Greenawalt outlines tax

Hereford school superintendent Charles Greenawalt explained reasons for a tax increase for 1990-91 and the school district's budget during a speech to the Hereford Lions Club on Wednesday.

Greenawalt also addressed the Golden K Kiwanis on Tuesday and was to speak to the Noon Kiwanis today.

A hearing on the proposed tax rate of 91.43 cents per $100 will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the school administration building. The final tax rate and budget hearing will be held on August 31.

Greenawalt said the tax increase was necessitated because of new state laws that are attempting to "equalize" funds in school districts across the state.

A complicated formula was laid down in Senate Bill 1, the final product of six special legislative sessions after the state Supreme Court ruled the old method of funding schools was unconstitutionally disproportionate.

The bill stipulated that:
--To receive any state money, a district must have a tax rate of at least 54 cents per $100;

--To receive maximum state foundation money, the tax rate must be at least 70 cents per $100;

--To participate in what's called second-tier money, the tax levy has to be at least 91.08 cents per $100.

The tax rate must increase to 98 cents in 1991-92, $1.05 by 92-93, $1.12 by 1993-94, and $1.18 by 1994-95.

"If we do not increase our tax rate to 91.43 cents this year, there is no way we can be at $1.18 in 1994 (without threat of a tax rollback)," Greenawalt told the Lions. "If we're not at $1.18 by 1994, we are looking at a loss of at least $2 million a year in state aid."

Throwing more complications into the mix is that SB1 could be ruled unconstitutional later this year. The plaintiffs in Edgewood vs. Kirby, the case that led to the ruling on the old funding method, have filed against the new law. A ruling is expected on the constitutionality of SB1 is expected in October or November.

GREENAWALT

"At least if SB1 is ruled unconstitutional, the legislature will be back in regular session in January," Greenawalt said.

Besides allowing the district to receive near its maximum in state funds, the tax increase would allow for teacher pay increases and work to be done at Hereford High School.

The high school building, constructed in 1954, has substandard lighting in the hallways and most classrooms in the original section, and work must be done on the auditorium and other areas. State education officials, during an accreditation visit last year, cited the old section of the high school as one of the areas the school district must address.

The district plans to spend $300,000 a year for the next four years to repairs the high school.

Teacher pay was a huge concern, Greenawalt said.

Hereford lost 43 teachers after the 1989-90 school year, and many cited low pay as a reason for leaving. The Hereford district was among the lowest in the Panhandle area in supplements above the state base of $17,000 for new teachers, up to $28,400 for teachers with 27 to 30 years experience.

"It was very hard for us to compete (for teachers)," Greenawalt said. The Hereford school board, at its August 13 meeting, granted teachers and administrators an across the board pay increase, with most teachers and administrators getting a five percent, or more, raise.

The board has also hired at least one counselor for each school campus, so students from Kindergarten through high school have full-time access to a counselor.

"Very few school districts have that kind of commitment to our children, and I think that speaks well of the board and the community," Greenawalt said.

Greenawalt also told the Lions:

--HISD has to put in "very little" to the athletic program because of the success of the athletic teams and the support they receive from the community. "We'd even make some money if we'd ever get to the state championship football game," Greenawalt said. "And that's for the whole program. The support we get from the community at our football games means we can pay for all of the athletic programs."

--Schools will probably have to begin programs for "educationally disadvantaged" three-year-olds, but the HISD has jumped ahead of the rest of the state with a unique program that has five persons already going into homes to work with identified three-year-olds and their parents.

"We're working with the parents, because that's where the success will eventually be," Greenawalt said. "If we can teach the parents necessary skills, teach them how to work with their children, we will see the dropout rate drop tremendously. That will make it worthwhile."

--HISD has the fewest administrators of all Class 4A school districts in the state.

Ann: ads 'distorted'

AUSTIN (AP) - From their commercials to their records, the gubernatorial candidates are at odds.

Democrat Ann Richards' campaign said that Republican Clayton Williams' newest TV ad is "plagued by ... inaccuracies and distortions," and called on him to withdraw it.

Williams aides said the ad is "perfectly accurate," and called on Richards to open state Treasury books on deposits in shaky savings and loans.

The Republican criticized Richards on Wednesday for claiming her career was on the public record but not revealing details of millions of dollars in state deposits during her two terms as treasurer.

Williams distributed a "Missing Chapters" notebook that ridiculed Richards' claim that her career was an open book.

"During the campaign, the voters of Texas have watched Ms. Richards carefully and mysteriously avoid taking positions on issues, avoid revealing important documents relating to her early political career and cover up her record as state treasurer," the GOP campaign charged in a statement.

Williams' campaign manager Zack Dawd said State Depository Board records showed that Richards was authorized to place up to $147 million into savings and loans. But since some deposit records have been destroyed, "a cloud of doubt and suspicion has been raised concerning the specifics," he said.

"It's time for Ann Richards to tell the truth and publicly release records on each and every S&L deposit ... It's time for Richards to come clean and admit that they're pulling numbers out of thin air," he added.

Richards aides say nothing improper occurred and that the treasurer has earned millions more (See ADS, Page 10)

US will defy embassy order

By SIDNEY S. FEINGOLD
Associated Press Writer

The United States said today it is determined to keep its embassy in Kuwait open, even though Iraq has ordered all foreign missions in the conquered nation closed and suggested it will take strong steps to carry out its decree.

Meanwhile, more foreigners - Japanese, this time - were reported to have been moved from the emirate to the Iraqi capital of Baghdad. Thousands of foreigners, including about 3,000 Americans, are trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, and Iraq's Saddam Hussein has said they will serve as human shields against attack.

Three weeks after Iraq's lightning takeover of Kuwait, tensions were running high throughout the Mideast.

Israeli officials today urged citizens to stock up on food, tape their windows shut and mix a homemade antidote to defend against a possible Iraqi chemical attack.

Washington, which has deployed thousands of troops to the region, called reserves to duty and sent minesweepers to the Persian Gulf. The United States was also pressing Moscow to cooperate in isolating Saddam.

Also today, Saddam was to address an open letter to President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt, Iraqi media said. Egyptian troops have joined U.S. and other forces in the defense of Saudi Arabia.

A pair of United Nations envoys were wrapping up talks in Iraq today, but they apparently have received a cold reception. Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz told the two that the U.N. Security Council had become "an American tool," the Iraqi News Agency reported.

Jordan was still not complying with U.N. sanctions against Iraq. At the Jordanian border today, heavy two-way commercial traffic continued, reporters said.

Jordan, overburdened by thousands of people fleeing Iraq and Kuwait, had said it would close its border to foreigners today, but it was allowing thousands of refugees to cross over. Nearly all are Arabs.

Iraq has ordered the embassies in Kuwait to shut down on Friday, and the French daily newspaper Le Figaro today quoted Iraq's information minister as saying it would be considered an act of aggression to keep embassies open.

The United States said it would cut embassy staff but pledged to keep the outpost open. Britain, with 4,000 of its citizens stranded in Iraq and Kuwait, and other nations announced similar plans earlier. But Lebanon closed its embassy in Kuwait today.

ABC News, citing Iraqi sources in Baghdad, said troops would surround each diplomatic mission in Kuwait that remained open after the deadline. The unidentified sources said the troops may prevent food from going into the buildings, which would be "put under virtual siege."

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said today the United States and (See IRAQ, Page 10)

CRISIS IN THE GULF

Here, at a glance, are the latest developments in the Persian Gulf crisis:

Jordan closed its border with Iraq today, citing the refugee crush from the Persian Gulf crisis. King Hussein said 42,000 refugees entered Jordan on Wednesday - the greatest single-day total since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2. Only 67,000 of about 185,000 have moved on, he said.

The United Nations and Japan planned to aid Jordan in dealing with the refugees and offsetting the loss of vital trade with Iraq as a result of U.N. sanctions.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney planned to meet today with senior military officials before deciding how many reservists to call up. The call-up was announced Wednesday, the first since the Vietnam War.

About 40,000 Army, Navy and Air Force reservists are expected to be activated, although officials said the number could rise with developments in the Persian Gulf.

The State Department said the United States will defy Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's demand to close the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait by Friday. The embassy staff will be cut, however.

The key index on the Tokyo Stock Exchange took a nosedive for the second day in a row. The 225-share Nikkei today ended at 23,737.63, losing 1,473.28 points, or 5.84 percent. It was the Nikkei's fourth largest single-day drop. On Wednesday, it lost 1,086.93 points - the index's ninth-largest daily fall.

According to stock traders, higher oil prices triggered today's Nikkei decline. Crude oil futures on Wednesday soared above $30 a barrel for the first time in nearly five years, in reaction to military escalation in the gulf.

Ag exports hurt by US embargo

By The Associated Press

Texas agriculture experts say the U.S. embargo against Iraq has hurt grain producers, cutting out the state's No. 1 consumer of rice and millions of dollars in wheat sales.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said he will announce on Friday a detailed proposal for aiding commodity markets hurt by the embargo.

But commodity watchers remain skeptical.

"Basically it's hard to replace a market of that size," said Jim Willis, vice president of the Houston-based National Rice Council. "(Iraq) has been our largest buyer, averaging about 500,000 tons (nationally) a year over the past five years or so.

"It's a large market, it's a quality market. They buy the very long grain, the normally high-quality rice. And it's a cash market. They had been paying us back," Willis said.

"It was just what we wanted, the perfect scenario for what we produce," he said. "We are wondering now if we're ever going to get it back."

Texas was one of the nation's largest rice producers for Iraq with 20 percent of the product shipped there through the Port of Houston.

In 1989, exports shipped to Iraq through the Port of Houston included $127 million in wheat, $30 million in rice and smaller amounts of cooking oil, legumes and animal hides, totaling $228 million in exports to the country.

Rodney Mosier, spokesman for the Texas Wheat Producers Association, said his group also wants the U.S. government to help find new markets.

But he added that wheat growers' primary worry from the Middle East turmoil is increased fuel costs. Since the world wheat market is so large, loss of sales to Iraq affects wheat growers less than rice growers.

"We hate to lose a market, but so many other things are happening right now we are more concerned about," Mosier said.

Willis, whose organization represents 30,000 growers in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and California, said reverberations from the loss of the Iraqi market may be enough to force some rice growers out of business.

"We're going to end up with some farmers in a do-or-die situation, unless we find a way to develop these foreign markets," he said, adding that the council is constantly pursuing access to other markets such as Japan and Eastern Europe.

A federal investigation of the government agency that oversees some of the financial aspects of the rice trade with Iraq has halted all exports since April, Willis said.

The embargo, coming at the start of this year's rice harvest, is being blamed for a 29 percent drop in the price of rice futures since the invasion, John Vleck, assistant commissioner of the Texas Agriculture Department, told the Austin American-Statesman.

Vleck said Texas rice growers report that mills are renegotiating current contracts to lower the prices that farmers will receive for grain to be harvested in coming days.

Vleck said Mexico, West Africa, Europe and other Mideast countries may be the best bets for replacing Iraq as customers because those countries need imported grains and have income to purchase them.

And as a long-term solution, he said, the United States should look toward Latin America.

Arkansas and Texas are the two largest producers of long-grain rice, and are hit hardest by the embargo. California, which mostly produces medium grain, will be the least affected. Texas' rice-growing operations are concentrated at the lower end of the Colorado River in Southeast Texas.

Quit smoking for good

Get ready, get set, stop. Here are some tips to help you get off cigarettes for good. The list is based on "Women Smokers Can Quit: A Different Approach" (Women's Healthcare Press), by Sue Delaney:

- Start by analyzing where, when, why and how much you smoke.
- Make a list of the reasons you want to quit. Carry it with you and look at it for inspiration when you have the urge to smoke.

- Get your doctor's help. He may be able to prescribe a nicotine substitute to help you control your smoking.

- If you're afraid of gaining weight, try to modify your eating before you stop smoking. But don't wait until you lose weight to begin your no-smoking campaign.

- Develop a support network of friends and family who can provide a sympathetic ear or active help over the long term. Women with supportive husbands, partners or families have a better chance to quit than those who don't.

- If you enroll in a program, find one that uses multiple techniques, including behavior modification, long-term support and followup.

- Set a date for quitting and announce it to your support network. You might even draw up and sign a contract with a friend, partner or doctor.

- The day before quitting, smoke heavily. "Make yourself really sick of smoking," says Delaney. "Spill the ashes, look at the mess, smell the stink." Plan a reward to yourself for your first smoke-free 24 hours. Get rid of your cigarette supply and smoking apparatus. Make a ceremony of smoking your last cigarette.

- On quitting day, change your routine every way you can. Plan different activities that occupy your hands or mouth - knitting, working a crossword puzzle, or chewing gum - to substitute for smoking.

- Cope with cravings by waiting them out or finding something else to put in your mouth - a toothpick, sugarless gum, carrot sticks or celery.

- Practice assertive, direct communications to help head off or deal with unpleasant emotions that may turn up at this time. If that's not possible, turn to your support network to vent your feelings.

- Recognize people, places or events that may trigger a relapse. Then anticipate, alter or avoid them.

- Remember that slips or lapses are common and can be followed by periods of successful abstinence.

Hardy new grass requires less mowing

Prairie buffalo grass, a newly adapted minimum-care turf grass especially suited to Texas sun and drought conditions, will become available for Texas landscapes next spring.

The grass performs well in hot, sunny conditions, requiring minimal irrigation, mowing and fertilizer, said Dr. Milt Engelke, a turf grass breeder who developed the new variety at Texas A&M's research center in Dallas.

"This makes it ideal for roadside and airport right-of-way and industrial park applications, and for many residential lawns," he said. "The state of Texas spent $38 million in 1988 to mow highway right-of-way, and this new turf grass could reduce those costs."

Prairie buffalo grass in urban landscapes could save 50 to 70 percent of the water-use for irrigation of lawns, Engelke said.

A typical homeowner with a Prairie buffalo grass lawn would need to mow and water only two or three times in a growing season. Left uncut, the grass grows to maximum height of about four inches, but it may be mowed shorter and more frequently and still maintain its dense appearance, Engelke said. It is not suited to shade.

Introduced this week at a turf grass field day at A&M's research facility in Dallas, Prairie buffalo grass spreads faster, has fewer weeds, and a denser appearance than other commercially available buffalo grass cultivars. Because it is a female plant of the species, Prairie produces neither seedheads nor pollen. It is grown from sod, sprigs, or plugs.

Prairie buffalo grass can be grown successfully from the South Texas Plains north into Nebraska. The grass performs best on heavier soils and on neutral to alkaline soils. In addition to being able to withstand Texas summers, it also tolerates cold weather and maintains a gold color in winter.

Under Engelke's direction at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Dallas, the new buffalo grass has been tested in Texas at Corpus Christi, San Antonio, and Dallas, as well as Fort Collins, Colo., and Lincoln, Neb.

Certified producers will offer "Prairie" for sale through nurseries to the public next spring.

The only event in the first 13 Olympiads was a footrace of about 200 yards.

Horse buying hints given

If you're going to look at a horse, and you're a first time buyer, it's a good idea to bring along a knowledgeable horseperson. There's a lot to observe and much to ask before you make a decision.

Temperament should be most important to you--leave health to the experts. Look at the horse's eyes and ears and general manner when it is brought out. Does it look alert? Be sure you look at the animal in a well lit place, preferable outdoors in the sunlight. Watch the owner saddle up the horse. Does it stand quietly? Does it kick or bite? Do not buy a horse with bad stable manners.

Don't get on the animal right away. Ask the owner to ride the horse first. If you're buying a hunter or jumper or other specially trained horse, ask the owner to demonstrate.

If you and your adviser are satisfied that the horse is safe for you to ride, it is you turn to mount. Once again, observe how it reacts when you mount, how it reacts to your commands. Try out any special skills that the horse has. Remember, this is a major investment and you should be allowed to test the animal thoroughly.

Many times a brief trial period (seven to ten days) can be arranged for the prospective buyer. Even if you fall in love with the horse, do not buy it on the spot, and certainly not before the animal has been thoroughly examined by a veterinarian with experience in performing purchase examinations. One final point that all horse owners, beginning and experienced should remember: a horse is a living being whose life and welfare is in your hands.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't want to beat a dead horse, but I think this one is good enough to print. It tops the previous letters sent in by readers in support of your theory that truth is stranger than fiction.

They backed you up by sending newspaper clippings of happenings no one would believe if they had appeared in your column. The last one, a news item from the Wisconsin State Journal, was about a 5-year-old boy who had been charged with rape.

Here's a lulu from your own backyard -- the Chicago Tribune.

A man in California saw an ad in the paper for an "almost new" Porsche, in excellent condition--price $50. He was certain the printers had made a typographical error, but even at $5,000 it would have been a bargain, so he hurried to the address

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) --"Cosby Show" actress Lisa Bonet wants a judge to order the National Enquirer to hand over a negative of her baby daughter.

She alleges the negative showing her then month-old daughter, Zoe Kravitz, was stolen by a drug store clerk from the Reseda, Calif., pharmacy that developed her photographs.

Her lawyers asked in papers filed in federal court Monday that "the seedier elements of the paparazzi" produce the negative.

She has sued the American Drug Stores Inc. chain for unspecified compensatory damages and $5 million in punitive damages. Her lawyers say the negative will prove a clerk stole it to sell to the National Enquirer.

She alleges a missing photo from the roll appeared in the supermarket tabloid on Jan. 10, 1989.

American Drug Stores denies the allegations, said spokesman Carl Haupt.

A nice-looking woman appeared at the front door. Yes, she had placed the ad. The price was indeed $50. "The car," she said, "is in the garage. Come and look at it."

The fellow was overwhelmed. It was a beautiful Porsche and, as the ad promised, "nearly new." He asked if he could drive the car around the block. The woman said, "Of course," and went with him. The Porsche drove like a dream. The young man peeled off $50 and handed it over, somewhat sheepishly. The woman gave him the necessary papers, and the car was his.

Finally, the new owner couldn't stand it any longer. He had to know why the woman would sell the Porsche at such a ridiculously low price. Her reply was simple: With a half-smile on her face, she said, "My husband ran off with his secretary a few days ago and left a note instructing me to sell the car and the house, and send him the money." -- Still Laughing in Wilmette

DEAR STILL: I checked will Bill Jones, then managing editor of the Chicago Tribune. He too had read the story and thought it was hilarious, but his researchers could not find it in their paper. However, the incident did happen as reported.

Fishing in the wind has its advantages

If you are going to fish in West Texas, then you better learn how to fish in the wind. Better yet, learn how to make those windy days work to your advantage. It's the ol' lemons into lemonade theory applied to fishing.

Now, I am not talking about fishing in gale-force winds or dodging lightning bolts. However, a normal windy day can work in your favor if you make a few changes in your game plan.

For effective worm fishing, Brian Stewart of Fritch uses a heavier bullet weight to maintain the "feel" of his worm despite gusty conditions. On the retrieve his rod tip is close to the water thereby reducing the wind effect on his line.

Crankbait fishing really suffers from wind effect. Casting into a brisk breeze is a sure-fire formula for a backlash with most lures. Solution: try a lipless crankbait like a Bill Lewis rat-L-trap or Cotton Cordell's hotspot. Also, try using a sidearm cast or, even better, an underhand cast to minimize the wind effect.

I use a lipless crankbait to locate aggressive fish, followed by a worm to catch the more passive fish. One of the newest methods of working a lipless crankbait is a "yo-yo" pattern of bouncing it off the bottom. Losing a bait or two is the price of catching fish while the others are scratching their heads. Donnie Price of Amarillo recommends silver-blue, white-black and an orange crawdad pattern.

Dean Logan of Lake Tanglewood prefers an exposed point near deep water on windy days. Cast into the wind as the fish will normally face into the slight current generated by the wind. Start off fishing shallow and work to deeper water until you find the active feeding fish. Keep the boat off the point as the wave action on the hull tends to scare off the fish.

The next area to fish is a windy bank where the waves have formed a mud line. Predators will use this mud line as an ambush zone. Working a worm or a jig with the front of the boat facing away from the shoreline and into the wind takes some practice. However, you will normally have the area all to yourself and several tournaments have been won using this technique.

Did I mention that windy days require a fully-charged battery? Nothing is worse than finding active fish and then having your battery give out.

So next time the wind blows, try these suggestions and get ready for some great fishing.

SWC officials looking East

DALLAS (AP) - Southwest Conference officials are trying to find ways to keep their two biggest cash cows - Texas A&M and Texas - from moving to greener pastures.

The latest scheme involves the creation of an Eastern Seaboard League that would unite the SWC with several independents. The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday.

The move would allow SWC schools to play fewer conference games and maximize their television exposure and revenue with East Coast opponents, unidentified sources told The News.

Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds said he was not familiar with the proposed alliance, but said he would welcome more games against opponents in large markets.

"The way we are set right now, you have to schedule non-conference opponents in an area where there is a marketplace," Dodds said.

The proposed Eastern Seaboard League could include such schools as Miami, Syracuse, Boston College, Pittsburgh, Rutgers and West Virginia, the newspaper reported.

A tentative meeting is scheduled among some of those schools, all of which are independents, and the SWC on Aug. 30 in East Rutherford, N.J.

SWC sources indicate that such an alliance would keep Texas A&M and Texas from leaving the conference. Both schools have been considering other options since Arkansas announced this month it would join the Southeastern Conference in 1991.

Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich said: "The SWC needs very badly for somebody to bring something to the table. I don't know how viable it is, but as long as people keep talking it is an option."

The alliance would have Texas A&M and Texas playing each other annually. But they would be allowed to drop one of the other six members of the SWC off the schedule and replace it with an East Coast opponent that could be attractive to the television networks.

The games against the alliance would not count in the SWC standings, the newspaper reported.

The other six members of the SWC also would drop a league team each year on a rotating basis to play with the East Coast alliance.

SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby has declined to discuss possibilities of what the conference may be looking into with other schools.

The end of another day

Hereford Whiteface coach Don Cumpton talks with the team after a workout. The Herd will scrimmage at Lubbock Monterey today with the sophomores starting at 3:30 p.m., the juniors following at 5:30 and the seniors at 7:30.

Herd ready for first scrimmage

The Hereford Whitefaces venture out into the world for the first time this season when they travel to Lubbock today to scrimmage the Monterey Plainsmen.

The scrimmage will be divided into three sections with sophomores, juniors and seniors each lining up for 120 plays. The sophs will get things started at 3:30 p.m. with the juniors taking over at 5:30 and the seniors at 7:30.

Herd coach Don Cumpton said the total of 360 plays would make for a long day on the field, but the number of players in the program makes it necessary.

"We're going to play 144 kids," Cumpton said, "starting at 3:30 and going till about 10, so we're going to have lots of plays."

Cumpton added that the scrimmage will help the coaching staff evaluate every player in the program.

"The whole idea, No. 1 is we want them all to play some," he said. "We're going to get it all on film. Basically, we just need to see where we're at with each group - sophomores, juniors and seniors - and see what we need to work on. We're going to play quite a few on both sides of the ball. Hopefully, we can take the film of the scrimmage and evaluate and see what direction we need to go next week."

Cumpton said the scrimmage will be treated as such with the emphasis on learning just where the team stands after two weeks of practice.

"What we'd like to do is be able to evaluate our team, each individual and hopefully not get anybody hurt," he said. "We're going to treat it just like a workout, we're just not going against each other. It's not a game and we don't play it that way. We're looking for effort."

"We'll know right where we're at after the scrimmage. We'll know what to work on, we'll know what our strengths are and what our weaknesses are. And that's what we need to find out."

The scrimmage will be held at the Monterey practice field at 50th and Indiana in Lubbock.

Welch squelches ChiSox

By The Associated Press

Just call him Welch the squelch. For the eighth time this season, Bob Welch followed an Oakland loss with a victory as the Athletics righted themselves after a three-game skid Wednesday night to beat the Chicago White Sox 7-1.

"I hadn't given that much thought," said Welch (21-4), who held the White Sox to four hits in seven innings. "You know what you have to do, and we needed to win this game."

The A's had lost three games off their lead in the American League West in the previous three days but restored their margin to 5 1/2 games. They ended Chicago's three-game winning streak as well as a string of five straight losses to the White Sox.

"I finally got to the ninth inning where I didn't have to hold my throat," Manager Tony La Russa said. "You saw what Welch did. He's done that all year. Every game he's pitched he's given us a chance to win."

In the American League East, Boston clobbered Baltimore 13-2 and opened a two-game lead over Toronto, which lost to New York 4-2. Elsewhere, it was Texas 5, Seattle 4; Detroit 7, California 4; Cleveland 4, Milwaukee 2, and Kansas City 6, Minnesota 2.

Welch lost his shutout bid in the seventh on a pair of two-out walks and Sammy Sosa's double. Melido Perez (11-11) went 5 1-3 innings and gave up six runs - five earned - and 10 hits.

Red Sox 13, Orioles 2

Mike Boddicker (12-8) gained his first victory since July 2 and Luis Rivera, Ellis Burks and Mike Greenwell homered as Boston beat Ben McDonald (5-2).

Boddicker gave up seven hits in 7 2-3 innings.

McDonald was tagged for five runs in the fourth. Wade Boggs walked and Burks followed with his 13th homer and first since Aug. 3. Greenwell got a gift double when left fielder Joe Orsulak misjudged a wind-blown fly, Mike Marshall singled to score Greenwell, Tony Pena walked and he and Greenwell scored on Jody Reed's double.

Dodgers fly past Phillies

By The Associated Press

After a game when 11 runs weren't enough, Stan Javier's fly ball was plenty.

And it gave Los Angeles a 3-2 victory Wednesday night over the Philadelphia Phillies, 24 hours after the Dodgers squandered an eight-run lead in the ninth.

With one out and the bases loaded, a sacrifice fly to shallow left field by pinch-hitter Javier scored Hubie Brooks.

On Tuesday, after leading 11-3, Los Angeles and Javier watched in horror as the Phillies scored nine runs for a 12-11 victory.

The victory kept Los Angeles 6 1/2 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West.

In other games, it was New York 4, San Diego 1; San Francisco 2, Montreal 1; Cincinnati 4, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 4, Houston 2, and Atlanta 2, St. Louis 1.

Javier came to bat knowing he could hit the ball in the air against Roger McDowell, Tuesday's winner.

Brooks walked off reliever Joe Boever (2-4) and went to third on Mike Scioscia's hit-and-run single. McDowell came in and bobbled Mike Sharperson's bunt to load the bases.

The Phillies brought the outfielders way in, but left-fielder John Kruk's one-bounce throw was wide of home and Brooks slid past a lunging Darren Daulton.

Jim Gott (2-2) pitched a hitless ninth for the victory.

Trailing 2-1 in the eighth, the Dodgers tied it when Mickey Hatcher beat out an infield hit with a head-first slide. Jose Gonzalez, running for Hatcher, scored on the second of two wild pitches by reliever Don Carman.

Dale Murphy drove in both Philadelphia runs with RBI singles in the sixth and eighth innings.

Phillies' rookie Jose DeJesus gave up three hits in seven innings, but walked four before being removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. In the same inning, Murphy's third hit scored Daulton and made it 2-1.

Murphy's single off rookie Jim Neidinger in the sixth drove in Lenny Dykstra, who reached on a single. (See NL ROUNDUP, Page 9)

Ryan just a bit testy following performance

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - It was the closest Nolan Ryan ever gets to a snit.

Ryan was an unhappy winner of career victory 301 on Wednesday night because he felt he didn't deserve the Texas Rangers 5-4 verdict over the Seattle Mariners.

"If you're going to poke those things (microphones) in my face then start asking some questions," Ryan said after the game in which he went seven innings, surrendered five hits, struck out five and walked two.

Ryan was terse about the victory which put him at No. 18 on the all-time victory list ahead of Early Wynn and Lefty Grove.

"I'm not happy with the way I pitched," Ryan said. "I made bad pitches in bad situations and that's it."

Ryan said he didn't see any justice in pitching mediocre and winning after he had pitched great and got a no decision against the Chicago White Sox in his last outing.

"I don't think about stuff like that," he said. "I don't think about those things, never."

Ryan had a 10-inning, 15-strikeout, no-decision against the White Sox last Friday. It was the third time he had failed to win since his 300th victory July 31 in Milwaukee.

The 43-year-old Ryan, now 12-6, wasn't overpowering as usual but he said he felt fine physically.

"I felt alright," said Ryan who has been bothered by back problems. "I was OK. I just didn't pitch like I normally do and I can't pinpoint why."

With that the normally poised and polished Ryan declared the interview at an end.

Texas manager Bobby Valentine said Ryan could have been hurting but he deserved to win a game on an off-night.

"It didn't look like Nolan felt good," Valentine said. "He had this coming to him after the Chicago game. He pitched just good enough to win tonight."

Ryan was touched for a homer by Dave Valle and gave up two triples but it was Seattle's Bill Swift, 5-4, who took the loss.

Seattle manager Jim Lefebvre said "Ryan always looks impressive to me. He's such a great competitor. We had some good ABs against him but when he needed to do it he got the outs."

Brad Arnsberg picked up his fourth save by getting the Mariners out in order in the ninth inning.

Ryan's victory came on the first anniversary (Aug. 22, 1989) of making Oakland's Rickey Henderson his 5000th strikeout victim.

Ryan didn't comment on the anniversary. He was still so mad at himself he left the locker before anybody could ask him.

It was not a happy anniversary even if it was another milestone victory.

Holtz refutes charges

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)-Notre Dame is playing aggressive defense against stinging allegations of drug abuse that tarnish the university's carefully cultivated image of clean football.

Coach Lou Holtz and athletic department officials have attacked, fought, given up some ground, and fought fiercely for other territory.

The hasty but well-coordinated response was triggered by a magazine article written by a former player who claimed steroid abuse was rampant among Irish football players.

Former Irish center Steve Huffman, who left the program three years ago and now lives in Dallas, writes in the Aug. 27 issue of Sports Illustrated that Holtz must have known of, and by implication tolerated, the abuse of steroids.

"I did not come here to defend myself," Holtz said Wednesday as he began reading a lengthy statement denying Huffman's allegations.

He then grimly defended himself, presenting testimonials from former players and assistants, even offering to show a bank check he had refused for helping an anti-drug education program.

Team doctor James M. Moriarity feinted, saying in an early response that "no Notre Dame player has ever been found to test positive by the NCAA."

Athletic director Richard Rosenthal gave up that ground when he admitted the school's own testing program had discovered five players using steroids since 1987.

Holtz and Rosenthal joined in attacking Sports Illustrated for failing to offer Notre Dame's side of the story. And Holtz fought for territory he believed he owned as an opponent of performance-enhancing drugs.

"I think I've done everything I can to deter the use of drugs, both street drugs as well as steroids," he said. Huffman claimed nearly half the players who lettered were using steroids and that two unidentified assistant coaches suggested that he take the muscle-building drug to get stronger.

"I totally deny unequivocally everything that was written," Holtz said. "I detest the insinuation that two of our coaches suggested that athletes take steroids. I, along with the university and the country, would like to know who they are."

Huffman did not name the coaches or any of the players who allegedly used steroids, which are banned by the NCAA.

Rosenthal said the five players who tested positive were disciplined.

He declined to identify them or to say whether they were dismissed from the team or school.

"None of the five players who had positive tests were permitted to compete in games while steroids were in their system," Rosenthal said.

He said the university's testing program was bolstered in 1987, and concentrated on starting players. The five positives came from 466 tests conducted since then, he said.

Rosenthal said data gathered before 1987 no longer existed, but that the incidence of steroid abuse was no higher then. The testing program is administered by Notre Dame's medical center, not the athletic department.

Huffman, who left the team in 1987, said his allegations are in response to Holtz's book about the 1988 national championship season. In it, Holtz calls Huffman a quitter.

Holtz said he regretted not removing Huffman's name from the book.

"If this article allows him to find the peace that has eluded him over the years at my expense, I accept this," Holtz said. "I have no hard feelings toward Steve Huffman."

steroids, and said the coach advised players only to be careful with the drug.

He also said he saw boxes of steroids, pills and injectable liquids in players' dormitory rooms.

Holtz said he gave each Notre Dame player a photocopy of the story and asked anyone who agreed with the allegations to leave him an unsigned note.

"I have received no such notes," he said.

Holtz and Rosenthal criticized Sports Illustrated for publishing the story without offering the university a chance to respond.

"We believe that printing this article with Notre Dame not absolutely having a chance to participate or respond to the false charges is unfair, unprofessional and journalisticly irresponsible," Rosenthal said.

Moriarity said Notre Dame players are subject to year-round, random drug testing by the university and the NCAA at bowl games. Notre Dame also tests for drugs that mask steroid use, he said.

Huffman also alleged Holtz pressured him to play despite a painful shoulder injury. Holtz said he was unaware of the injury and that Huffman's name never appeared on his list of injured players.

The coach read a statement from former player John Foley, who left the program with a career-ending injury. Foley said Holtz never pressured him to play while he was hurt.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I was reading your column about diet and cancer and your comment that the most important thing was to avoid obesity. You also mentioned limiting your fat intake because it contained lots of calories that would cause you to get overweight. Is there any difference between the types of fat that are most likely to cause cancer? I know that you should avoid saturated fats to help prevent heart attacks and strokes and keep your cholesterol down. Will avoiding saturated fat also help prevent cancer? If you avoid saturated fats, are the unsaturated fats OK — like the fats in fish oil, vegetables and cereals?

DEAR READER: There is not a clear answer to your question. The American Cancer Society's study group that met in November 1989 did recommend limiting your total fat intake to no more than 30 percent of your total caloric intake. That is the same as recommended to prevent a high cholesterol level. But unsaturated fats have been suspected of increasing the risk of cancer. Animal studies have shown that an increased intake of the polyunsaturated fat linoleic acid is more apt to be associated with cancer in animals. But this has not been demonstrated in humans. The amount of polyunsaturated fat in these animal studies far exceeded the amount that would be used in a prudent diet for humans. Polyunsaturated fats are more unstable than saturated fats, but the foods that contain most of the polyunsaturated fat in our diet also contains substances that prevent changes that theoretically could be harmful. These include vitamin A, C and E which are "antioxidants."

That explains why a good balanced diet is probably the best approach in preventing cancer — one that includes a variety of fruits and vegetables. To give you more details on the total diet concept to prevent cancer, I am sending you a free copy of my discussion, Diet and Cancer. Others who want this information can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-04, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

DEAR DR. LAMB: You stated that nicotinic acid was one of the best medicines available to induce favorable cholesterol levels. Would you get the nicotinic acid from smoking since tobacco contains nicotine? Why has this never been discussed when talking about the ill effects of cigarettes? Also, I have read that tobacco contains a certain amount of protein. Is this true?

I know smoking can't be good for you overall, but according to your column it might not be as bad for a person as alcohol, since you state alcohol will raise the HDL-cholesterol and cause high blood pressure even in modest amounts.

DEAR READER: I hardly know where to start. Nicotinic acid is a vitamin and is not nicotine, which is a poison. Nicotinic acid is also called niacin. Nicotinic acid, a drug, has no beneficial effects on cholesterol at all. Although overall alcohol is bad for you, the fact that it may raise HDL-cholesterol is not bad. HDL-cholesterol is often called good cholesterol because it is an indication of how many small fatty-cholesterol particles you have that help to prevent fatty-cholesterol deposits and heart attacks.

Yes, the tobacco plant is a rich source of protein, but you don't get any of it from smoking tobacco.

I know where to end. You would be wise to stop smoking.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Never tell anyone to wear a belt for a hernia. At age 75 I bought a garden tiller. In the first half-hour of use I got a left side hernia from fighting the tiller. My doctor said at 75 to forego an operation and wear a belt.

I wore the belt for 10 years with the hernia getting worse and worse. I was operated on at age 85, a year ago, in a one-hour, no problem operation. But the doctor said 10 years ago I would have had a 3-inch cut instead of the 10-inch cut and reinforcing mesh inserted.

At 85, this operation to me was no worse than filling a tooth. I wish I had had it done instead of suffering with a belt for 10 years.

DEAR READER: I am inclined to agree, although some physicians do recommend a truss for small hernias that are not causing a problem. But I must add that many small hernias that are not of the dangerous type and are not causing symptoms can often merely be followed to make sure no significant changes occur. This can be done without using a truss. Some surgeons have followed men who do heavy manual labor with a small hernia for over 10 years — without a truss.

Whether a groin hernia can be watched or needs surgery depends a lot on what kind of hernia it is. The biggest danger of some hernias is that they will be trapped and cause an intestinal obstruction. In fact, that remains a leading cause of intestinal obstruction.

For years there has been a high rate of recurrence after a hernia operation. The estimates vary, but between 10 percent and 20 percent have recurrences. That has been sharply reduced in more recent years by new techniques. An important improvement has been the use of a prosthetic mesh that is fitted to cover the hole where the intestine slides through. Some surgeons have reported fantastic results with this technique with few recurrences. So while you waited 10 years, you may have gained the opportunity for a better technique that was not available earlier.

I know you will want to read more about hernias and their repair so I'm sending you a free copy of my discussion, Groin Hernias — Inguinal and Femoral. Others who want this information can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-03, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please help me! I have been diagnosed as having Dupuytren's contracture. The doctor said there isn't much known about it and that he could not perform surgery until my fingers are deformed, because this disease will come back and repeated surgery destroys the nerves. Is there anything I can do to prevent the progression of this disease? Is it good for me to continue using my hands? I type, play piano and do a lot of gardening. My husband seems to think I should try to protect them. I'm feeling desperate and surely don't want to be crippled.

DEAR READER: There is a layer of thick connective tissue beneath the skin in the palm of your hand, called the palmar fascia. In Dupuytren's contracture, it thickens and contracts. As it contracts it literally curls the fingers and cups the palm.

It is true that very little is known about the disease, but I can tell you that many hand surgeons believe that you need to remove the involved fascia early, before there is too much contracture if you want to avoid a permanent deformity.

Texas woman to compete in National Beef Cook-off

Barbecue grilling is thrilling for Kathy Rypkema of Bedford, but the excitement has just begun. Rypkema recently won the Southwest regional competition in the barbecue category of the National Beef Cook-Off, and will compete with amateur cooks from across the country Sept. 20-22 in Seattle, Wash., during the 17th annual national contest. At stake is more than $35,500 in cash and prizes, including a grand prize of $15,000 cash for the "Best of Beef."

The Texas representative in the 1989 National Beef Cook-Off's indoor category, Rypkema has been entering cooking contests for four years. Her Indonesian Beef Satay with Peanut Curry Sauce in the barbecue category this year earned her an expense paid trip to the national contest in Seattle. Married and mother of three, Rypkema's hobbies include counted cross-stitch, crochet and raising home grown vegetables.

Seven regional winners in the barbecue category will be competing for first prize of $5,000 plus a year's supply of charcoal from Kingsford. That winning dish will then compete against the winners of indoor and microwave categories for the "Best of Beef" designation, worth an additional $10,000 cash. In addition, each cook-off contestant is eligible for $1,000 prizes recognizing "Best Recipe Under 300 Calories/Serving," "Most Convenient Recipe" and "Best Recipe Using Any Cut from the Chuck (excluding ground chuck)."

The National Beef Cook-Off is hosted by the American National CattleWomen, Inc. in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council and Beef Board. For information on the 1991 contest, which will be held in Colorado Springs, Colo., send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: 1991 National Beef Cook-Off, 444 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

others have made it clear they would deem a shutdown of the embassies "an illegal act."

"We don't recognize the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait and I think most of us are determined to keep our embassies open," he said today on ABC. "I think it would be a mistake for Saddam Hussein to try to close down all those embassies in Kuwait."

But, Cheney added, "he's done foolish things before."

Meanwhile, Japanese media reported today that nearly 200 Japanese have been moved from Kuwait to a hotel in Baghdad. A brief announcement on semi-public NHK television said 178 Japanese were taken to Iraq, but provided no further details.

Kyodo News Agency quoted the Foreign Ministry as saying an unspecified number of Japanese were whisked from Kuwait to a hotel in Baghdad. The ministry refused immediate comment on the reports.

The move came after Japan indicated it planned to aid Jordan in offsetting the loss of vital trade with Iraq as a result of U.N. sanctions.

An urgent U.N. Security Council meeting late Wednesday night concluded Jordan "had to have help," said the British ambassador, Sir Crispin Tickell. Aid to other countries affected by U.N. sanctions also was discussed, but diplomats said no particular figures were discussed.

Heavy trucks and other commercial traffic passed through the Jordanian-Iraqi border today, indicating Jordan had not implemented sanctions.

Jordan's King Hussein had said he was closing the border at midnight Wednesday because the flood of foreign refugees, mostly Arabs, from Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait had strained the resources of his small nation.

He said 42,000 refugees entered Jordan on Wednesday - the greatest single-day total since the invasion. The king said about 185,000 had crossed into Jordan since Aug. 2, and only 67,000 of them have moved on.

dollars for the state than any of her predecessors.

Williams' allegations show his lack of knowledge about state government, said Mary Beth Rogers, the Richards campaign manager.

"As state treasurer, Ann Richards earns $1 million a day for the taxpayers. The record on this is clear. Clayton Williams continues to show a complete lack of understanding of state finance. This raises an obvious question: Should this man be trusted with the responsibility of the governor's office?"

The Democrat's camp also renewed complaints about Williams' latest attack advertisement, one criticizing Richards for jokes about then-Vice President George Bush and for obtaining a campaign loan from an Austin bank which later received state deposits.

Richards' aides said the loan was repaid, with interest, and that the state made millions from the deposits placed in United Bank of Texas.

"Each succeeding ad gets sloppier and more inaccurate. This latest attempt is so pitiful that we are confident that public outcry will ... force the Williams campaign to pull this ad," Ms. Rogers said.

Call for reserve first test of plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's call to arms for "weekend warriors" is the first real test of an American military redesigned 17 years ago to shift more fighting responsibility to the reserves.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney planned to meet with senior military officials today before deciding how many reservists to call up. President Bush announced Wednesday he was authorizing the call-up, which is the first since the Vietnam War.

About 40,000 Army, Navy and Air Force reservists are expected to be activated, although officials said the number could rise with developments in Iraq and Kuwait, where an estimated 160,000 Iraqi troops are stationed along the Saudi Arabian border.

The shift toward greater reliance on reserves began with the end of the draft in 1973 but has gone largely unnoticed outside the military, private analysts said.

"This shifting of responsibility occurred with very little fanfare or debate, and now everybody seems to be caught by surprise that we're calling up the reserves in this instance," said Martin Binkin, co-author of a 1989 study on the reserves.

Short of declaring a national emergency, the president can mobilize up to 200,000 of the nation's 1.2 million reservists for up to 180 days. It is up to the Pentagon to determine how the total number is divided among the services.

The Transportation Department said 40 ships were called up from the Ready Reserve Force, a fleet of old civilian cargo ships maintained for quick deployment in emergencies. More ships were expected to be activated, said Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner.

After the draft was abolished, the Pentagon adopted a "total force" concept that moved many key tasks, such as supply transport, medical services and communications, away from the professional soldiers to part-time civilian reservists.

The change was designed to ensure that no sustained conflict would be fought without the use of reserves. The idea was that following the publicly unpopular Vietnam war, the White House would be forced to measure national resolve early in any future military crisis by bringing civilians into the fighting force.

Taking thousands of men and women from their homes and civilian jobs to serve on active duty means that towns across the country will come to grips with the human dimension of the gulf crisis and the personal sacrifice it is requiring.

Van D. Hipp Jr., deputy assistant secretary of the Army for reserve forces and mobilization, acknowledged the political sensitivity of the reserve call-up decision.

Scientists estimate that as many as 200,000,000 meteors enter the earth's atmosphere every day. These and other meteorites are estimated to add more than 1,000 tons daily to the Earth's weight.
