Conference committee agrees on school plan

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative negotiators agreed on a school finance reform plan, but some said there is no guarantee it will be adopted by the House and Senate.

One negotiator predicted House failure for the plan, which would shift hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Lawmakers are working to meet an April 1 deadline for reform set by the Texas Supreme Court. Justices threatened to order a halt to state public education spending if a reform plan is not devised by then.

The court unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year school finance system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Differences in local property wealth now lead to wide disparities in education funding, and the court said poor districts must be equitably funded.

Legislative leaders predicted the House and Senate would consider the reform plan by Wednesday.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said no one is enthusiastic about the measure, but that he would encourage lawmakers to vote for it. The Fort Worth Democrat would not predict whether the plan would be held constitutional.

"She's an ugly little baby, but she's the only baby we've got,"

Lewis said of the plan, quoting one leader in negotiations.

Sen. Carl Parker, a Port Arthur Democrat who heads the Senate Education Committee, said he wanted to see support from a majority of school groups before putting the plan to the Legislature. Many such groups have opposed legislative plans this session.

"Why pass something that's going to end up right back in the court-house, with the entire school establishment of Texas fighting over it?" Parker asked.

The legislative conference committee, which labored to resolve differences between House and Senate versions of school finance reform, endorsed the plan 8-0. Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, abstained.

"My gut feeling is it won't pass" the House, Fraser said. He said the plan makes it too difficult for school districts to raise local taxes for enriching their own programs.

"I think there's a feeling that the court has backed everyone into a corner," Fraser said.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, an Alice Democrat and House Public Education Committee head, said, "I think there's a good chance it won't pass. I think there's a good chance it will pass. My prediction is that it will pass."

The negotiators said they will look at the plan again Monday before signing it.

The plan would create 183 education taxing districts, largely along county lines, with some multi-county districts.

When fully implemented in four years, an estimated $400 million to $500 million a year in local tax money would be redistributed among school districts within the tax regions, according to a Legislative Education Board spokesman.

Additional state aid of $1.4 billion also would be added to the system over the next two years.

The bill would set a minimum local property tax rate of 60 cents per $100 valuation, climbing to 90 cents in four years.

School districts also could tax up to another 25 cents to enrich programs and 20 cents for construction when the bill is fully implemented, with each school district guaranteed the same amount of money per penny of tax.

On top of that, school districts could levy another 15 cents to 35 cents for their programs. The school district would keep half the money, and the other half would be pooled within the taxing region based on districts' tax rate, wealth and number of students.

The last provision is in response to a supplementary Supreme Court opinion that absolute equality may not be necessary for a constitutional school finance system.

Iraq may have received 'confusing' US signals

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration failed to heed a series of signs that Iraq was turning increasingly hostile in the months before its invasion of Kuwait, a senior congressional Democrat is charging.

"I get the impression that no one in the high levels of policy making at the State Department was paying much attention to Iraq until the end of July, 1990," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Middle East subcommittee.

Hamilton came to that conclusion after nearly four hours of tough questioning of former U.S. Ambassador to Baghdad April Glaspie, who came to Capitol Hill Thursday for a second day of testimony.

"I get the impression that during those six or eight months prior to August 2, Iraq's policy changed, and changed in a very negative way toward the United States," Hamilton said, citing a series of hostile moves by President Saddam Hussein.

"But U.S. policy did not change," he said. "The warning bells went off, but nobody in Washington was listening."

Glaspie defended the State Department and insisted U.S. policy makers were well aware of the deteriorating state of relations with Iraq through the first half of last year.

She said: "I really reject the notion that our policy didn't change" in response to Saddam's threats against Israel, the execution of a British journalist and the attempted smuggling of nuclear weapons trigger devices.

The grilling from Hamilton's panel was in marked contrast to the gentle questioning Glaspie underwent a day earlier before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Hamilton hammered at what he contended was confused American public diplomacy, citing statements by State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler and Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly that the United States had "no special defense or security commitments to Kuwait."

And he questioned how Glaspie could be so certain Saddam realized U.S. seriousness. "That language conveys just the opposite," he said.

Hamilton recited a litany of conflicting statements from State Department and Pentagon officials beginning July 17, two weeks before Iraqi troops stormed into Kuwait. At the time, the administration was resisting congressional moves to slap economic sanctions on Iraq, he observed.

"It is a record which confused me, confused this subcommittee... and it is not unreasonable to think it might have confused Saddam Hussein as well," Hamilton told the diplomat.

But again Glaspie gave no ground, countering that after she met with Saddam in the early morning hours of July 25, "There was no doubt in my mind that he knew we meant business."

While she did not directly threaten the use of military force if Saddam moved against his small oil-rich neighbor, Glaspie did make clear to the Iraqi leader that the United States would defend the sovereignty of its friends in the gulf and its own vital interests in the region, she said.

Where Saddam miscalculated, she said, was not in assessing U.S. intent, but in figuring he had the military might to defeat whatever force the United States might send, and in calculating that his Arab neighbors would never allow Western forces to launch attacks from their soil.

S&Ls get new $30 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new $30 billion taxpayer check to bail out depositors in savings and loan associations is awaiting the signature of President Bush, who already is preparing to ask for another $50 billion.

The Resolution Trust Corp., which is managing the bailout, has spent most of the $50 billion that Congress approved last year. The new $30 billion, to which the House gave final approval Thursday, will allow bailout operations to continue through Sept. 30.

The administration says Bush will sign the bill, which was approved by a 225-188 vote. The Senate accepted the compromise Wednesday on a voice vote.

Congress has refused to give the administration open-ended authority to spend whatever it takes to complete the bailout of depositors with savings in failed S&Ls. Thus, Bush will have to ask Congress later this year for another $50 billion, presumably enough to carry operations through Sept. 30, 1992.

In addition, the bailout agency is borrowing another $100 billion or so that it expects to repay after disposing of assets from failed institutions.

Estimates of the total taxpayer cost of the bailout range as high as $500 billion.

For that reason, few lawmakers have been eager to approve a new installment of taxpayer funds, even though the money will go to depositors rather than to S&L investors and operators whose lending policies caused much of the problem.

The RTC already has shut down 373 S&Ls that ran into financial problems in the late 1980s. Another 125 insolvent thrifts are expected to be closed or reorganized by Sept. 30. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which guaranteed deposits, has been depleted by those failures.

"The administration will continue its efforts to prosecute the culprits where there was wrongdoing," said House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois. "We in the Congress have a responsibility to those depositors who have relied on a federal guarantee of their accounts."

"Every day we delay only results in throwing away additional money," said Rep. Chalmers Wylie of Ohio, senior Republican on the House Banking Committee.

"This is a curious bill," said Rep. Bernard Sanders, I-Vt. "On one side we have the president of the United States, the secretary of the Treasury and the leadership of the Democratic Party and the Republican Party. On the other side, I suspect, we have the vast majority of the people of the United States."

Sanders echoed the sentiments of several other freshman lawmakers who objected to voting another $30 billion at a time of record federal deficits when the legislation gave no clue how the money would be repaid.

Both houses had rejected amendments requiring the administration to recommend spending cuts or tax increases to finance the bailout.

US could mount another offensive with defense cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Another Desert Storm-type operation could be mounted five years from now even if the United States reduces combat forces by 25 percent as planned, but only with far more reserve units, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says.

"The answer is yes, we could do it," Cheney told an audience Thursday night at Georgetown University here.

But Cheney said such an operation would be different from Desert Storm and not as easy to put together.

And it likely would require the mobilization of far more reservists than were needed to expel Iraq from Kuwait, he said.

One of the differences, he said, is that there might not be spare divisions to call from Europe as there were this time.

That would be the case, he said, if arms control negotiations with the Soviet Union cause the withdrawal of thousands of U.S. troops from Europe.

But Cheney said the United States now believes a 25 percent troop cut over five years, which is called for in the Bush administration's most recent budget proposal, is justified by the changes that have occurred in Eastern Europe and by the problems besieging the Soviet Union.

He said U.S. military planners now believe that in the foreseeable future a war in Europe would be a regional conflict.

Until recently, he said, the assumption was that a European conflict could not be contained and would quickly become a global war.

And he said that if current trends continue, the Soviet Union should pose an even less formidable threat.

"If the Soviet economy continues to collapse, it's going to draw down the Soviet military with it" and reduce its threat to the West, Cheney said.

He said regional conflict inside the Soviet Union may also further erode its military strength.

"If our assumptions (about the Soviet Union) are correct, within five years we will cut our forces by 25 percent," he said and added:

"Even under these circumstances we could still do something like Desert Storm."

But in prepared remarks, which he did not deliver, Cheney said "the course towards democracy and demilitarization of the Soviet Union that we all welcomed now appears to be in doubt."

"Recent, worrisome events raise questions about the prospects for needed economic and political reform," Cheney said.

Cheney said that the Soviet government rejected the only economic program that had any real chance of reforming the Soviet economy.

Bush 'sickened' by LA beating

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush said he was sickened by the beating of a black motorist by Los Angeles police officers whose chief the president previously had hailed as an "all-American hero."

Bush continued to defend Chief Daryl Gates, a longtime political supporter the president has often cited as an exemplary crime fighter. But he said it would be up to Los Angeles officials to determine the chief's future.

The president and FBI Director William S. Sessions on Thursday denounced police brutality, vowing to pursue evidence that federal prosecutors could use to convict officers nationwide who use excessive and brutal force.

"Law enforcement officers cannot place themselves above the law that they are sworn to defend," the president said.

Bush also spoke forcefully about the Los Angeles beating incident, which has produced a growing chorus of demands for Gates' resignation. The March 3 beating of motorist Rodney King had been recorded on videotape by an onlooker.

"It was sickening to see the beating that was rendered," Bush said. "There's no way in my view to explain that away. It's outrageous."

But Bush declined to call for the ouster of Gates, who has been accused by critics of fostering an atmosphere that was tolerant of brutality.

Gates, a civil servant who cannot be removed without cause, "is entitled to a credible hearing," Bush said. "Nobody is going to prejudice anybody here."

The president was asked if he thought Gates was responsible for the conduct of the officers who beat King. He said that was "a matter, the way I see it, for the local police department."

Bush praised Gates for his efforts to close down crack houses, saying "in many ways he's been an

"Law enforcement officers cannot place themselves above the law that they are sworn to defend."

--President Bush
exemplary police chief."

But his praise was far less effusive than on March 5, when the president singled out Gates as one of "the all-American heroes" attending a meeting of law enforcement officials.

In a speech to the Justice Department's "crime summit," Bush recalled how he had stood shoulder-to-shoulder with Gates in a poor neighborhood where officers had cleared out crack dealers.

That same day, national television networks began broadcasting a tape of the beating.

Four Los Angeles police officers have been indicted on state charges of assault with a deadly weapon for the beating, in which King was repeatedly hit with clubs and kicked.

Officials push pollution policy

AUSTIN (AP) - Two Texas officials say the state should adopt auto pollution standards more stringent than federal law to clean up the air and boost the economy.

"I do not accept the position that the mobility we desire from the automobile requires us to resign ourselves to the inevitable consequence of polluted air," said Sen. Rodney Ellis, D-Houston.

Ellis said auto exhaust is a primary cause of urban smog and toxic air pollution.

To combat it, he said, Texas should adopt California's stringent tailpipe emissions rules, which are stronger than new standards federal law will require in other states.

"With the quality of our air as poor as it is, it is unconscionable to sell cars that don't employ readily available, cost-effective means to reduce the emission of dangerous pollutants," he said Thursday.

Ellis has introduced a bill that would direct the Texas Air Control Board to exercise the state's option under the federal Clean Air Act to adopt California's auto emissions standards.

Land Commission Garry Mauro endorsed the legislation, saying cleaner-running cars would cost only about $150 more.

Mauro said the tougher rules also could increase sales of vehicles powered by clean-burning natural gas, which would be a boost for the state's energy industry.

"The more natural gas we sell, the more jobs we create in Texas, the more money we put in the pockets of Texas workers and the more revenue we generate for Texas state and local government," he said.

Steve Spaw, the board's executive director, said excessive levels of ozone is one of Texas' most serious air problems, and auto exhaust is a major contributor to ozone pollution.

"The burden of achieving clean air standards must be shared by everyone," he said.

New York and Massachusetts already have adopted the California rules, Ellis said. Should Texas join them, automakers would be better off producing only the cleaner cars, he said.

"What we want to do is inspire the auto industry to utilize technology that is presently available to produce cleaner, better cars," he said.

Under the federal air pollution law, states failing to develop comprehensive pollution-reduction standards would be subjected to sharp sanctions from the federal government.

That could include a "virtual moratorium on industrial growth" and loss of highway dollars, Ellis said. Sanctions could cost Texas some $900 million a year and damage its business environment, he said.

High winds kill two

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A light pole's collapse that killed two men at the Fort Worth Water Gardens frightened other visitors at the downtown park, and police say high winds were a factor in the deaths.

The dead were identified as Larry Watkins, 43, of Greensboro, N.C., and 44-year-old Michael Barnett, 44, from West Columbia, S.C. Autopsies for the men, both Internal Revenue Service employees, were scheduled today, the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office said.

Watkins was pronounced dead at the scene Thursday with head injuries, while Barnett sustained internal injuries and died after arrival at Harris Methodist Hospital, said Ed Bodiford, a medical investigator.

Two other people were injured when the 80-foot light pole fractured at the base and toppled onto them. The water gardens and adjacent streets remained closed while authorities decided whether to remove five other light poles.

"When the pole fell, there were three men sitting on the wall," said Kevin Mikesell, a witness. "As the pole fell over, there was a lady standing over there talking to them. She must have seen it coming because she jumped out of the way."

The 54-year-old California woman was slightly injured but refused treatment, said Fort Worth Police Lt. Alvin Allcon. He said Glenn Britt, 53, of Jackson, Miss., was in good condition at the hospital with injuries sustained in the accident.

"It sounded like a garbage truck had fallen off a cliff and rolled," said Deane Watson, another witness. "It was just a real loud, hollow sound. And people were running everywhere."

Mary McClendon of Wichita Falls had just been in the gardens with her two nieces when the light standard toppled from its position in the middle of the park just before 5:30 p.m., falling to the northeast along a sidewalk.

"No, no way," she said when asked whether she thought such a mishap could occur. "And they need to get every light out here down, forever."

Emergency crews fearful of gusty winds in Fort Worth, which remained under a severe thunderstorm watch early today, began lowering parts of the other standards to reduce weight, said Allcon.

"The winds are going to be a contributing factor" in the collapse, he said. "I don't know that it is the causal factor. "The city has contacted a crane company and they have had some folks out there. They are looking to see what is required to take down the remaining standards."

Fire department spokesman Butch Hall said the victims, who were staying at a Hyatt Regency hotel several blocks away, had attended an IRS convention that ended Wednesday.

Police dispatchers, shortly before the collapse, had received reports of gunfire in the area. But Allcon said the noise probably was the sound of electrical lines snapping inside the pole.

Part of the metal pole fell into water, which comes from some of the fountains at the park.

"There was an electrical danger," said Allcon. "In fact, we still have live wires there."

He said roadblocks were set up at the four streets surrounding the gardens, which would remain closed at least through tonight.

The 4.3-acre, multi-level park, which contains concrete-and-stone waterfalls and benches shaded by trees, is a popular landmark.

It was not known how many people were in the 16-year-old park when the collapse occurred, Allcon said.

Berlanga appeal denied

AUSTIN (AP) - A powerful South Texas lawmaker says he will surrender records to a grand jury investigating ties between legislators and lobbyists following a Texas Court of Criminal Appeals order.

"As I have said throughout, I respect the judicial process and I am a law abiding citizen," said state Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, after the court ruled.

Berlanga had contended the special Travis County grand jury, investigating ties between legislators and lobbyists, had no right to order him to produce what he said are personal records.

He was jailed for about six hours Tuesday for refusing to pay a $500 fine after State District Judge Bob Perkins found him in contempt of court.

Perkins' ruling stemmed from Berlanga's refusal to turn over subpoenaed business documents for Berlanga Business Consultants, Federal Civil Process Inc. and Title USA to the grand jury.

Violence bill okayed by Senate

AUSTIN (AP) - The Senate approved two bills aimed at family violence, one of which would allow authorities to hold a person for up to 24 hours as a "cooling off" period following an act of family violence.

"What's happening now, you get a call and go out there and some big guy's using his wife for a punching bag," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

"They take him down to the station, she goes along with them to file charges. While she's giving the statement, he's already posted his $50 bond and he's home waiting on her when she gets back," Parker said.

The second bill, by Sen. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, would authorize expert testimony about past family violence at a trial of a person accused of manslaughter or murder.

Currently, testimony about "battered wife syndrome" is not admitted in some cases, according to a written bill analysis.

In other action Thursday, the Senate approved and sent to the House bills that would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the state health commissioner be a physician.

- Extend the life of Texas National Research Laboratory Commission through the year 2003.

- Authorize the State Preservation Board to hire an executive director.

- Eliminate the requirement that places where DWI blood samples are taken be inspected on a periodic basis.

- Authorize cities to regulate alarm systems.

The Senate also adopted a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow a person who has a deed on file, and has claimed the land and paid all taxes for 50 continuous years, to receive a patent from the state granting clear ownership of the property.

Mammogram projects increase awareness

The American Cancer Society's Texas Breast Screening Projects dramatically increased awareness of breast cancer and use of mammography to detect early breast cancers, Society officials said.

The projects, launched in February and March 1987 and repeated in 1988, offered Texas women low-cost, low-dose mammograms. An extensive media campaign to increase awareness of breast cancer risks, treatment and detection methods was a key part of the projects.

"Our goals were to raise awareness of early breast cancer detection methods—especially mammography—and to make mammography more available to Texas women by reducing cost," said George N. Peters, M.D., Dallas, chairman of the American Cancer Society volunteer task force which coordinated the screening projects.

"Of course, the American Cancer Society will continue to emphasize the importance of all early detection methods, including mammography. We know early detection of breast cancer is the key to successful treatment."

During the two-year intensive mammography promotion, hundreds of screening centers and hospitals across the state joined with the American Cancer Society and local television and other media to offer $50 mammograms. The cost of mammography x-rays at the time ranged from $90 to $250.

According to the Texas Poll, the number of Texas women who reported hearing "a lot" about breast cancer rose from 59 percent in early 1987, before the first project, to 80 percent in 1988 following the second screening project.

A recent survey from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) showed that 29 percent of women in the United States have had a mammography examination.

In Texas, the number of women reporting having had a mammogram increased dramatically during the two years of the American Cancer Society Texas Breast Screening Projects. In early 1987, according to the Texas Poll, 30 percent of Texas women 40 or older reported having had a mammogram in the previous year. Following the 1988 Project, 43 percent of women over 40 reported having had the examination.

"This is a major change, and we are proud to have had a part in making mammography more widely utilized," Peters said. "The American Cancer Society will be monitoring further usage to make sure that this positive trend continues," he said.

"These figures represent an impressive response to our efforts," said Lillian Taubert, R.N., San Antonio, chairman of the Society's Public Education component of the breast screening project.

"Our own reports indicate more than 104,000 Texas women took advantage of our projects and went for a mammogram as a direct result of our campaigns. Combined with the increased awareness reported by the Texas Poll, we feel our breast screening projects were a real victory for women in Texas," she said.

Initial follow-up reports from participating screening centers indicate about 600 cancers were detected as a result of the two screening projects, Peters said.

"The American Cancer Society is funding an $80,000 follow-up study to examine attitude changes and behavior changes resulting from the projects," Peters said. The follow-up will be based on questionnaires distributed to women at participating screening centers.

Victor Vogel, M.D., M.H.S., an assistant professor of medicine and epidemiology at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center, is the principal investigator for the follow-up study.

"We will have a very large sample of women for the study," Vogel said. "We feel the information we uncover will make a significant contribution to breast cancer research," he said.

The Texas Breast Screening Projects triggered more response than any similar American Cancer Society projects in the country. During the first year, more than 100,000 women phoned American Cancer Society volunteer phone banks requesting more information on the project. Almost as many phoned in the second year.

"We screened more than 61,000 women the first year and almost 43,000 the second," Peters said, adding that second year results were still incomplete.

"Many facilities in Texas now offer $50 or $60 mammography screening year-round," he said. "And now mammography screening coverage is required under group medical insurance plans subject to state regulation."

The insurance coverage was mandated during the last legislative session, under the sponsorship of Rep. Patricia Hill of Dallas. The American Cancer Society and the Susan G. Komen Foundation were among the organizations that supported the legislation.

"We still have a long way to go in the management of breast cancer," Peter said. "But mammography offers a safe and effective method of detecting this disease at a very early stage," he said.

For more information about mammography or early breast cancer detection, call your local American Cancer Society office or 1-800-ACS-2345.

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — "Gonzo" journalist Hunter S. Thompson was granted a special permit to sip his customary Chivas Regal scotch while speaking to a college audience.

The satirical writer whose books include "Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas" includes a provision in his speaking contracts demanding the right to drink at the podium.

Fort Lewis College officials preparing for his April 4 speaking date worried about the propriety of drinking on stage but eventually gave in.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For years I have admired your even-handed approach to problems. Now it is my turn to ask for help.

For the past four years it has been rare for my sister, "Debbie," and me to carry on a civil conversation. The trouble began during my freshman year of high school. My sister was a senior.

Debbie and I have yet to enjoy a holiday together with the family. When the two of us are in the same room or even the same house there are fireworks. It has gotten so bad that our parents are unable to control our fighting which has resulted in cuts, scratches, bruises, torn blouses and dresses, and worst of all, wounded pride and hurt feelings.

Whenever Debbie returns home—she recently moved into her own apartment—the tension is so thick you couldn't cut it with a chain saw. I have a very open relationship with my parents which Debbie has never had. They have tried to sit with the two of us and talk out our differences, but these sessions always result in more anger and tears and another unresolved argument.

We have fought over her taking my possessions without permission, her refusal to act responsibly toward the family and our grandparents, and the way she insults my friends, which is a real embarrassment.

What can I do to resolve this problem that is causing so much pain and stress in my life? -- Had Enough in New Haven

DEAR NEW HAVEN: Since you're a longtime reader, I'm sure you've seen this suggestion before: Try joint counseling.

If Debbie refuses to go, go alone. It may well be that you cannot fix this flawed relationship by yourself, in which case, I recommend that for the time being, you stay away from her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I became pregnant with my first child, my husband and I were thrilled, and we welcomed any brochures or magazines that came to our home. It seems that once you sign up with an obstetrician you get put on a list that is distributed to diaper services, photographers, baby food companies and so on. Unfortunately, I miscarried and we lost our son.

A photographer called several weeks ago to say it was time for my baby's two-month photo and ask what day would be best to come in. I told the woman that I did not have a child and thanked her for calling. She argued with me and said she KNEW I had a child and it was time for his two-month photo. I became so upset that I just hung up the phone.

I became pregnant again and am sad to say that I lost that baby also. I do not look forward to receiving these magazines, phone calls, etc.

Isn't there some way that the doctor's office could pass on the information to these companies that the pregnancy was unsuccessful? Dealing with the loss is hard enough. A little compassion would make things easier on those of us who are going through a difficult time. Thank You. -- Riverside, Calif.

DEAR RIVERSIDE: It seems to me that the same "grapevine" that provides these companies with the names of expectant mothers could notify them of the tragedies. That's the least that can be done.

Social Security disability standard changed

A new rule applies the same standard of disability to disabled widows and widowers that already applies to people who receive disability benefits based on their own work under Social Security.

As of January 1, 1991, disabled widows and widowers between ages 50 and 60 can qualify for benefits on their deceased spouse's work if their earnings are less than the "substantial earnings" level established by regulation—currently, earnings of $500 a month. Also, vocational factors such as age, education, and work experience will be considered in evaluating their ability to work.

Under prior law, disability for widows and widowers was evaluated solely in terms of medical findings. The effect of such vocational factors as age, education, and experience on the person's ability to work were not considered as they were with disabled workers.

Under certain circumstances, widows or widowers already receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability benefits will be deemed disabled under the new standard for Social Security disabled widow's benefits. The months they were receiving SSI will count toward the 5-month waiting period required for Social Security benefits. The months of disability under SSI may also count toward the 24-month waiting period required for Medicare. If they have not been disabled long enough to receive Medicare, in most States their Medicaid coverage may continue until they can qualify for Medicare.

The change was included in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 enacted in November 1990.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wallace, hospitalized after a fainting spell last week, is ready to resume work after receiving a heart pacemaker, CBS says.

The 72-year-old "60 Minutes" correspondent checked into Lenox Hill Hospital after fainting aboard a New York-bound jetliner in Los Angeles.

He received the implant on Saturday and went home Monday, CBS spokesman Roy Brunett said, adding that Wallace was expected to return to work today.

Nava's gem, Herd bats Rebels still alive and running destroy Sanford-Fritch

John Nava pitched a five-inning one-hitter to help Hereford's Maroon junior varsity baseball team to a 16-0 pasting of Sanford-Fritch Thursday in Fritch.

The 10-run rule was enforced after the fifth inning, giving the Maroon team their fifth win against no losses and one tie.

The Whitefaces held a 1-0 edge after one inning but exploded for eight runs in the second for a 9-0 command. They tacked on four runs in the third and three more in the fifth.

Jerry Rincon had four RBIs on a double and a two-run homer.

Coach Bill Bridge said their was no doubt about the home run.

"The minute the bat hit the ball, it was out," Bridge said. "It would have been out of this park (Whiteface Field)."

Nava and Chris Lopez each got two hits and Lopez drove in a couple of runs.

Bridge said that every player except one got a hit. That's every player--not just every player in the starting lineup.

The team's next games will be in the Plainview JV tournament March 28 and 29.

Dalhart game rescheduled

The varsity baseball team's game against Dalhart which was rained out last Saturday and rescheduled for Monday has been rescheduled again, Coach T.R. Sartor said.

The game will be played March 29 at 1:30 p.m. in Dalhart, Sartor said.

Lady Cardinals upset Arkansas

AUSTIN (AP) - The Lamar Lady Cardinals may finally have blown their cover as an underdog.

The 10th seeded American South Conference champions stunned the third-seeded and No. 9 ranked Arkansas Lady Razorbacks 91-75 Thursday night to setup a showdown with the top-seeded Virginia Cavaliers for the NCAA Women's Midwest regional title.

Second-ranked Virginia followed Heather Burge's 19 points to a 76-61 victory over the Oklahoma State Cowgirls.

Lamar, 29-3, has never played in the NCAA tournament before and the Cavaliers, 29-2, reached the Final Four last year. They meet at 8 p.m. on Saturday in the Frank Erwin Center for the right to advance to New Orleans.

Brenda Hatchett, a five-foot sophomore from Memphis, Tenn., hit six 3-point shots and scored 23 points as the Cardinals continued their giant killer role. Lamar downed Texas and Louisiana State to get into the regional.

The Cardinals are the lowest seeded team to ever make a regional final.

"We could have hurt our image as an underdog," said Lamar coach Al Barbre. "We might have finally convinced most folks we're good. Virginia is a monster team and I suspect we'll still carry that underdog

Santa Clara in women's NIT semis

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Amy Vanos scored 17 points as Santa Clara upset top-seeded Notre Dame to join Kansas, Indiana and Houston in the semifinals of the Women's National Invitational Tournament.

Santa Clara jumped to a 39-19 halftime lead and Notre Dame never got closer than 12 points in the second half as Santa Clara took an 81-65 victory.

In other action Thursday night, Kansas defeated Louisville, 71-66, Indiana whipped Alabama-Birmingham, 110-71, and Houston defeated Northern Illinois, 83-71.

In the semifinals tonight, Santa Clara will play Kansas and Indiana faces Houston.

In the consolation round of the double elimination tournament, Alabama-Birmingham faces Northern Illinois and Notre Dame takes on Louisville.

LaShawn Johnson had 21 points to lead Houston to an 83-71 victory over Northern Illinois.

The Lady Cougars jumped to a 20-6 lead just more than six minutes into the game on a layup by Cynthia Jackson, then led 41-32 at intermission.

Daria Simpson added 17 points and six rebounds for Houston, now 20-10.

It's been two years since UNLV's last loss in the NCAA tournament. The Runnin' Rebels haven't forgotten.

UNLV took another step toward its second straight national championship Thursday night by overcoming Utah 83-66 in the semifinals of the West Regional.

Now, they hope, comes payback time.

Seton Hall gets the next chance to end the Runnin' Rebels perfect season. The Pirates got 28 points from Terry Dehere to beat Arizona 81-77 in the first semifinal game at the Kingdome in Seattle, where they lost the national championship game to Michigan two years ago after

Chaney not satisfied with Rockets' streak

By JOHN KREISER
 AP Sports Writer

Ten straight wins aren't enough to satisfy Houston Rockets coach Don Chaney.

It's not that Chaney wasn't happy with the latest win, a 98-87 victory over the Sacramento Kings on Thursday night. It's just that he doesn't want his team to get too pleased with itself.

"It's great to keep the streak going," Chaney said after the Rockets broke a team record for consecutive victories, set in 1977. "I tried to get our guys to forget the hoopla of the streak. The law of averages is going to catch up with somebody."

"I still feel we're not sharp. Maybe we're in a comfort zone. In terms of 48 minutes, we need to be sharper and show some re-dedication," Chaney said.

Kenny Smith scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter and Otis Thorpe added 11 fourth-quarter points for Houston, which has won 22 of its last 26 games after going 20-20 in their first 40.

The victory enabled the Rockets to clinch their seventh straight playoff berth and their 42-24 record is their best-ever after 66 games.

Magic 105, Spurs 102
 Jeff Turner's layup put Orlando ahead for good and Jerry Reynolds added two free throws and blocked Sean Elliott's 3-point shot in the final 10 seconds to help the Magic hold off San Antonio.

The win stopped a four-game losing streak for Orlando, while the loss was the third in four games for the Spurs, who've lost nine of their last 12 road games.

humiliating UNLV 84-61 in the West final.

"I know we'll be fired up," said UNLV point guard Greg Anthony, one of several Rebels who were on the team that lost to Seton Hall. "We suffered our most embarrassing loss when we played them. I was praying we would get the chance to meet them again. It will be the biggest game of my career."

One player who wasn't there was forward Larry Johnson. He had 15 of his 23 points in the second half as the Runnin' Rebels pulled away from Utah.

Johnson was in junior college when the Rebels and Pirates last met. "This time I think I can make the difference," the 6-foot-7 power

Jazz 100, Hornets 94

Karl Malone scored 31 points and John Stockton had 16 assists as Utah beat visiting Charlotte to move 1 1/2 games ahead of San Antonio in the Midwest Division.

Charlotte led 79-77 early in the fourth quarter before the Jazz went ahead to stay with a 12-6 run. Stockton, who finished with 20 points, had two baskets and Mike Brown had four of his six points during the pivotal spurt.

Jeff Malone scored 16 points for Utah and Thurl Bailey scored 15. Johnny Newman scored 21 points for Charlotte, including 13 in the first quarter.

Warriors 136, Nuggets 118
 The Warriors spotted Denver, the NBA's worst team, an early 15-point lead, then rallied behind 95 points from their big three - Mitch Richmond, Chris Mullin and Tim Hardaway - to beat the visiting Nuggets.

Richmond had 30 points, Mullin had 29 and Hardaway scored 26 as Golden State won for the sixth time in eight games.

Denver's 18-49 record is the NBA's worst.

forward said. "It doesn't help us that we beat them two years ago," Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo said. "They'll want to get back at us more."

In Thursday's other games, Arkansas and Kansas advanced to the Southeast final in Charlotte, N.C., with easy victories. Arkansas ripped Alabama 93-70 and Kansas surprised Indiana 83-65.

WEST UNLV 83, Utah 66
 UNLV (33-0) muscled its way past Utah after its bombs-away approach didn't work.

The Runnin' Rebels relied mostly on their outside shooting in the first half, hitting half of their 10 3-pointers, but led just 41-35 at halftime. In the second half, they switched to their "amoeba" zone defense and started relying more on their inside game, led by Johnson, to put away the Utes (30-4) for their 44th straight victory.

"I just came out the second half and played hard," Johnson said. "I don't want the season to end now." Seton Hall 81, Arizona 77

Dehere, a no-show for the Pirates during their victory in the Big East tournament, continued to shine in the NCAA tournament as Seton Hall overcame a height disadvantage to beat Arizona.

Seton Hall used a collapsing, double-teaming defense to overcome Arizona's "Tucson Skyline" of 6-11 Brian Williams, 6-11 Sean Rooks and 7-foot reserve Ed Stokes.

Williams scored 21 points, but Rooks got only 12 and Stokes was held to two. Chris Mills had 20 points for the second-seeded Wildcats (28-7).

SOUTHEAST Arkansas 93, Alabama 70

Alabama still can't get past the round of 16. The Crimson Tide (23-10) tried to run with the Razorbacks, but ran out of gas early in the second half.

Alabama trailed 49-47 early in the second half, but Arkansas went on a 7-1 run in 48 seconds to start pulling away, then used a 9-0 blitz for a 66-52 lead with 11:09 remaining and the Tide was out.

Arkansas' Lee Mayberry, 0-for-4 from the field in the first half, made six of eight shots in the second half and finished with 16 points. Todd Day had 31 to lead the Razorbacks (34-3).

Kansas 83, Indiana 65

Kansas never let Indiana into the game. The third-seeded Jayhawks opened a 20-point lead within the first 7 1/2 minutes and handed the Hoosiers their worst loss of the season and worst ever in the NCAA tournament.

The Jayhawks had six 3-point field goals when the Hoosiers had that many points. Their first 20-point lead came at 26-6 with 12:34 to play in the first half. Kansas, which had 28 rebounds in the first half, led 49-27 at halftime and the closest Indiana got in the second half was 74-61 with 2:18 to play.

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

The spring of 1991 starts a lifetime of fishing for another generation of wide-eyed, eager kids as they start enjoying the great outdoors. It is a shame to see well-intentioned adults buying all those cheap fishing reels for the kids. The cheap reels do not last even one trip. The annoyed and frustrated adult ends up trying to fix it, while the kid wisely decides that fishing is not much fun.

Kids Tip of the Year: If you are buying a reel for a kid or that favorite grandkid, for less than $10 you can buy a Zebco 33. I still own my first 33 and my cost per year is down to about 25 cents! Each of my three daughters learned on my reel before I gave her her own 33. This reel does not backlash, and has enough guts to last a lifetime. If you want to save some money on a youngster's first fishing gear, then buy a cheap fishing pole.

Tip of the Year: Change that old line on your fishing reels. Many fish are lost (or never even noticed) because kinky line just will not give a fisherman the sensitivity needed to know when to set the hook.

While most quality name brand lines will do the job, I personally recommend using Berkeley or DuPont lines because they give something back to the fishing industry. Why save a dime on a reel of line when it is the only thing between you and that trophy fish?

If you want to build a little fishing enthusiasm in a kid, turn off the television, sit down and replace the old line on your fishing poles. Just turning off the television will warn your birdog and all the intelligent members of your family that something important is happening.

Don't ask for help but be ready for eager volunteers. The talk will naturally be about fishing and I have found that reliving fishing trips with my dad is a great hit with his grandkids. While we replace the 'worn out' line, we make plans for our fishing trips. This year there will be three generations of my family going fishing together.

There will be a Big Bass tournament on Baylor Lake March 30. It's limited to the first 100 anglers, and a full field will pay $2,500 for the biggest bass. The entry fee is $50, but on March 25, the entry fee goes up to $60, so get your money to Southwest Outdoors, 3214 Parker, Amarillo, Texas 79109.

Jimmy Patterson won the last tournament with a 9.72-pound bass. The moon will be full and the really big bass will be waiting for you. Good luck and take a kid fishing.

Nicklaus, Watson in USF&G hunt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - There's a long way to go, a lot of golf to be played.

But, at least for this one day, it was turn-back-the-clock time, a full exercise in nostalgia.

There, glowing from the leaderboard with almost neon intensity, were the names of Tom Watson, tied for the lead after one round of the USF&G Classic, and Jack Nicklaus, one shot back.

There's no assurance they'll remain there, not with 54 holes to go. Watson, 41, is still fighting a case of the putting yips, Nicklaus, 51, has been in the title hunt in a regular-tour event only once in five years. The two Hall of Fame members, who hooked up in some memorable major tournament confrontations as far back as the late 1970's, couldn't help but look ahead to a possible renewal of their old rivalry later this week.

"I just hope," Nicklaus joked, "Tom plays well enough to get there."

Despite hitting into the water on the front side, Watson calmed his nerves enough to shoot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday, and Nicklaus had a 68 on the English Turn Golf and Country Club course he designed and built.

"The old folks did alright, didn't they?" Watson said.

But he stopped well short of claiming outright victory over the putting problems that crept into his game and his nerves late last season.

"There's a lot of fear in the short putts," said Watson, a five-time British Open champion who has won only once since 1984.

"I've been playing pretty well all year, hitting a lot of good shots," he said. "It's just a matter of making a few short putts."

Watson, once known as one of the game's greatest putters, hasn't been making them for some time.

"It started last year," he said. "It's a psychological barrier. You get over a short putt and you just freeze. It's the yips."

He made enough of them - five of those tough little testers between 4-6 feet - to gain a place in a five-way tie for the top spot. He shared the position with Billy Mayfair, Sam Randolph, Phil Blackmar and Dillard Pruitt.

Nicklaus, whose last regular-tour victory came in his sixth Masters victory in 1986, was tied at 68 with Ronnie Black, Kenny Knox, Bob Lohr, Barry Jaecel and Karl Kimball.

Yankees consider taking Bo off wire

By The Associated Press

Where will Bo go? The first move is up to the New York Yankees and they have to decide this afternoon.

The Yankees, first on the waiver list since they were worst in the American league, have until 2 p.m. to enter a claim on the hobbled outfielder.

"We haven't put in a claim yet," Yankees general manager Gene Michael said Thursday at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "We haven't done anything yet. We're still discussing it. We have a lot more things to talk about. We're going to know more tomorrow."

Jackson's agent, Richard Woods, thinks his client would be just perfect in the Bronx, just a limo ride away from Madison Avenue.

"Bo and the Yankees could be a match made in heaven," Woods said. "New York is New York, the Yankees are the Yankees and Bo is Bo. The Yankees are the greatest franchise in history and Bo could breathe new life into a great organization."

Kansas City put Jackson on waivers Tuesday after its doctors said he has destruction of cartilage in his hip joint, a condition known as chondrolysis. Woods criticized doctors who have said Jackson won't play again.

"Any doctor who comments on a patient who he has not examined and whose records he has not seen is way off base and is violating the most minimum medical standards," Woods said. "A doctor who has not diagnosed Bo certainly cannot comment on the prognosis."

On the field ...

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 0
At St. Petersburg, Fla., Jose DeLeon became the first St. Louis pitcher to go six innings, allowing three hits while striking out seven. Non-roster left-handers Mike Milchin and Rheel Cormier pitched the last two innings as the Cardinals improved to 10-3.

Braves 4, Expos 3

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Dave Justice drove in two runs with a pair of doubles and scored the winning run on a ninth-inning sacrifice fly by Andres Thomas.

Royals 7, Tigers 6

At Lakeland, Fla., George Brett hit a two-run homer, his third home run of the exhibition season. Cecil Fielder hit a solo homer, his second, for the Tigers.

Mets 5, Astros 3

At Kissimmee, Fla., Keith Miller's three-run double keyed a game-winning rally in the ninth inning and the Mets pulled off five double plays. Every run scored in the game was unearned.

Phillies 12, Yankees 5

At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Dave LaPoint, released by the Yankees over the winter, pitched four scoreless innings against his former teammates. LaPoint, who will probably stick with the Phillies, gave up two hits, walked three and struck out four.

White Sox 5, Reds 3

At Sarasota, Fla., Cory Snyder homered and drove in three runs. Melido Perez started for the White Sox and pitched five innings, allowing one run and three hits. Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for the save.

Orioles 11, Blue Jays 9

At Dunedin, Fla., Toronto reliever Willie Fraser gave up six hits and seven runs. Tim Lulett and David Segui each drove in three runs for the Orioles. Baltimore starter Ben McDonald was also hit hard, giving up five hits and four runs in four innings.

Cubs 14, Brewers 5

At Mesa, Ariz., Damon Berryhill, who missed most of last season with a shoulder injury, went 4-for-5 with four runs scored and two RBIs.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE PROPHETS AND POLITICS!

DURING THE YEARS OF THE DIVIDED KINGDOMS, JUDAH AND ISRAEL, THEIR DAYS OF GLORY OVER, WERE HEMMED IN BY ENEMY STATES ON ALL SIDES! THE KINGS, EACH IN HIS TURN, APPEALED TO PROPHETS FOR HELP. BEING A PROPHET IN THOSE DAYS ENTAILED MORE THAN JUST A PASSING KNOWLEDGE OF CURRENT POLITICS! WAS SYRIA AT ODDS WITH EGYPT? DID BABYLON HAVE ITS EYE ON ASSYRIAN TERRITORY? WERE THE MEDES LIKELY TO FORM ALLIANCE WITH MOAB? THESE QUESTIONS HAD TO BE WEIGHED CAREFULLY, FOR JUDAH AND ISRAEL WERE SQUEEZED BETWEEN POWERFUL STATES....

IN THE BOOKS OF THE PROPHETS, WE CAN FIND, AMONGST ADMONITIONS TO THE PEOPLE TO KEEP GOD'S WAYS, MANY BITS OF ADVICE AGAINST ALLIANCES WITH COUNTRIES THAT MIGHT BRING THE WRATH OF ANOTHER POWERFUL STATE SHATTERING DOWN UPON THEIR LUCKLESS HEADS! ISAIAH, JEREMIAH, AMOS, NATHAN, ETC., ALL HAD THEIR SAY IN HOW BEST TO AVOID DESTRUCTION BY SOME ALL-POWERFUL NEIGHBOR—UNFORTUNATELY, KINGS BEING WHAT THEY WERE, THIS ADVICE WAS RARELY TAKEN!

NEXT WEEK: WHEN FAMINE CAME!

Hints from Heloise

Q. Would you tell me exactly what a care label is? I'm having to do my own laundry, and boy, I'm confused. Thanks. — Renee Sandoval, El Paso, Texas

A. Yup, it can be confusing, so here's the scoop according to the International Fabricare Institute.

A care label is a tag attached to most clothing and it gives the care instructions. The label should be easy to find, attached so that it will not become separated and it must remain legible during the useful lifetime of the garment.

When a garment has two or more parts that are sold as a unit, only one care label is required. If the garments are sold as separates, or if they require different care procedures, then each part of the article must have its own label.

Written instructions must appear on all garments sold in the United States, but symbols may be there also. — Heloise

TAX TIP

Dear Readers: Tax time is almost here. When preparing your tax forms to send to the Internal Revenue Service, don't send original tax receipts! Only send copies.

In case of a problem, you will need the original records, so keep these important documents in a safe place. — Heloise

CAR KEYS

Dear Heloise: When my mother kept leaving her keys in the car, she finally tied them to her purse handle with a long leather boot lace. When she picked up her purse (women rarely leave a purse in the car), it would "jerk" her arm to remind her to take the keys.

In addition, she can just pull at the leather thong to retrieve her keys from the purse. — Jan Lorette, McGaheysville, Va.

CAR-INSURANCE SAVER

Dear Readers: Did you know that you may be able to save up to 15 percent on your auto insurance if you install anti-theft devices?

Check with your agent or company to find out what car alarm or steering-wheel lock models are approved and the amount of the discount given. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

AMISH FRIENDSHIP BREAD

Q. I have been trying to find someone who knows how to make the starter for Amish friendship bread. So far I've had no luck at all. I would appreciate it very much if you could help me. — Ida Sterett, Lake Villa, Ill.

A. I'm afraid I'll have to ask my readers to help us with this one because I don't have a recipe in my files for the starter bread. If you have the recipe and want to send it, write to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. — Heloise

SPICY SALT

Dear Heloise: I just wanted to tell you how much I enjoy your recipe for a spicy salt substitute. It's fantastic on chicken and other meats when we grill! — Dana R., Seattle, Wash.

For those who missed it the first time, combine 2 teaspoons garlic powder, 1 teaspoon basil, 1 teaspoon oregano and 1 teaspoon powdered lemon rind in a blender and mix well. Store in a sealed container with a few grains of rice to keep it from clumping together. — Heloise

For a free copy of my Hints from Heloise Newsletter, send a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, legal-sized envelope marked "Free Issue" to P.O. Box 836, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9910.

Emily Suggs, president, presided over the business meeting. Members recited the club collect and roll call was answered by members giving a news story or an interesting statement. Suggs reported that two members were in the hospital. Cards were sent to Opal Elliston and Aileen Montgomery.

The club will meet Tuesday, April 2, with Lydia Hopson as hostess and the program topic will be on ethnic groups.

Those present were Alberta Higgins, Marie Harris, Mary Williamson, Etoile Manning, Pet Ott, Lydia Hopson, Stagner, Suggs, Sadie Shaw and Donnie Owen.

Brace yourself

Here are the straight facts: If your teeth need straightening, more than your smile is at stake.

Dentists know a "malocclusion," the failure of the teeth in the upper and lower jaw to meet properly in a bite, can be harmful to your health. A malocclusion keeps your teeth from functioning normally when you chew your food. It also may affect the way you speak. In addition, it contributes to tooth decay and gum diseases, partly because irregularly positioned teeth are hard to clean.

Fortunately, most cases of malocclusion can be corrected with braces, as 12 million teenagers and adults have discovered. Sometimes, these corrective devices cause painful cuts and sores, but these are easily relieved with a trip to the orthodontist or other dentist.

NEW YORK (AP) - A handyman who worked for model and actress Lauren Hutton was charged with stealing an $8,000 pair of earrings and $1,000 in checks from her home. Emmitt Kellam, 45, was charged with grand larceny Wednesday, police said. He had done odd jobs at Hutton's Greenwich Village apartment since September.
