We've received several letters to the editor recently which were not published, and perhaps an explanation is due. Our "Letters to the Editor" policy states that no letters endorsing a political candidate will be accepted during the election process.

When some political parties and individuals are paying for advertising space to support their candidates, we don't think it proper to publish free political ads.

The Herd closes out the regular home football schedule tonight, hosting Amarillo Caprock in a game that has playoff rewards for the maroon and white. Forty seniors will be making their final home appearance for the Whitefaces, unless a playoff game is held here.

Hereford is a heavy favorite, on paper, to defeat the Caprock team. If the Whitefaces are not looking forward a week, they should handle the Caprock team.

Our prediction: Hereford 35, Caprock 7.

Sports announcers Tom Simons and Cuby Kitchens sometimes get pretty excited during their broadcasts of the Hereford games. We heard about an announcer who got very excited during a close game. Surely it couldn't happen to Simons or Kitchens.

The announcer worked himself into a frenzy late in the second quarter and a play had just ended. "Uh-oh," said the play-by-play man, "it looks like a penalty. Yes, yes it is. The ref has picked up the ball and he's walking off the distance."

"Five yards, 10 yards, 20, 25 yards. Fans, this is the longest penalty I've ever seen. I can't imagine what the infraction was."

Then there was a moment of silence. The embarrassed announcer cleared his throat and continued, "Well, as the first half ends..."

Memories of a former sports-writer:

Schoolboy grid rivalries sometimes create unpleasant side effects, such as painting signs at the other school's campus. Some are dirty tricks and some are amusing.

While we were living in Slaton, the Tigers had an important district game coming up with the Roosevelt Eagles. The Tiger Booster Club president was worried about the player's getting "up" for the game, so he dreamed up a ploy.

He placed a cow chip in a paper bag and addressed it to the captain of the Slaton team. On the bag were the words "Tiger chow," and signed it as being "from the Roosevelt Eagle football team."

The bag did the trick. The team was fired up all night, and they had the bag on the sideline--and a Slaton player would hold it up every time the Tigers made a big play. Slaton won the game, and the excited captain ran across the field as the final whistle sounded.

"Tell your team we saved this meal for them!" he yelled to the bewildered Roosevelt coach, who had no idea what was going on. He called me the

Re-election will boost pensions

WASHINGTON (AP) - More is at stake than power and a $133,600-a-year salary for House incumbents in next week's election. A new two-year term would boost the typical lifetime pension benefit by more than $300,000, a private watchdog group says.

On average, according to the National Taxpayers Union, an incumbent will get an extra $1,000 a month for life just by winning re-election on Tuesday. The average annual congressional pension for these members, now $48,353, would increase to $60,646 with the additional two years of service.

Over a lifetime, the average pension would be worth about $1.9 million, up from about $1.6 million now.

But that is just the average, said David Keating, executive vice president of the conservative taxpayer group, which does research on government spending. "By staying in office just two more years, as many as 18 House lawmakers could boost their lifetime pensions by over $500,000," he said.

Keating estimated that re-election could mean lifetime pensions exceeding $1 million for 186 of the 193 House members who first won election before 1984 and are seeking new terms on Tuesday. He said 68 of the number would be eligible for $2 million or more, 23 could qualify for $3 million and three would be eligible for pension payments totaling $4 million.

The calculations are based on public records, insurance industry estimates for life expectancy and the taxpayer group's projections. The figures assume annual cost-of-living increases of 4 percent.

The study covered only incumbents elected before 1984 because the congressional pension system was overhauled that year.

Members of Congress generally contribute 8 percent of pay to their pensions, but taxpayers chip in considerably more. The pensions are based on a member's three highest earning years and total years of service, including other government and military service.

Candidates argue over US economy

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

Bill Clinton and President Bush battled over economics as they campaigned at breakneck pace in tossup states. Ross Perot joined them on another campaign turf and all three snapped up free air time to take their case to voters.

Clinton, campaigning in New Jersey on Thursday, took a swipe at Bush's explanation of his knowledge about the Iran-Contra arms-for-hostages deal.

"The only loop he's been out of is the one you're in," the Democratic nominee told Jersey City, N.J., supporters. Later, by satellite to a Detroit rally, Clinton pledged to "be in touch with you, working for you, every day I am in the White House."

Bush brushed off criticism that he's out of touch with everyday concerns.

"This idea that I'm disconnected is a Clinton-Gore myth," Bush said, appearing on a taped interview on ABC-TV's "Primetime Live." Clinton was on the same show in a separately taped interview.

Perot, appearing on CNN's "Larry King Live," answered a viewer question on the same subject by noting that he buys his own food and clothing, and had on Thursday been in a convenience store, where he spoke with the clerk, some construction workers and a police officer.

Bush said "a lot of families are hurting" but "the economy isn't in as much doldrums as Governor Clinton and Ozone would have you believe." "Ozone" is Bush's nickname for Clinton's running mate, Al Gore.

Perot, on CNN, insisted he can win. Bush has no chance, Perot said.

"The good people who are voting for him are throwing their votes away," Perot said on the King show, which features Bush tonight. Clinton was doing another town hall meeting this morning on ABC; his aides were working on juggling his schedule to fit one in tonight in Detroit.

At Perot's Dallas headquarters, his aides complained that the news media was portraying the race as a two-way contest that left out the independent candidate, even as Perot focused almost entirely on the Republicans in his campaign attacks, making only indirect attacks on Clinton.

But new polls indicated Perot's support may be waning.

ABC's two-night tracking poll made it Clinton 44 percent, Bush 35 percent and Perot 16 percent, down from 20 percent in a survey released the day before. The network surveyed 903 likely voters, with a margin of error of 4 percentage points.

CNN-USA Today released their nightly poll, which gave Clinton one more point than its Wednesday poll did: Clinton ahead of Bush, 41 percent to 38 percent. Perot had 16 percent in the survey of 1,657 likely voters over two nights, with a margin of error of three percentage points.

With Election Day fast approaching, Clinton and Bush at times dipped into biting personal exchanges.

Clinton called Bush dishonest and said he had no "core of conviction."

Bush called Clinton and Gore "two bozos" when it came to foreign policy. And Bush chided Clinton for talk of doom about the economy, noting figures out this week showed a healthy 2.7 percent growth in the third quarter.

"Not as sick as the opposition would have you believe," Bush said in Michigan.

Gore and Vice President Dan Quayle each boasted that their team had the momentum.

Bishops: wives shouldn't submit to bad husbands

NEW YORK (AP) - The Bible doesn't justify wife-beating, and parish priests should help abused women seek assistance, the nation's Roman Catholic bishops say in their first official statement on spouse abuse.

"Violence in any form - physical, sexual, psychological or verbal - is sinful," the bishops say in "When I Call for Help: A Pastoral Response to Domestic Violence Against Women."

The joint statement of two bishops' committees was proposed in March, and approved last month by the Administrative Committee of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Lori Beaman-Hall, a Canadian researcher studying religion and wife abuse, said the statement is "a good starting point" to challenge attitudes that the Bible sanctions abuse or that clergy should encourage abused spouses to return home.

"Churches to some extent are very materially supportive, but when it comes to actually sending people to transition houses, they are still not very supportive," the University of New Brunswick researcher said Thursday.

The bishops warned church leaders about biblical passages encouraging wives to be submissive to their husbands, saying they have been taken out of context to justify spouse abuse.

"Abused women say, 'I can't leave this relationship. The Bible says it would be wrong.' Abusive men say, 'The Bible says my wife should be submissive to me.' They take the biblical text and distort it to support their right to batter," the bishops said.

The statement makes clear that violence against women is never justified, and that the parish must be a place where both abused women and men who batter can come for help.

It encourages parish churches to dedicate a weekend to educate parishioners about domestic violence, and to build relationships with police and domestic violence agencies to help abused women seeking assistance.

To further reduce domestic violence, the bishops encourage parishes to work to see that women are well represented in parish leadership positions and to insist that religious education is free of sexual stereotyping.

"Battering thrives on sexism," the statement said.

The statement by the bishops' Committees on Marriage and Family and Women in Society and in the Church was drafted relatively quickly and quietly, in contrast to a controversial pastoral letter on women that the bishops have worked on for nine years, which may be headed for defeat this fall.

The statement was never discussed in an open meeting of the full complement of bishops, as was the unapproved letter, which backs sexual equality but stops short of calling for women priests.

"We wanted to get something out quickly," said Sheila Garcia of the Secretariat for Family, Laity, Women and Youth. "It's been a hidden problem for a long time."

Rare KKK goods going on the block

FREMONT, Mich. (AP) - Jean Anderson sits in a rocking chair on her front porch, recalling how just two years ago she tried to give away the secrets in her attic.

"Nobody wanted them," the 83-year-old said Wednesday.

But since last week, when the auctioneer she hired to sell off her family estate found an attic full of Ku Klux Klan paraphernalia from the 1920s, Anderson's telephone hasn't stopped ringing.

Thirty-nine white Klan robes and 12 hoods were found folded neatly in 31 numbered leather cases. Some are moth-eaten and stained after decades in the old, gray farmhouse, but many are in good condition and may fetch $500 each, auctioneer Sherri Beyer said.

Also found were several photographs of a funeral showing the faces of costumed Klan members, something extremely rare for the secret organization.

The attic contained the official charter of the Newaygo County Klan No. 29 of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, dated Sept. 9, 1925. There also were minutes of meetings, quarterly reports and membership rolls with names of some of the county's most prominent citizens - including the sheriff, judges and clergymen.

"There were no professions left out," Beyer said.

In all, about 250 Klan-related items will be sold Saturday, along with hundreds of other items from Anderson's 130-year-old farm, Beyer said.

Given the number of calls - many from historians who want the collection for libraries or museums - Beyer said she expects at least 1,000 people at the auction.

The secretive nature of the Klan is what makes such a large finding so rare, said Ken Scheffel, field representative of the Bentley Historical Library at the University of Michigan. He said there was a comparable collection at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant that hasn't been widely publicized to protect the privacy of those it identifies.

For similar reasons, neither Anderson nor Beyer have allowed reporters or potential bidders to see the names on their documents.

But it was no secret to Anderson that her late brother-in-law, Ledford, was secretary-treasurer of the Klan chapter and that the group stored its records in the attic of the family farmhouse.

"When they disbanded (in the early 1930s) they didn't have a place to store their stuff, so they dumped it all here," said Anderson, who married Carl Anderson in 1931 and moved into the farmhouse built by her husband's grandfather.

Her husband, who was not a Klan member, died in 1982; Ledford, a bookkeeper who worked at the family's market next door, died in 1986 at age 86.

Anderson doesn't remember any talk of Ledford's involvement in the Klan chapter, whose membership peaked at 679 in 1925, according to records found in the attic.

Klan correspondence in the attic included a breakdown of who lived in Newaygo County: Population: 17,422; Negroes, 25; Jews, 34; Roman Catholics, 2,000.

Until Saturday, the Klan items are being held in a vault at the Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Fred Korb is checking to see if the documents contain evidence linking Klan members to any crimes from the 1920s. So far, he hasn't found anything.

Anderson worries that publicity from the discovery will damage her family's name.

"This Klan stuff has overshadowed everything," she said. "I wish I'd have gotten rid of the stuff."

Schools leery of state audit report

AUSTIN (AP) - Some school administrators are awaiting with concern a state audit report on school districts slated for release next month.

"I feel like this audit was set up with a preconceived agenda ... The whole purpose of this is politically to present an audit immediately before the special session (on school finance) that shows that there's waste and mismanagement and that the schools don't need funds," said Superintendent David Sharp of the Gladewater Independent School District.

Gladewater ISD, west of Longview in Gregg County, was one of 50 districts audited in a state sampling this year.

"It seems to me that the state's setting us up ... I think everybody feels like the Legislature is trying to use this to avoid facing the funding issues," said Gene Burkett, executive director of finance for El Paso ISD.

Spokesmen for state leaders said there were no preconceptions.

"There would be no reason for us to do that, frankly," said Bill Cryer, Gov. Ann Richards' press secretary.

"Like any audit, it's to collect information and to see if there's any weaknesses in the system. There are no preconceived notions about what the audit's going to show," Cryer said.

John Bender, spokesman for House Speaker Gib Lewis, said

officials wanted "an independent and objective audit."

Rafe Greenlee, spokesman for Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, said auditors were told to look not only for things that needed fixing but good ideas that could be used by other school districts.

The auditor examined the sample of 50 of the state's 1,000-plus school districts, and a final report is expected to be released next month. The audit cost about $1.5 million, State Auditor Larry Alwin said Thursday.

Richards plans to bring lawmakers into special session after the Nov. 3 election to deal with school finance reform, following a Texas Supreme Court ruling in January that the current system violates the state constitution.

State leaders have warned school superintendents that funding will be tight when lawmakers draw a budget for the next two years.

Richards has said $645 million more may be available for public schools, but that's less than the Texas Education Agency has estimated would be needed just to cover growth in student enrollment.

The money situation has some school district officials worried about how the audit report will be written.

Alwin said, "We've had absolutely no influence from any legislator" or other elected state leaders.

During the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service, Pastor Ted Taylor will be continuing the series "Heaven Help Our Homes" with the message entitled "Our Home As a Haven."

Pastor Taylor said, "Too many times our homes become 'bed and breakfast' places rather than havens of rest and peace where the family can retreat in an atmosphere of caring, sharing and healing." Other topics to be shared include "the home is to be a place where the child is a hero," "Godly discipline in the home" and "baggage from hurts of the past caused by unfulfilled needs are carried into our homes and perpetuated."

The public is invited to share in this special service which deals with the family and its struggles and God's solutions. Also, this Sunday, the Nazarene Christian Academy Honor Choir will sing during the service.

Sunday school begins at 9:30 a.m. and the Sunday worship services are held at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. On Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m. the following meet: Bible study in the sanctuary, choir practice and Kids Kare Groups.

This Sunday will also continue the city-wide H.E.L.P. (help eliminate liquor problems) efforts. There will be a petition for all registered voters to sign in the church foyer. You must bring your voter registration card with you in order for your signature to be valid.

A H.E.L.P. rally is planned at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 2, in the Hereford Community Center featuring guest speaker, Philip A. Kappler, a drug prevention consultant. He was raised in Long Beach, Calif. and later served in the United States Air Force. Following his discharge, he pursued communications and worked throughout the South and Midwest in radio. Additionally, he became a local sportscaster for CBS and ABC television affiliates in Amarillo. The speaker has held many drug prevention presentations in schools throughout Texas and impacts crowds where ever he has opportunity to speak. He has also guested on the 700 Club. Various community speakers will also be featured at the rally and musical entertainment will be provided.

On Tuesday, members of the H.E.L.P. committee will be present at all voting locations.

JV grididders get by Longhorns

Hereford's junior varsity football team escaped Amarillo with a 8-7 win over Caprock, while the sophomore team rolled over Amarillo High 30-13 in Whiteface Stadium.

The ninth grade teams split, with the White team beating Amarillo High 15-7 and the Maroon team falling 24-6 to Caprock. Both games were in Hereford.

Herd JV 8, Caprock 7

Chris Vallejo ran five yards for a touchdown, then Stacey Sanders hit Todd Alexander with a pass for the winning two points.

Caprock got its touchdown on an unusual play. On a Caprock punt play, the snap went over the punter's head and into the end zone. A Caprock player picked the ball up and went 105 yards for a touchdown.

Coaches said the game was not the JV's best performance, and they were just happy to win.

"We went out flat," coach Ron Young said. "We weren't prepared to play. Caprock got off to a big start and we came back to beat 8-7."

"We played well on defense; they had three first downs in the first half and one first down in the second half," Young said.

"We're real excited about being 8-1," coach Craig Yenzler said. "Those kids have had a heck of a season. We hope next week to finish it off right and finish 9-1."

Scoring run

Jacob Lopez (30) of Hereford's sophomore football team gets blocking help from Michael Hund (65) and Freddie Valdez (42) on his 27-yard touchdown run. Hereford won 30-13 Thursday in Whiteface Stadium.

Herd sophomores 30, AHS 13

Hereford got five touchdowns from four different players to overcome a rocky start. On the Sandies' first play from scrimmage, they turned a short pass into a 55-yard touchdown.

Hereford came right back with a 27-yard scoring run by Jacob Lopez. In the second quarter, Michael Brown scored on a six-yard run.

In the third, Brown had a pair of touchdown throws: a 55-yarder to Marc Haney and a 25-yarder to Gregg Kalka. Brown put the icing on the cake in the fourth quarter with a 77-yard fumble return for a touchdown.

"We played really flat in the first half, then picked up our intensity," coach Oscar Rendon said. "The defense did in the third quarter, and that helped our offense."

Hereford didn't convert any extra-point opportunities. One kick was blocked and another was missed. Hereford went for two and failed after the other three touchdowns.

9th White 15, AHS 7

Hereford trailed 7-0 going into the fourth quarter, but Marquise Brown scored on a two-yard run and ran for the two points early in the period to give Hereford the lead.

Hereford's defense held, and Brown scored again on a one-yarder with 29 seconds to play. Martin Martinez kicked the extra point.

Caprock 24, 9th Maroon 6

Armando Zambrano's four-yard touchdown tied it at 6-6 in the second quarter. Caprock kicked a field goal to lead 9-6 at halftime, then pulled away in the second half.

Coach Chris Christopher praised the play of quarterback Wade McPherson.

Austin battle high lights prep games

DALLAS (AP) - Although Austin LBJ and Austin Reagan faced each other the last two seasons, something was missing - the District 25-4A title wasn't on the line.

The most recent realignment changed that, though, sending LBJ back into Class 4A after two years in 5A. Their anxiously anticipated battle kicks off tonight, with the winner taking the driver's seat for a playoff berth.

A spot in the top 10 also could be on the line, as Reagan (7-1) is ranked fifth and LBJ (7-1) is 10th.

"I expect it to be real tight," said Raiders coach Dennis Ceder, ready for his 12th game against the Jaguars.

Their matchup highlights the second-to-last weekend of regular season action as district races begin to boil around the state, especially in Class A where two games pit ranked teams against each other.

All five No. 1 teams are in action, including Class 3A's Southlake Carroll, playing Decatur as it seeks its state-record 60th consecutive regular-season victory.

Reagan and LBJ, both of which have run-oriented offenses, have remarkably similar statistics:

-The Raiders average 381 yards per game; the Jaguars about 338. Of those, Reagan throws for 26.3 yards per game, LBJ for 25.9.

-LBJ's Shon Mitchell leads the city with 1,308 yards rushing; Reagan's Anthony McGinnis is third with 950.

-LBJ allows 147 yards per game; Reagan about 188.

"You couldn't pick two teams that are more similar than us," Ceder said.

Another tight 4A game should be in Carthage, where the No. 1 Bulldogs take on district-foe Kilgore (7-1), also nicknamed the Bulldogs. Kilgore has recorded consecutive shutouts.

In other 4A action, No. 2 Austin Westlake plays Bastrop, No. 3 Waxahachie faces Red Oak and running back Damion Witherspoon, who has rushed for 1,289 yards this season.

Defending champion A&M Consolidated, ranked fourth, travels to Waller, No. 6 Gregory-Portland plays Corpus Christi Tutuoso-Midway, No. 7 Bay City takes on Wharton, No. 8 West Orange-Stark against Bridge City and No. 9 New Braunfels meets Uvalde.

But the most-watched outcome could come from Houston Davis' game against Houston Kashmere, where the Panthers could tie Iberia, Mo.'s national record of 72 consecutive regular-season losses suffered from 1965-74.

Class 5A's top-ranked Jersey Village plays Houston Langham Creek and No. 2 Dallas Kimball takes on Dallas Sunset.

Two crucial district games pit No. 3 Odessa Permian vs. Abilene Cooper, and No. 4 Temple at Killeen Ellison.

Also, No. 5 Converse Judson plays San Antonio Lee, No. 6 Beaumont West Brook takes on Baytown Sterling, No. 7 El Paso Irvin meets El Paso Austin, No. 9 Spring Westfield plays host to Houston Klein Oak and No. 10 Houston Yates is against Houston Milby.

In Class A, No. 1 Bartlett is at Burton, No. 2 Runge plays Flatonia, No. 3 Iola plays Bremond and No. 4 Overton meets Karnack.

Spikers blank Harvesters, will play Lamesa Tuesday

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team had no trouble with Pampa, winning 15-0, 15-0 in the regular season finale Thursday in Pampa.

Hereford finishes district play with an 8-2 record, and will go into the playoffs with a 18-9 record. The Herd will meet Lamesa in the first round at 7:30 Tuesday at Coronado High School in Lubbock. Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for adults.

Lamesa beat Snyder 15-11, 15-8 Thursday to finish up an undefeated (6-0) run through District 2-4A. Lamesa is 19-6 overall.

Hereford finished off Pampa quickly, using seven rotations in the first game and only five in the second game.

"We had no attack errors, and we had no service receive errors--in fact, we only received serve eight times," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said.

Kara Sandoval had four aces to highlight her nine points on 10 good serves. Robyn Watts led the team with six kills.

The junior varsity team beat Pampa 15-7, 15-10, to finish the season with a 15-7 record.

Road to Cotton Bowl runs through Lubbock

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

The road to the Cotton Bowl could run through Austin for Texas A&M if the No. 5 Aggies and the No. 25 Texas Longhorns can remain tied in SWC play until their Thanksgiving Day game.

But first, it must go through Lubbock and Dallas on Saturday when Texas plays at Texas Tech and Texas A&M meets Southern Methodist in the Cotton Bowl.

Houston, which lost a 45-38 thriller to the Longhorns last week, hosts Texas Christian in the other league game. Baylor and Rice have open dates.

Texas coach John Mackovic and Texas A&M's R.C. Slocum are far more concerned about Saturday's foes than they are their season finale in Memorial Stadium.

"This is the best team (coach Tom) Rossley has had at SMU," Slocum said.

"They are a team that's getting better and since there have been comments that this is their bowl game, we know we'll get their best shot."

Mackovic isn't fooled by the Red Raiders' misfires after high promise in preseason.

"Their offense probably will give us a good test," Mackovic said. "It will be more like Syracuse, coming at you in different directions and they have the speed receiver."

Texas (4-2, 2-0) is a 2 1/2 point favorite over the Red Raiders (3-4, 2-1); Texas A&M (7-0, 3-0) ranks a 23-point favorite over SMU (3-4, 1-3) and Houston (2-4, 0-2) has a 24-point edge over TCU (1-5-1, 0-3).

Tech coach Spike Dykes expects quarterback Robert Hall and safety

Tracy Saul to be ready for the Longhorns. Both had to leave last week's victory over SMU because of injuries.

Saul has intercepted 24 passes for 425 yards in returns in his collegiate career. His interceptions rank No. 4 on the NCAA all-time list and his return yards are No. 6.

Dykes says he's impressed with Texas' emerging offense under senior quarterback Peter Gardere.

"I've always been a Peter Gardere fan," Dykes said. "He took them to the Cotton Bowl two years ago.

Offensively, they are prolific. They're averaging 400 yards a game and they've won four in a row."

Jimmy Klingler will start at quarterback for Houston ahead of co-starter Donald Douglas, hobbled by strained arches in his feet. Klingler will direct the nation's No. 1 passing attack against the Horned Frogs defense, which ranked 102nd in the nation in pass defense.

"It will be one of those deals," Houston coach John Jenkins said.

"With TCU being one of the top teams in the country in rushing defense might force us to throw the ball more than we would have liked," Jenkins joked.

TCU coach Pat Sullivan says the Horned Frogs have a chance to win but injuries have eroded team depth.

"We are running out of depth," Sullivan said. "But I like the way our kids have fought and scratched. We just have to get our kids ready to play to the best of their ability."

Raiders, 'Horns will be up for game

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas coach John Mackovic and Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes agree that their players should have no trouble getting up for Saturday's game.

"I think this is the biggest game in the conference this week," said Mackovic, whose 25th-ranked Longhorns are 4-2 overall and 2-0 in the Southwest Conference.

"You have two of the top three teams in the conference going head-to-head. I expect Tech to throw everything at us they can think of."

For Dykes, whose Red Raiders are 3-4 and 2-1 in the SWC, a loss to Texas would likely mean falling out of the conference race. Kickoff is scheduled for 12:10 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock.

"If you can't get up for this game, you don't have a pulse," Dykes said. "We have got to go out and fire every shot."

Both teams rely heavily on a prolific offense, and both are desperately trying to tighten up on defense.

"If you look at total defense for the season, we are last in the conference and that is different for the University of Texas," Mackovic said. "We must shore it up and put some heat on Tech's quarterback, and contain the running game."

Texas gave up more than 700 yards to Houston last week in a 45-38 victory.

"That's probably bad news for us because they will have everything repaired this week," Dykes said.

The Red Raiders are coming off a 39-25 victory against SMU, in which Tech had three turnovers result in touchdowns for the Mustangs. Starting quarterback Robert Hall and All-Southwest Conference safety Tracy Saul were also injured in the game but are expected to play Saturday.

Moeller doesn't want attention

By The Associated Press

Let's see, No. 1 is Miami, No. 2 is Washington, No. 3 is ...

With all the attention focused on the Hurricanes and Huskies, it seems like the other ranked teams have been pretty much ignored.

That's fine with Gary Moeller, coach of third-ranked Michigan, who prefers not to have the distractions of the higher-ranked programs - in this case, the two higher-ranked programs.

Moeller even sees trouble in the Wolverines' bid for a Big Ten-record 18th straight victory when they play at Purdue on Saturday.

"I'm always concerned," Moeller said Thursday. "When people keep telling you how good you are, you try to block that out."

He's had much to block out, since Michigan has been very, very good.

In other Top 25 games, it's West Virginia at No. 1 Miami; No. 15 Stanford at No. 2 Washington; No. 5 Texas A&M at Southern Methodist; No. 6 Florida State at No. 23 Virginia; No. 7 Georgia vs. No. 20 Florida at Jacksonville, Fla.; No. 10 Notre Dame vs. Navy at East Rutherford, N.J.; Temple at No. 11 Boston College; Pittsburgh at No. 12 Syracuse; No. 13 Southern Cal at Arizona State; No. 14 Penn State at Brigham Young; No. 16 Tennessee at South Carolina; New Mexico State at No. 17 Arizona; Oklahoma State at No. 18 Kansas; Oregon at No. 19 Washington State; No. 22 North Carolina at Maryland; No. 24 Mississippi State at Kentucky; and No. 25 Texas at Texas Tech.

No. 4 Alabama and No. 21 North Carolina State don't play this week.

After an opening - and much-maligned - tie with Notre Dame, the Wolverines (6-0-1) have beaten their next six opponents by an average score of 34-10. They are averaging 493 yards per game, led by quarterback Elvis Grbac, wide receiver Derrick Alexander and tailback Tyrone Wheatley.

Grbac became the school's all-time leader in passing yards last week against Minnesota. The senior has 5,614 yards, surpassing the 5,449 of the Chicago Bears' Jim Harbaugh.

"It's a great accomplishment for myself," Grbac said. "I really couldn't have done it without the players I've played with these last five seasons."

Two of the best he's played with have to be Alexander and Wheatley.

Alexander caught four touchdowns against the Gophers, the first in Michigan history to accomplish that. He has caught 33 passes for 480 yards and eight touchdowns this season, bringing his career totals to 73 receptions for 1,096 yards and 15 TDs.

Wheatley is the Wolverines' top rusher with 750 yards and a 7.4 average, which would be the best in school history if he maintains it for the season.

With a victory, Michigan will top the conference streak of 17 straight wins it shares with Ohio State.

Meanwhile, Miami and Washington bring impressive streaks to games against difficult opponents.

The Hurricanes (7-0), who face West Virginia, have won 25 straight overall and 49 in a row at the Orange Bowl.

Washington (7-0) goes for its 22nd consecutive victory when it plays No. 15 Stanford (6-2) at Husky Stadium.

Stanford coach Bill Walsh was 0-2 against Washington in his first stint as Cardinal head coach in 1977-78. He doesn't think the task will be any easier this time against Don James' team.

"From a talent standpoint, it's loaded in Washington's favor," Walsh said. "I don't see us having any coaching edge whatsoever, either."

Elsewhere, sixth-ranked Florida State (6-1-0) can win its first Atlantic Coast Conference championship in its first year as a member by beating No. 23 Virginia. The Seminoles, at 6-0, are the only undefeated team in the ACC.

The Cavaliers will again be without star running back Terry Kirby, out since he fractured his left shoulder blade Oct. 10 against Clemson.

No. 7 Georgia and No. 20 Florida renew their rivalry Saturday with much on the line.

The Bulldogs (7-1, 5-1 SEC) are 1 game ahead of the Gators (4-2, 3-2) in the Southeastern Conference East Division. A loss would all but eliminate Florida from hopes of reaching the Conference's first-ever championship game.

Georgia features Garrison Hearst, the star tailback who leads the country with 1,232 rushing yards.

Scottish Chieftain, the winner of the 1897 Belmont Stakes, is the only Montana-bred ever to win that event.

Rangers won't protect Franco

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers will leave Julio Franco, the 1991 American League batting champion, unprotected in baseball's upcoming expansion draft for the Colorado Rockies and Florida Marlins, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying that the Rangers are willing to gamble that Franco's sore knee, his $2.75 million contract and the fact that he will be a free agent at the end of the season will keep him from being selected in the first round.

The team will have to turn in their list of unprotected players by Nov. 9 for the Nov. 17 draft.

Franco batted .341 in 1991, but a deep bruise on his right kneecap at patella tendinitis kept him on the disabled list for much of the past season. He batted .234 in only 107 at-bats.

The newspaper said the Rangers will protect pitcher Kevin Brown, Terry Burrows, Hector Fajardo, Roger Pavlik, Nolan Ryan, Kenny Rogers, Dan Smith and Dan Whiteside. They will also protect Jose Canseco, Juan Gonzalez, David Hulse, Jose Oliva, Rafael Palmeiro, Dean Palmer and Ivan Rodriguez.

In addition to Franco, other players who will not be protected included pitchers Brian Bohanon and Scott Chiampanino. Others left off the protected list will be Monty Farris, Jeff Frye, Jeff Huson, Rob Maurer, Geno Petralli and Kevin Reimer, according to the newspaper.

O'Donnell stays even with Moon in win column

PITTSBURGH (AP) - He's not a recognizable household name like Jim Kelly, Joe Montana or John Elway. Still, it will be easy to spot Neil O'Donnell during Sunday's Houston Oilers-Steelers game. He's the quarterback who's not Warren Moon.

O'Donnell isn't even close to being the rapid-fire, big-play, big-gun weapon that Moon is for the Oilers; that's a given, but the proof is in the numbers.

Moon is 165 of 251 for 2,024 yards and 16 touchdowns and is just 297 yards away from becoming the 14th player in NFL history to pass for 30,000 yards. The Oilers have made the playoffs behind Moon the last five seasons and are still considered a team capable of reaching the Super Bowl.

O'Donnell? His statistics are mostly pedestrian by NFL standards, in part because the Steelers - thanks to Barry Foster - are running the ball better than they have since Franco Harris was peeling off 100-yard games.

O'Donnell is 119 of 201 for 1,489 yards and 7 touchdowns - not even half as many TDs as Moon - and his inability to throw the home-run ball means the Steelers rarely run deep pass routes.

But there's one very important statistic in which Moon, a Pro

Bowler, and O'Donnell, a first-year starter, are all even: won-lost record. Both are 5-2, and they'll duel Sunday in Three Rivers Stadium for the AFC Central Division lead.

Oilers vs. Steelers. Moon vs. O'Donnell. Not the mismatch many would have figured two months ago. Maybe O'Donnell doesn't get the respect of a Moon, and maybe he doesn't deserve it, but he could care less as long as the Steelers beat Houston again to take sole possession of the division lead.

"We're 5-2, and we just have to keep winning games," O'Donnell said. "If we keep winning, the respect will come."

Respect is something the Steelers don't think they got after upsetting the Oilers 29-24 in Houston on Sept. 6. Several quotes by wide receiver Haywood Jeffries and defensive tackle Doug Smith are circled on a bulletin board in the Steelers' locker room.

"We kept shoving it down their throats," Jeffries said. "We moved the ball. They couldn't stop us. We stopped ourselves."

Moon was 29 of 45 for 333 yards as the Oilers but threw five interceptions as the Steelers overcame a 14-0 deficit with the help of a fake punt and two reverses.

"We should have known they couldn't beat us straight up," Smith said. "They had to trick us to beat us."

The Steelers were hardly surprised with the Oilers' reaction.

"Not many people respect us, anyway," cornerback D.J. Johnson said. "It's not just the Oilers. I don't think we're getting respect anywhere, but that's no big deal. You don't go out there and demand respect. You just go out there and play ball and hope you get it."

Pittsburgh's upset in Houston - the Steelers' fourth win over the Oilers in six games - certainly caught the Oilers' attention. The Steelers need not worry that the Oilers will bring a cocky, show-me attitude to town.

The Steelers lead the NFL with 15 interceptions and they've intercepted Moon 15 times in the last four Pittsburgh-Houston games. The Oilers know it, and they know they must avoid turnovers or they'll get swept in the season series for the first time since 1986.

"As much trash as I'd like to talk about their defensive backs, I respect them more than I like to talk about," Jeffries said. "They play very hard and aggressive and they have a lot of talent as a group."

"We have the utmost respect for them," defensive end William Fuller said.

Especially when they play in Three Rivers, where the Oilers haven't won since 1989.

"It's very difficult to win in Pittsburgh," Jeffries said. "They don't have to depend on their defense as much ... it's their offense that surprises me. They are able to score with us, not just field goals but touchdowns, and that worries us a little bit."

First place on line for Pokes, Oilers

By The Associated Press

First place is the prize in three NFL games this weekend, with the standings providing an extra dimension in showdowns at Pittsburgh and Dallas on Sunday and at Chicago Monday night.

The Steelers and Houston Oilers face off in Pittsburgh, tied for the AFC Central lead at 5-2, a game in front of Cleveland. Dallas (6-1) holds a one-game lead over visiting Philadelphia (5-2) in the NFC East, with Washington also a game back. And Minnesota (5-2) comes into Chicago Monday night a game up on the Bears (4-3) in the NFC West.

In each case, the games are rematches of earlier encounters. The Eagles beat Dallas 31-7 and Pittsburgh took the Oilers 29-24. More memorable was Minnesota's 21-20 victory over Chicago, achieved with three touchdowns in the fourth quarter that sent Bears coach Mike Ditka into a sideline frenzy.

Sunday's other games have Green Bay at Detroit; the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta; Miami at the New York Jets; New England at Buffalo; Tampa Bay is New Orleans; Cleveland at Cincinnati; Indianapolis at San Diego; San Francisco at Phoenix; and the New York Giants at Washington in the Sunday night game.

Denver, Kansas City, Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle have the weekend off.

Houston arrives in Pittsburgh in a decidedly unpleasant mood. The Oilers are convinced they outplayed the Steelers in their first encounter, even if they didn't outscore them.

"They didn't stop us," Oilers wide receiver Haywood Jeffries said. "Anybody that was really watching that game would have seen we were really moving the ball on the Steelers. I really don't think they outplayed us at all."

Houston was shortcircuited because Warren Moon threw five interceptions. He's been intercepted 15 times in his last four games against the Steelers and is looking for some retribution.

"It's a game for me to get that little monkey off my back," Moon said.

Pittsburgh wiped out a two-touchdown deficit in their first meeting with the help of a fake punt and two reverses.

"They couldn't beat us straight up," defensive tackle Doug Smith said. "They had to trick us to beat us."

Philadelphia dominated its first game with Dallas, but has struggled since then, losing in Kansas City and Washington and then barely surviving against 1-6 Phoenix at home.

After scoring 31 points against the Cowboys, the Eagle attack has all but disappeared, producing just 36 points in the next three games and allowing Dallas to take over first place in the division.

"They are going to come in here real mad because of the way they've been playing recently," Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin said. "This is their big chance to get back in the race and they know it. I'd much rather have them strolling into Texas Stadium with four or five wins than two losses over the last three weeks like they have."

Now, if the Oilers and Eagles figure to be in an ornery mood, how chipper do you think Ditka is going to be when he sees the Vikings Monday night?

It was against Minnesota that the Bears blew a 20-0 fourth-quarter lead, part of it on an interception touchdown by Todd Scott when Jim Harbaugh called an audible that sent Ditka into a tantrum.

Houston highway gets Ryan's name

ALVIN, Texas (AP) - A man known as one of the world's fastest hurlers now has an expressway named after him.

Hometown boy Nolan Ryan, known as the Alvin Express, climbed into a cherry picker Thursday to unveil a big green highway sign, formally denoting a portion of Texas

Highway 288 the "Nolan Ryan Expressway."

"It is indeed an honor," said Ryan, who holds major league records with seven no-hitters and 5,668 strikeouts in a career that began in 1966. "It is going to be exciting to drive down 288 and see this sign."

The four-lane freeway to carry the name of Texas' most famous baseball player stretches for about 30 miles from the Harris-Brazoria counties line south of Houston to Freeport.

"This is a wonderful tribute to Nolan Ryan, not only for his baseball ability but also as a role model for young people," Jim Nitsch, deputy district engineer for the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation, said.

The city council in Alvin, where Ryan and his family live, and the Brazoria County commissioners asked that the Texas Legislature designate the freeway in honor of their most famous native son. The Legislature approved the highway name in 1991 and it took until Thursday to get the first of the signs posted.

"This is really special," said Ryan, whose on-the-field accomplishments likely will put him in baseball's Hall of Fame.

Asked if the designation now would allow him to travel the road as fast as his 100 mph fastball, he laughed, adding, "I don't think so."

But he admitted that during his nine-year stint with the Houston Astros beginning in 1980, he had been pulled over several times by police patrolling for speeders. The highway, the main route between the Astrodome and Ryan's home, is renowned in the Houston area as a speed trap.

"I think the last time I got off with just a warning," Ryan chuckled.

The unpretentious Ryan, who will start his 26th major league season next spring when he returns to the Texas Rangers for a fifth year, pulled up to the highway interchange in his pickup truck accompanied by his wife, Ruth.

"I am real proud," she said. "I'm just thrilled. Of course, we travel this road every day."

Local officials raised the nearly $5,000 to pay for the two signs. The second marker will be at the other end of the freeway at Freeport.

Bonds heads AP all-stars

NEW YORK (AP) - Barry Bonds and Kirby Puckett, two of the off-season's most sought after free agents, head the 1992 Associated Press all-star team.

Puckett and Bonds are joined in the outfield by Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke.

Bonds, a leading candidate to win the National League MVP, hit .311 for Pittsburgh with 34 homers and 103 RBIs. While many expect Puckett to remain with Minnesota, it seems unlikely Bonds will be back in Pittsburgh.

"My mind is open, I don't close the door to anything" Bonds said. "I don't really want to get involved in the negotiations. My agent will let me know what is going on."

Oakland's Mark McGwire, who hit 42 home runs, was elected at first base and was joined in the infield by Toronto's Roberto Alomar at second base, Cincinnati's Barry Larkin at shortstop and San Diego's Gary Sheffield at third base. Sheffield surprised everyone by hitting .330 with 33 homers and 100 RBIs after being acquired by the Padres during spring training from Milwaukee.

Philadelphia's Darren Daulton, who hit 27 homers with 109 RBIs, was a landslide winner at catcher. Daulton received 176 votes compared to 12 for Minnesota's Brian Harper.

With 207 votes, Atlanta's Tom Glavine was selected the left-handed starting pitcher and Greg Maddux (115 votes) was voted the right-handed starter. Glavine finished 20-8 with a 2.76 ERA, while Maddux came on strong in the second half for the Chicago Cubs and finished the season 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA.

The top vote-getter was Oakland reliever Dennis Eckersley with 222. Eckersley, who struggled in the playoffs against Toronto, led the major leagues with 51 saves.

Dave Winfield, the hero of Toronto's World Series victory against Atlanta, led all designated hitters with 134 votes.

In the decisive sixth game of the Series, the 41-year-old Winfield hit a two-run double in the top of the 11th inning as the Blue Jays beat the Braves 4-3. During the season, Winfield hit .290 with 26 homers and 108 RBIs.

Winfield was the oldest player in major league history to drive in 100 or more runs, and the oldest to hit a home run during the postseason.

Many, including those in the New York Yankees' front office, figured Winfield was finished after sitting out the entire 1989 season following back surgery.

Merrill has seen plenty in 16 years as umpire

By JOHNNY GREEN
Texarkana Gazette

HOOKS, Texas (AP) - The good, the bad, the ugly. Durwood Merrill has seen it all in 16 years of major league umpiring.

In a career spanning parts of three decades, Merrill has befriended many of baseball's elite, battled players and managers alike, and watched our National Pastime change over the years to the point of becoming today a business rather than a sport.

Among Merrill's first-hand experiences include witnessing Reggie Jackson's 500th home run, Don Sutton's 300th victory and Nolan Ryan's sixth no-hitter at Oakland in 1990, and working home plate during Jack Morris' no-hitter against the White Sox on national TV in 1984.

But no single act impressed Merrill more than George Brett's four-hit effort against the Angels last month that put the future Kansas City Royals Hall of Famer over 3,000 hits in his career.

"That was probably the biggest thrill I've ever had in my career," Merrill said. "It was the third game of the series and George didn't play in the first two because he couldn't lift his shoulder. He came in our dressing room before the game and I asked him if he was going to play.

"He told me he had flown 25 people in from Kansas City for the series and when he didn't play the first night, they all went across the street to a bar and watched the Chiefs play on television. Then they stayed in their hotel rooms the next night.

"He said they were in the ballpark that night and he couldn't even hit the ball off a tee. But he got four straight singles and when he got to first base, he saluted me."

Of all the players who have crossed his path, Merrill feels closest to Brett and Jackson. "I guess George and Reggie are my favorites," he said. "They're so professional and they're such good players. Tommy John also used to hang out around our dressing rooms. They're friendly with us, but they know they're not going to get any breaks from us when the game starts. And they don't expect it."

Nothing has changed more in baseball over the years than salaries - both for umpires and players. When Merrill broke in in 1977, he drew a base salary of $15,500, and he recalled an incident that pointed out just how underpaid he was.

"We were in Yankee Stadium late in the season and I had Jim Palmer against Catfish Hunter," he said. "Before the game I was just staring at my locker when I overheard my crew chief, Marty Springstead, talking to Dick Butler, our supervisor of umpires. Marty said 'Now, Dick isn't that something. Here it is a critical, critical game, and we've got basically a rookie umpire that's going to work it and this poor guy's got to do it for $15,500.'"

Merrill got through that game without incident, but over the next few years he would have his share of run-ins with Baltimore's Earl Weaver and the Yankees' Billy Martin, the two toughest managers he's seen in his career. The toughest? No contest - Martin.

"Earl would come out at you and he might even snipe you in the newspapers," Merrill said, "but he wasn't vicious. But Billy Martin would never, ever forget. If he thought you messed up in 1977 and it was 1981, he remembered. He was the kind of guy that if before a game somebody told him the umpire's mother was dying, but could be saved by surgery if she had $50,000, he would send a check over to him (the umpire). There's no doubt in my mind that he would do that.

"But, if a call went against Billy in the ninth inning of the game, he would be the first one up on the dugout steps hollering 'I hope she dies.' That's Billy Martin. He was a man who wanted you to cheat for him and couldn't believe you wouldn't."

As far as baseball's future, Merrill sees more changes. "In fact, I think there will be more changes in the next five years than ever before," he said. "I think within five years there will be major league umpires, not American or National League, and games will be regionalized. Let's take where I live (Hooks, Texas). I could go to Dallas, Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis, Atlanta and Miami. I could work two months and never have to go to Seattle, Los Angeles or New York. The money they would save in air travel would be tremendous."

Merrill also sees a different playoff format in the future. "I think you will see an NBA or NHL-type playoff where probably the first four teams in each division will make the playoffs," he said. "They say they are going to have to raise more revenue for salaries and this will create fan interest. That's one reason they (the owners) wanted (former commissioner) Fay Vincent out of there because he was so traditional. I believe this will happen before I retire."

There are rumors a lockout of players next spring while the owners and players' union hammer out a basic agreement, but Merrill doesn't think it will happen. "There are several reasons why I don't think there will be a lockout," he said. "It's the last year of the (CBS) TV contract and it's the last big money from TV for the owners. I also think when they let Vincent go, it put a bad taste in people's mouths and the owners will try to stay away from alienating fans even more. I don't think they can see any way a lockout would be beneficial. Then there's Miami and Colorado. Here they've got all the expense and overhead and they don't have anything coming in. A lockout will kill them."

And the eventual solution? "I see the (player) salaries falling," Merrill said. "I think you'll see a (Wade) Boggs, a (Ricky) Henderson, a (Ruben) Sierra or a (Jose) Canseco - and I just use them as examples - being released. Then they go to the highest bidders, who get them for less than what they were offered by their original teams. Now that's not collusion. They (the owners) got whipped on collusion. I think those are going to be some of the changes."

Merrill hopes to be around to see those changes. "Right now I'm going to shoot for four more years, then take a long, hard look at it," he said. "It seems like at the end of the year I feel like I never want to see it again, but in January when the sun comes out and the old bones get to feeling pretty good, you get to wanting to go south again."

Coach's death dashes Merkel's hopes

DALLAS (AP) - The arrival of Troy Kennedy as Merkel's new head football coach triggered hopes for turning around a program that hasn't won consistently since the early 1960s.

But when Kennedy died Aug. 10 of a heart attack suffered about an hour into his first practice, he took with him dreams of the school's first playoff appearance in 28 years.

Instead of a return to glory, the Badgers have endured a season of agony. They've been outscored 323-6 in six games - all losses - including a season-worst 65-0 defeat by district foe Eastland last weekend.

"The fact is, we're on the field and we're not quitting," says Robert Perkins, Kennedy's replacement. "We're a young, young ballclub that hasn't known the tradition of winning so the big thing for us is attitude."

"I think we can start some tradition around this place, but it's going to take time."

The team is down to about 40 players, 25 fewer than attended that devastating practice. Perkins said several players "said it was just too hard to come back to that same football field." The remaining Badgers wear black stickers of the letter K in memory of Kennedy.

It hasn't been any easier for Perkins, one of two assistants who administered CPR on Kennedy until paramedics arrived.

Perkins, 28, left his job as an assistant coach at 4A's Justin Northwest for the opportunity to work with Kennedy, hoping to gain experience and glean knowledge he could use one day as a head coach.

Instead, the tutoring session lasted only two memorable months.

"He was just one of those guys who had a lot of football knowledge," Perkins said. "We spent every day from the first of June until August visiting about his program."

"He sat you down and taught you what you needed to know. He taught us a lot, but I think there was a lot more up in his head that we could've learned."

Perkins missed the chance to hear Kennedy give a pre-game pep talk or a halftime tongue-lashing. He never got to see the players dump Gatorade over the coach's head after a big victory. He expected to see it all.

"Coach Kennedy really felt he could win wherever he went," Perkins said. "That may sound conceited, but I think he honestly believed he could win here."

Merkel isn't used to winning. Kennedy was. In 13 years at Roscoe and Rankin, he won 122 games and went to the playoffs nine times. Followers aren't sure, but they think the last winning season at Merkel was some time in the early 1980s.

Friends say Kennedy took the job at Merkel because he saw the chance to turn around a program filled with incoming freshman and promising sophomores.

One of his first goals was to convince everyone they could win. That new mind-set would begin with the players and extend through the school and the community.

"People were excited about the upcoming season, much more than usual. They were expecting good things to happen," said Merkel principal Gaylon Brnovak, who spent two years as an assistant to Kennedy in the late 1970s and recommended him for the Merkel job.

His wife, Rhudie, and 11-year-old Trent moved to Breckenridge about a month ago to be near her family. A 21-year-old daughter, Callie, is a senior at Angelo State University.

Kirk puts up a strong front, but there's no mistaking the void caused by the loss of his friend, father and the only coach he had until this year, his freshman season at McMurry.

"Since he was a strict coach and I was his son, people thought we didn't talk much. But we were real close. Everywhere we went we talked football," he said, adding that he expects to follow his father as a coach.

THE LOWLY MULE

THE LOWLY MULE WAS HIGHLY PRIZED BY KINGS, WARRIORS, AND THE POPULACE. IT WAS USED BY THE ISRAELITE MEN-OF-ARMS AS A RIDING ANIMAL WHEN GOING OUT TO MEET THE FOE. IN FACT THE FIRST MENTION OF A MULE IN THE BIBLE IS IN II SAMUEL (13:29) WHEN ABSALOM MURDERS HIS BROTHER AND ALL THE PRINCES AROSE, AND EVERY MAN GOT HIM UPON HIS MULE, AND FLED. THE NEXT MENTION OF THE MULE IS IN II SAMUEL (18:9) WHEN THE SAME ABSALOM GOES TO HIS DEATH RIDING UPON A MULE. LEGAL NOTICES

ROBERT MCFARLIN HUGHES has made application with the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission for a WINE ONLY PACKAGE STORE PERMIT to be located at 203 B SOUTH 25 MILE AVENUE City of Hereford, county of Deaf Smith, and operated under the trade name of COUNTRY STORE.

Why They're Flunking French ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Language learning is easier in childhood because the human brain is "primed" for it at that stage of development, says Elissa Newport, a psycholinguist at the University of Rochester.

Though children easily assimilate the language's building blocks of syntax and grammar, individuals past puberty rarely, if ever, achieve the same degree of fluency, she says.

Newport believes that the difficulty which people past their childhood have in mastering a new language is strong evidence that biological development influences learning in humans, just as it does in many non-human species.

Individuals with disabilities are people too—they just may have to do certain things a slightly different way.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I've been reading about dishes, decanters and such that are lead crystal. Is it harmful to leave your liquor or brandy in these lead decanters? How long is it safe?

I would appreciate any information you have about this. — Marie Compton, Houston, Texas

A. According to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), lead crystalware should not be used to store food or beverages for extended periods of time.

If you must use your lead crystal for a special occasion, use it at your own discretion, but use it quickly. Don't let food or beverages linger in the lead-crystal container.

Studies show that small amounts of lead are leached from lead crystalware within minutes of contact, reaching higher levels after longer periods of time.

One alternative you may choose is to fill your lead-crystal decanters with cola, root beer or soda for display only.

For more information, contact your local Food and Drug Administration. They will be happy to answer any other questions you may have. — Heloise

NEWSPAPER MEMENTO

Dear Heloise: When I find pictures of friends or family members or articles about them in the newspaper, I like to clip the article and present it to the "celebrity."

I laminate the clipping on both sides with clear adhesive-backed plastic and trim the edges. This creates a well-preserved, long-lasting memento. — Ann Vander Molen, Jenison, Mich.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 512-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

December 17 has been declared Wright Brothers Day to commemorate their first successful flight.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

A College Without Degrees SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) - The "electoral college" was created in the English language in 1691.

Originally it meant a body of princes (electors) who elected the emperor of Germany, according to dictionary sources. In the American democratic system, the electoral college is made up of people elected from each state to cast the electoral votes of that state for the positions of president and vice president.

An "elector" - one qualified or entitled to vote in an election - first appeared in the 15th century. Both "electorate" (a body of people entitled to vote) and "electoral" (relating to an elector or to an election) were first used in 1675.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read this article about Halloween safety in the Chicago Tribune last year. I thought it was something your readers might find useful. Please print it.-- Chicago Ann Fan

DEAR FAN: Thanks for sending it on. Here it is:

Worry less about Jason and Freddie this Halloween and give more thought to the actual dangers this holiday poses to children, such as busy streets, darkness, costumes catching fire from pumpkin candles and real-life weirdos who may be roaming the streets.

That's the word from child advocates and safety experts. Tops on their safety lists: alternative to trick-or-treating such as home parties, simulated haunted houses or staying at home and watching a scary movie with some school friends on a sleep-over.

If the children are determined to hit the streets for treats, here are some safety tips from the professionals.

Suggestions from the National PTA, based in Chicago:

1. Always have an adult go with children. They should stop only at houses that are well-lit, and preferably only at houses of people they know.
2. Older children should travel in groups, never alone. They must never accept an invitation to enter a home or apartment. Set a time for returning home and be firm about it.
3. Costumes should be flame-resistant, short enough so kids don't trip and in bright colors or marked with reflector tape.
4. Makeup is better than a mask--it doesn't restrict breathing or vision.
5. Affix name, address and phone number to the inside of young children's costumes in case they get lost.
6. Avoid toy weapons, especially guns, that could be mistaken for the real thing.

From Wyler Children's Hospital at the University of Chicago:

1. Excited children who dart into the street are often hit by cars on Halloween. Emphasize the importance of looking both ways before crossing the street. Insist that your children use sidewalks and crosswalks.
2. Warn kids not to eat any treats until they get home and have them inspected by an adult. Packaged candy is usually the safest. Inspect the wrapping to make sure it has not been opened.
3. Slice fruit or candy to check for foreign objects.

From the National Safe Kids Campaign in Washington, D.C.:

1. Falls are the leading cause of injury on Halloween. Give children flashlights so they can see and be seen. Toy swords or knives should be soft and flexible. Children should stay on the sidewalks and not cut across yards.
2. Affix reflector tape to treat bags.
3. Keep your lawn, steps and porch clear of objects a child might stumble over.

From Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh:

1. At a party, guard against candy overload by serving popcorn, pretzels, fruit, gelatin or home-made cookies.
2. Give children stickers, pretty pencils, crayons and coloring books as alternatives to candy.
3. An alcohol problem? HOW can you help yourself for someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

William Howard Taft started a presidential custom when he threw out the first "first ball" at the opening of baseball's 1910 major league season in a game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Keep Halloween safe

"Trick or Treat" are familiar words that will soon usher in another halloween season. Halloween is a time when children will be distracted by the excitement of the season, a time when parents should take steps to ensure their children's safety by instructing them in the do's and don'ts of Halloween.

Major Vernon Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, says, "It's a good idea to insure costumes fit well, not too tight or too loose, causing a child to trip and fall. Painting the child's face with makeup is preferable to wearing a mask, which obstructs vision. Make sure all costumes are made of non-flammable material, especially wigs and masks. Young children should always be accompanied by an adult. If you do not accompany your child, instruct him to go out with a group and not to stop at homes which are dark. Costumes should be reflective or a piece of reflective tape placed on the costume and bags. Everyone should carry a flashlight."

Major Cawthon went on to say that all candy should be taken home and checked prior to anything being eaten and if a suspicious treat is found contact the police. For those who plan to participate in handing out treats, turn on your porch light to let children know they are welcome and remove obstacles from the front yard that could cause a child to trip and fall. Keep lighted jack-o-lanterns or candles away from steps or the front door where a child's costume could be ignited by a flame.

Major Cawthon advises motorists traveling into residential areas, to drive with extreme caution and be watchful of children darting into the street.

How To Conserve Water

WASHINGTON (AP) - Since Americans use more water per capita than any other nation, sponsors of National Geography Awareness Week (Nov. 15-21) offer some suggestions for saving water and money:

- Install water-saving devices in your home. (Low-flow showerheads, faucet aerators and toilet dams are available in hardware stores.)
- While waiting for tap water to warm up or cool down, save the running water for other uses.
- Wait until your washing machine and dishwasher are full before running them.
- Repair leaky pipes, faucets, showerheads, or toilets in your home. (Even the smallest leaks, over time, can add up to thousands of gallons of wasted water.)
- Use a basin or small plastic tub to rinse things like fruits and vegetables. Then recycle the water in the basin by using it to water plants.
