Flu's back Hereford doctor says you need flu shot now

Want to try to ward off the flu this year? Get a flu shot, then take good care of yourself, because it may or may not do any good.

A new flu shot this year combines antibodies effective against the flu we had here last year that caused an epidemic in Texas. It even earned a name, A/Texas/36/91, because of the havoc it caused in Hereford and across the state. There are two other antibodies for influenza strains from 1989 and 1990.

This year's recommended flu shot has some of the same stuff as last year's shot. That's because a person's immunity declines in the year following vaccination.

Dr. Duffy McBrayer said there is already a new flu floating around the area. He says you still need a flu shot.

"Oh, absolutely, you need a shot," he said Thursday. "The new flu we've seen this year is just a little different from the flu we had last year. Your immunity may be high enough from last year that it won't hurt you this year, but I think last year's problems should be enough to convince anyone to get a flu shot this year."

Flu shots are available for a nominal charge at any doctor's office or clinic on an as-available basis. According to the Centers for Disease Control, the best time for a flu shot is between now and mid-November. Flu season generally peaks between late December and early March, but high levels of flu activity frequently occur in the US before December.

Otoñofest celebration scheduled for Sunday

A full afternoon of fun, food and games is planned Sunday at Otoñofest '92 at Dameron Park.

The annual festival is a joint project of San Jose and St. Anthony's Catholic churches. Proceeds will go to St. Anthony's School, the largest and oldest private school in the county, and the two churches.

Live entertainment will include Latin Knights, Brisa Marina, Kristi Lytal and Natalie Sims, St. Anthony's Childrens Choir and folklorico dancers.

A volleyball tournament is open to all interested persons. Entry fee is $20 a team, and entry may be made by calling 364-8432 or 364-5053.

Games will include a glass toss, treasure hunt, balloon darts, basketball free throws, face painting, toilet toss, fishing pond and cake walk. Food will include gorditas, turkey legs, german sausage, tripas, hamburgers, Frito pies, tamales, cotton candy and desserts.

Raffle tickets will be sold by members of Hereford's two Knights of Columbus chapters for $10 per ticket. Prizes include a trip for two to Las Vegas, a 25-inch television, a car, homecoming mums and a $25 gift certificate to Inkahoots.

Deaf Smith General Hospital will also hold a health fair throughout the afternoon.

New signs for disabled drivers

Margaret Del Toro, tax assessor-collector for Deaf Smith County, displays the new placards available for disabled drivers. The blue placard is for permanently disabled persons; the red sign is for permanently disabled drivers.

Placards available for disabled drivers here

Persons with disabilities, temporary or permanent, may qualify for a new handicapped placard allowing them to park vehicles in handicapped places.

Margaret Del Toro, tax assessor-collector for Deaf Smith County, said the placards will be displayed only when the vehicle is parked. The placard for permanently disabled persons is blue and is valid for five years.

For persons with a temporary disability, the placard is good for six months. It's red with white letters.

The placards will cost $5, and will have the appropriate month and year punched out by employees at the auto license office on East Third. The placards are designed to be hung from the rear-view mirror of a vehicle. If there's no rear-view mirror, the placard must be placed in the center of the dashboard within plain sight from the windshield.

It's Columbus' anniversary, but no celebration

"He enjoyed long stretches of pure delight such as only a seaman may know, and moments of high, proud exultation that only a discoverer can experience" - historian Samuel Eliot Morison, writing on Columbus.

By ROBERT DVORCHAK
AP National Writer

And 500 years later, where is the exultation?

In a world in which maps change, but only to shuffle names and borders, where is the joy of finding new continents, new rivers, new mountains?

"There aren't too many frontiers left," said Preeti Vestilind, editor for explorations at the National Geographic.

Perhaps the new exploration is in space - although come December, it will be a full 20 years since man last walked on the moon, and no firm plans are afoot to send men or women to another planet. Perhaps the new exploration is under the sea, or in the mapping of genetic material.

Or burdened by our old world's problems, have we outgrown the need or desire to explore new worlds?

Nonsense, says astronomer Carl Sagan. "We have always been explorers. It is part of our nature. Since we first evolved a million or so years ago in Africa, we have wandered and explored our way across the planet. ...

"This exploratory urge has clear survival value," he says. "It is not restricted to any one nation or ethnic group. It is an endowment that the human species holds in common."

But the rules have changed since the Italian sailor kicked off the Age of Exploration. Columbus claimed lands for Spain and souls for the Catholic Church; the quincentenary of his landfall is being marked with equal measures of tribute (for his courage) and condemnation (for his rapacity).

The new explorers say they have left nationalism and greed behind. In Antarctica, the last great wilderness on Earth, mining and oil drilling are banned by an international treaty intended to preserve the icy continent for peaceful scientific research.

(Of course, some claims predate the 1959 treaty - Chile has an air base and a hotel on the continent, Argentina flew in a pregnant woman to give birth to the first citizen of Antarctica, and the British have an airstrip.)

Under the 1967 Outer Space Treaty, the moon and other celestial bodies are free for exploration and use by all nations. The United Nations charter and international law serve as a constitution for the cosmos.

"Nobody can assert territorial claims to any place in space," said Valerie Neal, curator of "Where Next, Columbus?", an upcoming exhibit at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington.

"In essence, space and worlds in space are supposed to be apolitical and may not be conquered or claimed," she said. "We're going there more out of scientific curiosity, for the common good of mankind, rather than for trade and evangelism."

There's a U.S. flag on the moon, plus three used moon rovers and other space junk. But rather than a territorial claim, the flag planting was a symbolic ritual - a sign that we've been there.

"It's a stated goal of U.S. space policy to expand human presence and activity beyond Earth's orbit into the solar system," said John Logsdon, director of the Space Policy Institute at George Washington University. "The clear notion is there is no ability to exert national sovereignty into space."

That extends to the most extensive effort ever to explore the heavens for life - NASA's $100 million Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence, which begins Monday. Astronomers will train giant, dish-shaped radiotelescopes to intercept radio signals from other worlds. The search lasts until 2001.

The aim: to answer an age-old question, "Are we alone?"

Homecoming events planned at high school

"The Movies" is the theme for Homecoming 1992 at Hereford High School.

Homecoming will include the annual parade and, for the first time in about 26 years, a homecoming dance at the HHS gym following Friday's Randall vs. Hereford football game.

Nominations have been made for homecoming royalty, with the king and queen announced at a pep rally on Friday.

Special dress-up plans are set for each day during the week. The HHS gym will be decorated for the pep rally on Friday.

Student Council will sponsor the annual parade on Friday afternoon. There will be no parade judging and floats are not required; all organizations are encouraged to participate. There is a $50 limit on materials used for entry construction. A trailer or car may be used for the entry base, but no cars may be borrowed from dealers. Entry fee is $5 for each vehicle in the parade.

Entry fees and forms are due Wednesday at 3:45. Work must be completed by Thursday evening, and a sponsor must be present while work is done on parade entries.

Hostile Herd Handhustlers to be sold for DARE

The noisemakers will cost $1 each, and 100 percent of the proceeds will go to the DARE program in Hereford schools. Autographing some of the cans are, from left, Vince Castillo, Petey Colvin, coach T.R. Sartor, Shawn Fogo, Kirk Self, Steven Blea, Eric Sims, Kyle Hansen and coach Bill Bridge.

Baby Jessica is 6 She remembers some; parents, officials try to deflect attention

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

MIDLAND (AP) - Jessica McClure pondered her trick-or-treat costume while picking through crayons for a Halloween theme in her coloring book.

"I don't know what I want to be for Halloween," she says. "Maybe, the Little Mermaid."

The next minute she darted off to play with neighborhood friends, tripping over Barbi dolls and her pet poodle on the way out.

"Baby Jessica" is a 6-year-old first-grader.

Five years ago Wednesday, Jessica was also playing with friends when she dangled her feet over the edge of an uncapped water well in her aunt's back yard then disappeared into the darkness.

The world came to a halt as 18-month-old Jessica, contorted into a cavern 22 feet below ground and only 8 inches wide, sang quietly of her friend Winnie-the-Pooh. The melodies gave paramedics hope as construction crews tore through the ground to reach her.

It is that image - of a toddler crying for her mother and bravely singing while trapped in a dark, narrow shaft - that captured the imaginations of rescue workers and millions of television viewers.

Her dramatic 58-hour rescue revived a depressed Texas oil town and gave hope to a nation rocked by stock market crashes and growing tensions in the Persian Gulf.

Some of the euphoria was dampened after revelations that Jessica's parents, only teen-agers in 1987 and now divorced and remarried, were spending large sums of money donated to the child.

The father, Chip McClure, 23, has refused to be interviewed.

Many of the rescuers and local residents say contract disputes over a made-for-television movie of Jessica's retrieval also tainted the purity of the effort.

Five years later, Jessica remembers little of the accident.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Bill Cosby related a conversation with a lady whose son was resisting efforts being made to educate him. She'd been told, "You know, you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." She had replied, "True, but I want to make the water so delicious he wants to drink."

We too, as teachers, want to make that water, (education), so delicious that our students will be anxious to drink, (learn).

Students in Mrs. Lee's math classes who had the highest average for their class for the six weeks received a "Math Whiz" certificate and a special pencil. Those students receiving the honors for the first six-week period were Mary Ellen Avila, Tony Garcia, Roger Gaitan, David Mendoza, Craig Ames and Erica Mondragon.

Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Stephens have been using the cooperative learning concept in their math classes as they study area of triangles, rectangles, parallelograms and trapezoids.

Students of the week this past week were Kendra Wright, seventh grade, and Tyson Foerster, eighth grade. Congratulations!

Judge Tom Simons spent the day Thursday with Texas history classes from Mrs. Waters' and Mr. Morris' classes. Students had composed questions during a study of the court system as they prepared for this visit.

The band is readying for the homecoming parade-their first big performance. Work done in the seventh and eighth grade band class is very important to the future of the pride of Hereford's high school band. Don and Tammy Summersgill are the HJH band directors.

Mrs. RoseMary Shook is filling in for Mrs. Gripp, our librarian, who is recuperating at home for a few days. Mrs. Shook was librarian at Shirley School and has also taught in junior high, so she relates well to junior high students and teachers.

HJH faculty members spent Monday and Tuesday in staff development programs and did quite a lot of laughing while learning. But on the serious side, if you'd like to know about plans for the spotted owl of the Northwest, do ask Mrs. Burges and/or Mr. Farr.

News digest

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Bill Clinton crams for Sunday's leadoff presidential debate, pledging to offer a quick counterpunch to any attacks from President Bush but vowing to keep the election focused on the economy. Bush hits his Democratic rival on antiwar activities and crime.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Serbs reportedly carry out air attacks on two Bosnian cities even as the U.N. Security Council imposes a ban on military flights over the former Yugoslav republic.

KUWAIT - The United States demands that Baghdad release an American bomb disposal expert who was seized at gunpoint as he worked in a disputed border area. Iraq's U.N. ambassador says he hopes the incident will not turn into a major crisis.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic - Pope John Paul II has acknowledged the "sins" of the New World's colonizers, apparently in an effort to distance himself from controversial celebrations of Christopher Columbus' voyage.

GEORGETOWN, Guyana - The rich racial stew of this South American country often is cited as a point of pride. But it boiled over into Election Day rioting and looting earlier this week.

WASHINGTON - Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh spent most of one day last summer in Los Angeles conducting a "very cordial" but "very businesslike" interrogation of Ronald Reagan. The subject? Whether the former president and his top aides engaged in a criminal coverup.

Infant and child CPR class set

Parents, grandparents, baby sitters, day-care workers, teachers and others who deal with children are invited to attend a class to learn infant and child CPR (Cardiopulmonary resuscitation), sponsored by Deaf Smith General Hospital on Oct. 20.

The class will be conducted from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center and is designed to teach the special techniques needed to restore breath to a choking child or one has quit breathing for other reasons.

Anyone wishing to register for the class should call L.V. Watts, 364-2141, instructor for the program.

"Infant CPR is a simple technique that anyone can learn quickly," said Watts. "By learning exactly what to do in an emergency and by practicing the technique, the adult is more likely to respond quickly and correctly in time of an emergency. Saving a choking child can be a matter of minutes."

Class participants will practice on infant and child-size resuscitation dummies to learn the technique, Watts said.

The class is part of the "Neighbors Saving Neighbors" program, the DSGH-sponsored community-wide effort to teach CPR skills to the majority of Hereford's adult population. Classes to learn CPR are planned each Tuesday evening through May, according to hospital administrator Ron Rives.

"The program is taught by American Heart Association volunteers--most of whom are part of our professional staff at the hospital," Rives added.

"We've had a great deal of interest expressed in the 'Neighbors Saving Neighbors' program," said Rives. "We're very excited to think that Hereford may become the first community in Texas to teach so many people how to save their neighbors' lives."

COLUMBUS

"We're going into this with a much different approach than Columbus," said Peter Boyce, executive officer of the American Astronomical Society. "We're not doing this for any profit. We do it for the whole world rather than trying to get a competitive advantage over a rival nation."

There is an international agreement about what to do if a signal is discovered. And there's also an effort to avoid harmful results of any possible encounter - such as those suffered by the natives encountered by Columbus.

"We don't want to run roughshod over another culture and we don't want them to run roughshod over us," Boyce said.

But this is a very different kind of exploration than that of Columbus - machines are doing the work and taking the risks. The man Magellan explored the New World; the satellite Magellan is mapping Venus. Have humans become irrelevant to exploration?

"If robots can do it cheaper, why send humans?" asks Sagan. His answer: "It's not the same thing."

Daniel J. Boorstin, author of "The Discoverers" and the new book "The Creators," agrees. By all means, he says - collect information in any way possible. But eventually, we must send people.

"If we had just listened to reports of the American West, we probably never would have settled it. We needed the journey of Lewis and Clark, to experience the West, to bring it to us," he said.

For Boorstin, Columbus' voyage ushered in "the age of negative discovery - discovering the areas of our ignorance," the things we do not know.

"Exploration and discovery are cultural developments - among the great developments of history, the rise of the yen to discover, the yen to know."

Just as Columbus did not know precisely where his voyage would take him, scientists seek data "beyond our ability to find meaning in it," Boorstin said. It is "an adventure, an enterprise," taking us to points unknown, to "the central mysteries of the beginnings and endings of the cosmos."

Not everyone equates the scientist at an electron microscope with the astronaut at the throttle of a spacecraft and the 15th-century seaman at the tiller. "Looking inward only satisfies you to a certain extent. People are always going to be looking outward," said the National Geographic's Vesilind.

But Dr. Gerald Weissmann, author of "They All Laughed at Christopher Columbus," draws a line "from Archimedes .. to the landing on the moon."

Weissmann found that Columbus suffered from Reiter's syndrome, a disease that modern-day investigators have linked to the sixth chromosome. And in that discovery, Weissmann sees a grand design.

"His is the name we associate with the experience of the new, whether it be the landscape of the moon or the cartography of the sixth chromosome of man," he writes. "When we open the doors of our laboratories each morning, we start on voyages of discovery."

JESSICA

"I remember they got me out," she says.

Her mother, Rheba "Cissy" Porter, 23, insists, "She only remembers what she has been told."

While watching a rerun of Hollywood's version of her rescue recently, Jessica wondered if the little girl in the well would be saved.

"She'll say, 'I hope they get her out. Is she going to be OK?' And I tell her, 'That's you Jessica. They got you out,'" Mrs. Porter says.

Flickering images of a massive parade in Midland, a visit with President Bush at the White House in 1989 and several public appearances over the past five years have given Jessica the sense that she is special.

"I know that people were worried about me," says Jessica. "They were scared that I would be OK."

Like most 6-year-olds, she craves Walt Disney movies, Saturday morning cartoons and has to be forced to come in from riding her pink bicycle.

A barely visible scar on her forehead and the amputation of her little toe on her right foot will always remind her of the tragedy, but there are no nightmares or signs of phobias, doctors say.

Jessica's mother fears her daughter, who has endured dozens of surgeries to repair foot and facial scar tissue, will forever be surviving the accident. The attention the girl received, including more than 20,000 letters currently packed in boxes, overwhelmed the McClures.

Mrs. Porter, who has custody of Jessica, reluctantly granted an interview, saying, "I know everyone loves her, but I love her too, and I just want her to be a kid like all the other kids she goes to school with."

"If we keep writing the 'Baby Jessica' story, my child will never be normal."

Unless Jessica brings it up, the accident is not discussed at home, Mrs. Porter says. There are no photographs, clippings or any reminders of the rescue that made headlines worldwide visible in the Porters' modest house just outside Midland.

But Mrs. Porter, who can not have any more children due to medical complications, concedes the accident can not simply be forgotten.

There's the nearly $1 million trust comprised of the donations received from across the globe that Jessica will inherit when she turns 25. The trust, which is monitored by a local bank, can only be used before then for medical and school expenses.

"She will be mature enough to handle it," says Mrs. Porter, who has expressed fears that her daughter will be kidnapped. "It's nice to know that her future is taken care of."

Jessica's place in history began when Mrs. Porter, then Cissy McClure, stepped inside her sister's house to answer a phone call for five minutes. When she returned, Jessica was gone.

In the next hour, an effort that would span the world was launched to free the girl.

"No one knew how much time we had, but we had to move quickly," said Midland Police Sgt. Andy Glasscock, who helped supervise the rescue.

People with years of experience in drilling and construction in the Texas Oil Patch flocked to the tiny Midland residence and began gouging a 25-foot hole parallel to the well shaft. Special drill bits arrived from as far away as Europe and Australia.

Crews were moving through the ground steadily when they came across what experts called "prehistoric rock." Progress came to a near-standstill as even diamond-tipped drills were dulled by the concrete.

"I think up until about the third day we had a lot of hope," Glasscock said. "But toward the end we were starting to lose faith. It was so slow going through the rock."

Time was running out and officials refused to send food down for fear of pushing Jessica deeper into the well.

Due to drillers like Charles Boler, who operated a hand-held jackhammer horizontally to punch a 20-inch diameter tunnel across to the well, rescuers finally made contact with Jessica.

"I don't think I ever drilled through anything harder than that," said Boler. "You could hear her crying as we got closer. That's what kept me going because I had a

2-year-old child at the time and I could identify with the family."

"We griped all the time about what was taking them so long," said Steve Forbes, one of two paramedics who entered the hole to bring Jessica out. "But after we got down there and saw what they were drilling through, we wondered, 'How did they get here so fast?'"

Paramedic Robert O'Donnell smeared petroleum jelly on Jessica and eased her down into the opening just drilled. As O'Donnell and Forbes wrapped her in gauze, and secured her neck and back, Jessica's eyes were wide. She kept repeating, "No, no."

Moments later, the toddler emerged from the earth, her face blinded by flashes from photographers who had stationed themselves on stepladders for a clear shot of the moment.

INSPECTION BEFORE SALE

Many prospective buyers do not think it's unusual to call in a contractor to inspect the house after an offer has been accepted. It's an accepted way to find out if there are any hidden problems before taking title. Some sellers prefer to beat the buyer, so to speak, by arranging for an inspection before the house goes on the market. This way the owner has the chance to decide whether to repair any problems or lower the asking price to reflect them. Generally it's a better idea to make the repairs as they usually cost less than a prospective buyer thinks and less than the discount they may insist upon. Buyers like the idea of a preinspected home and you as the seller prevent the possibility of a re-negotiation if an inspector finds something wrong, right before closing. Hereford's quest to locate a cheese plant here is still alive and well, but has been placed on "hold" at the present time by both prospects. Two companies are considering proposals to build plants here, but no definite time frame has been set on announcing the sites. The local economic development committee is still very optimistic about landing at least one of the facilities.

Members of Congress got a pay increase of $4,400 to start this year and they'll get a like increase at the start of 1993. How does this happen when taxpayers are not willing to raise their pay? It's simple. To avoid the wrath of the voters, Congress has declared itself an entitlement program and provided cost-of-living pay increases each year forever.

By putting in the automatic pay increase mechanism, Congress avoids having to go on record as voting to hike their own pay and guarantees a steadily rising income for the lawmakers.

This is not the only way Congress has promoted its perks, pay and privileges. Since 1960 the budget just for the operations of Congress has climbed at a rate which five times that of inflation. That budget is now $2.8 billion a year.

Much of that budget is absorbed by the salaries of high-paid staff members. Today there are more than 1,000 capital staffers who are making over $80,000 a year. Of those, there are 367 staffers whose salaries are above $100,000 a year.

It's time that both the House and Senate followed the same laws as other Americans and cut their bloated staffs.

End of the world?

BY JAMES ROBERTS
Andrews County News

You think our government has problems?

Over in South Korea, the government is trying to stem the influence of doomsayers who are predicting the end of the world in October.

Thus far, more than 20,000 Koreans have quit their jobs and sold their homes in preparation for the end of the world, slated at midnight, Oct. 28, according to one minister and Oct. 10 according to another.

Some soldiers are deserting and college students are leaving college in order to hide in the mountains with other doomsayers to prepare for the seven-year war between good and evil that will follow the return of Jesus, as foretold in the Bible.

Here at home, we see a bright ray of sunshine in this Oct. 28th doomsday. The Dallas Cowboys won't have to play Philadelphia in Irvin--their game is scheduled Sunday, Nov. 1.

But before you delay paying the rent and the monthly bills, you might consider the fact that prosecutors have found that the minister who predicts an end of the world on Oct. 28 has a trunk full of CDs that mature in May, 1993.

We expect it to happen any day now.

Some medical expert will come out and claim that red beans and cornbread will kill you.

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the guy who wrote the book on child care back in the 40s--and was generally wrong on most of it--came out this week against milk. Spock, 89, appeared in Boston with representatives of the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine (PCRM), a non-profit group of 2,000 doctors. The group warned against feeding whole milk to infants, saying it's low in iron, high in fat, and can be contaminated with antibiotics or too much vitamin D. Other foods were suggested--kale, broccoli or fish.

The PCRM is considered "a fringe organization of questionable repute" by the American Medical Association. It's the group that has lobbied hard to stop all testing of animals. Spock, who has been associated with many far-out groups, especially during the Vietnam war, said children should be breast-fed if possible until they are at least two, and then forget milk altogether.

Somehow or another, we can not picture a mother able to talk her children into passing up milk and cookies in order to take on kale or broccoli.

Let's see now, if eggs are too high in cholesterol, bacon too fat, and buttered toast has too many calories, perhaps for breakfast we can pour Gatorade over our Wheaties.

If our medical experts keep finding things wrong with good wholesome foods, one of these days we'll be down to nothing but water and garlic! Spock, schlock!

Debates: front-runner has edge

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - For all the candidates' rehearsals, all the ploys for advantage, the memorable moments in The Great Debates usually are matters of image - or of accident. And they have done more to reinforce than to reverse voter impressions of the men who would be president.

That is not likely to change Sunday night in St. Louis, when President Bush, Democrat Bill Clinton and independent Ross Perot meet in 90 minutes of televised campaign debate.

The embattled president hopes to break another pattern that has held since presidential campaign debates were resumed in 1976 after a 16-year break: the leader going in was the leader coming out, and the winner in November.

This time, that's Clinton, the challenger.

Debates gone by have not produced striking oratory, breakthroughs on issues or disclosures about candidates. In almost every case, they reinforced on camera the images that were already there.

The lasting impressions: a haggard Nixon up against a confident Kennedy; a fumbling Ford in 1976, a defensive Carter in 1980; Reagan the communicator; Dukakis the liberal technocrat.

Bush debated Dukakis twice as 1988 presidential nominee, effectively but without making major campaign waves. Clinton took part in nearly 30 debates or joint forums in his nomination campaign, at times lapsing into intricate policy lectures, first holding his own and then holding his lead.

Each now says the other ought to be rated a debate star, since raising rival expectations makes it easier to claim success. But neither has shown himself a master of the form in prior outings. And Perot is making his campaign debate debut.

Bush recognizes the difficulty of turning things around in campaign debates. "I don't know that a debate has ever decided anything," he said on "Larry King Live" the other night. It was part of a warmup week of talk show campaigning by all the candidates. "We don't think that it's you know, be all, end all," Bush said.

But the president has got to shake up the race somehow if he's going to gain an upset win. A week and a day of intensive debating would seem to be his last, best opening.

Clinton, Bush and Perot meet Sunday in St. Louis, Thursday in Richmond, Va., and a week from Monday in East Lansing, Mich., in the debate series that will play to the biggest TV audience of the campaign. The vice presidential nominees debate on Tuesday in Atlanta.

That forced feeding of televised debates ends two weeks before election eve, and a Clinton lead that stands up then may prove impervious

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

Odessa American on health care:
Gov. Bill Clinton finally fleshed out his health-care proposal. With one minor exception, it resembles longstanding plans by congressional Democrats to impose a version of socialized medicine on America.

The one constructive proposal - boosting from 25 percent to 100 percent the tax exemption for the self-employed - is far overshadowed by the many increases in government power and meddling ...

Not surprisingly, the day after Clinton made his health-care proposal, pharmaceutical and health stocks led a hefty 37-point drop in the stock market ...

Any more tax increases, including indirect levies through a pay-or-play health care system, would depress federal revenues, not raise them, thus increasing the deficit even further ... Clinton's quack cure would apply the leeches of socialism to the body of American health care.

What's needed is a prescription from the free market ... President Bush has come up with such a plan, mixing tax exemptions with reforms that would help small businesses cut medical costs.

--- Oct. 4

Beaumont Enterprise on "New Texas:"
Gov. Ann Richards' new Texas is beginning to look a lot like the old one.

The governor came to office in January 1991 promising to appoint a new breed of leaders for the state's various boards and commissions. She would craft a "New Texas" that would put a greater emphasis on ethical behavior and on acting only in the best interests of the state.

A couple of recent disclosures involving two key appointments have tossed a bucketload of cold water on Richards' stated intentions.

Lena Guerrero quit the Railroad Commission the other day after admitting she lied about her academic record at the University of Texas ...

Selden Hale, former chairman of the state prison board, quit the panel after acknowledging he launched an investigation of fellow board member Josh Allen of Beaumont ...

In the New Texas, Richards might have ... thanked Guerrero and Hale for their years of service, accepted their resignations with regret - but then said she would not tolerate the deceit that Guerrero had perpetrated on her legislative constituents and on Texans everywhere, nor witchhunts of the type that Hale launched against Josh Allen ...

Instead, the governor has played by the rule of the old Texas, which operates under a good ol' boy code that means that it's all right to wink and nod when political allies get caught with their ethics down.

Amarillo Daily News on regulation in agriculture:
As a song says, paranoia strikes deep, and it rarely strikes deeper than it does with so-called consumer advocates.

In their quixotic crusade to, in effect, repeal the industrial revolution, these interest groups tie the hands of farmers and ranchers and boost the price of food production.

The latest target of these groups is pesticides and chemicals used to increase agricultural productivity.

While it is not unreasonable to ask the government to make sure these products do not harm consumers, it is unreasonable to try to block usage of chemicals completely. This is the goal of many of these advocates. ... Consumers have a right to be protected, and government must be careful to prevent harmful chemicals from entering the marketplace.

But to prevent useful practices based only on potential fears does not make sense. ...

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times on high-speed rail:
The prospect of high-speed rail service for the wide-open spaces of Texas is a beguiling one - but it's beginning to look as though the project may be derailed due to its backers' apparent inability to deliver the goods.

The members of the French-American Texas High-Speed Rail Crop. face a Dec. 31 deadline to secure financing worth at least $170 million toward the estimated $6.8 billion total cost of the venture. They told state officials ... they won't be able to do so. ...

Texas needs high-speed rail service. It would be a boon to the state's economy in any number of ways, ranging from the attraction of industry to tourism to easing the strain on Texas' highway network. But a promise is a promise. If the consortium can't live up to its pledge, the whole affair should go back to Square One.

Notes on the Law

"I am writing on behalf of the Software Publishers Association. We have received information (from a disgruntled employee, perhaps) that your organization may be making and using unauthorized copies of our member's software in violation of the federal copyright law."

This would be one way to find out that Wordperfect Corp. or Lotus Development Corp. or some other software publisher believes you are using their software licensed for a single station on more than one computer. Another scenario would be to look up and see a representative of Software Publishers Association and a US Marshall coming in the front door with an Order from a federal judge requiring you to allow Software Publishers Association to analyze your computers to determine whether you are engaged in the unauthorized use of software on more than one computer.

The large software publishers have estimated lost revenue of approximately $10 billion per year because of the unauthorized copying of computer software. In light of these losses, the large software publishers have joined together and formed the Software Publishers Association and have delegated to it the task of stopping the software piracy.

The Software Publishers Association has an 800 number for persons to report suspected piracy of software. It reports that it receives approximately 30 calls per day. The calls are made by disgruntled employees, temporary employees, former employees and consultants.

Another potential development is that there is pending federal legislation which, if passed, will make authorized copying of software a felony, rather than a misdemeanor.

Software Publishers Association has settled numerous claims for amounts in excess of $100,000. But the cost of piracy may be double that amount because as part of any voluntary settlement, the Software Publishers Association requires payment of the cost of the illegally copied software and for the illegally copied software to be destroyed. Thus, the offender's cost is doubled since he must subsequently purchase legal versions of the software. In other words, the offender is not allowed to continue using the illegally copied software even though he is required to pay its costs to the Software Publishers Association.

Specialists: have good food attitude

WASHINGTON (AP) - Milk is good, but then milk is bad. Margarine was good, now it's bad. Red meat is fatty, fish uninspected and chicken carries salmonella.

Saturated? Hydrogenated? Can you eat it? Don't you hate it?

In the latest piece of nutritional revisionism, a preliminary Agriculture Department study Wednesday said margarine increases blood cholesterol levels, a risk factor in heart disease. Last week we heard that milk may be bad for some children.

If all this is more than you can stomach, take a tip from some food specialists.

"Have a positive attitude toward food," says Claude Mallinger vice president of Washington's upscale Sutton Place Gourmet food stores.

"Food is a philosophy. The stomach is the center of your life."

Don't read while you eat and don't believe everything you read about eating, says Robyn Webb, nutritionist and cooking instructor, because keeping up with all the warnings about food can make your head spin and stomach ache.

The latest USDA study showed that oils found in margarine, vegetable shortening and processed foods such as cookies and chicken nuggets may cause heart disease.

When food manufacturers convert vegetable oils to margarine or shortenings that are solid or semisolid at room temperature, the process creates something called trans fatty acids.

Although there are indications that trans fatty acids are similar to saturates in raising blood cholesterol, USDA said available information does not show if such elevation results from the same physiological effects or mechanisms.

This study follows a doctors' report last week that's been disputed by the dairy industry, saying milk sometimes can be dangerous.

"Read your studies and make your own analysis," advises Webb. "Don't ignore it, but look for further research."

She says, for example that "oat bran is wonderful, but whether it reduces cholesterol, we don't know for sure."

She points out, however, that plenty of research has been conducted to link overconsumption of fat to heart disease and cancer. And she concurred that trans fatty acids have long been known to be a problem.

"They've been trying for years to make nutrition general. It is very specific," said Webb, who teaches exclusively low-fat cooking at her "Pinch of Thyme" school in Alexandria, Va., and provides individual nutrition counseling to clients.

She advises people to minimize the amount of fat in their diet and strive for the satisfaction that comes from "dining" rather than just "eating."

"The art of dining has died," she said.

If you don't pay attention to what you eat because you're watching television, reading or driving the car, you won't be satisfied with your meal, says Webb.

Mallinger agrees and frowns on snacking. "Eat three or four meals a day, but none of those snacks people are always keeping in their drawers at the office."

He says he doesn't worry about eating meat, butter, eggs or dairy products, despite the various health warnings, but eats moderately sized, balanced meals and insists on fresh ingredients.

"Banish fried food and all these canned products with chemicals and preservatives," he said. "Nothing is wrong with meat as long as you don't eat a pound of it."

"You have to know yourself," said Mallinger, advising against food you know will make you feel bad. "Food is really the center of our life."

Hereford survives Bulldog uprising, 20-14

The Hereford Whitefaces dodged a Bulldog bullet Friday in Borger. The Herd had to come back after Borger scored first in the District 1-4A opener, then had to hold off the Bulldogs at the end for a 20-14 victory. Hereford is now 4-2 after its fourth straight win, while Borger is 0-6.

Hereford got three touchdowns and 161 yards rushing from tailback Petey Colvin. He outdueled Borger running back Rudy Rangel, who had two touchdowns and 111 yards. Rangel's rushing was offset by the five sacks the Herd recorded for 39 yards in Borger losses.

Borger had its chances for its first win, and the game wasn't over until the final minute. Hereford had three of its sacks during Borger's last two possessions, leading to the end of both drives.

Herd fans may have thought the game was in the bag when Kyle Hansen sacked Borger quarterback Chad Rives deep in Bulldog territory on fourth down with five minutes left in the game. Hereford led 20-14. Hereford took over at the 17, but three plays later Colvin was ruled to have fumbled, although it appeared he was already on the ground when the ball came loose.

"He didn't lose it before he hit the ground," Herd coach Danny Haney said.

Borger covered the ball at the 21, and started moving. They quickly got three first downs--the third on a 20-yard pass to the Hereford 31-yard line. Then the Herd defense stood its ground.

On first down, Hereford's Vince Castillo stopped running back Gene Kemp for a five-yard loss. On second down, Mark Kuper sacked Rives for a two-yard loss. On third down, Borger tried to set up a screen pass from the shotgun formation, but Steven Blea was on top of Rives before the play could develop. The 245-pound Blea steamrolled Rives for a 14-yard loss.

"I'm not going to say I beat (the blocker), because he didn't really block me," Blea said. "I thought (the quarterback) was going to throw the ball, but then I saw he still had it, so I hit him as hard as I could."

Stunts by the linemen were responsible for the sacks. Hereford had been doing the stunts throughout the game, Haney said, and they worked at the perfect time.

"We did the same thing we started with, except we did real good on our end," Haney said. "We were doing the plays when we had to."

Blea's sack made Borger face a fourth down and 26 yards to go situation. Rives threw deep, but Cody Powell was there to intercept it with less than 40 seconds left. The game still wasn't over; Powell was tackled from behind and stripped of the ball. It rolled along the Hereford 10-yard line, teasing the Bulldogs for a few heartbeats until Hereford's Hansen fell on it.

It was a surprise that the game was so close. Borger surprised Hereford by scoring with its first possession. Rives completed a 16-yard pass on third-and-eight, then on the next play, Rangel dashed 49 yards for a touchdown. Kacey Laughery kicked the extra point, and Borger led 7-0 after only 1:47 had elapsed.

"We expected them to pass more than run. It caught us off guard,"

Hansen said. "They ran up the middle. When we filled the middle, he bounced outside, and we couldn't catch up to him."

Hereford answered with three plays and a punt, but the Herd defense forced Borger to punt, too. Chris Brummett gave Hereford's offense a spark when he gathered in a punt at his own 38 and returned it 40 yards to the Borger 22. On the next play, Colvin ran through a big hole and made some nice cuts on the way to the end zone. Greg Coplen's extra point kick made it 7-7 with 6:31 left in the first quarter.

The teams traded punts again, and this time Borger made the most of it. Nathan Williams caught a punt at his own 11 and carried it to the Hereford 37, where Cody Powell made a touchdown-saving ankle tackle.

Borger struggled but went for it on fourth-and-seven. Rives' pass bounced off Powell's hand and into the hands of Eric Perry, who was on the ground, for a 16-yard gain. On the next play Rangel ran 18 yards around left end for a touchdown. Laughery's kick put Borger back up by seven with 1:55 left in the first.

Hereford slowed the pace up with a 63-yard scoring drive that took 14 plays and chewed up six and a half minutes. Colvin did the bulk of the work--55 yards on eight carries--and got the reward on a three-yard run. Coplen's kick tied it back up with 7:37 left in the half.

Moments later, Borger got a break, then gave it right back. A Joel Gaytan sack forced Borger to punt, but Jason Tatarevich muffed the punt and Borger recovered at the 50. Two plays later, though, Alex Phillips threw an ill-advised fullback pass and Hereford's Ronnie Gomez intercepted at the Hereford 30.

A clipping penalty brought back a nice return, and Hereford started on its own 32. The Herd went 68 yards in 10 plays, including two third-down conversions: a seven-yard pass from Sanderson to Tatarevich, and a 35-yard bootleg run by Sanderson on third-and-

Harvesters upset Demons

Pampa pulled a 38-14 upset Friday at Dumas, putting the Harvesters on track to defend their District 1-4A title.

Pampa was 0-5 after a killer pre-district schedule, but now is 1-0 in district. Pampa leads along with Randall and Hereford. Randall, now 5-1 overall, clobbered Caprock 47-22 Friday. Hereford won 20-14 at Borger to improve to 4-2.

Borger, Caprock and Dumas all are 0-1 in district. Dumas and Caprock are both 2-4 overall, while Borger is 0-6.

Wakefield beats Braves as Van Slyke comes through

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The slowest starter in the majors turned around Pittsburgh's slow start in the NL playoffs.

Tim Wakefield, the rookie knuckleballer who throws about 50 mph, pitched a five-hitter Friday night as the Pirates beat the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and closed to 2-1 in the best-of-7 series.

"It was exciting to finally have a dream come true," Wakefield said. "A rookie taking part in the League Championship Series, a manager having the confidence in you to have you start Game 3. I'm not an emotional person, but I may never have that chance again."

Atlanta had a chance to finish off the Pirates after winning 5-1 and 13-5 back home. Instead, the Pirates try to get even tonight when Doug Drabek (15-11) pitches against John Smoltz (15-12).

"We're still in the drivers' seat," Atlanta's Sid Bream said. "Nobody on this club's going to lose sleep over what happened. This isn't going to affect us at all."

Pittsburgh's bats, just 12 for 64 in the first two games, started to wake up. Don Slaught homered in the fourth, Andy Van Slyke doubled in the sixth and scored on Jeff King's double, and Van Slyke hit a sacrifice fly in the seventh following Gary Redus' single - his third hit - and Jay Bell's double.

"The only disappointment I had until this point in the series was not that we didn't hit, or that we really didn't pitch that good, but that we didn't play the way the Pittsburgh Pirates are capable of playing," manager Jim Leyland said. "Down in Atlanta... we really didn't play the way the Pittsburgh Pirates play. Tonight you saw the way the Pittsburgh Pirates play."

Tom Glavine, the 1991 NL Cy Young winner, lost to the Pirates in the playoffs for the third time in two seasons. He said he regretted two pitches: Slaughter's home run and Bell's double.

"I felt pretty good," Glavine said. "It was just a matter of going out there and getting comfortable."

Glavine, who gave up seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, was throwing a lot harder than Wakefield, the 26-year-old right-hander who went 8-1 after he came up July 31. He baffled the Braves with the knuckle, striking out three and walking one.

"I think he was having a lot of fun out there. We were just along for the ride," Van Slyke said. "Some rookie, huh?"

Wakefield was the first rookie to start an NL playoff game since Philadelphia's Charles Hudson in 1983. Wakefield also threw the Pirates' first complete-game victory in the playoffs since Bert Blyleven in 1979.

"Some of the knuckleballs are nasty, but not every one of them," Justice said. "You've got to catch up to the ones that aren't. I hit two balls real hard, but they were standing in the right spot."

(See NLCS, Page 7A)

Follow the blockers

Hereford tailback Petey Colvin followed his blockers for 161 yards and three touchdowns on 32 carries in Friday's win at Borger. Blocking here are Ben Celaya (57) and Craig Hiltbrunner (60).

CORRECTION

In Friday's report of seventh-grade football, an error was made on the scoring in the Maroon 7th grade A team game. The team lost a close 26-24 contest to Valleyview. Two touchdowns were scored by Tate Head, while Johnny Hafziger scored once and also caught a pass for a two-point conversion.

Under pressure

Borger quarterback Chad Rives feels the heat from Hereford's Kyle Hansen (30) and Shawn Fogo (13).

11. Colvin ran it in from three yards out, but Copen missed the kick, making it 20-14 with 1:43 left in the half. Though Borger threatened at the end, they didn't come close in the third quarter. Hereford outgained Borger in the period 107 yards to five. Borger kept the score close by forcing a fumble and by stopping the Herd on fourth down, both deep in Borger territory.

Pittsburgh was shut out by the Braves in its final three playoff games at Three Rivers Stadium last year. The streak reached 31 innings before Slaughter's homer tied it in the fifth, an inning after Sid Bream's home run put the Braves ahead. After King's double gave Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead, Atlanta tied the score in the seventh on Ron Gant's second home run of the series.

Then came Van Slyke's sacrifice fly off Kent Mercker, who had just relieved Glavine. The left-hander, who got out of trouble in Game 7 of last year's World Series when Kent Hrbek hit into a double play, usually overpowers Van Slyke. The outfielder was hitting 1 for 8 against Mercker. "He made me look real bad in Atlanta and I was trying not to strike out," Van Slyke said. "I was able to get the ball up and almost hit it out." "Any time something happened for us, the fans were cheering," Redus said.

Clemens-to-Texas rumor circulating

DALLAS (AP) - The Texas Rangers, which stunned the baseball world this year by acquiring slugger Jose Canseco from the Oakland A's, may lure pitcher Roger Clemens from the Boston Red Sox, according to a newspaper report. However the Red Sox have strongly denied any deal involving their ace pitcher. "There's no foundation to that report at all," Lou Gorman, the Red Sox' general manager, said Friday night of The Dallas Morning News report. "It's never, never, never been discussed. It's ridiculous, just ridiculous." The Red Sox are interested in obtaining American League home run champion Juan Gonzalez as part of the deal, the Morning News said, quoting unidentified major league and club sources. Rangers managing general partner George W. Bush confirmed to the paper that the Rangers have contacted Boston about Clemens, but Bush did not say who would be traded away. "It's a lot of baloney," said Dick Bresciani, vice president for public relations for the Red Sox. "It's ridiculous." "Roger Clemens isn't involved in any trade talks." Clemens, 30, a three-time Cy Young Award winner, was 18-11 this season with a 2.41 ERA.

A quick check of the records from the Mini-Boat Bass Club reveals that one (and frequently both) placed in the top three money positions in 85 percent of the tournaments they entered.

While these guys are proficient with all artificial lures, their favorite baits include a white buzz bait or spinnerbait (to find the active fish); black and white ringworm or salt craw (to catch the quality fish); and a weightless plastic frog (for suspended inactive fish). After years of fishing every weekend, Ken and Bob have traveled to every decent bass lake in our part of the world. My favorite observation about these two living legends of the fishing world is the fact that they still will interrupt a bass tournament if the crappie or the striper start biting.

The legend grew in 1992 as Ken made up a 29-pound deficit during the last two tournaments and won the coveted Angler of the Year award in the Mini-Boat Bass Club. If you run into either of these legends, challenge him to a boat race or a wrestling match, but for goodness sakes, don't bet any big money on a fishing contest.

The fall black bass stocking project for Lake Meredith is gathering steam and money from interested anglers. Listed below are some of the anglers who have made a donation:

- Mini-Boat Bass Club
- Golden Spread Bass Club
- Dub Poyner at Canadian River Cafe
- Damon Admire of Dumas
- Dr. Virgil Pate of Amarillo
- Gordon Cummings of Spearman
- Roy Pointer of Perryton
- Roy and Mary Alderson of Pampa
- Spencer Harris of Amarillo
- Mike Hullet of Spearman
- Lee Harkleroad of Liberal, Kans.

Our goal is to quickly raise $5,000 and purchase 15,000 bass. We have pledges and money of nearly $2,000 during the first week of fund raising. Remember: Each dollar will buy three Florida bass of the 3-6-inch size.

Special recognition will be given at Outdoor World '93 to all anglers who raise or donate $100. If we can find 30 additional anglers who will commit for $100, victory is ours. If you want to help, please send your donations to: Bass-in-Lake-Meredith; 3214 Parker; Amarillo, Texas 79109.

Cowboys must bounce back against Seahawks

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) - The way the Dallas Cowboys played against the Philadelphia Eagles, they won't exactly be swaggering into Sunday's matchup with the lowly Seattle Seahawks.

The Cowboys are 17-point favorites over the Seahawks, who lost starting quarterback Kelly Stouffer indefinitely with a dislocated shoulder in a 17-6 loss to the San Diego Chargers.

"The thing we have to remember is that the Philadelphia game was just the fourth game of the season," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "It's a big thing to make sure this game doesn't linger on. It could have a negative impact for the season. We've got to get back on track fast."

Seattle (1-4) has fallen on hard times with bad luck and injuries.

Dan McGwire, who replaced Stouffer, was intercepted three times and sacked three times by the Chargers.

Seattle coach Tom Flores described the Seahawks' season as a "nightmare. Every time you turn around something happens. It's frustrating to everybody."

But not as frustrating as being undefeated, then getting slaughtered 31-7 by the Philadelphia Eagles which is what happened to the Cowboys, 3-1.

"I don't think we'll overlook Seattle," Johnson said. "We've got to put Philadelphia behind us. We'll get another shot at them (Nov. 1) later in the season."

Like McGwire, Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman will be coming off a three-interception game.

"I was disappointed in a couple of Troy's interceptions," Johnson said. "He was just trying to make things happen and sometimes you have bad things happen."

Dallas and Seattle are infrequent foes.

The Cowboys lead the series 3-1 but the teams haven't met since the Seahawks won 31-14 on Thanksgiving Day, 1986.

Flores does have a 2-1 record against Dallas from his days with the Oakland-Los Angeles Raiders.

McGwire, who played collegiately at San Diego State, saw his first regular season action against Indianapolis on Sept. 29. He played the entire second half in the 17-7 loss to the Chargers.

"We'll try to simplify the offense for him," Flores said. "We don't want to give him too many things to think about."

The Seahawks are off to their worst start since 1981. They have averaged only 104.6 passing yards per game, worst in the NFL and 95 yards fewer than the league average.

Seattle has scored only 8.6 points per game, better only than New England's, 8.5.

The game has a noon kickoff in Texas Stadium and is sold out.

Moon closes on pro record

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) - Warren Moon has thrown more than 28 miles of spirals, putting him within flinging range of a never-passed mile marker.

The Houston Oilers exquisite passer already thrown for 50,052 yards in his professional career - roughly half in the Canadian Football League, half in the NFL. That's nearly 28 miles of pass completions.

Just 484 more yards will give Moon the all-time professional record for yards passing, moving ahead of former CFL star Ron Lancaster. One great day Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals would do it.

"Isn't that something, when you can have over 50,000 yards? That's unbelievable," Oilers coach Jack Pardee said. "Of course, he did not quite half of it in Canada. When you step into the NFL and have the same success, it means he's very special."

Moon threw for 21,288 yards in the CFL and has 28,824 with Houston. He's second on the all-time pro yardage list, having passed his way past Fran Tarkenton (47,003), Dan Fouts (43,040) and Johnny Unitas (40,239).

"It's really nice to be in that type of company," Moon said. "I don't know how much credence is put on that record down here because all of the yards weren't established down here."

"For a guy who came out of Washington that nobody really thought could play quarterback, to still be around here 15 years later and have thrown for over 50,000 yards, I'm very proud of my accomplishments."

He's showing no sign of slowing down as he reaches the milestone. Moon has thrown for 1,145 yards already while leading Houston to a 3-1 mark. The one defeat found him at one of his lowest points as a pro, throwing five interceptions in a season-opening 29-24 loss to Pittsburgh.

Moon has recovered nicely. He's the No. 2-ranked passer in the American Conference, leading an offense that's got the top-rated passing game in the league.

He's having to make an adjustment this season. Teams are using a lot of defensive backs and zone coverages to try to take the big play out of Houston's run-and-shoot. That means Moon has to be patient and settle for fewer yards per completion at times.

He threw for just 175 yards two weeks ago in a 27-0 victory over San Diego, his lowest total since he threw for 171 against Miami last October. But he didn't throw an interception and wasn't sacked, signs he's not trying to force passes.

"I'm getting there," he said. "Teams are really playing us different than in the past. They're really trying to slow us down and play real soft and not let us have the big plays. I'm having to nickel-and-dime it a lot down the field."

No one's really nickel-and-dimed the Bengals (2-2). They haven't had to. Jay Schroeder, Brett Favre and Rich Gannon all went for big-money plays, and got them.

The Bengals had the worst pass defense in the league last year with their reaction-style defense - let the offense run its play and react to it. They've gone to an attack philosophy under coach Dave Shula - rush the passer and try to force mistakes.

It's paying off in 20 sacks, one fewer than for the entire 1991 season. But it also means big plays when a quarterback gets the ball off - Cincinnati's man-to-man coverage has been spotty, its zone defense leaky.

Rich Gannon threw for a career-high four touchdowns Minnesota's 42-7 drubbing of the Bengals two weeks ago. He completed short passes. He completed long passes. He essentially had his way.

"I'm not happy with the way we played a week ago," defensive coordinator Ron Lynn said. "I don't think we're necessarily greatly gifted at this point, but I think we'll be better. If we can get turnovers, this will be a game that's interesting to watch."

If they don't? Moon will end up a few tosses shy of his record.

Rookies take time to adjust

By MIKE FISHER
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

IRVING (AP) - Faster than he could flex one of his considerable biceps, Robert Jones evolved from a kid from Nottaway High School in Blackstone, Va., into a major-college freshman All-America at East Carolina.

Though at times it's come slower than some people assume predecessors Eugene Lockhart and Jack Del Rio ran the 40-yard dash, the Dallas Cowboys rookie first-rounder now seems on the verge of evolving again.

"Here, you want me to stand out among the standouts," said Jones. "I'm trying to be a man among boys. But right now, I'm just a man in the middle of a group of men."

But Jones, the Cowboys' starting middle linebacker, made impressive progress from his first three weeks to his fourth game, Monday's 31-7 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles. Jones was in on 16 tackles, 10 of them solos. In his first three games, Jones made only nine solo tackles and contributed nine assists.

Before yesterday's practice, Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson sought out Jones to compliment him on his progress.

"I told how much better he played in the (Week 3) Phoenix game than he had previously, and how he played even better against Philadelphia," Johnson said. "He was extremely active. He let his ability take over. He really played like the guy we were looking for when we drafted him."

As much as he has struggled at times - his paltry three-game figures came despite playing in a defense designed to give him T-ball-like opportunities to hit away - Jones' early-game problems were no different than those experienced by '90 and '91 Dallas rookies who join him on the first team.

And his Week 4 development, which has him leading the Cowboys in tackles, outs him somewhat ahead of his contemporaries. When the Cowboys took the field against the Eagles, Jones was joined by first-string teammates Emmitt Smith, Russell Maryland, Larry Brown, Erik Williams and Alvin Harper. Like him, they stalled on the launching pad.

"Slow starts are something every one of those guys went through," said Cowboys defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt. "For the first few weeks of last season, Erik Williams and some of those guys weren't even ready to put on a uniform. Now, they're some of our best players."

Smith, of course, is the '91 NFL rushing titlist and one of the biggest stars in the league. But his Cowboys start hardly hinted at greatness; he had two carries for two yards in the '90 opener and six carries for 11 yards in Week 2.

"I still think I could have been productive if they would have given me the ball," said Smith, who sat out his first training camp in a contract dispute. "But they didn't know what I could do yet."

Williams, the 6-foot-6, 320-pounder from Central (Ohio) State, is now counted on as a long-term fixture at right tackle. But a year ago at this time, he was a fixture on the Dallas sideline. Not until Week 6 did he contribute anything on the field. Not until the ninth game of the season did he make an appearance as a starter. In one half lining up against Ken Harvey of the Phoenix Cardinals, he permitted three sacks.

"I just tried to understand that every play, I was learning a lesson," Williams said.

Harper, a first-round receiver from Tennessee, finished the '91 regular season with 20 catches. Seventeen of those came in the second half of the schedule, after his Week 9 elevation into the starting lineup.

Maryland, the University of Miami product and league's top pick in the 1991 draft, was labeled "a bust" by some when it took until the 10th game of the year for him to earn a start at defensive tackle. But all of his 4.5 sacks and 30 of his 33 tackles that season came in the second half of the year.

Brown, the TCU cornerback selected in the 12th round of the '91 draft, jumped into the starting lineup in Week 4 of that season and has streamlined there. During the summer of '91, he was considered somewhat of a fluke. And a flake. He's now considered a cornerstone of the defense.

"I don't think I was in on one play from scrimmage my first three weeks," Brown said. "Then they stuck me in there and it was incredible. But it gets better. You learn. You adjust. Robert will do the same thing."

Jones has heard that now for a month. Coaches alternate between demanding he be patient and demanding that he be perfect.

"I know that everyone on every team in the league goes through what I've gone through," Jones said. "But I was a freshman All-America in college, man. I'm not used to hearing people say I'm struggling," and even if I improved (against Philadelphia), I don't feel it was anything great, because we lost. I hate when we lose."

Eagles-Chiefs game on NFL marquee this week

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
The Eagles are soaring. The Chiefs are reeling.

Doesn't sound like a classic matchup, yet Philadelphia's visit to Kansas City might be the highlight of Sunday's NFL action.

The Eagles, coming off a 31-7 rout of Dallas that established them as the class of the NFC at 4-0, seem to have everything going in their favor. They lead the NFL in total defense and rushing defense and are third against the pass. Philadelphia has yielded only 34 points.

And the Eagles' offensive attack is no slouch, either, especially on the ground, where it ranks third.

Kansas City, meanwhile, fell apart - as it always does - late in last weekend's game at Denver. John Elway - as he always does - picked apart the Chiefs in rallying the Broncos for a 20-19 win.

"I can assure you," Chiefs coach

Marty Schottenheimer said, "that that game will not affect what happens Sunday against Philadelphia. We have a history of playing well after a disappointing loss."

There is very little history between these teams. They have met only once, a 21-20 victory for the visiting Eagles in 1972.

Not having seen the Eagles before won't cloud Schottenheimer's opinion.

"They look pretty good," Schottenheimer said of the only unbeaten team in the NFC.

Randall Cunningham has looked great. Coming off major knee surgery which sidelined him last season, he has hit 64 of 91 passes for 828 yards, eight touchdowns and only one interception. And the Chiefs struggle against mobile quarterbacks.

Not that Cunningham considers himself a scrambler.

"I feel more comfortable in the pocket than out of the pocket,"

Cunningham said. "I know I'm more patient now. And I've gained maturity from that year of watching from up top (in the press box). I used to come out and hurry and try to make things happen. It's not about that. It's about dropping back normally, like you do in practice."

Elsewhere Sunday, the other unbeaten, AFC East leader Miami, is at home against Atlanta. Also, it's Phoenix at the New York Giants; Pittsburgh at Cleveland; San Francisco at New England; Seattle at Dallas; Buffalo at the Los Angeles Raiders; Houston at Cincinnati; the New York Jets at Indianapolis; and the Los Angeles Rams at New Orleans.

On Monday night, Denver is at Washington.

Off this week are Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay, Minnesota, San Diego and Tampa Bay.

Six-man is whole other game

By STEVEN SMITH
Corsicana Daily Sun

TRINIDAD, Texas (AP) - Saying six-man football is the same as the 11-man game is a little like saying residents of south Louisiana and Paris speak the same language. They both speak what they call French, but it's sure not the same.

A look at one week's scores show that the six-man sport bears only slight resemblance to its 11-player cousin: Cherokee 84, Zephyr 70; Buckholts 71, Bynum 43; Fort Hancock 45, Sierra Blanca 26; Trinidad 46, Aquilla 30. A defensive battle it is not.

"It's not boring," said Trinidad head coach Charlie Wigley. "It's like fast-break football."

The game is played on a field 80 yards long by 40 yards wide, rather than the 100-by-50 field used in 11-man, and 15 yards are needed for a first down. After scoring a touchdown a team may try to kick for the conversion - worth two points because of the greater difficulty in getting a kick off with less blocking - or run or pass for one point. A field goal is worth four points.

An offense must have at least three players on the line of scrimmage and the player who takes the snap is not eligible to run the ball beyond the line but he may pass to any player. To make the ball handler more of a threat, many teams have one of the running backs take the snap and then pitch the ball back to the quarterback. He may then run or pass.

Jed Johnson is one of five seniors on the Trinidad High school team, four of which have played football in the small town since junior high. His group came up through the seventh and eighth grades playing six-man, but the Trojan high schoolers were still playing the full-scale version when they were freshmen.

"In 11-man you're part of a moving team ... if you mess up you still have 10 other players out there to make the play," the starting defensive end said. "Here, if you mess up, it's six the other way."

In a game that Wigley describes as "like you're in the backyard," the ability to throw the football is extremely important. If a team is unable to put together a good passing game the opposing defense can play up close and shut down the running plays.

"If you can throw, you can do anything," the first-year head coach said. "There's no way you can stop a good passing team."

Quarterback Joey Mason, a transfer from 11-man Athens, said he has noticed the six-man version requires more full-game action from the athletes and the quarterback's role is changed.

"One of the main differences I've noticed is you have to be better conditioned," the junior play-caller said. "You've also got to learn to throw on the run, you can't just set up and throw."

The participants do have little rest during games; the smaller rosters mean more athletes play on offense and defense. There is rarely a chance to relax when a drawn-out scoring drive may consist of five plays.

The play of each athlete is also more important in six-man, where there are fewer people to make up for one's mistakes. A player's strengths and weaknesses are magnified in a game that relies more on individual talent than the traditional version of the game.

"All you need is three kids and you can dominate," Wigley explained. "You've got to get a quarterback, a big time running back and a kid who can go out and catch the ball."

Tim Walden played his junior high football in Red Oak before moving to Trinidad before his freshman year. He never played six-man until his sophomore season two years ago.

"I didn't think I'd like it at first," the senior center said. "But it's more competitive, I really think."

At 5-9, 180 pounds, he might be too small to play on some schools' offensive lines. But in six-man, where he describes the difference in size as "humongous," Walden is one of the bigger players.

The scaled-down game also gives the center the opportunity to put his receiving talents to use. "I think I caught two passes last game," Walden said of the Trojans' win over Aquilla.

"It's kind of funny sometimes," Wigley said, grinning. "You're just not used to throwing to number 77."

On offense, most teams run a variation of an I- or T-formation, with the quarterback taking the snap directly from the center. In this offense, the two linemen are set close to the center and are primarily used for blocking.

When the more conservative game doesn't work, a type of spread offense - sort of a six-man run-and-shoot - might be called for. One or both linemen split far off to the side, bringing defenders with them, and the quarterback takes a pitch from another player who took the snap. Using this offense the defense is stretched thin over the field and the quarterback is a threat as a runner and a passer. A spread offense can put points on the board in a hurry. Basically, almost anything goes.

"It's up to your imagination, what you can run offensively," the coach said with a laugh. "Whatever your talent will let you do."

Another aspect of the game not seen in the full-scale version is the mercy ending. After the half, anytime a team builds a 45-point lead they automatically win. But coaches say they never feel truly comfortable - regardless of how big a lead their team holds - in a game where scores come so frequently.

"You're constantly on the attack, no matter what," said Wigley. "You can be up by 30 at halftime and lose, easy."

Sam Allen, a linebacker and a fullback, looks at football from a purist's point of view - clean tackling and perfect execution of the task at hand. Playing defense in six-man gives him the chance to prove there's more to football than just being able to deliver a big hit.

"You've got to make sure you make the tackle instead of just trying to knock somebody's head off," the Trojan senior said. "If you try to knock somebody's head off and miss, they're gone for a touchdown."

Most teams rely on a zone defense to try and stop opposing offenses. A man-to-man scheme leaves no one to take up the slack if one player falters. A zone will allow receivers to make a short catch most of the time, but with 15-yards needed for a first down a short gain doesn't help much.

Kickoffs are rarely the booming, long drives that are desired in 11-man. A long kick spreads the coverage team too thin. Six-man kickoffs are usually squibbed to try to give the special team tacklers time to get downfield.

The senior members of the Trinidad Trojan football teams don't kid themselves into thinking their sport is very popular or even very well known. In Texas, 11-man football is king and the smaller game is relegated to second-class status.

"A lot of people you talk to have never heard of six-man football," said Jason McCurdy, an offensive end. "They'll say, 'Well, how do you play it?'"

Jeff Cox, whose older brother Jason was a all-state choice last year at safety, said his duties at cornerback and tailback aren't all that different

Harper has mixed feelings about possible trade

By JENNIFER BRIGGS
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
CARROLLTON, Texas (AP) - If only the plumber, the bank teller, the guy who sells roses at the traffic light or anyone else we interact with daily were this congenial and unassuming.

But Derek Harper isn't just anyone. He is a professional basketball player, a millionaire many times over. You'd never know it if you didn't know who Derek Harper is.

His identity and the attention he receives are nooses of notoriety the Dallas Mavericks guard cannot escape.

He hates being a guy who wants to be traded. People will think he's being selfish. He wants to be traded, though, but not because he has any conflicts with Dallas, the city or team management.

He loves the area. It is home, from the collie who greets him at his doorway each evening to the same fan who yells hello every night from the seat above the walkway at Reunion Arena.

He wants to leave to play on a winner and, he says, because years on a bad team shorten a player's career. With Rolando Blackman gone, Harper will, more than ever, be required to carry a team that might not win 15 games in the upcoming season.

And, there are the kids, Darius, 7, Danielle, 5, and Dana, 2, to consider. And a spouse who must sometimes bite her lip when he is moody or depressed. He snaps a lot more this summer because of the fall he faces. Sheila notices the uncommon mood swings.

"It's hard to be nice all the time," Harper says. "I'm human, I ain't no UFO. I brush my teeth, if I don't eat I get skinny and sick. People act like you're someone special, like you aren't human. Who are we - we're just like everybody else."

The kids don't understand it when their dad loses a pingpong game. They are always asking why his team loses so many games.

"I don't want to be selfish," Harper says, "but I've shared my fortune, I've given to others, but I believe in looking out for myself. I have kids to think about. I'd like to play basketball until I'm 40, to get as much out of it as I possibly can."

"Being on a losing team, being here, shortens my years. It's hard on you emotionally. It's hard on you physically because of the workload."

"It's bittersweet. It's home - I'll miss Dallas," he says, as if it's a foregone conclusion he'll be traded.

"It's been great on and off the court. I look forward to going down the toll road to Reunion every night."

He pauses and makes an excuse, as if one has to excuse being human. He admits he has dreaded a few of those drives, more so in the past year than ever before.

He is playing for a losing team. The thought of autumn, and training camp opening soon, depresses him this year. Maintaining strength for personal bests keeps him going.

"It would be easy to quit working out," he says. "If I thought about the situation enough and thought about wanting to be traded and maybe not being traded and continuing to play here, well that would be enough to drive you coo-coo."

He could work any job he had to. When it's all done, shoot, he could work at a normal job, behind a desk or behind a forklift.

"Just so I had my family," he says. "I think my kids would have a harder time handling it than me because I grew up poor and shared a five-bedroom house and they were born into this."

"I think when you have success after what I had you appreciate it more."

It wasn't all poor. Some Christmases there were bicycles. But some nights there was no dinner.

He has worked hard jobs, none harder than that construction job that lasted all of two weeks.

"When you come from where I come from, this stuff, this basketball and money and the hype, this stuff is petty," he says.

The real stuff is back at home. The real stuff is inside a sensitive person, so vulnerable inside, so easily shaken to tears by the mere sight of a handicapped person. So quick to think of the other path he could have chosen.

"Roy Tarpley," he says, introducing the subject of his former teammate. "That could have been me. That could be anybody. He was single with time on his hands making $500,000 a year, going to nightclubs. If I wasn't married, I'd be hangin' out all the time."

"It's hard to keep a good balance. The only thing that has made the difference is my work ethic, God watching over me and my mom's prayers."

"I could have been a thug real easy."

He alternately can't stand it and can't believe it when people put him on a pedestal.

Like at his sister's wedding two weeks ago. They were making a big deal of who he was.

"It was her day," he says. "I didn't want them making a point of who I was. That's the hype life. That's not the life for me. This is my life, the real life that is important to me."

He gestures to wife Sheila and mom in the kitchen, the furniture in the den, the collection of Disney plates on the shelf and the love in a little girl's eyes as she swings on his leg.

If there could be one improvement in his life, other than a trade to a better team, it would be spiritual growth.

"I need more God in my life," he said. "I do OK for two or four weeks, then I don't. I need to go on and make a dedication to God for life. My goal is to get to heaven. That is my one goal."

He doesn't wear his Jesus on his sleeve. But faith is a mainstay of his life.

His upbringing and his God keep him humble.

You'd never know it has been the most miserable summer of his professional life.

It has also been a wonderful summer. He car pools to karate lessons and ballet class. He sort of roller skates. He gets the kids to go with him to Rangers games and just like any other dad, engages in that futile struggle of dad-explains-the-game vs. child-demands-various-expensive-food-items.

There are the quick morning runs alone and the long afternoons in the pool eating salads with the kids and inflatable whatchamacalits with the long necks. The kids make pallets on the floor in the master bedroom and sometimes they get to sleep there all night.

It's a far different setting than Derek grew up in.

His mom, Wilma, who drove all night from Florida to escape Hurricane Andrew, brags on Derek like he's the only child she ever had, not the oldest son of 11 children she raised alone by mopping floors, waiting tables and any other kind of work she could find to do for 16 hours a day.

This is the son who mopped floors, too, for money and to be with mom.

"I'd do anything to be near my mom," he says. "I was a momma's boy and still am, tied to her apron. I washed dishes in the hotel where she worked. I mopped floors in buildings she cleaned. I'm still a momma's boy."

Just like everyone else with free time, he likes to shoot pool with his brother and the bull with his childhood friends.

The biggest disappointment of his life is living it without a father. A guy can't talk to his mom about sex and stuff like that.

"I could, but there was just some stuff about certain things you just wouldn't talk to your mother about, you know what I'm sayin'?"

"And I wish I'd had a dad to take me fishing and to baseball games." Or guide in him during his career, of which there have been few low points. Oh, there was the playoff game when he dribbled away the final six seconds thinking the Mavs were ahead. The game was tied and the Lakers won in overtime.

His father called once, back when Derek was at the University of Illinois on his way to being a first-round draft choice.

"I was like, 'Hell with this,'" Harper said. "That may not sound right, but hey, I'm human and that's the way I felt."

"My sister talks to him on the phone quite a lot. I think she wants to have a father so bad."

Harper wants his kids to have so much more than phone calls in the dead of winter and a stiff photograph to remind them where they get their well-chiseled cheekbones and their outgoing spirit.

So he asks his kids every day to tell him they love him.

He plays Nintendo when he's tired and the VCR even when he's sleepy. He drives those little girls to ballet even if they do scream at boys for no reason.

Because Derek wants it to be better.

He figured his life would have turned out better with a father.

Right now, better is a good life for his family. And, he never thought he'd say it, but better is somewhere else.

SIX-MAN

from what they would be in 11-man football - everything just happens faster.

"Eleven-man seems like it's slow motion compared to six-man," he explained.

Six-man football will never approach the popularity of its 11-player cousin, and the members of the Trinidad Trojans accept that. But six-man is their game and they play it for the same reasons any other group takes part in the sport.

"In six-man, everybody gets a little glory," McCurdy noted. "But in 11-man there's only a few people who get anything."

In the end, there's still running, passing and tackling. It is football. But six-man isn't the same old ballgame.

Bush-Quayle: farm vote may impact election

WASHINGTON (AP) - Suddenly, the farm vote is looking like a crucial factor in this year's presidential campaign.

Farmers haven't always had so much clout in this campaign; only recently were farm issues discussed in more than passing by President Bush or Democrat Bill Clinton.

But both campaigns now agree that growers could help decide the race in some of the key toss-up states. Some say farmers could even tip the election.

"Both campaigns are just waking up to the farm vote and farmers' needs," says Mike Dunn of the National Farmers Union. "They're looking for every vote they can, and the rural vote suddenly looms very important. Here you've got a block of folks that could have a real impact in these states."

Clayton Yeutter, Bush's deputy campaign manager, agreed.

"The farm vote may decide this election," Yeutter predicted Tuesday in announcing a coalition of more than 300 farmers, agribusiness owners and rural leaders who support the president.

Yeutter said several farm states ringing the Great Lakes are especially critical to Bush's chances of holding on to the White House, including Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania. And the farm vote in Texas, one of the biggest electoral prizes, will be a factor.

Democrats also see the farm and rural vote being potentially decisive in some of the important swing states, said Miles Goggans, director of Farmers & Ranchers '92, an independent committee of farm leaders that supports Clinton.

Goggans noted Texas, some of the Rust Belt states, along with North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia and Oklahoma.

Farm residents account for just 1.9 percent of the nation's population. But growers' fortunes - or lack thereof - can influence the economies of rural communities and their businesses.

"People often underestimate the significance of the farm vote. They evaluate it superficially and see that farmers are only 2 percent of the population, where they used to be 20 to 25 percent," Yeutter said. "What they fail to comprehend is that this is a politically astute group of people with influence beyond their numbers."

Farmers, known for voting faithfully, are suffering low prices for their crops this year, especially corn. Yeutter believes Bush still will capture the farm vote, but said the president won't fare as well with growers as the GOP usually does.

The president has been raining money on farm country since last month. He's announced a string of plans to boost farm income by expanding the market for corn-based ethanol and speeding some subsidy payments. The administration also has promised to increase export subsidies and credit guarantees to spur sales of U.S. wheat and other farm products overseas.

Clinton, meanwhile, discussed farm issues in a speech in Iowa last month and has said that despite his endorsement of the North American Free Trade Agreement he is concerned about the impact on some farmers, particularly fruit and vegetable growers.

The two campaigns, however, have few major differences over basic farm policy, although they have squabbled over Bush's management of federal farm programs and Clinton's approach to environmental regulations that could affect farmers.

AgriPro obtains wheat injunction

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan.--AgriPro Biosciences Inc., on Sept. 23 was granted a temporary injunction against United Farm Industries Inc. of Plainview for alleged violations of the Plant Variety Protection Act (PVPA) for illegally selling the proprietary wheat varieties Thunderbird and Hawk.

The injunction, issued by Judge Sam R. Cummings of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas in Lubbock, restrains United Farm Industries from directly or indirectly engaging in acts prohibited by the PVPA. This includes, but is not limited to, advertising, selling or delivery of any variety of wheat seed for seed purposes for which AgriPro holds a certificate of plant variety protection, without permission from AgriPro.

Under the provisions of the PVPA, a plant breeder such as AgriPro is granted exclusive rights to a protected variety for reproducing and marketing that seed for planting purposes.

The injunction is part of an ongoing effort by AgriPro to prevent illegal sales of protected seed varieties. Lost revenue from illegal sales threatens continuing research efforts. AgriPro recently obtained a temporary injunction in Oklahoma and a permanent injunction in Melvin, for similar violations. Warren H. Melles, president of AgriPro, says his company will continue to aggressively protect its rights under the PVPA.

AgriPro Bioscience Inc., based in Shawnee Mission, Kan. is among the 10 largest seed companies in the United States and holds PVPA certificates from the U.S. Department of Agriculture for 29 certified wheat varieties currently available. AgriPro has developed and marketed certified seed wheat varieties for the past 20 years and is one of the major research and development leaders in wheat seed biotechnology.

Corn yields up; prices remain flat

WASHINGTON (AP) - A nearly perfect growing season means U.S. farmers may harvest the largest corn crop on record, but demand is flat despite significantly lower prices.

"The really frustrating thing is that the lower prices don't get you a darn thing," says Susan Keith, spokeswoman for the National Corn Growers Association.

The recession at home and hard financial times abroad may be dampening demand for the crop, which the Agriculture Department on Thursday forecast at 8.94 billion bushels. If realized, this year's harvest would be the largest on record. The previous high was 8.88 billion bushels in 1985.

Growers, however, could see their prices slip well below costs as they replenish storage bins, which had become virtually empty after several years of drought withered crops around the country.

USDA predicted corn prices of $1.85 to $2.25 a bushel, down from $2.37 last year and $2.28 in 1990. Some growers contend they need at least $2.50 a bushel to break even.

Although federal payments to farmers rise when the market price falls, only a portion of their crop is subsidized. Farmers can sometimes make up for the low prices if they have a lot of corn to sell. But those with normal or below-normal yields may suffer.

"Some farmers are going to do better than last year from marketing a larger crop and larger deficiency payments," Keith said. "But for the producers who don't have significant corn to market, they're going to have a worse net return. ... And for farmers who are raising corn outside the government program it will be a very, very difficult year."

What's especially discouraging, she said, is that while prices are forecast to be down at least 11 percent from last year, overall demand is up by less than 4 percent. Exports are forecast to decline.

Lower prices, however, benefit livestock producers who use corn to feed their animals. Rod Leonard, a consumer advocate with the Community Nutrition Institute, said low prices may also mean continued stability for retail food costs.

USDA raised its estimate for this year's corn harvest by 2 percent from September's forecast, saying the late-maturing crop has developed better than expected because of good weather in most states.

The department said farmers also will see record yields this fall. The national average yield per acre is forecast at 123.8 bushels, 15.2 bushels above 1991.

Soybean production is forecast at 2.11 billion bushels, up 1 percent from the Sept. 1 forecast and up 6 percent from 1991. The average yield is estimated at a record 36.3 bushels per acre, 2.1 bushels above 1991.

Wisconsin showed the only decline in yield from last month.

USDA also increased its forecast for all wheat production to 2.46 billion bushels, up 2 percent from Sept. 1 and up 24 percent from 1991. Yields are estimated at 39.4 bushels per acre, up 1.2 bushels from last month.

Cotton production is forecast at 15.9 million bales, down slightly from last month and 10 percent lower than last year. While warmer weather improved prospects in Texas, USDA said, the Mississippi Delta's crop was hampered by prolonged cool, wet weather.

Red Cross receives donation

Betty Henson, executive director of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross, recently received a $176.16 donation from members of the Hereford High School Student Council. Matthew Parker, student council president, and Robbin Chandler, sophomore representative of the student council, made the check presentation. Money was raised for the Disaster Relief Fund.

Club selling pecans, cakes

As part of their annual fund raising activities, Hereford Pilot Club members are currently selling Camillee pecans and Eilenberger cakes. All proceeds from the sales will be used for various community projects. Verlene Shipley, at left, is taking orders for the cakes which come in several sizes. Orders for pecans, which are packaged in one pound bags, are being taken by Marilyn Bell.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Special thanks to the members of the Hereford High School Student Council. The members collected change from the high school students and raised $176.16 for the Disaster Relief.

The latest update on the Disaster Relief efforts show that more funds are needed for Disaster Relief than the first estimates showed. Donations for Disaster Relief totaled $72.4 million through Sept. 1.

The estimate for disaster spending was raised to $115 million. Hurricane Andrew Relief estimates are for $77.4 million to be spent, up from $65 million. Hurricane Omar is up from $5 million to $5.3 million. All together estimates are that the Red Cross will spend more than $125 million on disaster relief this year.

Special thanks to everyone who donated coats this past year. Many school children and other folks are enjoying those jackets and coats now.

The Disaster Workshop will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17, at the Hereford Community Center. Volunteers and everyone interested in helping during disasters are invited to attend.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Hand, Hamilton wed in Friona Sept. 19

Cari Joan Hand of Dallas became the bride of Jeffrey Scott Hamilton of Hereford during a Saturday evening ceremony, Sept. 19, in Sixth Street Church of Christ in Friona. Leon Talley officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hand of Friona and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hamilton of Amarillo.

The bride's cousin, Mrs. Scott Morrison, served as matron of honor and best man was Don Hall.

Bridesmaids included Mrs. John Medellin, Sheri Dodson, and the bride's nieces, Trista Hand, Tamara Hand and Amber Smith.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, Don Hamilton, Kreig Gallagher, Mike Lusk, Lee Rogers and Terry Blackwell.

Guests were escorted by the bride's nephews, Jonathan Boone Hand, Bowie Landon Hand and Toby Smith.

Flower girls were Tania Hand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hand, and Jessica Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hamilton.

Trace Davenport, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Davenport, was ring bearer. Candles were lit by Paige Davenport and Trey Hamilton.

The Sixth Street Church of Christ Choir sang "Love Will Be Our Home" and "He Has Chosen Me For You."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore the traditional white wedding gown fashioned with a fitted bodice of alencon lace enhanced with pearls and sequins and a Sabrina neckline which was delicately scalloped. The long tapered sleeves reached to points at the wrists and the full flowing taffeta skirt swept into a chapel length train which was accented with lace cut appliques. The back bodice was created in illusion and dropped into a deep V-shape back neckline. The chapel-length veil was attached to a sequined and pearl headpiece.

The bride carried an arrangement of white lilies and roses with English ivy, freesia and baby's breath.

Her jewelry consisted of her grandmother's diamond pendant and a string of pearls.

Mrs. Mike Hutson invited guests to register at the reception held at the Hereford Country Club.

Kim Barnett and Mrs. Kirk Bryant served cake, and Gwen Maurer poured coffee and punch.

The couple honeymooned in Aspen, Colo.

The bride graduated from Texas Tech University and is presently employed with Sunbelt National Mortgage Corp. of Dallas.

The groom attended West Texas State University and is presently employed with Imperial Holly Sugar Corp. in Hereford.

Out of town wedding guests represented Bowdon, Ga., Wellington, Dallas, Cimmaron, N.M., Pampa, Portales, N.M., Clovis, N.M., Lubbock, Amarillo and Olton.

Military Muster

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.--Leonard Martinez, son of Gabriel and Isabel Martinez of Hereford, Texas, recently enlisted in the U.S. Army's Delayed Entry Program (DEP), and will report for active duty June 4, 1993.

The 1993 Hereford High School senior will take basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and advanced individual training at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. He has chosen the position of wheeled-vehicle repairer as his military occupational specialty, and has volunteered to serve a four-year tour of duty.

Martinez also qualified to receive the Army College Fund by scoring high on the military entrance test and choosing a critical job skill. After an initial soldier contribution of $1,200, he will receive $25,200 for higher education upon completion of his enlistment.

Staff Sgt. Don Smith of the Amarillo Army recruiting station assisted Martinez in his enlistment.

NEW YORK (AP) - Chain drug stores are the nation's biggest users of interactive computerized units among all categories of retail stores, according to a recent survey.

Some 53 percent of chain drugstore managers and 26 percent of their headquarters-level executive bosses told Intermark Corp., designer-producer of these units, they were using interactive displays regularly.

Vacation homes not only for wealthy

These days you don't have to be a Rockefeller to own a second home. A recent national survey shows the median income for second home owners to be $46,500, which means many middle-income families are able to enjoy owning a cabin in the woods or beachfront retreat.

But many families are unclear about what they can afford and how to go about looking for that dream cottage by the lake.

Brokers offer tips on how to get the most for your money when buying a vacation home.

They suggest:
-Ask an established realtor and the town's chamber of commerce to provide information packets on the area. You'd be surprised how many brochures, maps and other helpful guidebooks you can receive free of charge-and how informative they can be.

-After you've settled on an area, select a realtor who is willing to openly share information about past selling prices. Knowing the sales history will help you determine market value of homes in the area as well as effectively predict a home's appreciation potential.

-As the realtor to recommend a lending officer in the area who can help determine what you can afford in a second home. Knowing your price range up front will save time and frustration in the selection process.

-Time your search during the few months prior to the beginning of the community's peak seasons. At these times, the demand for vacation homes is low-as are their prices.

-Take time out to drive around the community and get a feel for the neighborhoods. Many home buyers fail to experience the day-to-day activity around a property they've viewed. Don't make the same mistake!

Vacation homes remain a substantial deduction on yearly tax forms if they meet certain criteria. As the tax laws are every-changing and detailed, it's recommended that you consult an experienced real estate agent or certified public accountant to fully calculate the tax benefits of owning a second home.

The added tax breaks, not to mention the lowest mortgage interest rates in 15 years, provide additional incentives for middle-income families to purchase that dream vacation home. Smart buyers who work with qualified real estate agents and take time to do their homework will make a solid investment in the second home market.

Hospitals conerstone of Shriner's philanthropy

In 1921, polio was one of the most feared illnesses of childhood, a disease that often paralyzed or crippled its victims.

That was the year the Shriners voted to establish a network of orthopaedic hospitals to treat children crippled by polio and other diseases or by birth defects. The fraternity and pediatric care have been inexorably linked ever since.

The first Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children was built in Shreveport, La., in 1922. Today there are 22 Shriners Hospitals in the United States, Canada and Mexico, including three burn centers. Three of the orthopaedic hospitals also have spinal cord injury units. The hospitals' combined budget now tops $300 million.

Although polio has been virtually eradicated in the developed world, the orthopaedic hospitals still have plenty of work to do, treating children with limb deformities, spina bifida, scoliosis (curvature of the spine, club foot, rickets and thousands of other conditions.

20th anniversary to be observed by club

The Hereford CattleWomen members are finalizing plans for the organization's 20th anniversary celebration and luncheon scheduled Oct. 20 at the Hereford County Club. All charter, former and current members are invited to the Dutch treat meal.

Those planning to attend the luncheon are asked to make reservations by calling 364-7264 or 364-6677. Any woman interested in belonging to the organization is also given a special invitation to attend to celebration.

The Hereford CattleWomen was originally known as the Hereford CowBelles. Upon learning that Texas had no CowBelle organization, the national president contacted Irene McKinster in 1960 and asked her to help organize a local organization in this area. Mrs. Reese Lawson, then a New Mexico CowBelle member, brought by-laws and assisted in the formation of Hereford CowBelles.

On Sept. 17, 1972, the local organization was formed with Mrs. Robert Josseland serving as its first president. Eighty-one members signed a charter drawn up by Violet Reinauer.

Many Hereford CowBelles have served offices in the state and national organizations. Peaches Reinauer won first place at the 1976 state convention for her entry in the National Human Interest Story Contest and also served as the national chairman of radio and television in 1977.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - "General Hospital" star Tristan Rogers has pleaded innocent to drunken driving.

Rogers, who plays Robert Scorpio in the ABC soap opera, was arrested Sept. 9 after making an illegal turn in his sports car, Deputy District Attorney William Clark said. If convicted, Rogers could get two days in jail and a $1,100 fine.

The Australian actor's lawyer entered the plea on his behalf Thursday.

MR. AND MRS. JASON TROLINDER

Couple married in Alaska

Elizabeth Ann McGrogan and Jason W. Trolinder, both of Fairbanks, Alaska, were married Aug. 4 in that city.

The bride is the daughter of Bill and Arlene McGrogan of Chesterton, Ind. and the bridegroom is the son of Jim and Frankie Evans of Waco.

The couple will make their home after Oct. 17 in San Antonio.

The bride is a 1986 graduate of Chesterton High School in Chesterton, Ind. and graduated in 1990 from Purdue University.

The bridegroom is a 1988 graduate of Canyon High School and is a flight engineer specialist in the United States Army. He served in Desert Strom.

Make chores a treat

There are numerous ways you can weave activities into your family life to promote a sense of confidence in your kids. One of the most basic is giving your kids chores to do, starting with your preschoolers. Here's a chore chart you can make with your child. It is designed as a simple incentive system appropriate for all ages, readers and non-readers alike. Here's how:

You will need one sheet of poster board, crayons or markers, one medium-size envelope for each child and disks cut from plastic coffee-can lids (or paper chips or pieces from an old game).

Lay the sheet of poster board horizontally on the table. Your children may each write their names in a column on the left side of the poster boards. Allow five inches between each name. If your child isn't reading yet, glue on a photo of the child instead, with his/her name printed below the picture.

With a yardstick as a guide, draw a line extending across the poster board under each name. Then, draw vertical lines to make a grid. Make enough spaces for the number of chores the child should perform, allowing for two extra spaces on the right side.

Cut off the top flap of each envelope and staple one for each child at the end of each child's row. Leave the top of the envelope open.

Next to each name, write a chore in each of the boxes on the grid. For non-readers, draw a sketch representing the chore. On each box where chores are written/drawn, draw a circle or two or three (representing the plastic disks) to indicate the number of points the child receives for doing each chore.

Hang the chore chart low enough so your child can see it easily. Each time your child performs a task, note the number of circles he/she earns for doing the chore. Then, place the appropriate number of disks in the envelope. For example, if there is one circle on the chart for making the bed, place one juice lid in the envelope. When a pre-determined number of lids is accumulated, reward your children by doing something special together.

By JOE WEAVER, MD, ALD

WOW! Did we ever have a horde for the "Hank" party on October 1! Conservative estimates put the number of kids and parents somewhere between 250 and 300, but I know there were at least a zillion. Unfortunately we were not really prepared for quite so many, but the kids seemed to have a good time anyway. The Friends of the Library, sponsors of the event, send special thanks to Nedra Higginbotham, Lois Scott, Connie Lance, Margie Mims, and Ruth Knox for making "puppy chow," and to Merrick Pet Foods and Michael Power for providing new Track Pro bags to serve it from. Thanks, too, to the parents who pitched in and helped when it became apparent that we were in over our head. And before I leave the subject of Hank the Cowdog, the library has a video of author John Erickson reading and singing selections from the Hank books. It is available for checkout.

The annual Book Sale is coming up this week and we're trying something new this year. Usually we have the "Members Only" pre-sale on Friday evening before the general sale on Saturday. Since this Friday is Homecoming, and we felt that might conflict, we moved the pre-sale up a day to Thursday evening from 5-9 p.m. Thursday is also Family Film night (more about that later). That means you can come early and shop before the film, or drop the kids (or spouse) off at the film and leisurely browse. Saturday's sale will go from 9 am to 5pm, and is open to anyone. As I mentioned, Thursday is for "members only" but you can purchase a membership in the Friends of the Library as you pay for the books you have selected! Memberships are $3.00 for individuals, $6.00 for a family membership, and $10.00 for organizations and businesses. Believe me, you will make up the cost of the membership in savings on books.

We have as large and varied a selection this year as I have ever seen at this library. Most hardbacks are 25 cents, paperbacks, magazines, and Reader's Digest Condensed Books are a dime. We do have some books in prime condition that will sell for a little more, but still way below bookstore cost. We have a large selection of children's books this year, thanks to the school librarians, and even some sound recordings. Make a note on your calendar now to come by the sale either Thursday or Saturday.

As I promised...the Family Film this month is Digby The Biggest Dog In

The World. An English sheepdog accidentally laps up a secret formula and grows to huge proportions. Crooks, scientists, and the dog's owner become entangled as they try to exploit the situation. Lots of laughs for the whole family, and, as usual, there is no charge. Popcorn will be available for 25 cents a bag.

I never cease to be amazed at the uniqueness of the collections of our patrons, and I appreciate their willingness to share them with us for a month. Jay Spain is showing a selection of his antique toy fire fighting equipment. Spain is no stranger to Hereford folks, being city Fire Marshal for 21 years, and a fireman for 32. Jay is also past president of Panhandle Firemen and Fire Marshals Association, emergency manager for Hereford/Deaf Smith County, and he represents the county on the 911 board.

Baseball season is about over officially, but in Texas it's always Nolan Ryan season. Shawn Lance is displaying part of his Ryan collection, including some unique cards and an impressive poster. Shawn, 15, has been collecting for about five years. The son of Ronnie and Connie Lance, he is a sophomore at HHS where he is on Student Council. He is also involved in oral interpretation competition, and is active with the Hereford Church of the Nazarene Youth.

I guess I owe it to you to mention at least one book. If Gore Vidal were not such a well-known writer I wouldn't even mention it, but his latest, Live From Golgotha, was on the bestseller list for a time. The gist of the story is about a TV crew that goes back in time to cover the crucifixion of Christ. Weird enough concept, but sources tell me that the weird doesn't end there - that the book presents a thoroughly unbi-blical picture of Jesus and his disciples.

Pioneer Study Club begins 84th year

The Pioneer Study Club met recently at the Caison House to begin its 84th year of activity and study.

Yearbooks were distributed carrying the theme "Patchwork of History," with special interest on women's history, by Billee Johnson, yearbook chairman. In presenting the theme, Johnsons stated that the absence of women in the telling of United States history has been well noted since the re-awakening of the feminist movement in the late sixties. Traditionally, history has focused on political, military and economic leaders and events. It has virtually excluded women, people of color and the mass of ordinary citizens from the history books.

Multicultural women's history focuses attention of women at the crossroads, where throughout our history, individual women have emerged as community leaders to address unmet needs, organize for the common good and fight for social justice.

"A Patchwork of Federation History" was the theme of a panel discussion led by Willie Wimberley, federation counselor. All club members participated in the discussion of the history projects and programs of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, the Top of Texas District and the Pioneer Study Club. The discussion included the opportunities through GFWC, the activities and achievements of GFWC, the responsibilities of club members and officers and methods which will prevent significant loss of membership.

Rosemary Thomas presided over the business session. She announced the meeting of the Top of Texas District which will be held in Canadian on Oct. 17.

Nell Culpepper reported on the organizational meeting of the Hereford Beautification Alliance. Six committees were appointed to carry out the beautification and recycling programs in Hereford.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mary Jane Burrus and Oleta Hoffman. The tables were decorated with baskets of fall flowers.

Attending were Burrus, Jeanie Caison, Culpepper, Maria Escamilla, Hoffman, Johnson, Gladys Miller, Mary Panciera, Thomas, Willie Wimberley and Virginia Wood.

DETROIT (AP) - Former basketball star Spencer Haywood is battling his ex-wife, the model Iman, for custody of their teen-age daughter.

Haywood has petitioned for custody of 14-year-old Zulekha Haywood, his lawyers said in a statement Thursday.

Zulekha has been living with Haywood in Detroit for the past 2 1/2 years because she was unhappy living at Iman's Hollywood home, the statement said.

The NBA star and Iman divorced in 1986. She is now married to rock star David Bowie.

A telephone number for Iman's representatives was not immediately available.

LUXURY SHOW PLACE HAS RECESSED ARCHED ENTRY

Questions and Answers

Q: Two years ago, I had a porch slab and an adjoining concrete sidewalk replaced. The porch slab was poured on a 4-foot deep foundation of blocks and concrete. The walk was poured in one continuous piece with the slab, without a space being left between the walk and the slab. Now the walk has cracked badly near the slab after just one winter. Was the sidewalk installed correctly?

A: Apparently, there is no isolation joint where the slab and sidewalk meet. This would accommodate the slight movement that takes place between them. The slab has a foundation down to the frost line and is not affected by freezing temperatures.

However, the sidewalk is on grade, so any dampness in the base below the sidewalk will freeze and expand, resulting in some frost heaving during the winter. When this movement - or movement caused by settlement and shrinkage - is restrained, the concrete will crack.

There are two basic types of joints used in walks, patios and slabs: isolation joints - (often called expansion joints) - and control joints - (often called contraction joints). Isolation joints between dissimilar concrete emplacements prevent cracking caused by frost. They include joint strips to separate the two sections so each can move independently of the other. Control joints in walks and driveway are grooves in the surface that allow cracking but control its location.

Isolation joints permit slight vertical and horizontal movement along lines that separate dissimilar concrete emplacements. They include joint strips of asphalt-impregnated composition board to separate the two pieces and make minor movement relatively easy.

Control joints create straight-line planes of weakness in the concrete. As the walk or driveway shrinks, a crack forms below the joint in a straight line, rather than following an unsightly random pattern.

Q: We have a water softener in our house. Unfortunately, it adds a lot of salt to our water. For health reasons, we don't want to drink this water because we are on low-sodium diets. As a result, we buy bottled water for drinking and cooking. However, we can't use our refrigerator's ice maker because it uses the softened water. Is there a way to bypass this and pipe in unsoftened water?

A: Cut into the water supply line before the softener and install a Tee or Y fitting. Run a 1/2-inch diameter copper pipe from this fitting to the back of the refrigerator. You can then tap into this pipe and run a copper tube to your ice maker.

Q: With a large variety of walkway de-icers on the market, could you tell me the major differences between them, and which would be the safest for concrete?

A: According to the Portland Cement Association, the safest de-icers for concrete are also the most common: sodium chloride (rock salt) and calcium chloride. Both of these de-icers rust metal, and sodium chloride damages vegetation while calcium chloride does not.

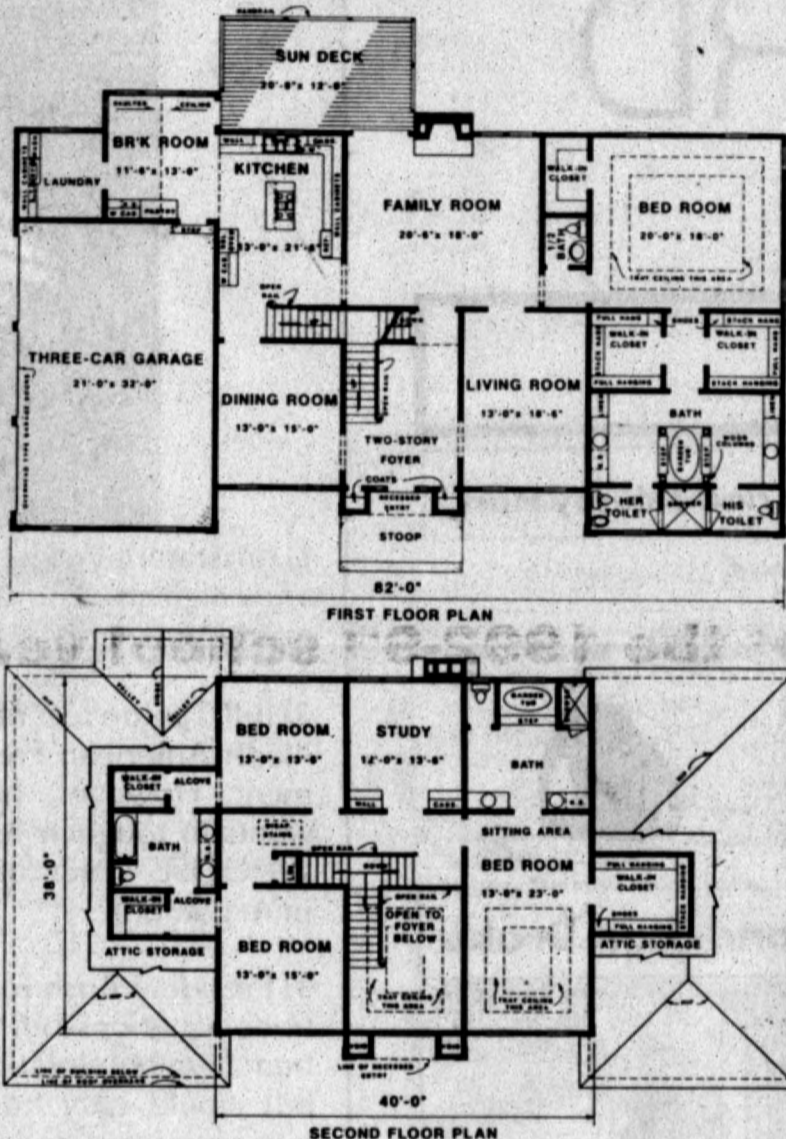

The association recommends against using on concrete those de-icers that contain ammonium nitrate or ammonium sulfates.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

YOU'RE FIRED (Last of a two-part series)

"Last week, I told you how I had been fired when I was 19 years old. Although it hurt at the time, it was a good lesson and has helped me be a more productive person.

I also pointed out that firing employees is one of the toughest jobs small business owners and managers have. Although no one enjoys thinking about it, if the situation threatens your company's morale, operations or profits you must deal with the problem employee.

Unfortunately, sudden terminations of employment have major effects on people's lives. Most Americans have very little savings and live from paycheck to paycheck. As a result, many managers are reluctant to fire an employee fearing that they will force an undue hardship. Today, many managers fear that fired employees will sue them or their company for wrongful termination. However, court decisions involving private sector businesses reinforce the longstanding concept that you may hire and fire employees "at will."

Experts base the "at will" philosophy on grounds of mutuality. The U.S. Supreme court case of Adair vs. United States establishes the premise for this theory. The court said, "The right of the employee to quit the service of the employer, for whatever reason, is the same as the right of the employer, for whatever reason, to dispense with the services of such employee."

Personally, I agree with this doctrine. I do not believe that either the public sector or the private sector should guarantee our employment. Our nation has grown strong because of the free enterprise system. We must keep it free.

Progressive Discipline

Most experts agree that you can avoid wrongful termination suits and often salvage worthwhile employees by using a written personnel manual. This manual would contain job descriptions and other employee policies. It would detail what you expect of your employees and what activities you would not tolerate.

If you have a problem with an employee, you should use a procedure known as progressive discipline. This process begins with counseling, then progresses to written reprimands, a final warning and dismissal.

In the counseling stage, you should assume that your employee wants to do what is right, and will correct improper behavior. You should tactfully point out unsatisfactory behavior or performance and give proper guidance for correction.

If your employee does not correct the problem, you need to issue a written reprimand. You should clearly specify the deficiencies and review the previous verbal discussion covered in the counseling session. You should stress the seriousness of the behavior, issue written guidelines for corrective action and set a specific time frame for improvement.

A final warning

If the employee fails to heed your written instructions, you should issue a final warning in writing. This warning should be blunt and to the point. You should restate the deficiencies and stress that it is the final opportunity to improve. Point out that failure to meet the standards will result in the employee's dismissal.

If the employee does not heed your final warning, you may fire immediately. As Vince Lombardi said, "If aren't fired with enthusiasm, you will be fired with enthusiasm."

Your employee still has rights at this point. You should allow the employee to gather personal property and exit with as much dignity as possible. You should have the employee's final paycheck prepared including earned vacation and severance pay, if applicable. The employee has a right to keep insurance benefits in effect and you should make the employee aware of that.

Two final thoughts: First, you may never fire an employee because of race, religion, sex, age or political affiliation. Second, if you would like more information on employer and employee rights, read The Termination Handbook by Robert Coulson. Check on this book at your local library.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Shock-jock Howard Stern proved it in New York and now he has done it in Los Angeles: Raunch sells.

Just as he promised, Stern has lifted KLSX-FM from 21st to No. 1 within a year, bumping the KLOS-FM comedy team of Mark and Brian from atop the highly competitive morning charts.

Stern, now the most popular morning radio personality in the nation's top two markets, regales listeners with graphic tales of sex, genitalia and bathroom habits; urges women guests to remove their clothes; and delivers such lowbrow features as "Lesbian Dial-a-Date." He plays no music, gives no time reports and does not cover traffic or sports.

First place winners

Students compete at fair

Deaf Smith County was represented by eight young people at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas. The exhibitors were in Dallas from Sept. 30-Oct. 4. Competing in the division was Shelia Teel, third with a Hereford, and Brittney Binder, sixth with a shorthorn.

Sheep were shown by Courtney Crawford, Ty Boggeman and Tory Boggeman. They placed 19th and 12th in the medium wools and 12th in the fine wool crosses, respectively.

Pigs were exhibited by Jay Wilson, seventh with a Duroc; Nelson Beville, third with a Chester; and Justin Scott.

Adult leaders present included Ed and Sandy Crawford, Bill and Carla Scott, Robert and Camille Beville, Jerry and Denise Teel, Kevin Kelley, Bill Binder and Jay Wade Johnson.

Doctors now know that nitric oxide dilates the blood vessels, allowing more blood to reach the heart with less strain.

Unless it doesn't occur, most motorists usually take wintertime deicing for granted. Yet, this lifesaving service gives taxpayers one of the best possible returns on our investment.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The police drama "Angel Street," starring Robin Givens, has been canceled after only three episodes, becoming the first casualty of the fall season.

The show, about two Chicago policemen, was 84th in the ratings last week.

PAM REED, ANTHONY ENRIQUEZ PENA

Couple to wed

Pam Reed and Seaman Recruit Anthony Enriquez Pena plan to marry Oct. 24 in a home ceremony at 505 Union.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Gary and Sybil Reed of Amarillo and Lettuce farming probably began in Persia about 550 B.C.

the prospective bridegroom is the son of Chano and Margie Guerrero of 505 Union.

Miss Reed is a junior at Hereford High School and her fiance is in apprentice training at San Diego Naval Training Center, Calif. He is a 1992 graduate of HHS and completed Boot Camp Sept. 18.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have faithfully read your column for years and now I want to contribute something. I'd like to tell your readers what a relationship loses to obesity and how frustrating, expensive and restricting it can be. No, I'm not obese. It's my husband. This is what our life is like:

Sports events: "Jack" loves sports, but he is unable to participate, and we cannot attend sports events because the seats are too small to accommodate him.

Plays or movies: Same problem.

Toys displayed at meeting

Vice Grand Jo Irlbeck presided at the regular meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening in the absence of the noble grand.

During the business meeting, it was announced that additional toys are needed for the Annual Halloween Carnival Toy Walk. Toys previously collected were displayed for those present.

Reports were made on the sick, nine visits, 23 cheer cards, three dishes of food and two flowers were recorded.

Mary Lou Weatherford served as hostess to Irlbeck, Susie Curtsinger, Tony Irlbeck, Marie Harris, Sadie Shaw, Ocie Bolton, Genevieve Lynn, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Ann Werner, Dorothy Lundry, Kee Ruland, Lydia Hopson, Ursulae Jacobsen and Faye Brownlow.

We don't go because very few auditoriums or theaters have seats that Jack can sit in.

Dining out: We're restricted to all-you-can eat buffets or restaurants that serve large portions because of Jack's appetite. Also, we must sit at tables only. Booths are out of the question. He can't get in or out.

Sex: It takes a lot of patience to find a position that is comfortable and safe from injuries. I've had several pulled muscles and almost suffocated twice.

Vehicles: We have incurred extra expenses on several occasions due to broken car seats, and Jack can't ride in mid- or small-sized cars.

Clothes: Another extra expense. Jack can never buy a suit off the rack, and specialty shops seem to charge by the pound. Shoes wear out quickly because of the extra weight.

Food: Groceries for the two of us cost the same as for a family of five.

Health: He has an enlarged heart, pain in his back and legs from the added weight and gallbladder problems.

Religion: Church pews are spaced too close together, and there's not enough room to sit comfortably, so we don't go.

Thanks for letting me blow off steam, Ann. I've accepted the fact that I can do nothing about my husband's weight and have given up hope of living a normal life.--Somewhere in Calif.

DEAR SOMEWHERE: Thanks for being so open. You have performed more of a service than you know. Most normal-size people have no idea what life is like for the clinically obese and his or her mate. Now they know.

KENDRA TISDALE, TRAVIS NICKS

Wedding date set

Kendra Leigh Tisdale and Travis Roy Nicks, both of San Angelo, plan to be married Nov. 14 in Southland Baptist Church in San Angelo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tisdale of Route 2, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stalling of Aledo.

Miss Tisdale is a senior at Angelo

State University and is employed by Angelo Physical Therapy. She plans to continue her education by pursuing a masters degree in physical therapy at Galveston.

Nicks, who is also a student at Angelo State University, plans to receive a teaching degree and coach basketball. He is employed at Foot Action.

International cooperation fuels 'Space Age' ideas

A simulated landing on Mars is one of the visual highlights of Space Age, a six-part series premiering Monday on PBS. Produced in association with Japanese television network NHK and the National Academy of Sciences, the series examines ongoing international space programs, as well as man's desire to explore.

PBS series examines progress in exploration

By Dan Rice

"Earth is the cradle of mankind, but one does not live in the cradle forever," said Russian space pioneer Konstantin Tsiolkovsky.

The recent end of the Cold War has renewed the lofty ambition of world scientists to turn the resources of the superpowers away from mutually assured destruction toward the joint conquering of space. Beginning Monday, Oct. 12, the six-part PBS series Space Age chronicles current international efforts in the exploration of space.

Actor Patrick Stewart (Capt. Picard on Star Trek: The Next Generation) is host of the series, which is the network's centerpiece production for International Space Year. Space Age is co-produced by PBS affiliate WQED in Pittsburgh and the Japanese Public Television Network (NHK) in association with the National Academy of Sciences.

"This series is the first to so comprehensively document the influence of space activity," says executive producer Greg Andofer. "We explore the age of space as we would examine other great ages — the Renaissance or the Industrial Revolution — from many perspectives: social, scientific, economic and technological."

The first episode, "Quest for Planet Mars," covers the various work under way to fulfill the 30-year goal of a manned mission to Mars, which was announced by NASA in July 1989. In Siberia, scientists have learned to revive ancient microbes taken from core samples of the frozen tundra, believing the same techniques may be employed on strains which they hope to find locked in the Martian permafrost. In America, a woman voluntarily remained bedridden for 17 weeks in a NASA study to simulate the loss of muscle mass caused by extended periods in microgravity, as the crew members of the up-to-three-year mission will experience.

Perhaps the most interesting research toward a mission to Mars is in the development of robots intended as an advance landing force. American Chris McKay and others are working on the concept of "telepresence," the idea of projecting the mind through one's tools (the robots). McKay is seen testing a helmet link to remote-operated vehicles that will enable crew members to see through and control the direction of their robots with a turn of the head.

Subsequent installments of Space Age examine other areas of the space program. "Celestial Sentinels" looks at the pervasive influence of communications, surveillance and navigation satellites on our lives. "The Unexpected Universe" covers the information gleaned from optical and radio telescopes. The establishment of a permanent base on the moon as a way station for further exploration of space is

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

HERO: Starring Dustin Hoffman, Geena Davis, and Andy Garcia. Hero is a contemporary comedy. A fable with some unusual forms of heroism: a conniving crook who stumbles into it (Dustin Hoffman), a desperate stranger who steals it (Andy Garcia), and a star television reporter who gets a bigger story than she ever dreamed of (Geena Davis). The set-up is relatively simple: a plane carrying 54 passengers - including reporter Gale Gayley (Geena Davis) - crash lands in the midst of a driving rainstorm. Small-time crook Bernie LaPlante (Dustin Hoffman) is the first person to reach the chaotic scene of the fiery accident. Absolutely in spite of himself, LaPlante spontaneously and anonymously risks his life and saves a plane full of people. But he does not take any bows. "I don't take credit," he says later, "I'm a cash kind of guy." So the world doesn't neatly divide into villains and heroes. The main characters are a little of both and the movie's pleasures come from the clever ways the filmmakers make us understand this. Since so much of the movie's vitality comes from the inventiveness of its plot and style, it's good to see it without knowing too much about the plot. Except to say that the real hero in this film is screenwriter David Webb (Unforgiven), who has written an intelligent, witty script where the plot and the dialogue actually are important.

The story finds its premise in America's craving for heroes - and finds its irony in how the media, and indeed most of the nation, define those idols (where the blow-dried, designer-clad, optimistic and superficially sincere are strictly preferred). Not Bernie, a lowlife crank and loner.

Bernie is a wonderful character for Hoffman. He plays him as a muttering little misanthrope who regards sentiment as an abstract idea. Big, beautiful Geena Davis as the tough TV reporter captures the right mix of integrity and style, with a commanding voice that makes you believe anything she says. What she says, and feels, eventually is guilt about creating the airplane-crash-hero and capitalizing on tragedy. Without giving anything away, Andy Garcia perfects the look of troubled sincerity. All three actors echo script writer Webb's early question in his movie Unforgiven: Are heroes who we think they are, and does it really matter?

The movie, the writing, the acting, the direction, and the production are superb. This is one of '92's finest films. Rated PG-13. Four Boxes considered in "To the Moon and Beyond." "Mission to Planet Earth" examines how seeing our planet from space has affected the way we think about our world. And "What's a Heaven For?" asks why we explore, in the context of past visionaries and those today who foresee a new age of space.

SPACE

Space Age provides inspiration for anyone who has ever looked toward the sky and wondered just what is out there. As revealed in the series, technological advances and international cooperation prove that mankind has many more "giant leaps" ahead.

'Lifestories' offers truth in strong doses

HBO series pulls no punches

By Steven Alan McGaw

Although entertainment programming has always been the mainstay of HBO's schedule, the No. 1 premium channel has long recognized there's another audience out there as well, responding with acclaimed specials such as How to Raise a Street-Smart Child and the award-winning America Undercover documentary series. Now, HBO addresses the problems and perils facing young adults in Lifestories: Families in Crisis, a series of six monthly installments premiering Tuesday, Oct. 13.

HBO vice-president Sheila Nevins says the network sought to create "reality programming that spoke to families." Noting the current buzzword status of "family values," Nevins asserts, "This is not a reaction to current controversy. But we all have family values, we all care about children and young people."

The first episode is Public Law 106: The Becky Bell Story, about an Indiana schoolgirl who resorted to an illegal abortion rather than comply with state law and ask her parents' permission. (She died of a massive infection just days later.) The events are dramatized, but Bell's real parents appear at the end of the program, urging young women to know their options and parents to keep open the crucial lines of communication. "Remember," says Mrs. Bell, "what it was like when you were young."

November's unnerving episode is The Secret Life of Mary-Margaret: Portrait of a Bulimic. Other shows focus on date rape, pediatric AIDS, drunk driving and teen suicide.

Lifestories is intended as family viewing and material for later discussion, but parents should be advised this is strong stuff. Some scenes are almost alienating in their intensity, and younger viewers may well be frightened.

"But it's not dishonest," counters Nevins. "We didn't want to cut away to the sunset at the crucial moment. The story has to be on the screen."

'Stunt Dawgs' deliver professional-strength fun

By Chris Carpenter
 For every 1,000 showbiz hopefuls who've had pet projects chopped up, put down, stepped on and put off, there's one Hal Needham, the rare breed whose ideas look better on film than they probably did in his head. Needham's experiences as Hollywood's premier stuntman and director of stuntpersons (Smoky and the Bandit, Hooper) are transformed in Stunt Dawgs, 40 original cartoon capers airing weekdays in nationwide syndication.
 "Once we decided to make this thing a few months ago," Needham says of the Stunt Dawgs brainstorming period, "I sat down one Saturday morning to watch some cartoons. I watched turtles, I watched it all — none of it made much sense to me. But is it supposed to? I'm not 8 or 9 years old."
 Armed with the belief that cartoons should appeal to more than one age group and brimming with filmmaking anecdotes, Needham soon had Stunt Dawgs on the storyboards. These pooches aren't passive. In one frenzied stunt after another, the Dawgs rip through 30 minutes worth of thrills and spills — with more than a few pokes at filmdom's foolishness — to a hard-rocking soundtrack.
 Kids may find more esoteric entertainment elsewhere down the dial, but they'll be hard-pressed to find anything more explosive.

BITS AND PIECES

Comics couture; swan song for 'Fatman'

Comic-book heroes making a fashion statement. Lawrence Cunningham's "The Men in Black" will soon find its way to the big screen. Columbia Pictures has bought the film rights to Cunningham's comic-book series, seeing in the property the potential for a succession of movies. "The Men in Black" follows the adventures of Jay and Kay, who dress a la the Blues Brothers, drive black convertibles and face supernatural and extraterrestrial menaces.

Paula Zahn

It ain't over till you get that last check. Jake and the Fatman, which continued to earn good ratings even after production ended last spring, may find its way into syndication in early 1993. Star Joe Penny, who has a financial interest in the show, explains his reasons for quitting his role and ending the series. "We did five years and at the end of the fifth year I said I didn't want to do any more. Of course, they wanted to do more, but I didn't want to — I was done with it, I had finished it. I thought I had done everything I could creatively, and I think for me to stay on the show would only hurt the show because I wouldn't be there because I wanted to be, I'd only be there because of money, and I don't think that's a good motivator to be at a job, if you don't have to."

But did she say the secret word? CBS This Morning co-anchor Paula Zahn recently won $12,752 as a mock contestant on Bill Cosby's syndicated game show, You Bet Your Life. Zahn's stint on the quiz show came during an interview of Cosby.

They'll save a lot of money on special effects. NBC is developing a docu-drama about Hurricane Andrew intended for broadcast this season. For full realism, the telefilm will incorporate news footage shot by NBC affiliate WTVJ-TV in Miami.

LET'S TALK

Eastwood at girls' school;
Spacek in her 'Prime'

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I saw a Clint Eastwood movie some years ago — after his Rawhide days. He was very young, and he played a soldier who came upon a girls' school. The girls all fell in love with him but, after having to amputate his leg, in the end they poisoned him with mushrooms. Can you tell me the name of the movie and what year it was made? — Pat Cresseveur, Bardstown, Ky.

Clint Eastwood, Elizabeth Hartman in The Beguiled

A: This slightly offbeat Eastwood outing is titled The Beguiled and was made in 1971.

Q: I'm writing for some information on the Ford supermodel Fabio Lanzoni. He recently appeared on Maury Povich and is a frequent model for Avon publications.

A: I'm interested in details on how he was "discovered" and what his first jobs were. Has he done any acting? Does he reside in the States as well as Italy? What are his agents' or publicists' names? —Lori Gaines, Kilgore, Texas.

A: Lanzoni's publicist, Nadine Johnson, is quick to point out how "very hot" he is right now, and that he is too busy working to grant many interviews.

The son of Milan mechanical engineer Sauro Lanzoni and his wife, Flora, Fabio moved to New York City when he was 21 (he's 31 now) and claims to have signed a modeling contract with Ford "15 minutes" after barging into their offices. It's been wine and roses ever since, as he's modeled for over 300 romance novel cover illustrations (at about 45 minutes and $3,000 a pop) and had cameos in Scenes From a Mall and Exorcist III. He hopes his future will include more beefy film roles, but in the meantime, he's busying himself with a six-figure deal to write (as well as pose for) a few romance novels. For exercise, Lanzoni lifts weights and goes cycling. He lives in West Hollywood with four Great Danes. You may write him in care of Nadine Johnson, CMB Communications, 155 East 75th Street No. 3W, New York, N.Y., 10021.

Q: I recently saw the TV movie The Habitation of Dragons. I didn't realize until I read the credits that Brad Davis is deceased. The credits read "the late Brad Davis." Am I correct when I say he played the part of Robert Kennedy in a TV movie? —Rose Scudlo, Warner, Pa.

A: Another reader, Sylvia Cotton from Carthage, Texas, has also inquired about Davis, and I'll try to answer all the questions.

Tragically, Davis' life was cut short earlier this year by complications arising from AIDS. He was probably best known for his brilliant turn in 1978's Midnight Express, which garnered a best-screenplay Oscar for Oliver Stone. His intense portrayal of American Billy Hayes, who was tortured in a Turkish prison for years after being caught drug-smuggling, was most effective. As mentioned, he also portrayed the late Robert Kennedy in a 1985 miniseries titled Robert Kennedy and His Times.

Q: Many years ago, possibly in the late '70s, I saw a Lee Marvin movie in the theater, but I have never seen it again. He played a mobster who was in conflict with another gang. Much of the war was in Kansas, and people in large combines chased others around in a wheat field, and also in a packing plant where butchered cattle hung. Can you tell me what the title was? —Charlotte Anderson, Metropolis, Ill.

A: That film was 1972's Prime Cut, a nifty little actioner starring Marvin, Gene Hackman and Sissy Spacek, in her film debut. The movie is available on video.

NEW VIDEO RELEASE

This ... may be just a bit hard to find, but, for that special audience, it is very much worth the effort.
STRANGERS IN GOOD COMPANY: (1991) Has no stars or professional actors, but outstanding production values. This quiet, strange little Canadian movie tells a beautiful story about life. When their tour bus breaks down, a group of elderly women are marooned together for several days. With an empty vacation house at hand, the experience turns into a bracing respite for the group. Fish get caught in pantyhose nets but nothing too dramatic happens, not that it matters. As the women share their lives and memories, the women gradually take shape and Cynthia Scott's beautiful and tender film moves at its own slow, peaceful pace and arrives at a gratifying destination. Rated PG.

Columbus, missiles and baseball

By Dan Rice

He must have gone underground. Five hundred years ago, Christopher Columbus settled the debate about whether the world was flat or round. Now he, or rather his remains, are the center of another controversy: Where is the explorer's final resting place? On Sunday, Oct. 11, The Discovery Channel debuts The Feuding Tombs of Christopher Columbus, an examination of the centuries-old question.

The deepest chill of the Cold War came 30 years ago with the standoff between John Kennedy, Nikita Khrushchev and Fidel Castro over the Soviets' installation of nuclear-missile sites in Cuba. On Friday, Oct. 16, A&E's Time Machine With Jack Perkins: The Cuban Missile Crisis delves into the motives behind the events that took the world to the brink of nuclear war. Utilizing once-secret White House recordings, newly declassified U.S. and Soviet documents and testimonies from Cuban, Russian and American participants, the program offers a new interpretation of the crisis.

It's a fine game whose object is to go home. AMC celebrates the long-standing relationship between baseball and the movies with Diamonds on the Silver Screen, premiering Thursday, Oct. 15. The one-hour special chronicles the development of the baseball movie from the early silents (starring actual ballplayers) to the grand-slam movies of today.

Victor and Nikki: entertaining friction

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I know that story lines are written months in advance, but to say "love never dies" is criminally insane on The Young and the Restless. I can't believe they want Victor and Nikki involved with each other again! There is no way these two characters could ever find happiness together. There is too much that has happened between them.

I simply cannot believe a powerful rich man finds a woman like Ashley with brains and beauty and throws her aside for an ex-stripper who has lied to him on a consistent basis. Give me a break. —An ex-fan of Y&R, Alice Bramer, Abbeville, La.

Dear Reader: When I interviewed Melody Thomas Scott (Nikki), she said she thought there would always be something between Victor and Nikki. The characters would forever be pulled together, only to be forced apart later. You are right in saying that these two could never find happiness, because that would be the end of the relationship. It is the friction between the two of them that keeps people watching.

Now that Nikki has gone back to Jack, because she is pregnant with his baby, it looks like Victor has come up dry in the woman department. He has alienated Ashley totally and Nikki is determined to make things work with Jack. I'd like to see a new love interest for Victor, someone as ruthless as he is who could cause him a great deal of grief. One thing we know for sure, ol' Vic is going to make Jack's existence a living hell.

Dear Candace: I think Karen Witter's character on One Life to Live, Tina, has taken a turn for the worse since Cord left. I don't like the idea of Tina and Cain being together. When she's with him, she doesn't think about her children and Cain is too self-absorbed to be fatherly. I wish the writers would find another love interest for her.

I would also like to have seen Lee Ann gain custody of her baby. Kevin might be financially able to care for a child, but he is emotionally immature. —Nicole Thomas, DeRidder, La.

Dear Reader: Tina and Cain certainly spice things up on the show with their shenanigans. Unfortunately, most soap mothers have little to do with their children in general. It is just the nature of the genre.

STAR NOTES

Drop-out teacher lives to laugh about it

By Dan Rice

It helps to have a sense of humor when playing a character called "Gooshie." Dennis Wolfberg, who has the role of the odd-named scientist endeavoring to repair the time accelerator on NBC's Quantum Leap, certainly qualifies. The winner for "Best Male Stand-up" at the 1990 American Comedy Awards, Wolfberg has logged more appearances on Fox's Comic Strip Live than any other comedian.

The native New Yorker attended Queens College (which he describes as "a school that academically ranks up there with the American Bartenders Institute") before becoming a sixth-grade teacher in the South Bronx. After switching to a career in comedy, he met and married fellow comedian Jeannie McBride, also a former teacher. The couple worked the comedy circuit as America's only husband and wife stand-up tandem.

Wolfberg tells of the casting call for Leap's Gooshie: "You get sent out according to type — leading man, boy next door, strange uncle. I was startled when I looked into the casting waiting room and saw the most motley collection of misfits and miscreants — it was human flotsam. I thought, 'I obviously don't belong here,' until the secretary saw me and said, 'Come in and have a seat with the rest of them.'"

When asked what life he would like to "leap" into, Wolfberg replies, "Richard Burton in 1964, because that's the kind of guy I am."
