Schools balk at report

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford school board members will appeal many of the findings of a Texas Education Agency accreditation team's report that has placed the school system on accredited-advised status.

The "advised" status will have no effect on the amount of funding that Hereford schools receive from state or federal sources, and will have no effect on the records of students.

Advised is one of four levels on which schools are placed by TEA accreditors. The levels include accredited, accredited-advised, accredited-warned, and unaccredited.

Because of the accredited-advised status, TEA will have a technical assistance specialist to help the schools more quickly correct problems pointed out in the report. The district will have until October 1990 to repair or show progress toward repairing the problems in the report.

If the district had been warned, the technical assistance would have been heavier, with someone working almost hand-in-hand with the district. If the district had been unaccredited, a TEA "monitor" would have come in to run the district.

The advised part of the finding deals mainly with "governance" issues. The TEA report says their is not enough freedom given to Superintendent Charles Greenawalt by the school board. The report says the board must sign a written resolution pledging less interference in the future.

There were 22 other issues raised by the report. Most of those will require corrective action or improvement. Greenawalt said their are plans already in place to correct most of the cited areas.

"Twenty-two of these items came as no surprise," Greenawalt said. "The 23rd, the governance issue, was a surprise."

He also feels it is an incorrect assumption.

Greenawalt, in an interview on Monday and during several meetings Tuesday including the school board meeting, said he did not feel that was the case.

"In fact, I told our teachers today (Tuesday) that we were very fortunate to have seven persons on the school board who are very interested in our schools," Greenawalt told the board Tuesday night.

The accreditation report says, in part:

"The team was informed by parents, community members, and district personnel that the board of trustees has continually interfered in matters such as the tutorial program, curriculum, instruction, personnel recommendations and placement, and other administrative operations of the district. The team was informed that board members were instrumental in selecting the phonics program currently taught districtwide and had participated in writing curriculum documents in the district. Interviews revealed that although a high level of support exists for the superintendent among parents, community members, and district personnel, the progress of the school district and the chief administrative officer has been greatly impeded by a recurring pattern of interference from the board of trustees."

"The Hereford ISD Board of Trustees must submit to the Division of Accreditation a written resolution, signed by each member, that the board will recognize, respect and give the superintendent authority as the chief administrative officer of the district."

"I believe this is an inaccurate assessment of the relations between the board and the superintendent," Greenawalt said Tuesday. "There is evidently a perception by some that we have a difficulty in working together."

"...I feel that most of these events occurred three or four years ago. I have no doubt that the board recognizes that the superintendent is the chief administrative officer...I believe that if you look at the last two years you will not find a better (board-superintendent) relationship in the state of Texas."

The governance area also pointed out that board member Steve Coneway does not have the necessary mandated training hours for school board members.

Coneway told the board Tuesday that he had "a personal feud" with the required education for board members. "I do not believe it is fair and maybe violates other rights of an individual, who is elected by people in his or her district and also since this is a non-paying job, to expect him or her to have to take more time out of their work schedules to attend seminars," Coneway said.

"Does the governor or elected officials in Austin have to attend seminars to satisfy a specified number of hours so that the federal government will not accredited-advised the state of Texas? Is there a Governorship 101? I think not."

"To attend these seminars costs money. Who pays for travel, meals and lodging? The taxpayers. I believe I would rather see us buy a globe or something else with this money for school supplies for our children."

"However, I want each of you here tonight and all of the Hereford ISD to know that if I'm forced to obtain these additional hours I will. I will not let my personal feelings and beliefs jeopardize the students of this school district in any way. I will swallow my pride and go do it for them."

Other areas cited included:

--The team felt that the district had "too many goals" on which action had not been taken, and that community members and others not directly connected with administration should be involved in setting goals and formulating plans.

--Proper curriculum documents were not in place (district personnel have written or are writing the documents).

--According to the team, too many children are placed in classrooms according to ethnicity or level, and wants the groupings changed.

--Some facilities, including the older part of Hereford High School, need repair and renovation.

--Some principals are "highly regarded as instructional leaders, several are not," the team felt that some principals are "managers" and not "instructional leaders."

There was some praise for the district. The team commended incentives and programs that "promote a positive school climate at each campus."

The programs and incentives praised included the "lunch bunch" counseling sessions at Tierra Blanca; the Zeroes Aren't Permitted (ZAP) program at Hereford Junior High; the Apples for Children computer project at West Central; the Tigers' Eyes Are Watching You coupon reward system at Shirley; the WATCH program at HHS; the Exemplary recognition of the Chapter 1 Migrant program at Aikman; the DARE program; the after school library program at Northwest; the display of student work at the Stanton Learning Center; and the extended year summer program offered free to all students in the district.

"I would hope this visit and report would become a positive situation for our school system," Board President John Fuston said. "I know we have problems, and I disagree with some of the things we were cited for. We can take this and see where we might go from here."

"I think it is human nature that when someone slaps you or hits you in the mouth you take offense. I wonder if these people (who wrote the report) were accountable to the people they should be accountable to."

"Our schools are not perfect, but I think we are on track and going in the right direction. I feel that 99 percent of our people want to make this a better school for our kids."

The board also heard reports from school nurses June Rudd, Pat Sinnacher, Phyllis Cornelius and Karen Fangman on their program; presentations by KPAN, Encrgas and the HHS student council; approved the annual audit report prepared by Bill Allen; and approved guidelines for mid-year promotion at Hereford Junior High.

The board recognized the employees of the month: Gladys Merritt, a resource aide for the last 16 years at Aikman Primary School; and Joan Latham, who has taught music at Aikman for 17 years. Both were cited for their dedication to children.

The board also heard reports from school nurses June Rudd, Pat Sinnacher, Phyllis Cornelius and Karen Fangman on their program; presentations by KPAN, Encrgas and the HHS student council; approved the annual audit report prepared by Bill Allen; and approved guidelines for mid-year promotion at Hereford Junior High.

Income from operations showed a loss of $7,057, but this compared to a loss of $19,176 a year ago. Several large one-time expenses lowered the profit figure, and the cash flow also showed a negative total due partially to payment of a $100,000 note last month.

Dr. Tim Revell gave a brief medical staff report to the board. Moore reported a big increase in professional liability insurance premiums, from about $40,000 to $86,000. He also discussed the need for a maintenance contract on the Cat Scan unit at the hospital.

The board reviewed two bids on a new ambulance and accepted the low bid of $61,380 from MedTec of Dallas. The other bid was for $86,778 from Collins Ambulance Service of Dallas. Delivery will be in 90 to 120 days.

Growers hear tougher news

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Vegetable growers and shippers are in for more regulation and other restrictions on how they do business.

There were warnings, threats and reminders about almost everything Tuesday at the annual West Texas Vegetable Conference at the Hereford Community Center.

There was some good news: a panel discussed "crops that work" that could be profitable alternatives, and Dr. Bob Johansen, professor of horticulture at North Dakota State University, displayed constant improvements in potato varieties that have put more cash in the pockets of producers.

But there was gloom and possible doom. Growers learned they are going to be doing more record keeping, have to attend more schooling, pass more tests and pay more money to use herbicides and pesticides.

And the cost of ever-mounting regulations and restrictions may lead some companies to get out of the ag chemical business.

John McClung of Washington, D.C., director of the Center for Produce Quality for the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, said numerous efforts are underway in Washington to dramatically change the way pesticides are regulated and used.

McClung also said the Environmental Protection Agency is moving to reduce the use of some chemicals used in the produce industry.

McClung said the basic 1985 Farm Bill that will be replaced this year won't have many changes in programs for major crops, but will focus more on environmental and health issues than ever before.

"There are also groundwater considerations that boggle the mind, but boggled minds are nothing new in Washington," McClung said. "most of the discussion on the 1990 Farm Bill will be on food safety issues and environmental issues."

"What scares me is we will probably see some 11th hour tradeoffs. I'm concerned that we will have some very real problems in any legislation that is passed. We are sure as hell going to try to keep (food safety and environmental issues) them separated but it is going to be hard to do."

McClung said the EPA is forcing companies to re-register "old" chemicals, brands and types that have been in use for many years. That could lead to a big reduction in the chemicals available.

"Many chemical manufacturers are not willing to spend up to several hundred thousand dollars to re-register those chemicals," McClung said. "Some of the chemicals would offer some profit incentive, but most of them don't."

McClung also said he expected fewer media attacks on chemicals and agriculture because of the unfounded allegations on Alar.

Alar was a chemical used on apples to cut down on worms and, as a side benefit, gave apples a better color. There were allegations that Alar could cause brain cancer, especially in young children. Although the allegation was eventually disproven, it led to Alar being pulled from the market, the higher possibility of worms in apples, and apprehension by much of the media in accepting someone's word on agricultural chemicals.

"We sacrificed the Apple Virgin but we won the battle," McClung said.

Levon Harmon of the Texas Department of Agriculture office in Amarillo detailed changes in certification for private and non-commercial chemical applicators.

"I'm glad they took up the plates," Harmon said as he began his just-after-lunch presentation. "Tomatoes I can dodge, but the plates are tough."

Harmon also displayed, on an overhead projector, the lengthy list of items that must be recorded for each application of each chemical in each field.

"They want so much (stuff) they couldn't get it all on one slide," Harmon explained as he changed transparencies.

Other presenters and panels discussed new varieties, ways to control fungus, pests and other vegetable problems, and other problems and hopes.

Rusty Ingram and Sue Hawkins were elected to the board of directors of the High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, which co-sponsored the conference along with the Extension Service, TDA and Texas Tech University.

HISD may consider bonds

Voters in the Hereford Independent School District may be faced with a bond issue to fund repairs of the older portion of Hereford High School and other improvement projects in the district.

Members of the Hereford school board discussed the idea during a meeting Tuesday at the school administration building.

The idea has been discussed by the board's long-range planning committee, chaired by Board Secretary Steve Coneway. After lengthy discussion, the full board referred the matter back to the committee for more discussion.

The high school is in need of improved lighting, repair of doors, walls, and ceilings, renovation of the auditorium, and other improvements to bring the facility, which opened in 1954, up to current standards.

There are other improvements needed at other schools, although none are in as great a need as the high school.

The committee also pitched a plan to expand the home-side seating at Whiteface Stadium.

Over the last two years, the west stands of the stadium have been sold out for almost every varsity football game. In 1988, the HHS band was placed in portable bleachers on the track. In 1989 the band was put back in the permanent stands and students were given the opportunity to sit in the portable bleachers.

A "best guess" is that it would cost about $150,000 to add 1,000 permanent seats on the west side of the stadium. Ticket sales could be earmarked to pay for the stadium improvements.

The board recognized the employees of the month: Gladys Merritt, a

Directors of Deaf Smith County Hospital District agreed Tuesday night on developing a facility strategy plan that opts for building a new hospital at a new site, but they also made it clear that the project is a long-range goal.

Tip leads police to stolen goods

Tools and other items valued at about $3,000 were recovered from a residence at La Villa Drive on Tuesday.

Hereford Police expect to solve several cases of stolen cars and car burglaries as a result of the search warrant. Several suspects will be charged with burglaries as a result of the ongoing investigation.

Information about the stolen items was received through Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers.

"I think we are looking at a minimum of 5 to 10 years down the road," said trustee Craig Smith. Board member Frank Zinser agreed, saying that "a lot of things must happen before I would consider voting for a bond issue."

In other business, the board accepted the low bid of $61,380 for a new ambulance; approved the purchase of surgical equipment for ophthalmology at a cost of $14,000; and reviewed the operations report for December.

The board had previously received a master facility plan prepared by an engineering group from Baylor University. The plan recommended two options--building of a new hospital, or demolition, renovation and new construction of the present facility. Both plans had cost estimates of $5.3 to $5.9 million.

Board president Ralph Dettien asked trustees to make some type of determination on the study. All trustees agreed that, provided the similar costs estimates, a new hospital would be preferred. Smith and Zinser made it clear, however, that they felt any action would involve future bonds.

"The hospital is in the black again, but I think we need to continue showing a positive financial position for a long period," said Zinser. He also pointed out that the hospital has 14 more years to pay on a bond issue. "We're working on other goals at present, like the recruitment of new doctors."

Smith said he felt the board should forego a motion on the plan, since it is a long-range goal, but place a consensus statement in the minutes. All other trustees agreed and the long-range strategy statement was put in the minutes.

The board reviewed two bids on a new ambulance and accepted the low bid of $61,380 from MedTec of Dallas. The other bid was for $86,778 from Collins Ambulance Service of Dallas. Delivery will be in 90 to 120 days.

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1990. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 17, 1945, Soviet and Polish forces liberated Warsaw from the Nazis. That same day, Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, credited with saving tens of thousands of Jews from the Nazis, disappeared in Hungary while in Soviet custody.

On this date:

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1806, Thomas Jefferson's daughter, Martha, gave birth to James Madison Randolph, the first child born in the White House.

In 1871, Andrew S. Hallidie received a patent for a cable car system that began service in San Francisco in 1873.

In 1893, the 19th president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, died in Fremont, Ohio, at the age of 70.

In 1950, eleven men in Halloween masks robbed a Brink's office in Boston of $1.2 million dollars in cash and $1.5 million dollars in checks, bonds and securities.

In 1961, in his farewell address, President Eisenhower warned against the rise of the "military-industrial complex."

In 1966, a U.S. Air Force B-52 carrying four unarmed hydrogen bombs crashed on the Spanish coast. Three of the bombs were soon recovered, but the fourth wasn't found until the following April.

In 1977, convicted murderer Gary Gilmore got his wish to be shot by a firing squad at the Utah State Prison, becoming the first person to be executed in the United States in a decade.

Dole proposes cutting foreign aid to boost funds elsewhere

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, claiming the White House's blessing, wants to provide new aid to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe and Panama by trimming aid across the board to traditional allies.

Within hours of the proposal, voiced at a news conference Tuesday and in an opinion column in The New York Times, denunciations came from Israel and assorted lobbyists for other countries that would lose out under the plan.

But State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler called it "well worth looking at." Dole said President Bush himself had told him "he appreciated it," which he took as an endorsement.

At a news conference, Dole proposed a 5 percent cut in U.S. aid to all countries now protected by congressional "earmarks," the largest of which are Israel, Egypt, Pakistan, Turkey, the Philippines, El Salvador, Greece and Honduras. That would free about $400 million to help encourage fledgling democracies, he said.

"Some of these countries have to realize there are fewer tensions in the world, and maybe some of their demands can be reduced... because we have new players" in the foreign aid field, Dole said.

Dole said he already had received a call from the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee expressing alarm about the proposal. The group issued a statement calling for new aid to emerging democracies but adding, "We believe it should not be at the expense of other vital U.S. foreign policy objectives. We must try not to hurt some allies in the process of helping other allies."

"Nobody will like it," Dole said. "But it seems to me fair and across the board." Of Israel, he added: "We have limits. Israel has gotten a lot of preferential treatment."

The Israeli Embassy in Washington issued a statement agreeing that historic change was occurring in Eastern Europe, but noting "the winds of change have failed to reach the Middle East, and the dangers Israel faces have even increased."

Tutwiler said further talks with congressional leaders on the proposal would be scheduled soon.

One early reaction came from Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who suggested the money instead come from cuts in the defense budget, foreshadowing a major battle that will occupy Congress when it convenes its 1990 session next week.

Of this year's $14.6 billion foreign aid program, 92 percent has been earmarked by Congress for specific recipients, leaving just $1.2 billion for the administration to spread thinly among dozens of friendly, needy nations. As many as a dozen friendly countries will get nothing this year because of lack of money.

Bank promotions

John C. Sherrod has been promoted to executive vice president of First National Bank of Hereford, and Sue Cosper has been promoted to assistant cashier. Sherrod, former senior vice president, has been with the bank for one year. Cosper, former head teller, has been with the bank 21 years. The promotions were approved by FNB directors at a recent board meeting.

Probe of Frank continues in secret

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amid a veil of secrecy surrounding his House ethics committee investigation, Rep. Barney Frank is putting out word that he is confident his public career can survive intact.

No information is expected from the committee on its probe of Frank's involvement with a male prostitute until at least Jan. 23, when Congress returns from its holiday break. There may be more fuel added when the Penthouse magazine publishes an interview next month with prostitute Stephen Gobie, who had a relationship with Frank.

In the meantime, Frank, D-Mass., has kept up his work pace on Capitol Hill. Frank has led a Democratic move to cut defense spending and shift the funds into deficit reduction and domestic programs. President Bush singled Frank out at a recent bill-signing ceremony for his work on housing legislation.

"If you're being complimented by the president you must be doing something right," said Rep. Joseph Moakley, D-Mass.

And in his district, no well-known figures have emerged to challenge Frank for re-election and a fundraising effort for the incumbent is generating a healthy take.

"Barney Frank has weathered the storm," said Larry Rasky, a Democratic consultant in Boston. "The whole incident has almost become a non-issue."

But Massachusetts Republican Executive Secretary Alexander Tennant said, "Barney Frank is hoping that this whole situation will just go away."

Tennant acknowledges the GOP has had a hard time coming up with viable opponents for Frank but insists, "his credibility has been irreparably damaged."

With some lapses, Frank has not commented at length on Gobie since the scandal broke last summer.

"I won't discuss it," he said recently when asked about the case. "I'm not going to contribute to a non-story."

When the story broke in August with Gobie's revelations in The Washington Times, Frank seriously considered ending his political career. He still hasn't decided whether to seek a sixth term, saying he wants to wait until the ethics committee verdict is in.

"There's some sense that there's going to be another wave that will coincide with the Penthouse publication and the results of the ethics hearing," Rasky said. "But at this point, unless there's something startlingly new revealed, and I don't see any reason to expect that there will, it's just going to be treated more as the final act of last season's play."

The ethics committee voted in September to investigate Gobie's allegations that he operated a sex-for-hire business out of Frank's Capitol Hill apartment with Frank's knowledge.

Frank admits he paid Gobie $80 in 1985 for sex and later hired Gobie with personal funds as a housekeeper and driver. But he says he dismissed Gobie in August 1987 when he learned Gobie was using his apartment for prostitution.

Frank has denied other specific allegations. When Gobie charged in another Washington Times story that he and Frank had sex in the House gymnasium, Frank called the story a "vicious, crazy set of lies."

The only declared opponent against Frank is Republican John Soto, 46. Soto's previous bid for public office was a run for state representative in which he captured less than 30 percent of the vote.

Meeting set here Thursday for ag employers

A meeting for agricultural employers and all interested parties is being held Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center under the sponsorship of the Hereford Job Service Employer Committee (JSEC) and Texas Employment Commission.

The meeting should be of interest to all farmers, labor contractors, crew leaders, shed operators and growers, according to David Hernandez, area TEC manager.

The Hereford TEC office will have staff members present to discuss employer services. Darrell E. Krenck, officer of the U.S. Department of Labor Compliance, will discuss Regulation 29 and other federal laws affecting the agricultural employer. Randy Rivera of TDA will also be reviewing the right-to-know laws dealing with chemical hazards.

For questions or comments, call the TEC office, 364-8600.

The Romans named the Mediterranean Sea. The name means middle of the earth.

Plane hijacker nabbed in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - A man claiming to have a bomb tried to commandeer an America West airliner to Cuba, but he was quickly overpowered by a policeman who snuck up an escape chute after the plane landed in Austin Tuesday night.

Jose Manuel Gonzalez-Gonzalez, 39, a native of Cuba who now lives in New Orleans, was apprehended and will be charged with air piracy, kidnapping and crime aboard an aircraft, said FBI special agent Byron Sage.

Gonzalez-Gonzalez told reporters as he was being placed in a police car that he tried to hijack the plane because he thought he was in danger "because of my political beliefs."

When asked what those beliefs were, he said "I feel this country is in peril." Police then closed the cruiser door.

No one was seriously injured during the attempt. Gonzalez-Gonzalez and two flight attendants were treated at hospitals and released, and some passengers were treated at the airport for minor injuries suffered as they escaped the plane.

The Boeing 737 carrying 39 people was en route from Houston to Las Vegas when passengers said the man grabbed flight attendant Stacy Wood, 26, and took her to the rear of the plane, announcing he had a bomb and wanted to fly to Cuba.

No bomb was found. Witnesses said the man carried a flashlight and a piece of rope that he used to choke Ms. Wood.

"I thought he was just a screwball beating up one of our flight attendants," the pilot, Capt. Dick Nelson said.

After being told a hijacking was in progress Nelson told the suspect over the public address system that he had to land the Boeing 737 at Austin's Robert Mueller Municipal Airport to refuel before the plane could fly to Cuba.

The 34 passengers and three of the five crew members were herded to the front of the plane and slid down an emergency chute to safety after the plane landed.

Austin Police Capt. Lloyd Polk went up an emergency chute into the plane with hopes of negotiating with the man.

"I saw he had the stewardess so I took action immediately," Polk said early today. "I had a struggle with him, but I was able to hold him to the ground until more help arrived."

Nelson said Polk tackled the man and hit him with either a flashlight or a night stick. Gonzalez-Gonzalez suffered minor injuries and was released from Breckenridge Hospital.

Ms. Wood and a second stewardess, Sue Krautramer, 31, also were treated for minor injuries and released.

Crew members and passengers said Gonzalez-Gonzalez appeared extremely agitated before and during the flight.

Robert Martin, 24, of Fontana, Calif., said the suspect was sitting two rows in front of him and was talking loudly, complaining about American television programs.

He said the man had been a nuisance at the terminal in Houston and several passengers complained to airline officials about him, but they let him board anyway.

"They should have checked him out more," Martin said.

A passenger who had been on the flight, Herb Atwood, said a man who had been acting strangely threw something around a flight attendant's neck and began shouting orders.

"He said he wanted them to fly to Cuba," said Atwood, of Cold Spring, Texas.

All of the passengers were ordered by the man to move to the front of the plane, Atwood said.

"You always hear about this," he told radio station KVET. "And I never thought it would happen to me. I was scared like everyone else. I was looking forward to a trip to Vegas. But my gambling ended before it started."

The plane had taken off from Houston at 10:45 p.m. CST Tuesday and was scheduled to arrive in Las Vegas at 11:55 p.m. Charles Gates, director of aviation for the city of Austin, said the plane landed at Robert Mueller Airport at 11:24 p.m. and the man was apprehended at 11:56 p.m.

Gates said the passengers would be put up in a hotel and flown out later

Governor's race raises $13 million

AUSTIN (AP) - Statewide candidates have decried the cost of campaigning, but in the meantime the political money has been flowing, according to reports filed with the secretary of state's office.

With two months left until the March 13 primaries, the major candidates for governor in both parties reported Tuesday already raising more than $13 million for the race.

That total didn't include Democrat Jim Mattox, who has boasted of having $4 million in the bank but whose report wasn't at the secretary of state's office by the 6 p.m. deadline.

Mattox spokesman Kelly Fero said the report will be mailed in rather than submitted in person, which state law allows.

Of those submitting reports, Republican Clayton Williams reported raising and spending the most.

Williams, a Midland rancher and oilman, spent $4.2 million in the six months ending Dec. 31. Of that, $3.2 million was his own money, and about $1 million came from donations, according to his report.

Republican Kent Hance reported spending $874,894 in the past six months and raising approximately $1.8 million.

Former Secretary of State Jack Rains, another GOP contender, raised $1.318 million and spent $973,000 during the same period. About $137,000 of Rains' money was in loans.

The fourth Republican candidate, Dallas lawyer Tom Luce, reported raising $1.8 million, of which $1 million was in loans. Luce reported spending $1.5 million during the six-month period.

Two leading Democrats, state Treasurer Ann Richards and former Gov. Mark White, made their reports public Tuesday.

Ms. Richards reported raising $1.36 million and spending $1.15 million.

"We're not the big money candidate, but we're clearly getting small amounts from thousands of new people," said Glenn Smith, Ms. Richards' campaign manager.

White's campaign said he raised $2.5 million and spent just $50,800 during the period. White reported a $1 million campaign loan from First City Bank of Houston.

"I am eager to jump back in the saddle and grab hold of the reins of state government that the Republicans have so carelessly dropped to the ground," White said.

Shannon Radloff, treasurer for the White campaign, said the loan has been paid back.

Dr. Mimms talks to 4-H club

Dr. Mike Mimms with Hereford Veterinary Clinic gave a program on the proper care for 4-H show animals when members of Citizens 4-H Club met Jan. 11 at the Hereford Community Center.

During his talk, Dr. Mimms told of the typical warning signs to look for concerning illness in various show animals. His program was of interest to the youths since many 4-H members will be participating in the Hereford Livestock Show Jan. 23-27. He mentioned that steers coming off feed for even the slightest problem could cause them not to have the "finished look" needed for the show ring. He also explained, "Lambs have to always be monitored for bloat and ringworms. Hogs need to be checked for any signs of lameness. A limping hog in the show ring normally won't place well."

During the business session, plans were made for the club's next meeting set for 7 p.m. Feb. 8 in the Community Center lounge. Also, a Valentine's Day party was planned as well as a civic project.

Club members decided to make tray favors for the residents at Golden Plains Care Center.

Tyler Boggman brought cookies for the 18 club members present.

Gift of appreciation

Pam Price and Jason Brumley presented Dr. Mike Mimms a gift of appreciation when he gave a program recently to members of the Citizens 4-H Club.

Devers welcomed

Bill Devers sang "Old Man River" from "Showboat" by Hammerstein and Kern and was accompanied by Linda Gilbert at a recent meeting of the Federated Music Club.

Members met in the home of Mrs. Sid Shaw and Mrs. Donald Meyer, program leader, introduced each performer with information about each composer and librettist.

Mrs. Pat Woodard, accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Betzen, sang "Will You Remember?" from "Maytime" by Young and Romberg. Mrs. Frances Parker sang "Deep in My Heart Dear" from "The Student Prince" by Donnelly and Romberg. She was accompanied by Mrs. Joe Walters.

Mrs. A. J. Schroeter told some of the memories of the early music club as related to her by Mrs. C.J. Mountz in 1980.

Members present were Mmes. Thomas Betzen, Doug Manning, Frances Parker, A.J. Schroeter, Wayne Thomas, Joe Walters, W.T. Carmichael, Mary B. Carter, Harold Close, and J.D. Neill. Also, Cappie Kennedy Cory, David Ruland and guest.

Hostesses were Gilbert, Mmes. Johnny Trotter, Woodard and Shaw.

Preparing for concert

Jeri Ann Parker, at left, and Camille Betzen, both members of Concerteens, have been placing "Dallas Brass" posters throughout town. The musical ensemble will be performing for members of the Hereford Community Concert Association at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Second opinion for surgery helpful

Before you agree to non-emergency surgery, it is often necessary to seek a second opinion. Today, many health insurers require second opinions before they will authorize payment for elective surgery, and, in the course of talking with a different doctor, patients are learning that surgery isn't always the best option.

Gallstone disease is just one example of a medical condition that can possibly be treated non-surgically. Valerie Cannata, of Miami, Florida, wasn't satisfied with her doctor's prognosis when she was diagnosed with gallstone disease. "I was told to live with the pain or go for the surgery. So I searched for a doctor willing to explore alternatives. He suggested I try an oral medication."

Valerie used Actigall (ursodiol), a recent approved medication that generally dissolves small-to-medium sized cholesterol-based gallstones in six to 24 months, depending on the size of the stone. This medication represents an alternative to surgical removal of the gallbladder (cholecystectomy)—the second most frequently performed procedure in this country. The drug is well tolerated, with only rare cases of mild, transient diarrhea reported.

"I don't recommend surgery for patients unless it is absolute necessary," says Gerald Salen, M.D., director of gastroenterology at Cabrini Medical Center, New York. "For many patients who do not want surgery, or are at high risk for surgery, Actigall is a safe and effective alternative that they should know about."

When it comes to non-emergency gallstone surgery, Dr. Salen suggests the following:

1. Seek a second opinion, and get as much information from both doctors as you can.
2. Find out if you are a candidate for alternative therapies.
3. Ask what the operation will accomplish.
4. Ask about possible complications that could result from the surgery.
5. Work together with your physician to determine which treatment option is best for you.

Discussing show animals

Dr. Mimms is shown talking to 4-H members, Kip Smith, John McWhorter, Chad Christie and Tyler Boggeman. Many local 4-H'ers will be participating in the Hereford Livestock Show Jan. 23-27.

San Francisco nickel back lends a hand

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) - Eric Wright may not be around next year to try for a fifth Super Bowl appearance. Had the ninth-year cornerback not been around this season, the San Francisco 49ers might not have made it to No. 4.

If Wright is leaving, he's going out in style, contributing steady play in a reserve role as well as one of the season's biggest plays.

Wright, 30, has not been a starter since 1988 and plays mostly in San Francisco's "nickel" defense. But he had a hand, literally, in a game-saving play at New Orleans three months ago that helped the 49ers avoid a midseason slump like the one that ruined the 1988 season.

"Eric Wright's deflection of a fourth-down pass against the Saints to me was one of the key points of the season, in that we had lost the week before to Los Angeles," Coach George Seifert said this week as his players enjoyed a long break before beginning preparations for the Jan. 28 Super Bowl.

"Had they completed that pass, it would have been two losses in a row to division teams. Not to say that we would not have fought our way out of that, but it would have made it much more difficult."

Without those last-play heroics, the 49ers would have been two games behind the Rams in the NFC West, with New Orleans rebounding fast from a terrible start.

New Orleans took a 17-10 lead into the fourth quarter of the Oct. 8 game but fell behind by four points on Joe Montana's two touchdown passes to John Taylor, the second with 8:04 remaining. That left plenty of time for the Saints to rally, and it came down to a final pass on fourth down.

Early line has Denver players thinking upset

DENVER (AP) - The Denver Broncos are displaying, at least for public consumption, a devil-may-care attitude toward their Jan. 28 Super Bowl date with the heavily favored San Francisco 49ers.

Privately, however, there is some wounded pride, which the players hope to channel into an upset of major proportions.

At the start of the playoffs, the 49ers were projected as 6 1/2-point favorites over the Broncos if the two teams met in the Super Bowl. After San Francisco crushed Minnesota and the Los Angeles Rams by a combined score of 71-16 in the playoffs, the line went to 11 1/2 points.

"I figured it would be about 30," Denver safety Dennis Smith said. "I think it has to do with how they're playing now, and how we've played in previous Super Bowls. It's just talk, anyway. It has no effect on how we prepare or how we play."

Elway once said he wanted to collect five Super Bowl rings - one more than Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw. Time may be running out for the 29-year-old Elway, whose two previous Super Bowl ventures ended with a 39-20 loss to the New York Giants in January 1987 and the loss to Washington the following year.

His competitive fires burn as brightly as ever, as witnessed by his 385-yard, three-touchdown performance in beating Cleveland 37-21 in the AFC Championship game on Sunday. It was Elway's best passing game of the season.

Now, Elway wants to find the right emotional mix to approach the 49ers game.

"As a kid, this is the game you dream of playing in," he said. "I want to play the best I can, to have some fun and seize the moment. But I don't want it to be a miserable experience by going down there thinking we've got to win at all costs."

Elway is a realist. The Broncos, 0-3 in their history in the Super Bowl, have not responded well to the pressure. The 49ers, at 3-0, are the opposite.

"It will take our best game of the year, no question," Elway said. "I think we're peaking at the right time. We had our best game against Cleveland. I didn't have a good year; in fact, the last two seasons have not been great for me. But the last two games have really helped my confidence."

"We have a more balanced offense than we had in our two previous Super Bowls, and we have a heck of a lot better defense. This is the best team I've ever been on going to a Super Bowl, but we also may be playing the best team that's ever played in the Super Bowl. That makes it tougher."

Broncos coach Dan Reeves says he, too, pays no attention to point spreads.

"All I know is we start out 0-0," he said. "I don't care what the points are. I'll take them if they want to give them to us. If they won't, we'll have to start out even."

Tech's Dykes named TSWA Coach of Year

HOUSTON (AP) - Texas Tech's Spike Dykes finished ahead of Stephen F. Austin's Lynn Graves in balloting for Texas Senior College Coach of the Year, according to the Texas Sports Writers Association.

Dykes and Graves both coached successful football teams last fall. Tech beat three nationally ranked teams and finished the season 9-3 after being picked sixth in preseason Southwest Conference polls.

Graves, in his first year as head coach at SFA, guided the Lumberjacks to a spot in the NCAA Division I-AA championship game and an overall record of 12-2-1.

Dykes out-pointed Graves 304-264 and had a 38-26 edge in first-place votes.

Third place went to Texas-Arlington volleyball coach Cathy Olson-George, who took her team to the NCAA Final Four in December. UTA had a 25-match win streak in a 31-4 season, losing in the semifinals to NCAA champion Cal State-Long Beach.

Jack Pardee of the University of Houston, now head coach of the NFL Houston Oilers, was the 1988 winner of the TSWA coach of the year award.

Sierra seeks arbitration

ARLINGTON (AP) - Ruben Sierra's agent says he'll start salary arbitration proceedings with the Texas Rangers in hopes of getting a multiyear contract for the All-Star outfielder.

Today is the final day of the filing period and the move suggests that Sierra and the Rangers are far from an agreement.

"You never know where these things go until you talk about them," Rangers general manager Tom Grieve told The Dallas Morning News. "You still can't say for sure what will happen now, but we would do (a multiyear contract) only if the numbers were in our favor."

"Most players in Ruben's situation don't get a multiyear contract. Kirby Puckett didn't," Grieve said. "Eric Davis didn't. They went out and got it when near free agency."

Chuck Berry, Sierra's agent, said the parties were far enough apart that he thought it best to file for arbitration.

Arbitration hearings are held during the first three weeks of February. Teams can continue negotiations and sign players until the time of the hearing.

Sierra wants a three-year contract worth about $7 million. But the Rangers, sources say, are reluctant to pay Sierra more than $5.4 million over three years.

Since Sierra cannot become a free agent until after the 1992 season, when he has acquired the necessary six years major league experience, the club is in no hurry to sign him. The Rangers considered the multiyear proposal mainly as a way to keep their three-time Player of the Year away from arbitration.

Berry said he will ask an arbitrator to grant Sierra a contract worth close to the $1.6 million Oakland outfielder Jose Canseco earned last season. Sierra made $357,500 last season while establishing new club marks with 119 RBIs, 344 total bases, a .543 slugging percentage, 78 extra-base hits and 14 triples.

The Rangers managed to avoid salary arbitration and free agency with catcher Geno Petralli. Petralli signed a two-year contract Monday that will pay him $425,000 next season and $525,000 in 1991. He earned $325,000 last year.

Had Petralli signed a one-year contract, he would have been a free agent after 1990.

Over the last four years, more than 75 percent of the players who filed for arbitration settled before the hearing.

Bucks leave Nelson with 599 wins

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Alvin Robertson and Sidney Moncrief - Milwaukee's Arkansas connection - made it a night no Bucks fan or former coach Don Nelson would ever forget.

Robertson had a season-high 37 points, a career-high 16 rebounds, eight assists, four steals and a feeling that he had done something special to honor his hero.

"I've always said when I got drafted that if I could have half the career that Sidney Moncrief had and touch half the people he has touched, I would consider myself as having an outstanding career," Robertson said Tuesday night after leading the Bucks to a 134-126 victory over Golden State.

The performance - certainly one the best of Robertson's six-year NBA career - came on a night when the Bucks retired the jersey number 4, worn for 10 years by Moncrief. It also spoiled Nelson's plan to celebrate his 600th career victory, 540 of which came in 11 seasons with the Bucks.

Nelson, who coached Moncrief for eight seasons before leaving for Golden State, is 599-402.

"You couldn't ask to be compared to a better guy," Robertson, who like Moncrief played at Arkansas, said.

They were never NBA teammates, however. Robertson came the Bucks this season from San Antonio in trade that sent forward Terry Cummings to the Spurs. Moncrief, a five-time all-star, retired last fall after the Bucks declined to re-sign him.

Elsewhere, it was the Los Angeles Clippers 106, Charlotte 98; Portland 120, Denver 115 and Sacramento 108, Atlanta 91.

"I thought we could have done a better job on Alvin Robertson," Nelson said. "He just killed us."

"I wanted our team to play well for Sidney."

"Sidney Moncrief was the greatest player I ever coached. ... Sidney was not the most talented player, but he was the greatest, the greatest human being I ever coached."

Robertson made 15 of 24 shots, sharing the shooting spotlight with Golden State's Chris Mullin, who was 16 for 22 while scoring a season-high 39 points. Mullin said he appreciated the circumstances.

"We all knew and talked about it being an emotional game for Nellie,"

Mullin said. "The Bucks play well and the fans are with them, even though they love Nellie so much."

Milwaukee coach Del Harris caught Razorback fever.

"It was a kind of meeting of the '80s with the '90s. Ironically, you saw a great star from Arkansas who started us in the '80s and you saw another great star from Arkansas who is starting us off in the '90s," he said. "I think the fans are really starting to appreciate Arkansas."

Moncrief credited those around him with making him a better player.

"My teammates gave me the ball when I wanted it, they covered me when I made mistakes and they made the game fun," said Moncrief, who averaged 16.7 points during his career.

Ricky Pierce had 31 points and Jay Humphries 20 for the Bucks, who came from behind and took control with a 15-point run in the third period. Clippers 106, Hornets 98

Ron Harper scored 33 points before leaving with a knee injury as Los Angeles dropped Charlotte to 0-16 on the road.

Kelly Tripucka scored a season-high 30 points and Dell Curry had 21 for Charlotte, which made only one field goal in the final 3 1/2 minutes.

Harper twisted his right knee under the Clippers' basket with 7:04 left in the fourth quarter and did not return.

Charles Smith scored 24 points for the Clippers.

Trail Blazers 120, Nuggets 115

Buck Williams scored a season-high 24 points and Clyde Drexler added 23.

Fat Lever, who led Denver with 22 points, scored eight in a two-minute stretch late in the fourth period. He hit two free throws with 2:32 remaining to tie the game at 112.

Jerome Kersey put Portland ahead for good by hitting a free throw with 2:09 left.

Alex English and Walter Davis scored 21 points each for Denver. Kings 108, Hawks 91

Wayman Tisdale and Harold Pressley topped seven double-figure scorers with 21 points apiece.

Dominique Wilkins had 28 points and Moses Malone 22 for the Hawks.

Tisdale scored six points during a 10-2 run in the third quarter that gave Sacramento a 74-62 advantage. Tisdale had 10 points in the period.

The Kings put the game away in the fourth quarter with a 12-0 run that produced a 103-84 advantage with 2:11 to play.

Shot proves hand quicker than eye

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

Take this no-cost, no-frills sports quiz and see whether you're qualified for a new career in the exciting world of the NBA.

Which one of the tasks below could NOT have been accomplished in one-tenth of a second:

- A. All dark matter in the universe was formed.

B. The blueprint for the formation of the galaxies was completed.

C. Trent Tucker of the New York Knicks, standing 26 feet from the basket, caught an inbounds pass with two hands and let fly a high, arching jumper that beat the buzzer and the Chicago Bulls 109-106 Monday night in Madison Square Garden.

If you picked C, contact your nearest NBA franchise and ask to take the rest of the referee's examination. Because right about now, the league is looking for a few good men (and women for that matter).

"I can think of a lot of things that can happen in one-tenth of a second," astrophysicist Michael Turner of the University of Chicago said Tuesday.

"A star explodes every tenth of a second somewhere in the universe."

"Light, which travels at 186,000 miles per second, can almost circumnavigate the globe, 100,000 billion neutrinos from the sun can pass through your body."

"The only thing I can't think of," said Turner, an avowed Bulls fan who provided examples A and B, "is a 3-point shot with that much time on the clock being called good in any city but New York."

"Let's say there's two seconds on the clock, the ball is thrown in and then knocked out of bounds," explained Rod Thorn, the NBA's vice president for operations. "Before, the clock still said two seconds, even though everybody in the place knew it was now less than that. This was an attempt to quantify that."

"I recognize that it's impossible to catch a ball with two hands and shoot in a tenth of a second," he continued. "I think if somebody had thrown it toward the basket and somebody tipped it, now that's a horse of a different color."

"In this case, though, the ref should have taken the ball by the horn and waved off the basket."

"In theory, the clock is a terrific thing. Not only in theory," he added, almost reflexively, "but in practice."

But here's what it looked like in practice Monday night:

With the score tied at 106 and four seconds left in regulation, Knicks guard Mark Jackson began dribbling up the floor and Scottie Pippen of the Bulls, who had one foul to give, grabbed him with 0.1 seconds remaining.

Ironically, if the Chicago player had been more diligent - or checked the clock - and delayed the foul for another nanosecond or so, this entire matter would have been academic. Unfortunately for the NBA, he did not.

Jackson then inbounds to Tucker, at which point the trailer of the three officials working the floor is supposed to see the ball touch the player's hands and make a signal to the timekeeper. He, in turn, must see the signal and engage the clock for the tenth of a second to tick off.

According to the official version given by referee Paul Mihalak, "It's a judgment call. The trail official (Ronnie Nunn), in his opinion, thought the shot was released in time."

A tenth of a second elapsed long before you got past the first word in this sentence.

And if you believe that Tucker's quality time with the basketball and this give-the-signal, see-the-signal, push-the-button trick can be accomplished in 0.1 seconds - have we got a watch for you!

Steve Garvey, the winner of the 1974 MVP Award in the National League, made 200 hits or more in a season six times.

OU suffers in first loss

By The Associated Press

The only points No. 3 Oklahoma got this time were for sloppy play.

The Sooners, leading the nation with a 122-point scoring average, lost their first game of the season Tuesday night, 66-51 at Kansas State.

"We broke down in every phase of the game, and when you don't shoot well, bad things will happen," Coach Billy Tubbs said.

Oklahoma (12-1) was limited to its lowest point total since scoring just 49 in a 1983 NCAA Tournament loss to Indiana. The Sooners shot just 29 percent from the field, missing 36 of 51 shots, and the five starters were a combined 4-for-25.

What a turnaround from last February, when Oklahoma scored 112 points against Kansas State, the most ever versus the Wildcats. This time, Kansas State (10-7) held the Sooners to 25 points in the first half.

In other games, No. 4 Missouri beat Oklahoma State 72-71, No. 11 Georgia Tech got past Temple 59-57, No. 13 LSU defeated Vanderbilt 101-72 and St. John's downed Villanova 64-58.

Oklahoma's loss left No. 1 Kansas and No. 2 Georgetown as the only undefeated Division I teams. The Sooners had been winning by an average of 38 1/2 points, the biggest spread in the country.

"That was a big concern of ours; we knew they could score quickly," Kansas State guard Steve Henson said. "We did everything we could to fight off a run. Once in a while they'd come down and make a three, and we'd wonder if it was coming."

Longhorn's Joey Wright finally knows what hit him

AUSTIN (AP) - University of Texas basketball player Joey Wright didn't know what hit him during a 103-84 loss to Oklahoma last weekend. Literally.

"It's right here in the first minute of the game," Vic Trilli, an assistant coach at Texas, said while loading a television tape recording of the game. "Joey (Wright, a Texas guard) and (Oklahoma's Terry) Evans are standing by the free throw line when, wham."

The tape clearly showed Evans punch Wright in the mouth seconds into the game. The officials didn't notice the punch. And until seeing the tape, even Wright didn't know what Oklahoma wound up only 5-for-19 from 3-point range.

Jean Derouillere scored 23 points for the Wildcats. Kansas State was patient from the start against the bigger and faster Sooners, and took advantage of mistakes.

Leading 38-35, Kansas State went on a 9-2 run for a 49-37 lead with 4:36 to play. Oklahoma missed the first shot in three 1-and-1 situations during that span.

Aska Jones, making his first start for the Wildcats, scored 14 points. Smokey McCovery led Oklahoma with 13 points and Jackie Jones had 11. No. 4 Missouri 72, Oklahoma State 71

Anthony Peeler made a foul shot with nine seconds left, breaking a tie and helping Missouri hold on at Oklahoma State.

Peeler, who scored 19 points, missed his first free throw but made the second. John Potter missed at the buzzer for Oklahoma State.

Doug Smith scored 23 points for Missouri (16-1 overall, 3-0 in the Big point for the Cowboys (8-6, 0-3).

Byron Houston's two foul shots the Big East) led by 15 points with 24 seconds to go lifted Oklahoma 12:32 remaining and were ahead 56-48 State into a 71-all tie. Peeler was with 5:08 left. Villanova (10-8, 3-3) fouled as he tried a jump shot inside closed to 59-58 with 1:27 to go, but the foul line.

Jason Buchanan made two foul shots and Williams added a free throw. Kenny Anderson made two foul shots with 2:11 remaining for the final 1,008 points. Malik Sealy scored 13 points of the game as Georgia Tech won at home.

Temple's Mik Kilgore missed a 3-point try with four seconds left and, after Tech's Dennis Scott failed to convert a 1-and-1 foul situation with three seconds to go, Mark Macon was off on a 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Scott led the Yellow Jackets (12-1) with 20 points. Anderson, a freshman, had 15, including eight in the last seven minutes.

Macon scored 22 points for the Owls (6-7).

No. 13 LSU 101, Vanderbilt 72 Maurice Williams scored 22 points and led a burst of 11 points midway through the second half that sent LSU over visiting Vanderbilt.

Chris Jackson scored 22 points for the Tigers, leaving with six minutes left because of sore ankles.

Stanley Roberts had 21 points and 14 rebounds as LSU improved to 11-2 overall and 4-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

Todd Milholland scored 23 points for the Commodores (10-4, 3-2).

No. 15 St. John's 64, Villanova 58 Senior Jayson Williams scored 13 points and passed the career 1,000-point mark as St. John's won in Philadelphia.

The Redmen (15-3 overall, 4-1 in the Big East) led by 15 points with 12:32 remaining and were ahead 56-48 State into a 71-all tie. Peeler was with 5:08 left. Villanova (10-8, 3-3) fouled as he tried a jump shot inside closed to 59-58 with 1:27 to go, but the foul line.

Jason Buchanan made two foul shots and Williams added a free throw. Kenny Anderson made two foul shots with 2:11 remaining for the final 1,008 points. Malik Sealy scored 13 points of the game as Georgia Tech won at home.

Temple's Mik Kilgore missed a 3-

hit him.

"If I knew what happened we would have cleared the benches," Wright said. "I never saw the punch until I looked at the tape. But I felt it. I thought he slipped in an elbow, but it was an outright punch in the mouth."

Asked if there was any action that could be taken, Texas assistant coach Jamie Ciampaglio said, "Not until next year."

The Sooners play in Austin next season.

"If it was the NBA, the tape would be reviewed and the player would be fined and suspended," Texas head coach Tom Penders said. "Here, there is no one to send it to."

Members of the Oklahoma coaching staff could not immediately be reached for comment Tuesday night following their 66-51 loss to Kansas State at Manhattan, Kan.

Local leaders eye decade of progress

Mayor says Hereford envied by many for diversified ag economy

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

The economic heartbeat of Hereford may become a pacemaker for surrounding communities as local leaders link efforts to turn the 1990s into a decade of positive growth.

Working around catchy little phrases of "Enthusiasm" and "Growth from Within," a unique coalition is hammering out plans to turn economic hardpans of the Eighties into bedding soil for the 21st Century.

City and county leaders, in a panel discussion on future trends, voiced unanimous optimism, with Mayor Wes Fisher projecting increased enthusiasm of the Hereford business community:

"I look forward to the future of Hereford with enthusiastic optimism. I sincerely sense that the positive attitude of the people of Hereford is growing all the time.... people are showing more confidence in our community as evidenced by the increase in new retail openings and fewer closings."

Fisher said he believed the Hereford community must look from within for continued expansion--"We have to look at what we have and what we have going for us, both locally and regionally. We have a number of existing businesses that are expanding and until recently, these seem to have been well-kept secrets."

Fisher gave much credit of the recent upbeat atmosphere of Hereford to a group of professional and business leaders who in 1989 made an unprecedented move to initiate a community awareness program to "tell the real story of Hereford" through regional and national feature articles on this agribusiness center.

The project of which Fisher was referring was simply tagged--"Enthusiasm"--during the last eight months of 1989, more than 150,000 words and some 175 photos were published in The Hereford Brand under the logo of "Hustlin' Hereford." More than one-half of these articles on people and places of Hereford have already appeared in regional and national publications.

"The progressive articles on Hereford and surrounding community have been of immeasurable help in not only achieving national recognition but getting the folks around Hereford to take a look at themselves," said Fisher. "I talk to folks every day who have discovered a lot of new people and new businesses through these articles."

HUSTLE HEREFORD

"We are envied by many other communities because of our diversified agricultural economy," Fisher added. "We are blessed with a strong cattle feeding industry, the sugar industry, a large grain industry and the vegetable business. "We are known as a progressive community made up of leaders and entrepreneurs and we possess an outstanding community spirit."

Fisher emphasized the point that when good things happen in Hereford, some of it reaches to adjoining communities and to the state, or vice-versus: "Just like the Texas A&M/West Texas State merger..... that enhancement will no doubt be a big boost to Hereford since we're only 30 minutes away."

"I believe that we'll see in the decade ahead that most of our growth will come from within, but certainly not counting out new industry," Fisher added. "We must expand our tax base to keep reasonable tax levels since the cost of operating governmental agencies is increasing all of the time. But as long as we maintain the positive attitude that we already have, the future is going to be ours."

In addition to his roles as mayor and a Hereford vegetable processor, Fisher is also chairman of the Panhandle Conference of Mayors, and a member of the board of the Panhandle Area Alliance, a regional organization composed of business leaders of the northern-most 26 Texas counties.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce & Industrial Development, in the open discussions shimmied up the mayor's projections in showing where 23 new business firms have opened in Hereford in recent months.

"Hereford has had a very exciting past which has contributed greatly to establishing a very strong base for the future," said Carr. "We've seen many of the smaller start-up businesses to continue to grow into what are now very viable and strong industries and retail outlets for Hereford. The retail sector has continued to show a steady growth and at this time we have more than 350 reporting retail outlets."

Carr noted that the Hereford retail businesses have a very healthy marketing mode, ranging from the smaller family operated firms to the national chains--"They all have a very important place in our community...these retail stores carry a big load of the community tax burden. And with Hereford firmly established as a retail hub of the region, these dollars coming back to the community will become even more important as we continue to grow."

Carr pointed out that the retail business is never a one-way street, but by the same token, it can become a little lop-sided. "In a recent survey, we found that about 25 percent of our local retail trade is being lost to outside markets, mostly in Amarillo, Lubbock and Clovis, and this related to about $25 million annually," Carr said, while showing where a program is under way to put a kink in this trend. "We're working with our local merchants in sponsoring management seminars to find better customer relations and enhanced advertising programs through the local newspaper and radio."

"We know there's a double-edged sword in the retail sector in the saying of 'Shop at Home'--we would like for our folks to shop Hereford first, but at the same time, we would like for our merchants to provide them with competitive products at competitive prices. There's some responsibilities that go with each side of the coin."

Carr said that in addition to local expansion and new developments on the horizon, the Chamber of Commerce have made a number of presentations to major companies that are looking at Hereford as a possible site for expansion.

"In recent visits to our local outlets, both the smaller firms and national chains, I found them to be very positive about the future of Hereford--they seemed very happy about current trends," said Carr.

"We're seeing a very strong move in the downtown area. As a matter of fact, we have one of the strongest downtown areas of any town of the state. We're very proud of this strong downtown move and right now we have several firms looking to this area for retail locations. Also, the merchants of our shopping centers have recently stated that new developments and renovations are on the way."

Having been executive vice president of the chamber for the past 11 years, Carr said he sees Hereford moving from an economic plateau of the 1980s into a steady economic climb in the 1990s.

Carr also noted that the recent promotional work of the professional and business leaders spearheading the "Enthusiasm" move has contributed greatly to a community-awareness image of Hereford: "These articles that have been appearing in The Hereford Brand have really gotten the attention of the community. As a matter of fact, I think they should be put into some type of bound volume or book."

As a point of record, Donna Brockman, executive director of the Deaf Smith County Museum, said earlier that the museum was keeping a running file of all the enthusiasm "Hustlin' Hereford" articles on the life and times of Deaf Smith County.

O.G. "Speedy" Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, who acted as moderator of the county/city talks, said that unity within the community of Hereford would be a key factor in developing a decade of growth. As a backstop to his projections, he exhibited a list of 10 goals that were set in 1975 by the chamber-sponsored Goals for Progress committee, with most of them becoming living realities.

After completing those goals, there seemed to be a period, said Nieman, "when we started to drift along, with only varying degrees of impetus here and there, hoping for the best. After DOE pulled out, the Waste Deposit Impact Committee used a grant for a new study of economic goals. Maybe that got us back on track--I think we have to set goals and work together to get them accomplished," stressed the publisher.

"Sometimes we tend to overlook all the good things we've got going for us," added Nieman. "That's one reason The Brand initiated the "Hustle Hereford" feature series--to tell the community's success stories through articles about businesses and individuals who are contributing to the stability and progress of the city and county."

Calling the newspaper series "a community awareness promotion," Nieman pointed out that a group of unselfish business leaders are helping fund the project. "We all have special interests, but by joining with others to work for what's best for Hereford, it will ultimately benefit each of us."

"Hereford has the leadership and all the ingredients to move ahead," said Nieman, "and it is my hope for the new decade that more potential community leaders will step forward and accept their roles of helping make this community a better place to live, work and play."

Doug Josseland, president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, was quick to point out that the economy of Hereford is based on agribusiness: "The backbone of our economy, of which I'm sure everyone is aware, is agriculture, whether it be our diversified farming industry, the related industries of the cattle industry. The last half of the past decade was good for more of these segments and as we look into the decade ahead, it looks like a large part of our growth will come from these industries."

He noted the supportive businesses of agribusiness will also be key points of growth during the 1990s--"I certainly agree with the mayor that most of our growth is going to have to come from within...we would like to land a major employer, but in the meantime, we can count on growth from within."

At the age of 29, Josseland is one of the youngest chamber presidents in the history of Hereford, but his enthusiastic approach to business fills the gap of time. Reared in the feeding end of the cattle business, Josseland is vice president of the First National Bank of Hereford and is beginning his first term as chief of the chamber. In showing various segments of the chamber's activities, Josseland pointed to the Industrial Development Corporation which was created to provide tax-exempt financing for attracting industry and providing additional employment opportunities via Industrial Revenue Bonds.

"We also have an Economic Development Council which the city-county and school helped fund, but it has not been as active as some of us would like," he added. "But I think perhaps there's some things on the horizon to push this along."

Deaf Smith County has annual agricultural production of more than $317 million, making it the top county of Texas in agriculture. The county is also the top county of the nation in production in fed beef cattle, with Hereford holding the undisputed title of being the "Fed Beef Capital of the World. More than 3 million head of cattle are finished annually for the world meat markets within a 50-mile radius of Hereford."

Deaf Smith County Judge Tom Simons pulled no punches in declaring that the greatest assets of the area are the people: "I think the people of Hereford and Deaf Smith County are our greatest assets--but this is no great revelation when you look back on the history of the county and see the great accomplishments that were made before we came along."

"It's obvious to me that we're dependent on agriculture...that's what we are no matter what else we're involved in," he added. "Our primary source of income is from farming and cattle--that's the way it always has been and that's the way it's going to be. There's other areas we'd like to diversify in, but when you get down to the tax base, all of us are dependent on agriculture."

The judge noted that one of the 1975 goals was increased intergovernmental cooperation--"I believe that in the sheer fact of those who are here today in group discussion shows that this goal has been achieved." In addition to the mayor, chamber director, and chamber president, the county judge, those present also included the Hereford city manager, and the superintendent of the Hereford Independent School District.

"I believe that we in the county have a very good working relationship with the City of Hereford," said Judge Simons. "We share a common interest and common goals and there's very little friction or disagreement about what needs to be done to help promote Deaf Smith County and the city of Hereford. I just can't think of enough good things to say about the city, Deaf Smith County and the schools system...youngsters here not only have the opportunity to get an excellent education, but they have learned about life...day-to-day living."

Now in his third year as county judge, Simons showed where the county commissioners are responsible for about 1500 square miles in Deaf Smith County, with 1273 miles of county roads in the four precincts: "I think for the most part the people out in the county not only appreciate but also understand the enormous responsibilities that goes with being a commissioner and what they are doing in trying to make the county a better place. Just this past year, a weed district came into existence primarily to help control the bindweed. It seems to me that the people of Deaf Smith County have a feeling of togetherness--people trying to relate to their neighbors' problems."

Judge Simons noted that there have been many shifts in the county economic structure in recent years, such as the tax base, showing where some things that once were on the tax rolls are now either gone or exempt...cattle and farm implements came off the tax rolls and there's been a change in land-use valuations...there's been a number of things that have shifted the burden of taxes."

He emphasized that it is "critical" for us as Deaf Smith County to continue to seek and encourage new industry to come to this area. "But I think the most critical thing for us is growth from within. It's real easy for us to ignore this and say there's nothing going on, when in fact we have a number of businesses really on the move."

Simons named a half dozen industries centered around Hereford that have more than doubled employment in the past 10 years, a period of time when most South-west cities suffered major declines in all phases of business.

As a backstop to Simons, Carr noted that despite one of the worst recessions in agriculture in more than 30 years during the 1980s, the retail output of Hereford increase by more than $10 million from 1982 to 1989.

"It's just as important for a local firm to increase his production or work-force as it is to bring in a new business," said Simons. "There's no difference where we increase several small firms by just two or three people than it is to bring in one new big firm...and certainly it is more realistic."

Simons said he believed that this is an era of time where people are becoming more inclined to help themselves... "People are looking for opportunities--most folks don't want to sit around without a job...they truly want to work and earn a living for themselves and their families."

Deaf Smith County commissioners are John Stribling, Austin Rose, Troy Don Moore, and John Latham.

Mayor Fisher pointed out that it was during the sugar and cattle boom days of the 1960s when Deaf Smith County nearly doubled in population...then came a decade of levelling off, with the 1980s seen as a decade of decline in rural population in all areas of the nation.

Darwin McGill, city manager of Hereford, said he was very optimistic about the economic future of Hereford: "I'm relatively new to Hereford--been here only five years--but in discussions I've had with other people around the state, I think that Hereford is very fortunate to have such good local economy. We all realize that the Southwest is a depressed area, and Hereford is going through depressed times, but as you compare it to other areas and other cities, I think we are very fortunate in that we do have an extremely strong cattle and agricultural base."

McGill said he has viewed this area as having maintained a reasonable level of stability during the recent years of depressed agriculture prices: "I can show you at least three Hereford firms that have expanded considerably during the so-called times of depression--Warner Seeds, Garrison Seeds and

Hereford By-Products.

"We have many positive things that we should be aware of and be appreciative of--our chamber has worked very diligently in helping people relocate, in revitalizing downtown and it's my judgment and opinion that it's the local people that count. We're all anxious to get outside business in here, but it appears it's going to have to be agriculturally related."

McGill said that in comparing Hereford with any other areas in Texas, the city remains among the highest in growth and stability patterns. He pointed out that at this time plans are under way to rebuild the main runway at the Hereford Airport, a new city park is on its way in for the summer of 1990, new city water projects are moving on schedule, renovations and new playground equipment is coming for existing city parks and a tourist attraction development is on the drawing boards.

As a result of being located at the crossroads of two major highways, Hereford has a six-pronged business district that fans out in a six-mile radius...Main Street, U.S. 60 thoroughfare, U.S. 385 thoroughfare, Park Avenue, Harrison Highway and Holly Sugar Road. All of these urban districts are intertwined with both, retail and wholesale outlets, with the industrial units pinpointed mostly on the outer fringes.

In addition to Fisher, the City Council members include Irene Cantu, Bud Eades, Tom LeGate, Terry Langehennig, Paul Hamilton, and Sylvana Juarez. The city operates under a current budget of $4.2 million which includes water utilities and the maintenance of 13 parks, with 273 acres of park land. The largest unit is Veterans Park adjacent to the John Pitman Municipal Golf Course. One of the heaviest used parks is Dameron park located across the street from the Chamber of Commerce offices.

"One of our greatest public facilities is the golf course," said McGill. "I guess we have one of the finest golf courses in the entire Panhandle area."

Charles Greenawalt, superintendent of the Hereford Independent School District, heads up a faculty and staff of 516, with 4500 students in the district that encompasses 722 square miles of Deaf Smith County.

"We work with a budget of little more than $16 million with 80 percent of this total going for payrolls," said Greenawalt, in showing the economic impact of the school system on the agribusiness center. "We have eight school campuses--three elementary schools, three intermediate schools a junior high and a high school."

Greenawalt said that a slow decline in student population--a loss of 50 to 75 students a year--has been witnessed in recent years but projects a levelling off of about 4400 students in the early 1990s.

There is no petroleum production in Deaf Smith County. All schools are funded through land and homeowners, industries and agribusiness. The school district is now spending about $3700 per child each year in maintaining the current curriculum, maintaining a large bilingual educational program.

"I don't see any need for additional campuses in the next few years but we will be proposing some renovations within the next 10 years," Greenawalt added. "Hereford has an excellent school system. In fact, that's why I came here in the first place. This community is very supportive of its educational program."

Promoting two sources of pride: Cowgirl Hall of Fame, HHS athletic teams

With a county population estimated at around 21,000, one of the major objectives for the 1990s is to maintain a high visibility and aggressive activity in the area of economic development, an on-going program of the chamber for a number of years.

Carr added that through the cooperative of the Hereford Area Economic Development Council, the Chamber of Commerce will be sending two local residents each year to attend basic economic development courses at Texas A&M University.

"The object of this is to get more of our people directly involved in the economic development process," Carr said. "Hopefully, as we move into the 1990s, we'll have more and more of our leaders involved in economic developments."

In addition to a new bowling alley and an indoor miniature golf course, a new theatre is now on the horizon in the entertainment area of Hereford, with projections now calling for completion of a twin-screen or triple-screen cinema by June.

Long-range projections also call for a beautification program for the city, from the highway right-of-ways to the community playgrounds. Carr wrapped up a number of projections in a nutshell as he spoke of the decade of the 1990s:

"It's going to take the support of every business and every person to maintain the economic growth projections, but I believe we have the people who can do it...a total community effort. It would be nice to look back at the end of the 1990s and see a decade of positive results."

Projection: Texas economy will continue to diversify, expand

BY BOB BULLOCK

State Comptroller

Economic forecasting is kind of like weather forecasting. The further you try to predict in the future, the harder it is to be accurate.

In 1980, no one could have predicted the collapse of oil prices that swept through our state's economy like a hurricane in the middle of the decade. While no one knows what economic storms may be in store for us 5 or 10 years from now, we have developed sophisticated computer programs that can give us an idea of what we might expect to happen in Texas during the 1990s.

Based on our best projections, it appears the Texas economy will continue to diversify and expand as our population grows faster than the national average and businesses continue to move to our state.

Schools will have to produce graduates with the capabilities necessary to be successful in the high-tech '90s and beyond. Oil and gas, once the mainstay of our economy, will play a less significant role, while services pick up the slack.

Mirroring the national trend of more service jobs, nearly 80 percent of new Texas jobs will be in areas such as transportation, communications, public utilities, finance, insurance, real estate, business, health and government.

Manufacturing will also play a major role in our economic future, bucking the national trend of zero growth. Much of the increase will be in electronics, computers and machinery.

Construction will rebound, becoming the fastest growing major Texas industry.

Three major selling points--including the low cost of residential and business property, an available labor force and access to the major Sunbelt markets--will work to attract new industry to the state.

Texas is home to some of the least expensive residential and business properties in the country, a major attraction for companies considering relocation. In the third quarter of 1989, the average price of a house in Houston was less than half the average price of a house in New York. An office space in Houston averaged $14.08 per square foot and $22.58 in Dallas. A square foot of office space in New York averaged about $40.

Access to markets and the available labor force in the growing Sunbelt are other major Texas attractions.

As a result of our expanding state economy, about 55,000 more people will move to Texas than leave the state each year. That, and a birth rate above the national average, will boost the population by about 2 million to 19.3 million by 1990.

Texas will not only become more populous, but also older and generally more prosperous. The population between the ages of 40 and 64 will increase by 41.2 percent in the next decade, adding to the productivity and vitality of the state.

Almost half of all new Texans will be of Hispanic descent. The growth in the Hispanic population will be due to a relatively high birth rate and the continued flow of Latin American immigrants into the state. Blacks will remain at about 12 percent of the population, while the Hispanic population will increase from 24 to about 27 percent.

The severe economic swings of the '80s are behind us and the '90s promise steady, continued growth for all areas of the state. The next 10 years will present opportunities and challenges for all Texans as our state economy picks up steam and becomes increasingly diversified.

Golden Nail Awards Gala planners are now seeking nominations from a 22-city area of those who have provided extraordinary support for the fine arts in the Texas Panhandle during 1989.

Recipients of Golden Nail Awards - individuals and businesses - will be honored in ceremonies April 7, at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Individual winners of 1989 awards included Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Gilvin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ladd, Amarillo Hardware, Focus Magazine of Pampa, and the Mullins Foundation received business awards. Mrs. E. H. Brainard II of Pampa was named distinguished volunteer. Additionally, three

"We are with only nine years left in this century, and to be perfectly honest with you, I thought we would have it together by now. I guess that comes from dreaming faster than we can have reality," the 40-year-old musician said Tuesday at a birthday tribute to the late Martin Luther King Jr.

Golden Touch Awards were given. The purpose of the Golden Nail Awards is to honor those whose financial and in-kind contributions to the fine arts in the Panhandle are of such magnitude that the impact on the arts is significant.

The Golden Nail theme is taken from a rhyme beginning, "For want of a nail..." that tells of a nail lost from the shoe of one horse that led to the loss of the horse, the rider, the battle and finally a kingdom.

Winners are chosen from the slate of nominees by a four-person committee selected from immediate past presidents or executive committee members of fine arts boards, past Golden Nail Award winners or past members of the Golden Nail committee.

Nominations are invited from individuals as well as organizations. Nomination forms are available at the Chamber office, 1000 S. Polk in Amarillo, or from Margaret Formby, phone 364-3589. Deadline for nominations is Feb. 15.

A. Make sure the mango is at the right stage of ripeness, yielding slightly when pressed. Using a thin, sharp knife, cut a wide band down on side of skin. Peel skin back and eat fruit with a spoon directly from mango. Or, peel skin away with a thin, sharp knife and use as directed.

Q. What is Balsamic vinegar? E.C., Milwaukee, Or

A. It's a dark, thick, slightly sweet vinegar aged in barrels made of several woods. It can be sprinkled on tomatoes or greens or used in vinaigrettes.

McEnroe dominating at Australian

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) - John McEnroe, looking less like a longshot every day, sounded gleeful describing how he reduced his second Australian Open victim to a state of confusion and frustration.

In diabolical detail, McEnroe recounted the 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 demise Wednesday night of Austria's Alex Antonitsch, who played him much tougher in Montreal last summer.

"He became very, very shaky," McEnroe said after the 78-minute mismatch. "His forehand volley went completely astray. He had every sign of a guy who became totally confused and frustrated."

McEnroe, who has lost only eight games in two matches, was doing everything right. Forehands and backhands kissed the lines. Volleys bounced away from Antonitsch at impossible angles. Eleven aces left the Austrian staring helplessly.

At one point, at 0-40 in the seventh game of the second set, Antonitsch even tried to sneak by with an underhand serve.

"It was a sign of frustration," McEnroe said, adding that other players, including himself, might in the future try the tactic made famous by Michael Chang against Ivan Lendl in the French Open last summer.

McEnroe wasn't fooled, though. He won the point, and kept on rolling.

McEnroe's third-round opponent will be a little tougher - Dan Goldie, a former Stanford All-America like McEnroe.

While McEnroe was taking the fast route, 11th-seeded Pam Shriver took the slow one.

Shriver had to play for almost two hours in the midday heat to beat Australian Nicole Provis 1-6, 6-2, 9-7 in a second-rounder.

Shriver denied rumors that she's thinking of retiring, though she admitted she thought about quitting during the final set against Provis.

"I told myself if I choked again I'd go home and stay home," she said. "You say a lot of wild things to yourself in that situation. I don't know how serious I was, but it worked."

Shriver double-faulted twice while serving with a 6-5 lead in the third set, then made a "choke" sign with her hand at her neck when she was broken.

After losing the next game, Shriver threw her racket in disgust, but then settled down, held serve, broke Provis and served out the match.

"I needed to do something, and the best thing was to give my racket a big heave toward the chair," Shriver said. "It worked, because I won the next three games."

Two-time defending champion Steffi Graf, playing in slow motion compared to her rapid-fire practice with Boris Becker, easily advanced to the third round.

Ivan Lendl, the men's defending champion and top seed, also had another ho-hum day in his outdoor office as he reached the third round with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Spain's Tomas Carbonell.

The West German wunderkinder, Becker and Graf, have an unfair advantage as they seek to conquer Australia after capturing Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Compatriots armed with tennis rackets, they hit together from time to time, then go out and beat up on the rest of the world.

Graf spent little effort in beating 17-year-old American Erika De Lone on Wednesday 6-1, 6-2, in a second-round match that kept the West German on track toward her third straight Australian title.

Becker said his 20-minute hitting session with Graf just before the tournament was "quite intense." "It was like playing with some guys for an hour," he said. "Thank God, I have a serve."

"He should be" grateful for his serve, Graf said.

Graf said the only downside about playing against Becker is that when she faces women she sometimes has trouble concentrating on their easier game.

Czech Helena Sukova, the No. 4 seed who lost to Graf in the finals here last year, also reached the third round with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union.

Sweden's Mikael Pernfors, the former two-time NCAA singles champion at Georgia, beat 13th-seeded Sergi Bruguera of Spain 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

BREEDER'S CUP TV

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) - NBC estimated that 20 million people in 60 countries watched part or all of the telecast of the seven Breeder's Cup races at Gulfstream Park Nov. 4.

The network used 13 stationary cameras, four minicams, four unmanned cameras and a balloon-mounted overhead camera to capture the action.

The program was carried by the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service to personnel around the world.

CAUGHT RUNNING

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Jerry Rice, the brilliant wide receiver of the San Francisco 49ers, recalls that he had no interest in football when he attended Crawford, Miss., High School.

But he was playing hooky one day and the principal caught him. Rice took off running and was so fast the principal told the football coach.

The rest is history. Rice went out for football the next day and became a college star and later a pro great.

COLLEGE HOCKEY

BOSTON (AP) - For three days in March, the historic Boston Garden, home of the Bruins and the Celtics, will become the capital of Eastern collegiate ice hockey.

"Hockeyfest '90", from March 9 to 11, will feature the postseason tournaments of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and the Hockey East Conference.

The championship game of both conferences will be played March 11.

TWO-STAR RATING

ATLANTA (AP) - Bobby Cremins, the men's basketball coach at Georgia Tech, found out last summer what it's like to be a major general in the Air Force.

Cremins made a two-week tour of U.S. bases in France, Greece, Spain and Turkey. He conducted basketball clinics for the servicemen and throughout his tour was extended the courtesy normally accorded a two-star general.

Ochoa to speak at banquet

Joe Ochoa of Abilene will be the guest speaker at the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship banquet dinner set for 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Hereford Community Center.

Cost of the meal, which will be catered by Caison House Restaurant, is $4.50 per person.

Ochoa, who now ministers to the Spanish people in Abilene and other small towns nearby, became involved with marijuana and alcohol at the age of 14. After graduating from high school in Weslaco, Texas, he was employed in Houston as a security system technician working with safes and bank vaults. On New Year's Eve in 1976, he became a Christian.

After eight months at his Houston job, Ochoa went into ministry and joined the Evangelistic Team under the direction of Rev. Alfred Galvan in Crusades, Texas, the western states, and Old Mexico. For two years, he was in full-time evangelistic ministry preaching in California, Colorado and Texas.

In September of 1987, Ochoa joined the Galvan Revivals. He and his wife, who teaches school, are parents of a 16-year-old son and a five-year-old daughter.

Are you a salt-aholic?

NEW YORK (AP) - Are you hooked on salt?

The National Research Council recommends a maximum of 2,400 milligrams of sodium and a minimum sodium intake of 500 milligrams each day. However, experts say the average American consumes more than 10 pounds of salt a year, more than twice the recommended amount.

Take the following short quiz to help determine your salt intake:

1. Do you reach for the saltshaker before testing your food?
2. Do you routinely add condiments such as ketchup, mustard, soy or steak sauce to foods?
3. Are fast-food hamburgers and fries one of your favorite lunches?
4. Is bacon or ham with a stack of pancakes a favorite breakfast?
5. Do you frequently snack on potato chips, crackers, peanuts and popcorn?
6. Is your diet high in canned, frozen and packaged foods?
7. Do you enjoy pickles, relish, olives and sauerkraut?
8. Do you eat in restaurants four or more times a week?

If you answered "yes" to four or more of these questions, you may qualify as a "salt-aholic," says the Alberto Culver Co. of Melrose Park, Ill., makers of Mrs. Dash, a salt-free seasoning.

Lynne Hill, a registered dietitian and director of the Mrs. Dash Sodium Information Hotline, offers these tips:

- Watch out for hidden sodium in processed foods including frozen dinners, canned soups and vegetables, packaged and frozen pies, pastries and breakfast cereals.

- When dining out, ask the chef to prepare your meal salt-free, so that you can control the amount of salt you put on your meal. Hill says most restaurants tend to use salt liberally. Select foods without sauces, and ask for steamed or broiled vegetables.

For a free copy of "Taming Your Taste for Salt," which features 10 recipes using salt-free products plus tips on reducing sodium intake, write to: Mrs. Dash, Dept. MM, 2525 Armitage Ave., Melrose Park, IL 60160.

The Mrs. Dash Sodium Information Hotline, 1-800-622-DASH, has tips on reducing sodium intake and preparing low-sodium recipes. The hotline is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Eastern Time, Monday through Friday.

Since its inception 5 years ago, the hotline has received more than 125,000 calls from consumers asking about hints to lower their salt intake and for information about the sodium content of specific foods, according to company officials.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A Chinese-American group is calling on Denver Broncos owner Pat Bowlen to apologize for using the term "Chinaman."

Chinese for Affirmative Action of San Francisco said Tuesday it had asked NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue to fine Bowlen for his "racist comment."

On Monday, Bowlen, whose team faces the 49ers in the Super Bowl, offered a tongue-in-cheek assessment of the San Francisco.

"Those guys have got a great owner," Bowlen said. "They've got God for a quarterback. They've got a Chinaman who plays wide receiver whose feet never touch the ground." Bowlen, when asked what he meant, said "That Chinese guy. What's his name? Rice?" referring to Jerry Rice.

Broncos spokesman Jim Saccomano said Bowlen "was just speaking facetiously" about Rice, who is black. "He was trying to be funny," Saccomano said.
