Allies reclaim Kuwait City

KUWAIT CITY (AP) - With Iraq's shattered occupation army in chaotic flight, allied forces today reclaimed Kuwait's capital. Deep inside rain-darkened Iraq, U.S. forces were reported to be crippling Saddam Hussein's best troops.

Amid wild rejoicing, Kuwaiti troops hoisted the country's colors in downtown Flag Square - the traditional site of National Day celebrations. Allied troops paraded triumphantly into the capital.

A Pentagon source said U.S. Marines today secured Kuwait's international airport, south of the city. Marines in M-60 tanks fought Iraqi armor there Tuesday, destroying more than 100 Iraqi tanks, the source said.

Far bigger tank battles were taking place to the west, in Iraq, where U.S. armored forces were engaging the Republican Guard.

The allies have reported relatively light casualties for such a huge operation, but deaths were mounting. There were at least 36 allied deaths, not including the 28 American troops killed in Monday's Scud attack.

At least 11 Americans had died; seven belonged to the 82nd Airborne but were attached to French forces in Iraq. Thirteen Arabs, 10 Britons and two Frenchmen also were among the dead.

The extent of Iraqi casualties was not known, but they certainly were far greater.

French forces pushing north into Iraq secured a small town about 100 miles north of the Saudi border, and French and U.S. combat units made their way as far the Euphrates River, AP correspondent Jeffrey Ulbrich reported from the headquarters of the Army's XVIII Airborne Corps in northern Saudi Arabia.

The 101st Airborne Division's air assault units were the first to reach the river, linking up later with their infantry. The 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), heading in a slightly different direction, and the 82nd Airborne Division, working with the French 6th Armored Division, were also deep in Iraq.

The allies made it clear that Saddam would not be allowed to survive the Persian Gulf War with power and prestige intact. On Tuesday, when Saddam pledged to withdraw, President Bush said the war would press on "with undiminished intensity."

Baghdad radio claimed today that the withdrawal from Kuwait was completed "by the first light this morning." Allied commanders said the Iraqis were fleeing en masse, but that it was not known how many remained in Kuwait today.

A prime escape route for Iraqi troops could already be cut off. An Iraq military communique today said allied paratroopers had landed at an air base near Nasiriyah, 175 miles south of Baghdad on the Euphrates. A senior military official in Washington confirmed that U.S. troops had captured an airfield near Nasiriyah.

Capture of Nasiriyah would seal off routes running north toward the Iraqi heartland from the southeastern Iraqi city of Basra - since allied bombing raids have knocked out bridges across the Euphrates.

On the battlefield, the number of Iraqi prisoners was climbing so fast that U.S. military officials said they could no longer keep track of numbers beyond the 32,000 total the command reported late Tuesday.

Surrendering Iraqis shouted "Salaam! Salaam!" - "Peace! Peace!" - as they raised their hands. One U.S. official described an incident in which an Iraqi tank and armored personnel carrier came upon a U.S. humvee stuck in mud.

Bush turning to post-war problems

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush said today the liberation of Kuwait "is almost complete," and the White House turned its attention to the post-war problems of the Persian Gulf region.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater predicted that the war would end "in a matter of days," and that U.S. officials were preparing to reopen its embassy in Kuwait City.

"We will have embassy personnel going back there very soon," Fitzwater said.

Bush was meeting this afternoon with British Foreign Minister Douglas Hurd, the first in a series of sessions with members of the allied coalition to discuss the post-war Persian Gulf.

Fitzwater said Bush was starting to turn to the post-war questions "more and more."

Bush today declared, "The liberation of Kuwait, the country, is almost complete."

"We're going to concentrate on ending that thing and ending it right and then moving forward and staying with these enormous challenges that these countries face, and we can be helpful there," Bush told U.S. and Eastern European business leaders and officials.

Congressional leaders urged that economic sanctions against Saddam Hussein's government be continued to force compliance with U.N. resolutions.

At the Pentagon, an official said the "main fighting" had shifted to Iraq, and Fitzwater said the war is "in its final stages."

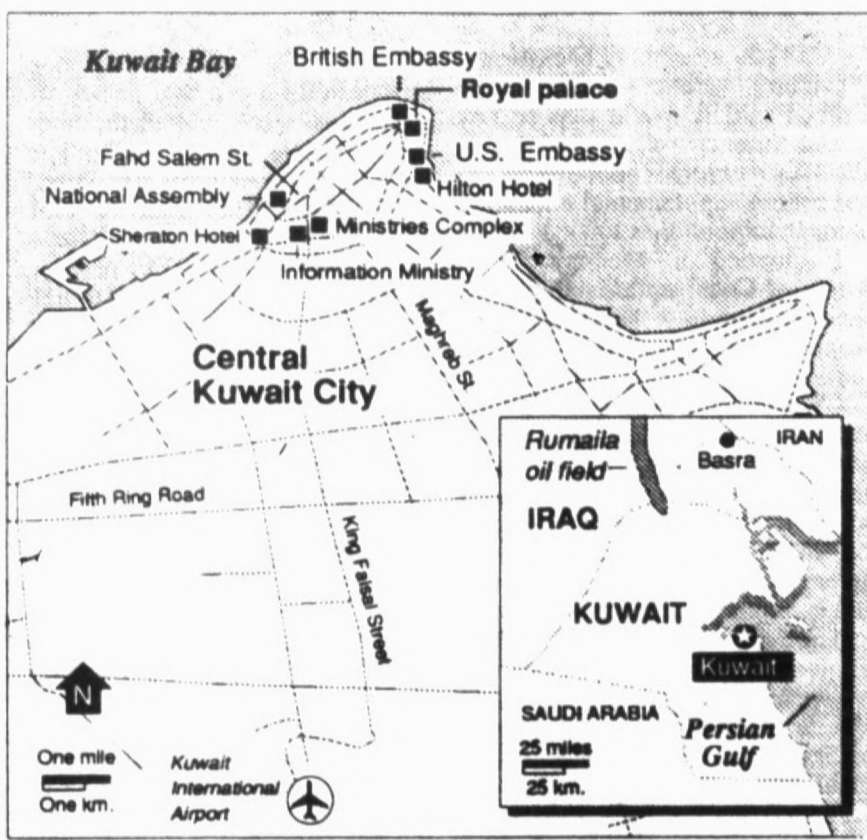

However, Fitzwater denied reports that the Iraqi withdrawal was complete.

"There are still forces in Kuwait," and the allies will pursue them, he said.

He said there are no plans for the ground troops to push on to Baghdad.

But the spokesman was vague on what must happen for the war to be declared over.

"A lot of this is going to depend on what Saddam Hussein has to say, whether he accepts the United Nations resolutions," and when he stops firing Scud missiles and taking other military action, Fitzwater said.

Man killed in accident

A Hereford man was killed Tuesday afternoon when he became entangled in the drive shaft of a center pivot sprinkler system on a farm northwest of Hereford.

D.W. "Dub" Nolen, 61, was pronounced dead at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday by Deaf Smith County Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine. Authorities have not yet been able to determine how long Mr. Nolen had been dead before the accident was discovered.

Hereford firefighters received a call at about 5:05 p.m. Tuesday and worked for about 40 minutes before they were able to free the man from the machinery.

Funeral services for Mr. Nolen are pending at Rix Funeral Directors in Hereford. Mr. Nolen had lived in Hereford for 21 years, moving here from Sudan.

Hereford volunteer firefighters later fought a blaze that damaged two houses in South Hereford on Tuesday.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain said someone apparently started a fire in a vacant house at 905 S. Schley in Hereford. Spain said flames shot up to 60 feet in the air before they were finally controlled. Firefighters remained at the scene until about 1 a.m. to make sure the flames did not spread to other houses in the area.

Spain said the damage was over $50,000, and the fire is being investigated as an arson. None of the persons living at 903 S. Schley were injured in the fire.

Volunteers needed for survey

Volunteers are needed to help conduct a community survey March 9, when Hereford citizens will be asked to rate the effectiveness, in several areas, of the Hereford public schools.

Hereford Independent School District officials said they will need about 500 volunteers to conduct the survey, which will take a few hours of the volunteers time on the Saturday. Several school organizations have already enlisted in the effort: any adult that would like to volunteer may contact Alice Lockmiller or Marilyn Leasure at the school administration building at 364-0606 by this Friday.

The survey contains about 25 questions that rate the effectiveness of the HISD in several areas. Hereford Superintendent Charles Greenawalt recently explained, "Sometimes we think we know what the people of Hereford think, but what they really think or believe in is something different. This will help us to really know what the people of Hereford think about the job we are doing and what they want us to do."

Volunteers will meet in the Hereford High School cafeteria at 8:30 a.m. on March 9 to be trained to use the survey. Coffee, juice and doughnuts will be served. Volunteers will then go out into the community from 10 a.m. until noon, return to the cafeteria for lunch, then again canvass the community from 1 to 3 p.m. Volunteers will then return to the cafeteria where there will be a drawing for several door prizes.

For persons who live outside the city limits, survey forms are available at the administration building, 136 Ave. F. They may also be mailed by calling the administration building at 364-0606 and leaving your name and address. Copies of the survey will also be sent home with students who ride buses. Volunteers will be available at the HHS cafeteria on March 9 to help complete surveys that were mailed or sent home with students, and questions may also be answered by calling the administration building.

The survey will take from 10 to 15 minutes to complete. Volunteers will be wearing badges which read "HISD Volunteer Community Survey Project." Each volunteer team will receive an envelope indicating the street section the team will survey. Volunteers will ask questions, which are very basic, and mark responses on forms in grey notebooks.

WTSU President visits

Dr. Barry Thompson, new president at West Texas State University, visited with a few Hereford community leaders Tuesday at a breakfast hosted by the Panhandle Area Alliance. Frank Barrett, former WT regent, was among those welcoming Dr. Thompson to Hereford.

WT president visits

Dr. Barry Thompson, the new president of West Texas State University, met with a few of Hereford's community leaders here Tuesday morning at a breakfast hosted by the Panhandle Area Alliance.

Dr. Thompson outlined a few of his priorities for the university, including an upgrading of the agriculture department, and an emphasis on turning out more quality teachers in math, science and foreign languages.

The new president said he was encouraged by the strong support he has seen all over the Panhandle for "helping make WTSU a major player" as the university of the region.

"It doesn't take a brain surgeon or rocket scientist to take a look around the area and see that agriculture should be an important department at WTSU," said Thompson.

While Thompson said he views problems as opportunities, state budget cuts have him working overtime to trim operating expenses. Dr. Thompson also faced a $2 million deficit in the athletic program when he arrived, causing the university to drop the football program. He plans to start a non-scholarship football program in several years.

Budget cuts could cause the university to put a limit on enrollment at about 5,100, said Thompson. The school has the facilities to take care of more than 8,000 students if the funding was available, he added.

Dr. Thompson was introduced by Dave McReynolds, executive director of the Panhandle Area Alliance. Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher said the alliance was helping introduce Thompson to citizens around the Panhandle. Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce helped with the dutch-treat breakfast arrangements here Tuesday.

Textbooks available for public inspection

Copies of new textbooks to be considered for the Hereford Independent School District will be on display today through Friday in the board room at the School Administration Building, 200 Ave. F in Hereford.

school years. New books that are available for adoption this year include Mathematics, grades 1-8; Science, grades 1-6; Business Data Processing; Introduction to Computer Programming; Construction Graphics; Construction Systems; Manufacturing Graphics; Microcomputer Applications; and Biology I and II.

Reviewing survey forms, city maps

Alice Lockmiller (seated, center) and members of the Hereford Keywanettes look over survey forms and city maps as they make plans to canvass the community March 9 for the Hereford Independent School District. Keywanettes shown helping with the project are (seated) Susan Rickman and Clara Jackson; (standing) Hayley Lockmiller, Cristal McNutt, Allison Farr and Misty Peabody.

KUWAIT CITY - Iraq's shattered occupation army flees before advancing allies and jubilant Kuwaitis say victory is at hand. In the rain and darkness of the western desert front, U.S. armored divisions are reported beating Iraq's best troops. The allies make it clear they will not stop at reclaiming Kuwait, but mean to cripple Saddam Hussein's army.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia - As the extent of the rout became clear, U.S. troops expressed plenty of sympathy for the throngs of surrendering Iraqi footsoldiers, but none whatsoever for their commander-in-chief.

ACROSS THE USA - In a matter of hours, a war that was five months in coming and five weeks fought from the air suddenly seemed to be hurtling toward an end on the ground. Though Americans were elated by word of allied successes in Kuwait, many still felt the tug of a reflexive caution developed over 6 1/2 months of watching peace's repeated failure.

OMRO, Wis. - Grief replaced flag-waving patriotism in this small rural town as it rallied around a 21-year-old soldier who rushed home from war to bury her 2-year-old son, mother and grandmother killed in a car crash. "I would say this is one of the worst, if not the worst, tragedy we have had in Omro," Mayor Raymond Hoeft said. "There's almost a feeling of helplessness. ... It is hard, just hard for everyone."

WASHINGTON - Half of the people with intraocular lens implants have problems with them. A quarter of the public with pacemakers also have trouble, as do a third with artificial joints, according to a new government survey.

MOSCOW - Less than three weeks away from a referendum on preserving the Soviet Union, President Mikhail Gorbachev says radicals including his chief rival Boris Yeltsin are trying to oust him from power through street demonstrations.

VIENNA, Austria - OPEC nations appear likely to pull at least a million barrels of oil a day off the markets in the coming months to try to head off a disastrous price crash.

LOS ANGELES - Wine producers and promoters fear the grapes of wrath, in the form of increased taxes and public pressure from activists against alcohol abuse.

Texas

HOUSTON - The lure of foreign travel and the promise of big money has prompted thousands of job applicants to fight up the switchboards of Houston firefighting companies with contracts to put out oilfield fires in Kuwait.

WASHINGTON - President Bush says he'll seek a two-year extension in "fast-track" trade negotiating authority, setting the stage for the administration's first battle with Congress over a free trade agreement with Mexico.

GRAPEVINE - A four-year contract approved Tuesday goes a long way towards salvaging the damaged relationship between American Airlines and its pilots, but some wounds linger, a union official says.

AUSTIN - The House Mexican American Legislative Caucus said it would oppose any school finance reform legislation allowing wealthy school districts to raise more supplemental education funds than poor ones.

AUSTIN - Gov. Ann Richards said she no longer will seek to place the State Board of Insurance in conservatorship, since board member James Saxton has announced that he will resign.

AUSTIN - The large number of Texas students who try drugs and alcohol in sixth grade shows that school officials and parents need to pay extra attention to pre-teenagers, drug officials say.

OPEC may cut oil production

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - OPEC nations appear likely to pull at least a million barrels of oil a day off the market in coming months in an effort to avert a price crash.

The decision would end the production free-for-all of the last seven months that has sent oil prices sliding, despite war in the oil-rich Persian Gulf region. Analysts have predicted prices could tumble even further when peace returns.

After informal discussions, ministers from six countries in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries seemed intent on pushing prices back up to the cartel's target of $21 a barrel.

"We are committed to the price," Indonesian Oil Minister Ginaandjar Kartasasmita said Tuesday shortly before leaving Vienna, the cartel's home base. "If a cut in production is needed, we will do so."

Others joining OPEC President Sadek Boussena of Algeria in the special consultations were from Nigeria, Gabon, Venezuela and Libya.

The ministers, who met together Monday and in small groups Tuesday, appeared to have laid some of the groundwork for a formal session March 11, likely in Geneva.

At that meeting, ministers of all 13 nations could decide to reimpose production caps. In December, they vowed to restore production discipline once the Persian Gulf crisis ended.

The crisis initially drove oil prices sharply higher on fears of a cutoff of supplies from the region. Some grades of light sweet crude topped $40 a barrel.

But prices have generally been skidding in recent months. The average price of an OPEC marker was $16.64 a barrel during the third week of February, significantly lower than the group's $21 target.

Analysts blame the fall on a glut of oil, warmer-than-expected weather in oil-consuming nations, and the economic recession in the United States.

Students jump rope for heart

Students at Tierra Blanca Primary School jumped rope Monday to benefit the American Heart Association. The program makes students aware of the American Heart Association and how exercise can help develop a healthy heart, and some of the students accepted pledges for the number of times they jumped rope Monday.

Legislative caucus opposes rulings

AUSTIN (AP) - The House Mexican American Legislative Caucus said it would oppose any school finance reform legislation allowing wealthy school districts to raise more supplemental education funds than poor ones.

It decried a Monday Texas Supreme Court opinion that such unequal spending, based on local property tax revenue, may be constitutional.

"We believe progress is being made in the area of public school finance; therefore, we are extremely distressed this opinion was handed down in the midst of our endeavors," the 26-member caucus said in a statement Tuesday.

The Supreme Court said in a 5-4 decision Monday that rich school districts may constitutionally raise and spend additional, supplemental education funds. It did not say how much more, but said the system must remain equitable.

Justices did not back away from two earlier, unanimous rulings that the current school finance system is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court has said it would not tolerate "vast disparities" in funding available to school districts because of their differing property wealth.

"What they did back away from was their apparent decree ... that you could have no local enrichment without equalization," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Parker, who sponsored a school finance reform bill that passed the Senate last week, called the latest opinion "a clear instance of judicial meddling in the legislative process."

"The greatest beneficiaries of this opinion, I can say without fear of contradiction, are wealthy property owners who have managed to help create tax havens for themselves," said Parker, Senate Education Committee chairman.

Veterans set up WATS line

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of Texas has completed part of Phase 1 of "Operation Hometown" by sending 100,000 packages to troops now stationed in Saudi Arabia, according to Charles S. Peterson, state VFW commander.

Phase 2 of the VFW's project will be "Operation Homefront," a WATS line provided for use of family members here in the states who need help and assistance. That WATS line number is 1-800-USA-VFW-1. It is available from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. (CST).

Trained specialists will provide information and referral to VFW services or more than 5,000 other private and military organizations designed to help dependent families with problems related to their spouse, son or daughter in "Operation Desert Storm."

The telephones will be manned by specially trained VFW personnel, members of the Ladies Auxiliary, and family members who have a spouse, son or daughter in the Gulf War.

The third phase of the VFW project will be "Operation Homecoming." Homecomings will be planned and carried on throughout the U.S. by VFW Posts and Auxiliaries, welcoming back our young men and women from the Middle East.

Fledgling journalist uses illegal tapes for story

AMARILLO (AP) - A man who described himself as a fledgling journalist says he was just trying to flush out a story when he distributed copies of an audio tape conversation between U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius and a woman to members of the news media.

Linus Baker testified Monday in his own defense at his federal court trial on charges of unlawful disclosure of the contents of an intercepted telephone conversation.

Baker, 36, also is charged with intentionally disclosing to seven people the contents of a wire and electronic telephone conversation, namely a telephone conversation.

Baker cannot be jailed if he is convicted. The maximum penalty he faces is $35,000 in fines. Baker is not charged with actually performing an illegal intercept, which would be a felony. The man told U.S. District Judge Magistrate Clinton E. Averitte that he was given the tape by a friend, Brad Ferguson, who said the tape was accidentally recorded by an amateur radio operator.

The audiotapes contained a conversation on Sarpalius' cellular telephone with a woman.

Ferguson gave Baker the tape because he knew of Baker's involvement in journalism as a student at Amarillo College, the defendant said.

Ferguson could not be reached for comment late Monday, the Amarillo Globe-News reported.

Baker said he did not know that the conversation between Sarpalius and Michelle Martinez was illegally obtained.

He said he didn't know the difference between a cellular phone conversation and a cordless phone conversation traveling through the airwaves.

"I thought it was something the public had ready access to," he told the court.

While eavesdropping on a cellular phone conversation is illegal, listening in on a cordless phone conversation and other radio broadcast communications is not, said defense lawyer Jeff Blackburn.

Audio tapes of the cellular telephone conversation, which Sarpalius testified took place on Aug. 29, were distributed to members of the Amarillo news media in mid-October.

Sarpalius, who is divorced, testified that he had a 41-minute cellular phone conversation with Martinez as he played golf on Ross

Rogers Golf Course. He said he had seen her at Hummer's some months before.

The Amarillo Democrat said he didn't know the conversation was being taped. He said he doesn't have a problem with what he said, only the timing of the tape because it was recorded and released just weeks before he sought re-election.

Sarpalius' staff on Oct. 17 turned a copy of the tape over to the FBI, special agent Scott Hendricks testified. Hendricks said he interviewed Baker on Nov. 8.

Baker, under cross-examination from Howard, denied that he distributed the tape in an effort to destroy Sarpalius. He said the public needed to know about how Sarpalius, an alumnus of Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch, conducted himself.

Baker said he deemed the tape newsworthy because Sarpalius was "using every trick in the book" to get Martinez to go on a date with him.

If a congressman portrays an image of a "white knight," and he's not, Baker said the public has a right to know.

Baker said he distributed the tape to officials of the Amarillo College Ranger, the student newspaper, others at the school's journalism department and to several radio and television stations as well as to the Globe-News.

Phil Fretz, editorial page editor of the Amarillo Globe-News, testified that he didn't see the news value of the tape.

KFDA-TV did not accept the tape, but Baker did deliver a copy to KAMR-TV and to KGNC Radio.

Herd shakes off 5A losses, skins Mules

By JAY PEDEN
Brand Sports Editor
The Hereford Whitefaces bounced back from two consecutive baseball losses to 5A schools to drub Muleshoe, a 3A school, 13-3 Tuesday at Whiteface Field.

The game ended by the ten-run rule with two outs in the bottom of the sixth when Ruben Ramos' double knocked in George Jowell, who had singled.

"I was really pleased with this effort," Whiteface coach T.R. Sartor said. "We had a couple of games that were shaky defensively, but we got down and played good defense."

Sartor also praised his pitchers for the game: Amado Lopez, Max Mungia and Ralph Holguin.

Lopez started and pitched three innings. He gave up two runs in the first on two singles and three walks, but settled down and faced only seven batters in the next two innings.

Mungia allowed the other run in the fifth when the lead-off batter walked and later scored on a throwing error by Lopez, who played shortstop after he was relieved.

Holguin pitched one inning and struck out all three batters. Whiteface pitchers totalled nine strikeouts in the six innings--three for each pitcher.

After spotting the Mules a two run lead in the first, center-fielder Matt Bromlow led off the bottom of the inning with a single and a steal of second. He moved to third on Jowell's ground-out and scored on a wild pitch by Mules' starter Betto Diaz.

Designated hitter Ralph Martinez reached first when he struck out on the wild pitch. He went to third when Louis Mungia reached on a throwing error by Mules' third baseman Ricky Diaz, but both were stranded when centerfielder Galen Latham snared Lopez' hard line drive.

Hereford scored one in the second when Jake Head and Tab Hathaway walked and Chad Brummett was hit by a pitch. One out later, Max Mungia's ground-out drove in Head.

Hereford got two more in the second. Louis Mungia walked, stole second and scored when centerfielder Latham misplayed Lopez' long drive into a two-base error. Lopez later scored on another error.

In the fourth, everything fell apart for the Mules. Pitcher Diaz hit Bromlow to start the inning, and it went downhill from there. Bromlow, Jowell, Louis Mungia and Head all scored after each stole second base--the latter three having reached base on RBI singles. Lopez also scored after reaching on an error.

Things didn't improve for the Mules in the fifth inning. Max Mungia reached on an error, a high fly ball that fell into and out of left fielder Roger Baeza's glove, and Mungia later scored on an error.

Jowell, following Mungia, singled and came around on a triple by Ruben Ramos, who replaced Martinez at designated hitter. Ramos scored on Louis Mungia's sacrifice fly, making the score 12-3.

Jowell's single and Ramos' double mercifully ended the game in the next inning.

Patrolling the hot corner

Hereford third baseman Tab Hathaway watches the flight of the ball after he throws it to first base during the Whitefaces 13-3 defeat of Muleshoe Tuesday.

JV ties Canyon

Hereford's Maroon junior varsity team came back against Canyon's JV from deficits of 5-0 and 9-5 to tie the game at 9-9 just before it was called on account of darkness.

The game, played Monday at Whiteface Field, made it through four innings before darkness.

Canyon led 5-0 after two turns at bat, but Hereford scored two in the bottom of the second and three in the bottom of the third. Joel Gayton batted in two runs to spark the action in the third, Coach Bill Bridge said.

Canyon scored four runs in the top of the fourth to lead 9-5, but Hereford promptly came back with four runs of their own in the bottom of the inning. Gayton had another RBI on a sacrifice fly, Bridge said.

Gayton, Rene Cano and Jerry Rincon each had two hits, and Richard Rodriguez had three hits and pitched three innings, Bridge said.

Reports from Florida mixed

By The Associated Press

The news is mixed for Frank Viola and Roger Clemens, two of baseball's best current-day pitchers as well as for Ken Howell, on whom Philadelphia is counting.

The news is good for that name out of the past - Jim Palmer.

But it's not so good for the Chicago Cubs, whose star second baseman, Ryne Sandberg, broke off contract talks. Sandberg, who can become a free agent after the 1992 season, has set a Friday deadline for negotiations because he doesn't want distractions during the season.

Clemens reported no pain in his sometimes troubled right arm Tuesday after four straight days of throwing. Viola, meanwhile, said he would throw despite bone spurs in his left elbow and Howell did well for the Phillies.

Palmer, meanwhile, was getting ready for another opening day - on the mound rather than the broadcast booth.

Baltimore manager Frank Robinson said that the 45-year-old Palmer, attempting to become the first baseball Hall of Famer ever to resume an active career, may start the Orioles' first exhibition game against the Chicago White Sox on March 7. If it's not Palmer, it could be 39-year-old Flanagan, another member of the Orioles' early '80s staff attempting a comeback.

"I'm going to look at both him and Mike Flanagan as starters early," Robinson said. "It's a lot easier to back off than it is to step things up later in the spring."

The 30-year-old Viola, meanwhile, said he would continue to throw after tests revealed bone spurs in his left elbow. The 1988 Cy Young Award winner, who was 20-12 last season in his first full season with the New York Mets, threw on Tuesday and said his elbow felt better than last Friday, when he felt pain after his workout.

As for Viola, he said he would go on as long as he could unless the pain got too bad. Then, he said, he might undergo arthroscopic surgery.

Howell, recovering from shoulder surgery, threw 50 pitches. "He threw the ball very well," pitching coach Johnny Podres said of Howell, who was 8-7 before his injury.

Howell hadn't been expected to throw off the mound until next week but Phillies trainer Jeff Cooper, overseeing the pitcher's rehabilitation, called him ready for action.

As for Sandberg, the Cubs are offering a three-year contract extension worth $12 million and have refused to renegotiate either of the last two years of his current contract, worth a total of $4.6 million.

"They're definitely set on me playing the next two years at the existing contract, and that seems to be the major hangup," Sandberg said.

Connors finds comeback hard

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - He is 38 years old and still talking to himself. What seems different about this, his last run, perhaps, through the sport he once owned, is that Jimmy Connors may no longer be listening.

The briefest frown crossed Connors' face Tuesday night as he rolled a tennis ball around the palm of his left hand, a few inches below a surgically repaired wrist. He absent-mindedly fingered the fuzz and stared across the court at a digital scoreboard registering the speed of a first serve swallowed by the net.

"Seventy-four miles an hour," he howled with sarcasm. "That's just great."

There was a time, though suddenly it seems long ago, when Connors talking to himself was the cue for an opponent to take cover, when every outburst was something to be feared for the effort sure to follow it, when every such scolding was an almost-certain prelude to somebody else's disaster.

But this time, the only disaster it preceded was his own. Connors rocked, cocked and fired off a second serve, but coaxed just 71 mph from the radar. And 23-year-old Jaime Yzaga, who made a point of watching the living legend at those few tournaments where their paths crossed, took the ball on the rise and slashed a forehand cross-court for an uncontested winner.

The shot provided Yzaga with a service break in the first game of the second set of a first-round match at the Volvo-Chicago tennis tournament that he would win with surprising ease, 6-3, 6-0 in just 58 minutes.

"It's always nice to see him there."

It's great for the fans, it's great for tennis, everybody looks up to him," Yzaga said, almost embarrassed. "It's great to have him around."

On the week marking his 20th season in professional tennis, Jimmy Connors launched his comeback from a six-month layoff, though he has been gone a year if you forget the three first-round losses in 1990 that preceded the surgery last October.

But Tuesday night, he could not scrape the rust from his game or the dullness from his brain and call forth the bravado or the two-fisted fury that wrested tennis from the country-club set and transformed it into a sport that was entertaining to all. The question is whether he will be able to do so again - ever.

"It's a lot different going out and playing tennis at night than staying home and doing my kid's homework with him, which for the last year or so is what I've been doing," he said.

Yet the longer he talked, the more it appeared that Connors himself did not know the answer. He seemed to equate the condition of his game solely with the condition of his wrist.

"It's either going to be OK or it's not, there's no in-between. Either it's going to take the punishment, it's going to take the pounding or not," he said. "If I can play for three months, I can play for five years."

"That's basically what the doctor said," he added. "So hold your breath for me for three months."

Teltschik holds dubious record

By CLIFF NEWELL
Kerrville Daily Times

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) - John Teltschik holds a couple of records he isn't exactly happy about.

One is the most punts by an NFL rookie in a season.

The other, though unofficial, is even worse - the most knee operations on a punter. In the past 16 months Teltschik has undergone five knee operations, and he glumly agrees that he is probably the holder of that dubious mark.

"It's hard to imagine anyone having more," he says.

But he believes that the latest operation has finally solved his problem and that he can now resume his career, even though it most likely won't be with his team of the past five seasons, the Philadelphia Eagles.

Texas sports fans remember Teltschik's saga: all-star at Kerrville Tivy, All-America for the Texas Longhorns, All-Madden for the Eagles.

Any obstacles in his career, such as a frustrating freshman season at UT and getting cut by the Chicago Bears in his first try with an NFL team, were overcome with relative ease.

But the knee injury has been a different story. His troubles started in 1989 when he was hit out of bounds after running on a fake punt. Things haven't been the same since.

"The first time I was hit I hyperextended my knee," Teltschik said. "I played on it for seven more weeks, and it just didn't get any better. I was getting diminishing returns."

Teltschik received advice from the Eagles that seems ludicrous in retrospect. He was restrained from any punting except during the game. His average began to shrink.

"Punting is just like a golf swing," Teltschik said. "You've got to have reps to be any good at it."

The Eagle trainer also told him that he didn't have to fully extend his leg to punt, Teltschik said.

Teltschik finally decided he could not continue. After two unsatisfactory operations under the auspices of the Eagles, Teltschik went outside the organization and contacted a noted knee surgeon, Dr. Richard Stedman of Vail, Colo.

With the third operation, Stedman discovered a golf ball-sized piece of scar tissue in Teltschik's knee. That was followed by a fourth operation, and still he couldn't kick a football the way he once had. There was still an infernal "clicking" in his knee.

"I told Dr. Stedman I didn't think he was going deep enough," Teltschik said.

Stedman discovered that Teltschik was right. He found that, due to buildup of scar tissue, the opening for his knee ligament was too tight. In mid-February, Stedman operated again. This time, the results appear to be satisfactory, Teltschik said.

"After a week, I can tell the clicking is not there," Teltschik said.

Now, Teltschik is going full force on his rehabilitation program in hopes of taking advantage of a rare opportunity.

The Eagles have made him a Plan B free agent, and for the next six weeks he can make his own deal with another NFL team. Already five have contacted him: the San Francisco 49ers, Los Angeles Rams, Washington Redskins, Green Bay Packers, and Kansas City Chiefs.

"If I'm lucky maybe a couple teams will get in a bidding war over me," he said.

First, though, he will have to convince a team that he can play again. To build his leg back up, he is walking 5 to 7 miles per day, performing water resistance drills and working on a Stairmaster.

Should Teltschik end up leaving the Eagles, he will have mixed feelings.

"They've been good to me," he said. "They've seen me through a lot of transitions."

But it certainly wouldn't be the same without Buddy Ryan, the man who brought Teltschik to Philadelphia and who recently was fired.

"One reason he was fired was he didn't get along with Norman Bradman, the owner," Teltschik said. "They pretended to get along, but deep down they didn't."

Teltschik added of Ryan: "I have a lot of respect for the guy. I don't think a lot of people in this business are as honest as he is. Other coaches might praise a player to his face, then put a plane ticket in his locker. Buddy was always up front. As a coach, he was always doing something to keep you motivated."

As for Buddy's rougher edges, Teltschik said, "He was grossly honest at times. I can see why you wouldn't like him if you didn't know him, especially if you were a Cowboy fan. But he's a winner. He'll surface somewhere."

Stedman discovered that Teltschik was right. He found that, due to buildup of scar tissue, the opening for his knee ligament was too tight. In mid-February, Stedman operated again. This time, the results appear to be satisfactory, Teltschik said.

"After a week, I can tell the clicking is not there," Teltschik said.

UTA guard Cody hospitalized

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Texas-Arlington starting point guard Glover Cody remained hospitalized early Wednesday after being stabbed by a teammate, a newspaper reported.

Cody was in stable condition at Arlington Memorial Hospital following the Monday stabbing.

Sophomore forward Titus Howard was arrested by Arlington police Monday and charged with attempted murder, The Dallas Morning News reported. He was released hours later after a judge determined there was insufficient evidence to keep Howard.

Citing an unnamed athletic department source, the News reported that Howard and Cody began fighting over a woman outside Maverick Village, UTA's athletic dorm. Howard allegedly then stabbed Cody.

The source said the wound was not serious enough to require surgery or stitches and that Cody could be released Wednesday.

Coach Mark Nixon declined comment about the case, but said he was concerned about Cody's condition.

"...I'm feeling a little better about that (Cody's health) now," Nixon said. Cody was named Southland Conference player of the week Monday.

Cody is a transfer from Mid Plains (Neb.) Junior College.

The Mavericks were headed for Monroe, La., Wednesday where they will face North Texas in the Southland Conference tournament's first round.

It was not immediately known if Cody or Howard would make the trip with the team.

Congressmen want ALLIES sanctions enforced

WASHINGTON (AP) - As the "main fighting" in the Persian Gulf War shifted to Iraq, congressional leaders urged today that economic sanctions against Saddam Hussein's government be continued to force compliance with U.N. resolutions.

President Bush scheduled an afternoon meeting with British Foreign Minister Douglas Hurd to discuss the stepped war effort and "what the next steps may or may not be," White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said.

Pentagon officials said Iraqi forces were "in full retreat" from Kuwait. "At least one of Saddam's predictions has come true," a senior military official said today. "For the Iraqi army this has been the mother of all battles."

He said Kuwait City was no longer under Iraqi control and "the main fighting is shifting to Iraq."

House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois said on ABC that it was essential to pursue Iraqi military units to "decimate that equipment and make sure it's a long, long time before they are a military threat in the area."

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said "just establishing temporary protection for Kuwait that would be followed by some re-emergence of the threat isn't what we're there to do."

Foley told ABC that "the U.N. economic sanctions can well be continued after the Iraqi forces have been expelled from Kuwait as an additional pressure in order to insure there is compliance with all of the U.N. resolutions."

Michel concurred. After the military phase is over "sanctions will still be in place," he said.

Foley said it would be a mistake to seize Saddam and try him for war crimes and possibly execute him.

"They helped the humvee get out of the mud - and then they surrendered," he said.

In Iraq's bomb-ravaged capital, Baghdadis - long without electricity - huddled around battery-powered radios, listening for news of the war.

"You have fought against 30 countries led by the most vicious war machine in the world," Saddam told his people on Tuesday. "Greater victory is certain" in the future, he said.

But the gloom in Baghdad was palpable. Air-raid sirens wailed and a dense, dust-laced fog covered the city, AP correspondent Salah Nasrawi reported from the Iraqi capital. Allied aircraft raided the city again Tuesday night.

Iraq is seeking a cease-fire, but a majority of U.N. Security Council members are insisting that the Baghdad government accept all 12 council resolutions on the conflict before a truce can be considered, diplomats said.

In addition to calling for an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal, the U.N. resolutions call for Iraq to pay reparations and renounce all claims to Kuwait.

In Kuwait, the entrance of the allies brought unbounded joy.

"The flag of Kuwait is once again fluttering over Kuwait!" Kuwait radio said jubilantly. "Thanks be to God that the ... nightmare has ended."

Kuwait City bore the scars of nearly seven months of Iraqi occupation. Power lines were down, running water was available only in parts of the city, cars were stripped and gasoline was in short supply. Rain made greasy by Iraqi-set oil well fires fell today.

Kuwaiti diplomats said U.S. Marines were combing neighborhoods for Iraqi stragglers.

Kuwait's U.N. ambassador, Mohammad Abulhasan, said there were no immediate plans for the Kuwaiti emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, and other leaders to return to the capital from exile in Saudi Arabia.

"When the emir will return depends on the situation inside Kuwait. There are lots of booby traps, mines, etc.," he said.

The emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, and other members of the ruling family have been in Saudi Arabia since Iraq's invasion on Aug. 2.

U.S. Army and Saudi special forces had earlier filtered into the city in advance of the larger allied force. Some U.S. commandos were clad in Arab headresses and carried small, easily concealed automatic weapons.

Despite Iraq's claim the withdrawal was complete, it was unclear just how many of the 300,000 to 400,000 Iraqi troops once in Kuwait remained.

U.S. commanders described the road north from Kuwait City to the Iraq's narrow southeast corner and Basra clogged with retreating Iraqi vehicles, which U.S. pilots were attacking.

An Iraqi military spokesman, speaking on Baghdad radio, complained that Iraq's enemy had "demonstrated all his cowardly, mean and lowly characteristics" by attacking retreating troops. The allies have said they will go after any Iraqi forces that had not put down their weapons.

In the fourth day of the allies' blistering land assault, U.S. military officials in Riyadh said today that the fierce desert warfare since Sunday had knocked out 26 Iraqi army divisions - about 260,000 men - and 500 tanks.

With the drive into Iraq by more than 100,000 U.S. and allied soldiers, the focus has turned to Saddam's best troops - the Republican Guard - and the bid to trap them east of invading allied units and south of the Euphrates, thereby cutting off any escape route.

In a battle inside Iraq west of the Kuwaiti border, one tank division of the 10-division Guard was all but defeated, said U.S. military officials in the Saudi capital of Riyadh.

Two U.S. divisions - the 3rd Armored and the 1st Infantry (Mechanized) - clashed with one of the Guard's three heavy armored divisions, the Taw Al-Kana.

The other two Guard armored divisions remained intact, said the U.S. military officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity. They said one division was loading its tanks onto heavy highway carriers, either to retreat or to reposition.

McDonald family business built here from 'rags to riches' scenario

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

The McDonald family found Hereford 28 years ago—not as a gas-stop for food and fuel but as a solid footing for some crumbling business foundations.

"We came to Hereford because of the people," said David McDonald, as he recalled a scenario of 'rags to riches' for a Texas couple determined to rebuild a family business. "My parents had sort of come to the crossroads in life on whether to shuck it all and go to work for someone else or make one more run in the business world."

It took a ton of "grit and grind"—as they say in the ag world—to make another start from zero-level in the highly competitive field of detergent sales. But the McDonalds didn't know that it couldn't be done...so they did it—built a successful trade on the very threshold of the biggest.

"You can talk all you want to about the vast fields of grain and the vast herds of cattle around Hereford, but if it weren't for the people...the real workers...none of this would be here," said McDonald, owner and operator of Hereford Janitor Supply out on Park Avenue. "This may sound funny coming from a guy who has done nothing but sell janitor supplies all of his life. But in this business, you really get a feel of the whole community."

"It was the people who attracted my parents to this community and it was the people who kept them here...the schools, the churches and the leadership from the very heart of the town."

McDonald revealed a great sense of humor as he perched both elbows on a well-used office kitchen table while flicking a grin to an obvious question:

"Yessir, we do a lot of business in soaps and suds, but our main business is service. Even though we take great pride in handling most of the top lines in the janitorial field, we take even greater pride in seeking that these products are properly used and properly administered...we don't leave a jug of detergent and walk off. We make sure the people who buy it know how to use it."

McDonald backs his words with action. Frequent seminars and workshops on the use of janitorial supplies are included in the day-to-day run of business at Hereford Janitor Supply house on the east side of Hereford. And this service is free. As a secondary move to insure proper background on application of their products, McDonald offers "how to do it" video tapes to any local business, institution or individual—free of charge.

"When one thinks of janitorial supplies or the work of a janitor or custodian, you frequently think of just a mop bucket and broom," said McDonald. "But as you perhaps already know, the act of cleaning has become a real art if you do it well. We have so many excellent products on the market today that it's difficult to understand how far we have advanced in this field just during the past 25 years."

McDonald pointed out that the janitorial trade, according to national trade journals, is the third highest paid trade in America. However, one of the largest commodity corporations in the world prophesied recently in a New York business seminar that janitorial service would become the Number One service industry of the nation by the year 2000.

McDonald pointed out that at this point in time it is getting more and more difficult to find suitable workforces, even in Hereford, for janitorial work.

"I don't know for sure what it is about the work that makes it hard to find good help," said McDonald. "The pay is generally pretty good, but I guess there's that old stigma where servants did the cleaning with a worn out mop and a tin can for a bucket. But those days are long gone. This trade is now a really high-tech work using high-tech materials and equipment."

McDonald added that perhaps odd-hours in many janitorial work schedules may add to the lower profile of the trade—evening shifts, night jobs and much weekend work. However, as one Hereford businessman put it: "If you want to have bankers' hours then you should have been a banker."

The images of janitorial services are frequently reflected in polished floors and tidy restrooms. But the "real" image of a good janitorial job is found in cleanliness behind the doors and under the rugs—"You might be able to sweep something under the rug in some fields of business, but you sure can't in ours."

In addition to maintaining more than a six-digit inventory at the Hereford headquarters, McDonald has full line of rentals in janitorial equipment...floor polishers, rug extractors, wax strippers, vacuums, water and dry vacs—but no sanders. And everything he rents, he also sells, and more. Almost every conceivable household convenience in the dispensable or disposable lines of merchandise are found in McDonald's inventory.

One of his many specialty services is the disposable line of eating utensils—paper plates, napkins and cups, throw-away knives, forks and spoons and all of the little packaged stuff needed for company picnics or a holiday outing in the Bull Barn.

"All we need to know is how many folks are expected and we'll have everything there waiting except the food," said McDonald. "Everything we sell is delivered free of charge, not only to the Hereford community but outward to 50 or 100 miles. And we don't care whether it's just one family or 100 families—we'll give the order equal attention. Our employees and our service is what sets us apart from all of our competitors."

And McDonald has some mighty big competitors in Amarillo, Lubbock, Denver and Dallas—"Salesmen straight out of Denver and Dallas, in addition to Amarillo and Lubbock, are in here every day knocking on doors, and I'll assure you they have some mighty competitive prices. But that's where we go back to square one—it's the people of Hereford that makes this a town a great place to live or run a business...the loyalty of the Hereford community to the McDonald family and our janitorial business has been far beyond any expectations."

Professional offices, such as lawyers and doctors, run a photo-finish with retail stores as local customers of Hereford Janitor Supply. And there's the volume buyers in the schools, churches, service organizations and the various governmental entities of the town.

But McDonald doesn't neglect the households of Hereford. He maintains regular city routes in free deliver to any one at any place, whether it is a single case of perfumed hand-soap or a truckload of toilet tissue. He also services a number of grocery stores of the Greater Hereford region, but these are mostly the "mom and pop" operations not affiliated with big chains or cooperatives.

However, any point in the competitive world of free enterprise is fair game in this competitive field of janitorial supplies. As example, recent state and federal regulations require that every place of public business or profession have adequate wash and restroom facilities, not only for employees but also for potential customers or clients.

Leroy McDonald
Founder

Commercial cattle feeders rank high on the priority customer list at Hereford Janitor Supply. Regular route runs to the local and area feedyards are as important to McDonald as city runs on Main Street.

"Most of our feedyard managers take great pride in keeping a clean and neat headquarters," said McDonald. "They are also big buyers of dispensable products, such as paper cups and towels. The feedyards are really a strong part of the overall Hereford economy. And of course there's the related industries of the food factories, millwrights, grain elevators and fuel suppliers...these all become a part of our business."

Though McDonald takes great pride in proclaiming to the world that Hereford is his headquarters, he continuously reaches out for business, kinda like the phone folks, but he does it with a fleet of vans and trucks and a handful of dedicated deliverymen and salesmen.

Hereford Janitor Supply is now servicing more than 1300 established business accounts in a 10-county region that stretches from the south city limits of Amarillo to the north city limits of Lubbock. And last week, in a major expansion move, McDonald opened a second store in Plainview.

"Plainview is really on the move, so we opened a second store there to serve the community more efficiently," said McDonald. "In addition to the big mass plant just coming in, there was a delegation from Perryton there last week looking for rental space to expand a pinto bean cooperative."

From a string of communities along Interstate 40 on the north to a tier of Panhandle counties parallel with Lubbock on the South Hereford Janitor Supply dispatches free delivery service on regular runs. The Hereford-based company also makes runs into New Mexico, but here, as in Amarillo and Lubbock, they meet much city-side competition in Clovis.

"It might be kinda hard to believe, but you can't imagine the large force of sales people coming into the Hereford area straight out of Denver and Dallas," said McDonald. "But thanks to the loyalty of the Hereford folks, I can't recall a single customer I've lost to the Dallas and Denver forces. But they're still out there every day."

In relating to the continuous growth of Hereford Janitor Supply, McDonald said there had not been a year since its beginning in 1964 that the firm has not showed some growth—"We hit our record year in sales just this past year and we're shooting for an even better year in 1991."

From a meager beginning in a household garage in 1964, Hereford Janitor Supply has grown from its first-year gross of $27,000 to $1.4 million in 1990. And back in those early years of operation, it was sort of a hand-to-mouth operation. Or, more aptly put, case to case situation...buy a case of supplies, sell a case of supplies; buy a barrel of soap, sell a barrel of soap.

But the spring of 1991 is a far cry from that first season for the McDonalds back in 1964. Nearly all inventory orders are now made in six digits, with the literally thousands of stock items now under computerized surveillance at the Hereford business offices. With just the touch of a button or two, McDonald knows in an instant from where his inventory is coming and to where it is going.

And an 18,000-square-foot warehouse, backstopped with a highly-motivated staff, puts the necessities of day-to-day living in the hands of consumers in the shortest possible route, in addition to the convenience of direct delivery.

But the route to success was not always marked with the good times of 1991—there were plenty of bad times, disappointments and hardships along the way.

The big drought of the 1950s had taken its toll on the dryland farming operations of Leroy and Pauline McDonald near Muleshoe and Farwell—then came three consecutive years of hail-outs that triggered stomach ulcers and a failing health for Leroy McDonald. So, the Farmer COunty farm couple elected to sell out and try for something better.

Their initial plans were to go into a tire dealership in Phoenix, but upon arrival in Arizona, the whole deal fell through. McDonald made a stab at working for hourly wages, but he had been an independent Farmer County farmer too long. He chose to open his own janitorial supply house in Mesa, Ariz., with the projections of establishing a good business in the Phoenix metropolplex—and at the same time, regain his health.

But the big chains in Phoenix put the squeeze on the farm couple from Farwell who had sunk every farm dollar from Farmer County into the Arizona business. After two years fighting for a place in the Valley of the Sun, the McDonalds were "rung out and hung out to dry"...financially.

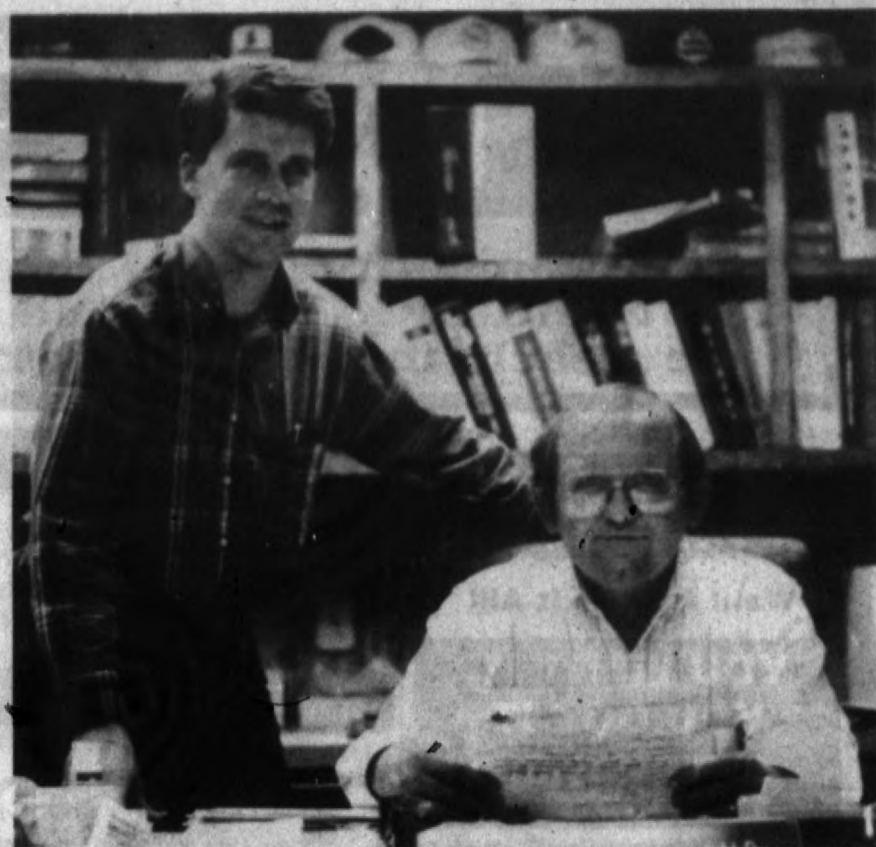

"I well remember those days when my parents were trying to make a decision on what to do and where to go," recalled David McDonald from his Hereford offices. "But when different places were mentioned, they would always come back to Hereford as the place to move."

The McDonalds arrived in Hereford with little more than a lot of courage and a will to succeed.

"Our garage was our warehouse and the family car was the delivery wagon," said McDonald, as he recalled how his parents survived that first year in business. "Holly Sugar had just opened about the time we opened, and believe it or not, that big company was one of my Dad's first accounts."

"I just can't say enough for Holly Sugar. Having headquarters outside of Hereford would give them plenty of reason to buy supplies outside of Hereford. But instead, Holly buys local supplies from local merchants. Just this past season, we received our 27th annual order of janitorial supplies from Holly. This just goes to show you how loyal Holly is to the Hereford community."

In less than a year, Leroy McDonald had moved his warehouse from a home garage to a building on 5th Street where he remained for the next four years. As business grew, so went the McDonalds, and in about 1968, they moved the firm to Sampson Street just off the town square where they remained for the next six years.

In 1974, the Hereford merchant bought the present location on Park Avenue which had been headquarters for a Case Implement dealership. Then, in an expansion move in 1985, the McDonalds doubled their warehouse capacity with an addition to the rear.

Through some 25 years in business in Hereford, the McDonald couple worked side-by-side as a team, but nowadays, they're out somewhere on the highways looking for a new valley to visit or a new peak to travel. They sold the family business to their son, David, two years ago and are spending retirement touring the world.

"My folks love to travel and believe me, they earned it," said David, as he spoke quite fondly of his parents. "I went to work for them in 1968 and through the years, handled every phase of the business. Even though my primary job is running the business, I still have a route that I run every week...I've always loved being around people."

McDonald says that service has been the key to their success—"Ninety percent of our business goes out the back door. We have very little walk-in business and by the same token more than 50 percent of our business is done on credit...we deliver and our customers just sign a ticket."

Hereford Janitor Supply also has full-time repair shop for household and office equipment that is run by Kyle Minchew who is sometimes assisted by Landon Warren. Warren was in machine repairs until he elected to move out on a sales route.

McDonald has his own label and logo for several lines of products, simply tagged as "Mack's" brand.

"We used to do much of our own bottling and packaging but federal rules and regulations got so tough that we now have it done outside of Hereford, mostly in Dallas," said McDonald. "As a matter of fact, most of our inventory comes out of Dallas and Marlborough, Mass."

McDonald and his wife, Carolyn, have two children—Jerry, who last week moved to Plainview to join the second store staff, and Lauri, who is a sophomore at Hereford High School and a part-time worker at the family business.

McDonald graduated from Hereford High School in 1966 and after a year at West Texas State University, he returned to Hereford to go to work for C.E. Coleman as a salesman for Ink Spot in downtown Hereford. The following year, he joined his parents in the Park Avenue Janitorial Supply business.

Mrs. McDonald is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.S. Scarbrough of Dimmitt, retired Castro county farmers.

The work-force at Hereford Janitor Supply has Roy Herrera and Landon Warren out front in direct route sales, with Keith Pruitt handling out-of-town deliveries. Bob Hamman is in charge of city-side deliveries.

Alice Lueb is head bookkeeper and office manager, while Phil Banner is now serving as manager of the Hereford operation and assisting in the Plainview management. Dennis Ator is in charge of sales out of the Plainview store.

From enzymes for cesspools to scented soaps for the finest lavatories, Hereford Janitor Supply stocks it all if related to the janitorial servicing industry. Paper products number into the thousands with computer copy paper now becoming a leading item for the Hereford-based business.

"We don't sell computers, but we sell about everything that keeps them running," said McDonald. "We also handle a lot of snack-bar supplies, such as coffee filters, paper cups, dispensers, packaged salt, pepper and sugar. But we are not in the vending business."

McDonald was active in Kids, Inc., for a number of years during the 1970s and has taken an active part in the Hereford Rotary Club. He and his wife are also active in the Avenue Baptist Church.

Though McDonald in recent years has moved heavily into the wholesale field, he still relates to direct retail sales when speaking of company growth:

"When more than 90 percent of your business is done on credit with little more than a handshake and you've had a steady growth for nearly 28 years, there's very little left to say about the quality of people around Hereford."

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

Mrs. Saslov's residency was made possible by the Meadowlake Foundation of the Texas Commission on the Arts.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - Steel-eyed Clint Eastwood put on a size 40 bra adorned with two American flags, and a crowd roared approval as he accepted the Man of the Year award from Harvard's Hasty Pudding Theatricals.

"I might not wear this too much in public," he said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing as a wife who is watching an incredible drama. My husband, bless his heart, has overcome alcoholism and drug addiction. He has also stopped abusing me physically. At long last he is beginning to understand the source of his trouble -- a miserably abnormal childhood.

His mother dressed him as a girl until he was 8 years old. He was given a girl's name and wore bows in his hair and lace panties. How he grew up to be heterosexual is the eighth wonder of the world. It's a miracle that he is able to be a loving husband and father.

The point we're at now is that he has written a letter to his mother, letting her know, in a more loving way than I possibly could, that he would like her to stop calling him "Suzy Q." He also has told her that she is not to phone him at work unless it's an emergency and to stop dropping in at his place of business to "visit." His P.S. brought joy to my heart. He asked her to please stop reciting the names of the women he went with before he married me. She ignored the letter.

Although it has taken my husband 10 years of professional help to repair the "mother-damage," counseling for her is out of the question. I know his mother is not going to change. So, my question is this: Should he kiss off the old gal and get on with his life? We're nearing middle age and I, for one, would like to see him totally free of that woman. -- Fed Up to the Bicuspids in Oregon tough to be totally free of her, especially since she has the sensitivity of a water buffalo and the hide of a rhinoceros.

DEAR FED: "That woman" is his mother and it's going to be awfully

Hang in there and give your husband plenty of emotional support. Let him know how much you admire him for escaping from his mother's clutches. A dozen roses to you for resisting the temptation to spit in her eye. And a bouquet of skunk cabbage to her--for reasons known best to you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been blessed with two great kids, a girl, eight, and a boy five. They're both well-mannered and good-looking. Our daughter is a bit shy. Our son is very outgoing. When we are out in public, people invariably gravitate toward the boy because he is always smiling and is so charismatic. Naturally they make a fuss over him.

This has become a problem. People go on and on about our son's looks and personality and totally ignore his sister, even though she's right there next to him. Naturally his sister is aware of this and it hurts her feelings to be constantly overlooked.

What can we do to make these people aware of the problem and, at the same time, salvage our daughter's self-esteem? -- Concerned Mom and Dad in San Bernardino

DEAR SAN BERNARDINO: I've dealt with this problem before but it's well worth repeating.

When well-meaning but dim-witted folks lavish compliments on your son and ignore his sister, jump in with something supportive. Sample: "Samantha is a very bright child and we are very proud of her. The world is going to hear from her one of these days."

Gem of the Day: The most difficult part of dieting isn't watching what you eat. It's watching what your friends eat.

A pioneer women's rights convention was called in 1848 by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia C. Mott. It convened in Seneca Falls, N.Y.
