Budget battle could hurt ASCS

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Federal payments to farmers and landowners may be cut because of Gramm-Rudman budget restrictions, the Hereford Brand has learned.

In a worst-case scenario, the restrictions could also reduce federal office assistance and lead to pay cuts for federal employees.

The biggest effect in the Hereford area would be in agricultural agencies and their programs.

Most federal employees face a pay cut unless Congress passes a budget and the budget is signed by President Bush before Oct. 1. Only the military and Congress are exempt from the budget and staff reductions. Temporary workers would be completely laid off under the restrictions.

The restrictions most affecting Hereford would include employees of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) and the Soil Conservation Service (SCS). They face a 40 percent pay cut on Oct. 1.

If the worst happens and there is no budget (or budget agreement), ASCS employees would work only three days, or 24 hours, per week. According to a plan adopted Monday, the other two days would be considered unpaid furlough.

Although there is nothing official, Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) payments could be cut. According to sources, the CRP payments would be cut 32 percent across the board on Oct. 1 unless new provisions are made. Each of the 12 monthly payments could be reduced by up to 32 percent.

The CRP was established to take land that was being farmed out of production for 10 years, and plant grass or other cover on the land. Landowners "bid" the land into the program, agreeing to take a certain price per year for not farming the land. Landowners have also received assistance in weed control and planting cover on CRP.

The "guaranteed" payments are assured only to the point Congress funds the CRP program. If funds are reduced, the payments could be cut. However, the payments could be made up later if Congress restores full funding through the budget.

The Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act, which took effect four years ago, basically calls for automatic reductions in government spending. For automatically-renewed programs, the Gramm-Rudman reductions take a certain amount out of the budget for the programs each year, unless Congress makes other provisions. In years when Congress has a tough time coming up with a budget like this year, automatic restrictions come into play on Oct. 1.

Letters will probably go out by Sept. 1 to officially inform agency employees and landowners involved in CRP and other government programs of the cuts that could take effect on Oct. 1, a USDA official in Washington said Monday. The official also said the government may consider consolidation of ASCS and SCS offices, at least on a temporary basis. One "central" office would meet needs in several counties.

That is not a new idea. It was proposed in 1974, but the late U.S. Rep. George Mahon (D-Lubbock), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, scuttled the project. The idea was broached again in the mid-1980s, but was again dropped.

Under old versions of the plan, one office in Hereford would have served Deaf Smith, Oldham, Castro and Parmer counties. The Washington official told the Brand that the plan might be considered as a way to cut costs while maintaining services.

The ASCS office in Hereford will probably maintain a skeleton crew and will be open five days a week. With the reduction in temporary workers, the ASCS office would have only eight employees, said Ted Peabody, ASCS executive director in Deaf Smith County.

Peabody said 1990 program payments would likely not be affected by the automatic cuts.

Rainy days at ASCS

Tuesday was a rainy day in Hereford, but it may be a rainy many days at federal offices like the one in Hereford. Unless agreement is reached on the federal budget before Oct. 1, there could be significant cuts in personnel, pay and programs.

Iraq seeks peace with Iran

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS
Associated Press Writer

Iraq's Saddam Hussein, facing U.S. and Arab troops at the Saudi border, today sought peace on another front by promising to withdraw from Iranian territory and release soldiers captured during the Iran-Iraq war.

Also today, Jordan's King Hussein arrived in Washington seeking to mediate the Persian Gulf crisis. President Bush on Tuesday said the United States may extend its naval quarantine to Jordan's Red Sea port of Aqaba to shut off Iraq's last unhindered trade route.

The U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia continued at fever pace, with Syrian troops now part of a multinational force camped out in the desert to guard the Saudi kingdom from any new thrust by Iraq.

In a letter to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani, read by a broadcaster over Baghdad radio, Saddam said he will begin withdrawing troops from Iranian territory on Friday and release Iranian prisoners of war.

Iraq said an Iraqi diplomatic delegation was en route to Tehran to deliver Saddam's message, which it said it would review "with optimism."

Saddam appeared to accept a border demarcation treaty he had rejected in peace talks following the August 1988 cease-fire of the eight-year war with Iran.

The move seemed aimed at heading off more trouble with Iran, which had condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 but also criticized the multinational force dispatched to Saudi Arabia.

In other developments: The Iraqi ambassador to Venezuela said Tuesday that Iraq would retaliate against Venezuela and other OPEC oil cartel members if they boost oil production to fill the gap created by blocked supplies from Iraq and Kuwait. With Kuwait now "annexed," Iraq has control of 20 percent of the world's oil reserves. A steep rise in world oil prices followed the Kuwait invasion.

The U.N. Security Council on Aug. 6 ordered a global embargo on trade with Iraq as punishment for seizing Kuwait. Bush then sent U.S. troops and planes to Saudi Arabia, saying Iraqi troops massed nearby in Kuwait threatened Saudi Arabia and its vast oil reserves.

Twelve Arab League nations voted for an Arab force to protect Saudi Arabia, with the vanguard of Syria's contingent arriving Tuesday, according to diplomatic sources in Riyadh, the Saudi capital.

Egyptian and Moroccan troops are already there.

Jordan's Hussein, however, has refused so far to join in embargo efforts against Iraq and to cut what could become Iraq's economic lifeline.

Turkey and Saudi Arabia in effect shut down Iraq's major oil outlets through those countries, but according to Jordanian officials, a smaller line into Jordan remained operating.

Truckloads of goods rolled into Iraq from Jordan on Tuesday and Iraqi-bound cargo was unloaded from ships at Aqaba despite the U.N.-ordered sanctions.

Hussein was carrying a message to Bush from Iraq's Saddam, with whom the king met Monday. Hussein will meet Bush on Thursday in Kennebunkport, Maine.

'Ultimate Hunt' regular practice

By the Associated Press

Texas prison inmates have been used for years as live quarry in dog exercises.

Officials defend the practice as an effective tool in teaching dogs to hunt people, and at least one former target loved his time spent as a "dog boy," leading a chase that would end with him clad in protective gear and the dogs attacking him.

"It's a blast," he said. "It's great. I loved it. I had a free feeling. It was kind of an adventure knowing that the dogs are hunting you," said the former "dog boy," who currently is on parole after serving time on a forgery conviction.

The parolee, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he did not object to the exercises. "It was my job. Everybody's got to do something there. I had a great opportunity. I got to ride horses. I got to be free, out running around."

"They trusted me and that felt good," he said, although he admitted some of the other "dog boys" didn't feel the same.

The practice came to light Tuesday in revelations that Jerry Hodge, vice chairman of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, had attended one such exercise at the Huntsville prison, bringing along two bear-hunting friends and subsequently providing them with jackets commemorating "The Ultimate Hunt."

Hodge, 47, a former Amarillo mayor, denied any impropriety but conceded the jackets were a mistake. The news also delayed Hodge's appointment as chairman of the prison board, the AP learned.

Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Huntsville, chairman of the House Corrections Committee, defended the practice.

"It's not a brutal situation. It's a way of training animals," Hightower said. "... The dogs don't catch the inmates and chew up the inmates."

"There's a safety need for the department to be able, when an inmate tries to break ... to capture that inmate before they reach homes and houses and towns," Hightower said.

One dog trainer who has provided dogs for FBI manhunts, said the use of humans as targets is the only way to effectively train dogs to find humans.

"If you would train the dog on something other than a human, that would be pure folly," said Alice Stanley, who has trained dogs in Fredericksburg, Va., for about 15 years.

"The human scent is unique to the dog," she said. "The dog can distinguish human scent from all other."

Prison system spokesman David Nunnelee said Tuesday 25 of the state's 34 units have kennels which, as of the end of May, housed 957 dogs - including 272 puppies and 29 "cow dogs," which tend to cows.

"It's been around as long as anyone can remember," Nunnelee said.

Nunnelee said he did not know how many inmates were involved, but on average each kennel was manned by five inmates.

An AP spot check of other states found only Florida among 14 surveyed who used inmates in training exercises.

In Texas, only "Class I" trustees are chosen and only volunteers are ever considered, says Paul "Sparky" Sparkman, the "dog sergeant" at the Coffield Unit near Palestine.

Such prisoners are awarded "good time," he explained, meaning they earn credits to reduce the time they actually spend behind bars.

Sparkman said dog boys normally are experienced dog handlers who receive safety training and wear protective clothing. He indicated that the dangers are minimal.

According to Sparkman, "average hound dogs," not bloodhounds, are used throughout the Texas system, and they make excellent trainers.

"They are smart dogs," he said, and law enforcement officers frequently use them when chasing criminal suspects on foot.

The training process is continuous, because the demand for tracking dogs is never-ending.

"Long days and a lot of patience is involved," he said, pointing out that the training begins when the dogs are just puppies.

Routinely, he said, a dog boy will be given a two- to five-hour head start to "lay a scent." Then the dogs, usually a team of seven, will be unleashed to begin the hunt.

Trainers give chase on horseback. The parolee said he spent four or five months of his time at a prison in Navasota as a dog boy, participating in an average of three exercises a week.

He said he would set out on a trek of 8 or 9 miles through the wilderness surrounding the prison, traveling through water, climbing vines, anything to "make it kind of tough for 'em."

At the end, he would climb a tree and await the dogs' arrival. He either carried protective clothing, or it would be left at the trail's end.

"Once they find you and tree you, then you get the dogs riled up and then you jump down and fight 'em," he said. "Boy that was fun. ... It was a blast."

The parolee said prison guards would pull off the dogs after a short time.

Not all dog boys shared his enthusiasm, he admitted. "We had a few ... people who were afraid of the dogs or were afraid of running through the brush," he said. "They weren't forced to do it if they didn't want to."

Rain scattered through county

There was a chance for more rain in the forecast for tonight and Thursday to top off some beneficial rains received here Monday and Tuesday.

Hereford officially received 30 of an inch of rain on Tuesday, according to the official observation at KPAN. Most of that rain fell in a brief period on Tuesday morning.

There were heavier rains scattered throughout the county, including just east of Hereford where a thunderstorm dropped over an inch of rain on its way northeast.

At Dawn, Jim McCabe reported "just a few spatters" on Tuesday, but he picked up .80 of an inch on Monday night.

Cal Mitts at Northwest Grain, north of Hereford, recorded almost an inch on Monday and a little over .80 of an inch on Tuesday.

Bobby Hammock at Bootleg, 22 miles west of Hereford, recorded .65 of an inch of rain on Tuesday, but said he had heard a report of .90 of an inch about 10 miles northwest of Bootleg. Hammock said his gauge recorded 1.3 inch of rain in a storm on Saturday.

"We needed that," Hammock said. "We had only gotten 30 of an inch all summer before that, so that rain Saturday and what we got yesterday sure helped. We need some more."

There is a chance for more: 40 percent tonight, then a 20 percent chance of afternoon and evening storms on Thursday. There is a very slight chance for isolated storms through Sunday.

Sales tax rebate up in Hereford

Hereford's sales tax rebate check from the State for June was $64,227.07, according to a report from Bob Bullock, state comptroller.

The total was down about 10 percent from June of 1989, but the year-to-date total of $425,043.22 is still 5.14 percent ahead of the six-month total last year.

Merchants collect the state and local sales taxes and send them to the Comptroller's office with their tax returns. The state keeps its share and sends cities and counties the local portion of the sales tax each month.

The Comptroller's office sent checks of $148 million in sales tax rebates to cities and counties in Texas. Payments to cities was $135 million, an 11 percent increase over the same time a year ago. Rebate checks to counties totaled $13 million for an increase of 18 percent. That jump is largely due to more counties collecting the sales tax now.

Deaf Smith County's tax rebate check on the 1/2-percent tax amounted to $33,528.65 for June. The 1990 payments totaled $213,748.38, which is up 4.18 percent over a year ago.

Amarillo showed a sizeable jump over its total a year ago, receiving a check for $2,127,566, which was up 53.36 percent. The year-to-date total was $10,514,682 and an increase of 23.24 percent for the year. Lubbock's June total was $1,718,953 and the year-to-date total was $10,505,711, which reflected an increase of 2.4 percent for this year.

Checks received for June, and year-to-date totals around the area:

WASHINGTON - President Bush is expected to approve a $53.5 million military aid package to help six Latin American and Caribbean countries combat drug trafficking, according to U.S. officials.

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP) - A 32-year-old Garden City woman accused of murdering four of her children has refused to waive extradition to Texas, where three of the charges are pending.

"I'd rather go through all this here and just wait," Diana Lumbra told Finney County District Judge J. Stephen Nyswonger on Monday.

Lumbra is charged in Finney County with the smothering death of her 4-year-old son, Jose Antonio Lumbra.

She carried the child into a hospital emergency room May 1. Doctors and emergency room personnel worked for an hour trying unsuccessfully to revive the child.

Her first-degree murder trial is scheduled to get under way Sept. 19.

Last week, a Parmer County, Texas, grand jury indicted Lumbra on three counts of capital murder stemming from the deaths of three other children: Mellissa Lumbra, 3; Melinda Ann Garza, 2; and Joanna Lumbra, 3 months.

The charges allege she killed the children for insurance money.

Two more of Lumbra's children - 14-week-old Jose Lionel Garza and 5-month-old Christopher Daniel Lumbra - also died in her care, as did Erica Lenore Aleman, the 6-week-old daughter of a cousin.

Grand juries in three Texas counties, Castro, Bailey and Lubbock, are investigating the other deaths.

With the exception of Jose Antonio Lumbra, all the deaths occurred in Texas between 1976 and 1984.

Lumbra, who had been free on a $50,000 bond in the Garden City case, was arrested on the Texas warrants last Wednesday. She appeared without an attorney Monday and remained composed throughout the 25-minute hearing.

Nyswonger told her she could waive extradition and have Texas authorities pick her up or wait until Texas had completed all the paperwork and Kansas Gov. Mike Hayden issued a governor's warrant. She chose the latter.

He ordered her returned to court Sept. 7 to see if the governor's warrant was issued. If Texas still hasn't filed the necessary paperwork, Nyswonger said he could grant an additional 60 days.

Texas has set $100,000 bond on each of the three charges there, but Nyswonger said those bond amounts apply only when and if Texas assumes custody of Lumbra.

Nyswonger also ordered she be held without bond because the charges, if proved, carry a possible life sentence or death penalty in Texas.

Bush to O.K. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is expected to approve a $53.5 million military aid package to help six Latin American and Caribbean countries combat drug trafficking, according to U.S. officials.

The program includes nine helicopters for Mexico to interdict narcotics flows in the northern part of the country, where numerous landing strips serve as transit points for U.S.-bound Colombian cocaine, the officials said.

The largest outlays will be $20 million for Colombia and $17 million for Mexico. Bush is likely to approve the package sometime this week and delivery is scheduled before the end of the calendar year, the officials said.

The other countries and their respective allocations are Bolivia, $8 million; Jamaica, $5 million; Ecuador, $3 million, and Belize, $500,000, the officials said.

Clarification

In Tuesday's story on season tickets for Hereford varsity football games, the story was incorrect on the surcharge on the season tickets.

The surcharge is actually $1 per game ticket for the five home games. For one season ticket, the charge would be $5. For two season tickets, the charge would be $10.

The school district could have raised the price for the tickets to $4, but would have had to split the proceeds with the visiting school. Since the $1 was added as a surcharge, the HSD can keep the $1. The new surcharge will be used for the stadium expansion project at Whiteface Stadium.

The Brand regrets the error.

Pageant official bubbling in hot water

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The mayor of Fort Worth is defending the Miss Texas pageant's state chairman who has drawn criticism for his behavior detailed in a magazine and recent newspaper accounts.

The September issue of Life Magazine includes a photograph of a cigar-puffing B. Don Magness relaxing in a bubble bath and a six-page article concerning several contestants' objections about his behavior.

Magness also is Fort Worth's director of public events.

After the magazine article hit the newstands, several past contestants in the pageant complained about Magness and said he should be removed as pageant director.

Fort Worth Mayor Bob Bolen said he has met every Miss Texas for the last eight or nine years and got no such indication of improper behavior.

"Never did any one of them say anything derogatory about the pageant or B. Don," Bolen said.

City manager David Ivory said he received several calls from people upset with Magness' portrayal and that he called Magness to his office to discuss the situation.

"It was a personal matter between a department head and myself," Ivory said, refusing to elaborate.

Life Magazine said Magness had one former contestant model swimsuits while they were alone at his home and office. Another former contestant said the pageant chairman - sometimes referred to as "God" - mailed her risque Valentines. A third said Magness sometimes kissed contestants on the lips.

In 1981, Magness presented reigning Miss Texas Sheri Ryman Brower with a T-shirt that said across the front, "In case of rape, this side up."

Magness told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that, while accurate, the magazine article took a negative slant. He said the rape reference made him sound like Clayton Williams, the GOP gubernatorial candidate who caught public ire for comparing bad weather to rape.

Magness said the T-shirt was presented to the 1981 Miss Texas at a roast where friends and family poked fun at the beauty queen for "not being well endowed."

Ms. Brower defended the T-shirt gift.

"No one was offended. I laughed harder than anyone else," she told the newspaper. "Nothing he ever said or did offended me. I guarantee I dished out as much as he did. I spent four years around him, and he's harmless."

Tamara Hext Hilliard, who was Miss Texas 1984, also came to Magness' defense. She portrayed him as a teddy-bear figure to pageant contestants.

"He'll take something you feel terribly uncomfortable about and joke. You become more confident about those insecurities. You can laugh about it," she said.

Magness is paid $85,966 for his city job, but volunteers for his Miss Texas duties.

He has been affiliated with Miss Texas for 29 years, 20 years as pageant chairman. As Miss Texas chairman, a non-paying position, Magness devotes more than 800 hours a year to the position and is out of town most weekends, judging preliminary pageants.

The Star-Telegram said he spends about $2,000 a year from his own pocket to help contestants with wardrobes and talent lessons.

The winner of the Miss Texas Scholarship pageant goes on to compete in the Miss America pageant.

Since his involvement in the pageant, two state winners have been crowned Miss America. Seventeen of the past 20 winners of the Miss Texas pageant have made it into the Top 10 at the national pageant in Atlantic City.

Magness was not in his office Tuesday and was unavailable for comment, his secretary said.

Jordan leader delivers message; Bush sees no hope for solution

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is vowing to press Jordan's King Hussein to cut off a vital supply line to Iraq, as the Pentagon considers urging a callup of military reserves to bolster active duty units depleted by the Persian Gulf crisis.

Hussein arrived in Washington early today, carrying a private message for Bush from Iraq's President Saddam Hussein, who ignited the gulf crisis when his forces invaded and conquered the tiny oil kingdom of Kuwait 13 days ago.

Bush and Hussein will confer Thursday at the president's oceanside home in Kennebunkport, Maine. Bush interrupted his 25-day vacation Tuesday to return to Washington and was flying back to Maine today after a briefing and speech at the Pentagon.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is considering urging Bush to call military reserves to active duty, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Tuesday night. The spokesman said that if such a callup were made, he expected "a great deal" of the reservists would remain in the United States and mainly would handle support functions rather than combat-related duties.

Williams said the subject could be brought up during today's meeting at the Pentagon. White House officials said the president would be updated on U.S. military strategy in the Persian Gulf and would speak to Pentagon employees on U.S. interests in the Middle East.

To the dismay of the United States, Jordan has been subverting the United Nations trade embargo by allowing truckloads of goods to roll into Iraq, carrying supplies unloaded from ships at the Red Sea port of Aqaba.

The southern Jordanian port is the last opening for goods for Iraq if ships completely seal the Persian Gulf.

"If it's a hole through which commerce flows in an otherwise tight net, I would certainly think that Aqaba should be closed to Iraqi commerce," Bush declared at a news conference Tuesday.

He said any country allowing goods into Iraq would be violating the sanctions and an embargo approved by the United Nations. "But he's (Hussein) coming here. I'll have a chance to talk to him," Bush said.

U.S. officials say Hussein is in a difficult position alongside a mighty and threatening Arab power. Bush offered reassuring words and the prospect of financial aid, saying: "We've always been a friend of Jordan. We've helped them in the past; we'd help them in the future if they fulfill their obligation here."

Still unanswered was the question of how long U.S. troops would have to be away from home.

Cheney, visiting at Fort Stewart, Ga., with soldiers shipping out for Saudi Arabia, refused to say how long Americans would have to stand guard in the gulf.

"I don't want to mislead anybody into thinking that it's going to be a short-term commitment," Cheney said. "I simply don't know."

Similarly, Bush indicated the commitment of U.S. troops to Saudi Arabia was open-ended, saying, "I don't know about a period of years, but certainly we're going to be there long enough to get the job done."

The president sought to minimize the danger facing the 3,500 or so Americans trapped in Kuwait and Iraq. He said their status was that of "inconvenienced people who want to get out. ... I hope that it doesn't become more than that. I have no reason to think at this juncture that it will."

An unidentified Iraqi official told ABC News on Tuesday that Americans in Iraq and Kuwait are "restrictees" and would not be free to leave until the crisis has ended.

Bush said he sees no hope of a diplomatic solution until Iraqi troops pull out of Kuwait and its exiled leaders return to power.

Protect older children

If you have a child or grandchild over four years old, here's news that may save that youngster's life.

Older children need protection in automobiles as much as infants do. The kind of safety seat varies with the child's age and weight.

Once a child is over 40 pounds and has outgrown a toddler car seat, use a booster seat. Boosters should be secured with the rear seat lap/shoulder belt. If no rear lap/shoulder belt is available, use a shield-type booster seat restrained by the lap belt. An older child is ready for safety belt use without a special seat only if it fits properly. That is when the shoulder portion does not cross the face or neck and the lap belt fits across the child's hips and does not ride up across the stomach.

Children should NEVER ride unrestrained in the cargo part of a station wagon. Your children are your most precious cargo, don't damage that cargo by not taking the time to secure it.

Everyone's out for Arkansas in SWC grid race

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The bull's eye may replace the razorback as the symbol of Arkansas football this season.

The school's decision to leave the Southwest Conference after 76 years has angered some league members, giving them extra incentive to beat the Razorbacks one final time before they depart for the Southeastern Conference.

"We'll have a lot of teams after us," said Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grovey. "We might as well have targets painted on our helmets and jerseys."

But that doesn't mean the Razorbacks will be an easy target to hit.

"They are the defending champions and it's their last hurrah, so they will want to go out on top," Baylor coach Grant Teaff said.

Arkansas will play an independent football schedule in 1991 before joining the SEC the following year. Some SWC coaches won't be sorry to see them go.

"I hope the door doesn't hit 'em when they leave," Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "We're not going to slit our wrists because they are gone."

Remarks like that should get both sides pumped up when they play Oct. 13 at Arkansas.

"I guess the Arkansas people will be ready for me when we play them in Fayetteville, but we usually lose to them there anyway," Dykes said.

Arkansas has a new coach as well as a new conference. Jack Crowe moved up from offensive coordinator after Ken Hatfield left for Clemson.

"It should be a wild chase," Crowe said of the SWC race. "Texas A&M is loaded and Houston is explosive."

Texas A&M may have the best running back combo in the country with Darren Lewis and Robert Wilson.

"I'm real optimistic about our offense," Coach R.C. Slocum said. "We do have several question marks on defense, though. We lost our starting noseguard, Patrick Henry, and we don't have much depth on our defensive line. It's a worry."

The Aggies will get an early test when they play at Hawaii on Sept. 1. The Rainbows are hard to beat at home.

"It's a tough opener but it should tell us what we have," Slocum said.

Baylor also opens with a rough road game, at Nebraska.

"It's a hard way to start the season," Teaff said. "We're putting the veer offense back into our game plan and Nebraska isn't a good team to work out the bugs against."

Houston, Texas and Texas Tech are also possible contenders for the SWC title.

Although John Jenkins has replaced Jack Pardee as Houston's coach, don't expect any major changes in the Cougars' explosive run-and-shoot offense.

That's because Jenkins was the mastermind behind the offense, which shattered dozens of NCAA records last season and helped Andre Ware win the Heisman Trophy.

Ware has gone to the NFL but his replacement, David Klingler, should fit right in. Although he was only a backup last season, Klingler managed to finish second in the league behind Ware in passing efficiency.

"David did a good job when Andre wasn't there," Jenkins said. "He's going to surprise a lot of people."

Texas Tech surprised nearly everyone last year by going 9-3, but the Red Raiders will have a hard time repeating the feat after losing nine offensive starters.

At Texas, Coach David McWilliams will be under pressure to improve after guiding the Longhorns to two consecutive losing seasons. It won't be easy, though, with a schedule that includes non-conference games against Colorado, Penn State and Oklahoma.

Rice, Texas Christian and Southern Methodist don't appear to have enough depth to challenge for the league title.

What sport are we playing here?

The Hereford Whiteface football team goes through drills Tuesday in the outfield of the Herd baseball field. Coach Don Cumpston described the day's work as "about what you'd expect on the second day. We had a little stiffness and soreness," Cumpston said, "but that's pretty much normal for right now."

Thundershowers and a brisk breeze dropped brought on unseasonably cool temperatures for the practices. The Herd was scheduled to hold single workouts today and Thursday before donning the pads Friday.

A&M focus on SWC

By The Associated Press

The president of Texas A&M says his school's major focus is an ongoing study of the Southwest Conference, but he confirmed there is growing support for a move to the Pacific-10 or another conference.

"I do believe the Southwest Conference will have to change itself, probably adding schools if it is to be a viable conference, given the fact that other conferences are changing," A&M president William Mobley said Tuesday after addressing a group of Amarillo, Texas, business leaders.

"But Texas A&M has made no decision. There's an awful lot of speculation, some of it partially well-founded, some of it totally missing the mark. We have not asked to be invited to join another conference."

Bill Clayton, an A&M regent and former speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, told the Houston Chronicle Monday that he favors a move and that other regents also are receptive to the idea of bolting the SWC for a stronger conference.

"I think the sentiment of the board is A&M, Arkansas and the University of Texas have been basically underwriting the athletic programs of the Southwest Conference," Clayton said.

"With Arkansas leaving (to join the SEC), the burden is squarely placed on A&M and the University of Texas. I think we've got to make a move," Clayton added.

Clayton said Mobley briefed the board on the prospect of A&M's possible departure at a regents meeting on July 28. Specific alternatives to the SWC were not discussed at that meeting, Clayton said.

Clayton said Mobley asked him at the meeting to assess the political ramifications of A&M and Texas deserting the conference.

"I told them certain members of the legislature would say whatever they could on the matter, but the decision must be based on whatever is best for Texas A&M University," Clayton told the Chronicle.

Money is just one of many aspects that A&M will consider in a possible conference change, Mobley said, but not the only one. He said finances will not dictate A&M's decision.

"I don't think we'll be forced to do anything," Mobley said. "I think we are seeking to evaluate our options in informal discussions with a variety of people. There is a major study of the Southwest Conference under way by a very competent consulting group. They will report to the Southwest Conference, to the presidents, in early September. I think that will be revealing."

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Tuesday that the University of Texas plans informal talks this week with Pacific-10 officials about the possibility of Texas and Texas A&M joining the league.

Clemens blanks Oakland, keeps BoSox in first

Bucs regain NL East lead

By The Associated Press
 Roger Clemens took the mound for Boston Tuesday night, he pitched a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory and won in Oakland for the first time in his career as the Red Sox ended the Athletics' five-game winning streak 2-0.

"The guy is unbelievable," Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "I don't think I've seen him any better. He had a great forkball and it made his fastball twice as fast."

The Red Sox retained their two-game lead in the American League East over Toronto, a 12-4 winner over Chicago, which remained a season-high six games behind Oakland in the AL West. Elsewhere, it was Seattle 7, Baltimore 1; Kansas City 1, Texas 0; Minnesota 5, Cleveland 4; Milwaukee 7, Detroit 6; California 9, New York 5.

Clemens (17-5), who has won in every American League park, had been 0-4 in Oakland and 2-8 against the A's overall. He walked one, equaled his season high with 11 strikeouts and lowered his major league-leading ERA to 2.06 with his 24th career shutout and third this season, all during his five-game winning streak.

The Red Sox scored both runs in the second inning off Mike Moore (10-11), who left after the inning with a strained right groin muscle.

Mike Greenwell led off with a single and stole second. Two outs later, Tony Pena beat out a grounder between first and second. The ball was fielded by second baseman Willie Randolph on the outfield grass but Greenwell, noting that catcher Terry Steinbach had left the plate to back up a possible play at first, kept running home.

Greenwell scored ahead of a wild throw by Randolph as Steinbach ran back to the plate. Pena, who was credited with an RBI, went to second on Randolph's throwing error and scored on Jody Reed's single.

Blue Jays 12, White Sox 4
 George Bell tied a major league record with three sacrifice flies and Glenallen Hill hit a grand slam.

Bell became the eighth player to hit three sacrifice flies in a game and the fourth in the AL. Todd Stottlemyre (11-13) gave up two hits in seven scoreless innings.

Hill's homer was his 12th and the second grand slam of his career. It came in the seventh inning and made it 12-0.

Mariners 7, Orioles 1
 Greg Briley hit two home runs and Matt Young pitched a five-hitter.

All the hits off Young (6-12) were singles and the Orioles didn't score until the ninth on Tim Lulett's RBI hit.

Briley hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Dave Johnson (11-8) and added a solo shot in the third to touch off a four-run uprising.

Royals 1, Rangers 0
 Jim Eisenreich, who entered the game as a defensive replacement in the top of the ninth inning, homered leading off the bottom of the ninth.

Eisenreich connected off Gary Micke (0-2). Steve Farr (9-5) pitched three innings for the victory.

Micke came on in the eighth after Jamie Moyer held the Royals to two hits through seven.

Twins 5, Indians 4
 Kent Hrbek homered and Kirby Puckett had three hits, helping Mark Guthrie (4-5) snap a personal three-game losing streak.

He yielded three runs and seven hits in seven innings. Juan Berenguer went 1 1-3 innings and Rick Aguilera got the last two outs for his 25th save. Loser Bud Black (10-8) gave up five runs - three earned - and 10 hits in five innings.

Brewers 7, Tigers 6
 Gary Sheffield tied the score with a leadoff home run and Mike Felder hit a sacrifice fly later in the ninth inning as Milwaukee overcame a five-run first-inning deficit.

Sheffield hit his ninth home run off Jerry Don Gleaton (1-3), the fourth of six Detroit pitchers.

Angels 9, Yankees 5
 California scored all its runs on homers, including Luis Polonia's inside-the-park grand slam.

Chili Davis hit a tie-breaking three-run shot in the fifth inning and Devon White added a two-run homer later in the inning. All three homers came off Tim Lary (6-15), who gave up only five hits but nine runs in 4 2-3 innings.

By The Associated Press
 Then next time the Pittsburgh Pirates start to slump, there's an obvious solution: Play a doubleheader.

So far in 1990, it has been very effective.

Pittsburgh had not won both games of a doubleheader since 1986, but in 1990, playing two is not only encouraging, it's downright necessary.

On May 6, the Pirates took two from Atlanta, after losing two straight. Pittsburgh continued on to win six of its next seven.

On Aug. 6, the Pirates won two against Philadelphia and were in the middle of six victories in seven games.

The latest sweep, 3-1 and 6-4, also over the Braves, moved Pittsburgh back into first in the NL East - one-half game over the New York Mets who split their doubleheader with Los Angeles - and came just two days after the Bucs three-game lost weekend to St. Louis.

In other games, it was New York 9, Los Angeles 8 in the first game of a doubleheader, and Los Angeles 2, New York 1 in the second game; Montreal 8, San Diego 3; Philadelphia 4, San Francisco 3 in 13 innings;

Cincinnati 9, St. Louis 4; and Chicago 5, Houston 2.

"I'm not going to get on that rollercoaster where you're positive one day and negative the next, up one day and down on them the next," Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland said.

There was speculation their season was over when the Cardinals won three, and extended the Pirates streak to five losses. Infielder Wally Backman said, "We were dead," and Leyland said, "We're flat, we're tired, we're dead."

But the pitching of Doug Drabek and newly-acquired Zane Smith helped pump back some life, as did the hitting of Bobby Bonilla and Jeff King.

In the first game Drabek (15-5) tied his career-high in victories and Bonilla hit the first of a pair of two-run homers. Drabek was two outs away from his second shutout in three games until Dave Justice's eighth homer in 35 at-bats and 16th of the season.

In the nightcap, Bonilla and King powered two-run homers in the first off Atlanta rookie Steve Avery.

Mets 9, Dodgers 8
Dodgers 2, Mets 1
 The pitching duel between Dwight Gooden and Ramon Martinez did not occur. But there was one between Mike Hartley and David Cone.

Martinez and Gooden, one-two atop the NL strikeout leaders, were both hit hard and neither was around by the end of the sixth inning.

Despite giving up eight hits and seven runs, Gooden (12-6) was able to run his career record against LA to 12-1.

Martinez (15-5), the major league strikeout leader, had just two, his fewest of the season.

In the first game, Howard Johnson drove in four runs with three hits, including his 18th homer.

Mike Hartley (4-1) held the Mets to two hits in six innings and Lenny Harris, with four RBIs in the first game, had an run-scoring single in the nightcap, along with Rick Dempsey.

Expos 8, Padres 3
 Otis Nixon hit his first homer in nearly five years and Dennis Martinez pitched his second straight complete game.

Nixon, whose first-inning blast was his first since Sept. 1985 and his fourth in 1,045 at-bats, also went 4-for-4 with four RBIs.

Martinez gave up five hits in pitching his sixth complete game of the year, with nine strikeouts and no walks.

Phillies 4, Giants 3, 13 innings
 Steve Bedrosian's wild pitch scored Rod Booker with two outs in the 13th inning as Philadelphia beat San Francisco.

Dennis Cook (8-2) pitched one inning for the victory.

Booker, who singled to lead off the 13th and stole second, scored on the first pitch to pinch-hitter Dave Hollins.

Reds 9, Cardinals 4
 Jack Armstrong won for the first time in five starts and Todd Benzing had three RBIs.

Armstrong (12-8) gave up two runs and five hits in six innings, while Rick Mahler worked three innings for his third save.

Benzing had a two-run double in the first and an RBI single in the fourth.

Cubs 5, Astros 2
 Greg Maddux won for the sixth time in seven starts and Ryne Sandberg drove in three runs, including his NL leading 28th homer.

Maddux (10-10) allowed seven hits, struck out four and walked three in 7-2-3 innings. Bill Long got two outs for his fourth save.

Mike Scott (9-11) led 2-1 in the sixth when Doug Dasenczo beat out a bunt and Sandberg followed with his homer.

'Pokes move Walen to offense

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have moved defensive tackle Mark Walen to offense to try to shore up a depleted group at guard.

A knee injury to starting left guard Crawford Ker and the NFL suspension of Louis Cheek Monday for steroid use forced Jeff Zimmerman's move from center to starting guard and led to Walen's shift to guard.

Coach Jimmy Johnson informed Walen of the move before the Tuesday afternoon practice at Cal-San Diego.

Johnson said Walen will play left guard against the Los Angeles Raiders in an exhibition game Saturday at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"It looks like he may have found a home, based on the first practice," Johnson said. "He did some excellent things. We do believe he'll be able to pick things up fast enough to help us.

He's tough enough and smart enough to do it."

Walen was listed as a backup left defensive tackle on the latest depth chart, but with the recent signing of rookie Jimmie Jones, Walen's chances of making the roster as a defensive player were reduced.

The Cowboys practiced in chilly weather for the second consecutive day, working out against the San Diego Chargers again Tuesday afternoon.

After training for nearly a month in the heat and humidity of Austin, the Cowboys came to the Cal-San Diego campus in search of a more temperate climate.

But the Cowboys were greeted in the morning by chilly, rainy conditions. Players went through a 50-minute morning workout under a light rain and temperatures that fell into the 60s before the rain stopped just before the afternoon session.

The Cowboys also are shorthanded at linebacker. Starters Eugene Lockhart and Jack Del Rio are probably out for Saturday's exhibition, Lockhart with a hip problem and Del Rio with a knee injury.

Del Rio is expected to have arthroscopic surgery later in the week to determine the extent of the injury.

Del Rio's backup, David Howard, is listed as questionable with a groin pull and the Cowboys are still without outside linebacker Jesse Solomon, who remains a loose end.

Veterans Vinson Smith or Randy Shannon could take Del Rio's spot. Willis Crockett will move into the middle as a starter if Lockhart is unable to play.

AGGIES

The report said Pac-10 commissioner Thomas Hanson will meet with a UT representative for what one unnamed source described as an "informal talk."

University of Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds presumably will discuss the issue this week at a meeting in Kansas City with Pac-10 commissioner Tom Hansen.

Hansen is a member of the NCAA's Post-Season Football Subcommittee, which will meet the next three days in Kansas City.

Also on the subcommittee are SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby and athletic directors Freddie Duncan of Oklahoma; Glenn Tuckett of Brigham Young; Sam Jankovich of Miami and John Swofford of North Carolina.

Dodds is a former subcommittee member who attends as a consultant.

SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby said he was surprised at the prospect of a Texas-Pac-10 meeting.

"Who from Texas is the Pac-10 meeting with?" asked Jacoby, who said it is customary for an SWC school to inform him of any such discussion. He would not confirm whether anybody from UT had informed him of any intentions to meet with the Pac-10.

Texas president William Cunningham declined Monday to comment about the possibility of any meeting. However, he said Texas has an interest in exploring any options the Pac-10 has to offer.

During a Pac-10 meeting last week, league athletic directors tabled any action concerning expansion. The league is not scheduled to discuss expansion again until a regular meeting in October.

The Pac-10 requires unanimous approval of the conference's presidents and chancellors before any new teams can join. There reportedly was a wide split among the conference concerning expansion plans.

7th graders reminded to get physicals

All incoming seventh-grade Hereford Junior High students who plan on participating in athletics must have physical examinations before they will be issued equipment, according to HJH Coach James Salinas.

Salinas said that local physicians have examination forms. Students who will be examined by an out-of-town doctor will need to pick up a form at the fieldhouse.

Salinas also announced that any HJH football players wishing to purchase football shoes may do so at the beginning of school. The shoes will be sold for $25 per pair.

Home health care coverage can make recovery more comfortable.

Full recovery from a serious illness can't take much longer than a stay in the hospital... especially if the patient is elderly. Recuperation at home can be more comfortable and secure. It can also cost your parents or your family a lot of money for which Medicare does not reimburse you.

That's why the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several major companies our independent agency represents, created a new Home Health Care Plan. It provides coverage your parents and your own family may need to help pay the costs of professional health services performed at home.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Get out the wet noodle. You really blew it this time. I'm referring to the letter from the mother of the spoiled brat who thought her parents should take out a loan to pay for her wedding. She made $300 per week and you said her rent should be $60 a week, and she should NOT have to help with the housework.

Since when does $60 a week cover room and board? If that awful girl were living in an apartment, she would be paying a lot more than $60 a week and she'd have to do ALL the housework and buy groceries to boot.

Any child living at home should be responsible for more than just his or her room. Too many kids of this generation don't even clean up the crumbs when they make a sandwich. Kids today are spoiled rotten, and you don't help with half-baked advice like that. A mother should not be a maid forever. -- A.M.H. in Michigan

DEAR MICHIGAN: At least 10,000 readers let me have it right in the chops for my mindless response. Read on for additional comments that I cleaned up for publication: Some folks became so incensed their language was unprintable.

FROM SUDBURY, MASS.: Do you have a screw loose or what? I am outraged by your response to "Aggravated in Long Island." Why in the world did you say that 23-year-old healthy daughter shouldn't be expected to help with housework? Everyone who lives in a house should do his or her share. I'm furious.

SAGINAW, MICH: That young snob should be thrilled with the great setup she has; instead she's complaining! I was 21 when I married and up to that day, I paid rent, did all the housework, cut the grass and shoveled the snow. My fiance wanted a nice wedding so we paid half of the expenses. I was earning about $3 an hour in 1978 and my husband did odd jobs so we could get by. Boy, how things have changed in 12 years!

SOUTH JERSEY: That good-for-nothing daughter should be kicked out of the house. In 1936 I got my first paycheck. It was $6 a week. Out of that I gave $2 to my mother and bought my own clothes. I hope that girl reads this and learns something.

CHICAGO: My two sisters and I were expected to clean up the supper dishes every night, do our own laundry (no wash-and-wear then) and keep our room neat. We never complained. In fact, we thought we were getting a big break.

AZUSA, CALIF: Hey, Ann, what about the spoiled brat's fiance? Is he going to help, or does he expect the bride's parents to pay for everything? This is the '90s, and most couples I know are paying for the wedding themselves. The girl who wrote is spoiled rotten. I guess when you raise selfish kids, this is what you get.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so mad I could scream. Since screaming has never solved any problems, I decided it would make much more sense to write to Ann Landers.

I work for a doctor who is well known in town so I'm not going to give any clues as to his specialty. If he calls me "his girl" one more time, I am going to start answering the phone, "This is Dr. X's girl. If you would like 'my man' to call you back please leave your number."

I am certain that I am not alone with this complaint. Please do thousands of secretaries a favor and print this letter. Sign me -- Maybe His Doormat or His Whipping Post But NOT His Girl.

DEAR WOMAN: I've done my part. Now you do yours. Show your boss this letter and let him know you wrote it. If that doesn't solve the problem, start scanning the want ads.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to:

Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.05)

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Just because you tape your favorite soap operas and spend your evenings glued to the tube doesn't mean you are a mindless couch potato, says a film-studies scholar at the University of Rochester.

"Viewers aren't passive in their response to popular culture," says Constance Penley. "People don't just consume popular culture. They use it to think, to criticize, to debate."

Soap operas and movies can actually prompt viewers to wrestle with political or social problems and to question gender roles, she adds.

Beauty spot of the month

Members of the Women's Division beauty spot of the month committee has selected the home of John Sherrod as one of the residential beauty spots of the month. The home is located at 140 Redwood.

NEW YORK (AP) - Cybill Shepherd says her ex-husband, Bruce Oppenheim, won't talk to her.

"I'm hoping that at some point I'll be able to talk to him and he'll be able to get over his anger about the divorce to be able to talk about what's best for the children," she was quoted as saying in the August issue of Fame magazine.

Oppenheim, a chiropractor, is the father of Shepherd's 3-year-old twins. The two were married in 1987 and divorced last year.

Shepherd, 40, is reprising her Macy Garrow role from "The Last Picture Show" in the sequel, "Texasville," directed by her former flame, Peter Bogdanovich. She also has a part in Woody Allen's new film, "Alice."

Back pain common for millions of Americans

By SIBBY CHRISTENSEN
Associated Press Writer

You woke up late and now you have to rush to catch the bus. Twisting and hopping from one foot to the other, you'll save time by pulling on your pantyhose standing up. Ping. Ouch. What's that sharp feeling in your back?

Or: You decided to rearrange the furniture in your office to make way for a new computer. Moving a small file cabinet or two shouldn't have been any trouble for a strong fellow like you, but you must have overdone it, because now you feel like you've been hit in the back by a truck.

Back trouble is the great leveler, hitting perhaps as many as 70 percent of the population sooner or later - the athletically inclined and couch potato alike. Economic costs of back pain have been estimated at about $16 billion annually, says the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons. Low back pain is the most common disability among those under 45, according to a National Health and Nutrition Examination survey.

You're a candidate for low back pain if you're out of shape, if you've overexerted doing something you're not used to, or if you didn't warm up muscles and joints before plunging into activity, says Dr. Jerold Lancourt, a Dallas orthopedist who specializes in back problems. A sudden twisting or turning motion can add up to weeks or months of misery.

What to do? "Most back pain will get better by itself," Lancourt says. "I like to use common sense about these things." He recommends lying down for a day or two, aspirin, ice, and warm baths. Avoid too much activity for a while.

If the pain is still around a week later, if it's bad enough to keep you from resuming your normal activities, or if you have pain running down your leg, call the doctor. An orthopedist, who specializes in bones and joints, probably is your best bet, though your general practitioner usually can help, too. Lancourt observes that "there's enough back pain to go around" for all doctors.

The doctor will analyze the source of your pain. It could be a disk problem, such as disk material protruding and pressing against a nerve or more seriously, a ruptured disk. It could be from muscle spasms, arthritis, osteoporosis. Stress, overweight, overload, and other lifestyle-related conditions are possible contributors.

Whatever the cause, the probability that you'll need drastic treatment such as surgery is slight. "About 90 to 95 percent of my patients go to physical therapy," Lancourt says. Physical therapists will work out an exercise program designed to increase flexibility and strength in your back.

You'll also learn something about the mechanics of your back and what to do - or not to do - to keep back pain at bay.

"The best way to avoid problems is to understand how your body works," Lancourt says. He characterizes the back as a complex piece of engineering, with the jelly-like disks between the vertebra functioning as a hydraulic system that distributes load stress. The natural "S" curve of the spine is the architecture that supports and balances the weight of the head; the five lower vertebra of the lumbar spine act as foundation for carrying the 70 percent of your body weight located in the upper body.

What usually goes wrong is that because of your habits and lifestyle, your back isn't as strong and flexible as it should be. Or you misjudge your capacities. "You can expect pain if you're not accustomed to say, moving furniture, or if you spend 20 hours on the road or in an airplane," says Lancourt.

You can minimize your chances of back pain by being aware of proper positions for sitting, standing, lifting and resting, he says. When seated, pull your knees up so they're higher than your hips.

How to Spot and Prevent Gas Pipeline Emergencies
Natural gas is transported through a system of underground piping. These pipelines are installed and maintained in accordance with highest safety standards, but damage from outside forces can occur. If the pipes are struck or disturbed by excavators or by natural disasters such as floods or tornadoes, personal injury or property damage could result. You can help prevent or minimize pipeline emergencies by keeping in mind the 3 R's of Pipeline Safety:

RECOGNIZE a pipeline emergency:

- Hissing or shrill SOUND.
- Unusual BLOWING dirt or dust.
- Persistent BUBBLES in water.
- DYING PLANTS amid healthy ones.
- Distinctive SMELL, if odorized.
- FIRE or EXPLOSION near pipeline.

REPORT a pipeline emergency:
Phone the Natural Gas Pipeline 24-hour line: 1-708-691-3399. Call COLLECT.

RESPOND to a pipeline emergency:

- Evacuate the area immediately.
- Avoid potential ignition sources.
- Warn others to stay away.
- Phone Natural.

YOU CAN PREVENT PIPELINE ACCIDENTS:

- Call BEFORE you dig, drill, or doze.
- Watch for our signs at road, railroad and river crossings, at fence lines, ditches and other sites.
- For no-cost location of ALL underground facilities, call the Texas Excavation Safety System (TESS) at 1-800-DIG-TESS. Please call 48 hours in advance.

Easley Trailer finds new market niche

Company retains quality, develops new models to fit industry needs

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

Paul Easley built his business on the toughest stock trailers in Texas.

And then he found a marketing niche that called for a super-glider of the trails—streamlined jet-nosed jobs that could well become the state-of-the-art in livestock trailers.

Though his new rigs have the Space-Age look of the livestock world, Easley has retained the high-quality craftsmanship that became a trademark of Easley Trailers in the past 10 years.

"We found a little marketing niche and went for it," said Easley, in outlining new trailer trends coming off his Hereford production lines.

"The cone-shaped front has really been getting a lot of attention," said Easley, as he sort of caressed the fine finish of new enamel. "It cuts down greatly on wind friction and it has a great appearance...our customers apparently liking the new look."

At first glance, the conical caper resembles a sleek jet on tandem instead of wings. The tapered front originally was designed by Easley to cut down on wind friction, but then came refined nose work, a little more bulge, a little less taper, with the ultimate being perfection up front.

"We're now giving 120 percent of our time to production," Easley added, as he walked through his fabrication factory at Hereford. "All we do now is make sure production stays at the highest levels and develop new models to fit the trends of the livestock industry."

And when it comes to knowing the needs of the cattlemen, Easley knows his business. He was reared in the cattle feeding business of Deaf Smith County where his family pioneered some of the first custom cattle feeding operations in the Texas Panhandle.

"We built our business and reputation on manufacturing the toughest built ranch and working stock trailers available," said Easley, while recalling the beginning of the Easley Trailer Co. on the east edge of Hereford. "I had been doing a lot of repair work on broken-down stock trailers, so I decided that if I was going to have to repair them, I might as well build them. I built my first trailer in 1981 in that little welding shop a short distance down the highway."

But the Easley trailer factory of 1990 is a far cry from the old drive-in welding shop. More than a dozen skilled fabricators turn steel ribbons into framework that will eventually move off an assembly line in a finished form of polished stock trailers. Easley takes great pride in giving much credit of his success to his factory and office staff -- "I don't consider my employees as just welders...they're craftsmen, in my book.

In addition to his latest innovations of the roadways, Easley speaks fondly of a model billed as the heavy duty cowboy special - "If you make a lot of miles and demand an easy pulling, low-maintenance, no down-time trailer, you'll like the 5-foot wide heavy duty model...it's built for those who seldom unhook their trailers."

While pointing to the single-axle gooseneck, he noted that a 7,000-pound 8-hole axle is available with rubber torsion suspension, a new feature in livestock trailers that is also available in other models offered by Easley. The Torlex suspension system by Dexter Axle features the progressive torque action and independent wheel movements to provide the maximum in shock absorption and handling characteristics.

Mounted solidly to the frame, the torsion axle becomes a rigid supporting cross-member with maximum road clearance. Thus, the rubber suspension system completely eliminates the old leaf-spring suspension that initially was developed nearly 100 years ago by the Studebaker Wagon Co.

But buying an Easley Trailer is not far removed from shopping for a new pickup or suburban--accessories are limited only to one's pocketbook. The options include a low saddle compartment that takes up about 2 feet of floor space, removable bumper hitches, dome lights, full nose job, two-tone paint, high sides full length or only half way, sliding bus windows, ranch brands on each side of the trailer or the trendy 8,000-pound rubber torsion axle.

And then there's another long list of options on the heavy duty tandem axle gooseneck--electric brakes, fenders, escape doors, size of tires, various widths and heights, sizes of couplers, calf gates, paint colors and trim.

The goose-neck models still outsell the bumper jobs despite the fact that many cowboys are shifting from the traditional pickup role to the plush suburbs--"We have a number of models that will pull very nicely behind the suburban."

Asking how much an Easley stock trailer costs is like asking how much a 16-year-old girl weighs--the variances are many. But generally speaking, the new units will market at some point between $4,000 and 416,000, depending greatly on the desired options. In addition to the standard inventory models, Easley also takes custom orders for stock trailers--from the sleek single-file horse rigs loaded with trim to the rugged ranch rig seamed with a ton of steel.

Easley Trailer Co., on east edge of Hereford

HUSTLE HEREFORD

"One must remember that custom-made trailers do interrupt our factory work schedule and therefore costs more," said Easley. "But on the other hand, we do welcome the custom orders."

Easley is in partnership with his father, Morris Easley of Hereford who handles the accounting end of the business.

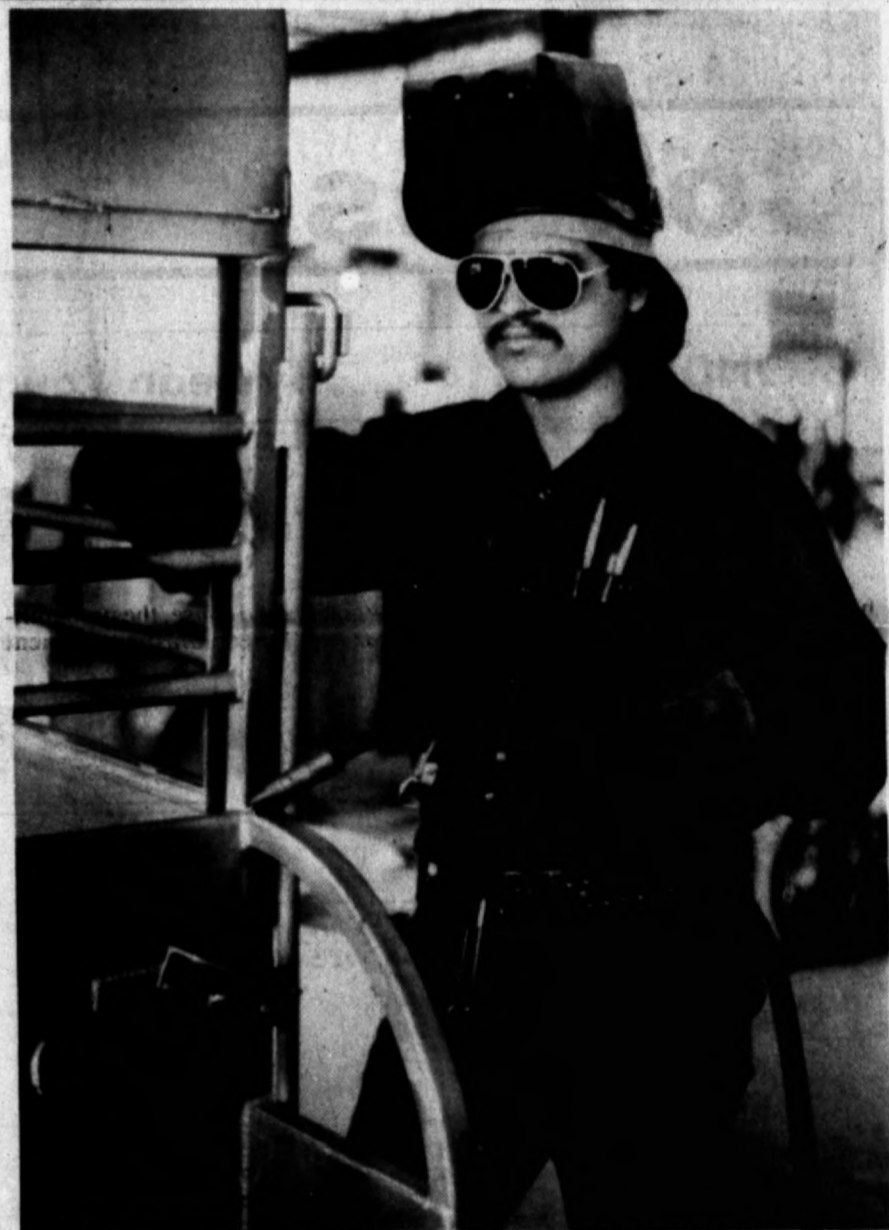

As a point of record, Morris Easley initiated the first computerized accounting in commercial feedyards some 20 years ago in the Hereford area, and at one time he serviced the bookkeeping end of the business for a number of feedyards from a central computer office in Hereford. In addition to his father and uncle's role in the cattle business, Easley also had two cousins, Jim and Joe, who also were very active in the cattle business. Jim is now in the livestock order buying business in Butte, Mont.

Easley frequently recalls his boyhood days on the family farms west of Hereford which later became the launching pad for the feedyards. As the family units expanded during the 1960s, Oscar and his sons, Jim and Joe, moved more heavily into cattle feeding, while the Morris Easley family aligned with farming and commercial crop spraying.

After graduating from Hereford High School in 1968, Easley took a four-year tour of duty with the military. He worked for a couple of years for the XIT Feedyard and Winrock Farms near Dalhart, then returned to Hereford in 1974 to set up his own welding shop on the east edge of town.

Easley believes his move into new trailer models for both, the cattle ranchers and the horse breeders, could pave the way for further expansion of his Hereford factory.

Despite severe drought conditions that have stymied ag-related sales

Fred Reyes, six-year veteran welder for Easley across the Southwest this summer, Easley is quite optimistic about the future of Hereford and his company:

"We believe Hereford is one of the more progressive towns in the Southwest when it comes to agricultural oriented industry. The trailer manufacturing business here has been good to us and our plans are to try to hang in here for a long time to come."

Easley frequently relates to his work force while moving through a current inventory of trailers ready for nationwide delivery, showing how quality is consistent with his factory family. And when it comes to his personal family, he and his wife, Billie, have two children, Garrett and Alisha.

Though Easley stays on the cutting edge of new trends in trailers, he does not discount tradition:

"We have paid serious attention to the way old-timers have built trailers in the past and the condition the trailers were in years later...no body builds the best trailer, but we think we come closer than most."

"We will make changes from year to year which we believe will come out better--we have taken our ideas along with old ideas and have put them together into what we believe is a very solid working trailer...we're continually looking for something just a little bit better in a livestock trailer."

"And plans are to gradually build a dealer network that will reach much further than we now have them," concluded Easley.

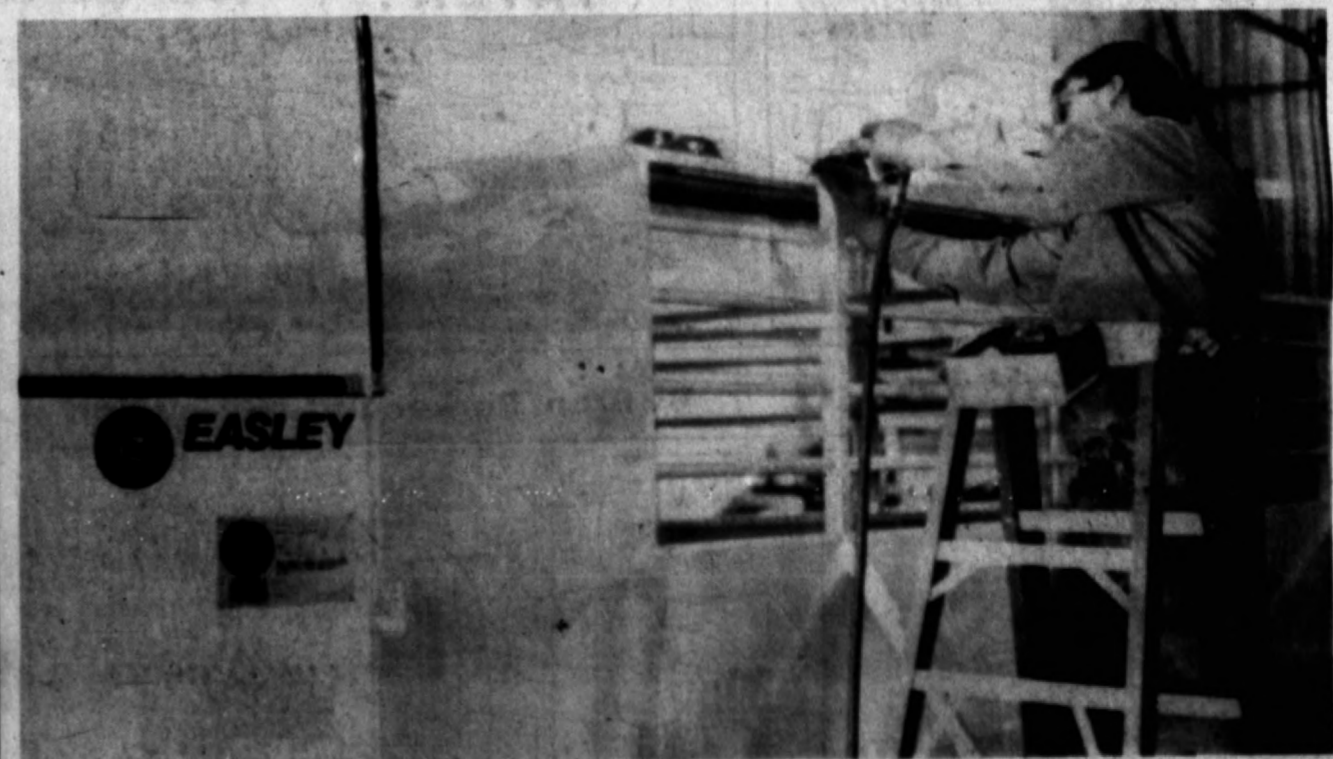

Paul Easley gives much credit to employees

When PUSH comes to shove, Nike's attacked

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - These are times that try men's soles.

"Hello, Operation PUSH," callers are being greeted these days at one of the better-known civil-rights organizations in the country. "Say No to Nike."

Say it again?

"Say No to Nike. We've called a boycott of Nike shoes and Nike apparel. How can I direct your call?"

A minute later, the Rev. Tyrone Crider, executive director of PUSH, picked up the receiver and said by way of explanation: "We are very serious about this. It's war now. A war for dignity, a war for integrity, a war for respect ..."

A war over sneakers. PUSH, the acronym for People United to Save Humanity and the group that Jesse Jackson founded and used to launch his political career, has come to shove again.

Make no mistake: This is potentially a very ugly and very expensive brawl. The athletic shoe industry has grown from $1.4 billion in sales to an expected $5.5 billion this year, and Nike is at the head of a very competitive pack that includes Reebok, Converse and a host of others.

After one face-to-face meeting in late July and correspondence over the phone and fax, PUSH decided it didn't like Nike's employment, investment and advertising practices as they relate to African-Americans.

Apparently just as important (more on that later), PUSH decided it doesn't like Nike's attitude.

"Let's be honest, a boycott worries any reasonable company," spokeswoman Liz Dolan said in a telephone conversation from Nike's Beaverton, Ore. headquarters. "Nobody likes to think their customers will be hassled in the process of buying a product, or leave the impression they are not a good corporate citizen. In that way, of course it worries us."

"This is not a disagreement between Nike and PUSH, not Nike and African-Americans. We're pretty confident that community groups we've been supportive of them, and hopefully," she continued, "they'll be supportive of us."

According to PUSH, the five stages that govern the process of reaching a "joint economic agreement" or "moral covenant" with each member of corporate America are: information, education, negotiation, direct action (as in boycott) and reconciliation. And some of those results have been laudable.

In this case, PUSH demanded that Nike hire more black employees, black executives, deposits in black-owned banks, the hiring of black lawyers and ad agencies, a seat on the board of directors and according to Nike, some financial information which even stockholders wouldn't be privy to seeking.

Nike has an affirmative-action program in place - officials maintained minorities made up 21 percent of this year's hiring - but Dolan conceded that nearly all of PUSH's demands in the area of employment were "absolutely valid" and worth pursuing.

She also said company policy in the areas of banking and advertising made some of the other demands less possible to accommodate, then added: "They started by explaining the five-step process ... But at the point that we asked for some information on them, steps two and three got canceled and they went directly to the boycott."

What Nike asked for, among other things, was information about PUSH's finances; its membership (Crider said between 50,000 to 60,000 nationwide); whether it has been the subject of a federal investigation; and after finding a $5,900 advertisement from Reebok in a recent copy of PUSH's magazine, how cozy the group was with its chief rival.

Both Reebok and us made clear there was no relationship," Crider said. "Almost all the information they asked for from us was a smokescreen. Everyone knows PUSH's history and its campaigns for economic and social justice."

Which is one reason why use of the bully pulpit and this rush to judgment seems so curious. Without much provocation, PUSH - as Nike itself might be tempted to say - just did it.

Software assists students

Students of the 1990s may increasingly be learning more than one thing at a time, experts predict. For instance, they'll be learning a lot about computers at the same time as they brush up on geography, math and other subjects, thanks to new software programs for studying.

Studymate is a one-of-a-kind software program that individualizes computer learning by letting students study their own course material and create a personalized studying system to improve grades. The program automatically scores and corrects test material, keeps track of missed questions and immediately retests incorrect responses. Users also can design their own test formats by creating multiple choice, true/false, fill-in-the-blank, question/response or vocabulary questions.

High school, college students and career professionals can benefit from the program at home and in the classroom. The program, which includes a bonus "power" disk to help increase vocabulary skills for educational, professional or business development, is also used to prepare for college entrance, licensing and certification exams. It's available at most major software retailers.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
From the Mind

On every hand there is expressed concern about the destructive and the disruptive actions of people. There seems to be general agreement that some changes must be made. Of course, there are differing ideas about how these needed changes can be accomplished. Among them, there is a growing view that education is the solution, that people need the correct information, more enlightenment, and more help so that they can make wiser choices for themselves.

We human beings have the potential capacity for establishing a personal life-structure that will be formed by self-determination and self-rule, including the wholesome respect for each other. Most people can learn to establish goals, make choices, develop their potentialities, improve themselves and become wholesomely responsible people. In our education, we must choose a wholesome and well-balanced sense of values. We will certainly develop technical skills and we will learn about many of the physical and material aspects of living. This learning can lead to the betterment of personal, social, economic conditions and to better general living conditions, if it is overlaid and underlaid with the effective development of our moral skills.

The issues of life come from the mind. The things that are put into the mind fashion the choices and actions which form the framework of our living. Trying to improve one's behavior without improving the mind is an effort in futility. Yes, education is the answer to many of the problems which threaten our whole order of life, if that education gives the proper place to the development of moral skills.

The happenings of our time are a picture, a montage of what is going on in the minds of the people. When our thoughts improve, our behavior will improve. Otherwise there will be no improvement. We do have some choices.

Salesman Confesses

Claims newspaper is best salesman

On Monday, Jules Wintner, owner of a local retail establishment, confessed his job as a salesman was obsolete due to the impact of newspaper advertising. Wintner, in an exclusive interview, said sales were made in the local paper instead of in the store.

"Sure, we get a chance for additional sales," Wintner commented, "but the newspaper has become our best salesman." Wintner reported that consumers name the local newspaper as their usual source of "Best Buy" information, 10 times more than radio or television. This conforms with a recent Consumer Data Service report that indicated 60% of the consumers seek "Best Buy" information from the newspaper versus only 6% for radio and 7% for television.

Wintner later remarked that because the newspaper is read by all Texans, regardless of income, his business was able to sell both upper end products as well as value priced items. "No matter what we're selling, we get good response in the newspaper," he said. "In fact, the more expensive the product, the better our response seems to be." This fact is substantiated in a survey by the Texas Newspaper Advertising Bureau that documented readership of the newspaper increases as income increases. In the survey, almost 75% of Texans with incomes exceeding $50,000 a year read

Salesman admits he "never had to sell anything" because of newspaper ads

"Our customers shop the newspaper. When they walk in the door, they already know what they want, they know the price and often have the ad with them."

the newspaper.

"My job has become redundant," Wintner admitted. "Used to be I had to really sell each customer, but now I'm just an order taker." Asked what he intended to do now that the newspaper was doing most of the selling, he replied, "Spend more in newspaper advertising than last year."
