Hospital board OKs new budget

Annual review shows Rives and staff have built reserves from $250K to $1.1 million in just over one year

An $8 million budget, including a $1.6 million capital improvement plan, was informally adopted Tuesday by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors.

The board will formally approve the budget at a meeting later this month.

At a budget hearing Tuesday, Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator Ron Rives said the hospital's staff is doing a better job running departments.

"I hope with even better organization we can do an even better job," Rives told the board. "We have made a lot of progress in a year's time. ...We are doing a much better job of capturing patient charges."

The budget analysis shows the hospital has increased its reserves from a $250,000 certificate of deposit at the close of the last fiscal year, last Oct. 1, to $1.1 million in reserves as of last Thursday. Part of that, Rives said, came from the hospital district doubling its tax rate last year. More of the reserve, he said, came from employees doing a better job.

The budget analysis also showed DSGH spent $97,448 on physician recruitment, $2,010 in doctor guarantees and $11,667 in physician stipends last year. Those efforts have paid off: two doctors, the Manis, are practicing at South Plains Health Provider Organization, and the hospital played a role in landing them here, DSGH also has three doctors committed to moving to Hereford in the future.

The board will consider plans for remodeling physician offices at the former clinic of Dr. Tim Revell just north of the hospital. Renovation of that building, and possible acquisition of additional land next to the building, may cost $600,000. That has not yet been approved by the board.

Expenses, except for planned large purchases, are budgeted for $6.3 million, with actual cash income not including taxes of $5.6 million. Not only will the hospital district get about $1 million in property taxes, but Medicare is expected to pay an extra $400,000 in "disproportionate care" money because of the hospital's unique patient mix. That would give the hospital a cash surplus of about $600,000.

Beautification group hears from committees

From azaleas to zinnias, the Hereford Beautification Alliance hopes to cover Hereford in flowers next spring.

Zinnias were recommended Tuesday by the alliance to become Hereford's "official flower." The group also feels larkspurs, mums and irises will grow well here and improve the appearance of the city. The group is considering a flower swap session next spring to spread flowers throughout the city.

The alliance is also considering a community cleanup day in the near future. A similar project was coordinated by Mauri Montgomery as director of the beautification committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce two years ago. Alliance members have not yet contacted the city about a collection, but the last collection included a pickup of appliances, tires, tree limbs and other large items.

The group also appointed members to look at existing city ordinances to determine how to help the city with enforcement and where to recommend stronger laws.

The alliance will meet again at 5:30 p.m. on Oct. 20.

Searchers find flight recorder

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - Investigators today found the flight data recorder of the El Al jumbo jet that plowed into a suburban Amsterdam apartment building, killing an estimated 250 people.

But the recorder was badly damaged, officials said, leaving little hope it could detail the moments before the Boeing 747-200 cargo plane crashed into the 10-story building 10 miles east of Schiphol Airport on Sunday night.

Searchers picking through a floodlit, smoldering plane crash site early today had already lost hope of finding survivors and were not even certain they would recover many bodies.

By early in the day, only 30 corpses had been pulled from the scorched rubble of the high-rise apartment building. Eighty of the building's 230 apartments were wrecked, and 150 were heavily damaged.

US extends borders on drug war

MIAMI (AP) - The long arm of the law may be getting a little longer when it comes to going after drug lords.

Two recent Florida cases illustrate the point.

In one, British bank accounts belonging to slain Colombian drug lord Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha were ordered confiscated to satisfy a judgment out of Jacksonville.

In another, the Customs Service in Miami announced that for the first time, the government has seized property in the United States based solely on alleged violations of foreign drug laws.

"It's an extension of two trends that have been accelerating in the last five to 10 years," Paul Rothstein, a Georgetown University expert in constitutional law, said Tuesday. "One is extending the reach of Officials also raised doubts today about earlier reports that the plane lost both of its starboard engines.

"Whether the plane's right inside engine also fell off has not yet been determined," Transportation Minister Hanja Maij-Weggen said in a letter to Parliament.

Hans Scholten, spokesman for the Dutch aviation authority, said, the flight recorder was sent to the Air Accidents Investigation Branch of Britain's Department of Transportation in Farnborough, about 35 miles southwest of London.

The jet's pilot, who had struggled to get the jet back to the airport after encountering engine trouble, died along with the other three people on the plane.

The Boeing Co. said Tuesday that company officials met in Seattle with some operators of 747 jumbo jets two weeks before Sunday's crash to discuss engine mount problems.

American law to international situations - the other is the increasing use of forfeiture law."

Rodriguez Gacha - considered the Medellin cocaine cartel's No. 2 man until he was killed in a gun battle with police in Colombia in 1989 - had deposited more than $1 million in two London banks before he was indicted in 1989 on smuggling charges in Jacksonville.

The U.S. attorney's office there asked that the deposits be confiscated, and on Monday the British government ordered the money paid into the British court system under a 1988 money-laundering agreement between the two nations.

U.S. Attorney Robert Genzman said it was the first time an American civil forfeiture order had been carried out in the United Kingdom.

The Sept. 16 meeting was held because of longstanding concern about cracking in the fuse pins that hold the jumbo jet's four engines onto the wings, said Jack Gamble, the spokesman for Boeing's Commercial Airplane Group.

Boeing is redesigning the pins and on Monday issued a service bulletin asking operators of some 747 models to inspect the parts and repair or replace them if necessary.

A Swissair spokesman, Hannes Kummer, said Tuesday that the Swiss carrier received a telex from Boeing last week suggesting carriers check for cracks in the pins within 90 days. Gamble said the need for the inspections was discussed at the Seattle meeting, which was attended by Swissair and El Al representatives.

Boeing asked the Federal Aviation Administration to require U.S. airlines to inspect the pins on most 747 models.

"As narcotics dealers become more sophisticated in hiding their illegally acquired assets, cooperation between the United States and other countries becomes even more important," he said.

In the second case, federal authorities in Miami last week seized a Boca Raton home and lot worth $1.2 million owned by Richard A. Houtman, 47.

"We're not alleging he violated U.S. drug laws," said Customs counsel Peter Quinter. "We are alleging that the narcotics transactions occurred in Europe, in violation of foreign drug laws."

The money came from Europe's biggest hashish-smuggling ring, run by Klaas Bruinsma between 1987 and 1991, Customs said.

Perot: U.S. in 'deep voodoo'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ross Perot, in the first major event of his born-again presidential campaign, painted a bleak picture of an economy "in deep voodoo" to sell his tightfisted policies of fiscal sacrifice.

"We are losing the American dream for our children," Perot said in a Tuesday night TV address. He presented a barrage of facts and figures on more than 30 charts to dramatize what he argued has gone wrong with the economy and the government.

"We used to have the world's greatest economic engine. We let it slip away," Perot told viewers during the taped commercial "Jobs, Debt and the Mess in Washington."

The independent candidate paid CBS-TV $380,000 to air the commercial Tuesday night before the first game of the National League baseball playoffs.

"We are in deep voodoo folks, right here," Perot said, mocking President Bush's 1980 campaign criticism of Ronald Reagan's proposals as "voodoo economics." He ended the 30-minute monologue with an emotional call for Americans to pick a president who will "pass on the American dream to our children."

"Look at them tonight before you go to bed. Your hopes and dreams are all wrapped up in them. They are our future. Let's just link arms and go do it for them."

Perot's broadcast was aired as Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton prepared for Sunday's leadoff debate in St. Louis. Bush met with top aides at the White House as Congress lurched toward adjournment, while Clinton huddled with his advisers in Little Rock, Ark.

The bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates rushed to put together the final arrangements for the first of three presidential debates, including deciding whether to invite Perot. But the Texan delivered an acceptance anyway, saying Bush and Clinton had said he would be welcome.

Perot planned to air another 30-minute spot Friday night on ABC-TV in which he planned to lay out his strategy for reducing the $4 trillion national debt and restoring prosperity.

During Tuesday night's broadcast, Perot offered a populist critique of Reagan-Bush economic policies, presenting statistics showing that an increasing proportion of the nation's wealth was concentrated in fewer hands.

"That's not fair. You know it's not fair. I know it's not fair. That's a system that won't work," said the Dallas business executive whose net worth is reported to be more than $3 billion.

Perot repeated many of the themes he enunciated before he quit the race on July 16, saying he didn't want to be a spoiler.

The program, which Perot produced with the help of a Dallas advertising executive, featured homespun rhetoric and folksy subtitles such as "Plain Talk," "The Stickup," "Oops" and "The Rich Get Richer."

Perot didn't directly attack Bush but he presented a blizzard of statistics that amounted to a stinging indictment of the president's economic record. He didn't mention Clinton.

"One of the reasons we've fallen off the edge of the cliff, we got into trickle-down economics and it didn't trickle," Perot said.

Senate struggling toward adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House is gone, but the Senate is struggling on, with filibusters threatening a few remaining bills and the end of the 102nd Congress not yet in sight.

For a Congress that saw scandal, war and the Clarence Thomas-Anita Hill hearings, an ugly ending somehow seemed appropriate.

"They say all good things must come to an end," Senate Republican leader Bob Dole said Tuesday. "Congress is proving that even some not so good things must come to an end too."

The Senate was meeting again today, despite the Yom Kippur Jewish holy day, as stubborn dissenters on three bills tied the chamber in procedural knots.

After a day and night of off-the-floor negotiations, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said late Tuesday that an agreement had been reached that could mean votes on the big remaining bills and adjournment for the year late Thursday.

Aides immediately cautioned, however, that it could be Friday before the Senate wraps up for good.

For most of Tuesday afternoon and evening, the Senate stood by as its clerks laboriously read hundreds of pages of tedious text of a water projects bill - the result of delaying tactics by Sen. John Seymour, R-Calif.

And that came only after a futile, 15-hour filibuster by Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., who was protesting the deletion from a $27 billion tax bill of a provision designed to protect a New York state typewriter factory.

The result was that Senate leaders faced the task of moving to shut off debate on a major energy bill and the tax bill on Thursday. Each requires a 60-vote majority.

Even if the tax bill reaches a vote and is approved, Republican leaders predicted that Bush would be forced to veto it because of his campaign vows not to go along with any more tax increases. The bill includes both tax breaks and tax increases.

"I don't think the president dares sign it," said Dole, R-Kan.

"It would be absolutely ridiculous for him to come back and sign a bill that would put the lie to everything he's said," House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois said.

Also awaiting Senate action were several bills passed by the House before it adjourned Tuesday, including an anti-carjacking bill and a housing bill that would raise the limits on some FHA home loans.

House members approved the disputed tax bill on a 208-202 vote and left shortly after noon Tuesday, presumably for the year - though they could return to session, if necessary.

House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt told President Bush in a telephone call: "We have now sent our members home. Our legislative effort has been completed." He said the House's adjournment would take effect officially once the Senate concludes.

Lawmakers in both parties were in a rush to return home to campaign for re-election.

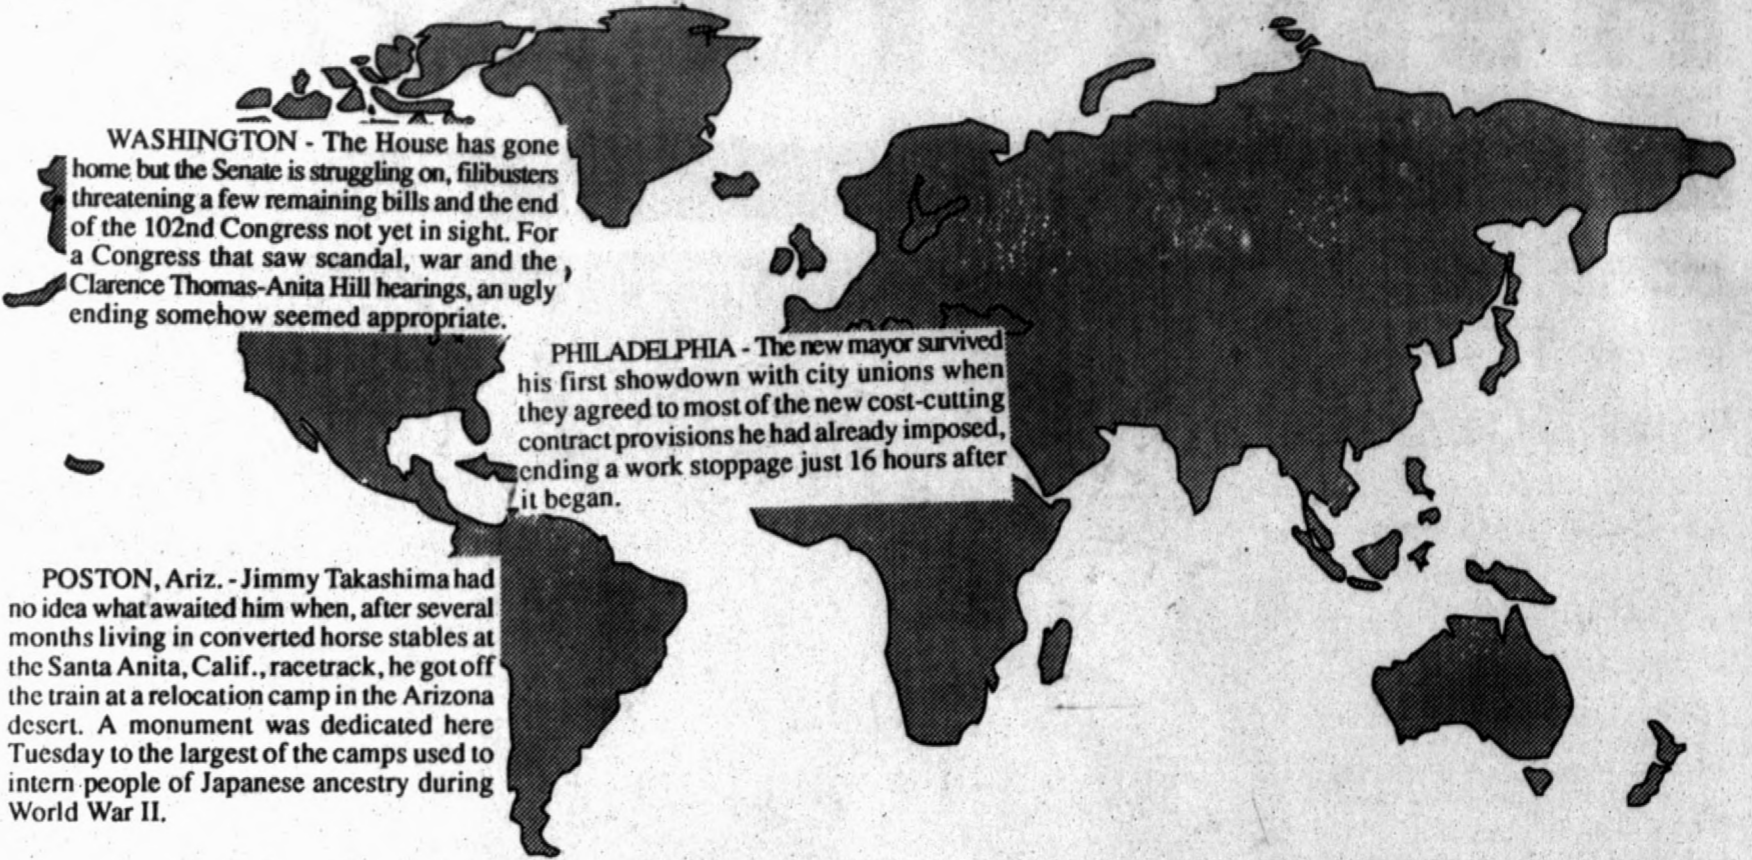

D'Amato's filibuster was an unconventional one: He wasn't so much seeking to obstruct the bill as to demand that a deleted provision be restored - one designed to provide relief for New York state typewriter-factory workers facing loss of their jobs.

But D'Amato's hopes of changing the bill evaporated when the House, which would have to approve any change, went home.

News digest

WASHINGTON - The House has gone home but the Senate is struggling on, filibusters threatening a few remaining bills and the end of the 102nd Congress not yet in sight. For a Congress that saw scandal, war and the Clarence Thomas-Anita Hill hearings, an ugly ending somehow seemed appropriate.

PHILADELPHIA - The new mayor survived his first showdown with city unions when they agreed to most of the new cost-cutting contract provisions he had already imposed, ending a work stoppage just 16 hours after it began.

POSTON, Ariz. - Jimmy Takashima had no idea what awaited him when, after several months living in converted horse stables at the Santa Anita, Calif., racetrack, he got off the train at a relocation camp in the Arizona desert. A monument was dedicated here Tuesday to the largest of the camps used to intern people of Japanese ancestry during World War II.

UNITED NATIONS - Shocked by detention camps, beatings, massacres and "ethnic cleansing" in former Yugoslavia, the Security Council votes unanimously to set up a panel of experts to investigate the atrocities.

Children visit fire station

Blaine Provence, left, of the Hereford Fire Department, explains the functions of a fire engine to a group of children from First United Methodist Church during a National Fire Prevention Week tour on Tuesday. Children from county school will tour the station during the week, and an open house (including rides on antique fire engines) will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

DRUG WARS

None of the drug activity occurred in the United States, and Houtman is not accused of participating in the smuggling. Quinter said the hashish profits were simply turned over to Houtman, who legally brought them into the United States and bought the property.

Under a little-known provision of U.S. money-laundering law, the money was tainted because it was generated by violations of foreign drug laws, Quinter said.

"There is no reported legal decision in the United States using this provision of law," he said. "We're ahead of the rest of the country in drug law."

Customs officials did not elaborate on Houtman's alleged connection to the drug ring. Under the law, he will be given an opportunity to contest the seizure. His whereabouts were not immediately known.

Rothstein said the two cases illustrate the internationalization of U.S. law. He also cited the arrest and trial of former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega and U.S. efforts against the terrorists accused of the Achille Lauro hijacking.

First Woman Doc

NEW YORK (AP) - Elizabeth Blackwell was the first woman physician in the United States. Born in 1821, in Bristol, England, she came to this country at the age of 10.

In 1849, she graduated from the Geneva, N.Y., College of Medicine. Eight years later, Blackwell and her sister, Emily, founded the Woman's Medical College of the New York Infirmary.

The Blackwell Medal, established in 1949, is awarded to women doctors for achievement in medicine.

UN passes war crimes act on Bosnia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - The Security Council has voted unanimously to investigate war crimes in Bosnia, hoping the threat of Nuremberg-style trials will persuade Serbs, Muslims and Croats to end atrocities.

The council resolution passed Tuesday sets up a commission to look into reports of massacres, "ethnic cleansing" and other crimes against civilians or military personnel in all former Yugoslav republics.

Former Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki of Poland, the U.N. Human Rights Commission's special envoy, is to travel to Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia and other areas beginning Monday and report back to the commission.

Lawrence Eagleburger, the acting Secretary of State, said Tuesday night that he hoped the resolution would be "a warning to those in Yugoslavia who have been committing acts, that they had better watch out from now on because there will be people watching."

Despite the unity on the issue of war crimes, the Security Council continues to struggle over whether to declare a "no-fly" zone over Bosnia-Herzegovina, effectively barring Bosnian Serb warplanes.

Western diplomats say Security Council ambassadors are worried that if the United Nations tries to ban warplanes from Bosnia's skies, Serbs will take it as a declaration of war and attack U.N. peacekeepers on the ground.

In a bid to head off a ban, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic offered Tuesday to ground his warplanes if troops loyal to the Muslim-led Sarajevo government refrain from attacks.

Eagleburger, a former U.S. ambassador to Yugoslavia, said he did not put much credence in the offer, especially considering its conditionality.

The "no-fly zone" issue has gained steam since the weekend, when President Bush overruled reluctant U.S. military commanders and promised that Washington would provide warplanes for enforcement, as it is doing to protect Shiite rebels from attack in southern Iraq.

"We are very sensitive to the Muslim world's view that the West is permitting killing of Muslims in Bosnia-Herzegovina while acting differently in Iraq," Eagleburger said on the "MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour."

Test your detector

If you were sound asleep when a fire broke out in your home, do you think the smoke would awaken you? If you think so, you're dead wrong. "When there's a fire, the smoke will actually put sleeping people into a deeper sleep, not awaken them," says NFPA assistant vice president for public Affairs and Education Meri-K Apply. "That's why smoke detectors are so very important. They provide an early audible warning of a fire, and can provide extra time to escape safely."

NFPA has decided to make smoke detectors the theme for this year's National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4-10, 1992. The theme is "Test Your Detector-It's Sound Advice." The greatest number of fatal home fires occur between the hours of midnight and 4 a.m., when most of us are asleep. Even though this time frame is when fires are least likely to occur, those that do occur are most deadly because they can go undetected.

"Having adequate smoke detector protection in your home is absolutely key to fire survival - and when it comes to smoke detectors, one is usually not enough for the average apartment or house," Ms. Apply continues. Smoke detectors should be located on every level of the home, including basements, and there should be a smoke detector outside each sleeping area. The NFPA recommends testing your detectors regularly and if they are battery-operated, replacing the batteries at least once a year, or when the detector chirps, signaling low battery power.

CPR topic of sorority program

L.V. Watts, representing Deaf Smith General Hospital, gave a program entitled "CPR and the Heimlich Maneuver" when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Thursday, Oct. 1, in the office of Dr. Stan Fry.

Following the program, members enjoyed homemade apple pie and iced tea provided by Danell Culp and Pattie Urbanczyk.

Those attending included Janice Betzen, Culp, Patty Frerich, Carmen Gonzales, Teresa Hopping, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, MaryBeth Messer, Jill Savoini, Urbanczyk and Donna Weaver. Special guest was Judy Schumacher.

NFPA is a leading participant in the national Smoke Detector Project, sponsored by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and dedicated to promoting use of smoke detectors in the United States. "Adequate smoke detector protection is emerging as the issue of 1992. I hope the Fire Prevention Week theme helps drive home the message to keep smoke detectors operating," Ms. Apply says.

Fire Prevention Week is observed in North America and several European countries in remembrance of the Great Chicago Fire of 1876, in which 250 people died. Held every October, it is the full week - Sunday through Saturday - that includes Oct. 9, the anniversary of the fire.

Local garden club meets for brunch, social meeting

Garden Beautiful Club met Friday morning, Oct. 2, in the home of Audine Dettman for a brunch and combination business and social meeting.

President Jerry Jackson presided and welcomed guests, Jo Solomon and Elizabeth Holt.

During the business meeting, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary and the treasurer's report was given.

Jackson asked Dettman to continue serving on the Alliance To Keep Deaf Smith County Beautiful committee. Dettman then gave an interesting report on plans made at the recent meeting she attended and encouraged members to be active in the local recycling program.

Correspondence read included an article from the United Way committee of Deaf Smith County. Jackson asked the finance committee to make a donation to the United Way on the club's behalf.

It was announced that the club's Nov. 6 meeting will include its annual auction sale. Guests are invited to attend the money making project at the home of Jeane Dowell, 132 Greenwood.

Columbus' 500 Years was the book review given by Dettman concerning Columbus' journey to America.

Brunch was served to Vada Axe, Dottie Darden, Dowell, Jackson, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story, Margaret Young, Frances Hennen and guests, Solomon and Holt. The meeting was co-hosted by Dettman and Doris Bryant.

Ladies Golf Association to meet

Members of the Ladies Golf Association are encouraged to attend a business meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, in the tennis room at the Hereford Country Club. During the business session, election of officers will be held.

Beware of food

Most food that's been exposed to a fire should be thrown away, no matter how safe it might look.

"It's understandable that people want to save anything that they can after a fire, but saving food is not a good idea," said Dr. Peggy Gentry-Van Laanen, nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Food that's been in a fire is not edible because it's been exposed to either heat, smoke or chemicals used to fight the fire."

Although food in cans and jars may seem to be okay, it probably is not, she said. Heat from a fire can activate bacteria that can spoil food and make it unsafe to eat.

Deadly toxic fumes released from burning materials also can contaminate food, according to Gentry-Van Laanen. These fumes can penetrate permeable packaging such as cardboard and plastic wrap, so discard any food stored this way. Also, discard any raw foods stored at room temperature such as potatoes or fruit.

Even food that's stored in refrigerators or freezers that are not air-tight can become contaminated when fumes get inside, Gentry-Van Laanen said.

"Be careful when preparing food from a refrigerator or freezer that's been in a fire," she said. "If the food has an off-flavor or smells when prepared, throw it away."

Chemicals used to fight fires also contain toxic materials and can contaminate food and cookware, Gentry-Van Laanen said.

Guest speaker welcomed

Bay View Study Club member, Ruth Newsom, welcomes guest speaker, Don Ray of Channing. The artist sculpted a bronze bust of "Deaf" Smith which is located at Deaf Smith County Courthouse. He presented an informative program for Bay View Study Club members during the club's Oct. 1 meeting.

Bay View welcomes area artist

Following their theme for the year of "Discovery: Art, Artists and Artifacts", Bay View Study Club members assembled adjacent to the bronze sculpture of "Deaf" Smith in the rotunda of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse Oct. 1 for a presentation by the sculptor of the bust, Don Ray of Channing.

This bronze sculpture was commissioned by the Centennial Committee and presented to the county by its citizens on the occasion of its 100th birthday in 1990. Erastus "Deaf" Smith was a scout and spy for Sam Houston during the Texas War for Independence from Mexico. The county was named for him.

Ruth McBride, president of Bay

View, introduced the speaker who was born in Clarendon to ranching parents. Don Ray graduated from the then West Texas State College.

Ray stated that he prefers sculpting bronzes of historical related subjects. The bust of Charles Goodnight, the Panhandle's first rancher, is one of his noteworthy accomplishments.

The guest speaker told of basing the likeness of the scout on the only portrait of him in existence, a copy of which is at the Deaf Smith County Museum. In his research, Ray said that he found "Deaf" Smith to be a man of strength, integrity and patriotism. The artist expressed the importance of heroes and voiced that "small men can do great things."

One side of the bronze depicts the subject in miniature with his hand behind his ear. The other side shows the scout with a rifle. These scenes are typical of his scouting days. Ray concluded his program at the courthouse by reading the Texas Anthem.

Special guests at the courthouse were: Judges Wesley Gulley, Tom Simons and Johnny Turrentine; County Clerk David Ruland; County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley; Executive Director of the County Museum Donna Brockman; and County Librarian Rebecca Walls.

The meeting continued at the Deaf Smith County Museum where members and guests viewed the displays on the main floor and the historical displays in the basement. Ray had three sculptures on display in the basement: a longhorn steer, a raiding Indian and western musicians that he sculpted from his childhood memories. He gave the history and explained the process of creating the patina of each.

Refreshments were served by hostess Lois Gilliland from a formal table centered with blossoms from the E.B. Black gardens. These flowers were in appreciation of Bay View Study Club for their support of the Historical Society and for a contribution last year of a rose bush for the gardens.

A donation was made to the museum by the organization in honor of Don Ray.

Members present were Virginia Bayne, Margaret Bell, Beth Burran, Roberta Caviness, Pat Fisher, Mary Fraser, Virginia Garner, Elizabeth Holt, McBride, Marjorie Mims, Ruth Newsom, Helen Rose, Lois Scott, Edna Gault, Gilliland and guest, Don Ray.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 15 in the home of Ruth McBride with Jena Rawley-Whitaker, illustrator of the children's book Fairy Tea, as guest speaker.

NEW YORK (AP) - It takes less alcohol to intoxicate a woman than a man of the same body weight, according to medical researchers.

This is because women's bodies contain proportionately less water than men's, so the alcohol is less diluted as it passes through a woman's system.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Our 1-year-old daughter just learned to walk. She kept scraping her knees falling on the sidewalk and driveway when wearing shorts.

We used terrycloth wrist sweatbands as knee pads — no more scrapes. I love this idea as much as our babysitter, Sue, who passed on the hint, does. — Jey Morell, Erie.

ICE POP

Dear Heloise: My son cut his lip and wouldn't let me apply ice to it.

It was still bleeding slightly, so I handed him an ice pop. He didn't refuse it. He stopped crying and forgot about his pain. — Janet Blake, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Lady Whitefaces subdue 'Dogs; claim 2nd place

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's volleyball match Tuesday helped separate the women from the girls.

Hereford beat Borger 15-8, 15-8 in Borger. The win let Hereford take sole possession of second place in District 1-4A. It also was a big step towards the playoffs for the Lady Whitefaces.

Hereford is now 3-1 in district and 13-8 overall. Borger drops to 2-2 and 12-7.

Elsewhere in District 1-4A, Dumas kept the lead at 4-0 with a 15-3, 15-3 win over 0-4 Pampa, and Caprock beat Randall 11-15, 15-10, 15-6. Caprock is 2-2, and Randall is 1-3.

Hereford gets a second shot at Dumas Tuesday in Dumas, but first the Lady Whitefaces host Pampa at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Against Borger, Hereford had to come back from an 8-6 deficit in the first game. Hereford led 5-1 early, but Borger came back to tie and take the lead. From that point, Hereford scored on every rotation.

In the second game, Hereford jumped out to an 11-3 lead, Borger fought back to 11-8 before Hereford put the Bulldogs away.

"I think our kids came out and played as well as they have all year long," Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said. "They played with a lot of poise and a lot of confidence."

"We served well. We had two missed serves in the match. We blocked very well; we had six stuffs. I think the area we've most improved in has been blocking. We've really started to block aggressively. It's really taken the heat off the backcourt people."

The Lady Whitefaces also responded well to pressure in the important match on a foreign floor.

"There would be a point where Borger would make a run. Early in the season that would have gotten us down. Our kids stayed poised and collected and got the ball back and scored."

Erin Bullard led the Lady Whitefaces' attack with nine kills. Kathy Hernandez had six, and Jill Robinson added four. Bullard and Robyn Watts each had two stuffs.

From the service line, Kara Sandoval was responsible for 10 points, serving 14 times with no errors. Robinson added six points on 12 good serves and one ace.

Hereford's junior varsity also won Tuesday, 17-15, 15-7 over the JV Bulldogs.

"We hung in there a long time to win that first game," coach Royce Spies said. "We got to 14 and went six rotations (before Hereford won). We had chances to win and they had chances to win. We just played with enough guts and really courage to win. The girls really did a good job."

She said Borger came out flat in the second game, and Hereford took advantage of that. Hereford is now 9-5 on the season.

"Katie Young probably had her best match; she really hit the ball well," Spies said. "Brooke Bryant had 10 points off her serve."

Eagles leave impression on Johnson

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Philadelphia Eagles have convinced Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

He now calls them the kings of the NFL.

"They're the best I've seen," Johnson said. "They have the best defense in the league."

The Cowboys were trying to heal their self-inflicted wounds Tuesday after the veteran Eagles whipped the young Cowboys 31-7 Monday night in a clash of NFC East unbeaten. Quarterback Troy Aikman served up three interceptions to the team he hasn't defeated in six starts.

"It was a disappointing loss," Johnson said. "But it's just the fourth game of the season. We want to make sure this game doesn't linger on and become a negative factor. We have to get back on track."

"This was a big reality check for us," said Dallas safety James Washington. "Now we know how far we have to go."

Aikman, who was sacked four times and flagged for grounding the ball on another occasion, admitted "I think the game is different without the turnovers. I cost us several times. We moved the ball on them but couldn't make the big play."

The Cowboys lost the ball a fourth time when fullback Daryl Johnston fumbled it away.

In six losses to Philadelphia, Aikman has been intercepted 10 times and sacked on 24 occasions. He has three touchdown passes.

Herschel Walker, a former Cowboy, made the Dallas loss even more painful with two touchdown runs.

"Every time the defense went on the field we were backed up because of all the turnovers," said linebacker Bill Bates. "It made things difficult."

Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin said the game will be different when the Eagles come to Texas Stadium for the return match on Nov. 1.

"The turnovers made the difference," Irvin said. "They won't next time because we won't make them."

Johnson said the Cowboys killed themselves.

"I thought we had the talent to move the football," Johnson said. "You can't expect to win making the mistakes we did."

But, offensive tackle Nate Newton said, "They beat us on both sides of the ball."

Aikman, who said he was sore from the beating he took, said the Eagles defense was "frustrating."

"I tried to make big plays probably when I shouldn't have," Aikman said. "But we won't let just one game determine what's in the store for us in the future."

The Cowboys had a league-high eight-game winning streak broken and have lost to the Eagles nine of the last 10 times they've played them in Veterans Stadium.

NFL loses $60 million in two court decisions

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Things keep happening to the NFL at the worst possible time.

Like this week: Four games decided Sunday in the final quarter; Dallas and Philadelphia in Monday night matchup of unbeaten.

And ... The NFL loses again in court - $60 million worth in two different cases. And the league office worries that fans will read the stuff about the courts, not the games.

"We knew these cases were coming up," Joe Browne, the NFL's vice president for communications, said Tuesday. "Win or lose, you don't want them on the sports pages at the same time we have outstanding games we've had."

Unfortunately for Browne, commissioner Paul Tagliabue and the NFL owners, you can't pick your timing ... or your judges. And you can't change your facts - the NFL is currently on a four-trial losing streak (three-and-a-half if you buy the league's argument that it won part of the Minnesota free agency case.)

The latest hits came on one day. First a jury in Washington awarded $30 million to 235 players who were on practice squads in 1989 - giving them exactly what they asked for in

Smoltz, Braves start up where they left off

ATLANTA (AP) - John Smoltz and Mark Lemke did their October thing again - and so did the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The result was a 5-1 victory Tuesday night for the Atlanta Braves in Game 1 of the National League playoffs.

Today, Pirate-killer Steve Avery takes to the mound for the Braves, facing Danny Jackson, who hasn't beaten Atlanta this season.

Smoltz stopped Pittsburgh on four hits in eight innings. He extended the Pirates' scoreless string to 29 innings against the Braves, dating back to last season's playoffs, before Jose Lind hit a solo home run in the eighth.

Lemke, a career .226 hitter, continued his hot October play by getting two singles and driving in Atlanta's first run in the second inning off Pittsburgh's Doug Drabek. Lemke hit .417 against the Minnesota Twins last season when the Braves lost the World Series in seven games.

"It was just fitting that the Lemmer would drive in the first run," said Atlanta manager Bobby Cox. "He's just picking up where he left off last October."

The postseason also brings out the best in Smoltz, who beat the Pirates twice in last year's playoffs, including a 4-0 shutout in Game 7. He pitched seven scoreless innings in Game 7 of the World Series before the Braves lost 1-0 in 10 innings.

"As a kid, I was always pretending to be in the situations where I'd be pitching the big game," said Smoltz, 3-0 in the postseason with a 1.15 ERA. "I enjoy being given the opportunity to pitch in games like this."

National League

The Pirates, on the other hand, are hoping to avoid becoming the first team to win three consecutive NL division titles and not make it to the World Series since the 1976-78 Philadelphia Phillies.

Pittsburgh's bats, however, have been silent in the big games against the Braves. After beating Atlanta 1-0 in Game 5 last season and needing one win to advance to the World Series, the Pirates lost 1-0 to Avery, who also blanked them in Game 2 and pitched 16 1-3 scoreless innings. Then they lost to Smoltz.

Barry Bonds, a leading MVP candidate, went 0 for 3 Tuesday night. In three playoff series, Bonds is batting only .146.

Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke, the NL's second-leading hitter at .324, went 1 for 4 with two strikeouts. He hit .160 against the Braves in the playoffs last year.

The Braves scored a pair of runs in the third off Drabek, who walked David Justice to open the inning. Sid Bream, who had singled and scored on Lemke's second-inning single, then doubled home Justice. Ron Gant sacrificed, and when first baseman Orlando Merced threw the ball wildly past first, Bream scored.

The Braves made it 4-0 in the fifth on Jeff Blauser's homer. They added a run in the seventh on Otis Nixon's single, stolen base and Terry Pendleton's RBI single off reliever Bob Patterson. He had taken over for Drabek, who went 4 2-3 innings.

Smoltz left after eight innings when his back stiffened up and Mike Stanton pitched the ninth, giving up a two-out double to Jeff King. Smoltz, the NL strikeout leader, whiffed six and walked three.

Both Pittsburgh manager Jim Leland and Cox agreed that the biggest play of the game came in the sixth with Pittsburgh trailing 4-0 and Alex Cole on first with a leadoff single. Jay Bell hit a shot to third base that Pendleton turned into a double play.

"Yes. I think so," said Leland. "We had Alex on there, and if it gets by Pendleton, we have Alex on third and maybe Jay on second, and Andy (Van Slyke) hitting. You don't know what might happen with Andy getting a base hit after that."

Jays, A's want to win now

TORONTO (AP) - Get a good look at the Oakland A's when they take the field in tonight's opening game of the AL playoffs. They'll look a lot different next year.

Now check out the confident Toronto Blue Jays. They'll look a lot sadder if they flop for the fourth straight time in a postseason series.

There is a heightened urgency for both teams to win - the A's will lose some of their 14 free agents and may not be as good for a while; the Toronto fans may not be as tolerant.

"There is that general sense of living for here and now," David Cone, the embodiment of that philosophy, through his late-season trade from the New York Mets to Toronto, said Tuesday. "Obviously, the front office here has done everything they can to put their best team on the field right now and worry about next year later."

"So there is that sense that this team has been brought together and it's a special group of guys. And we need to take advantage of it right now."

The Blue Jays came close last season, splitting the first two playoff games before losing the next three to Minnesota.

Since then, they have added two strong Hall of Fame candidates - Game 1 starter Jack Morris and Dave Winfield - and strikeout artist Cone. They were the key additions to a team always looking to improve, no matter how good it seems.

Only 10 current Blue Jays were on the 1989 team that lost to Oakland in five games. Only five were on the 1985 team that blew a 3-1 lead and lost to Kansas City in seven games. The current group has a solid lineup from top to bottom - combining the power of Joe Carter, Candy Maldonado and Winfield with the speed, defense and hitting of Roberto Alomar and Devon White. The starting rotation and bullpen are very deep.

American League

Toronto manager Cito Gaston is in the playoffs for the third time in four years, but still endures questions about the Blue Jays' inability to win big games.

"The people that write that should be up here answering those questions, not me," he said at a news conference Tuesday. "There's different guys here this year, so hopefully there'll be different results."

There will be a lot of different guys in Oakland next year. The impressive group of eligible free agents includes opening game starter Dave Stewart, reliever Dennis Eckersley, first baseman Mark McGwire and catcher Terry Steinbach.

All will command big bucks, and Oakland will have to pick and choose among players that helped it to four playoff series in the last five seasons. "It's obvious we're not going to be the same," Eckersley said. "Whether or not we're good again remains to be seen, but there's no doubt that this team is going to be broken up."

It already has begun with the trade of Jose Canseco to Texas for Ruben Sierra and pitchers Jeff Russell and Bobby Witt. Sierra and Russell also can become free agents, and Witt may be all the A's have left from the blockbuster deal.

"I don't even want to begin to get psyched up about '93," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said, "but that starts it when I keep hearing stuff about last hurrah. There's no doubt in my mind that we're going to try very hard to put together a club that contends next year."

La Russa already has done an outstanding job patching together this year's team, which was hounded by injuries. Rickey Henderson played only 117 games and a hamstring problem limited Dave Henderson to 20. La Russa juggled his middle infielders.

Yet the A's still won the AL West pennant by six games over Minnesota.

Kevin Maas of the New York Yankees has a degree in mechanical engineering from the University of California.

Batting coach Frank Howard of the New York Yankees is 6-8 and weighs 300 pounds.

Astros consider '92 a success

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros didn't make the NL playoffs. It just appeared that they did from the celebration that broke out after their season finale, a shut out of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Doug Jones almost smiled. Instead, he delivered the final pitch of his 36th save of the season, stabbed the air with his fist and doffed his hat, setting off a standing ovation from the 15,000 fans.

Players poured onto the field and shook hands and exchanged hugs.

"To be honest, this is the first season that I wish we were still playing," Art Howe said about the end of his fourth season managing. "I can't be anything but optimistic. Right now, we're going in the right direction."

All this for a .500 finish? Considering the long road the Astros traveled in 1991 to reach their 81-81 finish Sunday it was a cause for celebration because the Astros didn't live up to expectations.

They didn't free fall to the bottom of the NL Western Division cellar as many predictions indicated. They actually had a chance to tie for third place on the final day of the season, finishing fourth.

They weren't ground into dust by a phenomenal 26-game, 28-day road trip when they were dislodged from the Astrodome by the Republican convention. They actually became road warriors with a 12-14 record for the trip.

Craig Biggio not only didn't struggle in moving from catcher to second base, he made the All-Star team in his first season at the new position, where he played every spring game and all 162 regular season games.

Rightfielder Eric Anthony didn't fail again in his attempt to show he is major league caliber. He may be the most improved player this season.

"We felt that if we could be around .500, give or take a few games either side, that would prove to the guys that they could hold their own," General Manager Bill Wood said.

"We felt if we could get continued improvement from most of the younger players that by the end of the year we'd have a better idea where we need to strengthen the club for the future."

Starting on Aug. 11, the Astros closed out the season with a 33-17 record, giving hope they they'll ascend to the role of contenders in 1993. The club made a strong turnaround from last year's 65-97 finish, with a 16-game surge forward. "If we make the same gain next year, we'll be contending," Wood said.

The Astros were 28-53 on the road last season and they were forecast for more pratfalls this season because of their 26-game road trip. They were 34-47 on the road this season and now they call the long trip a good thing.

"Maybe it was a blessing," Biggio said. "It made us do something. That's something we can point to next season."

"We had a lot of our younger players start coming into their own," Biggio said. "We discovered that we can win those one-run ball games and we found out we can win on the road."

Wood could see the chance in the team's mind-set about halfway through the road trip.

"We feel now that we can go on the road and win," Wood said. "We didn't feel that way at the beginning of the season. It wasn't until the middle of that road trip that we realized that we could compete. They got out there and it was win or die."

"Now we just have to learn how to win in San Diego and at home against the Braves."

The Braves swept all nine games they played in Houston this season and the Astros have historically played poorly in San Diego.

To reach the level of contention, there are some non-accomplishments Wood and new owner Drayton McLane must address.

From Wood's assessment it begins with starting pitching, an area of concern throughout the season. Pete Harnisch had an off year Mark Portugal has to stay healthy.

Shortstop Andujar Cedeno suffered through a rocky season, taking time off to return to Class AAA Tucson. He returned with a brief flourish, hitting for the cycle in his first game back, but has remained inconsistent.

Eddie Taubensee struggled as the starting catcher.

"Young players are going to struggle, that's a fact," Wood said. "I see a bright future for Andujar and I don't see another catcher around the league with Taubensee's tools. It's just a matter of time and experience."

Oilers face long road haul

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers have a chance to overcome their legacy as road losers with six of their next eight games away from the Astrodome.

The begin the road portion of their schedule Sunday at Cincinnati with a 3-1 record and still chasing the elusive homefield advantage they've never attained in six straight years in the playoffs.

"We're thinking of the home field advantage for the playoffs and this stretch will definitely mean the difference," guard Mike Munchak said. "If we go .500 on the road and 7-1 at home, we'd be 11-5 and I don't think that's going to be the best record in the AFC," Munchak said.

The Oilers finished last season with an 11-5 record and still found themselves on the road for the second round at Denver, where they lost in the final seconds on another of John Elway's miracle drives.

"I never understood why we didn't win on the road in the past," Munchak said. "It seems like when you have a good team you should be able to win away from home."

"We used to fall apart on the road but I think we're beyond that now. I just don't see this team falling apart anymore."

NFL

The Oilers own the NFL record of 23 consecutive road losses, from early in the 1981 season to midway in the 1985 season. Houston was 4-4 on the road last year and the Oilers beat Indianapolis 20-10 in their only road game this season.

"We want to win the home field advantage so I think we have to be 6-2 on the road," safety Bubba McDowell said. "I feel good about playing on the road because I know we're good enough to do well. It helped us tremendously to play all our preseason games on the road."

The Oilers, like their baseball counterpart Houston Astros, were displaced from the Astrodome because of the Republican convention this summer and compiled a 4-1 preseason record.

"Playing all those preseason games on the road showed that if we're concentrating and executing, it doesn't matter if we play on the road," tackle David Williams said.

The Oilers had last week off.

After going to Cincinnati Sunday, the Oilers play at Denver, host Cincinnati, play at Pittsburgh, host Cleveland and the play at Minnesota, Miami and Detroit.

Three of their last four games are at home, including a Monday night game with the Chicago Bears on Dec. 7.

Gibbs looks for 1st win over UT

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - When Gary Gibbs thinks about the Oklahoma-Texas game, he thinks of the pageantry, excitement and emotion that make it a college football classic.

Disappointment also comes to mind.

The Oklahoma coach is 0-3 against the Longhorns heading into the 87th renewal of the series Saturday afternoon in the Cotton Bowl. In all three games, the Sooners lost in the final quarter. In all three - particularly the past two years - Oklahoma appeared to have the better team.

"Crazy things have happened in that game in the past, and obviously the last three years a lot of crazy things have happened," Gibbs said Tuesday. "I think it's two evenly matched teams every year. They've won the ball games, be it because we didn't take advantage of opportunities or we made enough mistakes that took away opportunities to win."

"With that comes a lot of disappointment."

Texas rallied from a 21-7 halftime deficit to win 28-24 in 1989. The winning touchdown came on a pass from Peter Gardere to Johnny Walker with 1:33 left in the game.

In 1990, Texas used another late drive to win 14-13. The Longhorn offense, which had been stifled most of the day, drove 91 yards in 13 plays with Gardere hitting Keith Cash on a fourth-and-7 play for the winning touchdown with 1:50 left.

Last year the Texas defense won the game. Oklahoma led 7-3 in the fourth quarter when fullback Mike McKinley fumbled. Bubba Jacques scooped it up and returned it for a touchdown to give Texas a 10-7 victory.

"I guess I need to find that rabbit's foot," Gibbs said. "The ball hasn't bounced our way, that's for sure."

"Last year I don't think they would have scored a touchdown against us if we had played 12 quarters down there in the Cotton Bowl, yet their only touchdown comes when the very reliable Mike McKinley fumbles."

The 16th-ranked Sooners (3-1) are favored this week, but Gibbs isn't about to label it any more than a typical Oklahoma-Texas game.

"I think last year when we played them it was a big game, the year before that when we played them it was a big game, in '89 when we played them it was a big game," he said.

"Any time you see it up and OU-Texas are involved down in the Cotton Bowl, it's always a big game."

He also dismissed the idea of wanting a victory Saturday to quiet critics unhappy with his record against Texas.

"I'd like to win the game for our players and our coaches and our fans and everyone who supports Oklahoma football," he said.

The Sooners have beaten Texas Tech, Arkansas State and Iowa State and have lost to Southern Cal. Texas (2-2) has beaten North Texas and Rice after starting the year with losses to Mississippi State and Syracuse.

Oklahoma has several injured players, particularly on defense. Gibbs said ends Greg Wilkins, Joe Correia and Cedric Jones all got hurt in the Iowa State game. Wilkins and Correia are doubtful, Jones should play.

On offense, split end Albert Hall had surgery Monday to correct a urinary problem and will miss at least two games, Gibbs said. Tight end Rickey Brady, who broke a rib against Arkansas State, is highly doubtful.

"It hasn't been a very good last two or three days from the training room," Gibbs said.

Gardere threatens UT marks

AUSTIN (AP) - Peter Gardere is on track to demolish the school record for passing yards in a season, and the University of Texas quarterback has plenty of receivers.

Gardere completed passes to 11 players in last week's narrow victory over Rice.

Going into Saturday's game with No. 16 Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Gardere is averaging 237 yards passing.

In four games, he has 948 yards in the air and needs to average 184 a game the rest of the season to break the record of 2,233 set in 1986 by Bret Stafford.

And last year's reception leader, Darrick Duke, hasn't even caught a pass this season. He was slowed by a wrist injury at the beginning of the season but has been playing.

Junior Kenny Neal is leading the team with 14 catches. Freshman Lovell Pinkney is the yardage leader with 304.

Pinkney is second in the nation in yards per catch, averaging 30.4. He has caught a pass for more than 50 yards in each of the last three games. And he has the three longest plays from scrimmage, 73, 55 and 53 yards.

Texas coach John Mackovic says it's a new look for both his squad (202) and Oklahoma (3-1), where quarterback Cale Gundy is averaging 231 yards passing a game while the running backs are combining for 160 yards rushing.

"This is a tremendous story about the changes in college football. Over the years, Texas and Oklahoma have been more opposed to change than just about anyone," he said.

The changes at Texas have come quickly. In four games under Mackovic's pro-style offense, Texas quarterbacks average 31 pass attempts a game.

Mackovic says Texas needs to improve its pass rush against the Sooners. He also is wary of Oklahoma fullback Kenyon Rasheed, who has rushed for 202 yards this year. But containing Gundy remains the top assignment.

Aggie duo honored by SWC

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Lance Teichelman stepped into a different position, not a new position, at nose guard for the Texas Aggies with disastrous results for Texas Tech.

Teichelman clogged the Red Raiders offense with two of the Aggies' four sacks and eight tackles to earn The Associated Press Defensive player of the week honor. Aggie running back Rodney Thomas was equally adept against the Raider defense, gaining a career high 179 yards on 24 carries and a touchdown to earn the offensive honor following the Aggies' key 19-17 SWC victory.

Teichelman is no stranger to nose guard but started the season at defensive end. He and Eric England switched positions for the Tech game.

"This year I've played nose guard in the nickel packages but I felt I was better at end," Teichelman said. "The coaches came to me on Monday and asked if I wanted to play nose the rest of the season. That's fine with me."

Teichelman credited his linemates for allowing his two sacks.

"(Kefa) Chatham took out a guard and the center on the first one and Eric kept Robert Hall occupied until I could get there on the second one," Teichelman said. "I'm just so proud of the whole team."

The Aggies are 5-0 with this week off to prepare for Rice Oct. 17.

"We're not taking any time off," Teichelman said. "We'll rest when the season's over."

Thomas shared running back duties with Greg Hill until the final minutes of the game when Hill suffered a groin injury during the game-winning drive. Hill took the responsibility of getting the ground yards.

He had an 11-yard run and three other carries that put the Aggies in position for Terry Venetoulis' 21-yard field goal as time expired.

The Aggies have toyed with their "Lion Backfield" that features both

Hill and Thomas at the same time. Hill gained 141 yards before he was injured, creating headaches for the Raider defense.

"About the time you think you've got one fire put out, another one pops up. They both are great daylight runners," Tech coach Spike Dykes said.

Thomas regularly exceeded 100 yards during his schoolboy days at Groveton but his century performance against the Raiders was a college first.

"It's an accomplishment for any running back to get 100 yards but to me the important thing was winning the game," Thomas said. "I go into every game thinking about getting the ball but winning is the thing."

Thomas expects to get better.

"When I got here the offense was really complicated and hard," Thomas said. "I won't say that I've mastered it now. I just try to do what I'm told. I never had to block in high school. That's something that I've had to work on real hard."

NFL

their claim that they should have been paid what their contracts called for instead of $1,000 a week.

Then the National Labor Relations Board found that the league owes another $30 million to 1,100 players held out of a week's games after they returned from the 1987 strike on a Thursday rather than a Wednesday, the owner's stated reporting date.

The decision not to let the returning players take part in the fourth weekend of the 1987 strike was basically the work of Dallas president Tex Schramm, now retired, and Jack Donlan, the executive director of the Management Council. Donlan was shown the door by Tagliabue, who took over labor relations himself.

In fact, the day the players decided to return, Brown told reporters they were playing Sunday. About 15 minutes later, he was contradicted by Schramm, the point man for the owners during the strike.

Nonetheless, Tagliabue's softer line has been no more successful at getting a collective bargaining agreement with a union whose victories in court have it smelling a rout. Why bargain when you're winning?

The NFL's leverage is time - it will appeal everything, meaning that any money due won't be paid for three or four years if the process is drawn out.

Moreover, only about a third of the players who struck in 1987 remain in the league, and by the time the appeals are exhausted, there may not be more than a couple of hundred. That means almost all the strikers will have missed a decade of benefits.

The NFL is also confident of getting the award to the practice players reduced.

Parrett joins list of Permian's receiving greats

ODESSA (AP) - Greg Anderson, Lloyd Hill, Will Wagner. Go-to guys. Names at or near the top of the District 4-5A receiving lists. Names followed by a comma, then "Permian."

This year, the name is Kendrick Parrett. In a season barely a month old, the slight senior already has established himself as quarterback Dennis Graham's primary passing target.

"I've been able to get open in all the games," Parrett said. "I guess (Graham has) just been looking for the open man, and it's been me."

The 5-10, 152-pound Parrett has 16 catches and five scoring receptions this season, including a game-icing, 43-yard play with 90 seconds left in a 14-0 victory over Odessa High two weeks ago.

On one hand, Permian head coach Tam Hollingshead believes the Panthers' reliance on Parrett is purely coincidental; just a matter of finding the open man and going to him. On the other, Hollingshead can understand why it's Parrett.

"Kendrick is an excellent athlete," Hollingshead said. "We're always looking for kids who can make the big plays in key situations, and we hope he continues to play that kind of sound football."

"In our offensive scheme, the quarterback has the option of running the football in all situations. But Kendrick has become an excellent receiver; he's among the first two or three choices when we come out throwing. It's just kind of worked out that way."

Parrett agrees, saying only that his ability to get open, particularly on third-down plays, has made him an attractive target. In no game was that more evident than in Permian's 20-14 loss to Temple, where Parrett was on the receiving end of all six Graham completions. Three of those catches picked up first downs, one went 48 yards for a game-tying TD.

Without the size of an Anderson, who starred at Baylor, or a Hill, who is starring at Texas Tech, Parrett has used his speed and strength to make a name for himself.

At last spring's 4-5A track championships in Abilene, Parrett won the 300-meter intermediate hurdles race in 38.59 seconds after setting a school record for a junior in the 110 high hurdles by finishing second in 13.85. He went on to narrowly miss state-meet berths in both events, finishing third in each at the Region 1-5A meet in Lubbock.

Indeed, although it's been through football that Parrett has made the most public impact, he realizes that it may have to be track that carries him to a college scholarship.

"I'll make that decision when it comes, but I'll probably get a better look in track because of my size, which I really don't think is right," Parrett said. "But hopefully I can go somewhere on track and walk-on in football. I had in mind some place like Tennessee, which is real good in track and football."

No Volunteers' representative has contacted Parrett yet, but that could change even before track season rolls around. His 16 catches place him in the top ranks of 4-5A receivers thus far, and he also is near the top in TD receptions with 5. A couple that with what should be another extended Permian stay in the playoffs, thus generating more exposure, and Parrett's major college future could be bright.

Hollingshead said at least part of the credit should go to a player who, ironically, didn't get that kind of a shot: Wagner.

"I think (Parrett) learned a lot last year playing with Will Wagner," said Hollingshead of his senior standout from a year ago who has since moved on to Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. "Will taught him some things and Kendrick has been able to use that this year."

Still, at least going into last year's playoffs, Parrett was every bit the threat Wagner was. In the Panthers' first two postseason games, Parrett caught nine balls to Wagner's two, but Permian's state-championship march from then on belonged to the senior.

Now, it's Parrett's turn as a senior. And while his only professed personal goal is to top the 28 receptions he had a year ago, being a Permian senior means much, much more.

"It's not that much different, except that when you go into your senior year after a year like we had when I was a junior, you say to yourself, 'Can we do it again?'"

"It's still early, but I think we've got a chance," he said.

Soccer gaining in popularity

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Football declined and soccer continued to rise in popularity with high school athletes during the past school year, according to a new survey that found participation overall at its highest level in 13 years.

The National Federation of State High School Associations has compiled the survey every year since 1971, based on reports from its member organizations in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The latest survey, covering 1991-92, found 5,370,654 sports participants, up 71,983 from the previous year. The total is the highest since the 5,563,912 reported for the 1978-79 school year, the federation said in its report this week.

Football remains by far the most popular sport, although the number of participants has been declining for several years. There were 912,845 participants during the last school year, a decline of 28,578.

As football participation drops, soccer continues to increase, for both boys and girls. There were 236,082 boys playing soccer, up from 132,000 in 1979. Girls playing the sport rose from 23,475 to 135,302 during that same period.

For boys, soccer has moved ahead of wrestling to become the fifth most popular sport, behind football, basketball (518,127), baseball (433,684) and outdoor track and field (417,451).

All top 10 girls' sports except volleyball registered increases in participation, led by soccer, up 13,580; tennis, up 6,826; and outdoor track and field, up 6,420.

Basketball remains the most popular sport for girls, with 391,612 participants. Outdoor track and field was next with 327,183, followed by volleyball with 293,948, fast-pitch softball with 221,510, tennis with 139,433 and then soccer.

In all, there were 3,429,853 boys participating in sports during the last school year, an increase of 23,498 and the highest since 1980-81. The number of girls rose 48,485 to 1,940,801, second highest to the 2,083,040 reported in 1977-78.

Texas led all states in high school sports participation with 479,750, followed by California with 461,794,

New York 291,591, Ohio 274,224, Michigan 262,453, Illinois 252,808, Pennsylvania 211,106, New Jersey 177,064, Washington 152,722 and Florida 150,487.

Total participation in high school sports hit an all-time high of 6,450,482 in 1977-78, the federation said. With the exception of a slight decrease from 1987-88 to 1988-89, participation has risen each year since 1984-85.

The release of the new survey this week comes after high school principals in Chicago said they intend to drop winter and spring sports unless enough money is raised by Nov. 1 to support them.

"We realize that many school districts are having hard times financially, and we certainly hope that something can be done to keep high school sports alive in Chicago," said Brice Durbin, executive director of the National Federation.

Durbin said it was unfortunate high school athletics have become the scapegoat for school budget problems because national figures indicate that only 1 percent to 5 percent of a school district budget goes for sports.

Foreman: Holyfield lacks hunger

HOUSTON (AP) - Critics have become a part of heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield's entourage.

They follow him as devotedly as the hangers-on who sing his praises. George Foreman says Holyfield will lose in his Nov. 13 title defense against Riddick Bowe in Las Vegas.

"Riddick Bowe has got the better chance if you ask me," Foreman said Tuesday. "Why? He's bigger, he's young and he's hungry. I think Evander Holyfield has lost some of the hunger so he's going to have little to fight for."

Holyfield doesn't flinch at the critics who say his 6-2, 210-pound frame will be his downfall against the larger 6-5, 230-pound Bowe.

"Who are you without critics?" Holyfield asked. "They give you something to shoot at. You realize when you have a critic you must be doing something well because they only write about someone who is doing well."

Holyfield got a scare before beating Holmes June 19 in his most recent title defense when he suffered a cut over his right eye.

"That proved a lot to me that regardless of what happens, I can carry out the game plan," he said. "I didn't freak out. You never know how a person will react. I'd never been hurt before to the point of being cut. I took it and continued to fight."

Bowe will be more aggressive than Foreman or Holmes, Holyfield said.

"The younger fighter really doesn't have a plan," Holyfield said. "They just come out and realize they have to take the fight to you to win."

"He'll feel he has to come and knock me out. That will make it a very exciting fight compared to George Foreman and Larry Holmes. That's more action for the public. People really want to see a great fight.

"Fans will now get to see me use a little more of my skills."

Duva says Holyfield could get knocked down in the fight but that doesn't mean he's joining his fighter's detractors.

"I know my guy will get up," Duva said. "I don't know about the other guy getting up. That's the sign of a champion. He's fighting a good fighter in Bowe but Evander's got too much of this (heart) and he's got the mental strength."

Duva put Holyfield through his routine at the Heights Gym Tuesday, where Holyfield begins another climb to get ready and to get respect.

Holyfield, 28-0 since beginning his pro career in 1984, will again be undersized against Bowe.

REQUEST FOR STATEMENTS OF INTEREST FOR THE Texas LOGO Sign Program

In accordance with Texas Civil Statutes, Articles 6674a et seq. and 4477-9a, Section 4.07, and Title 43, Texas Administrative Code, Sections 25.400-25.408 (43 TAC §§25.408), the Texas Department of Transportation is seeking statements of interest from a person, firm, group, or association in the State of Texas for the award of a contract to erect, maintain, lease and market signs and sign space to commercial establishments for the purpose of giving specific information of interest to the traveling public, including specific brand names, at appropriate locations along interstate highways in each county with a population of less than 20,000.

Prospective contractors will be required to meet the prequalification requirements as provided by 43 TAC §§25.400-25.408 (published in the June 9, 1992 issue on the Texas Register, 17 TexReg 4160-4167; correction of error published in the June 19, 1992 issue of the Texas Register, 17 TexReg 4481; final adoption to be published in the October 9, 1992 issue of the Texas Register). These sections were adopted by the Texas Transportation Commission on September 29, 1992 and will become effective October 20, 1992.

Statements of interest will be used to determine if a person, firm, group, or association in the State of Texas is prequalified for bidding on the Texas LOGO Sign Program contract. Any party interested in becoming prequalified to bid on this contract will be required to submit an introductory letter and a statement of interest. Introductory letters and statement of interests may be sent by registered mail or hand delivered, but must be received at the office of Mr. Mark Thorp, Project Engineer, by 5:00 PM, Central Standard Time, November 23, 1992. Mr. Thorp's address and telephone number may be found at the end of this notice.

Introductory letters and statement of interests will not be accepted if submitted by facsimile message or telegrams.

Each statement of interest will be reviewed and only those parties meeting the prequalification requirements as prescribed by 43 TAC §§25.403 will be issued bidding proposals and invited to a pre-bid conference. Bids will be opened December 25, 1992 after 1:00 PM, Central Standard Time.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Lyn Nofziger says in his memoirs that Ronald Reagan was quick to absorb information but that he sometimes blurted out embarrassing jokes or observations - such as trees causing pollution.

"Reagan has a great 'in,' button, but his 'out' button sometimes gets stuck on open," the former White House political director writes.

While acknowledging that Reagan often embellished stories to make a point, Nofziger says the actor-turned-politician did it honestly because he convinced himself he was telling the truth.

"Nofziger" was published last week by Regnery Gateway.

The HEREFORD BRAND'S FOOTBALL CONTEST!

Large crowd gathers for celebration

Approximately 265 youths gathered at Deaf Smith County Library Thursday afternoon, Oct. 1, to celebrate 10 years with "Hank the Cowdog." Those attending brought their stuffed animals for a "Stuffed Pet Show." They also sang songs and for refreshments were served "dog biscuits" and "puppy chow."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You gave an excellent response to the girl in San Diego whose boyfriend is living with her but not paying rent or any other bills. I hope she gets rid of him while she still has some money left. I was the same kind of fool, but I wasn't some young girl in love for the first time. I was 40 and divorced, and I had three children to support. A friend introduced me to "Derek," who wined and dined me. I fell like a ton of bricks.

Derek was having money trouble, so I let him move in. It was always, "As soon as I get on my feet, I'll help with the bills."

When I met Derek, I was living comfortably, owned my own home and had a 3-year-old car that was paid for. As soon as we became engaged, he convinced me to buy some property in town as "an investment for our future." I also had to get a larger car because "our family was bigger now." He needed new clothes so I bought him several outfits with my charge cards. He was smart, Ann. He made sure all purchases were in my name. He played on my sympathy, and it worked, to the tune of $35,000. I had to remortgage my house to get out of debt.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Kristy McNichol has a manic-depressive disorder and is taking a break from NBC's "Empty Nest," the show's executive producer says.

"She is following her doctor's advice to take it easy," Tony Thomas said Tuesday.

The 29-year-old actress suffers from severe mood swings, and her condition can lead to exhaustion and other problems, Thomas said.

After 15 months, a bigger fool came along, a woman with a $50,000-a-year job and a BMW. Derek left me and moved in with her.

I was devastated and cried for weeks. I lost 30 pounds, and my blood pressure went through the roof. Now, several months later, I've got my head on straight and I'm glad he's gone. After all, it could have been worse. I could have married the creep and lost everything.--Brookville, Pa.

DEAR BROOK: If misery loves company, you have a soul sister in Baton Rouge. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to "San Diego" with the freeloading boyfriend was extremely generous. Allowing that jerk two weeks to find another place to live was a nice gesture. Too nice.

My friends always said I was too trusting. Ten years ago, I proved them right.

My freeloader was "Tom," handsome and smooth with a heart full of larceny. He used my car to cart his friends around town and entertained them on my credit card. He invited his out-of-state pals to stay at my apartment without consulting me. I never knew who I'd find in the bathroom.

The final straw was a $300 phone bill. When Tom came home that night, I had a "surprise" for him. I'd spent the afternoon packing and stacking his belongings by the front door. When he entered the apartment, I took his key, gently pushed him and his things onto the porch and closed the door in his face. I'm sorry I didn't do it two years earlier.--Loony in Louisiana

DEAR LOONY: Some people catch on sooner than others. You were a slow learner, but you finally got the message, and that's what counts.

DEAR READERS: "The Living Heart Brand Name Shopper's Guide" is a treasure trove of information for those who want to eat healthy. This paperback lists 5,000 brand names of food with their calorie count and fat content (both saturated and unsaturated), as well as information about sodium and cholesterol. Everyone interested in good nutrition will love this book. It was written by Dr. Michael DeBakey and Dr. Antonie Goto Jr., with Lynne W. Scott and John P. Foreyt. Publisher: MasterMedia, Ltd. Price $12.50.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write to Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have extensive varicose veins which really stick out on the inner aspect of both my legs. They run all the way from my ankles to the top of the inner thigh. I use support hose. I walk 10 miles a day, ride my bicycle twice weekly and lift weights. My job also requires that I stand on my feet all day. The floors are concrete. I do a lot of walking on my job.

Sometimes I experience leg cramps. Most of all I am self-conscious about my legs. Otherwise, I consider myself very attractive. I'm 37 years old and weigh 150 pounds. I have a very muscular build. Is there anything I can do to remove these ugly veins effectively and rid myself of leg cramps? If I had surgery, would the veins reappear on other parts of my legs. I can't have any more children because I had a hysterectomy last year. My mother also had varicose veins.

DEAR READER: There is an inherited tendency to have varicose veins. And pregnancy certainly does increase the chances of having them.

That is why women should wear good pressure stockings during pregnancy. I am not sure what you mean by "support hose," but some support hose does not give enough support to really prevent the expansion of the dilated veins.

Your description sounds like you have only the dilated veins under the skin, which is varicose veins. The question is whether you also have venous insufficiency because of dilated veins deep inside your legs that you cannot see. If not, there are several options. You could have them injected. That works for such superficial veins when done properly with adequate pressure on the legs after injections. Or you could have them surgically stripped out.

I have discussed these procedures in Special Report 96, Help for Varicose Veins and Venous Insufficiency. I would have sent you a free copy, but you did not have your address on your letterhead. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH

LETTER/96, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

It is not unusual to have to do some touch-up work after either injections or surgery. This usually involves veins that connect your inner deep veins with your superficial veins. These too can usually be treated with injections. Recurrences can occur.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.
