Services set for Delight Williams

Delight Williams, 80, of Hereford, died Friday, Jan. 26, 1990.

Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at West Park Cemetery officiated by the Rev. Dennis Latham, pastor of Community Church. Arrangements are by Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Delight Williams was born on May 18, 1909, in Custer City, Okla. She married Hank Williams on Oct. 31, 1939 in Woodward, Okla. Mr. Williams was a former Deaf Smith county judge. He died on Jan. 6, 1987. They moved to Hereford in December, 1950 from Clinton, Okla. She was a member of the Church of the Nazarene.

Delight was office manager at The Hereford Brand for over 20 years. She worked at the front desk at the Brand, cheerily answering the telephone and greeting each customer. She was perhaps the most appropriately named person ever, ready with a special smile at the smallest hint of humor, or when someone needed just a smile to make them feel better. She could smooth out the roughest situation with her own special way. She was, and will remain, a delight for all who knew her.

Her survivors include two daughters, Sheila Thames of Hereford and Charlotte Bowman of Bartlesville, Okla.

The family suggests memorials to Nazarene Christian Academy or a charity of your choice in lieu of flowers.

The Brand will close on Monday from 1 to 3 p.m.

Christie sweeps lamb show

Kelly Christie's inventory of banners and trophies picked up significantly Friday night at the lamb show at the Hereford Young Farmers 25th annual Livestock Show at the Bull Barn.

Christie swept the grand championship and the reserve grand championship of the show. He drove his 130-lb. Hampshire to the grand championship of the show.

Because Christie was busy with the Hampshire, Donna Grotegut (who won top showmanship honors) drove Christie's 136-lb. Suffolk to the reserve grand championship.

Earning breed championship honors were Jay Jackson, five-county, and Colby Christie, county, in finewool; Justin Gleghorn, five-county, and Colby Christie, county, in finewool cross; and Josh Conaway in southdown.

Gleghorn, of Dimmitt, won reserve showmanship honors. The show was to conclude Saturday with the annual premium sale.

CHOF board studying offer from Kerrville

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

A proposal to relocate Hereford's National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center to the Hill Country has been made by some Kerrville dignitaries, it was disclosed this week.

"The idea of relocating the Cowgirl Hall of Fame has never been considered," said Margaret Formby, president of the HOF board. "The invitation from Kerrville was unsolicited and was a complete surprise to the Hall's board," she added.

However, the board is taking the request under advisement, according to Formby, and a committee has been appointed to listen to the proposal. The group will probably make a trip to Kerrville. The group at Kerrville is seeking possible museums to help generate tourism in that locale.

The board first heard the proposal at a regular board meeting last week. A special meeting was called Thursday to discuss a news release on the matter. The board's news announcement read, in part:

"The Hall's board of directors first charge is to make decisions that are for the best interests of the Hall of Fame. Because of the finances of the Hall, the board feels the aforementioned proposal should be placed under review, because budgeting and financing has been difficult.

"The Hall does not receive any national, state or local monies--meaning from taxes or grants--for operation or development. The idea of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center originated in Hereford 15 years ago. The Hall's local board members have always been civic leaders of Hereford, always active in our town. They believe in Hereford... living in Hereford is their testimony."

"The Hall urgently, profoundly and constantly needs community advice and involvement. The 'Future of the Hall' study committee has been instructed to investigate avenues that would be best for the longevity and preservation of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame."

Formby added the board welcomes local citizens to voice their opinions and to become involved. Bill Allen is chairman of the board; Nancy Binford of Wildorado is vice president, and Charmayne Klett is treasurer. Roger Eades is heading up the study committee.

The current board has 35 directors, some from other cities and states. Other local directors include Jeff Brown, Jeff Carlile, Roberta Caviness, L.J. Clark, Joan Coupe, Bill Davis, Betty Drake, Marie Griffin, Jackie Hammett, Donald Hicks, Irene McKinster, Josie Rivera, Georgia Sparks, Betty Taylor, Ron Weishaar, Mary Beth White, and James Witherspoon. Duke will visit Tuesday

Gene Duke, a Republican candidate for Texas agriculture commissioner, will be in Hereford at 5 p.m. Tuesday. Duke will meet with the public in the community room of the Hereford State Bank.

Duke, a Brownfield agriculturist, is one of two candidates vying for the Republican nomination for commissioner of agriculture.

Duke owns a cottonseed delinting business and is a licensed certified plant breeder. He received a patent for converting waste cotton lint into livestock feed, which stopped the waste from being burned.

He is an active supporter of 4-H, FFA, FHA and the Extension Service. The event is open to the public.

AIDS support

Group offers advice, help

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

AIDS. It's here, and it won't be going away any time soon.

At least five Hereford residents have either tested positive as carriers of the AIDS virus or have "full-blown" AIDS.

That is one reason why the Panhandle AIDS Support Organization, PASO, is increasing its efforts to reach out to the area.

Lee Persefield, the regional task force director for PASO, explained his group's program to the Hereford Lions Club last Wednesday.

Persefield's presentation left the group in a somber mood.

Not only are there at least five people in Hereford who either have or will have AIDS some time in the next 10 years, but there could be many others here and across the Panhandle carrying the virus that don't know they are carriers.

There are at least 155 persons who are either HIV positive or who have AIDS in the 26 counties of the Panhandle. Most live in the Potter-Randall county Amarillo metropolitan area.

Next on the list is Moore County and Dumas, with eight known cases. Deaf Smith County is next with five. There are reported cases in most other area cities, including Borger, Pampa, Perryton and Dimmitt.

Persefield feels drastic steps are going to have to be taken to control AIDS exposure in the future.

Persefield told the Lions that a move is underway to teach third graders, in frank terms, about the dangers of AIDS and the manner in which it is transmitted.

Why such a young age? Persefield said that Deaf Smith and Moore counties led that state last year in the number of teenage pregnancies. Some of those pregnancies were in girls younger than 13: At least one 11-year-old girl has given birth here in the last year. A 10-year-old girl in the Rio Grande Valley area carried a set of twins to full term in 1989.

"We must start that young to reach them, because youngsters are becoming more promiscuous at a younger age," Persefield explained.

Persefield urged that parents talk "directly and frankly about AIDS".

"You know better than anyone else how to communicate with your children, so they will understand," Persefield said. "They need to know that it is not only right to say 'no,' but it is okay for them to abstain from sex."

Persefield said there's also a need to work with persons who are AIDS carriers.

A person that has tested HIV positive, a virus carrier, may carry the virus for almost 10 years before developing an AIDS symptom.

During the time a person is carrying the AIDS virus, while "only" HIV positive, a person can infect other people.

There are three primary ways AIDS can be transmitted: through any type of sexual intercourse; sharing needles, usually among intravenous drug users; or through blood exchanges.

It is increasingly rare for anyone to contract AIDS through a transfusion. Blood centers have sophisticated tests used to screen blood. Two years ago, there was some blood used in the Texas Panhandle, including some in Hereford, that was infected with the AIDS virus. No other contaminated blood has been used in the area since that time, because of the more-sophisticated testing.

Persefield told the Lions about a woman in the Texas Panhandle who is HIV positive. Her husband was also HIV positive.

Their child will be born sometime in the next month. There is a 50-50 chance, Persefield said, that the child will also be HIV positive.

That child could test negative, and live a long, healthy life.

Their parents do not have that to look forward to. They will have to look forward to sarcoma, tumors that develop in connective tissue, pneumonia, and other AIDS symptoms.

People don't die of AIDS, you see. They die of its symptoms.

Some of them may die suddenly. For most, it's a lingering death. The lingering is the worst part.

"Some AIDS patients are just denied by their families," Persefield said. "That's where we try to help, by giving them the support that we can."

PASO also provides testing twice a month for persons who want to know whether or not they are carriers.

He told of one man who tested positive. That person, Persefield said, figured he had sexual relations with at least 70 other persons in the past year.

He told of a man who was infected by his wife. The husband had been faithful, the wife had not.

He told of the family that had gone to PASO for testing. They explained they were IV drug users, but only shared needles within the family.

"But if just one member of the family stepped outside of the circle, just one time, the whole family could now be infected," Persefield said.

What's the key for the future? Persefield said it's education. "We must work with our children and our teenagers to explain AIDS to them," Persefield said.

Near settlement

Second week set on phone debate

AUSTIN (AP) - Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s rate case was delayed for a second week at the Public Utility Commission Friday after most parties said they were nearing a settlement that would lower customer rates $1.2 billion over four years.

The proposed agreement would freeze local basic rates for four years. It would reduce the average residential phone bill by decreasing such charges as the rates long-distance companies pay for access to Southwestern Bell's network, said PUC General Counsel Bob Rima.

Savings would be passed on to consumers under the proposed agreement, which also provides for upgraded service and more flexible regulation for Southwestern Bell.

"What the customer cares about is the cost of their total bill," Rima said, "and that total bill I believe will be reduced by 15 percent for the average customer."

The proposed settlement has been rejected by Public Utility Counsel C. Kingsbery Ottmers, the state-paid advocate for residential and small commercial ratepayers. Her office earlier recommended a $595 million annual rate reduction for Southwestern Bell to reflect what she calls excessive profits.

"A consumer that just has basic local service and no long distance would not see a rate reduction. They would see their same rate over four years" under the proposed settlement, said Ms. Ottmers. "It would almost be like capping the cost of oil when it was $42 a barrel."

The rate hearing, scheduled to start last Monday, was delayed by PUC Administrative Law Judge J.K. Trostle to allow for negotiations.

CHOF

The HOF's address is listed as 515 Ave. B, the former Pitman home which was purchased at a special price and converted into the CHOF Center. The center registers about 3,000 visitors a year.

Mrs. Formby helped found the Hall in 1975 to recognize and honor women who have made a significant contribution to the western way of life. A total of 97 women have been inducted into the CHOF and there are more than 500 applicants on a waiting list.

The CHOF collects and maintains an extensive art and memora-

She said she was granting another week's delay because most parties in the case - including Southwestern Bell, the general counsel, a number of cities and long-distance telephone companies - reported that a settlement was likely.

Those who opposed further delay included Ms. Ottmers, Consumers Union and Don Butler, attorney for 80 cities served by Southwestern Bell. Ms. Trostle said those parties failed to persuade her that another week's postponement would be harmful.

Ms. Trostle gave the parties until 4 p.m. next Friday to file an agreement, or the hearing will proceed Feb. 5. If an agreement is reached among some parties but not others, there will be a proceeding in which the dissenting parties can respond to a proposed settlement.

The proposed settlement includes the $1.2 billion, four-year rate reduction plus all the elements of "Texas First," a plan pushed by Southwestern Bell, Rima said.

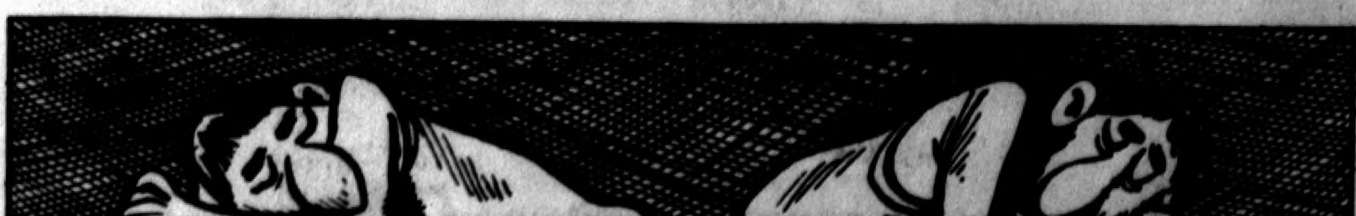

More flexible regulation in the plan includes allowing Southwestern Bell to earn a return on investment of 11 to 13 percent, rather than the current 12 percent.

The company also would upgrade service, including giving one-party service at no extra cost to customers who now have four-party or two-party service. In 27 communities near Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, customers would have the option of a flat monthly rate rather than toll rates for calls to those cities.

Among other items, a reduction of up to $7 a month for basic service would be offered to eligible low-income customers, and the cost of implementing 911 emergency service would be reduced for cities.

bilia collection as well as a library of Western Americana, and publishes the annual magazine Sidesaddle. The Hall is also involved in the nation's largest All-Girl Professional Rodeo which is held in Hereford each year.

Hereford received national publicity last year when a local group of CHOF board members and civic leaders attended the opening of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Restaurant in New York City. A number of feature articles about the Hall have appeared in state and national publications.

The word "canopy" comes from the Greek word konops meaning "gnat." The story goes the fishermen of ancient Egypt would sleep undisturbed by gnats by sleeping under canopies of fishing nets.

Airliner was low on fuel; 72 dead

MELVILLE, N.Y. (AP) - The crew of a Colombian jetliner was worried about running low on fuel just before the plane crashed, killing 72 people, federal investigators say.

National Safety Board member Lee Dickinson told a news conference Friday that the crew, on a voice recorder recovered from the wreckage, expressed concern several times about fuel levels after an aborted landing attempt.

But the pilot did not declare an emergency landing priority that would have required controllers to immediately clear Avianca Airlines Flight 52 for a landing Thursday night, he said.

Although many clues indicate the plane had little or no fuel when it crashed into a hill on the north shore of Long Island, federal investigators would not say that the crash was caused by the plane running out of fuel.

No homes were hit and there were no casualties on the ground, though one part of the plane came to rest on a home's patio. Dickinson said 89 people survived the crash.

Investigators picking through the wreckage of the Boeing 707 in the woods of the isolated, wealthy suburb of Cove Neck said the fuel gauges indicated the jet had 10,000 pounds, or 1,500 gallons, of fuel, Dickinson said. Investigators had not yet checked the tanks.

Boeing spokesman Jack Gamble in Seattle said that could have been enough fuel to fly the jet from the crash site to its destination, Kennedy International Airport, "but not much more." The airport is about 15 miles away.

Scientists unite on drought-type plants

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK - Horticultural geneticists and plant enzymologists don't talk to each other.

At least they usually don't. The two branches of botany use the same scientific language, but their dialects are so different, researchers say, that they rarely translate their work to compare notes.

But at Texas Tech's Plant Stress and Water Conservation Lab, scientists from a number of disciplines have learned to speak a common language: drought.

The lab's goal is to find varieties of wheat, corn, cotton, onions and other plants that can survive the harsh weather of the Great Plains stretching from Canada to Texas, with their frequent droughts and bouts of bitter cold and stifling heat.

The research has resulted in drought-resistant strains of cotton and wheat, a type of sorghum that is resistant to insects called midges, and grape vines that have tougher leaves to withstand hail.

"Most enzymologists talk only with enzymologists," said James Mahan, a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant physiologist who specializes in that branch of plant chemistry. "But here, I talk to all sorts of different people. That's why this interdisciplinary approach is so important."

Though it focuses on U.S. crops and conditions, the research has international implications.

"In Lubbock, we're representative of the arid and semi-arid areas of the world, such as central and western Africa," said Robert Albin, associate dean of research at Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences. "A large part of the world's land surface is semi-arid."

John Burke, another USDA scientist studying plant enzymes, said almost all the research has international applications: "These crops are grown throughout the world. This research holds true no matter where you are."

Burke works with Ellen Peffley, a Texas Tech assistant professor of horticulture specializing in onion genetics. She is trying to develop onions that can withstand extreme cold. Burke identifies enzymes that make onions more cold-hardy, and Peffley tries to get onions to make those enzymes.

"As we discover the basic mechanics, this can be applied to all crop species," she said.

More than 50 scientists and graduate students from Texas Tech, the USDA and Texas A&M participate in the program. Research is done at various laboratories and agricultural experiment stations; there is no one specific, centralized lab.

The lack of a common place to meet and perform experiments is the program's major shortcoming, Albin said.

The university has moved toward building such a laboratory with a $500,000 federal grant to start work on what is expected to be a $17 million complex on a 50-acre site at the Tech campus.

If and when the complex is finished, the geneticists, entomologists, physiologists, biochemists and soils scientists who now coordinate projects from many different sites will be able to work under one roof.

"It gets to be quite complicated and we have to keep people together and coordinated," Albin said. "We're in such a specialized area of research. You might have a molecular scientist discover something important, but he doesn't know how to grow the plant, so you have the A&M research station for that."

"We've got to keep coordination in mind. A geneticist might get caught up transferring gene A into plant B and lose sight of what it's all about."

Congress formally created the Plant Stress and Water Conservation Lab in 1988, but the research had been going on at Tech since the late 1950s. The USDA picked Lubbock to be the center of the research because of Tech, lack of rain, and temperatures that drop below zero in winter and soar into the triple digits in summer.

Scientists affiliated with the lab are enthusiastic about their work, though they sometimes are at a loss for words to explain their research in layman's terms - or in the terms of scientists from other fields.

"We have some sort of common goal in mind," said Henry Nguyen, a Tech associate professor who specializes in finding drought-resistant cereals such as wheat and sorghum. "We see how we can mutually benefit each other with our kinds of techniques. It just takes a lot of patience talking, until we understand what each other is doing."

Noriega is POW, says defense; bond denied

MIAMI (AP) - Manuel Noriega must remain in jail despite his claim that he is a prisoner of war and should be moved to a neutral country, a judge ruled.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler's decision on Friday came after prosecutors portrayed the fallen Panamanian ruler as a wealthy and dangerous man with cash and armed supporters potentially hidden around the world.

"Mr. Noriega is a danger to the community," said Deputy Assistant U.S. Attorney Myles Malman said during the bond hearing. "He is a military man trained and skilled in the use of counter-terrorism, covert actions and weapons."

Prosecutors said the 145-year sentence Noriega could be given if convicted of drug trafficking, coupled with his "extraordinary wealth," made it likely he would flee the country if released on bond.

Investigators and U.S. troops who invaded Panama found up to $30 million in Noriega assets, including homes in Panama, a condominium in France, sports cars and bank accounts, Malman said.

On Noriega's ranch, soldiers found envelopes marked "Confidential for my general," and stuffed with $5.8 million in cash, he said.

But defense attorney Frank Rubino insisted the court has no jurisdiction in Noriega's case, and refused to participate in the bond hearing.

"To the best of my knowledge, this is the first time the United States has invaded a country, toppled its government and put its leader on trial," Rubino said outside the courthouse.

Rubino told the judge that a letter from Noriega to President Bush was delivered Friday to the White House and the State Department claiming status as a prisoner of war under the Geneva Convention.

The defense contended that an international tribunal, perhaps the World Court at The Hague or Geneva, must automatically be invoked by Noriega's alleged POW status.

Hoeveler did not consider the motion immediately.

Prosecutors emphasized Noriega's alleged dark side in their effort to keep him in jail, saying he was known for torturing opponents and personally ordered the execution of the leader of the failed October coup attempt against him.

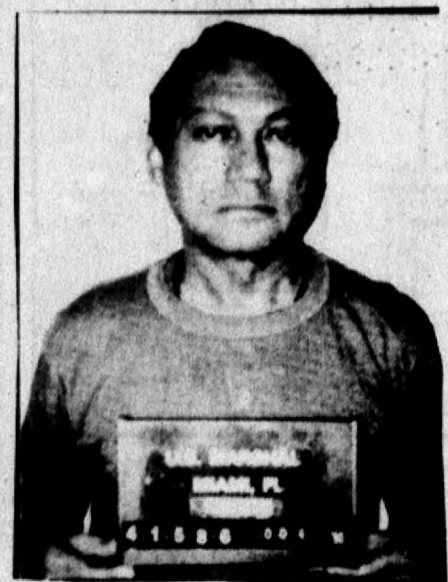

They also said soldiers found the names of the four people on a sheet of paper in Noriega's Fort Amador office, which contained so much black magic paraphernalia U.S. soldiers called it the "Witch House."

Malman implied that the list was part of a curse against the four men - the judge himself; U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh; Charles Saphos, head of the Justice Department's drug section; and Mark Schnapp, a former Miami federal prosecutor who helped bring about the Noriega indictment.

"Maybe I better not enter it into evidence," the judge joked.

Malman said Noriega, 51, has a $400,000 condominium in Paris and a $500,000 three-story home in Panama. The prosecution introduced photos of deposit slips showing that Noriega's 17-year-old daughter deposited $1.3 million in Panamanian banks in September 1989.

The U.S. government also has frozen $20 million in Noriega assets scattered in bank accounts. The prosecution maintained that Noriega also transferred about $19 million from an account in London to one in Luxembourg after the indictment was unsealed. It was unclear whether the deposits and seizures were duplicated in the prosecution's listings.

NORIEGA

In addition to those sums, Noriega was said to have friends in countries at odds with the United States, including Cuba and Libya. He noted that Moammar Gadhafi had presented Noriega with "his and hers Gadhafi watches."

Asked by Hoeveler at the end of the session if he wished to rebut prosecution arguments, Rubino replied by reciting Noriega's name, rank and serial number - 0001.

TREATMENT FOR WHIPLASH

If you've had the misfortune to experience whiplash, you should seek treatment immediately to avoid any dangerous consequences.

The most familiar victim of whiplash is someone who's been in an automobile accident. The jolt to the head caused by collision and the effort to control it can have painful results. Other accidents can also cause whiplash, even stepping off a curb and turning an ankle can cause a jolt to the head when you try to prevent yourself from falling.

The affected area is centered in the seven vertebrae in your neck. Assisted by muscles and ligaments, they support your head and help control its movement. The whiplash action may cause the vertebrae to pull out of alignment, putting unusual pressure on the nerves attached to them.

Along with the pain, often there are other alarming symptoms such as headaches, dizziness, nausea, and depression. Treatment to put the vertebrae in proper alignment may relieve the pressure causing these distressing symptoms.

Delight was a delight.

Delight Williams was 80-years-young and all who knew her or met her at the front desk in The Brand office were amazed at the exuberance and vitality she breathed into her life and work.

She left this world just the way she wanted to go. She put in a full day's work Friday and succumbed to a heart attack Friday night.

Delight was dedicated to her job at the newspaper; she loved her work and it showed. After she reached the age of 72, she was concerned that she couldn't keep her job. Even though I assured her that performance, not age, was the determining factor, she seemed afraid to take a day off. I eased her workload when we put in a new computerized classified advertising system, and she was displeased that I didn't put a computer terminal at her desk. She didn't resist change like so many older folks do.

She was a mother figure to some of the younger employees, but I never heard anyone call her an "old lady." She dressed, performed and acted like someone 20 or 30 years younger. She probably took fewer "sick days" from work than anyone on the payroll.

Delight took pleasure in kidding me about how "easy" I was. Years ago a man who did yard work wanted to put an ad in the paper on credit. She sent him to see me and I wound up charging the ad and loaning him a few dollars. "You sure are easy, boss," she told me. "You'll never see that man again." She was right.

Delight will be missed by family and friends. But she spent most of her time with The Brand "family", and it just won't seem right without her smiling face at the front desk. She was a good'un!

Hereford is not the only community which has its share of feuding and fussing now and then over real or imagined problems.

Maybe it's just the size of the city, but Amarillo seems to have more than its share. Some local political or civic controversy seems to be going on all the time there. West Texas State University has had its share of fractious times, but perhaps the merging with Texas A&M will help that situation.

A group of citizens down in Snyder, upset with an increase in county taxes, got a rollback election and won a cutback in taxes. It created a controversy which overshadowed the fact the population in a new prison there may soon double.

In Monahans, everything hit the fan because the band boosters scheduled a meeting on the same night as the football banquet. The band people later rescheduled and eased the rift.

In Seminole, somebody mysteriously burned down a mobile home--one that had been raided by officers who found the operation of a methamphetamine lab just outside town.

Denver City's city council is engaged in a bitter fight with oil field contractors and Shell Oil Company. Shell had applied for tax abatement on company property being annexed into the city limits, and citizens and contractors lined up to fight the city proposal.

Andrews County has seen citizens split on problems at the county hospital. County commissioners narrowly voted down a resolution of "no confidence" regarding the hospital administrator.

And in Colorado City, members of Lulac have filed suit against the city, mayor and councilmen over the way council members are elected from at-large rather than single-member districts.

A lot of the tension might be eased all around the country with a good, soaking two-inch rain!

Voice of Business

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner,
President

U.S. Chamber of Commerce
WASHINGTON -- As we embark upon the 1990s, writing the final chapters in this most turbulent of centuries, it is clear mankind stands upon a critical threshold in its history. Decisions made in the next few years - decisions being made right now - will determine whether we descend into another terrible vale of destruction, or step briskly into a bright new era of peace, progress and prosperity.

We need no reminding of our capacity for destruction. This century has witnessed man's inhumanity to man on an unprecedented scale. Twice much of the world was embroiled in savage warfare. The intervening years have been riddled with lesser, but no less brutal, conflicts.

But this century also has brought unprecedented scientific and technological progress. We have today at our fingertips truly remarkable machines, medicines and conveniences that would have been unthinkable in 1900.

The challenge before us is to use this wonderful new knowledge we have acquired to build, not destroy. That is a terribly simple sentiment to express, but a terribly difficult thing to achieve. The dogs of war are forever straining at the leash. Should they burst free again on a global scale, applying modern technology to total conflict, the results would be too terrible to contemplate.

Recent developments in the communist world underscore our dilemma, and add an awful urgency to its resolution. The communists are experimenting with political and economic freedom, not because of some intellectual breakthrough, but because they are desperate. Desperate people can do desperate things.

It is imperative that we reach out to them at this critical juncture in history. At the same time that we save them from their ideological folly, we must help their ideological folly, we must help them adapt more open political and economic systems based upon freedom and individual initiative. In doing so, we will not only reduce the likelihood of catastrophe, we will also inherit a cornucopia of new opportunities for ourselves. There are literally hundreds of millions of potential consumers of our products and services emerging from the communist yoke.

How we respond to this challenge will set the tone for the 1990s. One way or the other, we will choose our own destiny.

John Brooks

Babbling Brooks

Are the animal rights folks about to strike the Fed Cattle Capital of the Whole Blessed World?

Maybe. We got a goodie in the mail about a week ago from PETA. PETA stands for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

I always had thought PETA was this funny type of bread that look like a tortilla, but you split it in the middle and put whatever you wanted in the middle.

The dictionary says that's pita. Pita's not going to hurt us unless we eat some that's real moldy.

PETA could change everyone's life around here.

They want us all to become a "vegan." It doesn't say "vegetarian." It says "vegan."

I have never known a real vegetarian, and I haven't made the acquaintance of a vegan, either.

These folks says that us mean old meat-eaters are responsible for raping the earth. If we all become vegans, PETA says, "more food will be available for more people because grains are not diverted to feed cattle; less water and topsoil are wasted; and fewer trees are destroyed, here and in the rain forests, to graze animals."

Not only is that stupid, but it's one of the bi-products used to fertilize those acres. These people don't realize that cattle are fed with grain that humans don't eat because it's not "food grain" corn. Some folks in some parts of the world eat sorghum, but not many in the United States.

And when's the last time you had a big heaping bowl of sugar beet tailings, or alfalfa (alfalfa sprouts, on the other hand, are great, especially fresh from Larry Malamen's)? And knowing how sparse trees are on the High Plains, I would stick my head out and say that less than 10 trees were cut down to build every one of the feedlots in the entire Texas Panhandle.

It's not only beef these people don't want you to consume. Directly from their little booklet: "Over the next decade, the average American will eat one lamb, two cows, seven pigs, eight turkeys, 144 fishes and 185 chickens. Go vegetarian now and save these lives."

They don't like any of it, red or white meat, fish or fowl.

You farmers that don't handle livestock can quit laughing now. These folks also want you to "stop using harmful products such as dangerous pesticides and herbicides that pollute the environment. Instead I will investigate methods that do not damage our fragile ecosystem."

First, PETAs, I think you can ask just about any farmer around about investigating. I don't believe we have anyone left in farming that's interested in damaging our fragile ecosystem, because you get hit right in the pocketbook when the ecosystem quits producing.

Most of the herbicides and pesticides used today aren't too terribly harmful. Since they are studied plumb to death and have been tested on every bird, snake and other varmint to see if they'll die if they eat 500 pounds of it, they're not too harmful.

You folks that believe in having however many children God wants you to have and quit chuckling here. And if you like going down the highway, especially to the mall, you need to start paying close attention.

Part of PETAs pledge says "I will encourage a lower birth rate. Human population is now 5.2 billion and growing by over 80 million people (not to be confused with other humans? Shows you these folks either can't find a good writer, ain't playing with a full deck, or both) a year. In the U.S., with five percent of this population, we use 30 percent of the earth's non-renewable resources and our endless construction of highways and malls destroys animals' homes and lives."

So don't eat meat and don't eat anything on which chemicals have been used and don't have babies and don't go down the highway to the mall, and you'll fit right in on this group.

Unfortunately, these folks are very, very serious. It is going to be up to each of us to educate our relatives and friends who might not know any better that not everything these people say is right. These folks are out not only to change our lifestyle but to put many of us, you and me, completely out of a job.

Social Security Trust Fund Should Be Left Untouched

When Congress reconvenes Tuesday, it should decide once and for all to leave the Social Security Trust Fund alone. From all angles, the fund is under constant attack. It is the only nest egg this country has, and it should be left alone to serve its purpose.

... The war over Social Security will never end as long as the rest of the country's fiscal house is in disorder. But the average worker, even the worker who is skeptical of Social Security, should make his or her representative in Congress aware that this nest egg must be untouched.

Mattox MAD Result Hardly a Victory

There are two ways of looking at what happened to Attorney General Jim Mattox's bid to receive the endorsement of the Mexican American Democrats of his candidacy for governor. One, it was a famous victory, since he got 2,102 votes at the convention here to 891 for his nearest rival, Treasurer Ann Richards. Two, it was a disappointing defeat, because he failed to get the two-thirds vote he needed for an endorsement.

Political realists would opt for the second scenario. Mattox has pursued the Hispanic vote with heat and passion. He hasn't passed up any occasion, for instance, for travel to the border region. His performance in regard to the federal court decision mandating a change to single-member judicial districts was calculated to win Hispanic support as well. And Mattox has diligently espoused virtually every issue important to Hispanic leadership in the state.

With that as prelude to the endorsement convention here, certainly Mattox must have expected to win endorsement if not easily, at least comfortably. He did not. That can't be regarded as anything other than a setback to his candidacy.

Shaping Texas' Future

During much of Texas' 150 years, its people have lived by a tough code. "Root hog or die," work or starve, take responsibility for your needs and those of your family - all these injunctions were necessary in a pioneer land rich in natural resources but poor in terms of capital and education.

Things have changed in Texas. Oil, agriculture and ranching are still important pieces of the economic landscape, but banking, computers, electronics, insurance and distribution have come to the fore. The "help yourself" philosophy remains a hallmark of the Texas ethic, but some updating is needed.

Two new reports present some shocking data: Nearly one in four Texas children lives in poverty, one in three pregnant women receives no early prenatal care, and only the poorest of the poor qualify for some government help. Those conditions could not have been prevented in the earlier days of Texas, but they can and must be changed if this state wants to become a national leader in economic well-being and an enhanced quality of life.

... The precepts of pioneer Texas are still valuable. Neighborliness, personal effort and private support systems remain positive elements in the lives of all citizens, but in the complexity of modern society it falls to governments - local, state and federal - to provide more of the safety nets for our most vulnerable citizens.

- Dallas Times Herald, Jan. 22

A Missing Link in the Drug War

By all standards, the handwriting is on the wall:

- Federal drug cases are piling up in the South Texas courts. The Southern District of Texas federal courts, based in Houston, lead the nation with a drug caseload more than double that of the federal district headquartered in Miami, usually considered the U.S. drug trafficking redoubt.

- The Western District, headquartered in San Antonio, has a staggering caseload, primarily due to drug cases. In the year ending last June 30, the Western District had a heavier caseload than the district based in New York City - yet it has less than a third as many federal judges.

- The logjam in the South Texas courts has the attention of House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jack Brooks of Texas, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the chief judges of the Southern and Western districts and Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist.

- And, finally, the flow of drugs across the Southwest border has not slowed. Hardly a week goes by without a major arrest in South Texas.

As a result, scores of drug traffickers are awaiting trial. However, the courts are so short of judges that the dockets are overloaded.

"We can't allow them (defendants) to prowl the streets awaiting a far-off trial date, all the while boasting to their buddies and carrying on business as usual," Bentsen said last October.

But that is exactly what is happening. Congress adjourned Nov. 21 and hasn't acted, nor has President Bush.

Congress is returning and Bush will release his fiscal 1991 budget Jan. 29. South Texas taxpayers should hope there is money in the Bush budget and dedication by Congress to bring this region more federal judges. ...

"If this were just an aberration, just a one-time thing that some task force brought in a lot of criminal cases, that would be manageable," federal Judge George P. Kazen of Laredo said the other day.

"But what's been happening for the last couple of years is that it's just grown and grown and grown."

So should South Texas' federal judiciary. It is a missing link in the drug war.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading those responses to the question, "Should gay couples be allowed to marry?" I was shocked by the intensity of hatred reflected in your mail. It is not enough for some people to be opposed to the idea, they felt compelled to label homosexuals "diseased," "perverted" and "fruitcakes." I don't hunt deer, but I don't call deer-hunters murderers and butchers.

I am a happy married heterosexual male. My wife and I have friends who are gay. They are decent law-abiding citizens who do not molest children, nor do they run around spreading AIDS. They mind their own business and have no interest in converting others to their life style. I find it strange that people who do not know these gentle souls should despise them so vehemently. — John C. (Chicago)

DEAR JOHN: The mail on this subject has been a back-breaker. While some of the letters were wild-eyed hysterical (and profane), there were some thoughtful responses on both sides. Here's a fair sampling of what the last week has been like:

FROM PENSACOLA: I remember you from Central High in Sioux City and you are too smart to be taken in by the standard homosexual line. It may come as a surprise to them, but, theology aside, the ultimate purpose of mankind is the propagation of the human race. We were not given genitals so we could have fun. They were given to us for the purpose of producing progeny. Nature makes the experience pleasurable to ensure that this will occur. Homosexuals thwart God's ultimate purpose of man, which makes them unnatural and immoral. —Robert H.

LOS ANGELES: I wish I could sign this letter and use the church letterhead where I serve as a pastor, but that is impossible. I am a licensed minister and I am gay. My mate and I have been together for several years. We are not flaming queens or far-out kooks. We love and care for each other and don't bother anybody. When Jesus was on Earth, he did not say one word about homosexuality.

WICHITA: Sometimes you go off the deep end in your attempt to do good. I wish you'd lay off. Your random sampling from readers who love to shoot off their mouths in print brings out the arrogant, misinformed, self-serving crap we have to put up with on a daily basis, not to mention the name-calling, finger-pointing and staring. I don't see why I should have to justify my sexual orientation to anyone.

MEMPHIS: You said the mail from readers about allowing homosexuals to marry ran 2 to 1 against. That figure doesn't reflect reality. Gays are organized while straights are not. This means the homos are able to band together and run up a much higher number on behalf of themselves. I'm sure the public sentiment is more like 20 to 1 against. Your readers should be told this.

TORONTO: Here's an aside to the gentleman who quoted Leviticus 20:13. Perhaps he should read (ITAL) all (UNITAL) of Leviticus 20. According to that expert, 80 percent of all Canadians and Americans should be put to death for various sins, including cursing our mothers and fathers. Would there be anyone left?

And now, readers, how do (ITAL) I (UNITal) vote? Should homosexuals be allowed to marry? No. But any long-term monogamous relationship should be entitled to legal sanctions. It is unfair that same-sex couples who live together do not have tax benefits, housing breaks, hospital visiting privileges, corporate health-insurance coverage and Social Security death benefits. This has nothing to do with sex, morality, religion or personal biases. It has to do with simple decency and fairness.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Birds add beauty to garden

Make your garden inviting to various kinds of birds and you'll enjoy more of its natural beauty, says the Garden Council, a national group of firms and professionals representing the lawn and garden industry. And the organization notes that the sounds, colors, and movements of birds, will add interest to your landscape year-round.

The experts on the council tell homeowners to create a welcoming atmosphere by planning wisely. They say that the best way to invite birds to nest is by providing food, shelter, and water. If you don't have a pond or stream on your property, a bird bath will serve as a good source of water. Put it where trees and shrubs will provide protection cover and be sure to keep it filled with plenty of fresh water.

A protective environment is essential for building nests, and some plants provide both shelter and food. The council suggests that you select such dual-purpose trees and shrubs as dogwoods, crabapples, hawthorns, pines, cedars, hollies, viburnums, and honeysuckles.

After you've identified your yard's best features for attracting birds, begin to enhance them. Council members say you should take a cue from nature. The edges of the forest or open meadow attract birds because the greatest diversity of plant life occurs in those places. Recreate this environment in your own yard by providing a variety of trees, shrubs, and flowers.

The quick way to transform wide-open lawns into bird habitats is to disregard the rule about properly spacing trees during installation.

Harvesters humble Herd, 105-62

The Hereford Whiteface basketball teams went a long way for almost nothing Friday, dropping four of six games in Pampa.

The Harvesters swept the varsity games with a 105-62 win in the boys contest and a 50-47 win in the girls.

Hereford split a pair of close games at the junior varsity level as the girls pulled out a 38-37 victory while the boys fell 71-66. The Herd sophs played their first game in two weeks, losing 89-57.

The freshman girls also traveled to Pampa on for the first round of the district tournament. Results of that game were not available at press time. Pampa 105, Herd 62

Things started out bad for the Herd and got much worse when starting forward Matt Bromlow sprained an ankle during warmups and missed the game.

The Harvesters, ranked fourth in Class 4A, never trailed in opening up a 32-11 lead after the first quarter.

Pampa continued the trend in the second period, posting a 29-20 advantage in the quarter to take a 61-31 edge into halftime.

The Herd opened the second half with a modest 5-2 run, but the Harvesters responded with a 12-2 effort to close the third period with an 83-43 lead.

Pampa extended the margin to as much as 45 in the fourth quarter.

Hereford's problems were compounded by 32 turnovers against the Harvester's press, with 21 coming in the first half. The Herd also shot a cool 43.6 percent from the floor (24 of 55) and hit nine of 17 free throws.

Russell Backus led all scorers with 32 points - his second 30-plus performance of the season - and was joined in double figures by Brown with 10. Daniel Garcia added eight points while Lemons and Keith Kelso had four each and Walterscheid and Chad Schroeder had two apiece.

Backus and Garcia led the Herd with nine rebounds each.

Pampa placed five scorers in double figures, led by Mark Wood with 19 while Jason Williams had 16, Cedrick Wilbon 15, Randy Nichols 14 and Jeff Young 10.

The loss drops the Herd to 3-8 in District 1-4A and 7-14 overall. Pampa 50, Lady Whitefaces 47

Pampa took a 17-9 first-quarter lead and held on to give Hereford its second straight loss and third in four games.

The Lady Whitefaces were also missing some players as Jennifer Bullard sat out with an injury while Donna Grottegut was participating in the stock show.

Hereford closed the gap to 29-23 at halftime behind six points from Shantel Cornelius and five from Laynic Souter in the second quarter.

The Herd shaved the margin to two points after the third period, but could never overtake the Harvesters.

The teams posted nearly identical scoring stats with 18 two-point baskets and eight free throws each. The difference was a 2-1 Pampa edge in three-pointers.

Hereford was led by Cornelius with 17 points with Cande Robbins reaching double figures with 10. Brienna Townsend added eight points while Souter finished with seven, Stacy White three and Patricia Martinez two.

Nikki Ryan had 17 to lead Pampa while Tara Hamby had 12 and Bridgett Mathis 10.

The loss drops Hereford to 13-13 on the season and 7-6 in district competition.

Pampa 71, Herd JV 66

The Harvesters posted 17 points in each of the first two periods to take a 34-27 halftime lead before the Herd could rally in the fourth quarter.

The Herd suffered from foul trouble with starters Blake Buckley and Chris Blair taking an early seat.

Buckley managed 14 points before leaving to lead Hereford while Richard Sanderson added 12. Ben Weatherly finished with nine points with Blair getting eight, Miguel Casas seven, Chris Tardy and Brady Wilson four each and Andrew Tijerina and Jerry Hardisty two apiece.

Tim Laury led Pampa with 17.

Lady Whiteface JV 38, Pampa 37

The junior varsity girls pulled off their second one-point win in a row with a 17-13 advantage over the final two quarters.

Hereford led 7-6 after one period before Pampa took a 24-21 advantage at the half.

The Herd spread the scoring around with eight players tallying points. Brek Binder led with six while Lori Sanders and Brenna Reinauer added six each. Cassi Brooks had five with Teresa Baker and Melinda Holmes getting four apiece, Jayme Moore three and Roxanne Torres two.

Shelly Vinson and Keri Barr scored 15 points each to pace Pampa.

Pampa 89, Herd sophs 57

Long layoffs caused by the cancellation of five games hampered the sophomores all night.

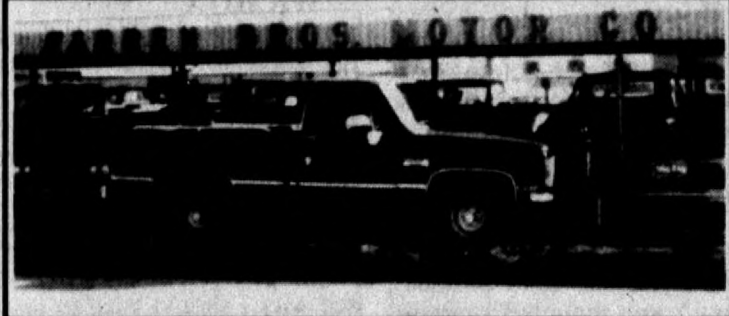

Pampa doubled the Herd's output in the first half, taking a 46-23 lead at the intermission.

Mark Kreigshauser led Hereford with 14 points with Kevin Kelso scoring nine, Derek Mason eight and John McBride, Mikel Walser, Tempic Abney and Clay Wallace added four points each while Michael Kubacak had three and Matthew Reiter two.

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team opened the spring season Friday at Whiteface Courts by edging the Canyon Eagles in a dual meet that was determined by the second tie-breaker.

The teams tied with nine match wins each and remained deadlocked after the number of sets won ended up at 22 apiece. The Herd was finally declared the winner with a 202-190 advantage in games won.

Hereford managed the win despite several team members being involved in basketball and the stock show.

In the girls bracket, Kristie Allison, Misty Reed and Gina Alley all scored straight-set wins in singles. Allison and Reed teamed to win their doubles match in two sets while Alley paired with Trisha Munoz for another two-set win.

Eric Cortez and Greg Coplen picked up the Herd's only wins in boys singles with both matches going three sets. Canyon pulled off a sweep of the three boys doubles matches.

The Herd was scheduled to host Pampa in another dual meet at 2 p.m. Saturday and will take on Plainview and Berger next Saturday in separate dual meets at Whiteface Courts.

Landry fiasco continues to haunt Cowboys owner

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Jerry Jones must be seeing Tom Landry in his sleep. See Tom announcing a book deal. See Tom on television trying to imitate Willie Nelson. See Tom in the Professional Football Hall of Fame. Jones fired Landry, paid him $1 million severance, and martyred him to kingdom come.

The new owner of the Dallas Cowboys has apologized until he is Cowboys blue in the face, but Landry keeps coming back to haunt Jones.

Landry isn't going to let up on the shabby treatment he felt he received. And Jones is going to have to lump it until he can live with it.

At every opportunity Landry reminds one and all that Jones should have handled things better. It's an offense against which Jones has no defense. The majority of the American sporting public and sporting press agrees. You don't gut-shoot a legend. Jones can't get away from Landry.

If he watches television, Landry will be there with his new singing commercial: "Momma, don't let your babies grow up to be Redskins... You didn't think I was going to say Cowboys, did you?"

Landry pops up out of a suitcase in the Quality Inn commercial and gives his best imitation of Nelson, the Austin country and western singer who made the song a big hit years ago.

"They had to give me voice lessons, if you can believe that," Landry said. "My voice was too high and they had to get it down lower. I had to have me a coach to learn how to do that. They kept calling and calling so I decided to do it."

If you'll notice in the commercial, Landry isn't actually playing the guitar. There wasn't enough time get Tom to pick like Willie.

It's a smash commercial for which Quality Inn will be paying $700,000 each for 30 second spots during Super Bowl XXIV between Denver and San Francisco.

"It was a fun thing to do," Landry said. "I'd sung in church a few times, but that didn't exactly prepare me for a commercial."

Landry will be paid handsomely for the advertisement. It will run six figures by the time the residuals are registered.

The last time Landry did a commercial, it was the American Express cutie in which he survived a tavern jammed with Washington Redskins. He got $50,000 and residuals that went over the moon.

Landry, by the way, won't be attending the Super Bowl in New Orleans, although he has wonderful memories of the place. He won his only two Super Bowl rings there.

He'll be at the Hills of Lakeway in Austin chasing the dimpled white orb. Landry was on the Jack Nicklaus course at the Hills when he was told Jones was coming to announce Landry had been fired on Feb. 25 last year.

Besides an occasional birdie, Landry will likely be celebrating some more big news in his career.

He is up for election this weekend to the Professional Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

"It's an honor just to be nominated," he said. "It shows they haven't forgotten me."

A fact Jerry Jones has been reminded of every day since last February.

Why the 49ers WILL win SB XXIV

By DAVE GOLDBERG
 AP Football Writer
 Why the 49ers will win the Super Bowl...
 Why the 49ers will win the Super Bowl????
 How can the 49ers NOT win the Super Bowl when half the population of Colorado half-hoped the Broncos would lose to Cleveland so they wouldn't have to be subject to another humiliation at the hands of an NFC team. The local papers have even dragged out shrinks to explain a municipal psyche that so fears humiliation.

Moreover, the Broncos were 8-2 this season at Mile High Stadium, where since 1986 they've gone gone 30-5 in non-strike games. The two losses were to the NFC playoff teams they faced there - 28-24 to the Eagles and 14-7 to the Giants.
 But why go on.
 49ers, 37-10.

Worse.
 This may be the best of the NFC teams the Broncos have faced in the Super Bowl, where they've lost twice by an aggregate total of 81-30. They hung in until the third quarter against the Giants three years ago and hung in until the second quarter against the Redskins in 1988.
 This year, it figures that they'll hang in the first quarter.
 Okay, so a lot will be made of the Joe Montana-John Elway comparison. How the opposition doesn't want to give either the ball with time left and a chance to win.
 One problem.
 John's not likely to be in that situation. Neither, for that matter, is Joe - the 49ers are likely to be far enough ahead by the fourth quarter that Steve Young will be in the game.
 Look at it another way.
 San Francisco got to New Orleans by beating Minnesota 41-13 and the Los Angeles Rams, 30-3. That was in the NFC, where all five playoff teams (plus Washington and New Orleans) were probably as good or better than anything that the AFC could offer, even 11-5 Denver.

TCGA sets annual meeting for Feb. 6

DIMMITT -- Controversial GATT negotiations, the 1990 Farm Bill and other topics which will impact area farmers will be discussed Tuesday, Feb. 6 at the 17th Annual Meeting of the Texas Corn Growers Association and Texas Corn Producers Board.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Castro County Exposition Building in Dimmitt. It will include speakers on farm policy related issues, as well as corn production and marketing. A free lunch will be served by area members of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) at 12:15 p.m.

"This meeting should help answer many questions area corn growers have concerning GATT and the farm program," said Carl King, TCGA president. "The future of ethanol in Texas will also be an important topic. And presentations given by area crop researchers should provide farmers with information they can use to improve their production."

Guest speakers will include John Ford, legislative affairs director for the American Corn Growers Association. Ford, a former undersecretary of agriculture, will examine what lies ahead in critical farm bill debates in Washington. He will also review the progress of the new ACGA, which is growing in membership nationwide.

State Rep. Pete Laney of Plainview will review legislative activities in Austin. Laney has been a supporter of TCGA's efforts to obtain a state tax incentive for ethanol producers. Kraig Gallimore of the Texas Department of Agriculture will discuss GATT. "He will explain how U.S. proposals in the GATT talks would virtually trade away American's food and fiber policy," said King.

The down trend in agriculture will be examined by Texas A&M University economist Roland Smith. He will project how current farm program proposals will affect the agricultural economy in the next few years.

A statewide corn check-off referendum, to be held this spring will be discussed by Elbert Harp, an area agricultural consultant and former executive director of the National Grain Sorghum Producers Association. There is currently a seven-county check-off region consisting of Castro, Deaf Smith, Hale, Swisher, Farmer, Bailey and Lamb counties.

"A statewide check-off would provide more dollars to fund critical research and market development programs to benefit corn farmers across Texas," said King. "We feel it is important that every corn producer support the referendum."

The state of the ethanol industry in Texas will be discussed by Lois Wales, a spokesperson for WIFE, one of the nation's leading promoters of ethanol production and usage. Hadley Paul, president of Tropicana Energy Co. in Irving, will also speak on ethanol.

Paul's company is an ethanol supplier which anticipates widespread retail sales of ethanol-blended gasoline across the Panhandle-South Plains area in the near future. A Dimmitt convenience store already has the alternative fuel for sale. Its pumps are draped with banners which promote ethanol as a fuel which provides a new market for Texas corn farmers.

Speaking on the past year's producers board activities will be board chairman Weldon Davis. Treasurer Harold Bob Bennett will review TCPB finances, while Jo Beth Shackelford, TCGA treasurer, will discuss the growers association budget.

Conservationists say farmers favor methods

WASHINGTON (AP) - The American Farmland Trust says soil-saving methods of producing crops rate well among many farmers but that there is a high degree of skepticism about tougher federal restrictions on chemical use.

The private, non-profit conservation group said Sunday that "substantial numbers of farmers across the country are interested in, and currently employing, a variety of environmentally benign, sustainable agricultural practices."

But the report acknowledged that there are wide variations among farmers, depending on the kinds of crops involved and on geographic locations. For example, only 20 percent in one area used rotation plans while the majority in other areas followed the soil-saving practice.

The project was based on personal interviews lasting for more than an hour with 489 farmers randomly selected in five major production areas in Butte County, Calif.; Whitman County, Wash.; Renville County, Minn.; Livingston County, Ill.; and Dooley County, Georgia.

Questioners asked about methods used by the farmers in 1988, the most recently completed crop season, including their views on the potential environmental threats that might occur.

The American Farmland Trust, which was founded in 1980, said it did not design the questions or interpret results "with any hostility toward use of chemical fertilizers and pesticides."

It said the study was undertaken in preparation for the 1990 farm bill debate under way in Congress. Environmental issues, including potential hazards of agricultural chemical pollution, are expected to have high priority.

Over many years, report said, chemicals "have brought great benefits to American agriculture and consumers" and are "essential for financial viability" in most farming situations today.

"However, there is widespread evidence that an over-dependence on (chemical) use has developed and (See CONSERVATION, Page 9A)

Tests prove that N-FIX increases the nutritional and protein value as well as the TDN of grains and hay.

N-FIX reduces irrigation and energy costs due to the soils' improved tillage and increased ability to retain moisture.

N-FIX has been known to increase crop yield anywhere from 10 to 20% in normal conditions.

N-FIX is 100 percent environmentally safe and is proven effective.

N-FIX is guaranteed.

USDA re-examining drought overpayments

NEW YORK (AP) - The Agriculture Department is re-checking some payments made under the 1988 drought relief program and congressional leaders are urging policy reviews after The Associated Press found widespread misapplication of funds in the $3.9 billion emergency effort.

One New Jersey farmer has been asked to repay $100,000 after a federal agent read AP reports that checks went to corporations and farmers ineligible for disaster aid. Entire counties in California and New Mexico are being investigated as well, according to the Agriculture Department.

The AP found that the program became a one-time windfall for thousands of farmers outside drought areas whose losses were due to normal quirks of nature. Claims were approved for such common perils as insects, sand, wind, cold and fungus, even "ineffective herbicide" - all of which were outside the bounds of the drought effort.

Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., a member of the House Agriculture Committee, called the AP series "a needed story" and said Congress must try to establish safeguards to prevent problems in future agriculture disaster programs.

"We have to set up some structures," Roberts said. "That's why I think the AP series and other examples have been very beneficial. They point up the road we should not take."

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said his department's Office of Inspector General probably will investigate the 1988 relief program and likely will study the AP series, which appeared in December.

"The fact is, these kinds of programs are exceedingly difficult to administer, and they have inherent shortcomings," said Yeutter, who was interviewed recently at a wheat growers' convention in Texas. "It's not that people avoided their responsibilities or were cavalier in the implementation; it's simply that it's just not an ideal way to deal with this problem."

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the arm of the Agriculture Department that administered the program, is already checking specific misdeeds spotted by the AP, deputy administrator Dan Shaw said in Washington, D.C.

The ASCS says, however, that it won't check beyond the 22 counties in eight states the AP examined in its investigation.

"Those few that I was concerned with, we are checking to make sure corrections will be made," Shaw said.

Shaw said other counties won't be studied because ASCS officials don't believe serious problems exist nationwide. "I think (the AP) did a pretty good job," he said. "I think you came up with the same problems we were having administering the program."

But Dennis Pryslak, the New Jersey lettuce grower who was ordered to repay the aid he received, said it's unfair to single him out just because he was mentioned in an AP story.

"There's 50,000 other guys out there in the same situation and we got caught," said Pryslak.

Yeutter said he hoped to avoid future big-buck bailouts, either by improving the federally subsidized crop insurance system or creating a permanent, efficient disaster program.

"We simply cannot afford a combination of the two," Yeutter said. "The combination of mousetraps that we're using to deal with natural disasters in this country is not a very desirable combination."

If Congress chooses to finance disaster programs rather than subsidize crop insurance, the Agriculture Department will go back and examine the problems the AP found, he said.

"One could put in place permanent disaster legislation that would be a potential substitute to crop insurance," Yeutter said. "Once the administrative system was put in place, we wouldn't have the kinds of problems that were cited in your articles, or at least they'd be dramatically minimized."

The AP stories appeared amid an intensifying debate in Washington over the value of crop insurance vs. year-to-year disaster relief. Earlier this month, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, senior member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, renewed his call to strengthen crop insurance and clean up excess in farm disaster programs.

"We were begging for disaster help for Kansas wheat farmers (last year) and there were other senators fighting for the watermelon and pickle growers," said Dole spokesman Walt Riker.

"What he's saying is, let's clean up crop insurance and make it attractive for farmers to participate in. Let's not have these whole programs where the country is paying for 'ginseng root relief,'" Riker said.

Ginseng root was among the many crops eligible for disaster assistance in 1988.

Indeed, the AP study, conducted over seven months, found that payments went far beyond the initial intent, supported by almost everyone, to save Midwestern grain growers from bankruptcy. Growers collected on everything from kiwi fruit in California to Christmas trees in Connecticut. Checks were written for rain-battered tomatoes in New Jersey and washed-out bird seed in Colorado.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, defended the disaster relief program and contended the benefits to truly drought-stricken areas were "camouflaged" by abuses found by the AP.

"Legislation at best is an imperfect endeavor," de la Garza said. "Therefore there are those (mistakes) that for one reason or another fall through the cracks. That always happens when we do legislation in an emergency situation."

"I would have liked to have taken more time. I would have liked to have done more study. But there was no time. Something needed to be done."

Some problems the AP found, such as farmers "triple dipping" by collecting disaster aid, crop insurance and growing a replacement crop all on the same acreage, were corrected in the 1989 relief program, de la Garza said.

The House committee, de la Garza said, will look into the reported abuses and ask the Agriculture and Justice departments to see if fraud or other illegal acts were committed.

"Already, from word of mouth, we've been looking," de la Garza said.

Two weeks ago, the ASCS asked Pryslak to return his $100,000 in assistance within 30 days. The AP had reported that his business exceeded the $2 million revenue limit, disqualifying it from the federal program.

Pryslak, who has appealed the decision, said he gave the local ASCS office correct information and asserted he was paid through the agency's misinterpretation of the rules.

"If I knew about the $2 million ceiling, I wouldn't have taken the money," he said.

Peter DeWilde, the ASCS director for New Jersey, said errors were made on both sides.

"He didn't give us some information and some information we didn't ask for," he said. A determination of Pryslak's appeal is expected by the end of February.

"Sometimes the rules are hard to interpret, and then sometimes the rules are changed on us," DeWilde said.

"We welcome any chance to make sure these people deserved to be paid."

1989 corn crop escaped aflatoxin

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department scientist says the 1989 corn crop probably escaped the high levels of contamination by aflatoxin, a natural cancer-causing chemical that plagued growers in 1988.

Microbiologist Donald T. Wicklow of the department's Agricultural Research Service said the weather conditions necessary for unusually high aflatoxin levels generally were not present on a national scale last year. He said none has been reported since last fall's harvest.

Wicklow works for the agency's northern regional research center in Peoria, Ill. His comments were released here Thursday by the agency.

Aflatoxin is a poisonous chemical produced by two soil fungi, Aspergillus flavus and A. parasiticus. Wicklow said A. flavus has been found most commonly in peanuts and corn, especially in hot, dry weather such as occurred in 1988.

The agency said aflatoxin has been linked to cancer in laboratory animals.

Corn will not necessarily be contaminated simply because it was grown in a field that previously produced aflatoxin-tainted corn, Wicklow said. Corn will also not pick up aflatoxin from being stored in bins that previously held tainted corn.

Wicklow said concerns about aflatoxin often focus on the Southeast, much effort is today devoted to seeking ways to enable farmers to economize on use of chemicals and fertilizer," the report said.

Last September, the National Research Council issued a 450-page report, "Alternative Agriculture," which advocated reduced use of farm chemicals and more soil-saving practices such as crop rotation. The NRC report recommended changes in farm policies to help encourage the alternative methods of production.

The NRC report has drawn criticism from some quarters on grounds that some of its findings and recommendations were based on inadequate research and, in some cases, one-sided assumptions.

At its national convention in Florida recently, federation president Dean Kleckner expressed skepticism of "the concept of low-input sustainable agriculture" and alternative farming methods.

"Conventional agriculture, so carefully developed through a partnership between our land-grant colleges and farmers themselves, is indicated as inefficient and wasteful," he said. "This simply is not true."

The Agriculture Department was one of the sponsors of the American Farmland Trust study, although most of the financing came from private foundations. The USDA currently is developing LISA, or "low-input, sustainable agriculture" as an alternative to heavy use of crop chemicals and other practices that jeopardize soil and water resources.

Some research findings show that many farmers "apply excessive amounts of fertilizers or pesticides because they lack adequate information about what their fields really need or because they use very high applications as a form of insurance," the report said.

"Moreover," it added, "in some situations, the threat or actuality of ground water or surface water pollution is high enough that a reduction in the use of chemicals may be necessary for health reasons."

Crop rotation, long recognized as a way to build up soils, was used by a majority of the farmers in four of the five areas, with 54 percent to 82 percent employing the practice in 1988, the report said. The exception was in Butte County, Calif., where only 20 percent of those interviewed used rotations.

Farmers were also asked whether they followed recommendations of fertilizer dealers or those of the federal-state cooperative extension services.

"Among interviewed farmers, there were many more clients of fertilizer dealers than there were takers of advice from (the) cooperative extension service," the report said.

Although 75 percent to 90 percent of the farmers favored changes in USDA commodity programs that would permit planting more acres in rotation without losing base acres used to compute federal crop benefits, most drew the line at a regulatory crackdown on excessive chemical use.

One option would require farmers have an approved plan for managing pesticide use if crop chemicals were found in their well water. It was rejected in all five survey sites.

Warm, moist air can cause damage

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Excessive amounts of warm, moist air trapped in some homes can cause considerable damage.

Wall corners and closets collect mildew, while walls, floors and ceilings are stained and begin to decay. In time, much of the house may take on a damp or musty odor.

Moisture comes from many sources inside the home including cooking, washing, bathing, watering house plants, and the respiration and perspiration of the occupants. When this warm, moist air comes in contact with cool air or a cool surface, it condenses and forms beads or a film of moisture. This condensation has a tendency to show up on a cool window, ceiling, wall or water pipe - a condition known as sweating.

Water also enters from the outside, through pores or cracks in the foundation, a condition known as seepage. Before you can remove dampness from your home, first find its source - inside, outside or both.

To test for seepage, tape a piece of aluminum foil securely to the foundation wall where a damp spot frequently appears. Make sure all the edges are air tight. Leave it in place a day or two, then remove it. If the foil's face against the wall is damp, the problem is seepage. If the other face is damp, the problem is condensation.

During cold weather, warm, moist air tends to work its way into the colder wall spaces and, eventually, up into the attic. There it condenses on the colder inner faces of the wall or roof sheathing, ruining insulation, rotting wood framing and rusting nails.

Preventative measures include ventilation to remove excess moisture from areas where it will do damage, and insulation and vapor barriers to keep warm, moist air separated from colder outside air.

A vapor barrier is a non-permeable film (as a paint or coating), foil, plastic sheet or treated paper. Often, it's used on the face of insulation. It forms a barrier, to prevent moisture from passing through walls, ceilings or floors. A vapor barrier always faces the warm side of the structure, though in an attic, insulation without a vapor barrier is installed over existing insulation that already has a vapor barrier.

In the case of a crawl space, often a polyethylene sheet is placed over the dirt floor and concrete is poured over that. Combined with venting, this prevents moisture from rising into the structure above it.

No vapor barrier stops moisture completely. Therefore, ventilation is needed to rid the attic of moisture rising from the living space.

Attic vents provide openings to allow moisture to escape outdoors before condensing. As a rule of thumb, provide 1 square foot of unobstructed vent opening per 150 square feet of attic floor space. The key word here is "unobstructed." Louvers or screens decrease the area of the vent opening by as much as 50 percent, so allow for this when selecting a vent.

If the attic has a vapor barrier, 1 square foot of opening per 300 square feet of attic floor space should be sufficient. The vents should be placed so they provide efficient cross ventilation.

Roof vents placed on the back of the house so they are not visible from the street, and ridge vents are other options to consider. These are especially useful if you have or want a finished attic which would close off the standard gable vents.

If the vents alone are not enough, install exhaust fans to speed the job along. These fans may be installed on the roof or gable end, above a vent or in place of one. Use one that operates on an energy-saving manual switch, a time-delay switch or a humidistat switch.

Other places to consider installing exhaust fans that vent to the outside of the house are in the bathroom, laundry room and kitchen.

Moisture can be removed from the air by a dehumidifier. There are various types available, but look for one that collects a minimum of a gallon of water from the air in 24 hours.

You may also significantly reduce condensation by covering cold-water pipes with appropriate insulation.

Questions and answers

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Q. - I recently moved to a newer house and found the basement was damp. I was able to dry things out by running a dehumidifier for a few days. The problem I have is that mold keeps forming on the floor. How can I clean it off and prevent it from forming again?

A. - Mold and mildew spores are always present in the air and thrive in damp locations. A mold buildup is not very unusual in a new house due to the initial high moisture content of the building materials, which eventually dry out. To address your problem, clean mold and mildew from concrete and tiled floors and walls with a solution of 1/2 to 1 cup of household bleach to one gallon of water. Rinse with clear water, then dry. Wear gloves and avoid skin contact while cleaning. Also, keep the dehumidifier running to reduce further moisture buildup.

Q. - Our garbage disposal can't drain the dishwasher discharge fast enough so there's a momentary backup into the sink. The disposal works fine when used alone, with no backup. The plumbing downstream has been checked and the sink trap replaced. The drain lines appear to be clear. Is it possible to have a partial blockage of the disposal? If so, how is it cleaned out?

A. - Sounds like you have some sort of blockage in the drain system. The disposer itself has no way of holding any water so that is most likely not your problem. To check this, disconnect the power to the disposer, then disconnect the trap.

Look into the disposer's discharge port to make sure it's all clear. Then, with a bucket under the garbage disposer, pour some water through it to make sure it flows freely. Reconnect the drain trap and the electrical power.

If the garbage disposer appears to be clear, have a plumber or sewer cleaning company auger out your drain system. Be sure they use a motor-driven auger type clean head tool and not a hand snake. A snake will puncture a hole in the obstruction but it will not actually clean the insides of the pipe as well as an auger would.

Q. - In using lacquer, which I will be doing for the first time soon, how much denatured alcohol should be mixed with the lacquer before application?

A. - None. Lacquer thinner is the solvent for lacquer. Denatured alcohol is the solvent for shellac. Use 50 percent lacquer thinner with the lacquer. Later, when you gain experience with lacquer, you can vary the percentage. Apply the lacquer with sweeping strokes fairly quickly. Lacquer dries fast and cannot be brushed over. Rely on the second coat to take care of any tiny section you might have missed.

Q. - We will be installing a new sink in our bathroom that, according to a plumber friend of mine, will need to be vented with a new vent line. We've both sized up the situation and agree that running the new line through the existing walls will be a very difficult job entailing major demolition and reconstruction. Is there any alternative to venting the sink without this major construction project?

A. - You may be able to use a ventless or antisiphoning valve. This valve opens automatically to admit air, which prevents water from being siphoned from the trap, then closes to block the escape of sewer gas.

The valve installs behind the trap and solvent-welds to 1 1/2-inch diameter plastic pipe. It can be joined to the same diameter metal pipe if its solvent-weld adapter is discarded. Although the valve meets national plumbing code requirements, it may not meet local standards. Check before you install it. The valve sells for about $5 at hardware stores and home centers.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON
The American National Red Cross in Washington announced it has raised $98.7 million for victims of Hurricane Hugo, the California earthquake, and other disasters which the organization has been working with for more than three months.

The chairman of the Disaster

Relief Campaign, Gene Dyson, announced the start of the fund raising in September and released this statement, "Red Cross now has the money to meet our commitments to victims, but the relief efforts will take months, and in some cases years. Thank you, America, from the bottom of our hearts", concluded Dyson. "The generosity of the American spirit is truly overwhelming".

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross would like to thank everyone that contributed in any way to efforts of the Disaster Relief Fund.

All water safety instructors will have to attend an update on the new materials. There are many changes in the classes that used to be called Advanced Lifesaving. The Lubbock Chapter is offering those classes and Deaf Smith County Chapter will be offering this class.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Parks, Bare to speak at meeting

Both speakers are from Dog Patch, Ark. Bare lived in Mexico for two years and speaks Spanish fluently. She has also been to Argentina and other places in South America. She ministers in music.

Parks has written a book "I Cheated My Appointment With Death", telling her battle with cancer and her triumph.

The public is invited to attend.

TWIN STARS

NEW YORK (AP) - More than half of the stars in the night sky are actually twins.

Where the unaided eye sees only a single point of light, a telescope reveals most solitary stars to be pairs of stars orbiting each other as binary systems. These binary pairs, not the single star, appear to be the normal state of existence.

Astronomers theorize that stars become torn apart before they are fully formed as a result of the rapid spinning created when huge cosmic gas clouds are compressed by gravity. They have never seen this birth process, however, since it takes a gas cloud 100,000 years to turn into a binary system.

Managing stress topic of meeting

Veleda Study Club met recently in the home of Norma Walden with Marcella Bradley presenting the program, "Managing Stress from Morning to Night".

Bradly stated that stress is inescapable—reaching into work environment, social affairs, home life, and even intruding on sleep. Recognizing stress and successfully coping with it are processes that can be learned.

New research by Dr. Richard Lazarus indicates it is the little daily hassels that actually cause the most stress and stress-related illness. This is not to deny the impact of major setbacks but even a large portion of the stress occurring from a major crisis is due to the little daily disruptions that major stress provokes.

Bradly read a list of quick fixes such as coffee, chocolate, warm milk, sleeping pills and tranquilizers that do not "fix" stress at all but do have undesirable lasting effects.

Members participated in different sets of exercises for reducing tension and stress, such as: waking up exercises, self-massaging exercises, and going to sleep exercises. These techniques may also be used to reduce the symptoms of headaches, backaches and stiff necks.

Good sleep habits and good nutrition are essential in the body's ability to cope with stress. Each member was given a list of stress busters to help keep tension at controllable levels.

Walden led members in the club collect and roll call was answered with "My way of relieving stress".

Betty Roberts was welcomed as a new member and the club auction of white elephant gifts, held at the last meeting, netted $29.44.

Members were served refreshments from a table decorated with balloons, confetti and other New Year decorations. The refreshments were sack lunches containing sandwiches, salad, oat bran muffin and hard candy served with hot cider and coffee.

Members present were Bradley, Juanita Brown, Betty Dickson, Ruth Fish, Della Hutchins, Margaret Zinser, Betty Roberts and Norma Walden.

The next meeting will be a salad supper for the members, their husbands and guests.

It's a Secret!

But it's coming soon...to

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

After an entire week of listening to my husband say, "Sandy, remember, that no matter what happens, I still love you!", I was beginning to get very suspicious.

I quizzed him several times about his sudden declaration of love but to no avail. He just gave me a smug look and walked away.

One night after yet another proclamation of his devotion to me, I blurted out, "Okay, John Stagner, if you are having an affair or even thinking of having one, you better tell me right now. Believe me, it will be much worse on you if I find out through other sources!" Again he struggled.

After considering my statement, I said, "No, you don't have time for another woman. She would interfere with the time you spend watching football. I know, you are considering quitting your job and moving the family to Africa to live with the natives." Still no verbal response from him.

I was getting extremely agitated. "You've called all the stores in town and told them not to charge to me anymore, right?" I asked. "I know you were a little upset about my recent shopping spree but you needn't take such drastic measures."

He said nothing. I decided to let the subject drop and whatever happened, happened.

I was enlightened last Saturday night. He walked into the bedroom and handed me a copy of The Hereford Brand and asked me to read John Brooks' column. "You'd better read this now because if you are planning to make a scene, I'd just as soon you'd do it in the privacy of our home instead of at the office Monday morning," he explained.

I couldn't believe my eyes. "Babbling" had let John write a guest column about me. It wasn't fair. So what that I have been writing about my husband for two years. Apparently, Brooks was delighted that John had decided to "tell all" about me. Boy, do men stick together!

Okay, I'm a bad sport but John Stagner didn't get all the facts straight. And dear, if you are going to write something for publication, don't elaborate.

Yes, I admit to shopping for hours on end but I have never spent five-and-a-half hours shopping for "a" skirt. (A skirt and a blouse maybe)

Speech contest Feb. 10

The Toastmaster International Club met recently. Joe Don Cummings announced a speech contest at Hereford High School is planned for Feb. 10.

Applications were distributed to those interested in judging the contest.

Rocky Lee presided over the business meeting and the invocation was given by Lynn Cook.

Cook presented a discussion on "Youth Leadership". Members discussed having training sessions to help new clubs and encourage youth leadership. Members were urged to bring a guest to the next meeting.

"Down to our last dollar...again" was the topic that gave Bruce Hernandez best program speaker. Lee served as evaluator.

Joe Walters spoke on "Different strokes for different folks" with Joe Weaver evaluating.

Cummings, wordmaster, introduced "phobia" as the word. Jigger Rowland served as grammarian while Bob Lohr was table master.

Larry Leon was general evaluator; Margaret Perez, toastmaster; Cook, timer; and Margaret Perez; club secretary.

Cook and Rowland were best table topic speakers.

And, yes, I did put liquid dish soap into the dishwasher. I was frantic. The kitchen was a mess and we were expecting company in less than an hour. I didn't have time to run to the grocery store and buy Cascade so I dumped a little Joy in the soap dispenser. How was I to know that in a matter of a few minutes the kitchen and diningroom would be completely submerged in soap suds. The evening worked out nicely though, we told our guests we were enhancing the dinner party by using Lawrence Welk's bubbles as a theme.

I will also admit to burning up the old oven, but it was not because the cob webs caught on fire as John said. It hadn't been cleaned in 100 years and there was a grease fire.

John also indirectly said I was clumsy just because I ran into his dresser in the middle of the night and got a black eye. That's okay, I told everyone he punched me out.

And regarding his remark about snoring, he is still snoring after five weeks, not two nights as he wrote. And I've got the circles under my eyes to prove it.

Perhaps in his mind, I'm a little "different" from most people, but at least I don't act like a raving lunatic as he does while watching a football game.

To observe John, especially during a Super Bowl game, is like watching a character out of the movie, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." When his favorite team makes a touchdown, he claps his hands, yells and screams and then gets up from his chair, and does a little jig just before he rolls around the floor with glee. During a crucial play, you'll find him sitting on the edge of his chair in prayer, his head dripping with perspiration.

It's 30 minutes until Super Bowl XXIV airs. Now, I positively, unequivocally detest football, and have never in my life sat down and watched an entire game. However, on this special day, I plan to sneak into the livingroom just to get a glimpse of John in action. He's a lot more entertaining than television.

And he thinks I'm strange!

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine officiated during the marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Hector and Lupe Villarreal of 112 Star and is the granddaughter of Reymundo Mata of McAllen, a former Hereford resident. The bridegroom is the son of George and Gloria Madrigal of 120 Ave. D. and is the grandson of Mrs. Florence Zepeda of Hereford.

The hall was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of white, lilac and orchid.

Connie Villarreal Garcia served her sister as matron of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Ricky Madrigal.

Flower girl was Stacy Zepeda, daughter of Robert and Anna Zepeda. She carried a basket that the bride carried when she served at her sister's wedding.

Ring bearers were B.J. Zepeda, daughter of Grace and Ralph Zepeda, and Jeremiah Gavina, son of Rose and Martin Gavina.

"My Love", "Security" and "Here We Are" were vocalized by Sandy and Edward Maldonado and Phillip and Susie Madrigal. Organist, Yolanda Gonzales, played "The Wedding March" and "Flesh of My Flesh."

As her traveling costume, the bride changed into a two-piece winter white knit ensemble.

The bride, who is a student at Hereford High School, was a twirler while attending Stanton Junior High School.

The groom, a senior at HHS, is a varsity football player and a three-year letterman in track.

Wedding guests included Andrew Prieto of Austin and other friends and relatives from Levelland, Dallas, Plainview, Friona and Amarillo.

We have quite a lineup for you this week beginning with Jack Higgins' new book entitled Cold Harbour. "On a dark night in May 1944, a month before D-day, an American OSS agent floats helplessly in the sea off the coast of Brittany. When a German E-boat appears out of the fog, bearing directly down on him, Craig Osbourne knows his war, possibly his life, is over until he looks up to find himself face-to-face with a man he last saw at Harvard in 1939."

Craig's rescue plunges him into a world of cross and double cross. Cold Harbour, a tiny fishing village on the Cornish coast, has gone through an elaborate transformation under the direction of Brigadier Dougal Munro, who is willing to sacrifice everything and everyone to obtain this goal, and the fate of D-day depends on this elaborate scheme. Osbourne finds himself the key player in a plot that involves the fate of countless people, from the French Resistance and Allied espionage agents to the troops who will be embarking to invade Europe at any moment.

The Key to Midnight by Dean Kootz begins in 1968 Zurich with a group of scientists known as "The Clinic" having perfected a new form of mind control called Midnight. In Japan in 1978, millionaire investigator Alex Hunter encounters the lovely Joanna Rand, the most beautiful and exciting woman he had ever seen. The thing that disturbed him was the certainty that he had seen her before in a picture of a senator's daughter who had vanished 10 years ago. Slowly Hunter helps awaken Joanna to the frightening fact that she is not the person she thought she was. Her mind, her memories have all been created for her. What could she have known that was so important? How could the true past be buried so completely.

A Ruling Passion by Judith Michael takes the reader into the high-stakes world of television broadcasting. Valerie Sterling's life is shattered by the death of her husband and the mysterious loss of her fortune. Now pampered socialite Valerie, determined to make it on her own, becomes an investigative reporter at the cable TV network, owned by an old college flame Nicholas Fielding. When Valerie begins to investigate the hugely profitable TV ministry owned by Nicholas' ex-wife, Sybille Enderly, dangerous passions begin to stir. It is soon learned that Sybille is a woman ruled by hatred and envy and will stop at nothing to see Valerie destroyed.

Take care of your legs

Just when you thought you'd heard of everything, along comes a new beauty predicament to tangle with: Leg dandruff!

It's those annoying white flakes that poke out of your chic black hose at the most inopportune moment, like the formal dinner dance when you're wearing that elegant dress with a slit up to there...or the uncontrollable leg itch that attacks from knee to ankle right in the middle of the job interview you've been waiting for all your life.

Leg dandruff can result from improper care of your precious gams-insufficient moisturizing, harsh hair removal methods, sunburn and winter's drying indoor heat, among others. What's a woman to do? Heed the following leg-care advice:

Since hair removal is a must, why not try shaving? It's the fastest and most economical method, and if you use a sharp, fresh razor and an emollient-rich shave cream, your legs will be silky smooth and flake-free.

If you're out in the sun any time at all, make sure your legs are protected with a high SPF sunscreen to prevent burning and the inevitable peeling that follows. Be particularly vigilant at the beach or any time your bare legs will be exposed to an extra dose of those ultra violet rays.

Women who live in cold climates should be extra careful to stave off winter's double whammy: icy cold air outdoors and dry, overheated air indoors. There's only one way to keep those itchy winter flakies at bay: Moisturize!

Before you go to bed at night, apply a liberal amount of moisturizer.

REAL LIMITATIONS

By Bob Ware
 "I can do anything anybody else can" is not an accurate statement. People, especially children, are often told, "You can do anything anybody else can", and this is another inaccurate conclusion. Here is another inaccurate statement, "We can learn to do anything anyone else can". It may be that most of us could do better, if we tried; however, there are things that many of us can never learn to do. Here is another erroneous conclusion, "You can do anything you want to do, if your desire to do it is great enough". Great desire is essential to accomplishment, but not even great desire can erase our 'real' limitations.

It is right that we should develop our potentials, our capacities and our possibilities the best we can. In this process, we are moving toward big trouble if we refuse to identify and accept our 'real' limitations. Much harm is done by the people who insist upon trying to do the things that they cannot do, while they neglect the things they can do well.

Do we have any idea how many young people have been and are being ruined for life by being told, "You can do anything anybody else can"? It is very essential that individual differences be identified and accepted, and that these young people and all others be accepted for what they are. Of course, all of us should honestly try to do our best, and everybody be satisfied with this.

What is wrong with the reality of individual differences? The answer is there is nothing wrong with this reality, except we make it seem wrong. How could it be any other way? Would it not be a strange, strange world if all of us were exactly the same in ability, in interest, in motivation, and in what we accomplish?

The sooner, and the more cheerfully we accept our real limitations, while doing our honest best; the sooner we can live a happy, satisfactory life.

In 1780, the population of the U.S. was 2,781,000.

YOUR EYES

COMPUTER VISION

Making computer use less demanding on your eyes requires a proper visual environment.

If possible, illuminate the room with indirect lighting. The computer screen should be 3 to 4 times brighter than the ambient light in which you are working. To avoid glare, keep bright light sources out of your field of vision and be sure the monitor has an anti-glare screen. Experiment with the contrast and brightness of the monitor until you find the most comfortable combination for your eyes. Remember to adjust your chair so that the screen is 14 to 20 inches from your eyes and the top of the screen is below eye level.

If you find yourself affected by chronic eye strain, arrange for an optometric examination. The cause may be more complicated than just the physical setup of your computer monitor.

If We Ran This Ad On Radio, You'd Only Have 30 Seconds To Hear It.

Now you'd only have 25 seconds, and you wouldn't be able to go back and look at the opening line or pause (19...18...17...) to consider its significance. You wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with this advertisement and it wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with you. In fact, if we tried to say just this much in a 30-second radio advertisement, throwing in only a brief mention that newspapers offer coupons, give you great flexibility of size, and can leave a lasting impression on your customers, we'd run out of...

Special observance planned

St. Anthony's Catholic School has scheduled several events during its Appreciation Week, Jan. 28-Feb. 3. This observance is being held in conjunction with National Appreciation Day for Catholic Schools set for Jan. 31. The schedule includes the teachers appreciation day Monday; a tea for the public at the school, Tuesday; National Appreciation Day, Wednesday; open house from 7-8 p.m., Thursday; and a Mass, Friday. Declaring the local observance is Mayor Wes Fisher. Present for the proclamation signing were students, Stephen Wright and Sammie Sciumbato, and St. Anthony's School Principal Ann Lueb.

National Appreciation Day Jan. 31

The National Catholic Education Association, representing 9,000 elementary and secondary schools nationwide, has declared Wednesday, Jan. 31, as a National Appreciation Day for Catholic Schools.

The theme of the day is "Parents Choice - Catholic Schools" and all Americans are encouraged to celebrate the day by wearing a green and orange button with this slogan.

Almost three million students attend Catholic schools in this country, representing a $10 billion annual gift to the nation. While providing a value-oriented education, Catholic schools also deliver a sound academic program. Studies by the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) show that Catholic school students score substantially higher than public school students on reading, mathematics, and science tests.

The tradition of Catholic schools dates to 1606 when Franciscans opened a Catholic school "to teach reading, mathematics and the principles of the Catholic religion." Catholic schools spread throughout the territories and were the first schools opened in Louisiana, California, Kansas, North Dakota, Ohio, Kentucky and the District of Columbia.

A landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1925 preserved the right of parents to choose the school of their choice for their children. The upcoming anniversary of this key case, Pierce vs. The Society of Sisters, adds special impact to the theme of the National Appreciation Day for Catholic Schools. While many educators and politicians continue to debate the concept of parental choice in education, the U.S. Constitution, in fact, insures that this choice applies to ANY school and not only public schools.

During the past 400 years, Catholic schools have educated millions of students and provided this country with great leaders, strong citizens and good neighbors. On Jan. 31, Americans will have an opportunity to express their gratitude to these schools and educators for their outstanding contribution to this country, by wearing the bright, small button with four centuries of history behind it: "Parents Choice - Catholic Schools."

Dyslexia program presented at meeting

La Madre Mia Study Club met in the home of Barbara Manning recently with Marlene Watson presenting a program on dyslexia.

Watson explained dyslexia as a disturbance of the ability to read and how it affects people. She gave ways to recognize if persons have dyslexia. She spoke of the different ways to help that are available today. She explained how each exercise is given to help her students overcome dyslexia.

Watson told why she became interested and decided to enter the field of dyslexia. She received her training in Lubbock.

President Carolyn Baxter conducted the business meeting. Debbie Bentley served as co-hostess. The social committee reported a Valentine party at the home of Nancy Paetzold on Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m. for club members.

The project committee ask for suggestions for using the home tour money. The club voted for the money to go to Christmas lights for the Chamber of Commerce.

Betty Lady announced a tea honoring Jean Chapman, Hereford's first exchange student, will be on April 14.

Members present were Joyce Alfred, Carolyn Baxter, Francyne Bromlow, Merle Clark, Mary Herring, Sharon Hodges, Betty Lady, Manning, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Paetzold, Susan Robbins, Tricia Sims, Georgia Sparks, Debbie Tardy, Betty Taylor, Marlene Watson, Mary Beth White, and Bentley.

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) - Paul Newman turns 65 today, and workers at his food company, Newman's Own, plan to make sure he doesn't ignore it.

They were busy making a huge popcorn cake to present to the actor today.

"I think he's just going to avoid his birthday," said author A.E. Hotchner, executive vice president of Newman's Own and a good friend of Newman's.

The recipe for the cake comes straight from Newman's Own Gourmet Popcorn Recipe Book, a book put out by Newman's food company.

"I received a bachelor's degree and worked as an accountant prior to enrolling at TSTI-Amarillo. The in-depth knowledge and practical skills that I learned, plus the opportunity to work on the latest computer equipment in TSTI-Amarillo's computer electronics technology program opened the door for a new and rewarding career."

Social Security

If you have limited income and resources, supplemental security income (SSI) may be able to help. Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo said today.

SSI is a Federal program administered by the Social Security Administration, but financed from general revenues, not from Social Security taxes, Talbot said.

It makes monthly payments to eligible aged, blind, and disabled people. People who receive SSI may qualify for other benefits too, such as Medicaid, food stamps, and other social services.

For more information or to apply for SSI, call toll-free 1-800-234-5772. The Amarillo Social Security office is located in Sunset Center. The office is open weekdays 9 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) - Filmmaker Francis Ford Coppola and one of his film companies sought bankruptcy protection from creditors, but his filming of the third "Godfather" movie continued in Rome.

Coppola and Zoetrope Productions filed separately Thursday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Santa Rosa under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Act.
