Monday Deadline Set For Signup

Major newspapers and television stations in recent days have been filled with stories on the deadline for signup for "Priority 2" gasoline for farmers.

Little effect should be noted in this area for the proposed signup. Friday morning a spokesman for Pioneer Gas of Amarillo issued the following statement: "Agricultural customers and industries served by Pioneer Natural Gas Company do not need to file a Priority 2 Form with the U.S. Department of Agriculture by July 16 as to eligibility and classification as a 'priority 2' essential agricultural user."

"The Priority 2 Form, available at county ASCS offices, is requested of agricultural users served by interstate pipeline systems under federal regulation. "Pioneer Natural Gas Company, an intrastate utility division of Pioneer Corporation, is subject to regulatory provisions of the Texas Railroad Commission. "Pioneer will be taking actions to assure that supplemental supplies of gas purchased by Pioneer from interstate companies for irrigation use obtain the high priority available under recent federal proceedings."

This was the second loss by Muleshoe to Plainview. They lost to Plainview Tuesday by a score of 15-1 then came back on Wednesday night to slam Olton 24-3.

Forrest Green, Democratic Representative from Corsicana was special guest speaker at a barbecue hosted by the American Agriculture Movement in Muleshoe Thursday night. Green, Chairman of the Texas Agriculture committee, who describes himself as a conservative reminded that most politicians hide behind the phrase "moderate". However, it was suggested by Rep. Green that federal government might do well to follow the Texas guidelines on spending money.

According to the Texas constitution, the state cannot spend more money than it takes in. In outlining some of the accomplishments of the recently completed session of the legislature, he cited tax breaks and tax reductions as being the most important legislation approved during the session. According to his figures, farmers now may be taxed on productivity on their land. He believes this will amount in considerable savings to farmers and ranchers who in the past have been taxed on market value of this same land. Also, Green discussed the new $5,000 homestead exemption for small property owners and the $10,000 tax exemption for persons 65 years of age or disabled. He said that this would result in additional savings in millions of dollars.

He did discuss gasohol and as he described himself as a working farmer, cited some of the benefits that could be derived from the construction of fuel alcohol plants in Texas. He spanked the hands of Governor Bill Clements for vetoing a tax break for the use of fuel alcohol, the construction of a demonstration unit and making low interest loans available for the construction of fuel alcohol plants.

Taking a blast at the OPEC Nations, Green said "Fuel alcohol could be a renewal of the source of gasoline, and since the Arabs hold a gun to our head, as they keep boosting the prices for imported oil, we could by utilizing agriculture in this state, produce fuel at a much cheaper cost."

In November, Texas voters will have the opportunity to vote on a new law which would approve low interest loan rates for young farmers attempting to purchase and work their own farm land.

Rep. Green also discussed the present rabies outbreak along the border between Texas and Mexico. Legislators have approved a bill to provide funds to help combat the emergency. He told of several deaths as the rabies outbreak reaches the epidemic stage, especially at Eagle Pass, where three deaths have been reported among small children.

Also speaking to more than 75 people attending the barbecue at the Bailey County Exhibition and Coliseum was Ralph Roming of Bovina. He was recently named as a member of the Texas Agriculture Committee and commutes from his farm near Bovina to Austin.

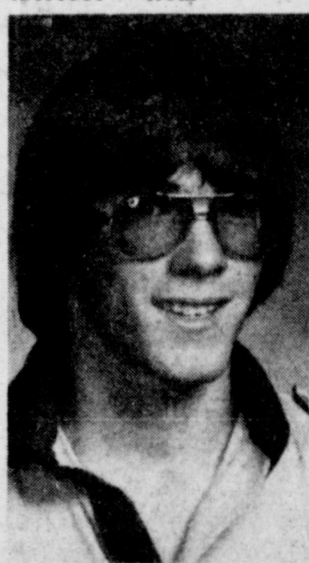

Some of his comments to the group included, "I heard on representative say, 'The American Agriculture Movement has broken more ice this year than I have seen in my 12 years as a house member!' He added, 'While on the other hand, one farm organization lobbyist said to one of the Congressmen's Aids, 'Oh Those poor misguided souls. They are going to ruin everything that we are trying to do.' Speaking of course of the efforts of the American Agriculture movement."

Roming said, "I will be the first to admit that the American Agriculture Movement has made some minor mistakes, but, at least they were trying to correct the gross injustices that exist in Agriculture today. Show me that person who does not make mistakes and I will show you the person who is doing nothing."

He commented, "We have seen our elected officials become as confused as 'Chicken Little,' running around saying 'The sky is falling.' Because on one side he had the farmers saying one thing and on the other he had the farm organizations in direct opposition."

Roming added, "In some instances, we have seen our proposals become a political football for some politicians' egotistical, political ambition." Also, "It is a pity to realize that we as farmers who represent 3% of the populace in the state, and are that source of the state's largest industry are under the control of a commissioner of agriculture who is elected by the 97% of the consumer populace."

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Texas Attorney General Mark White stashed the national energy crisis last week, painting a picture of double-digit inflation and a conundrum energy crisis.

The crisis brings "economic chaos" at a level of deeper concern than Vietnam or Watergate, White said at a Young Texas Lawyers convention in San Antonio.

The national policy has a particularly negative impact on the economic vitality of Texas, he told them, and Congress "has not dealt with (Texas) in an even-handed fashion."

White referred to a series of rulings by the Interstate Commerce Commission which granted increases in rail freight rates... "additional gouges," White told them.

Coal transport rates have risen from less than $8 per ton to more than $18 per ton.

Later this week Governor Bill Clements took advantage of authority given to him by President Jimmy Carter to announce he plans to shift 50 percent of the state's monthly gasoline allocation from low-use rural areas to metropolitan areas.

Clements is considering a plan to require some service stations in big cities to sell gasoline on weekends or not get their share of an additional 40 million gallons of fuel expected to be channeled to the big cities this month.

Kubiak Pushes "Agrihol"

If fuel continues to flow from rural to urban areas, the slack in tractor fuel tanks may be taken up by alcohol fuels, according to one state legislator.

State Rep. Dan Kubiak told a Capitol news conference Tuesday that Texas farmers will one day have "agrihol" plants on their farms and burn pure grain alcohol in their tractors and farm machinery.

Kubiak also announced he is building a pilot "agrihol" plant in Milam County to demonstrate how farmers can grow their own fuels. Kubiak's veto last month of a Texas A&M University alcohol fuel plant, Kubiak went to farmers and engineers in his district for financial backing for the plant.

Clements, meanwhile, submitted to Environmental Protection Agency officials a Texas plan for complying with federal clean air standards.

If it is not accepted, the state could lose millions in federal funds in highway and sewage treatment plant construction grants and face a ban on building new industrial facilities.

The plan calls for Texas to meet the Clean Air Act of 1970 guidelines through additional pollution controls on refineries, chemical and manufacturing plants and automobile emissions.

Demos Favor Convention
While Texas Republicans will hold a presidential primary election next spring, Democrats will probably choose their delegates to the 1980 Democratic National Convention through the convention system.

The overwhelming sentiment of testimony at a Democratic Party Rules Committee hearing in Houston was that the party reject the idea of a binding presidential primary.

Only one of 21 witnesses opted for the primary: Franklin Garcia of San Antonio who said, "Let the people choose. Period."

On the eve of the Fourth of July, Republican presidential contender John Connally met in Austin with a group of 200 of the state's most powerful lobbyists.

When the group discovered a news reporter in the adjacent room, Connally's microphone was shut off and the press was effectively left out of the meeting.

Clements has also been entertaining the political movers and shakers lately trying to pay off a $4.75 million campaign debt. Meanwhile, his 1978 opponent, former Attorney General John Hill, said he will wait until 1981 to decide whether to take on Clements again. Hill predicted Clements will only serve one term in the mansion, but some of Clements' friends are saying the same thing: they predict he will be chosen as vice president in 1980.

Colson Bid Rejected

The Texas Department of Corrections rejected a request by Watergate figure Charles Colson to bring an evangelistic crusade to Texas prisons.

Colson, one-time aide to former President Richard M.

Nixon, became a born-again Christian during his Watergate ordeal and in the last three years has taken his Prison Fellowship crusade into federal and state prisons.

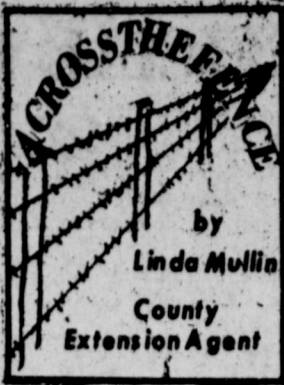

Department director Jim Estelle admitted he disliked some reported Colson comments that prisons are breeding grounds for criminals, but that Texas prisons already had enough religious activity. It was "no slight to Mr. Colson," he said.

On a Biblical note of another sort, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said grasshoppers have invaded Texas in their greatest numbers since 1958 but he is "declaring war" on them. About 1.4 million acres of Panhandle rangeland were sprayed with insecticide to stop the pests who were counted at from 10 to 18 per square yard.

American Heart Association

Juicy and succulent, cantaloupe is a great summertime cooler.

In addition, half of one cantaloupe contains only 60 calories yet furnishes the entire day's supply of vitamins A and C for healthy gums, tissues and skin, and normal growth and vision.

SELECTION

Try the five-point test for good cantaloupe eating -- which means, examining the netting, slip, color, firmness and aroma.

NETTING

For peak flavor, the cantaloupe should be well netted. The netting is the raised, grey-brown pattern over the surface that stands out above the green or yellow skin color.

The best-eating melons have high, raised netting over some part of the surface.

And, it will not have large areas that are "slick" without and netting -- except for the side that lay on the ground.

SLIP

Look for a "full slip." This is a circular scar where the stem was detached when the ripe melon was picked.

A stem scar that retains part of the stem or has been gouged out of the melon indicates that the melon was not ripe when picked from the vine.

COLOR

A cantaloupe is usually at its tastiest when the skin color is yellow or turning yellow. Green color on a well-netted melon with full slip indicates that the melon is not ready to eat.

FIRMNESS

To check for firmness, squeeze the melon gently. You may need to use both hands to keep from bruising it.

If it yields a little, it is ripe. But avoid a really soft melon or one with large, soft bruises.

AROMA

Aroma may or may not be present. If it is present, and in combination with the other points for good cantaloupe eating, you can expect a tasty melon.

STORAGE

Store cantaloupes in the refrigerator in a closed plastic bag or container. The melon's odor is taken up by other foods if not stored in a closed container during refrigeration storage.

Cut into cubes or melon balls. Cover with a cold sugar syrup using two cups sugar to four cups water or pack in bags with no sugar. Expel as much air as possible from the bag, seal and freeze immediately.

When using frozen melon balls, serve them partially thawed, especially those frozen without sugar. Melon frozen in sugar syrup will maintain texture better and stay firmer after thawing.

FREEZING

You may wish to freeze a few melon balls for later use while they are in peak season and at their lowest price. Use only top-quality fruit.

Cancer Research Isolates Causes

A cell chemical that may improve the chances of persons prone to cancer has been found at North Texas State University, a scientist there disclosed today.

Dr. David A. Busbee, Director of the Genetics Center and Associate Professor of Biology at the University, told an interviewer he believes a protein cell component discovered "by accident" in his laboratory can lower the abnormal level of an enzyme, AHH (aryl hydrocarbon hydroxylase) in patients with lung cancer and perhaps other types of cancer caused by hydrocarbons similar to those found in cigarette smoke.

Dr. Busbee and his colleagues, whose research was supported by the American Cancer Society, previously found that AHH was responsible for breaking down such hydrocarbons as benzopyrene and benzantracene into other compounds believed to be responsible for producting cancer.

Tests on tissues from lung cancer patients at U.S. Veterans Hospitals indicated high levels of AHH. Patients with other ailments had lower levels of AHH. And cigarette smokers in both groups had relatively higher levels of the enzymes.

Dr. Busbee believes that these AHH differences are controlled by genetics and persons with higher AHH levels may be more prone to cancer. Other studies have shown that some kinds of cancer "run in families." One such study followed a family for several generations, reporting that to date more than half of all blood relatives developed cancer.

The discovery of a relationship of AHH to lung cancer may pave the way to devising a diagnostic test for finding lung cancer earlier while there is some chance for cure. It could also be useful in screening those among cigarette smokers who are at a higher than average risk of getting lung cancer.

The cell component that inhibits AHH or reduces its activity was discovered by Dr. Busbee as an accidental offshoot of a three-year search for a relationship between breast cancer and estrogen production which turned out to be negative.

The life of the politicians consists of passing the buck and placing the blame.

Compare the Spray Sickle with the conventional box type...

Just look at the differences!

The Spray Sickle is front mounted - and the Box Type is rear mounted. The Spray Sickle as a broadcast unit may be used for standard row spacings - broadcast crops - narrow or wide row spacings - skip row - forage, hay and pasture crops as well as pre-plant applications. The Box Type may be used for standard row spacing only. These are obvious differences... the less obvious differences make the big difference in performance and results!

The Spray Sickle solves a lot of problems the Box Type can't!

Extension Homemakers Win First Place For Membership

Texas has captured a first-place award from the National Extension Homemakers Council -- for recruiting the most new members of any state to Extension Homemakers Clubs during 1979.

Texas also took top place last year.

Mrs. Charles Warminski of White Deer, Texas, president of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association, will accept the award during the national council's annual meeting, July 23-27, in Albuquerque, N.M.

Texas Extension Homemakers Clubs enrollment increased 25.7 percent 1979. Hawaii placed second with an eight-percent increase, and North Dakota placed third with a 3.8 percent increase.

Texas club members have made a special effort to reach young homemakers this year, with local clubs playing a major role in this.

Clubs involve members in informal education about the family and the home with topics such as housing and furnishings, clothing and textiles, foods and nutrition, family stability and family resource management as just part of their programs.

Bailey County has three active Extension Homemaker Clubs -- Progress, Dusty Prairie and Moonlight. If you would like to join a club or like to have additional information call the extension office at 272-4550.

we have seen the Commissioner of Agriculture work in direct conflict to changes that would have benefited agriculture and the overall economic condition of the state of Texas. A Commissioner of Agriculture in Texas should stand up and be the undisputed true leader of agriculture, and he should not succumb to any consumer or special interest group. If this were not enough, we have seen our hard work, blood, money, sweat and tears go down the drain with a governor's veto."

He added, "We have also seen the time when our elected Senate thought it more appropriate to spend precious time in the closing hours of the session discussing the immortal armadillo than discussing very important farm legislation."

"The American Agriculture Movement in its infancy has made some tremendous accomplishments, probably more than some of its people will ever realize, but we must at this time start to mature with age. Just as a babe has to learn to crawl before he walks, so did we," added Roming. "We are at the walking age now, and with maturity comes sophistication. With sophistication comes better directive. We will be better unified and all working for the same goal of 100% parity."

Roming continued "With this maturity, we must accept our responsibility to become active in the farm and commodity groups, to redirect these organizations into the true farm representatives that they were originally designed to be. By redirecting these farm and commodity groups, we will all speak with a unified voice. With the advantage of all speaking with one voice, our representatives cannot use the division of voice as an excuse for non-action. In many instances it is our fault that these farm and commodity groups have become misguided, lost direction and have lost the true feel of the farmers and ranchers."

He also commented, "We must become more astute of political issues and the candidates who are running. No longer can we afford to elect people from name association only as has been true in the past. On any major election in the past decade, the rural vote would have changed the outcome of the election. The rural vote is one that is not sought after by most of the major candidates. This is the reason that we must be unified in our choice of candidates."

Roming went on to say, "Many times, 30 days after an election, a lot of people cannot tell you who was elected to what position or who the opponent was. Many times also our elected officials forget those who have worked diligently for them in the elections. By keeping in touch with these officials, they will realize that you are still interested and are willing to see that they do not neglect their elected responsibility." He added, "This has been what I have seen this past year in our state capitol and I think by taking an active part in these various functions, and accepting our responsibilities as citizens, we will have a much better place in which to live, and put a profit back into agriculture and strength back into our country."

Roming also discussed a new agriculture advisory commission currently being set up in Austin. The state will be divided into 16 districts according to agricultural production. This will be the first time for any commission to be formed according to agricultural production. He also discussed the possibility of adding cotton oil to fuel alcohol to be used as diesel fuel in farm equipment.

Both Jerry Don Glover who served as chairman of the barbeque and Guy Austin, temporary chairman of Bailey County AAM discussed plans to form an organized chapter of AAM. In order to maintain the local state and national offices, it has been determined that the assessment of dues will be necessary. By accessing each member $150 yearly, the men explained this would be the only equitable way to share the cost of operating the offices formed to help the farmers. They urged each farmer and rancher to make this minimal investment to protect the future of agriculture. The application forms for membership are available at the AAM office in Muleshoe or from any member of the organization. They also have complete information as to how the dues will be divided and used from a local to a national basis.

Irrigating Cotton Caution Is Given

LUBOCK-- South Plains cotton farmers should think twice before irrigating or fertilizing cotton planted in May and early June, a specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service cautions.

The advisability of irrigating at this time is questionable, Dr. James R. Supak, extension area cotton agronomist, said. Application of nitrogen fertilizers could provide a little stimulus to plant growth, but rates used should be light, he added. "Most farmers who are irrigating are doing so in hopes of stimulating more plant growth and faster fruiting," Supak said.

"In reality, they may be doing just the opposite." Irrigation at this time tends to cool the soil temperatures and discourages deep root development, he explained. Although irrigation water may initially promote some growth, it could ultimately delay fruiting.

Irrigation is not wrong in all cases, Supak noted. "There are areas where rainfall was sparse and cotton is approaching the growth stages where it requires some water," he said. Also, some farmers are using their center pivot irrigation systems as a means of applying nitrogen.

But he urged cotton producers to look carefully at their situation and to weigh carefully the time and expense of irrigating against the possible effect it might have on crop yield.

Due to the late crop, there is some question about the profitability of applying fertilizers. At this time, nitrogen is the main fertilizer element farmers should be concerned with, the Extension specialist said. Generally, the sandy soils will be deficient in nitrogen because of the low organic content and leaching of this element by the spring rains. Nitrogen applications on these soils would tend to provide the greatest returns, Supak said.

For the mixed and hard-lands, leaching was less severe and applications of nitrogen will tend to be less profitable, especially in June-planted cotton. Soil tests can be used to determine nitrogen levels in these soils.

If fertilizer is applied, the agronomist said, he would recommend no more than 20 to 40 units of nitrogen on May-planted or, in some cases, early June cotton.

For best results, nitrogen should be applied prior to or during the early stages, he said.

Damaged Mid-South Cotton Recovering

Despite a poor planting season, such as the one which hit the Texas South Plains, cotton producers in the Mid Southern states may have a pretty good year after all, a Mississippi Extension agronomist reports.

Farmers in the Delta area have about 2.35 million acres of cotton standing, 20 percent less than last season, Dr. George Mullendore, Extension cotton agronomist at Mississippi State University, estimated.

But he noted that the standing acreage has begun to recover in the last few weeks and that about 65 percent of it seems in pretty good shape. Yields should approximate the 500 pounds per acre achieved last year, he said. Mullendore told participants in a national cotton outlook seminar here that the crop and livestock service announced on June 23 that 44 percent of the Mississippi crop was squaring. This compared to a 10-year average of 43 percent squaring by that date.

"What cotton we have left is on some of our better soils, in the management of some of our better cotton growers," Mullendore noted. "We have the capability of producing a normal to above-normal crop if the weather cooperates," he said. Like the South Plains, the Delta was plagued this spring with above normal rainfall spaced to prevent field activity, the Mississippi Extension specialist explained. Flooding, backwaters, seepage under levees and herbicide injury, especially in lighter soils, led to the reduced acreage.

The Southeast region should enjoy another bumper cotton crop, perhaps as large as 700,000 bales, Mullendore predicted. "Acreage will increase 10 percent to 650,000 acres and yields should equal the 510 pounds per acre area farmers had in 1978," Mullendore said. "Many of the stands in Southeast cotton growing areas are two weeks ahead of those in the Delta," he reported. The long term weather outlook for the key cotton production areas of Texas, the Delta, and the Southeast is very favorable, said

Peter Leavitt, vice president of Weather Service, Inc., Bedford, Mass. Leavitt was another member of the speakers panel for the seminar, sponsored by Conti Commodity Services, Inc. "It's going to be hot and sunny, perhaps a little warmer than normal, but that is conducive to high yields," Leavitt said. A dryness problem might occur in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas, he said. Leavitt said chances of extreme weather conditions are greater this year than for the last three years on the Texas High Plains.

You can't get back the weather you didn't get yesterday," he said. The South Plains "missed the heat from seasonal sunshine" during the extended rainy season, he said. "You can hope for an extended fall season, but the odds of that are not good," he said.

Seminar speakers predicted that rising world production, led by a 25 percent increase in U.S. output, and softening demand stemming from fear of an impending recession will drive cotton futures prices down to 60-65 cent level through 1979.

They pointed out that prices to West Texas farmers usually average 10-12 cents below the futures level.

The Carpenter's FRIEND

To build...one must have plans, and plans give exact measurements. The carpenter who makes careful measurements finds that the work is made easier. Careful measuring prevents waste...waste of time and materials. Therefore the measuring device is truly a friend to the carpenter.

The church wants to be your friend, and help you to a easier and better way of life. The Bible clearly gives us a way to measure life. Through many centuries man has found no better rules than those given in the Bible.

Attend church and receive the friendly welcome that awaits you.

PIVOT TALK
by Arnie

PIVOT TALK
Overwatering of a particular soil's intake rate will cause not only run off of valuable water but can also contribute to that troublesome problem of wheel tracks under a center pivot. A pivot operator should understand his soil capability and operate his system at a rotation speed which will accommodate the rate at which his land can absorb the water. Oversoaking the soil causes water to run in existing wheel tracks ahead of the tires and when they come behind in this muddy path they must squeeze this out of the way to get both traction and flotation. Eliminating this can be accomplished by running the machine at higher percentage timer settings and can also be assisted by wider soak patterns in sprinkler type selections or in some instances by incorporating a spray system which deposits all the water to the rear of the machine.
