'91 harvest leaves a bittersweet taste

Farmers face problems with USDA, lenders

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
HEREFORD - In farming circles, the sugar beet is considered among the most durable of crops, a tank among jeeps in a battlefield against hail barrages and whipping rain storms.

Unlike its West Texas above-ground neighbors - cotton, wheat and corn - the football-sized sugar beet is tucked safely beneath the earth, capable of weathering the slashing winds notorious to this region.

But the sugar beet has no defense for a freeze.

On Oct. 28 the same cold snap that zapped the South Plains cotton crop took the sweetness out of what looked to be a bulging sugar beet harvest.

"As the temperatures dropped, our hopes dropped with them," said Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and a beet farmer in Deaf Smith County. "It just knocked us out. And I know many growers were expecting strong yields."

Agriculture experts say about 10,000 of the 42,000 acres of sugar beets grown in a nine-county area in the western Panhandle and eastern New Mexico were simply left in the fields.

The fallout is expected to cost area economies more than $15 million.

Coupled with cotton losses and a sluggish year for cattle prices, that may cause farm loans to tighten up at some banks in 1992, officials said.

"We are just now getting into available lines of credit, and there will definitely be an impact," said Don Graham, president of First National Bank of Hereford.

"We don't see it as any kind of a disaster, but, yes, there are some of our customers who will be a little thinner financially next year," Graham said.

Cleavinger says this year's harvest, which concluded Jan. 16, is the worst in 23 years.

"In 1969, we had a similar year. We've had some trying years in between, but we've always been able to get every beet out of the field," he said.

Dennis Printz, the agriculture manager for Holly Sugar Corp. in Hereford, said "the freeze ruptures the cell wall in the beet and it simply turns to mush."

"Normally the growers stack the beets in huge piles after digging them out of the ground and then trucks pick them up over the course of several weeks," Printz said. "But once the

Truckers face huge dilemma

Area sugar beet farmers took a tremendous hit this year when a late October-early November snowstorm and freeze ruined a bumper crop.

Area truckers are also hurting. Unlike farmers who have disaster payments and crop insurance as a safety net, the truckers may have fallen through a gap.

If the region is not declared a disaster area, truck drivers and owners aren't eligible for disaster loans that may be available through the Small Business Administration.

Work has begun to have Deaf Smith County, and other area counties, declared disaster area. Joe Soliz Jr. said Wednesday he and others are working with government officials here, in Austin and in Washington for the declaration. If the county is declared a disaster area, truck drivers, truck owners and other business people may be able to secure low-interest loans through SBA.

They have tried other avenues. Truck owners say they can't get food stamps or other assistance unless they're willing to sell their trucks. The trucks, especially those who own several vehicles, push their assets above acceptable limits.

Gabriel Donjuan, unofficial leader of a group of area truckers, said he's already been turned down for a bank loan.

"I wanted to get a 90-day loan for $3,000, just so I would have something for my family to live on," Donjuan said. "When we got to the part about where I worked and what I was doing, well, I knew then there was no way."

"I'm kind of lucky because I might have something in about three months that will get me some money," Donjuan said. "For most of these guys, it's going to be silage-cutting time."

That will be August. Donjuan and others are hoping to organize area farm-related truckers into some type of coalition to look for programs to ease their plight. The first meeting for the group will be at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Hereford Community Center.

Donjuan said he couldn't speak for all truckers in the area who specialize in crop hauling, but the sugar beet disaster cost him at least $15,000. Another trucker, Ciro Casarez, said he's out $30,000.

"If you take that by 200 or so guys around here, Dimmitt, Friona, Muleshoe, Hart, Plainview, that's a lot of money," Donjuan said. "Some of them are like me, and they have three or four or five trucks. Some of them have more trucks, and they're out even more money."

A helping hand in Deaf Smith County
Judy Baker handles the day-to-day work of the Deaf Smith County Social Services Office. Her job is to put persons with needs in touch with agencies that may help them.

Baker serves several roles

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

People in Deaf Smith County who need help know where to turn when the going gets rough. A woman at the courthouse has names and telephone numbers that may get needed help.

The Deaf Smith County Social Services Office operates under the eye of Judge Tom Simons, while Judy Baker performs the day-to-day tasks that make the office serve the community.

Since October 1986, Deaf Smith County Social Services Office has operated under a "Manual of Services" that provides strict guidelines for what Mrs. Baker may and may not do.

"We have a very limited budget, with not much to spend," she said. "But I do handle referrals to agencies that can provide help that we can't."

The referral service may be the most important, in the long run.

Mrs. Baker knows which tap to turn to get persons with specific needs to the correct agency, whether governmental or community-based.

She believes Hereford and Deaf Smith County constitute a "caring community that strives to meet needs" of the citizens.

Some funding from the county allows Mrs. Baker to handle emergency situations, but in other circumstances she must find the agency best suited to the individual or family needs.

"We can provide some food on an emergency basis, but under very strict guidelines," explained Mrs. Baker. "Under certain circumstances which meet criteria, such as no income, we can help with utilities, too."

Less publicized is the county's responsibility for burial of indigent residents.

Referral agencies are across the spectrum of social services available in the county. Mrs. Baker turns to South Plains Health Provider Organization or Texas Department of Health for certain medical needs. The next stop may be Deaf Smith General Hospital. Persons qualifying for transportation services, commodities and some utilities may be sent to Panhandle Community Services.

Persons with family difficulties may cause Mrs. Baker to call Family Services, which may provide counseling for the whole family.

Clothing needs can be filled through the Red Cross or from Good Shepherd's clothes closet.

Texas Department of Human Services has several divisions in Hereford that meet specific needs: food stamps, Medicaid, child abuse and other special needs.

Mrs. Baker is a member of the Deaf Smith County Volunteer Board. The board is dedicated to assistance of two groups: aged and disabled, and foster children.

"We sponsor the Sharing Tree at banks during the Christmas season to make holidays brighter for them."

No matter how large or small the need, the board tries to help. Mrs.

Baker remembers a child in foster care who wanted to play in a school band very badly.

"An instrument was found so this child could participate," she said.

The volunteer board membership is representative of the city, county, schools and private sector. The goal is to meet needs that extend beyond the government's criteria for help.

Mrs. Baker takes her job seriously and has been known to go somewhat beyond her normal duties to help someone.

As an example, last week she was contacted by a resident who had a used mattress and springs to give away, if Mrs. Baker knew a prospective recipient. The bedding was outside and would be ruined by rain.

Later in the day, Baker appeared at the donor's home with her sons and a pickup.

"I have someone who needs this but they won't get into an apartment until the weekend," she said as her son loaded the bed in the pickup. "I'll just keep it in my garage until they need it."

Mrs. Baker and her family came here from Dallas 12 years ago. Her husband, Jerry, is temporarily working in New Orleans, La. A daughter, Jerilyn, attends West Texas State University; a son, Jarrett, is a Hereford High School senior, and another son, Jermyn, is a sixth grader at West Central School.

Mrs. Baker admitted that she "didn't realize needs" of people until she went to work in the office.

"I had led a sheltered, naive life until I started this," she said.

She began in the office on a parttime basis in 1983. When the director resigned in 1986, Mrs. Baker assumed the duties. The office was then placed, by the Commissioners' Court, under the overall supervision of the county judge.

The Social Service Office espouses a "teamwork" approach to providing for the citizens of Deaf Smith County.

agencies to function effectively in helping needy people."

Sometimes the job can get sticky, Mrs. Baker said, but she's learned to leave the problems at the office when she goes home.

She worries about those who "fall through the crack" in qualifying for needed services, but said local churches often help. Individuals and businesses also pitch in with specific needs, Mrs. Baker said.

She said needs have grown, across the board, with no respect for ethnic, educational or age background, during the past 18 months.

"There are so many needs ... it can be very depressing," she said.

But, Mrs. Baker exercises her fingers at the telephone all day long, seeking, and usually finding, solutions to problems.

"I'm not satisfied unless I go that extra step."

beets started to collapse in the ground, that became impossible."

Holly Sugar contracts with about 475 area farmers, who harvest the 42,000 acres. The company processes the beets, typically paying out well over $40 million annually. Growers will receive about $25 million this year.

Ted Peabody, Deaf Smith County director for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, said most growers will not be able to cover losses with insurance.

"In order to qualify for insurance, the farmer had to show a 65 percent loss," Peabody said. "Most were able to harvest more than 40 percent of their crop."

Farmers are now left with trying to use their beets still in the ground as cattle feed, Cleavinger said.

As bad as the harvest was, many farmers believe it could have been worse if not for the heroic effort of dozens of farmers in the Plainview area and in eastern New Mexico.

Several days of snow and rain followed the freeze, making it impossible for diggers and trucks to get in the soggy fields to harvest through much of November and December.

But Holly Sugar's processor needed 3,500 tons of beets a day to keep going, and company officials feared they would have to shut down nearly two months ahead of schedule if more beets could not be harvested and trucked to the plant.

So farmers in Kress, Nazareth and Plainview as well as growers in the Clovis, N.M., area worked night and day beginning Jan. 1 to keep the harvest alive.

Gaylan Schumacher, who farms about 150 acres with his brothers and father just south of Plainview, was one of many who tied tractors to trucks to help pull the massive rigs through a half foot of mud while collecting beets.

"We tore a couple bumpers off of the trucks pulling them through the fields," Schumacher said. "But everyone pitched in - even the wives and kids, who made lunch and dinner and brought it to the fields."

CLEAVINGER

Farmers from all over the Panhandle knew if they could help the Schumachers harvest enough beets, they might be able to keep Holly Sugar's processor going long enough to allow their own fields to dry for harvest.

Cleavinger said the teamwork allowed an extra 100,000 pounds of sugar beets to be harvested, bringing in an additional $3 million.

But for some farmers, the weather never broke long enough for their fields to dry.

"We were one of the hardest hit. We were limited because it was so wet," said Kenneth Schlabs, who farms about 500 acres of beets with his two brothers and father in Hereford.

Schlabs said his family could only harvest 200 acres before Holly Sugar's processor shut down.

"You just hope for a better year," Schlabs said. "It's hard to take. You have got to make a lot of changes to get by for another year."

"I guess in the long run it will make you tougher. But in the mean time, you have to be a lot leaner."

Chamber selling '92 car tickets

A new 1992 car or pickup will be the grand prize in a fundraiser raffle which was launched this week by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Sixteen other prizes will be offered in the event, with proceeds benefitting the chamber's community development efforts.

Tickets are available for a donation of $50, with a maximum of 750 tickets being sold. Ticket buyers do not have to be present at the drawing to win. Non-profit organizations are now legally allowed to hold two raffles a year.

The grand prize winner will have a choice of specified cars or pickups at Hereford Buick-GMC, Stevens Chevrolet-Olds, or Whiteface Ford. Other prizes include a color television set with remote control, a VCR with remote control, a microwave oven, an AM/FM stereo, a self-propelled lawnmower, a calculator, and 10 U.S. savings bonds of $50 each.

Tickets can be obtained at the chamber office, 701 Main, or can be purchased from chamber directors or a Hereford Hustler.

The date of the drawing is to be announced.

Golden Plains holds Valentines Party

Early voting begins Wednesday

Early voting in the March 10 party primary elections will begin Wednesday in the Deaf Smith County clerk's office.

Ballots in both Democratic and Republican primaries will feature preferential voting for prospective presidential candidates. Each ballot lists several candidates who would like to capture the state's votes in delegations to national conventions later this year.

Although Deaf Smith County voters may not be affected, there is a chance that state senator ballots will not be counted. Texas Attorney General Dan Morales is contesting the districting implemented by a federal judge.

Deaf Smith County is located in the 31st State Senatorial District. Only the incumbent, Republican Teel Bivins, is seeking nomination. There is no Democratic opponent.

Morales wants the district lines, as drawn by a federal court, discarded and lines drawn by the Legislature put into effect. If he wins the battle, votes in the March primaries probably will be thrown out.

In Deaf Smith County, a total of 8,423 eligible voters were counted after the deadline passed for voter registration for primary elections.

In a December mailing, 8,419 voter registration certificates were mailed. New registrations and cancellations leave 8,423 persons eligible to vote in the primaries.

The county clerk's office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily for early voting. State election laws now allow early voting without an excuse which was required previously in absentee voting prior to the election.

Panhandle Transit making new Trax

New look on vehicles

A driver for Panhandle Transit, Sammie Lance, calls attention to the TRAX logo that is being applied to vehicles of the service, operated through Panhandle Community Services. TRAX is part of a statewide network for rural transportation.

Vehicles of Panhandle Transit have taken on a new look, identifying the service with the statewide TRAX Transportation Network.

Buses operating in Hereford have the new TRAX logo in place.

The rural transportation network TRAX represents an affiliation of all 40 existing rural bus systems in the state, reported Robert Whorton of Panhandle Community Services.

Coordinated by the Texas Department of Transportation, a public awareness campaign is scheduled this month to call attention to TRAX and the services offered in rural areas.

Panhandle Transit operates under auspices of Panhandle Community Services in all 26 counties served by PCS, Whorton said.

TRAX is not a network in the sense that a rider might take a trip across the state, using several systems, Whorton added. Each system serves a specific area.

Whorton, director of the transportation department for PCS, said an open house will be held at Panhandle Transit's new headquarters in Amarillo.

Panhandle Transit provides service within and between cities in the area, at a low cost to riders.

MIKE MORRISON FOR DEAF SMITH COUNTY SHERIFF

In talking to the citizens of Deaf Smith County, we seem to have the same concerns for our county. Below I have listed some of these common concerns and some solutions to these problems.

Concerns	Solutions	Concerns	Solutions
1. Spiraling crime and drug rate.	1. more effective patrol, inform people of results and consequences of crime, use local citizens to help combat crime and drugs, strengthen Reserve Deputies, and take a more personal involvement as sheriff in all operations.	9. No organization in deputy ranks	9. Immediately install a Chief Deputy and form rank in the members of the Patrol Officers.
2. Drug search warrants being served that result in no confiscations.	2. Work with credible informants and have a strong working relationship with outside law enforcement agencies, such as Metro Law Enforcement Agency.	10. Citizens not being able to voice their opinions freely to the sheriff.	10. Have an open office that is very accessible to the people and start monthly meetings to inform citizens.
3. Sheriff's Department vehicles being used for personal trips.	3. All Sheriff's Department vehicles, including the Sheriff's car, will be restricted from personal use. This will save the taxpayer an enormous amount of money.	11. Youth being given no consideration.	11. Enact programs to involve young people in the operations of county government, and work to establish a teen center.
4. Deputies not being properly trained before being put on patrol duty.	4. Newly hired deputies will ride with a veteran officer for minimum of two months.	12. Reserve Deputy Organization allowed to dwindle to only five working officers.	12. Build Reserve Deputy Organization to at least thirty members, well-trained and appreciated.
5. No organized building-security checks.	5. Officers will be assigned areas to check buildings and other property.	13. A diminishing trust of neighboring law enforcement agencies.	13. Personally contact each neighboring law enforcement agency and express a desire to work with them professionally.
6. An unsolved murder case.	6. Immediately reopen murder case and work on it until it is solved.	14. Many crimes that are seldom solved.	14. Instill in each deputy, that once a crime has been committed, we will work on the crime until it is solved or all means to solve that crime have been exhausted. No case will be closed until it is solved.
7. An unsolved armed robbery.	7. Immediately reopen armed robbery case and work on it until it is solved.	15. Lawsuits that resulted from improper jail procedures.	15. As sheriff, take a more personal involvement, train officers to perform their specific management jobs professionally.
8. Deputies not being properly trained to perform specific duties, such as investigations, traffic stops, domestic disputes, proper arrests and proper arrest titles.	8. Certain deputies will be trained in special duties, such as investigations, and all officers will be trained in traffic laws and all other laws common to law enforcement.

WHAT BUYERS LOOK FOR

Most home owners decorate their homes to please themselves. But people who have to buy and sell property frequently, the executives and their families who are transferred by large firms, have learned to decorate with an eye toward what buyers look for. People either love bright colors and intense shades or they hate them. Smart sellers play it safe with light, natural colors like beige that will go with anybody's furniture. Lighter shades also make rooms look larger. Suggestions: Remove dated or wild wallpaper and repaint. Kitchens are a prime selling point, especially if remodeled. Again, light colors are pleasing to most people. Prospects look for good lighting and easy to care for flooring. It's tempting to over improve, to design the ultimate gourmet kitchen or a glamorous bathroom, but some prospects won't pay the costs. If you read our column, we appreciate your comments.

Taxpayer ads?

Advertising is the choo-choo that pulls the freight train of the economy. Legitimate advertising is a needed and necessary expense for companies, institutions, trade groups, churches, clubs and others. It's as vital to the survival of a company as food and water to humans.

But we take a dim view of using taxpayer money to fund advertising campaigns. For instance, the U.S. Postal Service is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars promoting the Olympics. Why does the USPS need to promote the Olympics? And, we note the Armed Forces' recruiting spots on TV "to be all you can be." Why spend more taxpayer money at a time when we're turning loose 500,000 veterans in the next four years?

But a new report was brought to our attention this week by James Roberts in his column in The Andrews County News. The documents for the report were obtained by the Associated Press through the Freedom of Information Act, and it reveals that private companies in the U.S. are getting millions of dollars a year to advertise their products overseas.

Even farmers resent the fact that the U.S. Department of Agriculture is distributing these "grants" through its Market Promotion Program. Two-thirds of the grants last year went to industry associations that conduct generic promotions for such products as strawberries or cling peaches. We can understand that. It makes sense to plug American cotton, beef, oil, computers, medicine, technology and the like to overseas markets.

But the list also includes well-known corporate giants like Pillsbury, who got $2.9 million to promote processed corn; Sunkist Growers won almost $10 million to promote citrus; Gallo Wines got about $5 million, and Dole Fresh Fruit collected about $3 million. Should McDonald's get $465,000 from the USDA for ads, paper tray liners and counter displays promoting Chicken McNuggets? Campbell Soup spent part of the $450,000 it got to remind people in Japan, Korea, Taiwan and Argentina to have A-V-8 juice. Joseph E. Seagram and Sons touted its Four Roses whiskey in Europe and the Far East with $146,000 from the USDA.

Other named brands receiving money from the USDA included Burger King, M&M, Mars & Hershey Foods, Del Monte, Welch's and Ocean Spray Cranberries, Nabisco and Quaker Oats.

"This is a classic example of welfare for the rich in the worst possible way," says Rep. Dick Army (R-Texas). "You go down the list of companies and it's hard to imagine they need a handout from the American taxpayer to market their products abroad. If McDonald's needs help in marketing... we are in sad shape in this country."

Roberts asks this question in his Andrews paper: "We've been seriously considering trying to sell subscriptions to this newspaper to Ubangi natives in Africa. A weekly reading of this newspaper might open those people's eyes to wonders of America."

"Now if we just had a $200,000 USDA ad grant, there's no telling how many copies we could export each week to Africa!"

What politics in America has come to

Babbling Brooks

I didn't know such a committee existed... The Texas Punishment Standards Commission is meeting across the state to, according to a news release, "bring back truth in sentencing," "to keep the most violent criminals in prison for the longest time" and "appropriately punish property offenders."

It all sounds good to me. The release said that Dr. William Spielman of the LBJ School of Public Affairs, says "by incarcerating the worst 20 percent of criminals, we can potentially reduce crime by 80 percent."

Well let's get those buggers locked up!

The names have been changed to protect the, er, not so innocent. There I was, walking into a convenience store in the middle of Hereford. I pulled up next to a van belonging to a renown quasi-governmental agency (QGA) known for delivering mail. Inside the van was an employee of the QGA taking a break.

A woman pulled up next to the van of the QGA. She got out of her car with an envelope in her hand. She went up to the QGA van and handed the QGA employee her envelope.

"Can you mail this for me?" asked the woman.

"No, I can't," said the QGA employee. "You can put it in the receptacle over there, or take it to the post office."

"I can't just give it to you?"

"No."

If the QGA employee had left it at that, it might not have made me want to do a Jeffrey Dahmer imitation. But he went on.

"I can't take you mail, ma'am. I'm on my break."

Well, good grief!!!! I understand that no one should be expected to work eight hours, even at a ridiculously high salary, without taking a break. I know if I'm enjoying a cup of caffeine in the back room I don't like to be bothered. I also know that I'm not drawing my check because of my ability to rest.

Neither should QGA employees.

bb

Maybe a little US bashing was what we needed to get things going in the US.

Don't get me wrong. I love this country, and it's a heck of a lot better than anything the Japanese or anyone else has going.

I also believe we're headed for some trouble if we don't get things going.

Look at the QGA employee. Heck, he was probably just following a union order or some other kind of rule.

Rules are okay. Unions were fine for what they were originally intended for.

If I were a union employee, I probably couldn't be doing what I'm doing right now. It's 7:05 p.m. I've put in more than eight hours today. That would likely earn me a fine if I were union.

Who knows how many hours of overtime I've worked? I've never had an "8 to 5" job. I've never had an eight-hours-a-day, 40-hours-a-week job. It's not in my makeup. Maybe I'm a workaholic. I'm not trying to be a martyr or anything, although someone has to sit here and make all the mistakes so our English teachers can have some easy examples of grammatical errors for their classes.

What if more folks decided to bend the rules a little? What if we got rid of some of the rules? We don't need a huge carrot on a stick out there in front of everyone (other than pride in what they do, and in their product). I'm not doing this for the money or because I want Speedy or anyone else to give me a raise. I'm doing this because I love my work. I can't think about getting married to anyone, because I'm married to my job. I love my work. I take it home with me. Sometimes it wakes me up at 3 a.m. with column or story or picture ideas. Sometimes it nags. Sometimes it jilts me, only to take me back.

What if more folks felt the same about their work? Maybe then the US bashing would end.

Hereford's bid to secure a prison site continued Thursday as they local prison task force hosted a site review team from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. The session with the TDCJ team went off without a hitch, and the local group expressed confidence in Hereford's standing among the 63 communities seeking a site.

The next step in the selection process comes March 16, when a "short list" of the sites still in contention will be announced. Between March 17 and April 2, the TDCJ will conduct public hearings in the communities chosen for the short list.

Purpose of the public hearings is for the TDCJ to witness the community support, or opposition, to locating a prison facility in the county. With all the communities seeking a facility, it seems apparent that those with vocal opposition could be eliminated from consideration. Our community has been highly supportive, and we hope that attitude continues if Hereford is a finalist.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

I just wanted to thank the Prison Task Force and in particular O.G. "Speedy" Nieman, Mayor Tom LeGate, Judge Tom Simons and Mike Hatley.

The competitive package placed with the TDCJ is indicative of what can be accomplished when the process of community and economic development is opened to the public, where new faces and new ideas are welcomed and the talents of many individuals are utilized. While too numerous to mention, it was nice to see new faces like Wayne Winget, David Hernandez and Gerald Gamboa included in this attempt.

Whether Hereford and Deaf Smith County are selected for a new correction facility or not, this effort and organization should be considered a success and not allow to die but used as a vehicle for future development of this community. I hope this committee will remain intact, expand its makeup and try to secure a permanent funding source. To some, this committee may seem a threat, as the process of economic development has been pursued by a small group and they may be unwilling to share this responsibility. This new approach may require policy as well as personnel changes, but let's make the changes necessary and move forward.

The days of sitting around the coffee shop and landing a Holly Sugar are gone. This was a progressive community. Is it now? Are we afraid or do we want to put forth the resources that will enable us to compete with Borger, Dalhart and Plainview?

I think we have some problems that need to be addressed: the large population decline; higher than average unemployment; increasing property taxes; declining real estate values; the closing of at least five retail businesses within the last 60 days, and the continued exodus of people to Amarillo and Canyon not only to shop and eat, but also to live. These are just a few of the signs of a community demanding change.

It won't happen overnight, but isn't it time to raise our standards and expectations and ask for accountability from the individuals with whom we have placed our future? Isn't it time to try something new, with fresh faces and an open forum encouraging community-wide participation and involvement?

I hope we're thankful for what we have in Hereford, but I hope we're not satisfied.

I am working with Kenneth Cosgrove, assistant professor in the political science department at Texas Tech University, on preparing a paper to be presented at the Southwest Political Science Association meeting to be held at Austin in March.

Some readers may remember me as a former staff writer for The Brand. I am currently enrolled in independent studies in political science at Tech. I would be very pleased if I could get some responses to the questions below for a research project. The purpose of the paper is to look at the issue in terms of improving understanding of how Congress works when dealing with national issues at the regional level.

For those who will participate, we need the responses by March 1. Send to: Texas Tech University, Dept. of Political Science, Kenneth

- Were there differences of opinion and how were they expressed?
11. Did people believe the project would have economic benefits? If so, did most people think it would be Hereford or Amarillo which benefited?
 12. How much of an issue was safety?
 13. What role did state government play in the process? Do you think people in Austin wanted this project or did they want to keep it out?
 14. How much of a factor do you think the population of this area was? Was it a factor because of safety or because of the perception of lack of political clout?
 15. Did the county's political climate change because of the DOE? If so, has it returned to its previous status?
 16. Did the project change your image of the way Congress and agencies like the DOE work? If so, how?
 17. Do you think some people in Austin and Washington thought that if Texas took this project, more desirable projects would follow?
 18. Any other comments on the topic?

TRUCKERS

the end of a busy cycle for trucks that begins with corn silage harvest. The trucks then haul corn and milo to area handling facilities before sugar beet harvest begins. The money they make during the harvests, especially sugar beets, tides them over for the rest of the year.

This year, the tide is low.

"I have two daughters that play basketball and have other things like band in school," Donjuan said. "I've told them no new stuff. I used to take them and some of their friends out to eat pizza after a ball game. We had to cut that out. We just have to cut out everything so we can try to make it. It's tough on them."

Donjuan said he, and others, have checked out the Texas Employment Commission. Donjuan moved to Hereford 12 years ago from Mexico. He has no high school diploma, and feels slighted because of that.

"There's nothing for anyone who doesn't have a high school diploma," he said. "I mean nothing. You walk in and you walk right back out. This, and the fields (labor) is all I can really do."

A check on Thursday at the TEC office in Hereford showed several agriculture-related jobs among others. None called for a high school diploma; some require special training or other specialties.

"We can help these guys if they want to come in, and if they want help," said David Hernandez, manager of the Hereford TEC Office. "We can't 'get' a job for them. All we can do is give them leads, put them in touch with employers needing help, and maybe make a few phone calls.

"There are jobs out there, if they want them. Maybe we were real busy the day they came in. Sometime people come in, they see a lot of people waiting, and they leave."

"We feel like we have slipped through the cracks, and we don't know what we can do," Donjuan said. "It may be a very, very long time before we can live and work like we did before. I'm kind of scared, but I think we can make it through. The important thing right now is to get some help. There are a lot of people right here and all over the place that are hurting. It's going to impact a lot of people, and I think we've been forgotten about by the farmers and everyone else."

"The farmers need us because they don't want to put up with the trucks. I just hope we're still around when they need us next year."

Trio sentenced in district court

Two men and a woman were sentenced to prison terms during a session Friday in 222nd District Court in Hereford.

Judge David Wesley Gulley revoked the probation of Cornelius Carruthers, 27, sentencing him to seven years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division on a previous conviction for forgery. The original sentence on the forgery charge was eight years probation.

Carruthers will serve a concurrent four-year sentence for unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon. He entered a guilty plea to that charge.

A guilty plea was heard from Gloria Angela Casias, 26, on a burglary of a habitation charge. Judge Gulley gave her a 20-year term in TDCJ-ID.

Guilty pleas also were entered by Daniel Villarreal, 33, to a charge of theft over $750 but under $20,000 and a felony driving while intoxicated charge. He was assessed 12 years in TDCJ-ID on the theft charge and a concurrent four-year sentence for felony DWI.

A seven-year TDCJ-ID term, probated seven years, was given Danny Carbajal, who entered a guilty plea Thursday to a criminal mischief, over $750 and under $20,000, charge. He will be required to perform 160 hours of community service and, with another defendant, make restitution of $1,396.

Herd uses D to down Dumas

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Whitefaces used defense to beat Dumas 60-49 Friday in Dumas. Hereford swept the season series from Dumas and salvaged some of the wounds of a 7-22 season with an easy romp.

The Herd limited the Demons to five points in the second quarter while taking the lead for good. The first quarter ended with Dumas leading 13-12, but Hereford outscored them 11-5 in the second to lead 23-18 at halftime.

"We played pretty good man defense," Herd coach Jimmy Thomas said. "Our biggest problem was we couldn't convert our free throws."

Thomas said the Herd hit only 5-of-13 free throws and 9-of-20-plus shots from the field.

"We weren't exactly shooting well, but we played good defense," he said.

Hereford kept the defense up in the second half, extending the lead to 39-28 by the end of the third.

"We had chances to blow them away. We didn't shoot tremendously, but again we played good defense."

In the fourth quarter, the game was more out of hand than the final score indicated.

"They hit a three-pointer at the (final) buzzer. We were up by as many as 16 or 17," Thomas said.

The win ensures that Hereford will finish fifth in District 1-4A. A loss to Dumas would have meant a share of last place. The Herd is 2-7 in district and 7-22 overall with one game left to play. Dumas is 0-9 and 4-24.

"This was a good win for us," Thomas said. "Dumas can be tough to beat there at home, and I was concerned when we started missing free throws."

"We took care of the ball. They threw several defenses at us, but our kids adjusted fairly well."

Aside from the team's woes from the foul line, Richard Sanderson hit all eight of his foul-shots. Thomas said. He also cited Sean Smith for coming off the bench with 11 points and 8 rebounds.

Kyle Hansen led the Herd with 13 points, and Sanderson added 12.

The Herd junior varsity did not have a night to remember, as Coach Oscar Rendon's team lost 48-28.

"He suited up six and ended up with four. Two of his kids fouled out," Thomas said. Injuries, players out of town and disciplinary measures decimated Rendon's roster, Thomas said.

Corey Scott had 10 points before fouling out. Drew Radford also fouled out.

The Hereford sophomore team's night was a little better. They won 61-36.

9th A team opens with win

Hereford's ninth grade A team won its first-round game in the district tournament Friday 59-56 over Dumas at Caprock High School in Amarillo.

Hereford trailed 16-8 after one quarter and trailed by one point at the end of the second and third quarters before pulling out the victory.

"We executed our half-court offense really well, and that was the deciding factor in the game," Coach Robert Gamboa said. "We got into foul trouble early--we had three foul out--but we got good bench support."

Michael Brown and Benton Buckley shared the scoring lead with 13 for Hereford. Tony Mercer was right behind with 12.

Hereford's ninth grade A and B teams were to continue the tournament Saturday.

Jansen doesn't fall; Lindh earns gold

By DAVE CARPENTER
AP Sports Writer

ALBERTVILLE, France (AP) - Dan Jansen didn't fall today. But he didn't fly, either.

Jansen, the hard-luck hero of the 1988 Winter Olympics for his family tragedy and falls, skated only to a fourth-place finish in his world-record specialty - the 500 meters. His chief rival, Uwe Jens-May of Germany, took the gold ahead of two Japanese.

It was far from a lost day for North Americans in the French Alps, however. A Canadian and an American pulled a Bill Johnson in the women's downhill.

Shocking the European favorites, Kerrin Lee-Gartner of Calgary and Hilary Lindh of Juneau, Alaska, rocketed out of obscurity to win the gold and silver medals on a tough course suited to their go-for-broke strategies.

Lee-Gartner, a 25-year-old who has never won a World Cup race, became Canada's first Olympic downhill champion.

Lindh, a sturdy 5-foot-9 who was only 25th in the World Cup downhill standings last year, earned America's first Alpine skiing medal in the Olympics since it took home five from Sarajevo in 1984. That was the year Johnson emerged from nowhere to capture the men's downhill - fading from the scene soon afterward.

"I went out today and I had all-or-nothing in my mind - either the gold or last place," Lee-Gartner said. "It worked out."

Veronika Wallinger of Austria took the bronze, briefly putting her country back in a tie for the medals lead.

Mey's victory thrust Germany back on top with 15, including six golds, as the Winter Olympics reached the halfway point on Day 8. Austria had an unprecedented 14, and the Unified Team was third with 12. Norway was next with eight and host France had a near-record seven.

Jansen, 26, appeared ready to give the United States a sixth medal to match its total for 1988. Skating in the second pair on the rain-soaked Albertville oval, he briefly held the lead.

But his time of 37.46 seconds, more than a second off his world record, was eclipsed almost immediately. Mey, the World Cup leader, defended his Olympic title in 37.14 seconds, and Toshiyuki Kuroiwa and Yasunori Miyabe of Japanese were next in 37.18 and 37.26.

Jansen has one more chance Tuesday in the 1,000 meters, where he'll be a gold-medal contender as he was in 1988.

It was four years ago Friday that the West Allis, Wis., skater slipped and lost in the 500 in Calgary, hours after learning his sister had died of leukemia. Four days later, he fell again in the 1,000.

The 22-year-old Lindh pumped her arms and jumped up and down excitedly on her skis after seeing she'd finished .06 seconds in back of Lee-Gartner's winning time of 1:52.55.

"I was just hoping for a top 5, so I'm really happy with this," Lindh said.

Lee-Gartner became Canada's first Olympic downhill champion.

Veronika Wallinger of Austria took the bronze medal. Katya Seizinger of Germany, the World Cup downhill leader, was fourth, and Austria's Petra Kronberger, the world's top woman skier and gold medalist in the combined on Thursday, was fifth.

Lindh, who finished only 25th in the World Cup downhill standings last year, gave the United States its fifth medal of the Winter Olympics - one less than it took in Calgary in 1988.

The last U.S. medals in Alpine skiing came at Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, where Debbie Armstrong and Christin Cooper finished 1-2 in the women's giant slalom, Bill Johnson won the men's downhill and brothers Phil and Steve Mahre took gold and silver in the slalom.

It was the first American medal in the women's downhill since Cindy Nelson finished third in 1976.

The Roc de Fer course has been called the world's toughest downhill and criticized as too fast and rough for women skiers. Conditions were not helped today by heavy snow and fog.

Lee-Gartner, 25, who lives in Calgary, was 15th in the Olympic downhill in her home city four years ago. She has never won a World Cup race.

Austria's medal, an unprecedented 14th, tied it with Germany atop the medals chart on Day 8 of the Winter Games. The Unified Team was next with 10. Norway had eight and host France a near-record seven.

Bonnie Blair, the U.S. star of the Albertville Games, today was savoring her second gold medal - a feat no American woman had accomplished in 40 years - and perhaps mulling over whether to compete in the 1994 Winter Olympics at Lillehammer, Norway.

She dropped a hint about which way she might be leaning after winning the 1,000-meter speedskating competition Friday night: "I love what I'm doing. I love skating."

Bjorn Dahlie of Norway today deprived countryman Vegard Ulvang of a third gold medal by capturing the men's 15-kilometer cross-country ski race in 38 minutes, 1.9 seconds. Ulvang was 53.4 seconds behind for the silver and Giorgio Vanzetta of Italy was another second back for the bronze.

Seeking a U.S. bobsled medal for the first time since 1956, Brian Shimer and NFL running back Herschel Walker finished only sixth in the first heat and dropped back in the second today on the first of two days of racing in the two-man competition.

Refs come through in Trail Blazers' win

By The Associated Press

When it was time for the game to start in Sacramento, the referees weren't there. Fortunately for Clyde Drexler and the Portland Trail Blazers, they were there at the end.

Drexler, playing with an injured toe, converted a three-point play with 1.1 seconds left and rallied Portland past the Kings 107-106 Friday night.

The game was delayed a half-hour at the beginning because the three officials could not get to the ARCO Arena. Sacramento, along with most of California, has been hit by heavy rain this week, and the bad weather caused traffic problems that prevented the referees from reaching the court in time.

Swoopes returns home, stars at Tech

EDITOR'S NOTE - Sheryl Swoopes, a star basketball player for Texas Tech's Lady Raiders, played for Dickie Faught, now the Hereford girls' coach, at Brownfield High School. The two led the Lady Cubs to the Class 3A state championship in 1988, Swoopes' junior year.

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer
LUBBOCK (AP) - No one questions that Texas Tech forward Sheryl Swoopes is an impact player. Fans and opposing teams look on in awe as Swoopes, the SWC's leader in scoring and steals, takes control of a game on instinct alone.

With ease, her sinewy frame slices through a sticky man-to-man defense for a layup. Four players bite as she fakes a drive with one step to the hoop, only to drop back and swish a 3-pointer.

And if you look closely, she'll zap a deadly stare into the eyes of her defenders just before releasing a jumper.

"No fear," she says to herself while working up and down the court. In contrast to her quiet demeanor, her actions command attention.

In victories against SWC contenders Texas and Houston this season, Swoopes scored 32 and 33 points respectively.

She became the first player in Tech school history - man or woman - to earn a triple-double when she scored 19, grabbed 18 rebounds and dished 12 assists in a 98-52 victory against Texas Christian last week.

She has broken five school scoring records and a conference record in helping lead the Lady Red Raiders to a No. 17 ranking and an 8-0 start in the SWC race, three games ahead of Texas, Houston and Texas A&M.

But aside from her impact on the court, Swoopes may have single-handedly brought about the changing of the guard in the SWC.

Two years ago, Swoopes signed to play with Texas.

But after four days in Austin, Swoopes went home for the weekend and never returned. She enrolled at South Plains Junior College in Levelland, where she was named 1991 Junior College Player of the Year, and transferred to Tech last fall.

"I got down (to Texas) and it wasn't the fact that I hated the place," Swoopes said. "But after being there for a few days I didn't feel like it was the place I needed to be. It was too far from home."

Swoopes will return to Austin today for the first time since dropping out when Tech (17-3) visits the Lady Longhorns (13-7).

"We are ready to play," Swoopes said. "The only thing I am nervous about is going down and walking out on the court and hearing all the boos from the fans. Maybe it won't happen, but if it doesn't it will be a miracle."

Texas coach Jody Conradt said Tuesday Swoopes is much of the reason Tech has seized the Lady Horns' once untouchable throne atop the SWC.

"I think if we could take Swoopes off of that team and put her on this team, there would be a remarkable difference between the two teams and our standings," said Conradt, who led Texas to a perfect 34-0 season and a national championship in 1985-1986. "But it's not productive to talk about what might have been."

Conradt said Swoopes' departure caused "tremendous disappointment because I knew what a great player she was."

But Conradt, whose team has won six consecutive games after a 7-7 start, says she wouldn't do anything differently.

"I don't think anything anyone could have done would have made a difference unless I wouldn't have allowed her to go home for that weekend," Conradt said. "And we haven't started chaining anyone to the campus."

Swoopes' decision to leave Texas nearly caused Texas Tech assistant coach Linden Weese, who had recruited the Brownfield star for months, to crash his golf cart.

"I was driving to the next tee when I heard that Sheryl had left Texas, and I nearly drove my partner and I into a tree," Weese said. "I hit my next drive into a lake and couldn't have been happier."

Texas Tech coach Marsha Sharp sold Swoopes on a rising program that was close to home. Swoopes' family makes the 40-mile trek north from Brownfield to Lubbock for every home game.

Sharp makes no bones about Swoopes' value to her team.

"Obviously, a giant factor in our success was Sheryl Swoopes' choice to come to Texas Tech," Sharp said. "I think after she became a part of us, the next step we had to take was finding the chemistry with the team because she needs the reins to take the ball and do some things in one-on-one settings."

Swoopes says she has no regrets about her winding path to major college basketball.

"Texas has an excellent program. They have always been at the top and still are," Swoopes said. "But I have never had second thoughts about leaving. I am glad I went to South Plains and I am happy to be at Tech. It's a perfect fit."

Ryan feels good for 26th season

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Jack Dauthery decided to try to fool Nolan Ryan.

He sneaked up behind the future Hall of Famer, tapped his right shoulder and ducked to Ryan's left. It didn't work.

"Jack, the last person to try that on me was one of my kids when he was four-years-old," Ryan laughed. "Didn't work then, either."

Ryan, who recently had his 45th birthday, may be old to be a major league pitcher but he's no fool.

He'll make $4.4 million throwing a baseball this summer in Arlington and he'll be the heart and soul of a Texas Rangers franchise trying to capture its first ever major league divisional pennant.

"I feel good," Ryan said. "I've still got a lot of work to do between now and the opening of the season. But I'd say I might be a little ahead of where I've been in the past."

Ryan recently took part in a Rangers' "Fantasy" camp in Port Charlotte, Fla., the spring training home of the American League club.

He threw a lot of pitches against fantasy campers. In fact, one day Ryan stood on the mound for 70 minutes as the amateurs took their hacks against the king of Ks.

Ryan threw without shoulder or leg problems, much to the relief of the Rangers front office brass.

Oh, he was wild a times.

"It didn't dawn on some of those guys I might not have real good control pitching off a mound for the first time in five months," Ryan said. "I hit one-guy and knocked down two."

Ryan came away from the experience a little stiff but in strong condition.

Twice last year he was placed on the disabled list because of either leg or shoulder problems.

"I'm going to modify my workout regime this year," Ryan said. "I need to speed up my recovery time between starts. I don't want any more shoulder problems. Last year was the first time (in 26 years) I had any problems."

The Rangers are hoping for 15 victories from Ryan this year as they hope to make a legitimate pennant drive in the tough AL West.

Ryan said the Rangers potential gets him pumped.

"I'm excited about our team," Ryan said. "Our offense will be as good as anyone. The key is the pitching staff."

The Texas pitching was ineffective last year and led the major leagues in walks.

Also, the defense was something that had Nolan shaking his head at times.

"You'd like to see less errors," Ryan said. "We need less walks and less errors. We have to have an attitude about walking people. I saw a study that showed that 60 per cent of all leadoff hitters who get on base score. We've got to stop that."

Ryan said he would love to be pitching on a late September day with a pennant on the line.

"Our fans have never had the opportunity to get excited about a pennant race in September," Ryan said. "You bet I'd like to be there for it."

Ryan's not a big enough fool to predict the Rangers are going to be there. Just count on him to be ready if they do stay in a pennant chase.

"Haven't felt this good in two or three years," he said.

NBA

the first half after hurting his big left toe, scored on a short turnaround to tie it at 106. Wayman Tisdale was called for a foul on the play, and Drexler made the free throw. After a timeout, Mitch Richmond's inbound pass hit the backboard and the clock expired.

In other games, Washington beat the Los Angeles Lakers 108-92, the Los Angeles Clippers defeated Phoenix 104-97, Seattle stopped San Antonio 108-91, Houston beat Boston 105-99, Denver downed Dallas 105-85, Indiana defeated Milwaukee 107-100, Atlanta topped Orlando 112-107 and New Jersey beat Philadelphia 107-99.

SuperSonics 108, Spurs 91

The Spurs entered the game with the best defense in the NBA, limiting opponents to 43.5 percent shooting. But the Sonics shot 52 percent, becoming only the seventh team this season to shoot 50 percent or better against San Antonio.

Rockets 105, Celtics 99

Houston took a 16-1 lead in the first four minutes and went on to stop its six-game losing streak against Boston.

Houston, which had lost its last four on the road, won its sixth straight home game. The Celtics went 0-3 on their Texas road trip to Dallas, San Antonio and Houston.

Nuggets 105, Mavericks 85

Dikembe Mutombo had 18 points, 19 rebounds and five blocked shots as Denver won its 19th game of the season, one short of last year's entire total.

The Nuggets' 20-point victory was their biggest since a 26-point rout of Charlotte on March 6, 1990, a span of 155 games.

Clippers 104, Suns 97

Ken Norman made two foul shots with 1:32 left for the lead as Los Angeles outscored Phoenix 12-2 in the last two minutes and won at home.

SWC players praise league's dunk-masters

By JIM MOLONY
The Houston Post

HOUSTON (AP) - They are airborne artistes, expressing inspiration on hardwood and hoop instead of color and canvas.

Soaring and scoring to the delight of appreciative audiences everywhere, they fire up teammates, embarrass opponents and provide highlight film fodder for the masses to enjoy time and again.

The slam dunk, that unique 20th-century form of expression, has had its practitioners in the Southwest Conference since before the days of Phi Slama Jama. As an art form, it still flourishes in the conference because there are budding masters capable of producing a masterpiece on any given fast break. But just as there is a rather large difference between painting a Blue Boy and painting a barn, there are huge differences in the abilities of today's slam-dunkers.

As Houston guard Derrick Daniels put it: "Everybody can dunk the ball, but you only have a few who are real creative."

"There are a lot of high flyers, but you've got to be a finisher to be the best," agreed Rice guard Dana Hardy.

Who are the SWC slam artists today? Who in the conference gets his points with style, originality, and grace and yet is gifted enough to put the subtle finishing strokes on a mega-slam?

It's in the eyes of the beholder. "(Houston's) Charles Outlaw and (Texas') Benford Williams," Daniels said. "Those guys are at the head of the class in this conference."

"Benford Williams," said Houston forward Derrick Smith. "He really puts on a show when he gets in the open court. (Texas Christian center) Reggie Smith and Outlaw have to be up there, too."

Hardy said Arkansas' Todd Day and Williams are the two best dunkers he's ever seen in a conference game.

"When they get on a break, you either hammer them or get out of the way," he said. "Benford's dunks explode like a time bomb. He's so fast and it's over so quick you can't believe it. He's spectacular, he's the best in the Southwest Conference right now by far."

Said Outlaw: "I don't know everybody in the conference yet, but I know Benford has to be one of the best dunkers. He's known for his Michael Jordan lean dunk, he'll dunk it on you every chance he gets, and he's explosive on all of his dunks."

TCU's Allen Tolley has been entering dunking contests since his sophomore year in high school. He has never lost one, although he tied Duane Morton, now with Louisville, for first place in a dunking contest during his junior year. He has a 36-inch vertical leap and once did a 360-degree reverse dunk during a high school game.

"(Houston's Craig) Upchurch, B.J. Tyler at Texas and Willie Sublett are good dunkers," Tolley said. "But Benford has to be at the top of the list."

"I've always had an admiration for guys who can really get up and dunk because I know what it does to a crowd. Benford can really get up."

It's more than just leaping ability that earned Williams the accolades. It's a dunking style that has been compared to Chicago's Michael Jordan.

Through the years, opponents have learned what's coming when they face Williams, yet the senior from Sweeny still makes dunks witnesses remember long after the fact.

"When we played Texas last year, Darrell Mickens and Williams were going after each other," Daniels recalled. "Benford would come from the baseline and hang like Michael Jordan and Darrell would glide from the free-throw line and slam it in two-handed. Those two were like exchanging dunks back and forth, and each time they got a chance they'd try to get more creative than the last one. It was one game I don't think I'll ever forget."

Williams remembered the challenge.

"It's a personal challenge whenever I meet up with someone with basically the same athletic ability as myself," he said. "Mickens was built like me only he was bigger and such a high leaper."

Derrick Smith also had memories of that game.

"Benford had a baseline dunk against us that I'd never seen anything like before," he said. "He went down the line between two or three guys, leaned in like Jordan and slammed it. It was something to see."

TCU's Reggie Smith offered another Williams' anecdote.

"I saw him dunk on Willie Sublett during the conference tournament last year," he said. "He leaned in, Sublett jumped with him off the baseline and Williams jammed it anyway. It was awesome."

The ability to perform what has become the most popular play in the game at such a lofty level accelerated Williams' ascension in the eyes of his peers.

"Anybody would rather see a dunk than a three-pointer," Hardy said. "It's an aggressive play, and every time you see one you want to see another."

"It's the strongest move in basketball," said Rice center Brent Scott, who voted for Williams as the conference's best dunker. "If you go to the hole and jam, sometimes somebody will get in your way but 9 nine times out of 10 people aren't going to challenge you because they don't want to get dunked on."

Williams, who also voted for Outlaw and teammates Michael Richardson and Tony Watson, started doing the Jordan lean-in during his freshman year at Sweeny, although by his own admission "I'm better at it now than I was then."

"Basically, it's an explosive dunk and it's hard to really time a block on it or attempt to block it because you have to go through my body to get to the ball," he said. "I try to dunk it with so much force that the next time the guy would think twice about jumping with me."

Williams garnered the most support from the players, but Outlaw, Upchurch, Sublett, Tolley, Lance Hughes of Texas Tech, Baylor's Kelvin Chalmers, Derrick Smith, Reggie Smith, Brent Scott, Tim Mason of Southern Methodist and Shedrick Anderson of Texas A&M were also mentioned by one or more players.

"Michael Richardson is capable of being one of the best dunkers in the conference," Anderson said. "Most good dunkers are between 6-2 and 6-5 because if they have a nice vertical jump it looks better when they are in the air. Richardson had a real nasty dunk against us."

Hughes, a freshman guard, won several high school dunking contests and has just started to make his niche at the collegiate level. There are nearly as many Upchurch stories as Williams stories.

"Do you remember two years ago when Marvin (Moore) tried to take a charge at the (Autry Court) SWC logo and Craig Upchurch just dunked over him?" Hardy said. "Marvin was standing straight up and Upchurch just went up and cleared him straight."

"I said 'Marv, next time cat and mouse - and then mouse and scam.'"

Apparently there is a right way and wrong way to watch a good dunk.

"When I see a big man getting ready to dunk, I'm not going to stand under the rim and make the highlight tape," Hardy said. "Coach can take me out, but I haven't been dunked on in four years and I don't intend to have it happen."

"You don't want to get embarrassed out there," Tolley said. "And the only thing more embarrassing than getting dunked on is missing a dunk."

Which is why Tolley is waiting for "a 20-or-30 point (TCU) lead late in the game before he'll try his 360-degree, reverse two-handed slam."

"I don't think Coach (Moe) Iba would appreciate it if I missed it in a close game," he said.

Maybe not. But then an artistic dunk, like any other thing of beauty, is in the eyes of the beholder.

Ryan's Records

NEW YORK (AP) - Nolan Ryan keeps adding lines to the record book.

The 1991 season was the 25th for the Texas righthander, which tied him for third place on the all-time list. Eddie Collins, Jim Kaat and Bob Wallace also had that many. The record of 26 is shared by Tommy John and Deacon McGuire.

Ryan also added to his career lead in strikeouts, running his total to 5,511. Nolan had two shutouts in 1991 which gave him 61 for his career and tied him with Tom Seaver for eighth place on the all-time list.

A Parachute

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - Most NFL coaches regard a good backup quarterback as being just a bit better than having a goodly sum of money in the bank.

Marv Levy, the coach of the Buffalo Bills is one of them. With a low bow in the general direction of Yogi Berra, Levy said: "It's like flying an airplane. You don't need a parachute until you need a parachute."

Levy's parachute in the 1991 season was Frank Reich, the backup man for Jim Kelly.

The groom's sisters, Cindy and Rhonda Merryman, served cake, punch and coffee to wedding guests.

The bride's three-tiered fountain cake was decorated with peach and light blue roses and bells and was topped with miniature bride and groom figurines. The groom's single layer white cake was accented with peach and light blue roses and featured an inscription of a promise to the bridal couple.

The couple left for a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico and Colorado in a chauffeured limousine. They will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and is currently employed by Coca-Cola in Amarillo.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo and attended Amarillo College. He is also employed by Coca-Cola.

Among the out of town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cagle and Amanda from Mustang, Okla. and those representing Shenandoah, Iowa, and Hereford.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Special thanks is extended to the Kiwanis Breakfast Club for their donation of $250 for the Disaster Relief in Texas. This past year has been a series of medium and small size disasters all over the United States. At the current rate of relief efforts the National Red Cross has a projected deficit of $23.4 millions. Chapters all over the nation have been asked to raise funds for the disaster relief. Our chapter is collecting aluminum cans to raise funds for disaster relief and is accepting donations.

Our local disaster committee is planning training classes for volunteers to help in local disasters. Call the office at 364-3761 for further information.

The board of directors will meet at noon Thursday at the Red Cross office.

A progressive standard first aid class will be held Tuesday, Feb. 25, at the Red Cross office. This class is open to anyone that has a current CPR certificate. The class is four hours of basic first aid and will begin at 6 p.m. Preregistration is required.

A standard first aid class will be held from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 22, at the Community Center. Preregistration is also required.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) - Arlo Guthrie is trying to ease neighbors' concerns about his plans for the building made famous in his song "Alice's Restaurant."

The folk singer has leased the building - a former church - for offices for his record company and a foundation that will benefit such causes as AIDS and the environment.

Last month, Guthrie's spiritual adviser, Ma Jaya, vowed to "bring death to the community and teach the community about death" by using the building for an AIDS center.

Feline receives new kidney

AUSTIN (AP) - Hypnotic Spring Break, a 5-year-old white Persian, is busy on the show circuit months after a kidney transplant at Texas A&M University.

"She's like a kitten again," said Austin veterinarian Laura Pigott, owner of the cat, called Spring for short.

Ms. Pigott, breeder of about 100 Persian show cats, assisted in Spring's five-hour transplant surgery last July by Phillip Hobson at A&M.

She plans to offer the service to Austin cat owners. However, they must be prepared to cope with numerous complications, pay a minimum of $1,000 initially and thousands more in continuing costs, and endure weeks of uncertainty.

YOUR EYES

WHY CONTACTS?

Folks who wear contact lenses swear by them. And it's not just because these people look better without glasses--they actually see better, too. There are real visual benefits. Because contact lenses move with the eyes, they eliminate the distortions sometimes caused by glasses, especially as one looks off to the side. They also provide vision that is more natural and truer to size. Side vision is improved with no frame edges. Weather isn't a problem. Unlike glasses, contacts won't fog up or get splattered. Where vision is considerably different in each eye, contact lenses can help the eyes work together as a team to provide better depth perception. They may also be used to control an eye that has a tendency to cross. And on certain unusual eye conditions--for example, kerataconous, or bulging cornea--contacts are the ideal way to provide good vision.

Cowart, Hund united in marriage

MRS. JAMES HUND
...nee Sherri Cowart

Sherri Lynn Cowart of Amarillo and James Walter Hund of Hereford were married during a candlelight wedding ceremony Friday evening in Second Baptist Church of Amarillo. Dr. Charles Jones of Amarillo officiated for the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Wayne and Sandra Cowart of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of James and Alice Hund of Hereford.

The church altar was decorated with two spiral candelabra and the unity candle was adorned with lace, ribbons and white silk roses.

Teresa Bates served as matron of honor and Ronald Fetsch was best man.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Carol Hund, and Patty Jesko and Lisa Nash.

Serving as groomsmen were the bride's brother, Devin Cowart, and Dwight Jesko and Rick Bartels.

Ushers included the groom's brothers, Charles and Mark Hund, and Phillip Birkenfeld and Joe Hochstein.

Flower girl was Abbey Nash, daughter of Lisa Nash. Ring bearer was Jeff Jesko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Jesko of Hereford.

Candles were lit by Charles and Mark Hund.

With Jojuan Jones providing accompaniment, Diane Morgan and Dennis Williams sang, "Only God Could Love You More", "I Will Be Here" and "Commitment Song."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length white taffeta gown delicately accented with simulated pearls and sequins. The V-shape neckline, which was covered with sheer illusion, descended to a fitted bodice and tiers of taffeta and lace. Tiny covered buttons topped the back closure.

The chapel-length train was caught up with satin ribbons as was the front of the skirt which displayed lace layers underneath. The elbow-length sleeves with lace motifs gathered to wide cuffs.

The four-tiered waist length veil formed a large nylon pouf at the back of a headpiece constructed of a band of satin rosettes detailed with sprays of simulated pearls and sequins.

The bride carried a bouquet of red roses, white carnations and stephanotis.

Her jewelry consisted of pearl drop earrings.

The bridal attendants were attired in red moire taffeta dresses which featured white brocaded moire taffeta bows at the back. They carried nosegays of red roses, white carnations and white stephanotis.

Mary Birkenfeld, the groom's sister, invited guests to register at the reception held in Western Cowpuncher in Amarillo.

The groom's sisters served refreshments. Cake was served by Angela Hochstein and Patty Hahn, and Rose Hund poured punch and coffee. Also, assisting was Carol Birkenfeld.

The bride attended Palo Duro High School in Amarillo and is currently employed by the Texas Department and Transportation as an engineer technician.

The bridegroom attended Hereford High School and is presently engaged in farming northeast of Hereford.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN! Thursday is Family Film Night, and February's feature is "The Adventures of Bullwhip Griffin", a comedy about a dignified Boston butler and his ward who take Old San Francisco's Barbary Coast by storm. The film stars Roddy McDowell, Karl Malden, and Suzanne Pleshette. (According to rental regulations, we have to pay extra if we use Disney's name to promote their products, so we can't tell you who produced this one. Suffice it to say that it was produced by a studio known for high quality, entertaining family films.) Showtime is 7:00 pm in the basement of the Library as usual. The Friends of the Library picks up the tab, so admission is FREE.

A piece of mail crossed my desk this week that I found interesting, and you may, too. On March 13-22, authentic replicas of the Nina, the Pinta, and the Santa Maria will be docked in Corpus Christi Bay and available for touring. "Los Barcos", as the sailing exhibit is called, will be in Galveston March 25-29. More information is available at the Library. I would strongly encourage you to take advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity if at all possible. On a personal note, a couple of years ago I happened to be in Galveston with my sisters (one of whom turned 40 last Wednesday), and we got the opportunity to tour a replica of Sir Francis Drake's ship the Golden Hind. It was one of the most informative and educational things I have ever done. Fun, too!

NEW THIS WEEK...Molly Ivins Can't Say That, Can She? by guess who? On the best seller list for weeks, this book is a collection of Ivins' columns and, as such, reflects her particular political slant. I rarely agree with her, but she does provide some food for thought, and she is entertaining.

Steven Schnur is not the sort of guy that people point out in the airport, but he seems to be the kind that you wouldn't mind sitting next to on an airplane. This Thing Called Love, by Schnur, is not intellectual or analytical, but merely the reflections of a family man. Subtitled "Thoughts Of An Out-of-Step Romantic", the book captures the musings and feelings in a way most of us have felt (and wish we could sell a book about).

Ever been in a job you hated? One where you were compelled to do things you didn't want to, to people you didn't want to do them to? Then you know how The Sheriff of Nottingham felt, at least from Richard Kluger's point of view, Robin Hood fans will want to see this perspective of King John's historically maligned stooge. Collecting taxes is a tough job, but somebody's got to do it. (Right, Margaret?)

And what would a week-be without a mystery? Rabbi Small is back, but maybe for the last time. Harry Kemelman has produced what looks like the end of the series with The Day the Rabbi Resigned. Surely not. Well, you'll have to find out for yourself.

The Library will be closed Monday in honor of Presidents' Day.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH (Maybe the century)... "For some unknown, insensitive reason, my wife wants my undivided attention when she's talking to me. She actually expects me to put the book down! She just doesn't understand that I can do two things at once--read a book and ignore her at the same time."--Dan Grindstaff

Are you one of 30 to 60 million people who can't stomach dairy foods? Have you ever had a problem with your digestive tract when you drink milk or eat dairy products?

Today many lactose-intolerant consumers can enjoy dairy products by using one of several commercial products containing an acid-active lactose (drops) to pre-treat milk products to reduce lactose content.

Remember if for this reason you have not eaten milk products-the most appropriate source of calcium-then start eating the recommended number of servings daily. This will help ensure that your intake is sufficient to lessen the risk of getting osteoporosis in later years and to attain or maintain greater bone density.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This article appeared in the Green Bay Press-Gazette. I thought your readers might find it interesting.--Rose, Your Reader in Wisconsin

"Capt. Lenny Rouse says nothing he's done in his 25 years of firefighting compares with the attention he's received since performing mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on a kitten he rescued from a fire.

"Rouse says the Superior, Wis., Fire Department has received scores of letters from people across the country praising their efforts in saving six kittens during a mobile home fire on Sept. 11.

"It's been overwhelming," Rouse said. "I never in my wildest dreams imagined that this small act would be so well received. The common theme of what they (the letter writers) said they saw is compassion. They felt as though firefighters made the effort to save a kitten because they consider pets as a part of the family and that's what made them feel so good."

"Pet lovers have reason to feel even better now because Rouse and his wife, Ginny, have made the kitten--which he was shown reviving in a Duluth News-Tribune photograph--a member of their family.

"Rouse said his wife used the photo to match the kitten when they adopted it from the Douglas County Humane Society, where the kittens were taken after the fire.

"Dennis Longshore, who took part in the kitten rescue along with firefighter Jim Lehtikoinen, also has adopted one of the kittens. Two of the kittens and three older cats from the fire still are available for adoption from the Superior Humane Society.

"The Rouses named the 8-week-old female kitten 'Smudge,' a slang term for a small fire.

"Rouse said he was reluctant to adopt the kitten because he thought his 4-year-old terrier, Scooter, would be jealous. But Smudge and Scooter are getting along swimmingly.

"This was the first time he had attempted CRP on an animal, Rouse said. 'I just scaled down the CPR, being it was a small creature,' he said. 'The technique was basically the same as for humans and the results were great. It didn't have any signs of life; it was just limp. I stimulated the kitten by tipping it over and going with my fingernails on its spine to try to get some reaction. It started to take some breath and it actually came back to life. That was the real nice thing about it.'

"Rouse, captain of Engine Company No. 2, has been a little uncomfortable with the attention he's received regarding the kittens. He said the firefighters' real concern was for the six-member family that was able to escape without serious injury from the burning home. After it was determined that the family was safe, firefighters turned their attention to the kittens, Rouse said.

"A lot of people saw that picture and a lot of cards and letters were sent in my name, but firefighting or rescue is not a one-man show," Rouse said. "It's the best example of teamwork--that's what firefighting is all about."

DEAR ROSE: What a warm and wonderful write-up. It serves to remind us what wonderfully courageous and sensitive people firefighters are. They never know what tomorrow will bring, and whatever it is, they are ready.

Bless them.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Working Smart

Most people like hard work. Particularly when they are paying for it.--Franklin P. Jones

Ah, the virtues of hard work. Nearly every 'self made' person will tell you that their success is the result of hard work. Now don't get me wrong, I enjoy watching hard work as much as the next person. However, hard work alone is no guarantee of success. Perhaps the following story will illustrate my point.

Two lumberjacks were assigned the task of cutting down a stand of pines. Frank was a big, burly man who swung an axe with the best. Peter was small and new to the logging crew.

The two men started at opposite ends of the grove and soon Frank downed his first tree. He was a little surprised when Peter's first tree fell shortly after his own. For an hour the two men downed trees at a nearly equal rate.

Frank continued chopping steadily and smiled to himself as he saw Peter stop to rest. However, Peter soon resumed chopping and Frank was surprised when the two trees crashed to the ground at nearly the same time.

Frank redoubled his efforts. Chips flew as his bit deep into the soft wood. However, by lunch time Peter had down more trees even though he had taken several short breaks.

Frank vowed to catch up. Right after lunch he renewed the assault with vigor. He chopped relentlessly, but still lost ground. By the end of the day Peter had cut seven more trees than Frank. As they rode the wagon back to the logging camp at dusk, Frank asked Peter how he cut down more trees and still took so many rest breaks. Peter looked surprised. "I wasn't just resting," he said. "I was sharpening my axe."

It's Not How Hard You Work

In the past four years I've consulted with nearly a thousand entrepreneurs. I'm learning it is not only how hard you chop, but also how sharp your axe is. To say it another way, it isn't how hard you work, but how smart you work.

Working smarter is not a natural function for most entrepreneurs. They are doers by nature. They have strong personalities and they make things happen. When they get behind, their natural tendency is to chop harder. However, it is only when this natural tendency is combined with the skill of working smarter that the productivity level increases significantly.

The PIE Theory

There are three critical elements of working smarter. The first letters form the acronym PIE. The P stands for planning. Thousands of years ago the great King Solomon penned these words, "The plans of the diligent lead surely to profit." (Proverbs 21:5 NIV) The more I work with small businesses the more I believe the wisdom of this passage. Planning is surely the "axe sharpening" of business.

The I in the PIE theory is for implementation. The very best of plans need to be put in action. There is work involved. Planning keeps the axe sharp and implementing swings the axe.

A common mistake in implementation is failure to take time to do the job right the first time. Those who rush at life as if they were killing snakes frequently miss the mark. However, they always find time to do the job correctly the second time.

The third element in the PIE theory is evaluation. Plans must include goals that we can measure to determine their effectiveness. For example, our plan might call for reducing defects to one part per million produced. We can measure production results to see if we met our goal.

Plan, implement and evaluate: The sequence of working smarter, not harder. Perhaps Ogden Nash summed it up with these words, "If you don't want to work you have to work to earn enough money so that you won't have to work."

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Ben Vereen says black directors are making violent movies because black audiences won't go to see anything else.

"If a filmmaker comes out and makes a great film about black people who have the same struggles as his white brothers and sisters and it's not dealt with in sensationalism, the community won't go out and see it," the actor, who is black, said Tuesday.

"I think if we want to change that we have to say, 'We support you, now bring us your art. Show us the real stuff.'"

Split Bedroom Floor Plan

L-SHAPED RANCH PROVIDES COMFORTABLE LIVING

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A spacious foyer and open rail staircase all in full view contribute to the openness and easy flow of this comfortable floor plan. A large fireplace, vaulted ceilings, extra windows, and sun deck access contribute to the relaxed, at-home feeling of the activity room. Adjoining the activity room is the dining room which, in turn, flows directly into the spacious kitchen.

The master suite is privately situated at one end of the home. The bedroom with its tray ceiling and oversized walk-in closet opens onto the sun deck. The master bath features a double vanity, whirlpool tub, separate shower, and separate private commode compartment. The other two bedrooms are located at the opposite end of the home and share a common bath.

Additional amenities in this home include a conveniently located laundry area, an attic fan to increase energy efficiency, and a double garage.

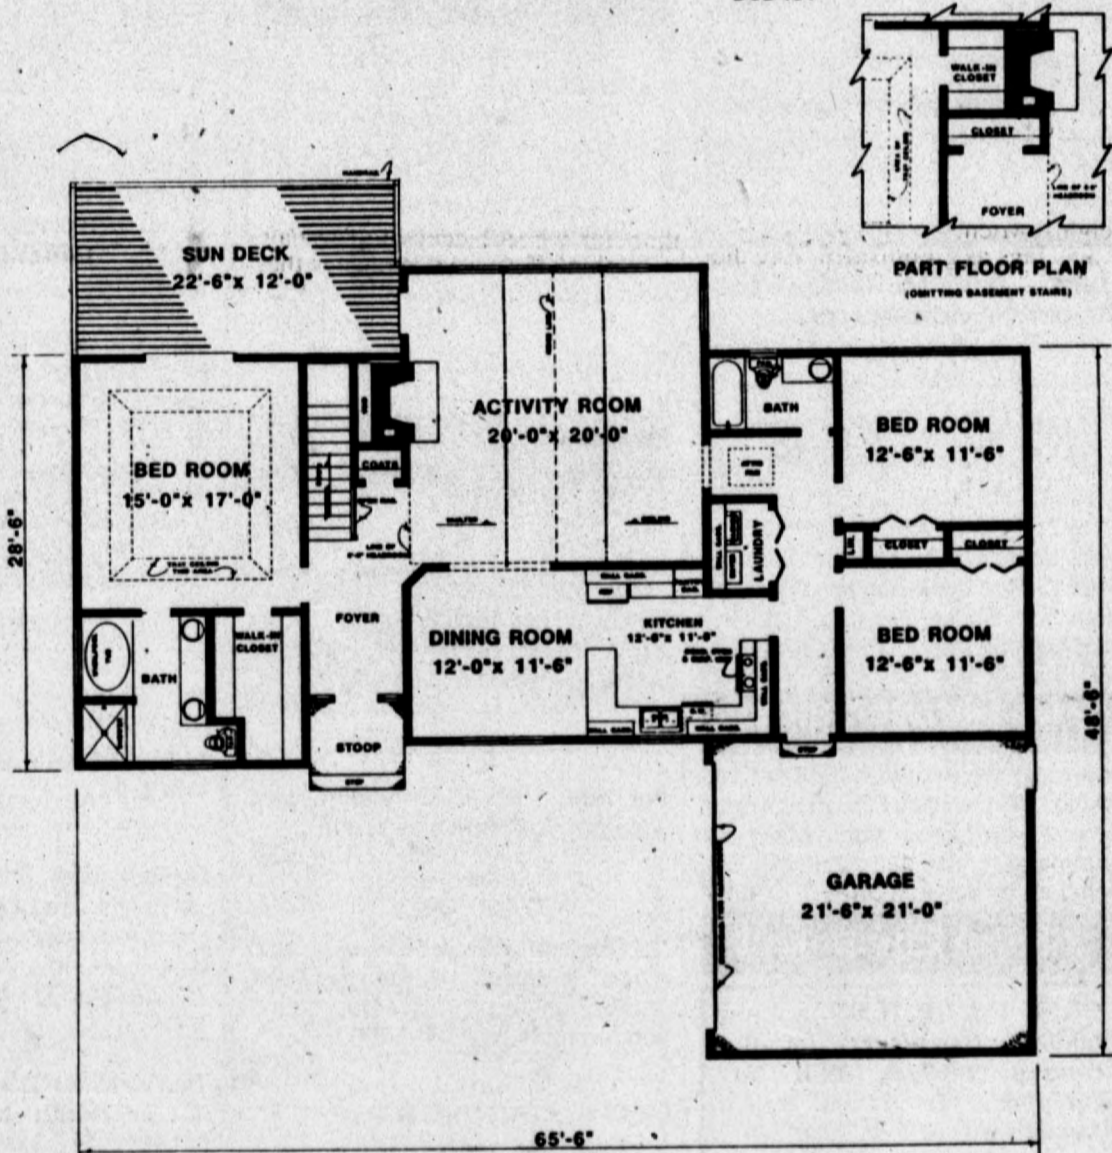

This home can be built on either a basement or crawl space foundation.

The horizontal frame exterior is enhanced with 12-lite shuttered windows, gabled roof lines, and decorative front door with stained glass inset.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 898. It includes 1,899 square feet of heated area.

All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Question-Answer

Q. - The concrete walls of our old home were originally poured in small batches. Now the walls are spalling (chipping and breaking up) at these joints, and a white, powdery substance forms during the decomposition process. A previous owner mortared over these areas, but that's breaking off, too. I'd like to chip out the bad spots, remortar and apply a sealer. Should I seal or mortar first, and what kind of sealer is best?

A. - Your condition is a moisture problem occurring at the nonbonded joints (cold joints) between the pours. Moisture has let water-soluble salts, a concrete chemical reaction byproduct, leach out. This is known as efflorescence.

Using a bricklayer's hammer and a cold chisel, chip the spalled joints clean and chisel the edges in a dovetail shape (undercut on the inside) at least a 1/2-inch wide and 1/2-inch deep. Patch the joint with a compound such as Waterplug, then apply two coats of Thoro-seal waterproofing coating to prevent any further moisture problems.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Sure, you could go on stumbling through the housing market. Running into dead ends and getting cornered with too little information.

Or you could nail down that new home the easy way. By consulting an experienced real estate agent.

An agent can point out options you may have missed. Get you inside interesting homes that you may never have seen otherwise. Even do a lot of the groundwork, so you don't have to.

Like researching financing packages. Checking through the multiple-listing service for homes that fit your needs -- and your pocketbook. Negotiating with the seller. And arranging for inspections. He or she will even be there at closing.

So instead of forging ahead without knowing what's out there, get some help from an expert. A real estate agent.

Inside The Hereford Brand, you'll find both qualified agents and valuable information about home buying. Everyday, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And The Brand's Sunday housing section examine the latest market trends and housing opportunities.

With the right guide, hitting your mark can be child's play.

THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.

Who speaks in the children's 'Best Interest'?

Sunday on NBC, In the Best Interest of the Children stars Sarah Jessica Parker as a manic-depressive mother who fights to retain custody of her children, despite her deteriorating condition. Based on a true story, the film also features Lexi Randall as Parker's eldest child.

True story of family in crisis

By Dan Rice

The foster care programs of America and elsewhere are intended to provide suitable temporary homes for children in need, yet sometimes even the best of intentions can be thwarted. NBC has dramatized an actual case in point with the story of good people at odds who all claim to be thinking In the Best Interest of the Children. The movie airs on Sunday, Feb. 16.

Sarah Jessica Parker (Equal Justice, Square Pegs) stars as Callie Cain, an acute manic-depressive whose string of romantic trysts has left her with four young daughters and an infant son. She returns to her Iowa hometown with her brood hoping to start life afresh, but instead her family slips into squalor, living on food stamps. The role of adult is performed by her oldest girl, Jessica (Lexi Randall). It is Jessica who feeds the baby in the middle of the night, Jessica who reminds her mother to take her birth control pills, and Jessica who comforts her siblings in times of distress. She is clearly the backbone of the family, but, as she reminds her sisters, she is also just a little girl.

When Callie's illness flares up, her brother John (Gary Graham of Alien Nation) suggests she needs more treatment and assures her he will care for her children while she is away. The paranoid Callie accuses him of wanting to steal them. Crowded by a social services investigation, Callie finally agrees to commit herself, but only on the condition that her brother isn't granted custody of her family.

The children enter the foster care program and are placed in the farm home of Patty Pepper (Sally Struthers) and her husband, a salt-of-the-earth, childless couple whose unconditional and stable love gives the children a family life they never dreamed possible. With the state-forced visits to Callie proving more and more disturbing to them, the children want to keep their new home with the adoption-minded Peppers. If it had been left to the children to decide what was in their best interest, the story might have ended here.

But Callie is feeling better and wants her kids back. Brother John thinks they would be better off with him and his family, but there are other forces at play in the situation. The social services department must adhere to a strict case plan, the children's court-appointed attorney (Elizabeth Ashley) seeks to protect them from all parties, and Patty Pepper has initiated a media campaign to help her hold on to what she's got.

Parker's performance is one of understated brilliance, and Struthers' perky monument to maternal instincts warms the soul. But Randall's guardian big sister, who longs for someone to take care of her, is the heart of this very emotional film.

SITAR NOTES

Struthers rich in things that count

By Suzanne Gill

If you're planning a fundraiser, Sally Struthers recommends you take her name off your mailing list. Although she starred for seven years as Archie Bunker's daughter Gloria on the CBS hit All in the Family, she gets no residuals now the series is in reruns and even airs occasionally in the network's prime-time lineup. "It's really hard," she says, "to have your work back on the air and have people talking about it, and Mike Dukakis writes to you that he wants money for his campaign, and you write back and say, 'No, could you send me money?'"

A single mother, Struthers has done voice-over work (she was the voice of Fred Flintstone's daughter on The Pebbles and Bamm Bamm Show) to support herself. Currently, she is the voice of yet another daughter, Charlene, on ABC's Dinosaurs. On Sunday, Feb. 16, she plays a loving foster mother in the NBC movie In the Best Interest of the Children.

For 17 years, Struthers has been the Christian Children's Fund's national chairwoman. She donates her time to the organization, making numerous trips overseas to represent CCF and meet the youngsters who are aided by funds she helps raise in the United States.

"I travel around the country, I make speeches, I do interviews, I shoot commercials (for CCF). I just do whatever's needed, and there's always a lot of need."

Black History Month rates cable's best

By Dan Rice
Cable television, proves it is not blind to culture in February when it commemorates Black History Month with a variety of fine programming.

On Tuesday, Feb. 18, the first black American athlete to attain international recognition is remembered in Tracks of Glory: The Major Taylor Story, an exclusive world premiere on The Disney Channel. Taylor literally pedaled his way out of poverty when bicycle racing was a new spectator sport, becoming the U.S. and world champion by 1898. Invited in 1902 to race in Australia, where bicycle racing was big business, Taylor was pitted against two racist American cyclists, leaving more than a bicycle race at stake. Phil Morris stars as Major Taylor.

All that jazz just sounds like the blues. Debuting Wednesday, Feb. 19, The Showtime 30-Minute Movie stars John Amos in Without a Pass, the story of a successful jazz saxophonist who returns to the States after a 25-year self-imposed exile in Europe, only to reacquaint himself with the bigotry he had sought to escape. The film was scored by jazz virtuoso Branford Marsalis, who also makes an appearance. Without a Pass is presented as a companion piece to the film The Long Walk Home, a drama set during the civil rights struggle of the '50s. Whoopi Goldberg and Sissy Spacek head the cast.

SOAP TALK

Reader spots soap-hopper

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: My 21-year-old son and I are having a disagreement. He says the actor who plays the priest on One Life to Live is the same actor who was Cal Winters on Days of Our Lives; I disagree. Your answer will settle a $25 bet. —Sue Klevering, Northville, Mich.

Dear Sue: I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but you just lost $25. Wortham Krimmer, who plays minister Andrew Carpenter on OLTL, was the original Cal on Days.

Dear Candace: I have two questions about Santa Barbara. How did Ted become Sophia's child? I remember Ted coming on the show a couple of years ago and C.C. had an affair with some woman in Paris and she had his child. The woman brought Ted to C.C. when she was dying, and at that point C.C. hadn't known he had that son. It also seems that when Ted left the show he had just married the youngest of three sisters. Now there is no mention of his wife.

If Brick Wallace is actually Channing Capwell, where is he and why is Sophia still claiming to have shot Channing? —K.C., Red Wing, Minn.

Dear Reader: I think you have Ted, Jeffrey and Greg confused. Ted is Sophia's son; of course, parentage can change at any time on the soaps. Many years ago he was married to Hayley. When that didn't work out, he was involved with Laken Lockridge.

Jeffrey, on the other hand, was the son of Pamela, C.C.'s ex-wife. He married Kelly Capwell. They ended up living with Pamela, who tried to kill Kelly. Kelly and Jeffrey divorced soon after and he left town.

When C.C. decided to write an autobiography, he hired Megan Richardson to help him. She soon moved in with him, and then brought her son, Greg, to Santa Barbara to live with them. Megan had a one-night-stand with C.C. years ago and had gotten pregnant. It turned out C.C. was really Greg's father. Megan was dying of leukemia, so she asked C.C. to take care of Greg and left town.

Brick left Santa Barbara for a job in another town with the police force. They still say Sophia shot the young man they thought was Channing at the time.

I hope this clears things up for you. © TV Listing Inc.

British comedian Rowan Atkinson plays a hapless Everyman with a knack for disaster in Mr. Bean. Showing as separate sketches in February on HBO, the series debuts in April.

Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Bean and others

'Blackadder' star shows a different cheekiness
 By Suzanne Gill
 Lizard tongued and rubber faced, comedian Rowan Atkinson is the Oxford-educated son of a family of land- and cinema owners. At 26, he became the youngest person ever to have a one-man show in London's West End theater district. After success on the BBC's Not the Nine O'Clock News, tours of Australia, New Zealand and the Far East, numerous awards and an appearance in the James Bond film Never Say Never Again, the BBC gave him seed money for his quasi-historical "situation tragedy," Blackadder. Exported to North America, the bawdy farce developed a cult following on cable and PBS. Intending now "to make a bit of a splash" in America, Atkinson is unveiling Mr. Bean, a mostly silent comic figure he developed during his student days, on HBO. Reminiscent of Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and Jacques Tati, Mr. Bean is "exactly like I was when I was 9 years old," Atkinson says. "He can be nasty."

 An inelegant Everyman, Mr. Bean evolved from the comic situations Atkinson found for him. The first was "a man who can't stay awake in church." In more recent sketches, he has cheated on a test or put on a bathing suit in public. Mr. Bean specials, made up of five- to 15-minute sketches, are hits in Great Britain and have won prestigious international comedy awards, including the Montreux Golden Rose in 1990. Selected sketches are currently airing between movies on HBO; half-hour Mr. Bean specials will air beginning in April.

 The real Rowan Atkinson (if that person ever appears on stage) will be seen on the pay channel in March in a one-man comedy special consisting of far more verbal sketches from his West End repertoire. Where Mr. Bean is the sort of fellow who gets his fly stuck while waiting to meet royalty, Mr. Atkinson is unafraid to lampoon any monolith — even Holy Scripture. Though he makes his point, he does it where angels, and many viewers, will be loathe to follow.

TIME OUT

UCLA Bruins seek new glory

By Steve Paschal
 It all started in 1964, the year a future NBA Hall of Famer named Walt Hazzard led UCLA to its first NCAA basketball championship. The Bruins continued to dominate the game for the next 12 years, winning 10 national titles under coach John Wooden. Players Lew Alcindor (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) and Bill Walton led their team to numerous victories during those years, but since then, the Bruins have never again reached the heights attained by their illustrious alumni. When UCLA goes up against Notre Dame on NBC Saturday, Feb. 22, the Bruins will be led by a 6'10" senior who hopes to return his team to its former glory. In three seasons, forward Don MacLean has emerged as the Bruins' most prolific scorer since Alcindor, and last year he became the fourth UCLA player ever to score more than 700 points in a season. At his present pace, MacLean will hold both the school and PAC-10 career scoring records by NCAA Tournament time in March. But the Bruins, who became the PAC-10 frontrunners when they upset preseason favorite Arizona, are far from a one-dimensional team. With players Tracy Murray and Derrick Martin in supporting roles, they may be the ones to put a stop to the current nonsense about a Duke Blue Devils dynasty when the final four meet in Minneapolis. © TV Listing Inc.

'T-2' stars top of talk

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Some information please on three of my favorite showbiz people: Linda Hamilton, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Paul Reubens. Are they married? And an address to write them at? Also, how come none of the Q & A columns will answer my questions on Reubens? Is his name taboo now because of the so-called scandal he was involved in recently? —Lynda, Anaheim, Calif.

A: Schwarzenegger is married to Maria Shriver. You can write to him care of ICM, 8899 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90048. Hamilton is divorced and can be written to care of Triad Artists, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., 16th Floor, Los Angeles, Calif., 90067. I don't think Paul Reubens' name is taboo exactly, but following the incident in Florida, he has maintained a low profile. I tried to get some information on him, and was given a contact number in Los Angeles, but when I called, there was no answer. I do know he is not married. Sorry, wish I could be of more help.

Q: I am a fan of Karen Black. I would like to write to her. Please give me her address and some information on her. —Judy Perez, Anaheim, Calif.

A: She was born July 1, 1942, in Park Ridge, Ill. She dropped out of high school to get married, but was soon divorced. Following the dream she had since she was 7 years old, Black (who was born Karen Blanche Ziegler), headed to New York, where she studied with Lee Strasberg and supported herself with various odd jobs. In 1965, she landed a role in the Broadway production The Playroom. In 1966, she started her Hollywood career, and in 1969, she appeared in Easy Rider. It was her performance in 1970's Five Easy Pieces opposite Jack Nicholson, however, that really sparked her career. She has been divorced three times and was married in 1987 to her fourth husband. The couple lives in California with their daughter and Black also has a son from a previous marriage. You can write her care of Epstein Wycoff, 280 South Beverly Drive, Suite 400, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: I would like you to help settle a bet my husband and I have. I say Tom Selleck and Sam Elliott are brothers. My husband says no. Could you settle this for us? —A Wisconsin Fan, Ashland, Wis.

A: They are not related. Perhaps your confusion arises from Selleck and Elliott's portrayal of the Sackett brothers in the films The Sacketts and The Shadow Riders, both based on characters created by Louis L'Amour.

Q: Could you give me some background on Chuck Norris? I met him in Las Vegas just walking down the street. I am a fan and hope to one day own all his movies. Do you have an address also? —Betty Stump, Camp Verde, Ariz.

A: The actor was born Carlos Ray Norris in Ryan, Okla., in 1940. In the early 1960s, he joined the Air Force and was sent to Korea, where he learned martial arts. After earning his black belt in karate and obtaining his discharge, Norris pursued karate professionally. In 1968, he became the World Middleweight Champion. He held the title until he retired from competition in 1974. He then opened a karate school in Los Angeles, which attracted many celebrity students. Steve McQueen helped him get his start in an acting career; Return of the Dragon with Bruce Lee marked his film debut. From there, his career kept rising. He is married and has two children. You can write him care of ICM, 8899 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

HAVE FUN
at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

MEDICINE MAN: Starring Sean Connery and Lorraine Bracco. The problem with this movie is that it can't decide what it wants to be. Adventure, drama created by conflict, social commentary, or a romantic comedy. It seems to be a little of each and this is unfortunate, for the story line is intriguing: an old reprobate biochemist working in the Amazon rain forest, in tattered clothes and old sneakers, on the verge of astonishing the world with a major medical breakthrough. A tenacious, successful female scientist is sent by the pharmaceutical corporation sponsoring the biochemist's research to investigate the reclusive genius. They meet, only to discover they have highly divergent ideas about research. However, what unfolds is a pedantic and predictable story of "falling in love" in spite of differences, with I told you so resolutions. The idea of a pharmacological drugstore in the rain forest (which is disappearing from our earth at one acre per second) is a fascinating premise. So fascinating that Medicine Man begs for a literate script with engaging dialogue. What it has hardly rises above comic book text. While Sean Connery does not do his best work, Lorraine Bracco does. She has radiating charisma and is enjoyable to watch. Her character is a hard-nosed, very urbane New York smart mouth; an irreverent city girl surrounded by the beauty of the forest and mountains, the Indians, and the unstudied flowers. Her seduction by them is great fun to watch. The whole film is almost worth the scene where she rises on a harness and rigging through the thick, dense covering above the soaring jungle canopy. The other reason would be the Jerry Goldsmith musical score. It, along with some of the scenery, will take your breath away. Neither, unfortunately, are enough to overcome the inept direction and poor script. See it, but don't expect a blockbuster. Rated a mild PG-13.

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

THE ROCKETEER: (1991) Starring Bill Campbell, Timothy Dalton and Jennifer Connelly. With its cast of characters, this Disney film has the makings of an Indiana Jones saga: a dashing young Cliff (Bill Campbell) with a belching rocket contraption on his back, ever ready to defy death with a twinkle in his eye; swarthy Neville Sinclair (Timothy Dalton), the film idol and closet Nazi who covets Cliff's flying machine for the fatherland; Cliff's sweet, vampy girlfriend (Jennifer Connelly). Stir in the Mafia, Howard Hughes, stylish 30s settings and frantic chases. Is it Indiana Jones? Well, no. The film does lack a vivid personality of its own, but it has just enough charm to make it an agreeable family film. The movie also has number of good character actors that give the comic book plot a little zip, and Campbell and Connelly are pretty enough to forgive almost anything. It's a light hearted, mild PG-13.

HARD TO FIND BUT WORTH THE EFFORT

CIRQUE DU SOLEIL: WE REINVENT THE CIRCUS: (1992/French/Canadian) IVA/Polygram. Circus it remains, sort of, but this show by the French-Canadian troupe is theater, performed with mesmerizing bravura done up in high-tech gloss. Clowns and mimes set the stage for the kind of acts that earn the drumrolls in conventional big tops: a contortionist who slithers around herself like a snake, a dozen people on a bicycle, wire walkers and aerialists with unnerving panache, acrobats who climb on and over one another as if they were pieces of gym equipment. Most involving is the music, a breezy ethereal score that lifts the performance and wafts it along. Not rated. Would be a G. Fifty-five minutes.

Four Boxes

THE GREATEST STORIES HOLLYWOOD EVER TOLD IN PREPARATION FOR THE EASTER SEASON

SAMSON & DELILAH: (1949) Starring Victor Mature and Hedy Lamar. Cecil B. DeMille's version of the biblical tale of the mighty Samson, whose power was curtailed by the scheming Delilah. Oscars for Art and Set Direction and Costumes. Tremendously entertaining. Would be a PG.

Three Boxes

THE ROBE: (1953) Starring Richard Burton and Jean Simmons.

The Lloyd C. Douglas novel about a Roman tribune ordered to crucify the Messiah, and his conversion to Christianity when he dons the robe of Jesus is reverent, stately, and impressively produced. Would be a PG.

Four Boxes

SPARTACUS: (1960) Starring Kirk Douglas and Laurence Olivier. This star-studded epic, based on historical fact about a slave revolt against the Romans, is a top-notch film for admirers of big spectacle. Four Oscars include: Best Supporting Actor (Peter Ustinov) and Cinematography. With the previously edited scenes returned to the original film, would be an R.

Four Boxes

BARABBAS: (1962) Starring Anthony Quinn. Lavish spectacle concerning the thief whom Jesus replaced on the cross; the thief's life in the mines, and his victories as a gladiator. Would be PG-13.

Four Boxes

TWO FROM THE BLOCKBUSTER CATEGORY

HOT SHOTS: (1991) Starring Charlie Sheen, Valeria Golino and Lloyd Bridges. Believe it or not, a very funny spoof from Hollywood on flying combat movies. Specifically, a spoof on Top Gun. It's a winner in every way, from mush-brained (scene stealer) Lloyd Bridges to wacko stud pilot, Charlie Sheen. Rent this one for lots of laughs. Rated R.

Three Boxes

REGARDING HENRY: (1991) Starring Harrison Ford and Annette Bening. A sweet story about how easy it is to start all over again and make everything come out perfect. Harrison Ford plays a ruthless lawyer who, after a near-fatal injury, gets to "do it again" the right way . . . and keep wife Annette Bening. Rated PG-13.
