Have a "sunsational" lawn

A lawn does for the landscape what human skin does for the bodyprovides shape, color and texture. But just like skin, lawns can suffer and burn from too much sun.

How can you help your lawn beat the heat this summer? Start by planting grass seed specifically suited for sunny conditions. Then, mow and water wisely throughout the growing

The best grass to plant is a turftype tall fescue. Its improved heat, drought and water tolerance makes it the natural choice for many drier areas of the country. In addition, several new turf-type tall fescue varieties require minimal fertilizer and less water and have fewer disease SUPPER or insect problems.

Whether newly-seeded or wellestablished, every lawn needs water, especially if exposed to constant sun. That task can be tricky if you live in an area with imposed watering restrictions. Even so, there are several ways you an maximize watering efficiency. For example, water the lawn in early morning, between sunrise and ll a.m. when the sun's rays are not yet at full strength. This will reduce the likelihood of water begin lost to evaporation. Also, try using an oscillating or impulsetype sprinkler for maximum coverage and water conservation.

Through grass growth slows dramatically in excessive heat, it's till necessary to cut the lawn periodically to keep it neat and healthy. For best results, never cut more than one-third of the grass height or more than one inch of top growth at any one clipping.

And remember to keep the mower blades sharp. Dull blades damage tender grass plants, leaving ugly dead tips with eventually turn brown.

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have interviewed University of Tennessee assistant Larry Lacewell about the NFL team's vacant director of scouting position, but have not offered him the job, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says.

Jones denied a report Monday by a Memphis, Tenn., television station that Lacewell had been hired to replace Dick Mansberger, who are still a bit restricted because of a resigned after the recent draft.

We're looking at him as one of several possibilities," Jones told The Dallas Morning News from Laguna souvenirs of a crash during practice Niguel, Calif., where the NFL owners' meetings begin Tuesday.

Golfers' Association Tour events, Brooks reads recipe books instead of FORT WORTH (AP) - Mark novels. His first stop after a three-week road trip usually is the Brooks is discussing his dream house, the one he and his wife, Cynthia, will grocery store.

at hometown Colonial stop

"It's the only hobby he really has, so he goes at it pretty hard. When I know he's coming in, I make sure to empty out the 'fridge. Then, he'll go right out and fill it up," Cynthia

Brooks said. "I love it."
So does Mark Brooks, who figures to be the only player in the field for this week's Southwestern Bell Colonial with: a set of special-order, pearl handled, lifetime-warranty kitchen knives; an electric pepper mill (his favorite 1991 Christmas gift); a collection of videotapes featuring the greatest hits of Cajun chef Justin Wilson; and a "That'll be my contribution to the green-and-white apron emblazoned with the words "1991 GGO Champion."

> Brooks, 31, has something else, too: a burning desire to win his hometown stop on the PGA Tour.

> "I'd trade missing the next 10 cuts," Brooks said. "to win one Colonial."

To understand the significance of that statement, you must understand that Brooks - the No. 11 player on this year's money list with $321,076 - has missed a combined nine cuts the past two years. A player who values consistency above all else in a golfer, Brooks has emerged as one of the Tour's most frequent weekend warriors.

Beginning with last year's victory at the Greater Greensboro Open, when Brooks erased an eight-stroke deficit in the final round, the Richland High School and University of Texas product has logged 11 top-10 finishes in his last 32 PGA Tour tournaments. Six of those have come this season, a career-best total for Brooks and the fourth-largest collection by any player in 1992. Only Davis Love III, Mark O'Meara and Fred Couples have more.

Clearly, Brooks cooks on the course as well.

"He's got the total game," said Billy Andrade, who has competed against Brooks since both were junior players and was paired with him during the opening round of last month's Masters Tournament. That's more rare out here than you might realize. A lot of guys are a little lopsided ... They depend on their length (off the tee) or their short game or their putter to carry them. They tend to only play well on courses that suit them.

"Mark can handle the whole package. He's going to be out here a long, long time.'

Even the most ardent Brooks follower could not have made that statement in 1987, when Brooks was forced to make a third consecutive post-season trip to qualifying school because he did not earn enough money to maintain his card for the next season. Mentally, Brooks already had cleared his share of hurdles. His father, the Rev. W. Hal Brooks - the person Mark calls "the greatest influence in my life" - died a year earlier, just four months after Brooks' first child was born seven weeks premature and placed, temporarily, on a heart monitor.

But his game was not as steadfast as his resolve. Brooks entered the final round of the 108-hole qualifying tournament well back in the pack of 183 applicants vying for 54 cards. His mother, Paula Good, had quizzed him before the tournament about other careers. It looked like he might need one. And Broad no viable Plan B.

"I was concerned," said Mrs. Good, who remarried after Hal Brooks' death. 'He never would consider anything else. He just said, 'Mother, you've got to get it while you're hot.'

Fortunately, her son picked the most opportune afternoon of his life to register a hot round. Brooks closed with a 5-under, Enough front-runners faded to move him into the top 54.

Brooks would keep his card for 1988, which turned out to be the year he recorded the first leg of his "Greater Slam." His three PGA Tour triumphs have come at the Greater Hartford Open (1988), Greater Greensboro Open 1991) and Greater Milwaukee Open (1991), the only events on Tour with the word "Greater" in the official title.

"None of that would have happened without that round at Q-school," said Brooks who considers it the most significant 18 holes of his career. "If that doesn't happen, I've got big problems. I'd like to think things would have worked out fine, but ... That was my first stern test. That was a really trying year."

Enduring it has made Brooks' ensuing success that much sweeter. and really believe it. That gives you He has not been shy about sharing the confidence. If it doesn't, something's windfall, either. Brooks' annual charity golf tournament, named in honor of his father, has raised more than $150,000 in its first four years of existence. Brooks hopes this year's event, scheduled Oct. 26 at Colonial, will be the first to top $100,000.

Brooks also is on the verge of his initial plunge into golf-course architecture, joining with Burt Baine to form Brooks-Baine Golf, Inc. A formal announcement of their first project is scheduled Thursday.

Brooks has come a long way since his rookie year on Tour, 1984. Back then, Brooks found the fairway approximately 65 percent of the time. He is at 74 percent this season, which ranks among the top 30 players.

"Huge difference," Brooks said. "It may not sound like much, but over the course of 100 rounds, that's a lot more birdie chances."

Brooks' 372 birdies in 1991 ranked 17th among PGA Tour players. He is on a pace to surpass that this season. He points to lessons learned on the basketball court with helping him on the putting green. In particular, Brooks sees a correlation between free-throw shooting and

'The best free-throw shooters in the NBA bounce the ball the same number of times every time before they shoot. I always take the same number of practice strokes before I putt. Let's face it. Most tournaments are won on the 6-footer, just like most basketball games are won at the foul line. When the pressure's on, that's when routine is most important.

These days, Brooks has climbed all the way to No. 45 in the world rankings. He stands 24th among U.S. players. He was voted the top touring pro in Texas for the 1991 season by the Texas Golf Writers Association. A berth on the 1993 Ryder Cup team is not out of the question.

"I think I'm capable of playing in the top 10 on the money list, year-in and year-out," Brooks said. "I've finally proved to myself that I can play among the top 50 in the world

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -Randy Pfund's first head coaching job was not a dream come true.

Officers installed at year-end luncheon

New officers for the 1992-94 biennium of the Hereford Retired School Employees Association were installed recently during the year-end luncheon meeting held at the Senior Citizens Center.

President Betty Mercer installed the new officers whose terms will begin June 1. Margaret bell will serve as the new president; Bill McDowell ad Audrey Powell, vice presidents; Marie Stringer, secretary; and Billie McDowell, treasurer.

The following were appointed as Committee chairman: Bill Mc-Dowell, program; Audrey Powell, membership; Louise Witkowski, retirement planning; Mary Dzuik, community services; Sue Inmon, health care; Teddy Poindexter, legislative; Elizabeth DeKoster, bylaws; Carole McGilvary, public relations; and Rudy Mulkey, cheer and courtesy.

President Betty Mercer conducted the business meeting. Treasurer Doris Bryant announced that the organization has 70 members and five associate members. It was stressed by Beryl Burlesmith, membership chairman, that members need to recruit, retain, and rejoin. Larry Wartes reiterated that members do count with the legislature and all retired school personnel need to consider membership. He mentioned that when you retire the fight is not over. Only 22% of the available membership belong to Texas Retired Teachers Association. It is very important that we have the members to urge needed legislation, such as the returning of the state's contribution back to 8%

Gold Medal Awards of Distinction were presented to Louise Witkowski for TRTA membership promotion, Beryle for local membership enlistment, and Eloise McDougal was awarded the Volunteer Service Award. Leona Schilling received a certificate of appreciation for typing the newsletter. Mercer also an-nounced that the Hereford unit had received a special unit award.

Members were reminded of the retirement tea to be held for retiring school personnel on May 21.

The annual picnic will be held the second Monday in July.

Anyone wishing to join the organization may contact Margaret Bell or Audrey Powell.

Nouvelle Ami Study Club officers

Skin cancer subject of program

Deann Harris presented a program on skin cancer when members of Nouvelle Ami Study Club met May 14 at Deaf Smith County Library.

A gift exchange was held and during the business session new club officers were installed. Leah Lee will serve as president; Cookie Taylor, vice president; Charlotte Collier, secretary; and Kim Rogers reporter/historian.

Those present included Laurie Paetzold, Lee, Missy Wilcox, Emily Christie, Emily Knight, Rogers, Shawnay Sparkman, Tonya Setliff, Collier, Harris, Taylor and guests, Erika Carter and Camille Urbanczyk.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -Country singer Tracy Lawrence canceled shows over the weekend because of exhaustion and a cold, a publicist says.

Lawrence, 24, returns to the road on Wednesday with a performance in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., Jules Wortman said Monday.

The canceled shows were Saturday in Austin, Texas, and Sunday in Jackson, Miss.

Military Muster

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Scott A. Ankeney, son of David and Marsha Ankeney of 233 Hickory, is currently aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Duluth, homeported in San diego and is midway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian

Ankeney has participated in Edged Mallet, a routine amphibious readiness exercise. The exercise took place in the vicinity of Mobasa, Kenya and included air and surface amphibious assault landings designed to enhance the operational readiness of combined Navy and Marine Corps

The 1987 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Navy in July

Barringer will participate in various operations and training exercises while operating with the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga and its battlegroup. The training is designed to challenge the mission readiness of the squadron.

Barringer's squadron flies the E-2C "Hawkeye" aircraft. It is used for all-weather airborne early warning, surface surveillance coordination. strike and interceptor control, search and rescue guidance and communications relay. The Hawkeye aircraft is primarily used with aircraft carrier

NEW 'ORK (AP) - David Letterman, whose contract with NBC ends next year, is talking with other suitors, Weekly Variety says.

But sources familiar with Letterman's contract told The Associated Press the talk-show host is negotiating with NBC only.

Weekly Variety, quoting unidenti-fied sources, said that the "Late Night" host is considering leaving NBC when his contract expires in 1993, and that his agent, Creative Artists Agency, is in "ultra-secret talks" with Paramount and ABC.

ABC denied the report. Paramount and Creative Artists wouldn't NBC spokeswoman Betty Hudson said Letterman won't necessarily leave the network when his 10-year contract is up.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - "Murphy Brown" star Candice Bergen, who flunked out of the University of Pennsylvania in 1965, returned to pick up an honorary law degree.

The 46-year-old actress, in cap and gown, thrust her fists skyward after the hood signifying her degree was draped across her shoulders at commencement exercises Monday.

Bergen, whose TV character gave birth on Monday's season-ending episode, entered Penn in 1963. School officials "politely asked me to move on" after the sophomore year, she said. She had flunked basic painting

"I always did respect them for that. That was a very strong lesson,' she said. "But then they kept asking me for donations. I didn't give."

The Hot Dog Vendor

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried:

"Buy a hot dog, Mister?" And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him out. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse."

Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.

"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

DEAR MR. SMOKED OUT: You were sexually attracted to your wife for the first 27 years of your marriage and she was smoking then, wasn't she? More important, didn't you stop smoking when YOU wanted to and not when someone else asked you to?

I'm sure your urge to smoke was very strong when you were trying to quit. Why then judge how much willpower your wife will need to kick the habit? She's not you.

He avoided me at bedtime which made me angrier than ever. I retaliated by increasing my smoking until I was up to tow-and-ahalf packs a day, he stopped speaking to me. I continued to smoke.

> For reasons that are still unclear to me, he decided on his own to stop nagging and criticizing. After six months of blissful peace, I went to the office as usual, was about to light up and instead took the whole pack and ripped up each cigarette one at a time.

Down to earth protection

Fortunately for homeowners who fear that a natural earthquake can be followed by an economic earthquake, government leaders are looking to providing a safety net.

They are working on creating a national Earthquake Hazard Reduction and Insurance Program, bearing some similarities to the National Flood Insurance Program enacted in 1968.

According to the U.S. Geological Survey, there are at least 39 states that could suffer moderate to severe earthquake damage. However, less than ten percent of homeowners have earthquake insurance. Government figures put possible major quake damage as high as $100 billion!

he experts at The Earthquake Project, a consortium of trade associations and independent companies within the property/casualty insurance industry, believe it is better to prepare for the major earthquake scientists say almost inevitable in the next 30 years, before it happens rather than after.

One way to do so, suggest the experts at the United Homeowners Association (UHA) in Washington, D.C., is enacting the Program. At no cost to the government, it will allow homeowner to rebuild their damaged or destroyed homes quickly and at little or no cost to the taxpayer. The program will lower earthquake insurance rates, making earthquake insurance affordable and available nationwide. It could also substantially diminish the loss of lives and property since stricter building codes would be established. "A federal Earthquake Insurance and Hazard Reduction Program will save lives and property while providing the means to rebuild our neighborhoods. We can pay a little now or a lot later. The choice is ours," said the president of the UHA.

Some earthquake experts suggest a catastrophic quake (8.0 or higher on the Richter scale) wold inflict serious damage to our economy. The direct damage include widespread disruption of the supply of goods and services; destruction of infrastructure; lost wages; destruction of homes, businesses, factories and lifelines such as water, electricity, gas and oil; care and feeding of the homeless; caring for the injured and loss of value to stocks and bonds issued by by the quake.

A properly prepared public ad private sector can help reduce the deaths, injuries and property damage a major quake can cause.
