Meno says changes coming in programs

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - In the wake of a new ranking system showing hundreds of schools with low student performance, Texas Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno says he expects changes in academic programs.

A Texas Education Agency list released last week, which still is being refined, cited 363 schools in Texas as having "clearly unacceptable" performance. No more than 20 percent of their students passed the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills given to fourth-, eighth- and 10th-graders this spring. The schools, which are among 6,208 Texas campuses, could be shut down in two years if they don't shape up.

But Meno said Wednesday that the only way he would expect low-performing schools to be closed would be "where someone refused to acknowledge the fact that they had a problem and refused to take any corrective action on it."

"What I expect is going to come out of this now ... is that you're going to see very substantial changes in programs in order to come up with the changes in performance," he said. "And those will not only be at the local level. Some of them will be at the state level."

Another 277 schools were rated either exemplary or recognized for meeting higher state standards. Among other criteria, a 90 percent passing rate on the skills test was required for an exemplary rating, and 65 percent for a recognized rating.

The biggest number of schools - 5,568 - didn't fall into the other categories and were called "acceptable."

Meno said of the schools in the lowest category, "I certainly am disappointed that that's the case. That happens to be the reality, however."

He added that if the ranking system had been implemented several years ago, "It would have been even more that would have been in that category."

"The issue is that we're making progress, but that we need to draw some lines in the sand in terms of clearly defining what is going to be unacceptable," Meno said.

Local school officials have been frustrated in part by being evaluated at different times on different criteria, he said.

But from now on, Meno said, "It's going to be very clear." Rules for next year's evaluation will be out by Oct. 1 so everyone will have advance notice, he said. The ranking system was in a law approved this year.

June trade deficit up

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. merchandise trade deficit soared 44 percent in June to $12.1 billion, the worst imbalance in nearly six years, the government said today. Exports slumped and imports hit a record high.

The Commerce Department said the increase from May was produced by a 3.3 percent drop in exports to $37.6 billion and a 5.1 percent jump in imports to a record $49.7 billion.

It was the largest monthly trade deficit since October 1987, during the worst year ever for American trade.

The decline in exports reflected a significant slump in purchases by European countries in the midst of economic downturns, including Germany, France and Britain.

The surge in imports reflected an increase in U.S. purchases of Japanese goods. Americans bought more foreign computers, semiconductors, aircraft, clothing, televisions and stereos.

The U.S. deficit with Japan jumped 15.5 percent in June to $4.3 billion, accounting for more than a third of the total trade gap.

During the 1990-91 recession, trade was one of the few bright spots in the U.S. economy, with the deficit falling to $66.7 billion in 1991. But since then, economic weakness in Japan and Europe has hurt U.S. sales. At the same time, as the U.S. economy has begun recovering, American consumers and businesses have begun purchasing more foreign goods.

The annual deficit climbed to $84.5 billion last year and is on track to top $110 billion this year. The trade gap for the first six months of the year, $56.6 billion, was 55 percent bigger than the same period a year ago.

The only thing that has saved U.S. exports from declining even further has been brisk sales to Latin America, especially Mexico, and to developing nations elsewhere. However, in June, the U.S. surplus with Mexico fell 49 percent to $128 million.

The Clinton administration is promising that export sales to Mexico will blossom if Congress approves the North American Free Trade Agreement, establishing the world's largest free trade zone, stretching from the Yucatan to the Yukon.

Ban on cancer-causing pesticides to be altered

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a move long sought by the agriculture and chemical industries, the Clinton administration is proposing to undo a blanket ban on cancer-causing pesticides in processed foods, according to interest groups who have been briefed by officials.

Instead the administration seeks a standard that would allow small amounts of carcinogens if the government determines they do not pose a significant health risk.

Administration officials "described to us that they would support a negligible risk policy," said Sherwin Gardner, senior vice president for the Grocery Manufacturers of America. "Negligible risk" would be defined as one added cancer case for every million people.

It is the most controversial aspect of a broader food-safety legislative package being prepared by the administration. If enacted by Congress, it would overturn the so-called Delaney Clause of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which prohibits even negligible amounts of carcinogens in processed foods such as applesauce, ketchup and juices.

Already, environmental and consumer groups who were briefed by government officials Tuesday and Wednesday are condemning the move, while industry representatives who attended separate briefing sessions praised it.

"We cannot accept a reform package that undermines a central public health concept embodied in the Delaney Clause," said Jay Feldman of the National Coalition Against Misuse of Pesticides. "If we allow that provision to be repealed, we undermine the longterm goal of getting cancer-causing pesticides out of the food."

"We feel strongly that carcinogens should not be in the food supply," said Polly Hoppins, director of World Wildlife Fund's agricultural pollution prevention project. But she applauded some other aspects of the administration's plan as a "good start."

Mark Nestlen of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture said the administration was moving in "a positive direction to make the changes in pesticide regulation that have been needed for several years."

The Environmental Protection Agency, Agriculture Department and Food and Drug Administration are working together on the food safety legislation, which is to be presented in congressional hearings on Sept. 9.

According to a list of administration goals obtained by The Associated Press, the legislation also would:

- Prohibit export of pesticides that are banned on crops in this country.
- Promote development of "safer pest management alternatives."
- Make it easier to bar pesticides that are found to pose health risks.
- Seek more funds to speed EPA's pesticide registration program.

The document did not discuss repealing the Delaney law, which both industry and environmental groups said was described by officials as all but sure to be in the legislative package.

EPA spokeswoman Loretta Ucelli refused to comment on the package, saying it was still being developed.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., have proposed amending the pesticide law to allow the one in a million cancer risk while broadening and stiffening the law in other areas.

Farming, grocery and chemical industry groups have long maintained that modern monitoring equipment can detect such tiny amounts of a pesticide that foods with perfectly safe residue levels are being kept off the market. They argue the 1958 Delaney Clause is out of date.

Boy spends two days in wrecked car

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) - A 5-year-old Kilgore boy survived a car accident that killed his mother and clung to a ravine through two nights without food or water before he was found by authorities.

Derrick Brittain, who suffered head and facial injuries, spent his birthday in the ant-infested gully about 40 feet away from the body of his mother, Vicky Brittain, 22.

Authorities say the fact that Derrick survived for three days in the blistering heat is a miracle. Tuesday's temperatures were near 100 degrees.

Trooper Jim McCubbin, a 29-year veteran in law enforcement, said this is the first time he has seen a severely injured survivor live for an extended period of time without food or water.

The crash occurred when the Brittain's car ran off the road at about 10:30 p.m. Monday and hit several trees. The vehicle was hidden beneath brush and tree limbs that had fallen on it during the crash.

Officers believe the child was wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash, because the belt was found still buckled.

Still he apparently crawled from the wreckage and made it about 40 feet from the car before collapsing, McCubbin said.

Officers found Derrick about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday about 20 yards from the highway in a ravine, covered by fire ants and mbumbling.

Trooper Bob Lindley said it sounded like the child was saying, "Help me. Help me."

New stop signs up at intersections here

Traffic traveling any direction at two intersections in Hereford now must stop before proceeding.

Four-way stop signs have been installed at Plains and Hickory and at 16th and Avenue F.

The change at the intersections was approved recently by the Hereford City Commission and the signs were installed Wednesday, reported City Manager Chester Nolen.

Police Chief David Wagner said Thursday that patrol cars will remind motorists of the changes at the intersections.

Other traffic signs to help motorists and pedestrians in school areas have been ordered and will be put in place as soon as possible, Wagner said.

"We can't enforce no parking on Bowie Street, yet, because the signs have not arrived," Wagner added. The City Commission agreed earlier this summer to ban parking on the street between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on school days.

He also pointed out that 20-mile-per-hour speed limits will be imposed around Hereford High School but, again, the necessary signs have not been delivered.

Wagner expects all the signs to be received next week and installed as soon as possible.

$70,000 tax rebate check up 14.9 percent over 1992

State Comptroller John Sharp this week reported monthly sales tax rebates have been distributed in the amount of $182.3 million, an increase of 15.9 percent over a year ago, to 1,069 Texas cities and 109 counties.

The city of Hereford's August check is for $70,965, an increase of 14.9 percent over the payment a year ago. The rebates are based on the 1 percent sales taxes in June. The 1993 payments are now $456,486, up 3.4 percent from a year ago.

Deaf Smith County's sales and use tax, based on the half-cent sales tax, was $36,042. This was up 5 percent over the same time a year ago. The 1993 payments total $234,847, up 2.8 percent over last year at this time.

Sharp said employment in Texas has continued to rise from last year.

"As the national economy recovers, increased consumer spending has caused sales tax rebates to increase," said Sharp.

Construction continuing

Kirk Badrow, an employee of Southwest General Contractors of Amarillo, checks his load of door knobs as he passes through the halls of the new BMA of Hereford kidney dialysis center on Wednesday. Construction on the facility is continuing. Once completed, the 10-station dialysis center will serve clients from Hereford and the area.

Morales: PUC can change SPS rates without hearing

AUSTIN -- State utility regulators can determine that rates set by Southwestern Public Service Co. are unreasonable and can set temporary rates without holding a hearing, state Attorney General Dan Morales has determined.

According to documents filed this week with the Public Utility Commission by Morales' office, testimony showed the electric company which provides service to the Panhandle is over-earning by about $100,000 a day.

Hereford is among the 75 Texas cities served by SPS. The AG's office said that the commission has the discretion to protect consumers and "should do so in this case."

Many of the cities served by SPS have intervened in a case where the PUC is seeking to reduce the company's rates by more than $35 million.

The case began last year when the utility commission's general counsel conducted an inquiry into whether or not the utility's rates were reasonable.

SPS has said that the PUC cannot take action on rates until after a formal hearing and that the AG's motion would result in unlawful retroactive ratemaking.

The case is set for a hearing on Aug. 31 before a PUC hearing examiner.

Republicans jockeying for position as 1994 state campaigns nearing not be a better time to run. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison will be to the Republican Party what Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has been to the Democrats for so many years - good for her party's candidates all the way down the ticket," Smith said.

The Senate race for a full, six-year term will top the ballot next year. Former Democratic attorney general Jim Mattox, who had considered challenging appointed Sen. Bob Krueger this year, is considered a likely challenger to Mrs. Hutchison.

In addition to that race, the top seven state offices, along with seats on the Railroad Commission, Texas Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals will be up for grabs.

Ms. Hughes said she doubted that Mrs. Hutchison or Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry would draw GOP primary foes, but she said she expects Republicans to line up eagerly for the other slots.

With a filing deadline in early January, candidates already are sizing up their prospects.

Public Utility Commissioner Marta Greytok, whose appointment term on that regulatory panel is up Sept. 1, has been mentioned as a potential challenger to three-term Democratic Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

Harris County District Judge Pat Lykos is among several people being suggested to challenge Democratic Attorney General Dan Morales.

All but Pickens have said they expect to decide by Labor Day. Pickens has indicated he will decide by November.

According to GOP activists and others, Republicans are looking at most other statewide races.

State Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, reportedly is considering a challenge to Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock.

Diane Rath of San Antonio, treasurer of the state Republican Party, has said she expects to decide next month whether to run for state treasurer.

Public Utility Commissioner Marta Greytok, whose appointment term on that regulatory panel is up Sept. 1, has been mentioned as a potential challenger to three-term Democratic Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

Birth parents will not give up fight

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - The couple who lost their daughter in a hospital baby swap 14 years ago say they'll keep fighting to be a part of Kimberly Mays' life - and a part of their grandchildren's lives, too, if it comes to that.

Ernest and Regina Twigg are "entitled to have contact with their own offspring," their lawyer, John Blakely, insisted on Wednesday despite a judge's ruling that Kimberly cannot be forced to visit her birth parents.

Siding with nurture over nature, Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan declared, "The Twigg's have no legal interest in, or right to, Kimberly Mays." He pronounced Robert Mays, the man who raised her since birth, her legal father.

Family law specialists praised the decision for putting the interest of the child ahead of biology, which normally gives parents a powerful claim in court.

"I hope everybody just lets her be a normal teen-ager and get on with her life. ... That's all she wants," her lawyer Arthur Ginsburg said.

Kimberly, vacationing at an undisclosed location, was "yipping and yelping" for joy when she learned of the ruling, he said. "She wanted to kiss the judge."

Blakely said he will appeal all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

"If Kimberly has children of her own, the Twigg's will be the biological grandparents," he said. "They have some rights to those children, too."

In another closely watched Florida case - that of Shawn Russ, or Gregory K - a state appeals court ruled Wednesday that minors cannot sue on their own to "divorce" their parents. But the court upheld the 13-year-old's "divorce" from his mother because his guardian and others had also petitioned on his behalf.

In Kimberly's case, Dakan went out of his way to say she had the legal right on her own to seek independence from her birth parents.

Kimberly was switched with another baby after her birth in 1978 at a Wauchula hospital. She was sent home with Mays and his wife, and the Twigg's took home a girl they called Arlena.

The swap came to light in 1988, when Arlena died of a heart defect and genetic tests showed she wasn't related to the Twigg's. The Twigg's tracked Kimberly down, and blood tests proved she was their daughter. The two families have been fighting over the girl ever since.

Kimberly eventually sought a "divorce," bluntly saying she wanted nothing more to do with the Twigg's after Mrs. Twigg repeatedly voiced on television, in newspapers and in a book - her unproven suspicions that Mays was involved in the switch and was an abusive father.

After a weeklong trial, the judge said Kimberly would suffer lasting harm if she were forced to visit her birth parents.

Dakan criticized Mrs. Twigg, saying, "It would be difficult to conclude that this conduct showed substantial concern for the welfare of Kimberly." He said there is now a "chasm" between the girl and her birth parents "which may never be bridged."

He refused even to declare formally that the Twigg's are Kimberly's biological parents, and said the 14-year-old's request for a "divorce" is therefore moot.

"It is over," Mays said. "I almost feel like I've had cancer for five years and they found a cure. They've cut a big, bad thing out of my life."

Connecticut Judge Charles Gill, founder of the National Task Force for Children's Constitutional Rights, praised the ruling. "The best interest of children should be paramount, and this will go a long way in helping other judges reach the same conclusions," he said.

Mays' first wife died of cancer in 1981. The judge's ruling clears the way for Mays' current wife, Darlena, to adopt Kimberly.

Richards' travel plans draw Republican fire

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards' plan to travel with key state officials to meet and talk with citizens has drawn fire from Republicans.

"She is charging the taxpayers of Texas for her and her fellow Democrats' re-election campaign with this program," State Republican Party executive director Karen Hughes said Wednesday.

"The people of Texas don't want a traveling road show," Ms. Hughes added.

Bill Cryer, a spokesman for Richards, said Ms. Hughes' comments were "totally ridiculous."

He said Richards has invited Republican state officials to join her in the daylong seminars that will start Sept. 2 in the East Texas city of Carthage.

"I would hope the Republicans would want to go out and meet the people and listen to their concerns," Cryer said.

Ms. Hughes said the party would not advise Republican officials on whether to participate in the seminars. "That's up to their (individual) judgment," she said.

Richards said earlier that she will travel with legislators and state agency heads around the state to answer questions and address citizens' concerns.

"We hear more and more that the citizens are disenchanted with government," she said. "They feel that government doesn't listen, doesn't help and is out of touch."

The officials will be available at a central location in the community and later will participate in a public forum with Richards.

"As I travel around the state, I have been told of instance after instance in which someone has had an unpleasant experience or lack of attention from the government their tax dollars support," Richards said.

First-time claims totaled a revised 331,000 during the week ended Aug. 7, rather than the 332,000 originally estimated.

Twenty-six states and territories reported decreases in regular claims during the week ended Aug. 7, and 27 recorded increases.

States reporting the biggest declines were New York, 4,512; Georgia, 2,938; Alabama, 2,751; Missouri, 2,184; and Iowa, 1,916.

States with the largest increases were California, 6,343; Tennessee, 1,441; Puerto Rico, 1,178; Mississippi, 1,019; and Kansas 972.

First-time claims drop

WASHINGTON (AP) - The number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits dropped by 6,000 last week to the lowest level since February, the government said today.

The Labor Department said new applications for unemployment insurance totaled 325,000, the smallest since a similar number of initial claims was filed during the week ended Feb. 13.

It was the third straight weekly decline. Many economists had predicted in advance of the report that claims would be up slightly.

The report also showed that

FNB selected for listing as 'Fortress Bank' of state

Texas is blessed with a significant number of healthy banks that possess very strong balance sheets and solid earnings, reports The Texas Independent Banker magazine.

The magazine started a rating system last year to recognize what it calls "Fortress Banks of Texas," and First National Bank of Hereford is one of 114 banks in the state to be selected on the coveted list.

Year-end bank reports are analyzed on the basis of a number of factors, including adjusted equity-to-assets in excess of 10.25 percent; return on average assets of 1.3 percent or more, and total assets exceeding $15 million.

With the improving economy in Texas and the sharp downturn in interest rates, reports the magazine, the financial performance and health of the Texas banking industry has improved considerably "since the dreary days of 1990."

TEXAS LOTTERY

AUSTIN (AP) - No tickets matched all six numbers from Lotto Texas Wednesday night, meaning the jackpot will swell to an estimated $25 million for Saturday night's drawing.

Wednesday's numbers were 3, 32, 33, 35, 44 and 45. A ticket with all six numbers would have paid about $17 million.

But the secretary of state's office, which administers the lottery, said 160 tickets had five numbers correct. Each of those tickets pays $2,041.

There were 8,523 tickets with four correct numbers, paying $138 each. There were 191,202 with three numbers, worth $3 each.

Lotto sales top $730 million since the game began last November.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: I am on vacation, but I have left behind some of my favorite columns that you may have missed the first time around. I hope you enjoy them.--Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: So many times while reading your columns these past several years, I have thought about the things I missed from my own parents. Here are a few things they did NOT do for me.

They didn't let me do whatever I wanted, whenever I wanted -- until I was old enough to handle my life.

They didn't shower me with things, things and more things. For some reason, they didn't believe it served any useful purpose.

They didn't pass up an opportunity to teach me the value of money and the benefits (both physical and moral) of hard work.

They didn't try to tell me what friends to choose or which career to follow. They decided I was the best judge of that.

They never failed to listen to me when I had a problem, nor did they refuse to give me sound advice when I asked. And when I DIDN'T want advice or help, they didn't offer it.

They didn't try to spare me the pain of making mistakes when I was trying to grow up. At the same time, they left no doubt about their love for me.

So often, when I read the sad letters in your column from confused, unhappy, overindulged kids, I end up wishing more parents wouldn't do for their kids what my parents didn't do for me. God bless 'em.--Love My Folks

DEAR LOVE: From your description, they have earned your love. Thanks for sharing.

print and settle an argument.--Six in Saratoga

DEAR SIX: In what country? Co-ed bathing in the nude is acceptable in certain cities in Europe. Naked from the waist up is OK for females in other European cities. Generally, in the United States, both tops and bottoms are required for girls who have reached puberty. (Age doesn't count anymore. It's a matter of "development.")

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 3-year-old son is healthy, happy, well-adjusted and very precocious. The problem is that whenever I tell him to take his nap, pick up his toys or eat something he doesn't like (he hates all vegetables), the boy inflicts pain on himself.

For example, last week, he bit his lip until it bled. He also pulls chunks of hair out of his head. Today he banged his head on the floor because I relieved him of a sharp knife he took from the kitchen drawer.

This child has a baby sister 6 months old. He is so jealous of the little girl I dare not leave him alone with her. I'd like some advice on whether to spank the boy or simply put him by himself.--R.R.L.

DEAR R.R.L.: Your opening sentence contradicts the rest of your letter. A child who bites his lip until it bleeds, pulls chunks of hair out of his head and bangs his head on the floor in neither well-adjusted nor happy. Punishment is not the answer. Take the boy to a doctor for evaluation. Your pediatrician can direct you.

Auburn gets two years probation

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) - When former Auburn player Eric Ramsey first detailed his pay-for-play allegations, coach Pat Dye predicted his program would escape NCAA sanctions. Dye, who was forced out because of the scandal, was wrong. Two years after the allegations surfaced, the NCAA on Wednesday levied two years' probation on Auburn after investigating Ramsey's allegations and finding them true. The sanctions include a one-year television blackout and a voluntary agreement by Auburn to reduce its football scholarships. The east Alabama school, set among rolling hills and farmland, is now one of the NCAA's most heavily penalized schools.

The sanctions stemmed from secret recordings made by Ramsey. The former defensive back asked for and got money from coaches and boosters when playing for Dye in 1987-90 and taped some of the transactions. With the probation, Auburn will not be eligible to play in bowls or win the Southeastern Conference championship for the next two seasons. SEC officials estimate the sanctions could cost Auburn $2 million to $3 million in conference money. NCAA infractions committee chairman David Swank said the "death penalty" did not apply in Auburn's case because the football wrongdoing occurred before the basketball program was placed on probation. If Auburn President William Muse had not taken corrective steps, Swank said, the penalties on the football program would have been more severe. Muse and coach Terry Bowden both expressed relief after the sanctions were announced. "There is no more uncertainty," Muse said. "We know what has to be done."

Bowden, whose selection as Dye's replacement was seen by some as a last resort for the controversy-plagued Auburn program, talked resolutely about the future. "Even to a coach, there's some comfort in the fact that you know what your obstacles are," said Bowden, whose team opens the season Sept. 2 against Mississippi. The NCAA found Auburn committed six major rules violations. Three involved giving Ramsey cash payments, including bonuses for game performances. A fourth cited Dye's program for a lack of proper institutional control. The other two - new to the case and provided to the NCAA by Auburn itself - cited Auburn for allowing athletes to play without meeting all eligibility requirements and exceeding the number of permissible grants-in-aid during 1988-89 and 1990-91. Muse said only one or two players actually competed while not fully eligible. Dye, forced to resign after the 1992 season, didn't appear at a news conference Wednesday. Instead he issued a statement that admitted "management mistakes and mistakes of judgment." The former coach, now a special assistant to Muse, said he had not intentionally violated any rules. But the NCAA infractions committee report said that under Dye's leadership, "there was an attitude within the athletic department, from the athletic director-head football coach down to the assistant coaches, that even though information was provided to a coach concerning a possible violation of NCAA rules, unless there was absolute and concrete evidence of a violation, there was no need to report such a violation."

Auburn can choose to begin the one-year TV blackout now or delay it until the 1994 season. Muse said a decision would be made soon. The probation period begins Nov. 23 and effectively covers the 1993 and 1994 seasons. The NCAA noted that Auburn, since 1956 and prior to the current case, has been placed on probation in a variety of sports covering 10 years and is one of only three universities placed on probation six times.

Tech returns majority of high-octane offense

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Nine Texas Tech starters are returning to the offensive lineup that last year averaged 423 yards per game. "Our offense last year was the best we've had at this school," said coach Spike Dykes, in his seventh year coaching the Red Raiders. "The guys who made it work are back." One key: All-American Lloyd Hill. Hill, a senior split end, led the nation's receivers in 1992 with an average of 114.6 yards per game. Hill fueled the offense by catching 76 passes, 12 of them touchdowns. And he refuses to be intimidated by a schedule that includes consecutive games against five bowl qualifiers: Nebraska, Georgia, Baylor, Texas A&M and North Carolina State. "They put their pants on the same way as we do," Hill said. "We all have to play the same game." Texas Tech opens its 1993 season Sept. 4 at home against Pacific. "If we're not careful, we start thinking about the five-game bowl stretch," Dykes cautioned. "If we do that, we're not going to win the first ballgame." The Red Raiders won their last three games in 1992 to finish 4-3 in the Southwest Conference and 5-6 overall. Dykes will be leaning heavily on Hill, senior quarterback Robert Hall and junior running back Byron "Bam" Morris. Hall, who missed three and a half games with a bruised shoulder last year, underwent arthroscopic surgery at the end of spring workouts. The joint has healed, Dykes said. Hall completed 51 percent of his passes for 1,645 yards and 10 touchdowns last season. "That's a guy who is very, very talented," Dykes said. "His shoulder is fine. He's a good field general." Jason Clemmons, a senior, stepped in when Hall was hurt to help beat Texas Christian 31-28 and Southern Methodist 39-25. The victory over the Horned Frogs came when Clemmons threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Hill with three seconds remaining. On the ground, Morris rushed for 222 yards in a snowstorm the last game of the season in Texas Tech's 44-35 victory over Houston. Morris, 6-1 and 235 pounds, rushed for 1,279 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Defensively, Texas Tech lost six starters, including All-SWC free safety Tracy Saul. Dykes has switched to a 4-4 defensive scheme he hopes is better suited to the speedy sophomores and transfers who must replace 12 lettermen. Senior leadership will come from defensive end Shawn Jackson. At 6-4 and 240 pounds, Jackson last season tallied 55 tackles, including 11 sacks. Injuries plagued the lineup last year, when the defense gave up 418 yards and 30.2 points per game. The same defense never started together in back-to-back games. "We played so many players, we never developed a personality," Dykes said. "We never got in sync."

Campanelli sues Cal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Former California coach Lou Campanelli filed a $5 million federal suit against the university, claiming his firing violated due process rights and damaged his reputation so badly he can't find a job.

University of California regents, athletic director Bob Bockrath and vice chancellor Dan Boggan are named as defendants. Campanelli was fired Feb. 8.

Jordan killers kept separate

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) - The two teens accused of killing Michael Jordan's father have been separated from other inmates in the county jail because of concerns about their safety. "We are keeping them in security cells - not in isolation - for their own protection," said Mark Locklear, a chief investigator for the Robeson County Sheriff's Department. "The Jordan family is well-liked. We don't want another Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby thing on our hands," he said. "These are threats that could easily be carried out." Daniel Andre Green of Lumberton, N.C., and Larry Martin Demery of Rowland, N.C., both 18, have been charged with first-degree murder in the death of James Jordan. Authorities contend the men killed the father of the NBA superstar July 23 as he napped in his car alongside U.S. 74 near Lumberton, about 80 miles south of Raleigh. Locklear said he has heard inmates, some in jail awaiting trial on homicide charges, urge jailers: "Send them back to our cell block. We'll save the state some money." The two men have been told of the threats, and one asked to be separated from the other inmates, Locklear said.

Boston can't gain despite Darwin's 1-hitter

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Boston wins when Danny Darwin nearly pitches a no-hitter. Detroit wins when it rallies for six runs in the ninth inning. Baltimore wins when it ends an eight-game losing streak. Still, all three teams are no closer to first place and neither is anyone else because Toronto never seems to lose.

The Blue Jays won their fifth in a row Wednesday night, bouncing back from a four-run deficit to beat Cleveland 7-6 in 11 innings.

The only change in the AL East standings was the size of Toronto's lead. The Blue Jays are two games ahead of New York, which lost to Texas 4-2, and remain 4 1/2 ahead of Boston and 6 1/2 in front of Baltimore.

Darwin stopped Boston's three-game losing streak, and came close to the first no-hitter at Fenway Park in 28 years. He gave up only one hit - a one-out triple off the center-field wall in the eighth inning by Dan Pasqua - as the Red Sox downed Chicago 5-0.

Pasqua, batting only .182, lofted a long drive that hit just inches over the outstretched glove of 5-foot-10 Billy Hatcher.

"I just made a bad pitch and major league hitters are going to hit mistakes," he said.

Darwin (13-8) pitched the third one-hitter of his career, and his first shutout since Aug. 15, 1987, when he was with Houston. He struck out two and walked two.

batting average to .389. Rickey Henderson drew four walks, tying a Toronto record.

Danny Cox (6-5) pitched four scoreless innings for the victory and Duane Ward worked the ninth for his 34th save.

The Blue Jays tied it at 6 on Devon White's RBI double in the eighth off Lilliquist (2-2).

Tigers 8, Angels 6

Travis Fryman hit a two-run single that highlighted a six-run rally in the ninth inning. Detroit overcame two home runs by Tim Salmon to win at Anaheim, Calif.

Salmon, leading all major league rookies with 27 homers and 79 RBIs, set an Angels record for home runs by a rookie. Ken Hunt hit 25 in 1991.

The Tigers won their third straight game. Trailing 6-2 with one out in the ninth, Mickey Teuleton doubled and Rob Deer singled. Pinch-hitter Chad Kreuter's RBI double finished Gene Nelson, and pinch-hitter Skeeter Barnes had a two-run single off Steve Frey (2-2).

Kurt Knudsen (2-2) was the winner and Mike Henneman got his 19th save.

Orioles 8, Mariners 1

Baltimore stopped its longest losing streak in five years at eight games, winning at the Kingdome behind Jamie Moyer.

The Orioles won eight in a row before their worst skid since 1988, when they started the season with 21 straight losses. Baltimore went 2-8 on its trip to Detroit, New York and Seattle.

Moyer (8-6) pitched his second complete game, giving up eight hits and striking out eight. Harold Reynolds hit a three-run homer during a five-run fifth inning against Erik Hanson (10-9).

Rangers 4, Yankees 2

Dean Palmer hit just his second home run since the All-Star break, and Texas turned four double plays in the first five innings at Yankee Stadium.

Palmer's 23rd homer, a two-run shot in the second inning, put the Rangers ahead. Roger Pavlik (7-6) made it stand up with help from relievers Craig Lefferts and Tom Henke, who got his 29th save. Jim Abbott (9-10) lost.

Royals 5, Twins 2

Kevin Appier pitched hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings and Gary Gaetti homered as Kansas City won at the Metrodome.

Appier (14-6) gave up five hits in eight innings, and Jeff Montgomery closed for his 38th save.

Kevin Tapani (7-12) had his four-game winning streak stopped.

Athletics 2, Brewers 1

Scott Brosius hit a two-run homer and Ron Darling pitched seven strong innings, leading Oakland over Milwaukee at the Coliseum.

Brosius' third home run of the season came in the second inning off Angel Miranda (3-2). Greg Vaughn hit his 25th home run in the Milwaukee third.

Darling (5-6) allowed four hits and struck out seven.

Giants win again, stay 6 1/2 ahead of Braves

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves aren't having trouble winning, it's gaining that's the problem.

The Braves won their ninth straight game Wednesday night, but they're only two games closer to the NL West-leading San Francisco Giants than they were when the streak started.

Atlanta's 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in 12 innings came about an hour after the Giants had beaten the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-6. The Braves held second, 6 1/2 games behind.

"It was a big game. No question. We've just got to keep winning," Braves catcher Damon Berryhill said.

Berryhill's two-out double in the ninth inning tied the game at 4-4.

The Dodgers helped the Braves in the decisive 12th, committing two errors to set the stage for Ron Gant's bases-loaded sacrifice fly that won it.

Gant's liner to center field off Roger McDowell (4-2) scored Mark Lemke, who had opened the inning by reaching on shortstop Jose Offerman's throwing error, his 28th of the season.

Pinch-hitter Rafael Belliard popped out to first attempting to bunt. McDowell threw wild on a pickoff toss to first and Lemke moved to third. Deion Sanders was intentionally walked before Jeff Blauser walked to load the bases.

Steve Bedrosian (3-2) earned the victory with two scoreless innings of relief.

The Braves and Giants have six games left, the first three next week in San Francisco.

Giants 9, Pirates 6

Barry Bonds returned to Pittsburgh in a big way, going 4-for-5 with two homers to help the Giants keep their lead. He doubled in a three-run first; singled in the third; followed Robby Thompson's homer with one of his own in the fifth; and capped the night with his 38th homer of the season in the ninth - his fifth two-homer game of the year. Bonds had been hitting .138 against his former team. Trevor Wilson (7-4) allowed seven hits over six innings for his second straight victory since coming off the disabled list. Zane Smith (3-5) took the loss.

Astros 2, Marlins 1

Greg Swindell snapped a six-game losing streak at home as the Astros won for the fifth time in seven games. Swindell (9-9) went eight innings, allowing one run on six hits and striking out seven. Chris James' pinch-single in the eighth broke the 1-1 tie.

Phillies 7, Rockies 6

John Kruk hit two solo homers and Kevin Stocker drove in three runs as the Phillies won for the fifth time in as many games at Mile High Stadium. The Rockies took a 6-5 lead in the fifth on an RBI-double by Chris Jones and RBI-groundout by Charlie Hayes. But Kruk tied it in the seventh with his second homer and Stocker broke the final tie later in the inning with a run-scoring single. Reliever Bobby Thigpen (2-0) allowed one hit over two innings and Mitch Williams pitched the ninth for his 34th save.

Cubs 2, Expos 0

Greg Hibbard and two relievers combined on a four-hitter. Hibbard (10-9) allowed the last of the hits with one out in the top of the ninth. Randy Myers came on and walked two batters. Jose Bautista then got a strikeout and fly ball for his first major-league save and the first by any Cub other than Myers this season. Sammy Sosa hit his 29th homer off Ken Hill (7-4).

Mets 12, Reds 2

Frank Tanana beat the Reds for the third time this season and hit his first major league triple. The 40-year-old Tanana (6-12) allowed five hits over eight innings and his bases-loaded shot down the right field line was enough to beat the Reds. Jeremy Burnitz and Todd Hundley added homers for the Mets, who won two of the three games in the series at Riverfront Stadium. Jeff Branson and Willie Greene homered for the Reds.

Cardinals 4, Padres 0

Donovan Osborne (10-6) allowed two hits over seven innings and the Cardinals broke a scoreless tie with a three-run seventh. Gregg Jefferies extended his hitting streak to 15 games with three hits and his double drove in the last of the runs in the deciding seventh. Doug Brocail (2-10) didn't allow an earned run in losing his seventh consecutive decision.

Duper latches on with receiving-poor Eagles

By The Associated Press

The Miami Dolphins didn't need Mark Duper. The Cincinnati Bengals didn't want him. Now it's the Philadelphia Eagles' turn to see if they have any use for a 34-year-old wide receiver who has caught 8,869 yards worth of passes.

Duper, 34, who went to three Pro Bowls with Miami and ranks 17th all-time in receiving yards, was signed by the Eagles on Wednesday to a one-year contract of undetermined value.

Duper was waived by the Dolphins on July 17 after 11 seasons with the team. He is 28th all-time in the NFL in catches with 511 and, among players with 500 or more catches, is sixth all-time in average yards per catch at 17.

Four days after Miami jettisoned him, Duper was signed by the Bengals and proceeded to break the little finger on his right hand in his first practice with the team.

On Monday, Cincinnati management decided he was too slow. The Eagles, still missing unsigned Pro Bowl receiver Fred Barnett, wasted little time in signing Duper.

"We only have two veteran receivers on the roster. One of them is not even here," Kotite said.

The Eagles still have Calvin Williams, who led the team in touchdown receptions, and backups 5-foot-6 Jeff Sydnor and 5-8 Bill Hess. The 5-9 Duper should fit right in.

Falcons

Offensive guard Lincoln Kennedy, Atlanta's top draft choice, worked out for the first time since he cracked a rib in practice a week ago.

Another offensive lineman, tackle

Stan Thomas, went through his second workout since being acquired from the Chicago Bears during the weekend.

He did not get rave reviews.

"He looks as though he shouldn't have been a No. 1," Falcons general manager Ken Herock said.

Thomas was a first-round draft choice of the Bears a year ago.

49ers

Quarterback Steve Young, recovering from a fractured thumb on his passing hand, will try to prove San Francisco's doctors wrong.

Young, who was injured in the team's first exhibition game, said he still hopes to play in the 49ers' regular-season opener even though the club's medical staff doubts the injury will heal in time.

"I can move it now," Young said, showing off the thumb without its protective splint. "It was a great thing when the doctor saw it. He thought it was way ahead, so I'm excited. I'm going to play in Pittsburgh, no doubt."

The 49ers open against the Steelers on Sept. 5.

Cardinals

Phoenix pushed hard to reach terms with rookie running back Garrison Hearst, the only unsigned first-round pick remaining from this year's draft.

Cornerback Robert Massey and linebacker Eric Hill are also not in camp yet.

Phoenix pro personnel director Erik Widmark has been in Atlanta since Monday night in an attempt to conclude a deal with Hearst.

Because Massey and Hill held out and missed a preseason contest last week after being sent "five-day" letters, they are suspended without pay for the Sept. 5 season opener at Philadelphia.

Bengals

Second-year quarterback David Klingler will play the entire game in Cincinnati's exhibition contest against the Detroit Lions on Friday, coach Dave Shula said.

Klingler started shakily against the New York Giants in the first preseason game before coming back strongly this past weekend at Indianapolis.

Backup Jay Schroeder will play only in an emergency.

Chargers

With 2 1/2 weeks to go before the season opener, San Diego is still without three of its four projected defensive line starters.

Tackle Blaise Winter has an injured right ankle and probably won't practice until next week. The other tackle, Shawn Lee, is out for at least a month with a broken right leg.

Right end Leslie O'Neal, who led the AFC with 17 sacks last season, remains unsigned. The Chargers removed the franchise player designation on O'Neal Tuesday, allowing him to negotiate with other teams. The Chargers still hope to sign him to a three-year contract.

Vikings

Jim McMahon, newly-named starting quarterback for Minnesota, plans on making an impact this season.

"They were 11-5 last year and I think we should be better than that," he said. "We could win them all. That's the plan."

The odds are good considering McMahon's .702 career winning percentage ranks second only to Joe Montana's .719 among active QBs.

SWC fires 16 hoop referees

HOUSTON (AP) - A consolidation of officiating staffs has resulted in the Southwest Conference's firings of 16 men's basketball referees, according to the league.

The SWC's new director of officials said Wednesday he decided to consolidate the three staffs to save money and travel expenses. Dale Kelley has been in charge of officiating for the Metro and Sun Belt conferences for the past eight years.

"What I'm doing is realigning all three staffs," he said. "Officials working in this alliance will be subject to work in (games involving) any of the 25 schools. I only need 60, 65 officials to service the alliance, and there were better than 100 officials to service those staffs."

But Kelley declined to name the SWC officials whose contracts were not renewed.

"It's unfortunate that these guys find themselves this way, but it's supply and demand," he said.

Kelley added the SWC job last month. He said 37 officials will be dropped from the three conferences, including the 16 from the SWC.

Texas coach Tom Penders said SWC coaches are supposed to meet with Kelley within seven to 10 days and discuss officials. But Penders added he was excited about the change.

"I told him if he wanted my input, all he had to do was look at my rating sheets over the last few years," said Penders. "He said he had access to that. I guess he's just making his decision who he can work with the best."

The move gives the SWC instant credibility, said University of Houston coach Alvin Brooks.

"We'll run and gun offensively, but we are going to be physical," said Brooks. "We need someone who will let us play a little more. (The new officials) have called (games involving) Louisville and Tulane, and that's got to benefit us because they come to us from strictly basketball leagues."

Some coaches have complained over the years about SWC officiating, including criticism in the last SWC Post-Season Classic.

Kids eyeglasses score fall fashion hit this season

By MIA B. MOODY
Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas (AP) - There has been a reversal of fortune for children who wear eyeglasses. Once easy targets for pranks and nicknames - remember four-eyes? - eyepieces are now more of a fashion statement.

Glasses are so popular today, some children even fake blindness in an attempt to get them, said Dr. Lucie Mosley, an optometrist who specializes in family eye care.

"If their friends have glasses and look good in them, then they want glasses," she said. "Some children come into our office saying they are blind or can't see anything to get glasses. But they are walking around without bumping into things, so it is impossible."

Fortunately, modern technology makes it easier for optometrists to catch such perpetrators. Mosley said they can use computers and theoretical measurements of the eye to find out if children are lying.

Today's glasses are affordable and easy on the eyes, there are many good-looking styles and colors to select. Dr. Trey Gerdes, optometrist at Eye Fashion Optical, said he is excited about the frames that are available for children.

"There are a bunch of neat eyeglasses out, compared to when we were kids," he said. "It is fun to fit children because of the neat styles. Many are just adult frames that are scaled down for smaller faces."

Bob Lashua, an optician at Austin Avenue Eye Clinic, said kids usually choose whatever adults are wearing.

"Kids are now interested in glasses as more of a fashionable thing," he said. "Their friends and parents wear them, and they want them. They have many choices."

He said he has been selling a lot of small, round, preppy glasses, with a single bar bridge. Parents tend to choose the tortoise shell color, but kids want a lot of color, he said.

"They prefer bright reds, blues, pink, purple or confetti mixtures of color such as purple, blue and green combined," he said. "Multicolored frames look lively on small faces and coordinate well with different types of clothes."

Lashua said children's frames at Austin Avenue Eye Center cost $50 to $140 with the majority in the $70 range. Gerdes said frames at Eye Fashion Optical cost $16 and up. Children should work with an optician to make sure the frames are comfortable, durable and good fitting.

Parents who believe their children may need eyeglasses should look for signs such as difficulty in looking at things far away, complaints of headaches and tired eyes from reading.

Even if children don't complain about such problems, they should have their eyes examined around age 3, Mosley said. They could have a lazy eye that cannot be detected with both eyes open.

"Eye exams should be taken seriously just like dental check-ups," she said.

Other problems optometrists should look for are eye disease, glaucoma, cataracts and tumor of the eye. These are usually picked up by the pediatrician, but in some cases, they are not, Mosley said.

Eye exams should be a lifetime practice. Mosley said school-age children who wear glasses should have their eyes tested once a year because the prescription will probably change frequently.

Children who don't wear glasses should have their eyes tested every few years or when they have complaints such as eye strain, headaches, skipped lines, reversed letters or any visual problems, she said.

Gerdes said the American Optometric Association has a more serious breakdown. The association recommends that low risk-infants and toddlers have their first eye exam by six months with the next exam at age 2 or 5 and another at age 3 or 5. School-age children ages 6 to 19 should have it done annually, according to the association.

High risk children, according to the association, should have their eyes tested as recommended by an optometrist. Gerdes said there is about a 75 percent chance that children of parents who wear glasses will also have to wear them.

"For children of parents who are nearsighted, it is usually just a matter of time before they become nearsighted," he said.

But glasses aren't always forever. As children reach 12-to 13-years of age, optometrists usually start moving them into contact lenses, Gerdes said.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: This year the third annual National Depression Screening Day (NDS) has been set for Thursday, October 7. Last year more than 100,000 people called their 800 line looking for the site of a free screening in their area and many of them specifically mentioned this column as the source of their information. This makes me feel wonderful, knowing that treatment can help more than 80 percent of those affected.

According to Deborah Reed, R.M., M.S.N., "people even took off from work to come in. Many were surprised to find themselves standing in line next to their neighbors."

National Depression Screening Day was developed three years ago by Harvard University psychiatrist Douglas Jacobs, M.D., a nationally recognized expert on suicide and depression.

To find the nearest location in your area, all you need to do is just call toll-free, 1-800-433-1400 (beginning September 7). There are over 600 locations including hospitals, mental health centers, shopping malls, senior citizen centers, college health services, major corporations and military bases throughout the country.

Remember, depression is one of the most common and most successfully treatable mental illnesses. So call and find out where free screenings are being held in your area, and let me know if this wonderful service helped you. — Heloise

TRAVEL MAPS

Dear Heloise: You know how hard it is to find maps and brochures of places you've been? They're usually kept in a box or bag somewhere.

Well, what I've done is buy a two-drawer filing cabinet and some file folders. I usually file them by state or province. Works great!

Now I can find those elusive maps when I want them, and the filing cabinet fits well in the back of a closet. — Anne D., Canada

OUTDOOR CONCERTS

Dear Heloise: During the summer, my wife and I enjoy going to outdoor summer concerts.

We often pack a picnic in the cooler and take our lawn chairs. Sometimes we have to carry these things a fair distance, including up and down hills.

To make it easier, I load everything on my portable luggage cart and just wheel it around. I have overheard others comment on what a good idea it was so I thought I would share it. — Michael Hubbard, Sterling, Va.

It is a great idea and I'm sure others will thank you every time they wheel into a picnic. — Heloise

POSTAGE STAMPS

Dear Heloise: Why lick all of those messy postage stamps?

Just place an ice cube on a napkin in a shallow dish. Rub the stamp over the ice cube. As it melts, it will furnish more than enough moisture to "lick" dozens of stamps. Easy to use and easy to clean up. — J.C. Phares, Bridge City, Texas

Dear Heloise: I found a recipe some time ago for a salt substitute. Unfortunately I lost it and now need one.

All I remember is that it had paprika, along with other spices. — E. Feddern, Salem, Ore.

I think this is the one! Here's what you'll need:

5 teaspoons onion powder
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon thyme
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 teaspoon celery seed

Mix the ingredients together very well and put in an airtight container. Store in a cool, dry place, away from the stove, as with all spices, or it could lose its zip. — Heloise

KITCHEN KAPERS
Dear Heloise: About 8 years ago I made a fruit pizza and had never made my own pie crust before. The recipe said to bake it for 15 to 20 minutes, but I kept waiting for it to turn brown. I must have baked it for at least an hour.

Well, the top part of it turned out great, but like my husband said, you'd need a hammer and chisel to break it up.

I just tried to make it again two weeks ago and everything turned out fine. Needless to say, my fruit pizza was a big joke between my husband and son for a long time. — C. Schnobrich, Springfield, Minn.

The Code of Hammurabi, a collection of Babylonian laws of the 1700s B.C., included a form of credit insurance. A borrower did not have to repay a loan if personal misfortune made it impossible to do so.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Arnold Schwarzenegger, Florence Griffith-Joyner and a slew of other celebrities and athletes kicked-off the 3rd Los Angeles Inner-City Games.

"Inner-city kids haven't been given the tools to compete in society, like health and education, and this is a great way to give them those tools," Mayor Richard Riordan said Sunday at the Shrine Auditorium celebration.

The games, eight days of athletics and education for about 100,000 children, take place simultaneously throughout the city.

Other stars on hand included Tom and Roseanne Arnold, Bruce Jenner and Muhammad Ali. Ex-heavyweight boxing champion Evander Holyfield spoke via satellite in Atlanta, where a similar event is taking place.

It's a dog's life

Your dog's golden years could be the perfect time for you to repay the unconditional devotion he or she has given your family. It could come sooner than you think.

Many dogs are considered senior by the age of seven. With the average life span for a dog estimated to be 12 years, it's important to understand the special needs of the older dog.

Dr. David Bebiak, Director of Pet Nutrition and Care Research at Ralston Purina Company, offers these suggestions on caring for an aging dog:

-Your pet is a creature of habit and any changes in his life patterns should be kept to a minimum.

-His bed should be in a dry and draft-free area since older animals can feel the effects of extreme heat and cold more than younger ones.

-Older dogs tend to groom themselves less, which can lead to skin problems. Regular grooming helps remove dead hair and is a good opportunity to examine your dog for any evidence of parasites, skin disorders, unusual lumps or skin lesions that should be examined and treated by a veterinarian.

-As your dog's activity decreases, food intake may need to be adjusted to help your dog maintain proper weight. Omit feeding scraps from the table and try a diet specifically formulated for the older dog.

-If an aged dog is arthritic, an orthopedic bed, available at many pet supply stores, can help reduce pressure on joints by providing maximum support and weight distribution.

Keep these ideas in mind and you may be better able to keep your old dog happy and healthy for a good many years.

Focusing on trends

A sure thing! That's what you always seem to be in search of when it comes to one outfit that's just a touch above casual in your wardrobe. You want an outfit that is seasonless, looks fabulous after several years and goes beyond jeans.

Top manufacturer's are offering seasonless collections this fall for active women.

Start with a versatile shirt/jacket and a pleated skirt in either black or raspberry. Or, match the shirt with smooth buttoned, crisp front pleated pants. A three piece outfit that is interchangeable and versatile whether you add a shirt underneath the shirt/jacket or wear as a shirt and belt it for a sophisticated take.

College students should take responsibility for their safety

CHICAGO (AP) - The excitement and challenge of living on your own in a dormitory or off-campus apartment should be paired with a sensible regard to your safety, says Loyola University Chicago's dean of residence life, Bernard Pleskoff.

Most schools have well-trained security staff for their residence halls, but Pleskoff advises students to take responsibility for their own safety.

"Make certain that the entrances and exits to your building are well lit, that shrubbery near the building is trimmed to eliminate hiding places, and that you have security screens if you have ground-floor windows," he says. "If any of these things aren't right, be sure to tell your residence hall advisor or a security officer."

Other tips:

- Always lock your door when you leave your room, even if it's only for a minute, and especially if your roommate is asleep.
- Don't ever prop open or disable the locking mechanism on entrance and exit doors.
- Report any suspicious people or activities in the halls to security or your residence hall advisor.
- After dark, always walk with others or use the campus escort service.

And if you're living in an off-campus apartment:

- Have the locks re-keyed or changed before you move in.
- Make sure there is a dead-bolt lock, at least one inch long, on all outside entrance doors.
- Make sure all outside doors are solid-core wood or metal.
- Look for an apartment with a peephole in the front door or windows near the door to see who's at the door.
- Be sure that any window air-conditioners cannot be removed from the outside.
- Make sure you have a charged fire extinguisher and working smoke detectors.

The law is reason free from passion.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My bladder has been dropping gradually for some years. My doctor has never suggested anything be done about it since it was never much of a nuisance. Recently it has dropped so far that it protrudes quite a bit and is uncomfortable.

My doctor has suggested I see a gynecologist to be fitted for a pessary. Is the pessary inserted surgically and permanently? I am concerned about possible infections since I have been blessedly free of any. I've heard horror stories of women who have been treated repeatedly with infections with the use of IUDs — so I've made this connection — valid or not. I am not now incontinent.

DEAR READER: You have a cystocele, which is really a rupture through the wall of the vagina that separates the vagina from the bladder. It is rather common and is usually the results of stretching and tearing associated with having given birth. Loss of tissue support from lack of estrogen may also contribute to the problem.

One approach to such vaginal hernias is to surgically repair the damaged vaginal wall and reposition the bladder or rectum if that occurs. But all cystoceles do not require surgery. Instead, a special pessary can be inserted into the vagina to provide support for the bladder and keep it from falling. That may or may not be effective in your case.

Such a pessary is manually inserted into the vagina. It does not entail any kind of surgery. It can be removed, cleaned and inserted again as needed.

To give you more information on cystoceles, I am sending you a copy of Special Report 106, Fibroids, Vaginal Hernias and Hysterectomies. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/106, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

An IUD (intrauterine device) is inserted inside the uterus; this is quite different from inserting a pessary into the vagina. I would not expect a pessary to increase your risk of having a vaginal infection.

DEAR DR. LAMB: For some reason I have broken out in hives, mainly on the sensitive areas of my body: inner arms, stomach, buttocks. My eyes and ears also get itchy. There is nothing new in foods or lifestyle that seems to have caused it. I've stopped all caffeine products.

I have a prescription for Seldane, and if I take one daily, it is sufficient to keep the hives away. As soon as I stop, they start popping out. I don't want to go for tests because they are too costly. Can I continue to take Seldane for a while and hope the hives go away eventually or should I pursue other avenues?

DEAR READER: It is unlikely that you will have a problem from continuing to take Seldane. There have been reports of problems associated with taking Seldane at the same time a person is taking antibiotics. That could cause a heart irregularity.

But the Seldane does not cure the problem, and it will persist until you find out what is causing your hives. You might try eliminating common causes such as laundry detergent, fabric softeners, some of your clothing, the soap you use or contact with an animal you are allergic to. Some people even become allergic to cold water. Otherwise you will be better off to have an allergist help you find out what the cause is and either avoid the substance or have a desensitizing program to correct it.

Dr. Lamb answers letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Kiefer Sutherland fell into his latest role, director.

The 26-year-old actor hadn't planned on directing Showtime's drama "Last Light," in which he stars as a death-row inmate. But he took on the additional role when the original director dropped out.

"If the film turns out well, then I would do it again. If the film doesn't do well, then I won't," Sutherland said. The movie airs Sunday.

Sutherland plays a murderer, Forest Whitaker a guard who befriends him.

Here's some stress-reducing suggestions

Juggling the demands of family and work life is one of the leading causes of stress today.

Parents can't be filled with self-doubts that fuel personal and family stress.

Whether at home or work, stress heats up when the gap between "I should" and "I really can" grows too big. To help parents cope, here are a few suggestions to help relieve stress.

1. Lower expectations and abandon the notion of being perfect. Sometimes the dishes can wait, but your family can't.

2. Get the entire family to help run the household from day-to-day. Give up the idea that only you can do a certain job.

3. Develop a support network of friends or family to help you out at certain times, especially if you're a single parent.

4. Partners can shift tasks, like shopping or bill paying, to each other for short periods of time whenever one of you needs to focus on something of immediate importance.

Busy parents should learn to budget time wisely, plan regular stress breaks for the whole family, and stop trying to do everything. Cut back and take time to relax.
