County sending out new registration cards

Residents shifted

Persons living in the area marked on the left side of the map

By GEORGIA TYLER Staff Writer

New voter registration certificates are being delivered this week to 467 persons affected by a change in boundaries of two Deaf Smith County commissioner precincts.

County Clerk David Ruland, who Justice Department. also functions as voter registrar, said a compromise reached recently on precinct lines and ordered by a federal court panel of judges is being implemented, in part, by the new voter cards.

Ruland's staff went through voter registration lists to obtain names of residents whose precinct assignments are changed as a result of the court order.

"We're mailing 213 cards to people who are moved from Precinct 2 into Precinct 1," said Ruland, "and 254 to residents changed from Precinct 1 to Precinct 2.

Ruland emphasized that the new cards will be required of residents who moved into Precinct 1 if they wish to vote in the new primary election in September for county commissioner.

The new primary was ordered by the federal panel as part of the settlement of a lawsuit, Trini Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County, filed after the March primary.

The suit asked the court to nullify the primary election that saw John Stribling, incumbent, win over Tony Castillo, because the precinct boundaries had not been precleared by the U.S. Justice Department, as required by federal voting rights laws.

The court order is based on 1 % number of residents in the areas, r.ot the number of registered voters.

The exchange boosts Precinci Hispanic population to 64.66 percent, compared with 60.53 in the original boundary plan submitted to the

In Precinct 2, the Hispanic population is 65.8 percent after the swap, a decrease from 69.78 percent.

The West Hereford geographical area transferred to Precinct 1 is bounded by Washington Avenue on the west, Bradley on the north and Norton on the south. The eastern edge is marked by Texas, a jog east on Lake Street for a block, then south on Knight to Norton. The area immediately to the west previously was assigned to Precinct 1.

Registered voters living in this area will be eligible to vote in the new Precinct 1 primary election. Unregistered persons have until Aug. 20 to register, he said.

"The postoffice does not forward voter registration certificates," Ruland said. "Residents who do not receive new cards, or who have moved since January, should get in touch with my office."

The schedule for the new Precinct 1 commissioner primary elections includes a filing period beginning Aug. 17 and ending Aug. 28. In March, there were no Republican candidates for the position. In the Democratic primary, only Stribling and Castillo were candidates. Primary voting is scheduled for Sept. 19 with a runoff, if needed, on Oct. 3. The general election this year is on Nov. 3

Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors, in a regular monthly board meeting Tuesday night, approved contracts with two doctors in residency, appointed Dr. Stan Fry Jr. to fill a vacancy on the board, and approved purchase of a nurse-call system.

John Perrin, board chairman, also announced the appointment of several committees, and the board approved report from Dr. Jesse Perales, chief held to discuss a proposed purchase of property and possible litigation.

The board took what DSGH "visionary action" in approving contracts with two physicians in residency training. The two, both graduates of Texas Tech Medical medicine in Hereford for at least four years after completing residency programs.

Dr. Lawlis will be paid a stipend of $25,000 a year during the three-$120,000 for his first year practice in Hereford starting in August, 1995. He will then be obligated to repay the stipend of $75,000 and can work out the repayment by practicing in back in the black. Hereford three more years. In effect, the contracts are for seven years.

Dr. Clarke's contract is the same except he will be guaranteed $130,000 for his first year of practice. His guarantee is slightly higher because his family practice will include delivering babies.

Rives reported the hospital and the physician recruitment and retention committee is still seeking doctors for the present. One recruitment firm is now seeking an orthopedic surgeon for the hospital.

With director Raymond Schroeder moving out of town, the board appointed Dr. Fry, a former director, to fill that position. The seat will be up for election next year.

Rives asked the board to approve purchase of a new nurse-call system a financial report, heard a report from at a cost of about $8,200. He is expected to sign a loss to $98,589. This compared with a net gain of $38,182. Low patient census continues to be the big factor.

The loss from operations totals year residency and will be guaranteed $812,039 for the year to date, but an increase of about $400,000 in ad valorem taxes and a state disproportionate share rebate of about $500,000 helps put the net income

Directors present for the meeting were Perrin, Clark, Abalos, Dr. Bidwell and Foster.

A compromise reached between the county and the plaintiff included transfer of designated areas to raise the number of Hispanic residents in Precinct 1. The result was an exchange of about 500 residents each in Precincts 1 and 2.

The voter registration cards sent this week are dated July 16, 1992, Ruland said. The new certificates replace those dated Jan. 1.

Checking registrations

Treva Hester, deputy in the office of Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland, checks out new voter registration certificates before putting them in the mail. New cards were necessitated by changes made in boundary lines of County Commissioner Precincts'1 and 2.

Prison time dropping for convicted felons

AUSTIN (AP) - Judges and juries may be getting tough on crime, but most criminals are serving less time behind bars, according to a new state study.

The Texas Criminal Justice Policy Council study shows that median time served by a state prison inmate has fallen from 15.5 months in 1985 to 11.2 months in 1991, a decrease of 27 percent.

Median time served means that half the inmates were in prison longer, and half were in prison less time before being released.

Meanwhile, the median prison sentence has increased 20 percent, from 5 years in 1985 to 6 years in 1991, according to the report released Tuesday.

The report states that new policies aimed at increasing prison time served "would further aggravate prison overcrowding."

Tony Fabelo, executive director of the Criminal Justice Policy Council, said more rehabilitation and drug treatment programs are needed to reduce the number of inmates who commit crimes after they are released.

He added, "Increasing the time served in prison can only occur if balanced by a significant increase in community corrections diversions for offenders presently sentenced to prison or a significant increase in prison capacity."

For instance, the median sentence for homicide in 1985 was 10 years. and the inmate was imprisoned for a median time of 3 years, 9 months. In 1991, the median sentence was 12 years, and the inmate served 4 years, 5 months.

The same trend held true for all categories of violent crimes that were committed with a weapon, the report said.

But despite the increase in time served for violent crimes, the study showed that the percent of the sentence served has fallen.

"I came to hear if he's really going to address the issues," said Robert Burns Jr. of Wilmington, Ohio, a local volunteer for Ross Perot who brought a four-page questionnaire for Clinton.

"He and Bush each have a 33 1-3 percent chance of getting my vote," said Burns, who said Clinton has yet to persuade him to trust a Democrat with the economy. "The other 33 1-3 percent is a no-vote, but I'd rather cast a vote."

The Clinton-Gore caravan was full of made-for-TV style and marked by aggressive attempts by Clinton to define the race as "people first" economic populists versus "wealthy first" defenders of the status quo, Also significant was the O: What do mountain climbing, choral singing, dembell-swinging, still fishing, tug-of-war and golf have in common?

A: All were once part of the modern Olympics.

One of the contests listed above stands a very good chance of returning to the Summer Games in Atlanta four years from now - and an even better chance when the world's sportsmen and women convene at an as-yet-undetermined site in the year 2000.

Here's your first and only clue: It's not choral singing. "Our game," Michael Bonallack, secretary of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, said on the final day of last weekend's British Open, "has been missing from the competition for far too long.

"I'm not sure we'll try to qualify in time for Atlanta," he continued, "but we've had ongoing discussions with the International Olympic Committee for nine months now. Being realistic about it, I'd say the games in 2000 are our best chance." Golf made its exit from the Olympic stage after the 1904 Games in St. Louis and there hasn't been much clamoring for its return - until very recently.

The confluence of several trends an ever-growing number of participants and spectators and the emergence of world-class professionals in even the most far-flung corners of the globe - have established its credentials as an Olympic-ealiber competition. More important perhaps is that golf is a potential moneymaker. That makes it considerably more attractive to both television and the IOC than say, mountain climbing or tug-of-war, two other contests with a fair share of devotees.

Not surprisingly, though, figuring out how to divvy up the pot could be one of the things that could keep golf outside the rings and still looking in.

"I'm sure if golf is accepted, they will want the best players," said Bonallack, whose position as head of the R & A makes him one of the most influential men in the sport. "And that means the professionals."

That also means a great deal of money since I was a redshirt freshman at Miami," Maryland said.

"I thought I got a few cheap shots from Wisniewski and I wasn't going to take it."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson wasn't pleased about the scuffle.

"Tempers flare and things like that happen when you get two teams together," Johnson said. "I don't want it to be a habit. I'm not as concerned about the fight as I am 15 yards penalties.

We were the least penalized team in the NFL last year and I want to keep it that way.'

Hints from Heloise

Tough Stuff

Dear Heloise: I have learned to save the tough inner liners which come in most cereal boxes. They are wonderful to use when crushing various ingredients such as crackers, cereals or pretzels for baking. They are made of a plastic tough enough that I can use a rolling pin to smash the crumbs without having the plastic rupture. And no cleanup! -Evelyn Whitson, Hobart, Ind.

PICO DE GALLO

Q. Would you have a recipe for pico de gallo? My husband fell in love with this when we visited Texas recently but I can't seem to find a recipe anywhere. - Gail, Savannah, Ga.

A. I'd be glad to share my recipe with you. Simply combine 1 cup coarsely chopped tomato, 1/4 cup coarsely chopped onion, 1 tablespoon fresh cilantro (finely chopped) and 2 or 3 fresh serrano peppers (minced). Add 1/2 teaspoon of salt and mix well.

Pico de gallo is best when it's made fresh and eaten the same day. Enjoy! I'm sending you a copy of my pamphlet, Heloise's Down-Home Barbecue Collection. It includes this recipe and other special Texas cooking ideas. Anyone else interested should

Miniatures bazaar slated

The two miniature clubs of Amarillo, the Merri Mini Makers and Mini Casa de Amarillo are having their annual miniature show and sale Oct. 10-11 at the Amarillo Garden Center from noon until 5 p.m. both days.

Not only will our miniature houses, rooms, and vignettes we have created be on display, but we will also have our own miniature version of a Christmas Festival of Trees.

Club members have prepared several interesting items. They are a Federal-style three-story house, a Southwestern Christmas tree, a children's nursery shadow box and a children's toy room shadow box.

send $2 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents), long envelope to Heloise/Barbecue #4, PO Box 795001, San Antonio TX 78279-5001. -Heloise

BUNDT PAN

Dear Heloise: I finally found the perfect way to remove a bundt cake from the pan. I lightly grease and sugar the pan instead of using flour. After cooling, the cake will slide right out. - Beth, Myrtle Beach, S.C.

HINT FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: When I make frenchfried potatoes in the oven, it calls for preheating the oven at 450 degrees and cooking for between 14 and 17 minutes.

So, when I put the potatoes in, I use two pie plates, one for the potatoes and one for my two ground round steak patties. Then, in 15 minutes I have my whole delicious supper done. Easy cleanup too. -Robert Walker, Scranton, Pa.

I love hints that are energy savers, and this is a good one. Thanks for writing, and please do so again. -Heloise

PIZZA CUTTER

Dear Heloise: I use a pizza cutter to make long dumplings. It's a lot faster and doesn't cut the waxed paper placed under the dough. -Wanda Meacham, Manila, Ark.

information on diets for high triglycerides. My doctor discovered mine are dangerously high, over 500, but I didn't hear the last two digits because he shook me up so. I need to get them down by diet, unless I want to go on a maintenance drug. I already take Lotensin and Premarin and am worried enough about side effects from those two and do not wish to take a third one.

The only diet my doctor gave me was a very strict printed sheet for high cholesterol. My cholesterol is normal, just 170, and I'm not sure the diet applies to my case. Often Lyme disease will not be recognized in areas where the disease is not so common. The initial illness may be a flu-like illness: malaise, fatigue and headache. It is important that the disease be treated adequately with sufficient antibiotic therapy early in the disease. Otherwise there is the risk of dissemination and developing chronic Lyme's disease, which can be a serious and difficult illness to treat. Your daughter is fortunate to have had an early diagnosis.

when comparing radio to newspaper. Notice which one can be held, referred back to, carried on shopping trips, and found in libraries for generation after generation.

What is the differ-

Newspaper vs. Radio

- · Radio copy depends on word imagery and it is limited to 30 or 60 seconds, not enough time for complex issues.
- Average recall for a 1/2 page newspaper ad is 32%; for a 1/4 page ad, it's 31%. Radio ad recall is only 4%.
- · Once a commercial is aired, it is gone. There is absolutely no tangible evidence it existed. For those listeners not tuned in at that specific time, the commercial is lost.
- · Radio is an entertainment medium. People listen for musical enjoyment (passive experience).
- · Newspapers are an information medium. People read to seek data and learn (active experience).
- · Newspapers are the only medium that allow shoppers to compare values offered by competitive advertisers.
- 77% of all newspaper readers look at every page. No audience can actively listen to the radio 77% of the time (Audits and Survey, Inc.).
- · 44% of newspaper readers look forward to ads, compared to 10% for radio (Audits and Survey, Inc.).

Taggart is used to having celebrities shop at his travel shop. So he was not fazed when Jimmy Carter stopped in to buy a fishing license over the weekend.

"He came year before last," Taggart said. "But I'm not going to go into detail because I think a lot of the reason they trade here is I don't treat them any different than anyone else.'

The former president was accompanied by his wife, Rosalynn, and Jane Fonda.

"I don't ask them for autographs or anything," Taggart said. "I just treat them regular."

The Carters spent a week visiting Fonda and her husband, Ted Turner, at their Flying D Ranch near Bozeman, a ranch secretary said Tuesday.

CICERO, Ind. (AP) - Phil Donahue and wife Marlo Thomas are on the guest list for next week's wedding of Jeanne White, mother of teen-age AIDS crusader Ryan White. The AIDS activist and her neighbor, Roy Ginder, will marry in a private ceremony Aug. 1. The public is invited to a reception afterward.

With tickets selling for $65, the party will be a fund-raiser for the Ryan White Foundation, which helps people with AIDS and their families.

Mrs. White, 44, met her fiance through her son, who died in 1990 at age 18 after a five-year battle with AIDS.

Ryan used to talk classic cars with Ginder, 37, a former mechanic. And when Michael Jackson gave Ryan a red Mustang, Ginder helped him customize it.

Extension News

Dietary fiber comes from fruits vegetables, grains, nuts and legumes that humans can't digest. It is called roughage.

Some medical experts now believe that a fiber-rich diet can help lower the risk of colon cancer. It is misunderstood how fiber protects against colon cancer. Researchers think fiber may help cut down on the exposure of the colon to possible carcinogens or substances that cause cancer by increasing the speed that food moves through the intestine or by absorbing harmful substances.

Eating more than 40 grams per day can create problems. If you eat too much fiber without drinking enough liquids, you may end up with an obstruction in your bowel that may require medical treatment. Large amounts of fiber can also decrease the absorption of some minerals such as calcium and zinc.

Whether soluble or insoluble fiber on food labels is the best choice depends. Plant foods have both types of fiber in them, but some have more of one kind than the other. One kind is not necessarily better than the other because soluble and insoluble fiber just have different benefits.

Insoluble fiber adds bulk and helps maintain regularity and is the type of fiber that may reduce the risk of colon cancer.

Practical ways to get more fiber are as follows:

-Eat at least three to four servings of fruits and three to five servings of vegetables each day.

-choose less processed foods because they have more fiber. For example, an orange has more fiber than sectioned orange or orange juice. -Gradually eat more cereal and grains. eat brown rice and whole-wheat pasta.

-Read fiber information on cereal boxes, and choose cereals that have more fiber.

-Read food labels when buying bread. For more fiber, look for whole grain flour as the first item on the ingredient list. Brown colored or dark breads can sometimes be due to caramel food coloring or molasses, so dark breads are not always high in -Consume more cooked dry beans and peas (legumes) in soups, dips, salads and casseroles.

Remember, by gradually increasing the amount of fiber you eat allows your digestive system time to adjust.

WIC helps half-million persons

Each moth, more than half a million pregnant women, babies and children younger than 5 now can benefit from the state's Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC). The program provides free, nutritious foods, nutrition education and counseling, as well as general information and referrals to other health and social services.

Debra Stabeno, chief of the Texas Department of Heath's (TDH) Bureaus of WIC Nutrition, said, "The Texas WIC program has expanded in the past year because we have begun highly effective cost-containment measures and because the cost of WIC foods has not risen as quickly as projected. The savings allows to serve more eligible participants," Stabeno said that the combined factors have produced an over-all increase of nearly $33.4 million dollars for the program.

We have four years aggressively sought to extend services throughout the state. Just five years ago, we were only able to serve 182 of Texas; 254 counties--about 21.2 percent of the state's eligible clients. With improvements in the program, we now serve all Texas counties, and can reach more than 33 percent of those who are eligible," Stabeno said.

Among the state WIC programs, only California now serves more clients than Texas.

By the year 2000, WIC expects to be able to serve at least 80 percent of eligible applicants anywhere in the state, Stabeno added. "To do that, we need to dispel some public misunderstandings about who is eligible for WIC. Many lower income pregnant women, their infants and children younger than 5 are eligible -- if our nutritionists find they have nutritional need. A large portion of our clients learn about he program when the apply for other public assistance, such as AFDC, Food Stamps, and unemployment benefits, but other prospective clients may not realize that WIC may be available for them also," she explained. Working families, college students and families of enlisted military personnel are among groups who may not know that WIC is an important resource. Stabeno said that WIC, now 18 years old, "has a responsibility to serve every eligible woman and child it can."

She said that even many working families, unable to stretch their resources, cannot afford nutritious foods. Others know little about choosing the best foods to ensure healthful diets for their babies and children. "WIC serves as a safety net for these people," she said, adding that, beginning in April, a family of four can have an annual income up to $25,808, and still be eligible for the program.

Although the main benefits of WIC are better health for newborns and young children during critical periods of their growth, the program also saves state and federal dollars that otherwise might have to be spend on hospitalization and other health care for the very young.

Stabeno said that a recent nationwide study showed that pregnant women in the Medicaid program who participated in WIC had fewer premature births than did other low income mothers who did not participate in WIC. The babies of the WIC participants were heavier and healthier.

The Bureau of WIC Nutrition operates a toll-free information line in Austin to explain WIC eligibility and services, and to help applicants locate their nearest WIC clinic. That phone number is 1-8--WIC-FOR-U (1-800-842-3678)

How to battle illiteracy with one of its oldest enemies

Kids don't read because they are monopolized by the tube, the popular theory goes. Now a children's group is fighting illiteracy by enlisting reading's arch rival for kids' attention - the television.

A 42-part mystery series created by the Children's Television Workshop, which will air Sunday, Oct. 4 on Public Broadcasting Service, hopes to engage children 7to 10 years of age in a quest to read.

'It's a given that kids watch lots of television," says Tina Peel, project director for the "Ghostwriter" series. "This is not just a television show. It's an exciting multimedia, age-appropriate mystery series which is surrounded by print. We're using television to discover the value of literacy.'

The show features a cast of six amateur sleuths who solve cases aided by an intriguing ghost with a mysterious past. Ghostwriter is invisible. He only communicates in writing. But his printed messages can show up anywhere, from a computer screen to a classroom chalkboard to a manhole cover.

And even though Ghostwriter cannot see, hear, or talk, he has a magical, friendly and helpful personality all his own. High-tech graphics, animation and contemporary music create an environment that kids relate to.

"One of our goals is to show kids that reading and writing are skills that can have meaning in their lives and actually empower them," says Liz Nealon, executive producer. "Too many children only see reading and writing as something you have to do on 9- and 10-year-olds who are economically disadvantaged or belong to minority groups. "This age group is very concerned with their peer relationships," Peel said. "Our kid cast demonstrates that the world of literacy is about and for the kid. Above all, we want to get across to young people that reading and writing are cool.'

In between each 30-minute segment an action spot called "Do the Word Thing" will be featured. Kids will be invited to write into the show and some of the letters will then appear on subsequent segments.

To complement the series, the Children's Television Workshop is creating books, magazines and a syndicated newspaper feature with word games, puzzles and children's writing. "Our philosophy is that poor minority kids often lack a lot of print in their homes. We want these books and magazines to be accessible," Peel said.

Bantam Doubleday Dell will publish a series of 12 books during the first season of "Ghostwriter." The books will sell for 99 cents to $2.99.

Many of the magazines will be distributed free of charge through national organizations such as the Girl Scouts of the United States of America and the YMCA of the USA. This is the first time the Children's Television Workshop has embarked on a simultaneous multimedia launch.

"Ghostwriter," supported by a grant from the NIKE Just Do It Fund, is being produced in association with BBC School Television
