; allied forces will start new flights

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush announced today that the United States and its allies have given Saddam Hussein a 24-hour deadline to stop flying warplanes over the Shiite Muslim region of southern Iraq.

Bush's formal "no fly zone" announcement that Iraqi warplanes will be shot down if they fly below the 32nd parallel follows unofficial warnings that have been issued for days.

"Twenty four hours from now, coalition aircraft, including those from the United States, will begin flying surveillance missions in southern Iraq," Bush said at a White House news conference.

He said the ban would apply to both fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters.

"We have heard and seen new evidence of harsh repression from the government of Saddam Hussein against the men, women and children of Iraq," Bush said.

"We seek Iraq's compliance, not its partition," Bush said.

Despite some tough rhetoric from Baghdad, Saddam appeared to be maneuvering to avoid a clash. In advance of the announcement, Iraq withdrew most of its fixed-wing aircraft from the region. State Department spokesman Joseph Snyder said some Iraqi helicopters remained in the area.

The Pentagon stood ready to carry out Bush's order. About 24,500 U.S. military personnel remain in the Gulf region and surrounding waters.

In March 1991, U.S. fighter jets downed two Iraqi attack planes for violating the provisional cease-fire agreement against putting warplanes in the air.

Iraqi officials have said they fear that the no-fly zone could in effect lead to the partitioning of Iraq.

But Bush denied that this was a motivation of United States or its allies.

Furthermore, he denied that he was motivated by domestic politics. Bush said that National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft had notified Democratic nominee Bill Clinton of the decision.

"I'm not worried about the politics of it at all," Bush said.

The president cited "further graphic proof of Saddam's brutality" against the Shiite population.

Bush said that Saddam continues to violate U.N. cease-fire resolutions, including one demanding that he end the oppression of the Iraqi people.

Bush: "Saddam has sought to prevent the world from learning of his brutality. It is time to ensure that the world does know."

Former minister indicted in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - After five years of being the only suspect, former Dallas minister Dr. Walker Railey was being held today on charges he choked his wife senseless and left her for dead.

"He must be held accountable for his dastardly deed, that he attempted to kill his wife," Assistant District Attorney Cecil Emerson said Tuesday.

"We feel we have the evidence to show that he did it and that no one else could have," Emerson added.

Railey, 45, was arrested about 3 p.m. PDT Tuesday in his administrative offices at Immanuel Presbyterian Church in Los Angeles.

He was handcuffed and taken to police headquarters, where he was fingerprinted and photographed. He was denied bond, held overnight and ordered to appear at an extradition hearing at 10 a.m. PDT today.

After hearing 2 1/2 hours of testimony Tuesday from Dallas police detectives and FBI agents who spearheaded the investigation into the April 22, 1987, attack of Peggy Railey, the Dallas County grand jury returned its indictment on charges of attempted murder.

At the time of the attack, Railey was pastor of the 6,000-member First United Methodist Church in downtown Dallas. He called police about 12:30 a.m. to report that he came home late at night and found his wife comatose and near death in the garage of their Dallas residence.

Little more than a week later, he apparently attempted suicide in a suite in the same hospital where his wife was being treated. Security officers found him alive but unconscious in critical condition. Empty prescription drug bottles and a long rambling letter lay nearby.

Soon after, word surfaced of his affair with psychologist Lucy Papillon, including a visit to her home the night his wife was attacked. A grand jury subpoenaed Railey, but he refused 43 times to answer questions, on grounds his answers might incriminate him.

Railey surrendered his minister's credentials and moved to California, giving up care of the Raileys' two small children to church friends. Railey and Ms. Papillon signed the lease for a $1,600-a-month Victorian flat near San Francisco Bay.

Mrs. Railey's parents, Bill and Billie Jo Nicolai of Tyler, filed a civil suit in 1988 accusing Railey of a "malicious" attempt to strangle her. Railey never responded, and a judge ordered him to pay an $18 million judgment.

About a year ago, Railey was hired to help manage operations of the church where he was arrested Tuesday.

Despite public pressure on his office to bring Railey to trial, District Attorney John Vance resisted. With no apparent witness to the attack and no confession, Vance said there wasn't enough evidence for a conviction.

Emerson said Tuesday that the district attorney's office pursued an indictment anew because of improved technical expertise with the FBI "regarding the exact pinpointing of the locations of the various phone calls made on Railey's mobile phone" the night of the attack.

The Raileys' telephone answering machine recorded a call from him the night of the attack in which he said he was calling between 10:30 and 10:45 p.m. from a library at Southern Methodist University and would be home in a couple of hours. Authorities already know, from telephone records, that the call actually was made at 12:03 a.m.

If the time noted by Railey had been correct, it could have distanced him from the attack on his wife. But when compared with phone records, the message raised a series of disturbing questions.

Furthermore, Emerson said, prosecutors have given up hope that Mrs. Railey will ever recover from her persistent vegetative state or that her son - who is believed to be the only eyewitness to the attack - will be psychologically able to positively identify his mother's attacker.

Ryan Railey was 5 and Megan Railey was 2 at the time of the attack.

Railey's attorney, Doug Mulder of Dallas, accused law enforcement authorities of converting the case into "a circus." He said Railey would return willingly to Dallas to face the charges.

"All they had to do was call me, and I would have surrendered him. He came in to testify before a grand jury. He's not running from anybody. I don't know why it wasn't handled in a gentlemanly fashion," Mulder said.

He declined to comment on the strength of the case against Railey, but predicted prosecutors will be unable to find an impartial jury in Dallas and will have to move the trial because of extensive publicity.

In Little Rock, Ark., John and Diane Yarrington, the custodians of the Railey children, said they were shocked to hear of the indictment.

Asked how they will explain the situation to Ryan, now 10, and Megan, now 5, she said: "We'll have to explain something."

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them.—Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is wrong with a man who hits his wife, kicks her or pulls her hair in his sleep? Four times in the past three months, I've been awakened by a fist in the face and a kick in the back. Once he tried to choke me. Last night, he was pulling my hair, shouting, "Why did you do that?"

When I question him the following morning, he seems resentful, as if I have no right to say anything, since he does all this in his sleep.

This morning, after receiving a nocturnal black eye, I decided to ask YOU about it.

We have two empty bedrooms now that our children are gone. Should I sleep alone for my own safety? My husband is strong as an ox, and I'm afraid of him.—A Shiner For My 33rd Wedding Anniversary

DEAR SHINER: Quit while you're behind and move into the guest room. If the ox walks in his sleep, put a lock on the door. The man could have some deep-seated hostilities that may or may not involve you. Nevertheless, you could wind up with a fractured skull. Your husband needs to get some counseling.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That boy who cried when his cat died but couldn't manage a tear for his grandmother upset me. Had he KNOWN his grandmother, maybe he could have cried for her, too. The boy's letter pointed out one of the major tragedies of our time—the breakdown of family life.

Everybody is so busy doing his own thing there's no time for excess baggage like grandparents. We are the lost generation—strangers to our children and strangers to THEIR children.

I have searched my soul for answers and can find none. I am available and eager to see my family, and they know it.

But my phone doesn't ring. Sad, isn't it?—Lonesome

DEAR LONESOME: Yes, it is, and I have no magic solution. If you live in the same city, perhaps you could invite the grandchildren to your place and teach them to knit or crochet or bake cookies. Buy coloring books and paints and crayons. In other words, DO something together.

Sometimes the mountain has to go to Mohammed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 17 and have had some bad luck. Five months ago, I totaled a car and lost three teeth in the process. A few weeks later, I fell on some glass, cut my leg to the bone and had to have 25 stitches. Last week, I broke my wrist skateboarding.

I'm a good skateboard rider and love the sport. But that was the straw that broke the camel's back as far as my dad was concerned. He says I'm cursed and has ordered me to stay away from anything that could get me into an accident.

I say I'm not cursed and plan to continue skateboarding as son as I get this cast off my arm.

Do you agree with me?—Hard Luck Harry

DEAR HARRY: I don't believe in "curses," but you certainly are accident prone. If you dad says nix on the skateboard, you'd better cool it, fella. If you manage to get through the next few months without an accident, maybe your dad will reconsider.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I want to grow tomatoes but only have a small space. Does one specific variety grow best in pots?—Judy, Atlanta, Ga.

A. Most varieties of tomatoes can be grown in pots. Remember, though, you will need to tie larger plants to stakes, just like you do when they're planted in the ground.

For suggestions on the type that will grow best in your area, check with the nursery where you buy the plants or your local county extension agent.

My mother always grew tomatoes even when we lived in an apartment.

NO MORE LIFTING

Dear Heloise: This summer I've finally come up with a brilliant way to move weeds and grass clippings. I use the piece of heavy plastic our new mattress was wrapped in. I simply place it at the end of the garden. As I clean each row, I toss any weeds or trash onto the plastic and pull it to the compost pile.—Becky, Charleston, S.C.

STUCK PLASTIC

Q. I hope you can help me. When my grandchildren came to visit, one of them placed a plastic bread bag too close to the hot toaster and it melted. I don't know how to remove it from the toaster. Is there anything that will take it off?—Grandma Tracy, Salina, Kan.

A. With a toaster that has a chrome finish, I've had success removing plastic with denatured alcohol. Work in a well-ventilated space and remember that alcohol is a highly flammable substance.

When the toaster is cool, simply put a little alcohol on a cotton ball and dab it on the plastic. Be sure to test a small hidden spot first.

It is a little harder to remove plastic from painted toasters. While the alcohol will remove the plastic, it could also remove the painted finish if you rub too hard.—Heloise

CLEAN BLINDS

Dear Heloise: I soak my mini-blinds in the bathtub. The strings come nice and clean. I hang them back up and use a hair dryer to dry them. Works great.—M.L.B., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A&M, Stanford kick off 1992 tonight

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - The college football season begins tonight with one quarterback who is learning from a legend and another who's just learning.

Stanford's Steve Stenstrom is relishing the chance to play under a man who shaped the careers of Joe Montana and Dan Fouts. Bill Walsh, the former San Francisco 49ers coach who returned to Stanford this season, will be back on the college sidelines tonight when his 17th-ranked team meets No. 7 Texas A&M in the Pigskin Classic.

A sophomore beginning his second year as a starter, Stenstrom established himself as one of the nation's top passers last season, when Stanford went 8-4 under former coach Denny Green. Walsh hasn't brought in a whole new offensive scheme, but he has brought his almost uncanny insight into the quarterback position.

"He really understands what's going on in a quarterback's mind and really can relate to a quarterback," Stenstrom said. "That's sort of unique, because he never played the position. He really has developed a close relationship with all of us."

While Stenstrom is polishing his skills, Texas A&M's Jeff Granger is simply learning the ropes. And although he doesn't hide the fact that his first love is baseball, he's determined to be the best quarterback he can be.

Granger, who threw just 48 passes last season, went out and won the starting job this month after quitting football after the Cotton Bowl. He played baseball for the Aggies and tried unsuccessfully to make the U.S.

Olympic team. When coach R.C. Slocum asked him to give football another try, it was so late in the summer Granger didn't even make the A&M press guide.

"I really wasn't expecting anything," he said. "They had a depth chart and I wasn't even on it."

Granger's collegiate experience consists of filling in for the injured Bucky Richardson in the season's first two games and playing backup the rest of the year.

Slocum is well aware of Granger's inexperience and expects him to make mistakes.

"Jeff Granger has not solved all our quarterback problems," he said. "He's a young guy who gives us a chance because he's got a quick arm and he's intelligent, but Jeff has some learning to do before he can be a polished quarterback. I think he has excellent potential to be an outstanding quarterback."

Granger said his ability to read defenses and willingness to learn will make up for some of the problems he's likely to encounter.

"Right now I don't feel like I'm in perfect working order," he said. "I'm in good enough mental shape to execute on offense."

Slocum and the Aggies figured they would be opening the season without their best pass rusher, senior outside linebacker Marcus Buckley. But Buckley, who has been bothered by swollen ankle and knee joints, practiced for the first time in more than a week Tuesday and may see action after all.

"If he plays, it will be a situation-type thing," Slocum said. "I cannot rule out the possibility that he could play. He will not be a major factor in the game."

Rice, Howard get contracts; Tech's Buford is among cuts

By The Associated Press

Jerry Rice and Desmond Howard got the green light for 1992, while a bevy of players, including a few known outside their immediate families, picked up pink slips from NFL teams.

Rice, the diminutive speedster who helped turned Joe Montana's passes into touchdowns and the San Francisco 49ers into champions, ended a 37-day holdout by signing with the 49ers on Tuesday. He put his signature to a series of one-year contracts worth between $7 million and $8 million.

"This contract makes Jerry Rice the highest paid non-quarterback in the league," 49ers president Carmen Policy said.

Rice, a five-time Pro Bowler, is the 49ers' career receiving leader and is seven TDs shy of Steve Largent's record of 100.

Desmond Howard hasn't gained a yard or scored a point, but he's among the league leaders already in bank accounts.

The Washington Redskins signed last year's Heisman Trophy winner to a four-year deal worth $6 million. That's an average of $1.5 million a year, more per annum than the terms agreed to Tuesday by Washington's Jim Lachey, who's considered perhaps the best offensive lineman in the game. Also signing Tuesday was Darrell Green, an All-Pro defensive back.

Among those cut free Tuesday were a trio of players who've known only championships in their college days at Miami. Running backs Melvin Bratton and Alonzo Highsmith were waived by Atlanta and Tampa Bay, respectively, and kicker Carlos Huerta, whose 157 consecutive extra points is a college record, was let go by San Diego. Roman Anderson, who at Houston set an NCAA record with 423 points via the foot, was axed by the Minnesota Vikings.

The Buffalo Bills waived linebacker Hal Garner, a special teams standout for teams that earned spots in the last two Super Bowls, and quarterback Matt Rodgers, a rookie from Iowa whose father Jimmy coaches the Minnesota Timberwolves of the NBA.

The Chicago Bears waived punter Maury Buford, who had been a regular with San Diego before coming to the Bears.

Among those let go by Cleveland was Johnnie Cooks, the No. 2 pick in the 1982 NFL draft who played for the Baltimore Colts and New York Giants before going to the Browns last season.

The New England Patriots put wide receiver Hart Lee Dykes on the physically unable to perform list. A broken kneecap sidelined him last season and he had a recurrence of the injury this summer.

In a continuing restructuring, the Minnesota Vikings got rid of both players who vied for several seasons for the starting fullback position, Alfred Anderson and Rick Fenney. The Vikings, concentrating on a one-back offense, have only four healthy backs on their roster.

A former Viking, safety Joey Browner, was signed by Tampa Bay, which cut wide receiver Ricky Nattiel, one of the "Three Amigos" receiving group when Denver was going to Super Bowls in the late 1980s.

Oilers sign Munchak

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers guard Mike Munchak has agreed to a two-year, $2.1 million contract with the team, ending a 37-day holdout.

Munchak's agent, Marvin Demoff, and Oilers general counsel Steve Underwood reached the agreement late Tuesday.

Munchak said he expected to sign the contract Wednesday and be on the practice field with his teammates on Thursday.

"I sure am glad that it's over. I never thought I'd be out this long," he said.

The deal gives the Oilers their second millionaire offensive lineman. Like center Bruce Matthews, Munchak will make $1 million this season.

"I've got a lot of rust to knock off," Munchak said. "How soon I play will be up to the coaches. I'm sure they'll watch my progress and decide when I'm ready to play."

M's Fleming flirts with no-hitter against Tribe

By The Associated Press

Dave Fleming looks like the American League Rookie of the Year. A few more games like the one he pitched against Cleveland and he'll be a top Cy Young Award candidate, too.

Fleming didn't allow a hit until rookie Kenny Lofton lined a double to center with two outs in the sixth, and he finished with a two-hitter Tuesday night, leading the Seattle Mariners over the Cleveland Indians 6-0.

Fleming (15-5) struck out six and walked none in his fourth complete game and third shutout.

"Mark Grant told me that after the first hitter you know if you've got no-hit stuff," Fleming said, referring to his Seattle teammate. "I was thinking about it because Kevin Gross recently threw one. It was in the back of my mind because I've never been that far."

Fleming finished off the Indians with just 96 pitches in a game that took just 1 hour, 55 minutes. Lofton got both hits for Cleveland, singling with one out in the ninth.

Cleveland was so frustrated that Carlos Baerga, a switch-hitter, batted

Charles Nagy (13-9) allowed 11 hits, struck out four and walked four in his 10th complete game, one behind American League leader Jack McDowell of Chicago.

Rangers 6, Royals 2

Kevin Reimer hit a 444-foot two-run homer in the third inning, and Ruben Sierra added a solo shot in the fifth as Texas stopped a seven-game home losing streak.

George Brett went 2 for 4. Jose Guzman (11-10) allowed seven hits in seven innings, while loser Kevin Appier (14-6) gave up five runs and nine hits in five innings.

Red Sox 5, Athletics 4

Dennis Eckersley (6-1) blew a save chance for only the second time in 42 tries chances this season, allowing Billy Hatcher's two-out, two-run double in the eighth at Fenway Park after intentionally walking pinch-hitter Wade Boggs. Hatcher's seventh-inning homer closed the Red Sox to 4-3.

Jeff Reardon, baseball's career saves leader, got Terry Steinbach on a grounder with the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth for his 27th save. Paul Quantrill (2-2) was the winner.

White Sox 6, Blue Jays 3

A power outage caused a 19-minute delay in the sixth inning at Comiskey Park before Chicago won its fourth straight. Toronto lost for the sixth time in seven games as Charlie Hough (6-10) gained his 201st career victory and Shawn Abner hit a pair of RBI singles.

David Wells (7-8) allowed six runs and six hits in 4 1-3 innings. Roberto Hernandez pitched three innings for his fourth save.

Yankees 5, Brewers 1

Sam Militello (3-0) won for the third time in four major league starts, allowing one run and seven hits in seven innings and sending visiting Milwaukee to its third straight loss.

Danny Tartabull homered off Bill Wegman (11-11), who allowed four runs and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, and Bernie Williams homered off Dan Plesac, a two-run drive in a four-run seventh.

Tigers 4, Twins 3

Major league RBI leader Cecil Fielder broke a 2-2 tie with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly.

David Haas (3-1) won even though he allowed three runs and 10 hits in 5 1-3 innings with four strikeouts and no walks. Mike Henneman, the fourth pitcher for visiting Detroit, got the final out for his 21st save.

Kevin Tapani (13-9) gave up all four runs and seven hits in seven innings, struck out nine and walked two.

Orioles 9, Angels 1

Rick Sutcliffe (13-11) scattered four hits in eight innings as Baltimore got 14 hits, including at least one in every inning.

Mike Devereaux and Chito Martinez homered for the Orioles, who turned the third triple play in the majors this season, the second at Camden Yards.

Bert Blyleven (6-6) gave up four runs and eight hits in five-plus innings.

Expos beat Glavine; Astros fall

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Montreal Expos have seen plenty of Tom Glavine this season. And, it's safe to say, they want to see him again.

The Expos again solved the Atlanta ace Tuesday night, ending his 13-game winning streak with a 6-0 victory over the Braves at Fulton County Stadium.

Glavine (19-4) is 1-3 with a 5.87 ERA against Montreal this season, and 3-11 lifetime. He's 18-1 with a 2.11 ERA against everyone else this year.

"I've had a tough time against them in my career. That's no secret," Glavine said. "If I had the answer, it wouldn't happen."

Glavine, trying to win his second straight Cy Young Award, had not lost since May 22 - at Montreal - and had set a franchise record for consecutive victories. He won back in Montreal last week, but this time the Expos tagged him for five runs, three of them earned, on seven hits and three walks in 4 2-3 innings.

The Braves and Expos are not scheduled to play again this season after Thursday. But Atlanta, leading the West by 4 1/2 games, and Montreal, trailing in the East by 2 1/2 games, could meet in the playoffs.

That could give Tim Lincecum, a .386 career hitter against Glavine, and the rest of the Expos another chance.

Chris Nabholz (9-9) outpitched Glavine, giving up seven hits in 7 1-3 innings. He had been 0-2 against Atlanta this year and 0-3 lifetime.

Nabholz drew a walk in the second inning that loaded the bases and led to a bases-loaded walk to Delino DeShields and an RBI single from Spike Owen.

Cardinals 5, Astros 3

Houston, playing at the Astrodome for the first time after a month-long road trip, still couldn't get home as it got runners thrown out at the plate in the 10th and 11th innings by left fielder Bernard Gilkey.

Andujar Cedeno, called up from the minors earlier in the day, became the first Houston player to hit for the cycle since Bob Watson on June 24, 1977. He tripled in the second inning, homered in the seventh, doubled in the 11th and singled in the 13th.

Andres Galarraga singled home the go-ahead run in the 13th for St. Louis off Joe Boever (3-6). Cris Carpenter (4-4) pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory and Lee Smith got his 33rd save.

Mets 2, Giants 1

Bobby Bonilla homered for the fifth time in six games, and New York won at San Francisco.

Bonilla's solo shot in the fourth inning off Trevor Wilson (8-13) was the final run of the game.

Sid Fernandez (11-9) pitched seven good innings, giving up seven hits and walking none. John Franco worked the ninth for his 15th save.

Pirates 10, Dodgers 3

Andy Van Slyke homered and drove in four runs as Pittsburgh won at Dodger Stadium.

Van Slyke and Alex Cole each had three of the Pirates' 13 hits.

Danny Cox (3-2), cut by Philadelphia earlier this season, won his first decision for Pittsburgh. He was called up from the minors last week and pitched 3 2-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

Ramon Martinez (8-11) failed to retire a batter in the third inning. He gave up five runs on five hits and two walks.

Padres 7, Cubs 4

Benito Santiago homered twice and Fred McGriff connected for his league-leading 29th homer.

Santiago hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning for a 5-4 lead against Ken Patterson (2-3) and hit his ninth home run of the season in the next inning.

McGriff had an RBI double in the first inning and hit a solo homer in the fourth for a 3-0 lead. Mike Maddux (1-1) was the winner and Randy Myers got his 28th save.

Reds 7, Phillies 1

Tim Belcher blanked Philadelphia until the ninth inning and Barry Larkin and Joe Oliver homered as Cincinnati won at home.

Belcher (11-12) gave up four singles and four walks, and left with the bases loaded and no outs.

Larkin, hitting .442 in his last 12 games, homered for the second straight game. His 10th homer was a two-run shot and Oliver's ninth homer was a three-run drive. Both blows came against Greg Mathews (0-3).

Pro golf suffers from spoiled players, rude fans

By JAYNE CUSTRED
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) - Hale Irwin was standing behind the 18th green at Belleive Country Club, chatting with friends after finishing a practice round at the PGA Championship.

Just behind him was a bleacher packed with enthusiastic young golf fans, and within minutes the shouts became deafening.

"Hey, Mr. Irwin, can I have your ball?"

"Can I have your glove?"

"Hale, can you sign this for me? Can I have your autograph?"

"Over here, Mr. Irwin, over here."

Finally, with the screaming reaching the point of the ridiculousness, Irwin snapped.

"Can't you all please keep quiet?" Irwin yelled to the gallery. "You're being obnoxious. We can't even talk. You're acting like a bunch of, well, kids."

There was laughter, because for the most part it was a bunch of kids. A few parents had the decency to look shamefaced at not putting a stop to the ruckus. But most parents were nowhere to be found.

Minutes later, Arnold Palmer walked off the green, and the screaming resumed.

"That's really pretty new as of late," Irwin said. "I think having kids out here is fantastic. But you can't have children out here going wild. It's just not the place for unmannerly behavior."

"The trouble is it's just not that unusual anymore to have kids, or adults, screaming and hollering after you've already said no once and politely asked them to be quiet."

There may be a new breed of golfer on tour today, but there's also a new breed of golf fan. Long gone are the days of quiet reverence and polite applause for golf's heroes. Galleries are not only seen, but heard as well. These days, professional golf has taken on a circus-like atmosphere, and not everyone is happy about it.

"There's just a limit to what you can do," Irwin continued. "Palmer and (Jack) Nicklaus handle it extremely well. But you can only sign so many autographs. If you do 50, you disappoint 500."

"How do you say no politely? No one means to be rude."

Yet that is exactly the reputation some players are getting these days. And some deserve it. A few of the bigger names on tour seem to go out of their way to avoid dealing with fans, ignoring pleas for autographs, being careful never to walk without a host of security guards surrounding them.

When the whining about the crush of fans and the attention of the media reached new heights at the PGA, Nicklaus was the first to lash out at the young superstars.

"Grow up," Nicklaus said. "I mean, c'mon. If you play the game, it's part of the heat, isn't it? If you win major championships, you have to deal with it. Palmer, (Tom) Watson and (Lee) Trevino dealt with it for years. It's part of it."

"You have guys that don't want it. But that's part of the deal."

Watson said he's not sure the veterans handle it better, maybe just more gracefully.

"I just tell people I can't sign any right now, thank you," Watson said. "And I try to concentrate on the little kids. They're the ones you get the big smiles from. They're who I like to do things for."

Nick Faldo has become a master at dealing with the crush of media attention and fan adoration. With five major titles under his belt, it has become a matter of survival.

"It's like a traveling circus," Faldo said. "You just have to accept it, since a lot of it is what you've created. Nobody prepares you for it. We need razz-a-ma-tazz classes to learn about it. You do as much as you can and then concentrate on your golf."

But some golfers contend even that isn't possible any longer. Many of today's golf fans yell at players during rounds, comment loudly on every good or bad shot and punctuate every swing with the overused, aggravating phrase of "You're the man."

Things got so bad at Belleive during practice rounds that Fred Couples finally responded with a well-chronicled retort about "schmoes" in the crowd and later stormed into the locker room declaring he had had enough. Couples insisted later that the remark had been made jokingly, but some of his fellow golfers believe he shouldn't have been forced into that position in the first place.

"People have been jumping all over Fred Couples all year," Irwin said. "But he needs some space, too. It has to be understood that this is his working arena. When you have the extra pressure of stardom that Fred has hit, the uproar increases every place you go."

"It comes to the point where everyone has a limit."

Fans need to realize, Irwin said, that in golf there are no fences, no boundaries to separate player from fan. Golfers are so much more accessible than baseball or football players.

"Last year at Hazletine, it was the most incredible press of people trying to get to get to players," Irwin said. "It was actually scary. We were walking with policemen that had flak jackets on."

"When one child runs, they all run. When one adult pushes, they all push. It can become a stampede."

Watson believes it all comes down to etiquette. For years, golf was tagged as a gentleman's game, and that applied to both players and viewers. Today, for every golf fan at a tournament to watch golf, another is there to drink, socialize and party.

"I had three or four drinks following me at the Western Open," Watson said. "They were really noisy, and it was frustrating, especially for the other players. But that's just etiquette. Booze does strange things to minds."

Despite the growing problems, there are still those golfers who enjoy the enthusiastic crowds. Former PGA champion John Daly maintains he has thrived on all the attention he has received in the last year and never wants it to end.

"I want to go to tournaments and have fun with the fans," Daly said. "I just want to go out, play golf and entertain the people like I know how to do."

Raymond Floyd also appears to be enjoying his following. The 49-year-old Floyd has gained almost cult-like status with the 50-and-over crowd, and rarely does a round go by that

Floyd doesn't hear fans yelling at him 20 or 30 times: "Way to go for us old guys, Raymond."

While others are fighting it, Floyd is reveling in it.

"It's great for the game, and it's great for all of us," Floyd said. "I have a great fan-support base. People love to see me competing with the younger players. And that pumps me up."

Perhaps the key, then, is finding that balance - learning how to tune out the hecklers and avoid the crush of humanity, yet still be available and obliging when possible.

It's something the veteran golfers seem to do quite well. Maybe the young generation should take notes.

"It's a wonderful situation that golf is that exciting," Irwin said. "It really is a great thing for the game. But fans have to remember, there has to be some limit."

A Game In Moscow
WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) - They're still chuckling at Western Maryland over a trip to Russia last spring by the varsity football team. On March 17, Western Maryland became the first American college team to play in Russia.

The Green Terriers defeated a Russian all-star team, 47-7. About 4,000 enthusiasts watched the game at the Central Sports Club of the Red Army.

Punts bounced off the roof of the domed ceiling. There were no hash marks, but there were soccer lines on the artificial turf. The Russians wore three different styles of jerseys. The crowd loved it all. The fans cheered anytime there was a gain - by either side.

Now you're cooking.

For great fall cooking, don't put up the grill

Don't clean up and banish your backyard barbecue grill just yet! There is still plenty of time for an outdoor meal.

Barbecued Shrimp with Bacon
6 strips smoked bacon, halved
12 jumbo shrimp, peeled and deveined

1 1/2 cups homemade or bottled barbecue sauce

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Arrange bacon in a baking pan and parcook 5 to 6 minutes. Cool. Wrap a half slice of bacon around each shrimp and secure with a toothpick. Grill, turning as needed and brushing with barbecue sauce, until bacon and shrimp are fully cooked. Serve with heated barbecue sauce for dipping. Makes 6 servings.

Grilled Venison Chops with Marmalade and Pepper Sauce

12 venison chops, cut 3/4-inch thick
1 medium onion, sliced thin
2 cloves garlic, minced

1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 cup red wine
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 cup vegetable oil

Orange Marmalade and Jalapeno Pepper Sauce (recipe follows)

Arrange venison chops in a glass dish in a single layer.

Combine remaining ingredients, except sauce, pour over venison and marinate, refrigerated 6 to 8 hours, turning chops over after 3 to 4 hours.

Prepare grill. Grill chops over high heat 4 to 6 minutes per side. Serve with Orange Marmalade and Jalapeno Pepper Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Orange Marmalade and Jalapeno Pepper Sauce

1 1/2 cups orange marmalade
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 to 2 teaspoons minced jalapeno peppers
1/4 cup red port wine

1 teaspoon chili powder
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon soy sauce
Combine all ingredients in a small saucepan. Simmer 10 to 12 minutes. Serve at room temperature. Makes 2 cups.

Dilled Onions Baked in Foil

6 medium, yellow onions, peeled, root and stem ends removed 6 tablespoons butter
6 sprigs fresh dill, 6- to 7-inches long

Salt and pepper, to taste
Set each onion on its base and make two vertical cuts from the top down to 1/4 inch from the base. Spread each cut onion and place 1 tablespoon butter in the cut. Wrap a sprig of dill around each onion.

Place each onion on a 10-by-10-inch square of doubled, heavy-duty aluminum foil. Bring the corners of the foil up to form a pouch. Twist top to seal.

Place onions at the back of the grill (or on whichever section is coolest), leaving at least an inch of space between them. Grill 20 to 30 minutes, or until soft. Remove dill sprigs and serve onions in the pouches. Makes 6 servings.

Grilled Potatoes with Curry and Sour Cream

1/4 cup olive oil
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
2 tablespoons curry powder
6 potatoes, scrubbed and quartered lengthwise

3/4 cup sour cream
Combine all ingredients, except sour cream. Toss gently to coat potatoes with oil and seasonings. Let stand 20 minutes. Meanwhile, heat grill.

Place potatoes on grill, reserving seasoned oil. Grill, turning frequently, until done, about 15 minutes. Arrange on a serving dish, brush with reserved oil, and serve with sour cream. Makes 6 servings.

Snacks keep holiday weekend cool

Here are some quick snacks and tips to keep your family cool now and over the Labor Day weekend.

Frozen fruit delights: Stick a variety of whole or cubed fresh fruit such as grapes, watermelon, strawberries and apricots on wooden skewers. Wrap each fruit kebab in plastic wrap and freeze. Serve as a snack on a hot day.

Gelatin and fruit parfait: Make a gelatin desert according to the package's directions, using low fat fruit-flavored yogurt instead of the cold water.

Serving helpers: When serving cold drinks outside for snacks time, use a six-cup muffin tin to carry and set drinks in. The muffin tin stabilizes the drinks, preventing spills. When entertaining a large group, use 12-cup tins. The whole tray can be prepared in advance, then placed in the refrigerator until serving time.

No-mess-treats for kids: Before giving children ice cream bars or Popsicles, punch the stick through paper muffin cups. The cups catch the drips to keep small hands sticky-free. If you are serving tacos for a snack or meal, tuck each one in paper coffee filters to help maintain the meat, lettuce and cheese bits.

Turkeys among grocery specials

It's too hot for Thanksgiving, but turkeys still will be bargains in supermarkets during August, with prices perhaps dipping to 79 cents per pound.

"This may seem odd, but stockpiling by the major supermarket chains has been a tradition for many years," said Dr. Dick Edwards, a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Stores have got to buy now to ensure supplies for November."

Most of the turkeys sold in November are bought in August, and since retailers don't want to store them all, they will sell some at 10 to 15 cents less per pound, he said.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: About five or six years ago I began to notice unusual stiffness in my joints. Cracking, popping and pain began. I'm now 36 and the condition seems to be worsening. I've tried taking different anti-arthritis drugs such as Felodene, Naprosyn and Ansaid. None really help.

About two years ago, I had my tonsils removed, and after surgery, my tongue was severely swollen and pitted with ulcers. The surgeon prescribed Decadron and the inflammation quickly went away. The mouth ulcers became a regular thing and I saw another doctor. He prescribed Tagamet, Librax and, again, prednisone and Decadron. I noticed during the days I was taking the steroids (prednisone or Decadron) my joint pain was gone and I had a general feeling of good health.

The problem is I can't get the doctors to prescribe even a minute amount of prednisone because of the bad publicity about the use of steroids. That is unfair. What can I do to help myself feel like living with joint deterioration? I know steroids are bad for the bones, but I'm willing to try them because I know how well they work in my situation.

DEAR READER: First, you need a proper diagnosis. It is important to know what is causing your joint symptoms before beginning treatment. You are rather young to have osteoarthritis, although it can occur at an early age. Your story raises the possibility of rheumatoid arthritis, which is an entirely different disease. It is an inflammatory disease and does respond to steroid therapy, such as prednisone.

The thinking about treating rheumatoid arthritis is changing. The concept was to give enough of the anti-inflammatory medicines such as you mention to control inflammation and pain. Those do nothing whatsoever to prevent the progression of the disease or to reverse it. They merely provide patient comfort.

The use of small amounts of corticosteroids such as prednisone in treating many disorders is now recognized as not being particularly dangerous. I have discussed this point in Special Issue 34-04, Your Vital Adrenal Steroids (Corticosteroids), which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-adressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-04, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

There were many horror stories about the use of "cortisone" in years past. Initially it was hailed as a miracle drug because of the dramatic improvement seen in patients with disabling rheumatoid arthritis. Disabled patients were able to throw away their crutches and walk again. But the large doses that were used caused other problems, including bone loss, weight gain, a large abdomen and other features of excess hormone.

The result was that corticosteroids were then discontinued almost entirely for the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. The current thinking is that doses of prednisone of 7.5 mg are not going to produce any of those harmful effects and are useful in many disorders.

You could go to a larger city to see a rheumatologist (arthritis specialist) to see what the problem is and what the right treatment for you should be.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I just finished a bout with shingles and am amazed when I read or hear of people suffering so with them. As soon as I was diagnosed with herpes zoster, I was given a prescription for Zovirax capsules to be taken for five days. I had three large blisters on my chin, progressing up the chin line, and within 24 hours it was stopped. With the help of Zovirax ointment, my scars aren't very noticeable.

Why don't all doctors prescribe this? Friends who have had shingles six or eight months say they've never heard of this medication. One week elapsed before I started the medication and it worked wonders. Since I had such great success, I wanted everyone to know about this treatment and not suffer so.

DEAR READER: Thank you for your thoughtful letter. I believe most doctors today are aware of the value of Zovirax. It is an antiviral agent and has only been used to treat herpes zoster (shingles) in the past few years. It is also used to treat herpes simplex.

Shingles is caused when the chickenpox virus that is dormant in a nerve root starts to multiply and migrates down the nerve fiber to the surface of your skin. The viruses in your skin cause the sores. They multiply there and cause blisters. Zovirax (acyclovir) stops the virus multiplication. If you can stop the multiplication soon enough, the disease is limited in severity and duration. That is why Zovirax works best if it is given as soon as the shingles first starts, before too much virus multiplication occurs.

I have discussed the treatment of shingles with Zovirax in Special Report 118, Shingles: The Chickenpox Disease, and would have sent you a free copy, but your address was not on your letterhead. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/118, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

There is no evidence that Zovirax helps if given weeks or months after the acute attack has occurred, so that is why it is not prescribed in those instances you know about. Also, the disease often lasts less than two weeks. Your attack may have been short in duration and severity even if you had not taken Zovirax. But I do believe it should be used as early as possible in all new cases of shingles. Long-lasting "shingles" is really "postherpetic neuralgia," which is a complication in some cases.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

TEHA holds first meeting

The Deaf Smith County Council of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association (TEHA) welcomed new officers and made plans for several events during a meeting Monday.

Maudette Smith is the new council chairman and Perry Keys is vice chairman. Corta Glover was elected secretary-treasurer of the extension club newsletter.

TEHA is conducting a "Sweet Bee" at the Hereford Community Center Oct. 21 at noon. Tickets will be $5 each and will include a cookbook. Tickets will also be available for a quilt that will be given away at 1:30 p.m. that day.

Southwestern Public Service will have its holiday program Oct. 13. Members should call the county extension office to make reservations.

Fair entries must be in the extension office by Sept. 16. Be sure to include name, address and phone number with each entry. It was also announced that the Health Fare has been cancelled and will be rescheduled at a later date.

Two new clubs--Four Corners and the Sunsetters--were represented at the council meeting. Pattie Urbanczyk and Emily Kirby represented Four Corners. Nine clubs were present.

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jane Fonda says she has no regrets about giving up her acting career to devote her time to husband Ted Turner and her fitness business.

"I won't be in movies anymore," Miss Fonda said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Boulder, Colo. "I walked away with nary a glance back. I did it for 30 years."

Miss Fonda, 54, who first opened an exercise studio in 1979, was promoting her 16th fitness video "Jane Fonda's Step Aerobic and Abdominal Workout."

She says she wants to savor life with Turner, chairman of Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., parent of CNN. "Yes, I'm in love. I'm in a life that is fun," she said.

Her last film was "Old Gringo" in 1988.

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) - Miss Iowa was crowned Miss Teen USA in a pageant rearranged around Hurricane Andrew.

The pageant in this Gulf Coast city was to be televised live on CBS Tuesday evening. With the approach of Andrew, it was taped earlier and the contestants were bused further inland to weather the storm.

Pageant officials called the runners-up until two contestants were left. Then they filmed endings with each of them winning so the contestants would be surprised when the program aired.

The winner, Jamie Solinger, is a 17-year-old high school student in Altoona, Iowa. Miss Oklahoma Angela Logan, 17, was first runner-up.

The hurricane passed to the west of Biloxi, bringing only heavy rains and high winds to the city.

President Theodore Roosevelt used the term "hurricane" in a 1906 speech to the Gridiron Club in Washington.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - Former Gov. George C. Wallace got a special present on his 73rd birthday - a discharge from the hospital after a two-week stay.

Before leaving Tuesday, the four-term governor shared a vanilla cake with about 15 University Hospital employees.

"He was in good spirits, alert, sitting up, smiling for visitors and serving the cake," said hospital spokesman Hank Black.

Wallace was admitted Aug. 12 for treatment of painful muscle spasms he has had since a 1972 assassination attempt left him paralyzed from the waist down.

"He is generally improved, feeling much better and looking more like his old self," Black said.

ATLANTA (AP) - Mayor Maynard Jackson has been hospitalized with high blood pressure.

A doctor discovered Jackson's high blood pressure during a routine examination Tuesday and wanted to run additional tests, said Nick Gold, a Jackson spokesman. "It's nothing serious," Gold said.

Jackson, 54, was expected back in his office Thursday. The Democrat served two terms before being succeeded by Andrew Young in 1982. He was re-elected in 1989.

If you suffer from back and leg pain caused by a slipped disc, ask your doctor if chemonucleolysis is right for you.
